Fresh Air With Terry Gross

001.FreshAir

Finding aid prepared by Anu Paul with support from Drexel University.

Last updated on March 21, 2017.

WHYY, Inc.
Table of Contents

Summary Information........................................................................................................................................... 3
Biography/History............................................................................................................................................. 4
Scope and Contents.......................................................................................................................................... 5
Administrative Information............................................................................................................................ 5
Controlled Access Headings.......................................................................................................................... 6
Collection Inventory....................................................................................................................................... 7
Summary Information

Repository
WHYY Archives

Creator
Fresh air with Terry Gross (Radio program).

Creator
Gross, Terry

Creator
Miller, Danny (Radio producer)

Creator
WHYY

Title
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Call number
001.FreshAir

Date [inclusive]
1976-2015

Extent
8142 digital files

Language English

Abstract
Fresh Air with Terry Gross is a radio talk show produced by WHYY-FM in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and broadcast nationally on National Public Radio (NPR). Fresh Air began production in 1975 and features interviews with journalists, scholars, and experts in various fields aimed at putting current issues into a larger political, cultural, and historical framework. The Fresh Air audio archive represents more than 8,000 interviews which were recorded over the past 40 years in various audio formats—from analog reels to digital files. The digital collection contains files covering 7,000 Fresh Air episodes of the radio program’s original broadcast audio recordings.
Biography/History

Fresh Air with Terry Gross is a radio talk show produced by WHYY-FM in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and broadcast nationally on National Public Radio (NPR). The show features interviews with journalists, scholars, and experts in various fields aimed at putting current issues into a larger political, cultural, and historical framework. In 2016 Fresh Air reached nearly 4.8 million people weekly on over 620 public radio stations. Fresh Air interviews cover a range of subjects, including literature, the performing arts, health, religion, and contemporary social and political issues. Gross’s interview style elicits guests’ perspectives on their work while drawing out the personal experiences that influenced the work. Terry Gross has hosted the show since 1975, when it was a 3-hour daily program broadcast in the greater Philadelphia area. It transitioned to a 2-hour daily program in the early 1980s, and in 1985 WHYY-FM launched a weekly half-hour edition which was distributed nationally by NPR. Since 1987, a daily, one-hour national edition of Fresh Air has been produced by WHYY-FM resulting in approximately 250 shows annually.

Each episode of the show consists of one or two segments - an interview and a review of a book, television show, musical, exhibition, or a film. Interviews are conducted by Terry Gross or guest hosts Dave Davies and David Bianculli; reviews are lead by Maureen Corrigan (books), David Bianculli (television), Ken Tucker (rock music), Kevin Whitehead (jazz), Lloyd Schwartz (classical music), Milo Miles (world music), Ed Ward (rock music), John Powers (popular culture), Geoff Nunberg (language).

Born and raised in Brooklyn, N.Y., Gross received a bachelor's degree in English and M.Ed. in communications from the State University of New York at Buffalo. Gross began her radio career in 1973 at public radio station WBFO in Buffalo, New York. There she hosted and produced several arts, women’s and public affairs programs, including This Is Radio, a live, three-hour magazine program that aired daily. Two years later, she joined the staff of WHYY-FM in Philadelphia as producer and host of Fresh Air, then a local, 3 hour daily interview and music program.

Terry Gross and Fresh Air have received many awards over the past several decades. Of particular note, in 2003 Gross received the Corporation for Public Broadcasting's Edward R. Murrow Award for her "outstanding contributions to public radio" and for advancing the "growth, quality and positive image of radio" and in 2016, the Humanities Medal from President Barack Obama for her ?artful probing of the human experience. Her patient, persistent questioning in thousands of interviews over four decades has pushed public figures to reveal personal motivations behind extraordinary lives?revealing simple truths that affirm our common humanity.?"
Scope and Contents

The Fresh Air audio archive represents more than 8,000 interviews which were recorded over the past 40 years in various audio formats—from analog reels to digital files. The digital collection contains files covering 8,142 episodes of the radio program’s original broadcast audio recordings.

Digital files can be accessed through links to WorldCat records in the inventory below or by searching http://www.worldcat.org. Interviews from 1997 - 2015 have transcripts which are not publicly accessible due to copyright restrictions.

Fresh Air with Terry Gross’s content will interest researchers exploring a wide range of national and international political and social issues, social and cultural history and issues, and the arts and humanities. Host Terry Gross interviewed thousands of guests about international affairs, environmental issues, judicial issues, governance, science, athletics, wars and conflict, politics, education, children, historical preservation, literature, film, television, music, and an array of social issues. The collection contains in-depth interviews with prominent individuals from world leaders to international artists to major entertainment personalities. These rich oral histories are of significant value to scholars and students in providing insight and accounts of people, activities and events around the world.

Literature is well represented in the Fresh Air collection with many Pulitzer Prize-winning author interviews including novelist Toni Morrison, Children’s writer Maurice sendak, American biographer and historian Doris Kearns Goodwin, Norman Mailer, Zadie Smith, author and New Yorker columnista Jill Lepore, Gloria Steinem and poet Billy Collins. Other award-winning author interviews include Amy Tan, Susan Sontag, Jonathan Franzen and Nora Ephron. The collection is also rich with music, stage and film artist interviews including Iggy Pop, B.B. King, Patti Labelle, Lin Manuel Miranda, Phyllis Diller, Ray Charles, Michael Scorsese, Matt Damon, Stephen Sondheim, Ornette Coleman, Bruce Springsteen and Wynton Marsalis.

Interviews with journalists and media hosts include Ellen DeGeneres, Jon Stewart, Stephen Colbert, Anthony Shadid, David Remnick, Thomas Friedman, Paul Krugman, and Dan Rather.

Fresh Air interviews have covered state and national elections, and the experiences of past and present members of congress, Senators, and state legislators. Interviews with political leaders include President Barack Obama while a United States senator, President Jimmy Carter, and Secretaries of State Hillary Clinton and Madeleine Albright.

Administrative Information

WHYY, Inc.
Finding aid prepared by Anu Paul with support from Drexel University.
Access Restrictions

This collection is open for research use. There are a small number of interviews that are restricted and only have descriptions available on WorldCat, no audio file is available.

Use Restrictions

Copyright restrictions may apply. Please contact WHYY with requests for copying and for authorization to publish, quote or reproduce the material.

Processing Information note

The Fresh Air audio archive from 1976-2007 was digitized from the original analog recording sources (reel to reel tapes, DAT and CDs). All shows, 1976-2015 were individually described for improved access.

Controlled Access Headings

Subject(s)

- Culture
- Literature
- Motion pictures
- Music
- Politics and government
Collection Inventory

Interview with John McAuliff and Sophie Quinn-Judge; Interview with Dave Burrell and Beaver Harris; Interview with Irwin Altman. April 23, 1976. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457217].

Description of show segment(s)

1. John McAuliff and Sophie Quinn-Judge of the American Friends Service Committee discuss their experiences in Vietnam and what has happened in the year since the end of the war. (INTERVIEW BY STEVE SHICK) 2. Jazz musicians Dave Burrell and Beaver Harris discuss their band 360 Degree Music Experience and the history and current state of jazz. 3. Irwin Altman discusses his book "The Environment and Social Behavior: Privacy, Personal Space, Territory, Crowding.

Interview with Mose Allison. April 27, 1976. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925162].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz musician Mose Allison discusses his life and career.

Interview with Barry Harris; Interview with Marcella Hazan; Interview with John Aiello. April 29, 1976. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457218].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz pianist Barry Harris discusses jazz, rock, and popular music. As the head of Xanadu Records, he also offers his opinion on the current state of jazz in the U. S. and abroad. Harris's album with David Allyn is called "Don't Look Back." (2.) Marcella Hazan discusses her book "The Classic Italian Cook Book: The Art of Italian Cooking and the Italian Art of Eating." (3.) John Aiello is the is the head of the Italian American Bicentennial Association. He discusses his views of the Italian American community.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz musician Ted Curson discusses his album "Tears for Dolphy" and upcoming tribute concert to Eric Dolphy. (2.) Robert Calder discusses his suspense novel "The Dogs."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Sandra Boston and Raymond Torres are members of the Campaign for Global Justice, which plans to protest the Eucharistic Congress. (2.) Julius Hemphill discusses jazz music and his upcoming concert in Philadelphia.

Interview with Dr. Harry Zall; Interview with Oliver Lake; Interview with Anthony Cave Brown. July 28, 1976. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458789].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Dr. Harry Zall, a psychiatrist at the Institute of Pennsylvania Hospital, joins the show to discuss depression. (2.) Oliver Lake, jazz musician, joins the show to discuss his music and upcoming Philadelphia show. (3.) Anthony Kay Brown discusses his book "Bodyguard of Lies" and discuss the intelligence community. (INTERVIEW BY DAVID KARPOFF).

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Music writer William Duffy is the co-author of Billie Holliday's autobiography "Lady Sings the Blues." His new book, "Sugar Blues," isn't about music but about our culture's addiction to sugar and the health dangers it poses.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet Adrienne Rich reads selections of her work.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) John Dean, former White House Counsel for Richard Nixon, discusses his new book "Blind Ambition" and the Watergate scandal. (2.) Ralph Flood introduces a talk given by I. F. Stone at La Salle University on the intelligence network in the United States.
Interview with Ralph Flood featuring a talk by I.F. Stone, Part 2; Interview with Mae Rockland; Interview with Stuart Samuels. December 20, 1976. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924272].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Ralph Flood introduces a talk given by I. F. Stone at La Salle University on the intelligence network in the United States. (2.) Mae Rockland discusses her book "The Jewish Yellow Pages." (3.) Film critic Stuart Samuels joins the show to discuss the latest film version of "King Kong."

Interview with Dennis Brutus. February 26, 1977. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925119].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) South African poet and activist DENNIS BRUTUS appears before a live audience to read his poetry and discuss his literary influences and what it's like to live under apartheid.

Interview with Meredith Monk; Interview with Lita Solis-Cohen, Joe Rishel and Doris Fanelli. April 14, 1977. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825425].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Terry Gross interviews musician and composer MEREDITH MONK. (2.) Antique writer LITA SOLIS-COHEN and art curators JOE RISHEL and DORIS FANELLI talk art and antique collecting in Philadelphia.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DAVID ARNOLD plays a series of recordings to demonstrate different sound recording and engineering techniques. (2.) Protestors at New Hampshire's Seabrook Nuclear Power Plant construction site PETE HILL, BILL MOYER, DAVID PACKENHURST and AMY KIETZMAN call Fresh Air to describe conditions on the ground.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Soundcast: listeners call in and Fresh Air broadcasts whatever sound is around them. (2.) Fresh Air broadcasts "The Midnight Mocker," a radio drama by Leo Goldman.

Interview with Duane Hanson. September 15, 1977. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925196].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Duane Hanson.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Novelist JOHN BARTH delivers a lecture about fiction writing and reads from his new book, Letters.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Link to record with audio file</th>
<th>Description of show segment(s)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Interview with Duane Michals.</td>
<td>November 16, 1977</td>
<td>http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924273</td>
<td>(1.) Photographer DUANE MICHALS explains his craft, his feelings toward eroticism in art, and his use of writing in his creative work. (ASSUMED REBROADCAST OF 9.15.1977)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Interview with Mel Torme.</td>
<td>November 27, 1977</td>
<td>http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925228</td>
<td>(1.) MEL TORME talks about his early years as a singer, winning over an audience, and the impact &quot;The Christmas Song&quot; had on his career.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Description of show segment(s)
Jazz pianist and composer Mal Waldron discusses his career and his new album "Signals."

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Steel drum player and musician John Gibbs discuses his new album "Steel Funk," steel drum music, and plays the drums in-studio.

Interview with Dr. Theodor Gaster. February 21, 1978. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924274].

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Dr. Theodor Gaster, renowned religious scholar, discusses his field and other philosophical questions.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) John Cage reads from his "Empty Words" works and discusses his effort to create a "non-syntactical language."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Professor Ken Brusica discusses the field of music therapy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz musician and composer John Coates, Jr. discusses his music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Cartoonist Dave Berg discusses his work, including working on Mad Magazine.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Artist Chuck Close discusses his work in photography, print making, and painting.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Saxophonist STEVE MARCUCCI and bassist PAUL KLEINFELTER perform in-studio.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) As part of Fresh Air's AudioVisions series, sculptor JODY PINTO offers this untitled "radio-sculpture," which explores the line between interview and interrogation, and explores themes such as amputation and excavation. Pinto is a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Art and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. She is known for her installation pieces, which sometimes evoke strong feelings.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Donald Embinder, of the gay erotic magazine Blueboy, Jack Veasey, of the Philadelphia Gay News, and George Bodamer, of the New Gay Life, join the show for a discussion of gay male culture.

Interview with David Slavitt, who also writes under the name Henry Sutton. June 29, 1978. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925338].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer David Slavitt, who also writes under the pseudonym Henry Sutton. His new novel is "Jo Stern," published under the Slavitt name.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film director, Frank Capra. Capra delivers a talk about his legendary work and answers questions from a live audience.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz musician Teddy Edwards discuss his life and work. (2.) Jazz vocalist Lorez Alexandria discuss her life and work.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Mark Allen has built a new type of grand concert piano. He discusses his piano and plays recordings to illustrate the choices he made in its design and construction.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SUN RA is the leader of the Spirit of Jazz Cosmos Arkestra. The band played a live concert at the WHYY studios as part of a five part radio program, "All That Jazz," hosted by Ann Mint and produced by Mint and Jack McGann. The members of the band are: RA, WALTER MILLER, BYARD LANCASTER, LUQMAN ALI, MARSHALL ALLEN, STANLEY MORGAN, MICHAEL RAY, DANNY DAVIS, ELO OMOE, DANNY THOMPSON, RICKY JOYCE, "JAC" JACSON, CHERYL BANKS, and JUNE TYSON.

| Description of show segment(s) |
| (1.) SUN RA is the leader of the Spirit of Jazz Cosmos Arkestra. The band played a live concert at the WHYY studios as part of a five part radio program, "All That Jazz," hosted by Ann Mint and produced by Mint and Jack McGann. The members of the band are: RA, WALTER MILLER, BYARD LANCASTER, LUQMAN ALI, MARSHALL ALLEN, STANLEY MORGAN, MICHAEL RAY, DANNY DAVIS, ELO OMOE, DANNY THOMPSON, RICKY JOYCE, "JAC" JACSON, CHERYL BANKS, and JUNE TYSON. |

| Description of show segment(s) |
| (1.) Bossa nova and samba singer Astrud Gilberto discusses her childhood, career, and music. |

| Description of show segment(s) |
| (1.) Jazz pianist SAM DOCKERY recalls his coming-of-age in the jazz scene, as well as performing and recording with a number of jazz legends. |

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer DAVID SLAVITT, who publishes popular fiction under the name HENRY SUTTON, explains how his knowledge of cinema, as well as changing tastes in the publishing industry, affects his novels.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STEVE SABOL runs NFL Films, a production company founded by his father dedicated to making movies about professional football. He talks to Fresh Air's Terry Gross about the craft of filmmaking and developing a strong and capable workforce.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz bass player DAVID IZENZON talks about his experiences playing free jazz, his work as a psychotherapist, and the deleterious effect marijuana can have on a musician's creativity.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MARNI NIXON is best known for dubbing the sung vocal tracks in musical films like West Side Story, My Fair Lady and the King and I. She talks about the dubbing process, as well as her new album of cabaret songs by Arnold Schoenberg.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Record producer BOB PORTER has recently begun reissuing classic albums from the Savoy Record Company. He talks to Terry Gross about the project. This is part one of their interview.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Part two of Terry Gross's interview with jazz producer BOB PORTER, who is best known for his reissues of classic recordings from the Savory Record Company.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Novelist RITA MAE BROWN's first novel, Rubyfruit Jungle, became an underground classic of lesbian fiction. She talks to Terry Gross about writing her new book, Six of One.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz drummer MICKEY ROKER currently tours with Dizzy Gillespie's band. He joins Terry Gross to talk about the development of his musical career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) First-time director STEVE RASH has a new movie out about the rock and roll legend Buddy Holly. He talks about Holly's legacy, as well as the challenges of making a biographical film.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DEIRDRE BAIR spent seven years researching and writing a biography of novelist and playwright Samuel Beckett. She teaches at the University of Pennsylvania.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Terry Gross talks to BILL MURPHY, CARSON RAYONIER, and KEN PERSING about their experiences bartending in the Philadelphia area.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist BILLY TAYLOR has performed with a number of notable jazz musicians. He gives a solo performance for Fresh Air listeners before discussing his career with host Terry Gross.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Terry Gross talks with JAMES BURKE and LINDA BURKE, the son and granddaughter of the late songwriter Joe Burke. Together they discuss the elder Burke's life and listen back to recordings of his iconic songs. This is part two of their interview.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Singer/songwriter TOM WAITS has a new album called Blue Valentine and a small role in the film Paradise Alley. He tells Fresh Air host Terry Gross about his distinctive voice and the rigors of being a working musician.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Part one of the Fresh Air interview with playwrights and performers CONRAD BISHOP and LINDA BISHOP.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Part two of the Fresh Air interview with playwrights and performers CONRAD BISHOP and LINDA BISHOP.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Minimalist composer STEVE REICH tells Fresh Air's Terry Gross about his musical techniques and approaches. A recording of a recent composition, Music for 18 Musicians, was recently released on the ECM label.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Folklorist ALAN DUNDESE delivers a lecture about folklore's impact on contemporary culture.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DAVID IZENZON is a classically-trained jazz bassist who later studied to become a psychotherapist. In addition to performing with the free jazz legend Ornette Coleman, Izenzon has started a campaign against marijuana abuse.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet ROD MCKUEN joins Terry Gross to talk about his newest endeavor, the reissuing of forgotten popular and classical music on his label Stanyan Records.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz bassist and psychotherapist DAVID IZENZON returns to Fresh Air to discuss his work with the group Pot Smokers Anonymous, which supports marijuana abusers. He also address the concerns of Fresh Air listeners who call in.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Latin jazz percussionist RAY MANTILLA talks about the growing popularity of the genre. He has a new album titled Mantilla.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Flute player and visual artist LLOYD MCNEILL discusses his recent work. (2.) Cinematographer GARRETT BROWN invented the Steadicam, which revolutionized filmmaking. He also was half of the folk duo Brown and Dana, and had a successful career in advertising.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Penn Jillette, Teller, and Wier Chrisemer form the troop Asparagus Valley Cultural Society. Today, they, sound engineer Marc Garland, and guitarist Gary Anderson, join the show for an interview and perform their music, comedy, and magic. The group also shares their favorite classical records.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz drummer Dannie Richmond joins the show to discuss his work with the recently deceased Charlie Mingus.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Nat Hentoff, music journalist, critic, and author, remembers the recently deceased jazz bassist Charles Mingus.

Interview with Maggie Kuhn and Dr. John Fryer. January 17, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925334].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Maggie Kuhn is one of the co-founders of the Gray Panthers -- an advocacy group for older Americans. Dr. John Fryer is a professor of psychology and community health at Temple University. They discuss the Gray Panthers and the issues older people face.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Winnie Winston is a pedal steel guitar player, composer, and music teacher. He discusses his latest album "Steel Wool."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) New York Times columnist Vincent Canby discusses the role of the film critic.

Interview with Carla Bley and Mike Mantler; Interview with Ralph Flood. January 25, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924881].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Carla Bley, jazz musician and composer, and trumpeter Mike Mantler join the show to discuss their upcoming concert and The Carla Bley Band's album "Musique Mecanique." (2.) Ralph Flood speaks with two groups of protestors gathered at City Hall in Philadelphia. They oppose Jimmy Carter's 1979 budget proposal and the First Bank of Pennsylvania's support of Food Fair in spite of a strike, respectively.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actress and singer Virginia Capers discusses her career and upcoming movie "North Avenue Irregulars."

Interview with Cynthia Carlson. February 8, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925151].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Artist Cynthia Carlson discusses her influences and process. Carlson's radio piece for the Audio Vision series at WHUY "A Portrait of the Young Artist As a Young Middle Aged Voice" is played.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Description of show segment(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(1.) Blues singer and guitarist John Hammond, Jr. brings his instrument to the studio.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Interview with Cab Calloway. February 23, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925238].</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Description of show segment(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(1.) Big band leader Cab Calloway is still going strong at the age of 72. He joins the show to discuss his career and life.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Interview with Martin Williams. March 9, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925351].</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Description of show segment(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(1.) Martin Williams is a jazz critic, writer, and academic. He currently works at the Smithsonian Institution. He discusses jazz criticism and the effect jazz has had on classical music. He also shares some of his favorite records.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Description of show segment(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(1.) Clive and Carol Robbins are music therapists. Clive discusses his work with composer Paul Nordoff in the field of music therapy. Carol joins the interview later to discuss the couple's work using music therapy</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
with deaf children. The Robbins also share recordings from sessions with children, including recordings with Nordoff. Carol and Clive Robbins are the founders of the Nordoff-Robbins Center.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Philadelphia musician Ken Ulansey joins Fresh Air to discuss his life as a musician and his travels in Europe, the Near and Middle East, and Asia. He's played and studied music in places such as Paris, Istanbul, Afghanistan, Nepal, Tehran, and India. He also brings his alto and soprano saxophones to perform in-studio.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Milt Gabler has a storied history in jazz and pop music as the owner of the Commodore Record Shop and the Commodore Record label. He's also worked with artists such as Coleman Hawkins, Jelly Roll Morton, and Billie Holliday, whose "Strange Fruit" Gabler produced. He joins the show to discuss his career.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Milt Gabler has a storied history in jazz and pop music as the owner of the Commodore Record Shop and the Commodore Record label. He's also worked with artists such as Coleman Hawkins, Jelly Roll
Morton, and Billie Holliday, whose "Strange Fruit." Gabler produced. He joins the show to discuss his career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Joan Morris and Bill Bolcom are husband and wife musicians. Joan is a singer and Bill plays the piano. They discuss their life and work together.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz and bop pianist Barry Harris joins the show for an in-studio performance and discussion of his life and career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz and bop pianist Barry Harris joins the show for an in-studio performance and discussion of his life and career.
Interview with Billy Crystal. April 5, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458762].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Billy Crystal is a comedian currently enjoying success on television. He also grew up around jazz musicians due to his father's business; Billie Holliday was his sometime-babysitter. Crystal joins the show to discuss his career and jazz memories. (INTERVIEW WITH DAVID KARPOFF)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Joan Morris and Bill Bolcom are husband and wife musicians. Joan is a singer and Bill plays the piano. They discuss their life and work together.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Art historian, playwright, and critic MARTHA KEARNS and writer EDMUND WHITE offer their opinions on the topic "The Politics of Drag," debate-style.
Interview with Natalie Allon. April 12, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924923].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NATALIE ALLON is a sociologist and professor at the Philadelphia College of Textiles and Sciences, who researches group interactions. Her latest book, "Urban Life Styles," discusses singles' bars, health spas, and group dieting.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Playwright and Pennsylvanian Albert Innaurato delivers a talk about his life and career to a live audience.

Interview with Billy Eckstine. April 27, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925491].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Billy Eckstine is a jazz singer and big band leader. After playing in the Earl Hines Band, he formed his own band, which was involved in the development of bop. He worked with legends such as Dizzy Gillespie, Sarah Vaughan and Charlie Parker. Eckstine continues to perform as a singer. He joins the show to discuss his life and career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Milt Gabler has a storied history in jazz and pop music as the owner of the Commodore Record Shop and the Commodore Record label. He's also worked with artists such as Coleman Hawkins, Jelly Roll Morton, and Billie Holliday, whose "Strange Fruit" Gabler produced. He joins the show to discuss his career. (REBROADCAST FROM MARCH 23, 1979)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Milt Gabler has a storied history in jazz and pop music as the owner of the Commodore Record Shop and the Commodore Record label. He's also worked with artists such as Coleman Hawkins, Jelly Roll Morton, and Billie Holliday, whose "Strange Fruit" Gabler produced. He joins the show to discuss his career. (REBROADCAST FROM MARCH 23, 1979)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Richard Ben Cramer, foreign affairs journalist and Pulitzer Prize winner, has spent extensive time traveling to and reporting on the Middle East. He has reported on Israel, Egypt, and Lebanon, and his stories often focus on individuals. He joins the show to discuss his work and the situation in the Middle East.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Barney Kessel is a jazz guitarist, composer, and music writer. He has worked with artists such as Fred Astaire and Bille Holliday. He continues to perform across the country. He joins the show to discuss his career and life.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) At 19, Jim McGowan was the victim of an assault which left him with paralyzed legs. He later worked as an R&B singer in the 1950s with the group the Four Fellows, whose song "Soldier Boy" was a number one hit. He late became an academic and has written a book about an Underground Railroad figure in "The Life and Letters of Thomas Garnett." He is also an activist for handicapped persons and was the photographer for the book "Wheelchair Champions." (2.) Dr. Robert Giuntoli, gynecologist, of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Herbert Blough, virologist, of the University of Pennsylvania and the Scheie Institute, join the show to discuss the new treatment they have developed for genital herpes.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Dr. Ray Birdwhistell is the founder of the field of kinesics, the study and interpretation of body language and other nonverbal behavior. His books include "Introduction to Kinesics" and "Kinesics in Context." Dr. Birdwhistell is a professor of Communication at the Annenberg School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist Jimmy Golden, pianist Sam Dockery, and trumpeter and club owner Jack Fields discuss jazz in Philadelphia. Jimmy Golden and Sam Dockery have served as house pianists at many Philadelphia jazz clubs, and Jack Fields owned the club the Blue Note in the 1950s.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Music critic KAL RUDMAN's weekly publication Friday Morning Quarterback influences what songs get radio play and what records become hits. Rudman tells Fresh Air what he looks for in popular music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Terry Gross talks about the issues affecting overweight individuals with fat liberation activist VIVIAN MAIR, Dr. CAROLINE MICHAELSON, president of the Southeastern Pennsylvania chapter of the National Association to Advance Fat Acceptance (NAAFA) EDIE CALLAHAN, and sociologist NATALIE ALLON.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Fresh Air explores the experiences of blind people through a conversation with jazz pianist BRUCE MILLS, Philadelphia-based employment specialist SANDY SMITH and author PETER PUTNAM.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz critic DAN MORGENSTERN speaks to Terry Gross about how he became a fan and supporter of musicians in the jazz community. This is part two of their interview.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz critic DAN MORGENSTERN speaks to Terry Gross about how he became a fan and supporter of musicians in the jazz community. This is part one of their interview.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz guitar player CHARLIE BYRD has a new album called Bluebyrd. He joins Terry Gross to talk about his musical development through live performance, his appreciation for classical music and the influence of boss nova on his playing.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) JOHN NORRIS runs the Canadian-based jazz label Sackville Records and the music magazine CODA. He joins Terry gross to talk about recording jazz musicians from the U.S. and Canada.

Interview with Joe Williams. September 6, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925432].

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Singer and guitar player JOE WILLIAMS left Count Basie's band to pursue a solo career. He tells Terry Gross about his extensive touring around the world and how his music has affected audiences.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) WILLIAM HINTON wrote the book Fanshen: A Documentary of Revolution in a Chinese Village. He joins Terry Gross to talk about how Chinese culture is changing in light of the Cultural Revolution.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Playwright RALPH ALLEN's new musical Sugar Babies draws inspiration from the burlesque tradition of the early 20th century. He talks about the history of musical revues and the craft of writing bawdy jokes.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Folk singer TONY BIRD gives an in-studio performance. In between songs, he tells Fresh Air's Terry Gross about his career, craft and why he left his native South Africa.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Nigerian drummer (Babatunde) OLATUNJI lives in the United States, where he runs a center promoting African culture and supporting African immigrant communities. He talks about his upbringing in Nigeria and the political aspects of his music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BARNEY KESSEL is a renowned, self-taught jazz guitarist who also made his living as a studio musician. He tells Terry Gross about what it takes to be a great improvisor and develop a unique musical voice.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BEN BOVA is a prolific science fiction writer who believes that military advances have a profound effect on the genre.

Interview with Estelle Parsons. September 27, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925489].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actress ESTELLE PARSONS stars in Roberto Athayde's experimental play Miss Margarida's Way, which pits the titular protagonist, a stern schoolteacher, against the audience.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer RALPH ALLEN returns to Fresh Air to speak with Terry Gross and listeners about the history and humor of burlesque, and his new musical, Sugar Babies.

Interview with Ted Curson. October 2, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925644].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) After making a career in Europe, jazz trumpeter TED CURSON now calls New Jersey home. Amidst a busy performance schedule and the challenges of navigating the music industry, he has released a new album called The Trio.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz trombonist JIMMY KNEPPER remembers his days playing with Charles Mingus. He tells Fresh Air's Terry Gross about making a living as musician, both in and out of the jazz scene.

Interview with Jerzy Kozinski. October 9, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924922].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Novelist JERZY KOZINSKI joins Terry Gross to discuss his new novel Passion Play. He shares his thoughts about writing in English, his readers' reactions to the portrayal of sex in his fiction, and an infamous literary prank involving his novel Steps.

Interview with Isamu Noguchi. October 18, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925302].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Sculptor ISAMU NOGUCHI is also known for his design of public gardens, playgrounds, and theater sets. He speaks with Terry Gross about the perception of his work in the U.S. and abroad. He has a show opening at the Philadelphia Museum of Art called Imaginary Landscapes.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) African-American poet NTOZAKE SHANGE has a new collection entitled Nappy Edges. She tells Terry Gross about growing up with around jazz musicians and navigating women's and Black liberation movements.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BERNICE REAGON is singer, activist and scholar. She was a member of SNCC's Freedom Singers and founded the a cappella ensemble Sweet Honey in the Rock. She joins Terry Gross to talk about the music associated with the Civil Rights Movement.

Interview with Christopher Cerf. November 1, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925653].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer CHRISTOPHER CERF recently co-edited a humorous, speculative history called The 80s: A Look Back at the Tumultuous Decade, 1980-1989. He joins Terry Gross and Fresh Air callers to share his insights on the coming years.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jules Feiffer's new novel-in-cartoons, Tantrum, deals with the emotional plight of a middle-aged father. He talks about the culture of the 1970s and writing the screenplay for then upcoming Popeye movie.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphia-based jazz trombonist AL GREY performed for 22 years as a member of Count Basie's big band. He talks about how he makes a living as a musician today.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer MICHAEL KORDA reflects on his early life in the shadow of his uncle, Sir Alexander Korda, in his new memoir Charmed Lives. He and Terry Gross talk about filmmaking and the publishing industry.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer AL FRASER co-wrote the autobiography of Dizzy Gillespie, To Be, Or Not...to BOP. While researching the book, he conducted several interviews with legendary jazz musicians of the bebop era.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actor ALVIN EPSTEIN and singer MARTHA SCHLAMME collaborate on a new endeavor: to reinterpret and perform the songs of Kurt Weill.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) A.C.L.U. executive director IRA GLASSER explains the function of his organization in preserving constitutional rights. The A.C.L.U has recently filed suit against the Department of Justice over their plan to require all Iranian students in the U.S. to report to the Immigration and Naturalization Services (I.N.S.).

Interview with Christopher Cerf. December 14, 1979. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925347].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer CHRISTOPHER CERF returns to Fresh Air to discuss his co-authored book Kids, Day In and Day Out, which covers a number of topics pertaining to childhood and child rearing. He also talks about the impact of the television show Sesame Street, for which he writes.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Scholar and writer E. DIGBY BALTZELL examines how the intersection of wealth and faith traditions contributed to the unique character and political cultures of Philadelphia and Boston.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphia Inquirer food critic ELAINE TAIT joins Terry Gross to talk about trends in Philadelphia-area restaurants, as well as her professional experiences as a food writer.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Reverend RALPH MOORE and Rabbi MAYER SELEKMAN discuss the impact of their faith traditions on their family lives and how they engage with contemporary culture.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Mother Jones investigative reporter DEIRDRE ENGLISH examines her role as a journalist and feminist. She discusses her problems with the film Apocalypse Now, as well as the potential link between pornography and violence against women.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actor ALVIN EPSTEIN and singer MARTHA SCHLAMME collaborate on a new endeavor: to reinterpret and perform the songs of Kurt Weill. (REBROADCAST FROM 11.30.1979)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) University of Pennsylvania-based sociologist ANN H. BEUF has a new book called Biting off the Bracelet: A Study of Children in Hospitals, which explores how medical culture in hospitals can have a dehumanizing effect on children who need care. She also considers ideal models of child rearing and child development.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MEINHARDT RAABE is a little person who pursued acting in carnivals, circuses and world's fairs. He later was cast as a Munchkin in the 1939 film The Wizard of Oz.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet and playwright SONIA SANCHEZ brings a strong social consciousness--with a focus on the African American community--to her writing and teaching. She reads some of her work and discusses how black liberation and feminist movements inform each other.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Bucks County, Pennsylvania-based JOHN CASE is a former prison warden who worked to reform the system by improving conditions for prison employees and inmates alike. He addresses the deleterious impact of poor training, low pay, a lack of mental health and addiction services, and needless laws against non-violent offenses.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Scholar ERIK BARNOUW examines how an advertising-driven, demographics-focused television industry affects viewers' consumption habits and expectations. Later, he talks about his work at the Library of Congress, where he outlines the challenges of preserving the film archives of historically significant television programs--including the ads that ran with them.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actor, singer, and dancer DONALD O'CONNOR was featured in several classic musical films, including Singin' in the Rain. He continues to perform today, both on- and off-screen.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz trumpet player and studio musician RED RODNEY’s colorful history includes a stint in Charlie Parker's band and a stay in a government hospital for heroin abuse. He developed his technical skills playing gigs of all kinds in Philadelphia.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SCOTT TUCKER is a member of the Philadelphia-based gay advocacy group Lavender Left. RITA ADDESSA is the director of the Philadelphia Lesbian and Gay Task Force. PEGGY O'DONNELL is a member of the organization WAVAW, or Women Against Violence Against Women. Together, they talk about the negative portrayal of homosexuality in William Friedkin's film Cruising and discuss their actions to protest movie's screening.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Three members of the Center for Opium Research, director DAVID FEINGOLD and associate researchers TERRY PARSSINEN and KAREN KERNER discuss their study of the opium trade, medical approaches to addiction in Britain, and the history and current impact of drug laws.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz vocalist NANCY WILSON tells Terry Gross about how she got her start in music, the growth of her career, the challenges of balancing her professional and personal life, and how she selects which songs to record.

Interview with Linda Lovelace; Interview with Selma James and Wilmette Brown. February 21, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503834].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actress LINDA LOVELACE has a new memoir entitled Ordeal, in which she explains how her ex-husband abused and forced her into prostitution--which eventually led to her starring role in the pornographic film Deep Throat. (2.) COYOTE (Call Off Your Old Tired Ethics) members SELMA JAMES and WILMETTE BROWN both advocate for the decriminalization of prostitution and protections for sex workers, as well wages for housework. This is part one of their interview.
Interview with Selma James and Wilmette Brown; Commentary on John Lewis; Interview with Judith Harris, Carol Rogers, and Timothy Saasta. February 21, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458404].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Part two of the Fresh Air interview with activists SELMA JAMES and WILMETTE BROWN. They advocate for the decriminalization of prostitution through the group Call Off Your Tired Ethics (COYOTE), and fight for wages for housework. (2.) Jazz critic FRANCIS DAVIS considers pianist John Lewis's place in the post-bop era. (3.) Women's Way president JUDITH HARRIS, Bread & Roses member CAROL ROGERS, and TIMOTHY SAASTA of the National Committee for Responsive Philanthropy talk about the current state of funding for charitable organizations. Prompting this conversation was the United Way of Southeastern Pennsylvania's rejection of Women's Way's petition for membership due to the latter's support of abortion rights.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Filmmaker ROBERT DREW left his post at Life Magazine to make documentaries, most notably Primary, about the Democratic presidential runs of John F. Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Episcopal priest RALPH MOORE and Rabbi MAYER SELEKMAN return to FRESH AIR to share their views on Eastern religions, what drives--and should drive--people to lead moral lives, and how their faith helps them confront their own mortality.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Best known for his novels, writer and rabbi CHAIM POTOK joins Terry Gross to discuss his new non-fiction book, Wanderings, about the history of Judaism and how cultural exchange led to literary and faith-based innovations.

Interview with Chita Rivera; Commentary on Serge Chaloff. March 6, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925115].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Musical theater actress CHITA RIVERA shares her experiences performing in West Side Story, Bring Back Birdie, and Chicago. (2.) Jazz critic FRANCIS DAVIS considers the short career of baritone saxophonist Serge Chaloff, who died of cancer at 33.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer SONIA SANCHEZ, best known for her poetry, has a forthcoming collection of children's stories called A Sound Investment. She returns to Fresh Air to talk about the importance of storytelling with her own children, the power of political poetry, and how persistent stereotypes of black men and women in film and television obscure other, more powerful narratives of the African American experience.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Lyricist SHELDON HARNICK has a successful career collaborating with composer Jerry Bock to write hit musicals like Fiorello! and Fiddler on the Roof.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Fresh Air broadcasts a lecture by ANN BEUF about power and authority in American families. She discusses how a persistent patriarchal tradition has led to the dominance and legal power of men over women in marriages.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MONGO SANTAMARIA is a conga player from Havana, Cuba who helped bring salsa music to American audiences. He has a new album called Red Hot.
Interview with Dave Brubeck. April 8, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924970].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz piano player DAVE BRUBECK was recently commissioned to compose a Catholic mass. He joins Fresh Air to talk about his success over the decades and his longstanding collaboration with saxophonist Paul Desmond.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actor Powers Boothe portrays the American cult leader Jim Jones in the made-for-TV movie Guyana Tragedy. He tells Terry Gross about the filmmakers’ efforts to reflect reality without resorting to salacious exploitation of the more gruesome details. Boothe also discusses the extensive research he did to prepare for his role.

Interview with Cybill Shepherd. April 11, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924971].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actress CYBILL SHEPHERD starred in renown films like The Last Picture Show and Taxi Driver. She has recently begun pursuing a career as a jazz singer.
Interview with Steven Feld. April 15, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925547].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STEVEN FELD is an anthropologist, ethnomusicologist and jazz musician. He spent time with the Kaluli people of Papau New Guinea to learn more about the ritualistic and cultural function of music within their community.

Interview with Dr. Demento; Commentary on Jaki Byard. April 17, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925370].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DR. DEMENTO, whose real name is Barret Eugene Hansen, is a DJ who features obscure novelty songs on his popular radio show. He joins Fresh Air to talk about the record industry and play some oddball music from his personal collection. (2.) Jazz critic FRANCIS DAVIS takes a look at the legacy of pianist Jaki Byard.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JAMES KIRKWOOD is a playwright and novelist most famous for writing the book for A Chorus Line. His new novel is called P.S. Your Cat Is Dead. He shares his musings on love affairs and friendship with Fresh Air's Terry Gross.
Interview with Tuli Kupferberg and Lannes Kenfield; Interview with Bill Van Wert. April 18, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503875].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TULI KUPFERBERG, former member of the band The Fugs, and performer LANNES KENFIELD now perform in the Revolting Theater group, which takes its inspiration from current events. They explain how their radical politics inform their art. (2.) Film and television critic BILL VAN WERT discusses Jodie Foster's performance in the new film The Foxes, then looks at the politics of the Academy Awards.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actor LEONARD NIMOY is best known for his role as Spock in the television series Star Trek. He now stars in the one-man show Vincent, about Vincent Van Gogh and his brother Theo. Nimoy also wrote and produced the play. He also talks to Terry Gross about the making of the film Invasion of the Body Snatchers, as well as what it's like to be a recognizable, public celebrity.

Interview with Molly Picon. April 22, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925429].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actress Molly Picon has a new autobiography called Molly!, which details her life growing up in the Yiddish theater and her marriage to Jacob Kalich, who helped launch and sustain her career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ELLIOTT CURSON was the media consultant for President Ronald Reagan's campaign and runs a Philadelphia-based advertising firm. He shares his views on what makes an effective campaign ad.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz singer and pianist NINA SIMONE chose to live in Africa to escape racism in the United States. She has returned to her hometown of Philadelphia for an extended stay, and joins Terry Gross to discuss her career and self-exile.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Lyricist SAMMY CAHN is a prolific songwriter who also worked on films and musicals. He discusses highlights from his career and explains how melodies inspire the lyrics he writes.
Interview with Sandman Sims and George Nierenberg. May 9, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925148].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEORGE NIERENBERG directed a new documentary called No Maps on My Taps, which strives to capture the history of jazz and tap dancers. He and veteran dancer SANDMAN SIMS talk about the style's evolution.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Part one of Terry Gross's interview with G. GORDON LIDDY, whose autobiography Will was just released. He shares his opinions on civil disobedience and when it is acceptable for government officials to act outside the law.

Interview with John Dean and Ralph Flood. May 13, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925101].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN DEAN served as White House Counsel during the Nixon administration. He later served time for his involvement in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal. He has since pursued a career as a writer, away from the world of politics. Terry Gross invites WUHY reporter RALPH FLOOD to join in the conversation.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer EDMUND WHITE has a new book called States of Desires, which looks at gay communities across the U.S. He tells Terry Gross about the social and sexual conditions of gay men, including why promiscuity and S&M play such a prominent role.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) IAN MCHARG is a Scottish-born landscape architect who currently teaches at the University of Pennsylvania. He discusses the environmental concerns that go into the planning of his projects.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MORGAN SIBBETT is a Quaker in the Philadelphia area who advocates for the right of individuals facing terminal illness to commit rational suicide. He recently allowed a friend with Parkinson's to end his own life in Sibbett's house. Morgan and his wife JOHANNA SIBBETT have since made clear to each other that they would also consider suicide under similar circumstances.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Reporter ARNAUD DE BORCHGRAVE has co-written a spy novel called The Spike, which draws on his knowledge of how intelligence agencies sometimes recruit journalists.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SIDNEY BLUMENTHAL's new book is called The Permanent Campaign. He argues that the political system is changing, steered more by the careful guidance of political and media consultants rather than party leadership -- a process that continues even after the election. He joins Fresh Air discuss how this new trend affects who is and is not a viable candidate for elected office, and how it weakens the political parties and the primary system.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Author JOHN RECHY has a new novel called Rushes. Rechy's literary career has focused squarely on the sexual practices of gay men. He argues that homosexual liberation depends on the championing of a sexuality distinct from that of straight culture. He believes promiscuity is a radical act, but remains critical of sadomasochism. (2.) Writer and feminist thinker ELIZABETH JANEWAY conceives of power as a process which continually divides men and women while disenfranchising the latter. Her new book, The Power of Weak, explores this idea. She considers how both the women's movement and legislative action could work to empower women worldwide.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer, academic and activist TODD GITLIN has a new book called The Whole World is Watching, which examines how mass media reported antiwar movements in the 1960s. In 1963 and ’64 Gitlin served as president of the Students for a Democratic Society, or SDS, a group on which he focuses in the book.

Interview with Bai Konte, Dembo Konte, Marc Pevar, Susan Pevar and Oliver Franklin. July 10, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503945].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) An in-studio performance with Gambian folk musician BAI KONTE. Joining him is his son, fellow kora player DEMBO KONTE, and musicians and anthropologists MARC PEVAR and SUSAN PEVAR, who studied with Bai Konte. The filmmaker OLIVER FRANKLIN, who made a movie about the featured guest, joins the group to share his impressions folk music's role in Gambian culture.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LESTER BANGS is a prominent rock critic whose newest book, Blondie, examines the career of the post-punk band of the same name. He explains how the power of rock music lies in its simplicity: anyone can pick up a guitar and create something with real emotion.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz pianist MCCOY TYNER grew up in Philadelphia before joining John Coltrane's groundbreaking quartet. He joins Fresh Air to talk about his continual development as a musician and the influence he's had on a new generation of pianists.

Interview with Randy Weston; Interview with Mark Kramer. July 12, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503900].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Randy Weston is a jazz pianist and composer. He travels and performs extensively in Africa, and African influences infuse his music. He is playing a rare American concert in Philadelphia. (2.) Mark Kramer is the author of the book "Three Farms: Making Milk, Meat And Money from the American Soil." Kramer joins the show to discuss the American agricultural and livestock industries and their effects on the environment and small farms.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Vernel Bagneris is a playwright, actor, and dancer. He wrote, directed, and acts in the musical "One Mo' Time," now playing in Philadelphia. The musical is set in 1920s' New Orleans and draws heavily on the jazz from that time and place. It centers around a touring group of vaudevillians performing at the segregated Lyric Theater. Bagneris describes it as a "piece on Black theater history." He joins the show to discuss the musical, the black vaudeville circuit, black face, and the benefits of live performance.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Guitarist and composer Dave Van Ronk discusses folk music, his jazz and blues influences, and the folk scene of the 1960s.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Calvin Tomkins is a writer and art critic for the New Yorker. His latest work, "Off the Wall: Robert Rauschenberg and the Art World of Our Time," is a biography of both Rauschenberg and the American visual arts of the 1940s-1970s.

Interview with John Fahey; Interview with Dr. Walter Lear and Professor Jose Arias. July 25, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503910].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) John Fahey, blues guitarist, discusses his career and brings in his guitar to play a few songs in the studio. (2.) Dr. Walter Lear, President of the Institute of Social Medicine and Community Health, and Professor Jose Arias, a professor of economics and former El Salvadorian Minister of Agriculture, join the show to discuss the political situation in El Salvador. (INTERVIEW BY RALPH FLOOD)
Interview with Peter Scheiner, Uri Caine, and Dave Posmontier. August 7, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458454].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphian pianists, Peter Scheiner, Uri Caine, and Dave Posmontier have been playing in the area for years. They discuss the Philadelphia jazz scene and the life of working musicians. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Ruth Kobart is an actress. She joins the show to discuss her current roles as Miss Hannigan in the musical "Annie," now playing in Philadelphia at the Forrest Theater. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER) (2.) Actor, Herschel Bernardi currently stars as Tavia in a production of "Fiddler on the Roof," currently playing at the Academy of Music. He joins the show to discuss his career in theater, film, and television. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphia pianist and "friend of Fresh Air" Bruce Mills joins the show to discuss his career as a blind jazz pianist and to perform an in-studio concert at Fresh Air's new studio.
Interview with Harris Wofford; Interview with G. Gordon Liddy. August 18, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925608].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Harris Wofford was Special Assistant to President John F. Kennedy for Civil Rights, the Assistant Director of the Peace Corps, a lawyer for Martin Luther King, Jr., and president of Bryn Mawr University. He currently practices law in Philadelphia. His new book is "Of Kennedys and Kings: Making Sense of the Sixties." He joins the show to discuss the leadership styles of three Sixties' figures: John F. Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy, and Martin Luther King, Jr. (2.) G. Gordon Liddy orchestrated the Watergate break-in. After serving four-and-a-half years of his prison sentence, he joins the show to discuss his book "Will" and his role in the crime. (PARTIAL INTERVIEW)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Ann Rule was a writer for True Crime magazine when she was assigned a story about a serial killer who turned out to be a former acquaintance of Rule's. Rule worked with Ted Bundy at a suicide prevention center. Her account of Bundy's crime and her time working with him is called "The Stranger Beside Me."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Vernel Bagneris is a playwright, actor, and dancer. He wrote, directed, and acts in the musical "One Mo' Time," now playing in Philadelphia. The musical is set in 1920s' New Orleans and draws heavily on the jazz from that time and place. It centers around a touring group of vaudevillians performing at the segregated Lyric Theater. Bagneris describes it as a "piece on Black theater history." Bagneris and pianist Morten Larsen give an in-studio concert sharing music from the show's time period.
Interview with Holly Near; Interview with Irving Stone. August 26, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925411].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Holly Near is a folk musician, actress, and activist. He joins the show to discuss her life career, and politics. (2.) Irving Stone who writes biographical novels joins the show to discuss his novels and their adaptations. His latest book "Origin" is about Charles Darwin.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Ruth, June, and Anita Pointer, who sing together as the The Pointer Sisters, used to sing mostly big band tunes with complicated harmonies. They join the show to discuss their influences and new musical direction. Their new album is "Special Things."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Wes Craven discusses violence in motion pictures and his film "The Last House on the Left."

Interview with Francis Davis; Interview with Mike Frisch. September 16, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503463].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Bill Evans, jazz pianist, died yesterday at the age of 51. Contributor Francis Davis, host of Fresh Air's "interval," a segment on out-of-print jazz, joins the show to pay tribute to Evans. (2.) Mike Frisch, a professor of History at the University of Buffalo, currently working at the University of Pennsylvania, discusses oral history. Frisch spoke with Fresh Air contributor Charles Hardy. (INTERVIEW BY CHARLES HARDY)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GARY BRIDGES (WYSP), DAVID DYE (WIOQ), and MICHAEL PICOZZI (WMMR) are disc jockeys. They join the show to discuss rock radio, the music business, and the life of a d.j.

Interview with Jamie Wyeth. September 17, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925235].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Painter JAMIE WYETH is the son of painter Andrew Wyeth and the grandson of painter and illustrator N. C. Wyeth. The youngest Wyeth is known for his work inspired by Chadds Ford, Pennsylvania, the Brandywine River, and Maine, as well as his portraits. The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts is celebrating its 175th anniversary, and its closing exhibit showcases Wyeth's work.

Interview with Mary Stuart. September 21, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458580].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actress MARY STUART has starred as "Joanne" on the television soap opera "Search For Tomorrow" since 1951. Stuart's autobiography is titled "Both of Me." Stuart joins the show to discuss her career and life.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LESLIE UGGAMS is an actress and singer known for her roles in the television miniseries "Roots" and "Backstairs at the White House" and the t.v. show "Sing Along with Mitch." She is also well-known for work in musicals and on Broadway. Uggams discusses her career and life including being a child actor, a member of a youth gang, and singing versus acting. Uggams is currently performing in Philadelphia.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) EVELYN KAYE is a Jewish woman married to a Methodist and author of the book "Cross-Currents: Children, Families & Religion." REVEREND RALPH MOORE is an Episcopal priest and the director of the Christian Association at the University of Pennsylvania. RABBI MAYER SELEKMAN is a rabbi at Temple Shalom in Broomall, Pennsylvania. They join the show for a panel discussion on interfaith marriage.

Interview with Peter Nero; Interview with Jean-Pierre Rampal; Interview with Bill Van Wert. September 26, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503873].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PETER NERO is a composer, conductor, and pianist. He is currently conducting the Philly Pops Orchestra, in a show called "Uptown, Downtown." (2.) Morning Edition's Heather Dembert interviews flutist JEAN-PIERRE RAMPAL. Originally broadcast on "Morning Edition." (3.) Film critic BILL VAN WERT joins the show with a review of the film "Rockers."
Interview with Al Franken and Tom Davis. October 7, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925755].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Former Saturday Night Live writers AL FRANKEN and TOM DAVIS are touring the country with their own show. They join Fresh Air to discuss comedy and writing.

Interview with Amos Vogel. October 7, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458578].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Film critic AMOS VOGEL is a journalist and professor at the University of Pennsylvania. He is the author of "Film as a Subversive Art." His new television series "Reel Philadelphia: An Unusual Film Series" will highlight Philadelphian filmmakers.

Interview with Ray Bryant. October 7, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925349].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Composer and pianist RAY BRYANT is currently performing in Philadelphia. A native of the city, he got his start at the Blue Note club. He joins the show to discuss his career in jazz.

Interview with Clark DeLeon; Interview with John Morrison. October 10, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925225].

Description of show segment(s)

1. CLARK DELEON is the writer of the "Scene" column in the Philadelphia Inquirer. DeLeon joins the show to discuss his work as a columnist reporting on "unusual happenings" in the city. (2.) DR. JOHN MORRISON is a professor of Social Work at the University of Pennsylvania. He has recently completed a study about the effects of racism on whites. He joins the show to discuss his work.

Description of show segment(s)

1. TIM O'BRIEN is a novelist whose works often deal with the Vietnam War. His most recent novel was "Going after Cacciato," about a soldier in the war. O'Brien is currently guest lecturing at Temple University. He joins the show to discuss Vietnam, writing, and his work-in-progress "The Nuclear Age."

Description of show segment(s)

1. GARY BRIDGES (WYSP), DAVID DYE (WIOQ), and MICHAEL PICOZZI (WMMR) are disc jockeys. They join the show to discuss rock, rock radio, and to answer listener calls.

Interview with Al Malmfelt; Interview with Patricia Stewart; Interview with Jane Stern and Michael Stern. October 15, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503752].

Description of show segment(s)

1. AL MALMFELT is the current head of the Theatre of the Living Arts (TLA) cinema on South Street in Philadelphia. The theater was recently threatened with closure in order for Steven Starr to build a nightclub. The TLA has escaped that fate for now. Malmfelt discusses the cinema's founding and current situation, as well as doing business on South Street.
2. PATRICIA STEWART is on the faculty of the Philadelphia College of Art and Moore College of Art. She will be providing commentary on an upcoming "sculpture jog," which is part of the efforts of local art colleges to highlight the outdoor art in the city.
Stewart discusses Philadelphia's public art and the "sculpture jog." (3.) JANE and MICHAEL STERN are the authors of "Roadfood," a guidebook which reviews inexpensive restaurants within ten miles of highways. They join the show to discuss car travel and road trips.

Interview with Helen Caldicott. October 17, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925142].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HELEN CALDICOTT is a pediatrician and the president of Physicians for Social Responsibility. The Australian is a leading figure in the fight against nuclear war and the nuclear arms race. The activist joins the show to discuss the dangers of nuclear weapons here and abroad, and to answer listener calls.

Interview with Tepilit Ole Saitoti. October 21, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925128].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TEPILIT OLE SAITOTI is a Maasai warrior and conservationist who was the subject of the film "Man of Serengetti." After the film, the Kenyan earned a degree in creative writing in the U. S. He joins the show to discuss his new book of photography with Carol Beckwith, "Maasai."

Interview with Grace Paley. October 27, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925372].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GRACE PALEY is a short story writer who has had several volumes of her work published. Paley is also known as a feminist and peace activist. She is in Philadelphia to guest lecture at Temple University. She joins the show to discuss her work.
Interview with Dr. Alan Beck. October 31, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925374].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DR. ALAN BECK was formerly the director of the Bureau of Animal Affairs in New York, where he helped draft that city's "pooper scooper" law. A similar was recently passed in Philadelphia. Beck currently works at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary School where he heads the Center for Interaction of Animals and Society. He has researched pet/owner relationships and stray dogs and their effect on people, including the homeless. He joins the show to discuss the new law and human-animal relationships.

Interview with Jan and Stan Berenstain; Commentary on American elections. November 5, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503442].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JAN and STAN BERENSTAIN are the creators of the "Berenstain Bears" and the writers and illustrators of the children's books about the bear family. They have been creating animated holiday specials about the Berenstains for NBC, including an upcoming Thanksgiving special. Their most recent Berenstain Bears book, "Bears Christmas Tree," is an adaptation of their animated Christmas special. They have also written a new book geared towards parents, "How to Teach Your Children About Sex Without Making a Fool of Yourself." (2.) Activist DICK GREGORY recently gave a speech for the Ford Hall Forum that was recorded by NPR. Today, Fresh Air will play an excerpt of that speech, on the subject "Are Minorities Really Powerless?" The topics addressed in the excerpt are the 1980 presidential election, Gregory's distaste for the concept of "voting for the lessor of two evils," and the "choicelessness" the common voter feels. The speech was given prior to the election.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JERRE MANGIONE is an author and the director of Creative Writing at the University of Pennsylvania. His newest book is "An Ethnic at Large: A Memoir of America in the Thirties and Forties." He's currently writing a book about Italian-Americans. He joins the show to discuss the recent enforcement of an IRS regulation that requires that publishers destroy or remainder their back-stock in order to take certain deductions. Mangione's book "The Dream and the Deal" nearly faced that fate. (2.) Film critic BILL VAN WERT joins the show for a review of the film "The Stunt Man."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer JOSEF SKVORECKY joins the show to describe his fiction, jazz, and growing up in Czechoslovakia.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TERRY ROBINSON was a physical trainer to the stars, working at MGM. He was Mario Lanza's trainer and close friend. He has recently written a biography of the tenor "Lanza, His Tragic Life."

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Minnie Pearl; Interview with Madelon Bedell. November 20, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925017].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MINNIE PEARL is a country comedian and star of the Grand Ole Opry. She joins the show to discuss her life, career, and new memoir, "Minnie Pearl, an Autobiography." (2.) MADELON BEDELL has just published the first in a two-volume biography of "Little Women" writer Louisa May Alcott and the Alcott family, "The Alcotts: Biography of a Family." She discusses not only the Alcotts, but also the social movements and philosophies that surrounded the family.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film critic LEONARD MALTIN has two new releases. The first is an updated and revised edition of his "T.V. Movies," an index of films shown on television. The second is about silent cartoons and animations and is titled "Of Mice and Magic." He joins the show to discuss both.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Italian journalist and novelist ORIANA FALLACI is known for her interviews with controversial political figures. Her latest work is about her former lover Alexandros Panagoulis, infamous for an attempt to assassinate a Greek dictator. Her book "A Man" covers his life and torture in prison, his enemies, and his death, which she believes to be a politically motivated murder. The book is partly fictionalized.

Interview with Angela Lansbury. December 5, 1980. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925029].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ANGELA LANSBURY is an actress who is currently starring in the tour of "Sweeney Todd," playing now in Philadelphia. "Sweeney Todd" is a musical with music by Stephen Sondheim based on the legend of "The Demon Barber of Fleet Street," a barber whose quest for revenge leads to murder. Lansbury stars as his accomplice, and won a Tony for the role. She joins the show to discuss the musical and working with Sondheim, singing, and acting.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) REBECCA SINKLER is the editor of the Sunday Book Page at the Philadelphia Inquirer. She recently published an article about the best books of 1980. Sinkler joins the show to discuss the trends of the year (a merging of fact and fiction, biography, and historical fiction), as well as putting together the newspaper page.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOE KLEIN has written a biography of folk musician Woody Guthrie. He joins the show to discuss Guthrie's life, career, and family. His book is titled "Woody Guthrie: A Life."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEORGE HEARN is an actor currently starring in the tour of "Sweeney Todd," playing now in Philadelphia. "Sweeney Todd" is a musical with music by Stephen Sondheim based on the legend of "The Demon Barber of Fleet Street," a barber whose quest for revenge leads to murder. Hearn plays the title role. He joins the show to discuss the musical, playing Sweeney Todd, and his career in theater, television, and film. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER).

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CARLOS FUENTES is writer whose work often deals with Mexican history. His most famous work is the novel "The Death of Artemio Cruz," and he's recently published a collection of short stories, "Burnt Water." Fuentes has worked as a diplomat, and is also a professor. He is known for his left-of-center politics and criticism of U. S. intervention in Latin America. He joins the show to describe his career, life, and Mexico.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MERCER ELLINGTON is a trumpeter, composer, and band leader. He is also the son of jazz legend Duke Ellington. Mercer Ellington is the conductor for the musical based on Duke Ellington's work, "Sophisticated Ladies." Mercer Ellington joins the show to discuss the musical and his father.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BRUCE MILLS is a pianist based in New Jersey. He has played several times on Fresh Air. He joins the show for an in-studio concert of Christmas, Hannukah, and New Year music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GENE LONDON is known to Philadelphians as the host of the long-running children's program "Cartoon Corners General Store." London is also an expert on animation and the only person authorized to speak on behalf of Disney animation. His current passion is costume collecting and costume design. He focuses particularly on Hollywood costumes which is the focus of a lecture and film series London will host at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER).

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STEVEN FELD is a ethnomusicologist who teaches sound communication at the University of Pennsylvania. Ethnomusicology combines anthropology and music theory, and attempts to learn about culture through music. Feld is also a jazz musician who has incorporated the genre into his work. His work has taken him to Papua New Guinea, where he studied the Kaluli tribe, and the Southwestern United States. He joins the show to discuss his work. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER.)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DESMOND RYAN is the film critic for the Philadelphia Inquirer, ERNIE SCHIER is the film critic for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, and BILL VAN WERT is Fresh Air's film critic. They join the show to discuss their top ten lists for the best and worst films of 1980.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GARRETT BROWN is a cinematographer and the inventor of the Steadicam. He won an Academy Award for his invention in 1978. He joins the show to discuss the films he's worked on.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Trumpeter and cornet player NAT ADDERLEY is the son of a jazz musician and the brother of saxophonist Julian "Cannonball" Adderley. Adderley joins the show to discuss his musical journey, career, and the current state of jazz.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GENE LONDON is known to Philadelphians as the host of the long-running children's program "Cartoon Corners General Store." London is also an expert on animation and the only person authorized to speak on behalf of Disney animation. His current passion is costume collecting and costume design. He focuses particularly on Hollywood costumes which is the focus of a lecture and film series London is hosting at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. He joins the show to share some of the stories related about the film "The Wizard of Oz" at the latest lecture in the series.

Interview with Jim Quinn. February 4, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925191].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JIM QUINN is a journalist and writer who is currently the restaurant critic for New York's SoHo News. He is also known for his writings on language and the Philadelphia dialect. His new book "American Tongue in Cheek: A Populist Guide to Our Language," promises to defend all the language errors "you want to stamp out." He joins the show to discuss language and answer listener calls.
Interview with Deirdre Bair. February 6, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925150].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DEIRDRE BAIR is known for her biography of playwright Samuel Beckett, "Samuel Beckett: A Biography." She is now the "designated" (not "official") biographer for Simone de Beauvoir. She recently interviewed de Beauvoir in France, and joins the show to discuss their conversation.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Republican ARLEN SPECTER was recently elected as an U. S. senator for the state of Pennsylvania. His political career began when he moved to Philadelphia in the 1950s. He has been the District Attorney of Philadelphia and the Assistant Counsel to the Warren Commission. He joins the show to discuss his plans for the state in the next six years and to answer user calls.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BILL EISENHUTH and PAM KILLMAN of Philadelphia's Advocates for the Mentally Disabled, and LIZ ROBINSON, of the People's Emergency Center, join the show to discuss the homelessness and homeless people in Philadelphia and across the country.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Author and independent filmmaker KENNETH ANGER joins the show to discuss his work as a director and writer, his spiritual beliefs, and selling his Nazi memorabilia to Keith Richards. His latest films are "Scorpio Rising" (about biker culture) and "Lucifer Rising" (based on the works of Aleister Crowley). His most famous book is "Hollywood Babylon."

Interview with Louis L'Amour. February 17, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925188].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LOUIS L'AMOUR is known as the "most famous obscure novelist." He has written 79 novels, mostly westerns. His novels have also been adapted into films such as "Hondo." L'Amour's latest novel is "Comstock Lode." He joins the show to discuss his work, western novels and films, the relationship between Native Americans and western settlers, and what he sees for the future.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MILTON GLASER is a graphic designer who is known for his magazine designs, magazine and record jacket covers, posters, and more. His work is highly influential, and he was worked with New York Magazine, Esquire, and the Village Voice. He is also known for his poster of Bob Dylan which was distributed with Dylan's greatest hits collection. In recent years he's created his own design firm, worked with grocery stores, and helped design Sesame Place. He joins the show to discuss his work and the field of graphic design.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PHILIP FONER is the foremost historian on the labor movement in the U. S. He is the author of over eighty works, including a four volume history of the American labor movement, "Organized Labor and the Black Worker," and "Women and the American Labor Movement," the second volume of which was recently published. He is currently a visiting professor at Rutgers University.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Activist and Pennsylvania State Senator MILTON STREET delivers a talk about the inner city, gentrification, Philadelphia politics and its racial aspects, and his experiences as an activist.

Interview with Bucky Fuller. March 10, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925133].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BUCKMINSTER "BUCKY" FULLER is a philosopher, architect, and inventor. His newest work "Critical Path" will be published in April. The book traces what Fuller calls "the greatest crisis in the history of the human race," not scarcity of resources, but human selfishness. He joins the show to discuss his work and philosophy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet DAN HOFFMAN joins the show to discuss his poem "Brotherly Love," a long poem about William Penn and his vision for the United States. The poem focuses on Penn's treaty with the Native Americans in the area that would become Pennsylvania. Hoffman is the former Poet Laureate of the U. S. and currently works at the University of Pennsylvania.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Author and screenwriter TERRY SOUTHERN joins the show to discuss writing "Dr. Strangelove," "Easy Rider," and "Barbarella."

Interview with Anthony Jackson; Interview with Bobby Seale; Review of Lennie Tristano's album "Lennie Tristano March 25, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503877].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ANTHONY JACKSON is a lawyer who wrote the chapter on the criminal justice system for the Urban League's report "State of Black Philadelphia." For three years, Jackson was the Director of the Police Project at the Public Interest Law Center. He joins the show to discuss race relations and justice in Philadelphia and the entire country. (2.) BOBBY SEALE was one of the co-founders of the Black Panther Party, who was part of the "Chicago Eight," where he was eventually severed from the group's trial. Seale currently works in Washington D.C. where he has started an advocacy group, Advocates Scene, and also offers a self-help program. Seale discusses his past work and how he sees the future of African Americans. (3.) Critic John Szwed reviews a new collection of old Lennie Tristano recordings, "Lennie Tristano, Requiem." Lennie Tristano is a jazz pianist. (PARTIAL AUDIO)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Historian PHILIP FONER joins the show again to discuss Black history in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania. Foner is the foremost historian on the labor movement in the U. S. He is the author of over eighty works, including a four volume history of the American labor movement, "Organized Labor and the Black Worker," and "Women and the American Labor Movement," the second volume of which was recently published. He is currently a visiting professor at Rutgers University. Foner's other works on African Americans include "The Life and Writings of Frederick Douglass" and "Essays in African American History."

Interview with Helen Caldicott. April 2, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923547].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HELEN CALDICOTT is a pediatrician and the president of Physicians for Social Responsibility. The Australian is a leading figure in the fight against nuclear war and the nuclear arms race. She views nuclear arms as a health issue, and has left her job as a pediatrician to devote her time to advocating for nuclear disarmament. She has recently formed the Women's Party for Survival and is planning a march on Mother's Day.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RONEE BLAKELY is an actress, singer, and pianist. She is best known for her role in the Robert Altman film "Nashville." In the film, her character, a country music star is assassinated. Many have referenced the scene of her death in discussing the murder of John Lennon. Blakely has also worked with Bob Dylan with the Rolling Thunder Review and on the film "Renaldo and Clara." She describes her personal style as "new wave country." She joins the show to discuss her career.

Interview with Bobby Short. April 16, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925367].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BOBBY SHORT is a singer and pianist who is known for keeping the tradition of the American Songbook alive. He has recently gained fame amongst a new audience for his work in television commercials. He joins the show to discuss American composers such as the Gershwins, Cole Porter, Cy Coleman, Rodgers and Hart, Burt Bacharach, and Stephen Sondheim.

Interview with Sheila Jordan. April 17, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925704].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SHEILA JORDAN is a jazz singer. Rather than make music she doesn't agree with, Jordan has kept her "day job" as a typist for her entire career. That might be changing as more people become aware of her work. She joins the show to discuss her life and career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT EDGAR is a United States Representative for Delaware County. He is one of the few liberal Democrats who survived the 1980 election. Edgar is the chair of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition and was part of the fact finding mission to El Salvador. He is also a Methodist minister who was once a pastor.
He joins the show to discuss the Reagan administration, the role of money and the media in politics, the "moral majority," and working in Congress. He will also answer listener questions.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) REVEREND RALPH MOORE is an Episcopal priest and the director of the Christian Association at the University of Pennsylvania. DR. JULIAN SLOWINSKI is a psychologist and former Benedictine monk and theologian. They join the show to discuss the events in Jonestown and the radio documentary on the subject, "Father Cares," which was aired by NPR. They also answer listener calls.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Novelist RICHARD PRICE is the author of "Bloodbrothers," "The Wanderers," and "Ladies' Man." All of his novels have been or will be made into films. Price joins the show to discuss his work.

Interview with Kinky Friedman. April 25, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925288].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Country musician KINKY FRIEDMAN is know by some as "Texas Jew Boy." His songs, including "They Ain't Makin' Jews Like Jesus Anymore" and "Ride 'Em Jew Boy," often have anti-semitic, racist, and sexist lyrics. While some take the lyrics seriously, others appreciate the satire. He joins the show to discuss his work.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LIV ULLMANN gained fame as an actress in Ingmar Bergman films. Recently, her work has involved traveling around the world and fundraising as a Goodwill Ambassador for UNICEF. Bergman has just completed a tour of East Africa. Ullman has also directed a sequence in the film "Acts of Love."

Commentary on women in literature. April 30, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503558].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Oliver Lake. May 1, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925662].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) OLIVER LAKE is a jazz and funk saxophonist and composer. He is in town to play a concert with his newest band Jump. Lake joins the show to discuss his career, the music industry, and what it means to be considered an avant-garde musician.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BRITT EKLAND is an actress almost as well known for her private life as her professional. Her new memoir "True Britt" dishes on both, including her relationships with Peter Sellers and Rod Stewart.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MICHAEL ARLEN is the television critic for The New Yorker. Arlen is also a writer. His latest is "The Camera Age," a collection of essays, and his book "Thirty Seconds" was recently released in paperback. He joins the show to discuss his work, television as a form of visual communication, his opinion on its "dangers,"an the perception of the medium as low brow.

Talk by Larry Gross; Talk by Deirdre English. May 5, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925664].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LARRY GROSS is an academic and professor of Communication at the University of Pennsylvania. The focus of his research is largely television. He delivers a talk on violence in the medium. (2). DEIRDRE ENGLISH is a journalist. She delivers a talk on violence and women in pornography and television.
Interview with Tom Paxton. May 7, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925284].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Folk singer and composer TOM PAXTON is known for his work as a musician in the Greenwich Village of the 1960s, where many of his songs became standards at the clubs in the area. His latest album is "The Paxton Report," and is full of topical songs about such subjects as nuclear power and the ERA. Paxton also brings his guitar for an in-studio concert.

Interview with Maurice Sendak. May 12, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925667].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MAURICE SENDAK is well-known for his children's books, including "Where the Wild Things Are," despite the fact that he grew up with a hatred for "kiddies' books." Sendak writes and illustrates his own work and has won many awards. Some find Sendak's work too scary for children. His latest book is "Outside Over There," in which a child is kidnapped by goblins. Items from Sendak's collection of toys and illustrations (including an extensive collection of Mickey Mouse items) will be shared with the public in the show "Maurice Sendak: The Artist's Collection of Children's Toys, Photos, and Illustrations" at the Rosenbach Gallery.

Interview with Ralph Allen. May 19, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925451].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Producer, writer, and composer RALPH ALLEN is one of the writers of the book for "Sugar Babies," the latest hit musical on Broadway. Allen joins the show to discuss musical theater, burlesque, vaudeville, and music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MICHAEL HARRINGTON is the Chair of the Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee (DSOC), the "left" portion of the Democratic Party. The group's goals include national healthcare, full employment, and more control of corporate policies. Harrington has been an activist his entire career, and his book "The Other America," was essential in pushing Presidents Kennedy and Johnson in creating anti-poverty agendas. His new book is "Decade of Decision."

Interview with Susan Strasberg. May 29, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925629].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SUSAN STRASBERG is an actress and the daughter of Lee Strasberg the director of The Actor's Studio who trained such actors as Paul Newman, Marlon Brando, James Dean, and Marilyn Monroe in what came to be known as "method acting." Susan Strasberg made her acting debut at 17 as Anne Frank in a Broadway production of "The Diary of Anne Frank." Strasberg has recently written her memoirs, "Bittersweet," which discuss growing up in her eccentric family, her love affairs with figures such as Richard Burton and Warren Beatty, and her daughter, who was born with a congenital heart defect.

(INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ELLEN WILLIS is a writer for the the New Yorker. Her collection of essays, "Beginning to See the Light: Pieces of a Decade," covers many of the social and political issues of the last ten years. Feminism, rock music, 60s counter-culture and the backlash against it, the changing definitions of "family" amongst the left, religion, and abortion are covered. She also discovers her reconsidering of Judaism and God in general, after her brother became Orthodox. She joins the show to discuss the book and its subjects.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film director MARTIN SCORSESE delivering a commencement speech this year at the University of Pennsylvania. He discusses what he has discovered through and learned from movies and his belief in "integral education."

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HARRY RIGBY and TERRY KRAMER are co-producers of the burlesque musical revue "Sugar Babies." Rigby co-conceived the show with theater historian Ralph Allen, and is known as the producer who brought revivals back to Broadway. Kramer is known for producing a number of plays, including "I Love My Wife" and "Knock, Knock." Her mother was also a theater producer. "Sugar Babies" is back in Philadelphia with its original stars, film legends Mickey Rooney and Ann Miller.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MICHAEL HASHIM is the alto-saxophonist for the Widespread Depression Orchestra, known for the arrangements of 1930s and 1940s jazz. He joins the show to discuss his influences and the music and inner-workings of the Orchestra. The band will be changing its name to The Widespread Jazz Orchestra.
Interview with Max Weiner; Interview with Shere Hite. June 18, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458856].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Consumer advocate MAX WEINER is the founder of CEPA, the Consumer Education Protection Association, which he began in 1965. He is also the founder of the Consumer Party, which became a ballot status party in 1976, and has since fielded candidates in mayoral and other local elections, making it Philadelphia's "third party." Weiner advocates against rate hikes in public works, and is currently fighting against a proposed {dollar}89 million PGW rate hike, and the recent proposal to increase SEPTA fares. Weiner has also worked as a teacher, an accountant, and a broker. He joins the show to discuss the need for consumers to organize and demand the same attention the business class does. (2.) SHERE HITE is a sex educator and feminist who is the author of "The Hite Report: A Nationwide Study on Female Sexuality." She recently wrote the follow-up, "The Hite Report On Male Sexuality." In the introduction to the report, Hite states that intercourse is both a "beautiful" and "oppressive" act. This segment contains frank discussion of sexual attitudes and practices. (PARTIAL INTERVIEW)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NATHAN PRITIKIN is a nutritionist who has developed what he believes to be the ideal diet. For optimal health, he recommends cutting out dairy, reducing fat and protein, and focusing on unprocessed plant foods. He also stresses the importance of exercise as a way of combatting obesity and heart disease.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SHELDON HACKNEY is the new president of the University of Pennsylvania. A native of Alabama, he explains how he hopes to steer the university toward greater community engagement within the city, as well as the role higher education plays in the intellectual and social development of young people.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Anthropologist DAVID FEINGOLD has spent much of his career researching the opium trade originating in Southeast Asia's Golden Triangle. He recently spent time in Burma's Shan States, where much of the poppy needed for the drug is grown. He shares his findings on what motivates drug producers and what impact, if any, Burmese and U.S. drug policies have on trafficking.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) A panel discussion and in-studio performance featuring Aboriginal Australian musicians and ethnomusicologists.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Folk fiddler JOHNNY CUNNINGHAM joined the internationally-beloved band Silly Wizards when he was a teenager. He joins Fresh Air to explain his uniquely Scottish approach to his instrument, and to perform several traditional songs.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Historian ERIK BARNOUW returns to Fresh Air to talk about this history of magic in film. He argues that portrayals of magic in early cinema led to the decline of live magic shows. He also considers how the changing culture of television broadcasting, especially in light viewer demands, the pressure of sponsors to air certain kinds of content, and developing cable technologies.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LLOYD ALEXANDER has written several fantasy novels for children, including his latest, Westmark. He joins Fresh Air to talk about what makes a story compelling, honest, and enduring.
Interview with William Marutani; Interview with McCoy Tyner; Interview with Warren Vache; Commentary on Billie Holiday. August 20, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457687].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Philadelphia judge WILLIAM MARUTANI is a U.S.-born Japanese-American citizen who was forcibly relocated along with his family during World War II. He discusses the history of Japanese internment and the dehumanizing toll anti-Asian racism had on Japanese-American communities.
2. Jazz pianist MCCOY TYNER grew up in Philadelphia before joining John Coltrane's groundbreaking quartet. He joins Fresh Air to talk about his continual development as a musician and the influence he's had on a new generation of pianists (REBROADCAST FROM 07.11.1980).
3. Fresh Air broadcasts part of an ongoing series about the 1979 French Jazz Festival which was produced by the Newark, NJ-based station WGBO. In between clips of notable performances is an interview with jazz trumpeter WARREN VACHE.
4. Jazz critic FRANCIS DAVIS discusses the life and music of singer Billie Holiday in his regular feature, "Interval." (REBROADCAST)

---

Description of show segment(s)

1. Cinematographer GARRETT BROWN's Steadicam is increasingly being deployed in thriller and horror films because of its ability to capture effective point-of-view shots. A Philadelphia native, Brown returns to Fresh Air to discuss recent movies he's worked on like Blow Out and Wolfen.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz critic GARY GIDDENS has recently released a new collection of his writings calling Riding on a Blue Note. A regular contributor to the Village Voice, he talks about his appreciation for different genres like pop vocals, European jazz, and avant-garde jazz.

Interview with Martin Williams. August 26, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925134].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MARTIN WILLIAMS is best known as a jazz critic. His most recent book is about pioneering filmmaker D.W. Griffith, who directed the groundbreaking movies Birth of a Nation and Intolerance. Williams argues that Griffith developed or refined the standard vocabulary for cinematic storytelling still in use today.

Interview with Gus Hall; Interview with Philip Foner. August 28, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925364].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Presidential candidate and chairman of the Communist Party of the United States of America GUS HALL considers the suspicion and fear of communists both within labor unions and mainstream society. He also takes a critical and historical look at the current state of the Soviet Union and the actions of the repressive Stalin regime. (2.) Historian PHILIP FONER joins Fresh Air to explain the unique ways communism has been deployed in the U.S., the Soviet Union, Maoist China, and parts of Europe.
Interview with Peter Borne and David Feingold. August 29, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925362].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Anthropologist DAVID FEINGOLD has appeared on Fresh Air several times before to share his expertise on the international drug trade, particularly the production of opium in Southeast Asia's Golden Triangle. PETER BOURNE served as an advisor in the Carter administration and currently works for the United Nations. Feingold and Bourne debate their vision of how to reduce drug trafficking through international cooperation and domestic policy changes.

---

Interview with Philip Foner. September 1, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925630].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Labor historian PHILIP FONER returns to Fresh Air to discuss the ongoing PATCO strike of air traffic controllers and the animosity they're facing from the Reagan administration and certain segments of the public. Foner sees this as part of a larger erosion of organized labor's powers, particularly among government employees.

---

Interview with Bill Van Wert; Interview with Phil Woods. September 14, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925454].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Fresh Air film critic BILL VAN WERT joins Terry Gross to share his opinions on the new movie Take This Job and Shove It! (2.) Alto saxophonist PHIL WOODS studied classically and Julliard, as well as privately with Lennie Tristano. A gigging musician, studio player, and teacher, Woods considers how formal jazz instruction and changing musical tastes in younger musicians are steering the genre's evolution.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Texas-based blues guitarist JOHNNY COPELAND has a new album called Copeland Special. He and Terry Gross listen to several tracks and talk about the Copeland's development as a musician and songwriter.

Interview with Fran Lebowitz. October 6, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925633].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Humor writer FRAN LEBOWITZ has a new collection of essays called Social Studies, in which she lampoons the publishing industry and contemporary obsessions with health and fitness. The interview is briefly interrupted with an NPR broadcast of President Reagan's press conference announcing the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Interview with David Letterman. October 9, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458790].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Comedian DAVID LETTERMAN's eponymous daytime television show developed a cult following before it was canceled last year. He is now gaining exposure subbing for Johnny Carson on The Tonight Show.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GARSON KANIN's book, Together Again, looks at iconic pairings of actors and actresses in classic Hollywood films. Kanin believes the stars in a given team had deep personal and professional respect for each other, which led to their onscreen chemistry.

Interview with John Waters. October 20, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924378].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) The new book Shock Value by director JOHN WATERS focuses on how he made a career reveling in bad taste. His movie Pink Flamingos, which was released eight years ago, still generates controversy for its scatological closing scene featuring drag queen Divine. Waters' new movie, Polyester, stars many actors who've appeared in his previous films.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist and composer HEATH ALLEN's song cycle Report on a Castaway, which features the poetry of Bertholt Brecht, is currently being performed in Philadelphia. He has also been working with the West Philadelphia-based Cavalry United Methodist Church to write new liturgies for their services.
Interview with Major Holley. October 21, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925458].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz bassist MAJOR HOLLEY has recorded with myriad musicians in the United States, but has never had one of his own albums released domestically. Known for his virtuosic technique and his habit of singing along to his own playing, he joins to Fresh Air to demonstrate how he approaches his instrument.

Interview with Alice Neel; Interview with Barbara Garson. October 22, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925176].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Painter ALICE NEEL shares her perspectives on what makes a good portrait--one that goes beyond straight representation. (2.) BARBARA GARSON is a writer and activist concerned with the conditions of American workers. She has witnessed a rise in assembly-line methods in both factories and office settings, and discusses how these conditions affect the attitudes and behaviors of employees young and old.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Peace activist and clergyman WILLIAM SLOAN COFFIN rose to prominence through his protests of the Vietnam War. He now organizes against the nuclear arms race. The church he leads in New York City makes a point of welcoming local African American and Hispanic communities, gays and lesbians, and the poor.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Democratic senator PAUL TSONGAS re-evaluates the political viability of liberalism in his new book, The Road From Here. He puts forth an ideology of "compassionate realism," which seeks to protect workers and disadvantaged communities while at the same time acknowledging the U.S.'s finite economic resources.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) E.L. DOCTOROW has published several novels set in different times in American history. He often uses real-life historical figures as major characters in his book to better ground the narrative in a given era. He says his work as an editor helped him develop and refine his prose writing.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) South Philadelphia-born painter SIDNEY GOODMAN has chosen to champion realism over abstraction in his work. He joins Fresh Air to talk about what makes for a compelling subject in his work.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) A Prairie Home Companion host GARRISON KEILLOR discusses the success of his lauded public radio program, his writing process, and how he brings to bear his midwestern background on his work.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Swedish-born actress VIVECA LINDFORS has a new memoir in which she explores her move to Hollywood, the development of her craft, and the state of women in the motion picture industry. While reflecting on her successful career, she points out that aging actresses are offered fewer jobs.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer and scholar JERRE MANGIONE's enduring memoir Mount Allegro--which had been marketed as both a novel and a book for teens in past decades--has just been republished by a university press. He delves deep into his identity and experiences as an Italian American. (2.) DAVID EYGES is a classically-trained musician and one of the few cellists working in jazz today. With so little music in the genre written for his instrument, he records and performs his own compositions with a number of dedicated collaborators, including Philadelphia-based saxophonist Byard Lancaster.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pennsylvania Democratic Congressman BOB EDGAR joins Fresh Air to discuss his hopes for liberal policies under the Reagan administration.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist HOYLE OSBORNE and singer and guitarist JANE VOSS take their songs and songwriting cues from vaudeville traditions. The musical duo perform a number of songs from their repertoire in-studio.

Interview with Sheila Kitzinger. November 6, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925121].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Anthropologist SHEILA KITZINGER has written several books on prepared childbirth, which incorporates practices from around the world and encourages active participation of the parent during the actual birth. She also teaches classes on the subject. Fresh Air's host Terry Gross invites listeners to call in with their questions.
Interview with Maya Angelou. November 18, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925498].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Poet MAYA ANGELOU's latest volume in her series of autobiographical books is called The Heart of a Woman. She discusses the challenges of raising her son while singing for a living and working in the African American civil rights movement.

Interview with Betty Friedan. November 19, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925497].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Feminist pioneer BETTY FRIEDAN discusses the future of the feminist movement, which she believes needs to focus on greater worker protections which will enable women to better balance their home and work lives. While she advocates for safe and legal access to abortion, she believes sexual liberation, particularly for lesbians, is a separate civil rights issue.

Description of show segment(s)

1. RICHARD ELMAN is a poet who decided to work as a reporter in Nicaragua during the 1979 revolution. He chronicles his experiences in a new book called Cocktails at Somoza's. He is also notable for writing the novelization of the movie Taxi Driver.
Interview with Bobby Seale. December 1, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925120].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Black power activist BOBBY SEALE joins Fresh Air to talk about the history of the Black Panther Party, as well his trial as part of the Chicago Eight. He speaks with callers about the Panthers' relationship with white leftist groups like the Weathermen and SDS, as well as the path forward for African American civil rights.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ED KOREN is an illustrator and magazine cartoonist. Best known for his work in The New Yorker and The Nation, he is a chronicler of middle-class New York City, documenting the humorous, mundane, and frustrating aspects of everyday life.

Interview with Margaret Robinson; Interview with Katherine Whitlock and Regina Pheiffer. December 9, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925122].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphia-based writer MARGARET ROBINSON's debut novel is called Arrivals & Departures. Her short stories and criticism have appeared in a number of local and national publications. (2.) Researchers KATHERINE WHITLOCK and REGINA PHEIFFER are currently writing a book about fertility awareness, a process by which women can determine how likely they are to conceive based on various biological signs. They see fertility awareness as both a benefit to women hoping to conceive and those seeking to avoid pregnancy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Comedian, TV host and accomplished pianist STEVE ALLEN has a new book called Funny People, about some of his favorite comedians. He talks about his career in entertainment and performs several original songs and instrumental compositions.

Interview with Michael Doyle. December 17, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925492].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Reverend MICHAEL DOYLE is a priest and political activist based in Camden, New Jersey. Best known for his anti-war activities in the 1970s, he now works through his church to help alleviate poverty in his city. Doyle recently returned from a trip to Northern Ireland, and shares his impressions of the political and religious tensions there.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Author CHAIM POTOK returns to Fresh Air to talk about his new novel, The Book of Lights. Potok's own experience as an Army chaplain during the Korean War, as well as his Jewish faith, greatly informed the book. He credits his time overseas with cultivating a greater understanding of and appreciation for Eastern culture.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Middleweight boxing legend ROCKY GRAZIANO has a new memoir out called Somebody Down Here Likes Me, Too, which was co-authored by RALPH CORSEL. They discuss Graziano’s storied career both in and out of the ring.

Interview with Sam Dockery. December 30, 1981. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925490].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SAM DOCKERY didn’t start playing piano until he was 19. Since then, the Camden, New Jersey-based musician has become an in-demand figure in the jazz scene. He performs in front of a live studio audience and talks about his approach to the piano as both a solo performer and a member of a band.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BOB DOROUGH is a pianist, singer and songwriter acclaimed for his witty lyrics and distinctive vocal style. He joins Fresh Air to perform his songs and talk about his career in jazz.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DENNIS BRUTUS is a prominent South African poet and anti-apartheid activist. He helped convince the Olympic committee to block his home country from participating in the games due to the latter's racist policies. Now living in the United States, Brutus has recently been found deportable by the courts, and faces an uncertain future.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Historian PHILIP FONER recently returned from a stay in China, where he lectured on recent American history, with a strong focus on labor, women's, and black civil rights movements. He reflects on the cultural differences between the U.S. and China, and considers the social conditions which positively and negatively affect daily life in the communist country.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LYS SYMONETTE worked as Kurt Weill's piano accompanist until the composer's death in 1950. She continues to perform and promote his work through recordings, live performances, and collaborations with accomplished vocalists.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist and Kurt Weill assistant LYS SYMONETTE in a live performance of the late composer's works.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer DICK GOLDBERG has found success in his off-Broadway play, Family Business. It is currently being adapted into a made-for-TV movie on PBS. (2.) Historian PHILIP FONER returns to Fresh Air to discuss his new book, a collection of writing by the labor activist and socialist Kate Richards O'Hare, whose important legacy has been often overlooked.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DOUGLAS ADAMS' new book, A Restaurant at the End of the Universe, is a sequel to his popular novel A Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy. He has adapted the latter book for radio and talks about how each format alters his approach to storytelling.

Interview with Al Cohn. February 18, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924972].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Tenor saxophonist AL COHN's most recent accomplishment is the release of his new album Nonpareil. In addition to his nearly four-decade-long career in jazz, Cohn has arranged music for a number of television programs.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN MOLLOY has published a series of books about dressing for success. He argues that, in order to receive better treatment and opportunities, men and women alike should project an image of upper-middle class grooming and education. (2.) SNCC photographer DANNY LYON also works as a documentary filmmaker. He looks back on his career in the civil rights movement, the politics of documentary movies, and his ambivalence about living in New York City.

Interview with David Bradley. February 24, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924974].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DAVID BRADLEY is a novelist who writes about the African American experience. His new, award-winning book is called The Chaneysville Incident, which explores how the history of slavery affects a black historian several generations later. A Temple University professor, Bradley is currently involved in efforts to organize writers in Philadelphia.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GARRISON KEILLOR has a new collection of short stories called Happy to Be Here. Fans of his wildly popular public radio program, A Prairie Home Companion, call into Fresh Air with their questions about his career.
Interview with Paul Theroux. March 5, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925637].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PAUL THEROUX's new novel Mosquito Coast is about a man who moves his family to Honduras to escape what he believes to be the bankruptcy of American culture. Theroux, who has also published several books of travel writing, is interested in why people choose to uproot themselves, either by traveling or emigrating to a new country.

Interview with George Wein. March 6, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925745].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEORGE WEIN is a concert promoter who founded the Newport Jazz Festival. He joins Fresh Air to talk about the Festival's legacy and the state of jazz today.

Interview with Michael Wayne and Patrick Wayne. March 6, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925427].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film producer MICHAEL WAYNE and actor PATRICK WAYNE are the sons of the celebrated actor John Wayne. On the occasion of the production of a commemorative gun honoring their father's life, they join Fresh Air to talk about the elder Wayne's career, his approach to fatherhood, and his views on the roles of men and women.
Interview with Jim Karayn; Interview with Lawrence Weschler. March 11, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503970].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) In light of changing laws dictating the funding of public broadcasting, the Philadelphia-based television station WHYY will begin experimenting with running commercial advertisements as an additional revenue source. Station president and general manager JIM KARAYN answers the Fresh Air listeners’ questions. (2.) Writer LAWRENCE WESCHLER reports on Poland's recent labor movements, as well as the impact they've had internationally, in his book Solidarity.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film, television and stage actress MELANIE MAYRON discusses how each of her roles has led to more challenging and rewarding work. Her newest film, Missing, is directed by Costa-Gravas.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Obstetrician gynecologists JANE HODGSON and ED SULLIVAN debate the ethics of abortion. Hodgson has worked as an abortion rights activist for decades and has performed or overseen the procedure thousands of times. Sullivan practices medicine in Media, Pennsylvania, and believes there are alternative treatments to problem pregnancies which do not result in the termination of a fetus.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MARILYN MOATS KENNEDY advises Fresh Air listeners on how to negotiate for the best salaries in their workplace, especially in light of the current recession and corporate culture. Her new book, Salary Strategies, was recently published by Rawson, Wade.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT RODALE took over for his father as the head of Rodale Press, which publishes a number of magazines that promote healthy living and eating. He funds a number of research projects which aim to develop more environmentally-sustainable ways of producing natural foods.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Singer and guitar player JOHN SEBASTIAN once fronted the band The Lovin' Spoonful. Now he is adapting E.B. White's novel Charlotte's Web as a musical. He shares his thoughts on the record industry today and his performance at Woodstock. Sebastian also plays a number of original and classic songs on air.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RITA MAE BROWN has a new novel called Southern Discomfort about class divisions in Alabama. She has begun a new phase in her career as a television writer and is deeply invested in the visibility of gay people in popular culture.

Interview with Connie Francis. April 8, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925430].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CONNIE FRANCIS is a pop singer who took a seven-year break from her career. She recently revealed that she is a rape survivor, and that that trauma prompted her extended hiatus. She talks about how she endured the aftermath of that experience and found her voice again.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Former baseball umpire and current NBC sports commentator RON LUCIANO has a new book about his career called The Umpire Strikes Back.

Interview with Falaka Fatah. April 27, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925286].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Activist FALAKA FATAH is the co-founder of Umoja House, an organization that currently runs 21 house on North Fraser Street in Northwest Philadelphia serving gang members and street kids. The program began when Fattah and her husband, David, invited a gang to live with them after discovering their son, Robin, had joined. The Fattahs work with gangs led to a city wide meeting and truce among Philadelphia gangs. Their new project is "Boys Town," which will serve ex-offenders. Fattah joins the show to discuss strategies for reaching youth in disadvantaged neighborhoods.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) VICTOR NAVASKY has written a book about Hollywood blacklisting during the era of McCarthyism. As the editor of The Nation, he is a keen observer of American politics, interested in how the current state of both the left and right. He also is concerned with First Amendment rights as they pertain to journalists and copyright laws.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HAZEL HENDERSON is a largely self-taught, British-born economist. She notes that the Industrial Revolution was based on an unprecedented depletion of natural resources, and that the only realistic path forward is for countries and businesses to embrace solar energy and sustainable industry -- actions largely incompatible with the policies of the Reagan administration.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RANDY SHILTS is one of the few prominent, openly gay journalists working today. He has recently published a book called The Mayor of Castor street, which features a comprehensive history of the barrier-breaking politician Harvey Milk, who served as San Francisco's mayor until his assassination in 1978.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SUSAN STAMBERG is the co-host of NPR’s news magazine All Things Considered, which celebrates 11 years on the air. Stamberg has just released a new book called Every Night at Five, in which she details what it's like to work on the show, the unique experiences of women journalists in the news business, and what it takes to become a great interviewer.

Interview with Kenneth Lawrence; Interview with Stephen Rosenfeld; Review of Miles Davis's and Lester Bowie's albums "We Want Miles" and "The Great Pretender." May 5, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503956].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Covert Action, a report by Danny Miller, begins with an interview with KENNETH LAWRENCE, a regular contributor to the Covert Action Information Bulletin, a magazine published around five times a year in Washington, D. C., which covers the actions of the C. I. A. The publication is known for its "Naming Names" feature which reveals the name of C. I. A. agents. Covert Action claims that the information in the column is unclassified or of agents who are no longer working. However, they have suspended the column due to pending legislation. Lawrence is a reporter known for his investigations into the F. B. I.’s involvement in the Civil Rights Movement. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER) (2.) Covert Action, a report by Danny Miller, continues with an interview with STEPHEN ROSENFELD, an editorial writer for the Washington Post. He joins the show to offer another perspective on the situation, and gives his opinion on both the actions of the Covert Action Information Bulletin and the legislation proposed to end them, the Intelligence Identities Protection Act. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

(3.) Critic Francis Davis joins us for the weekly program "Interval," in which he looks at new jazz releases. Today Davis reviews "We Want Miles" by jazz legend Miles Davis, and "The Great Pretender" by trumpeter Lester Bowie.

---

Interview with Dian Fossey. May 12, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925254].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DIAN FOSSEY is an animal researcher who has devoted much of her career to studying and living among the mountain gorilla, a species that lives in a small region on the border of Rwanda and Uganda. Her research has led to some fascinating insights into animal behavior, but also revealed a troubling history of poaching in central Africa.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT INDIANA is best known to Philadelphians for his LOVE statue in Center City. His work has run the gamut from literary painting to pop art sculpture. Many of his recent projects feature numbers or short words rendered in vibrant colors. He now lives in Maine.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ADELAIDE TAMBO is an anti-apartheid activist from South Africa who lives in exile in England. She is particularly concerned with how racism affects black women and children. She joins Fresh Air to talk about her role in Black liberation movements abroad, and highlights the contributions of other South African women like Winnie Mandela, wife of the jailed political leader Nelson Mandela.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) EZEKIEL MPHAHLELE has written extensively about his experiences in and exiled from his home country of South Africa. Known for his politically-minded fiction, poetry and criticism, Mphahlele has also taught at several universities worldwide, including the University of Pennsylvania. He has recently returned to South Africa, even with apartheid still in place, where he continues his work as a college professor.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Musician and composer DAVID EYGES is one of the few jazz cello players. In recent years, he has worked with Philadelphia saxophonist Byard Lancaster, with whom he recorded the album "The Arrow." The duo has now become a trio with the addition of Philadelphia drummer Sunny Murray. The group recently released the album "Crossroads." Eyges' music is part of a trend of blurring the lines between jazz and classical music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN COATES recorded his first jazz piano album when he was seventeen. He has gained a national following despite the fact that he rarely performs outside the Delaware Water Gap. Most of his albums have been released by the Omnisound label. Coates performs songs from each of them in an in-studio concert.

Commentary on the "Dear Abby" Advice Column; Interview with Margo Howard. May 26, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458823].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pop culture critic CHARLES HARDY discusses the impact newspaper advice columns had on American women. He broadcasts a lecture by historian DEBORAH HERMAN, in which she looks at six months' worth of Dear Abby columns in the 1950s as a way of understanding marriage in that decade. (2.) MARGO HOWARD is the daughter of Ann Landers, who writes the Dear Abby column. Howard has written a book about her mother called Eppie, in which she discusses what it was like to grow up with the popular advice columnist.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DICK GREGORY is a politically-minded, African-American comedian who works to raise awareness for causes like civil rights, anti-nuclear proliferation, and greater legal protections for women. He is currently on a hunger strike in support of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Interview with Andrew Tobias. June 1, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959927256].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ANDREW TOBIAS is a financial writer who explores the history of the insurance industry in the United States in his new book, The Invisible Bankers. He says there is much of interest in what many consider to be a dull topic. He talks about the myriad and conflicting state-by-state laws governing the industry and his take on how consumers can determine what policies best suit their needs.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Television journalist ROBERT MACNEIL cohosts the PBS news program The MacNeil/Lehrer Newshour. He has a new book called The Right Place at the Right Time. He joins Fresh Air to talk about how, despite his unabashed liberal perspective, he cultivates an objective journalistic position on his show through copious research and careful selection of guests.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Bass player JYMIE MERRITT is a Philadelphia-based jazz musician who was recruited by drummer Art Blakey while Merritt was playing in a rock and roll band. He joins Fresh Air to talk about how he got his start on the instrument and how he keeps his playing fresh.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist ROGER ANGELL discuss the state of baseball and sportswriting in his new book, Late Innings, which features work first published in his New Yorker column, The Sporting Life.
Interview with Matthew Lesko; Interview with Bill Irwin. June 7, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959927258].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MATTHEW LESKO is a business consultant who helps individuals and institutions navigate the labyrinthine world of government funding. He also offers advice on NPR's Morning Edition, in a column in Good Housekeeping and in his new book, Getting Yours. (2.) BILL IRWIN incorporates his training as a clown in the vaudeville tradition into more experimental dance forms. His eclectic influences, coupled with a newfound interest in ballet, are featured in his dance piece called Regard of Flight.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Puerto Rican artist RAPHAEL FERRER has public art featured in the Bronx and Philadelphia. Largely self-taught, he gave up a burgeoning career as a latin jazz drummer to pursue sculpture and painting. (2.) Folk singer ROSALIE SORRELS made her living as a performing musician in the wake of a divorce. She joins Fresh Air to discuss how she chooses the songs in her repertoire and perform several of them a cappella.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) WASHBOARD SLIM and HORACE "SPOONS" WILLIAMS take their names from the traditional instruments they play. After working as traveling musicians, they've made a permanent home in Philadelphia. The two perform songs from their repertoire for Fresh Air.
Interview with Chico Freeman. June 10, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959927255].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Tenor saxophonist, bass clarinetist and composer CHICO FREEMAN spent his formative years in Chicago, where he earned a master's degree in theory and composition from Governor State University. He also worked with the jazz collective the Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians. Now based in New York, he has a new album titled Destiny's Dance.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MILT HINTON's first solo photography show is now being featured at the Cava Gallery in Philadelphia. Best known for his work as a jazz and session musician, Hinton's photos document candid moments in the lives of iconic jazz figures. His work also portrays how touring African American jazz musicians experienced segregation in the American South.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Artist RED GROOMS has a new public sculpture called Philadelphia Cornucopia, which incorporates exaggerated portrayals of notable figures from early American history. Fascinated by the unique cultures that arise from cities, he has also made public art for New York and Minneapolis. In addition to sculpture, Grooms is known for his films and his staging of happenings in the 1960s.
Interview with Rosalie Sorrells; Review of the Albums "Urban Bushmen" by The Art Ensemble of Chicago and "'80 ?below '82" by Air. June 17, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925420].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Folk singer ROSALIE SORRELS made her living as a performing musician in the wake of a divorce. She joins Fresh Air to discuss how she chooses the songs in her repertoire and perform several of them a cappella. She is also helping raise money to help fund an investigation of a string of murders in her hometown of the Delaware Water Gap. (REBROADCAST FROM 06/07/82) (2.) In his regular feature Interval, jazz critic FRANCIS DAVIS reviews new albums by The Art Ensemble of Chicago and Air, two groups with roots in the Chicago-based Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians (AACM).

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) WILHELMENIA FERNANDEZ tours the world as an opera singer, but calls Philadelphia home. Best known for playing the female lead in Porgy and Bess, she recently made her film debut in the movie Diva.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer and rabbi CHAIM POTOK is best known for his novels. However, he served as the Secretary of the Writings Committee of the Jewish Publication Society Committee of Scholars. The group has been working since 1957 on a new translation of the Old Testament, and the third volume was just published. Potok joins the show to discuss the process of translating the scriptures and the differences from more familiar translations.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GLORIA STEINEM and PAT CARBINE co-founded the feminist magazine Ms. They discuss how they navigate the political and media spheres to work toward greater legal protections for women -- particularly via the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. By building coalitions among lawmakers, men, and women of all backgrounds and sexual orientations, they hope to steer the narrative of feminism away from the hostile and often homophobic associations it has today.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz tap dancers JIMMY SLYDE and LON CHANEY are members of the group Hoofers. They join Fresh Air to talk about how their style emerged from the bop tradition, the physical demands of their art, and their efforts to keep the tradition culturally vital.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Fresh Air broadcasts a lecture by Isaac Asimov. The acclaimed science fiction writer talks about how his ideas of robotics have influenced industrial and technological innovations. He sees further innovation as the only path forward for the cultural and material survival of humanity.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) The new book The Skyscraper, by New York Times architecture critic PAUL GOLDBERGER, takes a look at the economic, social, and design history of cities across the United States. His interests lie in the trajectory of American urban centers with regard to effect and funding of new development.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GAIL PRESSBERG is the director of the Middle East desk of the American Friends Service Committee. The AFSC is a peace organization that conducts studies and promotes communications between feuding parties. Pressberg is the co-author of the AFSC report "A Compassionate Peace: A Future for the Middle East." Pressberg joins the show to discuss the current war in Lebanon, the background of Arab-Israeli relations, and the recent history of the Palestinian people. Pressberg will also respond to listener calls. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Legendary editor and publisher ROBERT GIROUX has recently tried his hand at writing. His new book is "The Book Known as 'Q': A Consideration of Shakespeare's Sonnets." Giroux calls "Q" the most mysterious work ever published, and, unlike other critics, he believes it to be an early work of Shakespeare. Giroux joins the show to discuss Shakespeare's work, life, and sexuality. Giroux also discusses some of the works and authors he has published and edited.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DONALD DRAKE is a reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer whose work often focuses on medical issues. Last week the Inquirer published his seven-part series on the homeless and the mentally ill, "The Forsaken." Drake spent over a year researching the topic, and has also written a musical drama, "Crazy People," based on his research. [The series would later be short-listed for the Pulitzer Prize.] Drake joins the show to discuss street people and the deinstitutionalization of the mentally ill. Drake will also answer listener calls.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Trombonist MELBA LISTON is one of the few women to find success as a musician, arranger, and composer in the world of jazz. Liston has worked with artists as diverse as Dizzy Gillespie and Aretha Franklin. After spending five years living in Jamaica, Liston has returned to the United States and formed a new big band, the seventeen-piece "Melba Liston and Company."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer and rabbi CHAIM POTOK is best known for his novels. However, he served as the Secretary of the Writings Committee of the Jewish Publication Society Committee of Scholars. The group has been working since 1957 on a new translation of the Old Testament, and the third volume was just published. It is the first translation in 2200 years to base itself on the original Hebrew texts. Potok joined the show in June, and he's back to offer comparisons between the new translation, the King James Bible, and the 1917 Jewish Publications translation.
Interview with Judith Martin. August 6, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925542].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JUDITH MARTIN, better known as MISS MANNERS, the name under which she writes her Washington Post advice column. She also reviews theater under her own name for the Post. She's recently written "Miss Manners' Guide to Excruciatingly Correct Behavior." Martin joins the show to defend the importance of etiquette, discuss class relations and manners, and answer Fresh Air staff's questions on topics such as splitting the check, catching an unzipped "fly," sexism and other '-isms' in the workplace, and the perils of modern dating and marriage.

Interview with Peter Liacouras; Interview with Juan Gonzalez and Enrique Arroyo. August 27, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503736].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Native Philadelphian PETER LIACOURAS is the seventh president of Temple University. Prior to holding the role, he served as the Dean of Law at Temple from 1972 and has been a member of the faculty since 1963. He's also worked as Special Assistant Prosecutor in Philadelphia, and worked on a four-year study on the use and abuse if computers in the criminal justice system. He joins the show to discuss his vision for Temple, and the university's new advertising campaign. (2.) JUAN GONZALEZ has just returned to the Philadelphia Daily News after taking a year's leave to found and serve as the first president of the National Congress of Puerto Rican Rights. ENRIQUE ARROYO is the director of the Puerto Rican Congress of New Jersey. They join the show to discuss Latino issues in the Delaware Valley.

Interview with Robert Sam Anson; Commentary on Willie Mitchell; Interview with John Lasseter; Review of Bruce Chatwin's essay collection "What am I Doing Here?" August 29, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501622].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Reporter ROBERT SAM ANSON. While a young reporter for Time Magazine in Cambodia during the Vietnam War, Anson was captured by the North Vietnamese and their allies in the Khmer Rouge.
He's written a book about that experience, but also about Time's reporting of the war. For much of the war, according to Anson, Time's hawkish stance compromised the work of its reporters, himself included. Anson's earlier books include "They've Killed the President!": The Search for the Murderers of John F. Kennedy, and Best Intentions: The Education and Killing of Edmund Perry. REV.1: Rock and roll historian ED WARD profiles Memphis soul musician and producer WILLIE MITCHELL. Mitchell was a trumpeter whose own tastes ran to jazz and soul. But Mitchell enjoyed his greatest success as a producer and talent scout. He launched the careers of Al Green, Ann Peebles and O.V.Wright. INT.2: Computer animator JOHN LASSETTER. His film "Tin Toy" won the 1988 Academy Award for Best Animated Short Film. An earlier work, "Lumo Jr.," which brought to life a small fry Luxo lamp, was also nominated for an Academy Award for animation. Lasseter is the head animator at Pixar, the computer animation company that grew out of the computer graphics division of George Lucas's Lucasfilm. Lasseter also designed and animated the stained glass knight in Steven Spielberg's 1985 film "Young Sherlock Holmes." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, May 23, 1989.) REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews a posthumous collection of essays by writer BRUCE CHATWIN. The collection is titled What Am I Doing Here? Chatwin, who wrote extensively about his world travels and the collisions of cultures, died last year from a Chinese fungus that infected him on one of his trips.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN CAGE is an avant-garde musician known for his "chance compositions," which use "found" sounds. His music mixes Eastern philosophy with Western high-technology. Cage is also an expert on mushrooms. In celebration of his birthday, the Philadelphia Museum of Art is putting on an exhibition of his scores, "John Cage: Scores & Prints." Cage joins the show to discuss his art and philosophy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet, playwright, and novelist NTOZAKE SHANGE is best known for her choreo-poem "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide / When the Rainbow is Enuf," which has been adapted for public television. Her first novel, "Sassafrass, Cypress & Indigo" has just been published. It follows three sisters whose weaver mother named them after vivid dyes. The novel mixes poems, spells, potions, and recipes, and explores the territories and choices of modern Black women.

Interview with William Murray. September 17, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925316].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) WILLIAM MURRAY is the son of atheist crusader Madalyn Murray O'Hair, whom the family considered "the most hated woman in America." At the age of 14, Murray was the plaintiff in a Supreme Court case his mother filed to remove prayer from the Baltimore Public Schools. Murray experienced a difficult relationship with Murray O'Hair, who terrorized him as child. As an adult, Murray converted to Christianity and hasn't spoken to his mother since 1977. His new book is "My Life Without God."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEOFFREY STOKES has been a staff writer for The Village Voice since 1973. He is the editor of the "New Village Voice Anthology," a collection of articles from the newspapers from 1956-1980. Stokes joins the show to discuss the Anthology and the Voice's history.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HANS BETHE won the 1967 Nobel Prize for Physics for determining the nuclear processes that power the sun and stars. Bethe was also involved in the creation of the atom and hydrogen bombs at the Los Alamos project during World War II. Bethe is now an activist for a nuclear freeze, and co-authored a New York Times op-ed on the topic. He joins the show to discuss the development and future of nuclear arms.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PAUL ZIMMERMAN is the screenwriter of the upcoming film "The King of Comedy," directed by Martin Scorsese and starring Robert DeNiro and Jerry Lee Lewis. Zimmerman was previously the movies editor for Newsweek and has written several books. Zimmerman is based in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and has become active in the Bucks Alliance for Nuclear Disarmament (B.A.N.D.). The group has invited Helen Caldicott of Physicians for Social Responsibility to speak at a local event.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ELDRIDGE CLEAVER was active in the Black Panther Party in the 1960s and early 1970s. He fled the country after his involvement in a shootout with Oakland Police and returned in 1975. Cleaver served 9 months in jail before being released, and he finishes his last day of parole today. He joins the show to discuss what has happened since his return, including his political involvement (which has become more conservative) and return to Christianity.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT A. HARRIS is the producer, and along with Kevin Brownlow, one of the reconstructionists of the 1927 French silent film "Napoleon." The film used techniques such as montage, "poly-vision," and rapid edits. Harris and Brownlow tracked down missing footage across England, France, and the United States. Harris is the head of Image Film Archive, a film distribution company. Harris joins the show to discuss the film and the efforts to reconstruct it.

Interview with Noam Chomsky. October 5, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925400].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NOAM CHOMSKY's linguistic theories revolutionized the field, and he is also known as a political radical. He has written many works of social, political, and economic analysis, and his latest work "Towards a New Cold War," consists of essays tracing the evolution of American foreign policy and ideology since the 1970s. A new collection of his essays called "Radical Priorities," has also been released. Chomsky, who grew up in the area, is in Philadelphia to deliver a talk on the relations between the United States and Israel.

Interview with Paul Fussell; Interview with Neil Welliver. October 6, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925501].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PAUL FUSSELL is an academic who has written several works of cultural history and literary criticism. His is particularly interested in the writing, photography, and art produced during World War II. His latest collection of essays is "The Boy Scout Handbook and Other Observations." (2.) Painter NEIL WELLIVER is known as "neoimpressionist" and for his landscapes of the Maine countryside. He divides his time between Maine and Philadelphia where he works at the University of Pennsylvania.
The Institute of Contemporary Art at the University is hosting an exhibition of his work, "Neil Welliver: Painting 1966-1980."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JESSICA SAVITCH is one of the most prominent women journalists on broadcast television. She began her career as a Philadelphia newscaster. Her autobiography "Anchorwoman" discusses how she made her career in a male dominated industry. She joins the show to discuss journalism and women.

Interview with Jules Feiffer. October 14, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925292].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JULES FEIFFER is a cartoonist known for satirizing the middle class, politicians, and sexual attitudes in his comic strip "Feiffer." He began his career at The Village Voice and is now syndicated nationally. Feiffer has also written several screenplays, including "Little Murders." A new collection of his work "Jules Feiffer's America: From Eisenhower to Reagan."

Interview with Donald Bogle. October 19, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925203].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DONALD BOGLE is an author, film critic, and staff writer for Ebony, who wrote "Toms, Coons, Mulattoes, Mammies, and Bucks; An Interpretive History of Blacks in American Films." Bogle, who also works as a story editor for Otto Preminger, has recently released "Brown Sugar: Eight Years of America's Black Female Superstars." He joins the show to discuss film images of African Americans and the role of race in the motion picture industry.

Interview with Henry Glassie. October 21, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http:// www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925167].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) University of Pennsylvania folklorist HENRY GLASSIE has been the last ten years studying the Northern Irish community of Ballymenone. Glassie sees the conflict and history of this community as a microcosm of Ireland's at large, and says he wanted to present the "workaday reality" of average people. His study has been compiled into the book "Passing the Time in Ballymenone: Culture and History of an Ulster Community," and contains stories, songs, and Glassie's own descriptions and analyses. A companion volume, "Irish Folk History: Tales From the North," contains transcriptions of songs and stories from the community.

Interview with Gene Siskel and Roger Ebert. October 22, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458812].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film critics GENE SISKEL and ROGER EBERT come from two competing Chicago newspapers, but teamed up for the hit PBS show "Sneak Previews," which won an Emmy in 1979. The two have recently left PBS for a new, nationally-syndicated show. "At the Movies."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphian JOHN ZACHERLE (ZACHERLY) is the exemplar of the horror movie show host. He plays the character of "Roland" (pronounced "Ro-LAND) on his television show "Shock Theater." He not only introduces the films he plays, he also adds in cut-aways that often mock the movie or the genre itself. Zacherle is also had a top-ten hit with the novelty song "Dinner with Drac." Zacherle will join the Philadelphia Pops for a performance of "The Raven" this weekend. (2.) Fresh Air arts critic Judy Stein shares upcoming arts events in Philadelphia and reviews the New Expressionist show of painting and photography, "The Raw Edge," at the Cheltenham Arts Center, as well the show of Post-Modern prints, "The New Image" at the Association of American Artists Gallery.

Interview with Larry King. October 25, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925743].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LARRY KING is the host of the radio talk show "The Larry King Show." The late-night program features guest interviews and listener calls and is aired between midnight and five thirty. He's recently written the memoir "Larry King." He will be airing his show live from Philadelphia this week.

Interview with Cleo Laine and John Dankworth. October 26, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925740].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) In 1952 jazz singer CLEO LAINE joined The JOHN DANKWORTH Band; in 1958, she and Dankworth married. They continue their collaboration: Dankworth produces and arranges Laine's albums and manages her career. Their latest effort is the album "Smilin' Through," which features Dudley Moore on piano. The English couple began touring the United States and Canada in the 1970s and Laine has sung in many prestigious venues. Dankworth has also written the scores for several films. The two are in town to perform at the Valley Forge Music Fair.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist KENNY BARRON is part of the band Sphere. One of the group's largest influences and inspirations is Thelonious Monk whose work is featured on their newest and first album "Four in One." Native Philadelphian Barron has also recently released two solo albums "Kenny Barron at the Piano" and "Golden Lotus." Barron also teaches music at Rutgers. Sphere will perform at the Afro-American Museum.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Cello player DAVID EYGES and saxophonist BYARD LANCASTER have been playing together since 1979. Eyges is trained and classical and chamber music, but has added jazz to his repertoire. Lancaster is a native Philadelphia who was played with many jazz legends. He also plays in the band Philly Funk. Eyges and Lancaster released the album "The Arrow" as a duo, and with, Sunny Murray, the album "Crossroads" as the David Eyges Trio. The trio will begin a residency at the Painted Bride Arts Center. The pair join the show to perform live and discuss their approach to composition and improvisation.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Cello player DAVID EYGES and saxophonist BYARD LANCASTER have been playing together since 1979. Eyges is trained and classical and chamber music, but has added jazz to his repertoire. Lancaster is a native Philadelphia who was played with many jazz legends. He also plays in the band Philly Funk. Eyges and Lancaster released the album "The Arrow" as a duo, and with, Sunny Murray, the album "Crossroads" as the David Eyges Trio. The trio will begin a residency at the Painted Bride Arts Center. The pair join the show to perform live and discuss their approach to composition and improvisation. In this segment of the interview, Eyges and Lancaster will also answer questions from listeners who call in.

---

Interview with Alan Dershowitz. October 29, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925377].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Civil liberties lawyer ALAN DERSHOWITZ is known as a defender of free speech and an advocate for the right to a passionate defense. Dershowitz has defended many controversial figures and is currently involved in the Claus von Bulow and Jack Henry Abbott cases. He has been a professor at Harvard Law School since the age of twenty-eight. His new book is "The Best Defense."

---

Interview with Helen Gurley Brown. November 1, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925581].

Description of show segment(s)

1. HELEN GURLEY BROWN is the editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine. She says that her newest book, "Having it All," is aimed at "mouse burgers" or, women of plain appearance. She defends beauty standards and claims that all women can develop themselves through fashion, makeup, exercise, and even plastic surgery.

---

Interview with Mimi Pond; Interview with Lane Nishikawa. November 2, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458872].

Description of show segment(s)

1. MIMI POND is the author and illustrator of the new book "The Valley Girls’ Guide to Life," which she researched by spending time in the mall with Californian junior high students. Pond is a cartoonist whose strip "Mimi Pond's Famous Waitress School" appears regularly in The National Lampoon. 2. Poet and performer LANE KIYOMI NISHIKAWA will be performing his one-man show about being Japanese-American "Life in the Fast Lane: Requiem for a Sansei Poet" in Philadelphia. The show contains stories and poems based on his life in Hawaii and San Francisco. He joins the show to discuss his work and life and perform selections from the show.

Interview with Frank Saunders; Interview with Edie Massey. November 4, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925442].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) FRANK SAUNDERS worked as the chauffeur for Joseph and Rose Kennedy from 1961 until after Joseph Kennedy's death. He lived in a cottage on their Hyannisport estate, and performed many duties for them beyond his title. He's written a book about his time with the Kennedys, "Torn Lace Curtain." (2.) EDIE MASSEY is an actress known for her eccentric roles in John Waters' films. She has appeared in "Pink Flamingos" "Multiple Maniacs," and "Polyester." She was discovered by the director in a Baltimore bar, and she also runs a thrift store, "Edith's Shopping Bag," in the city. Massey also heads a punk act and is performing in Philadelphia tonight. She plays a mixture of Connie Francis and Four Seasons' songs, as well as originals.

Interview with Ben Krass and Aron Levin. November 5, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457406].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BEN KRASS of the Krass Brothers clothing store and ARON LEVIN of Aron Levin Galleries are businessmen known in Delaware County for their television commercials. They join the show to discuss why they chose to create their own television advertisements, and how the ads have effected their businesses and images.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TONY BENNETT is one of the foremost interpreters of American popular songs. Bennett will perform with the Count Basie Orchestra at the Valley Forge Music Fair next week. He joins the show to discuss his music, his career, and the music industry of the past and present. (2.) DANIEL FORD is the former Executive Director of the Union of Concerned Scientists. He led a ten year investigation into the nuclear industry and its relationship with the Atomic Energy Commission. Ford discovered that the regulatory agency saw itself as an industry partner and suppressed damaging reports. His report has been published in the book "The Cult of the Atom: The Secret Papers of the Atomic Energy Commission." (PARTIAL INTERVIEW)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film critic LEONARD MALTIN has been writing about films since he was 17 years old. The 1983-1984 edition of his guide "T.V. Movies," which gives "capsule" reviews of films airing on television, has just been published. This year's edition has 15,000 movies and also reviews made-for-television movies. Maltin has written several books about film and is the film critic for Entertainment Tonight. Maltin will answer listener calls about movies.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MILO O'SHEA is an Irish actor currently starring as a priest in "Mass Appeal" at the Walnut Street Theater. He played the same role on Broadway for which he won several awards and was nominated for a Tony award. O'Shea has appeared in numerous films and plays. He will appear with Paul Newman in the upcoming film "The Verdict."

