Biography/History

Dr. Lois Evans received her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from West Virginia University and her Masters of Science in Nursing and PhD degrees from The Catholic University of America. In 1984, she joined the University of Pennsylvania's faculty where she distinguished herself as an educator, research, administrator and practitioner. As one of the national leaders in elder care research, she along with her colleague Dr. Neville Strumpf, developed ground breaking research into restraint use on the elderly. This research led to shaping new policy and standards to reduce restraint use in nursing homes and hospitals. During her tenure at Penn, Dr. Evans provided leadership in improving faculty diversity and faculty mentorship. Drawing on her background involving mental health, long term care and health systems, Dr. Evans influenced the development of Penn's School of Nursing clinical nursing programs and providing community-based services, including PACE (Program of All-inclusive Care for Elders) and a geriatric hospital. In addition, federal granted funded her idea of integrating psychiatric mental health graduate nursing curriculum and developing the psychiatric mental health nurse practitioner program. She also engaged in national efforts for education and practice in geropsychiatric nursing. In 2005 she was one of the coordinators of a national conference to assure the direction of the geropsychiatric nursing field. Based on this work, along with funding from the John A. Hartford Foundation, she co-directed the Geropsychiatric Nursing Collaborative at the American Academy of Nursing, which focuses on developing curricula to educate nurses to provide mental health services for the elderly. Lois Evans' research into nursing facilities and the sundown syndrome led to her award winning investigations with Dr. Neville Strumpf, on reducing restraint use in nursing home. Also related to these influential studies were interest in individualized care, geriatric mental health, behaviors in dementia, and models and outcomes of care for frail elders. Dr. Evans published numerous important articles, chapters, and books, including Restraint-Free Care: Individualized Approaches for Frail Elders and Academic Nursing Practice: Helping to Shape the Future of Health Care, which describes Penn's experience in implementing a model that combined education, research and practice.

Lois Evans received numerous awards during her dedicated career, including the Claire M. Fagin Distinguished Researcher Lecture & Award, The Baxter Foundation Episteme Award, The John A. Hartford Institute for Geriatric Nursing Practice Research Award, Lindback Awards for Distinguished Teaching, and inducted into the International Nurse Researcher Hall of Fame.

Scope and Contents

The Lois K. Evans papers is a collection acquired by the University of Pennsylvania, Barbara Bates Center for the Study of the History of Nursing from 2010-2012. The papers, arranged in nine series, shed light on her prolific professional career.

Series 1 and 2 explores her personal life and career prior to the University of Pennsylvania. Series I contains personal documents such as awards and tenure notes. The second series focuses on her academic work prior to Penn, including talks, presentations, and her work at Georgetown University. In the third series, Lois Evans' professional experiences are explored. The materials in this section sheds light during her tenure at the University of Pennsylvania. This includes correspondence, committee minutes, papers and courses. In addition, there are numerous papers related to the development of the Penn Nursing Network, including information about CARE, LIFE, strategic planning, general files and correspondence.

Series 4 focuses on Dr. Evans' ground breaking research projects. The largest subseries is her work on reducing restraints among the frail elderly in nursing homes and hospitals which changed national policies. The documented correspondence, research files, literature used, publications as well as research notes and data for smaller projects in addition to the 3 larger projects (Reducing Restraints, Maintaining Restraint Reduction and Relationship Between Physical Restraints Removal and Falls and Injuries). This series also brings to light the original study that influenced her later work on restraints, the Sundown Syndrome Study. The fifth series sheds light on her efforts with geropsychiatric nursing programs and educational efforts.

The sixth series is a collection of documents Dr. Evans collected on the history of nursing. This includes the development of Schools of Nursing as well as gerontologic nursing both at Penn and other institutions. The seven series sheds light on her involvement with national associations, including Sigma Theta Tau and the American Association of Colleges of Nursing for the John A. Hartford Foundation. In addition, there are correspondence and program conferences for the Regional and the National Nursing Centers Consortium.

The last two series (8-9) contain various multi-media formats, including slides and audio cassettes of field notes related to Lois Evans' restraint projects. In addition, there are several pins and other artifacts from the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing gathered by Dr. Evans' during her tenure as well as a pair of wrist restraints from the 1990s.

SERIES 3.8. PENN MACY INSTITUTE TO ADVANCE ACADEMIC NURSING PRACTICE, 1999-2002.

Scope and Contents note

“The purpose of the Penn Macy Initiative, funded by the Josiah Macy, Jr. Foundation, is to help schools of nursing in research-intensive environments develop practices in which they will have control over patient care and, therefore, opportunities to introduce advances in nursing research and education. Academic medicine had benefited tremendously from its numerous linkages to health care delivery systems that enable it to conduct research, quickly put new research into practice and educate medical student in environments that incorporate the latest research in clinical care delivery. In nursing too, the triad of education, research and practice must be vitally bound if we are to prepare nurses for clinical practice in the 21st century.” *taken from opening letter in 1st Conference binder

SERIES 4. PROJECTS, 1980-2009.

Scope and Contents note

Evans worked on many projects throughout her career. These documents are grouped by topic. The subseries Restraints contains several components including general files of correspondence, grants, smaller research projects, and publications. In addition, Dr. Evan's collaborative projects of Cross Cultural Restraints, Reducing Restraints, Maintaining Restraint Reduction, and Relationship Between Physical Restraints Removal and Falls and Injuries are also documented here with grants, original data, field notes, and papers. Also see Series 8. Multi-Media for various cassette tapes of field notes. Dr. Evan's Sundown Syndrome Study, which influenced the later Restraint projects is also documented in

This series is a collection of materials collected by Evans on the development of Schools of Nursing as well as Gerontologic Nursing. As she notes “These are files dating from late 1970s though the early [19]90s that depict some of the history of the relationship of the SON with Ralston House and then with Geriatric Medicine in the development of the Ralston Penn Center for Care, Education and Research for Older People, Files include minutes of early planning meetings, letters and memoranda, and so on. In addition, early barriers encountered in the evolution of the geriatric day hospital (later to become the CARE Program) are depicted in the various memos and meeting minutes.”
