Biography/History

The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia first opened in 1855. It followed the lead of the Grand Ormand Street Hospital in England, which had pioneered the treatment of children separately from adults. The initial building, located at 408-420 Blight Street (now South Watts Street near Broad and Pine Streets), housed only twelve beds and served 67 patients in the first year.

Children's Hospital quickly outgrew its original building and briefly relocated in 1865 to the former Officers' Hospital at 11th Street and Columbia Avenue. Two years later the hospital moved to a new structure on 22nd Street below Walnut since the Columbia Avenue facility was too expensive to maintain. Children's Hospital remained on 22nd Street until 1916 when they moved again to 18th Street between Bainbridge and Fitzwater. This served as the hospital's home for much of its twentieth century history. In 1967, the hospital relocated to its current home in West Philadelphia, next to the University of Pennsylvania campus.

Children's Hospital of Philadelphia was one of the earliest pediatric hospitals to open a training school for nurses. The "Children's Hospital Ingersoll Training School for Nurses," named after Sarah Emlen Ingersoll, a Children's Hospital benefactor, opened in 1895. Under the direction of Edna Hogan, Superintendent, Elizabeth K. Hogan, Surgical Supervisor, and Rena S. Wood, Medical Supervisor, the school enrolled initially seven students under a two year program with an additional probationary period of three months. In 1916, the training program increased to three years to conform with the standard set by the Pennsylvania State Board of Nurse Examiners.

Beginning in 1916, Children's Hospital affiliated with Philadelphia General Hospital (adult medical and surgical nursing), Preston Retreat (obstetric nursing), and the Visiting Nurse Society of Philadelphia (public health nursing) to broaden their students training program. Later affiliations included Germantown Hospital (1921), the University of Pennsylvania and Drexel Institute (1922), Temple University (1930). An Alumnae Association of Training School for Nurses of the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia was organized in 1914. The School of Nursing closed in 1945. Children's Hospital maintained an affiliate program in pediatric nursing with other schools of nursing in the Philadelphia area.

Scope and Contents

---

The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia School of Nursing Records consists of materials relating mostly to the School of Nursing and, to a lesser extent, the hospital itself. It documents the role of and growth in training schools located within pediatric hospitals, especially during the early twentieth century. The collection is strong in portraying the growth of the hospital and the school, especially in the early twentieth century. The collection also includes student files from the beginning of the training school until 1946. Also included are photographs of graduating classes and other hospital sites.

SERIES 1. HOSPITAL, 1919-1987.

Scope and Contents note

This series consists of two brief histories by Arthur H. Lea (1933) about the hospital and a later history by Samuel X. Radbill (1987) about the Nursing Department. Also included are the 1919 bylaws of the Ladies' Visiting Committee.

SERIES 2. SCHOOL OF NURSING, 1919-1946.

Scope and Contents note

The administrative records of the School of Nursing include school catalogs (1923-1942) profiling the schools programs and courses. The catalogs typically include several photographic images of the hospital and the school that provide a glimpse at the clinical and social life of the students. Several catalogs also include drawings of the hospital complex at 18th and Fitzwater Streets as it evolved. A "teacher's class book" for 1928 is included within this series that provides rich descriptive data about the courses attended by each student daily with comments about the students performance and actions. Also included is a yearbook of the Class of 1940, a variety of Committee Minutes (1939-1944); and some miscellaneous papers.

SERIES 3. STUDENT RECORDS, 1897-1946.

This series is by far the most important consisting of two ledgers books of student files ranging in date from 1897 to 1922. Although brittle, these two volumes provide the records of individual students indicating name, address, age, dates of entrance and graduation, and evaluations of the students' character and work. Letters formerly interfiled in the volumes have been removed for preservation purposes and now follow the volumes in alphabetical order by the name of the student. These letters, dating from the turn of the century to through the 1940s, concern certification of graduates and recommendations for nursing positions. Individual student files run from 1926-1946; these are alphabetical within each year, then chronologically.