Interview with Peter Max; Interview with Thomas Keneally. November 19, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925293].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PETER MAX is an artists whose "psychedelic" posters and graphics were popular in the 1960s and early 1970s, and he designed the appearance of the film "Yellow Submarine." He switched to painting in the mid-1970s, and his recent paintings of the Statue of Liberty were featured in Reagan's White House. A retrospective of his paintings, drawings, lithographs and etchings will open at the Hallowell Gallery in Conshohocken. (2.) THOMAS KENEALLY recently won the prestigious Booker prize for his novel "Schindler's List." The novel tells the story of German Industrialist Oskar Schindler who, in World War II, created "benign" work and concentration camps. The Australian novelist has published several novels, including "The Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith," which has been made into a film.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JULIAN "WINNIE" WINSTON is best known as as a pedal steel guitarist who builds whose own instruments. He also works as a professor of design at the Philadelphia College of the Arts. In this interview, Winston, whose nickname is "Winnie," discusses another field of interest: homeopathy. Winston first experienced homeopathic medicine as a patient, and began to research it for himself. He has spent a year traveling around the country interviewing homeopathic practitioners. Winston is on the faculty of the National Center for Instruction in Homeopathy in Millersville, Pa.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TOM SHALES is the film critic for NPR and a television critic and t.v. editor at the Washington Post. His column is syndicated in nearly 150 newspapers, including the Philadelphia Daily News. A collection of Shales' t.v. columns from 1974-1982, "On the Air," has just been published.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ANN BEUF is a sociologist who studies the social and psychological lives of those with illnesses. She has researched the lives of hospitalized children and the psychology of vitiligo patients. Beuf was formerly the director of Womens' Studies at the University of Pennsylvania, and currently teaches at Penn and Cedar Crest College. She will travel to New Zealand next year on a Fulbright Scholarship. Beuf recently traveled to China to study their medical system, she will discuss her findings as well as her research into anorexia patients in this interview.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) VINE DELORIA is a Native American activist and writer. The member of the Standing Rock Sioux tribe joins the show to discuss Native American politics and society.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist DAVID HALBERSTAM is best known for his work on the Vietnam War for such publications as the New York Times. Unlike many journalists, Halberstam reported from the countryside. Halberstam delivers a talk on television and contemporary politics as a SPEC (Social Planning and Events Committee) Connaissance Speaker at the University of Pennsylvania.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist DAVID HALBERSTAM is best known for his work on the Vietnam War for such publications as the New York Times. Unlike many journalists, Halberstam reported from the countryside. Halberstam delivers a talk on television and contemporary politics as a SPEC (Social Planning and Events Committee) Connaissance Speaker at the University of Pennsylvania.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz singer PHYLLIS HYMAN was in the original Broadway cast of "Sophisticated Ladies," a musical revue of Duke Ellington's work, along with Gregory Hines and Judith Jamison. Hyman is featured on McCoy Tyner's new album is "Looking Out" and is in town to perform. Hyman discusses the show, her career, and writing jingles for television commercials.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) STANLEY CROUCH is a jazz critic and Village Voice columnist who regularly writes about jazz, theater, and black issues and politics. Crouch is also a drummer who has recorded with several jazz bands. He is in Philadelphia to speak at a jazz forum and concert.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Novelist EDMUND WHITE's newest work, "A Boy's Own Story," follows a young gay man growing up in the midwest in the 1950s. The novel has some autobiographical elements. White joins the show to discuss his life, growing up as a homosexual person, and his novel.

Interview with Marge Piercy. December 17, 1982. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959927254].

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) MARGE PIERCY is a novelist. Her new book is titled "Braided Lives."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Blues and bluegrass musician DAVID BROMBERG worked as a side member in many jazz and folk bands before striking out as a solo act. Bromberg is a multi-instrumentalist, who focuses on the guitar. He joins the show to discuss his career and play live. (INTERVIEW BY Bob Carlin)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DIVINE is an actor known for acting in drag in JOHN WATERS' films. Divine has developed a club act which will play in Philadelphia and is publishing a paper-doll book. Divine's drag persona was developed with director and writer John Waters. A retrospective of Waters' films is currently playing in Philadelphia. The two join the show to discuss their careers, lives, and the public's reaction to their boundary-pushing films.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) WALTER S. KENTON spent seventeen years working in the insurance industry as a salesperson, manager, and broker before deciding he could no longer work in the industry in 1980. Kenton has written a book about what he calls insurance companies' "deceitful" sales tactics, "How Life Insurance Companies Rob You and What You Can Do About It." (2.) Son of Duke Ellington, composer and musician MERCER ELLINGTON is the conductor of the Duke Ellington Orchestra. The Orchestra will join Peter Nero and the Philly Pops for a pair of concerts of Duke Ellington's work, including a symphony, "The Three Black Kings / Les Trois Rois Noirs," finished by Mercer Ellington after his father's death.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) VUKAN VUCHIC is one of the world's leading experts in urban transportation, and is a professor of Civil and Urban Engineering Transportation at the University of Pennsylvania. He is the author of the book "Public Transportation Systems and Technology," and, in 1982, won the first Dr. Friedrich Lehner Medal, which is awarded to those who have devoted their lives to public transportation. Vuchic joins the show to discuss SEPTA's recent cutbacks on commuter lines, the state of public transportation, automobile traffic flows, pedestrians, and the future of transportation in Philadelphia. Vuchic will also answer listener calls.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film and television critic Bill Van Wert joins Terry Gross to discuss and review the new film with James Caan, Sally Field, and Jeff Bridges, "Kiss Me Goodbye." (PARTIAL INTERVIEW) (2.) Documentarian BOB MUGGE's new film "Black Wax" is a performance documentary with poet and activist Gil Scott-Heron. The film documents performances by Scott-Heron, including some with wax figures. Mugge's previous film "Amateur Night at City Hall," was a documentary about Frank Rizzo.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Willy Perryman, better known as PIANO RED, is a pianist who has been playing the blues and boogie woogie since the 1920s when he got his start playing rent parties in Georgia. Piano Red also hosted a live radio show on WAOK in Atlanta where he was known as "Dr. Feelgood." He began touring internationally in the 1970s and is in town to play several concerts. (2.) LES BLANK is one of the filmmakers who directed the documentary "Burden of Dreams," which will be playing at the

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Singer and lyricist PEGGY KING was well known in the 1950s, especially for her appearances on television variety programs, such as the Mel Torme Show. She left the business to raise her children in Philadelphia, but has returned to performance. King will perform with the Philly Pops, singing a Johnny Mercer set.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Composer JOHN KANDER and lyricist FRED EBB are one the most popular songwriting teams in the country. They wrote the music for Broadway shows such as "Cabaret," "Chicago," and "Woman of the Year." They've also composed the music for movies such as "Funny Lady" and "New York, New York." Their song of the same name from the latter film became a hit when sung by Frank Sinatra. Their new musical, "Zorba," stars Anthony Quinn.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Drummer RONALD SHANNON JACKSON has worked with jazz legends such as Cecil Taylor, Albert Ayler, and Ornette Coleman during his Harmolodics period. Jackson's new album is "Man Dance." (2.) Film critic Bill Van Wert reviews the film "Sophie's Choice," starring Meryl Streep. (PARTIAL REVIEW)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet NIKKI GIOVANNI joins the show to discuss her latest work "Those Who Ride the Night Winds," the life of a poet, African American poets, rap, and women poets.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) There have been many changes in Philadelphia since the 1950s: the renovation of Society Hill, the Chestnut Street Transit Way, Penn Center, Galleries 1 and 2, and Penn's Landing. BARBARA KAPLAN is the current Executive Director of the Philadelphia Planning Commission. Prior to attaining the role, she served for eight-and-a-half years on the commission in various roles, and for planning agencies in Dallas/Fort Worth, San Diego, and Los Angeles. ED BACON held the same role as Kaplan from 1949-1970, and his tenure was so impressive that he is known as the "Father of Modern Philadelphia." He was behind the renovation of Penn Center and Penn's Landing, and the development of Society Hill and Market Street East. Bacon is also the author of the book "Design of Cities," a book which has influences architects and designers. The two join the show to discuss the current state of the City and development plans for the future, including proposals for a new Convention Center and a symphony hall on Broad Street. Kaplan and Bacon will also answer respond to listener questions and comments.

Interview with Joyce Johnson. February 4, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925555].

Description of show segment(s)

1. JOYCE JOHNSON became a part of the circle known as the Beat writers: Allen Ginsberg, William S. Burroughs, and Jack Kerouac, when she broke away from her middle class Jewish family life and joined the bohemian Greenwich Village crowd. Johnson met Kerouac in 1957 and was in a romantic relationship with him for two years. Her new memoir, "Minor Characters," discusses not only her experiences but also the role of women in the Beat generation. Johnson is also an editor and novelist.

Interview with Walter Lear and Nick Ifft. February 21, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458825].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Dr. WALTER LEAR is the founder and co-chair of the National Gay Health Coalition, the former state Health Commissioner, for Southeast Pennsylvania and the president and founder of the Institute of Social Medicine and Community Health in West Philadelphia. Dr. NICK IFFT is the secretary of Philadelphia Health Professionals for Human Rights (an organization of gay and lesbian physicians and dentists), the coordinator of the Philadelphia A.I.D.S. Task Force, and a general practitioner at South East Health Center in Philadelphia. The doctors join the show to discuss A.I.D.S. (speculation about its cause, its symptoms, and medical effects) and its effects on the gay community.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MARITA GOLDEN became part of a group of black radicals as student at American University in Washington, D.C. After graduating from the Columbia School of Journalism, Golden married a Nigerian and moved to Nigeria with him. Golden was shocked by the role of women and wives in the country, which she found stifling. Taking her son with her, Golden left her husband and returned to the United States. She discuss her life and experiences in her memoir "Migrations of the Heart."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist and composer PHILIP GLASS is known for his avant-garde "minimalist" music. Glass was trained classically at Juliard and in Paris. Glass discusses his album "Music With Changing Parts."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ALICE NEEL is a painter known for her portraits and nudes. Neel was born in 1900 in the Main Line and studied at the Philadelphia School for Design for Women, later Moore College of Art. Neel's work is featured in an exhibit at the Philadelphia College of Art, focusing on women artists whose work appears in the archives of the Women's Interart Center in New York. She discusses her life and career as a woman artist.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PETER BOGDANOVICH is a screenwriter, director, and producer, whose movies include "The Last Picture Show," "What's Up Doc?," and "Paper Moon." He got his start working for Roger Corman. Bogdanovich is also a critic and journalist, who has written for the Village Voice and Esquire, and also an author of several books about U.S. film directors. His latest film is a romantic comedy titled "They All Laughed," and Bogdanovich is currently distributing it himself through his company Moon Pictures.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Seymour Shubin. March 10, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925530].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SEYMOUR SHUBIN is a novelist whose previous work "Anyone's My Name," was a best seller. Shubin is the former managing editor of Official Detective Stories, and has written for medical and psychological journalists. His new novel, "The Captain," is a suspense story that explores the anger and resentment a retired detective living in a nursing home feels towards the nurses, doctors, and the family members who put him there. The novel has been nominated for an Edgar Award. (2.) Gerontologist ROY WALFORD is currently researching the aging process and how to extend life expectancy. His new book "Maximum Life Span," explores the theory he is currently developing on using caloric restriction, or what Walford calls "under nutrition," to extend life expectancy. Walford has been on the faculty of the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) since 1954, and has won many awards for his research and work.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet GWENDOLYN BROOKS was, in 1954, the first black person to receive the Pulitzer Prize for poetry. Brooks has written over fifteen books, her poetry has been widely anthologized, and has received over forty honorary doctorates. Brooks is also the Poet Laureate of Illinois. Brooks is in the area to deliver the "Marion Moore Poetry Reading" at Bryn Mawr College. Brooks discusses her career and reads some of her poetry.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MICHAEL DIBERARDINIS is an organizer with the Kensington Joint Action Council (KJAC), an community group that attempts to unite Whites, Blacks, and Latinx to tackle neighborhood problems. DiBerardinis joins the show to discuss conditions, racial relations, and politics in the neighborhood. (INTERVIEW BY DAVE DAVIES)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NORMAN MAILER is a journalist, novelist, and essayist whose latest novel is "Ancient Evenings." Mailer delivers a talk on "The Problem of Writing" at the University of Pennsylvania.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN ROCKWELL is the music critic for The New York Times. He believes critics should take (almost) all genres of music equally, and was one the first critics to cover "vernacular music." Rockwell has written the book "All American Music." Rockwell discusses his taste in music (including his beginnings in classical music), journalism, and shares records with Fresh Air.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) "Seaview" is TOBY OLSON's second novel, and has been nominated for a Penn/Faulkner Award. The novel follows a golf hustler and dying woman who travel across the U. S. Olson is also well known as a poet, especially in the Philadelphia where he is an active member of the "poetry scene." Olson teaches at Temple University where he is developing a Master's degree program in creative writing.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Coloratura soprano ROBERTA PETERS made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera in 1950, and has sung there every seasons since. Peters has performed in China and the U.S.S.R. Peters joins the show to discuss her life, career, and the current state of opera.
Interview with Charlie Haden. April 15, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458901].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CHARLIE HADEN is one of the foremost bass players in contemporary jazz. In the 1950s Haden was a part of the first Ornette Coleman Quartet, which was the center of a jazz revolution. He has been involved with both avant-garde and mainstream jazz ever since. In the 1960s he formed the Liberation Music Orchestra, whose pointed political references were controversial. Haden has recently re-formed the Orchestra and also plays with the band Old and New Dreams, made-up of Coleman alumni. He has also recently recorded an album with Denny Zeitlin. Haden joins the show to discuss his roots in country music, working with Coleman, and his career in jazz.

Interview with Margaret Atwood. April 15, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458758].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MARGARET ATWOOD is a novelist and poet whose female protagonists have attracted women readers. Atwood considers herself a feminist writer and joins the show to discuss her life, career, and the women's movement. Her latest work is a collection of short stories titled "Dancing Girls."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STANLEY TIGERMAN is a Chicago-based architect known as the "enfant terrible" of midwestern architecture. Although he studied with Ludwig Mies Van der Rohe, but in 1976 he decided to break with the Chicago School of architecture and declared he had done his last serious piece. In the same year, he was part of the "Chicago 7," a group of architects who organized a "guerrilla" alternative to the "100 Years of Chicago Architecture" show. Since then, Tigerman has incorporated wit in humor in his work. His buildings include "Daisy House," in the shape of a penis, "Kosher Kitchen for a Jewish American Princess," "Hot Dog House," and "House with a Pompadour." In 1983, he won the American Institute
Tigerman heads his own firm and is a professor at the University of Illinois, Chicago. His latest book is "Verses."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROGER "JIM" MCGUINN was the leader of the folk-rock group The Byrds whose hits include "Mr. Tambourine Man" and "Turn, Turn, Turn." McGuinn is the one constant member of the group which has gone several personnel changes, including the departures of David Crosby, Chris Hillman, and Gram Parsons. McGuinn has also released several solo albums. McGuinn brings his guitar to the studio to share both Byrd hits and new music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PAUL ZIMMERMAN is the screenwriter of the film "The King of Comedy," directed by Martin Scorsese and starring Robert DeNiro and Jerry Lewis. Zimmerman was previously the movies editor for Newsweek and has written several books. Zimmerman is based in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and is active in the Bucks Alliance for Nuclear Disarmament (B.A.N.D.). Now that "The King of Comedy," has been released, Zimmerman returns to Fresh Air to discuss the film.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Historian ALLAN BE?RUBE? has been researching gays and lesbians during World War II, particularly gay men in the military. Be?rube? began the research for the San Francisco Lesbian and Gay History Project, an oral history which collected stories from older gays and lesbians about life "pre-Stonewall." Be?rube?'s work was the covered in the Mother Jones article "Coming Out Under Fire."

Interview with Calvin Trillin. May 4, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925342].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) "Populist gourmet" CALVIN TRILLIN is a journalist, humorist, and food writer. His latest work is "Third Helpings." He joins the show to discuss his work and contemporary food culture.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphian RASHIED ALI is a drummer known for his involvement with "free jazz" and other avant-garde jazz. Ali also played for John Coltrane. Ali joins the show to discuss his life and career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SUSAN SEIDELMAN is the producer and director of the film "Smithereens," which will open at the TLA this week. The movie follows a young women who, despite her lack of musical talent, dreams of becoming a New Wave star. The film co-stars punk musician Richard Hell. "Smithereens" was the first independent film entered into competition at the Cannes Film Festival. Seidelman is from Abington, and will be at the TLA opening.

---

Interview with Rita Mae Brown. May 9, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925656].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Novelist RITA MAE BROWN's newest novel "Sudden Death" is set in the world of women's professional tennis. Brown herself was a tennis player before becoming a writer. The novel also deals with the issue of lesbian athletes in the sport. Brown joins the show to discuss the novel and the sport.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MALCOLM FORBES is the owner, chairman, and editor-in-chief of Forbes Magazine, whose slogan is "Forbes: The Capitalist's Tool." The company was founded by Forbes's father, and Forbes joined the staff in 1947, and was promoted after his father's death in 1954. The firm remains a family business--two of Forbes's sons work for the magazine. Forbes is also known for his wealth and extravagant hobbies such as hot-air ballooning (he was the first to travel coast-to-coast in one), motorcycling, and collecting art and toy soldiers. Forbes is in Philadelphia to deliver a talk at a World Affairs Council dinner.

---

Interview with Bob Neloms. May 17, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972885484].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz pianist BOB NELOMS joins the show to discuss his early career as the house pianist for Motown Records. Neloms worked with artists such as The Supremes, Martha and the Vandellas, Stevie Wonder,
Marvin Gaye, Smokey Robinson, and Mary Wells. He can be heard on such Motown hits as "Dancing in the Streets," "You've Really Got A Hold On Me," "Baby Love," and "Heat Wave." Neloms will also discuss his career in jazz and his time working for Charlie Mingus. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Interview with Tony Bennett; Review of the television program "Motown May 18, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503717].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TONY BENNETT is one of the foremost interpreters of the American songbook, and he has continued to record classics despite pressure to "give up the old stuff." Bennett joins the show to share and discuss recordings that span his entire career, including discussion of composers such as the Gershwins, Johnny Mercer, Count Basie, and Rodgers and Hart. (2.) On this edition of "Hearing Secret Harmonies," rock critic Ken Tucker will review the television special "Motown: Yesterday, Today, Forever," and share some the music "you didn't hear on the special."

Interview with McCoy Tyner. May 24, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925666].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz pianist and composer MCCOY TYNER grew up in West Philadelphia. In his early career, he worked as John Coltrane's pianist and recorded over twenty albums with the legend. Tyner has been recording on his own since 1965, and his influence is clear in the style of younger players. Tyner will perform and attend a concert in his honor at the upcoming Cool Jazz Festival.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN ZOGBY is the National Field Representative of the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee. The organization was founded in 1980 and opposes discrimination, ethnic slurs, and racism directed against Arabs. The group has protested advertisements, newspaper cartoons, and press coverage, and has lobbied Congress regarding Israel's invasion of Lebanon. Zogby is of Lebanese descent, and lives in Central New York, where he is involved in local politics and worked as a professor of political science and history. Zogby says that Arabs are "the last ethnic group it's legitimate to pick on in America." He joins the show to discuss the dual image of Arabs in the United States and how this effects American foreign policy. Zogby will also respond to listener calls.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN G. ADAMS became the Counselor of the Army in 1953 and had to work as the liaison to Joseph McCarthy. His experience with McCarthy turned his indifference towards the Senator to active resistance. When McCarthy threatened members of the Army in 1954, Adams leaked documents that revealed McCarthy's illegal harassment of Adams. This led to the televised "Army-McCarthy Hearings." Adams has written a new book about this period and his experiences, "Without Precedent: The Story of the Death of McCarthyism."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PETER TORK was the guitarist and keyboardist of The Monkees, and band put together for a 1960s television program of the same name. Tork currently performs solo as well as part of his band the Peter Tork Project. Tork joins the show to discuss being a Monkee and his career since the band's demise.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Tenor saxophonist and composer ARCHIE SHEPP is known for his radical jazz and his radical politics. His recent work has emphasized interpreting the traditions from which his playing and writing is derived, including a blues and spiritual album with Horace Parlan and a tribute album to Charlie Parker "Looking at Bird." His latest album is "Mama Rose." Shepp is also a playwright, poet, and professor. Shepp moved to Philadelphia at the age of 7, and will perform a concert with McCoy Tyner at the Cool Jazz Festival.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Psychologist TIMOTHY LEARY is the father of the psychedelic movement of the 1960s and its experiments with mind-altering drugs. In 1960, Leary joined the faculty of Harvard at the Center for Personality Research, where he analyzed the effects of psychedelics and personality. As part of his research, introduced L.S.D. and other psychedelic drugs to many, and also used them himself. Leary was eventually asked to leave the university, and later served time in jail on drug charges. After his release, Leary went a tour debating one of his nemeses, G. Gordon Liddy. Leary has written a new autobiography "Flashbacks," and joins the show to discuss his life and philosophy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Husband and wife JANE STERN and MICHAEL STERN spend much of their time on the road in search of good food and Americana. They have written several books about their travels including "Road Food" and "Horror Holiday." Their latest work "Goodfood" is about regional cuisine around the United States. Jane and Michael Stern will discuss Philadelphia and Middle-Atlantic cuisine and respond to listener calls.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Legendary ballerina MARGOT FONTEYN was a member of The Royal Ballet and danced professionally for an exceptionally long time. She has danced with partners such as Rudolf Nureyev. Fonteyn will host a series on public television "The Magic of Dance." Fonteyn joins the show to discuss her life, career, and contemporary ballet.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CAL THOMAS is the Vice-President for Communications of the Moral Majority. The Moral Majority was funded by Jerry Falwell and a coalition of pastors, priests, and rabbis in June of 1979. Thomas describes the group as a political organization dedicated to addressing the "erosion of traditional values" and the social problems the group believes results from the abandonment of "Judeo-Christian values." Thomas writes the group's daily radio commentary, material for its monthly newspaper, and serves as a spokesman for the organization. His new book is "Book Burning." Thomas joins the show to discuss the group's values and its stance on women's rights, gays and lesbians, and abortion.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN D'EMILIO is an Assistant Professor of American History at the University of North Carolina. His latest book, "Sexual Politics, Sexual Communities," is an historical analysis of the creation of gay activism from 1940-1970. The book looks at how World War II helped create a gay community, the politics and organizing styles of early homophile groups, such as the Mattachine Society and the Daughters of Bilitis, and the impact of the civil rights movement, student activism, and feminism on gays. D'Emilio joins the show to discuss his research and conclusions.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SIGI SHAPIRO is the Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, a coalition of 25 groups representing 70,000 Pennsylvanians. Shapiro joins the show how she became an activist in the disable rights movement and some of the current issues she is organizing around.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BILL BRADLEY is a United States Senator from New Jersey. Bradley started his career as a professional basketball player and was sworn-in as the Senate's youngest member in 1979. Bradley has served on the Energy and Finance Committees, co-sponsored the Fair Tax Bill, been one of the architects of the windfall profits tax on oil, and brought a contract to the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Bradley is currently seeking Medicare reforms. Bradley joins the show to discuss his belief and legislative ideas; he will also respond to listener calls.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEORGE JOSEPH KRESGE, also known as "The Amazing Kreskin," is a popular mentalist. Kresge will perform at the Fantasy Film Expo this weekend.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SEYMOUR HERSH is an investigative journalist known in part for breaking the story of the My Lai Massacre for which he received a 1970 Pulitzer Prize. Hersh also won Polk Awards in 1969, 1973, 1974, and 1981. Hersh is currently the national correspondent for The Atlantic, and his new book is "The Price of Power: Kissinger in the Nixon White House." The book studies Kissinger's use and abuse of power during his international negotiations and his power plays within the Nixon administration. Hersh joins the show to discuss his book and career.

Interview with Lane Nishkawa. July 8, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458837].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet and performer LANE KIYOMI NISHIKAWA will be performing his one-man show about being Asian American "Life in the Fast Lane: Requiem for a Sansei Poet" in Philadelphia. The show contains stories and poems based on his life in Hawaii and San Francisco. He joins the show to discuss his work and life and perform selections from the show. (REBROADCAST OF NOVEMBER 2, 1982).

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) WILLIAM SCHIMMEL is the accordionist for the Tango Project, and disagrees with those who malign the instrument and the dance/music. Schimmel has written a tango mass for accordion, conducted and performed in the Joseph Papp production of the "Three-Penny Opera," and composed the musical "Kill." Schimmel lives in New York and commutes to Philadelphia where he is the dean of the New Power School of Music. Schimmel is working with Tom Waits on a show called "Frank's Wild Years." He joins the show to discuss his career and has brought his accordion to the studio.

Interview with Christopher Cerf. July 14, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925728].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CHRISTOPHER CERF writes songs for the children's television program Sesame Street. He wrote and performed the bulk of the music on the new album, Born to Add, which features songs from the show.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MYRLIE EVERS was married to fellow civil rights worker Medgar Evers, who was assassinated in 1963. Her book about her late husband, For Us the Living, was recently adapted into a made-for-TV movie. She served as a consultant on set. She talks about how the experience of racism in Mississippi inspired her and her husband's activism.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Early in his career, trombonist AL GREY was hired by bandleader Count Basie as a featured soloist. As he continues to stay active in the the jazz scene, Grey's musical achievements are now being recognized by his hometown of Pottstown, Pennsylvania.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RAY FIELDING develops special effects for Francis Ford Coppola. He is also an accomplished film scholar. Fielding joins Fresh Air to discuss the unique challenges he and the director faced while making One from the Heart and Apocalypse Now.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TRACY NELSON was the lead singer of the Berkeley-based rock group Mother Earth. Now a solo artist in Nashville, she has been broadening her horizons by performing and recording music influenced by R&B and country.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Researcher and psychotherapist MYRON SHARAF has written a book about his teacher and colleague Wilhelm Reich called Fury on Earth. Sharaf details Reich's early work with Freud, his political activism in 1930s Germany, and his research on the orgone, a term he coined for an essential biological energy.

Interview with Reesa Marchetti, Cherie Rumbol, and Ann Francis; Interview with Tony Auth. August 15, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458906].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphia-based new wave band Suburban Wives Club features REESA MARCHETTI on guitar, CHERIE RUMBOL on bass, and ANN FRANCIS on drums. As an all-woman band, they inject a healthy dose of irony into their songs about the femininity and the female experience. (2.) TONY AUTH is the political cartoonist for the Philadelphia Inquirer. He recently illustrated a children's book called That Game from Outer Space.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Clarinetist and jazz club owner BILLY KRETCHMER's Philadelphia establishment was a hub for musicians in the area until the 1960s, after health issues forced Kretchmer to stop playing. He looks back fondly on his career as he prepares for his first public performance in 17 years.

Description of show segment(s)

1. BETTY WHITE is a television actress who portrayed the sardonic and sex-obsessed television show host Sue Ann Nivens on The Mary Tyler Moore Show. She also serves on the boards of several animal welfare groups, and has written a new book about the relationship between pets and their owners.

Description of show segment(s)

1. Journalist FRED KAPLAN's new book is called "The Wizards of Armageddon." By looking at declassified documents, Kaplan examines the changing nature of the United States' nuclear arms policies. He cites the influence of rivalries between the Air Force and Navy, think tanks, and political strategists, all of whom have contributed to a more abstract, theoretical perspective on the potential for nuclear war.

Description of show segment(s)

1. Philadelphia Archdiocese Monsignor JOHN PATRICK FOLEY and Temple University professor LEONARD SWIDLER discuss the popularity of Pope John Paul II. They consider his focus on human rights, his traditional doctrinal positions, and how his opposition to the ordination of women and birth control could have a negative effect on women in the church.
Interview with Jim Quinn. September 6, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925739].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) In his new book But Never Eat Out on a Saturday Night, Philadelphia Inquirer Magazine food critic JIM QUINN shares his tips for diners on how to find the best restaurant experience.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DIAN FOSSEY has a new book called Gorillas in the Mist, about her research of the animals in central Africa. She returns to Fresh Air to talk more about the behavior of gorillas in their natural environment and her interactions with specific gorilla communities.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Folk singer MICHAEL COONEY is releasing four new LPs this year and continues to tour after two decades on the road. In addition to performing original and traditional songs, he often appears on the television show Sesame Street to play music for children. (INTERVIEW BY ???)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MICHAEL GRAVES' early work drew heavily from modern architecture pioneer Le Corbusier. Over time, Graves sought to incorporate more figurative, accessible gestures into his own architectural vocabulary. At once much lauded and much criticized, he continues to develop a style which evokes nature and signals a greater continuity with past traditions. In addition to his work as an architect and professor, Graves has designed a luxury bag for Bloomingdale's.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HOLLY NEAR and RONNIE GILBERT performed politically-charged folk music together until they were blacklisted in the 1950s. Now reunited, they continue to sing songs about workers' rights, the women's movement, and other liberation struggles around the world. (REBROADCAST FROM ??/??/1982)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Fatal Vision, the new book by writer and journalist JOE MCGINNISS, explores the investigation and eventual conviction of Jeffrey MacDonald, a Green Beret and doctor found guilty of murdering his daughters and pregnant wife. In exchange for a percentage of the book's royalties, MacDonald gave McGinniss a significant amount of access to his life, even allowing the writer to live with him during the trial.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) The Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority's recent takeover of regional rail outside Philadelphia city limits stirred controversy, reduced ridership, and led to a worker strike. SEPTA General Manager DAVID GUNN and consultant and University of Pennsylvania professor VUKAN VUCHIK discuss how to improve the system and increase rider trust.

Commentary on Converts to Evangelicalism; Interview with Brad Allison and John Gordon.

October 4, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458904].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) In the first of a four-part series on religion in America called On This Side of Paradise, WHYY reporter MAEVE MCGOWAN reports on adults who found spiritual fulfillment in Evangelical and other Protestant communities and faith traditions. (2.) Two of the religious leaders featured in On This Side of Paradise join Fresh Air to answer callers' questions about faith and doctrine. BRAD ALLISON is a pastor at Philadelphia's Tenth Presbyterian Church who embraces an Evangelical outlook. JOHN GORDON is the chaplain at Albright College, and has eschewed fundamentalism for what he describes as a "reasonable" interpretation of the Bible.

Interview with Barbara Ehrenreich. October 4, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925783].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer BARBARA EHRENREICH's new book, The Hearts of Men, explores the changing nature of gender roles in marriage from the 1950s onwards. She connects the increase in middle class women entering the workforce with a growing disdain on the part of men toward traditional family structures, which some believe limit their economic and sexual agency. Ehrenreich finds evidence of this trend in the popularity of Playboy Magazine and the cultural rise of the male-dominated Beat movement.
Interview with Robert M. Young. October 5, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925522].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT M. YOUNG is a filmmaker whose work focuses on injustices committed against the poor and other marginalized groups. He has a new movie forthcoming called The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez.

(INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER).

Interview with Petra Kelly. October 6, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925785].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PETRA KELLY is a founding member of West Germany's Green party who is in Philadelphia to speak against NATO's presence in her country. She joins Fresh Air to discuss the efficacy of nonviolence, which her party embraces, feminism, and workers' rights.

Interview with Sidney Wolfe. October 6, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925344].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Dr. SIDNEY WOLFE cofounded the the Health Research Group with Ralph Nader. That organization recently published a book called Over the Counter Pills that Don't Work, which, building on an ongoing FDA study, argues that many nonprescription drugs are either ineffective or unsafe. Wolfe advocates for the use of generic products, which typically have fewer ingredients, and the abstention from medicine to treat certain conditions like sleeplessness and some cold symptoms.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Advertising legend DAVID OGILVY has a new book called Ogilvy on Advertising. The creator of several successful campaigns, he eschews jingles, celebrity endorsements, and invasive television commercials in favor of informative and engaging ads. He lives in France.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JULIA CHILD's cookbooks and television shows brought French food and techniques to American audiences. She got her start later in life while living in Paris, where she both trained as a chef and taught aspiring cooks. A new TV show, Dinner at Julia's, premieres soon.

Interview with Scott B. October 7, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458842].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Filmmaker SCOTT B heads the production company B Movies with his wife Beth B. Taking cues from both art movies and low-budget features, they've made their first 16mm film called Vortex, a New Wave-inspired detective movie starring punk singer Lydia Lunch.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ERIC GREGG is one of the few African American umpires in Major League Baseball. He says he enjoys the job security that comes with his position -- professional players typically retire after 4-6 years, while Gregg anticipates being in the game until his 50s. He talks to Fresh Air's Terry Gross about why more African Americans aren't pursuing umpire careers, his famous weight loss, and the skills needed to make good judgements on the field.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Part two of a series on religion in the U.S. called On This Side of Paradise. Narrated by ANTHONY MATTEO, this segment examines the growing secularism of American Jews, the persistence of antisemitism, and the push among some to preserve and strengthen religious practices and traditions.
(2.) JEFFREY DEKRO is a member of several Jewish organization which promote a liberal, feminist, and social-justice-focused agenda. PHYLLIS TAYLOR, who identifies as both a Quaker and a Jew, is a working nurse in the Philadelphia area active in hospice care. They discuss their religious and political convictions with Fresh Air callers.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEORGE NELSON is a designer for the Herman Miller firm. He was instrumental in the conception of a new show at the Philadelphia Museum of Art, which features furniture and appliances.
Interview with Laurie Anderson. October 14, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925345].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LAURIE ANDERSON's art incorporates text, sound and performance. She lives in New York City and has a forthcoming record on Warner.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Part three of WHYY’s feature on religion in the US. Narrated by ANTHONY MATTEO, this installment looks at the evolution of the Nation of Islam, and how the impact of that organization contributed to the growth of practicing Muslims in the African American community. (2.) Philadelphia-based Imam SHAMSUD-DIN ALI answers questions about his faith from Fresh Air listeners.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DOUG MARSH is a rock critic whose latest book is titled Before I Get Old: The Story of the Who. He uses the band as a lens through which to examine the trappings of rock stardom, from the adoption of public personas to the need to create increasingly more extreme concert experiences.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOE NATHAN is an educator whose vision for effective public schools includes greater teacher autonomy and student input, reduced workloads for faculty, and administrators who more thoughtfully and consistently apply policies. His new book is titled Free to Teach.

Interview with Peggy King and Mike Abene. October 28, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925663].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PEGGY KING stopped singing professionally in 1960 to raise a family. She has begun recording and performing again, now collaborating with pianist MIKE ABENE. The two join Fresh Air for an in-studio concert.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RED BARBER is a New York-based sports broadcaster who bore witness to the desegregation of baseball with the recruitment of legendary player Jackie Robinson. Barber looks back on that time in his book 1947.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Feminist journalist GLORIA STEINEM returns to Fresh Air to discuss her new book, Outrageous Acts and Everyday Rebellions, which collects essays from 1963 to the present day.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NAT HENTOFF is a music critic and political commentator who writes from a civil libertarian perspective. In a lecture broadcast by Fresh Air, he warns of the rise of more intrusive methods of law enforcement, fueled in part by the greater accessibility of computerized personal data.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Congress for Racial Equality (CORE) founder James Farmer later served in the Nixon administration, but resigned in frustration. As a civil rights leader, he helped organize the 1961 Freedom Rides. Farmer recalls the role of CORE in relation to other civil rights groups like SNCC, which later expelled white activists, and more militant figures like Malcom X.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Cartoonist MARK ALAN STAMATY’s research for his satirical comic strip Washingtoon gave him unique insights into the political culture of Washington, DC. An anthology of the ongoing series has recently been published by Congdon & Weed.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ALWIN NIKOLAIS is a modern dance choreographer whose work downplays eroticism to highlight the purely aesthetic qualities of bodies in motion.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DEBORAH SPUNGEN describes her daughter Nancy as having a troubled childhood and self-destructive tendencies. Nancy later had a relationship with the Sex Pistols' bass player Sid Vicious, and allegedly died by his hand. Deborah Spungen recalls her daughter's life and death in a new memoir, And I Don't Want to Live This Life.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) In his new book Class, historian PAUL FUSSEL examines social and economic stratification in the United States. He identifies nine separate categories, which he defines not only by financial status, but also in modes of dress and patterns of consumption. Contrary to popular belief, Fussel believes that social mobility is largely a myth, and that most people will stay in the class they were born into.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Photographer EVE ARNOLD has a new book called In America, which documents the lives of people from different backgrounds in the United States. She lives in England.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RALPH NADER is a consumer rights activist who pays special attention to the automobile industry. Fresh Air broadcasts a lecture he gave at the Philadelphia Museum of Art about how product design often trumps function and safety.
Interview with Esther Rolle. December 2, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458840].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ESTHER ROLLE is an African American stage and television actress. Troubled by the paucity of roles available for black women, she is ambivalent about some of the parts she's accepted throughout her career, including the maid Florida Evans in the TV show Maude. Rolle has returned to the stage in a production of Carson McCullers' The Member of the Wedding.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JAMES LINCOLN COLLIER has written a new, critical biography of legendary jazz singer and trumpet Louis Armstrong titled Louis Armstrong, An American Genius. The book details the musician's early life and how he navigated racially-segregated entertainment circuits to build his career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Author JACK CHAMBERS has written a book about trumpeter Miles Davis called MILESTONES, which focuses on the early life and musical development of the jazz legend. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphia mayor-elect WILSON GOODE will be the first African American mayor in the city's history. He joins Fresh Air to discuss how he plans to lead Philadelphia, build strong political coalitions, and improve city services. (INTERVIEW BY TIA O'BRIEN).

Interview with Ozzie Davis and Ruby Dee. December 9, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925853].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) OSSIE DAVIS and RUBY DEE have been married since 1948. They are both working actors who strive to promote the work of fellow African American writers and performers. They were also active in the civil rights movement and developed friendships with leaders like Martin Luther King, Jr. and Malcom X.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PAT WILLIAMS is the general manager of the Philadelphia 76ers basketball team. BILL LYON is a Philadelphia-based sport columnist. They have co-authored a book called We Owed You One, about the team's struggles and recent success.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Civil rights leader JESSE JACKSON is a Democratic Party presidential candidate, and only the second African American to run for that office. Despite doubts that he has the broad appeal needed to defeat Ronald Reagan, Jackson continues to build strong coalitions among racial minorities and the economically disadvantaged. (INTERVIEW BY ???)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) W.D. EHRHART and JAN BARRY are veterans who write and publish poetry about the Vietnam War. Their work both pays tribute to those who served and criticizes the policies which led the U.S into war.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet Etheridge Knight began writing poetry in prison, where he was serving a sentence for robbery. While his difficult experiences inspire his work, Knight believes that art is ultimately rooted in love. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)
Interview with Steven Feld. December 27, 1983. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925460].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STEVEN FELD is an ethnomusicologist who studies indigenous communities in the rain forests of New Guinea. He recently learned of one group that uses sound and song as integral parts of their language. These tools are so deeply woven into the community's culture that the group makes no distinction between music and speech. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) William Marutani is Common Police Court judge in Philadelphia. Marutani was held in a internment camp for Japanese people during World War II. He discusses judgeship and some of his most famous cases.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Composer GEORGE ROCHBERG discusses his work.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JANE IRA BLOOM is a jazz soprano saxophonist and composer. Her most recent album is "Mighty Lights." She joins the show to discuss her choice in instruments as a child, working as a woman in the jazz industry, and branching out into producing her own music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GODFREY REGGIO is an experimental filmmaker whose work makes uses of montage and sound. His first film, a documentary, "Koyaanisqatsi," derives its title from the Hopi word meaning "unbalanced life." The film manipulates images of cityscapes, and Reggio describes it as showing "the beauty of the beast." The film's music is composed by Philip Glass. Reggio intends the documentary to produce a mind-opening experience for the viewer through the fusion of music and image--to be inspiration, not entertainment.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DR. MARY STEICHEN CALDERONE is known for her groundbreaking work in reproductive health and sexual education in public schools. Calderone attended medical school later in life, and from 1953-1964 was the Medical Director of Planned Parenthood. In 1965 Calderone founded Sex Information and Education Council in the United States (SIECUS), an organization devoted to establishing sexuality as a part of physical and mental health. Calderone delivers a talk on her life and career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Activist and journalist SUSAN BROWNMILLER is known for her seminal work "Against Our Will: Men, Women, and Rape," one of the first to make the assertion that rape is about violence and not lust. Her new book is "Femininity." The book examines the aesthetic of femininity, explores its origins, and suggests its implications for women. Brownmiller describes femininity as a competitive survival strategy. Brownmiller is also the co-founder of Women Against Pornography.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz trumpeter and composer OLU DARA describes his music as "rhythmic fusion," and is the leader of the Okra Orchestra. His live shows are unusual among jazz concerts due to their dancing audiences. Dara joins the show to discuss his life, career, and contemporary jazz.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Activist ELEANOR SMEAL was the president of the National Organization for Women (NOW) from 1977-1982. She is also the author of "Why and How Women Will Elect the Next President." Smeal's book examines the political "gender gap," women's political issues, organizing women, getting out the vote, and women running for election. Smeal joins the show to discuss the women's movement and the upcoming election in which Smeal endorses Walter Mondale.
Interview with Judy Blume. February 8, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925232].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JUDY BLUME's novels for young adults such "Forever," "Deenie," and "Are You There God? It's Me, Margaret," have generated controversy for their frank treatment of masturbation and teen sexuality. Blume also writes adult novels. Her latest "Smart Women," is the story of two divorced women in their forties and their teenage daughters.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Activist MICHAEL HARRINGTON has been a leader of the American left for the last thirty years. In the 1950s, he was the associate editor of The Catholic Worker, a socialist, Catholic newspaper. In the 1960s, he worked with the Civil Rights movement, including joining Martin Luther King, Jr.'s Advisory Committee. He was also active in the labor movement and worked against the war in Vietnam. Harrington chaired the Socialist Party from 1968-1972, and has been the National Chair of the Democratic National Socialists of America since 1973. An early book of Harrington's, "The Other America," helped spur Presidents Kennedy and Johnson's War on Poverty. He is currently working on a new analysis of poverty to be published in August and title "The New American Poverty." His latest book is "The Politics at God's Funeral: The Spiritual Crisis of Western Civilization." He joins the show to discuss his intellectual and political work and the upcoming election.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STEVE RASH is the director of the film "The Buddy Holly Story," a bio-pic of the early rock legend starring Gary Busey. Rash is also the director of "Under the Rainbow," a story of the "Munchkin" auditions for the film "The Wizard of Oz." Rash joins the show to discuss Holly's music and life and share records and rare recordings.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz legend BILLY TAYLOR is a pianist who has worked with his own trio as well as musicians such as Billie Holliday, Charlie Parker, Dizzy Gillespie, Stan Getz, Charlie Mingus, Art Tatum, and Miles Davis. Taylor is also a composer whose song "I Wish I Knew How it Would Feel to Be Free" became a civil rights anthem. Taylor is also known for being the guiding force between the public radio programs "Jazz Alive" and "Billy Taylor's Piano Jazz." Currently, Taylor is the editor for the arts on the CBS Sunday morning program. Taylor is the founder and director of "Jazzmobile," a program to bring jazz to schools and neighborhoods, and is a member of the National Council of the Arts. Taylor has a doctorate in music from the University of Massachusetts and his written several books. His latest is "Jazz Piano: A Jazz History." (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Interview with Calvin Trillin. February 25, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925779].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Humorist and reporter CALVIN TRILLIN is staff writer for the New Yorker and a humor columnist at The Nation. Trillin recently joined the show to discuss his love of rich regional and ethnic food which he chronicled in his book "Third Helpings." His New Yorker Magazine series "U. S. Journal" ended in 1982, but a collection of 16 of his stories about murder have been collected in the book "Killings."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT TOWNSEND is the author of the 1970 bestseller "Up the Organization," and his newly revised edition of the book is called "Further Up the Organization: How to Stop Management from Stifling People and Strangling Productivity." Townsend contends that most workers are "docile, bored, and dull," and advocates a type of "non-violent guerrilla warfare," in which workers dismantle all but those aspects of organizations that serve them. Townsend is known for his tenure at Avis and also worked at Twentieth Century Fox and American Express. Townsend joins the show to discuss the importance of "participative management."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Noted playwright EDWARD ALBEE is the author of "The Zoo Story" and "Who's Afraid of Virgina Woolf?," which was lated adapted into an Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton film. Albee has won many awards including two Pulitzer Prizes, one in 1967 for "Delicate Balance," and one in 1975 for "Seascape."

Interview with Fred Kaplan. March 5, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458855].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist FRED KAPLAN's latest book is "The Wizards of Armageddon," which looks at the politics of nuclear warfare and weapons. He joins the show to discuss Defense policy and the budget and the issue of nuclear war in contemporary politics. (INTERVIEW BY DAVE DAVIES)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Husband and wife CECIL WOMACK and LINDA WOMACK are songwriters who have decided to step into the limelight with their album "Love Wars." The child of a gospel singer, Cecil Womack sung with his brothers, including Bobby, as The Valentinos. Linda and Cecil met in the studio. Their album was noted by many critics in 1983. (2.) On this edition of Secret Harmonies, Ken Tucker looks at "City Slicker" by soul musician J. Blackfoot, "Doppelganger" by rock group Kid Creole and the Coconuts, fronted by August Darnell, and "Forget About the Danger Think of the Fun" by rockabilly group The Leroi Brothers. (PARTIAL REVIEW)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Clarinetist KENNY DAVERN takes a lot of inspiration from the small jazz bands of the 1920s and 1930s, although he has worked in contemporary and avant-garde jazz. Davern started playing professionally in the 1950s and has worked with many jazz legends. In the 1970s he played soprano saxophone with Bob Wilbur in the group Soprano Summit. He now plays clarinet exclusively. Davern is in town to perform, and joins the show to discuss his distaste for "Dixie Land" music, his musical influences, and career in jazz.

Interview with Manny Albam. March 12, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925456].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz composer and arranger MANNY ALBAM currently teaches at Glassboro College in New Jersey in addition to taking commissions. Albam will be doing some work for the Philly Pops. A new collection of his work "Manny Albam: The Jazz Workshop," has recently been released. Albam joins the show to discuss his career and share records.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PHILIP FONER is the foremost historian on the labor movement in the U. S. He is the author of over eighty works, including a four volume history of the American labor movement, "Organized Labor and the Black Worker," and "Women and the American Labor Movement." Foner's specialities include labor history, African American history, and the history of women and Socialism. Foner has recently edited a collection of speeches and writings of Irish-American labor organizer Mother Jones. Mother Jones began her career after the age of 60 in the 1890s, when she worked as a paid organizer of the United Mine Workers. She lived until the age of 100, and organized until the age of 93. Foner joins the show to discuss her life and lasting impact.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PETE DEXTER is a columnist for the Philadelphia Daily News and also has a monthly column for Esquire Magazine, "Sports Scene." Dexter's first novel, "God's Pocket," is set in Philadelphia. The novel tells the story of a reporter investigating a murder committed by a construction worker. Dexter joins the show to discuss his novel, work as a journalist, and respond to listener calls.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet and novelist MARGE PIERCY’s work often discusses feminism and leftist organizing. Her newest novel "Fly Away Home," is about a famous chef who discovers that her marriage has fallen apart.

Interview with Stephen Sondheim; Interview with Angela Lansbury. March 25, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458455].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STEPHEN SONDHEIM is a famed Broadway writer and composer. He joins the show to discuss his career in musical theater and how he writes a song. (2.) Actress ANGELA LANSBURY is well-known for her work in musical theater. She joins the show to discuss working with writer and composer Stephen Sondheim.

Interview with Anthony Davis and Christopher Davis. March 27, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458570].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Composer and pianist ANTHONY DAVIS has composed jazz and "new music" work with his ten-piece ensemble Episteme, directed plays, composed orchestral suites, and taught at Yale, where he also received his B. A. in music. His latest album with his band is called "Hemispheres." Davis has written an opera, "X," based on the life of Malcolm X. The libretto was written by his cousin and Village Voice writer Thulani Davis-Jarman, and the story was written by his brother CHRISTOPHER DAVIS. Christopher Davis has worked in theater in various capacities, and has collaborated with his brother on various pieces. They join the show to discuss the opera and their prominent African American family.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) EMILE DE ANTONIO is regarded as one of the most important political filmmakers of the American Left. His films include "Point of Order," about the McCarthy hearings; "Rush to Judgement," about the Warren Report; "In the Year of the Pig," about the history of Vietnam, and "Underground," where he interviewed members of the Weather Underground. One of De Antonio’s biggest influences is John Cage. De Antonio is in town for an appearance at the I-House which will screen three of his films: "Milhous," a political comedy; "In the King of Prussia," about a group of anti-nuclear activists, and "Painters Painting," about the art world in New York after World War II. A new book, "Painter Painting: A Candid History of the Modern Art Scene, 1940-1970," is based on interviews conducted for the film. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actor, director, and choreographer MAURICE HINES comes from the famous tap-dancing family. He is the founder of the company Ballet Tap U. S. A. Hines appears in the film "Cotton Club." Hines joins the show to discuss working as a child with his father and brother, Gregory, touring Europe, learning ballet at the age of 30, the difference between "up-in-the-air," and "close-to-the-floor" tap dance, break-dancing, and the great dancers of film.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphia VINCENT PERSICHETTI is a noted composer, especially for concert band. A new work of Persechetti, "Flower Songs," will be premiered at the Academy of Music by the Philadelphia Singers.
The work includes poems by e. e. cummings. Persechetti joins the show to talk about how he knew he would be a musician by the age of three and the composer's "inner ear."

Interview with Rosalynn Carter. April 24, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925574].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Former First Lady ROSALYNN CARTER grew up in Plains, Georgia. She met her husband, Jimmy, when she was 17 and he was 20 years old. She was glad that his naval career allowed them to travel, and when they returned to Georgia after his father's death, Carter was upset. It was there, however, that she grew into a business partner in her husband's peanut farm. Carter spoke last week with Betty Ford on the topic of modern First Ladies. Carter's life before and during the presidency is discussed in her new memoir "First Lady from Plains."

Interview with Tom Wicker. April 25, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925390].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist and writer TOM WICKER grew up in the South. He joined the staff of the New York Times in 1960 and has worked for the paper since then. Wicker was one of the journalists covering President Kennedy's visit to Dallas in 1963, and his op-ed column "In the Nation," is nationally syndicated. Wicker has written non-fiction and fiction books. His latest novel, "Unto this Hour," is based in part on stories from his grandmother about her life in the Confederacy. The novel is set in the Civil Battle, the Second Bull Run.

Description of show segment(s)

1. Former Major League Baseball Umpire RON LUCIANO was known for his flamboyant style. His book "The Umpire Strikes Back," was a hot, and Luciano has written a follow-up "Strike Two." He shares humorous stories about his career in MLB and discusses some of the colorful characters working in the sport today.

Description of show segment(s)

1. HANKUS NETSKY is the founder and leader of the Klezmer Conservatory Band. Klezmer mixes traditional Yiddish and Israeli music with American influences. Netsky joins the show to discuss the history of the genre and to share 78-records of klezmer music from the 1920s.

Interview with Max Berru, Jorge Coulon, and Miguel Cordova. April 30, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825609].

Description of show segment(s)

1. MAX BERRU, JORGE COULON of the Chilean band Into-Illmani, as well as fellow Chilean musician. MIGUEL CORDOVA. They talk about their role in the New Song movement.
Interview with Bella Abzug. May 7, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925577].

Description of show segment(s)

1. BELLA ABZUG's political career began as a student at Hunter College. After graduating, she attended Columbia Law School, and began to practice law. She is a founding member of Women Strike for Peace and served as the national political director for ten years. Abzug was elected to Congress in 1970, where she was the co-founder of the National Women's Political Caucus. Abzug is currently the president of Women USA, a group working to get-out-the-vote among women. Her new book is "Gender Gap: Bella Abzug's Guide to Political Power for Women." Abzug joins the show to discuss becoming a politician after being an activist, working as one of the earliest women lawyers, and women in politics.

Interview with Chuck Barris. May 9, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925354].

Description of show segment(s)

1. CHUCK BARRIS is the creator and producer of over a dozen television game shows, including "The Gong Show," "The Newlywed Game," and "The Dating Game." He gained his reputation as the "manic" host of "The Gong Show." Barris has written a semi-autobiographical novel "Confessions of a Dangerous Mind," in which a game show host named Chuck Barris also secretly works as a C. I. A. agent. Barris claims to have had an opportunity to work for the organization, but that he turned it down. He joins the show to discuss his career in television and writing.

Interview with Stewart Hoover. May 9, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925575].

Description of show segment(s)

1. STEWART HOOVER is a research scholar at the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania who specializes in the impact of communications technology on culture. In recent years, many have deemed religious television programming controversial. Many mainline church leaders fear the effect such programming will have on local churches. Hoover, along with George Gerbner,
Larry Gross, Michael Morgan, and Nancy Signorielli, has just conducted a study on religious television programming. The study investigated the who the audience for the programs is, and how the programs effect their religious lives and political attitudes. Hoover joins the show to discuss the study's results.

Interview with Fred Friendly. May 11, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925462].

Description of show segment(s)

1. FRED FRIENDLY joined CBS television in 1950, and eventually became president of CBS news. Friendly worked extensively with famed journalist Edward R. Murrow. He resigned from CBS in protest after executives went against his decision to telecast the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on Vietnam, and instead aired reruns. After leaving CBS, Friendly became one of the architects of public television. Friendly is currently a professor at the Columbia School of Journalism, and his written several books about history and the Constitution. His latest work is "The Constitution: A Delicate Balance," a companion piece to his public television program of the same name. The show will be rebroadcast in the fall.

Interview with Howard Johnson. May 11, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503840].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Tuba player, composer, and arranger HOWARD JOHNSON has worked with jazz and rock legends. Johnson organized the band for the television show "Saturday Night Live," which he played for from 1975 to 1980. Johnson was won the National Association of Recording Arts and Sciences "Most Valuable Tuba Player," for the last three years. Johnson also plays baritone saxophone and trumpet. He joins the show to discuss why he was drawn to the tuba, growing up in the South, and his career in jazz and rock.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BISHOP DESMOND TUTU is an Anglican parish priest in Soweto, South Africa. Tutu is the General Secretary of the South African Council of Churches, and is one of the most prominent figures in the struggle against apartheid in South Africa. Tutu is seen as a moderate, and does not endorse violence. He travels extensively to mobilize support for the cause. His passport has been revoked twice.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MADELAINE CARTWRIGHT worked as a teacher in Philadelphia public schools from 1959 to 1978, before moving into administration. Currently she is the principal at Blaine Elementary School, in the Strawberry Mansion section of Philadelphia, and she has spent the last five years transforming Blaine from a typical low-income school into a community that sparkles. Cartwright's staff has nominated her for the John N. Patterson Award for Excellence in Public Education. Cartwright joins the show to discuss the problems that are facing Philadelphia schools and her approach to solving them. Cartwright will also respond to listener calls.

Interview with Michael Milne; Interview with S. Maynard Turk; Interview with George Ewalt and Sheila Ewalt. May 17, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503582].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Vietnam War veteran MICHAEL MILNE joins the show to discuss the health problems he believes were caused by his exposure to Agent Orange while working for the U. S. military. He also discusses his court case and the organizations he believed knew the dangers of Agent Orange. (2.) S. MAYNARD TURK is the Vice-President and Counsel of Hercules Incorporated, a manufacturer of Agent Orange and one the companies involved in the recent lawsuit. (3.) Vietnam veteran GEORGE EWALT and his wife
SHEILA EWALT of Roxborough discuss the court case related to Agent Orange. Their daughter was born with health problems, and George suffers from nerve damage.

Interview with James Baldwin. May 21, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925443].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Legendary writer JAMES BALDWIN is the author of modern classics such as "Notes of a Native Son," "Tell Me How Long the Train's Been Gone," and "Go Tell It On the Mountain." Here, Baldwin delivers a lecture and has a "rap" session with students at an event at Lehigh University.

Interview with Robert Parker. May 23, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925692].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT PARKER is a writer of detective and crime novels. His latest work "Valediction" is the eleventh book in the author's "Spenser" series of novels. Parker joins the show to discuss his work and detective and crime fiction and films.

Interview with Alexander Haig. May 24, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925440].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) General ALEXANDER HAIG came to national prominence during the Nixon administration, where he served in several roles including as Deputy Assistant for National Security Affairs and Chief of Staff. He continued working for the Ford administration, leading to his appointment as Supreme Allied Commander of NATO. Haig served 18 months as the Secretary of State for President Ronald Reagan. He often clashed with the president and his staff, and resigned in 1982. His new memoir: Caveat: realism, Reaganism, and Foreign Policy," details his time in the administration.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Folk artist HOWARD FINSTER was born in 1916, but did not start painting until 1976 when he had a vision that told him to devote his life to making sacred art. Finster has been working as a preacher since the age of 16. Finster has spent 20 years working on "Paradise Garden," a two-and-a-half acre mixture of sculpture, painting, vines, vegetables, and discarded objects. "Howard Finster, Man of Visions: The Garden and Other Creations: A One Person Show" is opening at the Philadelphia Art Alliance.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LADY BORTON is an American Quaker who has done extensive aid work in Vietnam and with Vietnamese refugees. In 1980, she served as Health Administrator of Pulau Budong, the largest Vietnamese refugee camp in Malaysia. Borton describes the conditions as terrible, including, overcrowding, lack of food, and a rat infestation. Borton has a written a memoir of her time working in the camp, "Sensing the Enemy: An American Among the Boat People of Vietnam."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BOB GREENE is a journalist whose Chicago Tribune column is nationally syndicated. He also writes the "American Beat" feature for Esquire and is a contributor to the television show "Nightline." Greene has written a book chronicling the changes he experienced upon becoming a father, "Good Morning, Merry Sunshine: A Father's Journal of His Child's First Year." Greene will discuss being a working father, balancing home and family life, and respond to listener calls.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RICHARD SCHICKEL has been the film critic for Time magazine since 1973. He is also the author of several books, and has written and produced several documentaries about film for television. His new biography is "D. W. Griffith: An American Life." Schickel joins the show to discuss Griffith, film and film criticism, and journalism.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Composer and arranger GEORGE RUSSELL is in town to speak at the Philadelphia International Jazz Arts Conference. Russell began his career as a jazz drummer before devoting himself to composing. He has since become central to the development of jazz and 20th century music theory. He has developed his own theory of harmony based on jazz called the Lydian Chromatic Concept of Tonal Organization. Russell has taught at the New England Conservatory of Music in Cambridge, Massachusetts since 1969.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) KENNY BURRELL has been one of the premier jazz guitarists since the 1950s. His new album is "Groovin' High." Burrell is in town to participate in the Philadelphia Jazz Arts Conference, where he delivered a talk on the importance of Duke Ellington. Burrell joins the show to discuss his guitar-playing brothers, his influences, and why he was Duke Ellington's favorite guitar player despite not having recorded with him.

---

Interview with Julia Robinson. June 11, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458861].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JULIA ROBINSON is the Philadelphia Director of Housing. She began her career as an activist in the Fair Housing movement in the 1960s, when she found that she and her husband could not purchase a suburban house because they were black. Robinson has an M. A. in city planning from the University of Pennsylvania and has taught there and at Temple University. Robinson is also the head of the Mayor's Task Force on the Homeless. She joins the show to discuss housing and neighborhood issues in Philadelphia.

---

Interview with Marty Grosz. June 12, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925685].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Acoustic jazz guitarist MARTY GROSZ began playing at the age of 13. He is the son of satiric artist George Grosz who fled Germany with his family in 1933. Grosz takes inspiration from obscure jazz and pop from the 1920s. He regularly plays with Woody Allen at Michael's Pub. Grosz is in town for the Cool Jazz Festival.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) One of the largest Bram Stoker repositories is here in Philadelphia at the Rosenbach Library. English writer and professor CLIVE LEATHERDALE is in town to research Bram Stoker and vampire folklore for an upcoming book whose working title is "Dracula: The Novel and the Legend." Leatherdale is a teacher at Aberdeen University in Scotland.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BILL LEE pitched for the Boston Red Sox from 1969-1979. He was later traded to the Montreal Exos where he played until 1982. Lee, known as "Space Man," was known for his antics and sarcastic quotes. He currently plays baseball in Canada and South America and does commentary and book reviews for the CBC. Lee has written a new memoir called "The Wrong Stuff."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PATCH ADAMS is a physician and activist who founded West Virginia's Gesunheidt! Institute, a free medical center run out of a suburban home. He seeks to provide a viable, community-based alternative to for-profit health care.
Interview with Malachy McCourt and Frank McCourt. June 20, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925328].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MALACHY MCCOURT and FRANK MCCOURT were born a year apart from each other in Ireland. After growing up in poverty, moving to New York, and working in manual labor, they found success in the theater and the academy. In addition to performing, Frank McCourt is a high school teacher. The brothers star in a new play called A Couple of Blaguards, which they also wrote.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Sculptor and architect MAYA LIN won a design competition for the Vietnam Veterans' War Memorial while she was still an undergraduate student at Yale. She was recently recruited to design the sets for Noa Ain's new musical, Trio.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Sculptor ISAMU NOGUCHI returns to Fresh Air on the occasion of the installation of his public artwork Bolt of Lightning, which he had first designed in the 1930s. Noguchi's style evolved over the years as he rejected his earlier training to develop his own creative approach. In the 1940s he voluntarily joined a Japanese internment camp, where he worked to improve the facilities through a variety of architectural design projects.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist and composer ANTHONY DAVIS has written a new opera called X, about the life of Malcom X. Davis's musical aesthetic is steeped both in the avant-garde and jazz. He believes opera is the ultimate form of musical theater, and a vital way of telling stories.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JACK ERIC WILLIAMS is a musical theater actor who played Beadle Bamford in the original production of Stephen Sondheim's Sweeney Todd. Williams has written a musical of his own called Mrs. Farmer's Daughter, about actress Frances Farmer.

Interview with Peggy King; Interview with Frank Foster. July 3, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925774].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pop singer PEGGY KING has released her first album since ending her self-imposed hiatus from singing, called Oh, What a Memory We Made--Tonight. It features a mix of standards and original songs.
(2.) Tenor saxophonist and composer/arranger FRANK FOSTER has a Ph.D. in music and an 11 year history with Count Basie's big band. Foster makes his living as as professor while continuing to perform in the New York City area.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CLEAVON LITTLE had a starring role in the musical Purlie, whose success helped prove to mainstream audiences and producers that there was a viable market for theater works featuring predominantly-black casts. Apart from his stage roles, Little also appeared in the Mel Brooks film Blazing Saddles. He now stars in a Philadelphia-based production of Eugene O'Neill's play Emperor Jones.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DORIAN HAREWOOD is a television actor best known for his role as Simon Haley in the television series Roots. He plays Jesse Owens in a forthcoming miniseries.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TOM and RUTH are members of the Philadelphia-based support group Parents of Gays. They talk about how they dispensed with their preconceived notions of homosexuality and accepted their children for who they are. Their group counsels parents in similar situations. To preserve the anonymity of their families, all Parents of Gays members only use their first names.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MAURICE PERESS is a conductor and arranger whose latest endeavors involve the work of composer George Gershwin. Peress has arranged concert performances which feature original and restored arrangements of some of Gershwin's most recognizable pieces.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BENITA VALENTE's career in opera has taken her to France, Germany, and New York. She lives in Philadelphia, which she sees as a refuge from the hectic music hubs around the world. The soprano has made a living singing for over two decades.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Despite being raised in the Catholic Church, jazz pianist HORACE SILVER's playing and compositions are take more cues from the soulful traditions of Protestant, African American congregations. After founding the Jazz Messengers with drummer Art Blakey, Silver now heads his own band and record label.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HAL WILLNER was the music coordinator for Saturday Night Live. As a record producer, he has released two albums which pay tribute to Nino Rota, who wrote the score for Federico Fellini's film Amarcord, and jazz legend Thelonious Monk.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer BARBARA G. WALKER has a new book called The Women's Encyclopedia of Myths and Secrets, which looks at how matriarchal and otherwise woman-positive faith practices were suppressed by enduring patriarchal traditions, particularly within Christianity. (2.) MARIAN LOCKS features unknown and up-and-coming artists in her Philadelphia gallery. She understands the financial hardships working artists often face, and helps them sell their work for a fair price. (INTERVIEW BY JULIE BURSTEIN).

Interview with Orlando Haddad and Patricia King. August 6, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458673].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ORLANDO HADDAD and PATRICIA KING form the duo Minas, a Philadelphia-based musical group specializing in bossa nova. The perform several classic and original songs in-studio.
Interview with Alice Waters. August 8, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458672].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ALICE WATERS founded the restaurant Chez Panisse, which features fresh, natural, and locally-produced foods. Her focus on craft and quality ingredients has earned her nationwide acclaim.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Stage and screen actor JOEL GREY originated the role of the Master of Ceremonies in the musical and film Cabaret. He joins Fresh Air to share memories of his father, the actor and musician Mickey Katz.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DELOIS BARRETT CAMPBELL, BILLIE BARRETT GREENBEY, and RODESSA BARRETT PORTER are the three members of the gospel trio The Barrett Sisters. While they’ve dedicated their life to spreading their faith through song, the sisters feel a great affinity for secular soul and jazz performers of the '50s and '60s, many of whom also came from a gospel background.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Feminist, essayist, and journalist GLORIA STEINEM considers how issues raised during the presidential election affect women and minorities.

Interview with Archie Shepp; Interview with Tom Goodkind, Lauren Agnelli, and Bruce Paskow. August 25, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503957].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz saxophonist ARCHIE SHEPP reflects on the place of jazz and black music today. (2.) Former new-wavers turned folkies, TOM GOODKIND, LAUREN AGNELLI, and BRUCE PASKOW. They play in the band the Washington Squares.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer and actor BILLY HAYES recalls his experiences serving time in a Turkish prison for smuggling hashish. Nine years ago, he wrote about his sentence and escape in the book Midnight Express, which was adapted into a movie. He now works as an actor in California.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer GERMAINE GREER has a new book called Sex and Destiny, in which she examines the impact birth control has had on women's sexuality. Contrary to conventional wisdom, Greer believes that access to contraceptives has only placed a greater emphasis on intercourse, while de-emphasizing other forms of intimacy. She advocates that women explore different modes of eroticism which don't necessarily involve genital contact.

Interview with Jeffrey Archer. September 6, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925394].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JEFFREY ARCHER was a member of England's House of Commons before he pursued a career as a best-selling novelist. His new book, First Among Equals, draws on his own political experience.

Interview with Fred Rogers. September 24, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925357].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) FRED ROGERS hosts the beloved children's television show Mister Rogers' Neighborhood. Also an ordained Presbyterian minister, Rogers' commitment to creating engaging and educational programming began before he had children of his own.

Interview with August Wilson; Interview with Lloyd Richards. September 25, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458844].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) AUGUST WILSON is a playwright and poet. His newest work, Ma Rainey's Black Bottom, is now being performed in Philadelphia. (2.) LLOYD RICHARD supports American theater through his work as the Dean of the Yale School of Drama and the Head of the Eugene O'Neill Theater Center. He directs the current production of August Wilson's Ma Rainey's Black Bottom.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NANCY MARCHAND’s career has led to several roles on Broadway and in television. She had a featured role in the Mary Tyler Moore show spinoff, Lou Grant. Marchand is now in a new production of Oliver, Oliver, returning to a role she first played nearly thirty years ago.

Interview with Armistead Maupin. October 2, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925260].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) After working as a journalist, ARMISTEAD MAUPIN started writing serialized fiction for The Pacific Sun newspaper. The Tales of the City feature, which follows the lives of a straight woman and a gay man, eventually grew into a series of novels, the latest of which is titled Babycakes.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) A pamphlet advocating pedophilia entitled "How to Have Sex with Children," which was sold in Philadelphia bookstores, has raised concerns about how to deal with sexually explicit material about children. Philadelphia Councilwoman JOAN SPECTER and ACLU member BARRY STEINHARDT join Fresh Air to discuss how best to protect children without violating free speech rights.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JONATHAN BOROFSKY is known for his idiosyncratic approach to his art, which includes sculpture, sound, portraiture, and drawings. He has incorporated the meditative act of counting from zero to infinity into his creative process. His installations reveal a preoccupation with dreams, war, and gender. An retrospective of his work will be featured at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Interview with Doug Quimby and Frankie Quimby. October 8, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458927].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DOUG QUIMBY and FRANKIE QUIMBY are the husband and wife duo who form the Georgia Sea Island Singers, which works to preserve Gullah history and musical traditions.

Interview with Jonathan Miller. October 9, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925677].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JONATHAN MILLER writes about medicine and anatomy. He has just published a pop-up book about the reproductive system called The Facts of Life. Prior to his work as a doctor, Miller had a noteworthy career as a film and television actor, producer, and director. He was also a television critic who found little to enjoy about the medium.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DAVID GERGEN is a political and media analyst. Gergen addresses criticisms about how the Reagan administration hosts more staged events and fewer press conferences relative to past presidents.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RALPH NADER's activism has contributed to the passage of consumer protection legislation covering the automobile industry and food safety. He continues to organize private citizens in an effort to undercut corporate influence in politics.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film critic ROGER EBERT writes for the Chicago Sun-Times, co-hosts a television show with Tribune critic Gene Siskel, and wrote the screenplay for the movie Beyond the Valley of the Dolls. A collection of his writing, A Kiss is Still a Kiss, has just been published.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MICHAEL OCHS maintains an exhaustive archive of records and photographs from throughout rock and roll's history. Materials in his collection have been used for album covers and film soundtracks, among other creative projects. He showcases some noteworthy items in a new book called Rock Archives. Ochs is also the brother of folk legend Phil Ochs, who took his own life in 1976.

---

Interview with Joe Klein. October 26, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925375].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) For his new book, Payback, JOE KLEIN followed the lives of five Marines who served in Vietnam. He documents how they've dealt with the memories of their combat experiences, their search for steady employment, and their family lives.

---

Interview with Studs Terkel. October 31, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458862].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STUDS TERKEL hosts the nationally-syndicated radio show The Studs Terkel Program, in which he interviews everyday Americans about their lives. He has also written several books of oral history. Terkel started his career studying law, acting, and hosting a television show. That program was canceled after Terkel was blacklisted in the 1950s. His latest book, called "The Good War," features stories of World War II veterans.

---

Interview with Andrew Greeley and Mary G. Durkin. November 8, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925536].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Siblings and theologians ANDREW GREELEY and MARY G. DURKIN co-wrote How to Save the Catholic Church, about the effect of post-Vatican II reforms. They believe that some traditions should have been preserved in order to foster greater cohesion amongst Church members. Greeley and Durkin also believe that Catholics must adopt more positive attitudes toward sexuality and women.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DEBORAH SPUNGEN, best known for her book And I Don't Want to Live This Life, about the murder of her daughter by punk musician Sid Vicious, co-founded the Philadelphia chapter of the support group Parents of Murdered Children. Researcher EILEEN RAINIER joins the conversation.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN O'NEAL and LOUISE ANDERSON are two of the featured storytellers in a forthcoming festival hosted by Philadelphia's Afro-American Historical and Cultural Museum. O'Neal cofounded the Free Southern Theater, which grew out of the 1960's civil rights movement. He developed a character named Junebug Jabbo Jones, whose monologues are based on O'Neal's participation in SNCC and his travels in the South. Anderson is an acclaimed African American storyteller who preserves folk tales and family histories.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Shortly after working on the film Raging Bull, actress THERESA SALDANA was stabbed multiple times by a stalker outsider her Hollywood home. After she recovered, she accepted an offer to play herself in a television film about the incident. The movie, called Victims for Victims, is named after a support group Saldana founded for women who have survived violent crimes.

www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925540].
Description of show segment(s)
(1.) JUDY COLLINS is a classically-trained pianist and self-taught guitarist who moved to New York City to become a folk musician. She reflects on her life as a performer.

Interview with Harvey Cox. November 28, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http:// www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925683].
Description of show segment(s)
(1.) HARVEY COX teaches at the Harvard Divinity School and has published several books about religion. His latest, Religion in the Secular City, links the resurgence of religious practices around the world with political movements on the left and right.

Interview with Ira Tucker; Interview with Joe Williams. November 30, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458702].
Description of show segment(s)
(1.) IRA TUCKER is a member of the gospel group The Dixie Hummingbirds. After founder James Davis retires, Tucker will take over as lead singer. (2.) James Davis's retirement from The Dixie Hummingbirds has given JOE WILLIAMS, a longtime friend of the band, the chance to become the group's newest full-time member. In the past, he sang in the gospel ensemble Sons of the Birds.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SAMMY CAHN has collaborated with several arrangers and composers to write dozens of iconic songs, including "Day by Day," "Let it Snow," and "Come Fly With Me."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Fresh Air plays several of musician JACK WALDMAN's synthesizer- and sampler-based compositions.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JACK WALDMAN is a synthesizer player and record producer who uses sampling technology to make his distinctive music. Under the name Air Force 1, he and fellow musician Elliot Sokolov produced a rap track called "See the Light, Feel the Heat," which features clips from President Reagan's speeches.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Veteran film critic JUDITH CRIST has recently adopted a more populist approach to her reviews. While suspicious of auteur theory, she is nevertheless interested in learning about a director's original intent while making a movie. With that knowledge, Crist believes she can more fairly assess the success or failure of a film. Her new book, a collection of interviews with directors, is called Take 22.

---

Interview with John Rockwell. December 11, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925261].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN ROCKWELL's new book, Sinatra, is a critical biography of the pop singer's life and career in music and movies. Rockwell is a music critic for the New York Times.

---

Interview with Joe Piscopo. December 12, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503443].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) After a checkered high school career, JOE PISCOPO studied radio broadcasting in college. Later, he worked as a comedian in New York City and eventually became a cast member on Saturday Night Live. During his tenure on the show, he became known for his celebrity impressions. Piscopo now regularly appears in film and television.

---

Interview with John Edgar Wideman. December 13, 1984. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925359].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN EDGAR WIDEMAN is a novelist and professor based in Wyoming. His new book, Brothers and Keepers, is about his younger brother Robby, who turned to a life in crime. Robby is now serving a life sentence for murder.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Interview with Michael Kozoll. December 24, 1984.</td>
<td>Michael Kozoll created, wrote and produced Hill Street Blues, a critically-acclaimed cop show about inner city crime. During a live event at the Pacific Film Archives, Kozoll discusses the challenges involved in getting the show on air, as well as the difficulties in fairly portraying police and minorities. (INTERVIEW BY TODD GITLIN).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Interview with Erik Lee Preminger. December 28, 1984.</td>
<td>Erik Lee Preminger grew up in the burlesque theater as the son of dancer and striptease artist Gypsy Rose Lee. He has written a memoir about his mother called Gypsy &amp; Me.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Description of show segment(s)

1. NED ROREM is an American composer who has published several collections of his diaries, the latest of which is called Setting the Tone. Rorem reflects on how his artistic inspirations, homosexuality, and alcoholism have shaped his personal and professional life.

Description of show segment(s)

1. ROBERT CREELEY is a poet and professor. Over the years, he has cultivated professional and personal relationships with a wide variety of well-known artists and writers. Creeley taught at the short-lived but influential Black Mountain College, which was known for its strong focus on the arts.

Description of show segment(s)

1. Since its invention, film directors have increasingly relied on GARRETT BROWN's Steadicam. The cameraman's newest innovation is the Skycam, which allows for more precise and controlled aerial shots.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Dr. OLIVER SACKS writes about treating patients with unusual and severe neurological problems. In his new book, A Leg to Stand On, he details his own experience with disability caused by a hiking injury that damaged the nerves in one of his legs.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Alto saxophonist LEE KONITZ studied for years with jazz pianist Lennie Tristano before pursuing a career of his own. In addition to his performing and recording career, he is now a teacher-in-residence at Temple University.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LARRY RIVERS is a painter known for his nude portraits and sexually provocative works. He started pursuing art at twenty-three after giving up his burgeoning career as a jazz saxophonist.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PEGGY KING has kept a busy recording and performance schedule since ending her hiatus from singing several years ago. To mark the release of her new album of Jerome Kern songs, she joins pianist MIKE RENZI and bassist DAVID FINCK in a concert for Fresh Air listeners.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Soprano and director of the New York City Opera BEVERLY SILLS eschewed performing in Europe, choosing instead to make a career in the United States. She took a break from performing mid-career to raise her two children, both of whom were born with disabilities. At age 50, she retired from singing.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DAVID ATTENBOROUGH produces and directs nature shows for the BBC. He believes that capturing compelling footage of animal behavior depends more on a firm grasp of zoology rather than sheer patience.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JONATHAN RICHMAN is a rock singer and songwriter who fronts the band The Modern Lovers. His irreverent songs are often inspired by his travels abroad and throughout the United States.

Interview with Pat Martino. February 8, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925368].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PAT MARTINO was already an established jazz guitarist when a surgery to remove an aneurysm destroyed his memory and ability to play music. After taking several years to recuperate, he has begun once more to perform live. Martino lives in Philadelphia.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PAUL NITZE has worked for several presidential administrations to shape policies on relations with the Soviet Union, defense spending, and nuclear proliferation. He currently serves under President Reagan.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist NAT HENTOFF considers the role of the press in American culture. He believes that journalists and media outlets must make themselves accessible and accountable to their audience, while at the same time resisting implicit and outright government influence.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RITA RUDNER has gained nationwide recognition for her seven standup performances on the David Letterman Show. She began her career as a Broadway dancer, never expecting to make a career in comedy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Civil rights activist JAMES FARMER founded the Congress for Racial Equality, organized the Freedom Rides, and later served under the Nixon administration. His new memoir is called Lay Bare the Heart.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT KLEIN dropped out graduate school to pursue stand-up comedy. He credits his improv training at Chicago's Second City with helping him deliver strong performances, even on nights when jokes don't land.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ALEX HALEY began submitting his writing for publication after the end of his career in the Coast Guard. His books, The Autobiography of Malcom X and Roots were bestsellers and have since become essential works of African American literature.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN SAYLES' films include the lesbian-themed Lianna; Return of the Secaucus 7, about 60s counterculture movements; and his latest, Brother from Another Planet, which explores racism through the lens of science fiction. He also wrote the screenplay for Roger Corman's Battle Beyond the Stars.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RICHARD STOLTZMAN is one of the few clarinet soloists who have made a career performing orchestral music. With so little written for his instrument, Soltzman transcribes much of the music he plays from pieces composed for other instruments. His touring schedule can often pose difficulties for him as a father and husband; his wife is a working violinist who also travels frequently.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) In an effort to lampoon the sanctimonious attitude often associated with classical music, PETER SCHICKELE invented and writes music as P.D.Q. Bach, the fictitious, long-lost son of J.S. Bach. The imagined Bach's pieces parody and incorporate elements of a variety of musical styles as a way to appeal to a broader audience.

Interview with John Waters. March 27, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925605].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN WATERS' cult success as an exploitation filmmaker has led to a number of mainstream accolades. The mayor of his home city of Baltimore declared February 7th John Waters Day; an Italian documentary about his life called Divine Waters will soon be screened. Waters' fascination with social outcasts and cultural taboos has led him to teach prisoners ways to channel their criminal impulses into art. His newest film is called Polyester, and features many of the actors who starred in his previous movies.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Australian singer-songwriter PETER ALLEN wrote hit songs for artists like Olivia Newton-John. An active performer, he adds a theatrical flair to his concerts.

Interview with Joe Piscopo. April 2, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924258].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOE PISCOPO worked as a comedian in New York City and eventually became a cast member on Saturday Night Live. During his tenure on the show, he became known both for his celebrity impressions and several original characters.

Interview with Frank Stella. April 9, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924300].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Painter FRANK STELLA has moved through myriad styles since he found critical success in his twenties. Over two decades later, Stella is best known for his controversial abstract expressionist work, which often features simple geometric shapes and a total absence of color.
Interview with Fred Rogers. April 16, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924260].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) FRED ROGERS, host of the acclaimed PBS children's series "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," reflects on children, television and his own childhood.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TONY BENNETT is one of the consummate interpreters of popular song, talks about his singing style which has endured through three decades of music industry trends, and reminisces about his early career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STUDS TERKEL hosts the nationally-syndicated radio show The Studs Terkel Program, in which he interviews everyday Americans about their lives. He has also written several books of oral history. Terkel started his career studying law, acting, and hosting a television show. That program was canceled after Terkel was blacklisted in the 1950s.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Soprano and General Director of the New York City Opera BEVERLY SILLS explains the reasons for her retirement from the stage, and discusses the ups and downs of a career she almost abandoned after the births of her two children, both of whom were born with disabilities.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film critic ROGER EBERT Pulitzer prize winning film critic for the Chicago Sun-Times, and co-host of the television program "At the Movies", surveys the movie scene and recalls his own initiation into moviiegoing and reviewing.

Interview with Pete Seeger. May 21, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924257].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Activist and folk singer PETE SEEGER refused to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Despite being blacklisted, he still made a career as a progressive musician supporting civil rights and labor movements throughout the US.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Noted playwright EDWARD ALBEE is the author of "The Zoo Story" and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," which was later adapted into an Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton film. Albee has won many awards including two Pulitzer Prizes, one in 1967 for "Delicate Balance," and one in 1975 for "Seascape."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Cinematographer GARRETT BROWN won an Oscar in 1977 for inventing the Steadicam, a movie camera which straps onto the operator's body and avoids the jiggling associated with hand-held cameras. His new invention, an airborne camera called the Skycam, has been used for television coverage of national sports events and in the recent film Birdy. He describes his work on The Return of the Jedi, Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom, Falling in Love, and The Shining; and discusses the effect his technical innovations have already had on film.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Pianist ANDRE WATTS discusses being the product of an interracial marriage, his days as a child prodigy, and his current status as an internationally celebrated soloist.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Comedian, ROBERT KLEIN who made his national reputation with his album "Child of the 50s" (mocking atomic war drills in school and 1950s nostalgia), talks about humor in the 80s and his own style of stand-up comedy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Director, writer, and actor JOHN SAYLES recalls what it was like writing for B-movie maven Roger Corman, and considers some of the chances he's taken as an independent feature filmmaker.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Short story writer GRACE PALEY author of The Little Disturbances of Man, Enormous Changes at the Last Minute, and Later the Same Day, reads one of her short stories, describes her evolution from poet to fiction writer, and recalls her childhood in the Bronx during the depression.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Filmmaker JOHN WATERS (Pink Flamingos, Female Trouble and Polyester) talks about his life long obsession with bad taste, his relationship with his stars Divine and Edie "The Egg Lady" Massie, and his recent work teaching film in prison.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Clarinet virtuoso RICHARD STOLTZMAN discusses his career as a soloist, his efforts to make classical music accessible to a wider audience, and the differences between playing classical music and jazz.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Lyricist SAMMY CAHN ("Until the Real Thing Comes Along", "All the way", "Come fly with me", "I fall in love too easily", "Bei Meir Bist du Schoen", "It's magic") talks about and sings some of his most popular songs; reminisces about writing lyrics for singers Bing Crosby, Mario Lanza, Frank Sinatra and Fred Astaire; and describes the difficulties of creating the perfect rhyme.

Description of show segment(s)

1. Novelist MARY GORDON (The Company of Women and Final Payments) discusses the influences of her Catholic childhood and feminism on her work and reads from her latest novel, Men and Angels.

Interview with Cynthia Lennon. August 6, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924355].

Description of show segment(s)

1. CYNTHIA LENNON remembers her first husband, John Lennon, and reflects on her years as a "Beatle wife".

Description of show segment(s)

1. Writer and humorist BRUCE J. FRIEDMAN compares writing books and movies; talks about his screenplays for "Splash" and "Stir Crazy"; and discusses the movie adaptation of his book The Lonely Guy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actor, writer and autobiographical monologist SPALDING GRAY describes the outcome when he took a break from the experimental theater world to act in the movie "The Killing Fields"; and, performs an excerpt from his monologue on that subject, "Swimming to Cambodia."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Humorist and reporter CALVIN TRILLIN shares his observations on food and other American obsessions.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Avante-garde composer and philosopher JOHN CAGE explains he's committed his life to challenging our preconceptions about music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Television critic DAVID MARC (the Village VOICE, Atlantic Magazine) looks at the rise of the s-itcom and crime and explains why these genres have never been the same since "The Beverly Hillbillies"and "77 Sunset Strip."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Civil rights leader, CORE co-founder and author JAMES FARMER recalls leading the Freedom Rides through the south, where the riders were thrown in jail while applying Ghandi’s principles of nonviolent resistance.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DICK CAVETT remembers his early years in television writing jokes for Jack Paar and Johnny Carson, and shares funny and maddening stories from his own television talk shows on late night network TV, PBS and cable.
Interview with Bobby Short. October 1, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924335].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) America's most celebrated cafe society singer BOBBY SHORT talks about his life from his days as a child vaudeville performer, to his long reign at New York's elegant Cafe Carlyle, where he keeps alive favorites and neglected gems by composers like Porter, Gershwin, Berlin and Coward.

Interview with Mickey Mantle. October 8, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923673].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Baseball great MICKEY MANTLE looks back on his career with the New York Yankees.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Artist GEORGE SEGAL, best known for his life size, white plaster cast sculptures of people; reflects on his life and work.

Interview with David Halberstam. October 22, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924336].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist and author DAVID HALBERSTAM discusses how commercialism and television are changing American sports, and looks back at his experiences reporting from Vietnam for which he won a 1964 Pulitzer Prize.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RAYMOND McNALLY, an expert on vampire lore, tells the history of the Dracula story and describes the horror of the undead, as portrayed in folklore, literature and film.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Playwright and actor WALLACE SHAWN, who co-wrote and co-starred in the film "My Dinner with Andre", discusses theater and movies.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PHIL DONAHUE discusses his popular and controversial TV talk show, and his reputation as TV's foremost male feminist.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Songwriter CY COLEMAN ("Witchcraft", "The Best is Yet to Come", and the scores for "Sweet Charity" and "Barnum") discusses the ups and downs of writing for Broadway.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CHARLIE HADEN, one of the greatest living jazz bassists, discusses his music--from singing country and western songs as a child, to playing with the original Ornette Coleman Quartet and leading his own Liberation Music Orchestra.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Gay novelist and essayist EDMUND WHITE (A Boy's Own Story, States of Desire, Travels in Gay America) shares his observations on gay life and gay literature.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GARRISON KEILLOR compares his own life with life in lake Wobegon.

Interview with Merce Cunningham. December 17, 1985. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924787].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MERCE CUNNINGHAM, one of the revolutionaries of modern dance, discusses his life as a dancer and choreographer.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Clarinetist and bandleader ARTIE SHAW recalls the high points of his music career, and the frustrations which precipitated his early retirement.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Tom and Dick Smothers, reunited as THE SMOTHERS BROTHERS, discuss their comedy act and their controversial TV variety show of the late 60s.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MICHAEL BENNETT, creator of Broadway's longest running show A Chorus Line, and choreographer/director of the recent Broadway hit Dreamgirls reflects on his life in theater.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ALBERT RACE SAMPLE's autobiography "Racehoss: Big Emma's Boy" describe his experiences growing up as the son of a black prostitute and gambler and one of her white clients. Sample later ended up in "Retrieve" a unit of the Texas Prison System, which Race describes as sadistic.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Composer STEVE REICH is known as a prominent "minimalist." Reich joins the show to discuss that term, his own career and influences, and whether he is the "safe" avant-garde composer.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Piano virtuoso GARY GRAFFMAN discusses his life and playing changed after a mysterious ailment crippled his right hand.

Interview with John Phillips; Commentary on old-time music by Bob Carlin. January 16, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925603].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Photographer JOHN PHILLIPS has documented events such as the Nazi invasion of Austria, European high society, and the Jews and Arabs in Palestine before and after the establishment of Israel as an overseas correspondent for Life magazine. Phillips was born in Algeria, grew up in France, and moved to London as a young man. Phillips has collected over 500 of his photographs and written text to create his own "photo-biography," "It Happened in Our Lifetime." (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER) (2.) On this edition of "The Record Ranch," with Bob Carlin, Carlin will share records of new-wave old-time music. (PARTIAL COMMENTARY)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Bishop DESMOND TUTU is one of the leading figures of the struggle against apartheid in South Africa. Tutu delivers a talk at the University of Pennsylvania.

Description of show segment(s)

(1). Gay icon and writer QUENTIN CRISP. Crisp is known for his autobiography "The Naked Civil Servant." The memoir recounts the social price Crisp paid for being an out and effeminate gay man. Crisp counters his critics with politeness, which is the subject of his new book "Manners from Heaven."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Trumpeter GREGORY DAVIS is a member of the Dirty Dozen Brass Band. The band was founded to play at funerals and other events in New Orleans. The group mixes traditional New Orleans jazz with funk and be bop. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CHUCK BARRIS discusses the world of TV game shows in which he created and produced The Dating Game, The Newlywed Game, and The Gong Show, which he also hosted.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Dr. GEORGE GERBNER is the Dean of the Annenberg School of Communication at the University of Pennsylvania. Gerber and his colleagues Larry Gross, Michael Morgan, Nancy Signorielli, and sometimes Stewart Hoover have published many studies of television and its impact on society. The studies have been widely published and influential. Gerber believes that television distorts reality, and Americans, who watch a large amount of t.v. programming, are having their views on reality distorted by the medium.

Interview with Nick Spitzer. February 2, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925729].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NICK SPITZER is a folklorist who worked for the State of Louisiana for six years, and now works at the Smithsonian. Spitzer joins the show to discuss and share jazz music from New Orleans and the Gulf Coast, with a focus on Mardi Gras music and lesser known styles of Cajun and Creole music. (INTERVIEW BY BOB CARLIN)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) America's pre-eminent film critic PAULINE KAEL discusses movies and movie criticism.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NELSON GEORGE is a music writer who is the author of the best-selling "The Michael Jackson Story," and the black music editor for Billboard magazine. His latest book, "Where Did Our Love Go?," is a history of the black-owned company Motown Records. Motown employed a stable of writers, producers, singers, and studio musicians who created what became known as "the Motown sound." This soul sound appealed to both black and white audiences. George argues that that the company's move from Detroit to Los Angeles caused it to lose its sound.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Cellist, YO-YO MA, who at the age of 30 is already considered one of the world's most inspired classical musicians, discusses the maturation of his playing.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NICHOLAS PILEGGI is a journalist and contributing editor to New York Magazine who specializes in stories about organized crime. His latest book, "Wise Guy: Life in a Mafia Family," is a biography based on his interviews with former mobster Henry Hill. The book offers as insider view of organized crime.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) VICTORIA BROWNWORTH is a Philadelphia-based journalist who has recently published a series of articles about juvenile prostitution. She believes that many of the children reported missing and presumed kidnapped are actually involved in juvenile prostitution after running away from abuse or being thrown out of their homes. Brownworth's articles on the subject have been published in City Paper, the Philadelphia Inquirer, the Washington Post, and the Los Angeles Times. Brownworth is currently writing a book on the subject, based in part on her interviews with juvenile sex workers in Philadelphia. Its working title is "Lost in America."

Interview with Taj Mahal. February 14, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925753].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TAJ MAHAL is a musician known for his blues songs. Later in his career, he would incorporate African, Caribbean, and Latin influences into his music. His records appeal to blues, rock, and folk audiences, and a compilation of his work, "The Best of Taj Mahal," has recently been published. Mahal is in Philadelphia to perform at the Tower Theater.
Interview with Athol Fugard. February 18, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501234].

Description of show segment(s)

1. White South African playwright ATHOL FUGARD ('Master Harold' ... and the Boys; The Blood Knot; Sizwe Bansi is Dead) confronts his dilemma as an opponent of apartheid who nonetheless stays in South Africa, because his country is the inspiration for all his writing.

Interview with Jay Kernis. February 18, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925756].

Description of show segment(s)

1. JAY KERNIS is a radio producer who began at "Morning Edition" as a senior producer before rising to the position of executive producer. Kernis, along with Scott Simon, is a co-creator of the new NPR radio show "Weekend Edition." Kernis joins the show to discuss his career and his new show.

Interview with Scott Simon; Interview with Jay Kernis. February 18, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925301].

Description of show segment(s)

1. SCOTT SIMON is a longtime NPR journalist who is known as being sensitive, versatile, and excellent at writing prose. Simon has worked for "Morning Edition" and "All Things Considered." Simon and Jay Kernis are the co-creators of the new NPR radio program "Weekend Edition." Simon will serve as the shows host. Simon joins the show to discuss his career and the new show. (2.) JAY KERNIS is a radio producer who began at "Morning Edition" as a senior producer before rising to the position of executive producer. Kernis, along with Scott Simon, is a co-creator of the new NPR radio show "Weekend Edition." Kernis joins the show to discuss his career and his new show. (PARTIAL INTERVIEW)
Interview with Dennis Brutus. February 19, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925403].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DENNIS BRUTUS is an exiled South African poet. Brutus was active in the anti-apartheid movement in the country which led to his imprisonment and eventual exile. Brutus moved to the United States in 1970, and gained permanent residence status in 1983 after a struggle in which the U. S. attempted to deport him. Brutus joins the show to give his impressions of the South African government's proposed reforms and the current violent ant-apartheid protests in the country, as well as read several of his poems.

Interview with Anonymous; Interview with Heshie Zinman; Interview with Dr. John Turner, Dr. Robert Sharrar, and Roger Stevens, Part 1. February 20, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503959].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) On this special edition of Fresh Air devoted to the AIDS Crisis, Terry Gross speaks with a 32-year-old New Jersey man who was diagnosed with the disease a year ago. Fresh Air has respected his wish to remain anonymous. (2.) HESHIE ZINMAN is a "buddy" who helps "PWAs," or Persons with AIDS, many of whom are unemployed and/or without health insurance, and who are often rejected by their families and others in society. Buddies help PWAS by doing everything from housecleaning, filling out medical forms, advocating for the person, to listening to their fears. He joins the show to discuss his work organizing on behalf of PWAS. (3.) Dr. JOHN TURNER is an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University who treats many AIDS patients. Dr. ROBERT SHARRAR is an epidemiologist monitoring the spread of AIDS in Philadelphia as the Director of the Division of Disease Control at the Philadelphia Department of Health. ROGER STEPHENS is the chair of the education committee of the Philadelphia AIDS Task Force and the Director of Social Work at Graduate Hospital. They join the show to discuss the medical and social aspects of AIDS, safe sex practices, and the response to AIDS in Philadelphia.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Part two of Fresh Air's interview with medical and social experts on this special edition of the show devoted to the AIDS crisis. Dr. JOHN TURNER is an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University who treats many AIDS patients. Dr. ROBERT SHARRAR is an epidemiologist monitoring the spread of AIDS in Philadelphia as the Director of the Division of Disease Control at the Philadelphia Department of Health. ROGER STEPHENS is the chair of the education committee of the Philadelphia AIDS Task Force and the Director of Social Work at Graduate Hospital. They join the show to discuss the medical and social aspects of AIDS, safe sex practices, and the response to AIDS in Philadelphia. Turner, Sharrar, and Stephens will also respond to listener calls.

Interview with David Webber, Part 2; Interview with Larry Gross; Interview with David Webber and Larry Gross. February 21, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925837].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) On the second part of this special edition of Fresh Air addressing the AIDS epidemic, Terry Gross speaks with Philadelphia lawyer DAVID WEBBER, legal director of the Philadelphia AIDS Task Force's Advocacy Committee and the counsel for the Philadelphia Lesbian and Gay Task Force. Last year he represented a person with AIDS who was fired from his job. Webber joins the show to discuss the legal and civil liberty issues associated with the disease. (2.) LARRY GROSS is a professor of communications at the Annenberg School of Communications of the University of Pennsylvania. He studies television violence and the portrayal of women in minorities on t.v. and their effects on viewers. Gross is the co-chair of the Philadelphia Lesbian and Gay Task Force and a member of the Philadelphia AIDS Task Force. He joins the show to evaluate the media coverage of AIDS and how it has shaped the American public's response to the disease. (3.) WEBBER and GROSS respond to listener calls about the legal and media aspects of the AIDS crisis.
Interview with Dennis Altman; Interview with Kathleen Denton; Interview with Russell Letterman; Interview with David Webber, Part 1. February 21, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503554].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) On the second part of this special edition of Fresh Air addressing the AIDS epidemic, Terry Gross speaks with writer DENNIS ALTMAN, author of the new book "AIDS in the Mind of America." One of its subjects is the impact of the disease on the gay male community. The Australian Altman has previously written about the gay movement, and worked with the Institute for Health Policy Studies at the University of California Medical School. Altman offers his thoughts on whether AIDS should be considered a "gay disease." (2.) The AIDS crisis has scared many people from donating or receiving blood from the Red Cross. KATHLEEN DENTON, Director of Communications for the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the Red Cross, says those fears are unfounded. Denton explains that a test developed last April screens for the presence of antibodies to the HTLV-III virus, which is believed to cause AIDS. All blood is screened before being added to the pool. (INTERVIEW BY AMY SALIT) (3.) Pennsylvania Representative RUSSELL LETTERMAN is part of a group of legislators who have proposed legislation to require couples applying for marriage licenses to take one of the current tests for the virus that causes AIDS. Letterman and his cohort maintain that this should be done despite the fact that current tests (including one approved yesterday) are unreliable and can only confirm exposure to the virus. Letterman joins the show to explain his position. (INTERVIEW BY AMY SALIT) (4.) Philadelphia lawyer DAVID WEBBER is the legal director of the Philadelphia AIDS Task Force's Advocacy Committee and the counsel for the Philadelphia Lesbian and Gay Task Force. Last year he represented a person with AIDS who was fired from his job. Webber joins the show to discuss the legal and civil liberty issues associated with the disease.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Exiled black South African poet DENNIS BRUTUS describes his ordeal while imprisoned for his anti-apartheid organizing, and discusses his decision to sign an exit visa which prohibits him from returning.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DOUG HILL and JEFF WEINGRAD are the authors of the new book "Saturday Night: A Backstage History of Saturday Night Live." The book chronicles the eleven year history of the show produced by Lorne Michaels. Hill has written for the New York Times and is a staff writer for T.V. Guide, and Weingrad has written for SoHo Weekly News, the New York Post, and edits the celebrity page of Women's World magazine.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) KURT VONNEGUT is one of the most prominent of contemporary novelists. His work often contains paradoxes and explores ideas from his science background. Vonnegut was also a P. O. W. in Dresden during the U.S firebombing of the city, an experience that was a subject in his novel "Slaughterhouse-Five." Vonnegut's works have often been banned, and he is active in a movement of writers to defend free speech rights in the U. S. and abroad. He recently traveled abroad as a representative of the organization PEN to report on intellectual freedom in Eastern Europe. Vonnegut's latest novel is "Galapagos."
Interview with Alec Guinness. February 27, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925604].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Actor ALEC GUINNESS began acting in classic English theater in the 1930s and 1940s. After World War II, he began to appear in films, and won an Academy Award in 1957 for his work in the film "The Bridge Over the River Kwai." He is known to a new generation of viewers as Obi Wan Kenobi from the Star Wars films. Guinness has recently published a memoir "Blessings in Disguise." (PARTIAL INTERVIEW)

Interview with Margaret Atwood. February 28, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925791].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Canadian novelist MARGARET ATWOOD is popular in her home country and abroad. Her latest novel "The Handmaid's Tale," takes place in a future United States ruled by religious fundamentalists who assert "traditional" roles for women and force fertile women to reproduce. Atwood considers herself a feminist and is active in the writers' movement for intellectual freedom. Atwood is the President of the Canadian English-speaking section of the writers' group PEN.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GAHAN WILSON discusses his macabre cartoons, the werewolves, vampires, and monsters he draws and the irrational childhood fears he parodies. His latest work is "Gahan Wilson's America."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) EMILE DE ANTONIO is regarded as one of the most important political filmmakers of the American Left. His films include "Point of Order," about the McCarthy hearings; "Rush to Judgement," about the Warren Report; "In the Year of the Pig," about the history of Vietnam, and "Underground," where he interviewed members of the Weather Underground, "Millhouse: A White Comedy," a political comedy about Richard Nixon; "In the King of Prussia," about a group of anti-nuclear activists, and "Painters Painting," about the art world in New York after World War II. He joins the show to discuss his work and career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet and essayist John Ciardi is known for his etymologies on the NPR program "Morning Edition." Ciardi joins the show to discuss his love of words and their histories.

Interview with Steve Reich. March 11, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924284].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Composer STEVE REICH, one of the fathers of minimalist music, discusses the cross-cultural influences on his work from African drumming to Jewish cantorial singing. His latest composition is "Desert Music" which features the poems of William Carlos Williams.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JERRY FALWELL is a Baptist minister who is the founder and head of Moral Majority, Incorporated, which recently created an umbrella organization, The Liberty Federation, to support an expanded political and social agenda. The group describes itself as "pro-life, pro-family, pro-moral, and pro-strong national defense." Falwell is also the founder of Thomas Rhode Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Virginia, and the founder and chancellor of Lynchburg Christian Academy, Liberty University, Liberty Baptist Seminary, and Liberty Home Bible Institute. Falwell's latest book is "If I Should Die Before I Wake," and is about his founding of the Liberty God Parents Home, designed for pregnant teens as an alternative to abortion.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT J. LIFTON is a psychiatrist and author who is a board member of the group Physicians for Social Responsibility. His works include "Indefensible Weapons: The Political and Psychological Case Against Nuclearism" and "Home from the War: Vietnam Veterans: Neither Victims Nor Executioners." His latest book, "The Nazi Doctors: Medical Killing and The Psychology of Genocide," investigates the capacity for human cruelty and is based on interviews with former Nazi doctors and their surviving victims.

Interview with Chaim Potok. March 17, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925765].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphian and frequent guest CHAIM POTOK returns to the show. Potok is a writer known for his novels, including his first, "The Chosen," a best-seller. His latest novel, "Davita's Harp," has just been released in paperback. His fiction often looks at the interplay between religious and secular life, and Potok grew up in Hasidic community, and is a rabbi. Potok has also written non-fiction and was part of a committee of scholars that created a new translation of the Hebrew Bible which was published in 1982 in three volumes. A new one volume edition has recently been published.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Interview with Dennis Russell Davies. March 18, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925628].</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Description of show segment(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(1.) DENNIS RUSSELL DAVIES is a conductor known for his dedication to performing new music and innovative programs. Davies is the co-founder and principal conductor for the American Composers Orchestra and the conductor of the Saratoga Performing Arts Center of New York, the summer home of the Philadelphia Orchestra. Davies lives in West Germany and is about to assume the position of the General Music Director of the City of Bonn.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Description of show segment(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(1.) Reverend WILLIAM SLOANE COFFIN, one of America's most prominent and controversial ministers, reflects on his role as a peace activist and spiritual leader.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Description of show segment(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(1.) ELLIE GREENWICH is a songwriter known for her pop songs of the 1960s like &quot;Be My Baby&quot; and &quot;Do Wah Diddy Diddy.&quot; Greenwich worked with composers Leiber and Stoller, producer Phil Spector, and co-wrote many of her hits with her ex-husband Jeff Barry. During much of the 1970s, Greenwich</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
wrote, produced, and performed commercial jingles before experiencing a career resurgence in the 1980s. A revue of her songs "Leader of Pack," premiered in New York and will go on a national tour.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ABBEY LINCOLN discusses her evolution from sultry supper club singer to a jazz singer who was nearly shut out of the music industry because of her civil rights activism.

Interview with Amiri Baraka. March 27, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503984].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) AMIRI BARAKA, formerly LeRoi Jones, is a poet, playwright, essayist, and political activist who was of the first militant black writers to emerge in the 1960s. He addresses black life, music, and politics in his writing, and his works have often been seen as shocking. "The Autobiography of LeRoi Jones," Baraka's memoir, has just been released in paperback.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ART and AARON NEVILLE are part of the New Orleans funk and rhythm and blues band The Neville Brothers. Art has been performing since 1954 when his "Mardi Gras Mambo" became a hit. The song remains a Mardi Gras standard. Aaron had a hit in 1966 with the song "Tell It Like It Is." The brothers' latest album "Neville-lization."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) R. D. LAING is a psychiatrist who challenged conventional views in the 1960s with his proposal that schizophrenia was an adaptive behavior, "a sane response to an insane world," as opposed to an illness. The counterculture embraced Laing's views, but they were controversial in academic circles. In 1965, Laing formed the Philadelphia (for brotherly love, not the city) Association, an alternative treatment center for schizophrenics. His latest books are "The Voice of Experience," and "Wisdom, Madness, and Folly." The latter is an autobiography of the first half of his life.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT STONE counts promises and peoples' failure to keep them, what we chose to perceive in others and how that perception can be deceptive, and the difficulty of behaving decently as themes of his novels. He describes himself as a "writer of his times," and his work often addresses topical issues. His latest novel is "Children of Light."

Interview with Ed Hermance; Documentary by Anne Bohlen and Celeste Wesson. April 2, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503986].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Philadelphian ED HERMANCE is named as a co-conspirator in an obscenity trial in England for smuggling "obscene" materials to London's prominent gay bookstore Gay's the Word. Hermance is the co-owner of Philadelphia's Giovanni's Room, a gay and feminist bookstore, and he believes the trial represents discrimination. (2.) "The Power and the Spirit," is a documentary produced by Anne Bohlen and Celeste Wesson that examines the ban on the ordainment of women in the Catholic Church. The documentary features women who would like to become priests and women who favor more traditional roles and support the ban, as well as a bishop.

Interview with Frederick Wiseman. April 2, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925816].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Documentarian and filmmaker FREDERICK WISEMAN's films often dissect institutions. He emphasizes that his films are biased and reflect his own point of view. He joins the show to discuss his career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Internationally acclaimed conductor LORIN MAAZEL is in town to conduct a performance at the Spectrum. Maazel joins the show to discuss his life and career.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Comedienne PHYLLIS DILLER joins the show to describe how she got into comedy at the age of 37, after working as a housewife, reporter, copywriter, and in press relations.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer RICHARD PRICE discusses his urban class background which inspired the setting of his novels The Wanderers; Bloodbrothers; Ladies Man; and The Breaks. His current project is a sequel for The Hustler, directed by Martin Scorsese.

Interview with Albert Race Sample. April 8, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924349].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ALBERT RACE SAMPLE remembers his seven years in a sadistic Texas prison, which is the subject of his memoir "Racehoss: Big Emma's Boy."

Interview with Maurice Sendak. April 15, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924346].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Author and illustrator MAURICE SENDAK discusses children's literature and his own childhood.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LEON BATES was groomed for a career as a concert pianist from childhood. He joins the show to discuss his life and career. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)
Interview with Maya Angelou. April 22, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925817].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Poet, memoirist, and activist MAYA ANGELOU discusses her life, career, and time spent living in Ghana.

Interview with Vito Russo. April 22, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924327].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) VITO RUSSO, author of The Celluloid Closet analyzes how gays have been portrayed in films.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) EDWARD WILKERSON is a jazz musician and composer. He joins the show to discuss his work and career. (INTERVIEW BY DANNY MILLER)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) NAT HENTOFF writes about jazz and civil liberties, but describes his profession as "being a troublemaker." Hentoff began collecting jazz records and hanging out in jazz clubs as a young adult, and later hosted a jazz radio show and edited a magazine before co-founding the Jazz Review, a journal of criticism. Hentoff currently writes a column for the Village Voice and his subjects are often the First Amendment or civil liberties, and he is a staunch defender of free speech. His latest book, "Boston Boy," is a memoir about growing up in Chicago and Boston.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Guitarist and singer MARTY GROSZ and saxophonist and clarinetist DICK MELDONIAN regale a live audience with their versions of 1920s jazz and pop tunes at the Fresh Air studio. Grosz is one of the few musicians who still play rhythm guitar, and is the son of German satiric artist George Grosz. Meldonian has played with many famous jazz musicians and singers, and has also released several of his own records. The concert was funded by the Philadelphia Foundation.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Singer-songwriter LEONARD COHEN ("Suzanne," "Bird on a Wire") discusses his life and music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Novelist RITA MAE BROWN is known for her lesbian and "Southern" fiction. She joins the show to discuss her family and growing up in the South. Brown's latest novel is "High Hearts."
Interview with Terry Zwigoff. May 2, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925478].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TERRY ZWIGOFF is the director and producer of the documentary "Louie Bluie," about jazz violinist and mandolinist Howard Armstrong. Armstrong continues the tradition of black string bands in the nineteen-teens and the nineteen-twenties. Armstrong's career was revived in the nineteen-seventies on the college circuit. Zwigoff plays the cello and mandolin himself, including in cartoonist R. Crumb's band, and collects jazz records.

Interview with Jane Voss and Hoyle Osborne. May 5, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503927].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Guitarist and signer JANE VOSS and singer HOYLE OSBORNE play for a live audience at Fresh Air's music studio. Their style incorporates the blues, Tin Pan Alley, vaudeville, and originals. Voss and Osborne are also married and today is their tenth anniversary.

Interview with Nicholas Pileggi. May 6, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924325].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Crime reporter NICHOLAS PILEGGI, author of Wiseguy: Life in a Mafia Family, describes the heists and scams of a mid-level mobster.

Description of show segment(s)

1. Novelist JUDITH VIORST has written humorous books for children and for adults and is also a contributing editor to Redbook. Viorst spent years studying at the Psychoanalytic Institute in Washington, D. C. before writing her new book, "Necessary Losses." The non-fiction work's subject is coping with loss.

Description of show segment(s)

1. Frequent Fresh Air guest SPALDING GRAY takes stories about his life and anxieties and transforms them into comedic monologues he delivers in a direct fashion. His monologues include "Sex and Death to the Age of Fourteen," "A Personal History of American Theater," and "Swimming to Cambodia." His current monologue is "The Terrors of Pleasure," and it chronicles his attempts to "grow up" and experience ownership by purchasing a house in the Catskills. The house was a disaster and Gray was forced to go to Los Angeles and audition for sitcoms to pay for the repairs.

Interview with Martin Cruz Smith. May 9, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503737].

Description of show segment(s)

1. Philadelphia native and novelist MARTIN CRUZ SMITH is best known for his 1981 film "Gorky Park." Prior to that work, Cruz Smith had written about 35 genre novels under various pseudonyms. His latest novel, "Stallion Gate," is set in Los Alamos, New Mexico during the development of the atom bomb. The novel's main character is a Native American who boxes and plays jazz and is the driver and bodyguard for J. Robert Oppenheimer.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer GAIL SHEEHY is best-known for her book "Passages" about the predictable turns of adulthood. While in Thailand researching Cambodian children in refugee camps, Sheehy met a 12-year-old girl whom she later adopted. Her book "Spirit of Survival" alternates between Sheehy and her daughter Mohm's perspectives on the events.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Novelist KURT VONNEGUT discusses his writing, and his work defending the intellectual freedom of writers in America and abroad.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Singer PEGGY KING joins the studio to interpret the songs of Irving Berlin in honor of his recent 90th birthday. King is joined by pianist CORKY HALE and bassist DAVID FINCK.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Musician JOHN PHILLIPS was a member of the group The Mamas & The Papas, a pop-folk band that was popular in the 1960s. Phillips has recently written his autobiography "Papa John."

Interview with Avner Eisenberg. May 19, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458581].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) AVNER EISENBERG, known as "Avner the Eccentric," is a "new vaudevillian"; he uses juggling, magic, acrobatics, and clowning in his act. He also appeared in the film "Jewel of the Nile."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Like fellow Nixon administration members John Deen and G. Gordon Liddy, JOHN EHRLICHMAN was convicted of crimes relating to the Watergate scandal, and now makes a career as a writer. He joins Fresh Air to share memories of President Nixon, the fallout from Watergate, and the influence prison life had on Ehrlichman's life.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RED GROOMS started his career as a painter; later, he began to incorporate performance and three-dimensional elements into his work. He dropped out of school and moved to New York, where he established himself by opening a gallery to showcase his work alongside that of other up-and-coming artists. Grooms finds inspiration in urban landscapes of all sizes -- including the small alleyway near his Chinatown apartment.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Sir ALEC GUINESS began acting in the theater. The skills he developed onstage helped him gain recognition in films like Bridge on the River Kwai and Star Wars. Despite his success in motion pictures, he prefers the stage and a quiet life in Southern England, far from the bustle of Hollywood.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SCOTT SPENCER had literary ambitions from a young age but didn't feel he could rightfully call himself a writer until the publication of his first book, Endless Love. Known for his personal tone, first-person perspective, and themes of obsession and loss, Spencer has written a new book called Waking the Dead.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PETER GURALNICK is a music critic with a new book about his favorite genre, titled Sweet Soul Music. The rise of soul was fueled as much by the artistry of individual performers as it was by influential record companies like Motown, Atlantic and Stax.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JERRY FALWELL is an Evangelical minister whose Moral Majority organization helped propel Ronald Reagan to the presidency. A staunch conservative, Falwell seeks to influence American politics in order to protect traditional family values.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ELLIE GREENWICH was one of the few working women songwriters of the 1960s, writing hits for girl groups like "Be My Baby" and "Leader of the Pack." With the rise of rock bands who wrote their own music, she switched to writing advertising jingles in the 1970s. Now, with the resurgence of women pop stars in the 1980s, Greenwich has returned to songwriting.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RICHARD WERNICK is a composer and professor at University of Pennsylvania. Frustrated by how few works by living composers are being performed, he has collaborated with the Philadelphia Orchestra to add new music to their repertoire. To expand the audience for challenging and vital compositions, Wernick believes that new music should be presented in concert alongside the more familiar pieces from the canon.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Lawyer ALAN DERSHOWITZ believes in defending a person’s constitutional rights, even if that person is unpopular or guilty of a crime. His latest book, Reversal of Fortune, details how he secured the acquittal of Claus von Bulow, who was accused of murdering his wife. Dershowitz has also been working against the Meese Report on pornography, which he believes could lead to the suppression of free speech.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT B. PARKER is a Boston-based writer whose books follow the career of a private investigator named Spenser. Parker take his inspiration from classic hard-boiled novelists like Raymond Chandler and Dashiell Hammett. Parker works as a consultant for the television show Spenser for Hire, which is based on his books.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DEBORAH EISENBERG didn’t begin writing until her 30s, while she made a living as a waitress. But even after publishing several short stories, she was reluctant to call herself a writer until she was able to make a living in the arts. Along with her own determination, she credits the support and encouragement of her partner, actor and writer Wallace Shawn, for her success.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEORGE SHEARING insists he is a piano player who happens to be blind, not a blind pianist. Despite being an accomplished jazz musician, he initially had trouble finding work in his native England, either because the gigs required sight-reading, or because club owners worried about the liability of hiring a blind performer. During World War II, when many musicians served in the military, Shearing was able to secure more jobs, including performing in air raid shelters during bombings. He now lives in the United States.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT JAY LIFTON has researched Nazi doctors and survivors of the Hiroshima bombings to learn how people react and adapt to extreme situations during wartime. His books include Death in Life and the forthcoming Nazi Doctors.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PAUL RUDNICK has written a play and published several essays. His new novel, Social Disease, draws on his first-hand knowledge of Manhattan's exclusive nightclub culture.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Born Leroi Jones, poet and playwright AMIRI BARAKA has become a literary force in black arts and culture. Now an avowed socialist, he has in the past embraced bohemian culture, Islam, and black nationalism--perspectives which have all informed his often controversial work. He now lives in Newark, New Jersey, where he supports several area arts organizations.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) A frequent guest to Fresh Air, poet DENNIS BRUTUS has lived in exile from his native South Africa since the 1960s. He teaches at Swarthmore College and has just accepted a post at the University of Pittsburgh. He discusses the state of emergency that South Africa's government has declared in response to recent anti-apartheid actions. (2.) Journalist ROBERT ROSENTHAL covers Africa for the Philadelphia Inquirer. He accepted the post without having much prior knowledge of the continent. During a trip to Uganda, he was arrested outside of Kampala and tortured in prison.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist LINDA ELLERBEE is an accomplished television journalist who recently left NBC over a salary dispute. In addition to her effective reporting, she has distinguished herself by downplaying her physical appearance dressing casually -- in sharp contrast with other women news anchors. She joins Fresh Air to discuss the role of women in broadcast journalism, the balancing of her career and personal life, and her new memoir, And So It Goes.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Comedian PHYLLIS DILLER is open and unashamed about the extensive surgery over she’s gotten over the years. Known for her jokes about marriage and her increasingly frazzled onstage persona, she began developing her act at the age of 37 -- her husband urged her to pursue comedy to help support the family financially.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Best known for his groundbreaking work as a soul singer, SOLOMON BURKE was a child preacher who remained active in the church through adulthood. Early in his music career, he released a country and western album. He continues to record and perform religiously-inflected soul music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer GAIL LUMET BUCKLEY has a new book called The Hornes: An American Family, which traces her lineage as far back as the Civil War. Buckley is the daughter of acclaimed African American actress Lena Horne, and believes that her family's experiences as members of the black middle class led to unique and sometimes troubling interactions with both whites and other African Americans.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BOB GUCCIONE, JR. got his start working at Penthouse Magazine, which his father Bob Guccione ran. Guccione, Jr. was fired multiple times from the family business. But his interest in publishing grew, and he has since launched Spin, a magazine covering new rock music.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Novelist CHAIM POTOK is an ordained rabbi who grew up in a Hasidic community in New York. He later abandoned fundamentalism but still maintains a strong Jewish identity. Through his fiction, he explores different aspects of his faith, and how they related to other religious and secular traditions.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) After an unsuccessful, two-decade-long run writing jazz criticism, Cleveland-based writer and file clerk HARVEY PEKAR started his autobiographical comic book series American Splendor, which has just been anthologized by Doubleday.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TAMA JANOWITZ has felt like a perpetual outsider throughout her adult life--which she believes is related to her temperament and routine as a writer. But she has recently found acceptance among a community of New York City artists, whose lives she explores in her new short story collection Slaves of New York. Andy Warhol has since purchased the film rights for several of Janowitz's stories.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ARIEL DORFMAN is a creative writer and academic with roots in Chile. His most recent publishing credits include several articles critical of the Pinochet regime.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT STONE is a novelist most often associated with Ken Kesey's Merry Band of Pranksters. He joins Fresh Air to talk about how LSD, the Vietnam War, New York City, and California all influenced his life and work.
Interview with Maya Angelou. August 5, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924322].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) African American writer MAYA ANGELOU lived in West Africa with her son to escape racism in the United States, but later moved to North Carolina, which she now calls home. She credits the experiences of her childhood and teen years—including singing spirituals, surviving rape, and the birth of her son when she was 17—with shaping much of her poetic sensibility. The latest in her series of autobiographical books is called All God's Children Need Traveling Shoes.

