Biography/History

Ellen Davidson Baer (born 1939) received her baccalaureate degree from Columbia University Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing in 1962. She continued her education at New York University earning both her master's and doctoral degrees. Dr. Baer initially began her illustrious career as a clinical nurse working with acutely ill adults before transitioning into and advocating for the nurse practitioner in the 1970s. Before joining the University of Pennsylvania in 1980, she worked at Lehman College and City University of New York teaching nurse practitioners.

At Penn, Dr. Baer directed a federally funded program in oncology for graduate students in addition to another demonstration project for undergraduate students to have clinical experiences caring for AIDS patients. Along with her teaching responsibilities, she was the Associate Director of the Barbara Bates Center for the Study of the History of Nursing. She also served as the director of the nursing doctoral program at her alma mater and was a Fulbright Senior Scholar at the University of Athens. In 1998 Dr. Baer joined the University of Miami as the Wallace Gilroy Visiting Professorship at the School of Nursing, made possible by the Hugoton Foundation.

A prolific writer, Dr. Baer focused on creating a voice for nursing past and present by examining contemporary issues through their historical context. Topics of issues range from the struggles of nursing educators in the academic workplaces to the dangers of hospital and healthcare restructuring to women's roles to finding a voice for nursing. Dr. Baer's research has been supported by the National Center for Nursing Research, the Division of Nursing of the United States Public Health Service, and the Helene Fuld Health, the results of which she has published widely in books and journals. She is co-editor of Enduring Issues in American Nursing and Nurses' Work: Issues Across Time and Space. Dr. Baer has received numerous honors throughout her memorable career. Awards include the AJN Book of the Year, the Lavinia L. Dock, the AAHN Distinguished Nurse Research Award, the ANA Centennial Nursing Heritage Award as well as the Columbia University Alumni Medal.

Scope and Contents

The Ellen D. Baer collection was acquired by the University of Pennsylvania, Barbara Bates Center for the Study of the History of Nursing in 2005 and 2013. The materials are arranged in ten series that shed light on her prolific academic career as well as insight into her personal life.

The first series concentrates on Dr. Baer's personal life, particularly through correspondence and cards. In addition there are several papers outlining her family history as well as the personal experiences of both herself and her brother, Jim Davidson, through his fight with AIDS.

Series 2 focuses on the academic career of Dr. Baer, primarily at the University of Pennsylvania. These papers explore her professional correspondence, the two federally funded grants she initiated (Oncology and AIDS), her involvement with the Barbara Bates Center as well as the work she did with creating and directing the Hillman Scholars at Penn. Materials also focus on her book drafts and correspondence, consultations, and grant materials amongst other documents.

Series 3 documents the Columbia University-Presbyterian Hospital Alumni Association and the turmoil between the group and the Dean of the School of Nursing, of which Dr. Baer was involved in.

The fourth series contains all the research data from the various projects Dr. Baer work on during her career. This includes correspondence, research copies, notes, and other related materials for each project. Projects include her work on Leonhard Fuld, Nursing History, Chicago training schools, and other hospital training schools in New York. There is also a significant number of notecards pertaining to her various monographs.

Series 5 is the collection of papers, presentations and publications Dr. Baer gave and wrote during her career. They primarily remain in the order she arranged, either by date or theme. Of note are her "Feminist Disdain" piece and related pieces for the New York Times, her speeches on AIDS, St. Vincent's and other training schools, and women's voices, feminism, and nursing. Series 6 contains any printed materials gathered by Dr. Baer.

The last 4 series (7-10) consists of various professional and some personal photographs, slide materials for presentations, audio and video cassette tapes, awards and artifacts.

SERIES 2.2. COURSES, 1984-1994.

SERIES 2.2-1. ONCOLOGY, 1984-1990.

Scope and Contents note

This course was nursing class funded by the Department of Health and Human Services, Public Service, Division of Nursing, originally between 1985 and 1988. The purpose of the program was to expand the existing Adult Health and Illness Program by creating an Oncology Nursing track to prepare students with advanced knowledge and practice for their complex roles in balancing cancer control and management in the growing cases of cancer patients. Correspondence, grant applications and reports, and course materials document this important federally funded grant.

SERIES 2.4. HILLMAN SCHOLARS PROGRAM BY THE ALEX HILLMAN FAMILY FOUNDATION, 1989-1995. RESTRICTIONS MAY APPLY.

Scope and Contents note

The Alex Hillman Family Foundation partnered with the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing to develop the Hillman Scholars Program. This program, first introduced in 1990, began as an innovative loan-forgiveness program that provided scholarships to nursing students in exchange for a two year work commitments at a New York hospital. Since then this program has expanded to other locations and in 2011 the Hillman Scholars Program in Nursing Innovation was developed to foster nursing PhDs. The materials in this series were generated during the creation of the program, its initial inception, and during Dr. Baer’s tenure as program director. Documents include correspondence, applications, clinical placements, reports, financial reports, and other related items. Some individual folders may be restricted to protect student personal identifiable information.

SERIES 4. RESEARCH, 1986-1993.

SERIES 4.1. HELENE FULD TRUST MATERIALS FOR LEONHARD FELIX FULD PROJECT, 1990-1993.

Scope and Contents note

Dr. Baer's research for the Helene Fuld Health Trust was part of the Trust's efforts to collate and preserve the record and history of founder Dr. Leonhard Felix Fuld and his family's interest in funding nurses' education and welfare projects. This was in conjunction to a film project to recount people's recollections of Trust related events and the scholarly historical research would be the bases for any script needed for the film. The research led to the publication of a research essay on Dr. Fuld and his family in Leonhard Felix Fuld, 19th century reformer in a 20th century world. (Indianapolis, Ind: Center Nursing Press of Sigma Theta Tau International, 1993). Documents in this section include research notes and primary and secondary source copies, research correspondence and quarterly progress reports. Also see series 5 for additional papers, series 8 for the Fuld Video Tapes from David Wallace and series 2.7 for research notes on notecards.

SERIES 4.3. EMPATHY STUDY, 1984-1986.

Scope and Contents note

This project focused on students' reactions to clinical experiences. Conducted by Dr. Baer and Barbara Lowery, the research focused on patient and situational factors that affect nursing students' like or dislike of caring for patients. The resulting data was collected via a questionnaire arranged to represent various models on empathy position. Documents include research notes, data collected, coding to record and analyze the data, empathy literature and draft papers.

Also see series 5 Papers, Presentations and Publications.