Interview with Benny Golson. August 8, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925563].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BENNY GOLSON grew up in Philadelphia. As a teenager, he honed his tenor saxophone skills during jam sessions with future jazz legends John Coltrane and Percy Keith, among others. His career has taken him around the world, performing with Art Blakey and his own ensembles. After spending several years composing and arranging music for television, he has reformed his combo with Art Farmer and returned to performing and recording jazz.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOE NAMATH set a record for the highest paid rookie in football when he was recruited by the New York Jets in 1964. After a thirteen-year-long career as a quarterback, he now acts, runs a football camp, and recently published the book Football for Young Players and Parents.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JAN HAROLD BRUNVARD is a scholar and folklorist who has written several books about urban legends. He believes these myths reflect contemporary anxieties and biases; their basic formulas allow for endless variations, which adds to their staying power. His newest book is called The Mexican Pet.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Long after many of his contemporaries quit, WOODY HERMAN continued to lead a big band, despite the financial hardships associated with managing such a large ensemble. An accomplished clarinetist himself, Herman sought out, recruited, and coached exceptional musicians to join him on the road and in the studio.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Football player ROSEY GRIER began his career with the New York Giants. Having grown up in an isolated sharecropping community, he became involved with the civil rights movement after witnessing first hand discrimination against black athletes. Grier later served on Bobby Kennedy's presidential campaign, unofficially acting as the presidential candidate's bodyguard. Grier was present when Kennedy was killed.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SCOTT SPENCER found success in his novel, Endless Love, and gained new readers after it was adapted into a film. Known for his personal tone, first-person perspective, and themes of obsession and loss, Spencer has written a new book called Waking the Dead.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEORGE SHEARING insists he is a piano player who happens to be blind, not a blind pianist. Despite being an accomplished jazz musician, he initially had trouble finding work in his native England, either because the gigs required sight-reading, or because club owners worried about the liability of hiring a blind performer. During World War II, when many musicians served in the military, Shearing was able to secure more jobs, including performing in air raid shelters during bombings. He now lives in the United States.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer MARITA GOLDEN believes that friendship among black women is a given, and that their bonds are necessary for their survival in the face of white culture. Her new novel, A Woman's Place, explores this theme by following the lives of three different African American women whose lives diverge as they grow older. Golden joins Fresh Air to discuss the role of media and literature in the black community, which she often sees as at odds with each other.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz trumpeter and flugelhorn player ART FARMER lives in Vienna, but tours the United States six months out of the year. He grew up in Phoenix and was largely self-taught on his instrument—as an adult, he took lessons to correct poor techniques he had developed. He says he enjoys the life of a jazz musician, including the frequent travel, but sometimes gets discouraged when gigs are hard to come by. He has recently reformed his Jazztet with saxophonist Benny Golson.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) RITA MAE BROWN has garnered acclaim for her novels, which feature complex and likable characters who happen to be lesbians. Before becoming a writer, she participated in civil rights and feminist movements, and started a group for gays and lesbians at New York University. She joins Fresh Air to discuss the successes and failures of radical groups of the 1960s and ’70s.

Interview with Andrew Greeley. September 17, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925404].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Father ANDREW GREELEY is a novelist who writes about the lives of Catholic priests. His newest book, an autobiography titled Confessions of a Parish Priest, details his own life in the Church, including his seminary training, his views on celibacy and sexuality, and his sometimes tense relationship with Church hierarchy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT MACNEIL co-hosted the McNeil/Lehrer Report, and now has a new television series called The Story of English, about the changing nature of the language. He joins Fresh Air to talk about his formative years as a foreign correspondent and a rookie news anchor.

Interview with Derek Walcott. September 22, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925733].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DEREK WALCOTT divides his time between the United States, where he has held several university teaching posts, and his home country of Trinidad. The poet's work reflects his interest in how language affects culture and identity. Walcott speaks Creole, but writes primarily in English--the language of empire.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Songwriter, performer, and session musician Malcom Rebennack adopted the name DR. JOHN when he developed his New Orleans-based, theatrical stage show. He worked largely as a guitar player until a stray bullet injured his hand. A multi-instrumentalist, Dr. John continued to record and perform as a bass guitarist, drummer, and, most prominently, keyboard player.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN PHILLIPS co-founded and led the folk-rock group The Mamas and the Papas. Despite critical and popular success, the band was plagued by interpersonal strife, love triangles, and drug abuse. Phillips writes about the group's career and dissolution in his new autobiography, Papa John.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SPIKE LEE shot his first feature film, She's Gotta Have It, in twelve days with minimal funding and no permits. The movie is a success among critics and audiences alike. Lee, a young African American director, uses an all-black cast to tell the story of a woman in Brooklyn who dates three men, all of whom know about each other.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BOBBY MCFERRIN crafts unique, solo vocal music. He began developing his singing and compositional approach at the age of 27, after years working as a pianist.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GEORGE V. HIGGINS developed a lean, straightforward writing style while working as a journalist. He later became a Boston-based lawyer. He now write crime novels; his latest is called Imposters.

Interview with Czeslaw Milosz. October 6, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925409].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Polish poet CZESLAW MILOSZ grew up during the Russo-Polish War and came of age as a poet during World War II. He won the Nobel Prize for Literature and has lived in the United States since the 1960s. In addition to his formative years in Poland and Lithuania, he cites American novels and films as major influences.

Interview with Linda Ellerbee. October 7, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924209].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist LINDA ELLERBEE is an accomplished television journalist who recently left NBC over a salary dispute. In addition to her effective reporting, she has distinguished herself by downplaying her physical appearance dressing casually -- in sharp contrast with other women news anchors. She joins Fresh Air to discuss the role of women in broadcast journalism, the balancing of her career and personal life, and her new memoir, And So It Goes.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) French author DOMINIQUE LAPIERRE lived with his wife in a hovel in the notorious Calcutta slum Anand Nagar, which translates to The City of Joy. LaPierre's newest book, named after that community, documents the experiences of those who live in Anand Nagar--their compassion, work ethic, poverty, and exploitation. LaPierre credits his book with raising awareness of the slum, which has led to increased charitable giving and new government initiatives to bring services to its denizens.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Mezzo-soprano JOAN MORRIS and pianist and composer WILLIAM BOLCOM have been performing and recording American popular songs together for the past 14 years. They join Fresh Air for an in-studio concert.

Interview with Anne Rice. October 10, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503958].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ANNE RICE's popular vampire novels Interview with a Vampire and The Vampire Lestat have both been reprinted. In addition to her interest in the occult, she explores sexuality in her writing, especially in her erotic novels written under the pseudonym A. N. Roquelaure.
Interview with Deborah Eisenberg. October 14, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924838].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DEBORAH EISENBERG didn't begin writing until her 30s, while she made a living as a waitress. But even after publishing several short stories, she was reluctant to call herself a writer until she was able to make a living in the arts. Along with her own determination, she credits the support and encouragement of her partner, actor and writer Wallace Shawn, for her success.

Interview with Roger Ebert. October 14, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925405].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROGER EBERT has a new book called Roger Ebert's Movie Home Companion, which compiles his recent film criticism as well as considers the impact VCRs and the home video market has had on the film industry and audience viewing habits.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JOHN HOUSEMAN is an accomplished actor and producer known for his collaborations with Orson Welles and his theater and film productions of Shakespeare plays. His newest book, a collection of essays, is called Entertainers and the Entertained. (2.) DICK CAVETT is a television talk show host, comedian, and writer. He's had shows on ABC, public television, and cable television. He began his career writing jokes for Jack Parr and Johnny Carson. He is known for his wide range of guests and intellectual style. (REBROADCAST)
Interview with John Waters. October 20, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925789].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film director JOHN WATERS is known for films like Pink Flamingos and Polyester, which revel in bad taste. He's also made a name for himself as a writer. His new book Crackpot collects essays published in Rolling Stone, Vogue, and other magazines.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Black South African actor ZAKES MOKAE made a name for himself acting in the plays of his friend Athol Fugard, a white South African writer and fellow actor. Mokae considers the importance of Fugard's works in the context of South Africa's apartheid government.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Singer MARY WILSON writes about the rise and fall of the girl group The Supremes in her new book, Dreamgirl. Despite conflicts both among members and with the Motown Record Label, Wilson looks back fondly on her accomplishments with the group.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) PERCY HEATH picked up the bass at age 22 after serving as a fighter pilot in the Air Force. Without having had prior instruction on the instrument, he describes his first 10 years of gigs as "going to school." He played with a number of jazz greats before joining the Modern Jazz Quartet.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) GARRETT BROWN invented the Steadicam and the Skycam, and has worked as a cinematographer, cameraman, or director on over 200 films. A native Philadelphian, he has recently spearheaded an advertising campaign called "Philadelphia: Getting to Know Us," which highlights lesser-known parts of the city.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LYNN REDGRAVE, daughter of Sir Michael Redgrave and sister of Vanessa Redgrave, discusses the family profession -- acting.
| Description of show segment(s) |
| (1.) Humorist and actor SPALDING GRAY discusses his continuing quest for the perfect moment. |

| Description of show segment(s) |
| (1.) WILLIAM BROYLES, author of Brothers in Arms, discusses his recent return to Vietnam where he hoped to come to terms with the war memories that haunted him. |

| Description of show segment(s) |
| (1.) RALPH NADER's new book, The Big Boys, profiles the CEOs of top American corporations to better understand the culture of big business. Despite Nader's well-known consumer activism, most executives he contacted were eager to speak with him -- though, Nader says, their curiosity often won out over caution. |

| Description of show segment(s) |
| (1.) The "King of Rock 'n' Soul" SOLOMON BURKE discusses his life as a soul singer and preacher. |

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) WILLIAM KENNEDY is an Albany-based novelist and screenwriter whose work as a journalist informed his later work. He recently collaborated on a children's novel, Charlie Malarkey and the Belly-Button Machine, with his son BRENDAN KENNEDY. (2.) Readers may be surprised to learn that mystery novelist P.D. JAMES, known for her graphic descriptions of crime scenes, is a mild-mannered woman in her 60s who lives a quiet life in England. Her books focus on the psychological impact of murder, in sharp contrast with the plot-driven whodunits of writers like Agatha Christie.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer GAIL LUMET BUCKLEY remembers her childhood, when her mother Lena Horne was trying to establish herself as Hollywood's first glamorous black movie star.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JACKIE CAIN sings jazz and showtunes with her husband, pianist ROY KRAL. The duo perform regularly and have recorded over forty albums together. As popular music moves in what they consider a flashier direction, Cain and Kral more often look to film composers for new material. (REBROADCAST)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HELEN SUZMAN is a while anti-apartheid activist in South Africa. She joins Fresh Air to discuss how recent reforms by her home country's government have led to some desegregation. While she believes international pressure is needed to spur change, she believes sanctions imposed by the U.S. government will have little effect on South Africa's policies. (Interview by John Barth)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT BAUMAN, former Republican Congressman from Maryland, discusses how he was dragged out of the closet and forced to confront his homosexuality after he was busted for soliciting a male stripper.

Interview with Sumi Tonooka; Interview with Letty Cottin Pogrebin. December 2, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925457].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SUMI TONOOKA is a New York City-based jazz pianist and composer. Originally hailing from Philadelphia, she returns often to perform in her home city. She considers how gender and her biracial heritage affects how musicians and audiences receive her music. (2.) Ms. Magazine cofounder LETTY COTTIN POGREBIN has a new book called Among Friends, which explores the unique roles friendship plays in our lives (Interview by Marty Moss-Coane).

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Feminist journalist GLORIA STEINEM returns to Fresh Air to discuss her new book, Marilyn, about the late actress Marilyn Monroe. Steinem was initially disgusted by Monroe's portrayals of women and even walked out of a screening of Gentleman Prefer Blondes. Further research led Steinem to develop a new respect for Monroe's legacy, and a sympathy for how she was treated in the motion picture industry.

Interview with Cynthia Heimel. December 5, 1986. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925453].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) CYNTHIA HEIMEL started her career as a journalist with the goal of becoming a humorist. She writes columns and books featuring her wry perspectives on fashion, sex, and dating, including her newest, But Enough About You.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT MACNEIL discusses his life as a journalist working as a rewrite man, network news foreign correspondent, and host of the "MacNeil/Lehrer Newshour."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Singer PEGGY KING has become a regular at Fresh Air. She joins bassist DAVID FINCK and pianist and harpist CORKY HALE for an in-studio performance of Christmas music and more selections from Great American Songbook.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Reverend ANDREW GREELEY reflects on his life as a parish priest and a sociologist of the Roman Catholic Church.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SYDNEY BIDDLE BARROWS, the "Mayflower Madame" describes her double life as the owner of an exclusive New York call-girl service, and a descendent of one of America's first families.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Composer, pianist and singer DR. JOHN (MAC REBENNACK) discusses his New Orleans roots.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Avant garde comic book artist ART SPIEGELMAN discusses Maus, a serious comic about how his father survived the Nazi holocaust.

Interview with Bob Wilber; Review of Philip Glass's album "Akhnaten"; Interview with Kate Clinton; Commentary on the language of post-modernism. January 13, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924598].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jazz clarinetist and alto and soprano saxophonist Bob Wilber. Wilber is also a composer and arranger; He arranged the music for the film "The Cotton Club." And he's just completed his autobiography. It's scheduled for release later this spring and is titled "Music Was Not Enough." This Saturday, Wilber will lead a tribute at Carnegie Hall to the late Benny Goodman, the king of the jazz clarinet. It's the 50th anniversary of Goodman's famed concert there. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the new recording of Philip Glass's opera, "Akhnaten". The performance features Paul Esswood in the title role, and Dennis Russell Davies conducting the Stuttgart State Opera and chorus. INT.2: Kate Clinton. She's a stand-up comedian whose routines focus on sexual politics. REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses the language of post-modernism.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Grammy award winning jazz vocalist Bobby McFerrin discusses his unaccompanied vocal improvisations.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Henry Hampton is an African American documentary filmmaker. His latest project is the PBS documentary series "Eyes on the Prize," which preserves the history of the 1960s civil rights movements and examines the role of press coverage during that time.

Description of show segment(s)
(1.) Pat Conroy discusses how his novels The Great Santini, The Lords of Discipline, and The Prince of Tides parallel his life as the son of a strict Marine fighter pilot father.
Interview with Graham Chapman; Review of a new recording of George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue"; Interview with Bruce Davidson; Commentary on bad television shows. April 27, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924422].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comic Graham Chapman, a founding member of the Monty Python comedy troupe. A physician by training, Chapman is a gay rights activist, an author, lecturer and film producer. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis reviews a new recording of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" that restores the original instrumentation. INT.2: Photographer Bruce Davidson, whose latest work is a collection of photos of the people who commute on, or live in, the New York City subway system. REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli offers his crib sheet on how to avoid the tube's worst offerings.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Conductor Helmuth Rilling, one of the leading interpreters of Baroque music. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward makes a case for Bo Diddley as a folk poet. INT.2: Author Diane Johnson, whose first novel in eight years is based on her recollections as an American in Iran on the eve of the revolution. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews A Sport of Nature, the latest work by S. African writer Nadine Gordimer.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author and critic Joseph Horowitz, whose new book, Understanding Toscanini, examines the role of classical music in popular culture and explores how the media helped create the phenomena of the conductor as cultural icon. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new compact disc

Description of show segment(s)

Since its national debut in 1987, Fresh Air with Terry Gross has been a highly acclaimed and much adored weekday magazine among public radio listeners. Each week, nearly 4.8 million people turn to Peabody Award-winning host Terry Gross for insightful conversations with the leading voices in contemporary arts and issues. The renowned program reaches a global audience, with over 620 public radio stations broadcasting Fresh Air, and 3 million podcast downloads each week. Fresh Air has broken the mold of 'talk show' by weaving together superior journalism and intimate storytelling from modern-day intellectuals, politicians and artists alike. Through probing questions and careful research, Gross's interviews are lauded for revealing a fresh perspective on cultural icons and trends. Her thorough conversations are often complemented by commentary from well-known contributors. Fresh Air is produced at WHYY-FM in Philadelphia and broadcast nationally by NPR.

Interview with Sam Donaldson; Review of Henry Threadgill's album "You Know the Number"; Interview with Isabel Allende; Review of the television show "The Bombing of West Philly." May 4, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924514].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Sam Donaldson, the ABC White House correspondant whose frank, aggressive style of questioning makes him the terror of the Presidential news conference. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review the new album by saxophonist and composer Henry Threadgill. INT.2: Exiled Chilean novelist Isabel Allende talks about her second book, Of Love and Shadows. It's a love story set against the political repression of a Latin American dictatorship. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli reviews a "Frontline" documentary on how the Philadelphia Police Department handled the MOVE confrontation.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Sportscaster Tim McCarver. His insights, drawn from 21 years as a major league catcher, have won praise from fans and TV critics. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward takes a look at the erratic career of Louisiana swamp rocker Tommy McLain. INT.2: Anthropologist Robert Murphy talks about his book The Body Silent. It's an account of his life as a quadraplegic. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review The Fortune Teller, the first novel by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Marsha Norman.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Tipper Gore; Review of David Bowie's album "Never Let Me Down"; Interview with Nadine Gordimer; Commentary on film review television shows. May 7, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924611].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Tipper Gore, founder of the Parents Music Resource Center, which argues in favor of cautionary labeling on record albums with sexually explicit lyrics. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review "Never Let Me Down," the new album by David Bowie. INT.2: S. African novelist Nadine Gordimer talks about her latest book, A Sport of Nature, which follows a white women as her country ends Apartheid with revolution. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff discusses how television movie critics have made everyone a critic and warped the traditional role of movie criticism.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Interview with ERICA JONG (audio missing). REV.1: William Shimmel of the Tango Project proves the accordian is good for more than polkas. INT.2: Film director Stephen Frears talks about bringing the life, and death, of flamboyant British playwright Joe Orton to the screen. His film "Prick Up Your Ear" follows the critically-acclaimed "My Beautiful Laundrette." REV.2: Critic-At-Large Laurie Stone reviews two books that explore the mother-daughter relationship.

Interview with Peggy King and Mike Abene; Review of the album "The Birth of Rhapsody in Blue"; Interview with Isabel Allende; Review of the television show "Hill Street Blues." May 11, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924607].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Live concert with Peggy King in celebration of the 99th birthday of Irving Berlin. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis reviews a new recording of "Rhapsody in Blue" that restores the original instrumentation. (REBROADCAST FROM 04/27/1987) INT.1: Exiled Chilean novelist Isabel Allende talks about her second book, Of Love and Shadows. It's a love story set against the political repression of a Latin America dictatorship. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/04/1987) REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli bids farewell to "Hill Street Blues," the show whose influence can be seen all over TV.

Description of show segment(s)

Since its national debut in 1987, Fresh Air with Terry Gross has been a highly acclaimed and much adored weekday magazine among public radio listeners. Each week, nearly 4.8 million people turn to Peabody Award-winning host Terry Gross for insightful conversations with the leading voices in contemporary arts and issues. The renowned program reaches a global audience, with over 620 public radio stations broadcasting Fresh Air, and 3 million podcast downloads each week. Fresh Air has broken the mold of 'talk show' by weaving together superior journalism and intimate storytelling from modern-day intellectuals, politicians and artists alike. Through probing questions and careful research, Gross's interviews are lauded for revealing a fresh perspective on cultural icons and trends. Her thorough conversations are often complemented by commentary from well-known contributors. Fresh Air is produced at WHYY-FM in Philadelphia and broadcast nationally by NPR.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Former Minn. Senator and presidential aspirant Eugene McCarthy talks about his latest book, Up 'til Now. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz argues that Elliott Carter is one of the greatest modern composers. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/06/1987) INT.2: Anthropologist Robert Murphy, paralyzed from the chest down, talks about his book The Body Silent. It's a personal account of life as a quadripelegic. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/05/1987) REV.2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg looks at accents in movies, everything from ancient Rome to outer space. (REBROADCAST FROM 04/29/1987)

Description of show segment(s)

Since its national debut in 1987, Fresh Air with Terry Gross has been a highly acclaimed and much adored weekday magazine among public radio listeners. Each week, nearly 4.8 million people turn to Peabody Award-winning host Terry Gross for insightful conversations with the leading voices in contemporary arts and issues. The renowned program reaches a global audience, with over 620 public radio stations broadcasting Fresh Air, and 3 million podcast downloads each week. Fresh Air has broken the mold of 'talk show' by weaving together superior journalism and intimate storytelling from modern-day intellectuals, politicians and artists alike. Through probing questions and careful research, Gross's interviews are lauded for revealing a fresh perspective on cultural icons and trends. Her thorough conversations are often complemented by commentary from well-known contributors. Fresh Air is produced at WHYY-FM in Philadelphia and broadcast nationally by NPR.

Interview with Joseph Papp; Commentary on accordion music; Interview with Bill James; Review of the books "Anywhere but Here" by Mona Simpson and "Fierce Attachment" by Vivian Gornick. May 15, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924608].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York theater impresario Joe Papp. He's responsible for bringing out such hits as "A Chorus Line" and "Hair." All of his work has been done under the auspices of the non-profit New York Shakespeare Festival. REV.1: William Shimmel of the Tango Project proves the accordian is good for more than polkas. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/08/1987) INT.2: Baseball analyst Bill James talks about the hidden beauty of baseball statistics. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/06/1987) REV.2: Critic-At-Large
Laurie Stone reviews two books that explore the mother-daughter relationship. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/08/1987)

Interview with Sam Donaldson; Review of Henry Threadgill's album "You Know the Number"; Interview with Nadine Gordimer; Review of the television show "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd." May 18, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924149].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: ABC White House correspondent Sam Donaldson talks about his frank, aggressive style of questioning that makes him the terror of the presidential news conference. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/04/1987) REV.1: Jazz critic Francis Davis reviews the latest recording of saxophonist and composer Henry Threadgill. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/04/1987) INT.2: S. African novelist Nadine Gordimer talks about her latest book, A Sport of Nature, which follows a white woman as her country ends apartheid with revolution. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/07/1987) REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews the news NBC series "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd."

Interview with Tipper Gore; Commentary on Tommy McLain; Interview with Bruce Davidson; Review of Marsha Norman's novel "The Fortune Teller." May 19, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501250].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Tipper Gore, founder of the Parents Music Resource Center, argues for cautionary labeling on record albums with sexually explicit lyrics. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/07/1987) REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward takes a look at the erratic career of Louisiana swamp rocker Tommy McLain. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/05/1987) INT.2: Bruce Davidson spent a year underground photographing the New York City subway system. He emerges to talk about what he saw. (REBROADCAST FROM 04/27/1987) REV.2: Book critic John Leonard reviews The Fortune Teller, the first novel by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Marsha Norman. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/05/1987)

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jamie Wyeth. An established artist in his own right, he is also the son and grandson of two of America's most beloved painters, Andrew Wyeth and N.C. Wyeth. REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Never Let Me Down," the new David Bowie album. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/07/1987) INT.2: Horror writer Clive Barker, the man Stephen describes as the heir to Stephen King, talks about blood, entrails and overflowing toilets. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Ishtar," the new Warren Beatty and Dustin Hoffman collaboration.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Baseball player and sportscaster Tim McCarver shares his insights drawn from 21 years as a major league catcher and color commentator. His game calls have won praise from viewers and critics alike. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/05/1987) INT.2: Playwright John Guare. His award-winning play, "House of Blue Leaves," is coming to public television. REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the latest releases on home video. REV.2: Singer Ian Whitcomb takes us back on a trip to Tin Pan Alley. (audio missing)

Interview with Nicholas Proffitt; Review of Dizzy Gillespie's album "Dizziest"; Interview with Werner Klemperer; Commentary on bad television shows. May 25, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924606].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Nicholas Proffitt, author of Gardens of Stone, talks about his tour of duty with the Old Guard, the elite Army unit that oversees burials at Arlington National Cemetary. Gardens of Stone was just made into a movie by Francis Ford Coppola, starring James Cann and Anjelica Houston. (REBROADCAST FROM 04/30/1987) REV.1: Jazz critic Francis Davis reviews a reissue of classic Dizzy Gillespie. INT.2: Warner Klemperer, best known as Colonel Klink in the TV series "Hogan's Heroes," talks about his role with the road show of "Cabaret." REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli shares his sure fire ways to avoid TV's worst. (REBROADCAST FROM 04/27/1987)

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Diva Jessye Norman. In Europe, she's the soprano of the day. The adulation of her fans was the inspiration for the film "Diva." REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks back to the days when the Beatles were just another struggling Liverpool band. INT.2: Obituary writer Jim Nicholson. Instead of eulogizing the movers and shakers, he celebrates the lives and quirks of the working class. REV.2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Waltzing With A Dictator, former New York Times reporter Ray Bonner's book about America's relations with Ferdinand Marcos.

Interview with Kati Marton; Review of the album "Benita Valente sings Lieder of Schubert, Haydn and Mozart"; Interview with Julian Barnes; Commentary on the word "legends." May 27, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924605].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist Kati Marton talks about her semi-autobiographical novel based on her experiences as a reporter in Europe, and her childhood in Hungary where her parents were political prisoners. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the career of soprano Benita Valente. INT.2: Writer Julian Barnes talks about his new novel, Staring at the Sun. His first novel Flaubert's Parrot was praised by critics for its imaginative blending of fiction and biography. (REBROADCAST FROM 04/29/1987) REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg talks about the liberal use of the term "legends."

Interview with Michael Dorris and Louise Erdrich; Commentary on the Beatles; Interview with Jay Tarses; Review of the film "Beverly Hills Cop II." May 28, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501248].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Michael Dorris and Louise Erdrich, the husband-and-wife writing team. Their partnership has produced novels like Love Medicine, The Beet Queen and the new A Yellow Raft in Blue Water. REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker looks at the recent commercialization of the Beatles, from ads for wine coolers and Nike footwear to the new compact discs. INT.2: Jay Tarses. He's the creator of the new NBC series, "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd." REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the sequel to "Beverly Hills Cop."
Interview with Michael Doucet; Commentary on newly-discovered folk songs; Interview with Maxine Kumin; Review of the home video release of the television show "A Town Like Alice." May 29, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924190].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Fiddler Michael Doucet. As leader of the Cajun band Beausoleil, Doucet is one of the most influential forces in the revival of the music of French Louisiana. REV.1: Folk musician Michael Cooney shares two songs he picked up on his travels around the country. INT.2: Pulitzer Prize winning poet Maxine Kumin. Her new book reflects on life on her New England farm. REV.2: Ken Tucker will review the new home video release of "A Town Like Alice."

Interview with James Lardner; Review of Steve Kuhn's album "Mostly Ballads"; Interview with Tim Hunter; Review of the television show "Our World." June 1, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924369].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: James Lardner. His book, Fast Forward, looks at the VCR revolution and how the Japanese became the sole suppliers of a device invented in America. REV.1: Jazz critic Francis Davis reviews the work of pianist Steve Kuhn. INT.2: Film director Tim Hunter. His latest work is "River's Edge," starring Crispin Glover and Dennis Hopper. REV 2: Television critic David Bianculli on the response to the cancelled ABC program "Our World."

Interview with Allan Arkush; Commentary on rock music's influence in Nashville; Interview with Abigail Heyman; Review of Vladimir Voinovich's novel "Moscow 2042." June 2, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924371].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Television and film director Allan Arkush. His film credits include "Rock 'n' Roll High School" and "Get Crazy." His TV credits include "Bronx Zoo," "St. Elsewhere" and the "Moonlighting" episode where Madie and David finally consummate their on-off relationship. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks at the Nashville reaction to Rock. INT.2: Photographer Abigail Heyman talks about her unconventional approach to wedding photos. REV.2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Vladimir Voinovich's new novel, Moscow, 2,042.

Interview with Joyce Carol Oates; Review of John Harbison's album "Mirabai Songs; Variations"; Interview with Emo Phillips; Commentary on the foreign language skills of most Americans. June 3, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924370].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Joyce Carol Oates talks about her new book, On Boxing, and her career as one of America's most distinguished and prolific critics. REV.1: Classical music reviewer Lloyd Schwartz examines the work of Pulitzer Prize-winning composer John Harbison. INT.2: Comic Emo Phillips shares the neurotic, insecure post-adolescent persona that has gotten him spots on Letterman and HBO. REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses the minimal foreign language skills of most Americans.

Interview with Derek Taylor; Review of Jennifer Warnes' album "Famous Blue Raincoat"; Interview with Michael Crichton; Review of the film "River's Edge." June 4, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924373].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Jaki Byard; Interview with Homesick James; Interview with Alan Splet; Review of the plays "As Is" and "Les Liaisons Dangereuses." June 5, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924372].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert featuring pianist and composer Jaki Byard. He's an internationally recognized musician who has performed with Charles Mingus, Eric Dolphy and Jackie McClean. REV.1: Chicago bluesman Homesick James plays two songs on the slide guitar. INT.2: Alan Splet, the sound designer for the David Lynch films, "Blue Velvet," "The Elephant Man" and "Eraserhead." REV.2: Critic-At-Large Laurie Stone reviews two plays that explore sexual relations. The specter of AIDS colored her view.

Interview with Armistead Maupin; Review of the album "Tony Bennett Jazz"; Interview with Doug Marlette; Review of the television show "A Prairie Home Companion." June 8, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959922798].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Armistead Maupin. His satire of contemporary life runs as a daily serial in The San Francisco Examiner. These stories have been compiled in five books, the most recent of which is titled Significant Others. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis reviews the new album by singer Tony Bennett. INT.1: Political cartoonist Doug Marlette. He recently became editorial cartoonist for The Atlanta Constitution. His new book, There's No Business Like Soul Business, is about a less-than-holy evangelist, The Reverend Will B. Dunn. REV. 2: TV Critic David Bianculli reviews how Garrison Keillor's Prairie Home Companion translated to television.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Richard Gilman, writer and professor at the Yale School of Drama, will discuss his memoir, Faith, Sex and Mystery, which recounts his conversion from Judaism to Catholicism and then to atheism. REV.1:

Interview with John Nichols; Review of Carlo Maria Giulini's album "Don Carlos"; Interview with Cynthia Payne; Commentary on the "Star-Spangled Banner" and "The Pledge of Allegiance." June 10, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924367].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: John Nichols has written extensively about his home state of New Mexico in novels and in reflections on the land. His popular novel, The Milagro Beanfield War, has just been turned into a movie by Robert Redford. REV.1: Classical Music Reviewer Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new CD of Verdi's Don Carlo. INT.2: Cynthia Payne. The new film "Personal Services" is based on her life as a madam. She became a national heroine in England when she was acquitted on vice charges. REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses the wording of The Pledge of Allegiance in celebrating of Flag Day. (REBROADCAST FROM 05/06/1987)

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Benjamin and Carol Weir. Benjamin Weir was held hostage in Lebanon by the Islamic Jihad. He and his wife Carol had worked as missionaries in Lebanon for over 30 years. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews the work of Pianosaurus, a group that plays rock on toy instruments. INT.2: Ann Rule. She is a former policewoman who has worked as a crime writer for the past 19 years. She wrote The Stranger Beside Me, about mass murderer Ted Bundy. She has been a government advisor on serial ... killers. Her new book is called Small Sacrifices. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new film "The Untouchables."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Playwrights William Hoffman and Larry Kramer, who have explored how the AIDS crisis is affecting human lives in their plays As Is and The Normal Heart. REV.1: Folk Singer Michael Cooney shares two songs he recently learned in his travels around the country. INT.2: Jill Godmilow. She's the director of the new film "Waiting for the Moon." It's a fictional account of the relationship between Gertrude Stein and Alice B. Toklas. The film is an upcoming American Playhouse presentation on PBS. (REBROADCAST FROM 04/30/1987) REV. 2: Laurie Stone reviews the new play "Talk Radio," about a Cleveland shock jock.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: John Morris. He's collaborated with Mel Brooks for more than 20 years, composing the music for his films. Together, they've created classic numbers like "Springtime for Hitler," "Blazing Saddles," and the music for the new Star Wars takeoff "Spaceballs." REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis reviews a new album by alto saxophonist Frank Morgan. Morgan has been jailed for a variety of offenses on and off for 30 years. INT.2: Tom Boswell, a sportswriter and regular columnist for The Washington Post. His new book about golf is called Strokes of Genius. REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli looks at 20 years of "On the Road With Charles Kuralt."
Interview with Joe King Carrasco; Commentary on the rock band The Creation; Interview with John Adams; Review of Michael Crichton's novel "Sphere." June 16, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959922797].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Tex-Mex rocker Joe King Carrasco. The influence of his travels in Latin America can been heard throughout his music. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks at The Creation, a British Art School band from the late-60s. INT.2: Composer John Adams, whose new work is a 3-act grand opera called "Nixon in China" that will premere this October in Houston. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews Michael Crichton's new novel, Sphere.

Interview with Loudon Wainwright III; Review of an album of Arnold Schoenberg's violin and piano concertos; Interview with Mary Peacock; Commentary on the language of the hippy generation. June 17, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924677].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Loudon Wainwright III, who gained fame with his hit song "Dead Skunk in the Middle of the Road." He is one of the most caustic and humorous singer songwriters in folk music. He will also perform. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews new recordings of Arnold Schoenberg's Violin and Piano Concertos. The London Symphony performs with Pierre Boulez conducting. INT.2: Mary Peacock is the style editor of The Village Voice. She has just edited a book on shopping in New York City called The Village Voice Guide to Manhattan's Hottest Shopping Neighborhoods. REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg looks back at the language of the Summer of Love.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Former New York Times reporter Raymond Bonner, author of Waltzing with a Dictator, which outlines the history of the Marcos' rule in the Philippines and its relationship to the United States. REV.1:
Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Bring the Family", a new album by singer, songwriter John Hiatt. Hiatt has performed with Ry Cooder, Niki Love and Eric Clapton. INT.2: June Carter Cash has been a singer and musician most of her life. Her mother was Maybelle Carter of the original Carter Family. She has performed with her husband Johnny Cash. She's written a book about her life titled From the Heart. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Believers", with Martin Sheen and Helen Shaver.

Interview with Larry Adler; Commentary on tango music; Interview with Penn Jillette; Review of the home video release of "Hey Vern! It's My Family Album!" June 19, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924560].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Harmonica player Larry Adler, who has performed with entertainers such as Fred Astaire, George Gershwin, and Jack Benny. Adler moved to England after being blacklisted during the McCarthy hearings. REV.1: Accordianist William Shimmel plays two tangos. INT.2: magician and juggler Penn Gillette. As half of the comedy team of Penn and Teller, he's performed his macabre illusions on Saturday Night Live and Late Night with David Letterman. Penn and Teller's Off-Broadway act just moved to Broadway. REV.2: Ken Tucker reviews recent home video releases, among them "Hey Vern! It's My Family Album Comedy Special," a collection of the Vern and Ernest television commercials.

Interview with Jim Carroll; Review of Sun Ra's albums "Reflections in Blue" and "John Cage Meets Sun Ra"; Interview with Robert Bruns; Review of the television show "CBS Summer Playhouse." June 22, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924637].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jim Carroll. He began writing his first book, Basketball Diaries, when he was 13. In it, he recalls his life hanging out on New York City's streets and playing basketball. Since then, his writing has charted his life as a junkie, a Rock 'n Roller and a writer. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis reviews a new album by pianist Sun Ra. The album is titled "Reflections in Blue" and features Sun Ra's band, The Omniverse Arkestra. INT.2: Author Roger Bruns, author of two books on hobos. Bruns is an archivist at the National Interview with Frank Deford; Commentary on Wynonie Harris; Interview with Ornette Coleman;
www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924773].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Frank Deford, a senior writer for Sports Illustrated for the past 25 years and a regular contributor to National Public Radio's MORNING EDITION. He's also written several novels and an account of his daughter's losing battle with Cystic Fibrosis titled Alex, The Life of a Child. His new book is a collection of profiles from Sports Illustrated. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward has us listen to blues "shouter" Wynonie Harris. INT.2: Jazz composer, alto saxaphonist Ornette Coleman. Arguably the most important
figure in jazz since Charlie Parker, Coleman is the idiom's pioneer musician and composer. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews Eileen Simpson's book Orphans, Real and Imaginary. The book is part memoir, part social history. Simpson's earlier work was a memoir of her life with the poet John Berryman.

- Page 301 -
new production of "Pygmalion," George Bernard Shaw's play on diction and the classes. The production stars Peter O'Toole as Henry Higgins.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jazz drummer and composer Max Roach. Roach has been at the forefront of contemporary jazz for the past 30 years. During the Civil Rights movement, Roach was composing some of jazz' strongest political statements. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Tango in the Night," the first Fleetwood Mac album in five years. INT.2: Character actor Robert Loggia. His latest role is in "The Believers." Loggia is typical of the Hollywood character actor you've seen a hundred times but whose name you can't place. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Roxanne," the new Steve Martin movie that co-stars Daryl Hannah.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Paul Burlison and D.J. Fontana, members of the band The Sun Rhythm Section. D.J. Fontana was the drummer on Elvis Presley's early hits. Burlison played guitar with Johnny Burnette. REV.1: Guitarist Marty Grosz plays two Fats Waller tunes. INT.2: Writer James Crumley, whose tough detective fiction has earned him comparisons with Dashiell Hammett, Raymond Chandler and Ross MacDonald. REV.2: Critic-At-Large Laurie Stone reviews two works on race relations, the movie "Hollywood Shuffle" and the play "The Colored Museum."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet Robert Bly. In the 60s, his poems took on a political tone and he founded American Poets Against the War. When his volume, The Light Around The Body, won the National Book Award in 1972, he turned the prize money over to a draft resisters group. Since then, his poems have explored the bonds between men, particularly between fathers and sons. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis reviews a new compact disc of British violinist Nigel Kennedy's reinterpretation of the Duke Ellington composition "Black," from the work "Black, Brown and Beige." INT.2: Journalist Pete Hamill, columnist for the Village Voice. In 1986, Hamill left the Voice to become editor of one of Mexico City's largest English language daily newspapers. After four months, he left because of what he claims was censorship on the part of the paper's owner. REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The Life and Loves of a She-Devil," the British mini-series airing on the Arts & Entertainment Cable network.

Interview with Nien Cheng; Commentary on the rock band The Remains; Interview with Carl Finch; Review of the books "Sartre June 30, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924680].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Nien Cheng. A former executive for Shell Oil in Beijing, Cheng was imprisoned and tortured for six and-a-half years during the Cultural Revolution. Her book, Life and Death in Shanghai, recounts her experience and the turmoil that gripped China from 1966 to 1976. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles The Remains, a Boston-based rock group he says combined the virtuosity of folk with the toughness of rock and roll. INT.2: Carl Finch, founder of Brave Combo, a polka group that uses the polka beat to drive all their music, be it a rendition of "Purple Haze" or a traditional polka standard. They have a new album out called "Polkatharsis." REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews two biographies of the French philosopher John Paul Sarte.
Interview with Joan Baez; Review of John Gibbons' album "A Bach Recital"; Interview with Jody Pinto; Commentary on illiteracy. July 1, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924727].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Folk singer Joan Baez. A leading figure in the heyday of the Greenwich Village folk scene, Baez has continued to use her music in the service of various political causes, from farm labor organizing to the issue of U.S. foreign policy. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews an album of Bach harpsichord compositions performed by John Gibbons. INT.2: Artist and designer Jody Pinto. Her medium is large, conceptual sculptures that have a practical application. Her latest work is the 59-foot "Fingerspan," a bridge in Philadelphia's Fairmount Park. REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will shed new light on the problem of illiteracy.

Interview with Michael Bamberger; Review of Whitney Houston's album "Whitney"; Interview with Graham Chapman; Review of the film "Full Metal Jacket." July 2, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924908].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Sportswriter Michael Bamberger. His book, The Green Road Home, is an account of his life on the pro golf tour as a caddy. James Reston of The New York Times said that Bamberger explains "that the modern caddie is not only a bearer of the burden and a reader of the greens, but also an amateur psychiatrist." REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Whitney," the second album by pop singer Whitney Houston. INT.2: Comic Graham Chapman. He was the straight man in the Monty Python troupe who would come in and break up the skits. A physician by training, he is a writer and activist for gay rights. (REBROADCAST FROM 04/27/1987) REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Full Metal Jacket," Stanley Kubrick's long-awaited film about the Vietnam War.
Interview with Sam Charters; Commentary on rhythm guitar; Obituary for Michael Bennett; Review of the home video releases of "The Palm Beach Story" and "The Miracle of Morgan Creek." July 3, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924909].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist and blues record producer Sam Charters. During the 50s, Charter traveled the South making field recordings of neglected and previously unknown musicians and singers. His latest novel, Louisiana Black, is about a middle aged black man who has lost touch with his rural southern roots.

REV.1: Guitarist Marty Grosz will play two tunes featuring the rhythm guitar: "Take Me to That Land of Jazz," and "Changes." INT.2: Michael Bennett, creator of Broadway's longest running show A Chorus Line, and choreographer/director of the recent Broadway hit Dreamgirls, died on July 2nd. Fresh Air revisits his conversation with Terry Gross (REBROADCAST from 1985). REV.2: Ken Tucker will review the home video release of "The Palm Beach Story" and "The Miracle of Morgan Creek," featuring Preston Sturgess.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Joyce Maynard writes the nationally syndicated column "Domestic Affairs," which chronicles her life as a wife and mother of three in New Hampshire. Maynard has written several novels and was a reporter for CBS News and The New York Times. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis reviews "3 Windows," a new album featuring The Modern Jazz Quartet and The New York Chamber Symphony. INT.2: Irwin Blye, private eye. He's a master at penetrating bureaucracies, both private and governmental. REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Werewolf," a new series on the Fox Network, and also talks about how the fledgling "fourth network" is faring.
Interview with David Horowitz and Peter Collier; Commentary on the rock band The Great Society; Interview with Susan Cheever; Review of S.J. Perelman's book "Don't Tread on Me." July 7, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924906].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: David Horowitz and Peter Collier were two of the leading political theorists of the New Left in the 60s as editors of Ramparts magazine. Since then, both have undergone political conversions to neo-conservatism. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Great Society, the first band that Grace Slick sang with. INT.2: Writer Susan Cheever, daughter of the famed American author John Cheever. Her memoir about her father, Home Before Dark, was nominated for the National Book Critics Circle Award in 1984. Her latest effort is a novel titled Doctors & Women. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews Don't Tread on Me: The Selected Letters of S.J. Perelman.

Interview with Leonard Slatkin; Review of new recordings of Beethoven symphonies by Christopher Hogwood and Roger Norrington; Interview with Kennedy Fraser; Commentary on corporate language. July 8, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924907].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Leonard Slatkin, music director of the St. Louis Symphony. He has conducted many of the world's major orchestras and opera companies. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review two recordings of Beethoven's symphony cycles played on original instruments. Christopher Hogwood and Roger Norrington are the conductors. INT.2: Kennedy Fraser, style and fashion writer for The New Yorker. Her new book is titled Scenes from the Fashionable World. REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss the nuances of corporate language.
Interview with Eileen Simpson; Review of the Grateful Dead's album "In the Dark"; Interview with Dave Brody; Review of the film "Innerspace." July 9, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501256].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer Eileen Simpson. Her latest work, Orphans: Real and Imaginary, examines her childhood as an orphan. It is part memoir, part social history. Her earlier work was a memoir of her life with the poet John Berryman. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "In the Dark," the first album by the Grateful Dead in seven years. INT.2: Entomologist Dave Brody, curator of the entomology department of the Museum of Natural History in New York. Brody was the insect consultant for films like "Creepshow" and "The Believers." REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "Innerspace," the new Steven Spielberg production that stars Dennis Quaid, Martin Short and Meg Ryan. Joe Dante is the director.

Interview with Paul Hendrickson; Commentary on Irish ballads; Interview with Merrill Markoe; Review of the summer movie season. July 10, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501258].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Paul Hendrickson. He spent six years of his life preparing for the priesthood, but left six weeks before he took his vows. Now a reporter for the Washington Post, he has written an account of his experiences titled Seminary. REV.1: Irish balladeer Mick Moloney will play several tunes from his native country. INT.2: Merrill Markoe, former head writer for "Late Night With David Letterman." She and comedian Harry Shearer have written and produced an upcoming HBO comedy special. REV.2: Laurie Stone will discuss the widely varying quality of several of this summer's films.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: James Miller. His new book, Democracy in the Streets, examines the politics of the student movements of the 60s. REV.1: Jazz critic Francis Davis will review "Digital Duke," the new album featuring the Ellington band under the direction of Mercer Ellington. The album is recorded in 32-track digital sound. INT.2: Alice Kahn. Essayist, humorist, and originator of the term 'Yuppie.' Her new collection of essays is titled My Life as a Gal. REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli will review coverage of the testimony of Lt. Col. Oliver North.

Interview with Ralph Allen; Commentary on Sonny Burgess; Interview with Tony Mendoza; Review of Wilfrid Sheed's novel "Boys of Winter." July 14, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924910].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Ralph Allen, creator of the play "Sugarbabies" and an expert on Burlesque. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Sonny Burgess. His Rockabilly style was the immediate precursor of southern flavored Rock. INT.2: Photographer Tony Mendoza. His new book Stories, is a quirky autobiographical portrait of his daily routine. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review Boys of Winter, the new work by Wilfrid Sheed.

Interview with Liz Carpenter; Review of Shura Cherkassky's album "Liszt, Tchaikovsky"; Interview with Luis Valdez and Daniel Valdez; Commentary on making English the United States' official language. July 15, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924969].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author and journalist Liz Carpenter. She was press secretary for Lady Bird Johnson and also worked in the Ford and Carter administrations. Carpenter broke new ground for women journalists in the 40s. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review a new album featuring the pianist Shura Cherkaski. INT.2: Brothers Luis and Daniel Valdez, respectively, the director and producer of the new movie "La Bamba." REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss efforts in California and around the country to have English ratified as the official language.

Interview with Oliver Sacks; Commentary on Brazilian music; Interview with Eil Reed; Review of the instructional video "So You Want to Be a Gambler! Blackjack I." July 15, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501335].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Neurologist and writer OLIVER SACKS. Sacks works in the back wards of charity hospitals and asylums with victims of of sleeping sickness. His first book, Awakenings, is the story of his experiences with these patients and the experimental drug L-dopa, that he administered to these patients in an effort to pull them out of their time warp. His book of case studies, The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat, has been made into a music theater production. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast October 1, 1987.) REV.1: Brazilian guitarist ORLANDO HADDAD performs two songs, one by composer ANTONIO CARLOS JOBIM. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on October 9, 1987.) INT.2: Photojournalist ELI REED. A collection of his photos showing the effects of war on the city of Beirut has just been published. The book is titled Beirut, City of Regrets. Reed's photos chart how the once continental "charmed city" on the Mediterranean has become a place of "cruelty and hatred." Reed has won an Overseas Press Club award for his work on Central America. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews several recent releases for home video, including the instructional cassette "So You Want to Be a Gambler."

Interview with Susannah McCorkle, Ben Aronov and Chip Jackson; Commentary on Nueva Cancio?n; Interview with Paul Taylor; Review of the home video release of "Crimes of the Heart." July 17, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501259].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert featuring American pop ballads performed by jazz vocalist Susannah McCorkle. REV.1: Puerto Rican singer, songwriter Roy Brown will play three of his works that set to music the poems of Latin America's pre-eminent poets. Brown is a leader in the New Latin Song Movement. INT.2:
Modern dance choreographer Paul Taylor. REV.2: Ken Tucker will review several home video releases, including Crimes of the Heart.

Interview with William Atwood; Review of Wire's album "The Ideal Copy"; Interview with Luis Valdez; Review of the film "RoboCop." July 17, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501257].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: William Attwood, a former reporter for The New York Herald Tribune and Colliers, he was later publisher of Newsday. After that, he was appointed ambassador to Guinea and Kenya. He has written an account of his experiences during The Cold War. It's titled The Twilight Struggle. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "The Ideal Copy," a new album by the British group Wire. INT.2: Luis Valdez, writer and director of the new movie "La Bamba," and author of the play "Zoot Suit." Valdez grew up in a migrant farmer family and has been active in organizing efforts of the United Farm Workers Union. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "RoboCop," the futuristic thriller directed by Paul Verhoeven. It stars Peter Weller and Nancy Allen.

Interview with John Zorn; Review of Ornette Coleman's album "In All Languages"; Interview with John Harrison and Rosemary Harrison; Review of the television show "Max Headroom." July 20, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924911].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New music composer and reed player John Zorn. His latest album reinterprets the work of filmscore composer Ennio Morricone, who is best known for his work on Sergio Leone's spaghetti westerns like "The Good, The Bad and the Ugly." REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review saxophonist and composer Ornette's Coleman's latest album, "In All Languages." INT.2: Pulitzer-Prize winning composer John Harbison and his wife, violinist Rosemary Harbison. He discusses the inspirations for his compositions, many written expressly for his wife. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli will preview the latest incarnation of "Max Headroom" on the Cinemax cable channel.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Flugelhorn and trumpet player Art Farmer. His jazz career has spanned three decades. (REBROADCAST FROM 09/12/1986) REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Love, one of the wilder of the San Francisco groups playing during the summer of 1967. INT.2: Humorist Howard Mohr. He was a writer for Garrison Keillor's Prairie Home Companion. He'll instruct us in how to talk "Minnesotan." REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review Songlines, Bruce Chatwin's non-fiction work on Australia.

Interview with Gloria Steinem; Review of Peter Sellar's production of "Don Giovanni"; Interview with Bob Dorough; Commentary on linguists. July 22, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924751].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Gloria Steinem, a leader of the feminist movement, and founder of Ms Magazine. She'll assess the progress of feminism since 1972. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review Peter Sellar's new production of Mozart's "Don Giovanni" at the PepsiCo Summerfare festival in Purchase, New York. INT.2: Jazz pianist and singer Bob Dorough. A top BeBop performer in New York, he later composed for Miles Davis. Since then, he's also composed for the children's show, "Schoolhouse Rock." REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss just what it is that linguists do.

Interview with John Barth; Review of Ted Hawkins' album "Happy Hour"; Interview with Scott Turow; Review of the film "La Bamba." July 23, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924912].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist John Barth, one of the most inventive of American writers. His works include The Floating Opera, The Sot-Weed Factor and Giles Goat-Boy. His new novel, set on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, is titled The Tidewater Tales. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Happy Hour," the newest album by pop and blues musician Ted Hawkins. INT.2: Writer and Lawyer Scott Turow. His account of his first year at Harvard Law School, One L, was a bestseller. His new work, a novel called Presumed Innocent, is at the top of the New York Times' Best Seller List. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "La Bamba," based on the life of singer and heartthrob Richie Valens.

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Leonard Feather, one of America's top jazz critics. REV.1: Rhythm guitarist Marty Grosz stops by to play a couple of tunes he learned when just starting out. INT.2: Journalist and novelist John Krich. He is presently finishing a book about baseball in Latin America. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone will examine the Dr. Ruth phenomenon.

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Actress Carroll Baker. Her big splash came with "Baby Doll," the provocative 1956 film in which she portrayed a thumb-sucking nymphet. She left Hollywood in 1967 for a career in Europe. She's written several books, the latest a novel titled Roman Tale. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review trombonist Steve Turre's new album "Viewpoints." INT.2: Paul Verhoeven, director of the critically acclaimed "Robocop," the futuristic cop thriller starring Peter Weller and Nancy Allen. The film has been described as High Tech meeting "High Noon." REV.2: Terry Gross talks with Television Critic David Bianculli, who's out in California for the TV Critics Press Tour that previews the Fall schedule.
Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Junius Irving Scales, the only American who spent time in prison for being a communist under the provisions of the Smith Act of 1940. Throughout his life in the South, Scales has fought against racism and worked to extend democratic rights to minorities and the poor. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles singer Etta James. INT.2: John and Marina Bear, authors of a book titled How To Repair Food. The book tells you how to undo kitchen disasters from burned soup to fallen cakes and overcooked cauliflower. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review Gunter Grass's new novel, The Rat.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Mary King, former communications coordinator for the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) during the height of the Civil Rights movement. Her new book, Freedom Song, recounts these years and reflects on the significance of the era. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review a collection of classic old recordings from The Music and Arts Programs of America series, including a 1961 performance of Bruckner's 6th Symphony, with Otto Klemperer conducting. INT.2: Singer Frankie Laine. He gained TV immortality by singing the theme of "Rawhide." Other credits include the theme to the Mel Brooks film "Blazing Saddles." REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss the quirky linguistic characteristics of headlines, at home and abroad, and why it's impossible for foreigners to decipher American headlines.
Interview with Wes Craven; Review of Rosanne Cash's album "King's Record Shop"; Interview with Alice McDermott; Review of the film "Living Daylights." July 30, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923985].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Wes Craven, one of the foremost directors of horror films. His credits include "Last House on the Left," "The Hills Have Eyes," "Nightmare on Elm Street," and "Swamp Thing." REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews Rosanne's Cash's new album "King's Record Shop." INT.2: Alice McDermott. Her second novel, That Night, has just been published to critical praise. It depicts the clash of ravenous young love and a secure, placid, suburban New York upbringing. Her debut novel was titled The Bigamist's Daughter. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review the new James Bond film "Living Daylights."

Interview with Erica Jong; Commentary on music from the 1920s; Interview with Adrienne Kennedy; Review of the home video release of "The Masters of Comic Book Art." July 31, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923984].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Erica Jong, best known for her first novel Fear of Flying. Her latest work - Serenissima - is a novel set in Venice that follows a movie star as she travels between Shakespeare's time and the modern day. REV.1: Vocalist Jane Voss and pianist Hoyle Osbourn stop by to perform a couple of old songs that continue to play well. INT.2: Playright Adrienne Kennedy, who has just written a memoir titled People who Led to My Plays. She won an Obie in 1964 for her play "Funny House of a Negro," and was active in the beginnings of Off-Broadway. REV.2: Ken Tucker will review recent home video releases, among them "The Masters of Comic Book Art."
Interview with Lynn Harrell; Review of the box set "The Smithsonian Collection of Classic Jazz"; Interview with John Kelleher; Review of the television shows "Remembering the Bomb" and "Hellfire." August 3, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924004].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Cellist Lynn Harrell. Harrell is probably the preeminent cellist now touring. His schedule takes him to 115 concert halls a year. His ensemble work with other soloists like the pianists Emmanuel Ax and Murray Perahia has earned him the acclaim of critics and peers. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review a Smithsonian Collection of classic jazz recordings. The 7-record set is an update an earlier release and features performances by Louis Armstrong, Charlie Parker, Lester Young and The World Saxophone Quartet. INT.2: John Kelleher, producer and co-writer of the new Irish film "Eat the Peach," about two brazen motorcyclists who ride the `Wall of Death.' REV.2: Pat Aufderheide reviews "Hellfire," a PBS production that profiles survivors of the twin nuclear attacks against the Japanese that closed the Second World War. NOTE: Pat Aufderheide is subbing for Fresh Air's regular television critic, David Bianculli, who is attending the Fall Television Critics Press Tour in Los Angeles. Aufderheide reviews film for "In These Times," a weekly political affairs journal.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Rock musician Todd Rundgren will discuss his prolific recording career, his work as a record producer, his recent explorations into video and computer graphics, and his soundtrack composing. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward discusses how the record industry tried to market some of the poorer quality acts playing in San Francisco 20 years ago this Summer. INT.2: Sarah Paretsky, one of the top women detective writers, whose books have chronicled the exploits of V.I. Warshawski, one of the few women detectives. Paretsky's new novel is titled Bitter Medicine. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review Robert Stuart Nathan's new novel, The White Tiger, a mystery set in Beijing.
Interview with Dennis Franz; Review of an album of Hector Berlioz compositions called "Works"; Interview with Eve Arnold; Commentary on the usage of nouns as verbs. August 5, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923988].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Dennis Franz, who played Norman Buntz in "Hill Street Blues." He stars in his own TV series this Fall, "Beverly Hills Buntz." REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review a new RCA reissue of Arturo Toscanini conducting works by Hector Berlioz. INT.2: Photographer Eve Arnold. Her new collection of photos covers the last 10 years of Marilyn Monroe's life. Many of the photos have never been dislayed before. REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss how the noun impact is sliding inexorably into usage as a verb.

Interview with Molly Yard; Review of Kid Creole and the Coconuts' album "I, Too, Have Seen the Woods"; Interview with Tom Clancy; Review of the film "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." August 6, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501181].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Allan Arkush; Commentary on classic love songs; Interview with Eric Bogosian; Review of the play "Psycho Beach Party." August 7, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924005].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Television and film director Allan Arkush. His film credits include "Rock 'n' Roll High School" and "Get Crazy." His TV credits include "Bronx Zoo," "St. Elsewhere" and the "Moonlighting" episode where Madie and David finally consummate their on-off relationship. (REBROADCAST FROM 06/02/1987) REV.1: Folk singer Michael Cooney plays a few old love songs. INT.2: Performance artist Eric Bogosian, star and writer of the hit Off-Broadway play "Talk Radio." REV.2: Critic-At-Large Laurie Stone on drag star Charles Busch and his Off-Broadway play "Psycho Beach Party."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Tracey Ullman, who stars in her own television show on the Fox Network. Ullman has recorded hit records in her native England and has appeared in the movies "Plenty" and "Give My Regards to Broadstreet." REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review an album by Big Joe Turner, the onetime Kansas City barkeep whose booming delivery straddled jazz and pop. INT.2: H.F. Saint, author of Memoirs of an Invisible Man, his first novel. It's about a mediocre stock analyst who runs afoul of an experiment, becomes invisible, and slips into the offices of corporate raiders to learn of their takeover plans. REV.2: David Marc will review the current popularity of 50s sitcom reruns, particularly "Father Knows Best."

Interview with Martin Garbus; Commentary on Elvis Presley's country music influences; Interview with Jenny Holzer; Review of Bruce Duffy's novel "The World as I Know It." August 11, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924458].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Lawyer Martin Garbus, who has written of serving as a witness at trials in South Africa, Chile and the Soviet Union. Garbus is known for his work on First Amendment issues. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward listens back to the first recording session of Elvis Presley, which mixed Blues with Country twang. INT.2: Artist Jenny Holzer, who takes her `sculptures' into public places through electronic display signs on which she broadcasts snippets of text, which she calls `truisms.' REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review Bruce Duffy's novel "The World As I Know It."
Interview with Bill Raymond; Review of the Kronos Quartet's album "White Man Sleeps"; Interview with Sophie Hayden; Commentary on Italian-dubbed American movies. August 12, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924584].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Bill Raymond, a member of the theater group Mabou Mines. Raymond won an Obie for his play "Cold Harbor," based on the memoirs of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review the new album by the avant-garde chamber group The Kronos Quartet. The album is titled "White Man Sleeps." INT.2: Sophie Hayden, actress and world champion baton twiller. She brought both her skills together in Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors." REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss how he learned Italian by watching dubs of American movies while living in Rome.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Carrie Fisher, who has recently written a first novel, a thinly-veiled autobiography, titled "Postcards From the Edge." Fisher is the daughter of Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds. She played Princess Leia in the "Star Wars" trilogy. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review the recent works of two of Country's best and brightest, Dwight Yoakum and Randy Travis. INT.2: Matt Neuman, head writer for "Not Necessarily The News." He was one of the original writers for "Saturday Night Live," and later wrote for Lily Tomlin and Bob and Ray. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review the new Japanese film, "Tampopo."
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Interview with Bob Goldthwait; Interview with Marty Grosz; Interview with Ted Spagna; Review of the films "Double Indemnity" and "Naked Spur." August 14, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457641].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comedian Bob Goldthwait, who has appeared in the "Police Academy" movies and the Whoopi Goldberg film "Burglar." Goldthwait recently completed an HBO special and frequently appears on MTV. REV.1: Rhythm guitarist Marty Grosz will play two tunes, including the Franny Brice hit from the 20s, "The Rose of Washington Square." INT.2: Photographer Ted Spagna. His most recent project has been photographing people and animals while asleep. It's attracted the interested of sleep researchers who see links that were not previously apparent. REV.2: Critic Ken Tucker will review two old movies just released for home video: "Double Indemnity," and "Naked Spur."

Interview with Cy Coleman; Review of Sphere's album "Four for All"; Interview with Rebecca Wells; Review of the fall television season. August 17, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924531].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Composer Cy Coleman, who has written some of popular music's most memorable songs, such as "Hey, Look Me Over," "If They Could See Me Now," "Big Spender," and "Witchcraft." He's written the scores for Broadway hits like "Barnum," "Sweet Charity," and "On the Twentieth Century." REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review "Four for All," the new album by the quartet Sphere. INT.2: Actress Rebecca Wells, now touring with her one-woman play "Splitting Hairs," in which she plays a talkative Southern beautician, Loretta Sue Endless. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli, back from the Fall Television Critics Press Tour in Los Angeles, will review the shows debuting on the three networks this fall.
Interview with Avery Corman; Commentary on African American music from 1960s Detroit; Interview with John Peck; Review of Gabriel Garcia Marquez's book "Clandestine in Chile." August 18, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924533].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author Avery Corman. He wrote the novels Oh God and Kramer vs. Kramer, both of which were developed into successful movies. His new novel, 50, is about a divorced sportswriter who is fearfully looking toward his 50th birthday. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks back at the 'other Motown,' the black music from Detroit in the early 60s that wasn't part of the Motown sound. This subgenre includes hits like "Cool Jerk," and "Higher and Higher." INT.2: John Peck, creator of "Dr. Oldie," the long-running comic strip that fuses rock 'n roll criticism with 50s television sensibilities. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review "Clandestine in Chile: The Adventures of Miguel Lattin," the new non-fiction work by Nobel Prize-winner Gabriel Garcia Marquez.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer, physician Perri Klass. Her new book, A Not An Entirely Benign Procedure, is about her experiences in Harvard's medical school. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review the new Chandos Recording of Elgar's "Miniatures" featuring a performance by oboist Leon Gooseins. INT.2: Actress Clarice Taylor. She's played Cliff Huxtable's mother on "The Bill Cosby Show." She's now starring in an Off-Broadway play on the life of comedienne Moms Mabley. REV.2: Humorist Alice Kahn on the fadishness of anatomical panaceas, like the G-Spot.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Physicist James Trefil. His new book, Meditations At Sunset, explains the wonders of the physical world in terms the layman can comprehend. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review "Sentimental Hygiene," the new album by rock rebel Warren Zevon. INT.2: Hugh Wilson, creator, writer, director, executive producer of `Frank's Place," a new CBS show debuting this fall. Wilson, who wrote the material for `WKRP," is returning to television after directing the feature films `Police Academy," and `Burglar." REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "No Way Out," the Washington thriller starring Gene Hackman and Kevin Costner.

Interview with Barbara Cook; Commentary on Cole Porter's music; Interview with Dick Dale; Commentary on Judy Tenuta. August 21, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924461].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer Barbara Cook, who composer Stephen Sondheim described as "one of the two or three finest singers of song." She played the lead female roles in the Broadway musicals "The Music Man" "Plain and Fancy" and "Candide." When Broadway musicals ebbed, she became a star of the cabaret circuit. REV.1: Michael Cooney will offer the folk version of two Cole Porter classics. INT.2: Dick Dale, king of the surf guitar. He makes an appearance in "Back to The Beach," the new Annette Funicello, Frankie Avalon movie. REV.2: Critic-At-Large Laurie Stone will discuss the two sides of comic Judy Tenuta.
Interview with Alexander Slepak; Review of John Carter's album "Dance of the Love Ghost"; Interview with Dion; Review of the television show "Showtime, Coast to Coast." August 24, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501021].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Soviet emigre Alexander Slepak. His parents were sent into exile in the Soviet Union and have repeatedly been denied permission to leave because of their efforts to help fellow Soviet Jews emigrate to Israel. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review a new album by the composer and clarinetist John Carter. The album, "Dance of the Love Ghost," is the last installment of a trilogy of meditations on slavery. INT.2: Singer Dion. In the 60s, he was the leader of Dion and Belmonts. They performed such hits as "Runaround Sue" and "The Wanderer." In recent years, he's turned to Christian music. REV.2: TV Critic David Bianculli will review a new cable variety show called "Showtime, Coast to Coast."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Artist Red Grooms. His current show at New York's Whitney Museum features his colorful, lively three-dimensional sculptures. (REBROADCAST; Best of Fresh Air episode aired 05/20/1986) REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks at the career of Steve Cropper, the guitarist responsible for one of the greatest riffs in rock, the intro to Sam and Dave's "Soul Man." INT.2: Poet Mark Halliday, whose first volume is titled Little Star. Halliday is an English professor at the University of Pennsylvania. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review Cloak & Gown, the new book by Robin W. Winks on Yale graduates and instructors' involvement with the OSS, the Office of Strategic Services and the CIA.
Interview with Jay Stevens; Review of Virginia Eskin's album "Pickles and Peppers"; Interview with Phil Tippett; Commentary on Le Grand Larousse. August 26, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501019].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jay Stevens, whose new book, Storming Heaven, charts the forty-year history of the hallucinogen LSD. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review "Pickles and Peppers," an album of rags written by women and performed by pianist Virginia Eskin. INT.2: Phil Tippett, a stop-motion animator. He created the villainous robot, ED-209, in the Summer's hit movie "Robocop." Tippit also created the Ewacs monsters featured in "The Empire Strikes Back." REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss the love the French have for their language, as seen in an exhibit of French dictionairies at a Paris museum.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Folk Singer Roy Bookbinder. His updated interpretations of old blues and popular music from the 20s and 30s have made him a hit on the folk circuit. Bookbinder will talk of his vagabound life and play some tunes. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review "Trouble Over Here, Trouble Over There," the new album by the go-go group Trouble Funk. INT.2: Jazz saxophonist Frank Morgan. He spent 25 years in prison but is now back in music and recording again. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "The Big Easy," starring Dennis Quaid and Ellen Barkin.
Interview with Jehan Sadat; Interview with Jane Voss and Hoyle Osborne; Interview with Steve Lacy; Commentary on record collecting. August 28, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972883876].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jehan Sadat, wife of the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. REV.1: Singer Jane Voss and pianist Hoyle Osborne will perform two original compositions. INT.2: Soprano saxophonist Steve Lacy. He is midway through a rare U.S. tour. He now lives in Paris. His spans traditional jazz, including compositions by Thelonius Monk and more contemporary composers. REV.2: Humorist Al Gingold describes the sensation of sorting through a sprawling record collection with a loved one.

Interview with Ronnie Spector; Review of Sonny Greenwich's album "Bird of Paradise"; Interview with Benita Valente; Review of the television show "Alive From Off Center." August 31, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924462].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Ronnie Spector, who in the 60s was a member of the girl group The Ronettes. She left the music business for several years, but she has now recorded a new album. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review "Bird of Paradise," the new album by Canadian guitarist Sonny Greenwich. INT.2: Soprano Benita Valente, one of the foremost interpreters of leider, oratorio and opera. Long a favorite of the critics, she has just started gaining a popular following. REV.2: TV Critic David Bianculli will review the PBS series "Alive From Off Center" featuring Choreographer Meredith Monk in a production of "Ellis Island."

Interview with Francine Du Plessix Gray; Commentary on Cal-Mex music; Interview with Emile Ardolino; Review of Robert Coover's novel "Gloomy Gus of the Chicago Bears." September 1, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924529].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Francine Du Plessix Gray, journalist and novelist. She has written extensively about women and fashion. Her new book is a collection of essays that cover religion, the idea of home and the current moral climate. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward will look at Cal-Mex music - the sound from East L.A. - and the legacy of "La Bamba." INT.2: Film director Emile Ardolino. He's made of career of bringing dance to the screen in films like "He Made Me Feel Like Dancing." He's also directed PBS dance specials like "Baryshnikov at the White House." His newest work - the film "Dirty Dancing" - is also about dancing, but the style of dance is quite a departure. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review What Ever Happened to Gloomy Gus of the Chicago Bears, the new novel by Robert Coover.
Interview with Dr. Allan Brandt; Interview with Barry Gifford; Commentary on soap operas. September 4, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972883331].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Dr. Allan Brandt, a researcher in the history of science and medicine will discuss the social history of sexually transmitted diseases such as VD and AIDS. REV.1: Singer, songwriter Bill Staines will perform two songs. (AUDIO MISSING) INT.2: Barry Gifford, publisher and founder of Black Lizard Press. The press specializes in reprints of hard-boiled detective fiction, complete with the original book jackets. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone discusses soap operas, why she loves them, why she hates them.

Interview with James Randi; Review of the Shadow Vignettes' album "Birth of a Notion"; Interview with Emo Philips; Review of the television program "Private Eye." September 7, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924582].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: James Randi, magician and debunker of people with claims to extrasensory perception. REV.1: Jazz Critic Francis Davis will review "Birth of a Notion," the first album by Shadow Vignettes, a 25-member ensemble, led by Chicago-based saxophonist and composer Edward Wilkerson. INT.2: Comic Emo Philips. He'll share the neurotic, insecure, post-adolescent persona that has made him one of the hottest neurotic, insecure, post-adolescent comics today. REV.2: TV Critic David Bianculli will review the new NBC show "Private Eye," produced by the original creators of "Crime Story."

Interview with Marian McPartland; Commentary on The Chantels; Interview with Michael Denneny; Review of Toni Morrison's novel "Beloved." September 8, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501312].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jazz pianist Marian McPartland. Though British-born, white and a woman, McPartland has had a forty-year career in a profession that is largely male and black. She is heard on many National Public Radio stations in her popular series with leading jazz artists. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward will look back at the Chantels, a 50s group of five New York teenagers whose exquisite harmonies drew comparisons with classical youth choirs. INT.2: Michael Dennen, a senior editor at St. Martin's Press. His latest project is a small press called Stonewall Inn Editions, specializing in gay literature. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review Beloved, the new novel by Toni Morrison, the author of Tar Baby and Song of Solomon, winner of the 1978 Book Critics Circle Award for fiction.

---

Interview with Thomas Henderson; Review of Kiri Te Kanawa's and John McGlinn's albums "Kiri Sings Gershwin" and "Gershwin Overtures"; Interview with Matt Groening; Commentary on anglicisms in French. September 9, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501310].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, a star player for the Dallas Cowboys throughout the 70s. He fell victim to a cocaine addiction and was one of the first professional athletes to admit to his problem. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review two albums of Gershwin songs: "Kiri Sings Gershwin," by Kiri Te Kanawa, and "Gershwin Overtures," by John McGlinn. INT.2: Syndicated cartoonist Matt Groening. His strip, titled "Life in Hell," appears in alternative papers around the country. His animated characters (rabbits) also appear on TV's "The Tracey Ullman Show." REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg on the efforts of France's culture guardians to keep American expressions out of the language.

---

Interview with Bruce Chatwin; Review of Skid Roper and Mojoe Nixon's song "Elvis is Everywhere"; Interview with Ismail Merchant; Review of the film "A Prayer for the Dying." September 10, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924748].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author and traveller Bruce Chatwin. His new book, Songlines, is a semi-fictional account of the myths that structure the lives of Australia's aborigines. Chatwin's early works include the acclaimed travel book In Patagonia. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review the novelty song "Elvis is Everywhere," by Skid Roper and Mojo Nixon. INT.2: Film producer Ismail Merchant, who, with film director James Ivory, is responsible for films like "The Bostonians," and "Room with a View." His upcoming film, Interview with Frank Deford; Commentary on Henry Lawson; Interview with Jane Smiley; Review of the film "The Invisible Man." September 11, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924749].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Frank Deford, senior writer for Sports Illustrated and a commentator on National Public Radio's "Morning Edition." Some of his best essays from Sports Illustrated have been collected in a book titled The World's Tallest Midget. REV.1: Folk singer Garnet Rogers will play a song which sets to music a poem by Australian Henry Lawson. INT.2: Writer Jane Smiley. Her newest work, a combination of novella and short story, probes the disappointments and loss of middle age. It is titled The Age of Grief. REV.2: Critic Ken Tucker will review the home video release of the 1933 classic "The Invisible Man," starring Claude Raines.

Interview with Toni Morrison; Review of Bill Easley's album Wind Inventions; Interview with Adam Hochschild; Review of early television premieres. September 14, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501313].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author Toni Morrison, acclaimed for her honest depiction of black life in her books, Song of Solomon, Sula, and Tar Baby. Her first novel in seven years has just been published. It's titled Beloved. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead will review a new album by clarinetist Bill Easley, and discuss the apparent resurgence of the instrument. INT.2: Adam Hochschild, founder of the leftist magazine "Mother Jones." He's written a memoir about his ambivalent relationship with his father, an industrialist who operated a string of gold and diamond mines in South Africa. REV.2: TV Critic David Bianculli will review the shows that are sneaking in to the schedule before the official start of the fall television season.
Interview with Jonathan Kwitny; Commentary on pianist Esquerita; Interview with Robert Brustein; Review of Katherine Hepburn’s memoir "The Making of the African Queen..."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Investigative reporter Jonathan Kwitny, author of Vicious Circles, which probed Mafia involvement with legitimate businesses. His new book, The Crimes of Patriots, chronicles the demise of the Nugan Hand Bank in Australia, a story that features many of the characters who figured prominently in the investigation into the sales of arms to Iran, and the diversion of those funds to the Contras. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward will profile the career of Esquerita, a gay, black piano player whose flamboyant style (and hairdoo) was an inspiration to Little Richard. INT.2: Robert Brustein, theater critic for The New Republic since 1959. Brustein founded the Yale Repertory Theater and the American Repertory Theater at Harvard. His new book of essays is titled Who Needs Theatre: Dramatic Opinions. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review The Making of The African Queen, or How I went to Africa with Bogart, Bacall and Huston and almost lost my mind, by actress Katherine Hepburn.

Interview with Shirley MacLaine; Review of televised performances of Maria Callas; Interview with Joe Conmy; Commentary on the etymology of the word earwig. September 16, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924580].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress Shirley MacLaine. She'll discuss her varied career in entertainment and her recent spiritual explorations. REV.1: On the anniversary of soprano Maria Callas' death, classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz will review two new video cassettes of televised performances Callas gave in Hamburg, Germany in 1959 and 1962. INT.2: Col. Joe Conmy, technical advisor to the film "Hamburger Hill." As a field commander in Vietnam, Conmy participated in many of the battles depicted in the film. The U.S. Army also hired Conmy as technical advisor in the Francis Ford Coppola film "Gardens of Stone." REV.2: Jan Harold Brunvand explores urban legends and the etymology of earwigs.
Interview with Archibald Cox; Review of Tom Verlaine's album Flash Light; Interview with Danny Glover; Review of the film "Fatal Attraction." September 17, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501311].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Archibald Cox, Watergate prosecutor who was fired under orders from President Richard Nixon when he asked for the release of secret White House tapes. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker on American guitarist Tom Verlaine, better known throughout Europe than his native country. INT.2: Actor Danny Glover. He stared with Mel Gibson in "Lethal Weapon," and appeared in "Places in the Heart" and "The Color Purple." He stared over the summer in the Broadway presentation of Athol Fugard's "Master Harold and the Boys." He can been seen on television this Sunday night in "Mandela," an HBO presentation. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "Fatal Attraction," starring Glenn Close and Michael Douglas. It's about a one-night stand that evolves into a fatal obsession.

Interview with Stewart Brand; Commentary on Peter Tosh; Interview with Ralph Bakshi; Review of Jincey Willet's collection of short stories "Jenny and the Jaws of Life." September 18, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924746].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Stewart Brand, founder of The Whole Earth Catalog and The Whole Earth Software Review. He's written a book on the Media Lab, MIT's state-of-the-art computer lab. REV.1: Guest commentator Randall Grass pays tribute to reggae superstar Peter Tosh, who was killed in a robbery last weekend in Jamaica. INT.2: Ralph Bakshi, who did the animation work for the cult hits "Fritz The Cat," and "Heavy Traffic." He's turned his attention away from animation to concentrate on oil painting. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone will review a new collection of short stories by Jincey Willet titled Jenny and the Jaws of Life.

Interview with Ved Mehta; Review of Duke Ellington's album, "Ellington Jazz Party" and James Lincoln Collier's biography "Duke Ellington"; Interview with Michael Ignatieff; Review of fall

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Indian writer Ved Mehta. He's written several books of autobiography, most all of which have been serialized in "The New Yorker" magazine. His autobiographies are poignant accounts of his blindness, his education in England, and the role that language came to play in his life. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead will review a reissue of the 1959 album, "Ellington Jazz Party." His review includes a discussion of the controversial biography of Duke Ellington by James Lincoln Collier, controversial because Collier alleges that true credit for many of Ellington's most famous tunes belongs to his band members. INT.2: Writer Michael Ignatieff. His new book, Russian Album, recalls, through diaries, photographs and a few mementoes, his forebearers, aristocrats at the time of the Russian Revolution. While most of the upper class was killed in the Revolution, Ignatieff's family fled to Canada. REV.2: TV Critic David Bianculli will continue his preview of the fall television season.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Top O'Neill; Review of Maria Callas's album "Operatic Arias"; Interview with Dave Harrington; Commentary on the effects of Minitel. September 23, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924583].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Tip O'Neill, former Congressman from Massachusetts and Speaker of the House of Representatives. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz will review the discography of soprano Maria Callas, including several recordings now available on CD. INT.2: Dave Harrington, founder of first violinist of the Kronos Quartet, the avant-garde chamber group that's meeting with mainstream success. REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss the effects of Minitel, the computer distributed by the telephone system in France that has brought a word processor to every home with a phone.

Interview with Mordecai Richler; Review of Dave Alvin's and John Cougar Mellencamp's albums "Romeo's Escape" and "The Lonesome Jubilee"; Interview with Ron Koslow; Review of the film Tough Guys Don't Dance." September 24, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501027].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Canadian writer Mordecai Richler, author of The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz and Joshua Then and Now, both of which were adapted into films. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review two albums, "Romeo's Escape," by Dave Alvin, and "The Lonesome Jubilee," by John Cougar Mellencamp. INT.2: Ron Koslow, creator of "Beauty and the Beast," the new CBS television series that modernizes the fable and sets it in the tunnels of the New York City subway system. REV.2: Guest Film Critic Michael Sragow, film critic for "The San Francisco Examiner," will review "Tough Guys Don't Dance," starring Isabella Rossellini and Ryan O'Neal. The film is directed by writer Norman Mailer and based on a Mailer novel.
Interview with Issac Asimov; Commentary on popular music; Interview with Peter Wagg; Review of the films "Convoy" and "The Osterman Weekend." September 25, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924581].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Issac Asimov, the dean of science fiction writers. Asimov is arguably one of the most widely published authors ever. REV.1: Singer Ian Whitcomb will take us back to the Tin Pan Alley era. INT.2: Peter Wagg, Executive Producer and co-creator of the "Max Headroom" television series. He first developed the character of Max in 1985 as a host between rock video segments on Britain's Channel 4. REV.2: Ken Tucker will review the movies of director Sam Peckinpah, now available on home video. Peckinpah's two best-known films are "Straw Dogs," and "The Wild Bunch."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Leonard Slatkin, music director of the St. Louis Symphony. Under his baton, the St. Louis Symphony has become one of the world's top symphonies, and one of the top five in America. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast 7/8/87.) REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead will review the new album by drummer Marvin "Smitty" Smith. INT.2: Gordon Lish, editor of The Quarterly, a journal of new American writing. He's a leading exponent of the minimalist style of writing. REV.2: TV Critic David Bianculli will preview the new ABC series "thirtysomething."

Interview with Jackie Mason; Commentary on Jerry Lee Lewis; Interview with Ian McEwan; Review of Janwillerm Van De Wetering's novel "The Sergeant's Cat." September 29, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924290].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comic Jackie Mason. He's the star of the one-man Broadway show, "The World According to Me," a hit for eight months now. The show continues to draw more sold-out houses than any other non-musical attraction on Broadway. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward will look at the spiritual struggles of veteran rocker Jerry Lee Lewis and what role they played in his music. INT.2: English writer Ian McEwan, whose new novel is called The Child in Time. It's about the loss of a child and the child that endures through adulthood. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard will review The Sergeant's Cat, a new mystery novel by Janwillem Van De Wetering, a former police officer in the Amsterdam police force.

---

Interview with Douglas Frantz; Review of Yo-Yo Ma's album "Concerto for Violoncello and Orchestra..."; Interview with Stephen Furst; Commentary on the urban legend of the over-tanned woman. September 30, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501332].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Financial reporter Doug Frantz, whose new book Levine & Co. follows Wall Street's insider trading scandal. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz will review the new album by cellist Yo Yo Ma. INT.2: Actor Stephen Furst, who played Flounder in the hit movie "Animal House." Television audiences will know him as Elliot Axelrod, the insecure doctor in "St. Elsewhere." REV.2: Language Commentator Jan Harold Brunvand will delve into the urban legend of the young woman who overdid it at the tanning salon and cooked her insides.

---

Interview with Oliver Sacks; Review of Squeeze's album "Babylon and On"; Interview with Mamie Van Doren; Review of the film "The Pick-up Artist." October 1, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501273].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Neurologist and writer Oliver Sacks, whose book of case studies, The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat, has been made into a music theater production. Sacks is also the author of Awakenings, a work about victims of sleeping sickness, to whom he administered the experimental drug L-dopa. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review "Babylon and On," by the British group Squeeze. INT.2: Mamie Van Doren, one of Hollywood's blond bombshells in the fifties and sixties. She starred in the cult classics "Untamed Youth," "High School Confidential," and "Born Reckless." She's written a kiss-and-tell memoir called Playing the Field. REV.2: Guest Film Critic Michael Sragow, film critic for "The San Francisco Examiner," will review the new James Toback film "The Pick-up Artist," starring Molly Ringwald and Robert Downey.

Interview with Sherrill Milnes; Commentary on polka music; Commentary on the television shows "Werewolf" and "Beauty and the Beast." October 2, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884155].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: American operatic baritone Sherrill Milnes. Milnes, who has sung in most of the world's major opera houses, is known primarily as a Verdi and Puccini specialist. REV.1: Polka player Guy Klucevsek. Klucevsek grew up in western Pennsylvania, a hotbed of polka playing. He'll perform "Ain't Nothing But a Polka," an excerpt from his work "Polka From the Fringe." INT.2: Horror writer Clive Barker. He makes his directorial debut in the new film Hellraisers, based on his own novel. (AUDIO MISSING) REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone will discuss the interaction between women and hairy monsters as seen in the new television shows "Werewolf," and "Beauty and the Beast."

Interview with John Kenneth Galbraith; Review of Andrew Hill's album "Shades"; Interview with Betty White; Review of the television program "Star Trek October 5, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924295].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Economist, writer and lecturer John Kenneth Galbraith. Galbraith, who served as an advisor to Presidents Roosevelt and Kennedy, is perhaps the most influential Keynesian economist. Under Roosevelt, he played a key role in formulating wartime economic policy. Under Kennedy, he helped formulate the liberal social policies that President Johnson pursued in the Great Society initiatives. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Shades," the new album by pianist Andrew Hill. INT.2: Betty White, longtime television actress. She currently stars in the NBC series "The Golden Girls." REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli reviews "Star Trek: The Next Generation," the syndicated series that features an entirely new cast of voyagers.
Interview with Albert Maysles; Commentary on Smokey Robinson; Interview with Moe Tucker; Review of David Horowitz and Peter Collier's book "The Fords." October 6, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501229].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Filmmaker Albert Maysles. He was a pioneer of the cinema verite? style, where the camera acts as an eye and the film proceeds without narration or script. With his late brother David, Albert Maysles made the films "Gimme Shelter," and the recent "Vladimir Horowitz: The Last Romantic," which won two Emmys. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks at Smokey Robinson's early recordings, when he was the lead singer of Smokey Robinson and the Miracles and one of Motown's top acts. INT.2: Moe Tucker, drummer for The Velvet Underground, Lou Reed's band that won cult status in the mid-70s. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews The Fords, by David Horowitz and Peter Collier, the biography of the family that built the automobile empire. The Fords follows Horowitz' and Collier's books on the Rockefellers and Kennedys.

Interview with Jay McShann; Review of Bruce Springsteen's album "Tunnel of Love"; Interview with Richard Ford; Review of the film "Best Sellers." October 8, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924217].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert featuring Kansas City pianist Jay McShann. As a big band leader in the 40s and 50s, McShann helped start the careers of jazz stars like Charlie Parker and Big Joe Turner. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review "Tunnel of Love," the new and long-awaited Bruce Springsteen solo album. INT.2: Richard Ford, who wrote the critically acclaimed novel The Sportswriter. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Best Sellers," the cop thriller starring James Woods and Brian Dennehy.
Interview with Albert Innaurato; Commentary on Brazilian film music; Interview with Meredith Monk; Review of the film "The Night of the Hunter." October 9, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501230].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Playwright Albert Innaurato. His works include the long-running hit "Gemini," "Coming of Age in SoHo" and "The Transformation of Benno Blimpie." REV.1: Brazilian composer and guitarist Orlando Haddad will perform two songs popularized in Brazilian films. INT.2: Performance artist Meredith Monk. Her interdisciplinary art fuses elements of dance, film, theater and music. Her new collection of songs combines half-sounds like shrieks, sobs and moans into a unified and startling whole. REV.2: Ken Tucker will review the home video release of the 1955 classic "The Night of the Hunter," starring Robert Mitchum as a creepy Appalachian preacher, and Shelly Winters as a gullible widow.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Mark Mathabane. He grew up in poverty in a black township in South Africa. His skill at tennis caught the attention of Arthur Ashe and Stan Smith, who brought him to the U.S. on an athletic scholarship. He's written a book about his upbringing and the horrors of Apartheid. It's titled Kaffir Boy. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews a reissue of the "The Complete Coleman Hawkins," a set of four compact discs that captures highlights of the 1944 recording sessions of the renown tenor saxophonist. INT.2: Folksinger Hazel Dickens. She sings and appears in the John Sayles film "Matewan." Dickens is best known for her traditional renditions of country and folk tunes and for her songs of protest. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews the new PBS comedy series titled "Trying Times."
Interview with Elliot Gould; Commentary on Smiley Lewis; Interview with K. D. Lang; Review of Kurt Vonnegut's novel "Bluebeard." October 13, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924292].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor Elliot Gould, best known for his roles in the films "M*a*s*h," "Bob, Carol, Ted and Alice" and "The Long Goodbye." REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles the late New Orleans blues pianist and singer Smiley Lewis, a talent Ward says was consistently overlooked. INT.2: K.D. Lang, Canadian country and blues singer, who brings a compelling theatricality to her performances. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews Bluebeard, the new book by Kurt Vonnegut Jr.

Interview with Ted Solotaroff; Review of the Cleveland Orchestra's album "Sinfonia Concertante"; Interview with Buck Clayton; Commentary on the urban legend of the choking doberman. October 14, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924296].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Ted Solotaroff, senior editor at the book publisher Harper and Row. He has worked with many of the great writers of our time and written widely on the current state of writing and publishing. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a CBS compact disc re-issue featuring the late George Szell conducting the Cleveland Orchestra in a performance of Mozart's "Sinfonia Concertante." INT.2: Buck Clayton, jazz trumpeter, arranger and band leader. He was a member of Count Basie's original band. REV.2: Jan Harold Brunvand traces the origin of the urban legend about the choking doberman.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Cousin Brucie, one of the leading top-40 DJs in New York City in the early 60s when AM radio was king and New York radio set the national tastes in pop music. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review "All Fired Up," the new release from country-rock musician Bobby Lee Springfield. INT.2: Anne d'Harnoncourt, director of the Philadelphia Museum of Art and an expert on Marcel Duchamp, the French artist, whose 100th birthday the museum is now celebrating. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Baby Boom," starring Diane Keaton and Sam Shepard.

Interview with James Conaway; Interview with Bill Staines; Interview with Don Novello; Commentary on film's "new sexism." October 16, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924219].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: James Conaway, author of The Kingdom in the Country, which looks at the wide expanse of public lands in the West and how the myths of the west - cowboys, gunslingers, gold miners - are enduring.
REV.1: Folk singer Bill Staines will perform two songs that reflect on the change in seasons. INT.2: Don Novello, a.k.a Father Guido Sarducci, the Vatican gossip columnist of "Saturday Night Live" fame.
REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone looks at the new sexism as typified in the female leads in the films "Fatal Attraction," "The Big Easy" and "Baby Boom," three of the most successful fall films.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: British mystery writer P.D. James, the 66-year-old grandmother known as the queen of crime. Her most recent book, just released in paperback, is titled A Taste for Death. An earlier work, Shroud for a Nightingale, was serialized on PBS television. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Days Aweigh," the new album by singer Cassandra Wilson. INT.2: Film Critic Leonard Maltin. Some TV viewers know him for his segments on "Entertainment Tonight," but he is perhaps as well known for his reference book Leonard Maltin's TV Movies and Video Guide. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews the HBO concert special of Billy Joel's recent performances in Leningrad.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Father Niall O'Brien. He has worked for over 20 years as a missionary priest in the Philippines. He was imprisoned by the Marcos regime because he helped the poor to start self-reliant Christian communities. He continues his work in the Philippines under the Aquino government. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles The Stooges, A Detroit group that was pioneered punk, even before the famed British punk bands. INT.2: Ed McBain, prolific writer of detective fiction, best known for his "87th Precinct" series of police procedurals and mystery novels. His most recent novel is titled Tricks. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews Belfast Diary, the non-fiction account of the civil war that has flared through Northern Ireland. The author is Chicago journalist John Conroy.

Interview with Ricky Jay; Review of the Gustav Mahler and Klaus Tennstedt's album "Symphony No. 8"; Interview with Art Spiegelman and Franc?oise Mouly; Commentary on superlatives in language. October 21, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825292].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Ricky Jay, one of the world's great sleight-of-hand artists, a scholar of the unusual, curator of the Mulholland Library of Conjuring and the Allied Arts, an actor and author of Learned Pigs and Fireproof Women. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz will review the new Angel recording of Gustav Mahler's 8th Symphony, conducted by Klaus Tennstedt. INT.2: Art Spiegelman and Franc?oise Mouly, creators of Raw, an adult comic magazine filled with original and sophisticated graphics. REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses the overuse of the superlatives "world-class" and "serious."

Interview with Yakov Smirnoff; Review of Terrence Trent D'Arby's album "Introducing the Hardline According to Terrence Trent D'Arby"; Interview with Wendy Wasserstein; Review of the

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comedian Yakov Smirnoff. He arrived in the U.S. from the Soviet Union 10 years ago with {dollar}100 in his pocket. Today he is a leading comic who has appeared in movies and had his own syndicated TV show called "What A Country." REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Introducing The Hardline According to Terrence Trent D'Arby," the most recent album by British rock and soul singer Terrence Trent D'Arby. INT.2: Playwright Wendy Wasserstein, author of an upcoming episode on the new PBS comedy series "Trying Times." Her other plays include Isn't it Romantic and Uncommon Women and Others. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "Hope and Glory," starring Sarah Miles and Ian Bannen, and directed by John Boorman, ("Deliverance"). Told from the point of view of a 9-year-old, it is the story of a family trying to survive during the terror that gripped London during World War II.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet and playwright Kenneth Koch. He has written books on working with children to get them to write poetry. He is one of the most respected of the New York poets. REV.1: Ellen Pfeifer, music critic for The Boston Herald, reviews the brief career of cellist Jacqueline Du Pre?, who died on Monday from the effects of multiple sclerosis. Her playing was described as a mixture of elegance and ferocity. When the disease struck at the age of 26, it cut short one of the most promising solo careers in all classical music. INT.2: Novelist and screenwriter William Goldman. His 1973 novel, The Princess Bride, was just made into a movie by director Rob Reiner. The movie is based on a screenplay Goldman wrote shortly after completing the novel. Goldman also wrote the screenplays for "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" and "All The President's Men." REV.2: Ken Tucker reviews several new home video releases, one featuring comic Tim Conway in an instructional guide for golf titled "Dorf on Golf."
Interview with Hanif Kureishi; Review of Ray Anderson's album "It Just So Happens"; Interview with Ned Beatty; Review of the television program "Echoes in the Darkness." October 26, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924294].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Hanif Kureishi, a Pakistani-Briton, wrote the screenplay for 1985's surprise hit "My Beautiful Laundrette," which explored the oppression of Pakistanis in England. His new film is titled "Sammy and Rosie Get Laid." REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "It Just So Happens," the new album by trombonist Ray Anderson, whose style draws on the technique of the old New Orleans jazzmen. INT.2: Character actor Ned Beatty. He spent 15 years in theater before making his film debut in "Deliverance." Since then, he's played everything from a sinister executive in "Network" to a clownish sheriff in the Burt Reynolds film "Stroker Ace." In all, Beatty has acted in 37 feature films, and 44 television movies or series. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews "Echoes in the Darkness," an upcoming CBS miniseries about the murder of schoolteacher Susan Reinert and her two children in the Philadelphia suburb of Upper Merion. The principal of the school, Jay Smith, and a fellow teacher, William Bradford, were later convicted of the murder.

Interview with Randy Shilts; Commentary on Lennon and McCartney compositions for other artists; Interview with Patricia Highsmith; Review of Michael Schmidt's novel "The Dresden Gate." October 27, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924291].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Randy Shilts, author of And the Band Played On - Politics, People and the AIDS Epidemic, a controversial book that reveals the identity of the first person to bring AIDS to the United States. The book also raises questions about the government's response to the crisis. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks at the songs the Beatles gave away, the songs Paul McCartney and John Lennon wrote at the urging of manager Brian Epstein for other Liverpool bands. INT.2: Crime writer Patricia Highsmith. Her first novel, Strangers on a Train, was later made into a movie by Alfred Hitchcock. Her new novel, her 19th, is titled Found in the Street. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews The Dresden Gate the novel by Michael Schmidt that explores the misbegotten efforts of Europeans to export their systems of civilization - religion, government, culture - on the Latin American soul.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer Joan Didion. Known for her self-reflective essays and reporting, Didion is one of America's most important writers. Her books include A Book of Common Prayer, Slouching Toward Bethlehem and Salvador. With her husband John Gregory Dunne, she co-wrote the screenplay for "True Confessions." Her new book is titled Miami. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new CD of the late pianist Glenn Gould playing Bach's Goldberg Variations. INT.2: Canadian writer and naturalist Farley Mowat. Mowat has written widely on nature and wildlife and championed the cause of harp seals, whales, wolves, Eskimos. His books include A Whale for the Killing, The Boat Who Wouldn't Float and Never Cry Wolf. His latest book, Woman in the Mists, is the story of Dian Fossey, the American woman who studied and lived with the mountain gorillas of Rwanda, Africa. Fossey was murdered at her remote base camp in 1985. (This is the first part of a two-part interview with Mowat.) REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses the centennial of Esperanto, a movement devoted to establishing a world language.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer Tom Wolfe, known for his "New Journalism" in the 60s and 70s. His books from that period included The Electric Kool Aid Acid Test, Radical Chic and Mau Mauing the Flak Catchers and The Right Stuff. His new book, his first novel, is titled The Bonfire of the Vanities. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews the "... Nothing Like the Sun," the new album by Sting, the former lead singer of the Police. INT.2: Canadian writer and naturalist Farley Mowat. Mowat has written widely on wildlife and the natural habitat, championing the cause of the harp seals, whales, wolves, Eskimos. His books include A Whale for the Killing, The Boat Who Wouldn't Float and Never Cry Wolf. (This is the second part of a two-part interview.) REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "Suspect," the courtroom thriller/love story starring Cher and Dennis Quaid.

Interview with David Attenborough; Interview with Orlando Haddad; Interview with Woody Herman; Review of the play "The First Eden." October 30, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501182].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Sir David Attenborough, host and producer of the new PBS series "The First Eden," which looks at the natural history of the Mediterranean. This follows his award-winning series for PBS "Planet Earth."

REV.1: Brazilian guitarist Orlando Haddad performs two compositions. INT.2: Band leader Woody Herman. This interview was originally recorded in May, 1986. Herman, who died on Thursday, was the leader of numerous big bands, all variously called The Thundering Herd. His bands were noted for their dazzling improvisation combined with their incisive ensemble playing. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone will review the Broadway show featuring comic Mort Sahl.

Interview with Todd Gitlin; Review of Art Farmer's album "Something to Live For November 2, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924448].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist and media critic Todd Gitlin whose new book, The Sixties - Years of Hope, Days of Rage, is a social history of the culture and politics of that time from a writer who participated in the freedom and turmoil of the era. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album by flugelhornist Art Farmer. The album is titled "Something to Live For: The Music of Billy Strayhorn."

INT.2: Dan Wasserman, political cartoonist for The Boston Globe. A collection of his drawings has just been published; it's titled We've Been Framed. Wasserman will explain who he and fellow political cartoonist are secretly hoping will win the Presidency. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews the new spinoff from "Hill Street Blues." It's titled "Beverly Hills Buntz" and it stars Dennis Frantz, who played the tough-talking, gum-chewing Det. Norman Buntz in "Hill Street Blues."
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Alan Rudolph; Review of Jeffrey Jacob's album "Contemporary Chinese Piano Music"; Interview with Lar Lubovitch; Commentary on the urban legend of the shared Snickers bar. November 4, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924449].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film maker Alan Rudolph. Rudolph made his break into movies working for director Robert Altman. His film credits include "Remember My Name," "Welcome to LA," "Choose Me" and "Trouble in Mind." His new film, "Made in Heaven," stars Timothy Hutton and Kelly McGillis. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new album of contemporary Chinese piano music performed by Jeffrey Jacob. INT.2: Choreographer Lar Lubovitch. Lubovitch choreographed the new Stephen Sondheim musical "Into the Woods." Along with choreographers like Laura Dean, Elliot Feld and Mark Morris, Lubovitch is helping re-shape dance in the post-Balanchine era. REV.2: Jan Harold Brunvand explores the urban legend about the shared bite of the Snickers bar.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Andrew Tobias, author of The Only Other Investment Guide You'll Ever Need. Tobias is a best-selling author and popular speaker on managing money. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Cloud Nine," the new album by George Harrison. INT.2: Russell Jacoby, whose new book, The Last Intellectuals, American Culture in the Age of Academe, contends that American culture is not producing the intellectuals it did during the 40s and 50s. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Less Than Zero," the adaptation of the best-selling novel of the same name by Bret Easton Ellis.

Interview with Colleen Dewhurst; Interview with Bob Brozman; Interview with Marshall Crenshaw; Review of the film "A Young Children's Concert with Raffi." November 6, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924578].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress Colleen Dewhurst. She is currently starring as Eugene O'Neill's widow in the one-woman show "My Gene." REV.1: Guitarist Bob Brozman. He'll play two songs from the 20s, one a Fats Waller tune, on his National Steel Guitar. INT.2: Rock musician Marshall Crenshaw. Best known for the songs "Whenever You're on My Mind," "Someday, Someway" and "Mary Jean," Crenshaw's new album is titled "Mary Jean and 9 Others." Crenshaw played the part of Buddy Holly in the summer's hit movie "La Bamba." REV.2: Ken Tucker reviews the new home video release titled "A Young Children's Concert with Raffi." Raffi is a singer of children's songs that adults find catchy as well.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist John Conroy. Conroy lived in a poor Catholic neighborhood in violence-torn Belfast, Northern Ireland. He recorded stories of the life there in his book Belfast Diary. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album by the trio Power Tools. The group consists of guitarist Bill Frisell, bassist Melvin Gibbs and drummer Shannon Jackson. Their new album is titled "Strange Meeting." INT.2: Rock Critic Greil Marcus. His new book is a compilation of the writings of the late rock critic Lester Bangs, who, from 1969 until his death in 1982, wrote prodigiously for publications such as Rolling Stone, Creem and The Village Voice. Marcus is also the author of the highly-acclaimed Mystery Train: Images of America in Rock 'n Roll Music. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews three upcoming miniseries - "Mayflower Madam," "Napoleon and Josephine" and "Hoover vs. The Kennedys: The Second Civil War" - and discusses how docudramas have evolved in the past few years.

Interview with Judy Collins; Commentary on "break-in" records; Interview with David Del Tredici; Review of Lech Walesa's autobiography of "A Way of Hope." November 10, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924445].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer Judy Collins. She's just written an autobiography; it's titled Trust Your Heart. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles some of rock's most memorable break-in records, which are singles made up of snippets of many different records. These include records by Bill Buchanan and Dickie Goodman's Flying Saucer. INT.2: Composer David Del Tredici. His works place him at the forefront of the neo-romantic movement. Del Tredici won the Pulitzer Prize for music in 1980 for his composition "In Memory of A Summer Day." From 1968 to 1985, his works evolved around themes from Alice in Wonderland, Lewis Carroll's beloved fairy tale. It was his 1976 work, "Final Alice," commissioned by the Chicago Symphony, that first brought Del Tredici international recognition. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews A Way of Hope, the autobiography of Solidarity leader Lech Walesa.
Interview with Henry Mancini; Review of Yevgeny Mravinsky's and Tchaikovsky's album "Symphonien Nr. 4, 5 & 6."; Interview with Tim Cahill; Commentary on the misleading nature of words. November 11, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924446].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Henry Mancini, who's had a long career writing scores for movies and TV. He has composed some classic songs, such as "The Pink Panther," "Moon River," "The Days of Wine and Roses," and the themes for "Peter Gunn" and "Mr. Lucky." He had just done the music for the new film version of "The Glass Menagerie." REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a 1960 recording of Tchaikovsky's last three symphonies, conducted by Yevgeny Mravinsky and performed by the Leningrad Philharmonic.

INT.2: Adventure essayist Tim Cahill. Cahill's writing appeared in the premiere issue of Outside magazine and has been a regular feature ever since. In his latest odyssey, Cahill drove from the tip of South America to Purdhoe Bay in Alaska. His newest collection of adventure tales is titled Jaguars Ripped My Flesh. REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg will discuss the misleading nature of words, or when a "direct flight" isn't direct at all.

Interview with Brendan Gill; Review of Robbie Robertson's album "Robbie Robertson"; Interview with John Boorman; Review of the film "Cry Freedom." November 12, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501224].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Brendan Gill. He has written for The New Yorker magazine for more than 50 years, writing poems, prose, profiles and film and theater reviews. Gill also writes about architecture and has just written a biography of Frank Lloyd Wright. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews the new album by guitarist and songwriter Robbie Robertson, formerly of The Band. INT.2: John Boorman, British film director. His new film is titled "Hope and Glory" set in London during the Blitz in World War II. The film looks at war from the vantage point of a child, who saw in the chaos a non-stop party. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Cry Freedom," starring Kevin Kline as South African journalist Donald Woods, and Denzel Washington as anti-apartheid activist Stephen Biko. The movie portrays the friendship that developed between Woods, a white reporter, and Biko, one of the leading foes of apartheid. "Cry Freedom" is directed by Richard Attenborough.
Interview with Terry Jones; Interview with Siobhan Egan, Eileen Ivers, and Mick Moloney; Interview with August Darnell; Review of the television show "thirtysomething." November 13, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501223].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Terry Jones, a member of the comedy troupe Monty Python. Jones did much of the writing for the troupe. He directed most of their movies, often appearing as one of the Python women. Jones now writes children's books in England. He also directed the recent film "Personal Services." REV.1: Siobhan Egan and Eileen Ivers, fiddle players who perform with "Cherish the Ladies," a touring ensemble of top Irish musicians. Both are American-born, and both emigrated to Ireland to pursue their musical education. Ivers earned All-Ireland fiddle champion honors for seven years in a row. They will perform a reel and a jig, accompanied on guitar by Mick Moloney. INT.2: August Darnell, lead singer of Kid Creole and the Coconuts. Kid Creole is the dapper stage persona of August Darnell, a wildly inventive showman whose music fuses salsa, rock, jazz, reggae, funk and rap. The group has found fame in Europe and South America, but success in America has proven elusive. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone discusses the new ABC television series "thirtysomething."

Interview with Claribel Alegria; Interview with David Naylor; Review of the television program "Poor Little Rich Girl." November 16, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501225].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Ron Powers; Commentary on Sam Cooke; Interview with James Laughlin; Review of Peter Dickinson's novel "Perfect Gallows." November 17, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924310].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: "CBS Sunday Morning's" media critic Ron Powers. He's written a book about his hometown, Hannibal, Missouri, titled White Town Drowsing. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward will explore the gospel roots of soul great Sam Cooke. INT.2: James Laughlin, founder and editor of New Directions Books, a small publishing house that has brought out the work of avant-garde poets like Ezra Pound and William Carlos Williams. Laughlin is himself a poet and an authority on Ezra Pound. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews "Perfect Gallows," a mystery by Peter Dickinson.

Interview with Leslie Cockburn; Review of Paul O'Dette's album "Green Sleeve"; Interview with Jan Novak; Commentary on urban legends about computer glitches. November 18, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924307].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: CBS News Producer Leslie Cockburn. Since 1984, she has covered the United States' involvement with the Nicaraguan Contras. Her reports have aired on "60 Minutes" and "West 57th Street." Her new book is titled Out of Control: The story of the Reagan Administration's secret war in Nicaragua, the illegal arms pipeline, and the Contra drug connection. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews an album of Elizabethan lute music performed by Paul O'Dette, including the lute standard "Green Sleeves." INT.2: Writer Jan Novak. He has just published his second English novel, titled The Grand Life. His first was titled The Willys Dream Kit. Novak emigrated to the United States from Czechoslovakia 17 years ago. REV.2: Jan Harold Brunvand will explore the urban legends that have sprung up around computer glitches, the so-called "mystery glitches."
Interview with Carlos Fuentes; Review of Stevie Wonder's album "Characters"; Interview with William Geist; Review of the film "Nuts." November 19, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924309].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Mexican writer Carlos Fuentes. He has written many novels, is currently teaching at Harvard, once served as Mexico's ambassador to France and used to be considered an "undesirable alien" and was denied a visa by the U.S. government. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Characters," the new album by Stevie Wonder on which he plays every instrument. INT.2: New York Times columnist William Geist, who wrote the paper's popular "About New York" column. He has collected his favorite columns in a book titled City Slickers. Geist recently left the Times and is now a contributor for the CBS News show, "CBS Sunday Morning." REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff review "Nuts" starring Barbara Streisand and Richard Dreyfus.

Interview with Michael Kinsley; Interview with Bob Brozman; Interview with Stephen Davis; Review of the film "OC and Stiggs." November 20, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923785].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Jerry Falwell; Review of Ike Quebec's album "The Complete Blue Note 45 Sessions of Ike Quebec"; Interview with Don Opper; Review of the television program "The Morton Downey, Jr. Show." November 23, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501237].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jerry Falwell, former head of the Moral Majority and temporary head of the PTL (Praise the Lord) organization after revelations of sexual encounters brought down the Rev. Jim Bakker. Falwell recently stepped down as head of the PTL and of the Moral Majority, his Christian political action committee, to concentrate on his ministry, best known through his national television program "The Old Time Gospel Hour." He's written an autobiography titled Strength for the Journey. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new 3-record set of previously unreleased jazz 45's by tenor saxophonist Ike Quebec. INT.2: Don Opper, writer of "Slam Dance," the new film directed by Wayne Wang. Opper, also an actor, appears in the film. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews "The Morton Downey Jr. Show," a new talk show that's the equivalent of shock radio. Downey's guests range from representatives of Planned Parenthood to the Ku Klux Klan. But it's the frenzy of audience, and Downey's abuse of both guests and audience, that makes the show unique.

Interview with Charles Rosenberg; Commentary on Bobby Fuller; Interview with Nanao Sakaki; Review of Noel Virtue's novel "The Redemption of Elsdon Bird." November 24, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924179].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Charles Rosenberg. He's written a book on the history of American hospitals titled The Care of Strangers: The Rise of America's Hospital System. Rosenberg is a professor in the History and Sociology of Science department at the University of Pennsylvania. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Bobby Fuller, whose band, The Bobby Fuller Four, had hits including "I Fought the Law." Fuller came from West Texas, the region that Buddy Holly came from, and tried to emulate Holly's mannerisms and music. Fuller was just catching on in Los Angeles when he died under suspicious circumstances at age 23. INT.2: Japanese poet Nanao Sakaki. His poems combine classical Asian culture with contemporary vernacular. He befriended beat poets like Alan Ginsburg and Gary Snyder, who wrote the forward to Sakaki's new Interview with Arthur Miller; Review of Mitsuko Uchida's album "Piano concertos, Nos. 22 & 23"; Interview with Herbert Block; Commentary on answering machine recordings. November 25, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501132].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Playwright, novelist and essayist Arthur Miller. His plays include "All My Sons," "The Crucible," "After the Fall" and "Death of a Salesman," for which he won the 1949 Pulitzer Prize for Drama and lasting fame in American theater. He has written an autobiography titled Timebends. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews pianist Mitsuko Uchida's new recording of Mozart's 22nd and 23rd Concertos, accompanied by Jeffrey Tate and the English Chamber Orchestra. INT.2: Herblock, the Pulitzer-Prize winning editorial page cartoonist for The Washington Post since 1946. His cartoons are syndicated in more than 300 papers. REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg shares his thoughts on the peculiar grammatical logic of telephone answering machine recordings.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Loudon Wainwright, III; Commentary on tango music and dance; Interview with Mark Halliday; Commentary on Harry Shearer. November 27, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924180].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Loudon Wainwright III, who gained fame with his hit song "Dead Skunk in the Middle of the Road." He is one of the most caustic and humorous singer, songwriters in folk music. He will also perform several songs. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast June 17, 1987.) REV.1: Accordionist William Schimmel will perform several tangos. INT.2: Poet Mark Halliday, one of five poets chosen for publication in the National Poetry series, a collaborative project of five leading publishing houses. His first volume of poetry is titled Little Star. Halliday is an English professor at the University of Pennsylvania. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast August 25, 1987.) REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone discusses the comedy of Harry Shearer, best known for his two years on the cast of "Saturday Night Live" and for his role as the heavy metalist Derrick Small in the movie "This is Spinal Tap," the concert film spoof.

Interview with Ron Wood; Review of Dave Holland's album "The Razor's Edge"; Interview with John Doe and Exene Cervenka; Commentary on freshman television programs. November 30, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501236].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Guitarist Ron Wood. He spent 12 years as a member of the Rolling Stones, seven years with Rod Stewart's Faces and five years with The Jeff Beck Group. A book of his paintings and drawings has just been published. It's titled Ron Wood by Ron Wood: The Works. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews bassist Dave Holland's new album, "The Razor's Edge," featuring Holland and his quintet - trumpeter Kenny Wheeler, alto saxophonist Steve Coleman, trombonist Robin Eubanks and drummer Marvin Smitty Smith. INT.2: John Doe and Exene Cervenka, songwriters and vocalists with the L.A. rock band X. Their new album, their sixth, is called "See How We Are." REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli discusses the progress of the new shows and the history of how television's top programs fared in their first year.
Interview with Frank Morgan, Ronnie Mathews, and Walter Booker; Commentary on singer James Carr; Interview with James Baldwin; Review of Jacob Timmerman's book "Chile December 1, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923784].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with jazz saxophonist Frank Morgan. Morgan has recently begun a new life after years of drug abuse and prison. He recently performed in a play about his life titled "Prison-Made Tuxedos." REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles James Carr, the little-known 60s soul singer, thought to have been the equal of Otis Redding and Wilson Picket. INT.2: A rebroadcast of a 1986 interview Terry Gross recorded with writer and social critic James Baldwin, who died yesterday in France. Baldwin's books include Go Tell it on the Mountain, The Fire Next Time and Notes of a Native Son. Baldwin was one of the first major writers to address the civil rights issue. After the civil rights movement crested, Baldwin moved to France, where he felt more tolerance for his open homosexuality and outspoken nature.

REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews Chile: Death in the South by Jacobo Timmerman. Timmerman is the former Argentine journalist who was imprisoned for publishing the names of the people who disappeared at the hands of Argentina's dictatorship in the mid-70s. His account of his ordeal was titled Prisoner Without a Name, Cell Without a Number.

---

Interview with Paul Goldberger; Review of Jussi Bjorling's album "Pagliacci"; Interview with Bobby Previte; Commentary on the urban legend of the solid cement car. December 2, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924305].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York Times architecture critic Paul Goldberger will discuss the contemporary urban skyline.

REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews of new CD featuring the Swedish tenor Jussi Bjorling who died in 1960. INT.2: Drummer and composer Bobby Previte. His music has been described as "... a blend of Charles Mingus' bluesy hoedowns and Steve Reich's trancelike minimalism." Previte began as a rock drummer and now composes in a wide variety of genres, from choral works and string quartets to film score and jazz. His new album is titled "Pushing the Envelope." REV.2: Jan Harold Brunvand explores the urban legend about the solid cement car.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet Denise Levertov. REV.1: Two novelty tunes from the 20s and 30s performed by singer and songwriter Michael Cooney. INT.2: Video artist Bill Viola. His work draws on his extensive travel throughout Northern India, the Sahara, the American West and Europe and strives to establish video as an art independent of film and television. Viola has been working with video since 1970, including stints as an artist-in-residence at WNET's Artists' Television Laboratory, and as a Guggenheim Fellow. REV.2: Ken Tucker will review new home video releases, including the works of rock composer Frank Zappa.

Interview with Red Holzman; Commentary on the musical group The Standells; Interview with Charles Willeford; Review of Arthur C. Clarke's novel "2061." December 8, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501028].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Red Holzman tells of his five decades in basketball as a player, coach and general manager. He's a member of the Basketball Hall of Fame and was coach of the New York Knicks when they won the world championship in 1970. Now retired, Holzman had written an autobiography titled Red on Red. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward will profile The Standells. Their big hit was titled "Dirty Water." The group's name surfaced in the news recently when someone tried to impersonate Dick Dodd, the group's leader in an Austin, Texas nightclub. INT.2: Detective writer Charles Willeford. His novels have earned him a cult following in the genre. He's now being discovered by a wider audience as his earlier novels are being re-issued in paperback. A new novel is about to be published, as well as an autobiography about his years on the road as hobo during the Depression. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews 2061, the latest science fiction novel from Arthur C. Clarke.
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

---

Interview with John Barth; Review of Alexander Zemlinsky's album "The Mermaid"; Interview with Larry Merchant; Commentary on gender bias in language. December 9, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924304].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist John Barth, one of the most inventive of American writers. His works include The Floating Opera, The Sot-Weed Factor and Giles Goat-Boy. His new novel, set on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, is titled The Tidewater Tales. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast July 23, 1987.) REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a recent recording of Alexander Zemlinsky's "The Mermaid," a work forgotten for almost 80 years. Zemlinksy's greatest influence was on the Viennese School of 20th century music. INT.2: Sportswriter and HBO boxing analyst Larry Merchant. He discusses the world of boxing, the disintegration of neighborhood boxing clubs in the big cities and how television has changed the image of the boxer and the audience response. REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses whether it's possible, or even desirable, to eliminate gender bias in language.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor George Hearn, star of many Broadway hits, including "Follies," "Sweeney Todd" and "La Cage Aux Folles." He is now starring in a new theatrical production based on Chaim Potok's novel The Chosen. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker will review "A Very Special Christmas," the new charity record that features The Pretenders, U2, Bruce Springsteen and John Cougar Mellencamp. INT.2: Actor Josh Mostel. He's had supporting roles in the films "Radio Days," "Matewan" and "Compromising Positions." But now he's a headliner in the Off-Broadway comedy "The Boys Next Door." REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff will review "The Last Emperor," the Bernardo Bertolucci epic set in 20th Century China.
Interview with Sally Kirkland; Commentary on the life of Adrienne Kennedy; Interview with Ry Cooder; Review of Penn and Teller's show "Penn & Teller." December 11, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501269].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress Sally Kirkland. She's worked in theater and film for 25 years, playing small character roles. She now has a starring role in the film "Anna." REV.1: Adrienne Kennedy will reflect on what led her to become a playwright. Her plays include the Obie-winning "Funnyhouse of a Negro." INT.2: Guitarist Ry Cooder. His career consisted of one-night stands until he began writing the scores for films. His credits include "Paris, Texas" and "Crossroads." He's just come out with a solo album, his first in six years. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone discusses the magic and comedy act of Penn and Teller.

---

Interview with John Sayles; Review of World Saxophone Quartet's album "Dances and Ballads"; Interview with J. J. Johnson; Review of the television program "Jack Paar is Alive and Well." December 14, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924631].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director and actor John Sayles. His films include "The Return of the Secaucus Seven," "Baby It's You" and "Brother From Another Planet." His new film is "Matewan," about a coal miner's strike in West Virginia. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Dances and Ballads," the new album by the World Saxophone Quartet. INT.2: J.J. Johnson, a pioneer of the modern jazz trombone. In 1970, he moved to Hollywood to work as a composer and arranger for television. He's toured the country recently, and a new CD of sessions he recorded in the 60s has just been reissued. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli reviews "Jack Paar is Alive and Well," NBC's look back at the first host of "The Tonight Show."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jack Gillis, director of public affairs for the Consumer Federation of America and author of The Car Book. He will release consumer test results on how the 1988 cars scored for safety, fuel economy, comfort, etc. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward will discuss the making of Phil Spector's Christmas Album, one of the most successful records of its kind. INT.2: Martin Williams, producer of the new six-record set for the Smithsonian Jazz Collection featuring singers and soloists from the Swing era. The set includes performances by Coleman Hawkins, Fletcher Henderson, Ella Fitzgerald and Johnny Hodges. REV.2: Book Critic John Leonard reviews The Western Lands, the new novel by William Burroughs, author of Naked Lunch and Nova Express.

Interview with Tony Hendra; Commentary on Jascha Heifetz; Interview with Jeana Yeager and Dick Rutan; Commentary on urban legends about college exams. December 16, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457474].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Tony Hendra. His new book, Going Too Far, is a history of "Boomer (as in Baby Boomer) Humor." Hendra was editor of The National Lampoon for eight years. He directed the Lampoon play "Lemmings" and co-created and wrote the British TV series "Spitting Image." In addition, he has written several books of satire and appeared in the movie "This is Spinal Tap." REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the career of violinist Jascha Heifetz, who died last Friday. He was, by acclamation, the greatest violinist of this century. INT.2: Jeana Yeager and Dick Rutan, who headed the six-year effort to fly a plane around the world without refueling. They completed their nine-day flight in their light-weight craft called The Voyager on December 23, 1986. They have written a book describing the adventure. REV.2: Jan Harold Brunvand traces the urban legends surrounding college exams.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer James Wolcott, who's now a regular columnist on culture for Vanity Fair. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Rainbow," the new album by Dolly Parton. INT.2: Poet Richard Hell. He moved to New York City in the 70s, intending to concentrate on poetry. But he was drawn to the emerging punk rock scene and quickly became one of its best known acts with his band Richard Hell and the Voidoids. He later landed roles in the films "Smithereens" and "Desperately Seeking Susan." He is writing poetry again, editing the new poetry journal Cuz, and running the poetry programs at the St. Marks Poetry Project. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Broadcast News," the romantic comedy that takes a satiric look television news. It stars William Hurt, Holly Hunter and Albert Brooks.

Interview with Mary King; Interview with John McCutcheon; Interview with Roz Chast; Review of the film "Wall Street." December 18, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924628].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Mary King, former communications coordinator for the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) during the height of the Civil Rights movement. Her new book, Freedom Song, recounts these years and reflects on the significance of the era. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast July 29, 1987.) REV.1: John McCutcheon performs two songs on his hammer dulcimer. INT.2: Cartoonist Roz Chast, whose quirky pen-and-ink drawings appear in The New Yorker. She avoids the dry board-room humor typical of The New Yorker, preferring to draw dinosaurs, appliances with skirts, and cheese. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Wall Street," the new film on ambition and greed in the world of high finance. The director is Oliver Stone, who won an Academy Award last year for "Platoon."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Science and science fiction writer Issac Asimov. He is considered the dean of science fiction writers and is arguably one of the most widely published authors ever. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast September 25, 1987.) REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album, "Momentum", by soprano saxophonist Steve Lacy. INT.2: Obituary writer Jim Nicholson. He talks about his unconventional approach to writing obituaries for the Philadelphia Daily News. He overlooks the famous, preferring to celebrate the lives of bartenders, janitors, taxi drivers and tavern owners. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast May 26, 1987.) REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli reviews a version of Harold Pinter's one-act play, "The Room", directed by Robert Altman. The cast includes Linda Hunt, Donald Pleasance, Julian Sands and Annie Lennox. It will air on ABC next Saturday.

Interview with Mimi Sheraton; Review of Michael Tilson Thomas and the Gershwin Brothers' album "Of Thee I Sing ; Let 'Em Eat Cake"; Interview with Bryan Ferry; Review of Christmas films on home video. December 23, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924239].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Food writer Mimi Sheraton. She is the food critic for Time Magazine. She has written for the New York Times Magazine and New York Magazine, and she's written several books on food and dining out and now publishes a newsletter. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews two recordings of the Gershwin musicals "Of Thee I Sing" and "Let 'Em Eat Cake." They were both conducted by Michael Tilson Thomas earlier this year on the fiftieth anniversary of the composer's death. INT.2: Rock singer and songwriter Bryan Ferry. In the 1970s, he was the lead singer and principal songwriter for the British band Roxy Music, the band that also launched the career of Brian Eno. REV.2: Ken Tucker reviews home videocassettes with a Christmas flavor, starting with classics like "It's A Wonderful Life" and "White Christmas" and ending with "Santa Claus Conquers the Martians."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Father Michael Doyle. He's the pastor of Sacred Heart Church in Camden, New Jersey, which sits in the center of a rundown neighborhood in one of the most depressed cities on the East coast. A deeply religious man who over the years has had his differences with the church hierarchy, Fr. Doyle has committed his church to social change and helping the poor. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker continues his review of new recordings with a Christmas theme. His survey begins with the punk band The Ramones and ends with Prince. INT.2: Robert Brustein, theater critic for The New Republic since 1959. Brustein founded the Yale Repertory Theater and the American Repertory Theater at Harvard. His new book of essays is titled Who Needs Theatre: Dramatic Opinions. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast September 15, 1987.) REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Ironweed" based on the novel by William Kennedy. It stars Meryl Streep, Jack Nicholson and Carol Baker.

Interview with Jay McShann; Interview with Marty Grosz; Interview with Dion; Commentary on record collections. December 25, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924543].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert featuring Kansas City pianist Jay McShann. As a big band leader in the 40s and 50s, McShann helped start the careers of jazz stars like Charlie Parker and Big Joe Turner. (Rebroadcast October 8, 1987.) REV.1: Rhythm guitarist Marty Grosz stops by to play a couple of tunes he learned when just starting out. (Rebroadcast of July 24, 1987.) INT.2: Singer Dion. In the 60s, he was the leader of Dion and Belmonts. They performed such hits as "Runaround Sue" and "The Wanderer." In recent years, he's turned to Christian music. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast August 24, 1987.) REV.2: Humorist Al Gingold describes the sensation of sorting through a sprawling record collection with a loved one. (Rebroadcast of August 28, 1987.)

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Robert Bly; Commentary on the Chantels; Interview with Ned Beatty; Commentary on naming products. December 29, 1987. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501290].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet Robert Bly. In the 60s, his poems took on a political tone and he founded American Poets Against the War. When his volume, The Light Around The Body, won the National Book Award in 1972, he turned the prize money over to a draft resisters group. Since then, his poems have explored the bonds between men, particularly between fathers and sons. (Rebroadcast of June 29, 1987.) REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward will review the rise and fall of the Chantels, the girl group from the 50s that paved the way for groups like the Shirelles and the Ronettes. (Rebroadcast of September 8, 1987.) INT.2: Character actor Ned Beatty. He spent 15 years in theater before making his film debut in "Deliverance." Since then, he's played everything from a sinister executive in "Network" to a clownish sheriff in the Burt Reynolds film "Stroker Ace." In all, Beatty has acted in 37 feature films, and 44 television movies or series. (Rebroadcast of October 26, 1987.) REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg addresses the lengths companies go to in order to come up with the right names for new products.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: David Dinges, a professor of psychology at The University of Pennsylvania. He has recently started a chronobiology research lab to study how cycles of time and light can affect behavior and mental health. He will discuss our internal biological clock, sleep disorders, and how shortage of light can affect our moods. REV.1: Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new Angel Records CD of previously unreleased performances of soprano Maria Callas. INT.2: Fresh Air's Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone, whose writing on contemporary culture appears regularly in The Village Voice. REV.2: Book critic John Leonard reviews a collection of essays by Primo Levi.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comedian Richard Belzer. After struggling through a poor and difficult childhood and a rough decade trying to make it as a comic, he is now performing in comedy clubs from coast to coast. He is also appearing in movies, and starring in comedy specials on cable TV. REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker surveys his picks for the year's 10 best releases. INT.2: Paul Grushkin, author of a new book titled The Art of Rock, which traces the last 30 years of rock through the art designed to promote concerts. REV.2: Film Critic Stephen Schiff surveys his picks for the year's ten best, and worst, films.
Interview with Bruce Chatwin; Commentary on nostalgia and rock and roll; Interview with Matt Groening; Review of the film "Sammy and Rosie Get Laid." January 1, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500525].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Author and traveller Bruce Chatwin. His new book, Songlines, is a semi-fictional account of the myths that structure the lives of Australia's aborigines. Chatwin's early works include the acclaimed travel book In Patagonia. (Rebroadcast of September 10, 1987.) (2.) Rock historian Ed Ward discusses nostalgia and rock and roll. (3.) Syndicated cartoonist Matt Groening. His strip, titled "Life in Hell," appears in alternative papers around the country. His animated characters (rabbits) also appear on TV's "The Tracey Ullman Show." (Rebroadcast of September 9, 1987.) (4.) Critic-at-large Laurie Stone reviews the film Sammy and Rosie Get Laid.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor and director Judith Malina. She and Julian Beck founded "The Living Theater" in the 1940s. It became the most revolutionary theater group, performing in the nude, confronting the audience, and breaking down theater's fourth wall. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Wingspan," the new recording from pianist Mulgrew Miller and his quintet. This 32-year-old musician was inspired by McCoy Tyner, but his sound is more spare and compressed than Tyner's. INT.2: Fresh Air's rock historian Ed Ward discusses the roots of his own musical tastes. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli reviews "EastEnders," a contemporary drama about the working class in London's East End. "EastEnders" is the most popular serial drama in Britain, and will air in America on PBS.
Interview with Regina Resnick; Commentary on Roky Erickson and the Thirteenth Floor Elevators; Interview with Ran Blake; Commentary on household moving. January 5, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924599].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Regina Resnick. After a forty-year career as an operatic mezzo-soprano, she is now making her debut on Broadway in the revival of the musical "Cabaret." REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Roky Erickson and the Thirteenth Floor Elevators, a sixties group that put Texas on par with the psychedelic bands from California. INT.2: Pianist Ran Blake. He heads the Third Stream Music Department at the New England Conservatory of Music. Third Stream music, a term coined by composer Gunther Schuller, integrates classical and jazz traditions. Blake has extended the definition to include other kinds of music. A CD of Blake's 1961 recording with singer Jeanne Lee has just been reissued by RCA. REV.2: Humorist Alice Kahn reflects on the bittersweet process of moving.

Interview with Allen Toussaint; Review of Fenwick Smith, Arthur Foote, and Aaron Copeland's album "Chamber Music with Flute"; Interview with Susie Orbach and Luise Eichenbaum; Commentary on poinsettias. January 6, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501274].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Musician Allen Toussaint. For over twenty years he's been a force in New Orleans rhythm and blues as a singer, songwriter and piano player. He wrote hits such as "Working in a Coal Mine," written for Lee Dorsey, and "Mother in Law," written for Ernie K. Doe. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new Northeastern recording featuring flutist Fenwick Smith playing music by Aaron Copeland and Arthur Foote. INT.2: Susie Orbach and Luise Eichenbaum discuss their new book Between Women: Love, Envy and Competition in Women's Friendships. Orbach and Eichenbaum are psychotherapists and best friends. REV.2: Jan Harold Brunvand explores a popular misconception about the poinsettia plant ... that it is poisonous or toxic.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Wes Craven, a leading director of horror movies. His work includes the films "The Hills Have Eyes," "Last House on the Left," and "Nightmare on Elm Street." His new film, "The Serpent and the Rainbow," is about zombies in Haiti. It opens in February. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast July 30, 1987.) REV.1: Rock Critic Ken Tucker reviews the new album from the dB's, entitled "The Sound of Music." This is their fourth album, but the first to attract attention in the U.S. INT.2: Duane Eddy, who is known for his famous twangy guitar sound. His hits from the fifties and sixties include "Rebel Rouser" and "(Dance with the) Guitar Man." On his new album, the first in a decade, he plays with guitarist Ry Cooder. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new movie "Raw," featuring Eddie Murphy in a live concert setting.

Interview with Alwin Nikolais; Interview with Moses Rascoe; Interview with Geoffrey Nunberg; Review of the film "The Harvey Girls." January 8, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924498].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Choreographer Alwin Nikolais. For over forty years he has been considered a revolutionary figure in modern dance. His choreographic vision included the use of visual arts and electronic music long before it became popular. REV.1: Country blues guitarist Moses Rascoe will perform a few songs. INT.2: Fresh Air's language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg. REV.2: Critic Ken Tucker reviews a new home video release of the 1946 movie "The Harvey Girls." It stars Judy Garland and Ray Bolger and features dazzling musical numbers such as "On the Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comic Dennis Miller. Miller does the Weekend Update segment on "Saturday Night Live." He's now working on an HBO special. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album from alto saxophonist Richie Cole. It's called "Popbop" and is available on Milestone records. INT.2: Photographer William Claxton. His new book, Jazz, is a collection of jazz photographs taken in the 50s and 60s and includes photographs of jazz greats like Thelonious Monk, Duke Ellington, Billie Holiday, John Coltrane and Max Roach. REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews a new syndicated series featuring Mr. T. It's called "T & T," but Bianculli says it's not as dynamite as the title suggests.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Ron Reagan, Jr. He's a special correspondent on "Good Morning America" and is also a contributing editor at Playboy Magazine. He has a comedy special debuting soon on the Cinemax Comedy Experiment. It's titled "Ron Reagan is the President's Son." REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Letters from Mississippi", a new album from Eddie Hinton that blends rock, soul and rhythm and blues. INT.2: Chicago-based composer, arranger and tenor saxophonist Edward Wilkerson. He leads the big band Shadow Vignettes, whose 1986 album, "Birth of a Notion," was on most jazz critic's lists as one of the top ten albums of that year. In Wilkerson's newest album, titled "Eight Bold Souls," he leads a smaller group, an octet. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the movie "3 Men and a Baby."
Interview with Andrew Porter; Interview with Moses Rascoe; Interview with Greg Ford and Terry Lennon; Commentary on the film "Broadcast News." January 15, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501333].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Andrew Porter. He's the classical music critic for The New Yorker Magazine. He's just published a collection of his articles in a book titled Musical Events. REV.1: Country and blues guitarist Moses Rascoe returns to sing a few more songs. INT.2: Greg Ford and Terry Lennon, the writer and director of "The Duxorcist," the first "Looney Tune" to feature Daffy Duck since 1964. The cartoon will play before Warner Brother's theatrical releases. It comes on the 50th anniversary of Daffy Duck's debut. REV.2: Critic-at-large Laurie Stone shares her thoughts on the sexual politics of the popular new movie "Broadcast News."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Vincent Harding. He was the first director of the Martin Luther King Center in Atlanta. He worked with Dr. King during the Civil Rights Movement and he's written a history of the struggle for civil rights titled There is a River. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead pays tribute to Benny Carter, the elder statesman of the alto saxophone. He reviews the new American Jazz Orchestra recording of Carter compositions, featuring Carter, pianist John Lewis and bassist Ron Carter, among others. INT.2: Actor Ray Sharkey. He starred last season in the television series "Wiseguy." His feature film credits include a fast-talking rock promoter in "The Idolmaker," a romantic dreamer in "Love and Money," and a sadistic killer in "Who'll Stop the Rain." Sharkey won the Golden Globe award as best actor in 1982 for his performance in "The Idolmaker." REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli reviews "Strange Interlude," the first offering of American Playhouse's seventh season. The play was written by Eugene O'Neill. This production stars Glenda Jackson, David Dukes and Ken Howard.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A discussion about what it's like to test positive for the HIV antibody but not have AIDS. The panel includes members of the New York City group Body Positive, a support group that counsels people who have tested positive for the antibody. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles the group Television, a band that helped launch the New York punk scene in the late-70s. INT.2: Avant-garde accordionist and composer Guy Klucvevsek. Klucvevsek grew up in western Pennsylvania, where polkas were a popular musical form. Klucvevsek has since developed an alternative polka style, best exemplified in his work on "Polka From the Fringe," 23 three-minute polkas composed by a variety of experimental artists. REV.2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Mothers of Invention, a book about the unrecognized role women had in the technological breakthroughs of the modern era. The authors are Ethlie Ann Vare and Greg Ptacek.

Interview with William Greider; Review of the Scottish Chamber Orchestra's album of Haydn recordings; Interview with David Bianculli; Commentary on the urban legend of the "dead cat package." January 20, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457570].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Polish writer Ryszard Kapuscinski. His writing lies somewhere between history and journalism. He was a foreign correspondent for the Polish Press Agency. His books in English include The Emperor, about Ethiopian emperor Haille Selassie, Shah of Shah, about the Shah of Iran, and Another Day of Life, about Angola. REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the soundtrack for the movie "Less Than Zero." Though the movie was something of a flop, the soundtrack continues to produce hits. INT.2: Stage and screen actor Joe Mantegna. He can be seen now in "House of Games," the first film effort by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright David Mamet, with whom Mantegna has had a long association. His stage work includes the lead role in "Glengarry, Glen Ross," the Mamet play that won the 1984 Pulitzer Prize; Mantegna won a Tony Award for his performance. Mantegna revels in shady characters: gamblers, cutthroat salesman, mobsters and Hollywood hucksters. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Moonstruck," starring Cher and Nicholas Cage.

Interview with Margaret Whiting; Interview with Michael Coomney; Interview with Andrian Cronauer; Review of the television program "The Murder of Mary Phagan." January 22, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924494].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer Margaret Whiting. Her father, Richard Whiting, wrote many of her most popular songs, including "Too Marvelous for Words," "My Ideal," "She's Funny That Way," and "On The Good Ship Lollipop." Jerome Kern, Johnny Mercer and other great songwriters of the day were like uncles to her. She is now performing at the Algonquin Hotel in New York City. REV.1: Folk singer Michael Cooney performs a song so bad that it's good. INT.2: Adrian Cronauer, the airman disk-jockey whose stint as a rebellious Armed Forces Radio Network announcer during the Vietnam war is the basis for the movie "Good Morning Vietnam," starring Robin Williams. Cronauer, 49, is a former announcer for WQXR in New York and is now studying communications law at The University of Pennsylvania. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone previews a 5-hour NBC miniseries on the 1913 hanging of a Jewish factory manager in Atlanta, Georgia following the murder a 13-year-old employee of the factory. The case hinged on racial hatred, in this case the prevailing enmity toward Jews, and Laurie praises the production's exploration of how racial divisions have been exploited for political effect. The miniseries is titled "The Murder of Mary Phagan."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Dr. David Elkind, a professor and author of books on child development. His new book, Miseducation: Preschoolers at Risk, warns of possible dangers to children who are pushed too hard to achieve too much at too early an age. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the album "Nine Below Zero," by the trio of pianist Wayne Horvitz, cornettist Butch Morris and drummer Bobby Previte. Kevin says the album is one of the more successful attempts to humanize the new electronic instruments like synthesizers, drum machines and rhythm boxes. INT.2: Sound designer Martin Levan. He was responsible for the sound of Andrew Lloyd Weber musicals "Song and Dance," "Starlight Express" and now "Phantom of the Opera." REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews the eight-hour PBS series "Television." The series is composed of clips from vintage and recent television programs as well as interviews with the creative people behind some of the best news and entertainment shows.

Interview with Chuck Norris; Commentary on Hank Ballard and the Midnighters; Interview with Penn Jillette; Review of Thomas Bernhard's novel "Woodcutters." January 26, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457573].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor Chuck Norris. He has changed his image from being a cult, martial arts film star to being America's all-round tough guy. His new movie is "Braddock: Missing in Action III." He has just written his autobiography. It's titled The Secret of Inner Strength - My Story. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Hank Ballard and the Midnighters, best known for their sexually suggestive songs in the 50s about "Annie," a woman of dubious reputation. INT.2: Magician and juggler Penn Jillette. As half of the comedy team of Penn and Teller, he's performed his macabre illusions on "Saturday Night Live," "Late Night with

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author Jonathan Kozol. His new book, Rachel and Her Children, is about The Martinique Hotel, one of the largest welfare hotels in New York City. Kozol spent two years interviewing the families who lived there. Kozol's previous work has focused on inner city education and illiteracy. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews Cho-Liang Lin's performance of Mozart's Third and Fifth Violin Concertos. INT.2: Rock singer, songwriter and record producer T-Bone Burnett. He's produced the work of musicians like Marshall Crenshaw, Los Lobos, Roy Orbison and Elvis Costello. In 1975, Burnett travelled and performed with Bob Dylan's "Rolling Thunder Review." Burnett's new solo album, which he produced and wrote the songs for, is titled "The Talking Animals." REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses the sanitized language defense experts use to describe nuclear war and weapons.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Exiled South African singer Miriam Makeba. At 20, she became the lead vocalist for a top South African band. And when her performances brought her international acclaim, she used her forum to speak out against Apartheid. She was subsequently banned from her native country, and then later from America for her marriage to the radical Stokely Carmichael. For the past 20 years, she's toured with her mentor, singer Harry Belafonte, and last year she toured with Paul Simon's Graceland Tour. REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "How Ya Like Me Now?," the new album by Rap star Kool Moe Dee. INT.2: Autobiographical monologist Spalding Gray. Gray is best known for his monologue "Swimming to Cambodia," about his experiences during the filming of the movie "The Killing Fields." "Swimming to Cambodia" was produced as a film last year, and Gray appeared in the David Byrne film "True Stories," as well as a recent installment of the PBS comedy series "Trying Times." Gray is wrapping up a 10-month residency at the Mark Tapper Forum in Los Angeles where he worked on several new monologues. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Dead," the John Huston movie adapted from the celebrated short story by James Joyce.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist Joseph Heller, author of Catch 22, Something Happened and No Laughing Matter, his 1985 account of being stricken with Guillain-Barre Syndrome, a neurological disease in which the peripheral nervous system is attacked. Within two weeks of the first symptoms, Heller could hardly breathe or swallow. It took him two years to relearn his basic motor functions. Heller's best known work is still his first, Catch 22, a satire of the military bureaucracy and the madness of war. REV.1: Banjo and pedal steel guitar player Winnie Winston will perform several pieces. A four-time world champion on the banjo at the country's top bluegrass competition, the Union Grove Old Time Fiddler's Convention in North Carolina, Winston has played with Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys, Dave Bromberg and the late Steve Goodman. INT.2: Canadian author Jane Rule, one of the best known and most widely read lesbian writers. Rule is best known for her 1985 novel Desert of the Heart, which was later adapted into the movie "Desert Hearts." Her new book is titled Memory Board. REV.2: Ken Tucker reviews the home video release of "The Adventures of Tintin," a European comic strip that featured a boy reporter accompanied by a wire-haired terrier. The strip, which first appeared in 1929, captivated children and adults alike, winning the praise of Winston Churchill and Charles DeGaulle. In 1962, the strip was made into animated cartoons by the American producer Charles Shows.
Interview with Kate Simon; Review of Paul Bley's album "Turns"; Interview with Zelda Rubenstein; Review of the television show "Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour February 1, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457448].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author Kate Simon. Simon is best known for her travel books (Kate Simon's Paris, New York: Places and Pleasures) and for her two vivid memoirs of coming of age in the New York City of the 1920s and 30s. The first, Bronx Primitive: Portraits in a Childhood, portrays the immigrant neighborhoods just after World War I. In the second, A Wider World: Portraits in an Adolescence, Simon recalls her tumultuous adolescence as she discovered the world beyond the neighborhoods of her youth. Her latest work, A Renaissance Tapestry, The Gonzaga of Mantua, draws on her travel writing, and her particular interest in the family dynasties that ruled Renaissance Italy. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews a reissue of a 1964 session featuring pianist Paul Bley. In the early years of his career, Bley worked closely with pianist Charles Mingus and saxophonist Ornette Coleman. Since the 60s, he's led his own small groups. INT.2: Actress Zelda Rubenstein. After being cast as one of the little people in the film "Under the Rainbow," she played the clairvoyant in "Poltergeist." She now stars in the new horror film "Anguish." REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews the 20th anniversary reunion of "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour." While the show features some clips from the original programs, it is composed mostly of updated skits featuring comics from including Steve Martin, Leigh French and Pat Paulson. The musicians include Glenn Campbell, John Hartford, Jennifer Warnes and Mason Williams.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Richard Gilman, writer, drama critic and professor at the Yale School of Drama. His memoir, Faith, Sex and Mystery recounts his conversion from Judaism to Catholicism and then his gradual loss of faith. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast 6.9.87.) REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles The Buzzcocks, a British punk group that had more influence on the British punk scene than better-known bands like The Sex Pistols. The band was based in Manchester and had an even grittier veneer than that of the notorious London punk bands. INT.2: Stand-up comic Reno. Her routines lampoon current sexual politics. REV.2:

Interview with Ninotchka Rosca; Review of two reissues of the Kolisch Quartett's playing Mozart; Interview with P. S. Mueller; Commentary on the urban legend of the skier with the broken arm. February 3, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457597].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Philippine journalist Ninotchka Rosca. For years, she worked as a journalist in the Philippines. After imprisonment by the Marcos regime, she went into political exile in the United States. She returned to the Philippines just as Marcos was losing power. She recalls that period in a book titled Endgame.

REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a reissue featuring the Kolisch Quartett, a little-known but innovative European ensemble that played in the 30s and 40s. They recorded sparingly, but two of their works have just been reissued. INT.2: Cartoonist P.S. Mueller. His one-frame, absurdist work appears regularly in alternative newspapers around the country. His new book of cartoons is titled Spread of Terror. REV.2: Jan Harold Brunvand explores the urban legend about the skier who stops to relieve herself, slips and breaks her arm. As she's leaving the hospital meets other skiers with broken limbs who say when they saw a woman skiing with her pants down they laughed so hard they lost their balance.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Father Robert Drinan. For ten years, he was a Congressman from Massachusetts. He left his seat when the Pope ordered all priests to leave elected office. He now teaches law at Georgetown University and has recently completed a book on human rights. REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the No Speak record series, all-instrumental albums brought out by the producer Miles Copeland. The artists are Pete Haycock, formerly of the Climax Blues Band, William Orbit, Stewart Copeland, guitarist for the Police and the group Wishbone Ash. INT.2: Novelist and translator Richard Lourie. His new novel is titled Zero Gravity and follows his successful debut First Loyalty. Lourie has been closely involved with the Russian and Polish underground intelligentsia and the emigre communities in America. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Serpent and the Rainbow," the latest horror film by horror-master Wes Craven, and "She's Having a Baby," by John Hughes, the director of "Pretty in Pink."

Interview with Thomas Z. Shepard; Interview with John McCutcheon; Interview with Stephen Schiff; Commentary on feminist and lesbian theater. February 5, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457447].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Record producer Thomas Z. Shepard, one of the most imaginative and successful producers of Broadway and classical recordings. Shepard has produced the cast recordings for "Sweeney Todd," "Ain't Misbehavin'," "La Cage Aux Folles," and "Me and My Girl," which has just been nominated for a Grammy. REV.1: Hammer dulcimer virtuoso John McCutcheon returns for another performance. INT.2: Fresh Air's film critic Stephen Schiff. Schiff is the Critic-at-Large for Vanity Fair magazine where he writes feature articles and the monthly film review column, "Short Schiff." From 1978 to 1983, Schiff was the film critic for the weekly Boston Phoenix. He has served three terms as chairman of the National Society of Film Critics. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone explores the work by some of the leading performers in feminist and lesbian theater.

Interview with David Aaron; Review of Mark Helias' album "The Current Set"; Interview with John Waters, Part 1; Review of the television show "Frontline." February 8, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457602].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: David Aaron, former deputy director of the National Security Council. His experience as an arms negotiator in the Carter administration provides the background for State Scarlet, his novel about terrorism and nuclear weapons. REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "The Current Set," bassist Mark Helias' second album as band leader and writer. Helias is probably best known for his work in the late 70s and early 80s with saxophonists Dewey Redman and Anthony Braxton. "The Current Set" features trumpeter Herb Robertson, trombonist Robin Eubanks and alto saxophonist Tim Berne. INT.2: The first part of a two-part interview with filmmaker and writer John Waters. His new film - "Hairspray" - follows a long line of wildly eccentric films like "Polyester," "Pink Flamingos," and "Female Trouble." Like those films, the setting for "Hairspray" is Baltimore. The cast includes Divine, Debbie Harry, Pia Zadora and Sonny Bono. REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews "The Man Who Shot John Lennon," the "Frontline" documentary on Mark David Chapman. The program relies on audiotaped psychiatric interviews with Chapman, and on a close analysis of the novel The Catcher in the Rye, which Chapman followed as though it were a script for Lennon's murder.

---

Description of show segment(s)

---

Interview with Joan Chen; Review of Seiji Ozawa and the Boston Symphony Orchestra's album of Gabriel Faure recordings; Interview with Carl Weathers; Commentary on the language of talking computers. February 10, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457449].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress Joan Chen. She co-stars in the epic film "The Last Emperor" as the Emperor Pu Yi's wife. In her native China, she was one of the country's leading actresses. Since moving to the United States, she has also appeared in the film "Tai-Pan." REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a recent recording in which Seiji Ozawa leads the Boston Symphony Orchestra in music of Gabriel Faure. The album also features soprano Lorraine Hunt and cellist Jules Eskin. INT.2: Actor Carl Weathers. He stars in the new film "Action Jackson." His first big role was as the fighter Apollo Creed in the four "Rocky" films. Before acting, Weathers played football for the Oakland Raiders. REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg explores the language and sounds of talking computers and how they handle the subtlety of vocal inflection.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Bob Geldof, the star of the Irish rock band The Boomtown Rats and organizer of the Band Aid and Live Aid benefit concerts to aid starvation victims in Africa. His autobiography is titled Is That It? REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the music of British pop stars Rick Astley and his sister Virginia. Rick Astley has the top hit in England - "Never Gonna Give You Up" - and the song is now getting wide airplay on U.S. stations. Virginia Astley has recorded several albums in Europe. Her first American album has just been released. INT.2: Rock Critic Ken Tucker. It's another in the continuing series of interviews with Fresh Air's contributors. Ken tells us how a frustrated college poet found himself in crowded clubs listening to punk bands and being paid for it. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Unbearable Lightness of Being," based on the 1984 novel by Czech writer Milan Kundera. The story is set in Prague in 1968 on the eve of the Russian invasion. The film stars British actor Daniel Day Lewis, who received critical acclaim for his roles in "My Beautiful Laundrette" and "Room With a View."

Interview with Robert Thurman; Interview with Orlando Haddad; Interview with Steven Segal; Review of the film "The Shadow of the Thin Man." February 12, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457369].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Dr. Robert Thurman, the first American to be ordained as a Tibetan Buddhist monk. He later returned to the United States and established The Institute for Buddhist Studies at the University of Massachusetts. He visited Tibet in the fall of 1987 and is now setting up a Tibet House in New York City. REV.1: Brazilian guitarist Orlando Haddad performs two songs popular during "Carnaval," the holiday that preceded Lent. INT.2: Computer animator Steven Segal. Segal does his programming on his home computer, unlike most computer animation which is composed on complex processors. His entry in a national computer animation festival is titled "Dance of the Stumblers." REV.2: Ken Tucker reviews the home video release of "The Shadow of the Thin Man," the last of the five "Thin Man" movies, a series made in the 30s and 40s and created by Dashiell Hammett that starred William Powell and Myrna Loy as a dashing husband-and-wife detective team.

---

Interview with Arlene Violet; Commentary on Mardi Gras music; Interview with Lloyd Schwartz; Review of Chinua Achebe's novel "Anthills of the Savannah." February 16, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457370].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Arlene Violet, the first female state attorney general in the country. She was also the first nun in Rhode Island to graduate from law school. She has sued a bishop, investigated corrupt judges, retried Claus Von Bulow and the earned the nickname "Attila the Nun." She's written an autobiography titled Convictions. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks at the music of Mardi Gras as performed by Professor Longhair, the Neville family and The Hawkettes. INT.2: Fresh Air's classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz. It's part of our continuing series of conversations with Fresh Air's contributors. Schwartz is the classical music editor of the Boston Phoenix and writes for The Atlantic magazine and Vanity Fair. Schwartz was the winner of the 1987 ASCAP Deems Taylor for music criticism. REV.2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Anthills of the Savannah, a novel by Nigerian writer Chinua Achebe.

---

Interview with Mike McAlary, Harry Winter, and Tony Magno; Review of Leonard Bernstein's album "A Quite Place"; Interview with Sathima Bea Benjamin; Commentary on buying sofas. February 17, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457608].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Mike McAlary, a reporter for the New York paper Newsday. His book Buddy Boys reveals the drama behind one of the biggest New York City police corruption scandals since Serpico. Buddy Boys is the story of how two corrupt cops, Harry Winter and Tony Magno, consented to inform on fellow officers who were routinely robbing drug dealers and then selling the drugs. REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a 1986 recording of a live performance of Leonard Bernstein's opera "A Quiet Place," the sequel to "Trouble in Tahiti." "A Quiet Place" traces what happened to the characters introduced in "Trouble in Tahiti," a satiric look at marriage and life in the suburbs. INT.2: Black South African jazz singer Sathima Bea Benjamin. She's led many groups and has also recorded with her husband, composer and pianist Abdullah Ibrahim, also known as "Dollar Brand." REV.2: Humorist Al Gingold expounds on the purchase of a sofa, a key milepost in the coming of age in America.

Interview with Kenny Davern, Howard Alden, and Phil Flanigan; Review of T-Bone Burnett's album "The Talking Animals"; Interview with Peter Kornbluh; Review of the film "Shoot to Kill." February 18, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457606].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with Kenny Davern, one of the greatest living clarinetist playing traditional jazz. Davern will perform with guitarist Howard Alden and bassist Phil Flanigan. REV.1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "The Talking Animals," the new album by singer, songwriter and record producer T-Bone Burnett. Burnett has produced the work of musicians like Marshall Crenshaw, Los Lobos, Roy Orbison and Elvis Costello. In 1975, Burnett travelled and performed with Bob Dylan's "Rolling Thunder Review." INT.2: Peter Kornbluh, an information analyst with the National Security Archive in Washington, D.C. Kornbluh is the co-editor of Low Intensity Warfare, an analysis of the numerous counter-insurgency operations the United States is engaged in around the world. Low Intensity Warfare looks at the future of American war-fighting capabilities as they are reoriented toward unconventional conflicts in the Third World. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Shoot To Kill," the thriller that stars Sidney Poitier and Tom Berenger. The plot has Poitier, an urban FBI agent, forced into an alliance with an embittered trail guide played by Tom Berenger as they track a killer in the mountains of the Pacific Northwest.
Interview with Louis Malle; Commentary on Irish folk songs; Interview with Rita Mae Brown; Review of Rodney Dangerfield's one-man show. February 19, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457607].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film Director Louis Malle. He made his mark in French New Wave Cinema with such films as "Murmur of the Heart" and "Lacombe Lucien." More recently he has been working in the U.S. making films such as "Atlantic City" and "My Dinner with Andre." His latest film, "Au Revoir Les Enfants," is a reflection on his childhood. REV.1: Singer Mick Moloney returns to play two Irish folk songs. INT.2: Rita Mae Brown, author of the classic feminist novels Rubyfruit Jungle and Southern Discomfort. Her other novels include High Hearts and Six of One. Her latest work, Starting From Scratch: A Different Kind of Writer's Manual, shares with writers her own tips and techniques. REV.2: Critic-at-Large Laurie Stone explores the humor of Rodney Dangerfield, the comic who has built a career on getting no respect. Dangerfield is now performing on Broadway.

Interview with Jackie Mason; Review of the television program "Repercussions"; Interview with Robert Hunter; Commentary on VCRs and children. February 22, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457604].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comic JACKIE MASON. He's the star of the one-man Broadway show, "The World According to Me," which will re-open later this Spring. During the show's first run, it drew more sold-out houses than any other non-musical attraction on Broadway. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on 9/29/87) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Repercussions," the British documentary series on African and Afro-American music. One segment features American jazz drummer MAX ROACH; another highlights the Los Angeles rhythm-and-blues scene and "highlife" musicians from Ghana. The series is now available on home video. INT.2: Lyricist and songwriter ROBERT HUNTER. He's best known for his 28-year collaboration with Jerry Garcia of the Grateful Dead, writing the lyrics to the classics "Uncle John's Band" and "Truckin," and the recent hit "Touch of Grey." He has a new solo album titled "Liberty." REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI talks about the effect video cassette recorders have had on the way his kids watch TV.
Interview with Divine; Commentary on Doug Sahm; Interview with Gloria Naylor; Review of Roger Angell's essay collection "Season Ticket." February 23, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457368].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: The actor DIVINE. He's now starring in John Waters' new film "Hairspray." Divine is known for his roles as freaky, obese, gaudy women. He's become a pop star in Europe. REV.1: Rock historian EDWARD profiles the career of versatile Texas rock n' roller DOUG SAHM, including the night in 1952 when he performed while sitting on the lap of Hank Williams, and his escapades as the leader of The Sir Douglas Quintet, a group of southerners who tried to convince the public they were British. INT.2: Writer GLORIA NAYLOR. Her novels, Linden Hills and the recent Mama Day create a world in which blacks achieve success at the expense of their own history and identity. Naylor's first work, The Women of Brewster Place, won the 1983 American Book Award for First Fiction. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews baseball writer Roger Angell's latest collection of essays, Season Ticket. The essays, which previously appeared in The New Yorker magazine, cover the five seasons of play between 1981 and 1986.

Interview with Edward James Olmos; Review of Witold Lutoslawski's album "Lutoslawski Conducts Lutoslawski"; Interview with Robert Parker; Commentary on sexism in language. February 24, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457605].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: EDWARD JAMES OLMOS. He plays Lt. Castillo in the popular television series "Miami Vice" and is now starring in a soon-to-be released film "Stand and Deliver." Olmos also starred in the films "Zoot Suit" and "The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez" and "Blade Runner." REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Lutoslawki Conducts Lutoslawski," a new Phillips recording featuring Polish musician WITOLD LUTOSLAWSKI. The recording features Lutoslawski's Cello Concerto, with Heinrich Schiff as soloist. INT.2: Wine critic ROBERT PARKER. Widely regarded as the world's most influential wine critic, Parker takes a strongly consumerist view of his craft, warning consumers about overrated, overpriced wines. His opinions are recorded in his monthly newsletter The Wine Advocate. A Parker rating of 90 for a wine (on a 50-100 scale) virtually guarantees a sellout for the shipment. REV.2:
Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG continues his discussion of sexism in language. He says the obvious concerns - like whether to use "mankind" or "humanity" - only scratch the surface.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: BERNICE JOHNSON REAGON, singer, cultural historian and director of Smithsonian's Program in Black American Culture. Reagon sings contralto with Sweet Honey in the Rock, one of the country's leading a cappella groups. She's been described as a "song shaper and song preserver." In her work with the Smithsonian, Reagon tries to maintain obscure and dying Baptist choral traditions. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Globe of Frogs," the latest album from ROBYN HITCHCOCK and the Egyptians. The group's enigmatic lyrics and strong pop melodies are a big hit on college radio stations. Ken says this English band's strongest moment comes when the listener figures out what the singers are trying to say. INT.2: TONY HUSTON, son of the late director John Huston. Tony Huston wrote the screenplay for the film "The Dead," based on the celebrated short story by James Joyce. "The Dead" was John Huston's last film. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Frantic," the new movie by director Roman Polanski and starring Harrison Ford. Ford plays an American cardiologist whose wife is kidnapped by Middle Eastern terrorists in Paris. Polanski's other films include "Chinatown," "Tess," "Repulsion" and "Rosemary's Baby."

Interview with Martin Tolchin; Commentary on music inspired by the internment of Japanese Americans; Interview with Charles Burns; Review of the television show "TV's Best Adventures of Superman." February 26, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457649].

Description of show segment(s)

highlights America's growing dependence on foreign investments. REV.1: Jazz pianist SUMI TONOOKA plays an excerpt from "Out from Silence," a work inspired by her mother's internment in a camp for Japanese-American during World War II. INT.2: Cartoonist CHARLES BURNS. His comics are grotesque stories of alienation. Burns' new book of cartoons is titled Hard-Boiled Defective Stories. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews "TV's Best Adventures of Superman," the home video cassette of the popular "Adventures of Superman" series that starred George Reeves. The release coincides with the 50th anniversary of Superman's creation as a comic-strip character by two Ohio teenagers.

Interview with Daniel Berrigan; Review of Henry Threadgill's album "Easily Slip Into Another World"; Interview with Bill Lee; Commentary on television program theme music. February 29, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457271].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: DANIEL BERRIGAN, a Jesuit priest who for the past 20 years has been at the forefront of the peace movement. He has been arrested and spent time in prison many times for his acts of civil disobedience. Berrigan was one the Catonsville 9, who protested the Vietnam war in 1968 by destroying draft records, and a member of the Plowshares 8, who damaged nuclear warheads in 1980. He now works at an AIDS hospice in New York City. Daniel Berrigan recently completed his autobiography; it's titled To Dwell in Peace. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Easily Slip Into Another World," the latest album by saxophonist HENRY THREADGILL and his sextet. Whitehead says that more than any other current jazz composer, Threadgill mixes strains from all phases of jazz history. INT.2: Jazz composer and conductor BILL LEE. He composed the scores for the films "She's Gotta Have It" and "School Daze," both written and directed by his son, SPIKE LEE. "School Daze," Spike Lee's most recent film, is loosely based on his experiences at Moorehead College in Atlanta, the same college Bill Lee and his father attended. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI shares his favorite current TV themes, the music that helps establish a show's identity before anything happens on the screen.
Interview with Gary Giddins; Commentary on Percy Sledge; Interview with Mary Gordon; Review of Jonathan Kozol's novel "Rachel and Her Children." March 1, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457272].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: GARY GIDDINS, jazz critic for The Village Voice and author of the books Celebrating Bird: the Triumph of Charlie Parker, and Rhythm-a-ning: Jazz Tradition and Innovation in the 80s. He is the founder of the American Jazz Orchestra, which performs important and neglected jazz works of the past. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the career of soul great PERCY SLEDGE. Ed says there was much more to Sledge than his hit "When a Man Loves a Woman." INT.2: Writer MARY GORDON. Her novels include The Company of Women and Final Payments, an acclaimed exploration of a Catholic upbringing. Her recent collection of short stories is titled Temporary Shelter. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Rachel and Her Children, by JONATHAN KOZOL, which examines the plight of the homeless in New York City's welfare hotels.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Military historian CLAY BLAIR. His new book is titled The Forgotten War: America In Korea. As a reporter in the Fifties, Blair was the Washington correspondent for Time and Life magazines. He later wrote for The Saturday Evening Post. For the last 23 years, Blair has been writing military histories. In The Forgotten War, he tells how warfare changed during the Korean War, and how this war, a war that the United States didn't win, affected our military strategy. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new CD that captures the legendary maestro Arturo Toscanini leading the NBC Symphony Orchestra in rehearsals of the second and third acts of Verdi's "La Traviata." INT.2: Film Director BOB SWAIM, best known for the 1982 thriller "La Balance." His new film, "Masquerade," stars Rob Lowe and Meg Tilley. It's the first film Swaim has made in America; it was shot in New York State for MGM. Swaim, who has spent the last 20 years in France, first moved to Paris in 1965 to study anthropology with Claude Levi-Strauss. REV.2: Humorist ALICE KAHN looks at the 28-year relationship between Barbie and Ken, America's best-known dolls.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor ZAKES MOKAE. He now appears in the film "The Serpent and the Rainbow." He began his acting career in his native South Africa where he and playwright Athol Fugard founded the Serpent Theater. They shocked audiences by becoming the first black and white actors to appear on stage together. Mokae continues to appear in Fugard's plays, in addition to his film career. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Rock of Life," by RICK SPRINGFIELD and "Til My Heart Stops," by LISA HARTMAN, two TV stars trying to make the rock charts. Springfield plays a doctor on the daytime soap "General Hospital;" Hartman is a cast member of the evening soap "Knot's Landing." INT.2: WALTER POLOVCHAK. Polovchak was a 12-year-old Ukrainian immigrant living with his family in Chicago, when he refused to return with them to the Soviet Union. His decision provoked a storm of controversy from his family and authorities in both countries and attracted worldwide media attention. The court battles continued for five years until Polovchak reached his 18th birthday in 1985 and was sworn in as an American citizen. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Hairspray," the latest film by director and writer John Waters. "Hairspray," a satire of the teen dance shows of the early 60s, follows a long line of wildly eccentric films like "Polyester," "Pink Flamingos," and "Female Trouble." The cast includes Divine, Debbie Harry, Pia Zadora and Sonny Bono.

Interview with Franc?oise Gilot; Interview with Tony Bird; Interview with David Frishberg, Part 1; Commentary on coverage of women's figure skating at the Calgary Olympics. March 4, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457646].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Artist, writer, and poet FRANC?OISE GILOT. During her 10-year relationship with Pablo Picasso, they had two children, Claude and Paloma. She is now married to Dr. Jonas Salk. She has written the books Life With Picasso, Interface: The Artist and the Mask, and her new book, An Artist's Journey. REV.1: A song about apartheid from TONY BIRD, a white African singer who grew up in the country of Malawi. INT.2: Jazz singer, songwriter DAVID FRISHBERG. This is the first part of two-part interview.
Throughout the 60s, Frisberg wrote songs like "I'm Hip" and "Peel Me a Grape." Then in the early 70s, he started singing his own songs. Frisberg will also play a few songs throughout both parts of the interview. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE looks back at television's coverage of the women's figure skating competition at the Winter Olympics in Calgary.

Interview with George Cadwalader; Review of Per Husby's album "Your Eyes"; Interview with David Frishberg, Part 2; Commentary on the television show "Moonlighting." March 7, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457648].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: GEORGE CADWALADER. A former Marine captain who was wounded in Vietnam, Cadwalader founded and ran the Penikese Island School for hard-core delinquent boys on a remote island off the coast of Massachusetts. It was run in a strict manner and used the techniques of survival schools like Outward-Bound, hoping to re-build character. But Cadwalader found that almost all of the boys ended up back in prison when they left the school. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Your Eyes," the second big band album by the Norwegian pianist and composer PER HUSBY. INT.2: Part two of an interview with singer and songwriter DAVID FRISHBERG, who composed pop hits like "Peel Me a Grape" and "I'm Hip." He'll also perform on the piano. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI turns historian and tries to determine the precise moment that "Moonlighting" began it's fall.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Drs. WILLIAM MASTERS, VIRGINIA JOHNSON and ROBERT KOLODNY discuss their controversial book Crisis: Heterosexual Behavior in the Age of AIDS. They argue in the book that the risk to the heterosexual population posed by the AIDS virus has been dramatically understated. Drs. Masters and Johnson are best-known for their work on sexuality, particularly the book Human Sexual Response. Also, a seven-minute interview with NANCY PADIAN, who is directing a California study into the transmission of AIDS in heterosexual couples. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the glitter rock band The New York Dolls. Their front man was David Johansen, who has since recast himself as the martini-swilling crooner Buster Poindexter. INT.2: Character comedian JEFFREY ESSMANN. His sketches mix surreal comic insight with topical humor, much in the tradition of Lily Tomlin. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews S, the new novel by JOHN UPDIKE. The novel is a modern story that draws from Nathaniel Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter.

Interview with Ruby Dee; Review of Placido Domingo's album "Greatest Love Songs"; Interview with Pierre Dulaine and Yvonne Marceau; Commentary on Californian accents. March 9, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924706].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress RUBY DEE. Together with her husband OSSIE DAVIS, Ruby Dee, has performed on stage, screen and television for 30 years. In the early part of her career, she and her husband lived by staging church readings of black authors like Langston Hughes and Phillis Wheatley. One of their best-known projects was the 13-part PBS series, "With Ossie & Ruby," which showcased black artists like Louis Armstrong, Della Reese and Max Roach. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a recording featuring famed Italian tenor PLACIDO DOMINGO singing pop songs like "Yesterday" and "Maria." INT.2: PIERRE DULAINE and YVONNE MARCEAU, artistic directors of the American Ballroom Theater. In 1984, they formed the American Ballroom Theater to perform and preserve the tradition of ballroom dancing. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines the diversity of accents in sunny California.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer ROBERT LUDLUM. His thrillers, all instant bestsellers, include The Osterman Weekend, The Aquitaine Progression and The Matarese Circle. His latest is titled The Icarus Agenda and places American hostages in the Mideast at the center of a superpower standoff. Ludlum is a former actor and theatrical producer who was 40 when he decided to try his hand at writing. REV.1: Rock critic KEN
TUCKER reviews "Now and Zen," the new album by Robert Plant, former leader singer of the super group Led Zeppelin. INT.2: Jazz singer CASSANDRA WILSON. When she moved to New York City in the early 80s, she decided to put her singing career behind her and concentrate on her family. She is now the best-known of several emerging female jazz singers. Her new album is titled "Days Aweigh." REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Off Limits," starring William Defoe ("Platoon") and Gregory Hines ("White Knights"). "Off Limits" is about two police officers in Saigon during the height of the Vietnam war. (NOT AIRED) REV.2: Actor Divine recently died. Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF offers his tribute.

Interview with Peter Sichrovsky; Commentary on Fats Waller; Interview with Kool Moe Dee; Review of the film "Penn and Teller's Cruel Tricks for Dear Friends." March 11, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457685].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: PETER SICHROVSKY. His new book, Strangers in Their Own Land: Young Jews in Germany and Austria Today, is an exploration of the lives and motivations of the European Jews who either stayed or returned to to live in countries whose people brought on them the horrors of the Holocaust. In the introduction, Sichrovsky says that his central question in researching the book was, "What does it mean for a Jew to live in Germany today?" REV.1: Jazz rhythm guitarist MARTY GROSZ performs two songs written by his favorite inspiration, Fats Waller. (Repeat. Original broadcast 6.26.87.) INT.2: Rap star KOOL MOE DEE. When he first started rapping on park benches in the lat 70s, rap was a fad few believed would stick. Now rap has gone mainstream. Kool Moe Dee is considered the dean of the old school. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews "Penn and Teller's Cruel Tricks for Dear Friends," an interactive home video cassette that features some of the magic duo's favorite scams.
Interview with Nick Kotz; Review of the Lizard Brothers' album "Cracked Sidewalks"; Interview with Ian Whitcomb; Review of the television show "The Wonder Years." March 14, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457682].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist NICK KOTZ. His new book, Wild Blue Yonder: Money, Politics and the B-1 Bomber, is an in-depth examination of how cost over-runs, politics and a basic pork barrel mentality has compromised the making of the B-1 bomber. Kotz's study of military leadership won the National Magazine Award for Public Service. He also authored the highly acclaimed book, Let Them Eat Promises. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Cracked Sidewalks" the new album from tenor saxophonist RICH HALLEY and his sextet. Halley lives in Oregon, a reminder, Kevin says, that not all jazz is spawned in New York. INT.2: IAN WHITCOMB, an Englishman in love with American music. Since first coming to the United States in the early 60s, he has devoted his career to promoting and keeping alive the tradition of American popular song, particularly those from the Tin Pan Alley era. His new book, Irving Berlin and Ragtime America, salutes the music of Irving Berlin, who will celebrate his 100th birthday this year. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Wonder Years," a new ABC series. The show is an extended flashback to 1968 and the junior high school days of Daniel Stern ("Diner" and "Breaking Away"), the show's narrator, and Fred Savage ("The Princess Bride"), who plays Stern as he was in 1968.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist and screenwriter DAN WAKEFIELD. His new book, Returning: A Spiritual Journey, describes his encounters with alcoholism, atheism, psychoanalysis, and his ultimate rediscovery of spiritual belief. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles LOUIS JORDAN. Between 1930 and 1950, Jordan spearheaded the rhythm and blues sound. He was one of the very first crossover artists, appealing to both blacks and whites. Ed focuses on the Louis Jordan who pioneered rap music. INT.2: Independent jazz producer ORRIN KEEPNEWS. For the past 30 years he's produced the music of jazz artists like Thelonious Monk, Bill Evans, McCoy Tyner and Wes Montgomery. He was the founder of two important jazz labels, Riverside Records and Milestone Records. This year, he won a Grammy for the liner notes of a new box set of the complete Riverside recordings of Thelonious Monk. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Fifth Child, the new novel by DORIS LESSING.

---

Interview with Eric Hansen; Review of Jeffrey Tate's album of Haydn symphonies; Interview with Bill Buford; Commentary on returning to one's childhood home. March 16, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457683].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Traveler ERIC HANSEN. In 1982, Hansen set out alone across Borneo, an island in Indonesia composed almost entirely of rain forests and populated by natives who have had the least amount of contact with westerners. Hansen's account of his travels is contained in the book Stranger in the Forest: A Foot Across Borneo. Hansen has also travelled to North Africa, Afghanistan, Nepal, India and Southeast Asia. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the career of British conductor JEFFREY TATE. Tate has been crippled since birth. His first career was medicine. Lloyd reviews a new recording featuring Tate and the English Chamber Orchestra playing Haydn's Military Symphony No. 100 and the Drum Roll Symphony. INT.2: BILL BUFORD, editor of Granta Magazine, a literary publication that offers journalism, criticism and fiction. Authors whose work the magazine has published include American short-story writer Raymond Carver, Czech novelist Milan Kundera, and Nobel Prize-winner Gabriel Garcia Marquez. REV.2: Humorist ALICE KAHN reflects on the difficulty of returning to your childhood home.

---

Interview with John Updike; Review of The Talking Heads' album "Naked"; Interview with Gene LePere; Review of the film "D. O. A." March 17, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457644].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer JOHN UPDIKE. He is one of the most-read, most-published, most-analyzed American writers. His works include The Witches of Eastwick, The Coup, Rabbit Run and Rabbit Redux. Updike's new novel, S, is a modern story drawn from Nathaniel Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Naked," the long-awaited album from The Talking Heads. The album experiments with a variety of genres, including Funk, African Pop and Salsa. INT.2: GENE LEPERE. Her book, Never Pass This Way Again, documents her arrest and month-long detention in Turkey for allegedly smuggling archeological artifacts. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "D.O.A.," the new movie starring Dennis Quaid and Meg Ryan. Quaid plays a college professor who is poisoned and has 24 hours before his imminent death to find his murderer.

Interview with Marian Burros; Commentary on Professor Longhair; Interview with Annie Potts; Review of Robert Ferro's novel "Second Son." March 18, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457686].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: MARIAN BURROS, food columnist for "The New York Times." Her weekly column "De Gustibus" is an eccentric and informative look at what we eat, from trendy purple vegetables to Mother's medicinal chicken soup. REV.1: The first in a seven-part series of performance pieces with MAC REBENNACK, better known as DR. JOHN. Today, a tribute to legendary New Orleans pianist Professor Longhair. INT.2: Actress ANNIE POTTS. She's becoming familiar to audiences for her role in TV's "Designing Women." But before that, she was cast often as quirky, off-the-wall characters in films like "Ghostbusters" and "Pretty in Pink." REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews Second Son, a new novel by ROBERT FERRO about AIDS.

Interview with Fred de Cordova; Review of John Zorn's album "Spillane"; Interview with Bebe Miller; Review of the television show "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd." March 21, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457643].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: FRED DE CORDOVA, executive producer of "The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson." His autobiography, "Johnny Came Lately," is a behind-the-scenes tell-all about the workings of one of television's longest-running and highest rated shows. de Cordova credits include directing Ronald Reagan in "Bedtime for Bonzo," directing "The Jack Benny Show," "The Burns and Allen Show," and "My Three Sons." REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the latest album from avant-garde saxophonist and composer JOHN ZORN, in which Zorn plays homage to the detective writer MICKEY SPILLANE.
INT.2: New York based post-modern dancer and choreographer BEBE MILLER. Her choreography stands out for its energetic, aggressive physicality and for its themes of family and relationships. Miller is the winner of the prestigious "Bessie" New York Dance and Performance Award. In 1984, Miller formed her own company, Bebe Miller and Company. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the return of "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd," the short-lived but highly praised NBC series that ran for 13 weeks in the Spring of 1987. The series stars Blair Brown as Molly Dodd, the eccentric New Yorker who lurches from one mid-life crisis to the next.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: HERBERT MITGANG, cultural correspondent for The New York Times, and a former member of its editorial board. His new book, Dangerous Dossiers: Exposing the Secret War Against America's Greatest Authors, examines the 50-year espionage campaign waged by the CIA and the FBI against writers such as Ernest Hemingway, Sinclair Lewis, William Faulkner and Norman Mailer. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the band Brinsley Schwarz. During the 70s, this band started the pub rock scene, where people put off by the glamour posturing of popular rock stars could hear rock-n-roll in informal and inexpensive surroundings. INT.2: The first of a two-part interview with comedian and political satirist AL FRANKEN. Along with partner Tom Davis, Franken has written for and performed on "Saturday Night Live" since 1975. This first part focuses on Franken's political satire, which is in full bloom during the current presidential primary season. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews two new biographies of ROY COHN, the counsel for the Senate committee conducting the McCarthy trials, and McCarthy's aide and confidante.
Interview with Kris Kristofferson; Review of Simon Rattle's album "Symphony No. 2 in C minor"

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer and actor KRIS KRISTOFFERSON. His hit songs "Me and Bobby McGee," and "Help Me Make it Through the Night," earned him acclaim as a country singer. His musical success led him to films, and he went on to act in westerns ("Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid"), comedies ("Semi-Tough"), and musicals ("A Star is Born"). In the past few years, he's appeared in the TV mini-series "Amerika" and "Blood and Orchids." REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a recording featuring British conductor Simon Rattle and his City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra in Mahler's "Resurrection Symphony," with contralto Janet Baker and soprano Arlene Auger. INT.2: The second of a two-part interview with comedian and political satirist AL FRANKEN. Along with partner Tom Davis, Franken has written for and performed on "Saturday Night Live" since 1975. This second part focuses on Franken's stint with "Saturday Night Live," where he has worked since high school. He discusses his relationship with the NBC censors and performs a skit that never made it on the air. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG on shibboleths, those subtle points of grammar and usage that linguists' consider vital but which most people have never heard of.

Interview with Arthel "Doc" Watson; Review of Joni Mitchell "Chalk Mark in a Rainstorm"; Interview with Paul Weston and Jo Stafford; Review of the film "The Milagro Beanfield War."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: ARTHEL "DOC" WATSON, one of America's premier acoustic folk guitarists. His flat-pick style of playing traditional folk and bluegrass has made his sound one of the most distinctive of any folk artist. His 24 albums have earned him four Grammys. In the folk music community, Watson is best known for his part in preserving the traditional ballads and melodies of southern Appalachia. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Chalk Mark in a Rainstorm," the new album from Joni Mitchell. INT.2: Pianist and bandleader PAUL WESTON and singer JO STAFFORD. They're better known as Jonathan and Darlene Edwards, satirists of inept musicianship. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Milagro Beanfield War,” based on the popular New Mexico novel by John Nichols and directed by Robert Redford.

Interview with Nicholas Daniloff; Commentary on Hoagy Carmichael; Interview with Jean-Claude Lauzon; Review of Sherlock Holmes films. March 25, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457531].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: NICHOLAS DANILOFF. He was a reporter in the Soviet Union for U.S. News and World Report when he was arrested and accused by Soviet authorities of being a spy. He was eventually released after President Reagan agreed to swap a Soviet KGB agent arrested on charges of spying in New York. REV.1: The second in a seven-part series of performance pieces with MAC REBENNACK, better known as DR. JOHN. Today he pays tribute to HOAGY CARMICHAEL. INT.2: JEAN-CLAUDE LAUZON. This French Canadian filmmaker talks about his journey from the reform schools of Montreal to becoming an award winning filmmaker. His first feature film "Night Zoo" recently won 13 Genie awards, the Canadian equivalent of the Oscar. REV.2: KEN TUCKER on new Sherlock Holmes movies, now available on home video.

Interview with Leon Fleisher; Review of Wally Fawkes' album "Whatever Next!"; Interview with Yehudi Menuhin; Review of the television program "Dear America March 28, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457533].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Pianist and conductor LEON FLEISHER. After a neurological disorder disabled his right hand, he turned to piano works written for the left hand alone, and also began a successful career conducting. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album "Whatever Next!," from WALLY FAWKES and his Soho Shakers. Fawkes is an English clarinetist who has been a part of the British traditional jazz scene since its beginnings in the 1940s. INT.2: Violinist YEHUDI MENUHIN (Ya-hoo-dee Men-you-in). Menuhin's career began early: he was a child prodigy and made his debut in 1924 when he was seven. Since then, he has toured extensively and developed into one of America's most celebrated violinists. In recent years, he has become almost as well known for his deep interest in art, politics, psychology and philosophy. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews a new HBO documentary "Dear America: Letters Home from Vietnam." It's combines footage of the war with the voices of actors like Robert DeNiro and Sean Penn reading letters the troops wrote home.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: ANDREW WEIL. He's a doctor of holistic medicine and an ethnobotanist, which is the study of how medicinal plants are used in different cultures. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD gets a jump on April Fool's Day by sharing what he classifies as "the worst music ever recorded." INT.2: ETHLIE ANN VARE and GREG PTACEK, authors of the book Mothers of Invention, a compilation of inventions by women. Some have been rather mundane, like Liquid Paper and drip coffee. But others include radium, the computer language COBOL and the first computer compiler. The authors are better known for their writing about rock and roll. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Ark Sakura, a new novel by Japanese writer Kobo Abe (Koe-boe Ah-bay). Abe's other books include The Woman in the Dunes and The Ruined Map. The Ark Sakura is a surreal vision of contemporary social and environmental problems.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: HEDRICK SMITH, the Washington correspondent for The New York Times. His new book looks at power and how it works in our nation's capital. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the recorded work of the Tallis Scholars, a group of eight British singers who specialize in unaccompanied Renaissance choral music. The group will be touring the country throughout April. INT.2: British novelist FAY WELDON. Her works include The Life and Loves of a She-Devil, Praxis and Down Among the Women. Her latest novel, a love story, is titled The Hearts of Lives and Men, and was written as a serial over the course of a year for the British magazine Woman. REV.2: Humorist ALICE KAHN shares her fantasy about being a singer, a fantasy that survives despite the fact that she's tone deaf and can't carry a tune.

Interview with Paul Kennedy; Review of George Strait's and Steve Wariner's new albums; Interview with David Tanenbaum; Review of the film "Biloxi Blues." March 31, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457620].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: PAUL KENNEDY, professor of history at Yale University and author of the new book The Rise and Fall of the Great Powers: Economic Change and Military Conflict from 1500 to 2000. In it, Kennedy contends that all great powers have floundered over their inability to limit foreign commitments in the face of rising domestic obligations. The book has introduced the term "imperial overstretch" to the political vocabulary. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums by GEORGE STRAIT and STEVE WARINER. Their music is marketed as country, but Ken says their style is similar to that of singer-songwriters of the late '60s and early '70s, like James Taylor and Bonnie Raitt. INT.2: Classical guitarist DAVID TANENBAUM. Tanenbaum is chairman of the guitar department at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. While he is best known for his interpretations of early music for the guitar, his interpretations of 20th Century works have won wide praise. His new album is a collection of lute music adapted for the classical guitar. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Biloxi Blues," the new film based on Neil Simon's Broadway play of the same name. The film stars Matthew Broderick and was directed and produced by Mike Nichols.

Interview with Robert Parrish; Commentary on Louis Armstrong; Interview with Peter Phillips; Review of the musical "Anything Goes." April 1, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457622].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: ROBERT PARRISH has at various times been an actor, film editor, director and writer. As a child, he appeared in the "Our Gang" comedies and in Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights." He worked with film director John Ford and won an Academy Award for editing in the film "Body and Soul." He's written two books of memoirs about his Hollywood experiences. REV.1: The third of a seven-part performance
Interview with Edmund White; Review of Spear's album "In the Townships"; Interview with Marilyn Wood; Review of the television program "Thy Kingdom Come, Thy Will Be Done." April 4, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457624].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: ED WHITE, author of the autobiographical novels A Boy's Own Story and The Beautiful Room Is Empty, which tell of his coming of age and maturing as a gay man. White now lives in Paris and writes for Vogue magazine. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a 1973 recording of the South African quintet Spear, featuring saxophonist DUDU PUKWANA. Like many of South Africa's best-known jazz artists, Pukwana emigrated in the middle 60s, settling in England and helping to spark the rich jazz scene there. INT.2: Festival planner MARILYN WOOD. Using dance, film, sound and light, Wood designs celebrations of the urban environment. She organized celebrations and festivals like the first Riverfront Celebration in Columbus, Ohio, The Hong Kong Arts festival, and the opening of the Tehran Museum of Art. Wood used to be a dancer with the Merce Cunningham dance company. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Thy Kingdom Come, Thy Will Be Done," a PBS special on the fundamentalist movement. The program features candid interviews with Bakker and others about televangelism and the fundamentalist right.
Interview with Austin Pendleton; Commentary on the Belmonts; Interview with Cynthia Heimel; Review of Michael Chabon's novel "The Mysteries of Pittsburgh." April 5, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457618].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor and writer AUSTIN PENDLETON. Among his best-known roles is Mr. Music on the television series "St. Elsewhere." REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles The Belmonts, the singers who backed up Dion. They went on to record hit songs of their own. INT.2: Playboy and Village Voice columnist CYNTHIA HEIMEL. Heimel brings her sassy wit to the plight of the single woman of the 80s, beset with such traumas as tackling urban life and surviving the Great Boyfriend Crunch. Her books include Sex Tips for Girls and But Enough About You. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Mysteries of Pittsburgh, the first novel by MICHAEL CHABON.

Interview with David Brinkley; Review of Rodion Shchedrin's album "The Lady With the Lapdog"; Interview with Cleve Jones; Commentary on the western canon of literature. April 6, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457619].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Television news commentator DAVID BRINKLEY. For 14 years, starting in 1956, he and Chet Huntley co-anchored "The Huntley-Brinkley Report." He now anchors the Sunday morning ABC news program "This Week with David Brinkley." Brinkley has written an account of how Washington was transformed by America's entry into World War II. The book is titled Washington Goes to War: The Extraordinary Story of the Transformation of a City and a Nation. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a recording of the score for the ballet "The Lady With the Lap Dog" by the Russian composer RODION SHCHEDRIN. The ballet was performed at the recent Soviet-American Music Festival in Boston. Shchedrin was one of the Soviet organizers of the event. INT.2: CLEVE JONES, founder of the Names Project, which inspired the sewing of three-foot by six-foot panels in memory of victims of AIDS. The project culminated in the assembly of the patches in Washington last October in a quilt the size of two football fields. A 24-city tour of the quilt to raise money for AIDS research starts later this month. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses the recent decision by Stanford University to amend its famed Western Culture requirement, and also the popularity of two recent books that critique educators for failing to emphasize the classic literature and ideas of western thought.

Interview with Penelope Leach; Review of Nick Lowe's and Elvis Costello's albums "Pinker and Prouder Than Previous" and "Out of Our Idiot"; Interview with Bob Ryan; Review of the film "Bright Lights, Big City." April 7, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457591].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: British child development expert PENELOPE LEACH. Leach is considered one of the foremost authorities on child care. Leach has said of her work that it is for the moments "when love is impossible ... the seventh time that night that you've woken up and you wonder `is it mine or do all babies behave like this?'" Her books include Your Baby & Child: From Birth to Age Five, Babyhood, Your Baby and Child and The First Six Months. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews two albums by NICK LOWE and ELVIS COSTELLO featuring previously unreleased material. The two have been longtime colleagues and collaborators. Lowe has been the producer of many of Costello's albums. INT.2: BOB RYAN, basketball writer for The Boston Globe. Together with Terry Pluto, basketball writer for the Akron Beacon Journal, Ryan has written a book that takes a microscopic look at one night in the National Basketball Association by reporting on the Jan 14, 1987 game between The Boston Celtics and the Cleveland Cavaliers. The book is titled Forty-Eight Minutes: A Night in the Life of the N.B.A., and follows every shot, every pass, and all the pre- and post-game developments. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Bright Lights, Big City," the long-awaited adaptation of the best-selling novel by Jay McInerney about life in the fast lane in New York City. The film stars Michael J. Fox, Kiefer Sutherland and Dianne Wiest.

Interview with Fran Rubel Kuzui; Commentary on James Carroll Booker, III; Interview with Ralph Steadman; Review of the film "It All Comes 'Round Again." April 8, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457595].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director FRAN RUBEL KUZUI. She's just completed her first film, "Tokyo Pop," about a young American punk singer who moves to Japan in the hopes of reviving her stalled career. REV.1: New Orleans pianist MAC REBENNACK pays tribute to JAMES CARROLL BOOKER III - his pick as the greatest New Orleans pianist. This is part four of a seven-part performance series with Rebennack, also known as DR. JOHN. INT.2: Illustrator RALPH STEADMAN. Best known for his collaborations with the journalist Hunter S. Thompson (Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas), Steadman's cartoons feature an America brainwashed by the mass media and manipulated by its leaders. His ink blob-splattered illustrations lampoon President Reagan, AIDS hysteria, the specter of nuclear annihilation and, of course, Richard Nixon. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews a home video documentary about Fairport Convention, one of the most eclectic folk bands of the 60s and early 70s.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist, journalist and columnist NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN. He's the author of 10 books, including Organized Crimes and Make-Believe Presidents. He's written for The Washington Post, The Chicago Daily News, and almost every major magazine. His latest work is titled Citizen Cohn, The Life and Times of Roy Cohn. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a reissue of the post-World War II work of WOODY HERMAN and The Thundering Herd, one of the best-known big bands. There were almost half a dozen version of The Thundering Herd, but it was the configuration featured on this album that made Herman a household name. INT.2: Travel writer MARY MORRIS. Her new book, Nothing to Declare: Memoirs of a Woman Traveling Alone, recounts her travels, alone, through Mexico, Honduras and Guatemala, and what it means for a woman to travel alone. Her earlier works include Vanishing Animals & Other Stories and The Bus of Dreams. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Street," a new cop show shot on location in Newark, New Jersey. The series, produced by the superstation WWOR, is videotaped like a documentary, a feature intended to enhance the realism.
Interview with Simon Rattle; Commentary on early rock and roll music; Interview with Dorothy Sarnoff; Review of Nan Robertson's book "Getting Better April 12, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457456].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: British conductor SIMON RATTLE. While Rattle has won acclaim for his guest conducting in America and Europe, he is best known for the success of his City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra. Rattle's success has created a new legitimacy in England for regional orchestras. The orchestra is now touring in America. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD takes on the notion that old-time rock and roll had no message or meaning, that it was simply fun. This is the message that the purveyors of collections of 50s and 60s hits are conveying in ads that recall the "fun" of the era without also evoking the harsher realities. INT.2: Image consultant DOROTHY SARNOFF. In her new book, Never Be Nervous Again, Sarnoff shares some of her advice on how to overcome nervousness and anxiety when speaking to others. Her clients include politicians, authors on tour, diplomats and television newscasters. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Getting Better: Inside Alcoholics Anonymous, by Pulitzer Prize-winning New York Times reporter NAN ROBERTSON.

Interview with Pat Conroy; Review of the cast album of "Into the Woods"; Interview with Pierce Turner; Commentary on the book "They Have a Word for It." April 13, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457593].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer PAT CONROY, author of the autobiographical novels The Prince of Tides, The Great Santini and The Lords of Discipline. They all tell the story of growing up in the South in a large family headed by an abusive Marine father. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast 1.27.87) REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the cast recording of "Into the Woods," the latest Stephen Sondheim musical. Sondheim is the composer of "Sweeney Todd," "Pacific Overtures" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." INT.2: Irish rock musician PIERCE TURNER. His first band, The Major Thinkers, became popular with New York's East Village crowd and had a hit song in "Avenue B." Turner's debut album, "It's Only a Long Way Across," was produced by minimalist composer Phillip Glass. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses the new book They Have a Word for It. The book is a collection of foreign words and expressions for which there is no ready English translation.

Interview with Tom Wolfe; Review of albums by Howard Hewett, Grandmaster Flash, and John Whitehead; Interview with Eugene Levy; Review of the film "Beetle Juice." April 14, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457592].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer TOM WOLFE, known for his "New Journalism" style of reporting in the 60s and 70s. His books from that period include The Electric Kool Aid Acid Test, Radical Chic and Mau Mauing the Flak Catchers and The Right Stuff. His new book, his first novel, is titled The Bonfire of the Vanities. It is the number two book on the New York Times Bestseller list; it has been on the list for 23 weeks.

(Rebroadcast. Original broadcast Thursday, October 29, 1987.) REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews three albums by older black male vocalists who are trying their hand at new genres, or trying to extend the traditions they first performed in. The albums are "Forever and Ever," the second solo album by HOWARD HEWETT, a former singer with the black rhythm and blues group Shalamar, "On the Strength," by the rap group GRANDMASTER FLASH, and "I Need Money Bad," by JOHN WHITEHEAD.

INT.2: Comic actor EUGENE LEVY. Levy is best known for his many roles - Sid Dithers, the Schmenge Brothers, Bobby Bittman - on the popular SCTV comedy series, which grew out of the Second City comedy troupe in Toronto. Bobby Bittman, is the subject of an upcoming comedy special on Cinemax.

REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Beetle Juice," the supernatural comedy about a couple that moves into a Victorian home hoping to remodel it only to find it's inhabited by ghosts who abhor their chic urban tastes. It stars Jeffrey Jones, Catherine O'Hara and Alec Baldwin.

Interview with Audrey Hepburn; Commentary on Cousin Joe; Interview with Alan Rudolph; Commentary on the television program "Home." April 15, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457642].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress AUDREY HEPBURN. She rocketed to international stardom for her Oscar-winning role in the film "Roman Holiday," co-starring Gregory Peck. Her other roles include Eliza Doolittle in "My Fair Lady," the blind, tormented heroine of "Wait Until Dark," and opposite Cary Grant in "Charade." She recently returned from Ethiopia on behalf of UNICEF, for whom she now serves as a Special Ambassador. REV.1: New Orleans pianist and singer MAC REBENNACK pays tribute to one of his own, the New Orleans pianist and singer COUSIN JOE. This is the fifth of a seven-part performance series with REBENNACK, who is also known as DR. JOHN. INT.2: Film director ALAN RUDOLPH. His films include "Choose Me," "Trouble in Mind," "Welcome to L.A." and "Made in Heaven." His latest film, "The Moderns," which took ten years to make, is set in the ex-patriot community in Paris in the 1920s and features many actors and actresses who have appeared in his earlier films, such as Keith Carradine and Genevieve Bujold and Geraldine Chaplin. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE discusses the new ABC show "Home." The format is similar to the morning news shows, like "Good Morning America," and "The Today Show," mixing live interviews with pre-produced segments, all of which revolve around domestic issues, like how to make pot scrubbers out of onion bags.

Interview with Mario Vargas Llosa; Review of Daryl Sherman's album "She's a Great Great Girl"; Interview with Chris Connor; Commentary on the television writers' strike and "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour." April 18, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457640].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Peruvian novelist MARIO VARGAS LLOSA. He is one of the leading figures in the recent boom in Latin American fiction. His novels include Aunt Julia and The Scriptwriter and The War of the End of the World. The latter won the Ritz Paris Hemingway Award. Vargas Llosa's books were banned and burned in Peru by the military in the late 60s. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "She's a Great Great Girl," the second album from singer DARYL SHERMAN. INT.2: Jazz singer CHRIS CONNOR. She was best known for the work she did during a brief stint with the Stan Kenton band. Connor recorded sparingly throughout the 70s and for many jazz fans it was as though she ended her career. She's now performing again and has just completed work on a new album. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI discusses how the writer's strike has benefitted "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour," and what the show's revival means for the concept of a weekly variety show.
Interview with Astor Piazzola; Commentary on Alan Freed; Interview with Ursula Oppens; Review of Paul Watkins' novel "Night Over Day Over Night." April 19, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457639].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Tango innovator ASTOR PIAZZOLLA. Since the early 60s, Piazzolla has been leading groups that play an updated tango that connects this Argentinian form with the musical innovations from Europe and America, both classical and contemporary. The adjustments have earned him the enmity of Argentinians, and for most of the 70s he lived in France where he wrote film scores. Piazzolla is a classically trained composer who wrote symphonies and studied with Nadia Boulanger, the renown French instructor of composition. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles ALAN FREED, one of the most famous, and most notorious, disc jockeys of the 50s and 60s. Freed was one of the first disc jockeys on a mainstream station (WJW in Cleveland) to play the black rhythm and blues that was the foundation of early rock and roll. INT.2: Pianist URSULA OPPENS. She's widely regarded as one of the leading interpreters of new music. Many contemporary composers, like John Adams, have written works for her. REV.2: Guest book critic LE ANNE SCHREIBER reviews Night Over Day Over Night, the first novel by American PAUL WATKINS.

Interview with Patricia Neal; Review of Igor Stravinsky's albums "Stravinsky Conducts Stravinsky" [albums have same title]; Interview with Harry Stein; Commentary on yodeling. April 20, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457590].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress PATRICIA NEAL. A star of stage and film, Neal is almost as well known for her private life - her love affair with the married Gary Cooper, the tragedies that befell several of her children, the breakup of her 30-year marriage to the British writer Roald Dahl, and the stroke that almost took away her speech. Her films include "The Breaking Point," "The Fountainhead," "A Face in the Crowd," and "Hud," for which she won the Oscar. REVIEW: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the first two compact discs of Stravinsky conducting his own music. Included are two of Stravinsky's most accessible works, "The Rite of Spring" and "Petrushka." Also included are three abstract scores, "Symphony in C," "Symphony in Three Movements," and "Symphony of Psalms." INT.2: Essayist HARRY STEIN. Stein wrote the popular "Ethics" column for Esquire Magazine. He writes a syndicated column for the United Features Syndicate. He's written a book titled One of the Guys: The Wising Up of an American Man. In it, he shares his thoughts on why men are the way they are. REV.2: Folk singer BILL STAINES gives an introductory lesson in yodeling.

---

Interview with George Whitmore; Review of Leonard Cohen's album "I'm Your Man"; Interview with Sandra Bernhard; Review of the film "The Manchurian Candidate." April 21, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457628].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: GEORGE WHITMORE, author of Someone Was Here, profiles of people whose lives have been transformed by AIDS, like the 32-year-old New York advertising executive, a counselor in a gay men's health center, health workers at an AIDS clinic in a municipal hospital. The book grew out of a highly acclaimed 1985 article in The New York Times Magazine about a man with AIDS and his counselor at a health center. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "I'm Your Man," the new LEONARD COHEN album. INT.2: Comic SANDRA BERNHARD. She's best known for her appearances on "Late Night With David Letterman" and in the Martin Scorsese film "The King of Comedy." She's now starring in the Off-Broadway one-woman show "Without You I'm Nothing," that is part stand-up comedy, part satire on the "women of rock and roll." REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Manchurian Candidate," starring Frank Sinatra, Laurence Harvey and Janet Leigh. The film was originally produced in 1962 but was never distributed because of a squabble between Sinatra, who owned the rights to the film, and the producers.

---

Interview with Wim Wenders; Commentary on the music of Mardi Gras Indians; Interview with Gerald Gardner; Review of new home video releases. April 22, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457630].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director WIM WENDERS. His films include "The American Friend," "Alice in the Cities" "Kings of the Road," and "Paris, Texas." Though his subject matter seems mundane, - a cross-country trip by two men in a van, a day in the life of a disgruntled soccer goalie - Wender shapes his stories into something much more deliberate and affecting. Wender's new film, set in his native Germany, is titled
"Wings of Desire." REV.1: New Orleans pianist and singer MAC REBENNACK plays two songs recently made popular by other New Orleans artists. This is part six of a seven-part performance series. INT.2: Television writer GERALD GARDNER. His new book, The Censorship Papers, is a collection of memos from the Hays Commission, which was the censorship arm of Hollywood's production studios from 1930 to 1968. The dossiers were released last year and Gardner covers those concerning 70 of Hollywood's best known films, including "The Maltese Falcon," "Pal Joey" and "Notorious." REV.2: Ken Tucker reviews the new PEE WEE HERMAN video that's culled from three episodes from his Saturday morning TV show. Herman is the twitty host of the popular show, and the star of the hit film "Pee Wee's Big Adventure."

Interview with James Adams; Commentary on Gil Evans; Interview with Kate Clinton; Review of the television show "China Beach." April 25, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457244].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist JAMES ADAMS, the defense correspondent for the Sunday Times of London. His new book, Secret Armies, explores the role of covert special fighting forces who combat terrorism around the world. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD pays tribute to bandleader and arranger GIL EVANS, who died on March 20. A reissue of Evans' music from the early 60s has just been released, and Whitehead uses that record to comment on Evans' varied contribution over the course of his 40-year career. INT.2: Stand-up comic KATE CLINTON. As a lesbian and feminist, Clinton started out playing women's festivals. Now she appears in the country's top comedy clubs. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast January 13, 1988) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new ABC series "China Beach." Like "M*A*S*H," "China Beach" features the medical corps that tend to the wounded. But unlike "M*A*S*H," most all the main characters in "China Beach" are women - the nurses who work in the operating rooms and run the USO clubs - and the setting is Vietnam.
Interview with Nan Robertson; Commentary on TK Productions; Interview with Pedro Almodovar; Review of Gabriel Garcia Marquez's novel "Love in the Time of Cholera." April 26, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457625].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York Times reporter NAN ROBERTSON. Her new book, Getting Better: Inside Alcoholics Anonymous, reveals the inner workings of Alcoholics Anonymous, one of the most successful self-help movements of modern times. The book is based on four years of research, which included access to A.A.'s archives and some of the key figures who helped chart the course of the movement, as well as interviews with A.A.'s rank-and-file members. Herself a recovering alcoholic, Robertson won the 1983 Pulitzer Prize-winner for her account of her own near-fatal attack of toxic-shock syndrome. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the work of TK Productions, the Miami recording company that in the mid-70s brought out acts like K.C. and the Sunshine Band ("That's the Way I Like it" and "Get Down Tonight"), George McRae ("Rock Your Baby") and Betty Wright ("Where is the Love"), musicians who combined classic southern rhythm and blues with the up-tempo beat of disco. INT.2: Spanish film director PEDRO ALMODOVAR. He compares his films, like "Law of Desire" and "What Have I Done To Deserve This?," to the films of the American film director JOHN WATERS. Like Waters, Almodovar's films take a humorous view of popular culture's cliches. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Love in the Time of Cholera, the new novel from Nobel Prize winner GABRIEL GARCIA MARQUEZ.

Interview with Roger Angell; Review of Ernest Bloch's album "Violin Concerto"; Interview with Alice Adams; Commentary on expatriates sharing language and music. April 27, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457626].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Baseball writer ROGER ANGELL. His new book, Season Ticket: A Baseball Companion, is a compilation of essays published in The New Yorker magazine over the last five seasons. The essays cover subjects from spring training, Astroturf versus grass and drug abuse. Angell's previous books include The Summer Game, Five Seasons and Late Innings. Angell is the senior fiction editor of The New Yorker. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a 1939 live performance of the Bloch Violin Concerto performed by the Hungarian soloist JOSEPH SZIGETI and conducted by WILLEM MENGELBERG. INT.2: Short story writer and novelist ALICE ADAMS. Her fiction deals often with women in transit and transition. She's best known for the 1984 novel Superior Women. Her new novel is titled Second Chances. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG looks back on the long nights he spent in a private club in Rome where the only requirement for membership was that you be a native-English speaker. He reflects on how the language brought together people who otherwise had nothing in common.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Thomas Martinez; Commentary on the music of Dr. John; Interview with Tony Auth; Review of Sandra Bernhard's one-woman show "Without You I'm Nothing." April 29, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503934].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: THOMAS MARTINEZ. His book Brotherhood of Murder, details his involvement with The Order, the extremist, right wing hate group that was implicated in numerous bank robberies and three assassinations, including the murder of Denver talk show host Alan Berg. The book details how Martinez, who grew up in a white slum in Philadelphia, was persuaded by The Order's teachings and how he was recruited for the criminal activities that supported the group. He later turned informant for the FBI.
REV.1: New Orleans pianist and singer MAC REBENNACK performs the last segment of a seven-part performance series. Up to now he's paid homage to other New Orleans musicians, like Professor Longhair and Louis Armstrong. But this time he plays his own music. He calls it "homegrown Dr. John the Night Tripper Music." INT.2: TONY AUTH, political cartoonist for The Philadelphia Inquirer. Auth's single-frame cartoons appear in more than 100 papers around the country through syndication. A new collection of his cartoons has just been published. It's titled Lost in Space: The Reagan Years. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE discusses the Off-Broadway one-woman show of comic SANDRA BERNHARD. Bernhard is best known for her appearances on "Late Night With David Letterman" and in the Martin Scorsese film "The King of Comedy." Her new show is titled "Without You I'm Nothing." It's part stand-up comedy, part satire on the "women of rock and roll."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: J.G.BALLARD, the author of the largely autobiographical novel Empire of the Sun, which film director Steven Spielberg made into a movie of the same name last year. Ballard was born in Shanghai and was interned by the Japanese during World War II. He has written 19 books. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Twilight Dreams," the third album by LESTER BOWIE'S BRASS FANTASY. With the exception of drums, the band consists entirely of brass instruments. INT.2: Cabaret singer WESLA [sometimes WESLIA] WHITFIELD. Ten years ago, she was paralyzed after she was shot in the back during a hold-up. She has since established herself as one of San Francisco's most popular cabaret singers. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the CBS remake of the 1954 film classic "The Caine Mutiny," based on Herman Wouk's acclaimed novel. Brad Davis stars as Commander Queeg, the role Humphrey Bogart made famous in the original film. Other actors include Jeff Daniels and performance artist Eric Bogosian. The performance is directed by Robert Altman.
Interview with Isaac Stern; Commentary on the Bonzo Dog Doo-Dah Band; Interview with Danitra Vance; Review of William Kennedy's novel "Quinn's Book." May 3, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457676].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Violinist ISAAC STERN. During the past 50 years he has become one of the most renowned and recorded violinists in classical music. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles one of the most eccentric rock groups from the other side of the Atlantic - the Bonzo Dog Doo-Dah Band (circa late 1960s). They infused their music with a typically British brand of humor, such as that associated with Monty Python's Flying Circus. INT.2: Comic and actress DANITRA VANCE. She appeared on "Saturday Night Live" during the 1985-86 season. From there she landed a part in the revue "The Colored Museum," at Joseph Papp's Public Theater. She played everything from a stewardess on a slave ship to a talking afro wig. She's currently reviving the part at the Mark Taper Theater in Los Angeles. She can also be seen in the upcoming movie "Sticky Fingers," starring Melanie Mayron, Helen Slater and Christopher Guest. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Quinn's Book, the new novel by William Kennedy.

Interview with Amos Oz; Review of Charles Mackerras and Prague Philharmonic Orchestra's album of Mozart serenades; Interview with Rick Springfield; Commentary on memory. May 4, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457627].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Israeli novelist AMOS OZ. He lived on a kibbutz for many years and is a veteran of the Six-Day War in 1967 and the Yom Kippur War in 1973. His books include A Perfect Peace, In the Land of Israel and his new book, Black Box. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording that features the Prague Philharmonic Orchestra under the baton of SIR CHARLES MACKERRAS performing Mozart serenades. INT.2: Rock star, teen throb and matinee idol RICK SPRINGFIELD. Springfield, who starred in the popular daytime soap "General Hospital," has a new album, his first in three years. REV.2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY. He'll read "Memory Sampler," a poem he composed in an attempt to dispose of a whole series of troubling past experiences. Halliday is an English professor at the University of Pennsylvania. His first volume of poetry is titled Little Star.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist and theater and film director ELIA KAZAN. He directed Marlon Brando in "On the Waterfront," and James Dean in "East of Eden." He was a member of the Group Theater and co-founded the Actors Studio with Lee Strasberg. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the debut album of singer-songwriter TRACY CHAPMAN. INT.2: JOHN ROTHCHILD. His new book, A Fool and His Money is a personal account of his adventures as an average investor trying to figure out the complexities of the stock and commodities markets. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Babette's Feast," a Danish film based on a story by Isaak Dennison. The film won the Oscar this year for Best Foreign Film.

Interview with Melanie Mayron; Commentary on Irving Berlin; Interview with Daniel H. Janzen; Commentary on VHS and culture. May 6, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972883983].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress MELANIE MAYRON. She currently appears in the ABC television program "thirtysomething" as Melissa, the photographer. Her films include "Girlfriends" and "Missing." She stars in and co-wrote the new film "Sticky Fingers." REV.1: Singer SUSANNAH McCORKLE performs a tribute to composer Irving Berlin, who turns 100 on May 11. McCorkle will perform tributes to Berlin each week at this time throughout the month. INT.2: Biologist DANIEL H. JANZEN's dream is to create a tropical forest in the northwest of Costa Rica. Janzen is a professor at the University of Pennsylvania. REV.2: KEN TUCKER pokes fun at the notion that the video cassette revolution would spawn legions of avid movie collectors. Increasingly, he argues, the movies available for home rental are either teen comedies or movies you can see on late-night TV.
Interview with Sherill Milnes; Review of Don Byas' album "Don Byas on Blue Star"; Interview with Jonathan Tunick; Review of the television show "American Playhouse." May 9, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457674].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: American operatic baritone SHERILL MILNES. Milnes has sung in most of the world's major opera houses. He's known primarily as a Verdi and Puccini specialist. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast Friday, October 2, 1987.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a CD reissue of the recordings of tenor saxophonist DON BYAS. The recording is titled "Don Byas on Blue Star," and captures the highlights of his recorded work during the period between 1947 and 1952. INT.2: Orchestrator and composer JONATHAN TUNICK. Though best known for his orchestrations of Stephen Sondheim musicals like "Sweeney Todd" and "Into the Woods," Tunic is increasingly gaining recognition for his own compositions. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews this week's "American Playhouse" presentation on PBS titled "The Trial of Bernhard Goetz." Goetz was acquitted last year of assault charges stemming from his shooting of four black youths in a New York City subway car after, Goetz contended, the youths tried to rob him. The trial, which dominated the New York City press for several weeks, was known as "The Subway Vigilante" trial.

Interview with Chinua Achebe; Commentary on the mid-60s a cappella revival; Interview with Elizabeth Benedict; Review of William Boyd's novel "The New Confession." May 10, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457697].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Nigerian novelist CHINUA ACHEBE. Achebe is one of Africa's foremost writers. His earlier works include Things Fall Apart, A Man of the People and Arrow of God. His latest work, his first novel in 25 years, is titled Anthills of the Savannah. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the brief regional revival of a cappella singing in the mid-60s. Some of the groups included The Five Fashions from Stanford, Conn., The Q-Tones from Philadelphia, and the Zircons from the Bronx. INT.2: Novelist ELIZABETH BENEDICT. Her second novel, The Beginner's Book of Dreams is a coming of age story about a young woman contending with her moody, alcoholic mother, and her dreamer schemer father. Benedict's first novel was titled Slow Dancing. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The New Confessions, a novel by the British writer WILLIAM BOYD. Boyd's earlier novels include Stars and Bars and An Ice Cream War.

Interview with Peter Boyer; Review of Elizabeth Welch's album "The Irving Berlin Songbook"; Interview with Susan Baur; Commentary on bilingualism in the United States. May 11, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457699].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York Times television critic PETER BOYER. His new book, Who Killed CBS? The Undoing of America's Number One News Network, explores the recent turmoil within the news division of CBS, and how it has effected the entire corporation. He reports on the ill-fated reign of CBS News President Van Gordon Sauter, the tenure of Dan Rather as anchor of the CBS Evening News and the takeover of CBS by New York investor Laurence Tisch. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ pays tribute to IRVING BERLIN, arguably the greatest American song writer, on the occasion of his 100th birthday. Schwartz will review a new recording of Berlin songs performed by ELIZABETH WELCH. INT.2: SUSAN BAUR, author of Hypochondria: Woeful Imaginings, a book that examines how hypochondria develops, how hypochondriacs stay that way, and how they have been viewed over time. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on recent activity at the federal level regarding bi-lingual education policies, and a proposed constitutional amendment to make English the nation's official language.

Interview with Hugh Masekela; Review of Shoes's album "Shoes Best"; Interview with Lulla Rosenfeld; Review of the film "High Tide." May 12, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457695].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Exiled South African trumpeter HUGH MASEKELA. In the 60's, Masekela was probably best known for his instrumental hit, "Grazing In The Grass." More recently, Masekela performed with Paul Simon during his the Graceland tour. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Shoes Best," a collection of 22 songs by Shoes, a grass-roots band from Zion, Illinois that is still trying to make it in the rock world on their own terms, without glitz and hype. They grant few interviews, never tour, and insist on complete control of their image. INT.2: Writer and actress LULLA ROSENFELD. She's written a book on Yiddish Theatre and her grandfather, Jacob Adler, one of its most renowned actors. REV.2: Guest film critic MICHAEL SRAGOW, film critic for The San Francisco Examiner. Sragow will review the Australian film "High Tide" about the reunion of an estranged mother and daughter.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet W.S.MERWIN. He won the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry for his 1970 work, The Carriers of Ladders. His books of poetry include The Song of Roland, The Compass Flower and, his latest collection, The Rain in the Trees. REV.1: Singer SUSANNAH McCORKLE performs a tribute to composer Irving Berlin. McCorkle will perform tributes to Berlin each week at this time throughout the month. INT.2: Composer WILLIAM BOLCOLM. He is best known for his humorous and accomplished piano accompaniment of his wife, the singer JOAN MORRIS, in their performances of American popular songs. His own compositions include the vast choral cantata "Songs of Innocence and Experience," that sets the poems of William Blake to music. He won this year's Pulitzer Prize in Music. Bolcolm is also renown for his ragtime compositions, especially his work "Graceful Ghost." REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews the Broadway play "M Butterfly."

Interview with Jim Lehrer; Review of the Paul Smoker Trio's and Joint Venture's albums "Alone" and "Joint Venture"; Interview with Jacob Lawrence; Review of the final two episodes of "St. Elsewhere." May 16, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457845].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: JIM LEHRER, co-anchor of the MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour, the nightly PBS news show. Lehrer is also a published novelist and playwright. His new novel is titled Kick the Can. Lehrer is also known to many viewers of PBS for his series on his own recovery from a heart attack. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews two new albums featuring trumpeter PAUL SMOKER. Smoker studied trumpet with Doc Severinsen and has played in a varied of settings, including orchestras, brass quintets and circus bands. INT.2: Painter JACOB LAWRENCE. For nearly five decades, Lawrence has been widely regarded as one of America's most important black artists. His work depicts the black American experience from the Civil War to the Civil Rights movement. In 1986, a major traveling retrospective of his work was brought together by the Seattle Art Museum. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the last two episodes of St. Elsewhere, the quirky NBC series set at the beleaguered St. Eligius Hospital. The show, which has run for seven seasons, ends on May 25th.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Cinematographer NESTOR ALMENDROS. The films he has photographed include "Sophie's Choice," "Kramer vs. Kramer" and "Days of Heaven," for which he won the Academy Award. He has directed the photography for films by Eric Rohmer and Francois Truffaut. Almendros worked in Havana in the early years of the Castro regime before he had a falling out with the authorities. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles The Velvet Underground. Sponsored by Andy Warhol, the band was a favorite of the jet-set crowd but reviled by the hippie culture that couldn't comprehend their music. The band featured Lou Reed and violist John Cale. Their best known songs include "Waiting for the Man," "Heroin" and "Sister Ray." INT.2: Writer JAMES CRUMLEY, whose tough detective fiction has earned him comparisons with Dashiell Hammett, Raymond Chandler and Ross MacDonald. His books aren't based in the stereotypical big city backdrop; Crumley's crimes are committed in his native Montana. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Friday, June 26, 1987.) REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the novel Children of the Arbat, by the Russian writer ANATOLY RYBAKOV.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director WILLIAM FRIEDKIN. He won an Academy Award for the thriller "The French Connection." His other films include "The Exorcist," "The Boys in the Band" and "The Night They Raided Minsky's." His latest work is an action-adventure film for television. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the cast recording of the contemporary opera "Nixon in China." The score was written by minimalist composer John Adams. INT.2: ALAN BECK, a leading authority on the relationships between pets and their owners. Beck is the director of the Center for Interaction of Animals and Society at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine. REV.2: Blues singer MOSES RASCOE sings "St.Louis Blues." Rascoe, who retired from truck driving in 1983, was discovered at a folk society performance in York, Pa.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Baseball great WILLIE MAYS, one of the most potent all-round players in the history of baseball. In his 22 seasons in the major leagues, Mays played in 21 All-Star Games, batted over .300 and hit 660 home runs. His autobiography, Say Hey, has just been published. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Lovesexy," the new album by Prince. INT.2: MAL SHARPE, the self-described last of the Man-on-the-Street interviewers. Sharpe, who used to contribute to National Public Radio's "All Things Considered," specializes in eliciting unusual responses from unsuspecting interviewees. He'll ask a screaming delegate on the floor of the Republican Convention in 1980 if they're happy with Reagan as the nominee. After the delegate effuses, Sharpe will ask them what's their favorite fish, or vegetable ("Asparagus, but what's that got to do with Reagan?") or if they're happy with their toaster, or how's their underwear holding out? REV.2: Guest film critic MICHAEL SRAGOW, film critic for The San Francisco Examiner, reviews "Colors," the controversial film about gangs and gang violence in Los Angeles. It stars Robert Duvall and Shawn Penn, and is directed by Dennis Hopper.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: JAY STEVENS. His book, Storming Heaven, charts the forty-year history of the hallucinogen LSD. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast Wednesday, July 26, 1987.) REV.1: Singer SUSANNAH McCORKLE performs a tribute to composer Irving Berlin. McCorkle will perform tributes to Berlin each week at this time throughout the month. INT.2: Avant-garde accordionist and composer GUY KLUCEVSEK. Klucevsek grew up in western Pennsylvania, where polkas were a popular musical form. Klucevsek has since developed an alternative polka style, best exemplified in his work on "Polka From the Fringe," 23 three-minute polkas composed by a variety of experimental artists. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Tuesday, January 19, 1988.) REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews "Flesh," "Trash" and "Heat," three films directed by PAUL MORRISEY and produced by ANDY WARHOL.

Interview with Antonio Carols Jobim; Commentary on Rod Levitt; Interview with Harry Crews; Review of the television special "Moyers May 23, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457843].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Composer ANTONIO CARLOS JOBIM, who introduced America and Europe to bossa nova, the sensual, urbane musical idiom of Brazil. Before he started composing bossa novas in the 50s, he wrote symphonies, drawing from his training as a classical musician. His most widely circulated works include "The Girl from Ipanema" and "Desafinado." REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD profiles trombonist and composer ROD LEVITT. Levitt, who wrote for marching bands and played in the pit at Radio City Music Hall, drew from every musical style available in the 50s. INT.2: Novelist and essayist HARRY CREWS. His nine novels include All We Need is Hell and The Gospel Singer. Oftentimes, the main characters of Crews' works are outsiders; The central character of Crews' most recent work, titled
The Knockout Artist, is a boxer who specializes in knocking himself out. Crews' three works of nonfiction include the autobiography A Childhood, Blood and Grits, and Florida Frenzy. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new BILL MOYERS special on PBS. In the six-part series, Moyers speaks with the late mythologist JOSEPH CAMPBELL.

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Film director ROBERT ALTMAN. He's best known for the 1975 film "Nashville," a free-form mosaic of American life as seen through 24 characters involved in a political rally. His other films include "3 Women," a hypnotic film about the troubled friendship of three troubled women. Altman has been working in television recently, directing the remake of the classic 1953 movie "The Caine Mutiny" that aired earlier this month on CBS. He is also the director of the HBO spoofs of the Presidential campaign, "Tanner 88: The Dark Horse," written by "Doonesbury" cartoonist Garry Trudeau. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles FUNKADELIC, a black psychedelic band whose big hit was the 1978 song "One Nation Under A Groove." Several members of the band, including leader George Clinton, started out with The Parliaments, a fifties Doo-Wop group. INT.2: Scottish writer WILLIAM BOYD. His latest novel, The New Confessions, follows the political and cinematic adventures of a monomaniacal filmmaker. Boyd's earlier novels include Stars and Bars and An Ice Cream War. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Dream Time by poet and literary critic GEOFFREY O'BRIEN. The book is a meditation on the turbulence of the sixties.

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Comic and actor HOWIE MANDEL. Mandel is one of the stars of "St. Elsewhere," the acclaimed NBC weekly series that follows the lives of the medical staff of the beleaguered St. Eligius, a fictional hospital set in a rough-and-tumble Boston neighborhood. Today, May 25, is final episode of the seven-year series. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new CD featuring French soprano RENEE DORIA. The selections were recorded between 1944 and 1970. INT.2: Writer ORVILLE SCHELL. His latest book, Discos and Democracy: China in the Throes of Reform, chronicles one year in China's rush toward Democracy, and the country's continuing love-hate relationship with the West. Schell's work appears regularly in The New Yorker. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines the idioms of Berkeley, California, one of the most liberal and tolerant communities in America.

Interview with Patty Duke; Review of Run-DMC's and the Fresh Prince and Jazzy Jeff's albums "Tougher than Leather" and "He's the D.J., I'm the Rapper"; Interview with Helen Merrill; Review of the film "Willow." May 26, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500860].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress PATTY DUKE. At the time of her 1962 film "The Miracle Worker," Duke was the youngest actress to win an Oscar, for her role as Helen Keller. At 16, she was the youngest actress in television to have a prime-time series built around her. The success, however, masked personal misery which included depressions that led to suicide attempts and a string of failed marriages. Duke has written an autobiography titled Call Me Anna. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new rap albums, one by RUN-DMC, the top rap group, the other by JAZZY JEFF and the FRESH PRINCE, an emerging group that builds on the innovations of the first rappers. INT.2: Singer HELEN MERRILL. Her latest album features arrangements by the late GIL EVANS, with whom she first worked over 30 years ago. Merrill was one of the most acclaimed jazz stars of the 50s when she left America for Italy and then Japan. REV.2: Guest film critic MICHAEL SRAGOW reviews "Willow," the latest GEORGE LUCAS adventure/fantasy.
Interview with Allen Toussaint; Commentary on Irving Berlin; Interview with Dominick Dunne; Commentary on Will Durst. May 27, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457441].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with New Orleans songwriter, pianist and singer ALLEN TOUSSAINT. Tousaint has performed extensively as a session pianist and producer and has written dozens of hits for New Orleans groups like The Nevilles, Irma Thomas, for Paul McCartney, The Wild Tchoupitoulas and The Meters. REV.1: Singer SUSANNAH McCORKLE performs the last of her tributes to the composer IRVING BERLIN. INT.2: Writer DOMINICK DUNNE, who in his fiction and non-fiction writes about the troubled lives of New York City's jet setters. His latest novel is titled People Like Us, and is set amid Manhattan's upper class. Dunne's other novels include The Winner and The Two Mrs. Grenvilles, both bestsellers. Dunne contributes regularly to Vanity Fair, writing lengthy profiles of society celebrities like Elizabeth Taylor and Claus Von Bulow. He is also the producer of films, including "Panic in Needle Park," "Ash Wednesday," "Play It As It Lays" and "The Boys in the Band." REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE profiles the political comedy of WILL DURST.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Composer HENRY MANCINI. His compositions include the theme to "The Pink Panther" series, the songs "Moon River" and "The Days of Wine and Roses," and the themes for the television programs "Peter Gunn" and "Mr. Lucky." His most recent score was for the film "The Glass Menagerie." (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast November 11, 1987.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new 3-record set of previously unreleased jazz 45's by tenor saxophonist Ike Quebec. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on November 23, 1987.) INT.2: Jazz singer, songwriter DAVID FRISHBERG. This is the first part of two-part interview. Throughout the 60s, Frishberg wrote songs like "I'm Hip" and "Peel Me a Grape." Then in the early 70s, he started singing his own songs. Frishberg will also perform a few of his songs throughout the interview. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on March, 4, 1988.) REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks back at "The Prisoner," the British mystery
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Interview with Doris Lessing; Commentary on Gram Parsons; Interview with David Frishberg, Part 2; Review of Paul Fussell's essay collection "Thank God for the Atom Bomb." May 31, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457483].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer DORIS LESSING. Since her first novel, The Grass is Singing, published in 1950, she has written many books and plays, including the Children of Violence series, The Golden Notebook, and more recently Shikasta and her "space-fiction" series. Her new novel is titled The Fifth Child. Fresh Air book critic JOHN LEONARD once described Mrs. Lessing as "one of the half-dozen most interesting minds to have chosen to write fiction in English in this century." REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the late GRAM PARSONS, who added a country flavor to rock with groups like The Byrds. INT 2: Jazz singer, songwriter DAVID FRISHBERG returns for part two of a two-part interview. Throughout the 60s, Frishberg wrote songs like "I'm Hip" and "Peel Me a Grape." Then in the early 70s, he started singing his own songs. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on March 7, 1988.) REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Thank God for the Atom Bomb, a new book of essays by University of Pennsylvania professor Paul Fussell.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer PAUL THEROUX. Since his first book, Waldo, was published in 1966, Theroux has written prolifically. His extensive travels have taken him through Africa, Asia and Central America, and a central theme of his work is the ironic examination of the clashing and mingling of Western and Third World cultures. Theroux's newest book, Riding the Iron Rooster, is an account of his travels by train through China. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Arbos," a recent recording of compositions by Estonian composer ARVO PART. Part's music has similarities to the music of the minimalists, but is also influenced by medieval liturgical music. INT.2: Writer BARBARA GARSON. Her writing includes the anti-war (Vietnam) play MacBird! and the book All the Livelong Day, a study of the blue-collar life of the assembly line. Her latest book, The Electronic Sweatshop, explores white collar automation - the way computers are being used to transform secretaries, executives and professionals into clerks. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses talking computers and how they handle the subtleties of vocal inflection.(Rebroadcast. Original broadcast February 10, 1988.)

Interview with Geoffrey O'Brien; Review of Rod Stewart's and Boz Scagg's albums "Out of Order" and "Other Roads"; Interview with Irma Thomas; Review of the film "Crocodile Dundee II." June 2, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457653].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer GEOFFREY O'BRIEN. His new book, Dream Time: Chapters from the Sixties, is an exploration of the phenomena of the 60s, from strobe lights and miniskirts to Be-Ins and Transcendental Meditation. O'Brien attempts to capture the cultural, social and political ferment of the era, as opposed to an objective, historical accounting. O'Brien is also the author of Hard Boiled America," a survey of paperback crime fiction. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums from rockers ROD STEWART and BOZ SCAGGS. INT.2: Singer IRMA THOMAS. Ms. Thomas has been making records since 1958, and had a string of New Orleans rhythm-and-blues hits in the early sixties. Her popularity, however, is due in large part to her energetic live performances. Her new album, "The Way I Feel," has just been released on Rounder Records. REV.2: Guest film reviewer MICHAEL SRAGOW reviews "Crocodile Dundee II," starring Paul Hogan.

Interview with Gunther Schuller; Interview with BeauSoleil; Interview with Gerald Petievich; Review of the film "Carol Burnett's Personal Best." June 3, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457438].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Composer, arranger, conductor GUNTHER SCHULLER. One of the most ardent supporters of new music, Schuller is equally at home with the music of bebop and the big band era as he with the 12-tone classical composers. Schuller is the past head of the New England Conservatory of Music, where he founded the New England Conservatory's Ragtime Band. In the late 40s, when he first cultivated his eclectic approach to music, Schuller held jobs simultaneously with the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra and with Miles Davis' tuba band. REV.1: Three members of the famed New Orleans cajun band BEAUSOLEIL, headed by MICHAEL DOUCET, will perform several songs from their most recent album. INT.2: Author GERALD PETIEVICH. Petievich spent 15 years as a U.S. Secret Service agent. His experiences as a member of the Los Angeles Federal Strike Force against Organized Crime and Racketeering inspired his book To Live and Die In L.A. He later co-wrote the screenplay for William Friedkin's film of the same name. Petievich's new novel is called Shakedown. REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews video releases of the best of Carol Burnett.

Interview with Anatoly "Natan" Shcharansky; Review of Joshua Breakstone's album "Evening Star"; Interview with Mark Morris; Commentary on laugh tracks. June 6, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971504027].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: NATAN SHARANSKY. He was jailed on trumped up treason and spying charges by the KGB and endured nine years of solitary confinement and a starvation diet before an international campaign forced his release two years ago. His account of his ordeal and the subsequent pressures of celebrity are recounted in his book Fear No Evil. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Evening Star," the new album from guitarist JOSHUA BREAKSTONE. Though Breakstone is 32 years old, his style is rooted in the 1940s. INT.2: Dancer and choreographer MARK MORRIS. Before forming his own company in 1980, Morris performed with a wide assortment of dance troupes, including the Lar Lubovitch Dance Company, Laura Dean Dancers, and the Eliot Feld Ballet. He has choreographed for the Boston Ballet and the Joffrey Ballet, and recently completed the choreography for the opera "Nixon in China." REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI gives us his take on the use of laugh tracks.
Interview with David Wise; Commentary on The Flamin' Groovies; Interview with Joan Jett; Review of Hunter Thompson's essay collection "Generation Swine...". June 7, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811242].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist DAVID WISE. His new book, The Spy Who Got Away, is the story of Edward Lee Howard, the CIA agent who divulged secrets to the Russians and then eluded an FBI dragnet to flee to the Soviet Union. The book is based on six days of interviews with Howard in Budapest and reveals a CIA coverup of suspicions about Howard's character and the agency's refusal to share the information with the FBI's counterintelligence division. Wise, a former Washington bureau chief for the New York Herald Tribune, has written extensively on espionage. His books include The Invisible Government, The Politics of Lying and The U-2 Affair. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles "The Flamin' Groovies," a band that fought all the trends in the late 60s by putting out three-minute pop songs with anti-drug lyrics. Their best-known song was "Teenage Head." INT 2: Rock musician JOAN JETT. Since 1979, Jett has led the group Joan Jett and the Blackhearts and earned the description as "the toughest, grittiest, hardest-working woman in rock and roll." She won praise for her film debut in 1987 when she co-starred with Michael J. Fox in the film "Light of Day." Time magazine's film critic Richard Corliss hailed her "mesmerizing surliness" and said Jett's presence dominated every scene she was in. Joan Jett and the Blackheart's new album is titled "Up Your Alley." REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Generation of Swine: Tales of Shame and Degradation in the 80s, Gonzo Papers, Vol.2, the new collection of essays by journalist HUNTER THOMPSON, the author of Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas.

Interview with Elie Weisel; Review of the "Great Recordings of the Century" albums; Interview with Patricia Charbonneau; Commentary on American Sign Language. June 8, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500858].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and humanitarian ELIE WEISEL. Weisel won the 1986 Nobel Peace Prize for his message of "peace and atonement and human dignity." A concentration camp survivor, he has been the most impassioned and poetic supporter of efforts to memorialize the six million Jews who died in Hitler's death camps. He is author of 24 works, including Night and Dawn. His latest work, a novel, is titled Twilight. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new EMI/Angel series titled "Great Recordings of the Century," vintage recordings that have been digitally remastered.INT.2: Actress PATRICIA CHARBONNEAU. She now stars in two films: the cop/action film "Shakedown," and the erotic thriller "Call Me," about a writer who responds the wrong way to an obscene phone call. Charbonneau's previous roles include the lesbian who seduces a college professor in "Desert Hearts," an independent film based on a novel by Jane Rule. Charbonneau also has a recurring role as Inger Thornson in the NBC television series "Crime Story." REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG explores American Sign Language and its cultural significance within the deaf community.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director PAUL MORRISSEY. He first gained fame as the alter ego of pop artist Andy Warhol during the filming of Warhol's low-budget experimental films like "My Hustler" and "Chelsea Girls." He later directed Warhol-produced films like "Flesh" and "Trash." Morrissey's latest film is titled "Beethoven's Nephew," and is the story of disarray of the composer's private life and his ugly personality. The music is performed by The Vienna Symphony Orchestra. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Down in the Groove," the new album by BOB DYLAN. INT.2: Writer GERALD CLARKE. Clarke's biography of writer TRUMAN CAPOTE has just been published. Capote was the author of the seminal work In Cold Blood, but his writing was overshadowed by the excesses of his lifestyle and his reputation as the clownish fixture of the talk show circuit. Clarke's biography was 14 years in the making and was undertaken with Capote's full cooperation. Clarke has written extensively for Time magazine. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Big," a fantasy about body switching starring Tom Hanks and Elizabeth Perkins and veteran character actor Robert Loggia.
Interview with Frank Robinson; Interview with BeauSoleil; Interview with Teresa Carpenter; Commentary on Mark Morris. June 10, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457439].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: FRANK ROBINSON, manager of the Baltimore Orioles. In 1975, he became the first black manager in baseball, and today he is the only one. As a player, Robinson was legendary. He is the only player ever to win the Most Valuable Player award in both leagues; and his 586 home runs place him behind Hank Aaron, Babe Ruth and Willie Mays on the all-time list. His new book, Extra Innings, addresses the question of racism in baseball, first broached in a broadly public way when Al Campanis, the former general manager for the Los Angeles Dodgers said on a "Nightline" interview that blacks "lacked the necessities" to manage a baseball team. REV.1: Three members of the New Orleans cajun band BEAUSOLEIL, headed by MICHAEL DOUCET, will perform several dance songs. INT.2: Journalist TERESA CARPENTER. Her new book, Missing Beauty, is the story of the obsession of a medical professor for a Boston prostitute, and obsession that ended with the prostitute's murder. Carpenter is a staff writer for The Village Voice and won the 1981 Pulitzer Prize for her reports on three murders, including those of former congressman Allard Lowenstein and Playmate Dorothy Stratten. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE looks at the dance and choreography of MARK MORRIS, the young (31) Seattle dancer and choreographer who is one of the most commissioned and sought-after dancers in America and Europe.

Interview with Chris Matthews; Review of Earl Turbinton's album "Brothers for Life"; Interview with Bharati Mukherjee; Commentary on the television show "Wiseguy." June 13, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457585].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Columnist CHRISTOPHER MATTHEWS. His first book, Hardball: How Politics is Played, is a humorous, anecdotal account of the 24-hour struggle for power and position that politicians happily immerse themselves in. The book has been described as a modern version of The Prince by Nicolo Machiavelli. Matthews is a former speechwriter to President Jimmy Carter and senior aide and spokesman to former Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill. Matthews is currently the Washington bureau chief for the San Francisco Examiner, and can be seen delivering political commentary on the "Larry King Show."
REV. 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Brothers For Life, the new album by saxophonist EARL TURBINTON. Like many New Orleans jazz musicians, Turbinton moves between work in jazz and rhythm and blues. He's worked with musicians as diverse as blues guitarist B.B.King and Joe Sawinul, the founder of the fusion band Weather Report. INT. 2: Writer BHARATI MUKHERJEE. Her new book of short stories, The Middleman and Other Stories, portrays immigrants from Third World countries who strive to maintain their indigenous identity while embracing much of Western culture and lifestyle. The stories establish the troublesome nature of personal encounters between the East and West as seen through the eyes of, say, a Sri Lankan filling out a scholarship application, or an Indian woman from Trinidad who works in Detroit as a "Mother's Helper." Mukherjee is also the author of the novels Wife and The Tiger's Daughter, and the nonfiction Days and Nights in Calcutta. REV. 2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI profiles "Wiseguy," the CBS crime series. The series' stars are Ken Wahl as Vinnie Terranova, an undercover organized-crime agent, and Ray Sharkey as Sonny Steelgrave, the impulsive and explosive head of a crime syndicate. The program is about to start its summer repeat run, a time when many shows that face stiff competition in the regular season find a new audience.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Cinematographer and director CHRIS MENGES. His new film, "A World Apart," opens soon. The film deals with the relationship between a white woman, politically committed to the fight against apartheid in South Africa, and her 13-year-old daughter's attempts to understand the political choices her mother has made. Menges is Britain's foremost cinematographer and the winner of two Oscars for his work on "The Killing Fields" and "The Mission." "A World Apart" is his first feature film as a director. Menges has directed several documentaries for British television, including East 103rd Street.

REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles "The Flamingos," a Chicago Doo-Wop group that performed from the early 50s through the mid-70s. Their biggest hit was their cover of "I Only Have Eyes for You." INT 2: Jazz singer SYLVIA SYMS. During the 40s and 50s, she perfected her stage style and voice in New York's jazz clubs, including The Village Vanguard and The Latin Casino where she became friends and collaborators with Erol Garner, Billy Holiday and Frank Sinatra. She appeared on stage as well, originating the role of Bloody Mary in "South Pacific," and still sings the musical's centerpiece "Bali Hai" in her cabaret show. Syms teaches voice and song interpretation at Texas' Northwood Institute. REV.2: In celebration of Flag Day, Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses the wording of the Pledge of Allegiance and "The Star Spangled Banner." (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast 6/10/87.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Detective JOSIAH THOMPSON. Thompson was a tenured professor of philosophy at Haverford College when he applied for a job at a San Francisco detective agency. He has since left academia and works full-time as a private eye. He's written an account of his work titled Gumshoe: Reflections in a Private Eye. Thompson's cases run the gamut from recovering money from an attic in a drug case to saving an innocent man from the gas chamber. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a CBS reissue of Pierre Boulez conducting the 1910 version of Stravinsky's "Song of the Nightingale." INT.2: Screenwriter SHAWN SLOVO. Her first film, "A World Apart," is the autobiographical story of the relationship between a white woman, committed to fighting apartheid, and her 13-year-old daughter, who is struggling to cope with the political choices her mother has made. Slovo's parents were early members of the outlawed African National Congress; Her mother reported on the injustices of apartheid for alternative newspapers, while her father defended blacks in the court system. Slovo's mother was murdered in exile by a parcel bomb. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Capote: A Biography, the biography of the American writer Truman Capote that was 14 years in the making. The author is Time magazine writer Gerald Clarke.

INT.1: WALTER HILL, the producer, director and writer of "Red Heat," the new cop/action film starring Arnold Schwarzenegger and James Belushi. Hill's other directorial credits include "48 Hrs.," "Hard Times," "The Driver" and "Streets of Fire." REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Vivid," the debut album by the black rock group Living Colour. INT.2: Standup comic RICHARD LEWIS. In his act, Lewis portrays a spastic, tortured, self-deprecating man living a life of unrelieved pain. He says of his comedy that after he's finished his act "people throw prescription drugs and the names of their therapists instead of roses. I'm the wreck they can't be." Lewis has appeared roughly 35 times on the "Late Night with David Letterman" show. His new HBO comedy special, "Richard Lewis' I'm Exhausted Concert," premieres on June 18th. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Bull Durham," a film about baseball and other matters of the heart, starring KEVIN COSTNER and SUSAN SARANDON.

Interview with Connie Bruck; Interview with BeauSoleil; Interview with Stuart Allan; Review of the home video series of films "." June 17, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457584].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Financial writer CONNIE BRUCK. Her first book, The Predators' Ball: The Junk Bond Raiders and the Man who Staked Them, is a profile of the controversial junk bond financier MICHAEL MILKEN, and the junk bond department of the investment firm of Drexel Burnham Lambert. Milken's financing schemes, and Drexel Burnham's resources, have been the engine behind many of the hostile takeovers and mergers that have rocked Wall Street over the last six years. Bruck is a reporter for The American Lawyer magazine. REV.1: Three members of the New Orleans cajun band BEAUSOLEIL, led by MICHAEL DOUCET, will perform several songs. INT.2: Map maker STUART ALLAN. Allan is the principal mapmaker of Raven Maps & Images of Medford, Oregon, a company that specializes in wall-sized maps that are both visually striking and technically accurate. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews a new series of video cassettes that solve the problem of watching subtitled foreign films at home. The series is a joint venture by Sony and the Japan Society, and the films are classics of Japanese cinema, including the thriller "Stray Dog" and the comedy of manners "Early Summer."
Interview with Michael Harrington; Review of Billy Bang's album "Live at Carlos June 20, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457588].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: MICHAEL HARRINGTON, a political scientist, author and co-chairman of the Democratic Socialists of America. His 1962 book, The Other America, caught the attention of President John Kennedy and became the handbook for Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty. Harrington's central theme is that poverty is growing, not shrinking, and that the free market has proven inadequate to the task of reducing it. His more recent works include The New American Poverty and The Next Left. His latest work, The Long-Distance Runner, is his autobiography. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews violinist BILLY BANG's new album "Live at Carlos: 1," which is a club in New York City. Bang performs with his sextet, which includes bassist William Parker and drummer Zen Matsuura. INT.2: Dance writer DEBORAH JOWITT. In her new book, Time and the Dancing Image, Jowitt approaches dance as an anthropologist, trying to reconnect dance to history by placing dance's major developments in the context of the culture that spawned it. Jowitt, a former dancer and choreographer, is the principal dance critic of The Village Voice. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the CBS program "Try to Remember," a pilot for a new series hosted by CHARLES KURALT. The program draws on archival footage and explores the events of one week, in this case August 10, 1969, the week of Hurricane Camille, Woodstock and a ticker tape parade for the Apollo 11 astronauts.

Interview with Estelle Freedman; Commentary on The Kinks; Interview with Irvin Muchnick; Review of Heinrich Boll's novel "Women in a River Landscape." June 21, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457632].

Description of show segment(s)

NT.1: ESTELLE FREEDMAN co-author of Intimate Matters, A History of Sexuality in America. Among the principal observations Freedman makes in her book is that sexual puritanism was never as all-encompassing as most historians state when chronicling the mores of the 19th and early 20th Century. The book charts the liberalization of sex as value in itself, independent of reproduction. Freedman is a professor of history at Stanford University. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles The Kinks, one of the first of the British Invasion groups, and their 1966 album Face To Face. INT 2: Journalist IRVIN MUCHNICK. His recent reporting has focused on recent developments in professional wrestling. REV.2:
Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Women in A River Landscape, the last novel by the late German author HEINRICH BOLL.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor BOB HOSKINS. He stars in the new film "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" in which he acts opposite an animated rabbit. Hoskins' other roles include the mob chief in "The Long Good Friday," a low-level hudlum in "Mona Lisa," and the gangster club owner in "The Cotton Club." REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews recent recordings of three Schubert sonatas, performed by pianist MAURIZIO POLLINI. INT.2: LAWRENCE WESCHLER, staff writer for The New Yorker magazine. He writes about politics and art, and his profiles are gathered in a new book, Shapinsky's Karma, Bogg's Bill and Other True Tales. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses the way the language of the drug culture has worked through the language of the mainstream.

Interview with Michael Collins; Commentary on contemporary women musicians; Interview with Ron Shelton, Part 1; Review of the film "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" June 23, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457633].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Astronaut MICHAEL COLLINS. He controlled the Apollo 11 command module that circled the moon while Neil Armstrong became the first man to walk on its' surface. Collins has written a history of the space program titled Liftoff. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER looks at several women rock musicians who reject female rock stereotypes and work in highly idiosyncratic and original styles. The groups and individuals includes the Sugarcubes, Jane Wiedlin and M.C. Lyte. INT.2: Part one of a two-part interview with RON SHELTON, director and writer of the hit summer film "Bull Durham." Today's conversation focuses on Shelton's experiences as a minor league player in the Baltimore Orioles' farm system. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new Disney film, "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?"

Interview with David Martin; Interview with BeauSoleil; Interview with Ron Shelton, Part 2; Commentary on comedienne Angela Scott. June 24, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457587].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: DAVID MARTIN, Pentagon correspondent for CBS News and co-author of The Best Laid Plans, an account of America's flawed war against international terrorism. REV.1: The final performance in a month-long series by fiddler MICHAEL DOUCET and two members of his Cajun band BeauSoliel. INT.2: Part two of an interview with RON SHELTON, director and writer of the new hit film "Bull Durham," starring KEVIN COSTNER and SUSAN SARANDON. In this segment, Shelton, a former minor league player in the Baltimore Orioles farm system, discusses the making of the film. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE profiles comedienne ANGELA SCOTT.

Interview with Dave Van Ronk; Review of Michael Biso's album "Michael Bisio Quartet in Seattle"; Interview with Will Durst; Commentary on television coverage of tennis. June 27, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457504].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: DAVE VAN RONK. He was part of the folk music scene that flourished in Greenwich Village in the 1960s. His musical interests have ranged from traditional folk styles and jug band music to blues and jazz. He is known as a talented guitarist and singer who helped bring the relevance of black music to white audiences both in the United States and abroad. He'll also perform in today's show. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album by bassist MICHAEL BISIO and his quartet. INT.2: Standup comic WILL DURST. Durst's passion is politics, and the election season is providing him with plenty of material. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI takes a look at the prevalence of tennis coverage on TV and suggests ways it might be improved.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Investigative journalist PAUL EDDY, co-author of The Cocaine Wars, which traces the course of cocaine from the hills of Bolivia to American street corners, and the domination of the market by a group of drug barons based in the resort town of Medellin, Colombia. The book also details the extent of cocaine corruption in both Dade County, Florida (Miami) and the Bahamas. Eddy writes for the Insight Team, the investigative arm of the Sunday Times of London. Other Insight Team investigations that Eddy has worked on authored include Destination Disaster, about the airplane industry, War in the Falklands and The Yom Kippur War. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles IKE TURNER, whose career in rock and roll began long before he met Tina. INT 2: Writer JEANETTE WINTERSON. Her autobiographical first novel, Oranges Are Not The Only Fruit, is the coming-out story of a young British girl raised in an evangelical household who must come to the religion's severe view of right and wrong. Winterson was the recipient of the Whitbread Prize for best first novel and the John Llewellyn Rhys Prize for best writer under thirty-five. Her new book, "The Passion," is a historical novel set at the time of the Napoleonic wars. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the latest installment of the Spencer detective series, the novel Crimson Joy by Robert Parker.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet SHARON OLDS. She writes passionate and intensely personal poems about her childhood with abusive and alcoholic parents, and her own experiences as a mother and a wife. Suicide attempts in New York, and encounters on the subway also provide inspiration for her work. Sharon Olds is the recipient of the 1985 National Book Critics Circle Award for her collection titled The Dead and the Living. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new reissue of the works of composer and conductor ALEXANDER ZEMLINSKY. INT.2: Writer PAUL MONETTE. His new book, Interview with Sylvester Monroe; Review of James Brown's album "I'm Real"; Interview with Patrick McGrath; Review of the film "Coming to America." June 30, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457611].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Newsweek correspondent SYLVESTER MONROE. He recently returned to the ghetto housing project in Chicago where he was raised for a reunion with his boyhood friends. He chronicles their successful and failed attempts to escape the ghetto and ghetto culture in his book Brothers. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "I'm Real," the new album by JAMES BROWN, the self-proclaimed "Godfather of Soul." INT.2: Horror writer PATRICK MCGRATH. McGrath has been described as "a Poe for the 80's," a postmodern-gothic storyteller. His new collection of short stories is titled Blood and Water and Other Tales. Horror writing is a genre that comes easily to McGrath, who grew up on the grounds of an English asylum for the criminally insane. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Coming to America," the new EDDIE MURPHY film that co-stars one-time TV talk show host ARSENIO HALL. The movie is a comic fable about a pampered African prince who travels to the slums of New York to find the perfect woman.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Traveler ERIC HANSEN. In 1982, Hansen set out alone across Borneo, an island in Indonesia composed almost entirely of rain forests and populated by natives who have had the least amount of of contact with westerners. Hansen's account of his travels is contained in the book Stranger in the Forest: A Foot Across Borneo. Hansen has also travelled to North Africa, Afghanistan, Nepal, India and Southeast Asia. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, March 16, 1988.) REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Lutoslawski Conducts Lutoslawski," a recent Phillips recording
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

featuring Polish musician WITOLD LUTOSLAWSKI. The recording features Lutoslawski's Cello Concerto, featuring Heinrich Schiff as soloist. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, February 24, 1988.) INT.2: Television writer GERALD GARDNER. His new book, The Censorship Papers, is a collection of memos from the Hays Commission, which was the censorship arm of Hollywood's production studios from 1930 to 1968. The dossiers were released last year and Gardner covers those concerning 70 of Hollywood's best known films, including "The Maltese Falcon," "Pal Joey" and "Notorious." (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast Friday, April 22, 1988.) REV.2: Humorist AL GINGOLD expounds on the purchase of his first sofa, which he sees as one of the key mileposts in coming of age. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, February 17, 1988.)

Interview with Roy Bookbinder; review of Paul Motian's album "Misterioso"; Interview with Robert Hunter; Review of the television show "POV." July 4, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924708].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Folk singer ROY BOOKBINDER. His updated interpretations of blues and popular music from the 20s and the 30s have won him a wide audience. Bookbinder will talk about his vagabound life and play some of his favorite songs. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast Thursday, August 27, 1987.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Misterioso," the new album by drummer and band leader PAUL MOTIAN. INT.2: Lyricist and songwriter ROBERT HUNTER. He's best known for his 28-year collaboration with Jerry Garcia of the Grateful Dead, writing the lyrics to the classics "Uncle John's Band" and "Truckin," and the recent hit "Touch of Grey." He has a recent solo album titled "Liberty." (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Monday, February 22, 1988.) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "P.O.V," the 10-week PBS series showcasing independent documentaries.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist ROY GUTMAN, the national security correspondent for Newsday. His new book, Banana Diplomacy, explores the evolution of the Reagan administration's policies toward Central America and its commitment to the overthrow of the Sandinista government in Nicaragua. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles The Move, a British band that later evolved into The Electric Light Orchestra. INT 2: Writer HARRY WHITTINGTON. Long regarded as simply a genre writer, Whittington's works have been rediscovered and are now being republished. In the late 50s and 60s, Whittington would often write at the rate of a novel a month. He wrote in whatever style the market favored, from detective novels and murder mysteries to Mandingo sagas. He also wrote under whatever name suited his publisher, like Hondo Wells and Blaine Stevens. Among Whittington's best known works are Forgive Me Killer and A Moment to Pray. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Scott Donaldson's biography of the late writer JOHN CHEEVER.

Interview with Tom Hayden; Review of three albums featuring Annie Fischer; Interview with Robert Fisher; Commentary on an urban legend about a dead cat. July 6, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924843].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Legislator and former student activist TOM HAYDEN. In the early 60s, Hayden was the pre-eminent New Left student activist. He authored the "Port Huron Statment," a document that served as the blueprint for the student activism of the 60s. Hayden is best remembered for his role in the anti-war movement in the late 60s and early 70s, and for the protests he led against the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. For the last 15 years, Hayden has served in the California state legislature. He has written a memoir titled Reunion. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the work of Hungarian pianist ANNIE FISCHER. INT.2: ROGER FISHER, negotiator and the author of Getting to Yes, a best-selling manual for resolving conflicts - with spouses, landlords, neighbors and bosses. In his new book, Getting Together, Fisher applies those same principles of compromise to personal relationships. Fisher is a law professor and director of The Harvard Negotiation Project. REV.2: JAN
HAROLD BRUNVAND will explore the urban legend about the package with the dead cat which is stolen before it reaches its final destination. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, January 20, 1988.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Harmonica virtuoso LARRY ADLER. Adler has performed with entertainers as diverse as Fred Astaire, George Gershwin, Jack Benny and numerous symphony orchestras. Adler moved to England after being blacklisted during McCarthy hearings. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Friday, June 19, 1987.) REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Conscience," the new album by the husband and wife team of CECIL and LINDA WOMACK. INT.2: Mystery writer TONY HILLERMAN. His novels, such as Skinwalkers and People of Darkness, evoke the Najavo culture of the American southwest. Hillerman has also written several books of non-fiction, including The Spell of New Mexico and The Great Taos Bank Robbery. His latest book, a mystery, is titled Thief of Time. REV.2: Film Critic STEPEHN SCHIFF reviews "A World Apart," starring Barbara Hershey. The film is the story of the relationship between a white woman, committed to fighting South Africa's apartheid laws, and her 13-year-old daughter, who is struggling to cope with the political choices her mother has made.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Screenwriter and playwright HORTON FOOTE. His career in theater, film and television spans more than forty years. His first Broadway production was in 1944. His major successes include Academy Awards in 1963 for his screenplay of "To Kill a Mockingbird," and in 1985 for the screenplay of "Tender Mercies." Most recently, Foote has written a series of plays titled "The Orphans' Home Cycle," which follow the lives of its central characters over 30 years. REV.1: Singer SUSANNAH McCORKLE performs two Cole Porter songs. INT.2: Independent filmmaker ROBERT MUGGE. He documents the lives of musicians as diverse as jazzmen Sun Ra and Sonny Rollins, and singers Gil Scott Heron, The Rev. Al Green and Rueben Blades. Other documentaries explore the music of native Hawaiians and Latin Americans. His first music documentary profiled Pulitzer Prize-winning composer George Crumb. A series of Mugge's work is airing on public television stations throughout the month. REV.2: Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE reviews a retrospective of the late photographer GARRY WINOGRAND, now on exhibit at New York's Museum of Modern Art.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jazz bassist MILT HINTON. Hinton is one of the great jazz bassists of the last 30 years, having played with musicians like Cab Calloway, Dizzy Gillespie, Coleman Hawkins, Duke Ellington and Billie Holiday. Throughout his career, Hinton photographed the musicians he worked with, and the surroundings he moved through. A collection of these photographs has just been published. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Live at the Vanguard," a reissue of live trio and quartet sets in 1965 led by the late pianist EARL HINES. Hines, who recorded with Louis Armstrong and the beboppers Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie, was 60 at the time of the recordings. INT.2: LOUIS RUKEYSER, host of the popular public television show "Wall Street Week." The show, which airs early on Friday evenings on most public television stations, is a weekly appraisal of the world of investments, which Rukeyser hosts with a dry, pun-loving wit. The show is consistently one of the top-rated programs on public television. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Alive From Off Center" and "American Masters," two popular public television series that begin new seasons this week.

Interview with Barbara K. MacDonald and Pat MacDonald; Commentary on the rock group Billy Ward and the Dominos; Interview with Hilma Wolitzer; Review of Muriel Spark's novel "A Far

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with the rock duo TIMBUK 3. Composed of husband and wife Barbara and Pat MacDonald, and their boom box that supplies their pre-recorded rhythm tracks, they first gained attention for their 1987 hit "The Future's So Bright (I've Got Wear Shades)." TIMBUK 3's new album "Eden Alley," continues with their trademark sound of bluesy harmonica, guitar and sparse, sardonic lyrics. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles BILLY WARD and the DOMINOS, a group that launched some of rock's great talents like Jackie Wilson and Clyde McPhatter. INT 2: Novelist HILMA WOLITZER. She's won praise for her insight into family life and suburban life and the dreams that people defer for the sake of domestic ease. Wolitzer writing wasn't first published until she was 35. Her earlier novels include "Hearts" and "In the Flesh." Her new novel is titled Silver. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "A Far Cry from Kensington," by British writer MURIEL SPARK.

Interview with Huey P. Beaux; Review of an album of Yo-Yo Ma performing Schumann's Cello Concerto; Interview with Bryan Ferry; Commentary on spelling bees. July 13, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923715].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Record producer HUEY P. MEAUX. Meaux is one of the last of the old-time record czars - record producers who discovered, developed and promoted musical talent. Meaux, also known as the "Crazy Cajun," specialized in the regional music of the Gulf coast, from the bayou country of Louisiana to east Texas. His acts include Archie Bell and the Drells, Freddie Fender, Jivin' Gene and the Sir Douglas Quintet. Much of the recording took place at Meaux's Goldstar studio in Houston, Texas, one of the most famous of all the regional studios. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new album by cellist YO YO MA in which Ma plays the Schumann Cello Concerto. INT.2: Rock singer and songwriter BRIAN FERRY. In the 1970s, he was the lead singer and principal songwriter for the British band Roxy Music, the band that also launched the career of Brian Eno. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, December 23, 1987.) REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG looks at the American institution of spelling bees.
Interview with Peter Gay; Review of Marti Jones's album "Used Guitars"; Interview with Alice Hoffman; Review of the film "The Dead Pool." July 14, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924459].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Cultural historian PETER GAY His most recent work is a biography of Sigmund Freud titled Freud: A Life for Our Time. It has been described as "magisterial" and "startling," and praised for the way it links Freud's life to his writings and his times. One of Gay's earlier works, The Enlightenment: An Interpretation, won the National Book Award in 1967. Other books include the multivolume history of middle-class life in the 19th Century titled The Bourgeois Experience: Victoria to Freud. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Used Guitars," the 3rd album by pop singer MARTI JONES. INT.2: Novelist ALICE HOFFMAN. Her latest novel, At Risk, is the story of what happens to the residents of a bucolic New England town when they learn that an eleven-year-old girl has contracted AIDS from a contaminated blood transfusion. Hoffman has said of the book that it is rooted in the question "How would I react if my son's classmate had AIDS?" Hoffman's earlier works, which blend magic and realism in complex family portraits, include, White Horses and Illumination Night. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Dead Pool," the new Dirty Harry film starring CLINT EASTWOOD.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Horror film director GEORGE ROMERO. He made his first film, "Night of the Living Dead," on a shoestring budget on the weekends. The film, about a cadre of flesh eating zombies, became a cult classic and a copy is now in the archives of the New York Museum of Modern Art. Romero's subsequent successes included "Dawn of the Dead," "Day of the Dead," "Martin" and "Creepshow." His latest movie is titled "Monkey Shines: An Experiment in Fear." REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Look What I Got," singer BETTY CARTER's new album. Carter, who first came on the jazz scene in the bebop era, is one of jazz' great vocalists. INT.2: Washington Post staff writer PAUL HENDRICKSON. Hendrickson is at work on a biography of ROBERT MACNAMARA, former Secretary of Defense and architect of the Vietnam War. When Hendrickson started the project, he thought it would be straightforward and uncomplicated, but it quickly overwhelmed him and remains unfinished. Hendrickson talks about what he's learned so far and why the book has proven so difficult to write.

REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Vietnam War Story," an HBO series about the war that he says is less sanitized than other TV portrayals, and much more powerful because of it.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Business writer JOHN HOERR. When Hoerr was growing up in the Monongahela Valley in western Pennsylvania, the steel industry was the absolute foundation of the community. Hoerr, who went on to become a journalist, returned to his hometown to analyze the causes and effects of the steel industry's collapse in the 1980's. The result is his new book titled, And the Wolf Finally Came: The Decline of the American Steel Industry. Hoerr is a senior writer for Business Week. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD looks at reggae, a Caribbean form of music that evolved from rock and roll but never quite made it on American pop radio. INT 2: MARK MOTHERSBAUGH and GERALD CASALE, the leaders and co-founders of the rock band DEVO. Between their synthesizer-laden, mechanistic music, and their mock-corporate image (red flowerpot hats), Devo is one of the most innovative bands and rock. Their stage shows, in particular, pioneered a direction in rock best exemplified by art rock bands like Talking Heads and U2. Devo is best known for their conceptual videos and their futurististic musical style and lyrics. The group's best-known songs include "Spudboy," "Mr. DNA," "Jacko Homo" and "Whip it." Devo's new album is titled "Total Devo." REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Introducing The Great American Novel, a collection of articles and essays written by famous writers about other famous writers. For example, Tom Wolfe on Norman Mailer's Great American Dream, David Bradley on Richard Wright, and theater critic Robert Brustein on Joseph Heller.
Interview with Susan Mulcahy; Interview with Lloyd Schwartz; Interview with Michael Tolkin; Review James Crouse and Dale Trusheim's book "The Case Against the SAT." July 20, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959922882].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York gossip columnist SUSAN MULCAHY. Mulcahy is one of New York City's most influential gossip columnists. For three years, she edited "Page 6" of the New York Post, the page on which the various gossip columns appear. She now writes the "Inside New York" column at the rival paper Newsday. She's written a book on her work titled My Lips Are Sealed: Confessions of a Gossip Columnist. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ and host TERRY GROSS talk about director PETER SELLAR'S up-dated staging of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," one of the offerings at this summer's Pepsico Summerfare in Purchase, New York. This time round the opera is set in the ritzy Trump Tower in Manhattan. It was Sellars who set "Cosi Fan Tutte" in a diner crowded with Vietnam vets, and "Don Giovannii" in a drug-infested Spanish Harlem. INT.2: Novelist MICHAEL TOLKIN. His first novel, titled Player, is a Kafkaesque journey through the mind and life of Griffin Mill, a production executive at a major Hollywood studio who glibly rejects the scripts that writers pitch to him until he receives as anonymous postcard from a spurned writer promising to kill him. REV.2: Guest commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews The Case Against the SAT, a new book critical of the Scholastic Aptitude Tests, the test administered annually to high school seniors by the Educational Testing Service. Corrigan also has some thoughts on the Advance Placement Exams, also given by ETS. For three years she graded AP English exams.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with jazz pianist HARRY CONNICK JR. Connick began performing in New Orleans at age 5 and made his first record when he was 9. His new solo album includes interpretations of Thelonius Monk's "I Mean You," the old standard "Sunny Side of Street," and stride piano blues. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER muses on the heavy metal scene. He reviews a number of recent recordings by bands featured in this summer's "Monsters of Rock" tour, such as Van Halen, Metallica and Scorpions.
INT.2: Novelist THOMAS DISCH. Best known for his science fiction novels - Camp Concentration and 334 - Disch is also the author of several acclaimed children's books - The Brave Little Toaster - and a Victorian novel, Clara Reeve. Disch is also the theater critic for The Nation magazine. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Decline of Western Civilization Part II: The Metal Years." Directed by PENELlope SPHEERIS, the film is a documentary-style look at the world of heavy metal rock, profiling some of today's top metal bands, like Megadeth, Lizzy Borden, Seduce, and pioneers of the metal sound, like Motorhead, Ozzy Osbourne and Aerosmith.

Interview with Robert Thurman; Interview with Bonnie Koloc and Howard Levy; Interview with Frances Williams; Commentary on bad memories. July 22, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923713].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: DR. ROBERT THURMAN, the first American to be ordained as a Tibetan Buddhist monk. He later returned to the United States and established The Institute for Buddhist Studies at the University of Massachusetts. He visited Tibet in the fall of 1987 and is now setting up a Tibet House in New York City. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast Friday, February 12, 1988.) REV.1: Singer BONNIE KOLOC. Koloc is a Chicago-based singer who draws from gospel, folk and blues in a repertoire that includes songs like "With You on My Side," "Hot Night in New York City," "Mama Chicago" and "If My Love Were a River." She performs at cabarets and folk festivals around the country. Today, she performs two songs in our weekly performance segment. She's accompanied on piano by HOWARD LEVY. INT.2: FRANCES WILLIAMS, the 83-year-old actress who stars as "Miss Marie" in the CBS television show "Frank's Place." Williams is a matriarch of American black theater, with a career spanning almost 60 years on stage, in films, television and radio. Williams worked with Paul Robeson, Ava Gardner and Howard Keel and acted in both the original Broadway cast of "Raisin in the Sun" and "Showboat." REV.2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY return to Fresh Air to read a poem about bad memories.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Middle East scholar FOUAD AJAMI. Ajami is the director of Middle Eastern Studies at the Johns Hopkins School of International Studies. He grew up in Lebanon and has written extensively about U.S.-Arab relations. His books include The Arab Predicament: Arab Political Thought and Practice Since 1967, and a newly published essay that accompanies photographs by Eli Reed that show the transformation of Beirut from a resort town to a desolate armed camp. The book is titled Beirut: City of Regrets. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the latest album by alto saxophonist STEVE COLEMAN, a key figure in a group of young, Brooklyn-based musicians who integrate jazz with the rock and funk they grew up with. The album, with Coleman leading his band Five Elements, is titled "Sine Die" (SCENE-ay DEE-ay). INT.2: Crime writer DONALD WESTLAKE. His early novels, like The Mercenaries and The Hunter, which he wrote under the byline of RICHARD PARKER, were hailed for their dead seriousness and their view of a world alien to law and convention. Now his novels, including his latest, Trust Me on This, treat murder as comic crime caper. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the highs and lows of TV's coverage of last week's Democratic National Convention and talks about television's coverage of past conventions.

Interview with Syd Mead; Commentary on the Rolling Stones' influences; Interview with Mary Gaitskill; Review of Clarence Major's novel "Such Was the Season." July 26, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925754].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Designer and industrial engineer SYD MEAD. He was a pioneer in the creation of futuristic landscapes for films based on currently understood scientific principles. His work can be seen in the films "2010," "Blade Runner," "Aliens," "Tron" and in the "Short Circuit" films for which he designed the main robot, Robot Number 5. Mead has also designed experimental body shapes for Ford Motors, bus cockpits that reduce driver fatigue, and consumer products like hot water boilers, razors and furniture that break new ground in their ease of use. In his articles and speeches, Mead advocates the use of innovative design as a vehicle for social change. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD plays songs from the Rolling Stones' Interview with Barry Glassner; Review of Renata Tebaldi's self-title album; Interview with Penelope Spheeris; Commentary on authentic accents in films. July 27, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959922881].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Sociologist BARRY GLASSNER. His new book, Why we Look the Way We Do (And How We Feel About It), examines the hidden toll in our obsessive quest to meet society's expectations of an attractive body. Glassner argues that the compulsive way Americans pursue fitness, particularly in the last ten years, has less to do with reshaping bodies than with nourishing souls and achieving a feeling of moral purity. Glassner is a professor of sociology at Syracuse University. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews an album of live performances and early recordings from early in the career of Italian soprano RENATA TEBALDI. INT.2: The first of a two-part interview with film director PENEOLE SPHEERIS. Her new documentary, "The Decline of Western Civilization Part II: The Metal Years," looks at the world of heavy metal rock. The film profiles today's top bands - Megadeth, Lizzy Borden, Seduce - and the first generation of metal bands - Motorhead, Ozzy Osbourne and Aerosmith. Spheeris' earlier film - "The Decline of Western Civilization" - dealt with the punk music scene in Los Angeles. Spheeris got her start in films making music videos. In the first part of the interview, Spheeris talks about her new film. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG talks about linguistic authenticity in the movies, or why Englishman BOB HOSKIN'S effort to sound like an American gumshoe in the hit film "Who Framed Roger Rabbit." doesn't quite make it.
Interview with Fred de Cordova; Review of Patti Smith's album "Dreams of Life"; Interview with Penelope Spheeris; Review of the films "A Fish Called Wanda" and "Midnight Run." July 28, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923714].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with David Watts; Commentary on nature-inspired songs; Interview with Pat DiNizio; Commentary on the television writers' strike. July 29, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924375].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: DAVID WATTS. Watts is the former director of the Karisoke Research Center in Rawanda, Africa, a center devoted to the study of the mountain gorilla. Watts took over the directorship of the center in 1985 after the murder of its founder, the American woman Dian Fossey. Watts served as the "ambassador to the gorillas" during the production of a film based on Fossey's life. The film, which was shot at the Research Center, is titled "Gorillas in the Mist," and stars Sigourney Weaver. REV.1: Singer BONNIE KOLOC. Koloc is a Chicago-based singer who draws from gospel, folk and blues in a repertoire that includes songs like "With You on My Side," "Hot Night in New York City," "Mama Chicago" and "If My Love Were a River." Today, she sings "You Played Me Just Like a Piano." She's accompanied on piano by HOWARD LEVY. INT.2: PAT DiNIZIO, the founder, lead singer and songwriter of the rock band The Smithereens. DiNizio's songwriting has been compared to Buddy Holly's, the Beatles' and the Byrds'. The Smithereen recently released their second album, titled "Green Thoughts," and are now on a nationwide tour. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI muses on the effects of the continuing writer's strike against the television production houses. He talks about the strike's affect on television critics and how the networks might adapt old shows.

Interview with Barbara Cook; Review of Steve Turre's album "Fire and Ice"; Interview with Nelson George; Review of the home video release of the film "Near Dark." August 1, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924403].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer BARBARA COOK. Composer Stephen Sondheim described Cook "as one of the two or three finest singers of song." Cook played the lead female roles in the Broadway musicals "The Music Man," "Plain and Fancy" and "Candide." When parts for Cook's style ebbed on Broadway, she became a star of the cabaret circuit. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Friday, August 21, 1987.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Fire and Ice," the new album by trombonist STEVE TURRE. Turre, who plays in the band on "Saturday Night Live," is one of the most visible and ubiquitous jazz musicians. Turre's new album features compositions for jazz and string quartet. INT.2: Music journalist NELSON GEORGE. George is the black music editor of "Billboard Magazine." His new book, "The Death of Rhythm and Blues," tells the story of the post-World War II transformation of black music within the white-run music industry. George argues that the more black music was assimilated into the mainstream, the more the artistic expression was compromised. George is also the author of a history of Motown, titled "Where Did Our Love Go?" REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video release "Near Dark," a horror film that he says is distinctly different from the genre.

Interview with Timothy Ferris; Commentary on the rock band Mott the Hoople; Interview with Bruce Sterling; Review of the "American Splendor" comic book series. August 2, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925474].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Astronomer and science writer TIMOTHY FERRIS. His new book, Coming of Age in the Milky Way, is the story of how man discovered his place in the cosmos. Advance reviews have hailed the book as a literary and scientific breakthrough that reads both as intellectual history and an adventure story. Ferris' first book, The Red Limit, was praised by astronomer Carl Sagan for creating a new style of science book that combines the force of fact and detail with the grace of fiction writing. Ferris also wrote and narrated by the PBS special "The Creation of the Universe." REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles Mott the Hoople, the bizarre British group that followed psychedelia. The group was led by singer, songwriter IAN HUNTER and is best remembered for "All The Young Dudes," a song written by David Bowie. INT 2: Science fiction writer BRUCE STERLING. Sterling is the editor of a volume of science fiction writing titled Mirrorshades: The Cyberpunk Anthology. Cyberpunk writers take the original insights of the first wave of science fiction and apply the latest technology, like cybernetics and neurochemistry. Like punk rock, Cyberpunk writers thrive on the collision of high-tech and pop culture. REV.2: Guest Book Critic STUART KLAWANS reviews the American Splendor comic book series by HARVEY PEKAR. His comics focus on everyday street scenes of Pekar's native Cleveland and carry titles like "Waking to the Terror of the New Day." Pekar has just published the 13th edition of the American Splendor series, and two anthologies of his older material are now available.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Firefighter DENNIS SMITH. Smith wrote the best-selling, Report From Engine Co. #82, an account of the daily routines of New York City firefighters. The popularity of the book heightened awareness of the risks firefighters are exposed to during otherwise routine days. Smith's new book, Firefighters: Their Lives in Their Own Words, is a collection of firefighter's own descriptions of their most dramatic and frightening experiences on the job. Smith also is the publisher of Firehouse Magazine. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of composer KURT WEILL and BERTOLT BRECHT's "Threepenny Opera," and two other reissues of Weill's work on compact disc that feature Weill's widow, LOTTE LENYA. INT.2: Actor LOU DIAMOND PHILLIPS. He's best known for his leading role in the film "La Bamba" in which he played hispanic rocker Richie Valens. His other film role came in "Stand and Deliver," which starred Edward James Olmos.
Phillips' new movie, a western, is titled "Young Guns." REV.2: JAN HAROLD BRUNVAND explores the urban legend of the earwig. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, September 16, 1987.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film and video director JULIEN TEMPLE. Temple is now immersed in a controversy over his new video for Neil Young titled "This Note's For You." The video lampoons rock stars' endorsements of products like beer and soda. MTV, the principal outlet for music videos, has declined to air it. Temple has directed videos for David Bowie, Janet Jackson, Billy Idol, Mick Jagger and others. He also directed the film "Absolute Beginners" and the Sex Pistols' "The Great Rock and Roll Swindle." REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Brian Wilson" the solo album by the former member of The Beach Boys. The album comes after Wilson's much-publicized 20-year struggle with drugs and emotional problems.

INT.2: Writer BOBBIE ANN MASON. Mason's fiction includes Shiloh and Other Stories, and the novel In Country, the story of a Vietnam veteran struggling to re-enter society. In Country is now being made into a movie starring Bruce Willis. Mason also writes non-fiction for the The New Yorker Magazine. Her new novel is titled Spence and Lila. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Diehard," the action-thriller starring BRUCE WILLIS, the star of television's "Moonlighting."

Interview with John Cleese; Commentary on music inspired by the internment of Japanese Americans; Interview with Bill Harley; Review of theater festivals in western Massachusetts. August 5, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924402].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comic actor JOHN CLEESE. Cleese made his name in comedy as a member of the Monty Python comedy troupe. He went on to create the British television series "Fawlty Towers," which can now be seen on Public Television. He also starred in the film "Clockwise," and currently stars in the comedy "A Fish Called Wanda." REV.1: Jazz pianist SUMI TONOOKA plays an excerpt from her new composition "Out of Silence," a work inspired by her mother's internment in a camp for Japanese-Americans during World War II. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Friday, February 26, 1988.) INT.2: Children's singer and storyteller BILL HARLEY. His songs, though written for children, draw in parents as well. Harley also performs several songs during the interview. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews the regional theater of western Massachusetts. The festivals she discusses include the Mount, Berkshire and Williamstown Theater Festivals. Her review focuses on the Williamstown Theater Festival production of BERTOLT BRECHT's "The Resistable Rise of Arturo Ui.

---

Interview with Philip Langdon; Review of Ornette Coleman's album "Virgin Beauty"; Interview with Shelia Ballantyne; Interview with David Bianculli. August 8, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924317].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Architecture writer PHILIP LANGDON. Langdon has written extensively about American houses, illustrating all the different forms American housing has taken. Langdon also looks at how the interior space is laid out and what those designs say about our culture. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Virgin Beauty" the new album by alto saxophonist and composer ORNETTE COLEMAN. Coleman is backed by his electrified band Prime Time, and the album features a guest appearance by JERRY GARCIA, lead guitarist for The Grateful Dead. INT.2: Writer and Critic SHELIA BALLANTYNE. Her books include the novels Norma Jean, The Termite Queen and Imaginary Crimes. Her new collection of short stories, Life on Earth has just been published. One of the stories won an O.Henry Short Story Award several years ago. Ballantyne is also a frequent contributor to The New York Times Book Review. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI and guest host SEDGE THOMSON discuss the agreement in the writer's strike and what it means for the Fall television season. Bianculli is in Los Angeles attending the annual convention of television critics.

---

Interview with Samuel R. Delany; Commentary on Eddie Cochran; Interview with Don DeLillo; Review of Amos Tutola's novels "Simbi and the Satyr of the Dark Jungle" and "Feather
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Science fiction writer SAMUEL R. DELANY. Delany has won both the Hugo and Nebula Awards, the two most prestigious awards for science fiction writing. His books include Dhalgren, and the Neveryon series. Delany introduced many stylistic devices that are now conventions in science fiction. He has also written many essays on the genre. Delaney, a black, gay man, honed his writing skills in Greenwich Village in the early 1960's, when he was married to the poet Marilyn Hacker. Delany has just written a memoir entitled, The Motion of Light In Water: Sex and Science Fiction Writing in the East Village, 1957-1965. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles Oklahoma guitarist EDDIE COCHRAN. Like his friend Buddy Holly, Cochran died at the height of his popularity. And like Holly, his hits, like "Summertime Blues" and "C'mon Everybody," continue to be recorded. INT 2: Novelist DON DeLILLO. His new novel, Libra, is based on the assassination of President Kennedy and the various conspiracy theories that continue to swirl around the tragedy. DeLillo's eight previous novels, starting with Americana and the bestseller and American Book Award winner White Noise, all revolve around conspiracy theories and the public's conviction that public events are never what they seem. REV.2: Guest Book Critic STUART KLAWANS reviews two reissued novels of the African writer AMOS Tutola, whose stories feature magical characters and adventures and feel as though they were told around a campfire. Tutola's writing was first brought to the attention of western readers by T.S. ELIOT.

Interview with Irwin Winkler; Review of the album "A Sonata Recital by Bela Bartok and Joseph Szigeti"; Interview with Danny Ferrington; Review of the home video release of "Ruggles of Red Gap." August 10, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924311].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Hollywood producer IRWIN WINKLER. Winkler's films have been honored with 11 Academy Awards, and 38 nominations. The most recent winner was "Round Midnight." He won the Academy Award for Best Picture for "Rocky," and received Best Picture nominations for "Raging Bull" and "The Right Stuff." Other films include "True Confessions," "New York, New York," "Nickelodeon" and "The Gang that Couldn't Shoot Straight." His latest film, directed by Costa-Gavras, is titled "Betrayed." REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording that features composer BELA...
BARTOK at the piano in a concert at the Library of Congress in Washington on April 13, 1940. Bartok is joined by violinist JOSEPH SZIGETI. INT.2: Guitar maker DANNY FERRINGTON. His custom acoustic guitars are used by musicians such as Waylon Jennings, Elvis Costello, Linda Ronstadt and Eddie Van Halen. The custom designs could vary the color, the inlays and the basic shape of the body. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video of the 1935 classic comedy "Ruggles of Red Gap," in which a proper English butler tries to bring civility and manners to the Wild West. "Ruggles of Red Gap" stars CHARLES LAUGHTON. Ken also comments on several other recent home video releases.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist KAY MILLS. Her new book, A Place in the News, From the Women's page to the Front Page, explores the increasing role of women at newspapers around the country and looks back at the discrimination women reporters confronted in the early 60s and 70s. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "The Tenement Year," the first album in six years by PERE UBU, a Cleveland group whose first records presaged the sound of British punk bands. The band is led by singer and songwriter DAVID THOMAS. INT.2: Writer HUBERT SELBY, Jr. Twenty-four years ago, his collection of stories, The Last Exit To Brooklyn, shocked readers with its salty language and explicit portrayal of prostitutes, thugs, ex-cons, and striking dock workers along the Brooklyn waterfront. The Last Exit To Brooklyn is now being filmed by a German production company, and several of Selby's other books have just been re-issued. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Last Temptation of Christ," the controversial film by Martin Scorsese that depicts Christ as torn by doubts and second thoughts about his life before accepting his messianic role just before his death. The film has been roundly criticized by evangelical groups who object to Scorsese's portrayal of Christ as human and frail.
Interview with Dean Stockwell; Interview with Marty Grosz; Interview with James Gleick; Review of the book "Writing Red." August 12, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924316].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor DEAN STOCKWELL. He began as a child actor in the 40s, appearing in the films "The Boy with Green Hair" and "Gentleman's Agreement." As an adult, he won Best Actor Awards at the Cannes Film Festival for "Compulsion" and "Long Day's Journey Into Night." He left acting for a while in the 60s. His most recent films include "Paris, Texas," and the drug-dealing whorehouse owner who lip-synchs the Roy Orbison song "In Dreams" in the film "Blue Velvet." He's now appearing in two films, Jonathan Demme's "Married to the Mob" and Francis Ford Coppola's "Tucker, the Man and His Dream." REV.1: Singer and rhythm guitarist Marty Grosz is featured in the weekly performance spot. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on August 14, 1987.) INT.2: Science writer JAMES GLEICK. His best-selling book, Chaos, explores the current scientific revolution that explains phenomena as diverse as climatic change, the rhythm of the human heart and why no two snowflakes are alike. REV.2: Guest commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Writing Red, an anthology of women's political writing from the 1930s. The book, edited by CHARLOTTE NICOLA and PAULA RABINOWITZ, collects women's writing on the labor strikes and radical politics of the Depression era.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: TONY HENDRA. His new book, Going Too Far, is a history of "Boomer" (as in Baby) humor. Hendra was editor of "The National Lampoon" for eight years. He directed the Lampoon play "Lemmings" and co-created and wrote the British TV series "Spitting Image." In addition, he has written several books of satire and appeared in the movie "This is Spinal Tap." (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, December 16, 1987.) REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new reissue of DUKE ELLINGTON's Far East Suite, the work that grew out of Ellington's State Department tour of the orient in 1963. INT.2: Author ANDREW HOLLERAN. His new collection of essays, Ground Zero, chronicles gay life both before and after the AIDS epidemic. Holleran's earlier novels include, Nights In
It's a made-for-TV movie about a private-eye hired to track down a woman that may, or may not, be a ghost. It premieres this week on the Showtime cable network.

Interview with Joan Jacobs Brumberg; Commentary on Sam Phillips; Interview with Mako; Review of Don DeLillo's novel "Libra." August 16, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925710].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Historian JOAN JACOBS BRUMBERG. BRUMBERG's new book, Fasting Girls, The Emergence of Anorexia Nervosa as a Modern Disease, is a study of the rise of extreme forms of dieting that as many as one million American women practice every year. Brumberg explores the roots of a credo of self-denial that has elevated thinness to a high moral plane. Brumberg is the director of Women's Studies at Cornell University. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles SAM PHILLIPS, the head of Sun Records, whose stars included Elvis, Johnny Cash and Jerry Lee Lewis. INT 2: Japanese-American actor MAKO. He has acted on stage in both New York and Los Angeles, and is now the director of the East West Players, a group of Asian-American actors. His movie credits include "The Sand Pebbles," for which he earned an Academy Award nomination for Best Supporting Actor, and "Conan the Destroyer." He currently has a role in "Tucker," and stars in the upcoming film "The Wash." REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Libra, the novel by DON DeLILLO based on the assassination of President Kennedy and the life of Lee Harvey Oswald.

Interview with Ray Bradbury; Review of Jorge Bolet's album "Ballades Barcarolle; Fantaisie, op. 49"; Interview with Jack Towers; Commentary on political oratory. August 17, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924313].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and futurist RAY BRADBURY. He's published twenty-three books, including I Sing the Body Electric, The Martian Chronicles and Farenheit 451, all classics of science fiction. Bradbury created the scenario for the U.S. Pavillion at the 1964 New York World's Fair, and the concept for Spaceship Earth at EPCOT at Disney World. In the early 60s, he wrote screenplays for the television programs...
"The Twilight Zone" and "Alfred Hitchcock Presents." He is currently at work on an operatic version of Fahrenheit 451, slated to open in the fall, and is working with Disney officials on the development of a new theme park in Paris. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of Chopin's greatest piano music, with Cuban-born JORGE BOLET performing. INT.2: Audio engineer JACK TOWERS. Towers is a recognized master at cleaning the pops and cracks off of vintage recordings. He has worked on Savoy master recordings for Arista Records, and for the Smithsonian Institute's numerous historical issues of country and jazz music. And Tower's own recordings of a 1940 Duke Ellington concert were issued as a three-record set in 1980 and won Ellington a posthumous Grammy Award. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses the evolution of political oratory - or at least the way the media regards such speechmaking - from the seven-hour exchanges of the Lincoln-Douglas debates of 1854, to today's 15-second bites for television.

Interview with James Conaway; Review of Frank Zappa's album "You Can't Do that on Stage Anymore, Vol. 1" ; Interview with Margaret Smith; Review of the film "Married to the Mob." August 18, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501338].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist James Conaway. His book, "The Kingdom in the Country," is an exploration of the modern west, and how our romantic images of gunfighters and open spaces compare with the reality of modern farmers and federally managed lands. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, October 16, 1987.) REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER examines the eclectic career of FRANK ZAPPA, and reviews the new compact disc series of vintage Zappa recordings and live performances. INT.2: Stand-up comic MARGARET SMITH. A veteran of Chicago's famous Second City comedy troup, Smith is known for her deadpan delivery and her simmering contempt for her parents, friends, and just about everyone else. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new comedy, "Married to the Mob," by director JONATHAN DEMME and starring MICHELE PFEIFFER, DEAN STOCKWELL and MATTHEW MODINE.
Interview with Ralph Blumenthal; Commentary on songs from the 1920s; Interview with Errol Morris; Commentary on Louis Black. August 19, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924315].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York Times investigator reporter RALPH BLUMENTHAL. His new book, The Last Days of the Scilians, follows how the FBI tracked and caught the Sicilian Mafiosos who ran the {dollar}1.6 billion drug smuggling operation in New York known as "The Pizza Connection." Blumenthal is now heading up the Times' coverage of the Tawana Brawley case. REV.1: Folk singer MICHAEL COONEY sings two songs from the 1920s INT.2: Filmmaker ERROL MORRIS. He directs documentaries that have been described as crosses between "60 Minutes" and a Laurie Anderson performance piece. His new movie, "The Thin Blue Line," is based on the murder of a Dallas police officer. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews the political humor of Louis Black. She says is political humor comes back into vogue, then Black is ready for a breakthrough.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor KIRK DOUGLAS. The star of "Lust for Life," "Paths of Glory," Champion" and "Spartacus," Douglas is one of the most accomplished actors of the modern Hollywood era. Douglas has written his autobiography, titled Kirk Douglas, The Ragman's Son, in which he describes the grinding poverty he knew as a child in Amsterdam, New York, the son of a Russian-Jewish ragman, and his rise to Broadway's stages and then Hollywood. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Letter to South Africa," a new album by pianist Curtis Clarke and his quintet. Clarke is an American who lives in Amsterdam. Kevin says his music is a blend of the light-hearted and the plaintive, new-age mildness and free-jazz raunch. The album includes Clark's composition "Serious Wishing," dedicated to Winnie Mandela. INT.2: Writer WILLIAM NOVAK. He's made his mark, and fortune, helping others write their life stories. He's ghostwritten the runaway bestseller Iacocca: An Autobiography, Mayflower Madam: The Secret LIfe of Sydney Biddle Barrow and Man of the House: The Life and Political Memoirs of Tip O'Neill. He's currently working on a book with First Lady Nancy Reagan. REV.2: Television Critic
DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Aretha Franklin: Queen of Soul," this week's offering on PBS's "American Masters" series. Most of the documentaries in this series have focused on poets, painters, and film personalities. "Aretha Franklin" traces the soul singer's career and includes many live performances and interviews with Eric Clapton and Dick Gregory.

Interview with Sidney Lumet; Commentary on Ray Charles; Interview with Griffin Dunne and Amy Robinson; Commentary on shibboleths. August 23, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925860].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director SIDNEY LUMET. Lumet is one of America's most prominent directors, and one who takes on projects with social significance as well as high entertainment value. His films include "Twelve Angry Men," his debut, "Equus," "The Wiz," "Deathtrap," "Fail Safe," "Serpico," "Network" and "The Verdict." In all, his films have been nominated for 40 Academy Awards. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD traces the career of singer and pianist RAY CHARLES, from his start singing the blues in nightclubs in Florida to his breakthrough recordings with Atlantic Records. INT 2: Film producers GRIFFIN DUNNE and AMY ROBINSON. Together they've produced such respected, independent low-budget features as "Chilly Scenes of Winter," directed by Joan Micklin Silver; "Baby, It's You," directed by John Sayles; and "After Hours," directed by Martin Scorsese. Dunne is also an actor and starred in "After Hours." Robinson and Dunne's new film, "Running on Empty," is directed by Sidney Lumet. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines shibboleths, the little rules of grammar that separate the snobs from the hoi-polloi. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, March 23, 1988.)

Interview with Brian Wilson; Review of the album "The Bernstein Songbook"; Interview with Carol Wincenc; Review of of Timothy Findley's novel "The Telling of Lies." August 24, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924616].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Rock musician and former Beach Boy BRIAN WILSON. Wilson has just released his first solo album, "Brian Wilson." It comes after Wilson's much-publicized 20-year struggle with drugs and emotional problems. It was Wilson who was most responsible for the Beach Boys' unique sound that fused harmonious rock with the ethos of surfing. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ celebrates Leonard Bernstein's 70th birthday with a review of "The Bernstein Songbook" a new compilation of the composer's work just released by CBS Records. The recording includes highlights from "On the Town," Bernstein's first Broadway show (1944), "West Side Story," "Candide," "Trouble in Tahiti" and "Peter Pan." INT.2: Flutist CAROL WINCENC. She's been a frequent guest of major orchestras and festivals throughout the United States and abroad. Her repertoire includes works by musicians such as 20th Century composer Lukas Foss, as well as Debussy, Faure and Poulenc. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Telling of Lies, by Timothy Findley.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and actor SIMON CALLOW. Callow has played a wide range of roles on both stage and screen. His film appearances include "Amadeus," "A Room with a View" and "Maurice." His first book, the autobiograhy Being an Actor, won wide critical praise. His new book is a biography of the actor Charles Laughton, the star of such films as "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Witness for the Prosectorion" and "Jamaica Inn." REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Live at the Whiskey a Go Go on the Fabulous Sunset Strip," the new album from X, the new wave group from Los Angeles. INT.2: Wine taster ROBERT PARKER. He tastes as many as 200 wines every week, and his appraisals of these wines, published in his own newsletter, have earned him a reputation as America's most influential wine critic. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, February, 24, 1988.) REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Clean and Sober," the story of a recovering alcoholic and cocaine addict, starring comic actor MICHAEL KEATON.
Interview with Doc Watson; Commentary on classic love songs; Interview with Sherwood Schwartz; Review of the home video "Basic Plumbing." August 26, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924518].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer and guitarist DOC WATSON. He is one of America's premier acoustic folk guitarists. His flat-pick style of playing traditional folk and bluegrass has made his sound one of the most distinctive of any folk artist. His 24 albums have earned him four Grammys. In the folk music community, Watson is best known for his part in preserving the traditional ballads and melodies of southern Appalachia.

(REbroadcast. Original broadcast on Thursday, March 24, 1988.)

REV.1: Singer and guitarist MICHAEL COONEY is back in our weekly performance spot. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on August 7, 1987.)

INT.2: Radio and television writer SHERWOOD SCHWARTZ. Schwartz began writing for radio on the Bob Hope Show in 1939. When television came along, Schwartz wrote for such comedy hit shows as "The Red Skelton Show," and "My Favorite Martian." He won an Emmy Award for his comedy writing from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. In 1963 Sherwood created, wrote and produced the hit series "Gilligan's Island." More recent work includes the creation of the series "Kelly's Kids," and he is currently working on "Gilligan's Island: The Second Generation."

REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews "Basic Plumbing," a new home video that Ken says is "an hour's worth of high drama."

Interview with Howard Hesseman; Review of the album "Benny Goodman, Volume 1"; Interview with Charles Peters; Review of the film "Missile." August 29, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924615].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor HOWARD HESSEMAN. He's best known to television viewers as the freewheeling counterculture disc jockey Dr. Johnny Fever on the series "WKRP in Cincinnati." He now stars as Charlie Moore on the CBS series "Head of the Class." Before acting on television, Hesseman was a member of the San Francisco comedy troupe The Committee. His feature film roles include "Shampoo," "Doctor Detroit," and Mel Brooks' "Silent Movie."

REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the "Benny Goodman Yale Archives, Volume 1," a sampling of the five truckloads of tapes that Goodman left to Yale University at his death.

REV.2: CHARLES PETERS. He's the editor of the influential magazine The Washington Monthly, and author of the book How Washington Really Works. He's been called "the godfather of neoliberalism." His magazine has launched the careers of such noted political journalists as Michael Kinsley, Gregg Easterbrook, Nicholas Lemann and James Fallows. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Missle," Fredrick Wiseman's documentary on America's nuclear warriors.

Interview with Yoram Kaniuk; Commentary on romantic summer songs; Interview with Kathy Baker; Review of Philip Roth's memoir "The Facts." August 30, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925705].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Israeli novelist YORAM KANIUK. His new novel, Confessions of a Good Arab, considers both sides of the Israeli/Palestinian conflict through the eyes of a man who is both Arab and Jew, whose father was an Israeli Arab, and whose mother was a heroine of the Jewish war for Independence in 1945. His conflict is typified through his failed relationship with the Jewish woman he loves. Kaniuk's other novels include Himmo King of Jerusalem and The Last Jew. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD remembers the dance music of late August, when the call of the new school year meant saying goodbye to summer loves. INT 2: Actress KATHY BAKER. Baker's first major roles came on stage. She won an Obie for her role in the Sam Shepard play "Fool for Love." Her first starring role came opposite Peter Weller in "My Sister's Keeper." Her first breakthrough role was as a nervy prostitute in "Street Smart." She now stars opposite Michael Keaton in "Clean and Sober." REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Facts: A Novelist's Autobiography, the autobiography of novelist Phillip Roth.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet EDWARD HIRSCH. His second book of poetry, Wild Gratitude, won the 1986 National Book Critics award. Hirsh, who taught in the Philadelphia and New York public school systems, and who was a star football player in college, writes poems distinguished by their anguish and despair. He currently teaches creative writing at the University of Houston. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new CBS recording of Charles Ives' "Holiday Symphony," with Michael Tilson
Thomas leading the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. INT.2: Father RALPH BEITING. For 40 years, Beiting has counseled and ministered to the poor of Appalachia. In 1963, he founded the Christian Appalachian Project to help the poor of Eastern Kentucky. The project now runs 75 different programs throughout the region. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on "Language in Art since 1960," an exhibit currently on view at New York's Whitney Museum.

Interview with Lukas Foss; Review of popular songs from the summer of 1988; Interview with Saeed Jaffrey; Review of the film "Eight Men Out." September 1, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924754].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Composer and conductor LUKAS FOSS. Foss leads the Brooklyn Philharmonic and is one of America's leading composers of contemporary symphonic music. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, October 7, 1987.) REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the songs he thinks the Summer of 1988 will be remembered for, everything from white blues to rap. INT.2: Actor SAEED JAFFREY. His films include "Gandhi," "The Chess Players," "The Man Who Would be King," "A Passage to India" and "My Beautiful Laundrette." He co-stars with Pierce Brosnan and Shashi Kapoor in the new film "The Deceivers." The film is based on the true story of an Englishman who stumbles on the existence of a secret, barbaric Indian cult called The Deceivers. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Eight Men Out," the new John Sayles film based on baseball's greatest scandal, the fixing of the 1919 World Series. The actors include Charlie Sheen, John Cusack and D.B.Sweeney.

Interview with Ben E. King; Commentary on Jelly Roll Morton; Interview with Shawn Slovo; Review of the musical "Ain't Misbehaving". September 2, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924752].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Rhythm and Blues singer BEN E. KING. He was a member of the Drifters in the late 50s. His smooth vocals graced such popular hits as "There Goes My Baby" and "Save The Last Dance for Me." His solo career has produced hits like "I (Who Have Nothing)," "Spanish Harlem" and, his best-known song, which enjoyed a revival three years ago, "Stand By Me." REV.1: With this segment, Fresh Air introduces a new performer-in-residence, pianist DICK HYMAN, who, over the next few weeks, will give an illustrated history of the jazz piano. In today's segment, Hyman illustrates the music of composer and pianist Jelly Roll Morton. Hyman is a composer and arranger. He's worked on several Woody Allen films. He wrote the music for "Purple Rose of Cairo," and was music supervisor for "Radio Days." INT.2: Screenwriter SHAWN SLOVO. Her first film, "A World Apart," is the autobiographical story of the relationship between a white woman, committed to fighting apartheid, and her 13-year-old daughter, who is struggling to cope with the political choices her mother has made. Slovo's parents were early members of the outlawed African National Congress; her mother reported on the injustices of apartheid for alternative newspapers, while her father defended blacks in the court system. Slovo's mother was murdered in exile by a parcel bomb. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, June 15, 1988.) REV.2: Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE reviews the Broadway revival of "Ain't Misbehavin'," featuring the music of Fats Waller. The production stars the original cast, which includes NELL CARTER, KEN PAGE and ANDRE DeSHIELDS.

---

Interview with Astor Piazzolla; Review of the album "Ken Werner Plays the Piano Music of Bix Beiderbecke, Duke Ellington, George Gershwin and James P. Johnson"; Interview with Helen Merrill; Review of the television show "Baby Boom." September 5, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457696].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Tango innovator ASTOR PIAZZOLLA. Since the early 60s, Piazzolla has been leading groups that play an updated tango connecting this Argentinian form with the musical innovations from Europe and America, both classical and contemporary. The adjustments have earned him the enmity of Argentinians, and for most of the 70s he lived in France where he wrote film scores. Piazzolla is a classically trained composer who wrote symphonies and studied with Nadia Boulanger, the renowned French instructor of composition. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, April 19, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new CD reissue of pianist Ken Werner's 1978 album "Ken Werner Plays the Piano Music of Bix Beiderbecke, Duke Ellington, George Gershwin and James P. Johnson." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, November 16, 1987.) INT.2: Singer HELEN MERRILL. Her latest album features arrangements by the late GIL EVANS, with whom she first worked over 30 years ago. Merrill was one of the most acclaimed jazz stars of the 50s when she left America for Italy and then Japan. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Thursday, May 26, 1988.) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the pilot of a new NBC comedy series "Baby Boom," starring KATE JACKSON. It's based on the movie of the same name which starred Diane Keaton.

Interview with Wilfred Sheed; Commentary on Alex Chilton; Interview with Jane Alexander; Review of Ingmar Bergman's autobiography "The Magic Lantern." September 6, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925859].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist and critic WILFRED SHEED. His fiction includes the novels Boys of Winter, Max Jamison and People Will Always Be Kind. His non-fiction includes a biography of Muhammad Ali, the publisher and politician Claire Boothe Luce, and a memoir of his parents. Sheed's latest work is the text for a picture book of the Kennedy era. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the career of ALEX CHILTON, who started out with the rock band the Box Tops. Their first song, "The Letter," became an instant Number 1 hit. The Memphis-born Chilton has been in and out of the business ever since, and his style has inspired Southern bands such as R.E.M. and the DBs. INT 2: Stage and screen actress JANE ALEXANDER. She won a Tony Award for her role in the Broadway production of "The Great White Hope" and an Emmy for the TV drama "Playing for Time." She was nominated for an Oscar for her work in "All the President's Men." Her other screen roles include "Kramer vs. Kramer," "Testament" and "The Betsy." She played Eleanor Roosevelt in the TV movie "Franklin and Eleanor." Her latest role is in the made-for-TV movie "Open Admissions," to be broadcast on CBS this week. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Magic Lantern, an autobiography by the enigmatic Swedish film director INGMAR BERGMAN.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: The first of a two-part interview with Film director and screenwriter PAUL SCHRADE. His writing credits include "Taxi Driver" and "The Last Temptation of Christ," the controversial new film by Martin Scorsese. Schrader's directing credits include "Hard Core," "Light of Day," "American Gigolo" and the new film "Patty Hearst." REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new home video of one of the most famous live specials in the history of television, the Ford 50th Anniversary Show, which aired in 1953 and featured a 12-minute duet with Ethel Merman and Mary Martin doing their most celebrated musical comedy songs and standards. INT.2: Writer CLARENCE MAJOR. He's one of America's leading black writers. His experimental novels and poems - which feature multiple narrators and shifting sets of characters - are well known in the avant-garde. His novels include My Amputations, Such Was the Season, Emergency Exit and his new novel Painted Turtle: Women with Guitar. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG explains how John Wayne helped teach him Italian. (REBROADCAST FROM 8/12/1987)

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: The second part of a two-part interview with film director and screenwriter PAUL SCHRADER. He wrote the scripts for the films "Taxi Driver" and "The Last Temptation of Christ," the controversial new film by Martin Scorcese. SCHRADER also directed the films "Hard Core," "American Gigolo" and the new film "Patty Hearst." REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "A Vision Shared: A Tribute to Woody Guthrie and Leadbelly." The album features performances by Bruce Springsteen, Bob Dylan and the Irish band U2. Proceeds from the album will help the Smithsonian Institution purchase the Folkways record company, which originally brought out the music of Woody Guthrie and Leadbelly. INT.2: Rock musician JOEY RAMONE, the lead singer for the punk band The Ramones. From their start in 1974, the Ramones combined fast, deafening guitar with precise drumming to create a hurricane of sound. Their songs have titles like "Beat on the Brat," "Gimme Gimme Shock Treatment" and "Now I Wanna Sniff Some Glue." REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Moon Over Parador," the comedy starring RICHARD DREYFUS, RAUL JULIA and SONIA BRAGA.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: RICHARD GOODWIN. In the 60s, he was a speechwriter for Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, and later worked for Presidential candidates Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy. He's written a book that looks back at that period. It's titled Remembering America. REV.1: Jazz pianist DICK HYMAN performs and talks about the music of EROLL GARNER. Hyman is a composer and arranger. He's worked on several Woody Allen films. He wrote the music for "Purple Rose of Cairo," and was music supervisor for "Radio Days." INT.2: Singer DARLENE LOVE. She was the phantom lead singer on some of Phil Spector's biggest girl group hits, like "He's a Rebel," "(Today I Met) The Boy I'm Gonna Marry" and "Da Doo Run Run." She was in the Broadway productions of "Leader of the Pack" and "Carrie." Her first solo album has just been released. It's titled "Painted Pictures." This is the first of a two-part interview. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video of "Gates of Heaven," the documentary on pet cemeteries by Erroll Morris.

Interview with W.S. Merwin; Review of the album "The Legendary Sidney Bechet"; Interview with Darlene Love; Review of the television show "World of Ideas." September 12, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924535].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet W.S. MERWIN. He won the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry for his 1970 work, The Carriers of Ladders. His books of poetry include The Song of Roland, The Compass Flower and, his latest collection, The Rain in the Trees. Many of his poems concern the beauty of the natural world and the consequences of man's desecration of it. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, May 13, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Legendary SIDNEY BECHET," a new re-issue featuring the music of the New Orleans-born jazz musician. Bechet first played clarinet then switched to soprano saxophone. His playing influenced the style of other horn players including Charlie Parker and, more recently, Steve Lacy. INT.2: The second part of a two-part interview with singer DARLENE LOVE. She was the phantom lead singer on some of Phil Spector's biggest girl group hits, like "He's a Rebel," "(Today I Met) The Boy I'm Gonna Marry" and "Da Doo Run Run." She was in the Broadway productions of "Leader of the Pack" and "Carrie." Her first solo album has just been released. It's titled "Painted Pictures." REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Bill Moyers' "World of Ideas," a new nightly half-hour PBS talk show. The program will run for 10 weeks, with Moyers and one guest discussing topics ranging from the arts to science and history.

Interview with Chuck Yeager; Commentary on Rufus Thomas; Interview with Carol Leifer; Review of Joseph Heller's novel "Picture This." September 13, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925709].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: GENERAL CHUCK YEAGER, test pilot, war hero, and the first man to break the sound barrier. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the career of singer and pioneer disc jockey RUFUS THOMAS. It was Thomas who brought the golden era of black vaudeville to the rock and roll stage. He's best known for his series of dance songs including "The Funky Chicken," and "The Dog." INT 2: Comedian CAROL LEIFER. With equal zeal and insight, Leiffer sends up lockjawed dowagers, suburbanite women from Long Island and the perfect "Women of the 80s." She appears regularly on "Late Night With David Letterman" and in comedy clubs around the country. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews JOSEPH HELLER'S new novel, Picture This, whose characters include some of Western Civilization's cultural superstars, like Rembrandt, Aristotle and Socrates.

Interview with Mark Hertsgaard; Review of Ensemble Alcatraz's album "Visions and Miracles"; Interview with John Leonard; Commentary on naturalistic dialogue in literature. September 14, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924539].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist MARK HERTSGAARD. In his new book, On Bended Knee: The Press and the Reagan Presidency, Hertsgaard argues that though Reagan's talents as a communicator are considerable, they have been amplified throughout his Presidency by adulatory news coverage that has been carefully staged by White House aides. The book is based on almost 200 interviews with key White House figures and a close analysis of newspaper and television coverage of stories like the Iran-Contra affair and the invasion of Grenada. Hertsgaard is also the author of Nuclear Inc.: The Men and Money Behind Nuclear Energy.
REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a Nonesuch recording of 13th Century Spanish vocal music performed by the San Francisco-based ensemble Alcatraz. INT.2: Fresh Air book Critic JOHN LEONARD. Leonard is a former Editor-in-Chief for The New York Times Book Review. He is now the television critic for New York Magazine and also writes a column for the newspaper Newsday. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses the difficulty novelists face in crafting naturalistic dialogue. He thinks novelist Don Delillo has succeeded in his new work Libra, about Lee Harvey Oswald and the assassination of President Kennedy.

---

Interview with Otis Williams; Review of Randy Travis's album "Old 8x10" and Dwight Yoakum's album "Buenas Noches from a Lonely Room"; Interview with Bharati Mukherjee; Review of the film "Crossing Delancey." September 15, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924536].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer OTIS WILLIAMS, founder of The Temptations, whose smooth five-part harmonies and synchronized dance steps made them one of the hottest of Motown's super groups. Their hits included "My Girl," "Just My Imagination," and "Pappa Was a Rolling Stone." REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums by country-pop crossover artists DWIGHT YOKAM and RANDY TRAVIS. Both rose to stardom soon after their debut recordings three years ago. INT.2: Writer BHARATI MUKHERJEE. Her new book of short stories, The Middleman and Other Stories, portrays immigrants from Third World countries who strive to maintain their indigenous identity while embracing much of Western culture and lifestyle. The stories establish the troublesome nature of personal encounters between the East and West as seen through the eyes of, say, a Sri Lankan filling out a scholarship application, or an Indian woman from Trinidad who works in Detroit as a "Mother's Helper." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, June 13, 1988.) REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Crossing Delancey," a new romantic comedy directed by Joan Micklin Silver and starring Amy Irving and Peter Riegert. Like Silver's 1975 film, "Hester Street," "Crossing Delancey" is set in New York's Lower East Side. This time the main characters are a yuppie writer's agent, a young single pickle salesman, and a matchmaking Jewish grandmother.
Interview with David Cronenberg; Commentary on boogie woogie music; Interview with Doris Roberts; Review of Joan Rivers' new stand-up routine. September 16, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924181].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director DAVID CRONENBERG. He specializes in science-fiction/fantasy films like "The Fly," "Dead Zone," "Videodrome" and "Scanners." His new film, about identical twin gynecologists who become involved with the same beautiful actress, is titled "Dead Ringers." It stars Jeremy Irons and Genevieve Bujold. REV.1: Jazz pianist DICK HYMAN performs and talks about the music of boogie woogie pianists JIMMY YANCEY and MEADE LUX LEWIS. Hyman is a composer and arranger. He's worked on several Woody Allen films. He wrote the music for "Purple Rose of Cairo," and was music supervisor for "Radio Days." INT.2: Character actress DORIS ROBERTS. She played the secretary - Mildred Krebbs - in the TV series "Remmington Steele." She won an Emmy for a "St. Elsewhere" episode in which she played a bag lady opposite the late James Coco. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews the current stand-up act of comedienne JOAN RIVERS.

Interview with Jay McInerney; Review of Bert Wilson and Rebirth's album "The Next Rebirth"; Interview with John Beard; Review of "USA Today September 19, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501133].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist JAY McINERNEY. He's best known for his novel Bright Lights, Big City, which depicted the successful but dissipated lives of young, club-hopping New Yorkers. The success of the novel catapulted McInerney, then 29, to a star status unknown for any but the most accomplished writers. He was dubbed the J.D. Salinger of the eighties. The book also restored the publishing strategy of first edition paperbacks with provocative covers. McInerney's new novel, titled The Story of My Life, returns to the late-night New York club scene. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Next Rebirth," the latest album by West Coast saxophonist Bert Wilson and his sextet, Rebirth. Whitehead says that Wilson further debunks the lingering perception by Easterners that the West Coast jazz scene is tame and uninspired. INT.2: Film production designer JOHN BEARD. He staged "The Last Temptation of Christ," the controversial film by director Martin Scorcese. Beard also staged the crucifixion scenes in "The Life of Brian," the Monty Python comedy troupe's farcical treatment of the New Testament. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "USA Today: The Television Show," a new nightly syndicated program underwritten by the newspaper "USA Today."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Detective novelist and lawyer ANDREW VACHSS. Vachss is a Manhattan attorney who represents victims of child abuse. He extends this commitment in his fiction writing through Burke, a private eye who investigates the seedy world of kiddie porn and prostitution. Vachss' latest novel is titled Blue Belle. His earlier works are Strega and Flood. REV.1: Rock and roll historian ED WARD profiles the career of one of rock's most eccentric, bizarre and brilliant personalities, Captain Beefheart. Beefheart began his musical career in the late-50s playing rock and roll with his teenage friend Frank Zappa. He went on to write and record such visionary songs as "ZigZag Wanderer," "Neon Meate Dream of an Octafish," and "Too Much Time." INT 2: Rock impressario MALCOLM MCLAREN. During the seventies, McLaren had a clothing store in London called SEX when he created the punk rock group The Sex Pistols, led by Johnny Rotten and Sid Vicious. McLaren's life and his contribution to music, fashion and popular culture is the subject of a exhibition, "Impressario: Malcolm McLaren and the British New Wave" at the New Museum of Contemporary Art in New York. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Great Divide, STUDS TERKEL's new collection of American oral histories. As he did in his earlier books Working and The Good War, Terkel documents the concerns of a cross-section of the populace, everyone from a juice bar cashier to a Congressman to a steelworker and an airline flight attendant.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York Times reporter ROBERT LINDSEY. His new book, A Gathering of Saints, is the story of a master forger's scheme to topple the Morman Church by altering the official church history. The scheme began to unravel when a bomb blast killed a Salt Lake City businessman and a devout Mormon housewife. Lindsey's other books include The Falcon and the Snowman, and The Flight of the Falcon. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new album of love songs performed by ARLEEN AUGER and pianist Dalton Baldwin. They're both American, but are much better known in Europe. The album includes songs in English, German, French, Spanish and Portuguese. INT.2: Actress SYLVIA MILES. She plays a matchmaker in the new film "Crossing Delancy" and plays a Congresswoman in Paul Morrisey's upcoming film, "Spike of Bensonhurst." Miles won an Academy Award nomination for her role in "Midnight Cowboy" and "Farewell My Lovely." REV.2: Critic STUART KLAWANS reviews The Hungry Girls, a contemporary collection of animal fables by Patricia Eakins. This bestiary includes tales about golden-haired monkeys and Greek kings, snakes and Saint Fatima, and mutant dogs living on radioactive Pacific atolls.

Interview with Ved Metha; Review of Fishbone's album ; Interview with Laurie Colwin; Review of the film "Dead Ringers." September 22, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924182].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer VED METHA. Metha's series of autobiographies chronicle his childhood in India, losing his sight at age four, and his coming of age in America. Metha is a regular contributor to The New Yorker magazine. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Monday, September 21, 1987.) REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album from the black rock band, Fishbone. Many of the songs, like "Howard Beach Party," have a hardhitting contemporary and political edge. INT.2: Writer LAURIE COLWIN. In her novels, like Shine On and Happy All the Time, and her short stories, like The Lone Pilgrim and Passion and Affect, Colwin brings a light touch to the romantic conflicts of middle class New Yorkers. Her new book, Home Cooking, is a collection of essays on the joys of home cooking. They Interview with Richard Belzer; Commentary on Fats Waller; Interview with David Henry Hwang; Review of the home video release of the film Shadow of a Doubt. September 23, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925706].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comedian RICHARD BELZER. Belzer has been a professional comic for 15 years. For five years, he was the emcee at Catch a Rising Star, New York's best-known comedy club, and has appeared frequently on "Saturday Night Live" "The Tonight Show" and "Late Night with David Letterman." He plays a radio psychologist in the new movie "Freeway." He's also written a book titled How To Be a Stand-up Comic. REV.1: Jazz pianist DICK HYMAN talks about the music of FATS WALLER. Hyman is a composer and arranger. His credits include writing the music for Woody Allen's film, "The Purple Rose of Cairo," and serving as music supervisor for "Radio Days." INT.2: Playwright DAVID HENRY HWANG. He won a Tony Award for "M Butterfly," his Broadway play about diplomacy, opera and the pursuit of the perfect woman. His new play, "A Thousand Airplanes on the Roof," is a collaboration with composer Phillip Glass and set designer Jerome Sirlin. REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews a new series of lesser-known Hitchcock films, now available on home video, including "Shadow of a Doubt," which stars Joseph Cotten. The screenplay was co-written by Thorton Wilder.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with jazz vocalist SHEILA JORDAN and bassist HARVIE SWARTZ. Jordan's repertoire is a combination of Bebop and pop standards. For many years, Jordan, who was raised in small Pennsylvania mining town, held down a day job in an advertising agency as she continued to develop her act at New York clubs and jazz sessions. In her youth, she used to sit in the alleys behind Detroit jazz clubs and listen to the sounds of musicians like Charlie Parker coming through the walls. She later befriended Parker when she moved to New York. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD surveys the career of veteran bassist MILT HINTON and reviews a newly published collection of photographs Hinton took of fellow musicians throughout his career. They include candid shots of Billy Holliday, Cab Calloway and John Coltrane. INT.2: Writer HAROLD BRODKEY. He's been compared with Faulkner and Proust, partly for the quality of his prose, and partly because Brodkey's been working on one novel for the last 30 years. Excerpts from that still unfinished work are included in Brodkey's new collection of fiction, titled Stories In An Almost Classical Mode. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the first face-to-face debate of the Presidential campaign.

Interview with Sally Field; Commentary on the Mexican American rock bands Sam the Sham and the Pharaohs and The Question Marks; Interview with Eric Kraft; Review of Andrew Vachss' novel "Blue Belle." September 27, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925861].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actress SALLY FIELD. She won Oscars for her roles in "Places in the Heart" and "Norma Rae." Field, born into a show business family, was first a star in television in the series "Gidget" and "The Flying Nun." Her other film roles include "Smokey and the Bandit, I and II," "Absence of Malice" "Murphy's Romance" and "Surrender." Her new film, "Punchline," in which she co-stars with Tom Hanks, is the story of a New Jersey housewife and mother who decides to pursue her dream of becoming a stand-up comic. REV.1: Rock and roll historian ED WARD profiles Sam the Sham and Pharohs and The Question Marks, two groups that drew on the music of their Mexican-American heritage but transformed it into rock and roll. INT 2: Novelist ERIC KRAFT. His new novel, Herb `n Lorna, marks the return of Peter Leroy, the central character of 8-part serial novel The Personal History, Adventures, Experiences and Observations of Peter Leroy, which was published at regular intervals in 100-page paperbacks. Herb `n' Lorna is Peter Leroy's account of his grandparents, who, on the surface, seem utterly commonplace. In fact, the couple are the creators of the animated erotic jewelry industry, or "coarse goods" trade, a secret each conceals from the other until they are about to retire to Florida. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Blue Belle, the new novel by ANDREW VACHSS. Vachss is a New York attorney who represents victims of child abuse. He extends this commitment in his fiction through Burke, a private eye who investigates the seedy world of kiddie porn and child prostitution.

Interview with Tom Waits; Review of the album "She Loves Me September 28, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501241].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Rock musician, writer and actor TOM WAITS. His rock albums, like "Closing Time" and "Heartattack and Vine," have earned Waits a reputation as the poet laureate of American underlife. As an actor, he appeared in the Francis Coppola films "The Outsider," "Rumblefish" and "The Cotton Club." He also wrote the score for "One from the Heart," which won an Academy Award nomination. Other film roles include "Down By Law" and "Ironweed." His new film, "Big-Time" is a concert film that displays all of Waits' talents. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a reissue of the musical "She Loves Me," starring Barabara Cook. Cook played the lead female roles in the Broadway musicals "The Music Man," "Plain and Fancy" and "Candide." INT.2: Experimental composer SCOTT JOHNSON. His latest work is the soundtrack for the movie "Patty Hearst," which follows the story of the heiress' kidnapping, imprisonment and revolutionary indoctrination. The instrumentation Johnson chose ranges from elegiac string-quartets to driving rock guitar. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG plays "settings," a parlor game of linguists in which you try to match the words of a famous poem to a popular song, like setting Robert Frost's "Stopping By the Woods on Snowy Evening" to "Hernando's Hideway" from the musical "Damn Yankees." Among other things, the exercise reveals the difficulty of setting poetry to music. (partial audio)

Interview with Paul Krassner; Review of Was (Now Was)'s album "What Up Dog"; Interview with Bill Griffith; Review of the film "Gorillas in the Mist." September 29, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924538].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: PAUL KRASSNER. He's been called "the father of the underground press." From 1958 to 1974, he published The Realist, the forerunner of the underground press of the 60s. The magazine was a relentless satire of the American social and political scene. Krassner also edited comic Lenny Bruce's autobiography
How to Talk Dirty and Influence People, and, along with Ken Kesey, wrote the The Last Supplement to The Whole Earth Catalogue. He is also a standup comic. The New York Times said of his act that Krassner was "an expert in ferreting out hypocrisy and absurdism from the solemn crannies of American culture." REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "What Up Dog," the new album from the group Was (Not Was), a West Coast duo comprised of Don and Dave Was. The music is quirky and eclectic, and includes turns by musicians like Frank Sinatra Jr. and Elvis Costello. INT.2: BILL GRIFFITH, creator of the Zippy comic series featuring Zippy the Pinhead, whose short circuit in the media center of his brain leaves him spouting sayings like "are we having fun yet?" and "if you can't say something nice, say something surrealitic" The Zippy strip is picked up by 50 papers in the U.S. and Canada. Zippy was the inspiration for the "Coneheads" on "Saturday Night Live," and is being adapted for a feature film starring Randy Quaid. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Gorillas in the Mist, The Adventure of Dian Fossey," starring Sigourney Weaver. The film is the story of anthropologist Dian Fossey's dedication to studying and preserving the mountain gorillas of Rwanda, Africa, who were being actively hunted by poachers.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Trumpet player and composer HERB ALPERT. In 1962, his band Herb Alpert and The Tijuana Brass had a hit with the song "The Lonely Bull." The success of that album led Alpert and Jerry Moss to form A&M Records. Alpert has recorded with Hugh Masekela and Janet Jackson. He's just released a new album. REV.1: Jazz pianist DICK HYMAN performs and talks about the music of TEDDY WILSON. Hyman is a composer and arranger. His credits include writing the music for Woody Allen's film, "The Purple Rose of Cairo," and serving as music supervisor for "Radio Days." INT.2: Investigative reporter HOWARD KOHN. It was Kohn who tracked down heiress Patty Hearst to a remote farmhouse in western Pennsylvania while she was being held by the Symbionese Liberation Army, a radical cult. Kohn later wrote one of the first exposes about Karen Silkwood, a worker who had been contaminated at a nuclear power plant and who later died in a suspect car crash. Kohn, who was raised on Michigan farm, returns to the family farm and to his relationship with his farmer father in his new book, The Last Farmer, a Memoir. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews an exhibit of the photographs of NICHOLAS NIXON now on display at Museum of Modern Art in New York. His photographs - of the poor, the elderly and mortally ill - place Nixon in the tradition of the socially concerned photographers like Dorthea Lange and Lewis Hine.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist DOYLE McMANUS, co-author of Landslide, The Unmaking of the President 1984-1988, the controversial new profile of President Reagan's second term. McManus and co-author Jane Mayer report that in his second term, President Reagan left the office almost exclusively in the hands of unelected aides. And in tracing the origins of the Iran-Contra affair, the authors maintain that the White House mistook the landslide election in 1984 for an unlimited mandate. Mayer has covered foreign affairs and the Iran-Contra story for The Los Angeles Times. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Audio-Visualscapes," the new album by drummer and composer JACK DeJOHNETTE and his band Special Edition. INT.2: Writer NICK TOSCHES. His new work is a novel, titled Cut Numbers, about a mafia scheme to scheme to fix the New York state lottery for a multimillion-dollar payoff. Tosches' other works include biographies of the Sicilian financier Michele Sindona and the rock 'n'roller Jerry Lee Lewis, titled Hellfire, which Rolling Stone magazine called "the best rock 'n' roll biography ever written." REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews NBC's coverage of the Olympics and previews several new shows that debut on the network this week.

Interview with Anna Quindlen; Commentary on Chuck Willis; Interview with Musa Mayer; Review of Jonathan Spence's novel "The Question of Hu." October 4, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925707].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York Times columnist ANNA QUINDLEN. Her weekly column, "Life in the 30s," deals with what she calls the drama of everyday living, like the state of her marriage, her skill as a mother of two, female bonding and her decisions not to take her husband's name and not to have amniocentesis during her third pregnancy. Quindlen first started at the Times as a reporter in 1977. Her column began in 1985.

REV.1: Rock and roll historian ED WARD profiles CHUCK WILLIS, the 50s singer who helped put soul music on the map. INT 2: Writer MUSA MAYER. Her first book, Night Studio, is a memoir of her father, the late abstract painter Philip Guston. During the heyday of the Abstract Expressionism movement in the 1950s, Guston, along with Jackson Pollock and Mark Rothko, was one its most respected practitioners. While the critical assessment of his work was often lukewarm, Guston was adored by his students and compatriots in the art world who considered him a painter's painter who was possessed by his art. Night Studio is also the story of Mayer's rediscovery of her father through his work and writing. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Question of Hu, the new historical novel by Yale historian Jonathan Spence.

Interview with John Schlesinger; Review of two James Galway albums; Interview with Benjamin Spock; Review of the home video release of the film "Quartet." October 5, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924432].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director JOHN SCHLESINGER. He got his start directing publicity films on the making of "The Guns of Navarone." His first feature film was "Terminus," a documentary on 24 hours in the life of the mammoth Waterloo train station. He won an Oscar for his direction of "Midnight Cowboy," his first American film. Other films include "Far From the Maddening Crowd," "Billy Liar," "Sunday Bloody Sunday," "The Day of the Locust," Marathon Man," and "The Falcon and the Snowman." His new film, which stars Shirley MacLaine, is "Madame Sousatzka." REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two new albums featuring Irish flutist JAMES GALWAY. INT.2: Pediatrician and anti-war activist Dr. BENJAMIN SPOCK. His first book, Baby and Child Care, is possibly the most influential book on child care ever published. It is now believed that only the works of Shakespeare and the Bible have been more widely circulated. Spock was a leader of the anti-war movement in the 60s. In 1968, he was found guilty of counseling men to avoid the draft. Dr. Spock's new book, "On Parenting," is written for children who were originally raised on Dr. Spock's principles, and are now themselves parents. In the intervening 30 years, the concept of parenting has changed dramatically, with two career couples, single parents, and a limited extended family now the norm. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video release of "Quartet," the 1948 adaptation of four stories by William Somerset Maugham.

Interview with Tom Hanks; Review of Randy Newman's album "Land of Dreams"; Interview with Twiggy; Commentary on fantasies of musical stardom. October 6, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924345].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor and comic TOM HANKS. Hanks, began his career on the stage of various repertory theaters in the Bay area. His first breakthrough in the ABC sitcom "Bosom Buddies," about two struggling admen who dressed up as women so they could live in a cheap "women only" hotel. His first film role was "Splash," one of the biggest hits of 1984. His other credits include "Dragnet," "Nothing in Common," and the recent hit "Big." In his new film, "Punchline," Hanks stars opposite Sally Field as a veteran comic who guides Field, a New Jersey housewife and aspiring comic, through the grimmy world of standup comedy at the bottom. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews pianist, singer RANDY NEWMAN's new album "Land of Dreams." INT.2: Former model and actress TWIGGY. While still a teenager, she was the most famous fashion model, and the paradigm of the "swinging sixties." She's since become an actress. She's had roles in the films "The Blue Brothers," Club Paradise" and "There Goes the Bride." Her stage roles include "Funny Face" and "My One and Only." Her new film, which stars Shirley MacLaine, is" Madame Sousatzka." REV.2: Humorist ALICE KAHN shares her fantasy about being a singer, a fantasy that survives despite the fact that she's tone deaf and can't carry a tune. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, March 30, 1988.)

Interview with Pauline Kael; Commentary on language and character development in films; Interview with Tobe Hooper; Review of Graham Greene's novel "The Captain and the Enemy." October 7, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924340].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: PAULINE KAEL, film critic for The New Yorker magazine. Kael is arguably the most influential critic in America. Her importance to film criticism extends far beyond the circulation of The New Yorker. A collection of her film criticism, titled Hooked, will soon be published. REV.1: Language commentator director of The Minnesota Orchestra. de Waart came to Minnesota from the San Francisco Symphony, where he earned a reputation for expanding the symphony's repertoire of 20th century music. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Bird," based on the life of legendary saxophonist Charlie Parker. It is directed by Clint Eastwood.

Interview with Elaine Shannon; Commentary on Tomsic Dubravka; Interview with Dougal Dixon; Review of Bel Kaufman's novel "Up the Down Staircase." October 12, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924434].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist ELAINE SHANNON. Her new book, Desperados: Latin Drug Lords, U.S. Lawmen, and the War America Can't Win, looks at the extent and success of America's "War on Drugs," and the pervasive corruption the Latin drug lords have spread throughout Latin America and the United States. Shannon has reported on the international drug trade for ten years. She's a Washington-based correspondent for Time Magazine. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ appreciates Yugoslavian pianist DUBRAVKA TOMSIC. INT.2: Science writer DOUGAL DIXON. His new book, The New Dinosaurs, mixes fantasy and science in asking questions like "what if dinosaurs hadn't become extinct" and "what would they look like today?" REV.2: Guest critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN looks at how well the portrayal of teachers in the novel Up the Down the Staircase has held up. The autobiographical novel, written by BEL KAUFMAN, is being re-published this year in a 25th anniversary edition.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Screenwriter and playwright HORTON FOOTE. His career in theater, film and television spans more than forty years. His first Broadway production was in 1944. His major successes include Academy Awards in 1963 for his screenplay of "To Kill a Mockingbird," and in 1985 for the screenplay of "Tender Mercies." Most recently, Foote has written a series of plays titled "The Orphans' Home Cycle," which follow the lives of its central characters over 30 years. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on July 8, 1988.)

REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums by ETTA JAMES, TOOTS HIBBERT and WILLIE DIXON, three veterans of three different pop music subgenres - rhythm and blues, reggae and blues. INT.2: Tenor saxophonist and big band leader ILLINOIS JACQUET. He played saxophone with some of the great big bands of our time, including Lionel Hampton's, Cab Calloway's, and Count Basie's. His own big band has just recorded their first album. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Accused," a drama based loosely on the gang rape of a woman by bar patrons in New Bedford, Mass., and the subsequent trial. It stars KELLY McGILLIS as the prosecuting attorney, and JODIE FOSTER as the rape victim.

---

Interview with Simon Frith; Commentary on classic swing tunes; Interview with Octavio Paz; Review of the film "Gorillas in the Mist." October 14, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924343].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: British rock critic and social historian SIMON FRITH. His new book, Art Into Pop, traces the influence of British art schools on the entire British post-war popular music scene. An earlier book, Music for Pleasure, collected his rock criticism for The Village Voice. REV.1: New Orleans pianist and composer HARRY CONNICK JR. joins Fresh Air as a performance-in-residence for the next several weeks. Today, he'll play two old swing tunes with a modern flavor. INT.2: Mexican poet, diplomat and social philosopher OCTAVIO PAZ. Paz is known mostly for his epic poetry written in a surrealistic verse that draws on the tradition of poets like Walt Whitman. Paz, who was once Mexico's ambassador to India, exemplifies the Mexican intellectual community's tradition of active involvement in the affairs of state and the political dialogue. REV.2: Critic-At-Large LAURIE STONE reviews "Gorillas in the Mist, The Adventure of Dian Fossey." The film, starring Sigourney Weaver, is the story of anthropologist Dian Fossey's dedication to preserving the mountain gorillas of Rwanda, Africa, who were being hunted to the brink of extinction by poachers.
Interview with Neil Sheehan; Review of the film "Bird"; Interview with Marti Jones; Review of the television show "Roseanne." October 17, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924339].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Former New York Times reporter NEIL SHEEHAN. His new book, A Bright Shining Lie, looks back at the Vietnam War through the eyes of John Paul Vann, a disillusioned soldier who spoke out against the corruption of the U.S. military system, but who also remained obsessed with winning the war. Vann's military influence made him the third most important American in Vietnam. The book was just nominated for a National Book Award. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new movie "Bird," based on the life of the legendary saxophonist CHARLIE PARKER. Parker's daring improvisations and chord progressions invented the Bebop sound and led some musical critics to call him the most important American composer of this century. The film is directed by Clint Eastwood. INT.2: Pop and rock singer MARTI JONES. Jones tackles a wide variety of pop songs by musicians as diverse as Janis Ian, Marshall Crenshaw and Jackie DeShannon. She's admired by critics, fans and other musicians for the intimate quality of her voice that sounds as if it's confiding a closely-held truth. Her third album, Used Guitars, has just been released. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the ABC comedy series "Roseanne," starring stand-up comic ROSEANNE BARR.

Interview with Randy Newman; Commentary on the band the 5 Royales; Interview with Fran Landesman; Review William Shawcross's book "The Shah's Last Ride." October 18, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925770].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer and songwriter RANDY NEWMAN. Newman is arguably the wittiest man in rock. Over two decades, and nine albums, Newman has populated his music with Good Old Boys and petty criminals, saints, lover and crazies. Newman's best-known songs are "Short People" and "I Love L.A." He also wrote the soundtracks for the films "The Natural" and "Ragtime." Newman's latest album, his first in five years, is titled "Land of Dreams." REV.1: In the first of a two-part profile, rock historian ED WARD looks at "his favorite 50s group," the "5" Royales. This segment explores the group's early years as a North Carolina gospel group that just landed a recording contract with New York City's Apollo Records. INT 2: Lyricist FRAN LANDESMAN, best-known for the songs "Ballad of the Sad Young Men" and
"Spring Can Really Hang You Up the Most." REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Shah's Last Ride by journalist WILLIAM SHAWCROSS. The book documents the Shah of Iran's fall and flight from Iran on the heels of the Islamic revolution. Shawcross, a Brit, is the author of the award-winning Sideshow: Kissinger, Nixon and the Destruction of Cambodia.

Interview with Mel Torme; Review of an album of Tchaikovsky's second and third piano concertos; Interview with Irina Ratushinskaya; Commentary on New Zealand urban legends. October 19, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924342].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer MEL TORME. For more than 50 years, Torme has been one of most accomplished and versatile pop and jazz singers. Known for years as "The Velvet Fog," Torme, who grew up in show business, first made his reputation in the Big Band era as a songwriter, arranger, drummer and singer. He later sang in MGM musicals. Described by Ethel Waters as "the only white man who sings with the soul of a black man," Torme is one of the few white performers to share the spotlight with jazz greats like Sarah Vaughan and Ella Fitzgerald. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews new recordings of Tchaikovsky's 2nd and 3rd piano concertos. Tchaikovsky's 1st piano concerto, the B-Flat Minor, is one of the best-known works in the classical repertoire. The 2nd and 3rd, however, are two of the least known. INT.2: Exiled Russian poet IRINA RATUSHINSKAYA. Through much of 1985 and 1986, RATUSHINSKAYA was in solitary confinement in a Soviet prison camp because of her work on behalf of Soviet human rights and civil liberties groups. She scratched her poems out on a bar of soap with a match stick and then committed them to memory. After an international outcry on her behalf, she was released from prison in 1987, and settled in the United States. She's written a memoir of her imprisonment and life after her release. It's titled "Grey is the Color of Hope." REV.2: Urban legend collector JAN HAROLD BRUNVAND returns to Fresh Air with an account of how New Zealanders adapted classic urban legends.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist WILLIAM SHAWCROSS. His new book, The Shah's Last Ride, documents the Shah's fall and flight from Iran as the Islamic revolution swept his country. For 18 months, the Shah was bounced from country to country as his former allies declined to accept the risk he would pose to their countrymen still in Iran. It was during this odyssey that the American embassy in Tehran was sacked and its staff taken hostage. Shawcross, a Briton, is the author of the award-winning Sideshow: Kissinger, Nixon and the Destruction of Cambodia. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER discusses the fight over the memory of John Lennon. Albert Goldman's controversial biography portrays him as a drug-crazed recluse, while the film "Imagine" is more flattering. KEN discusses these conflicting portraits. INT.2: Baseball writer NOEL HYND. Hynd, a contributor to Sports Illustrated magazine, writes about the early years of baseball when the game was brash and often brutal. He's the author of Giants of the Polo Grounds, a history of the New York Giants. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Another Woman," directed by Woody Allen with an ensemble cast that includes Gena Rowlands, Mia Farrow and Gene Hackman.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with the Latin American guitar duo SERGIO and ODAIR ASSAD. They've received rave reviews for their passionate and precise playing, which has been shaped by contemporary 20th Century music as well as Brazilian popular music. Their repertoire includes works by ALBERTO GINESTERA, HEITOR VILLA-LOBOS, and Argentinean tango composer ASTOR PIAZOLLA. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album featuring pianist and composer GERI ALLEN. She's been a backup performer for the Motown singer Mary Wilson and the jazz saxophonists Wayne Shorter and Oliver Lake. INT.2: Avante garde composer and performer TERRY RILEY. His 1964 work, "In C," is considered one of the seminal works of American composition. The work was only partially notated, didn't specify instrumentation, and gave the players wide latitude to improvise, so long as it was done in the key of C major. It became the guiding text for a generation of minimalist composers, including Steve Reich, Phillip Glass and La Monte Young. Riley has experimented extensively with electronic instrumentation and with North Indian music. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video "Teen Steam." The video, which stars Alyssa Milano of TV's "Who's the Boss," combines MTV-like dance numbers with informal therapy sessions to create what might be called the Teen Jane Fonda tape.

Interview with Willie Nelson; Commentary on jazz standards; Interview with Jane Stern and Michael Stern; Review of the fall television season. October 24, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923929].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) WILLIE NELSON is prolific, award-winning country music singer and songwriter. Dubbed an "outlaw" of the genre along with Waylon Jennings, Nelson also wrote hits for other performers, including Patsy Cline's "Crazy." His memoir is called Willie; a new album of standards is called "What a Wonderful World." (2.) New Fresh Air performer-in-residence HARRY CONNICK, JR. performs a few classic standards. (3.) JANE STERN and MICHAEL STERN are food writers who travel the country to find the best regional foods. Their new book is called A Taste of America. (4.) TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews new shows for the fall television season.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) WILLIAM FINNEGAN is a writer for the New Yorker magazine. He followed black reporters in South Africa, and wrote about his experience in a new book, Dateline Soweto. (2.) Part 2 of rock historian ED WARD's profile of the earl soul and R&B band, the 5 Royales. (3.) Part 1 of Terry Gross's interview with musician and songwriter DAVID CROSBY. Crosby founded the Byrds and Crosby, Stills & Nash. His new memoir, Long Time Gone, details his struggle with drug addiction. (4.) Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Alfred Kazin's book A Writer's America.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BERNICE JOHNSON REAGON, singer, cultural historian and director of Smithsonian's Program in Black American Culture. Reagon sings contralto with Sweet Honey in the Rock, one of the country's leading a cappella groups. She's been described as a "song shaper and song preserver." In her work with the Smithsonian, Reagon tries to maintain obscure and dying Baptist choral traditions. (REBROADCAST FROM 02/25/1988) (2.) Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of Igor Stravinsky's A Soldier's Tale. The album was released by the Pangaea record label. (3.) Part 2 of the Fresh Air interview with DAVID CROSBY. He talks about how he kicked drugs while in prison. (4.) Critic STUART KLAWANS reviews the poetry collection "Curriculum Vitae" by Lawrence Joseph, a Detroit-born lawyer with ancestral roots in Lebanon.

Interview with James Fenton; Review of the compilation album "Stay Awake"; Interview with Marlene Sanders; Review of the film "Lair of the White Worm." October 27, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924643].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JAMES FENTON's new book, about his reporting in Southeast Asia, is called All the Wrong Places. Fenton was a poet who only later in life stumbled on first person journalism. (2.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the Hal Wilner-produced album "Stay Awake," which features new interpretations of classic Disney songs. (3.) MARLENE SANDERS is a pioneering television journalist. She co-authored a new book called Waiting for Prime Time, about women working in the news industry. (4.) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Ken Russell's new horror movie, Lair of the White Worm.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JANE CURTIN was a member of the original cast of Saturday Night Live. She now co-stars in the sitcom Kate & Allie. (2.) Fresh Air performer-in-residence HARRY CONNICK, JR. performs two songs by Duke Ellington. (3.) JULES SHEAR is a musician who wrote hit songs for artists like Cyndi Lauper and the Bangles. He has a new album with his band Reckless Sleepers, called Big Boss Sounds! (4.) Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE reviews three new, woman-centered sitcoms.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Horror film director JOHN CARPENTER. He's best known for the film "Halloween," one of the most successful independent films ever ({$300,000 budget, over {$30 million in receipts}). His other credits include "The Thing," "the Fog," "Escape From New York," "Christine" and "Starman." His new film, "They Live," is about aliens who disguise themselves as humans and take over the planet. It stars former professional wrestler Rowdy Piper. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a reissued recording from the early 1950s of the late singer DINAH WASHINGTON. INT.2: Actor PETER SCOLARI. He stars as the yuppie noodge Michael Harris opposite Bob Newhart on the TV series "Newhart." Scolari is the vain, manipulative producer of "Vermont Today," the show-within-the-show on "Newhart." He also starred opposite Tom Hanks in the series "Bosom Buddies." REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the ABC remake of the "Mission Impossible" series. Actor Peter Graves returns as Jim Phelps, as does the taped voice (now on CD) that gives the particulars of the next mission. But otherwise, the cast is new.
Interview with Alwin Nikolais; Commentary on the Hi Records label; Interview with Orrin Keepnews; Review of Isabel Allende's novel "Eva Luna" and Ariel Doorman's novel "Mascara." November 1, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925767].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Choreographer ALWIN NIKOLAIS. For over forty years he has been considered a revolutionary figure in modern dance. His choreographic vision included the use of visual arts and electronic music long before it became popular. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Friday, January 8, 1988.) REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the later years of Hi Records, the Memphis that brought out Al Green and Ann Peebles. Hi Records' fortunes declined with the advent of disco. INT 2: Independent jazz producer ORRIN KEEPNEWS. For the past 30 years he's produced the music of jazz artists like Thelonious Monk, Bill Evans, McCoy Tyner and Wes Montgomery. He was the founder of two important jazz labels, Riverside Records and Milestone Records. Earlier this year, he won a Grammy for the liner notes of a new box set of the complete Riverside recordings of Thelonious Monk. His new book is a collection of his jazz criticism. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews two new novels by Chilean writers Isabel Allende and Ariel Dorfman. Allende's novel is titled Eva Luna; Dorfman's novel is titled Mascara.

Interview with Brooks Jackson; Review of the Bulgarian State Radio and Television Female Vocal Choir's album "La Mystere de la Voix Bulgares, Volume Two"; Interview with William Gibson; Commentary on New Zealand urban legends about dogs and lawns. November 2, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884176].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Wall Street Journal reporter BROOKS JACKSON. His reporting on campaign financing and the influence of lobbyists on elections has earned him numerous journalism awards. His new book, Honest Graft, examines the effects of political action committees (PACs) on the American political process. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a recording of Bulgarian folk music. The album - La Mystere de la Voix Bulgares - has become a surprise hit. And during the first half of November, the 26-member choral group will be making their first American tour. INT.2: Science fiction writer WILLIAM GIBSON. With his first novel, Neuromancer, Gibson became known as the father of a new wave of science fiction labeled Cyberpunk. In Gibson's fiction, the setting is a barren, post-World War III world where computer hackers vie for power in a computer-generated zone known as Cyberspace.
REV.2: JAN HAROLD BRUNVAND continues his discussion of how New Zealanders adapted classic urban legends. In this segment, he explores the legend about how a bottle filled with water will dissuade dogs from relieving themselves on your lawn.

Interview with Josiah Thompson; Review of albums by Anita Baker, the Bangles, and Duran Duran; Interview with Jonathan Katz; Review of the film "The Good Mother." November 3, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924640].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Detective JOSIAH THOMPSON. Thompson was a tenured professor of philosophy at Haverford College when he applied for a job at a San Francisco detective agency. He has since left academia and works full-time as a private eye. He's written an account of his work titled "Gumshoe: Reflections in a Private Eye." Thompson's cases run the gamut from recovering money from an attic in a drug case to saving an innocent man from the gas chamber. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, June 15, 1988.) REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews three new albums that debuted on Billboard Magazine's Top Pop Album Chart this week. The albums are by ANITA BAKER, the BANGLES, and DURAN, DURAN. INT.2: Stand-up comic JONATHAN KATZ. He now appears in the David Mamet film "Things Change," starring Joe Montenga and Don Ameche. Katz' relationship with Mamet goes back ten years when they co-wrote the story from which Mamet later wrote the screenplay for "House of Games." In "Things Change," Katz appears as a stand-up comic at a resort in Lake Tahoe. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Good Mother," starring Diane Keaton and directed by Leonard Nimoy. The film is an adaptation of the popular Sue Miller novel.

Interview with Arnold Rampersad; Commentary on Harold Arlen; Interview with Kevin Boyle; Review of the home video release of "E.T. November 4, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959923931].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Biographer ARNOLD RAMPERSAD. His two-volume biography of writer LANGSTON HUGHES has been praised by critics as one of the best biographies of a black American writer. It follows the development of Hughes' writing as moved away from a purely political commitment and towards a social realism that culminated in his poetry that reflected his love of jazz and the blues. Rampersad is a professor of English at Columbia University. REV.1: Fresh Air's Performer-in-Residence HARRY CONNICK Jr. returns in our weekly performance segment. Connick is a young New Orleans pianist who is a making quite a stir on the jazz scene. In this segment, Connick performs two songs by Harold Arlen, "I"ve Got a Right to Sing the Blues" and "I've Got the World on a String." INT.2: KEVIN BOYLE, executive director of Article 19, a new international rights organization founded to combat censorship and promote freedom of speech and expression worldwide. Boyle is the editor of Article 19 World Report, a country-by-country survey on the status of freedom of expression in 50 countries. Boyle is a leading figure in the international human rights movement, and author of a highly-regarded book on the Irish conflict, Ireland: A Positive Proposal. REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER comments on the big splash surrounding the home video release of "E.T." He also reviews other children's videos, including the Disney classic, "Cinderella."

Interview with Robert Prosky; Review of Julius Hemphill's album "Julius Hemphill Big Band"; Interview with Joan Jett; Review of the television show "War and Remembrance." November 7, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924644].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) ROBERT PROSKY started acting in Philadelphia-area theaters before moving to New York. He later worked with Washington, DC's Arena Stage for 23 years. Viewers may know him best as a sergeant in Hill Street Blues. He costars in David Mamet's new film, Things Change. (2.) Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews saxophonist and composer Julius Hemphill's new album, "Julius Hemphill Big Band." (3.) JOAN JETT's new album with her band the Blackhearts is called Up Your Alley. She recently starred in the movie Light of Day, opposite Michael J. Fox. Jett got her start as a rock musician in the band the Runaways, when she was 15. (REBROADCAST FROM 06/07/1988) (4.) Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the World War II-themed miniseries War and Remembrance. The show is a sequel to "Winds of War."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Dr. L. DAVID MECH has been researching wolves for the past 30 years. He recently spent time in the Arctic living with a pack, where he could observe their behavior up close. His new book about the experience is called The Arctic Wolf. (2.) Rock historian ED WARD profiles the 1960s psychedelic band The Kaleidoscope, who infused their music with Middle Eastern sounds. (3.) SALLY CRUIKSHANK is an animator with a new short called Face Like a Frog, which is currently playing at festivals. (4.) Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Passion and Cunning, Connor Cruise O'Brien's new collection of essays about political upheaval around the world.

Interview with Bennett Harrison; Review of Gyorgy Kurtag's album "Messages of the late R.V. Troussova"; Interview with Louie Perez; Commentary on proverbs. November 9, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500830].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BENNETT HARRISON co-wrote with Barry Bluestone the book The Great U-Turn, which examines the loss of well-paying, full-time jobs throughout the 1980s. Harrison points to deregulation as a major culprit, and considers how the policies of the presidential candidates could potentially affect the American economy. (2.) Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews an album of song cycles by Hungarian composer Gyorgy Kurtag. (3.) LOUIE PEREZ is the drummer for the Mexican-American rock band Los Lobos. Their new album is a collection regional Mexican folk songs. (4.) Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG looks at proverbs from around the world, many of which get to the same meaning in different ways.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Composer STEPHEN SONDHEIM wrote the musicals Sweeney Todd, Into the Woods, and A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. Before that, he served as the lyricist for West Side Story and Gypsy. (2.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the album "Volume 1" by rock supergroup the Traveling Wilburys. (3.) Author LAWRENCE SHAINBERG's new novel is called Memories of Amnesia, about brain damage and neurology. (4.) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "A Cry in the Dark," starring Meryl Streep. The movie dramatizes the trial of Lindy Chamberlain.

Interview with Benjamin Cheever; Commentary on new accordion music; Interview with Calvin Tompkins; Review of the film "Hotel Terminus." November 11, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924695].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) BENJAMIN CHEEVER is the son of the novelist and short story writer John Cheever. Encouraged by his sister Susan, who wrote a biography about their father, Benjamin Cheever compiled and edited a new collection of John Cheever's letters, many of which reveal insights into the writer's fraught sexual relationships with other men. (2.) GUY KLUCEVSEK is a composer who has been playing accordion since the age of 6. He joins Fresh Air to perform an arrangement of a recent piece, which takes the polka in a new direction. (3.) CALVIN TOMPKINS is an art writer for the New Yorker magazine. A new collection of his pieces, called Post- to Neo-, has just been published. (4.) Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE reviews Marcel Orphul's new documentary, Ho?tel Terminus: The Life and Times of Klaus Barbie, about the notorious Gestapo officer who later fled to South America.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Reporter JOHN HUBNER. Along with New York Times reporter LINDSEY GRUSON, HUBNER exposes the world-wide criminal enterprise inside the Hare Krishna movement. In his new book Monkey on a Stick: Murder, Madness and the Hare Krishnas, Hubner reports that in recent years the Krishnas have been involved in drug-smuggling, murder and the sexual abuse of children. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album by soprano saxophonist JANE IRA BLOOM. Bloom recorded her first album ten years ago while still a student at Yale University. She was recently commissioned by NASA to write music commemorating the September launch and landing of the Space Shuttle Discovery. INT.2: Film director TAYLOR HACKFORD. His new film, "Everybody's All-American," is the story of a legendary college football player who struggles to deal with life after his career ends. It stars Jessica Lange and Dennis Quaid. Hackford's other films include last year's tribute to Chuck Berry, "Hail! Hail! Rock n' Roll," and "An Officer and a Gentleman." REV.2: On the 25th anniversary of the assassination of President John Kennedy, television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews several specials airing this week that commemorate the event by reviewing the original coverage of event. The four include a two-hour CBS special, the Arts and Entertainment Network's six-hour program, a PBS retrospective and a "Nova" examination of the assassination.

Interview with Randy Quaid; Commentary on 1960s rock radio; Interview with Ron Haver; Review of Milorad Pavic's novel "Dictionary of the Khazars." November 15, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925437].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor RANDY QUAID. He's played Lyndon Johnson ("LBJ: The Early Years"), a cowboy bank robber ("The Long Riders"), and a sailor having one last good time on his way to the brig ("The Last Detail"). Quaid was also a series regular on "Saturday Night Live" in the 1985-86 season, and has three new films about to be released. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD plays some of his favorite commercials heard on rock radio in the 60's. INT 2: Film historian and author RON HAVER. In his latest project, Haver spent several years searching for the missing half-hour from "A Star is Born," starring Judy Garland and James Mason. Haver found most of the lost footage and has written a book titled A Star is Born, recounting his search for the missing scenes, the restoration, and the making of the 1954 motion picture classic. Haver is director of the film department at the Los Angeles County Museum and author of David O.Selznick's Hollywood. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Dictionary of the Khazars by Milorad Pavic, a novel in dictionary form about an ancient tribe thought by some to be the lost Tribe of Israel.

Interview with Gore Vidal; Review of the four album series "Mozart and Schanbel" by Artur Schnabel; Interview with Jonathan Winters; Commentary on the urban legend of the "hare-dryer." November 16, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924689].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist and essayist GORE VIDAL. Vidal is one of the most prolific, respected and controversial American writers. His best-selling novels include Empire, the fifth volume in his American chronicle that included Burr, 1876 and Lincoln. He has also worked extensively on Broadway and in television. His best-known Broadway plays are "Visit to a Small Planet" and "The Best Man." As a screenwriter, he worked on the films "Ben Hur" and "Suddenly Last Summer." His newest book, Home, is a collection of his essays written over the last five years. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews four compact discs of pianist ARTUR SCHNABEL's performances of Mozart. INT.2: Comic JONATHAN WINTERS. Winters is a master of comic improvisation. His first movie role was in the classic "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad World." His other films include "Oh Dad, Poor Dad," "The Loved One" and "The Russians Are Coming." He first gained a national reputation in the early days of television as a regular guest on Jack Parr's "Tonight Show." And for two seasons in the late 60s, he had his own weekly hour comedy series. More recent TV viewers might remember him from his frequent appearances in 1981 and 1982 as Robin Williams' son Mearth on "Mork and Mindy." A book of Winters' paintings has just been published. It's titled Hang-Ups. REV.2: JAN HAROLD BRUNVAND reports on the latest urban legend, the "hare-dryer."
Interview with Neil Jordan; Review of the Pet Shop Boys' album "Introspective" and Eighth Wonder's album "Fearless"; Interview with Joe Franklin; Review of the film "Rattle and Hum." November 17, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924860].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and film director NEIL JORDAN. His cinematic style of writing led him to a career in film. He co-wrote and directed "Mona Lisa," starring Bob Hoskins, "Company of Wolves" and "Danny Boy." His new film, "High Spirits," is his first big-budget Hollywood project. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums from two British groups, The Pet Shop Boys and Eighth Wonder. Ken says The Pet Shop Boys charm lies in their seeming anonymity, while part of Eighth Wonder's appeal comes from their lead singer's movie-star status in Europe. INT.2: Television talk show host JOE FRANKLIN. Franklin is one of TV's most durable talk show hosts. The Joe Franklin Show has been on television since 1951. The show used to a air only in the New York market, but now it is carried on over two thousand cable stations. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Rattle and Hum," the new concert film by the rock group U-2.

Interview with Nicholas Coleridge; Commentary on Matt Dennis and Cole Porter songs; Interview with Brad Dourif; Review of the film "Cover-Up." November 18, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924691].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Fashion writer NICHOLAS COLERIDGE. His book, The Fashion Conspiracy, explains how less than 100 people world-wide make the decisions about what millions of women will wear. Coleridge is editor of the British magazine Harpers & Queen. REV.1: New Orleans pianist HARRY CONNICK, JR. is featured in the weekly performance spot. He plays the Matt Dennis tune, "Everything Happens to Me" and Cole Porter's "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To." INT.2: Actor BRAD DOURIF. In the new thriller "Child's Play," Dourif plays a diabolical killer who inhabits a doll named Chucky. Dourif is accustomed to the role of madman or psychopath. He appeared in the films The Eyes of Laura Mars, Blue Velvet and Wise Blood. He is best known, and received the widest critical praise, for his portrayal of Billy Bibbit in the film "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." REV.2: Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Cover-Up." It's a documentary that alleges there's a "shadow government" in the U.S., involved in everything from drug-smuggling as a way to fund the contras, to having Vice President Bush pay Iran to keep the

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Newsweek correspondent SYLVESTER MONROE. He recently returned to the ghetto housing project in Chicago where he was raised for a reunion with his boyhood friends. He chronicles their successful and failed attempts to escape the ghetto and ghetto culture in his book "Brothers." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, June 30, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album by the group Dreamland Syncopators. The group recreates some of the early jazz played in places other than New Orleans, Chicago and New York. INT.2: Soprano saxophonist JANE IRA BLOOM. Bloom recorded her first album ten years ago while still a student at Yale University. She was recently commissioned by NASA to write music commemorating the September launch and landing of the Space Shuttle Discovery. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new CBS series "Almost Grown."

Interview with Thurston Clarke; Commentary on Lloyd Price; Interview with David Ray; Review of Taylor Branch's book "Parting the Waters." November 22, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925768].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Reporter THURSTON CLARKE. His new book, Equator, chronicles his two-year trip across the face of the earth, through the countries and continents that run through the Equator. In Clarke's other writing, he has investigated Wall Street crooks and travelled with nomads in the Sahara. His other books include Dirty Money, The Last Caravan, and By Blood and Fire. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles New Orleans rocker LLOYD PRICE. Price was one of the earliest black rock 'n rollers. He first recorded on New Orleans' Special T label. He had a hit in the song "Personality" and in his version of the old folk tale "Stagger Lee." INT 2: Poet DAVID RAY. Ray has written twelve books of poetry. His lastest, Sam's Book, contains poems written in memory of his son Sam, who was killed in a drinking accident. Some of the poems were written when Sam was alive. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Parting the Waters: America in the King Years by TAYLOR BRANCH. The book argues that the early 60s, until now identified as the Kennedy era, ought to be identified with Martin Luther King Jr.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Former NBC-TV newsman and language commentator EDWIN NEWMAN. A noted wordsmith, Newman has written three books on the usage of the English language. His latest is titled I Must Say: Edwin Newman on English, the News and Other Matters. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of two pieces by contemporary composer LOU HARRISON. Harrison, 71, lives in Seattle. He studied with Henry Cowell in San Francisco in the 30s, along with John Cage. Harrison's music reflects heavy oriental influences. INT.2: Horror writer PATRICK MCGRATH. McGrath has been described as "a Poe for the 80's," a postmodern-gothic storyteller. His new collection of short stories is titled "Blood and Water and Other Tales." Horror writing is a genre that comes easily to McGrath, who grew up on the grounds of an English asylum for the criminally insane. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, June 30, 1988.) REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses how we use dictionaries. He says there is a great deal more to dictionaries than looking up the meaning of words we don't know. The definitions are often given out of context, which can result is strange and humorous malaprops.
Interview with Kenny Davern, Phil Flanigan, and Howard Alden; Review of the five best recent pop songs; Interview with Chris Connor; Review of the film "Scrooged." November 24, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924694].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with KENNY DAVERN, one of the greatest living clarinetist playing traditional jazz. Davern will perform with guitarist Howard Alden and bassist Phil Flannagan. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, February 10, 1988.) REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER introduces the "Tucker Top Five," his picks for the top current songs, and his variation for the Billboard Top 40.

INT.2: Jazz singer CHRIS CONNOR. She was best known for the work she did during a brief stint with the Stan Kenton band. Connor recorded sparingly throughout the 70s and for many jazz fans it was as though she ended her career. She's now performing again and has just completed work on a new album. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, April 18, 1988.) REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Scrooged," a comic remake of the Dickens classic "A Christmas Carol," starring Bill Murray.

---

Interview with Elia Kazan; Commentary on music from New Orleans; Interview with Stuart Allan; Commentary on AIDS activism through art. November 25, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924857].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist and theater and film director ELIA KAZAN. He directed Marlon Brando in "On the Waterfront," and James Dean in "East of Eden." He was a member of the Group Theater and co-founded the Actors Studio with Lee Strasberg. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, May 5, 1988.)

REV.1: New Orleans pianist HARRY CONNICK, JR. is featured in the weekly performance spot. He performs several songs from his home town of New Orleans. INT.2: Map maker STUART ALLAN. Allan is the principal mapmaker of Raven Maps & Images of Medford, Oregon, a company that specializes in wall-sized maps that are both visually striking and technically accurate. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, June 17, 1988.) REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE talks about a group of artist using their work to dispel myths about AIDS.
Interview with Simon Callow; Review of Bobby Watson's album "No Question About It"; Interview with Elliott Erwitt; Review of the television show "TV 101." November 28, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924281].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and actor SIMON CALLOW. Callow has played a wide range of roles on both stage and screen. His film appearances include "Amadeus," "A Room with a View" and "Maurice." His first book, the autobiography Being an Actor, won wide critical praise. His new book is a biography of the actor Charles Laughton, the star of such films as "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Witness for the Prosection" and "Jamaica Inn." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, August 25, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album by alto saxophonist BOBBY WATSON. Like Wynton and Branford Marsalis, Watson is a graduate of drummer Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers. INT.2: Veteran photographer ELLIOTT ERWITT. Erwitt bought his first camera when he was a teenager and for forty years has captured people in situations of irony, humor and tragedy. He's also photographed some of the leading figures of our century, including the Kennedys, the Rockefellers, Nikita Kruschev and Richard Nixon. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "TV 101," the new CBS drama series about a high school TV journalism class.

Interview with Adam Smith; Commentary on Ricky Nelson; Interview with Christopher Hitchens; Review of Alex Shumatoff's book "African Madness." November 29, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925769].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Financial writer ADAM SMITH. Smith is host of the popular PBS television show Adam Smith's Money World, and is author of the best-sellers The Money Game, Supermoney and Paper Money. His new book, titled The Roaring 80s, looks at a decade Smith says has been characterized by easy debt, easy spending and an amiable hands-off attitude by Washington. Smith says a comparison with another era of high living - the roaring 20s - is unavoidable. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the career of the late musician and actor RICKY NELSON. Nelson first plucked America's heartstrings on the TV show "The Adventure of Ozzie and Harriet." INT 2: British journalist CHRISTOPHER HITCHENS. He writes columns for The Nation, The Spectator and Harpers magazines on the Washington political scene.
A collection of his columns, titled Prepared for the Worst, has just been published. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews African Madness a new collection of travel essays by ALEX SHUMATOFF.

Interview with Peter Sichrovsky; Review of three CD reissues of Pablo Casals recordings; Interview with William Hamilton; Commentary on the urban legend of the concrete car. November 30, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924390].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: PETER SICHROVSKY. His new book, Strangers in Their Own Land: Young Jews in Germany and Austria Today, is an exploration of the lives and motivations of the European Jews who either stayed or returned to live in countries whose people brought on them the horrors of the Holocaust. In the introduction, Sichrovsky says that his central question in researching the book was, "What does it mean for a Jew to live in Germany today?" (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, March 11, 1988.) REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews several new CDs featuring cellist PABLO CASALS in performances of Bach and Beethoven. These are the first of Casals’ many recordings to be transferred to compact disc. INT.2: Novelist and New Yorker cartoonist WILLIAM HAMILTON. His earlier novels include The Love of Rich Women and The Charlatan. Like those earlier works, his new novel, The Lap of Luxury, is a comic tale of high society and low motives, skewering the vagaries and deceits of the rich. Hamilton is also a regular commentator on National Public Radio's "Morning Edition." REV.2: Urban legends expert JAN HAROLD BRUNVAND explores the legend of the concrete car. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, December 2, 1987.)

Interview with Michael Nesmith; Review of Til Tuesday's album "Everything is Different Now"; Interview with John Horner; Review of the film "Tequila Sunrise." December 1, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924391].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Former "Monkee" and film producer MICHAEL NESMITH. Since he left The Monkees, Nesmith originated the concept behind MTV and has produced music videos and films such as "Repo Man" and "Tapeheads." Nesmith was the only original member of The Monkees who didn't perform in the recent reunion concerts. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Everything is Different Now," the latest album from the group Till Tuesday, led by singer Aimee Man. INT.2: Paleontologist JACK HORNER (aka JOHN R. HORNER). Horner was the first paleontologist to find an intact dinosaur egg. He did this in Montana. His findings have led to new understandings of the parenting and social behavior of dinosaurs.

REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Tequila Sunrise," the thriller starring Mel Gibson, Kurt Russell and Michelle Pfeiffer.

---

Interview with Walt Frazier; Commentary on Thelonious Monk; Interview with John Feinstein; Review of the home video release of the film "Five Easy Pieces." December 2, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924388].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Former basketball star WALT FRAZIER. In 13 seasons as a pro, Frazier led the New York Knicks to two world championships (1970, 1973) and established himself as one of the greatest shot makers and play-makers in the history of the game. His flamboyant off-court behaviour and style of dress contrasted with his unemotional demeanor and his seemingly effortless moves in the heat of a basketball game. For fans and sportswriters, Frazier epitomized "Ultimate Cool." He's written a book that looks back on his career and the 1970 season when Knicks won the championship. REV.1: New Orleans pianist HARRY CONNICK, JR. is featured in the weekly performance spot, with his own interpretation of the rock song "Goody Goody." INT.2: Sports reporter JOHN FEINSTEIN. His first book, A Season on the Brink: A Year with Bobby Knight and the Indiana Hoosiers, became the bestselling hardcover sports book ever. It followed the controversial coach from the first day of practice in October 1985 to the team's first-round defeat in the NCAA tournament in March, 1986. Feinstein's new book, A Season Inside, looks at one year in all of college basketball, with profiles of players (Steve Kerr of Arizona, David Robinson, of Navy) and coaches (Rollie Massimino of Villanova, and Dean Smith of North Carolina). REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video release of "Five Easy Pieces," starring Jack Nicholson and directed by Bob Rafelson. It is the story of a musician with great promise who gives it up to work on an oil rig.
Interview with Taylor Branch; Review of Fred Astaire's album "The Astaire Story"; Interview with Carolyn Heilbrun; Review of the television show "Roots December 5, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924282].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) TAYLOR BRANCH is a white journalist who wrote a history of the African American civil rights movement called Parting the Waters. The book focuses on John F. Kennedy, J. Edgar Hoover, and Martin Luther King, Jr. (2.) Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Astaire Story" which collects recordings of movie star Fred Astaire's performances with musicians on the Verve record label. (3.) CAROLYN HEILBRUN is a feminist academic. She also writes detective novels under the pseudonym Amanda Cross. (4.) TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews ABC's special "Roots: The Gift," another chapter in the miniseries about runaway slave Kunta Kinte.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist GERALD POSNER wrote a book about organized crime groups in China called triads, who are in part responsible for the rise of the international heroin trade. His new book is called Warlords of Crime. (2.) Rock historian ED WARD looks back on the career of Guitar Slim, nee Eddie Jones, who was an early blues guitar pioneer. Slim died in 1959, at the age of 32. (3.) ROBERT PINSKY is a poet and critic. His new book, Poetry and the World, seeks to mythologize the past, including his experiences growing up in a small New Jersey beach town. (4.) Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews a new biography of Ezra Pound called A Serious Character, by Humphrey Carpenter.
Interview with Lady Borton; Review of the television program "Maria Callas December 7, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924389].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LADY BORTON worked with civilians and refugees during and after the Vietnam War. Her book chronicling their experiences is called Sensing the Enemy. (2.) Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new documentary "Maria Callas: An Operatic Biography," an episode of Great Performance on PBS. (3.) ALAN BECK, a leading authority on the relationships between pets and their owners. Beck is the director of the Center for Interaction of Animals and Society at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine. (ORIGINALLY BROADCAST 05/18/1988) (4.) Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG explores new customs in how we introduce ourselves, especially during telephone conversations and other forms of electronic communication.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JACK HEALEY is a former Catholic priest who is now the executive director of Amnesty International. He organized a number of benefit concerts around the world to raise awareness of prisoners of conscience. (2.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young's album "American Dream" and Little Feat's album "Let It Roll." (3.) TREY ELLIS is a young African American writer whose debut novel, Platitudes, has earned him critical success. His characters negotiate black culture in the urban northeast. (4.) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF praises the new Pedro Almodovar film, Women on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown.
Interview with James Comer; Obituary for Roy Orbison; Interview with Paul Gruchow; Review of Michael Moschen's performance piece "Moschen in Motion." December 9, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924279].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) JAMES COMER is an educator and child psychiatrist. He grew up in a low-income African American family, but received tremendous support from his mother. She is the subject of his new family memoir, Maggie's American Dream. (2.) Rock historian ED WARD remembers rock singer and songwriter Roy Orbison, who died on December 6th. (3.) PAUL GRUCHOW has a new collection of essays about the wilderness, called The Necessity of Empty Places. (4.) Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE reviews new vaudevillian Michael Moschen's work Moschen in Motion, which uses juggling to evoke the spirit of abstract expressionist art.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) SHELDON HARNICK is a Broadway lyricist who found success collaborating with composer Jerry Bock on musicals like Fiorello!, Fiddler on the Roof, and She Loves Me. Harnick joins Fresh Air to discuss what inspires his work and how he approaches lyric writing. (2.) Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the album Wholly Trinity by trumpeter Jack Walrath. (3.) Poet SHARON OLDS. She writes passionate and intensely personal poems about her childhood with abusive and alcoholic parents, and her own experiences as a mother and a wife. Suicide attempts in New York, and encounters on the subway also provide inspiration for her work. Sharon Olds is the recipient of the 1985 National Book Critics Circle Award for her collection titled The Dead and the Living. (REBROADCAST FROM 06/29/1988) (4.) TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the holiday special A Very Brady Christmas -- a spinoff of The Brady Bunch - which he says starts off bad and only gets worse.
Interview with Michael Harrington; Commentary on the rock band The Coasters; Interview with Don Was and David Was; Review of Octavio Paz's book "Sor Juana, or, The Traps of Faith."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) MICHAEL HARRINGTON is a political activist and writer who co-chairs the Democratic Socialists of America. He is now battling cancer, an experience he writes about in his new memoir, The Long Distance Runner. (2.) Rock historian ED WARD profiles the 1950s rock band The Coasters. With the help of songwriters Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller, this group pioneered songs for teenagers in the fifties, with songs like "Yakety Yak," "Charlie Brown," and "Three Cool Cats." (3.) DON WAS and DAVID WAS are the songwriting brothers behind the band Was (Not Was), which features a rotating lineup of singers. (4.) Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new Octavio Paz book Sor Juana, or, The Traps of Faith, about the 17th century poet.

Interview with William Kittredge; Review of reissued recordings of Elliott Carter's music;
Interview with Ron Goulart; Review of Barry Fleming's novel "The Make-Believers."

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Author WILLIAM KITTREDGE has a new collection of essays, called Owning it All, about the often destructive mythology of the American West. Kittredge grew up on a cattle ranch, which he inherited and later sold to pay for graduate school. (2.) Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a collection of songs featuring work by composer Elliott Carter, as well as a reissued recording of his Piano Concerto and Variations for Orchestra. Carter recently turned 80, and still composes. (3.) RON GOULART is a genre writer who publishes under a variety of different pseudonyms. He's recently written a history of hard-boiled fiction and pulp magazines, called The Dime Detectives. (4.) Guest critic STUART KLAWSANS reviews Barry Fleming's mystery novel The Make-Believers, which has just been reissued.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Film director and screenwriter ROBERT TOWNE. Towne is one of Hollywood's most successful and critically acclaimed screenwriters. He wrote the scripts for the films "The Last Detail," "Shampoo" and "Chinatown," which won the Academy Award for the best screenplay. He debuted as a director with the 1982 film "Personal Best." (2.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new comedy albums by Sam Kinison, Will Durst, and Dennis Miller, all of whom, Tucker says, embody the chaotic and aggressive spirit of rock and roll. (3.) JOSEPH HANSEN is a mystery novelist whose books feature a gay private detective named Dave Brandstetter. Hansen himself is openly gay, and makes a point of not shying away from homosexual themes. His latest novel, which address the AIDS crisis, is called Early Graves. (4.) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film Mississippi Burning, about an investigation into murdered civil rights workers.

Interview with Alex Shoumatoff; Commentary on Hoagy Carmichael; Interview with Richard Russo; Review of the film "Rain Man." December 16, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924513].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) New Yorker writer ALEX SHOUMATOFF has written extensively about the Tropics. His new book, called African Madness, is about the political, environmental, and public health challenges facing the continent. (2.) New Orleans-based musician DR. JOHN performs two songs by Hoagy Carmichael. (3.) Novelist RICHARD RUSSO's latest book, The Risk Pool, is about a negligent father in a small, upstate New York town. (4.) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the film Rain Man, starring Tom Cruise and Dustin Hoffman.
Interview with Steve Schneider; Review of the compilation album "The Christmas Collection"; Interview with Roger Norrington; Review of the television show "Wiseguy." December 19, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924393].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) STEVE SCHNEIDER's new book, That's All Folks!, details the history of the Warner Bros. animation studio, which created classic characters like Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck. (2.) Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews The Christmas Collection, an anthology album featuring interpretations by jazz musicians of classic holiday songs. (3.) ROGER NORRINGTON is a British conductor who seeks to recreate the sound of Beethoven's symphonies as they were originally performed -- including by having orchestra play period instruments. He has recorded all nine of the composer's symphonies; five have been release on CD so far. (4.) TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the show Wiseguy, a unique crime show now in its second season.

Interview with Frank Oz; Commentary on blues music; Interview with Howard Kohn; Review of Len Deighton's novel "Spy Hook." December 20, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924562].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) FRANK OZ directed the new comedy Dirty Rotten Scoundrels, starring Steve Martin. In addition to his work behind the camera, Oz is a puppeteer and voice actor. He created several of the Muppets, and played Yoda in the Star Wars sequel The Empire Strikes Back. (2.) Fresh Air performer-in-residence DR. JOHN plays two of his favorite blues songs. (3.) Investigative reporter HOWARD KOHN. It was Kohn who tracked down heiress Patty Hearst to a remote farmhouse in western Pennsylvania while she was being held by the Symbionese Liberation Army, a radical cult. Kohn later wrote one of the first exposes about Karen Silkwood, a worker who had been contaminated at a nuclear power plant and who later died in a suspect car crash. Kohn, who was raised on Michigan farm, returns to the family farm and to his relationship with his farmer father in his new book, The Last Farmer, a Memoir. (4.) Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Len Deighton's new espionage thriller, Spy Hook, the first in a planned trilogy.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Writer STEVE FISHMAN suffered a burst blood vessel in his brain. During his treatment and recovery, he researched the surgery that saved his life -- and left him with epilepsy. His book about the experience is called A Bomb in the Brain. (2.) Classical music LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of the musical "Show Boat," which features the original orchestrations and roster of songs, some of which have been recorded for the first time. Schwartz says its the best of the recent Broadway cast recordings. (3.) Jazz trombonist RAY ANDERSON has a new album called Blues Bred in the Bone. As a teenager, he doubted he would make a career in music. Now, he looks forward to the time he has enough work to become a band leader with a stable roster of musicians. (4.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the Christmas-themed, lesser known classic The Bishop's Wife, available on VHS. He says it's a worthy, low-key alternative to seasonal mainstays like It's a Wonderful Life.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Former Village Voice reporter and New York Daily News editor JACK NEWFIELD cowrote with Wayne Barrett the book City for Sale, about current NYC mayor Ed Koch. Newfield joins Fresh Air to discuss the corruption and organized crime ties to the Koch administration. (2.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new country albums by Jesse Winchester and Guy Clark, two songwriters who are critically acclaimed and admired by rock and country stars, but who haven't yet broken into the mainstream. (3.) Writer WILLIAM NOVAK. He's made his mark, and fortune, helping others write their life stories. He's ghostwritten the runaway bestseller Iacocca: An Autobiography, Mayflower Madam: The Secret Life of Sydney Biddle Barrow and Man of the House: The Life and Political Memoirs of Tip O'Neill. He's currently working on a book with First Lady Nancy Reagan. (REBROADCAST FROM 08/22/1988) (4.) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new comedies "Naked Gun" and "Dirty Rotten Scoundrels."

Interview with Susannah McCorkle, Lee Musiker, and Dean Johnson; Commentary on rock and roll Christmas songs; Interview with Kevin Wade; Review of Bill Cosby's stand-up comedy. December 23, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924392].

Description of show segment(s)

1.) Jazz vocalist SUSANNAH MCCORKLE returns to Fresh Air for a special, in-studio performance of classic Christmas songs. She's joined by pianist LEE MUSIKER and bassist DEAN JOHNSON. (2.) Rock historian ED WARD revisits some Christmas songs written and recorded by rock musicians in the 1950s and '60s. (3.) KEVIN WADE is a playwright whose first movie, Working Girl, was directed by Mike Nichols. The film deals with the power struggle between two women in the corporate world of New York City, and stars Melanie Griffith and Sigourney Weaver. (4.) Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE reviews Bill Cosby's newest stand-up comedy routing, which, to her surprise, avoids race issues in favor of jokes about married life.

Description of show segment(s)

1.) Rhythm and Blues singer BEN E. KING. He was a member fo the Drifters in the late 50s. His smooth vocals graced such popular hits as "There Goes My Baby" and "Save The Last Dance for Me." His solo career has produced hits like "I (Who Have Nothing)," "Spanish Harlem" and, his best-known song, which enjoyed a revival three years ago, "Stand By Me." (ORIGINALLY BROADCAST 09/02/1988) (2.) Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD chooses his top 10 albums of the year. (3). RONNIE SPECTOR, who in the 60s was a member of the girl group The Ronettes. She left the music business for several years during her fraught marriage with producer Phil Spector. Her latest album, released in 1987, is called Unfinished Business. (ORIGINALLY BROADCAST 08/31/1987) (4.) TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new made-for-TV biopic, The Karen Carpenter Story," about the pop singer who died tragically of anorexia nervosa.

---

Interview with Harvey Fierstein; Commentary rock and roll history; Interview with Aimee Mann and Michael Hausman; Review of Ward Just's novel "Jack Gance." December 27, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501096].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) HARVEY FIERSTEIN is an actor and playwright. He wrote and stars in the new movie Torch Song Trilogy. Fierstein is openly gay, and made the conscious decision to be public about his sexuality. He talks about growing up in Brooklyn and finding a gay community. (2.) Prompted by a listener letter, rock historian ED WARD considers how the genre's history is often distorted and sensationalized by writers and music critics. He says such spurious histories do a disservice to rock's legacy. (3.) 'Til Tuesday front woman AIMEE MANN and drummer MICHAEL HAUSMAN join Fresh Air to discuss the heartbreak-driven songs on their new album, Everything's Different Now. (4.) Book critic John Leonard review "Jack Gance," by Ward Just. The book follows the life of a young politician rising through the ranks of local and national politics.

---

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DUANE MICHALS makes a living in both commercial and artistic photography. His new book of portraits is called Album. (2.) Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new CD of Russian conductor Yevgeny Mravinsky's performance of excerpts from Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite and Prokofiev's ballet, Romeo and Juliet. (3.) SIGNE WILKINSON is a political cartoonist based in Philadelphia, and one of three women working in the field on a national level. Her comics lampoon politicians, and often focus on women's issues. Wilkinson's work regularly appears in the Philadelphia Daily News and Ms. Magazine. (4.) Guest critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN considers the enduring importance of detective novelist Raymond Chandler, who would have celebrated his 100th birthday this year.

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Jazz pianist DAVE MCKENNA joins Fresh Air for an in-studio performance. (2.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews three recent soundtrack album from the movies Twins, Beaches, and I'm Gonna Git You, Sucka. (3.) Fresh Air host Terry Gross interviews jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD to learn more about his background. In addition to being a music writer, Whitehead plays in a band dedicated to free improvisation. He was also a former seminarian. (4.) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film Working Girl, about women in New York City's corporate world. The movie stars Sigourney Weaver and Melanie Griffith.

Interview with Ken Tucker; Commentary on Dr. John's music; Interview with Stephen Schiff; Commentary on the doo-wop group The Capris. December 30, 1988. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924713].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER talks to Fresh Air host Terry Gross about his favorite music from 1988. (2.) Performer-in-residence DR. JOHN plays some of his own soulful, blues-inflected songs. (3.) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF shares his thoughts on the films of 1988. (4.) Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads a poem inspired by a song by the Doo-Wop group The Capris. Halliday, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, has read several of his poems on Fresh Air.

Interview with George Romero; Commentary on the Mexican American rock bands Sam the Sham and the Pharaohs and The Question Marks; Interview with Carol Leifer; Review of the upcoming

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Horror film director GEORGE ROMERO. He made his first film, "Night of the Living Dead," on a shoestring budget on the weekends. The film, about a cadre of flesh eating zombies, became a cult classic and a copy is now in the archives of the New York Museum of Modern Art. Romero's subsequent successes include "Dawn of the Dead," "Day of the Dead," "Martin," and "Creepshow." His most recent movie is "Monkey Shines: An Experiment in Fear." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, July 17, 1988.) REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles two Mexican-American groups, "Sam the Sham and the Pharoahs" and "? (question mark) and the Mysterians." Ed says that in their own weird way, they left their mark. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, September 27, 1988.) INT.2: Comic CAROL LEIFER. When she was a writer for Saturday Night Live during the 1985-86 television season, she saw her best material performed by others. She's been working on her own stand-up routine since then, and is a frequent guest on Late Night with David Letterman. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, September 13, 1988.) REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI takes a look at what the first few months of the new year will bring us in the way of TV.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet and essayist AUDRE LORDE. She's been an important voice for black women and lesbians since the early '60s. Over the past decade she has also been writing about her struggle with cancer. Her books include The Cancer Journals, Zami: A New Spelling of My Name, and Sister Outsider. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD says there's more to the New Orleans music scene than what gets covered in the national press. Today he reviews three anthologies of new jazz from New Orleans that he says clarify the picture. INT 2: JOHN SCHULIAN. He was a sports writer for the Philadelphia Daily News, and a sports commentator on National Public Radio's Weekend Edition with Scott Simon, when he decided to move to Los Angeles and write for television. Since then, he's written for "L.A. Law," "Slap Maxwell," and "Wiseguy." REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new novel Hence, by Brad Leithauser.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Musician BARRY TUCKWELL. He played French horn with the London Symphony Orchestra for 13 years before leaving in 1966 to begin a solo career. He's the first French horn player to have a career as a soloist, and he recently began conducting as well. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ belatedly celebrates the 60th anniversary of Ravel's "Bolero," written in 1928. He reviews a new release of the 1932 recording, conducted by the composer himself. INT.2: ERIC BOGOSIAN. Bogosian stars in the new film "Talk Radio," directed by Oliver Stone, about the dark side of a late night talk show host. The film is based on the play of the same name Bogosian co-wrote and starred in at the Public Theater in New York. Bogosian made his reputation creating and performing an assortment of characters in one-man shows, some of which have also been taped for public television. REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER looks at recent videocassette releases, including the 1948 film "Letter from an Unknown Woman," which Ken says is ideal for anyone seeking a good cry.

Interview with Janet Levine; Review of Sonic Youth's album "Daydream Nation"; Interview with Jane Kramer; Review of the film "Dangerous Liaisons." January 5, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924869].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer JANET LEVINE. She grew up in a middle-class Jewish family in Johannesburg, South Africa. Her new book, Inside Apartheid, describes her association with anti-apartheid leaders Helen Suzman and Steve Biko, as well her open attacks against the South African government. She also visited Soweto immediately after the riots of 1976. In 1984 she moved to Boston, where she teaches and lectures. She also writes for The New York Times, The Boston Globe and The Yale Review. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Daydream Nation," the new album from the band Sonic Youth. INT.2: Journalist JANE KRAMER. She lives abroad, and has been writing about Europe for The New Yorker magazine since 1964. She was also the winner of the 1981 American Book Award for non-fiction. She's authored several books, including Off Washington Square, Allen Ginsberg in America, and Unsettling Europe. Her latest book, Europeans, is a collection of her writings, which feature subjects as varied as Klaus Barbie, the banking problems of the Vatican, and her Portuguese concierge. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Dangerous Liaisons," the new movie directed by Stephen Frears and starring John Malkovich, Glenn Close and Michelle Pfeiffer.

Interview with Arthur Ashe; Commentary on the year 1989; Interview with Bella Lewitzky; Review of Jay Leno's stand-up comedy. January 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924711].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Former tennis champion ARTHUR ASHE. In 1980, after quadruple bypass surgery, Ashe retired from professional competition. For the last several years, Ashe has been teaching and writing about the barriers and discrimination which black athletes have faced. A Hard Road To Glory is his three-volume history of African-American athletes. REV.1: It's 1989 IN REVIEW, a satirical look back on a year that hasn't happened yet. The piece was written and performed by Robert Kaplow and The Punsters. INT.2: Dancer and choreographer BELLA LEWITZKY. Lewitzky is a pioneer in the west coast modern dance movement, and danced until age 62. She's the artistic director of the Bella Lewitzky Dance Company, which she formed in 1966. Lewitsky is also the founder and artistic director of The Dance Gallery, scheduled to open in 1990. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE discusses the work of comedian Jay Leno.

Interview with Ronald Bayer; Review of Hoagy Carmichael's album "Hoagy Sings Carmichael"; Interview with Seymour Shubin; Review of the television show "Tattinger's." January 9, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924865].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: RONALD BAYER. He co-chaired the first national project to study the ethical and social challenges posed by AIDS, at the think-tank, The Hastings Center. Bayer's new book, Private Acts, Social Consequences, examines the problem of how to respond to private acts that have critical social consequences. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new reissue by singer Hoagy Carmichael. Carmichael appeared in a string of movies beginning in the late '40s, but was best known for the songs he wrote or co-wrote, including "Georgia on My Mind," "Star Dust," and "Heart and Soul."
INT.2: Detective writer and novelist SEYMOUR SHUBIN. He has written hundreds of stories for Official Detective Stories magazine, which he also edited briefly. He's written seven novels, including Anyone's My Name, which hit bestseller lists across the country. His new novel, Never Quite Dead, was inspired by the death of a boy whose body was found in a box in a wooded area of Philadelphia. He was fascinated by the fact that no one ever identified the child, and by the speculation that the boy wasn't murdered, but abandoned after death. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI takes a second look at the program "Tattinger's," which is about to be revamped by NBC. The show will return in a half-hour format, rather than its current hour-long format.

[Interview with Nestor Almendros; Commentary on the songwriting team Holland, Dozier, and Holland; Interview with Irma Thomas; Review of Eva Hoffman's memoir "Lost in Translation." January 10, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924866].]

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Cinematographer NESTOR ALMENDROS. The films he has photographed include "Sophie's Choice," "Kramer vs. Kramer," and "Days of Heaven," for which he won an Academy Award. He has directed the photography for films by Eric Rohmer and Francois Truffaut. Almendros worked in Havana in the early years of the Castro regime before he had a falling out with the authorities. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, May 17, 1988.) REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD looks at Holland, Dozier, and Holland, a songwriting and producing trio from Motown Records who discovered the Supremes, then left their employer to form their own briefly successful album label. INT 2: Singer IRMA THOMAS. Thomas has been making records since 1958, and had a string of New Orleans rhythm-and-blues hits in the early sixties. Her popularity, however, is due in large part to her energetic live performances. Her most recent album, "The Way I Feel," is on Rounder Records. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, June 2, 1988.) REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Lost in Translation: A Life in a New Language, the recent memoir from Eva Hoffman, a writer and intellectual who immigrated to North America in 1953 at the age of 13.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and sociologist BARBARA KATZ ROTHMAN. Her new book, Recreating Motherhood examines the social and legal ramifications of advanced technology as it is applied to motherhood, and is a guide to the politics of motherhood and private moral decision-making. She suggests a social policy for dealing with mothers and motherhood that is consistent with feminist politics and feminist theory. Katz Rothman currently teaches at Baruch College and the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. Her previous books include In Labor: Women and Power in the Birthplace. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ shares some new evidence suggesting that one of the world's greatest classical music composers wrote music we've been unaware of until now (Hint: a 10th symphony by Beethoven.) INT.2: Vocalist and bassist KIM GORDON of the band Sonic Youth. The band's music is known for its mix of rock, avant-garde and science fiction. REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews a series of new video cassettes that instruct viewers on how to use hypnosis as a problem-solving technique. Ken focuses on a new self-confidence cassette.

Interview with Joseph Pistone; Commentary on James Booker; Interview with Keenan Ivory Wayans; Review of the film "January Man." January 12, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924424].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Life inside the Mafia. JOSEPH PISTONE, an FBI agent who successfully infiltrated the mob and managed to help convict about 100 of its members. REV.1: Pianist MAC REBENNACK, also known as DOCTOR JOHN, profiles New Orleans pianist James Carroll Booker 3rd. INT.2: KEENEN IVORY WAYANS. He co-wrote and acted in "Hollywood Shuffle," Robert Townsend's film about a black actor trying to make it in a world of show business stereotypes. Now he's made his own film which he wrote, directed and starred in, called "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka," a comedy that parodies black exploitation, kung fu and wild action movies. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews, "January Man," starring Kevin Kline as an ex-cop stalking a serial killer.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with country musician DOC WATSON. His versatility in many genres is well known, but much of his national exposure came from his performances at bluegrass festivals, and his guitar artistry has had a strong impact on bluegrass guitarists. He also plays banjo and French harp. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Hot Dog!," Buck Owens' first album in eight years, and a re-issue of the 1963 recording, "Buck Owens and the Buckeroos: Live at Carnegie." Owens is the creator of the Bakersfield sound which influenced generations of country musicians. INT.2: Conductor JOHN MCGLINN. He directed a new recording of the classic musical "Show Boat," first performed in 1927 with music by Jerome Kern and book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein 2nd. McGlinn's new and controversial recording of the musical includes rejected numbers from the planning stages and items cut in the pre-Broadway tryout. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines the way language has changed in response to changing racial attitudes in the United States.

Interview with Mark Dowie; Review of Franz Koglmann's album "About Yesterdays Ezzthetics"; Interview with Robert Hass; Review the television show " "; January 16, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924252].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Investigative journalist MARK DOWIE. He uncovered the dangers of the contraceptive Dalcon Shield and of exploding gas tanks in the Ford Pinto. He also reported the fact that the United States is selling products banned in this country to Third World countries. Dowie has won several awards for his reporting for Mother Jones magazine, and his new book, We Have a Donor, is about organ transplants. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD has a review of the latest album from Austrian flugelhorn player FRANZ KOGLMANN. Koglmann's recordings feature an interesting mix of American and European jazz musicians, as well as American and European musical influences. INT.2: Poet, critic and translator ROBERT HASS. He won the Yale Series of Younger Poets Award for his first volume of poetry, Field Guide, published in 1973. He translated, with poet Robert Pinsky, Czeslaw Milosz's The Separate Notebooks. His essays have appeared in The New York Review of Books, The New Republic, Antaeus, and Salmagundi. Many of his essays are collected in the recent book, Twentieth Century Pleasures. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews PAT SAJAK's performance as a late-night talk show host. Sajak is best known as the host of "Wheel of Fortune," perhaps the most popular TV game show.

Interview with Frank Zappa; Commentary on pub rock; Interview with David Ireland; Review of Susan Brownmiller's novel "Waverly Place." January 17, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924254].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Rock star FRANK ZAPPA, one of pop culture's most intriguing and enduring figures. Starting with "Freak Out," his debut album, Frank Zappa and the Mothers of Invention became one of the most inventive and unpredictable groups of the late 60s and 70s, fusing rock, classical and jazz. More recently, Zappa has been in the news for his opposition to legislation that would force record companies to rate lyrics based on their profanity and sexual content. He also taken an active and highly visible role encouraging young adults to register to vote. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles "Pub Rock," a type of unpretentious music which was popular during the early seventies in British bars. Ed says that though most bands like Ducks Deluxe never succeeded worldwide, pub rock paved the way for the punk movement. INT.2: San Francisco sculptor DAVID IRELAND. He tries to capture the art in everyday acts like repairing a sidewalk or saving rubber bands from the morning newspaper. One of his best known projects is the "renovation" of a home he purchased in San Francisco's historic Mission District. In that project, Ireland captured what he calls the social system of the home over the previous 100 years in objects such as old Mason jar caps and worn-out brooms. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Waverly Place, the new novel by feminist author Susan Brownmiller. It's based on the story of Lisa Steinberg, the New York City youngster who was murdered by her guardian Joel Steinberg. Steinberg is now on trial for the crime.

Interview with Joe McGinniss; Review of the Arditti String Quartet's two-volume collection of Elliott Carter's string quartets; Interview with Joe Simpson; Commentary on the portrayal

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist JOE McGINNIS. He's best known for the bestseller Fatal Vision, the true story of a former Green Beret doctor Jeffrey MacDonald and his trial on charges that he murdered his pregnant wife and two daughters. MacDonald was later convicted and is now serving three life terms. McGinniss also wrote The Selling of the President, 1968, a now-classic political study of Richard M. Nixon's presidential advertising campaign. McGinniss's new book, Blind Faith, is the true story of a New Jersey man whose wild lifestyle and huge debt led him to murder his wife in order to collect on her insurance. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new release of ELLIOTT CARTER's four string quartets, performed by the ARDITTI STRING QUARTET. INT.2: English adventurer and mountain climber JOE SIMPSON. His new book, Touching the Wind, is Simpson's account of his disasterous descent from a 21,000-foot peak in the Andes. Simpson broke his leg after a fall from an ice cliff and while his partner was lowering him down the mountain in a stretcher the rope broke. Simpson fell another 150 feet into a crevasse and his partner assumed he had perished. But three days later, as he was breaking down his base camp, he found Simpson crawling through a blizzard. The book recounts the ordeal and Simpson's later recovery, which included six operations to repair the leg. REV.2: Media Critic LESLIE SAVAN dissects the current image of women as portrayed in TV ads. Savan writes the Op-Ad column for The Village Voice.

Interview with Isadore Barmash; Review of Lou Reed's album "New York"; Interview with Mark Singer; Review of the film "The Dressmaker." January 19, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924253].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York Times business reporter ISADORE BARMASH. He covers the retail trades. His new book, Macy's For Sale, is the story of the leveraged buyout of the the famed New York department store chain. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Lou Reed's new album, "New York." Reed was the founding member of the Velvet Underground, a cult band whose influence vastly exceeded their commercial success. Since then, Reed has continued to compose and perform, with mixed results. INT.2: Writer MARK SINGER. For the past ten years, Singer has written some of the most popular profiles and "Talk of the Town" pieces for The New Yorker magazine. These include his portraits of theatrical agent and dealmaker Sam Cohn, radio humorist Goodman Ace and TV news producer Gordon Manning. His shorter "Talk of the Town" pieces include profiles of zipper repairman Herbert Stiefel, knife sharpener Lenny Binelli, and street violinist Rubin Levine, whose repertoire includes 30,000 tunes. Many of Singer's best stories have been collected in the new book "Mr. Personality." Garrison Keillor has called Singer "one of the great city slickers of American journalism, a poet of New York ..." REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Dressmaker," a British film set in Liverpool just before the end of World War II.

Interview with Lawrence Halprin; Obituary for Bruce Chatwin; Interview with Don Carpenter; Review of James O'Keefe's performance piece "Shimmer." January 20, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925771].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) LAWRENCE HALPRIN is an urban designer and landscaper architect. His work can be seen in Portland, Oregon, San Francisco, and Jerusalem. (2.) British travel writer BRUCE CHATWIN died last week. We listen back to part of a 1987 interview with him. (Rebroadcast from 09/10/1987) (3.) DON CARPENTER is a San Francisco-based novelist whose work is set in and around his hometown. His latest book is called From a Distant Place. (4.) Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE reviews James O'Keefe's new performance piece, Shimmer.

Interview with Robertson Davies; Review of Carla Bley's albums "Duets" and "Social Studies"; Interview with Peter Nabokov; Review of the television show "Shining Time Station." January 23, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924250].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer ROBERTSON DAVIES. He is one of Canada's pre-eminent novelists, the author of more than two dozen books, among which are the acclaimed novels Fifth Business, The Manticore and World of Wonders, which make up the "Deptford Trilogy." Another popular Davies novel is the recent What's Bred in the Bone. For many years, Davies was a journalist, editing The Peterborough Examiner, turning it into one of the country's finest papers. Critic and economist John Kenneth Galbraith has called Davies "one of the most learned, amusing and otherwise accomplished novelists of our time." REV.1: Jazz critic
KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album and a reissue by CARLA BLEY, a composer and arranger who first began writing for jazz improvisers in the late 50s. Starting in the late 70s, Bley began leading her own band. INT.2: Anthropologist PETER NABOKOV. He's just published a book that documents the architecture of native Americans. Through a study of the homes and other structures these people inhabited and used, Nabokov has tried to trace the continuity and consistencies of this culture. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews a new PBS children's show "Shining Time Station." The show is an adaptation of the "Thomas the Tank Engine and Friends" stories written by the British writer, the Rev. W. Awdry. The show is narrated by Ringo Starr.

Interview with Stan Freberg; Commentary on the Mod movement; Interview with Ward Just; Review of Michael Dibdin's novel "Rat King." January 24, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924429].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Satirist, comic and advertising creator STAN FREBERG. Throughout the sixties and seventies, Freberg created some of the most successful and memorable ads on radio and TV ("Plop, Plop, Fizz, Fizz, Oh What a Relief It Is ...”). He's also widely known for his comedy skits and records, including "Stan Freberg's History of the United States." In the early 70's, Freberg wrote and produced forceful commercials supporting anti-war legislation pending in Congress. Freberg's career began as a puppeteer on the TV show "A Time for Beanie and Cecil." REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD looks back at the look and music of the Mods. The original Mods movement, which started in the early 60s, was more a ultra-hip clothes movement than a music statement. But it still attracted musicians like Rod Stewart. INT.2: Novelist and former journalist WARD JUST. For many years Just covered national and international affairs for the Washington Post. His reporting from Vietnam was some of the first to cast doubt on America's ability to win the war. He left the paper, wrote memoirs about his reporting experiences, and then began working on fiction based on the Washington political scene. He's written eight novels; the latest is titled Jack Gance. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Rat King, the new detective novel by Scottish author Michael Dibdin.
Interview with Harvey Cox; Review of two new CDs by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra; Interview with Eva Hoffman; Commentary on the word "hoosier." January 25, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924251].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Theologian HARVEY COX. His most recent book, Many Mansions, is a collection of personal essays based on his world travels and dialogues with people of many religious affiliations. An ordained Baptist minister, he's best-known for his 1965 work The Secular City, which chronicled the demise of organized religion. Cox has written several books, including the semi-autobiographical Just As I Am, and Religion in the Secular City. He is a professor at Harvard's Divinity School. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two recently released recordings of the Cleveland Orchestra. Lloyd says that following a long lapse, the orchestra is once again among the best in the country. INT.2: Writer and Polish Emigre EVA HOFFMAN. She's written a new book, Lost in Translation: A Life in a New Language, about her difficult 1959 journey from her homeland to Vancouver, British Columbia. An adolescent at the time, she experienced many hardships, including the indignity of having her first name changed by a Canadian teacher. The incident was a particular insult because of Hoffman's special interest in words and language. Since then, she's studied at Rice and Harvard Universities, and is presently working as an editor for The New York Times Book Review. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFERY NUNBERG traces the roots of the word "hoosier." Geoffery suggests that the origin of an Indiana "hoosier" is no different from an Alabama "lizard" or Nebraska "bug-eater."

Interview with George Benet; Review of Roy Orbison's album "Mystery Girl"; Interview with Mike Leigh; Review of the film "Physical Evidence." January 26, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924426].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: San Francisco novelist and poet GEORGE BENET. For 27 years, Benet worked as a longshoreman on San Francisco's waterfront. His writing has been praised for its directness and ability to capture the world of streetcorner outlaws, racetrack handicappers and working stiffs. One of his best known books is the gangster novel The Hoodlums. His new novel, A Short Dance in the Sun, is set in the world of the once-thriving longshoreman's labor union. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Mystery Girl," the new album by the late Roy Orbison. INT.2: Writer, film director MIKE LEIGH. He is one of... the most important writers and directors of the contemporary British stage. He's also written extensively for British television. His stage works include "Abigail's Party" and "The Jaws of Death." His latest work, "High Hopes," is his first feature-length film in 17 years. It's a satire that captures the contrasts of Thatcher's England by focusing on a family who represent a wide range of economic conditions, from marginal messengers to nouveau riche yuppies. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Physical Evidence," the new thriller starring Theresa Russell, Burt Reynolds and Ned Beatty.

Interview with Don Wilson; Commentary on high school students; Interview with Larry Heinemann; Review of the VHS release of Michael Jackson's film "Moonwalker." January 27, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925436].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) DON WILSON was appointed by President Reagan as the head of the National Archives. He joins Fresh Air to discuss the state of the country's historic documents -- including their unfortunate loss -- both before and after the agency's founding. (2.) Fresh Air broadcasts a portion of Dmae Roberts' forthcoming radio documentary, "Waiting for the Great Leap Forward," for the Soundprint program. It deal with the attitudes and behaviors of today's high school students. (3.) LARRY HEINEMANN served for one year in Vietnam. The experience was so intense that he has built a literary career about it. His book, Paco's Story, won the National Book Award. After releasing two novels, he's working on a nonfiction book about post-traumatic stress disorder. (4.) Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the VHS release of Michael Jackson's video anthology Moonwalker.

Interview with Matin Short; Review of Tom Harrell's album "Stories"; Interview with Loren Estleman; Review of the television show "Lonesome Dove." January 30, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924425].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comic Actor MARTIN SHORT. A native of Canada, Short appeared for three years with the Second City company in Toronto. There, he created such characters as the infamous Ed Grimley, who lives on in the current Saturday morning children's show, "The Completely Mental Misadventures of Ed Grimley." Short's first commercial success came when he joined the cast of "Saturday Night Live."
Since then, he's starred in the feature films "Three Amigos!" and "Innerspace." His new film, which co-stars Nick Nolte, is the comedy "Three Fugitives." REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Stories," a new album from trumpeter and flugelhorn player TOM HARRELL. Kevin says Harrell has a flair for taking common elements of the music and making them sound fresh. INT. 2: Writer LOREN ESTLEMAN. The author of over 30 books, as well as numerous short stories and articles, Estleman is best known for his detective novels. A former Detroit policeman, Estleman sets his detective novels in the Motor City, including the recent thrillers Downriver and General Murders, as well as the forthcoming Silent Thunder. His novels feature the hard-boiled sleuth Amos Walker. He's received several honors for his work, including a Pulitzer Prize nomination for his 1984 novel This Old Bill. REV. 2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the mini-series "Lonesome Dove," based on Larry McMurty's bestselling - and Pulitzer Prize-winning - novel of the same name. The show stars Robert Duvall, Tommy Lee Jones, and Anjelica Huston, and it airs this Sunday night on CBS. David says it should not be missed.

Interview with Rian Malan; Commentary on Thom Bell; Interview with Kurtwood Smith; Review of Germaine Greer's memoir "Daddy, We Hardly Knew You." January 30, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501683].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: White South African writer RIAN (rhymes with "neon") MALAN. Malan is an Afrikaner, descendent of a family that settled in South Africa over three hundred years ago, and Malan's great-uncle was the chief architect of the Apartheid system. Malan only realized the horror of Apartheid after he became a crime reporter for a Johannesburg paper. What he learned led him to leave South Africa, and spend the next eight years in exile. Now Malan's written a book about his return to his homeland, called "My Traitor's Heart: A South African Exile Returns to Face His Country, His Tribe, and His Conscience." REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles arranger and producer Thom (pronounced "tom") Bell. Bell's responsible for much of what came to be known as the "Philly" sound, a result of his work with groups such as the Delfonics and the Stylistics. INT. 2: Character actor KURTWOOD SMITH. Smith has a penchant for playing the heavy...in "Robocop" he played a sadistic killer, in "Dead Poets Society" he played a repressive father, and in "True Believer," he played an over-zealous attorney. His next role is in the upcoming comedy, "Quick Change." He plays a mafia don. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Daddy, We Hardly Knew You." It's writer Germaine Greer's memoir of her father. He spent the first 5 years of her life away in the Australian Air force during World War 2. Upon his return, and until his death in 1983, he was quiet, distant, and would never talk about the war. This book is both Greer's memories of her father's life, and her investigation into what he did during those missing five years.

---

Interview with Tobias Wolff; Commentary on Reverend Johnny Otis; Interview with John Flansburgh and John Linnell; Review of Martin Duberman's book "Paul Robeson." January 31, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924423].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer TOBIAS WOLFF. The winner of the PEN/Faulkner Award for his short novel The Barracks Thief, he has now written his first work of nonfiction. This Boy's Life is a memoir of his unhappy upbringing in working-class Washington state in the late 1950s. Wolff, who served in Vietnam and later worked as a reporter for The Washington Post, has also written two highly regarded collections of short stories, In the Garden of the North American Martyrs, and Back in the World. REV.1: Rock historian EDWARD profiles Reverend Johnny Otis, a Greek-American man who played a key role in Los Angeles' black music scene, making use of both his keen eye for talent and a club he co-owned, "The Barrelhouse."

INT.2: Musicians JOHN FLANSBURGH and JOHN LINNELL, who make up the rock band "They Might Be Giants." They've built a reputation on their unique brand of distribution known as Dial-a-song (718-387-6962), which dispenses the latest "They Might Be Giants" songs via answering machine. JOHN FLANSBURGH is the guitarist-singer, JOHN LINNELL is the accordionist-banjoist-singer. Their debut album was titled "They Might Be Giants;" their latest is titled "Lincoln." REV.2: Book critic John Leonard reviews MARTIN BAUML DUBERMAN'S new biography of singer and political activist Paul Robeson.

---

Interview with Claribel Algeria; Review of Marimolin's self-titled album; Interview with Michael Barson; Review of Whoopi Goldberg's one-woman show "Living on the Edge of Chaos." February 1, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924597].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Salvadoran poet CLARIBEL ALEGRIA. She has lived in exile for many years. In her poetry and prose, she writes of the loss of lives in the Central American conflicts as well as the loss of spirit and of the cultural mythologies. She now lives in Nicaragua. Her best-known collection of poetry is titled Flowers From the Volcano. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, November 16, 1987.) REV.1:

- Page 526 -
Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the debut album of Marimolin, a duet comprised of marimba player Nancy Zeltsman and violinist Sharan Leventhal. INT.2: Popular culture historian, MICHAEL BARSON. His new book, Lost, Lonely & Vicious, is a collection of postcards from the advertising posters of the "great trashy B" movies of the fifties. These were the low-budget exploitation films that featured wayward girls and bad boys. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews a recent live performance by comic Whoopi Goldberg.

Interview with Thomas Schatz; Review of five recent popular songs; Interview with Roger Black; Review of the film "Lawrence of Arabia." February 2, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500861].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film historian THOMAS SCHATZ. His new book, The Genius of the System, is a portrait of moviemaking in Hollywood's studio era. The book traces the operations of four companies - Warner Brothers, MGM, Universal and Selznick International - from the late 20s to the late 50s. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER returns with "The Tucker Top Five," five new songs that he thinks deserve attention, for better or worse. INT.2: Publications designer ROGER BLACK. He recently re-designed a new format for The San Francisco Examiner and is currently working on the second issue of the new magazine Smart, which he designed. For Smart and California magazines he developed custom typefaces, as he previously did for Newsweek and Rolling Stone. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the restored version of "Lawrence of Arabia," the classic David Lean film starring Peter O'Toole and and Omar Sharif. Rushed into release in 1962, the film began at 222 minutes, but was compressed to 202 minutes a month later to accomodate theater owners, and then compressed several times more. Even still, it won seven Academy Awards and is widely regarded as a pivotal Hollywood epic. The restored version includes scenes that never made the first showing, despite the objections of director Lean.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: LEON DASH is an investigative reporter for the Washington Post. His new book, When Children Want Children, is based on his interviews with poor African American teenage parents about why they wanted to have children. Encouraged by his editor Bob Woodward, Dash met with the same adolescents multiple times in order to learn the truth of their experiences. REV.2: Rock historian ED WARD looks back at some of the musical traditions of New Orleans' Mardi Gras celebration, many of which were inspired by the Black Indian community. INT.2: Writer THOMAS MAEDER. His new book, Children of Psychiatrists and Other Psychotherapists, is based on interviews with individuals like Maeder himself, whose parents were both mental health professionals. REV.2: Critic STUART KLAWANS reviews a new collection of tough, intense, and often hallucinatory short fiction by Chinese American writer Frank Chin. The book is called The Chinaman Pacific & Frisco R.R. Co.

Interview with Sallie Bingham; Review of LaVern Baker's album "LaVern Baker Sings Bessie Smith"; Interview with Kathy O'Connell; Review of the television show "Columbo." February 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500859].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: SALLIE BINGHAM. She was an heiress to her family's fortune that included the Louisville Courier Journal and the Louisville Times. The tangled history of the Bingham family was the subject of two books last year after internal family squabbles forced the sale of the two newspapers to the Gannet chain. Her new book, Passion and Prejudice, tells her side of the story. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a recent reissue featuring LaVern Baker singing the songs of Bessie Smith. Baker was one of the most striking - and imitated - rhythm and blues singers of the '50s. INT.2: KATHY O'CONNELL, former host of the national children's radio show "Kids America" and now host of a similar children's program in Philadelphia, called "Kid's Corner." "Kids America" was carried on 26 public radio stations before funding was cancelled a year and a half ago. O'Connell was then invited to Philadelphia to continue children's programming with a live radio call-in show. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the return of "Columbo," featuring the rumpled raincoat-clad Peter Falk as Lt. Columbo. The show, returning after a 12-year absence, will air Monday nights on ABC.

Interview with Hernando de Soto; Commentary on rock bands from the Pacific northwest; Interview with Lawrence Levine; Review of V.S. Naipal's memoir "A Turn in the South." February 7, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924592].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Economist HERNANDO DE SOTO. His new book, The Other Path; the Invisible Revolution in the Third World traces the growth of the enormous black market economy in Lima, Peru. De Soto believes that Peru's so-called "informal" economy is a kind of grass-roots capitalism, a response to layers of bureaucracy and poor economic planning. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the bands of the Oregon/Washington area, who make up what he calls "the Northwest Sound." Ed traces this musical movement from pre-psychedelic days to drug songs of the sixties and beyond. INT.2: Author and cultural historian LAWRENCE LEVINE. His new book Highbrow, Lowbrow: The Emergence of Cultural Hierarchy in America, examines forms of expressive culture as diverse as Shakespeare, symphonies, jazz, art museums, the Marx Brothers, opera and vaudeville. Using these and other examples, Levine demonstrates what he believes to be a growing chasm between "serious" and "popular," between "high" and "low" culture, a chasm that he says didn't exist during most of the nineteenth century. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews A Turn in the South, Indian writer V. S. Naipal's account of his travels through the American South.

Interview with Gregory Hines; Review of the album "The Leroy Anderson Collection"; Interview with Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg; Obituary for John Cassavetes. February 8, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924591].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Dancer and actor GREGORY HINES. Hines made a name for himself on Broadway, in shows such as "Eubie," and "Sophisticated Ladies," as well as Hollywood, where he appeared in "The Cotton Club," "White Knights," and "Running Scared." Hines' new film, "Tap," is a musical about the waning days of that dance form. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "The Leroy Anderson Collection," a new compact disc set featuring recordings made between 1952 and 1962 of the famous pops composer conducting his own works, including "The Syncopated Clock," "Bugler's Holiday," and "The Typewriter." INT.2: Violinist NADJA SALERNO-SONNENBERG. Although still quite young by classical music standards, Salerno-Sonnenberg has already established herself as a major soloist. She won the Naumberg International Violin Competition in 1981, and she's since gone on to perform with many of the world's major orchestras. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF pays tribute to the late film director, writer, and actor John Cassevetes.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor HOWARD HESSEMAN. He's best known to television viewers as the freewheeling counterculture disc jockey Dr. Johnny Fever on the series "WKRP in Cincinnati." He now stars as Charlie Moore on the CBS series "Head of the Class." Before acting on television, Hesseman was a member of the San Francisco comedy troupe The Committee. His feature film roles include "Shampoo," "Doctor Detroit," and Mel Brooks' "Silent Movie." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on August 29, 1988.) REV.1: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Lyle Lovett and His Large Band," the third album from one of country music's most satisfying eccentrics. INT.2: Playwright, essayist, and short story writer FRANK CHIN. His new collection of short stories, The Chinaman Pacific & Frisco R.R. Co., explores American culture from the perspective of Chinese-Americans. Chin is the author of two plays produced in New York by the American Place Theater: The Chickencoop Chinaman and The Year of the Dragon, which also was broadcast on public television stations. REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses the evolution of the book as a means of packaging information for public consumption. He says that despite new technology the future of the book is secure.
Interview with Susan Sontag; Commentary on the early career of Adrienne Kennedy; Interview with Ricki Lake; Review of the home video release of the film "The Sweet Smell of Success." February 10, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924596].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist and essayist SUSAN SONTAG. Her new book AIDS and Its Metaphors, examines the way we talk and think about the disease. Sontag questions whether describing AIDS as a "plague," being fought by ill-equipped "defenders" against insidious "invaders" leads to unnecessary hopelessness among patients and panic on the part of the public. AIDS and Its Metaphors extends the premise Sontag introduced in her now classic essay Illness as Metaphor. REV.1: Playwright ADRIENNE KENNEDY reads from her autobiography about growing up black in a middle class suburb of Cleveland and the effect this had on her later writing. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, December 11, 1987.) INT.2: Actress RICKI LAKE. In John Waters film, "Hairspray," she stole the show, starring as the fat, loveable, and triumphant Tracy Turnblad. She stars in the upsuburb, coming CBS TV movie Babycakes. REV.2: Critic Ken Tucker reviews "Sweet Smell of Success," the 1957 movie starring Burt Lancaster and Tony Curtis. The movie, with a screenplay written by Clifford Odets and Ernest Lehman, is about a powerful New York newspaper columnist butting heads with a sleazy press agent.

---

Interview with Arnold Rampersad; Review of Herb Robertson's album "Shades of Bud Powell"; Interview with Rhys Chatham; Interview with Robert Kaplow and the Punsters. February 13, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501282].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Biographer ARNOLD RAMPERSAD. His two-volume biography of writer LANGSTON HUGHES has been praised by critics as one of the best biographies of a black American writer. It follows the development of Hughes's writing as it moved away from a purely political commitment towards social realism, culminating in his poetry that expressed his love of jazz and the blues. Rampersad is a professor of English at Columbia University. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, November 4, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Shades of Bud Powell," a new album of pianist Bud Powell's compositions, arranged by trumpeter HERB ROBERTSON and played by his Brass Ensemble. INT.2: New music composer RHYS CHATHAM. Since his first compositions were performed in 1971, he's been a major figure in the downtown New York music scene. He was a co-founder of the Kitchen, a performance space where new and experimental music is showcased. Chatham is classically trained, but his music combines minimalistic compositional techniques and rock instrumentation. REV.2: Terry interviews ELVIS PRESLEY, and finds out what he's been up to since he died. It's satire piece courtesy of Robert Kaplow and the Punsters.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer ELLEN WILLIS. She's been described as a "natural dissident who is always taking unpopular positions." These days she writes on feminist issues for The Village Voice. She's also a features editor at the Voice. She won wide acclaim for her 1981 collection of essays, Begining to See the Light, about the state of feminism in the 70s. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles country music singer and musician CHARLIE RICH. INT.2: Writer DAVID LEAVITT. Leavitt gained national attention with his first collection of short stories, Family Dancing," in which he examined the impact of love and family on characters who are gay. Leavitt's new book, a novel, is titled Equal Affections. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Satanic Verses, by novelist SALMAN RUSHDIE.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director JOE DANTE. He started out making trailers for Roger Corman movies. He's since gone on to make movies such as "Gremlins," "Innerspace." His latest movie, "The Burbs," stars Tom Hanks. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Tales of Offenbach," a compilation of some of the most important performances of JACQUES OFFENBACH's works. INT.2: Classical pianist RICHARD GOODE. Goode is currently in the process of recording all 32 Beethoven Piano sonatas. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Christabel," a new four-part miniseries by Dennis Potter, the creator of "The Singing Detective."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Leonard Feather, probably the best known jazz critic in America. His Encyclopedia of Jazz, a three-volume work, is considered the standard reference work on the subject. Feather has also been influential in jazz as a producer. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast 7/24/87.) REV.1: Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the work of Kansas City pianist Jay McShann. As a big band leader in the 40s and 50s, McShann helped start the careers of jazz stars like Charlie Parker and Big Joe Turner. Kevin reviews a reissue of a 1972 album, "Going to Kansas City." INT.2: Theater impresario Joseph Papp. His New York Shakespeare Festival has staged some of the finest American productions of Shakespeare as well Broadway hits like "A Chorus Line" and "Hair." His company has just started a complete cycle of Shakespeare's plays. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast 5/15/87.) REV.2: Television Critic David Bianculli previews the HBO spoof of political campaigns, "Tanner 88: The Dark Horse." Unlike earlier fabricated campaigns like "Pat Paulsen for President," "Tanner 88" takes its politics seriously. The script is written by "Doonesbury" cartoonist Garry Trudeau, and the direction is by Robert Altman.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer/psychologist JUDITH WALLERSTEIN. Wallerstein is co-author of Second Chances: Men, Women & Children A Decade After Divorce. Wallerstein periodically interviewed divorced couples and their children over a ten year period. Her findings challenge old beliefs, such as time heals all wounds. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Spike," the 13th album by ELVIS COSTELLO. Ken calls the album a thrilling example of a rock musician grown to maturity. INT.2: Director JOSEPH RUBEN.

Ruben directed a 1987 cult favorite, "The Stepfather." His new movie, "True Believer," stars James Woods and Robert Downey Jr. It's about an attorney who built a reputation for winning civil rights cases in the sixties and who now faces an uphill battle trying to re-open the case of a man convicted of murder eight years ago. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Cousins," the new movie starring Isabella Rossellini and Ted Danson. "Cousins" is a remake of the successful French comedy "Cousin, Cousine," about a couple who meet at a wedding and later have a passionate affair.

Interview with Garrison Keillor; Commentary on Rodgers and Hart; Interview with Wayne Horvitz; Commentary on Kate Millet. February 17, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924738].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: GARRISON KEILLOR, former host of "A Prairie Home Companion." REV.1: A performance by singer JOAN MORRIS and Pulitzer prize-winning composer/pianist WILLIAM BOLCOM. INT.2: Keyboardist and composer WAYNE HORVITZ. Along with John Zorn, Elliot Sharpe and others, WAYNE HORVITZ has been a major figure in New York's "downtown" musical scene. He leads three different groups, mixing his own blend of jazz, new music and rock. His funk rock group, "The President," is about to release a new recording. REV.2: Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE remembers the first teacher who took her seriously, writer KATE MILLETT, when Laurie was a student back in the early sixties.

Interview with Willie Nelson; Review of Oliver Lake's album "Otherside"; Interview with William Gibson; Review of the television show "Timeline." February 20, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924776].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Country music star and actor WILLIE NELSON. His best-known songs include "Crazy," "Funny How Time Slips Away," and "Good Hearted Woman." Nelson talks about his life before stardom: as a cotton-picker, Sunday school teacher and songwriter selling his music dirt cheap. He's also written his autobiography, titled Willie. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, Oct. 24, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Otherside," the new album from alto saxophonist OLIVER LAKE, who may be best known as a member of the World Saxophonist Quartet. Lake's new album includes pieces for big band as well as quintet. INT.2: Science fiction writer WILLIAM GIBSON. With his first novel, Neuromancer, Gibson became known as the father of a new wave of science fiction labeled Cyberpunk. In Gibson's fiction, the setting is a barren, post-World War III world where computer hackers vie for power in a computer-generated zone known as Cyberspace. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, Nov. 2, 1988.) REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Timeline," a new public television series that recreates great moments in history from the perspective of a news anchor and on-the-scene reporters.

Interview with Otis Williams; Commentary on the soul band the Manhattans; Interview with Robert Adams; Review of E.L. Doctorow's novel "Billy Bathgate." February 21, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924864].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with William Whyte; Review of three albums featuring Sir Thomas Beecham; Interview with Al Young; Commentary on Pepsi and the Soviet Union. February 22, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924892].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer WILLIAM WHYTE. For the past 20 years, he's been studying how people use the streets and open spaces in cities. He now works as a consultant to urban planners. He's gather his observations in the book City: Rediscovering the Center. Whyte is best known for his 1956 book Organization Man, a groundbreaking work that examined the mechanized rituals and routines of the corporate culture. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two recordings conducted by the late British maestro SIR THOMAS BEECHAM. The recordings feature Beecham conducting works of Greig and Beethoven. INT.2: Jazz critic, poet, and novelist AL YOUNG. His new novel, Seduction by Light, is about a black actress who used to play maids in movies, and then finds herself working as a maid. His earlier book, Things Ain't What They Used to Be, is a collection of musical memoirs inspired by artists such as Aretha Franklin, Tony Bennett, and Duke Ellington. REV.2: Commentator LESLIE SAVAN watches the Pepsi generation go glasnost. Although the soft drink has been sold in the Soviet Union since 1974, she says a new Pepsi ad, shot in the Soviet Union, is selling cola and making a splash among American viewers.

Interview with Chris Walas; Commentary on cover songs; Interview with Loren Schoenberg; Review of the film "True Believer." February 23, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924729].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Special effects master and director CHRIS WALAS. He directed "Fly II," the sequel to the popular remake of "The Fly," about a scientist whose genetic experiments run amok. Walas was responsible for the special effects in "The Fly." He got his start in film making working for the special effects team for several Roger Corman films, including "Piranha." His work was first noticed in the film "Scanners;" it was Walas who created and choreographed the famous exploding head scene. Another well-known scene Walas created was the melting Nazi in "Raiders of the Lost Ark." REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER looks at the practice of "covering" hit songs. "Covering" is when a lesser-known band or musician does their version of an earlier song. In all likelihood, the imitator is barely known, and the song, in its earlier version, was a commercial hit. Examples from his review include the Cowboy Junkie's version of Lou Reed's hit "Sweet Jane," and Chuck Brown and the Soul Searchers' version of the T-Bone Walker standard "Stormy Monday." INT.2: Tenor saxophonist and big band leader LOREN SCHOENBERG. As a teenager, he fell in love with the music of clarinetist Benny Goodman. He later went on to work for Goodman and led his last big band. Schoenberg latest project is a two-record compilation of Goodman's music. His own group, LOREN SCHOENBERG and his Jazz Orchestra has a new album out as well, "Solid Ground." The band specializes in the lesser-known compositions from the swing era. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "True Believer" starring James Woods and Robert Downey Jr. "True Believer" is the story of an attorney (James Woods) who rediscovers, under the prodding of a younger associate (Robert Downey Jr.) the moral commitment and fire that made him famous in the 60s as an impassioned defender of political activists and minorities.

Interview with Martin Bauml Duberman; Commentary on Cole Porter's music; Interview with Anne Waldman; Review of the home video release of the film "Point Blank." February 24, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924823].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Biographer MARTIN BAUML DUBERMAN. He was selected by Paul Robeson Jr. to write a biography of his father, the famed singer and political activist PAUL ROBESON. During his research on the project, Duberman had to sue the FBI to secure access to their files on Robeson. Duberman is also a historian, playwright and gay activist. REV.1: Singer SUSANNAH McCORKLE performs two songs by Cole Porter. She's joined by Ben Aronov on piano and Chip Jackson on bass. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Friday, July 8, 1988.) INT.2: Poet ANNE WALDMAN. Known for her lively performance of her poetry, Waldman has been a key figure in the second wave of poets who came after the Beats in the late 50s and early 60s. For nine years she directed the St. Mark's Poetry Project in New York's Greenwich Village. She is now director of the Writing and Poetics Program at the Naropa Institute in Boulder, Colorado. REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the home video release of "Point Blank," a 1967 film by director John Boorman, starring Lee Marvin and John Vernon. Boorman is best known as the director of "Deliverance" and the recent "Hope and Glory."

Interview with Susan Brownmiller; Review of the Ahmad Abdullah Quartet's album "Liquid Magic"; Interview with John Allen Paulos; Review of made-for-TV movie "Day One." February 27, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924825].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author and feminist activist SUSAN BROWNMILLER. Her new novel, Waverly Place, is based on the story of Hedda Nussbaum, Joel Steinberg, and the death of their adopted daughter, Lisa Steinberg. The recent trial of Joel Steinberg on charges he beat his daughter to death was widely described as the most sensational child abuse trial in New York City history. The trial ended recently with Steinberg's conviction on manslaughter charges. Brownmiller's Greenwich Village apartment was nearby the Steinberg family's. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album by trumpeter AHMAD ABDULLAH. INT.2: Mathematician JOHN ALLEN PAULOS. His new book, Innumeracy, Mathematical Illiteracy and its Consequences, is a humorous and thoughtful look at the problems of innumeracy, the mathematical counterpart of illiteracy. Paulos mixes his discussion of numbers and probabilities with wacky stories and anecdotes. His earlier books include Mathematics and Humor and I Think Therefore I Laugh. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the CBS made-for-TV movie "Day One," which is the story of America's race to build the atomic bomb. It stars BRIAN DENNEHY and L.A. Law's MICHAEL TUCKER.

---

Interview with Elvis Costello; Commentary on 1960s music from rural Louisiana; Interview with Michael Tucker; Review of Margaret Atwood's novel "Cat's Eye." February 28, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924725].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: British rock star ELVIS COSTELLO. Since he debuted with "My Aim is True" ten years ago (for which he won a Grammy nomination as Best New Artist), Costello has been one of the most prolific and influential rock acts. His music has been praised for the wit and intelligence of his lyrics, and the inventiveness of the music. He's just released his 13th album, "Spike." In a recent review of "Spike," Fresh Air's rock critic KEN TUCKER described the album as "a thrilling example of a rock musician grown to maturity." REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD explores music that came out of rural Louisianna in the early 1960s, songs like Mathilda, See Ya Later, Alligator, and Sweet Dreams. INT.2: Actor MICHAEL TUCKER. He plays tax lawyer Stuart Markowitz in the popular NBC series "L.A. Law." He co-stars with Brian Dennehy and David Strathairn in the upcoming CBS made-for-TV movie "Day One," which is the story of America's race to build the atomic bomb. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews reviews Margaret Atwood's new novel Cat's Eye.
Interview with Barry Lopez; Review of an album of Harold Shapero's orchestral works; Interview with Pamela Reed; Review of James Crawford's book "Bilingual Education." March 1, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924867].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer BARRY LOPEZ. His 1978 book "Of Wolves and Men," was hailed as a landmark work that helped alter the conventional wisdom - and fears - about wolves. The book drew heavily on Lopez' field observations as well as the mythology that evolved around the wolf. His most recent book, "Artic Dreams," is a personal account of the wildlife and the people of the far north, and of the effect of the Arctic landscape on the imagination. It won the National Book Award. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of composer HAROLD SHAPERO'S Symphony for Classical Orchestra, first performed a little over 40 years ago. The new recording features Andre Previn leading the Los Angeles Philharmonic. INT.2: Actress PAMELA REED. She is a veteran of stage and screen. Her better known films include "The Long Riders," and "Melvin and Howard." In her new film, "Rachel River," she plays a radio host who is clumsily courted by an oafish sheriff and an inept undertaker. Earlier this year she played the hardened campaign manager in "Tanner '88," the HBO spoofs of last year's Presidential election. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG returns to the issue of bilingual education. He recently read a new book by journalist JAMES CRAWFORD on the academic and political debates that bilingual education continues to generate.

Interview with Carl Reiner; Review of New Order's album "Technique"; Interview with Alfred Gingold; Review of the film "New York Stories." March 2, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924728].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director CARL REINER. He was a writer and appeared in "Sid Caesar's Show of Shows." He's best-known to baby boomer audiences as the creator and writer of "The Dick Van Dyke Show." He also staged several Broadway plays, including "Enter Laughing," which is based on his novel and which he later adapted to the screen. Since then, he has concentrated on film direction, specifically comedies. His films include "Where's Poppa?" "The Jerk," Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," "All of Me" and "Oh God." His latest film is "Bert Rigby You're a Fool." REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER tries to get over a post-Grammy depression. Along the way he reviews "Technique," the new album by New Order. INT.2: Humorist ALFRED GINGOLD. His best known work, Items From Our Catalog, was a parody of the L.L.Bean catalogue that was on the New York Times bestseller list for 33 weeks. Other works include Snooze, a parody of The New Yorker magazine. His newest work, The House Trap, is a humorous guide to buying a house. REV.2: Guest film critic STUART KLAWANS reviews "New York Stories," the three-way collaboration of directors Woody Allen, Martin Scorsese and Francis Ford Coppola. Allen's "chapter" in the film is titled "Oedipus Wrecks," and stars Allen and Mia Farrow;" Coppola's is titled "Life Without Zoe;" Scorsese's is titled "Life Lessons" and stars Nick Nolte and Rosanna Arquette.

Interview with Bonnie Raitt; Commentary on Roy Eldridge; Interview with David Grossman; Commentary on "The Satanic Verses." March 3, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503639].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Blues guitarist and singer BONNIE RAITT has been performing for two decades. Her new album, produced by Don Was, is called "Nick of Time." REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD tells us about the life and influence of jazz trumpeter Roy Eldridge. INT.2: Writer and novelist DAVID GROSSMAN spent time in the occupied West Bank and was shocked by the effect Israel's policies have had on the lives of the Palestinians -- particularly in light of what Jews endured during the Holocaust. His book about this situation is called "The Yellow Wind," He's also written a novel called "See Under - Love." REV.2: Now that author Salman Rushide has gone into hiding, critic-at-large LAURIE STONE looks at how communities around the world have been responding to his controversial book, the Satanic Verses.

Interview with V.S. Naipaul; Commentary on women rockabilly stars; Interview with Mandy Patinkin; Review of the television show "Anything but Love." March 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924827].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer V.S. NAIPAUL. He is best known for his travel books and his autobiographical accounts of surviving and forgotten fragments of the British empire, from the Caribbean to Africa and India. In The Enigmas of Arrival, Naipaul wrote of growing up in Trinidad and migrating to England where he went to school at Oxford. He has published twenty books of fiction and nonfiction, including A House for Mr.
Biswas, An Area of Darkness, A Bend in the River, Among the Believers and The Enigma of Darkness. His latest work, A Turn in the South, is a meditation on his travels through the American South. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD surveys the women rockabilly stars who were trying to make it big at the same time as Elvis Presley. INT.2: Broadway singer and actor MANDY PATINKIN. He won a Tony Award for his portrayal of Che Guevara in "Evita." He also starred in Stephen Sondheim's "Sunday in the Park with George." He has just released his first solo album, "Mandy Patinkin," and critics have hailed his expressiveness with classic American songs ranging from Gershwin to Gilbert and Sullivan to Stephen Sondheim. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Anything But Love," the new ABC sitcom starring JAMIE LEE CURTIS and comic RICHARD LEWIS.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director ROBERT WISE. His long and distinguished film career began as a messenger at RKO Pictures and eventually included the editing of "Citizen Kane" and the directing of "The Curse of the Cat People" "West Side Story" and "The Sound of Music." The latter two both won Academy Awards for Best Director and Best Picture. He is a master of several genres. In the horror field, in addition to "The Curse of the Cat People," he directed "The Body Snatcher," "The Day the Earth Stood Still," "The Haunting" and "Adromeda Strain." He also directed "The Sand Pebbles." REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Locomotive," the new album from bassist BUELL NEIDLINGER. Kevin describes the album's sound as what you'd get if a bluegrass combo, a jazz rhythm section, and a drunk saxophone player collided. INT.2: Indian film director MIRA NAIR. Her first feature film, "Salaam Bombay!" is the story of Bombay's child beggars. It was filmed in the chaos of Bombay's redlight district with street children who were trained in a seven-week crash course. The film won the Golden Camera prize for best feature film at the Cannes Film Festival and the top honors at the Montreal Film Festival. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Loyalties, A Son's Memoirs, by CARL BERNSTEIN. It was Bernstein who, along with Bob Woodward, broke open the Watergate scandal that toppled President Nixon. Loyalties is the story of growing up in a politically radically home where the parents were fervently committed to the numerous left-wing causes of the 40s and 50s.
Interview with Randy Quaid; Review of two albums featuring Dinu Lipatti; Interview with Carolyn Heilbrun; Review of the home video release of four films from 1970. March 8, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924801].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor RANDY QUAID. He's played Lyndon Johnson ("LBJ: The Early Years"), a cowboy bank robber ("The Long Riders"), and a sailor having one last good time on his way to the brig ("The Last Detail"). Quaid was also a series regular on "Saturday Night Live" in the 1985-86 season. His new film is "Out Cold" starring Terri Garr and John Lithgow. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, November 15, 1988.) REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two recording of Bach, Mozart, Scarlatti, Schubert and Chopin performed by the late Romanian pianist DINU LIPATTI. Lipatti died in 1950 at the age of 33. INT.2: CAROLYN HEILBRUN. She leads a double literary life: she's a femininist professor of English who studies the differences in male and female biographies; but under the pen name of Amanda Cross she writes detective fiction. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, December 5, 1988.) REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews four films that came out in 1970 and have just made their way onto home video. At one end of the political spectrum is "Joe," starring Peter Boyle; at the other is "Getting Straight," starring Elliot Gould and Candice Bergen. The others are "The Strawberry Statement" and "R.P.M."

Interview with David Marc; Review of Ashford and Simpson's album "Love or Physical"; Interview with Neil Bissoondath; Review of the film "High Hopes." March 9, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924405].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Television writer DAVID MARC. Marc is not a reviewer of TV's offerings so much as he's a student of the medium. His new book, Comic Visions, examines the evolution of television comedy. Marc studies the earliest roots of TV comedy, from vaudeville and nightclub acts through early radio and TV. He then devotes whole chapters to the seminal shows that shaped almost all TV comedy that followed, such as Father Knows Best, I Love Lucy, The Dick Van Dyke Show and All in the Family. His articles on television have appeared in The Atlantic Monthly, the Village Voice. His first book was titled Demographic Vistas: Television in American Culture. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Love or Physical," the new album by the husband and wife songwriting and performing team of NICK ASHFORD and VALERIE SIMPSON. Ashford and Simpson have been writing about the joys of monogamy since the 60s. They wrote songs for Marvin Gaye and Tammy Terrell (Ain't No Mountain High Enough) before going out on their own. INT.2: Canadian writer NEIL BISSOONDATH. His first novel, A Casual Brutality, has just been published to critical acclaim in Canada, England and America. The novel is set both in Toronto and on an imaginary island in the Caribbean and is the story of an East Indian physician who returns to his birthplace only to be caught up in the island's political and social upheavals. BISSOONDATH was born in Trinidad into a literary family. His uncle is V.S. Naipaul. REV.2: Guest film critic STUART KLAWANS reviews "High Hopes," the new film by the British director MIKE LEIGH. "High Hopes" is a satire that explores the contrasts of Thatcher's England by focusing on a family who represent the range of economic conditions in England, from marginal messengers to climbing yuppies.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film Director LOUIS MALLE. He made his mark in French New Wave Cinema with such films as "Murmur of the Heart" and "Lacombe Lucien." More recently he has been working in the U.S. making films such as "Atlantic City" and "My Dinner with Andre." His most recent film, "Au Revoir Les Enfants," is a reflection on his childhood. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, February 19, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews, "Painted Rhythms Volume 2," the new album by pianist RAN BLAKE. Blake heads the department of "third-stream" music at the New England Conservatory. "Third stream" describes a style of music that isn't quite jazz, isn't quite classical, but is heavily influenced by both genres. INT.2: Writer DOUGLAS ADAMS. His anarchic tale, "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy," spawned a series of best-selling books, radio and television series, and a whole sci-fi subculture. Adams followed up his four "Hitchhiker's Guide" books with "Dirk Gently's Holistic Detective Agency," the story of an alternative private eye. Now Adam's has written another Dirk Gently adventure, called "The Long Dark Tea-Time of the Soul." REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews Wednesday's "Nightline." The late-night news program is usually live, but this Wednesday's show, on Vietnam Vets and Post Traumatic Stress Syndrome, was pre-produced.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer E.L.DOCTOROW. His writing has been praised for bringing to life the traumatic events of American 20th Century history, like the Depression, World War II and Vietnam for the generations too young or too old to feel them. It was Doctorow's 1971 book, "The Book of Daniel," that established his reputation as a major American writer. The book was inspired by the Atom Spy Trials at the height of the McCarthy era. At the time, Doctorow was still working full-time as an editor, working with authors like James Baldwin and Norman Mailer. His latest novel, "Billy Bathgate," is the story of a 15-year-old boy's apprenticeship to the gangster Dutch Schultz. REV.1: Rock critic ED WARD looks back at the early career of SAN PHILLIPS, the founder of Sun Records who brought out the rockabilly sound. It was Phillips who recorded Elvis, Jerry Lee Lewis and Carl Perkins. But before that, he made his mark recording southern blues artists. INT.2: Television anchor and author ROBERT MacNEIL. He's seen nightly on the PBS news show The MacNEIL/Lehrer NewsHour. His latest book, "Wordstruck," is a memoir that explores the roots of MacNeil's facination with language. He also wrote the bestselling "The Story of English." REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Somoza Falling" by Anthony Lake, a study of America's role in the fall of Nicaraguan dictator Anastazio Somoza.

Interview with Margaret Randall; Review of Glenn Gould's music; Interview with Josef Skvorecky; Commentary on language. March 15, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825236].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer, photographer and teacher MARGARET RANDALL. For 23 years, she lived throughout Latin and Central America, writing about the people, and in particular the lives of the women. She has published almost 50 books of poetry, prose and oral history. Since her return to the United States from an extended stay in Latin America, the Immigration and Naturalization Service has been trying to deport her. Randall and her supporters claim that is because Randall's writing is sharply critical of government policy in Central America. She is presently the Hubert Humphrey Visiting Professor of International Affairs at Macalester College in St. Paul, Minn. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a newly re-issued recording of the late pianist GLENN GOULD playing Haydn's last six piano sonatas. Gould made these recordings in 1980, two years before his death. INT.2: Czech-born novelist JOSEF SKVORECKY. His parents fled the Nazis, and he fled the Soviets when they invaded Czechoslovkia. His first novel, The Cowards was banned in Czechoslovakia and since then he and his wife have run a publishing firm that brings out the works of other Czech writers who have also been banned. His best known books are Dvorak in Love, The Engineer of Human Souls and The Bass Saxophone. He's also written mysteries, the latest is Sins For Father Knox. His stories blend elements of memoir, politics and his love of music. Since 1969 he has lived in Toronto. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG reviews a new video version of Strunk and White's "The Elements of Style," featuring CBS newsman CHARLES OSGOOD.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer JOHN UPDIKE. He is one of the most celebrated American writers. His fiction, which includes 13 novels and hundreds of short stories, has earned him the Pulitzer Prize, The National Book Award, the American Book Award and the National Book Critics Circle Award. His novels include Rabbit, Run, Centaur, Rabbit is Rich and The Witches of Eastwick. His latest work is a memoir titled Self-Consciousness. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Oranges and Lemons," the new album by the English trio XTC. Ken describes the sound as what you'd get if you crossed Edward Lear, Lewis Carroll, and John Lennon. INT.2: Art historian and feminist art critic LINDA NOCHLIN. She is credited with starting the field of feminist art history with her 1971 essay "Why There Have Been No Great Women Artists?" The essay ignited tremendous controversy in the field of art history and changed the face of contemporary art criticism. It posed such questions as "erotic to whom?" in assessing the nudes of such major artist as Paul Gauguin and Eugene Delacroix. Her latest work is Women, Art, and Power, a collection of essays. She has taught at Vassar, Stanford, Columbia and the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen," the new fantasy film by Terry Gilliam, formerly of The Monty Python comedy troupe. Gilliam also made the movies "Brazil" and "Time Bandits."
Interview with Lester Brown; Commentary on Abdullah Ibrahim; Interview with Little Anthony; Commentary on feminism and traditionalism in popular culture. March 17, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924408].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: LESTER BROWN, president of the Worldwatch Institute, a Washington-based think tank that monitors the state of the environment. Brown's been nicknamed "Doctor Doom," for his dire predictions about subjects such as the dwindling forests and the global warming trend. But critics use that term less and less these days as more of Brown's predictions have come true. The Worldwatch Institute has just issued its 6th annual "State of the World" report. REV.1: In our weekly performance segement, we feature jazz pianist KENNY BARRON. Barron currently plays with the group Sphere, as well as leading his own trio. INT.2: Part one of a two-part interview with singer LITTLE ANTHONY. In the late 50s and 60s, he led the doo-wop group Little Anthony and the Imperials. Among their hits were "Tears on my Pillow," and "Shimmy, Shimmy, Ko-Ko-Bop." These days Little Anthony has a solo act. REV.2: Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE comments on the new traditionalism espoused in pop culture today, in forums as diverse as ads for the Ladies Home Journal, on the television program "thirtysomething," and in Wendy Wasserstein's new play, "The Heidi Chronicles."

Interview with Jonathan Yardley; Review of Connie Crothers and the Lenny Popkin Quartet's album "Love Energy"; Interview with Little Anthony; Review of the television broadcast of "Peter Pan." March 20, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924732].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: JONATHAN YARDLEY, book critic for The Washington Post. His book criticism won the Pulitzer Prize. He's also the author of several books, including Ring: A Biography of Ring Lardner. His latest work is a memoir of his family's history and the fifty-year marriage of his parents. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album from pianist CONNIE CROTHERS and saxophonist LENNY POPKIN. Both studied with the late pianist Lennie Tristano. INT.2: Part two of a two-part interview with singer LITTLE ANTHONY. In the late 50s and 60s, he led the doo-wop group Little Anthony and the Imperials. Among their hits were "Tears on my Pillow," and "Shimmy, Shimmy, Ko-Ko-Bop." These days Little Anthony performs solo. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the 30-year-old "Peter Pan," to be broadcast Friday on NBC. It was the first Broadway hit to be presented intact on television, and this is the original version, videotaped for TV in 1960. It stars Mary Martin as Peter Pan and Cyril Ritchard as Captain Cook.

Interview with William Taubman and Jane Taubman; Commentary on Professor Longhair; Interview with Lyle Lovett; Review of John Irving's novel "A Prayer for Owen Meany." March 21, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924407].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: WILLIAM and JANE TAUBMAN. Both are specialists in Soviet affairs at Amherst College, he in political science, she in Russian literature and culture. Their book, Moscow Spring, is a travelogue documenting their six-month stay in the Soviet Union. In it they analyze Gorbachev's attempted restructuring of the Soviet Union, noting both positive and negative changes in Soviet workplaces, press and cultural life. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles New Orleans pianist Professor Longhair. INT.2: Country singer/songwriter LYLE LOVETT. His new album, his third, is called "Lyle Lovett and his Large Band." He's one of a new generation of country singers whose music has been embraced by traditional country and western fans. Yet his music owes as much to jazz and rock. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews A Prayer for Owen Meany, the new novel from John Irving. Irving's other books include The World according to Garp, Cider House Rules, and Hotel New Hampshire.

Interview with Gunther Schuller; Review of a recording of Arvo Part's "Passio"; Interview with Peter Conrad; Commentary on immigrants and American culture. March 22, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924731].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Composer, conductor and writer GUNTHER SCHULLER. He's written a wide variety of orchestral and chamber music, as well as jazz compositions. He's also published several books and has been a guest conductor with major orchestras throughout North America and Europe. His new book, The Swing Era: The Development of Jazz 1930-1945, is the second volume of his monumental history of jazz. It focuses on the period in American musical history when jazz was synonymous with America's popular music. Schuller will discuss this period in jazz history, and he'll play us some of his favorite recordings from the era. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of "Passio," composer ARVO PART's 1982 version of The St. John Passion. INT.2: Writer PETER CONRAD. His new book, Behind the Mountain: Return to Tazmania, is a record of his journey back to his childhood home in Australia. Conrad describes a childhood in a place very different from American notions of Australia, harboring wild rivers, rain forests, penal colonies and aboriginal genocide. REV.2: Poet GREGORY DJANIKIAN. Djanikian emigrated to this country from Egypt when he was a youngster. He'll read a poem about his early attempts to assimilate in America.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: ROBERT BALLARD is a pioneering oceanographer who, through a combination of manned and unmanned submersibles, discovered the wreckage of the Titanic. He's fascinated by the uniqueness of the terrain and unique forms of life at the bottom of the sea. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Nick of Time" by rhythm and blues singer and guitarist BONNIE RAITT. The album was produced by Don Was of the band Was (Not Was). INT.2: TED SCHULTZ edited a book called The Fringes of Reason, which explores unusual belief systems rooted in New Age spirituality, parapsychology, and cosmology. He now studies entomology. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the Fletch sequel Fletch Lives, starring Chevy Chase.

Interview with Mark Ribowsky; Commentary on Thelonious Monk; Interview with Nicholson Baker; Review of the home video release of the film "Mrs. Miniver." March 24, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924649].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer MARK RIBOWSKY. He's written a biography of songwriter and record producer Phil Spector, one of the founders of modern rock and roll. Songs Spector wrote or produced include "He's a Rebel," "Spanish Harlem," "Be My Baby," and "Da Doo Ron Ron." He called these songs "little symphonies for the kids," and for many they defined the spirit and soul of a whole era. Ribowsky has written regularly for "People Magazine" and "TV Guide." REV.1: In our weekly performance segment, pianist KENNY BARRON performs a Thelonious Monk composition. Barron is one of the members of the group Sphere, considered leading interpreters of Monk compositions. INT.2: Writer NICHOLSON BAKER. His debut novel, "The Mezzanine," was published last Fall to enthusiastic critical reviews. Though thin on plot - man breaks shoelace, goes to CVS on his lunch hour to replace it, rides escalator back to work - the novel was praised for the unexpected magnitude of the hero's everyday thoughts, and for the way Baker's technique examined the minutiae that form the often undocumented daily texture of our lives. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video release of "Mrs. Miniver," the 1942 melodrama about a British family in the early years of World War II. Though it won the Oscar for Best Picture, the film was later panned for its class condescension.

Interview with Carl Bernstein; Review of Artie Shaw's album "The Complete Gramercy Five Sessions"; Interview with Amy Tan; Review of the television show "Babar the Elephant." March 27, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924457].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Reporter CARL BERNSTEIN. His unraveling of the Watergate scandal, with Bob Woodward, earned him the Pulitzer Prize and brought. He and Woodward then co-authored All the President's Men, an in-depth account of the scandal that brought down the Nixon Presidency. From 1980 to 1984, Bernstein served as Washington bureau chief and senior correspondent for ABC news. His new book, Loyalties, traces the roots of McCarthyism through the experience of his own family. Bernstein believes McCarthyism began with Harry Truman and Executive Order 9835, issued in 1947. Under this order thousands of government employees were accused of "disloyalty," and brought before "loyalty boards." Bernstein's father served as defense counsel in many of those proceedings, which have been classified and kept secret until now. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new reissue of recordings from 1940 and 1945 by clarinetist Artie Shaw's Gramercy Five. The Gramercy Five was a small group drawn from Shaw's big band, and Kevin says it was one of the more bizarre small bands of the time.

INT.2: Author AMY TAN. Her first novel, The Joy Luck Club, is the story of four Chinese women who gather to gossip and play mah jong, and of the rebellious ways of their Americanized daughters. The story parallels Tan's own life. Her mother left China in 1952, and Amy Tan grew up torn between her mother's culture of the past and her American surroundings of the present. REV.2: Television critic
DAVID BIANCULLI previews an upcoming HBO series featuring Babar, The Elephant. The animated Canadian series is based on the classic childrens' stories by Jean and Laurent de Brunhoff.

Interview with Benjamin Cheever; Commentary on Johnny Kidd and the Pirates; Interview with Edo de Waart; Commentary on the film "Dangerous Liaisons." March 28, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924647].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer BENJAMIN CHEEVER. He's the son of the late novelist and short story master JOHN CHEEVER, and he's collected and edited a collection of his father's letters. The letters track the elder Cheever's secret bisexuality, his romantic affair with actress Hope Lange, and his competitive friendship with writers John Updike and Saul Bellow. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, November 11, 1988.) REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles Johnny Kidd and the Pirates, a British band from the early 60s who helped inspire British rock greats such as Pete Townsend and Jimmy Page. INT.2: EDO de WAART, music director of The Minnesota Orchestra. de Waart came to Minnesota from the San Francisco Symphony, where he earned a reputation for expanding the symphony's repertoire of 20th century music. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, October 11, 1988.) REV.2: ROBERT KAPLOW and the PUNSTERS present a new, comedic radio play about the Oscar-nominated film, Dangerous Liaisons.

Interview with James Fallows; Review of the Tallis Scholars' album "Stabat Mater"; Interview with Kathryn Montgomery; Review of Jonathan Yardley's memoir "Our Kind of People." March 29, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924455].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer JAMES FALLOWS. For the last three years, Fallows has lived in Malaysia and Japan, writing about the Far East for such publication as "The Atlantic Monthly" and "The New Yorker." He has also been a commentator on the region for National Public Radio's "Morning Edition." His new book, "More Like Us: Making America Great Again," examines America's competitive position in the world in the face of stiff competition from Asian countries. Fallows is currently the Washington editor for "The Atlantic Monthly" magazine. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new album by the British singing group The Tallis Scholars. It features the music of the 15th and 16th Century British composer WILLIAM CORNYSH (Korn-ish). INT.2: Professor and media analyst KATHRYN MONTGOMERY. Her new book, "Target: Prime Time," looks at the struggle advocacy groups wage over what should, and shouldn't, air on network television. The book explores the impact of this organized pressure on the content of network television. The groups range from the Catholic Church, to the NAACP to the National Gay Task Force to The Moral Majority. Montgomery teaches film and television at UCLA. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Our Kind of People, Jonathan Yardley's family memoir. Yardley is a book critic and columnist for The Washington Post. In 1981, he won the Pulitzer Prize for Criticism.

Interview with Dennis King; Review of Madonna's album "Like a Prayer"; Interview with Ntozake Shange; Review of the film "Heathers." March 30, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924571].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Reporter DENNIS KING. King has spent more than 10 years following the political rise and fall of Lyndon LaRouche. In his new book, Lyndon LaRouche and the New American Fascism, King outlines LaRouche's rise to prominence, his fascist ideology, and his recent criminal conviction. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Like A Prayer," the new album from Madonna. INT.2: Playwright and author NTOZAKE SHANGE. Her work, "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide (When The Rainbow is Enuf)," earned Shange an Obie award as well as Tony, Grammy, and Emmy nominations. Shange is premiering her new work, "Betsy Brown, this week at the American Music Theatre in Philadelphia. "Betsy Brown" was co-written by Shange and Emily Mann. It's the story of a black girl coming of age in Saint Louis during the late 50s. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new teen movie "Heathers."
Interview with Carl Sautter; Commentary on jazz and the return of Spring; Interview with Steve Reich; Review of Alexander Stuart's novel "The War Zone." March 31, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924454].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Screen writer CARL SAUTTER. Sautter's new book, How to Sell Your Screenplay, is both a guide to starting authors, and an inside look at Hollywood from the writer's point of view. Sautter was an urban planner until ten years ago, when a particularly bad episode of the sit-com "Three's Company," convinced Sautter he could "write that junk." It took Sautter five years to sell his first script. After that shaky start, Sautter has served as co-story editor for "Moonlighting," and has written for films. REV.1: In our weekly performance spot, pianist DAVE McKENNA welcomes the return of spring. INT.2: In the first of a two-part interview, minimalist composer STEVE REICH discusses the two works that make up his new album. In today's interview, Reich talks about his piece "Different Trains." It was comissioned by the Kronos Quartet and inspired by Reich's childhood memories of traveling across the country by train during the late 30s and early 40s. Reich says those memories have mingled with his later realization that at the same time in jews in Europe were traveling on trains to their deaths. REV.2: Critic-at-large LAURIE STONE reviews The War Zone, Alexander Stuart's novel about a boy growing up in a family victimized by incest.

Interview with Stanley Karnow; Review David Murray's album "Ming's Samba"; Interview with Steve Reich; Review of the television show "The Robert Guillaume Show." April 3, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924575].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Historian STANLEY KARNOW. He is best known for his mamouth history of America's involvement in the Vietnam War, titled Vietnam: A History. The book served as the text for the highly regarded PBS series of the same name. Karnow's latest work is titled In Our Image: America's Empire in the Philippines. Karnow has worked for Time, Life, The London Observer, The Washington Post and The New Republic. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album by tenor saxophonist DAVID MURRAY. Murray has won rave reviews since he moved from California to New York in the mid-70s. Since then, he's led several bands, large and small. INT.2: In the second part of a two-part interview, minimalist composer STEVE REICH discusses the two works that make up his new album. In today's interview, Reich talks about his piece "Electric Counterpoint," written for jazz guitarist PAT METHANY. Reich chose Methany, a renown improviser, to give the piece a looser, free-form feel, even though every note is scripted. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the pilot of "The Robert Guillaume Show," a new ABC sitcom. Robert Guillaume's sitcom career dates back to "Soap," the popular series, which co-starred Billy Crystal, Richard Mulligan and Katherine Helmond, ran from 1977 to 1979.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist WILLIAM SHAWCROSS. He wrote the introduction to a new book on the plight of the world's refugees. His most recent book The Shah's Last Ride and it documented the Shah's fall and flight from Iran as the Islamic revolution swept his country and much of the Middle East. For 18 months, the Shah was bounced from country to country as his former allies declined to accept the risk he would pose to their compatriots still in Iran. It was during this odyssey that the American embassy in Tehran was sacked and its staff taken hostage. Shawcross, a Briton, is also the author of the award-winning Sideshow: Kissinger, Nixon and the Destruction of Cambodia, which documented the extent of America's involvement in Cambodia at the same time it was engaged in Vietnam. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the life and music of rhythm and blues artist WILLIAM BELL. Bell is best known for his work in the mid-60s for the Stax Records label and for songs like "Born Under a Bad Sign," "I Forgot to Be Your Lover" and "My Whole World is Falling Down." INT.2: Poet GALWAY KINNELL. He is one of the most honored American poets. In one of his best-known works - a 14-part poem in the manner of Whitman - Kinnell dealt with his Lower East Side neighborhood in New York during the early 50s, with the starkness of the landscape and with his restless religious quest. The poem, titled "The Avenue Bearing the Initial of Christ Into the New World," was written after Kinnell's mentor, William Carlos Williams, told him to write about the things he knew, not "cornfields in Illinois." Kinnell's poetry has won numerous literary awards, including the 1982 Pulitzer Prize for Poetry. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new novel by MARINA WARNER.
Interview with Tim Cahill; Review of an album of Russell Sherman performing the music of Liszt; Interview with Juliet Taylor; Commentary on the use of the words "holocaust," "genocide," and "terrorism." April 5, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924456].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Adventure writer TIM CAHILL. Cahill's latest book, A Wolverine is Eating My Leg, is his second collection of humorous, self-deprecating tales of travel and the wilderness. Cahill has been described as a cross between Hunter S. Thompson and John McPhee. His essays are a regular feature in Outside magazine. Cahill is also a contributing editor at Rolling Stone Magazine. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of pianist RUSSELL SHERMAN playing the music of Franz Liszt. Sherman recently told The New York Times that he's waged a "lifelong battle to reconstitute Liszt as a serious composer." INT.2: Casting director JULIET TAYLOR. Taylor's cast more than 50 films, among them "Mississippi Burning," "Terms of Endearment," "Taxi Driver," and all of Woody Allen's films. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines the use, and misuse, of the words holocaust, genocide, and terrorism.

Interview with Peter Matthiessen; Commentary on the American influence on English rock bands; Interview with Greil Marcus; Review of the film "Powwow Highway." April 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925043].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Naturalist, explorer and writer PETER MATTHIESSEN. For over three decades he's been writing critically acclaimed works of fiction and nonfiction. His nonfiction includes the books The Tree Where Man Was Born, which was nominated for the National Book Award, and The Snow Leopard, which won that award. He's also written several novels, including At Play in the Fields of the Lord, also nominated for the National Book Award, and Far Tortuga. His writing addresses themes such as the brutality of nature, and of man's desecration of nature, the compulsion towards violence, the anatomy of bigotry, and the outrage of the oppressed. Matthiessen's new book, On the River Styx and Other Stories, is a collection of short stories written over the span of his literary career. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER examines the admiration the English have for American soul music, and the failure of most British musicians to successfully create this sound themselves. Ken takes a listen to several of these English bands, including "Boy George," "Fine Young Cannibals," "Simply Red," and "The Pasadenas." INT.2: Rock critic GREIL
MARCUS. Marcus is best known for his writing for Rolling Stone Magazine. He is the author of the highly-acclaimed Mystery Train: Images of America in Rock 'n Roll Music, and a collection of the writings of the late Lester Bangs, a rock critic who wrote prodigiously for publications such as Rolling Stone, and The Village Voice. Marcus' lastest work is a collection of essays on the Da Da and Nihilist movements of the 20th Century. Marcus says the book grew out of his interest in the premiere British punk band "The Sex Pistols," and their song "Anarchy in the U.K." Marcus currently writes a music column for The Village Voice, and a book column for California Magazine. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Pow Wow Highway."

Interview with A. Scott Berg; Commentary on songs about April; Interview with Sally Field; Review of the home video release of the film "The Great Ziegfeld." April 7, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924835].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Biographer A. SCOTT BERG. His latest book is a biography of Samuel Goldwyn, one of the founding fathers of Hollywood. Goldwyn's story is the quintessential American Dream fulfilled. When he was 15, he walked from Warsaw to Hamburg took a steamer from London to Canada, then walked across the Canadian border to begin a new life in New York. He started work as a custodian at a glove factory and ended up financing the films that launched the American movie industry, including "Arrowsmith," "Wuthering Heights," "Pride of the Yankees" "Guys and Dolls," and "The Best Years of Our Lives." Berg's previous book was a biography of perhaps the most important editor of the 20th Century, the man who edited F. Scott Fitzgerald, Hemmingway, James Jones and Thomas Wolfe. It won The American Book Award for biography. REV.1: Pianist DAVE McKENNA returns to perform in our weekly performance segment. He plays two songs on a Spring theme, "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" and "April in Paris." INT.2: Actress SALLY FIELD. She won Oscars for her roles in "Places in the Heart" and "Norma Rae." Field, born into a show business family, was first a star in television in the series "Gidget" and "The Flying Nun." Her other film roles include "Smokey and the Bandit, I and II," "Absence of Malice" "Murphy's Romance" and "Surrender." Her most recent film is "Punchline" in which she co-stars with Tom Hanks. It's the story of a New Jersey housewife and mother who decides to pursue her dream of becoming a stand-up comic. This week, "Punchline" was released on home video. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, September 27, 1988.) REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer TAYLOR BRANCH. The first volume of his exhaustive history of the Civil Rights movement - Parting the Waters, America in the King Years - was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for history last week. In it, Branch covered the period from 1954 to 1963. Branch is a former staff member of The Washington Monthly, Harper's, and Esquire. His earlier books are Second Wind, the autobiography of Bill Russell, Labyrinth and the novel The Empire Blues. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, December 5, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album by 81-year-old bandleader and saxophonist BENNY CARTER. Carter, who has been active since the early 20s, was a major influence in the evolution of the jazz saxophone. INT.2: Jazz trombonist RAY ANDERSON. For the past two years, Anderson's been voted the top trombonist by the Down Beat critics' poll. Anderson has a new album, called "Blues Bred in the Bone." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, December 21, 1988.) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews three new shows debuting this week on NBC, shows that may, or may not, make it into the fall lineup. David previews the shows - "Nearly Departed," a sitcom, "Dream Street," a partial clone of "thirtysomething," and "The Jim Henson Hour" - and comments on their prospects for an extended life.

Interview with Yoko Ono; Commentary on bubblegum music; Interview with David Cale; Review of Maxine Hong Kingston's novel "Tripmaster Monkey." April 11, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925042].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: YOKO ONO. Before she met John Lennon, Ono was a sculptor. In act, Lennon met her at an exhibition of her work in London in the late 60s. An exhibit of her bronze sculptures is currently on display at the Whitney Museum of Art of New York City. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD takes a second look at bubblegum, the deliberately commercial, prefabricated music devoid of any artistic statement. He's talking about songs like "Hanky Panky," "Sugar Sugar," and "Yummy Yummy Yummy," and he contrasts these with the tediously purposeful efforts of Jethro Tull ("Aqualung") and The Who ("Tommy"). INT.2: Comic monologist DAVID CALE. He is one of the rising stars of the loosely-knit New York performance scene that brought out stars like Spalding Grey, Eric Bogosian and Laurie Anderson. In "Smoosh Music," one of his best-received monologues, Cale, accompanied by a saxaphonist, interweaves 23 vignettes on romance in New York City, with characters that range from the president of a swinger's club to pubescent boy who makes hickeys on his neck with a vacuum cleaner hose. The text for "Smoosh Music" and another piece titled "The Redthroats" has just been published. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Tripmaster Monkey, by Maxine Hong Kingston. Writing in the New York Times, Leonard called Kingston's first book, The Woman Warrior, one of the best I've read in years.' The Woman Warrior also won Kingston the National Book Critics Circle Award for Non-fiction. She followed that up with China Men, which won the National Book Award for non-fiction. Tripmaster is Kingston's first novel. It's the story of a young Chinesse-American in San Francisco during the 60s.

Interview with Leslie Stahl; Review of Marian Anderson's album "Marian Anderson"; Interview with Janet Horvath; Review of the film "Murmur of the Heart." April 12, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924832].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: CBS White House correspondent LESLIE STAHL. In addition to her regular reports on the CBS Evening News with Dan Rather, Stahl also hosts the weekly interview show, "Face The Nation." REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews an album featuring singer MARION ANDERSON. Anderson is probably best known for helping to change the political and social attitudes towards blacks in the late 30s and 40s. When the Daughters of the American Revolution refused to let Anderson sing at Constitution Hall in Washington, it set off a storm of protest and led to a triumphant outdoor concert at the Lincoln Memorial. But Schwartz says her tremendous musical powers and contributions are often discounted. The new album, released by a British label, features 22 recordings Anderson made between 1927 and 1937. INT.2: Cellist JANET HORVATH. For the second year, Horvath has organized a conference on music and disabilities. The conference, titled "Playing Hurt," examines the wide array of disabilities that musicians incur from the small, precise, highly repetitive motions their art requires.
The conference brings together physicians, therapists and musicians to discuss the issue and heighten awareness about the occupational hazards of music. Howvath plays cello for the Minnesota Orchestra
REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Murmur of the Heart," Louis Malle's 1971 film, which is being re-released in theaters around the country.

Interview with Phillip Knightly; Commentary on the Los Angeles music scene; Interview with Loren Estleman; Review of John Epperson's drag performance. April 13, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924833].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: British journalist PHILLIP KNIGHTLY. He was part of a team of journalists working for the London Sunday Times who prepared a stunning series of articles exposing the damage done to British and western intelligence by the recent defection to Russia of intelligence officer Kim Philby. Philby was a well-connected bureaucrat who rose quickly through the ranks of British intelligence during and after World War II, many years after he was recruited as a spy by the Soviets. When confronted with proof of his duplicity in 1963, Philby fled to Moscow. Shortly after the articles were published in the Times, Knightley began corresponding with Philby, an exchange that culminated with several lengthy interviews just before Philby died in May, 1988. The result is The Master Spy, Knightley's new book about Philby's life as a double agent, his defection, his life in Russia, and the effect his spying had on western security. Knightley's earlier books include The Second Oldest Profession: Spies and Spying in the Twentieth Century. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER profiles the current music scene in Los Angeles, with reviews of the groups House of Freaks, Thelonious Monster and a variety of rap groups, such as N.W.A. and Eazy-E. INT.2: Writer LOREN ESTLEMAN. The author of over 30 books, as well as numerous short stories and articles, Estleman is best known for his detective novels. A former Detroit policeman, Estleman sets his detective novels in the Motor City, including the recent thrillers Downriver and General Murders, as well as the forthcoming Silent Thunder. His novels feature the hard-boiled sleuth Amos Walker. He's received several honors for his work, including a Pulitzer Prize nomination for his 1984 novel This Old Bill. (Rebroadcast. Aired originally broadcast on Monday, January, 30, 1989.) REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews the current act of drag performer JOHN EPPERSON. He's also known as Lypsinka, and lip-synches to the songs of dozens of female singers suc Interview with Sidney Lumet; Commentary on Red Norvo; Interview with Daniel Waters; Commentary on personal greetings. April 14, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924831].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director SIDNEY LUMET. Lumet is one of America's most prominent directors, and one who takes on projects with social significance as well as entertainment value. His films include his debut, "Equus," "Twelve Angry Men," "The Wiz," "Deathtrap," "Fail Safe," "Serpico," "Network" and "The Verdict." In all, his films have been nominated for 40 Academy Awards. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on August 23, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz historian and musician LOREN SCHOENBERG examines the music of xylophonist Red Norvo. Norvo first attracted attention when he played in the Paul Whiteman Orchestra. He later backed up his wife, singer Mildred Bailey. Schoenberg says that Norvo's genius forced musicians and the public to take both him and the xylophone seriously. INT.2: Screenwriter DANIEL WATERS. This 26 year-old writer has been receiving rave reviews for his first screenplay, for the new film "Heathers," a black comedy about high school politics and teenage suicide. Critics of the movie find fault with it because they feel that teenage suicide is not a fitting subject for comedy, but Waters and director Michael Lehmann disagree. They believe that other films have glamorized teenage suicide by making it seem noble, something "Heathers" avoids by treating the issue seriously and responsibly. REV.2: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg explains how, when people greet each other, they're saying more than just "Hi!" (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on December 7, 1988.)

Interview with Sheldon Harnick; Review of The Ralph Peterson Quintet's album "V"; Interview with Jonathan Schell; Review of the television show "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd." April 17, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924834].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Broadway lyricist SHELDON HARNICK. He wrote the lyrics for shows such as "Fiddler On The Roof" and "She Loves Me." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, December 12, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album "V" by The Ralph Peterson Quintet. Drummer Peterson has worked in the bands of pianist Walter Davis Jr. and trumpeters Jon Faddis and Terence Blanchard. Whitehed says "V" is one of the best neo-bop albums he's heard. INT.2: Writer JONATHAN SCHELL. He's published a collection of essays he wrote for The New Yorker during the Vietnam War.
Titled Observing the Nixon Years, the book includes a new essay in which Schell interprets the legacy of that war. Schell is also the author of The Fate of the Earth, The Abolition, The Time of Illusion, and an account of the 1984 presidential election, History in Sherman Park. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews a new episode of "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd." The series is being revived by the Lifetime Cable Network.

Interview with Thomas Boswell; Commentary on the rock band Small Faces; Interview with Jonathan Winters; Review of Christa Wolf's novel "Accident April 18, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925041].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Sports writer THOMAS BOSWELL. Boswell is a sports columnist for the Washington Post, and he's generally considered the most literate, thoughtful baseball writer around. Boswell has a new collection of baseball essays, titled The Heart of the Order. He's also the author of two previous collections of baseball writing, How Life Imitates the World Series, and Why Time Begins on Opening Day, and a collection of golf stories, called Strokes of Genius. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the British group Small Faces. Though their roots were in rhythm and blues, the group quickly moved through folk rock and then psychedelia, an evolution reflected in their hits like "Sha-La-La-La Lee," "Here Comes the Nice," "Lazy Sunday," and "Afterglow." INT.2: Comic JONATHAN WINTERS. Winters is a master of comic improvisation. His first movie role was in the classic "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad World." His other films include "Oh Dad, Poor Dad," "The Loved One" and "The Russians Are Coming." He first gained a national reputation in the early days of television as a regular guest on Jack Parr's "Tonight Show." And for two seasons in the late 60s, he had his own weekly hour comedy series. More recent TV viewers might remember him from his frequent appearances in 1981 and 1982 as Robin Williams' son Mearth on "Mork and Mindy." Winters has also published a book of his paintings, titled Hang-Ups. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, November 16, 1988.) REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Accident: A Day's News the new novel by East German journalist and novelist Christa Wolf. Wolf also wrote The Quest for Christa T., A Model Childhood, and Cassandra.
Interview with Chris Frantz and Tina Weymouth; Review of the album "American Musical Theater April 19, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457613].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: The husband-and-wife rhythm section, drummer CHRIS FRANTZ and bassist TINA WEYMOUTH. The two co-founded Talking Heads with David Byrne in 1974, and married in 1977. The two also founded the band "Tom Tom Club," a loose conglomeration of friends, relatives and neighbors. Tom Tom Club has had hits with the songs "Genius of Love," and "Wordy Rappinghood," from their 1981 debut album "Tom Tom Club," and since has recorded two other albums, "Close to the Bone," and "Boom Boom Chi Boom Boom." REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new collection of American musical comedy, put together by the Smithsonian. The recordings include songs by Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, Paul Robeson, Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, Ethel Waters, Danny Kaye, Ethel Merman, Mary Martin and many others. The collection also includes almost every major songwriter or songwriting team from Victor Herbert to Stephen Sondheim. INT.2: Writer ROBERT LUDLUM. Ludlum's string of bestsellers, such as The Bourne Identity, The Osterman Weekend, and The Icarus Agenda, have established him as one of literature's most successful espionage novelists. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired on March 10, 1988.) REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "I Wanna Hold Your Hand," a 1978 movie that follows the attempts of a group of young Beatlemaniacs to make contact with their heroes. The film, which was a commercial bomb when it came out, was directed by Robert Zemeckis, who also directed "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" and "Back to the Future." "I Wanna Hold Your Hand" has just been released on videocassette.

Interview with Steve Schneider; Review of new albums by four women country singers; Interview with Cameron Crowe; Review of the film "Say Anything." April 20, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959925040].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Animation historian STEVE SCHNEIDER. He's written extensively about animation, especially about animation as it was practiced in the 30s and 40s. His new book, "That's All Folks," looks at the Warner Brothers cartoon empire, which includes characters like Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig and Daffy Duck. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, December 19, 1988.) REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new albums from four female country singers, Gail Davies, Lori Yates, Karen Staley, and...
Mary Chapin Carpenter. Ken says their success highlights the growing influence of women in the country music scene. INT.2: Part one of a two-part interview with writer and film director CAMERON CROWE. Crowe graduated early from high school and broke into journalism at age 15, writing for Playboy, The Los Angeles Times, and Rolling Stone, where he also served as a contributing editor. Crowe returned to high school, undercover, to write Fast Times at Ridgemont High, which became a bestseller and spawned a hit movie and TV series. Crowe makes his directing debut in the new movie, "Say Anything." He also wrote the screenplay. Today's interview will focus on the new movie. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Say Anything," starring John Cusack, Ione Skye, and John Mahoney. The film's part teen comedy, part romance, and part coming of age story. It was directed and written by Cameron Crowe, who wrote Fast Times at Ridgemont High.

Interview with Ben Bradlee, Jr.; Commentary on Cajun music; Interview with Cameron Crowe; Commentary on chaos. April 21, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924365].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist BEN BRADLEE, JR. He's an editor at The Boston Globe, and son of the Washington Post editor Ben Bradlee. His book Guts and Glory: The Rise and Fall of Oliver North, which came out last summer, is being made into a two-part TV miniseries. The series will air April 30th and May 2nd on CBS. REV.1: Three members of the New Orleans cajun band BEAUSOLEIL, led by MICHAEL DOUCET, will play a few songs in our weekly performance spot. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, June 10, 1988.) INT.2: Part two of a two-part interview with writer and film director CAMERON CROWE. Crowe graduated early from high school and broke into journalism at age 15, writing for Playboy, The Los Angeles Times, and Rolling Stone, where he also served as a contributing editor. Crowe makes his directing debut in the new movie, "Say Anything." He also wrote the screenplay. Today's interview will focus on the year he spent undercover, posing as a high school senior at the age of twenty-two. His experience that year was the basis of the book Fast Times at Ridgemont High, which became a bestseller and spawned a hit movie. REV.2: Poet GREGORY DJANIKIAN will read "Renovations," a poem from his new collection, Falling Deeply into America.
Interview with George Vecsey; Review of Duke Ellington's albums "Recollections of the Big Band Era" and "Piano Duets"; Interview with Bob Balaban; Review of the television show "Nick and Hillary." April 24, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924361].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Sports columnist GEORGE VECSEY. He's the syndicated sports columnist for The New York Times and a best-selling author. He's written books on the New York Mets and Appalachia. He collaborated with Loretta Lynn on the best-selling Coal Miner's Daughter, and with tennis star Martina Navratilova on Martina. He joined The New York Times in 1968, and covered Appalachia and religion for a decade before returning to the sports beat, which he covered for Newsday in the late 50s. His new book, A Year in the Sun, is a personal account of a year in the life of a sport's journalist. REV.1: In honor of what would have been DUKE ELLINGTON's 90th birthday on April 29th, jazz critic and Ellington fanatic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews two new reissues of what he says are among the bandleader and pianist's more offbeat recordings. INT.2: Actor, director and filmmaker BOB BALABAN. He appeared in John Schlesinger's "Midnight Cowboy," Stephen Spielberg's "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," Sydney Pollack's "Absence of Malice," Mike Nichols's "Catch-22," Ken Russell's "Altered States," and Sidney Lumet's "Prince of the City." In the new film "Dead-Bang," which stars Don Johnson, Balaban plays a parole officer forced to take part in a manhunt. Balaban is also a director. He directed episodes of "Tales from the Darkside," and "Amazing Stories," for television, and the made-for-cable film "Invisible Thread," with Penn and Teller. His first feature film, "Parents," stars Randy Quaid, Mary Beth Hurt, and Sandy Dennis. This is the first part of a two-part interview. Part one will focus on Balaban's experiences as a director, part two, his acting. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Nick and Hillary." It's a comedy reincarnation of the drama series "Tattingers."

Interview with Maxine Hong Kingston; Commentary on Irma Thomas; Interview with Bob Balaban; Review of Simon Schama's book "Citizens." April 25, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924452].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer MAXINE HONG KINGSTON. Her two memoirs, The Woman Warrior, and China Men, explored the experience of living within two cultures - Chinese and American - but belonging to neither. The first book juxtaposed Kingston's own memories with those of her mother and other female relatives.

Interview with David H. Hackworth; Review of Sir Peter Maxwell Davies' album "In Celebration of Scotland"; Interview with Paul Winfield; Commentary on racist language in the musical "Show Boat." April 26, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501254].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Col. DAVID H. HACKWORTH. He's been described as a warrior's warrior, and perhaps the finest soldier of his generation. He is the Army's most decorated living soldier. His heroism earned him a battlefield commission in the Korean War when he was 20. He was the youngest full colonel in the Vietnam War, and was reputed to be the model for the Col. Kurtz character played by Marlan Brando in the movie "Apocalypse Now." But after appearing on the news show "Issues and Answers" to decry the misguided American military effort in Vietnam. He subsequently left the Army and moved to Australia where he has been active in the peace and disarmament movements. Hackworth recounts his experiences in the Army and his subsequent change of philosophy in his autobiography, titled About Face, The Odyssey of an American Warrior. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews an album of compositions by Sir PETER MAXWELL DAVIES. Davies is one Britain's best-known composers and follows in the tradition of Sir Benjamin Britten, perhaps Britain's best-known composer in this century. The album is titled "A Celebration of Scotland." INT.2: Actor PAUL WINFIELD. He won an Academy Award nomination for Best Actor for his role in "Sounder." He can now be seen portraying a corrupted record producer on the CBS series "Wiseguy," the storyline of which is corruption in the record industry.

REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines the different terms white writers have used to refer to blacks in musicals, novels, movies and television to define blacks, and how these terms have changed with the times.

Interview with Wolf Blitzer; Review of five recent pop songs; Interview with Lynn Sharon Schwartz; Review of the film "Field of Dreams." April 27, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924363].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: WOLF BLITZER, Washington Bureau Chief for The Jerusalem Post. His new book, Territory of Lies, is the story of Jonathan Jay Pollard, the U.S. intelligence agent who spied for Israel, was caught, and convicted to life imprisonment. Pollard's arrest and conviction sent shock waves through the American and Israeli intelligence agencies. Why, it was asked, would one of America's closest allies, enlist an American intelligence agent to betray American secrets? Pollard, who acknowledges his crimes, says he is a victim of the ambiguous relations between Israel and the United States, which allow him to feel he never hurt the United States, but which also allowed the Israelis to benefit from his information and still cooperate with the efforts to uncover and convict him. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER has another installment of the "Tucker Top Five," his picks for the most interesting singles in the current pop music scene. INT.2: Writer LYNNE SHARON SCHWARTZ. Her novels include Rough Strife, which was nominated for a National Book Award, Balancing Acts, and Disturbances in the Field. She's also published the short story collections Acquainted with the Night, and The Melting Pot and Other Stories. Her new novel, Leaving Brooklyn, is the story of a young girl growing up in Brooklyn, and her attempts to understand the world around her. Audrey has a damaged eye, which acts as a metaphor throughout the story for her vulnerability, and for what is hidden from her, both within herself and in the outside world. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Field of Dreams," a new baseball film starring Kevin Costner and based on the novel Shoeless Joe, by W.P. Kinsella.
Interview with John Hurt; Commentary on stride piano; Interview with Frederick Forsyth; Review of the The Film Society of Lincoln Center's tribute to Bette Davis. April 28, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924360].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor JOHN HURT. He's one of the best known and most accomplished contemporary British actors, and one of the few to successfully complete the transition from stage to film. His film credits include "A Man For All Seasons," "Midnight Express," (for which he received an Academy Award nomination for supporting actor) "The Elephant Man" and "1984." In the new movie "Scandal," Hurt plays society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward, the man-about-town who set in motion the sex scandal that brought about the fall of the Conservative government of British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in 1963.

REV.1: Boogie-woogie pianist MARCIA BALL performs in our weekly performance segment. Ball, who was raised in southern Louisiana, now lives in Austin, Texas where she is known as the Queen of the Keyboards and a pioneer of the vibrant Rhythm and Blues scene there. Her music has the stamp of such New Orleans pianists as Dr. John, Professor Longhair and Allen Toussaint. INT.2: Novelist FREDERICK FORSYTH. With the publication of The Day of the Jackal, The Odessa File and The Dogs of War, all in the space of three years, critics dubbed Frederick Forsyth a master of the international suspense thriller. The plots of all his stories have been praised for their split-second calculations and for their attention to the mechanical details of, say, mixing the right sunburn salve or creating an atomic bomb. Forsyth turned to novels after a long career as a newspaper and radio reporter throughout Europe and Africa. Forsyth's new novel, titled The Negotiator, is his first with an American hero and revolves around a plot to bring down the Presidency on the eve of signing a major disarmament treaty. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE comments on the recent Film Society of Lincoln Center tribute to actress BETTE DAVIS, the star of such films as "Little Foxes," "All About Eve" and "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?"

Interview with Alice Walker; Review of the soundtrack to the film "Ascenseur pour l'échafaud;"
Interview with Stephen Pyne; Review of the television show "Cops." May 1, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/958461456].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer ALICE WALKER. She's best known for the novel The Color Purple, a seminal account of the life of poor, rural blacks in the south as experienced by the women. The novel revolves around letters that Celie, the principal character, addresses to God after her father has impregnated her for the second time. The Color Purple won the American Book Award and the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction, and was later adapted for the screen by Steven Speilberg. Walker has written four novels, two collections of short stories (including You Can't Keep a Good Woman Down), four volumes of poetry, two collections of essay (In Search of Our Mothers' Gardens), two children's books, and a biography of Langston Hughes. Her latest novel, which Walker describes as a "romance of the last 500,000 years," is titled The Temple of My Familiar. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a reissue of a MILES DAVIS album that was originally the soundtrack for Louis Malle's first feature film. INT.2: Writer and ecological historian STEPHEN PYNE. His latest book, Fire on the Rim, A Firefighter's Season at the Grand Canyon, explores the intricacies of fire management, man's relation to the rural western environment, and the summer ritual that changes the canyon and the people who try to protect it. Pyne worked as a firefighter for 15 season's on the northern rim of the Grand Canyon. Pyne describes a life where the firefighter lives in isolation for four months, defined by the fires and the capriciousness of lightning. Pyne, who received a MacArthur Foundation Fellowship for his work in the field of ecological history, has also written about Antartica. REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Cops," a new Fox Network show. Filmed on location in Broward County, Florida, the episodes follow real cops as they orchestrate drug stings, investigate car crashes and try to resolve domestic disputes.

Interview with William F. Buckley; Commentary on folk rock; Interview with Daman Wayans; Review of David Grossman's novel "See Under May 2, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924362].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR. For 23 years, Buckley has hosted - some have said `mediated' - "Firing Line," the provocative television interview program that has probed everything from Vietnam to civil rights and liberties, from Ronald Reagan to Muhammad Ali. The program, which is seen by 950,000 people each week on PBS stations, is one of the most provocative, engaging interview programs on television, largely due to Buckley's witty and sardonic direction of his guests. Segments of these programs have been transcribed and gathered in the new book On The Firing Line, The Public Life of Our Public Figures. Buckley, who is a former editor of the National Review, and currently a syndicated columnist, is the author of 27 books, including spy novels, accounts of sailing adventures and political commentaries. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD looks at the evolution of folk rock, from Bob Dylan to The Byrds and Fairport Convention. INT.2: Stand-up comic and actor DAMAN WAYANS. Wayans is a former cast member of "Saturday Night Live." He has a new HBO Comedy Special that airs several times this week. He also has a role in the new film "Earth Girls Are Easy," and has appeared in the films "Beverly Hills Cop," "Punchline" and "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka" which was written and directed by his older brother Keenan. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD a novel by the Israeli writer and broadcaster DAVID GROSSMAN, titled See Under: Love. Grossman is also the author of Yellow Wind, his first-hand account of life on the West Bank.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Band leader and composer MERCER ELLINGTON. He is, of course, the son of Duke Ellington and now perpetuates the big band tradition his father made famous as head of the Duke Ellington Band. When he was a young man, Mercer Ellington had hoped to break into his father's band on the saxophone. But after years of frustration, he could see that he would never crack the legendary Ellington reed section. He finally was accepted as a trombone player and later played french horn and trumpet. With the death of his father in 1974, Mercer Ellington took over his father's orchestra. In the last two years, two Ellington albums have won wide acclaim: "Digital Duke" and "For Ellington," performed by the Modern Jazz Quartet and produced by Mercer Ellington. REV.1: In the course of reviewing a new collection of the music from the films of Alfred Hitchcock, Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ asks the question "Can movie music played outside of the movies also be good music?" The music - heard in such films as "North by Northwest," "Vertigo," "Psycho" and "The Man Who Knew Too Much" - is composed by Bernard Herrmann. INT.2: TOM GOODKIND, BRUCE PASKOW and LAUREN AGNELLI, members of the folk group The WASHINGTON SQUARES. In their words, they "continue the folk process, but don't play processed folk." The Washington Squares have taken the music of the early 60s and geared it to the 90s. The group came together in 1983, inspired by a "Wasn't That a Time," a documentary on the Weavers, one of the first folk groups to achieve mainstream recognition. The Washington Squares now tour almost year-round, playing in small clubs, colleges and at political gatherings. Their self-titled debut album received a Grammy nomination for Best Contemporary Folk Album. Their new album is titled "Fair and Square." REV.2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN assesses the state of marriage as reported on the wedding announcement page of The New York Times.

Interview with Wim Winders; Review of Tom Petty's album "Full Moon Fever"; Interview with Sue Grafton; Obituary for Sergio Leone. May 4, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924366].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director WIM WENDERS. His films include "The American Friend," "Alice in the Cities" "Kings of the Road," and "Paris, Texas." Though his subject matter seems mundane, - a cross-country trip by two men in a van, a day in the life of a disgruntled soccer goalie - Wender shapes his stories into something much more elaborate and affecting, and ultimately hypnotic. Wender's most recent film, his first to be set in his native Germany since his student days, is titled "Wings of Desire." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, April 22, 1988.) REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Full Moon Fever," the new album from Tom Petty. INT.2: Mystery writer SUE GRAFTON. Her heroine, Kinsey Millhone, is a new breed of hard-boiled detective: competent and self-reliant, thirty-two years old, twice married with no kids, and currently single. The Kinsey Millhone mystery series began with A is for Alibi, and continues through the alphabet. Last year's publication was E is for Evidence, and the series continues with the newest addition, F is for Fugitive. Grafton has written this about creating a female private eye - "The basic characteristics of any good investigator are a plodding nature and infinite patience. Society has been grooming women to this end for years." REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF pays tribute to Italian director SERGIO LEONE, who directed "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly," "Fistful of dollars," and other films in a genre that became known as "spaghetti westerns."

Interview with Maggie Kuhn; Commentary on love songs; Interview with Harry Anderson; Review of the home video "Bugs & Daffy May 5, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924364].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Advocate for the aging MAGGIE KUHN. She won national attention for the cause of the elderly when she formed The Grey Panthers, a highly successful lobbying group that pressured local, state and federal agencies to react to the needs of the aging. REV.1: Boogie-woogie pianist MARCIA BALL returns to perform in our weekly performance segment. This week, Ball plays two songs about two kinds of love. Ball, who was raised in southern Louisiana, now lives in Austin, Texas where she is known as the Queen of the Keyboards and a pioneer of the vibrant Rhythm and Blues scene there. Her music has the stamp of such New Orleans pianists as Dr. John, Professor Longhair and Allen Toussaint. INT.2: Con-man-turned actor HARRY ANDERSON. Anderson is best known as Judge Harry Stone on the hit NBC comedy series "Night Court." Anderson began his con-man career as a street performer. He eventually drifted to San Francisco where he would perform near Fisherman's Warf or to lines of moviegoers outside theaters. He then graduated to Las Vegas, opening for acts like Kenny Rogers. Appearances on "Saturday Night Live" and in various television shows led to his current stint on "Night Court." Anderson has put his cons and schemes into a book, titled Games You Can't Lose: A Guide for Suckers. In the introduction, titled "Hello, Sucker!," Anderson states his intent "It's not whether you win or lose ... it's whether I win or lose." REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video release "Bugs & Daffy: The Wartime Cartoons," a collection of 11 Warner Brothers cartoons made during World War II. The cartoons were part of the wartime propaganda effort and feature impersonations of Hitler, and sendups of the Draft and life in the Army.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Reporter THURSTON CLARKE. His recent book, Equator, chronicles his two-year trip across the face of the earth, through the countries and continents that run through the Equator. In Clarke's other writing, he has investigated Wall Street crooks and travelled with nomads in the Sahara. His other books include Dirty Money, The Last Caravan, and By Blood and Fire. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, November 22, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the work of German bassist EBERHARD WEBER. Weber is one of the mainstays of the ECM record label, which has also featured the work of vibist Gary Burton and guitarists Pat Metheny and Ralph Towner. Weber has been influential in the development of spacious, airy sound that is the label's signature. In turn, ECM recordings have been a source for new age music. INT.2: Poet and essayist ROBERT PINSKY. Pinsky's recent collection of essays, titled Poetry and the World, was nominated for a National Book Critics Circle Award last fall. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, December 6, 1988.) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the CBS movie "Murder By Moonlight," a murder mystery set on the moon that stars JULIAN SANDS and BRIGITTE NIELSON.

Interview with Terry O'Neill; Commentary on Chuck Berry; Interview with Katherine Dunn; Review of Tatyana Tolstaya's short story collection "On the Golden Porch." May 9, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924951].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Television sports producer TERRY O'NEILL. O'Neill has worked in television sports for 15 years, first as a producer at ABC sports and then at CBS. While at ABC, O'Neill produced the telecasts of the 1980 Winter Olympics, NCAA football, ABC's Wide World of Sports and Monday Night Football. O'Neill then moved to CBS where he was credited with overhauling their telecast of professional football, creating a style that has won wide critical praise. His work has won four Emmys. O'Neill left both ABC and CBS after disagreements with the principal sports anchors - Howard Cosell and Brent Musberger, respectively. He talks about those conflicts, as well as the whole television sports industry, in his new book The Game Behind the Game. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles CHUCK BERRY.

INT.2: Novelist KATHERINE DUNN. Her new book, Geek Love, is the story of a carnival couple who decide to breed their own freak show. So they experiment with illicit prescription drugs, insecticides and radioisotopes, give birth to a series of grossly deformed children who are nevertheless a crowd-pleasing success at the circus. Dunn, who lives in Portland, also writes about boxing for the Associated Press.

REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews On the Golden Porch, the short story collection by the Russian writer TATYANA TOLSTAYA.

Interview with Joyce Johnson; Review of two albums of Gilbert and Sullivan's music; Interview with David Shields; Commentary on Mother's Day. May 10, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924894].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer JOYCE JOHNSON. She's written two novels, a memoir and several short stories. She also is a contributing editor to Vanity Fair magazine. Her best-known work, the 1983 memoir Minor Characters, recalls the early beat scene in Greenwich Village and her relationship with the beat poet Jack Kerouac. It won the National Book Critics' Circle award for non-fiction. Her new novel, In the Night Cafe, is the story of a love affair set in the Greenwich Village of the late 50s and early 60s, as the beat generation is breaking up. REV. 1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new collection of historic recordings of the operettas of Gilbert and Sullivan. He also traces the history of their popularity in America. INT.2: Novelist DAVID SHEILDS. His second novel, Dead Languages, uses the experience of stuttering as a metaphor for the difficulty of all interaction. It's the story of Jeremy Zorn and his efforts - sometimes comic - to overcome his stutter. The story parallels Sheilds' experiences. Shields says the inspiration for the novel grew from the paradox between his own comfort and security in the written word, contrasted with his virtual paralysis with speech. REV.2: Guest commentator ILENE SEGALOVE takes a personal, and historical, look at Mother's Day.

- Interview with Gregory Hoblit; Review of albums by Phoebe Snow, Dion, and Donny Osmond; Interview with Kurt Hoffman; Review of the film "How to Get Ahead in Advertising." May 11, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924939].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Television producer GREGORY HOBLIT. He is best known for his work on "Hill Street Blues," "L.A. Law" and "Hooperman." His work with "Hill Street Blues," in which he was teamed with Steven Bochco, won four Emmys. His latest project, which he both produced and directed, is the made-for-TV movie "Roe vs. Wade," a re-creation of the landmark Supreme Court case that gave women the legal right to abortion. It airs Monday night on NBC and stars Amy Madigan and Holly Hunter. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews comeback albums by PHOEBE SNOW, DION and DONNY OSMOND. INT.2: Tenor saxophonist KURT HOFFMAN of nine-member band The Ordinaires. Composed of two violins, two saxophones, a cello, two guitars, a bass and drum, The Ordinaires approach music with a mix-and-match philosophy that one critic has described as sounding like "a shopping binge at a musical K-Mart." Their music combines psychedelic pop, ethnic dance, rock and minimalism. REV.2: Guest Film Critic STUART KLAWANS reviews the new British film "How To Get Ahead in Advertising."
Interview with Rosabeth Moss Kanter; Commentary on classic swing tunes; Interview with Pete Hamill; Review of Sarah Payne Stuart's novel "Men in Trouble." May 12, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924953].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Business consultant and Harvard professor ROSABETH MOSS KANTER. She is one of the country's most sought-after consultant and speaker on business issues. Her particular area of interest and expertise is the restructuring that follows takeovers and mergers, restructuring that affects not only the business makeup of a particular company but also its environment, for its workers and those who do business with it. In her new book, When Giants Learn to Dance, Moss Kanter predicts that the future workplace will require substantially longer work weeks, will eliminate much of middle management and also end traditional notions of job security. Her earlier books include The Change Masters and Men and Women in the Corporation. REV.1: In Fresh Air's weekly performance segment, New Orleans pianist HARRY CONNICK JR is featured. In this segment, Harry describes his father's influence on his music. His father is the New Orleans' District Attorney. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, October 14, 1988.)

INT.2: Writer PETE HAMILL. He became synonymous with what was called "new journalism" a technique where the reporter wouldn't strive for neutrality but would freely inject their opinion into the story. that allowed the wouldn't deny the reporter's opinions. His columns for The Village Voice, and later The New York Post and New York magazine, set in motion some of the major corruption scandals in New York City and helped stamp the papers he wrote for as fierce defenders of the public's right to know. In 1986, Hamill left the Voice to become editor of one of Mexico City's largest English language daily newspapers. After four months, he left because of what he claims was censorship on the part of the paper's owner. Hamill is also a novelist. His latest, Loving Women, is the story of a superheated love affair set in the deep south in the mid-50s. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews SARAH PAYNE STUART's first novel Men in Trouble.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer TOBIAS WOLFF. The winner of the PEN/Faulkner Award for his short novel The Barracks Thief, Wolff has now written his first work of nonfiction. This Boy's Life is a memoir of his unhappy upbringing in working-class Washington state in the late 1950s. Wolff, who served in Vietnam and later worked as a reporter for The Washington Post, has also written two highly regarded collections of short stories, In the Garden of the North American Martyrs, and Back in the World. (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Tuesday, January 31, 1989.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Let's Get Lost," the new film documentary on the late trumpeter CHET BAKER. INT.2: Tenor saxophonist and big band leader ILLINOIS JACQUET. He played saxophone with some of the great big bands, including Lionel Hampton's, Cab Calloway's, and Count Basie's. His own big band has just recorded their first album. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, October 13, 1988.) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI compares the final episodes of two long running television shows which aired this past weekend..."Family Ties " and "Moonlighting"...and he speculates about next Sunday's finale for "Miami Vice."

Interview with Jessica Mitford; Commentary on the song "Body and Soul"; Interview with Susie Bright; Commentary on San Francisco. May 16, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924936].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Muckraker JESSICA MITFORD. She is considered one of the premiere investigative journalists of her day, a muckraker in the tradition of Sinclair Lewis and John Dos Passos. Her targets have included the Famous Writers School, a Midwest correspondence school, the funeral business ("The American Way of Death"), and the U.S. penal system ("Kind and Usual Punishment: The Prison Business"). Now 72, Mitford is setting her sights on the maternity business and the way hospitals court patients with the promise of gourmet food and classical music. REV.1: Writer AL YOUNG reads from his book of musical memoirs called "Bodies & Soul." The selection he reads was inspired by Coleman Hawkins' 1939 recording "Body and Soul." INT.2: Sex advocate SUSIE BRIGHT. In college, Bright majored in sexual politics. She later started "Good Vibrations," a San Francisco sex toy shop, and founded "On Our Backs," a sexual entertainment magazine for lesbians that includes film criticism of X-rated movies. Bright says that while most people accept diversity in, say, clothing and food, people are often intolerant of diversity in sexuality. In her book "Herotica," Bright says "erotics vs. porn is not the issue, uncovering women's sexual desire is." REV.2: Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg gives us some pointers on how to fit in with the locals in San Francisco. Here's a hint: "Don't call it Frisco!"

Interview with Bill Graham; Commentary on 1960s San Francisco rock bands; Interview with Mickey Hart; Commentary on Silicon Valley. May 17, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924898].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Rock impressario BILL GRAHAM. Graham started his career managing the San Francisco Mime Troupe and went on to manage famous rock concert halls like Fillmore East and Fillmore West. He's also produced dozens of major rock group tours and he's collected many tales along the way. REV. 1: People tend to wax nostalgic about the rock music scene in San Francisco during the so-called "Summer of Love" in 1967. But rock historian ED WARD likes the San Francisco rock and roll pre-dates that time. He plays some of the early music of groups like The Charlatans, We Five, and The Beau Brummels. INT.2: Percussionist MICKEY HART. He's best known as a member of rock group The Grateful Dead. But Hart is also an avid collector of percussion instruments and recordings in native settings. Hart has spent the last 18 years travelling the world in his search. His collection ranges from the dance music of American Indians to Eskimo throat singers and Solomon Islands water slapping. Highlights of his field recordings have just been released in a series titled "The World." REV.2: Iconoclastic techno-thinker STEWART BRAND ruminates on Silicon Valley, the high-tech mecca near San Francisco. Brand has witnessed the valley's evolution from fruit groves to production of computer chips.
Interview with Maurice Sendak; Review of John Cougar Mellencamp's album "Big Daddy"; Interview with Richard Wilbur; Interview with Stephen Schiff. May 18, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924896].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Artist, writer and designer MAURICE SENDAK. Sendak has written and illustrated such classic children's books as Where the Wild Things Are, In The Night Kitchen, and Inside Over There. Time magazine has said, "For Sendak, visiting the land of the very young is not something that requires a visa. He is a permanent citizen." Where the Wild Things Are was adapted into an opera, and Sendak designed the sets and costumes for the premiere production. He's since designed several other operas and ballets. Sendak's latest project was illustrating Dear Mili, a Grimm fairy tale discovered 150 years after it was written. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Big Daddy," the new album from John Cougar Mellencamp. INT.2: Poet RICHARD WILBUR. Wilbur's poems have earned him both the Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Award. From 1987 to 1988, Wilbur was Poet Laureate of the United States. 27 of Wilbur's new poems, as well as six earlier volumes, have recently been published together under the title, New and Collected Poems. REV.2: Guest host MARTY MOSS-COANE checks in with Fresh Air film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF, who's attending this year's Cannes Film Festival in France.

Interview with Penn Jillette; Commentary on Harold Arlen; Interview with Elmore Leonard; Review of the home video release of the film "Tougher than Leather." May 19, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924935].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Magician PENN JILLETTE. He's half of the magic team Penn and Teller. They are to traditional magic what the Rolling Stones are to the Vienna Symphony Orchestra. Penn and Teller revel in making fun of traditional magicians, whom they characterize as sleazy lounge performers. Their hit Broadway show was a mix of rock and roll, insults, self-injury and baffling illusions. When David Letterman invited Penn and Teller to "Late Night," the pair made hundreds of hissing cockroaches appear on Dave's desk. On "Saturday Night Live," they seemingly cut a live snake in half. Penn and Teller have a home video and a new book, both titled "Penn and Teller's Cruel Tricks for Dear Friends." The pair's first movie, "Penn and Teller Get Killed," will be released later this summer. REV.1: New Orleans pianist and singer HARRY CONNICK JR. is featured in our weekly performance spot. In this segment, Connick plays a couple of tunes by Harold Arlen. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, November 4, 1988.)

INT.2: Detective writer ELMORE LEONARD. Leonard's best selling books include Glitz, Freaky Deaky, and his latest, called Killshot. REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the home video version of "Tougher Than Leather," last year's film starring the rap group RUN D-M-C. Ken calls it a rap gangster movie.

---

Interview with John Schlesinger; Review of Cecil Taylor's album "Indent"; Interview with Paul Gruchow; Review of the television show "Miami Vice." May 22, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924937].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director JOHN SCHLESINGER. He got his start directing publicity films on the making of "The Guns of Navarone." His first feature film was "Terminus," a documentary on 24 hours in the life of the mamouth Waterloo train station. He won an Oscar for his direction of "Midnight Cowboy," his first American film. Other films include "Far From the Maddening Crowd," "Billy Liar," "Sunday Bloody Sunday," "The Day of the Locust," Marathon Man," and "The Falcon and the Snowman." His new film, which stars Shirley MacLaine, is "Madame Sousatzka." (Rebroadcast. Original broadcast on Wednesday, October 5, 1988.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD review a CD reissue of pianist CECIL TAYLOR's album "Indent." Taylor's music is atonal and difficult for some; Whitehead breaks it down for curious listeners. INT.2: Essayist PAUL GRUCHOW. His latest collection of essays, The Necessity of Empty Places, is an exploration of the American physical environment, from northern Minnesota to the desert of Baja, California and what Gruchow calls the invisible link between our humanity and the natural environment, a link that Gruchow feels is threatened. The essays present a poetic, philosophical and scientific look at our waning wilderness. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, December 9, 1988.) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks at the finale of "Miami Vice." David says you'll best understand the influence of this show - its new music soundtrack, its clever photography - by looking back to the first episode. (Note: David is looking back on this final episode, which aired last night, Sunday, May 21.)
Interview with Tony La Russa; Commentary on the rock bands The Residents and Pere Ubu; Interview with John Lasseter; Review of John le Carre's novel "The Russia House." May 23, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924413].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Two-time American League Manager of the Year TONY La RUSSA. He managed last year's Oakland Athletics to the World Series. La Russa has been called one of the most intelligent, cerebral and innovative managers now in the game. His style of clubhouse management - taping all American league games in the clubhouse so batters can study upcoming opposing pitchers, computer analysis of statistics to show which batters hit best in clutch situations - is widely imitated and has been credited with revitalizing the American League West, once thought to be the weakest of all four divisions. He first won the Manager of the Year award while with the Chicago White Sox in 1983, after he guided them to a division title. La Russa started attending law school when he thought his career as a ball player was ending. He intended to leave baseball altogether after passing his bar exam, but then was offered a coaching job with the White Sox organization. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles "The Residents" and "Pere Ubu," two groups that emerged as part of the small avant-garde scene during the 70s. INT.2: Computer animator JOHN LASSETER. His film "Tin Toy" won the 1988 Academy Award for Best Animated Short Film. An earlier work, "Luxo Jr.," which brought to life a small fry Luxo lamp, was also nominated for an Academy Award for animation. Lasseter is the head animator at Pixar, the computer animation company that grew out of the computer graphics division of George Lucas' Lucasfilm. Lasseter also designed and animated the stained glass knight in Steven Speilberg's 1985 film "Young Sherlock Holmes." REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the novel The Russia House by master spy novelist JOHN LE CARRE. His earlier novels include The Spy Who Came In From the Cold, A Small Town in Germany, Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy and The Little Drummer Girl.

Interview with Nadine Gordimer; Review of a CD of Mozart's arias; Interview Boz Scaggs; Review of the home video "Incredible Self Confidence." May 24, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924415].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: South African writer NADINE GORDIMER. She is one of that country's best-known artists and one of the most vocal and effective opponents of apartheid, the laws that mandate strict separation of the races. Gordimer's novels include A Sport of Nature, July's People, Burger's Daughter and The Conservationist. Her new book, a collection of essays, is titled The Essential Gesture. It provides a portrait of South Africa and of Gordimer's emergence as an artist. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of Mozart's operatic arias featuring East German baritone OLAF BAR. Bar is best known as a performer of German lieder, songs by Schubert, Schumann and Hugo Wolf. INT.2: BOZ SCAGGS. Throughout the 70s and early 80s, Scaggs was one of rock's most successful acts. His songs "Lowdown," "Lido Shuffle" and "Breakdown Dead Ahead" became Top Forty hits, an unlikely achievement for a musician best known for his steamy blues guitar solos and husky voice. In 1980, Scaggs had four Top Twenty hits, but shortly thereafter he dropped out of the music scene to focus on a restaurant business in San Francisco. He has recently returned to the music business, releasing an album titled "Other Roads." He recently opened a club in San Francisco - Slim's - that specializes in American roots music. REV.2: Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Incredible Self Confidence," a home video that instructs the viewer in self-hypnosis. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, January 11, 1989.)
plays the role of the Russian diplomat whose involvement with a flirtatious young British woman helped bring down Britain's conservative government. REV.2: Guest film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," the third and final installment of Stephen Speilberg's adventure series starring Harrison Ford.

Interview with Phillip Lopate; Commentary on jazz standards; Interview with Witold Rybczynski; Review of Holly Hughes' performance piece "World Without End." May 26, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924412].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist and essayist PHILLIP LOPATE. In Against Joie de Vivre, his new collection of essays, Lopate writes about - and rails against - the enforced gaiety of dinner parties, camaraderie in bars, teaching Chekhov to 10-year-olds and overwrought writing about architecture. In one essay, 'Samson and Delilah,' Lopate uses the biblical essay to ruminate on power relations within his own family, and his confused love relationship with his mother and wife. His other books include Bachelorhood, The Rug Merchant and Confessions of Summer. One of his best-known works Being with Children, recalls his trials and triumphs as a teacher of writing at a New York City public school. REV.1: New Orleans pianist and singer HARRY CONNICK JR. performs in Fresh Air's weekly performance segment. (Rebroadcast from October 24, 1988.) INT.2: Architect and writer WITOLD RYBCZYNSKI. His earlier books, like Taming the Tiger and Home have dealt with how technology affects the way we live. Taming the Tiger explored man's efforts to control technology, while "Home" talked about how technology had changed traditional meanings of comfort. In his new book, The Most Beautiful House in the World, RYBCZYNSKI, an architect, tells of his frustration at never experiencing the building experience first hand, and of the creative journey that took him from the decision to build a boat to driving the last nail on his new house. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews "World Without End," the latest work of performance artist HOLLY HUGHES.
Interview with Huey P. Meaux; Commentary on Hi Records; Interview with Michael Barson; Review of the television show "Not Necessarily the News." May 29, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924411].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Record producer HUEY P. MEAUX. Meaux is one of the last of the old-time record czars - record producers who discovered, developed and promoted musical talent. Meaux, also known as "the Crazy Cajun," specialized in the regional music of the Gulf coast, from the bayou country of Louisiana to east Texas. His acts include Archie Bell and the Drells, Freddie Fender, Jivin' Gene and the Sir Douglas Quintet. Much of the recording took place at Meaux's Goldstar studio in Houston, Texas, one of the most famous of all the regional studios. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, July 13, 1988.)

REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles Hi records, the company that launched the careers of artists such as Al Green and Ann Peebles. (Rebroadcast. Original date Tuesday, November 1, 1988.) INT.2: Popular culture historian, MICHAEL BARSON. His book, "Lost, Lonely & Vicious," is a collection of reprints of the advertising posters of the "great trashy B movies" of the fifties. These were the low-budget exploitation films that featured wayward girls and bad boys. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, February 1, 1989.) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new format of the HBO comedy segment, "Not Necessarily the News." When the seven-year-old program started running out of gas, HBO decided not to cancel it but to revamp it. The show, which follows the format of an evening news program, is a running gag on everything from the Exxon Valdez oil spill, to the love life of television journalists Connie Chung and Maury Povich.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Spy novelist JOHN LE CARRE. His novels, almost every one of which is considered a masterpiece of the genre, include The Spy Who Came In From the Cold, A Small Town in Germany, Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy and The Little Drummer Girl. To many critics, Le Carre is not simply the finest spy novelist of his era, but perhaps the finest novelist. His work is frequently compared with Graham Greene. Several of his works have been made into movies, most notably Spy Who Came In From the Cold, which starred Richard Burton and Claire Bloom. Television audiences will also remember Alec Guinness' portrayal of Le Carre's character George Smiley in two adaptations. His latest novel, titled The Russia House, imagines was a spy operation would be like in the age of glasnost and perestroika. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album by saxophonist and flutist GEORGE ADAMS. For many jazz fans, Adams remains best-known for his work with bassist Charlie Mingus, with whom he performed in the 70s. He's also played with pianist Don Pullen and the late band leader Gil Evans. INT.2: Novelist ROBERT MASON. His first book, Chickenhawk, an account of his two tours of Vietnam as a helicopter pilot, was hailed by critics as one of the finest accounts of the Vietnam combat experience. Mason, who flew over 1,000 military missions in Vietnam, was discharged in 1968 and left the military two years later. After several years operating businesses in Florida and New York, he turned to writing. He's just published his second work, a novel titled Weapon. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Summer of `49, DAVID HALBERSTAM's account of the year the Yankees won the pennant on the last days of the season, and were carried to a World Series win by an ailing Joe DiMaggio.

---

Interview with Joe Frank; Review of a recording of Bedrich Smetana's music; Interview with Phillip Johnston and Joel Forrester; Review of the home video release "Milton Berle May 31, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924683].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Radio dramatist JOE FRANK. His weekly program, titled "Joe Frank: A Work in Progress," and distributed to National Public Radio stations around the county, has been described as one of the most provocative and daring uses of radio since the great radio dramas of the 30s and 40s. The programs walk a fine line between reality and drama, alternating between Frank's monologues on his life, and dramatic pieces with actors playing parts that Frank has loosely scripted. His best-known work, the three-part "Rent A Family," won the Corporation for Public Broadcasting's award for best radio drama. In it, Eleanor, a soft-spoken, frail woman, haltingly describes her life, her loss of a job and her move to a strange city where she doesn't know anyone. She then decides to rent out her two small children to couples who wish to mimic the feeling of family for short periods. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of the Czech Philharmonic Orchestra performing BEDRICH SMETANA's "Ma Vlast," or 'My Country.' The composition is a cycle of six tone poems about Smetena's native Bohemia. INT.2: Musicians PHILLIP JOHNSTON and JOEL FORRESTER. They are part of the group "The Microscopic Septet," a New York-based jazz group that mixes loopy rhythms and honking saxophones in a way that is at once a homage to past jazz masters and utterly original and idiosyncratic. Their songs have terrific titles, like "Waltz of the Recently Punished Catholic School Boys," "Lobster in the Limelight" and Interview with Tony Buba; Review of Tin Machine's self-titled album and Royal Crescent Mob's album "Spin the World"; Interview with Hilma Wolitzer; Review of the film "Dead Poets Society." June 1, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924685].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Independent film maker TONY BUBA. In his 14 feature films, Buba has documented the decline of Braddock, Pennsylvania, a steel mill town outside of Pittsburgh, and Bubba's hometown. In his latest film, "Lightning Over Braddock: A Rustbowl Fantasy," Buba mixes the documentary style with little fantasy scenes in which his characters dream their way out of Braddock. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums by Tin Machine, a band featuring David Bowie, and the Royal Crescent Mob, a band from Dayton, Ohio. INT.2: Novelist HILMA WOLITZER. She's won praise for her insight into family life and suburban life and the dreams that people defer for the sake of domestic ease. Wolitzer's writing wasn't first published until she was 35. Her earlier novels include Hearts and In the Flesh. Her new novel is titled Silver. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on July 12, 1988.) REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Dead Poet Society," starring Robin Williams and directed by Australian Peter Weir, best known for his direction of "Witness."

Interview with Mavis Staples; Commentary on John O'Keefe's youth; Interview with Aharon Appelfeld; Review of T. Coraghessan Boyle's short story collection "If the River Was Whiskey." June 2, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924410].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Soul and gospel singer MAVIS STAPLES. As a member of the Staple singers for more than 30 years, she's had hits like "Respect Yourself," and "I'll Take You There," which went to Number One in the early 70s. Mavis Staples has also made several solo albums during the 70s and 80s. Mavis Staples was featured in Prince's 1988 "Lovesexy" tour, and Prince produced Staples new album, "Time Waits For
No One." REV.1: Performance artist JOHN O'KEEFE performs excerpts from "Shimmer," his one-man show that explores his early years in a youth detention center in Iowa. INT.2: Israeli novelist AHARON APPLEFELD. Applefeld was interned in a Nazi concentration camp when he was eight. He escaped three years later and eventually made his way to Tel Aviv in 1947. Since then, he's written many poems, short stories, and novels on the Holocaust and various aspects of Jewish life and culture. Applefeld's new novel, "For Every Sin," is the story of a Holocaust survivor's struggle to put the horrors of the war behind him and return to his home. Applefeld's other books include "Badenheim 1939," and "The Immortal Bartfuss." REV.2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "If The River Was Whiskey," the new collection of short stories by T. Coraghessan Boyle.

Interview Barry Lopez; Review of the CD box set "The Complete Atlantic and EMI Jazz Recordings of Shorty Rogers"; Interview with Bella Lewitzky; Review of the television programs "Steven Banks Home Entertainment Center" and "Tales from the Crypt." June 5, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972883844].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer BARRY LOPEZ. His 1978 book Of Wolves and Men, was hailed as a landmark work that helped alter the conventional wisdom - and fears - about wolves. The book drew heavily on Lopez' field observations as well as the mythology that evolved around the wolf. His most recent book, Artic Dreams, is a personal account of the wildlife and the people of the far north, and of the effect of the Artic landscape on the imagination. It won the National Book Award. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast Wednesday, March 1, 1989.) REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Complete Atlantic and EMI Jazz Recordings of Shorty Rogers." For many, Rogers is best-known for big band recordings throughout the 50s, but, starting in 1955, he also recorded compositions with groups of from five to nine musicians, recording of his own works and adaptations of others. These hard-to-find recordings have been gathered now in one set. INT.2: Dancer and choreographer BELLA LEWITSKY. She's the artistic director of Los Angeles' Bella Lewitsky Dance Company, which she formed in 1966. She's also been the recipient of several awards and grants, including a Guggenheim Fellowship. Lewitsky is also the founder and Artistic Director of The Dance Gallery, scheduled to open in 1990. The Dance Gallery will be the most comprehensive dance complex in the U.S. and Western Europe, featuring a theater, teaching studios, a dance institute and a dance reference library. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, January 6, 1989.) REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two upcoming programs: "Steven Banks
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Interview with Frank Zappa; Commentary on early country rock musicians; Interview with Dennis Cooper; Review of Russell Baker's memoir "The Good Times." June 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924682].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Rock musician FRANK ZAPPA. For more than 20 years, Zappa has made rock and roll music that's in turn funny, gross, esoteric, satirical, and danceable. Zappa has recently written his autobiography, titled The Real Frank Zappa Book. It follows Zappa from his early days with the Mothers of Invention to his recent anti-censorship testimony before Congress. REV.1: Rock and roll historian ED WARD remembers some of the other artists who were fusing country and rock and roll at the same time Elvis was becoming big. INT.2: Poet and novelist DENNIS COOPER. Cooper's new novel, Closer, is a stark portrait of a young gay artist whose sexual obsessions are often humiliating or violent. Cooper was strongly influenced by the writings of the Marquis deSade and the punk music scene, and punk characters populate many of his works. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Good Times, the autobiography of reporter and columnist Russell Baker. Baker won the Pulitzer Prize for Growing Up, a memoir of his childhood.

Interview with Chris Elliott and Bob Elliott; Review of the Boston Early Music Festival and Exhibition; Interview with Jill Ker Conway; Commentary on computer language. June 7, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924668].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: CHRIS and BOB ELLIOTT. Bob has entertained generations as half of the legendary comedy team of Bob and Ray. Many of today's comics and television comedy programs find their roots of influence in the innovative works of Bob and Ray. His son Chris has spent the last seven years as a writer and performer for "Late Night with David Letterman," creating such characters as the Panicky Guy, and the Fugitive Guy, and impersonations of Morton Downey, Jr., NBC sportscaster Marv Albert, and Marlon Brando. His work with Late Night has won him four Emmy awards and a large following. Together, the two have written a memoir, Daddy's Boy: A Son's Shocking Account of Life with a Famous Father.

REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reports on the Boston Early Music Festival and Exhibition which concluded its week-long activities on Sunday. Two of the major performances were Monteverde's "Mass" conducted by Andrew Parrott and Mozart's "Idomeneo," conducted by Roger Norrington. Parrott and Norrington are two of the best known and most influential figures in Britain's Early Music revival.

INT.2: Writer JILL KER CONWAY. Her new memoir, The Road From Coorain, describes her rugged childhood in the Australian outback, and her move to school in the big city of Sydney as a young woman. Later Conway left Australia to study in America, where she became a historian and the first woman president of Smith College. She is also the author of two books on the role of feminism in history.

REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG has some comforting thoughts for people upset by the use of computer language to describe ordinary human activity. He claims that new technologies have always given people a model for discussing themselves, and that humans in turn have always personified their machines.

---

Interview with Art Spiegelman; Review of Paul McCartney's album "Flowers in the Dirt"; Interview with Alev Lytle Croutier; Review of the film "Star Trek 5 June 8, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924630].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Cartoonist and editor ART SPIEGELMAN. Speigelman is the editor of RAW, a magazine of adult comics, and the author of MAUS, an autobiographical family saga of the Holocaust in comic book form. A new, smaller, book-size issue of RAW, edited by Spiegelman, will soon be published. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Flowers in the Dirt," the new album from PAUL McCARTNEY. INT.2: Writer ALEV LYTLE CROUTIER. She was born and raised in Turkey, where she grew up hearing stories her great aunt and grandmother told about their experiences living in a harem. After her studies in Turkey, and then America, she became an independent filmmaker. She wrote and directed many screenplays, including "Tell Me a Riddle," which was based on the novel by Tillie Olsen. Her new book, Harem: The World Behind the Veil, grew out of her research into the lives of women in a harem. REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the latest in the Star Trek series, "Star Trek 5: The Final Frontier."
Interview with Orville Schell; Commentary on James O'Keefe's youth; Interview with Buell Neidlinger; Commentary on the comedy group Funny Gay Males. June 9, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924238].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: China observer ORVILLE SCHELL. Schell, whose most recent visit to China ended just before the army went into Tianamen Square, has written on China for The New York Times, Rolling Stone, and Asia Magazine. His reports for The New Yorker were published by Pantheon under the title: To Get Rich is Glorious: China in the 80s. Schell will talk with Terry Gross about the political and cultural context of the student movement and the military repression in China. REV.1: JOHN O'KEEFE returns to perform more excerpts from his one man show "Shimmer," a humorous look back at his years in a youth detention center in Iowa. INT.2: Bassist and composer BUELL NEIDLINGER. Known for his work with jazz musicians ranging from Ben Webster to Cecil Taylor, and his involvement in the group "Thelonious," Neidlinger has also been the principal bassist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Bluegrass music, film and TV scores have also been part of Neidlinger's diverse career. REV.2: Critic at large LAURIE STONE profiles "Funny Gay Males," a comedy collective made up by Danny McWilliams, Bob Smith and Jaffe Cohen. They're part of what Stone calls a "fresh crew of gay entertainers who get laughs without attacking women or minorities."

Interview with Gail Pheterson and Margo Saint James; Review of albums by Vinny Golia, Ken Filiano, and Nels Cline; Interview with Danny Elfman; Review of the television show "First Born." June 12, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924670].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Prostitute's rights activists GAIL PHETERSON and MARGO SAINT JAMES. Pheterson founded the International Committee for Prostitutes' Rights. The pair have compiled a new book, A Vindication of the Rights of Whores. The book contains discussions from the Whores' Congresses in Amsterdam and Brussels, as well as studies of prostitution practices around the world, and an analysis of how current feminist thinking often represses prostitutes. REV.1: The difficulty of making a living as a jazz musician is hardly a trade secret. But VINNY GOLIA is a performer who took matters into his own hands, recording himself and his friends on the independent Nine Winds label. Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD has a review. INT.2: Composer and musician DANNY ELFMAN. Elfman is gaining a reputation as one of Hollywood's most talented film composers. He did the music for "Beetle Juice," "Midnight Run," both Pee Wee Herman movies, as well as the music for the upcoming "Batman" movie. Elfman also led the rock band Oingo Boingo. This is the first part of a two-part interview. REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "First Born," which airs this Saturday on the Arts and Entertainment cable network. It is put together by the same creative team that put together last year's "The Life and Loves of a She Devil."

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer RUSSELL BAKER. Since 1962, Baker has written the twice-weekly "Observer" column for The New York Times. For satire and parody on short notice, Baker has few equals in journalism. His 1982 memoir, Growing Up, told of how his widowed mother guided Baker and his sister through the Depression with fervent exortations about the value of hard work. Growing Up earned Baker the Pulitzer Prize and remained on the best-seller lists for a year. His second book of memoirs, titled The Good Times, has just been published. The Good Times covers Baker's start in the world of journalism as a cub reporter at The Baltimore Sun and takes the reader through Baker's arrival at the Times' Washington bureau. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD looks at the influence of the mid-Sixties blues revival that swept the rock world. This included musicians like Paul Butterfield, John Hammond and John Mayall's Bluesbreakers. INT.2: Part two of an interview with composer and musician DANNY ELFMAN. Elfman is gaining a reputation as one of Hollywood's most talented film composers. He did the music for "Beetle Juice," "Midnight Run," both Pee Wee Herman movies, as well as the music for the upcoming "Batman" movie. Elfman also led the rock band Oingo Boingo. In this segment, Elfman discusses his score for "Batman," and talks about what influences he draws from when he writes film scores. "Batman" opens later this month. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Boomerang, a new novel by BARRY HANNAH. Hannah lives in the same region where William Falkner lived and worked, and Faulker figures prominently in Hannah's writing.
Interview with David Cronenberg; Review of the soundtrack album "Valis"; Interview with Pamela Reed; Commentary on the National Anthem. June 14, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924546].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Screenwriter and film director DAVID CRONENBERG. He made the cult favorite horror films "Scanners," "Dead Zone," "Videodrome," and the 1986 remake of "The Fly." Cronenberg talks about those films, and his most recent movie, "Dead Ringers." It's the story of twin gynecologists, the movie's now a best seller in home video outlets. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on September 16, 1988.)

REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the science fiction opera "Valis," written by electronic music composer Tod Machover. Valis is based on a semi-autobiographical novel by the late science fiction writer Philip K. Dick. In performance, Valis combines live and pre-recorded singers, synthesizers, and banks of computers. Valis premiered at the Pompidou Center in Paris in 1987. The American premiere is June 16th at MIT's Media Lab in Boston. INT.2: Actress PAMELA REED. She played the ultra-tough campaign manager in last year's HBO political spoof, "Tanner 88." She also starred in "Rachael River" as a radio talk show host who is courted by the local sheriff and the undertaker. "Rachael River" comes to television later this month on Public Television's "American Playhouse" series. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on March 1, 1989.) REV.2: In what's becoming an annual Flag Day tradition on Fresh Air, language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG tries to decipher the convoluted syntax of our National Anthem. (Rebroadcast from May 6, 1987)

Interview with Bebe Moore Campbell; Review of albums by Boris Grebenshchikov, Kino, and Zvuki Mu; Interview with James Parks Morton; Review of the film "Ghostbusters II." June 15, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884230].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer BEBE MOORE CAMPBELL. Her new book, Sweet Summer, is Campbell's memoir up growing up the child of a broken marriage, spending three-fourths of the year with her mother and grandmother in Philadelphia, and the summers with her father in North Carolina. Campbell's book explores how those `sweet summers' have shaped her life ever since. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER looks at 'Glasnost Rock,' reviewing new albums from three Soviet rock bands. The albums have all been released in this country by American labels. INT.2: Reverend JAMES PARKS MORTON, dean of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine in New York City, probably the last gothic cathedral to be built anywhere in the world. Morton started out studying architecture at Harvard during World War Two, but then became intrigued by the worker priest movement in Europe. Morton entered the Episcopal seminary and became an "architect-priest" involved in renovation and social programs in the ghettos of Jersey City, New Jersey and Chicago. In 1972, Morton was appointed Dean of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. He's since been credited with resuming construction on the cathedral, which had been halted for the past three decades. Morton says if all goes according to plan, the cathedral should be finished in about 100 years. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Ghostbusters II." Bill Murray, Dan Akroyd, and Sigourney Weaver return to once again save New York City from the spirit world.

Interview with Sabine Reichel; Commentary on folk songs; Interview with Johnny Cunningham; Commentary on baseball cards. June 16, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884231].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer SABINE REICHEL. Her new book, What Did You Do in the War, Daddy? is her exploration of what it means to be a young German, saddled with guilt over World War II, and little helped by parents who are reluctant to discuss those times. Reichel is a German, born after the war, who finds history a scaring experience that inevitably recalls young men in brown uniforms herding children into cattle cars. What Did You Do in the War, Daddy? is based on Reichel's interviews and travels through Germany in an attempt to come to terms with Germany's past. REV.1: In Fresh Air's weekly performance segment, folk singer BILL STAINES plays two songs. Staines regularly travels on the folk house circuit between Boston and Alaska. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, September, 4, 1987.) INT.2: Fiddler JOHNNY CUNNINGHAM. He's been called "the Jimmy Hendrix of the fiddle," for the speed he achieves on jigs and reels. He's best known as a member of the British folk band Silly Wizard, of which he was a founding member. He's recorded two solo albums, "Thoughts From Another World" and "Fair Warning," and is also much in demand as a record producer. REV.2: Humorist EILEEN SEGELOVE looks at the value of talking baseball cards, the new gimmick that's latched on to the feverish market in baseball cards.
Interview with Carole King; Review of Don Cherry's album "Art Deco"; Interview with Carmine Coppola; Review of the 500th Anniversary Special of Siskel and Ebert. June 19, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924548].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Singer and songwriter CAROLE KING. In the 60s, she wrote hit songs like "Up on the Roof" and "Will you still love me tomorrow?" But in the 70s, she achieved lasting fame with songs like "Natural Woman" and her album "Tapestry," Best-selling album of the decade. Carole King has a new album, titled "City Streets." REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the latest album by trumpeter DON CHERRY. Cherry has has a varied career, playing free jazz with Ornette Coleman, South African jazz with Abdullah Ibrahim, and rock with Lou Reed. In the early 70s, he was a pioneer of what is now called "World Music," playing with musicians from Turkey, North and West Africa, and Sweden. The album is titled "Art Deco." INT.2: Composer CARMINE COPPOLA. He's the father of the famous Coppola clan (Francis, the director, Talia Shire, actress, August, writer and scholar) and a renown composer. His musical career began in the Stuyvesant High School band and went on to include a scholarship to Julliar and stints in Arturo Toscanini's NBC Symphony Orchestra, as a Broadway musical pit conductor, and in numerous opera companies around the country. But all along, he really wanted to compose. His first break came when his son, Francis, commissioned him to write the score for the film "Finian's Rainbow." And it is in film scoring that the elder Coppola has met with his greatest success. He won an Oscar for his score for "Godfather II." Other successes include the scores for "Apocalypse Now" and "The Black Stallion." In 1981, he wrote the four hour score to the revival of Abel Gance's 1927 silent movie epic "Napoleon." REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the 500th Anniversary Special of Siskel and Ebert, the Chicago newspapermen who, over the last 14 years, have become television's best-known film critics. The program, first "Sneak Previews," then "Siskel and Ebert and the Movies," began at a Chicago station, moved to the local PBS affiliate and then went national.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and film director Neil Jordan. His cinematic style of writing led him to his career in film. He co-wrote and directed "Mona Lisa," starring Bob Hoskins, "Company of Wolves," and "Danny Boy." His last movie, "High Spirits," was his first big budget Hollywood project. It starred Steve Gutenberg as a man who falls in love with a ghost, played by Daryl Hannah. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, November 17, 1988). REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recital album by DAWN UPSHAW, a young soprano who sings not only opera at New York's Metropolitan Opera, but also contemporary music with the Kronos Quartet. INT.2: Writer and shopper PAUL RUDNICK, and his mother, SELMA. Paul Runick, best-known for his play Poor Little Lambs, for the novel Social Disease, and for his essays in such publications as Esquire and Vanity Fair, has just published a novel about, among other things, a mother and son shopping team. Titled I'll Take It, the thinly veiled autobiographical novel is about the developed inability to resist the temptation to shop, and about the quest for ultimate bliss - a good sale. Selma Rudnick listens in from Philadelphia and then critiques the accuracy of her son's account of HER life. REV.2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews MARGE PIERCY's new novel Summer People.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with songwriter and pianist CHARLES BROWN. Charles Brown is one of the most original artists in blues history. He's credited with creating an expressive style of blues that blended rough Texas blues with the soft glamour of Hollywood. This approach was dubbed "Club Blues." Between 1946 and 1952, Brown recorded 20 hits, nine on his own, the rest as part of Johnny Moore's Blazers. These include "Driftin Blues," "Black Night," "Merry Christmas, Baby" and "I Want to Go Home," which Sam Cooke later reworked with "Bring It On Home To Me." Musicians who have been influenced by Brown, or paid homage to him, include Ray Charles, Otis Redding, James Brown, Sam Cooke, Billy Eckstein and Bruce Springsteen. Brown's featured role in the PBS documentary on the history of rhythm and blues have brought him back into the public eye. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Batman," Prince's soundtrack to the new movie, and his excuse, Ken says, for some of the most "out there" music of his career. INT.2: Writer and editor TED SCHULTZ. He edited and provided the commentary for The Fringes of Reason, a collection of weird stories about alien abduction, New Age remedies, shamanism, telepathy and spontaneous human combustion. Schultz, who says he has spent much of his life "transfixed by volumes of weird lore," takes a serious look at these unorthodox beliefs and speculates on the human need for myth. Schultz has worked as an editor at The Whole Earth Catalog for several years, and Fringes of Reason is a Whole Earth Catalog publication. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, March 23, 1989.) REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Batman," starring Michael Keaton as the caped crusader and Jack Nicholson as his arch enemy, The Joker.

Description of show segment(s)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Segment</th>
<th>Details</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>INT.1:</td>
<td>Writer REYNOLDS PRICE. Though Price has written books of poetry, essays and translation, he has earned his widest recognition for his novels, which work in a southern tradition depicting small towns in the 40s and 50s. His Southern Gothic tales deal with families coming together then scattering after suicides, soured romances. His 1986 novel, Kate Vaiden, won the National Book Critics Circle Award for fiction, and, like Price's best fiction (A Long and Happy Life, Good Hearts), is told primarily from the point of view of a woman. His latest work, Clear Pictures, is a collection of memoirs, some of which were triggered by his hypnotic therapy to relieve the pain of spinal cancer. REV.1: Boogie-woogie pianist MARCIA BALL performs in our weekly performance segment. Ball, who was raised in southern Louisiana, now lives in Austin, Texas where she is known as the Queen of the Keyboards and a pioneer of the vibrant Rhythm and Blues scene there. Her music has the stamp of such New Orleans pianists as Dr. John, Professor Longhair and Allen Toussaint. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, April 28, 1989.) INT.2: Film director, producer, writer, and actor SPIKE LEE. His first movie, &quot;She's Gotta Have It,&quot; established Lee as one of this country's leading black film makers. Last year, Lee parodied life at a southern black college in the movie &quot;School Daze.&quot; Lee's new movie, &quot;Do The Right Thing,&quot; has drawn both acclaim and stinging criticism for it's portrayal of racism. The movie looks at the interaction of whites, blacks, and Koreans on a single Brooklyn street on the hottest day of the summer.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811370].
The race riot that caps the film has made it one of the most controversial films of recent memory. REV.2: Commentator PATRICIA McLAUGHLIN looks at the meaning, for her, of the 100th anniversary of the bra. McLaughlin is a syndicated columnist who writes about style for The Philadelphia Inquirer Magazine.

Interview with Carl Sautter; Review of Sheila Jordan and Harvie Swartz's album "Old Time Feeling"; Interview with Linda Nochlin; Review of the television show "Andrea Martin June 26, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924544].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Screen writer CARL SAUTTER. Sautter's recent book, How to Sell Your Screenplay, is both a guide to starting authors, and an inside look at Hollywood from the writer's point of view. Sautter was an urban planner until ten years ago when a particularly bad episode of the sit-com "Three's Company," convinced him he could "write that junk." It took Sautter five years to sell his first script. He has since served as co-story editor for "Moonlighting," and has written for films. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, March 31, 1989.) REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the latest album from singer Sheila Jordan and bassist Harvie Swartz. Kevin says that Swartz' minimal accompaniment is the perfect counterpoint to Jordan's voice. INT.2: Art historian and feminist art critic LINDA NOCHLIN. She's credited with starting the field of feminisit art history with her 1971 essay, "Why Have There Been No Great Women Artists?" That essay, which ignited huge controversy in the field of art history and changed the face of contempory art criticism, posed such questions as "erotic to whom?" in asserting the nudes of artists as Gauguin and Delacroix. Her latest work is "Women, Art, and Power," a collection of essays. She has taught at Vassar, Stanford, Columbia, and the graduate center at the City University of New York. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, March 16, 1989.) REV.2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Andrea Martin: Together Again." It's a Showtime cable special starring Martin, one of the most popular performers in the SCTV cast, and featuring guest appearances by fellow SCTVers Catherine O'Hara, Dave Thomas, and Martin Short.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Child psychiatrist, author and Harvard professor ROBERT COLES. He is the author of over forty books, including the Children of Crisis series, for which he won a Pulitzer Prize. For over thirty years he has taught in elementary schools, high schools, and graduate schools of law, medicine, business, divinity and education. Dr. Coles believes that our moral understanding arises not so much from the scenarios proposed by psychiatric theory, but from more traditional sources such as religion, literature and learning by example. His new book, "The Call of Stories," is a testimony to the importance of stories in our lives, and to the moral insights that stories provide. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles LEE DORSEY, a largely unknown New Orleans musician who weathered the many changes in the city's musical scene in the 60s and 70s. He's best remembered for songs like "Ride Your Pony" and "Sneakin' Sally Thru the Alley." INT.2: Korean novelist AN CHONG-HYO. For much of his career, he translated novels from the West in to Korean. But now his own novels are gaining a following. They include "White Badge" and "Silver Stallion," both of which became bestsellers in Korea, and both of which have been translated into English. "White Badge" is the story of a publishing executive whose alienation - an outgrowth of his involvement in the Vietnam war - threatens his marriage and career. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Show Your Tongue," the new work by the German writer GUNTHER GRASS. The book is a travelogue based on Grass' trip in 1988 to Calcutta to supervise the staging of one of his plays. The text is accompanied by over 80 of Grass' illustrations.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Poet ADRIENNE RICH. In her poems, Rich has tried to reveal a personal life that is inseparable from the larger social condition. In recent years, her work has followed a feminist and political line of thought, addressing issues of the day and her perception of the oppression both within and outside the self. Her new volume of poetry, "Time's Power: Poems 1985-1988," follows a more personal line.
REV.1: In honor of the 4th of July, classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of compositions by the VIRGIL THOMSON, one of the most eclectic and accomplished American composers. Thomson, now 93, and still living in New York's Chelsea Hotel, where he's lived since the 40s, is both composer and music writer, and in both capacities he's won most every major music award.

INT.2: Cartoonist JOHN CALLAHAN. He was, as he says, "stone drunk" when his car hit a utility pole at ninety miles an hour. When he awoke, he was paralyzed from the chest down. During physical therapy, he began to draw cartoons. He describes, in both words and drawings, his accident and life since in his new book "Don't Worry, He Won't Get Far on Foot: The Autobiography of a Dangerous Man." Callahan's humor is warped and mostly self-directed. In one cartoon, a woman at a double amputee convention shouts "I need a hug!" In another, a blind black man with a cup holds a sign saying "Please help me, I am blind and black, but not musical." In another, a doctor tells a patient just paralyzed and waking up from the operation, "Let me put it this way: don't buy any hacky sack balls." His cartoons have appeared in magazines such as "The New Yorker," "National Lampoon," "Penthouse" and "Whole Earth Review." REV.2: Language commetator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses the distinction between `shall' and `will,' one that highlights the persistence of certain British usages, and also British pretentions, in American English.

Interview with Arlie Hochschild; Commentary on international pop music hits; Interview with Ian Frazier; Review of the film "Do the Right Thing." June 29, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924437].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and sociologist ARLIE HOCHSCHILD (HOKE-shield). Her new book, "The Second Shift," explores the dilemmas facing two-career families. The book grew out of a study Hochschild conducted into one of the most obvious consequences of the feminist revolution, the full-time working mother. Hochschild's principal conclusion is that when both parents work it is still the wife who shoulders most of the burden for child rearing and housekeeping. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER looks at the rock the rest of the world is listening to. Using "Billboard Magazine's" "Hits of the World" chart as a starting point, Ken looks at acts like Sweden's Roxette, Britain's Holly Johnson, America's Neneh Cherry and the hard-rock group Queen. INT.2: Writer IAN FRAZIER. He's known primarily as a writer of humor pieces for "The New Yorker" magazine. Some of those earlier short humor pieces and essays were collected in two earlier books, "Dating Your Mom" and "Nobody Better, Better than Nobody." His new book, "Great Plains," is quite different. It describes a history of the great plains through Frazier's own trips driving 25,000 miles in a criss-cross of the area, and hours spent in the New York's Public Library reading about the great plains. Frazier's interest in the area grew out of the time he left New York and moved to Montana to write and live. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Do the Right Thing," the new film by director, writer and actor SPIKE LEE.

Interview with Thomas Friedman; Commentary on Herschel Evans; Interview with Drew Takahashi; Review of the home video release of the film "Child's Play." June 30, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924350].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: New York Times correspondent THOMAS FRIEDMAN. Friedman has spent the last decade covering the Middle East. His work there has won him two Pulitzer Prizes. His new book, FROM BEIRUT TO JERUSALEM, goes to the inside of Arab and Israeli power circles...he examines the intefadeh - the uprising on the Gaza Strip - the fighting in Lebanon, and the perceptions American and Israeli jews have of each other. REV.1: Jazz Critic LOREN SCHOENBERG (LOR-en SHOWN-berg) profiles tenor saxophonist HERSCHEL EVANS. Schoenberg says jazz history has always divided the early history of the tenor sax into three segments - Coleman Hawkins, Lester Young, and both Bud Freeman and Dick Wilson. But Schoenberg says HERSCHEL EVANS was just as influential, and introduced a soulfulness that is heard all over today's jazz. INT.2: Director and designer DREW TAKAHASHI. The co-Founder of Colossal Pictures in San Francisco, Takahashi is an Emmy-winning creator of TV commercials and music videos. Takahashi's innovative mix of computer and traditional animation, as well as other techniques like "phomotion," can be seen on logos and IDs for MTV and the Disney channel. Takahashi worked with artists ranging from Francis Ford Coppola to Bobby McFerrin and the Grateful Dead...his commercials have helped sell Levis jeans and Cran-Raspberry juice. REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews the home video release of "Child's Play," a recent horror about a boy's play doll that comes to life.
Interview with William Gentile; Review of the Knitting Factory Festival; Interview with Phil Berger; Review of the new season of the television show "Alice from Off Center." July 3, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457719].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Newsweek photojournalist WILLIAM GENTILE. Gentile covered the Nicaraguan revolution for UPI ten years ago, and he's the only foreign correspondent from that time still working in Nicaragua. Gentile's new book, NICARAGUA, contrasts the violence of the Contra war with the natural beauty of Nicaragua and the lives of everyday people there. INT 2: Sportswriter PHIL BERGER. Berger covers boxing for The New York Times and has written a new book about heavyweight champ Mike Tyson called BLOOD SEASON. REV 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the Knitting Factory Festival in New York City. REV 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new season of the PBS series "ALIVE FROM OFF CENTER."

Interview with Allen Toussaint; Commentary on the Coasters; Interview with Lyle Lovett; Review of the film "Basic Plumbing." July 4, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457717].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A live concert with New Orleans songwriter, pianist and singer ALLEN TOUSSAINT. Toussaint has performed extensively as a session pianist and producer and has written dozens of hits for New Orleans groups like The Neville, Irma Thomas, for Paul McCartney, The Wild Tchoupitoulas and The Meters. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, May 27, 1988.) REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles The Coasters. With the help of songwriters Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller, this group pioneered songs for teenagers in the fifties, with songs like "Yakety Yak," "Charlie Brown," and "Three Cool Cats." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, December 13, 1988.) INT.2: Country singer and songwriter LYLE LOVETT. His new album, his third, is titled "Lyle Lovett and his Large Band." He's one of a new generation of country singers whose music has been embraced by traditional country and western fans. Yet his music owes as much to jazz and rock. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, March 21, 1989.) REV.2: KEN TUCKER reviews "Basic Plumbing," a home video that Ken says is "an hour's worth of high drama." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, August 26, 1988.)
Interview with D. A. Pennebaker; Interview with Paul Bartel; Commentary on summer festivals. July 5, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457442].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Filmmaker D.A. PENNEBAKER. One of America's foremost documentary producers, Pennebaker has brought his cinema vérité approach to subjects ranging from Castro's Cuba, to Jimmy Carter's energy policy, to Bob Dylan's first tour of Britain. Music has been the source of much of Pennebaker's work. His films have featured the likes of Pablo Cassals, Van Cliburn, jazz singer Dave Lambert, rocker David Bowie, John Lennon and Yoko Ono. Pennebaker's newest films will be released next week; They feature previously unreleased footage of Jimi Hendrix and Otis Redding at the Monterey Pop Festival. Pennebaker's "Monterey Pop" is perhaps his best known work. REV.1: Pre-empted to allow for longer interview two segment. INT.2: Director and actor PAUL BARTEL. Bartel's acting credits include roles in "Fame" and "L.A. Law," but he's best known for his direction of several black comedies, such as "Eating Raoul," which he also co-wrote and acted in. Bartel's new film, "Scenes from the Class Struggle in Beverly Hills," has just been released. It stars Ed Begley Jr. and Jacqueline Bisset. REV.2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN explains why she hates summer festivals, be they music, ethnic, food, or whatever.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Veteran TV journalist DAVID BRINKLEY. His book, Washington Goes to War, was a surprise best-seller last year and has just been released in paperback. The book, based on Brinkley's personal experiences and reflections, told the story of Washington in the early 40s, and how both the government and town itself were transformed by the responsibilities thrust on them as a result of the war. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the latest recording of Yugoslavian pianist DUBRAVKA TOMSIC. Tomsic launched her career in America as a teenager, was a student of Arthur Rubinstein, played with the New York Philharmonic, and made her debut at Carnegie Hall before returning to Yugoslavia. Last year she was rediscovered in America on a number of critically acclaimed compact discs. On July 10 she returns to America to open the Newport Festival. INT.2: Feminist writer
BARBARA WILSON (sometimes BARBARA SJOHOLM). She's a co-founder of the feminist publishing house, Seal Press. She also writes detective novels whose heroine is a lesbian feminist detective. Her latest novel, The Dog Collar Murders, offers a humorous look at the debates between the S&M and anti-porn factions of the feminist community. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews a few of the current crop of summer movies - "Great Balls of Fire," "Lethal Weapon II," and "Honey, I Shrunk the Kids."

Interview with May Sarton; Commentary on Public Enemy; Interview with Chris Burden; Review of recent comedy shows by black women. July 7, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457814].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer MAY SARTON. For many readers, Sarton is a heroic figure for her decision to expose her lesbianism in the early 60s, long before it society was tolerant of the gay life, and also for her decision to lead a life of solitude. The author of over 35 novels, books of poetry and essays, Sarton is probably best known for her journals, Recovering, and At Seventy. Her most recent book of poems, The Silence Now, explores themes from the solitude of the aging, to AIDS, to world peace. REV.1: Popular music critic KEN TUCKER delves into the controversy over the rap group PUBLIC ENEMY. Public Enemy's first album sold over 800,000 copies and their new song "Fight the Power," (featured in the movie "Do the Right Thing") is climbing the charts. The band however, recently fired its so-called "minister of information," Richard Griffen, for making anti-Semitic statements. In the ensuing political storm, PUBLIC ENEMY has disbanded for an indefinite period of time. INT.2: Artist CHRIS BURDEN. He gained fame as a conceptual artist in 1971 when he had a friend shoot him in the arm as part of a performance piece at a Santa Ana gallery. Burden's concern with realism (one critic calls it his greatest strength and greatest weakness) is reflected in a touring retrospective of his works, which include sculpture, and also artifacts of his conceptual pieces. REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews the work of four black women comics who recently shared the bill at New York City's New Professional Theater. They are: P.J. Jones, Kim Coles, Robin Montague, and Beverly Mickens.

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Blues singer and musician BONNIE RAITT. Raitt fell in love with the blues while attending college, and although it seems unlikely that a white girl from an upper class background would take a blues career seriously, she's since proved herself to be one of the country's top blues acts. Raitt's latest album is called "Nick of Time." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, March 3, 1989.) REV 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews volumes 6 through 10 of Duke Ellington's "Private Collection," a series featuring previously unreleased Ellington compositions. Kevin says when the first five volumes were released it was a revelation. This new collection isn't quite as brilliant, but it's still a must have for any serious Ellington fan. INT 2: Actor KIRK DOUGLAS. Douglas has been in more than 75 films, among them "Spartacus," "Lonely Are The Brave," "Gunfight at the OK Coral," and "Tough Guys." Douglas was also one of the first stars in Hollywood to start his own production company. His son, Michael Douglas is currently one of Hollywood's hottest stars and producers. Kirk Douglas' autobiography, The Ragman's Son, has just come out in paperback. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, August 22, 1988.) REV 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "False Witness," a syndicated TV special that re-examines the facts surrounding the Jeffrey MacDonald murder case, the same case chronicled in the book "Fatal Vision," and the subject TV miniseries of the same name.

Interview with Simon Schama; Commentary on glam rock; Interview with Rick Bass; Review of Thomas Friedman's memoir "From Beirut to Jerusalem." July 11, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457888].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Historian and writer SIMON SCHAMA. His revisionist history of the French Revolution - Citizens: A Chronicle of the French Revolution - has been one of the most talked-about and debated volumes of history in the last several years. Critics have lauded Schama for bringing vividly to life the characters that inspired the five-year popular uprising that changed the modern political order. One portion of the book's controversy is Schama's contention that the revolution was oftentimes sustained by little more than "rhetorical adrenaline," that it wasn't the clear and careful articulation of popular discontent it has been since pictured as. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD examines glam rock, the 70s movement that glorified glitter, fashion. The two best examples are David Bowie, and T. Rex. INT.2: Author RICK BASS. His new book, Oil Notes, is a journal based on Bass' experience as a geologist looking for oil throughout the American West. Bass has also written short stories, essays, and environmental journalism. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews From Beirut to Jerusalem, Thomas Friedman's account of his ten years covering the Middle East for The New York Times.

Interview with Michael Kaufman; Interview with Larry Sultan; Commentary on chaos. July 12, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457886].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist MICHAEL KAUFMAN. His new book, Mad Dreams, Saving Graces - Poland: A Nation in Conspiracy, charts the rise, fall and resurrection of the democratic movement in Poland. Leading this drive has been Solidarity, the shipworkers’ union headed by Lech Walesa. But Kaufman also traces the hidden spiritual undercurrents in Polish history and culture and that make this quest toward self-definition considerably more complex. Kauffman served as Warsaw bureau chief for The New York Times from 1984 to 1987. He has also been bureau chief for the Times in Nairobi, New Delhi and Ottawa. REV.1: (Pre-empted to allow for longer interview two segment). INT.2: Photographer LARRY SULTAN. In a photography exhibit now on display at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, Sultan is represented by work from a project he began in 1983 about his family's history. A key feature of the work, and a feature that appears in all of Sultan's work, is capturing subjects at "off" moments, situations where they least expect, or wish, themselves to be photographed. The project, which will eventually be a book titled "Pictures from Home," is Sultan's study of his parents pursuit of the American dream in California, and of Sultan's own childhood in the postwar, baby boom generation. The exhibit mixes recent photos of his parents with snapshots taken in the `50s and early `60s. In combining recent and old photos, Sultan's new, fictionalized account of his and his parent's life becomes part of his reassessment of his family history. REV.2: Poet GREGORY DJANIKIAN. Djanikian emigrated to this country from Egypt when he was a youngster. He'll read a poem called "Renovations," about his coming to grips with chaos. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on April 21, 1989.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former movie executive PETER BART. Bart was a senior vice president at the MGM/UA studios, and has just written a new book about that time, called "Fade Out: The Calamitous Final Days of MGM." These days, Bart is now the editor of "Variety." REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Banned In the U-S-A." It's the controversial rap group "2-Live Crew"s musical answer to those who call their music obscene. REV. 1: Writer DENNIS McFARLAND. McFarland came to writing as a second choice...after acute stage fright curtailed his career as a concert pianist. McFarland's fiction has appeared in the New Yorker and a number of literary reviews. McFarland is now receiving praise for his debut novel, "The Music Room." (It's published by Houghton Mifflin). INT. 2: Critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Ford Fairlane," starring stand-up comic Andrew Dice Clay as a rock and roll detective.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Horror film director JOHN CARPENTER. He's best known for the film "Halloween," one of the most successful independent films ever ({$\text{dollar}\ 300,000\text{ budget, over }$\text{dollar}\ 30\text{ million in receipts}}). His other credits include "The Thing," "the Fog," "Escape From New York," "Christine" and "Starman." His most recent film, "They Live," is about aliens who disguise themselves as humans and take over the planet. It stars former professional wrestler Rowdy Piper and has just been released for home video. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on October 31, 1988.) REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new release of piano works by the French composer Alkan. Although he's little known now, Lloyd says during the 19th century, Alkan reputation, both as a composer and as a performer, rivaled that of Liszt. INT.2: Cartoonist HOWARD CRUSE. He draws a comic strip called "Wendel" that follows the life of a young gay man. The strip is a regular feature in the gay and lesbian newsmagazine The Advocate. Recent "Wendel" strips have just been collected in the book Wendel On The Rebound, published by Saint Martin's Press. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines how the changes brought about by the French Revolution extended even to the French language.

Interview with Andrea Martin; Review of Jackson Browne's and Loudon Wainwright, III's albums "World in Motion" and "Therapy"; Interview with Lucinda Williams; Review of the film "License to Kill." July 14, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457792].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Comic ANDREA MARTIN. She was an original member of the Canadian SCTV comedy troupe and one of its brightest stars for seven years. Her co-stars included John Candy, Eugene Levy and Martin Short. Martin brought to life the neurotic talk show host Libby Wolfson, cleaning lady Pirini Scleroso, and, perhaps her best known character, the TV station manager Edith Prickley. Martin recently starred in her own cable TV comedy special on the Showtime channel. It was titled "Andrea Martin: Together Again," and it featured performances with SCTV alumni like Catherine O'Hara and Martin Short. Martin also has roles in three upcoming films, "Worth Winning, a comedy in which Martin plays a child psychologist, "Rude Awakening," a dark comedy, and "Boris and Natasha," an adaptation of the cartoon series in which Martin plays `Squirrel.' REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new albums from singer/songwriters Jackson Browne and Loudon Wainwright III. Browne, though he's recorded infrequently over the last eight years, is still very popular, while Wainwright, who plays in small folk clubs and on college campuses, is little noticed. Ken explains why it's Wainwright that deserves the attention. INT.2: Musician LUCINDA WILLIAMS. She's been playing the folk and country scenes for most of the 80s, but her new album, titled "Lucinda Williams," is a type of straight-ahead story telling that crosses genres. Many listeners think of Williams as a folk singer, but in this album, Williams fronts a rock band. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new James Bond movie, "License To Kill," starring Timothy Dalton as Agent 007.
Interview with Jack Olsen; Review of Duke Ellington's album "Private Collection, Vol. 10"; Interview with Allan Gurganus; Review of the television program "As It Happened July 17, 1989.
[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457694].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Writer JACK OLSEN. He's been called a master of the `true crime' genre, and in his new book, Doc, he tells the story of how Dr. John Story, one of the most respected citizens of Lovell, Wyoming, systematically raped his patients, and how, in this ultra-conservative, God-fearing environment, the women either couldn't speak up, or, when they did, were dismissed. Lovell is set in Mormon country, and many of the women the doctor victimized feared excommunication for "fornication" if they went to the authorities, who, invariably, were also elders in the Mormon church. Olsen's story is of how the doctor ultimately raped the town itself, splitting it into factions of fierce defenders and equally fierce accusers. Story was eventually convicted and is now serving an extended prison sentence. Olsen is a former correspondent for Time Magazine. He's written 24 books, the best-known of which are Son and Give A Boy a Gun. REV 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD continues his review of "Private Collection," the ten-volume set of Duke Ellington compositions. In this review, Kevin focuses on one of Ellington's major suites - and a highlight of the collection - "Black, Brown and Beige." INT 2: Writer ALLAN GURGANUS. His novel, Oldest Living Confederate Widow Tells All, which is scheduled for publication later this fall, is the story of a blind 99-year-old widow, now confined to a nursing home, whose stories about her life and her husband's take in almost 150 years of American history. Mostly her stories focus on her husband and how his experiences in the Civil War, when he was only 13, haunted him, and her, until he died. Gurganus, a professor of writing at New York's Sarah Lawrence University, has written for The New Yorker, Harpers and The Atlantic Monthly. REV 2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the Arts and Entertainment Network's tribute to the 20th anniversary of man's walk on the moon. (The anniversary is on July 20th.) This special comes as most all the networks ar Interview with Amy Wilentz; Commentary on Bobby "Blue" Bland; Interview with Cynthia Kadohata; Review of Martin Cruz Smith's novel "Polar Star." July 18, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457884].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist AMY WILENTZ. Her first book, The Rainy Season, Haiti since Duvalier, is an account of Haiti since the overthrow of President-for-Life Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier, and of how the country's hope for reform gave way to despair when it was clear Haiti's new leadership couldn't, or wouldn't, reverse 40 years of chaos and stagnation. The book is also an account of how Wilentz was transformed by the story, of how the epochal change Haiti was going through, and its stunning contrast of poverty and corrupted wealth, overwhelmed her first assumptions. Wilentz was a staff reporter for Time Magazine and has also written for The Nation and The Village Voice. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles Bobby "Blue" Bland, a blues performer who began as B.B. King's personal valet in the early 50s and who still performs today. His best-known hits include "I Pity the Fool," "Touch of the Blues," and his rendition of "Stormy Monday." Bland achieved his greatest success in the late 50s when he was teamed trumpeter and arranger Joe Scott. INT.2: Novelist CYNT HIA KADOHATA. Her first novel, The Floating World, is a 'road novel' about a second generation Asian American teenager who leads a nomadic life with her parents as her father travels the country from one job to the next. As her journey unfolds, the protagonist struggles to find her place in her family and in America. Kadohata's short stories have appeared in The New Yorker and the quarterly The Pennsylvania Review. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the novel Polar Star by Martin Cruz Smith, his sequel to his 1981 best-seller Gorky Park. Reappearing in Polar Star is Arkady Renko, the intrepid police investigator hero of Gorky Park.

Interview with Michael M. Baden; Review of Francesco Cilea and Magda Olivero's album "Adrianna Lecouvreur"; Interview with Mary Kay Blakely; Commentary on space exploration. July 19, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457692].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Medical examiner MICHAEL M. BADEN. In his new book, Unnatural Death: Confessions of a Medical Examiner, Baden, the former chief medical examiner for New York City, reviews the record of famous autopsies of the last 30 years as evidence of a pattern of bungled investigations of unnatural deaths. Baden, who has been a medical examiner for 30 years, views his profession as a historian or anthropologist who revisits ruined or questionable autopsies in the hopes of correcting history. Baden is now director of the forensic sciences unit for the New York State Police. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new issue of a live recording of the opera "Adriana Lecouvreur" by the Italian composer FRANCESCO CILEA. In this performance, Cilea's favorite soprano, Magda Olivero, sings the title role. This recording was made by a fan who snuck in a tape recorder to what turned out to be Olivero's farewell performance in the role. INT.2: Writer MARY KAY BLAKELY. In 1984, shortly after a divorce, a recent diagnosis of diabetes, the suicide of a brother and a series of missed deadlines in her job as a journalist, Blakely collapsed into a coma. The coma lasted nine days, and when Blakely awoke, she saw the coma as a signal that the crush of commitments and societal pressures had overwhelmed her body, that "the life she planned no longer fit the woman she had become." Blakely writes about her journey back from her coma and her decision to redirect her life in her book Wake Me When It's Over. REV.2: On the eve of the 20th anniversary of man's first walk on the moon, commentator STEWART BRAND shares his thoughts on space exploration and how it has changed us. Brand is founder of The Whole Earth Catalog.

---

Interview with Joe Williams; Commentary on the vocal group The Dells; Interview with Agnes Varda; Review of Jiri Weil's novel "Life with a Star." July 20, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924627].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Jazz singer JOE WILLIAMS. He begin singing professionally at age 17, influenced by Erskine Tate, Jimmy Noone and Coleman Hawkins. In 1954, he became Count Basie's number one singer and was perhaps the principal reason the band was the dominate big band of the 50s and 60s. His hits include "Every Day (I Have the Blues)" and "All Right, Ok, You Win." He started performing as a soloist in 1961.

REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles The Dells, the Chicago singing group that's enjoyed consistent success, with practically the same lineup, since 1952. INT.2: French film director AGNES VARD. Her movies include "Vagabond" and "One Sings, the Other Doesn't." In her new movie, "Kung Fu Master," her 15-year-old son stars opposite actress JANE BIRKIN. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Life With A Star," by the late Czech novelist JIRI WEIL.
Interview with Michael Doris; Review of Marshall Crenshaw and Chris Isaak's albums; Interview with Fred Schneider and Kate Pierson; Review of the film "When Harry Met Sally." July 20, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457787].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer MICHAEL DORRIS. He and his wife, Louise Erdrich, have written several novels together, including Love Medicine and Yellow Raft in Blue Water. Both are part Native American, and Dorris spent several years of his childhood on an Indian reservation. He has adopted many children, one of which he later discovered was born with fetal alcohol syndrome. Dorris's new book, The Broken Cord, is about this syndrome, and also his personal story of dealing with it in his family. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums by MARSHALL CRENSHAW and CHRIS ISAAK. INT.2: Vocalist FRED SCHNEIDER and singer/keyboardist KATE PIERSON of the rock band The B-52's. In the late 70's, the group came to New York from Athens, Georgia and scored a hit with their song "Rock Lobster." Their danceable music and 60's style stood out among the new wave groups of New York's downtown music scene. They have a new album titled "Cosmic Thing." REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "When Harry Met Sally," the new romantic comedy by director Rob Reiner ("Stand By Me," "This is Spinal Tap") that stars Billy Crystal and Meg Ryan.

Interview with George Wilson; Interview with John Hammond; Interview with David Cale; Commentary on the music of of Alva Rogers. July 21, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457690].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Washington Post chief defense correspondent GEORGE WILSON. His new book, Mud Soldiers: Life Inside the New American Army, is an analysis of the efficiency and morale of the all-volunteer Army Infantry, the combat branch that would bear the brunt of any war, and which almost certainly sustain the highest loses. Wilson spent a year with 200 recruits, following them from basic training to maneuvers in the Mohave Desert, to their first assignments. Wilson's other books include Army in Anguish and Supercarrier. REV.1: Grammy Award-winning blues singer JOHN HAMMOND performs two songs in Fresh Air's weekly performance segment. Hammond has performed for nearly twenty years, and in that time his style has evolved from straight-forward, rural blues to a harder-edged, urban style of blues. He is the son of music impresario JOHN HAMMOND Sr. who helped launched and nurture the careers of Bob Dylan, Benny Goodman and Billie Holiday. INT.2: Comic monologuist DAVID CALE. He is one of the rising stars of the loosely-knit New York performance scene that brought out stars like Spalding Grey, Eric Bogosian and Laurie Anderson. In "Smooch Music," one of his best-received monologues, Cale, accompanied by a saxophonist, interweaves 23 vignettes on romance in New York City, with characters that range from the president of a swinger's club to pubescent boy who makes hickies on his neck with a vacuum cleaner hose. The text for "Smooch Music" and another piece, titled "The Redthroats," was recently published. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, April 12, 1989.) REV.2: Critic-at-Large LAURIE STONE reviews the work of the young singer ALVA ROGERS. Rogers has performed in clubs throughout the New York City area over the last several weeks.

Interview with Chris Walas; Review of Bob Stewart's album "Goin' Home"; Interview with Frederick Forsyth; Review of the television show "POV July 24, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457778].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Special effects master and director CHRIS WALAS. He directed "Fly II," the sequel to the popular remake of "The Fly," about a scientist whose genetic experiments run amok. Walas was responsible for the special effects in "The Fly." He got his start in film making working for the special effects team for several Roger Corman films, including "Piranha." His work was first noticed in the film "Scanners;" it was Walas who created and choreographed the famous exploding head scene. Another well-known scene Walas created was the melting Nazi in "Raiders of the Lost Ark." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, February 23, 1989.) REV 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Goin' Home," the second album by tuba player and composer BOB STEWART. Stewart, who stresses that the tuba is a world instrument, heard everywhere from New Orleans to Surinam, mixes genres in this album, jumping from "Sweet Georgia Brown" to Thelonious Monk's "Bemsha Swing." INT 2: Novelist FREDERICK FORSYTH. With the publication of The Day of the Jackal, The Odessa File and The Dogs of War, all in the space of three years, critics dubbed Frederick Forsyth a master of the international suspense thriller. The plots of all his stories have been praised for their split-second calculations and for their attention to the mechanical details of, say, mixing the right sunburn salve or creating an atomic bomb. Forsyth turned to novels after a long career as a newspaper and radio reporter throughout Europe and Africa. Forsyth's new novel, titled The Negotiator, is his first with an American hero and revolves around a plot to bring down the Presidency on the eve of signing a major disarmament treaty. (Rebroadcast. Originally

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor AVERY BROOKS. He reached stardom with his TV portrayal of "Hawk," the strong, almost silent partner in the detective series "Spenser for Hire." He took that character into its own series last season. Brooks brings to his TV work the same concern for African-American culture that has marked his stage career and his life. He won acclaim for his reinterpretation of the Harriet Beecher-Stowe character "Uncle Tom" in a production on the Showtime cable channel, and for his stage portrayal of Paul Robeson. A jazz singer as well, Brooks played the title role in Anthony Davis' opera, "X: The Life and Times of Malcolm X." REV.1: Rock Historian ED WARD traces the origin of the 60s psychedelic ballroom scene, not to San Francisco, but to Austin, Texas. INT.2: Poet and essayist JOHN HAINES. Haines' new book The Stars, The Snow, The Fire, recalls the 25 years he spent homesteading in the Alaskan wilderness. Haines is more than "one of our best nature writers," according to Hayden Carruth of Harpers Magazine. Carruth writes that Haines "knows the ecological crisis ... as a crisis of consciousness, the human mind in ultimate confrontation with itself. REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Life of Graham Greene, Volume 1, 1904-1939, by NORMAN SHERRY.
the lives of Chinese-American immigrants. He made his first film, "Chan is Missing," on a budget of only $22,000, but the mystery set in San Francisco's Chinatown became both a critical and box-office success. Chan's new movie, "Eat a Bowl of Tea," takes place just after World War Two, when Chinese women were first allowed to immigrate to America in large numbers. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two new compact discs of music conducted by Arturo Toscanini. Schwartz says these two discs are rare examples of Toscanini conducting live performances while still at the height of his powers. INT.2: Pianist DUBRAVKA TOMSIC. Tomsic came to the United States from her native Yugoslavia as a teenager. Her playing so impressed Arthur Rubinstein that he personally intervened with the Yugoslavian government to fund her music studies here. Tomsic returned to Yugoslavia after her graduation from Juilliard. She is now back in the United States for the first time in 30 years, for a small number of concerts and recording sessions. REV.2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN looks back at Ex-Wife a 1929 novel by Ursula Parrott that has recently been re-printed. Corrigan finds many of the issues of contemporary feminism wrapped up in this story of a flapper who tries an "open" marriage.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: JOEL ROSENMAN and JOHN ROBERTS. Twenty years ago Rosenman and Roberts were in their 20s when they came into a large inheritance. They decided to take the money and promote a rock concert in upstate New York. What they ended up organizing was Woodstock, possibly the one event that best sums up an entire era of American history. Their new book, Young Men With Unlimited Capital, gives a month-by-month account of the preparation for the festival, the pair's shock and confusion when Woodstock turned out to be magnitudes bigger than planned, and their months of legal hassles in the wake of the festival. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new reggae albums, "One Bright Day," by Ziggy Marley (son of the late Bob Marley) and "Cumbolo" by the Jamaican group Culture. INT.2: Author and satirist ROBERT KAPLOW. Kaplow is the leader of the satirical group, "The Punsters," which has appeared on "Morning Edition," "All Things Considered," and more recently here on Fresh Air. Kaplow himself portrays Moe Moscowitz, the hyper-kinetic self-promoter and pitchman. Kaplow also writes novels for young adults. His latest novel is titled Alessandra in Love. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN

- Page 611 -
SCHIFF reviews "Turner and Hooch," the new comedy starring Tom Hanks as a man who's life is turned upside down when he inherits a huge, slobbering dog.

Interview with Jose Torres; Interview with John Hammond; Interview with David L. Kirp; Commentary on "cyberspace." July 28, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457777].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Author JOSE TORRES. His new book, Fire and Fear, charts the personal turmoil and the athletic rise of heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson. Torres comes to the Tyson story well qualified: he's the former world light heavyweight boxing champion (his lifetime record was 52-3-1), and he trained with the same man who trained Mike Tyson. Since retiring, Torres has served as the New York state boxing commissioner and written a biography of Mohammad Ali titled Sting Like A Bee. REV.1: Blues musician JOHN HAMMOND returns in Fresh Air's weekly performance segment with a demonstration of his slide guitar style. He plays songs by Son House and Big Bill Broonzey. INT.2: Social policy analyst DAVID L. KIRP. The author of many books on education in America, David Kirp's latest, Learning by Heart," describes the battles in 7 different communities over whether to allow children infected with AIDS to attend local schools. REV.2: Commentator STEWART BRAND reports on his first journey through cyberspace, a type of three-dimensional computer-generated world that humans can `fly through' by simply pointing a finger. Brand traces the evolution of Cyberspace through recent fiction.

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Musician BARRY TUCKWELL. He played French horn with the London Symphony Orchestra for 13 years before leaving in 1966 to begin a solo career. He's the first French horn player to have a career as a soloist, and he recently began conducting as well. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, January 4, 1989.) REV 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new reissue of the late tenor saxophonist ALBERT AYLER. A key part of the free jazz movement of the 1960s, Ayler's sound has been likened to speaking in tongues. INT 2: Time Magazine correspondent OTTO FRIEDRICH. Friedrich talks of his work at Time and Newsweek, from his coverage of the French war in Indochina, to the essays and cover stories he now writes at Time. A collection of his essays, titled The Grave of Alice B. Toklas, has just been published. REV 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the memoir of rock musician Frank Zappa.

Interview with David Lewiston; Commentary on Gene Vincent; Interview with Buck Clayton; Commentary on The Capris. August 1, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501278].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Musicologist DAVID LEWISTON. Since the early 60s, Lewiston has traveled the world collecting the music of the indigenous cultures. He's recorded the Andean music of Peru, the fiestas of southern Mexico and the marimba music of Guatemala. In addition, he's travelled extensively in the Himalayas and other remote, mountainous areas of the Far East. These recordings have been released as part of the Nonesuch Record Company's Explorer Series. Over the last few years, Lewiston has focused on the music and rituals of the people of Tibet, now living in exile in northern India. The most recent release of the Nonesuch Explorer series features Lewiston's recordings of the music of Bali. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles Gene Vincent, an early rocker who, it has been said, "sounded more like Elvis than Elvis." After Elvis burst onto the scene, record companies scrambled to find Elvis look-alikes and sound-alikes. He became a bigger hit in England than America, but he's easily remembered for his hit "Be-Bop-A-Lula." INT.2: Trumpeter and composer BUCK CLAYTON. Clayton was one of the most prominent members of Count Basie's original band. But when a lip problem hurt his playing, he turned to composing and arranging. Clayton now leads a band that performs his own compositions. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, October 14, 1987.) REV.2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads a poem inspired by a song by the Doo-Wop group The Capris. Halliday, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, has read several of his poems on Fresh Air. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, December 30, 1988.)
Interview with Joe Kane; Review of performances at the PepsiCo Summerfare Festival; Interview with Marta Renzi; Commentary on moving. August 2, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501353].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer JOE KANE. In 1985, Kane, who had been a freelance writer living in San Francisco, was asked to follow the first attempt to navigate the entire Amazon river, starting in the Andes of Peru and ending in the Atlantic Ocean. Kane was going to follow the group at intervals, publicizing their progress for the American and European press. But the logistics of the trip quickly fell apart and Kane went from observer to participant in a harrowing journey through some of the most difficult rapids in the world, and through territory controlled by the Shining Path guerrillas and Peruvian drug lords. In end, only Kane and a companion were left to kayak the 3,600 miles of calm waters to the Atlantic. Kane's account of his odyssey is titled Running the Amazon. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the final three performances of the PepsiCo Summerfare Arts Festival at Purchase, New York. For ten years, the Pepsi-Cola company has underwritten an annual international arts festival that will best be remembered for its ambitious presentations of operas by Mozart and Handel that were directed by Peter Sellars. In this segment, Lloyd reviews performances of Mozart's three great Italian operas, "The Marriage of Figaro," "Don Giovanni" and "Cosi fan tutte." INT.2: Dancer and choreographer MARTA RENZI. Typical of her work is "Mountainview," a half-hour dance narrative that premieres this Thursday, August 3 on the PBS program "Alive From Off Center." "Mountainview" is set at the bar of rundown resort run by three generations of the same family. The families loves and jealousies are played out to the sounds of the jukebox, which features the music of Bruce Springsteen, Tammy Wynette and Aretha Franklin. RENZI choreographed the dances and other movements and collaborated with filmmaker JOHN SAYLES on the camera work. Renzi's other works include "Liquid Measure," a meditation on Schubert's "Death and the Maiden," and "I'm Not Very Pretty," a work performed to a text Interview with Aljean Harmetz; Interview with Alan Zweibel; Review of the film "Parenthood." August 3, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501277].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film writer ALJEAN HARMETZ. She covers the movie industry for The New York Times, reporting on the business side of Hollywood. To coincide with the 50th anniversary of the release of "The Wizard of Oz,” Harmetz has just re-released her first book, The Making of the Wizard of Oz. In it, she details the behind-the-scenes intrigue that almost scuttled what it is probably the most popular movie ever made. REV.1: NO MUSIC REVIEW TODAY! INT.2: Comedy writer ALAN ZWEIBEL. He was one of the original writers for "Saturday Night Live." He wrote the `Samurai' skits for John Belushi, and the Emily Litella and Roseanne Roseannadanna skits for Gilda Radner. He now has two projects on television - "The Gary Shandling Show" and "The Boys," a comedy special on the Showtime cable network. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Parenthood," a comedy starring Steve Martin and Rick Moranis, and directed by Ron Howard. Howard's previous films include two hits and a flop: "Splash," "Cocoon" and "Willow."

Interview with Myra Lewis; Review of Mary's Danish's and Don Henley's albums "There Goes the Wondertruck" and "The End of the Innocence"; Interview with Bernie Krause; Commentary on James Bond films. August 4, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500831].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: MYRA LEWIS. In 1958, when she was only 13 years old, Myra married rock star Jerry Lee Lewis, who was also her second cousin. The public controversy over that marriage ruined Lewis' career for over a decade. In 1982, Myra Lewis wrote a memoir of her life with Jerry Lee Lewis, titled Great Balls Of Fire. That book is the basis of the new movie starring Jerry Lee Lewis and Winona Ryder. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new albums from Los Angeles groups. The first is the debut album from Mary's Danish, a band that Ken says combines the roughness of punk with a sense of melody and humor. The other is the latest solo album from Don Henley, a former member of the Eagles. INT.2: Bioacoustics researcher and field recordist BERNIE KRAUSE. Krause has a new album called "Gorillas in the Mix." It features selections from new age to dance tunes. What makes the album remarkable is that every sound on it is from nature. Krause recorded and mixed together whales, apes, insects, the sound of shifting sands, and hundreds of other natural sources. Krause was a Motown session musician in the 60s, before earning a Ph.D. in bioacoustics. REV.2: Critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews the vintage James Bond movies available on home video cassette.
Interview with William Shawcross; Review of Ella Fitzgerald's album "Clap Hands, Here Comes Charlie"; Interview with Martha Plimpton; Interview with David Bianculli. August 7, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500895].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Journalist WILLIAM SHAWCROSS. He wrote the introduction to a new book on the plight of the world's refugees. His most recent book The Shah's Last Ride and it documented the Shah's fall and flight from Iran as the Islamic revolution swept his country and much of the Middle East. Shawcross, a Briton, is also the author of the award-winning Sideshow: Kissinger, Nixon and the Destruction of Cambodia, which documented the extent of America's involvement in Cambodia at the same time it was engaged in Vietnam. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, April 4, 1989.) REV 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new reissue of Ella Fitzgerald's 1961 album, "Clap Hands, Here Comes Charlie." Kevin calls the album an amiable mix of jazz and pop standards, novelty numbers and maudlin torch songs. INT 2: Actress MARTHA PLIMPTON. She appears in the new Ron Howard movie "Parenthood" as an independent, rebellious teenager. Although only 17, this is already Plimpton's 6th feature film. Her other film credits include "The Mosquito Coast," "The Goonies," "Another Woman," and "Running On Empty." REV 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI talks with host Terry Gross about the upcoming fall lineup.

Interview with George Clinton; Commentary on the Jive Five; Interview with Bobbie Louise Hawkins; Review of David Lodge's novel "Nice Work." August 8, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501275].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: The master of funk, GEORGE CLINTON. He began his musical career as a teenager when he formed The Parliaments. But in the early 70s, Clinton put together a second group, "Funkadelic," that became enormously influential on the pop music scene. Their 1970 album, "Osmium," set the tone for Clinton's wickedly eclectic style; songs ranged from metaphysical gospel to country and acid rock. But their big hit came with the album "Mothership Connection." In songs like "Tear the Roof Off the Sucker," "Get Up on the Downstroke" and "Think! It ain't illegal yet," Clinton blended rap with a heavy rhythm line that defined the funk sound and culture. His latest album, "The Cinderella Theory," will be released today. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles Jive Five, a soul band led by EUGENE PITT that flourished briefly in the mid-60s. Pitt was one of the few rhythm and blues artists to successfully make the transition to soul. He's best remembered for the song "What's Your Name." INT.2: Writer and performer BOBBIE LOUISE HAWKINS. In addition to her poetry and prose, Hawkins is an artist, playwright and actress. Her books include One Small Saga, Back to Texas, Frenchy and Cuban Pete, Almost Everything. Her new book, My Own Alphabet, is a collection of stories, essays and memoirs. Hawkins also tours with Terry Garthwaite and Rosalie Sorrels in a performance that combines jazz, story-telling and folk music. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Nice Work, the new novel by David Lodge. It's a comedy about the clash of cultures between a college professor and a factory worker.

Interview with James Cameron; Review of the album "Musiciens français des ballets russes"; Interview with Keenen Ivory Wayans; Commentary on "Batmania." August 9, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500896].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Director JAMES CAMERON. Though his career is relatively young, Cameron has established himself as one of the best directors and writers of intense dramas that jump between exhilaration and terror. His best-known work is "Aliens," the sequel to the 1979 sci-fi classic in which Lt. Ripley, played by Sigourney Weaver, stalks a vicious alien that's invaded her spacecraft and is slaughtering the crew. The film was nominated for seven Oscars and won two. Cameron's first feature film was "The Terminator." His new film, "The Abyss," is set for release today. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of music originally written for The Ballets Russes. The five ballets featured in the recording all have music written by French composers, among them ERIK SATIE and FRANÇOIS POULENCE. INT.2: KEENEN IVORY WAYANS. He co-wrote and acted in "Hollywood Shuffle," Robert Townsend's film about a black actor trying to make it in a world of show business stereotypes. Earlier this year, he released his own film, "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka," a comedy that parodies black exploitation, kung fu and wild action movies. He wrote, directed and stars in the film. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, January 12, 1989.) REV.2: Writer and critic PATRICIA McLAUGHLIN looks at the wave of "Batmania" now at full force throughout the country.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Political writers JACK GERMOND and JULES WITCOVER. Their new book, Whose Broad Stripes and Bright Stars? is an examination of last year's Presidential election. In particular, the book focuses on the degree to which behind-the-scenes 'handlers' determined the election's tone and outcome. The book also explores how the process of picking a president has changed in the 30 years that they have covered national politics. Germond and Witcover write the only nationally syndicated daily column devoted to politics. Germond also appears each week on the PBS show "The McLaughlin Group." REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "The Cinderella Theory," the new album by the master of funk, GEORGE CLINTON. Clinton began his musical career when he formed The Parliaments. But it's with his densely layered rhythm lines and rap that Clinton has made his mark on music, defining the funk sound and culture. His best-known songs include "Tear the Roof Off the Sucker," "Atomic Dog" and "Think! It ain't illegal yet." INT.2: Writer DANIEL STERN. Stern's written nine novels, and he's just published his first book of short stories. It's called Twice Told Tales, and it pays homage to works by Hemingway, Freud, Lionel Trilling, Henry James, and E.M. Forster. Stern has also been a professional cellist with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, an English professor, and the head of advertising for one of the TV networks. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "sex, lies, and videotape," the first feature film by 26-year-old director and writer Stephen Soderbergh. The film, made on a budget of $1.2 million, won the top prize at this year's Cannes Film Festival.

Interview with John McPhee; Commentary on The Museum of Jurassic Technology; Interview with Lowell Ganz; Commentary on the "self." August 11, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501412].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer JOHN McPHEE. He's a classic example of a "writer's writer," one whose style is endlessly studied and mimicked, and whose effortlessness in moving between subjects as diverse as Alaskan geology, oranges, and birch-bark canoes is the envy of every freelancer. He's worked at The New Yorker magazine since the late 60s and is one of its most popular contributors. His best-known books include
A Sense of Where You Are, about Rhodes Scholar and basketball star Bill Bradley, Coming into the Country, about Alaska, and Pieces of the Frame," about curator Thomas Hoving and the world of high art. Over the last several years, McPhee's magazine pieces have focused on the earth sciences. His new book is titled The Control of Nature. REV.1: Contributor ILENE SEGALOVE takes us on a tour of The Museum of Jurassic Technology, a Los Angeles museum of "unnatural history." The museum features exhibits of the bizarre and improbable, such as the "Deprong Mori," a South American bat that uses X-ray to fly through solid objects, or the way extreme ultraviolet rays appear to restore the flesh to a skeleton. INT.2: Screenwriter and producer LOWELL GANZ. He co-wrote the script to "Parenthood," the new comedy starring Steve Martin. He also co-wrote the script for "Splash," which introduced Tom Hanks and Daryl Hannah. Both films were directed by friend and collaborator Ron Howard. Ganz also was the supervising producer of the popular TV series "Happy Days," starring Henry Winkler as The Fonz. REV.2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY returns to Fresh Air to read one of his latest works. Halliday, an English professor at the University of Pennsylvania, has published several books of poetry. The most recent is titled Little Star.

Interview with Sylvia Earle; Review of Christopher Hollyday's album "Christopher Hollyday"; Interview with Phillip Hoose; Review of the television program "Nightmare Classics." August 14, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501647].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Marine botanist SYLVIA EARLE. She's been described as one of the most intrepid divers in the history of underwater exploration. She's swum with humpback whales, explored the kelp forests off the coast of California, and dove into the trenches off the coasts of Hawaii where she once went to depths of 1,250 feet, which at the time was the deepest any human had dove without a connection to the surface. Earle is best known for her work on "Gentle Giants of the Pacific," the popular PBS series on the whales of the Pacific, and also for her numerous articles in "National Geographic." Earle recently met with other scientists to survey the March oil spill in Prince William's Sound in Alaska. REV 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD profiles the young alto saxophonist CHRISTOPHER HOLLEYDAY. While still in his teens, Hollyday toured with bandleader Maynard Ferguson and headlined at New York's Village Vanguard. Hollyday plays in the style of Charlie Parker, the great bop alto saxophonist. INT 2: Writer PHILLIP HOOSE. In his new book, Necessities: Racial Barriers in American Sports, Hoose examines the role of blacks in sport, from why there has never been a black Olympic swimmer to the continued use of racial information by the scouting agencies that survey high school basketball players. Hoose began the book after the furor sparked by baseball executive Al Campanis' remark on national TV that blacks lacked 'the necessities' to manage a major league baseball or football team. REV 2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Nightmare Classics." It's an anthology series on the Showtime cable network that adapts classic gothic and horror tales. The series is produced by actress Shelly Duvall, who won critical praise for her "Faerie Tale Theatre," and "Tall Tales and Legends," two productions for kids.

Interview with Allan Burns; Commentary on the Woodstock Festival; Interview with Don DeLillo; Review of Peter Handke's novel "The Afternoon of the Writer." August 15, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501651].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Television producer and screenwriter ALLAN BURNS. He co-created "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Rhoda," "He and She," "Lou Grant" and "The Munsters," a body of work that has earned him 8 Emmys. Burns has a new series this fall on NBC titled "FM." It's about the on-the-job and at home travails of a public radio program director. REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD looks back at the Woodstock Festival and tries to separate the facts of the 3-day event from the warp of nostalgia twenty years later. INT.2: Novelist DON DeLILLO. His most recent novel, Libra, is based on the assassination of President Kennedy and the various conspiracy theories that continue to swirl around the tragedy. It became an immediate bestseller when it was published last year, and is now at the top of the paperback best seller lists. DeLillo's eight previous novels, starting with Americana and the bestseller and American Book Award winner White Noise, all revolve around conspiracy theories and the public's conviction that public events are never what they seem. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, August 9, 1988.) REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Afternoon of the Writer, by Austrian novelist Peter Handke.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Astronomer and science writer TIMOTHY FERRIS. His most recent book, Coming of Age in the Milky Way, is the story of how man discovered his place in the cosmos. The book was a surprise bestseller last year and was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize. Critics hailed the book as a literary and scientific breakthrough that reads both as intellectual history and an adventure story. Ferris' first book, The Red Limit, was similarly praised for creating a new style of science book that combines the force of fact and detail with the grace of fiction writing. Ferris also wrote and narrated the PBS special "The Creation of the Universe." Coming of Age in the Milky Way was just released in paperback. Ferris also produced the Voyager phonograph record, an artifact of human civilization that was launched aboard the Voyager space craft probe. REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new release of performances of four violin concertos by FRITZ KREISLER. Kreisler, an Austrian who died in 1962, was probably the most renown violinist in the world in the period between the two World Wars. The double compact-disc set, which also includes three shorter pieces, is released on the Music and Arts label. INT.2: Reporter and novelist RON TAYLOR. For the last 20 years, Taylor has reported on California agriculture, focusing on the life of farm laborers. Taylor was the first reporter to focus on Cesar Chavez, the migrant laborer who spearheaded the movement for a farm workers union with highly publicized work stoppages and boycotts of California produce. Taylor has written three books on the subject of farm labor: Sweatshops in the Sun, The Kid Business, and Chavez and the Farm Workers. His latest work, Long Road Home, is a novel that has been described by critics as a sequel to Steinbeck's Grapes of Wrath, the classic account of the vast migration to the California in the 30s. Taylor is now a reporter for The Los Angeles Times. REV.2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Th
Korean jetliner 007 by the Russians, and "Shocker," a thriller by horror film director Wes Craven due for release later this fall. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new rap albums from LL Cool J, Kool Moe Dee, and a compilation album from Boogie Down productions. INT.2: Pianist and singer HADDA BROOKS. In the days following World War II, Brooks was a key figure in the West Coast jazz and blues scene. Her singing led to roles in movies and to a stint hosting a television show; she was the first black woman to earn that distinction. When her style of jazz and boogie woogie piano went into decline in the 50s, Brooks lived and performed overseas. She resumed her career in America in 1987, and was an immediate hit. She's currently appearing at Michael's Pub in New York City with singer Thelma Carpenter. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF review "Casualties of War," the new film by director Brian De Palma and starring Sean Penn and Michael J. Fox.
Interview with Shelley Winters; Review of Alvin Batiste's album "Bayou Magic"; Interview with Christopher Alexander; Review of the television program "Primetime Live." August 21, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501811].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: SHELLEY WINTERS. With two Oscars and well over 100 films to her credit, Winters is a star in the classic Hollywood mode. But she is almost as well known for her off-screen adventures and irrepressible life style that made her a staple in the gossip columns. She is best known for her roles in the films "A Place in the Sun," "Night of the Hunter," "Diary of Anne Frank" and "A Patch of Blue." Off-screen, Winters went through a succession of tempestuous marriages, but was also a highly visible participant in the careers of Adlai Stevenson and John Kennedy, and in the civil rights movement. She second volume of Shelley Winters autobiography has just been published. It's titled Shelley II: The Middle of My Century. REV 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Bayou Magic," a new album by clarinetist ALVIN BATISTE. Since the 50s, Batiste has been a key figure in the modern jazz movement in New Orleans. Under the auspices of the State Department, he has toured the world extensively, and is also a teacher at Southern University in Baton Rouge, where his students have included Branford Marsalis and Donald Harrison. INT 2: Architect and writer CHRISTOPHER ALEXANDER. His philosophy of "every man an architect" holds that ordinary people are the best designers of their own homes and workplaces, and that intuition in design should be trusted ahead of reason. He has worked this position out in books like A Pattern Language and The Timeless Way of Building, books that have made him a leading figure in a continuing schism in the architectural community against the `glass box' syndrome of modern architecture. REV 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Primetime Live," ABC's enormously hyped live, hour-long, primetime news program featuring Sam Donaldson and Diane Sawyer.

Interview with Pico Iyer; Commentary on Bob Dylan; Interview with Fred Koller; Review of Carlos Fuentes' novel "Christopher Unborn." August 22, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501479].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Writer PICO IYER. His book Video Night in Kathmandu explores the subtle and often humorous Westernization of the Far East. Iyer, who reported for Time Magazine for four years, found the West's influence in mohawk haircuts in Bali, six Filipino girls doing a perfect rendition of a Madonna hit, Japan's baseball mania and a Chinese cafeteria that served dishes like "Yes, Sir, Cheese My Baby," and "Ike and Tuna Tuner." Video Night in Kathmandu has just been published in paperback. REV.1: Rock historian EDWARD profiles BOB DYLAN as songwriter, focusing on Dylan's rocky transition from a folk singer into a rock and roller. The key, Ed says, was getting other people to do pop covers of Dylan's folk hits. INT.2: Songwriter FRED KOLLER. He's one of Nashville's top songwriters. His songs have been recorded by Loretta Lynn, Jerry Lee Lewis, Dave Edmunds and Hank Williams Jr. He has also collaborated with John Prine, John Hiatt and Pat Alger. But in his book How to Pitch and Promote Your Song, Koller guides the novice songwriter through the music business, with tips on how best to present your songs. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Christopher Unborn," the new novel by CARLOS FUENTES.
Interview with Terry Williams; Review of The Beastie Boys, Queen Latifah, and 2 Live Crew albums; Interview with Ronald Takaki; Review of the film "The Package." August 24, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501481].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: African-American sociologist TERRY WILLIAMS. He's the coauthor of Growing Up Poor, a highly-praised analysis of the effects of poverty that persists through several generations. His new book, The Cocaine Kids, is the story of a teenage drug ring. Since 1982 he has spent much of his time hanging out with teenage cocaine dealers in cocaine bars, after-hours clubs, discos, restaurants, crack houses, on street corners and at family gatherings and parties. What emerges is a portrait of the urban cocaine business. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER continues his look at current rap releases. This week he explores the music of The Beastie Boys, Queen Latifah and the 2 Live Crew. INT.2: RONALD TAKAKI. He's the grandson of Japanese immigrants and a professor of Ethnic Studies at Berkeley. His book, Strangers from a Different Shore: A History of Asian Americans, tells the diverse stories of Asian immigrants who have come to the United States during the past century and a half. Takaki relates the personal testimonies of new immigrants and their American-born children. He also explores issues such as the resurgence of racism Asian-American students have experienced in campuses across the country, and the "glass ceiling" that keeps Asian-American engineers from advancing into management positions. REV.2: Guest film critic PETER RAINER reviews The Package, the new suspense thriller starring Gene Hackman.

Interview with Loudon Wainwright, III; Commentary on "world music"; Interview with Martin Cruz Smith; Review of the film "Naked Gun." August 25, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501618].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: A concert with singer and songwriter LOUDON WAINWRIGHT III. He writes very personal, eccentric songs that take a darkly humorous, sometimes caustic view of life. He first gained fame with his hit song "Dead Skunk in the Middle of the Road." His new album is titled "Therapy." REV.1: Guest critic MILO MILES has a primer on world music, and he examines why it should, by all rights, be more popular in the U.S. than it is. Miles is the former rock critic for The Boston Phoenix. INT.2: Writer MARTIN CRUZ SMITH. His latest novel, Polar Star, is his sequel to his 1981 best-seller Gorky Park. In Polar Star, Cruz Smith revives Arkady Renko, the intrepid police investigator hero of Gorky Park. Smith is also the author of Stallion Gate, a novel about the making of the atomic bomb. REV.2: Guest film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews the home video release of "Naked Gun," the police farce produced and directed by the makers of "Airplane." "Naked Gun," which premiered on movie screens early last spring, was based on the six-episode TV program "Police Squad," which recently aired on cable TV.

Interview with Raul Julia; Review of Louie Bellson's album "East Side Suite"; Interview with Oscar Hijuelos; Review of the television program "FM." August 28, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501620].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Actor RAUL JULIA. His films include "Kiss of the Spider Woman," "Moon Over Parador," "Tango Bar" and the recent "Tequila Sunrise." His latest film, "Romero," is based on the life, and assassination, of the Salvadoran Archbishop Oscar Romero. The film follows Romero's life as a once-silent priest, praised by the ruling government for his restraint, who is suddenly awakened by a string of senseless murders as right-wing death squads hunt out "communists." Romero becomes a champion of Salvador's poor and an embarrassment to the government and is later murdered while saying mass. REV 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the latest album by jazz drummer and big band leader LOUIE BELLSON. Bellson, the husband of Pearl Bailey, has been drumming since three. When he was 17, he won a nationwide competition sponsored by Gene Kruppa that launched his career. He's played for Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey, Harry James and Duke Ellington. INT 2: Writer OSCAR HIJUELOS. His new novel, The Mambo Kings Play Songs of Love, is the story of Cuban immigrant brothers who work by day at grimy, exhausting jobs in a meat-packing house, but by night, in silk suits and lace ties, play the mambo, the vibrant, footloose music of Cuba. Surrounded by musicians wearing vests decorated with sequined palm trees, the Castillo brothers try to secure their own version of the American Dream. Their lives climax when they appear on the "I Love Lucy Show,". Hijuelos' first novel, Our House In the Last World, was a largely autobiographical account of the Cuban immigrant experience. REV 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks at "FM," the new NBC series about the on-the-job and at-home travails of a public radio program director.
Interview with Gregory Hines; Review of Benjamin Britten's albums "Albert Herring" and "Billy Budd"; Interview with Taghi Modarressi; Commentary on language commentators. August 30, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501402].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Dancer and actor GREGORY HINES. Hines made a name for himself on Broadway, in shows such as "Eubie," and "Sophisticated Ladies," as well as Hollywood, where he appeared in "The Cotton Club," "White Knights," and "Running Scared." Hines' latest film, "Tap," is a musical about the waning days of that dance form. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, February 8, 1989.) REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two recent reissues of composer BENJAMIN BRITTEN conducting two of his works, "Albert Herring" and "Billy Budd." INT.2: Novelist TAGHI MODARRESSI. His new novel, The Pilgrim's Rules of Etiquette, is set in Iran after the Islamic revolution. It revolves around an aging academic, well acquainted with the ways and mores of the West, and his family and friends as they deal with the fear and poverty during the Iran-Iraq War. But when his prize student is killed at the front, the academic, who until now has closeted himself away with his philosophical pursuits, must acknowledge the meaninglessness of his efforts when compared to the chaos of contemporary Iran. Modarressi, a native of Iran who has written two earlier novels in Persian, is a psychiatrist who heads the Infant Study program at the University of Maryland School of Medicine. REV.2: Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG, unhappy with his job description, tries on a few other possibilities while dissecting the very notion of a "language commentator."

Interview with James Trefil; Interview with Herk Harvey and John Clifford; Interview with Peter Rainer. August 31, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501621].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Physicist JAMES TREFIL. His writings have been praised for bringing the complexities of modern science to the general reader. One of his best-known books, Meditations At Sunset, won wide praise for his ability to explain the wonders of the physical world in ways the layman can comprehend. His other books include The Moment of Creation and Meditations at 10,000 Feet. His latest book, Reading The Mind of God, explores the sequence of events that led to the discovery of universality - the principle that the laws of nature on earth apply throughout the universe. REV.1: Pre-empted; extended Interview Two. INT.2: Film director HERK HARVEY and script writer JOHN CLIFFORD. Their 1962 low-budget horror
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

“Carnival of Souls,” has just been re-released. The film was shown only sporadically at the time of its completion, mostly to drive-ins and as half of a double feature throughout the Southeast. But in the years since, it has attracted a steady and loyal following, largely because of its occasional appearance on late-night TV. Master horror film director George Romero has said that "Carnival of Souls" was the inspiration for his "Night of the Living Dead." Harvey and Clifford, who haven't released a feature film since "Carnival of Souls," make promotional films for industry. REV.2: Guest Film Critic PETER RAINER, in attendance at this week's Montreal Film Festival, talks with host TERRY GROSS about some of the films previewed there. Rainer is the film critic for The Los Angeles Herald Examiner.

Interview with Edmund "Pat" Brown; Review of the Rolling Stones' album "Steel Wheels"; Interview with Lee Grant; Review of Peter Ackroyd's novel "First Light." September 1, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501204].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: EDMUND (Pat) BROWN, the former governor of California. From 1959 to 1967, Brown commuted the death sentences of 23 convicts, but allowed 36 others to go to the gas chambers. He has written a book, Public Justice, Private Mercy: A Governor's Education on Death Row, about the extraordinary personal and political pressures that came to bear on each decision, and of the evolution of his thinking on the death penalty from his inauguration to his last day in office. REV.1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Steel Wheels," the new album by The Rolling Stones. The release of the album is timed to the start of The Rolling Stones' extensive U.S. tour, their first since the early 80s. INT.2: Actress and director LEE GRANT. As an actress, Grant won an Oscar as Best Supporting Actress for her role in "Shampoo," Emmys for her work on "Peyton Place" and "Electra," and an Obie for "The Maids." As a director, she won an Academy Award for her documentary "Down and Out in America." This month, HBO is showing Grant's latest production, "Battered." It's a documentary about the victims, and perpetrators, of domestic violence. "Battered" airs as part of HBO's "America Undercover" series. REV.2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews First Light, a new novel by the British writer PETER ACKROYD.
Interview with Frank Oz; Commentary on women rockabilly musicians; Interview with Mickey Hart; Commentary on "getting by." September 4, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501404].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Film director FRANK OZ. He directed the comedy "Dirty Rotten Scoundrels" that starred Steve Martin and Michael Caine. But Oz is still best known as the creator and voice behind Miss Piggy, Cookie Monster and Fozzie Bear, characters who make up the Muppets. Oz, who joined Muppet Show-creator Jim Henson in 1963, also directed the Muppet films, like "The Muppets Take Manhattan." His other film is the musical comedy "Little Shop of Horrors." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Tuesday, December 20, 1988.) REV 1: Rock historian ED WARD surveys the women rockabilly stars who were trying to make it big at the same time as Elvis Presley. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Monday, March 6, 1989.) INT 2: Percussionist MICKEY HART. He's best known as a member of rock group The Grateful Dead. But Hart is also an avid collector of percussion instruments and recordings in native settings. Hart has spent the last 18 years traveling the world in his search. His collection ranges from the dance music of American Indians to Eskimo throat singers and Solomon Islands water slapping. Highlights of his field recordings have just been released in a series titled "The World." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, May 17, 1989.) REV 2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads one his latest works. Halliday, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, has read several of his poems on Fresh Air.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Television producer STEVEN BOCHCO. He is, arguably, one of the most influential creative people in television. With shows like "Hill Street Blues" and "L.A.Law," Bochco can claim credit for a whole TV genre: intensely realistic dramas that use an ensemble cast and multiple, interweaving plots that quickly cut back and forth. Those programs helped make NBC the top network and the perceived leader for innovative programming. As the other networks strive to produce programs of similar quality, TV critics have talked about the "Bochco-ization of network TV, as more and more programs use the Bochco trademarks of large casts, gallows humor and allusions to unconventional sex. Bochco began writing for Universal Studios while still in college. His first credit was shared with Rod Serling. He later wrote segments of "Columbo" and "McMillan and Wife." Last year, Bochco signed an exclusive agreement with ABC to produce 10 new series. So far, he's introduced "Hooperman," which the critics generally like. His next project, "Doogie Howser, M.D." will debut later this fall. REV.1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the first album by the trio New Winds, whose members have experiences in both jazz and classical music. Clarinetist J.D. Parran has played with an improver's collective called The Black Artists Group, saxophonist Ned Rothenberg plays with a band that does covers of 60s songs, and flutist Robert Dick has played primarily with classical ensembles. INT.2: Sound Designer RANDY THOM. He began his career in community radio (WYSO in Yellow Springs, Ohio) producing live music and dramas. He then moved into producing sound for films, although he still produces some independent radio dramas. He won an Academy Award for his work on "The Right Stuff," and Oscar nominations for the films "Return of the Jedi" and "Never Cry Wolf." His other credits include "Apocalypse Now," "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," "Tucker" and "Colors." Randy Thom is a sound designer on the Interview with John Gregory Dunne; Review of the album "New Year's Concert 1989"; Interview with Stephen Burum; Review of the television program "NFL Dream Season." September 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501401].

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Journalist, screenwriter and novelist JOHN GREGORY DUNNE. In his new book, Harp, Dunne explores what it means to be Irish Catholic in America. Dunne explores his own history - "from steerage to suburbia in three generations" - his college days longing to be a WASP, his family's scarred history (suicides, murders), and what he calls his "insane desire to be assimilated." Dunne's earlier novels include The Red White and Blue, True Confessions, Vegas and Dutch Shea, Jr. He is married to the writer Joan Didion, and together they've written the screenplays for the films "The Panic in Needle Park," "A Star is Born," "Play it as it Lays" and "True Confessions." His brother is the writer and former film producer Dominick Dunne. REV.1: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a collection of waltzes by members of Vienna's Strauss family. The album is conducted by Carlos Kleiber, son of the great Viennese conductor Erich Kleiber. INT.2: Cinematographer STEPHEN BURUM. His latest film is Brian De Palma's "Casualties of War." This is his third film for De Palma; his first was "Body Double." He also shot "The Untouchables," which was nominated for the American Society of Cinematographers Award. Burum got his start as an assistant to Francis Ford Coppola on "Apocalypse Now." His other films include
"St. Elmo's Fire," "The Outsiders" and "Rumble Fish." REV.2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Dream Season," a production of NFL Films that creates dream teams that compete in dream Super Bowls. Through computer generation and sophisticated editing, the producers take film from the last 20 years of televised football and extract key sequences featuring players from from top teams of their times and match them with other top opposing teams from different times. The effect is the video equivalent of the `what-if-the-'85-Raiders-played the-'87-Redskins' questions typical of radio call-in shows. "Dream Season" will air throughout the fall on ESPN.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Actor CHARLES GRODIN. Unlike his contemporaries - and friends - like Dustin Hoffman and Robert Redford, Grodin achieved the great success that every actor strives for only recently. He starred with Robert De Niro in last year's "Midnight Run," his first major success in a long, twisted journey through the acting profession. Grodin has written a memoir about his passage; it's titled It Would Be So Nice If You Weren't Here. Grodin's career in acting began in summer stock theater and included stints as a cab driver and postal clerk to sustain him through a seemingly endless stream of rejections. His first success came in the movie "The Heartbreak Kid," but when that was followed by the bomb "11 Harrowhouse," he didn't work again in Hollywood for 11 years. But his memoir is also the story of opportunities offered but declined, like the lead in "The Graduate." Grodin has also worked as a screenwriter, a director and a television producer. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Too Long in the Wasteland," the debut album of singer and songwriter JAMES McMURTRY. Like his father, the novelist Larry McMurtry, James McMurtry writes of the drifters and loners of the high plains. INT.2: Tex-Mex rocker DOUG SAHM. For many, he's still best known for his stint with the Sir Douglas Quintet, a group of Texans and Mexicans who were packaged to look like a British Invasion band. The group sported regal coats and fakey British accents and cranked out hits like "Mendocino" and "She'a About a Mover." Sahm has been playing a variety of styles ever since, including Tex-Mex, blues, rhythm and blues, rock. Sahm is now touring with Antone's Texas R&B Revue, and has just released a new album, titled Juke
Box Music. REV.2: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Shirley Valentine," the adaptation of the hit Broadway play. The film stars the British actress Pauline Collins, who also starred in the play.

Interview with Ketan Mehta; Commentary on braggars; Interview with Ken Follett; Commentary on the school year. September 8, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501893].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Filmmaker KETAN MEHTA (Kay-Tahn May-Ta). He's one of a group of young, politically committed directors in India today who believe movies can be effective tools for social change and not just entertainment, and his films have dealt with such issues as the caste system and feminism. His latest film, "Spices," tells the story of a young woman in a remote village in India and her struggle to resist the advances of a powerful feudal overlord. REV.1: Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads a short work titled "Fort Brag." The poem is an ode to people who are absolutely certain about most everything. Halliday, an English professor at the University of Pennsylvania, is a regular contributor to Fresh Air. INT.2: Writer KEN FOLLETT. He was only 27 when his 11th novel, "Eye of the Needle," became a huge bestseller. When it was later adapted into a hit film, it only enhanced Follett's reputation as a master of the thriller genre. His other novels include "Triple" and "The Key to Rebecca." Follett's latest effort is a departure from this successful formula. "The Pillars of the Earth" is a historical novel set in 12th century England; its plot centers on the building of a cathedral. Follett says it's the beginning of a move for him towards more serious fiction. REV.2: ROBERT KAPLOW and THE PUNSTERS return to Fresh Air with advice on how to get through the new school year.

Interview with Carl Reiner; Review of John Scofield's album "Flat Out"; Interview with Richard Goode; Review of the television shows "Chicken Soup" and "Life Goes On." September 11, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501892].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Film director CARL REINER. He was a writer and appeared in "Sid Caesar's Show of Shows." He's best-known to baby boomer audiences as the creator and writer of "The Dick Van Dyke Show." He also staged several Broadway plays, including "Enter Laughing," which is based on his novel and which he later adapted to the screen. Since then, he has concentrated on film direction, specifically comedies. His films include "Where's Poppa?" "The Jerk," Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," "All of Me" and "Oh God." His most recent film, "Bert Rigby You're a Fool," has just been released on home video. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, March 2, 1989.) REV 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album by electric guitarist JOHN SCOFIELD. Scofield has recorded with a wide variety of musicians, including Kansas City pianist Jay McShann., trumpeters Chet Baker and Miles Davis, and Charlie Mingus, but Scofield is also comfortable playing rock. INT 2: Classical pianist RICHARD GOODE. Goode studied with Rudolph Serkin and is founding member of the Lincoln Center Chamber Music Society. His album of duets with clarinetist Richard Stolzman won a grammy in 1983. Five years ago, Goode was approached by the Book of the Month Club about recording all 32 Beethoven Piano sonatas. He is now nearing the end of the project. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, February 15, 1989.) REV 2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews two new shows on ABC that debut this Tuesday night (September 12). "Chicken Soup" is a sitcom about a middle-aged Jewish man and Catholic woman who fall in love, in spite of their differences and in spite of his meddlesome mother. "Chicken Soup" stars comic Jackie Mason and actress Lynne Redgrave. "Life Goes On" is a drama about how a family deals with a child with Down Syndrome. Patti Lupone stars as the mother, Bill Smitrovich as the father. The actor who plays the boy with Down Syndrome - Chris Burke - has Down Syndrome in real life.

Interview with Richard Martin; Commentary on Sly Stone; Interview with Stephen Schneider; Review of John Gregory Dunne's memoir "Harp." September 12, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501443].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Fashion expert RICHARD MARTIN. Martin's the co-author (with Harold Koda) of "Jocks and Nerds," a new book that examines what the authors call '12 persistent fashion styles;' among them the Rebel, Cowboy, Dandy, and Joe College. Martin is a professor of Art History and Dean of Graduate Studies at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology. REV.1: Rock historian Ed Ward examines the other side of Sly Stone. In the 60s and 70s Stone was the flamboyant leader of the group Sly and the Family Stone, but he was also an accomplished record producer. INT.2: Climatologist STEPHEN SCHNEIDER. His new book, "Global Warming: Are We Entering the Greenhouse Century," examines the causes of global warming and warns about the possible impact of this "greenhouse effect." It also outlines what individuals and governments can do to slow down the impact of these trends. REV.2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Harp," John Gregory Dunne's new memoir.

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Writer REYNOLDS PRICE. Though Price has written books of poetry, essays and translation, he has earned his widest recognition for his novels, which work in a southern tradition depicting small towns in the 40s and 50s. His Southern Gothic tales deal with families coming together then scattering after suicides, soured romances. His 1986 novel, Kate Vaiden, won the National Book Critics Circle Award for fiction, and, like Price's best fiction (A Long and Happy Life, Good Hearts), is told primarily from the point of view of a woman. His latest work, Clear Pictures, is a collection of memoirs, some of which were triggered by his hypnotic therapy to relieve the pain of spinal cancer. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired June 23, 1989). REV.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new album by pianist Garrick Ohlsson. Ohlsson has a reputation for highlighting obscure works; this time Ohlsson performs a little-known work by Debussy, as well as one of Debussy's most famous pieces. INT.2: Author TERRY Mc MILLAN. She's a black writer whose first novel was "Mama." Her new novel, "Disappearing Acts," is set in Brooklyn in 1982 and takes a look at what makes a relationship work. It's about an educated black man who falls in love with an uneducated black woman. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG explains some of the reasons you shouldn't use a dictionary.

Interview with Christopher Guest; Review of Webb Wilder's and Billy Hill's albums "Hybrid Vigor" and "I Am Just a Rebel"; Interview with Alec Wilkinson; Review of Tracy Kidder's book "Among Schoolchildren." September 14, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501140].

Description of show segment(s)
INT.1: Director, screenwriter, musician and actor CHRISTOPHER GUEST. Guest makes his feature directorial debut in the new film "The Big Picture." Guest co-wrote the rock parody "This Is Spinal Tap," and he was a writer and regular performer on Saturday Night Live. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums by WEBB WILDER and the quintet BILLY HILL. WEBB WILDER's "Hybrid Vigor" is an outsider's eccentric blend of rock and roll livened up with country, blues and rockabilly. BILLY HILL has produced an album with a different type of eccentricity --they're Nashville insiders whose oddball act gives an edge to their country music. INT.2: Writer ALEC WILKINSON. Cutting sugar cane is one of the most dangerous jobs in America. In Florida, workers are recruited from the West Indies in what some are calling modern day slavery. Wilkinson exposes the sugar cane industry in his new book "Big Sugar." Wilkinson's past books include "Moonshine: A Life in Pursuit of White Liquor," and "Midnights: A Year with the Wellfleet Police." Wilkinson is also a staff writer for the New Yorker; Big Sugar originally appeared as a series of articles in the magazine. Wilkinson is currently working on a screenplay of "Midnights" for film maker Stephen Spielberg. REV.2: MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Among Schoolchildren," Tracy Kidder's year-long look at an inner city elementary school. Kidder's previous books include "House," and "The Soul of a New Machine," about the creation of the personal computer.

Interview Barbara Ehrenreich; Review of John Zorn's album "Spy vs Spy"; Interview with Mary Wings; Review of the film "Sea of Love." September 15, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501894].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer and social critic BARBARA EHRENREICH (air-en-RIKE). Her new book, "Fear of Falling," examines the middle class in America and the many myths associated with it. Her articles and essays appear in the New York Times, the Atlantic, Ms magazine, and Mother Jones. REV.1: Kevin Whitehead reviews composer and saxophonist John Zorn's new album "Spy vs Spy." INT.2: Mystery writer MARY WINGS. Wings' novels draw on the familiar hard-boiled detective genre, but her heroine is a lesbian-feminist detective named Emma Victor. Wings new book is titled "She Came in a Flash." REV.2: Film critic STEVEN SCHIFF previews "Sea of Love," which opens on Friday (Sept. 15). It stars AL PACINO as a cop who falls in love with a suspected killer, played by ELLEN BARKIN.
Interview with Paul Schrader; Commentary on Cheb Khaled; Interview with Ian Frazier; Review CBS's Monday night comedy television shows. September 18, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501444].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Film director and screenwriter PAUL SCHRADER. His screenwriting credits include "Taxi Driver" and "The Last Temptation of Christ." Schrader's directing credits include "Hard Core," "Light of Day," "American Gigolo" and last summer's film "Patty Hearst." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on September 7 and 8, 1988). REV 1: World music critic MILO MILES introduces us to the music of Cheb Khaled. Khaled is a leading performer of Rai?, a type of music popular in Algeria. INT 2: Writer IAN FRAZIER. He's known primarily as a writer of humor pieces for The New Yorker magazine. Some of those earlier short humor pieces and essays were collected in two earlier books, Dating Your Mom and Nobody Better, Better than Nobody. His new book, Great Plains, is quite different. It describes a history of the great plains through Frazier's own trips driving 25,000 miles in a criss-cross of the area, and hours spent in the New York's Public Library reading about the great plains. Frazier's interest in the area grew out of the time he left New York and moved to Montana to write and live. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on June 29, 1989). REV 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks at the CBS Monday night comedy lineup, particularly "The Famous Teddy Z," starring Jon Cryer as an unlikely talent agent.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Former tennis champion ARTHUR ASHE. In 1980, after quadruple bypass surgery, Ashe retired from professional competition. For the last several years, Ashe has been teaching and writing about the barriers and discrimination which black athletes have faced. A Hard Road To Glory is his three-volume history of African-American athletes. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, January 6, 1989.) REV.1: Rock historian ED WARD looks back to the dawn of the British punk scene, and the creation of acts such as the Sex Pistols, the Clash, Billy Idol, and Siouxie and the Banshees. INT.2: Shakespearean scholar GARY TAYLOR. Four years ago, Taylor made headlines when he claimed to have discovered a new Shakespeare poem. Now Taylor's written a cultural history of the Bard of Stratford, called Reinventing Shakespeare. In it, Taylor asks `is Shakespeare really as great as everyone says?' Taylor looks at how changing societies have reinterpreted Shakespeare, and to some extent all great literature, to correspond with changing social mores and opinions. Taylor's a professor at Brandeis University, and he served as joint general editor of Oxford University Press' recent new edition of the complete Shakespeare works. REV.2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews The Shawl, which contains a short story and a novella by writer Cynthia Ozick.
Interview with Cynthia Ozick; Review of Bob Dylan's "Oh, Mercy"; Interview with Li-Young Lee; Commentary on children's names. September 21, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501891].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer CYNTHIA OZICK. In 1981 and 1984, Ozick's two stories, "The Shawl" and "Rosa" won the O. Henry Prize award. Both stories appear in Ozick's new book, called The Shawl. In it, Ozick looks at what it means to 'survive' the Nazi concentration camps, telling the story of Rosa, who witnesses the murder of her infant daughter in the camps. Later, living in Miami, Rosa imagines her daughter alive and married to a doctor in the United States. Ozick examines the way Rosa distances herself from the death of her daughter and her attempts to gradually re-emerge into life. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Oh, Mercy," the new album by Bob Dylan. INT.2: Poet LI-YOUNG LEE. He was born into a family of political refugees from China. They traveled throughout Asia for years to escape persecution. In the mid-60's his family moved to Pennsylvania. Lee's poems reflect his struggle with his Chinese heritage - a heritage to which he is bound but in which he never lived. His poems also reflect Lee's attempt to come to terms with the powerful and mythic figure of his father, who was alternately imprisoned and revered for his beliefs. Lee is one of the poets to be featured in Bill Moyer's poetry series, "Bill Moyers: The Power of the Word," on PBS. REV.2: Commentator Patricia McGlaughlin looks at the reasons certain kids name go in and out of style.

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer THOMAS McGUIANE. McGuane's been called "Ernest Hemingway with a sense of humor ... (and) ... Franz Kafka journeying through Montana. He's the author of the acclaimed novels The Sporting Club, Ninety-Two In The Shade, and To Skin A Cat. McGuane's new novel is called Keep The Change. It follows a self-despising artist as he travels to Montana to try to make a new life for himself. McGuane himself runs a ranch in Montana. REV.1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Covert Action," the new album by french horn player Tom Varner. INT.2: Gossip columnist-turned novelist MICHAEL MUSTO. Musto writes a column for The Village Voice (called La Dolce Musto) that follows
New York City's avant-garde social scene. Musto's columns usually ignore the comings and goings of the Donald Trumps in favor of highlighting some about-to-be-discovered artist or performer. In 1986, Musto wrote Downtown, a guide book to the Manhattan party scene. His new book, Manhattan On The Rocks, is a novel about the party scene and the most sought after gossip columnist in New York. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Black Rain." It stars Michael Douglas as a New York City cop who goes to Japan to try to track down a killer. The movie's directed by Ridley Scott, who also made "Blade Runner" and "Alien."

---

Interview with Mercer Ellington; Interview with Bob Hoskins; Review of the television show "Saturday Night Live September 25, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501297].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Band leader and composer MERCER ELLINGTON. He's the son of Duke Ellington and now perpetuates the big band tradition his father made famous as head of the Duke Ellington Band. When he was a young man, Mercer Ellington had hoped to break into his father's band on the saxophone. But after years of frustration, he could see that he would never crack the legendary Ellington reed section. He finally was accepted as a trombone player and later played french horn and trumpet. With the death of his father in 1974, Mercer Ellington took over his father's orchestra. In the last two years, two Ellington albums have won wide acclaim: "Digital Duke" and "For Ellington," performed by the Modern Jazz Quartet and produced by Mercer Ellington. (Rebroadcast. Original date 5/3/89). REV 1: PRE-EMPTED BY LONGER INTERVIEW TWO SEGMENT INT 2: Actor BOB HOSKINS. He stared in "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" in which he acted opposite an cartoon bunny. Hoskins' other roles include the mob chief in "The Long Good Friday," a low-level hudlum in "Mona Lisa," and the gangster club owner in "The Cotton Club." (Rebroadcast. Original date June 22, 1988). REV 2: Television critic David Bianculli has an appreciation of "Saturday Night Live." The ground-breaking comedy show is celebrating its 15th anniversary.
Interview with Barbara Grizutti Harrison; Commentary of musical interpretation; Interview with Ellen Goodman; Review of Thomas McGuane's novel "Keep the Change." September 26, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924440].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist, essayist, and reporter BARBARA GRIZZUTI HARRISON. Her new book is called "Italian Days." It's a chronicle of her travels through Italy, but it's also more introspective, influenced by her parents Italian heritage and her conversion to Catholicism after a childhood spent in the Jehovah's Witnesses. REV.1: Classical Music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ looks at how different recorded performances of music can influence a listener's understanding of the piece. INT.2: Syndicated columnist ELLEN GOODMAN. Goodman's new collection of essays, called "Making Sense," examines the issues surrounding sexuality, feminism, abortion, parenting and childcare. Goodman's column appears in more than 400 papers nationwide, and in 1980 her writing earned Goodman the Pulitzer Prize. (NOTE: Ellen Goodman's been on Fresh Air before, but this is a new interview.) REV.2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Thomas McGuane's new novel, "Keep the Change."

Interview with Michael Holroyd; Commentary on Stu Sutcliffe; Interview with Eugene Richards; Review of Raymond Chandler and Robert Parker's novel "Poodle Springs." September 27, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501302].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Biographer MICHAEL HOLROYD. His 1988 book "The Search for Love," on the early life of George Bernard Shaw, was called one of the "three great literary biographies of the century." HOLROYD continues Shaw's biography in the second volume titled "The Pursuit of Power." In it, HOLROYD writes about Shaw's hard-won battle for success in the London theatre. And he details Shaw's political battles for Fabian socialism and Irish Home Rule. HOLROYD established his reputation as a biographer with a two volume book on the life of Lytton Strachey. REV.1: Rock Historian Ed Ward profiles Stu Sutcliffe, a forgotten early member of the Beatles. INT.2: Photojournalist EUGENE RICHARDS. His new book, "The Knife & Gun Club: Scenes from an Emergency Room," has been called the "modern day version of Dante's 'Inferno.'" It chronicles the trauma center of the Denver General Hospital where RICHARDS spent twelve to twenty hours a day photographing and talking to the staff. RICHARDS work has appeared in "Life," "The New York Times Magazine," and the London "Sunday
His other books include "Exploding Into Life" an inspirational diary in words and photographs of a cancer patient, and "Below The Line: Living Poor in America." REV.2: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Poodle Springs," the novel Raymond Chandler was working on at the time of his death. The story finds Chandler's famous detective Philip Marlowe married and living in Poodle Springs. Writer Robert Parker has just finished the novel that Chandler started 30 years ago.

Interview with Harvey Fierstein; Commentary on soukous music; Interview with Mira Nair; Review of the film "Tom Jones." September 28, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501368].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Playwright and actor HARVEY FIERSTEIN (pronounced fire-steen). He's one of Broadway's leading playwrights. His hit play "Torch Song Trilogy," was adapted into a film, starring Matthew Broderick and Anne Bancroft. It's now out on home video cassette. Fierstein also wrote the plays "La Cage Aux Folles," and "Safe Sex." (Rebroadcast. Original date December 27, 1988). REV.1: Fresh Air's world music explorer Milo Miles introduces us to Soukous (sue-cooes), pop music from Zaire. INT.2: Indian film director MIRA NAIR. Her first feature film, "Salaam Bombay!" is the story of Bombay's child beggars. It was filmed in the chaos of Bombay's red-light district with street children who were trained in a seven-week crash course. The film won the Golden Camera prize for best feature film at the Cannes Film Festival and the top honors at the Montreal Film Festival. (Rebroadcast. Original date March 7, 1989). REV.2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the theatrical re-release of "Tom Jones." The 1963 film adaptation of Henry Fielding's novel of a bawdy 18th century playboy won Oscars for best picture, director, screenplay, and score. It stars Albert Finney and Susannah York.

Interview with Arthur Penn; Commentary on Thelonious Monk; Interview with John Gerassi; Review of the film "The Elements of Style." September 29, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501301].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director ARTHUR PENN. Penn's latest film is "Penn and Teller Get Killed." His previous movies include "Bonnie and Clyde," "Little Big Man," "The Miracle Worker," "Alice's Restaurant," and "The Missouri Breaks." REV.1: Jazz pianist Kenny Barron pays tribute to jazz great Thelonious Monk. INT.2: JOHN GERASSI (jer-assy), former journalist, currently a professor of political science at Queens College of the City University of New York. He's written an unusual biography of Jean-Paul Sartre. Gerassi is Sartre's official biographer and was a personal friend, yet he is neither totally objective or uncritical. The book includes Gerassi's own observations as well as material culled from over 100 hours of interviews with Sartre and complete access to Sartre's papers. REV.2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG reviews a new video version of Strunk and White's "The Elements of Style," featuring CBS newsman CHARLES OSGOOD. (re-broadcast from 3/15/89).

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Adventure writer TIM CAHILL. CAHILL writes in a self-deprecating way about his death-defying experiences around the world. His accounts of adventures in caves, mountains, deserts, and rapids appear in his collections, "A Wolverine is Eating My Leg,"and "Jaguars Ripped My Flesh." He's also a columnist for "Outside Magazine." (re-broadcast of interview first aired April 5, 1989.) REV 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Straight, No Chaser", the new documentary on jazz pianist, Thelonious Monk.

INT 2: Poet GALWAY KINNELL, who won the Pulitzer Prize in 1983 for his collection, "Selected Poems." His poem, "When One Has Lived a Long Time Alone" is featured this month in "The Atlantic" Magazine. (re dmg rcast from April 4, 1989) REV 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Mary Gordon's new novel, "The Other Side."

Interview with Russell Banks; Commentary on rock music; Interview with Valerie Miner;

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Novelist RUSSELL BANKS often depicts ordinary people coping with difficulties in contemporary society. His new book "Affliction," takes on the subject of male violence, following the story of Wade Whitehouse, "a good man beset by the dark side of the macho mentality." BANKS has also written for "Esquire," "Vanity Fair," "The Nation," and other publications. REV.1: Rock historian EDWARD investigates the little known original versions of some of rock's most classic songs. INT.2: Writer VALERIE MINER. Her work has been praised for its uncommon honesty and intensity. MINER focuses on a group of people she finds overlooked in American literature: the working class. Her books include "All Good Women," "Blood Sisters," and "Winter's Edge." Her new book, "Trespassing," is a collection of stories which span the globe and examine the quiet shifts in relationships or in an individual's sense of self. REV.2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews the new season of the drama series "Wiseguy."

---

Interview with Saul Bellow; Interview with Jerry Markbreit; Commentary on American immigrants. October 4, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501296].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Writer SAUL BELLOW. His short stories and novels have won him three National Book Awards, a Pulitzer Prize and a Nobel Prize. His newest novel is "The Bellarosa Connection," a story about the meaning of memory. REV.1: NO MUSIC REVIEW INT.2: NFL referee JERRY MARKBREIT (MARK-brite). His book, BORN TO REFEREE, is an inside look at the world of football through the eyes of a referee. Markbreit began calling the shots at high school games and made his way up to the pros. REV.2: Egyptian-born poet GREGORY DJANIKIAN (ja-NIK-ee-ann) reads a poem about his early memories of moving to America and starting school.

---

Interview with Margaret Drabble; Review of the album "Marian Anderson October 5, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501300].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: British novelist MARGARET DRABBLE. She made a name for herself in the early 60's as one of the first woman writers to make domestic life the focus of her novels. But after the publication of "The Middle Ground" in 1980, Drabble took a seven-year break from fiction to concentrate on revising "The Oxford Companion to English Literature." Since then she has published two more novels, "The Radiant Way" and "A Natural Curiosity," which reflect a shift in focus to more external, societal concerns.
REV.1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new RCA Victor recording called Marian Anderson: Bach, Brahms, Schubert. The album also includes a recording of Marion Anderson's 1955 debut performance at the Metropolitan Opera singing an aria from Verdi’s "A Masked Ball". INT.2: Film director HAROLD BECKER. His latest film is the steamy thriller "Sea of Love," starring Al Pacino. He also directed James Woods in the 1979 film "The Onion Field," a terrifying portrayal of a policeman's murder. REV.2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "An Innocent Man." It stars TOM SELLECK as a man falsely accused of being a drug dealer and sentenced to a 6-year term in a maximum-security prison.

Interview with Bill Forsyth; Review of David Bowie's album "Sound + Vision"; Interview with Dmitri Nabokov; Review of the film "Bloodsport." October 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501682].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director BILL FORSYTH. He's the first Scottish director to make internationally successful films, including "Gregory's Girl," "Local Hero," and "Comfort and Joy." His latest film, "Breaking In," has a screenplay by John Sayles and stars Burt Reynolds as a professional safecracker. REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews a new David Bowie CD collection. The 46-song retrospective includes Bowie classics like "Space Oddity" and "Changes," as well as some music that's never been released before.

INT.2: DMITRI NABOKOV. Son of writer VLADIMIR NABOKOV and a writer himself, as well as a translator of his father's works. He has just edited a volume of his father's letters dating from 1940-1977. The letters trace Nabokov's struggles beginning with his arrival in America from Russia, to his legal battles over censorship of his most famous novel, "Lolita." REV.2: Commentator OWEN GLEIBERMAN (GLY-ber-man) reviews "Bloodsport," a 1987 martial arts film which has just been released on video. The film stars Jean Claude Van Damme, the successor to martial arts film star Bruce Lee. His current film, "Kickboxer," is currently being shown in theaters, but "Bloodsport" is the film that introduced Van Damme to martial arts audiences.
Interview with Russell Baker; Commentary on Coleman Hawkins; Interview with Jeroen Krabbe; Review of the television show "Mancuso, F.B.I." October 9, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501436].

Description of show segment(s)

REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD tells us about a milestone in jazz history -- the 50th anniversary of tenor saxophonist COLEMAN HAWKINS' recording of "Body and Soul." He says Hawkins was the best tenor saxophonist ever...and "Body and Soul" was his greatest masterpiece. INT. 2: Dutch actor JEROEN KRABBE?. A major star in his native Netherlands, he has also established himself in international cinema. His film credits include "Turtle Diary," "No Mercy," "A World Apart," "Crossing Delancey" and "Scandal." His best-known role was a Russian spy in the James Bond film "The Living Daylights." Krabbe? says it was his role as an sensuous emigre writer in "Crossing Delancey" that helped break Hollywood's view of him as suitable only for East Bloc generals. However, in "Scandal," he plays the role of the Russian diplomat whose involvement with a flirtatious young British woman helped bring down Britain's conservative government. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Thursday, May 25, 1989.)

REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the last of the new fall shows to premiere. ROBERT LOGGIA stars as an F.B.I. detective in a spin off of last year's NBC miniseries, "Favorite Son," called "Mancuso, F.B.I."
Interview with Buck Henry; Commentary on blues music; Interview with Ruth Rendell; Review of Barry Miles' book "Ginsberg October 10, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501442].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BUCK HENRY. He's best-known as a frequent guest host on Saturday Night Live. Henry's other accomplishments include writing the screenplays for "The Graduate" and "Catch-22," creating the TV series "Get Smart" in collaboration with Mel Brooks, and co-directing the film "Heaven Can Wait" with Warren Beatty. REV. 1: Rock and roll historian Ed Ward talks about what happened to the blues from 1966 to the present. They were supposed to be dead during this period, but he says there are some eternals that keep going on no matter what. INT. 2: British crime writer RUTH RENDELL. She's written over 30 mysteries which fall into several categories--detective novels with main character Chief Inspector Reg Wexford, psychological thrillers exploring the darker side of the human mind, and a new series of "more feminine, less bossy" mysteries under the pseudonym of Barbara Vine. Her latest novel, "The Bridesmaid," continues in the tradition of the psychological thriller. It's about a young woman who informs her lover that he must prove his love to her by committing murder. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews a new biography of Allan Ginsberg.

Interview with Armistead Maupin; Review of Kurt Weill's album "The Tsar Has His Photograph Taken"; Interview with Clifford Stoll; Review of the book "The Reader's Catalog." October 11, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501686].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist ARMISTEAD MAUPIN. After moving to San Francisco in the mid-70's, Maupin became a gay activist and celebrated novelist. He's just completed the final book in his series, "Tales of the City, " which began as a column in a San Francisco newspaper. The series of novels chronicles life in the gay and straight communities of San Francisco. INT. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ has a review of a never-before-recorded KURT WEILL (VILE) opera. WEILL is best-known for his collaborations with playwright Bertolt Brecht, such as "The Threepenny Opera" and "The Rise and Fall of the City of Mahogany". REV. 1: Computer expert CLIFFORD STOLL. When Stoll discovered a 75-cent accounting discrepancy in his work as systems manager at Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, he thought the intruder was a student prankster. But after tracking the hacker for almost a year, Stoll discovered an international spy ring, operating out of West Germany, which sold the data it collected to the Soviets. This is the subject of his book "The Cuckoo's Egg". REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "The Reader's Catalog." It's a listing of 40,000 books--fiction and non-fiction--in more than 200 subjects, complete with recommended editions and an "800" number for ordering the books.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Screenwriter WILLIAM LINK. With his partner Richard Levinson, Link created more than a dozen T-V series, including "Columbo" and "Mannix." They also wrote the books "Stay Tuned: An Inside Look at the Making of Prime-Time Television," and "Off Camera: Conversations with the Makers of Prime-Time Television." INT. 2: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new Neil Young album, "Freedom." He says it's Young's best album in a decade. REV. 1: Travel writer and essayist JAN MORRIS. In her 1974 autobiography "Conundrum," Morris talked about her search for sexual identity and her sex change operation. The sequel, "Pleasures of a Tangled Life," is a collection of personal essays describing the experiences and sensations that have brought Morris pleasure over the years. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie, "The Fabulous Baker Boys," starring Jeff and Beau Bridges and Michelle Pfeiffer.

Interview with Murray Louis; Review of Astor Piazzolla's album "La Camorra"; Interview with Harry Carey, Jr.; Commentary on women in the television show "Anything But Love" and the film "sex, lies, and videotape October 13, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501439].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dancer and choreographer MURRAY LOUIS. He's spent 40 years pioneering modern dance, and recently he merged his company with that of his mentor, Alwin Nikolais (nik-oh-lie). REV. 1: World music aficionado MILO MILES explores the world of the new tango, and reviews the latest album from the new tango's leading proponent, Argentinian accordionist Astor Piazzolla. INT. 2: Actor
HARRY CAREY, JR. He was a member of John Ford's stock company, with roles in such films as "Three Godfathers," "Rio Grande," and "Red River." REV. 2: Critic-at-large Laurie Stone examines the role of women in two current offerings, the T-V sit-com "Anything But Love" starring Jamie Lee Curtis, and the movie, "sex, lies, and videotape."

---

Interview with David Brinkley; Review of Big John Patton's album "Blue John"; Interview with Jill Ker Conway; Review of the television show "Trying Times." October 16, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501260].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Veteran TV journalist DAVID BRINKLEY. His book, Washington Goes to War, was a surprise best-seller last year and has just been released in paperback. The book, based on Brinkley's personal experiences and reflections, told the story of Washington in the early 40s, and how both the government and town itself were transformed by the responsibilities thrust on them as a result of the war. (Rebroadcast. Original date 7/6/89). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the album, "Blue John," by organist Big John Patton. Patton cut a series of progressive jazz organ albums for Blue Note records in the 60s, then dropped out of sight for a decade, recently re-emerging on some of John Zorn's albums. Patton actually recorded "Blue John" in 1963, but it's just been released and it's the only example of Patton's Blue Note work that's currently available. INT. 2: Writer JILL KER CONWAY. Her new memoir, The Road From Coorain, describes her rugged childhood in the Australian outback, and her move to school in the big city of Sydney as a young woman. Later Conway left Australia to study in America, where she became a historian and the first woman president of Smith College. She is also the author of two books on the role of feminism in history. (Rebroadcast. Original date June 7, 1989). REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new season of the PBS series "Trying Times." The 6 episodes this season continue "Trying Times" tradition of taking a comedic look at modern life. Among the stars this season are Stockard Channing, Sally Kirkland, Judge Reinhold, and Christopher Guest.
Interview with Arthur Baker; Commentary on the band New Order; Interview with June Jordan; Review of Saul Bellow's novella "The Bellarosa Connection." October 17, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502000].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer ARTHUR BAKER. The eclectic Baker has produced or mixed for musicians as diverse as Bob Dylan, Jimmy Cliff, Cyndi Lauper, U2, and Bruce Springsteen. Now he's come out with his own album, "Merge." He's chief songwriter and plays keyboards as well as producing. REV. 1: Rock and roll historian ED WARD traces the development of the band "New Order." In 1977, a 21-year-old in Manchester, England saw the Sex Pistols and decided to form his own band. He called it "Joy Division." In the decade since, the band, now called "New Order," evolved to become one of the most influential of their time, with such hits as "True Faith" and "Bizarre Love Triangle." INT. 2: Poet and essayist JUNE JORDAN. In her poems and political essays, she addresses issues of racism, oppression and dispossession. She was born in Harlem and grew up in the Bedford-Stuyvesant area of Brooklyn. She currently teaches English at the University of California at Berkeley. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Saul Bellow's new book, "The Bellarosa Connection."

Interview with Chuck Jones; Review of Sofia Gubaidulina's album "Offertorium / Hommage a T. S. Eliot"; Interview with Mark frost; Review of the film "The Man, the Movies, the Maverick October 18, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501437].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Matthew Modine; Review of Lenny Kravitz, Michael Penn, and Bonham albums; Interview with Mike Sowell; Review of the exhibit "The Dada and Surrealist Word-Image." October 19, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501441].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor MATTHEW MODINE. He plays an arrogant first-year medical student in the new movie, "Gross Anatomy." Modine's earlier films include "Birdy," "Full Metal Jacket," and "Married to the Mob." REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker looks at three new albums by by performers who are relatives of the already famous--Lenny Kravitz (Lisa Bonet's husband), Michael Penn (Sean Penn's brother), and Jason Bonham (son of the late Led Zeppelin drummer John Bonham). Ken says in acting, there's no stigma in cashing in on fame by association, but rock and roll relations can have a hard time of it. INT. 2: Sports writer MIKE SOWELL (rhymes with "powell"). Sowell's book, "The Pitch that Killed," is the true-life account of the death of Ray Chapman. Chapman was the Cleveland Indians shortstop who died after being hit in the head by a pitch thrown by New York Yankee Carl Mays. The incident occurred in late August, 1920, as the Yankees and Indians were battling for the American League pennant. REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg looks at the influence of the word on the visual arts...starting with the Dada movement and the montage works of the 30s, up to current poster and electric sign work by Jenny Holzer.

Interview with Paul Shaffer; Interview with Peter Guralnick; Review of the film "Crimes and Misdemeanors." October 20, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501394].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician PAUL SHAFFER. Shaffer is the ultimately hip leader of "The World's Most Dangerous Band," the house group on "Late Night with David Letterman." Previously, Shaffer was a session musician in New York, band leader on "Saturday Night Live," and music director for the Blues Brothers, the alter egos of Dan Ackroyd and John Belushi. Paul Shaffer has just put out his first album, called "Coast to Coast." It's a collection of tunes representative of the musical variety of the country, with legendary stars from those regions sitting in. Among the selections, a surfin' tune with Brian Wilson, a Detroit funk number featuring George Clinton and a New York number with Dion, Carole King, Ellie Greenwich, and the Fresh Prince. REV. 1: THERE IS NO MUSIC REVIEW TODAY INT. 2: Music writer PETER GURALNICK. His new book, "Searching For Robert Johnson," examines the brief life of perhaps the greatest blues musician of all time. In the 20s and 30s, Johnson was "King of the Delta Blues Singers," and a sensation throughout the South. Johnson died at age 27, shot to death by a jealous husband, but his music continued to be studied and copied by artists such as Eric Clapton and the Rolling Stones. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new Woody Allen movie, "Crimes and Misdemeanors."

Interview with May Sarton; Review of Eddie Condon's album "Dixieland Jam"; Interview with Frans Bru?ggen; Review of the television programs "The Hollywood Detective" and "Kojak."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer MAY SARTON. For many readers, Sarton is a heroic figure for her decision to expose her lesbianism in the early 60s, long before it society was tolerant of the gay life, and also for her decision to lead a life of solitude. The author of over 35 novels, books of poetry and essays, Sarton is probably best known for her journals, "Recovering," and "At Seventy." Her most recent book of poems, "The Silence Now," explores themes from the solitude of the aging, to AIDS, to world peace. (Rebroadcast. Original date July 7, 1989). REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews reissued 1957 recordings by acoustic guitarist Eddie Condon. Condon was a fine musician, and also promoted the music from the 20s to his death in the early 70s. Condon organized early recording sessions that brought black and white musicians together, promoted concerts at New York's Town Hall, and ran a famous club. INT. 2: Dutch recorder player and conductor FRANS BRU?GGEN (BROO-gen). He's one of the world's preeminent recorder players. In 1981, he formed the Orchestra of the Eighteenth Century which uses period instruments for its repertoire of Renaissance and Baroque music. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The Hollywood Detective," a made-for-TV movie starring Telly Savalas and new episodes of "Kojak" as part of the ABC Mystery series.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer DEBORAH HARRY. She was lead singer of the group "Blondie," which started out in the late '70's as a punk band and by the early '80's was topping the charts. Since the breakup of "Blondie," HARRY has gone on to a solo career and several film and TV roles, most recently in "Wiseguy." Her latest album is called, "Def, Dumb and Blonde." REV. 2: Rock historian ED WARD tells the story of how Ray Robinson--an obscure emerging R & B singer--broke away from his image as a Nat King Cole imitator, changed his name, his record label, and established his identity as Ray Charles. INT. 1: Conductor JOHN McGLINN. He directed a new recording of the classic musical "Show Boat," first performed in 1927 with music by Jerome Kern and book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein 2nd. McGlinn's new and controversial recording of the musical includes rejected numbers from the planning stages and items cut in the pre-Broadway tryout. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Jan. 13, 1989). REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Remains of the Day," by Kazuo Ishiguro. He says it's a fascinating look at the English class system as seen through the eyes of a young Japanese author.

Interview with James Abourezk; Interview with Kenneth Branagh; Review of Jane Smiley's novellas "Ordinary Love" and "Good Will." October 25, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501399].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former U.S. senator JAMES G. ABOUREZK (AB-er-esk). In his new memoir, "Advise and Dissent," Abourezk tells of Arab-American heritage, his coming of age in the North Dakota Indian country, his early political days, his 8 years in Congress, and his decision not to run for re-election in 1979. These days Abourezk is an attorney in Washington, D.C., and is National Chairman of the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee. REV. 2: NO MUSIC SEGMENT TODAY INT. 2: Actor and director KENNETH BRANAGH (rhymes with "Savanah"). Branagh has just made a new film adaptation of Shakespeare's "Henry the Fifth," with himself in the title role. Branagh was born in Northern Ireland, studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, spent two years with the Royal Shakespeare Company, as well as acting, managing, and directing other groups and working on several BBC productions. The new "Henry the 5th" also stars Derek Jacobi, Paul Scofield and Ian Holm. REV. 2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews two new novellas by Jane Smiley, "Ordinary Love" and "Good Will."

Interview with Mike Royko; Review of Mike Tippett's album "Tippett Conducts Tippett"; Interview with Jacques d'Amboise; Review of the film "The Bear." October 26, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500845].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist MIKE ROYKO. For 26 years, Royko has written a daily column on happenings in his native Chicago and throughout the world, and he's just released his 6th collection of his writings. Along the way, Royko has earned the Pulitzer, the Mencken, and Pyle Award. His column is now carried in more than 500 papers. Royko also wrote "Boss," a best-selling portrait of Chicago mayor Richard Daley. REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCWARTZ reviews a new recording of works by Sir Michael Tippett. Tippett is generally considered the greatest living British composer. He's in the U.S. for the world premiere of his fifth opera, "New Year," in Houston on October 27. INT. 1: Dancer and choreographer JACQUES d'AMBOISE (dahm-bwasz). d'Amboise has done more than anyone alive to bring the joy of dance to the public. For over 30 years, he was principal dancer with the New York City Ballet, and a protege of choreographer George Balanchine. While still with NYCB, d'Ambrose founded the National Dance Institute (NDI) as a vehicle to teach dance and other arts to children. d'Amboise has more recently extended his classes to children with physical and emotional disabilities. The NDI was the subject of the Oscar winning documentary, "He Makes Me Feel Like Dancin'." REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new French film, "The Bear." The nature film is a huge hit in Europe, now it's opening in American theaters.
Interview with Jean-Michel Cousteau; Review of Linda Ronstadt and Kate Bush albums; Interview with Tony LaRussa; Review of the television special "Midnight Train to Moscow." October 27, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500847].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Explorer and environmentalist JEAN-MICHEL COUSTEAU. The son of famed oceanographer Jacques Cousteau, Jean-Michel has spent much of his life aboard their ship, "Calypso," traveling the world and learning about its wonders and peoples. Jean-Michel is now director of expeditions for the Cousteau Society, and he led the Society's recent voyage to Papua New Guinea. His logbook from that expedition has just been published, and the trip will also be featured as the first episode of a new T-V series, "Cousteau's Rediscovery of the World." REV. 2: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new albums from singers Linda Ronstadt and Kate Bush. Ronstadt's is called "Cry Like A Rainstorm, Howl Like The Wind," and Ken says it's a return to her early pop-rock sound. Bush's new work, "The Sensual World," continues what Ken calls her "lulling loopiness." INT. 2: Baseball manager TONY La RUSSA. For the past two years, he's led the Oakland Athletics to the World Series. La Russa has been called one of the most intelligent, cerebral and innovative managers now in the game. His style of clubhouse management - taping all American league games in the clubhouse so batters can study upcoming opposing pitchers, computer analysis of statistics to show which batters hit best in clutch situations - is widely imitated and has been credited with revitalizing the American League West, once thought to be the weakest of all four divisions. He's won the Manager of the Year award twice, first while with the Chicago White Sox in 1983, after he guided them to a division title, and again last year when the A's beat the Boston Red Sox to take the pennant. La Russa started attending law school when he thought his career as a ball player was ending. He intended to leave baseball altogether after passing his bar exam, but then was offered a coaching job with the White Sox organization. (Rebroadcast. Original date May 23, 1989). REV. 2: Critic at large Laurie Stone reviews comic Billy Crystal's new HBO speci Interview with Mavis Staples; Commentary on rock, teens, and suicide; Interview with Marita Golden; Review of the television program "Cross of Fire." October 30, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500844].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soul and gospel singer MAVIS STAPLES. As a member of the Staple singers for more than 30 years, she's had hits like "Respect Yourself," and "I'll Take You There," which went to Number One in the early 70s. Mavis Staples has also made several solo albums during the 70s and 80s. Mavis Staples was featured in Prince's 1988 "Lovesexy" tour, and Prince produced Staples new album, "Time Waits For No One." (Rebroadcast. Original date 6/2/89). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD looks at rock's fascination with teen death and suicide, an influence that led to hits like "Teen Angel" and "Leader of the Pack." INT. 2: Writer MARITA GOLDEN. Her new novel, "Long Distance Life," examines half a century in the life of a black middle-class family in the other Washington, D.C., the one not filled with shiny buildings and corridors of power. Previously, Golden published a widely acclaimed memoir, "Migrations of the Heart." REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Cross of Fire," a four-hour NBC miniseries based on true events in the 1920s, when a charismatic leader of the Ku Klux Klan came to power in Indiana.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Songwriters HUGH MARTIN and RALPH BLANE. They wrote the songs for the 1944 Judy Garland film classic, "Meet Me in St. Louis," including "The Trolley Song" and "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas." A musical based on the film is opening on Broadway this week. REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews two new albums by composer, saxophonist and clarinetist ANTHONY BRAXTON. Although Braxton's music has been much criticized, Kevin calls him one of his heroes. Braxton's new albums are "19 Solo Compositions 1988" and "Seven Compositions (Trio) 1989." INT. 2: Writer JOHN UPDIKE. Updike is known as the Pulitzer Prize-winning author of some thirty novels and short stories, including the "Rabbit" novels. His latest effort is not a work of fiction, but a book on art. It's a collection of 23 essays called "Just Looking" that offers Updike's personal reactions to some of the world's masterpieces. He also comments on some of the recent "megashows" such as Renoir at Boston's Museum of Fine Arts and Andrew Wyeth's "Helga" paintings. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Foucault's Pendulum," the new novel by UMBERTO ECO. Eco's first novel was the critically acclaimed bestseller "The Name of the Rose."

Interview with Paul Nitze; Review of John O'Connor's album "Beethoven Sonatas November 1, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501396].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Veteran arms negotiator and diplomat PAUL NITZE. Nitze has spent nearly 50 years at the highest levels of this country's foreign policy, and advised every President from F. D. R. to George Bush. He helped form the Marshall Plan after World War Two, dealt with the Berlin War and Cuban Missile crises, and engaged in the famous "walk in the woods," during the U-S/Soviet INF treaty negotiations. Nitze has just written a memoir of his public life, called "From Hiroshima to Glasnost." REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new compact disc of Beethoven sonatas played by renowned Irish pianist John O'Conor. INT. 2: JOHN MALPEDE and KEVIN WILLIAMS of the Los Angeles Poverty Department, a performance group comprised primarily of homeless and formerly homeless people. The LAPD tries to show the reality of life on the streets. John Malpede is a former performance artist and founder of LAPD (in 1985). He now serves as the group's director and a legal advocate for the homeless. Kevin Wiliams is LAPD's assistant director and former resident of Skid Row. REV. 2: Critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN (GLY-ber-man) reviews the 1964 movie "Bedtime Story" starring David Niven and Marlon Brando as a pair of conniving womanizers. It's now out on home video. That movie inspired last year's film, "Dirty Rotten Scoundrels."

Interview with Alan Arkin; Review of Janet Jackson's and Laurie Anderson's albums "Rhythm Nation 1814" and "Strange Angels"; Interview with Irvin D. Yalom; Review of the film

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and director ALAN ARKIN. Arkin began his career with Chicago's Second City improv group. He went on to win a Tony on Broadway, in Carl Reiner's play "Enter Laughing," and to star in movies such as "The Russians Are Coming, The Russians Are Coming," "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter," "Wait Until Dark," "Catch-22," and "The In-Laws." Arkin's directing credits include "The Sunshine Boys" and "Little Murders" on Broadway, and several movies and TV shows, including an upcoming episode of the PBS comedy series, "Trying Times." REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker review the new albums from Janet Jackson and Laurie Anderson. Ken says the two performers are seemingly miles apart...Jackson's the sister of Michael Jackson and her albums are huge urban contemporary hits, and Anderson's a product of the New York performance scene...but there is common ground. Both albums (Jackson's is called "Rhythm Nation 1814" and Anderson's is titled "Strange Angels") have unifying themes and draw heavily on the latest technology. INT. 2: Psychiatrist Irvin D. Yalom. Yalom is one of the world's leading psychotherapists, and his theories have been adopted by most of this country's clinics and hospitals. Yalom has written several books on psychotherapy, aimed both at experts and the layman. Yalom's new book is called "Love's Executioner & Other Tales of Psychotherapy." It's a collection of ten stories, each featuring one of Yalom's patients, that illustrate the individual difficulties and common threads of psychotherapy. REV. 2: Film critic PETER RAINER reviews the film "Drugstore Cowboy," starring Matt Dillon and Kelly Lynch.

Interview with Ken Hom; Commentary on "western" musicians and "world" music; Interview with Lester Bowie; Commentary on the "Breck girl." November 3, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502060].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chinese chef KEN HOM. He's the author of the new cookbook, "Fragrant Harbor Taste: The New Chinese Cooking of Hong Kong." Hong Kong is in the midst of a culinary revolution, with Japanese, European, and American foods and styles of preparation all merging with traditional Chinese cuisine. Hom has taught cooking in Hong Kong for the past ten years. He's also written several previous cookbooks and hosted the public T-V series "Ken Hom's Chinese Cookery." REV. 1: World music commentator MILO MILES reviews David Byrne's "Brazil Classics" series and talks about the recent trend among Western rock stars to borrow rhythms and singers from the musical traditions of Africa, the Near East, and South America. He asks whether this is valuable exposure for little-known musicians or a form of exploitation.

INT. 2: Jazz trumpeter LESTER BOWIE. Bowie is considered one of the most original trumpeters in jazz, and a master of horn effects. Bowie started out playing with Saint Louis R&B bands. In 1969, he helped found the Art Ensemble of Chicago as an outlet for more eclectic and avant-garde jazz. Bowie also heads his own band, Lester Bowie's Brass Fantasy. They have a new album, called "Serious Fun." REV. 2: Commentator Patsy McLaughlin (mc-LOFF-lin) reflects on advertising's "Breck" girl becoming the "Breck" woman.

Interview with Phillip Lopate; Review of Art Pepper's album "The Complete Galaxy Recordings"; Interview with John Haines; Commentary on the television show "Nightline." November 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501649].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist and essayist PHILLIP LOPATE. In "Against Joie de Vivre," his new collection of essays, Lopate writes about - and rails against - the enforced gaiety of dinner parties, camaraderie in bars, teaching Chekhov to 10-year-olds and overwrought writing about architecture. In one essay, `Samson and Delilah,' Lopate uses the biblical essay to ruminate on power relations within his own family, and his confused love relationship with his mother and wife. His other books include "Bachelorhood," "The Rug Merchant" and "Confessions of Summer." One of his best-known works, "Being with Children," recalls his trials and triumphs as a teacher of writing at a New York City public school. (Rebroadcast. Original date May 26, 1989). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new 16-CD box set by alto saxophonist Art Pepper, called "The Complete Galaxy Recordings." INT. 2: Poet and essayist JOHN HAINES. Haines’ new book "The Stars, The Snow, The Fire," recalls the 25 years he spent homesteading in the Alaskan wilderness. Haines is "one of our best nature writers," according to Hayden Carruth of Harpers Magazine. Carruth writes that Haines also "knows the ecological crisis ... as a crisis of consciousness, the human mind in ultimate confrontation with itself." (Rebroadcast. Original date July 25, 1989). REV. 2: This week marks the 10th anniversary of ABC's "Nightline," and television critic DAVID BIANCULLI examines how the show went from a special on the hostage crisis to one of the most important programs in broadcast journalism.
Interview with George Clinton; Commentary on Leon Huff and Kenny Gamble; Interview with Shlomo Mintz; Review of Frederic Morton's book November 7, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502065].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The master of funk, GEORGE CLINTON. He began his musical career as a teenager when he formed The Parliaments. But in the early 70s, Clinton put together a second group, "Funkadelic," that became enormously influential on the pop music scene. Their 1970 album, "Osmium," set the tone for Clinton's wickedly eclectic style; songs ranged from metaphysical gospel to country and acid rock. But their big hit came with the album "Mothership Connection." In songs like "Tear the Roof Off the Sucker," "Get Up on the Downstroke" and "Think! It ain't illegal yet," Clinton blended rap with a heavy rhythm line that defined the funk sound and culture. His latest album is "The Cinderella Theory." (Rebroadcast. Original date August 8, 1989.) REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles LEON HUFF and KENNY GAMBLE, creators of the Philadelphia International label -- one of the great black pop record labels of the early '70s. INT. 2: Violinist SHLOMO MINTZ. Mintz was born in Moscow and emigrated with his family two years later to Israel. He made his concerto debut at age 11 with Zubin Mehta, and has continued to appear with Mehta each season since. Mintz is considered one of the foremost violinists of this generation. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Thunder at Twilight: Vienna 1913-1914" by Frederic Morton. It's a sequel to Morton's previous book about Vienna.

Interview with Lawrence Grobel; Review of Erich Wolfgang Korngold albums; Interview with Chris Difford and Glenn Tilbrook; Commentary on the language of book jacket "blurbs" and book reviews. November 8, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502061].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer LAWRENCE GROBEL (pronounced gro-BEL). Grobel has just written "The Hustons," a profile of the film industry's most famous dynasty. The book centers around actor and director John Huston, but also follows the lives his father Walter and his daughter Anjelica, a trio that represents three generations of Oscar winners. For the book, Grobel conducted more than 200 interviews with the Hustons, the friends, enemies, and associates. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews three reissues of music by composer Erich Wolfgang Korngold. Korngold was a success at both serious composition and writing music for the movies...among his film scores are the classics "The Sea Hawk," and "The Adventures of Robin Hood." INT. 2: Songwriter/musicians CHRIS DIFFORD and GLENN TILBROOK. They started the rock group Squeeze in the late 70s, broke up in 1982 as the band was about to make it big, and reformed 1985. Nevertheless, the band had a series of hits in their native England and have drawn critical praise in this country. The band's new album is called "Frank." REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines the blurbs on book jackets...those hyperbolic quotes that declare seemingly every new book to be "a blockbuster" or "runaway best-seller."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Paleontologist and evolutionary biologist STEPHEN JAY GOULD. Gould is a professor of geology and curator at the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard. He writes columns for "Natural History Magazine" and "Discover Magazine," and has written several books, including the award-winning "The Mismeasure of Man." Gould uses his writing and teaching to illuminate and demystify the scientific method and to provide a historical perspective on science for the layman. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new albums: "Wild Weekend" by NRBQ and "The People's Republic of Rock n Roll" by Peter Stampfel and the Bottle Caps. Ken says while they may not have much in common, both are critically-acclaimed cult groups releasing albums after a long silence. INT. 2: Anthropologist RICHARD NELSON. His new book, "The Island Within," is an account of Nelson's explorations of an uninhabited island near his Pacific Northwest home. REV. 2: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN takes a look at the book reviewers bible, "Publishers Weekly." She examines how PW has often hawked new books that went nowhere, while barely mentioning books that went on to become classics.
Interview with Nancy Reagan; Commentary on rock musicians and "world" music; Interview with Eliot Feld; Review of the film "Henry V." November 10, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924441].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former first lady NANCY REAGAN. When the Reagans entered the White House, Nancy was a relatively anonymous first lady, best known for her strident "Just Say No" anti-drug campaign. But toward the end of President Reagan's second term, it became more apparent that Nancy Reagan's role in running the government was much larger than imagined, and it turns out many of her and her husband's decisions were influenced by a California astrologer. Nancy Reagan has a new memoir, called "My Turn."

REV. 1: World music commentator MILO MILES explains how Peter Gabriel transformed folk music of the Middle East into the world pop sound that became the soundtrack for Scorsese's film "The Last Temptation of Christ." INT. 2: Choreographer ELIOT FELD. He founded the Feld Ballet in 1974 as a place where classical ballet and modern dance could exist together. The company is still going strong, touring throughout America and overseas. Feld has also created ballets for many of the world's great companies, among them the American Ballet Theatre, the National Ballet of Canada, and the New York City Ballet. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new version of "Henry V" starring Kenneth Branagh.

Interview with Carole King; Review of Warren Vache?'s album "Warm Evening"; Interview with Sue Grafton; Review of the television miniseries "A Tale of Two Cities" and "Till We Meet Again." November 13, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501807].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and songwriter CAROLE KING. In the 60s, she wrote hit songs like "Up on the Roof" and "Will you still love me tomorrow?" But in the 70s, she achieved lasting fame with songs like "Natural Woman" and her album "Tapestry," Best-selling album of the decade. Carole King has a new album, titled "City Streets." (Rebroadcast. Original date June 19, 1989.) REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Warm Evenings," the new album by cornet player Warren Vache? (pronounced va-SHAY). On this album, Vache? teams up with classical music's Beaux-Arts String Quartet. INT. 2: Mystery writer SUE GRAFTON. Her heroine, Kinsey Millhone, is a new breed of hard-boiled detective: competent and self-reliant, thirty-two years old, twice married with no kids, and currently single. The Kinsey Millhone mystery series began with A is for Alibi, and continues through the alphabet. Last year's publication was E is for Evidence, and the series continues with the newest addition, F is for Fugitive. Grafton has written this about creating a female private eye - "The basic characteristics of any good investigator are a plodding nature and infinite patience. Society has been grooming women to this end for years." (Rebroadcast. Original date May 4, 1989.) REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new miniseries--"A Tale of Two Cities" by Dickens, and "Till We Meet Again" by Judith Krantz.

Interview with Julia Child; Commentary of the predecessors of Jerry Lee Lewis; Interview with Gus Van Sant; Review of Amos Oz's collection of essays "The Slopes of Lebanon". November 14, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502059].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The French Chef, JULIA CHILD. She spent three decades explaining the mysteries of classic French cuisine to modern American audiences. Child has hosted several cooking shows on Public Television, earning Peabody and Emmy Awards in the process, and written several cookbooks. Her new book, is titled "The Way to Cook." It's a 50-dollar tome that...in Child's words...tells "everything [I] know about the essentials of cooking today." REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD examines the performers that led the way for Jerry Lee Lewis. Lewis burst on the scene in the late 50s, but Ed shows that lots of other guys were pounding the keys way before the killer. INT. 2: Film maker GUS VAN SANT. After years as an independent film maker in Portland, Oregon, and one full-length movie ("Mala Noche"), Van Sant has just finished "Drugstore Cowboy," starring Matt Dillon about a junkie trying to maintain his habit. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "The Slopes of Lebanon." It's a collection of essays and articles by Israeli writer Amos Oz.

Interview with H. C. Robbins Landon; Review of Mannheim Quartet's album "Classical Flute Quartets"; Interview with John Carter; Review of the movie "Vengeance is Mine." November 15, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502063].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musicologist H.C. ROBBINS LANDON. His new book, "Mozart: The Golden Years," traces the most troubling and creative period of the composers life, the years 1781-91. During this period, Mozart completed three controversial operas, married and wooed his wife Constanze Weber, became entangled in financial difficulties, and lived through the death of his father. In this book, the second of two volumes on the life of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, LANDON, further explores the link between Mozart's "manic depressive disorder" and his creativity. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a recording of 18th century flute quartets by the Mannheim Quartet. The group performs several of Mozart's quartets here on original instruments. INT. 2: Jazz composer/clarinetist JOHN CARTER. He has just completed a five part music series chronicling the black migration experience from Africa to America: "Roots and Folklore: Episodes in the Development of American Folk Music. The final program in the series, "Shadows on A Wall," premiered recently as part of the New Wave Festival at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. The festival celebrates performers working on the edge of classical, rock, and jazz styles. CARTER'S performances are also out on disc. REV. 2: Critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews the video "Vengeance is Mine." It's a Japanese movie made in 1979.

Interview with John Fairchild; Review of Ice-T's album "Freedom of Speech...Just Watch What You Say"; Interview with Max DePree; Review of the film "Steel Magnolias." November 16, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501484].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN FAIRCHILD, the publisher of "Women's Wear Daily," and "W." "Women's Wear Daily" is to the fashion industry what "The Wall Street Journal" is to the financial community. "W" is a glitzy fashion magazine. Fairchild has just written an insiders expose of the fashion world, called "Chic Savages." REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new album from Los Angeles rapper ICE-T. The album's called "Freedom of Speech...Just Watch What You Say." It's a blast back at groups such as the Parents Music Resource Center, which has been pushing for a rating system similar to the one use in the movie industry. INT. 2: Business executive MAX DEPREE. DePree turned his company, a once obscure office furniture manufacturer, into the "nation's most admired corporation" (according to Fortune magazine). DePree has just published his thoughts on enlightened management in a new book called, "Leadership Is An Art." Whereas most management books these days push an Attila the Hun approach, DePree's is closer to Saint Francis of Assisi. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Steel Magnolias," starring Dolly Parton, Olympia Dukakis, Shirley McLain, and Darrell Hannah as a group of friends in a small Southern town.
Interview with Lionel Hampton; Interview with Caetano Veloso; Review of the film "My Left Foot." November 17, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501623].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz vibraphonist LIONEL HAMPTON. He introduced the vibes to the jazz world and remains one of it's undisputed masters. In the 1930's he played with the Benny Goodman's band -- being one of the first blacks to play with a white band. He's just written an autobiography, "Hamp." REV. 1:  MUSIC REVIEW PRE-EMPTED *****

INT. 2: Brazilian singer/songwriter CAETANO VELOSO (kah-TAH-no vah-LOW-sah). He's revered as one of the primary architects of "tropicalismo," - a 1960's cultural and musical movement that reevaluated traditional Brazilian music and incorporated non-Brazilian musical styles. Leftist intellectuals denounced his music for it's use of foreign influences. In the late 1960's he was jailed and exiled from Brazil for his participation in the musical movement because the government feared the social force it might have. In 1972 VELOSO returned his country where tropicalismo had altered Brazil's cultural and musical landscape. And it layed the groundwork for the current renaissance of Brazilian popular music. VELOSO recently appeared on David Byrne's Brazilian music compilation, "Beleza Tropical." VELOSO'S newest album is "Estrangeiro," (" Stranger"). REV. 2: Critic at large LAURIE STONE reviews the new movie, "My Left Foot." It stars Daniel Day Lewis as Christy Brown, an Irish painter and writer with cerebral palsy.

Interview with Chris Frantz and Tina Weymouth; Review of the New Music America Festival; Interview with David Shields; Review of the television documentary "Girltalk." November 20, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501405].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The husband-and-wife rhythm section, drummer CHRIS FRANTZ and bassist TINA WEYMOUTH. The two co-founded Talking Heads with David Byrne in 1974, and married in 1977. The two also founded the band "Tom Tom Club," a loose conglomeration of friends, relatives and neighbors. Tom Tom Club has had hits with the songs "Genius of Love," and "Wordy Rappinghood," from their 1981 debut album "Tom Tom Club," and since has recorded two other albums, "Close to the Bone," and "Boom Boom Chi Boom Boom." (Rebroadcast. Original date April 19, 1989). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the annual New Music America festival just completed in New York and sponsored by the Brooklyn Academy of Music and corporate donations. WHITEHEAD questions the value of the 10 year-old festival. INT. 2: Novelist DAVID SHEILDS. His second novel, Dead Languages, uses the experience of stuttering as a metaphor for the difficulty of all interaction. It's the story of Jeremy Zorn and his efforts - sometimes comic - to overcome his stutter. The story parallels Sheilds' experiences. Shields says the inspiration for the novel grew from the paradox between his own comfort and security in the written word, contrasted with his virtual paralysis with speech. (Rebroadcast. Original date 5/10/89).

REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Girltalk." It's a documentary that explores the lives of several women...all of them runaways, many of them from abusive homes. The program airs as part of Public Television's series, "P.O.V." (That's short for point of view).

---

Interview with Johnny Otis; Commentary on Roy Orbison's early career; Interview with Jerry Orbach; Review of Wole Soyinka's memoir "Isara." November 21, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501957].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Bandleader, singer, songwriter, and talent scout JOHNNY OTIS. His musical career spans the big band era, rhythm and blues, and rock and roll. In the 40's he played and traveled with the big bands, with the Ink Spots and Louis Jordan. Later, with a pared down band, he was on the forefront of the rhythm and blues. He's credited with discovering Etta James, Big Mama Thornton, Jackie Wilson and Ernestine Anderson. His songwriting hits include "Willie and the Hand Jive," "Roll with Me Henry," and "Every Beat of My Heart." A collection of his work has just been reissued on Capitol Records. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD looks back on Roy Orbison's early career at Sun Records. Ed says that early work shows that Orbison was a more versatile performer that his big hits would indicate. INT. 2: Actor JERRY ORBACH. Orbach has had a long career on Broadway, starring in shows such as "The Three Penny Opera," "Promises, Promises," and "42nd Street." More recently he's appeared on TV and in films. His latest role is in the new Woody Allen movie, "Crimes and Misdemeanors." REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Isara" (ih-sare-ah) Nobel Laureate Wole Soyinka's (wolly Soy-enk-ka) essay about his father.

---

Interview with Mickey Spillane; Review of Ferruccio Busoni's album "Concerto in C Major for Piano & Orchestra, Op. 39"; Interview with Dave Marsh; Review of George Lipsitz's book

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Detective writer MICKEY SPILLANE. One of the world's most popular writers of the hardboiled private investigator genre. His most famous character is Mike Hammer. SPILLANE has just written his first Mike Hammer story in 19 years. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new recording of Ferruccio Busoni's (fe-ROOCH-ee-oh boo-SONY) piano concerto, performed by Garrick Ohlsson accompanied by the Cleveland Orchestra. Lloyd says the concerto is one of the most ambitious works ever composed, and this new recording should revive interest in it. INT. 2: Rock critic DAVE MARSH. Marsh is one of rock's most influential voices. He edited the Rolling Stone Record Guide and has written profiles of Bruce Springsteen and the Who. Marsh's new book is "The Heart of Rock and Roll: The 1001 Greatest Singles Ever Made." REV. 2: Commentator Maureen Corrigan reviews "Time Passages: Collective Memory and American Popular Culture" by George Lipsitz. The book examines how our collective memory has been shaped by popular culture since World War 2.

Interview with Charles Brown; Commentary on TK Studios; Interview with Rick Bass; Review of the film "Back to the Future II." November 23, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501407].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live concert with songwriter and pianist CHARLES BROWN. Charles Brown is one of the most original artists in blues history. He's credited with creating an expressive style of blues that blended rough Texas blues with the soft glamour of Hollywood. This approach was dubbed "Club Blues." Between 1946 and 1952, Brown recorded 20 hits, nine on his own, the rest as part of Johnny Moore's Blazers. These include "Driftin' Blues," "Black Night," "Merry Christmas, Baby" and "I Want to Go Home," which Sam Cooke later reworked with "Bring It On Home To Me." Musicians who have been influenced by Brown, or paid homage to him, include Ray Charles, Otis Redding, James Brown, Sam Cooke, Billy Eckstein and Bruce Springsteen. Brown's featured role in the PBS documentary on the history of rhythm and blues have brought him back into the public eye. (Rebroadcast. Original date 6/22/89). REV. 1: Rock critic ED WARD profiles Miami's TK Studios. In the mid-70s, TK cranked out some of the biggest hits of the disco era, such as "Rock Your Baby" by George McCrae and "That's the Way I Like It" by K.C. and the Sunshine Band. INT. 2: Author RICK BASS. His new book, Oil Notes, is a journal based on Bass' experience as a geologist looking for oil throughout the American West. Bass has also written short stories, essays, and environmental journalism. (Rebroadcast. Original date 7/11/89). REV. 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Back to the Future II."

Interview with Martin Short; Interview with Larry Sultan; Commentary on Americans using British English. November 24, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501619].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comic Actor MARTIN SHORT. A native of Canada, Short appeared for three years with the Second City company in Toronto. There, he created such characters as the infamous Ed Grimley, who lives on in the current Saturday morning children's show, "The Completely Mental Misadventures of Ed Grimley." Short's first commercial success came when he joined the cast of "Saturday Night Live." Since then, he's starred in the feature films "Three Amigos!" and "Innerspace." His new film, which co-stars Nick Nolte, is the comedy "Three Fugitives." (Rebroadcast. Original date 1/30/89). REV. 1:  pre-empted by extended Int. 2 segment  INT. 2: Photographer LARRY SULTAN. In a photography exhibit now on display at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, Sultan is represented by work from a project he began in 1983 about his family's history. A key feature of the work, and a feature that appears in all of Sultan's work, is capturing subjects at "off" moments, situations where they least expect, or wish, themselves to be photographed. The project, titled "Pictures from Home," is Sultan's study of his parents pursuit of the American dream in California, and of Sultan's own childhood in the postwar, baby boom generation. The exhibit mixes recent photos of his parents with snapshots taken in the `50s and early `60s. In combining recent and old photos, Sultan's new, fictionalized account of his and his parent's life becomes part of his reassessment of his family history. (Rebroadcast. Original date 7/12/89). REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines the epitome of Americans trying to cop some highbrow British style, using the word "shall" when they mean "will."
Interview with Peter Matthiessen; Review of Sofia Gubaidulina albums; Interview with Paul Rudnick and Selma Rudnick; Review of the television show "The Neon Empire." November 27, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501406].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Naturalist, explorer and writer PETER MATTHIESSEN. For over three decades he's been writing critically acclaimed works of fiction and nonfiction. His nonfiction includes the books The Tree Where Man Was Born, which was nominated for the National Book Award, and The Snow Leopard, which won that award. He's also written several novels, including At Play in the Fields of the Lord, also nominated for the National Book Award, and Far Tortuga. His writing addresses themes such as the brutality of nature, and of man's desecration of nature, the compulsion towards violence, the anatomy of bigotry, and the outrage of the oppressed. Matthiessen's new book, On the River Styx and Other Stories, is a collection of short stories written over the span of his literary career. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired April 6, 1989.)

REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the recordings of music by composer, Sofia Gubaidulina (So-FEE-ah Goo-bye-DOO-lee-na). She's the Soviet Union's leading female composer. INT. 2: Writer and shopper PAUL RUDNICK, and his mother, SELMA. Paul Runick, best-known for his play Poor Little Lambs, for the novel Social Disease, and for his essays in such publications as Esquire and Vanity Fair, has just published a novel about, among other things, a mother and son shopping team. Titled I'll Take It, the thinly veiled autobiographical novel is about the developed inability to resist the temptation to shop, and about the quest for ultimate bliss - a good sale. Selma Rudnick listens in from Philadelphia and then critiques the accuracy of her son's account of HER life. (Rebroadcast. Original date 6/21/89). REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Neon Empire" a new mini-series on Showtime which stars Martin Landau, Gary Busey, and Ray Sharkey. It follows in the footsteps of NBC's belated "Crime Story."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer DANIEL LANOIS (len-wah). He's considered one of the premier record producers of the 80's. He produced U2'S "Joshua Tree," Bob Dylan's new record "Oh Mercy," the Neville Brother's "Yellow Moon," and Peter Gabriel's "So." He's currently on tour performing songs from his own first solo album, "Acadie" (ah-kah-dee). On it you can hear the influence of his own French-Canadian folk roots, and the atmospheric, ambient sounds he produced with Brian Eno. REV. 1: Rock historian EDWARD reacquaints us with the music of LOUIS JORDAN. In the late 1940's he was one of the highest-grossing black acts in the country. INT. 2: Winemaker ROBERT GERALD MONDAVI. He's credited with being, "one of the world's two or three most influential wine makers." ("New West" magazine). In the 1960's he severed ties with the family's Winery in Napa Valley where his father had been producing bulk wine since the 1930's. He went on to form his own winery, Robert Mondavi Winery, and to put California on the map as a world-class wine producer. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Fur Hat," a novel by Soviet writer VLADIMIR VOINOVICH. (VLAD-i-meer VOY-no-vitch).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN L. MARION, chairman and chief auctioneer for Sotheby's auction house. Marion's brought the gavel down on more than 50-million dollars worth of fine art and antiquities, and presided over the recent explosion in art prices. Marion's written a beginners guide to collecting, called "The Best of Everything." REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Journeyman," the new album from veteran rocker Eric Clapton. INT. 2: Sound engineer RANDY THOM. He began his career in community radio (WYSO in Yellow Springs, Ohio) producing live music and dramas. He then moved into producing sound for films, although he still produces some independent radio dramas. He won an Academy Award for his work on "The Right Stuff," and Oscar nominations for the films "Return of the Jedi" and "Never Cry Wolf." His other credits include "Apocalypse Now," "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," "Tucker" and "Colors." Randy Thom is a sound designer on the staff of Lucasfilm, the production company headed by George Lucas, the director of "Star Wars." REV. 2: Film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN (gly-ber-man) reviews the new Walt Disney animated movie, "The Little Mermaid."

Interview with Lily Tomlin; Commentary on LPs; Interview with Tim Rollins and Carlos Rivera; Review of the television program "Howard Beach December 1, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501392].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress and comedienne LILY TOMLIN. For years she's been doing her impressions of such characters as Ernestine, the nasal telephone operator on "Laugh-In." Now she's doing a whole cast of characters in the revival of her one-woman show, "The Search for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe." REV. 1: Commentator ILENE SEGALOVE (seg-ah-loff) bucks the trend toward the compact disc, and rediscovers the joys of old LPs. INT. 2: Artist-teacher TIM ROLLINS and his student CARLOS RIVERA. In collaboration with his South Bronx high-school students ROLLINS has created "excellent...slightly miraculous art." ("New York" Magazine). Since 1981, the group known as K.O.S. (for Kids of Survival -- mostly black and Puerto Rican students), has had showings of its work in over 50 shows. Now there's a showing of their own, "Amerika," in New York. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI considers the networks' penchant for the docudrama and looks at NBC's upcoming movie, "Howard Beach: Making the Case for Murder."

Interview with Nadine Gordimer; Commentary on boogie-woogie piano music; Interview with Robert Towne; Review of the television channel "Comedy Channel." December 4, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501393].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African writer NADINE GORDIMER. She is one of that country's best-known artists and one of the most vocal and effective opponents of apartheid, the laws that mandate strict separation of the races. Gordimer's novels include A Sport of Nature, July's People, Burger's Daughter and The Conservationist. Her new book, a collection of essays, is titled The Essential Gesture. It provides a portrait of South Africa and of Gordimer's emergence as an artist. (rebroadcast. Originally on 5/24/89). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD takes a historic look at boogie-woogie piano music. Includes such piano players as Meade Lux Lewis, Albert Ammons, Pete Johnson, and Jimmy Yancey. INT. 2: Film director and screenwriter ROBERT TOWNE. Towne is perhaps Hollywood's most successful and critically acclaimed screenwriter. He wrote the scripts for the films "The Last Detail," "Shampoo" and "Chinatown," which won the Academy Award for the best screenplay. He debuted as a director with the 1982 film "Personal Best." His most recent film, which he wrote the screenplay for and directed, is "Tequila Sunrise," now out on home video. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 12/15/88). REV. 2: Commentator LAURIE STONE reviews Home Box Office's "Comedy Channel."

Interview with Costa-Gavras; Commentary on the Yardbirds; Interview with Dave Edmunds; Review of A. Bartlett Giamatti's essay collection "Take Time for Paradise." December 5, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502068].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Academy Award-winning film director COSTA-GAVRAS. His films include, "Z," "State of Seige," "Missing," and "Betrayed." His new film, "The Music Box," stars Jessica Lange as an attorney who must defend her Hungarian immigrant father against accusations of committing a series of war crimes. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD takes a look at the early days of the Yardbirds with Eric Clapton and Jimmy Page. INT. 2: Rock singer, guitarist and record producer DAVE EDMUNDS. Although he was born in Wales, his music is influenced by the American roots of rock and roll. As a producer, he's worked with the Stray Cats, The Fabulous Thunderirds, and he produced the come-back albums of the Everly Brothers and Dion. In the 1970's, he got together in London with Nick Lowe and formed the band Rockpile. Edmunds has a new album coming out soon on Capitol called "Closer to the Flame." It's his first in five years. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Take Time for Paradise," a collection of essays about sports by the late baseball commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti.

Interview with Isabelle Adjani; Review of Henry Purcell's album "The Fairy Queen"; Interview with Tom Shales; Review of Andrezej Szcypiorski's novel "The Beautiful Mrs. Seidenman." December 6, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501387].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: French actress ISABELLE ADJANI. Her most famous role was in the film "The Story of Adele H." Her latest film, for which she won the French equivalent of an Oscar for Best Actress, is about the life of Camille Claudel. Claudel was French sculptor Rodin's mistress and a sculptor in her own right. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of 17th century composer Henry Purcell's "The Fairy Queen." INT. 2: TOM SHALES, Pulitzer Prize-winning television critic for the Washington Post. He has a new collection of essays, "Legends: Remembering America's Greatest Stars," which takes a look at such stars as Jackie Gleason, Bing Crosby, Natalie Wood, and Gilda Radner. REV. 2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews an English translation of the novel, "The Beautiful Mrs. Seidenman," by Polish writer ANDRZEJ SZCZYPIORSKI. Although it was a bestseller in Europe, the novel was banned in Poland because of the writer's involvement with Solidarity. With the recent political changes, SZCZYPIORSKI's book is now published in Poland and in July he was elected to the Polish Senate.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock guitarist ERIC CLAPTON. His friends call him "Slowhand," his fans call him "God." Whatever name he goes by, Eric Clapton is at or near the top of any list of the greatest guitar players in rock history. Clapton started out playing blues with the Yardbirds (For Your Love) in the early 60s, then played with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers before forming Cream, one of the 60s most influential bands (Crossroads, White Room). Clapton's early years, his exposure to the blues, his work with the Yardbirds, with John Mayall, and with Cream are covered in today's interview segment. (Part I of the interview airs today. Part II airs tomorrow).

REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new album from the Mekons (pronounced MEE-kons). The Mekons formed in England at the height of the punk movement. Their musical style embraces punk, country, reggae and just about everything else. The one unifying theme in their music is politics, particularity the politics of the music industry. The new album is called "The Mekons Rock 'n' Roll." INT. 2: Character actor VINCENT GARDENIA. He received Oscar nominations for his roles in "Moonstruck" and "Bang the Drum Slowly." His other movies include "The Front Page," "Little Shop of Horrors," and "Little Murders." He also was a regular on the T-V series "All In The Family" and "Breaking Away." In addition, Gardenia has appeared on Broadway, winning a Tony for his role in "The Prisoner of Second Avenue" and a nomination for "Ballroom." Vincent Gardenia co-stars with Hume Cronyn in "Age-Old Friends." It's a HBO movie about two old friends facing the end of their days.

REV. 2: Film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews two new cynical comedies: "The War of the Roses." It stars Kathleen Turner and Michael Douglas as the once-perfect couple going through the world's ugliest divorce, and Danny DeVito as divorce lawyer caught in middle. And "She-Devil" starring Meryl Streep, Roseanne Barr, and Ed Begley, Jr.
Interview with Eric Clapton, part 2; Interview with Abdullah Ibrahim; Interview with Mark Halliday. December 8, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971500945].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PART II: Rock guitarist ERIC CLAPTON. His friends call him "Slowhand," his fans call him "God." Whatever name he goes by, Eric Clapton is at or near the top of any list of the greatest guitar players in rock history. In the 60's Clapton started playing the blues with the Yardbirds (For Your Love) and then played with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers before forming Cream, one of the 60's most influential bands (Crossroads, White Room). Clapton then became part of the band Blind Faith, played and toured with Delany and Bonnie, and fronted Derek and the Dominoes (Layla, Little Wing). To top it off, Clapton's made more than a dozen solo albums (After Midnight, Cocaine, I Shot the Sheriff). His latest is called "Journeyman." Clapton's later work with Cream and Blind Faith, and his personal life are all explored in today's interview. REV. 1:  NO MUSIC REVIEWS  INT. 2: South African pianist/composer ABDULLAH IBRAHIM (E-bra-HEEM). His music is influenced by South African vocal and popular music, early American Jazz, church music, and American Jazz of the 1960's and 1970's which was influenced by African music. One of his songs, "Mannenberg is Where It's Happening (Capetown Fringe)," a vocal, was a hit in South Africa and became the anthem for the Soweto uprisings of 1976. Ibrahim formerly went by the name Dollar Brand, and has several albums under that name. Ibrahim lives in New York in self-imposed exile from South Africa. A collection of his work, "Voice of Africa. The African Recordings" was recently released in the United States. REV. 2: Poet Mark Halliday reads two poems about the passage of time.

Interview with John McPhee; Review of Tim Berne's album "Fractured Fairy Tales"; Interview with Terry McMillan; Review of the television show "Beauty and the Beast." December 11, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501933].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JOHN McPhee. He's a classic example of a "writer's writer," one whose style is endlessly studied and mimicked, and whose effortlessness in moving between subjects as diverse as Alaskan geology, oranges, and birch-bark canoes is the envy of every freelancer. He's worked at The New Yorker magazine since the late 60s and is one of its most popular contributors. His best-known books include
A Sense of Where You Are, about Rhodes Scholar and basketball star Bill Bradley, Coming into the Country, about Alaska, and Pieces of the Frame," about curator Thomas Hoving and the world of high art. Over the last several years, McPhee's magazine pieces have focused on the earth sciences. His latest book is titled The Control of Nature. (Rebroadcast. Original date August 11, 1989). REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Fractured Fairy Tales," the new album by alto saxophonist Tim Berne and his septet. Kevin says Berne started out by putting out his own records and eventually worked his way up to a deal with Columbia. Ironically, they dropped him at the same time he was winning his largest critical acclaim. INT. 2: Author TERRY McMILLAN. She's a black writer whose first novel was "Mama." Her new novel, "Disappearing Acts," is set in Brooklyn in 1982 and takes a look at what makes a relationship work. It's about an educated black man who falls in love with an uneducated black woman. (Rebroadcast. Original date September 13, 1989). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews the season premiere of "Beauty and the Beast."

Interview with Lenny Pickett and the Bornero Horns; Commentary on Norman "General" Johnson"; Interview with Michael Ryan; Commentary on enunciation and diction. December 12, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501390].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live stereo concert with LENNY PICKETT and the BORNEO HORNS. Pickett says the Borneo Horns play rhythmically compelling music using wind instruments, not percussion, to track the rhythm. He formed the band with horn players he met in David Bowie's band. These days, in addition to leading his band, Pickett is an accomplished composer and arranger, and he plays in the band on Saturday Night Live. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles General Norman Johnson, and the long, convoluted path that led him to the group, the Chairmen of the Board. INT. 2: Poet MICHAEL RYAN. Ryan's poems have earned him a Guggenheim Fellowship and a nomination for the National Book Award. He's just released his third collection of poems, called "God Hunger." REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg takes a look at enunciation and diction.
Interview with Tristan Jones; Review of William Boughton and the English String Orchestra albums; Interview with Kaffe Fassett; Review of Ernst Pawel's biography "The Labyrinth of Exile." December 13, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501388].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Adventurer and author TRISTAN JONES. Tristan Jones is almost certainly the most intrepid sailor alive, and there's a strong argument that he's one of the most intrepid sailors who's ever lived. At last count he's journeyed more than 450-thousand miles in small boats. That includes 20 crossings of the Atlantic, and 3 and a half circumnavigations. Many of those miles were racked up during the course of exceedingly dangerous, some would say foolhardy, adventures. Jones tried to sail as close as possible to the North Pole, and as a result spent a year frozen in the Arctic ice pack. When he set out to sail from Lake Titicaca to the mouth of the Amazon, he ended up fighting border guards, hunger, leeches, and hitherto impenetrable jungle. After losing a leg to an old World War two injury, Jones has continued to travel, and he now works with disabled kids throughout the world. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews recent recordings of three Mendelssohn string symphonies, all written in Mendelssohn's teens. They're performed by William Boughton and the English String Orchestra. INT. 2: Knitwear designer KAFFE FASSETT (the first name rhymes with "safe," the last name rhymes with "basset"). He's elevated needlework from a simple craft to an art form. Fassett started out as a painter, but while working in England he visited a Scottish wool mill, and was dazzled by the colors and textures he discovered there. He's since made tapestries, clothes, chairs, and other objects, and authored several books that have influenced textile designers. His latest book (co-authored with Zoe Hunt) is a collection of clothing patterns called "Family Album." REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "The Labyrinth of Exile," Ernst Pawel's (pronounced "Powell") biography of Theodore Herzl, the founder of Zionist movement.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor ED BEGLEY, JR. He's best known for his role as the bumbling Dr. Victor Erlich in the television show, "St. Elsewhere." Before that, he's appeared in "Spinal Tap," where he had a non-speaking role as a drummer during the "paisley period," in "The Accidental Tourist," and in "Scenes from a Class Struggle in Beverly Hills." He's also done stand-up comedy. He's starring in the new movie, "She-Devil," with Meryl Streep and Roseanne Barr. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews albums by women singers who sound like Joni Mitchell. INT. 2: Cartoonist MATT GROENING (pronounced GRAY-ning). He's the creator of the Simpsons, the all-too-real cartoon family featured on the Tracy Ullman Show. The Simpsons are starring in their own prime time Christmas special on the Fox network, and starting January 14th, "The Simpsons" will appear as a regular show...the first animated prime time series since "The Flintstones." Matt Groening also draws the comic strip, "Life In Hell," which appears in many alternative and college newspapers. "Life In Hell" stars Binky the sullen, buck-eyed rabbit, his girlfriend Sheeba, and his illegitimate son Bongo. The strip inspired Groening's best selling books, "Love In Hell," "Work Is Hell," "School Is Hell," and "Childhood Is Hell." REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the movie, "Enemies, a Love Story," based on an Isaac Bashevis Singer novel, directed by Paul Mazursky and starring Angelica Huston, Lena Olin, and Ron Silver.

Interview with Ken Kesey; Commentary on Celia Cruz and La Lupe; Interview with Cornell Capa; Commentary on automobile advertisements. December 15, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501270].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer KEN KESEY. Kesey was a leading figure of the 60's counterculture. As the leader of the Merry Pranksters, Kesey did as much as anyone to popularize the use of LSD and other hallucinogens. Kesey also wrote two of the most popular books of the era, "Sometimes a Great Notion" and "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." In 1986, Kesey wrote "Demon Box," a look back at his life since the 60s. Kesey has a new book, called "Caverns." It's a novel he co-wrote with the 13 members of his University of Oregon fiction class. REV. 1: World Music critic MILO MILES takes a look at the music of two Latin American singers who live as ex-patriots: Celia Cruz and La Lupe. And he considers how being an ex-patriot can influence a singer's work. INT. 2: Photographer CORNELL CAPA. He's a former president of Magnum Photos, Inc. a collective of the world's most renowned photographers whose founders include, Cornell's brother, Robert Capa, Henri Cartier-Bresson, Maria Eisner and others. In 1967 he founded and directed the International Fund for Concerned Photography, an organization formed partly in memory of his brother, Robert, who was killed in Vietnam while on assignment. CORNELL CAPA has been a staff photographer for "Life" magazine and has published a number of books of photographs. In 1974 he ceased activities as a photographer to direct the International Center of Photography in New York. REV. 2: Commentator LESLIE SAVAN has some thoughts on Nissan's "Infiniti" and Toyota's "Lexus" car ads.

Interview with Gerry Mulligan; Review of Fats Waller's album "Fats Waller December 18, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501271].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Arranger and baritone saxophonist, GERRY (pronounced "jerry") MULLIGAN. He's been an innovator in modern jazz orchestration. Early in his career he was staff arranger for Gene Krupa's big band. In 1949 he collaborated with Gil Evans and Miles Davis in the Nonet. The nine-piece band shook up jazz arrangers and launched the era of so-called cool jazz. He achieved international acclaim when he started a "pianoless" quartet with trumpeter Chet Baker in the early 1950's. REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a reissue of music by singer and pianist Fats Waller from 1940-1943, the years just before his death. Although this period is considered by many to be his least productive, Kevin says Waller was great at any time. INT. 2: Poet LI-YOUNG LEE. He was born into a family of political refugees from China. They traveled throughout Asia for years to escape persecution. In the mid-60's his family moved to Pennsylvania. Lee's poems reflect his struggle with his Chinese heritage - a heritage to which he is bound but in which he never lived. His poems also reflect Lee's attempt to come to terms with the powerful and mythic figure of his father, who was alternately imprisoned and revered for his beliefs. Lee was one of the poets featured in Bill Moyer's poetry series, "Bill Moyers: The Power of the Word," on PBS. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired on September 21, 1989.) REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews three new Christmas specials. He says their irreverent twists on traditional Christmas stories represent a refreshing trend this year away from the flood of "Charlie Brown" type Christmas specials.

Interview with Charles Grodin; Commentary on R 'n' B Christmas songs; Interview with Denis Hayes; Review of Rosalind Baker Wilson's book "Near the Magician December 19, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501268].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor CHARLES GRODIN. Unlike his contemporaries - and friends - like Dustin Hoffman and Robert Redford, Grodin achieved the great success that every actor strives for only recently. He starred with Robert De Niro in last year's "Midnight Run," his first major success in a long, twisted journey through the acting profession. Grodin has written a memoir about his passage; it's titled It Would Be So Nice If You Weren't Here. Grodin's career in acting began in summer stock theater and included stints as a cab driver and postal clerk to sustain him through a seemingly endless stream of rejections. His first success came in the movie "The Heartbreak Kid," but when that was followed by the bomb "11 Harrowhouse," he didn't work again in Hollywood for 11 years. But his memoir is also the story of opportunities offered but declined, like the lead in "The Graduate." Grodin has also worked as a screenwriter, a director and a television producer. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on September 7, 1989.)

INT. 2: DENIS HAYES, the chairman of Earth Day 1990, a one day world-wide demonstration calling attention to the planet's environmental problems. Hayes organized the first Earth Day back in 1970. That event is credited with launching the environmental movement in the U.S. Since that first Earth Day, Hayes founded Environmental Action, was a senior fellow at the Worldwatch Institute, and did extensive work on solar energy. More recently, he's been a visiting professor at Stanford University. Earth Day 1990 is scheduled for April 22, 1990, 20 years to the day after the first Earth Day.

REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Near the Magician: A Memoir of My Father, Edmund Wilson." It's a memoir of the great 20th century critic written...
& Arts label. INT. 2: Consumer electronics expert HOWARD BLUMENTHAL. He writes a weekly syndicated newspaper column called "The Hi-Tech Home," and has also written "The Electronic Home Advisor," a guide to consumer electronics products. In his books and columns, Blumenthal writes about new developments like HDTV, and gives advice on buying everything from VCR's to laptop computers. REV. 2: Critic LAURIE STONE reviews the film "The War of the Roses," starring Michael Douglas and Kathleen Turner as a divorcing couple, and directed by Danny de Vito, who also plays a divorce lawyer.

---

Interview with Stephen Harvey; Review of Quincy Jones's album "Back on the Block"; Interview with Randy Cohen; Review of the film "Born on the Fourth of July." December 21, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501607].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: STEPHEN HARVEY, associate curator in the Department of Film of The Museum of Modern Art. The museum is currently showing a retrospective of the films of director Vincente Minnelli, including "Meet Me in St. Louis" and "An American in Paris." Harvey has written the companion book to the retrospective. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Quincy Jones' new album "Back on the Block." Jones produced the album, co-wrote some of the numbers and performs a bit, but mainly it's a showcase for some of his favorite performers, ranging from Dizzy Gillespie to the rapper Ice-T. INT. 2: Writer RANDY COHEN. He's an Emmy award-winning writer for "Late Night With David Letterman." A collection of his pieces, "Diary of a Flying Man," has just been published. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie "Born on the Fourth of July," directed by Oliver Stone and starring Tom Cruise. It's based on the autobiography of the same name by Vietnam vet and anti-war activist Ron Kovic.

---

Interview with Jim Hall; Commentary on dance albums; Interview with Rick Telander; Commentary on the update of the Nancy Drew series of novels. December 22, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501605].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz guitarist JIM HALL. In the 50s, Hall was part of the West Coast jazz scene. Several years later he was touring South America with Ella Fitzgerald when the Bossa Nova craze hit. That music's been a lasting influence on Hall. In the 70s, Hall recorded with free-jazz player Ornette Coleman and made several albums with jazz's best bassists. In all, Hall's made more than 100 albums, his latest, with his quartet, is called "All Across The City." It's on the Concord jazz label. REV. 1: Milo Miles plays some international dance singles, and speculates on their chances to make it as hits in America. INT. 2: Sports writer RICK TELANDER (TAL-en-der). Telander's new book, "The Hundred Yard Lie," is a scathing indictment of the college football system. Telander says college football makes millions and millions of dollars while bathing itself in a false light of amateurism. The players, meanwhile suffer physical pain, financial corruption, and educational starvation. Telander has seen college football from both sides of the fence. He's a staff writer for Sports Illustrated and a former all-conference corner back for Northwestern University. REV. 2: Commentator Maureen Corrigan looks at the Nancy Drew mystery series. The venerable series of girls' books have been updated for the 90s.

Interview with Susannah McCorkle; Commentary on jazz in the 1980s; Interview with Bobby McFerrin; Review of the best television shows of the 1980s. December 25, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501608].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live concert featuring singer SUSANNAH McCORKLE. Stereo Review Magazine has called McCorkle "the finest interpreter of sophisticated song." Her recordings have paid tribute to song writers like Harry Warren, Johnny Mercer and Leo Robbin. (Rebroadcast of December 23, 1988) REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD looks back on jazz in the 80s...the big figures, the big trends, the big albums, and he takes a guess as to what the 90s will bring. INT. 2: Jazz vocalist BOBBY McFERRIN. He's been called a one man vocal group, with teh ability to simultaneously sing parts from bass to falsetto. McFerrin had been well known to jazz audiences for years, but finally had a big crossover hit with his song "Don't Worry, Be Happy." Terry spoke with him two years before that song came out, in an interview originally broadcast on 1/20/87. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI gives his picks for the best shows of the 80s..the big surprise is that relatively few of them were on the three major networks.
Interview with Spalding Gray; Commentary on music in the year 1980; Interview with Divine; Review of Thor Heyerdahl's book "Easter Island, the Mystery Solved." December 26, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501029].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Monologuist SPALDING GRAY. In the 80s, Gray went from New York cult status to something approaching fame as more people discovered his autobiographical monologues, as his acting roles increased, and in the wake of his movie, "Swimming To Cambodia." In mid 1986, when Terry and Spalding did this interview, Gray had appeared in the movies "The Killing Fields" and "True Stories," and then had headed out to L.A. to make big bucks as a T-V actor. (This interview originally broadcast on the weekly national version of Fresh Air on 11/4/86). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD look back ten years, to what was happening in music in 1980. INT. 2: Character actor DIVINE. Divine was the most famous character in John Waters' movies...a 300 hundred pound transvestite who stared in such Waters classics as "Pink Flamingoes" and "Female Trouble." In "Hairspray," Divine played two roles--a man and a woman. Toward the end of his career, Divine appeared in two movies independent of Waters and also started to land T-V roles. Divine died shortly after he and Terry spoke. (Original date 2/23/88). REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Easter Island, The Mystery Solved," by Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl.

Interviews with John Cage and David Del Tredici; Interview with Wallace Shawn; Commentary on children's names. December 27, 1989. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501606].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A double interview: Terry talks with musicians John Cage and David Del Tredici. John Cage is one of the leading figures in 20th century music. Cage pioneered the use of chance processes in music. David Del Tredici is at the forefront of what's been called "the new tonality," music that is less dependent on the harsh dissonances and complex rhythms of the avant-garde, in favor of lusher arrangements and melodies. Del Tredici won the Pulitzer Prize for music for his composition, "In Memory of a Summer Day," based on the kid's story, "Through The Looking Glass." The Cage interview originally aired 9/10/82, Del Tredici ran 11/10/87). REV. 1: EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO SEGMENT INT. 2: Character actor and screenwriter WALLACE SHAWN. Shawn was an obscure playwright until 1981, when his movie, "My Dinner With Andre" appeared. That movie opened things up for Shawn, he's

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist and screenwriter RICHARD PRICE. Price lists as influences Lenny Bruce, Dion, James Brown, and movies and TV. His first two novels, "The Wanderers," and "Bloodbrothers" were both made into films. Price was disappointed with the screen adaptations of those stories, and that experience led him to try his hand at screenwriting. He's since written the screenplays for the films, "The Color of Money" and "Sea of Love," and he's now working on the film adaptation of Nicholas Pileggi's book, "Wiseguys." And he's continued to write novels, among them "The Breaks" in 1984. When Terry talked to Price, in early 1896, Price was working on "The Color of Money." (First aired on the National weekly version of Fresh Air on 4/1/86). REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER gives his picks for the best albums of 1989.

INT. 2: Rock musician ELVIS COSTELLO. Since he debuted with "My Aim is True" ten years ago (for which he won a Grammy nomination as Best New Artist), Costello has been one of rock's most influential acts. His music has been praised for the wit and intelligence of his lyrics, and the inventiveness of the music. He spoke with Terry Gross last February, just after he released his 13th album, "Spike." Fresh Air's rock critic KEN TUCKER described the album as "a thrilling example of a rock musician grown to maturity." (Originally broadcast 2/28/89). REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF picks the best movies of 1989.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Interviews with comics PHYLLIS DILLER and RICHARD LEWIS. For more than 40 years, Phyllis Diller has made a career out of her own poor looks, and the exploits of her bumbling, imaginary, husband, Fang. Diller paved the way for an entire generation of female comics. Terry's interview with Phyllis Diller first aired on the weekly version of Fresh Air on 7/1/86. Richard Lewis portrays a spastic, tortured, self-deprecating man living a life of unrelieved pain. He says of his standup comedy that after he's finished his act "people throw prescription drugs and the names of their therapists instead of roses. I'm the wreck they can't be." Lewis has appeared roughly 35 times on the "Late Night with David Letterman" show and has had his own comedy specials on HBO. (Lewis appeared on Fresh Air on June 16, 1988).

REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 SEGMENT INT. 2: Interviews with comedians RICHARD BELZER and ROBERT TOWNSEND. Belzer has been a professional comic for more than 15 years. For five years, he was the emcee at Catch a Rising Star, New York's best-known comedy club, and has appeared frequently on "Saturday Night Live" "The Tonight Show" and "Late Night with David Letterman." He's also written a book titled How To Be a Stand-up Comic. (Belzer First aired on Fresh Air on 12/31/87). Robert Townsend is one of the few black film makers in Hollywood's recent history. His 1987 movie, "Hollywood Shuffle" poked fun at the film industry's racial stereotypes. Townsend also directed "Raw," the concert film of comedian Eddie Murphy. Terry spoke with Townsend on June 9th, 1987, just after "Hollywood Shuffle" opened. REV. 2: For the last word on the 80s, comedian AL FRANKEN looks back on the Al Franken decade. It's from an interview Terry did with Franken on March 22, 1988.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry talks with Fresh Air's rock critic, KEN TUCKER, about rock in the 80s. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: Terry and film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF look back on the movies of the 80s, and how the decade changed film making. Stephen also gives his picks for the best films of the 1980s. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli looks at four new TV shows. The only problem, David says, is that three of them are resurrected series.

---

Interview with John Adams; Commentary on rap music; Interview with Stefan Kanfer; Review of the novel "Goodnight!". January 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501795].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer JOHN ADAMS. Although he comes out of the classical tradition, Adams is not afraid to use drum machines, synthesizers and silent-movie chord progressions in his music. His latest work, "The Wound Dresser", is a setting of a poem by Walt Whitman about the experience of tending wounded soldiers during the Civil War. For Adams, the work has connections to both the AIDS crisis and his father's recent battle with Alzheimer's disease. Adams also talks about his best-known work, the opera "Nixon in China". He says he likes to write music about events that the whole world is watching. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward takes us back to 1980 for the birth of rap music. INT. 2: Writer STEFAN KANFER. Kanfer's latest book is called "A Summer World: The Attempt to Build a Jewish Eden in the Catskills, from the Days of the Ghetto to the Rise and Decline of the Borscht Belt." The Borsht Belt nurtured a generation of comics and defined a culture. Kanfer talks about the lives of the people who frequented the Catskill resorts, and the reason those resorts are now in decline. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Goodnight!" by Soviet novelist Andrei Sinyavsky (AHN-dray Sin-YAV-skee). Sinyavsky was the first writer in the Soviet union to be convicted for the opinions voiced by his imaginary characters, and the book straddles the line between fiction and non-fiction as it tells the story of Sinyavsky and his alter ego/pseudonym, Abram Tertz.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CHARLES SOLOMON is the author of Enchanted Drawings: A History of Animation. His book traces the art form from the magic lantern shows of the 1600's through the silent films of the 1920's to such modern-day phenomena as Roger Rabbit and the California Raisins. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the soundtrack of the new Broadway revival of Anything Goes. INT. 2: Comedy writer EDDIE GORODETSKY. He's written for SCTV, Saturday Night Live, and Late Night with David Letterman. His latest gig is with HBO's newly-launched Comedy Channel, where his job title is "head writer and original programming consultant," but his role is all-encompassing. REV. 2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN recently attended the annual conference of the Modern Language Association in Washington D.C. She reports on what the academics are discussing and it's relevance to the rest of us.

Interview with Timothy Ryback; Review of Randy Travis, Rodney Crowell and Jayhawks albums; Interview with Gladys Hansen; Review of the film "Glory." January 4, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501797].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer TIMOTHY RYBACK. He's just written a book chronicling the history of rock music in eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. In the book, "Rock around the Bloc," RYBACK shows how rock music has been a presence there from the mid-1950's beginning with the Elvis Craze, and continuing with Beatlemania, and punk and heavy metal music. The rock movement spawned officially sanctioned bands as well as underground groups. RYBACK says the recent events in Eastern Europe were foreshadowed in 1988 when government policy on rock bands were loosened there. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER looks at the "New Traditionalism" in country music as performed by such singers as Randy Travis and Rodney Crowell, and with a unique twist by the Jayhawks. INT. 2: GLADYS HANSEN is the archivist for the city of San Francisco. She's just written "Denial of Disaster," a book about the 1906 earthquake which corrects misinformation perpetuated about the quake. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Glory,"

Description of show segment(s)

REV. 1: World music critic MILO MILES looks at the music of Tanzania, and he reviews the new album by Tanzanian musician, Remmy Ongala. INT. 2: Street performer turned film actor RICK AVILES (a-VEEEL-us). Aviles started out doing comedy on the streets of Manhattan, and was named "Comic of the Year" by the Village Voice in 1980. He's since appeared in the movies "Mondo NY," "Street Smart," and "Spike of Bensonhurst." Aviles has a part in Jim Jarmusch's new movie, "Mystery Train." REV. 2: Critic at large LAURIE STONE comments on stand-up comic Jimmy Tingle.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist RICHARD LOUV (pronounced "LOOVE," like the museum). Louv's a columnist at the San Diego Union. He spent 3 years speaking with almost 3 thousand parents, children, and educators for his new book, "Childhood's Future," which looks at the problems facing families today. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: Actor JOE MORTON. Morton plays attorney Michael James on the ABC series "Equal Justice," and he played the leading role in John Sayles 1984 film, "Brother From Another Planet." (Rebroadcast. Original date 6/13/90). REV. 2:Critic
MAUREEN CORRIGAN comments on the latest women's fashion trend--going back to early 1960s styles. She wonders what was so exciting about them that they deserve attention again.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ROBERTSON DAVIES. He is one of Canada's pre-eminent novelists, the author of more than two dozen books, among which are the acclaimed novels "Fifth Business," "The Manticore and World of Wonders," which make up the "Deptford Trilogy." Davies latest book, "The Lyre of Orpheus," has just come out in paperback. For many years, Davies was a journalist, editing "The Peterborough Examiner," turning it into one of Canada's finest papers. Critic and economist John Kenneth Galbraith has called Davies "one of the most learned, amusing and otherwise accomplished novelists of our time." (Rebroadcast. Original date 1/23/89). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album from pianist Dick Hyman and cornetist Ruby Braff. The pair have been playing together off and on since the mid 70s. This time they've teamed up and revived an old jazz tradition, playing tunes from Broadway. The album's called "Music from My Fair Lady," and it's on Concord Jazz. INT. 2: Journalist EDDY L. HARRIS. Harris' book, "Mississippi Solo," is Harris' chronicle of his 23-hundred mile journey down the Mississippi by canoe. This was by no means an idyllic voyage for a black man traveling alone, and Harris faced racism and the threat of violence, in addition to the normal problems of such a lengthy journey. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli previews the upcoming animation series by cartoonist Matt Groening. It's called "The Simpsons" and begins on January 14th on the Fox Network.

Interview with Daniel Callahan; Commentary on the Lovin' Spoonful; Interview with Anne Lamott; Review of Thomas Pynchon's novel "Vineland." January 9, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501972].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author Daniel Callahan. He is an expert on medical ethics whose latest book is "What Kind of Life: The Limits of Medical Progress." The book questions the assumption that everyone should receive the most life sustaining medical care available. According to Callahan, we need to change our thinking about health and illness and focus on the quality of life rather than the extension of life. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles the Lovin' Spoonful, who came out of the Greenwich Village folk music scene, but who owed more to Chuck Berry than to Appalachian ballad-singers. INT. 2: Novelist Anne Lamott. Her latest novel, "All New People", is an account of growing up in a Northern California railroad town in the midst of the cultural dislocations of the 1960's. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Thomas Pynchon's "Vineland", the first novel in over fifteen years from the author of "V" and "Gravity's Rainbow."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Documentary filmmaker MICHAEL MOORE. In his first-ever film, "Roger & Me," MOORE returns to his home town of Flint, Michigan to document what happened when General Motors laid off 35,000 workers there. And he begins a Quixote-like quest to meet with GM Chairman Roger Smith, following him to Detroit, and New York. "The New York Times" called Moore, "an irrepressible new humorist in the tradition of Mark Twain," and film critic Roger Ebert described "Roger & Me" as "an hilarious but hard-edged comedy." Before becoming a filmmaker, Moore was executive editor of "Mother Jones," has been commentator for National Public Radio and has written for "Columbia Journalism Review," "Newsday," and other publications. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ pays tribute to the late mezzo-soprano Jan DeGaetani (DEE-guy-tahny). DeGaetani died last September; Lloyd reviews her last album, just released by Bridge records. It contains works by Berlioz and Mahler. INT. 2: Author LINDA P. BROWN is co-author of "Birthbond: Reunions between Birthparents and Adoptees--What happens After." In the 1960's BROWN gave up her own daughter for adoption. The book is based on interviews with 30 birthmothers -- from a variety of backgrounds -- who were reunited with their adult children. And it looks at the challenges these mothers face after the reunion. "Birthbond" is published by New Horizon Press, Far Hills, N.J. REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG reviews a new book called "Doublespeak" by William Lutz, chairman of the Committee on Public Doublespeak of the National Council of Teachers of English. Lutz has been keeping files with examples of doublespeak used in politics and advertising and has compiled some of them in his book.

Interview with John Barry; Commentary on music popular on college radio; Interview with Douglas P. Hinkle; Commentary on Richard Lewis. January 11, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501015].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter JOHN BARRY. He's the author of "The Ambition and the Power," the new book about the political downfall of House Speaker Jim Wright. Wright gave Barry access to his private meetings and closed door wheeling and dealing. Barry's book reveals those events, and examines the day to day workings of Congress. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER checks out some of the albums getting heavy airplay on college radio. Ken says college radio used to be hip, but these days it's just as formulaic as Top 40. INT. 2: Police artist DOUGLAS P. HINKLE. Hinkle spent seven years as a forensic artist with the Athens, Ohio police department. He's written a book, called "Faces of Crime," about his experiences, and about the inexact science of obtaining criminal descriptions. REV. 2: Commentator LAURIE STONE has some thoughts about comedian Richard Lewis, standup comic, and star of the show "Anything but Love."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist and biographer TED MORGAN. His latest book is "An Uncertain Hour: The French, the Germans, the Jews, the Klaus Barbie Trial, and the City of Lyon, 1940-1945." It's an account of the recent trial in France of fugitive war criminal Klaus Barbie. But the story has personal significance to Ted Morgan as well. He was born in France and lived there as a child when the Germans invaded. His father, a pilot with the Free French forces, was killed while on a bombing mission. REV. 1: World Music Commentator MILO MILES reviews the music of Yugoslavian Jova "Besir" Stojiljkovic (YO-va BEE-sheer stoya-KOL-vich) and his brass orchestra. INT. 2: Polish born film director JERZY SKOLIMOWSKI (YER-zee skul-ah-MOSS-skee). His films include "The Shout" with John Hurt, and "Moonlighting" with Jeremy Irons. His most recent film is "Torrents of Spring" based on the novel by Ivan Turgenev and starring Timothy Hutton, Nastassja Kinski, and Valerie Golino. The film opens nationwide January 26. SKOLIMOWSKI has also acted. He played the evil KGB agent in the movie "White Nights." REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film "Internal Affairs" starring Richard Gere and Andy Garcia.

Interview with Pico Iyer; Review of Wilbur Ware's album "Chicago Sound"; Interview with John F. Sears; Review of the television show "Eyes on the Prize January 15, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501329].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer PICO IYER (PEE-coe EYE-er). His book Video Night in Kathmandu explores the subtle and often humorous Westernization of the Far East. Iyer, who reported for Time Magazine for four years, found the West's influence in mohawk haircuts in Bali, six Filipino girls doing a perfect rendition of a Madonna hit, Japan's baseball mania and a Chinese cafeteria that served dishes like "Yes, Sir, Cheese My Baby," and "Ike and Tuna Tuner." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on August 22, 1989.) REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a reissue of a 1957 album by bassist Wilbur Ware. Kevin says that year was the highlight of Ware's career--he recorded with Sonny Rollins and Thelonius Monk as well as recording his only album as a leader. INT. 2: JOHN F. SEARS, author of "Sacred Places: American Tourist Attractions in the Nineteenth Century." Sears went back to magazines, fiction and painting of the 19th century to find out when and why tourism developed in this country. He says that natural wonders like Niagara Falls and Yellowstone were a substitute for the cathedrals of Europe, and that tourism gave Americans a way to shape their national identity. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Part 2 of "Eyes on the Prize," the award-winning documentary series on the civil rights movement in America. Part 2 picks up in 1964 where Part 1 left off.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African writer DIANA RUSSELL. Russell has written several books on subjects such as rape and sexual abuse against women. Russell's new book, "Lives of Courage," profiles 24 women in South Africa who have fought against apartheid. The book also examines sex issues in South Africa. REV. 1: Rock historian EDWARD WARD profiles Ruth Brown. Back in the 50s, Brown was one of the country's top female R&B singer, with hits such as "So Long" and "Mama He Treats Your daughter Mean." INT. 2: Artist and writer RUSSELL CHATHAM. Chatham's paintings and lithographs of the West have been shown in many of the major galleries and museums west of the Mississippi. His works tend to shy away from grand scenes of the Rockies, in favor of more quiet views of fields, forests, and water. His writings often deal with the outdoors, fishing, and hunting. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews two new mysteries, "The Good Fight," by Lia Matera, and "Devices and Desires" by P.D. James.

Interview with Robert Jay Lifton; Review of the Nimbus "Prima Voce" series of albums; Interview with Sally Price; Review of David Lodge's novel "Souls and Bodies." January 17, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501422].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychiatrist ROBERT JAY LIFTON. The University of North Carolina Press has just reissued Lifton's classic 1961 book, "Thought Reform and the Psychology of Totalism." That book examined what's commonly been referred to as 'brain washing' as it was practiced in Communist China. Lifton says the book has new relevancy now in light of the rise of 'cult' religions and the recent pro-democracy movements in China and eastern Europe. Lifton has also studied the psychological effects of the Hiroshima bombing, and he's examined the mindset of the doctors who conducted human experiments for the Nazis during World War 2. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new series of early operatic recordings reissued on the Nimbus. Lloyd says Nimbus went to extraordinary lengths to re-record these vintage performances from the first half of the century, and the care shows. INT. 2: Anthropologist SALLY PRICE. In her new book, "Primitive Art in Civilized Places," she attacks the West's desire to own the art of native peoples. She says the West's attitude toward those peoples is one of arrogance, snobbery, and patronization; and that all too often there's no effort made to learn about, or even identify, the actual artists who's work ends up in museums and homes throughout the First World. Price's academic life alternates between her studies of the Maroon people of Suriname and teaching assignments in the United States. REV. 2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN. "Souls and Bodies."

Interview with Arno Penzias; Interview with William H. Macy; Review of the film "Sweetie."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scientist and writer DR. ARNO PENZIAS (PEN-zee-us). He won the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1978 for his work supporting the big-bang theory of the universe. Now, as vice-president of research at AT&T he's responsible for innovation and risk-taking. Though PENZIAS is at the forefront of technological development, he remains aware of its human implication. His book, "Ideas and Information" is a crash course on the history of computers and communications-technology and is addressed to the general reader. The book begins with the creation of the first painted images in prehistoric caves and continues through modern technology. REV 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT 2: Actor and Director WILLIAM H. MACY. He's been associated with playwright and film director David Mamet for over 15 years. He appeared in the original productions of Mamet's American Buffalo and The Water Engine. He's appeared in Mamet's films, "House of Games," and "Things Change." Now he's directing the theatrical debut of Mamet's play, "Squirrels," at the Philadelphia festival of New Plays. One of MACY'S earliest acting roles was in the workshop production of "Squirrels" in the 1970's in Chicago. The new production includes script changes that are based on Mamet's original notes. MACY also directed the HBO production of "Lip Service" which just won an ACE award. REV. 2: Movie critic Stephen Schiff reviews the film, "Sweetie," about an eccentric Australian family.
Interview with Yomo Toro, Ruben Figueroa, and Luis Cabrera; Interview with Mike Figgis; Commentary on possessions. January 19, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501330].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live concert with YOMO TORO. A native of Puerto Rico, Yomo plays the cuatro, a small guitar-like instrument with five sets of double strings. He performs the traditional form of Puerto Rican folk music called "jibaro." (HEE-bar-oh). REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: British film director MIKE FIGGIS. He wrote and directed the film, "Stormy Monday," starring Melanie Griffith, and directed the new movie, "Internal Affairs," starring Richard Gere and Andy Garcia. REV. 2: Commentator PATRICIA McLAUGHLIN (mik-LOFF-lin) examines the ties that bind us to our possessions.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Military historian JOHN KEEGAN. His new book, "The Second World War," recounts the strategies and battles of the war by looking at the three major theaters (the West, the East, and the Pacific) in both the early and late years of the war. KEEGAN, one of today's foremost military historians, is best known for analyzing the effects of war on the individual soldier. He taught for many years at the Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst in Britain, and is now the Defense Correspondent of The Daily Telegraph in London. His other books include, "The Face of Battle," "The Mask of Command," and "The Price of Admiralty." REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new CD by drummer Cecil Brooks III, "The Collective." INT. 2: Food historian WILLIAM WOYS WEAVER. Weaver is a leading expert on the culinary traditions and cooking techniques of the 18th and 19th centuries, and he often is often consulted by restoration organizations such as Old Sturbridge Village and Colonial Williamsburg. Weaver also tracks the emergence of regional American cuisines, often focusing on what the common workers, farmers, and slaves ate. Weaver's new book, "America Eats," examines American foods as a valid form of folk art. It also features traditional recipes adapted for the modern kitchen. The book is published in conjunction with a major exhibit running at New York's Museum of American Art. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the premiere of a new series to follow this year's Super Bowl on CBS. It's called "Grand Slam," and stars Paul Rodriguez and John Schneider of "Dukes of Hazzard" fame as rival bounty hunters after the same guy.

Interview with Lawrence Millman; Commentary on the birth of country music; Interview with Leonard Koren; Review of the book "The Pencil January 23, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501326].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and adventurer LAWRENCE MILLMAN. His new book, "Last Places," recounts MILLMAN'S journey along the old Viking route across the North Atlantic from Norway to Newfoundland. He traveled as primitively as possible, fought off dive-bombing skuas (pterodactyl-like birds with five-foot wingspans), stayed with an Eskimo hermit endowed with supernatural powers, and camped in some of the world's most pristine spots. His writing has been compared to Bruce Chatwin and Edward Hoagland. His other books include "Our Like Will Not Be There Again," a collection of stories from the far countryside west of Ireland, and "The Wrong-Handed Man," a collection of phantasmagoric folktales. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD looks back at the birth of the country music industry, during the early days of Fiddlin' John Carson, A.P. Carter and his wife, Sarah, and the Tenneva Ramblers. INT. 2: LEONARD KOREN. He's written, "283 Useful Ideas From Japan," which lists innovative products and services in Japan. It includes such things as the two-headed public telephone, a combination sink/toilet, and capsule hotels. KOREN has been an architect, graphic designer, and publisher. He works and lives in San Francisco and Tokyo. REV. 2: Book Critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the book, "The Pencil: A History of Design and Circumstance" by Henry Petroski.

Interview with Elaine Stritch; Review of Leonard Shure's album "Piano sonata in C minor, opus posth., D. 958 Piano sonata in B?, opus posth., D. 960"; Interview with Ann Beattie; Commentary

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress ELAINE STRITCH. She appears this week on public television's "American Playhouse" series, starring in Richard Nelson's story of three aging friends. Elaine Stritch is an established Broadway star, who appeared on Broadway in "Company," "Pal Joey," "On Your Toes," and "Bus Stop." She currently stars on Broadway with Jason Roberts in "Love Letters," and she plays Mrs. McGee on "The Cosby Show." REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the work of pianist Leonard Shure. Shure turns 80 this spring, and Lloyd says the older Shure gets, the he gets. Lloyd particularly recommends the recordings Shure made for Audiofon about a decade ago. INT. 2: Novelist and short-story writer ANN BEATTIE. In 1976 Beattie published her first novel, "Chilly Scenes of Winter," and since then she has gained a reputation as a writer of the 60's generation. "Chilly Scenes of Winter" was made into a movie by Joan Micklin Silver. BEATTIE'S other books include "Falling in Place," "The Burning House," and "Love Always." Her latest novel is "Picturing Will." REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG considers the curious use of "Mr," "Ms," and "Miss."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Mystery writer ED McBAIN (whose real name is Evan Hunter). He's known for his finely detailed "87th Precinct" mysteries. Mystery fans call McBain's books "procedurals" for their close attention to police procedures. McBain also wrote, under a pen name, the screenplay for the movie, "The Blackboard Jungle." REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums from the rap acts "Jungle Brothers" and "3rd Bass." INT. 2: Writer and civil engineer Henry Petroski. His new book, "The Pencil: A History of Design and Circumstance" is a 400 page examination of the history and evolution of a deceptively simple tool. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new thriller, "Everybody Wins," starring Debra Winger and Nick Nolte.
Interview with Steven Naifeh and Gregory White Smith; Commentary on Indian film music; Interview with Wilbur Zelinsky; Review of Jim Turner's comedy show "Walk a Mile in My Head." January 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501328].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Art historian STEVEN NAIFEH (NAY-fay) and writer GREGORY WHITE SMITH. They've co-written a biography of painter Jackson Pollock. The pair spent eight years and conducted more than 2-thousand interviews to understand the life and work of one of the 20th century’s most influential artists.

REV. 1: World music critic MILO MILES samples film music from India. INT. 2: Geographer WILBUR ZELINSKY. Zelinsky is one of five editors who compiled "The Atlas of Pennsylvania," a massive, and beautiful, book of maps depicting hundreds of different facts about one state...everything from where the most dairy cows are, to what the favorite baseball teams are in different counties, to where you can still find Bald Eagles. Zelinsky is a professor of geology at Penn State University. REV. 2: Critic LAURIE STONE reviews comic Jim Turner, member of Duck's Breath Mystery Theater.

Interview with E. L. Doctorow; Review of Mel Lewis's albums "The Definitive Thad Jones, Vol. 1" and "The Lost Art"; Interview with Le Anne Schreiber; Review of the television show "Frontline." January 29, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501998].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer E.L DOCTOROW. His writing has been praised for bringing to life the traumatic events of American 20th Century history, like the Depression, World War II and Vietnam for the generations too young or too old to feel them. It was Doctorow's 1971 book, "The Book of Daniel," that established his reputation as a major American writer. The book was inspired by the Atom Spy Trials at the height of the McCarthy era. At the time, Doctorow was still working full-time as an editor, working with authors like James Baldwin and Norman Mailer. His latest novel, "Billy Bathgate," is the story of a 15-year-old boy's apprenticeship to the gangster Dutch Schultz. Doctorow also wrote the best-seller "Ragtime." (REBROADCAST. ORIGINAL DATE 3/14/89). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews two new albums by drummer Mel Lewis. Lewis has been leading a New York based band for more than 25 years. INT. 2: Writer LE ANNE SCHREIBER. A successful journalist at the New York Times, and their first woman sports editor, Schreiber left her career at the Times to go live in rural upstate New York. Then she found out her mother had cancer and was given only a few months to live. Schreiber kept a journal during the period of her mother's illness until she died. This journal served as the basis for Schreiber's memoir about her mother's death, "Midstream: The Story of a Mother's Death and a Daughter's Renewal." REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Noriega Connection." It's the next offering from public television's documentary series, "Frontline."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer, producer, and director ARTHUR LAURENTS. Laurents wrote the stories for the plays "Gypsy" and "West Side Story" and the screenplays for the movies "The Way We Were" and "The Turning Point." Laurents is currently directing the Broadway revival of "Gypsy," starring Tyne Daly.

REV. 1: Classical music LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a series of compact disc reissues featuring violinist Joseph Szigeti (si-GETT-ee). INT. 2: Journalist MICHAEL NORMAN. Norman served in the Marine Corps during the Vietnam War, and his memoir, "These Good Men: Friendships Forged from War," he tells the stories of some of the men he served with. Norman, a former columnist for the New York Times, spent 5 years looking for his comrades, traveling from Oklahoma to London, finding out what had happened to them in the 20 years since the war and trying to understand how his own life had been changed. REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG puts together the meters of poetry and music with a game he calls, "Settings." (originally broadcast 9/28/88).

---

Interview with John Hockenberry; Interview with Henry Hampton; Review of the film "Stella." February 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501996].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist JOHN HOCKENBERRY. For the past two years he's been National Public Radio's foreign correspondent in the Middle East, where he covered events from his wheelchair. He's also served as host for "All Things Considered," "SoundPrint," and other shows. In 1987 he won a Peabody and in 1988, a Unity in Media award. In March, he'll be hosting "Heat," a new nightly interview, performance, and call-in show over NPR. REV. 1:  PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2
 INT. 2: Documentary Producer HENRY HAMPTON. In 1987 he produced the prize-winning documentary series on PBS, "Eyes on the Prize." The series documented the civil rights movement from 1954 to 1965. The New York Times' Walter Goodman called the series, "a moving documentary" in which "the nobility of America's civil-rights struggle comes through with the directness and strength of a spiritual." It's sequel, "Eyes on the Prize II," is now being broadcast and covers the movement from 1965 to the 1980s. The series was produced in the studios of Blackside Productions, a company that Hampton founded. HAMPTON is now working on three other projects about the War on Poverty, the Great Depression, and Martin Luther King Jr. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the movie, "Stella," starring Bette Midler.

Interview with Tom Hulce; Review of Christine Lavin's and They Might Be Giants' albums "Attainable Love" and "Flood"; Interview with Tom Rose; Review of the television show "Elvis." February 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501997].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor TOM HULCE. He was nominated for an Oscar for his portrayal of Mozart in the movie "Amadeus," and for a Golden Globe for his role as brain-damaged garbage man in "Dominick & Eugene." More recently, Hulce played the black-sheep of the family in "Parenthood." Next week, Hulce stars in "Murder in Mississippi," a made-for-TV movie about the freedom summer. REV. 1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER considers two New York acts who are known for their humor: folk-singer Christine Lavin, and the eclectic rock group, They Might Be Giants. Lavin's album, "Attainable Love" is on Rounder Records. They Might Be Giants' album is "Flood," and it's on Elektra. INT. 2: Reporter TOM ROSE. Rose covered the 1988 rescue of three California grey whales that were trapped in the ice off Barrow, Alaska. The plight of those whales became an international media event. Rose has now written a book about the media hype surrounding the event, called "Freeing the Whales: How the Media Created the World's Greatest Non-Event." (Published by Birch Lane Press, division of Carol Publishing Group, NY). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli previews "Elvis," the new ABC series based on the life of the King of rock and roll. David says you would expect it to be horrible, but it turns out to be pretty good.
Interview with Robert Young; Commentary on Rabbit Brown; Interview with Budd Schulberg; Review of Ann Beattie's novel "Picturing Will." February 6, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501685].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker ROBERT YOUNG. Young's new movie, "Triumph of the Spirit," tells the true-life story of a young fighter who was imprisoned at Auschwitz during the Second World War. While being held there, the Nazis forced him to box other prisoners, the loser being sent to the death ovens. The film stars Willem Dafoe, Robert Loggia, and Edward James Olmos. Young's earlier credits include "Dominick and Eugene" and "The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez." REV. 1: Rock and roll historian ED WARD tells the story of "Rabbit" Brown, a little-known New Orleans blues singer from the 20s who made some of the most haunting music you'll ever hear. INT. 2: Author BUDD SCHULBERG. Fifty years ago, Schulberg's first novel, "What Makes Sammy Run?" was a huge success and introduced America to the character of Sammy Glick...a man totally obsessed with making it. Schulberg's other novels include "The Harder They Fall" and "The Disenchanted," and his screenplay for the movie, "On The Waterfront" earned Schulberg an Oscar. Schulberg was also involved with the 'red scare' of the 40s and 50s, and testified before the House Unamerican Activities Committee. Schulberg has a new collection of short stories, called "Love, Action, Laughter and Other Sad Tales," and a 50th anniversary edition of "What Makes Sammy Run?" has just been issued. (Both by Random House). REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Ann Beattie's new novel, "Picturing Will." (It's published by Random House).

Interview with Mark Knopfler; Review of the1932 "Showboat" album; Interview with Laurie Metcalf; Commentary on Ralph Lauren and city living. February 7, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501687].

Description of show segment(s)

Robeson and Helen Morgan. (It's part of the CBS Special Products Series). INT. 2: Actress LAURIE METCALF. Metcalf plays Roseanne's sister in the hit TV series. She's appeared in several movies, such as "Uncle Buck," "Making Mr. Right," and "Desperately Seeking Susan," and she plays a cop in the new film "Internal Affairs," starring Richard Gere and Andy Garcia. Metcalf got her start at Chicago's Steppenwolf Theater, which she started with John Malkovich and Terry Kinney. REV. 2: Commentator PATRICIA MCLAUGHLIN blasts Ralph Lauren's citified vision of the country life, and she reflects on the "magic thinking" and escapism of some city dwellers.

Interview with Richard Barnet; Review of Southern Pacific's and Desert Rose Bland's albums "County Line" and "Pages of Life"; Interview with Gale Anne Hurd; Review of the film "Men Don't Leave." February 8, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501999].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RICHARD BARNET, co-founder of the Institute for Policy Studies. Barnet discusses the end of the Cold War and the implications for U.S. domestic and foreign policy. His new book is "The Rocket's Red Glare." (It's published by Simon and Schuster). REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new albums by rock groups who are doing country music, Southern Pacific's "County Line," and "Pages of Life" by the Desert Rose Band. INT. 2: Film producer GALE ANNE HURD. She started out in Hollywood as an executive assistant to filmmaker Roger Corman, going on to become his co-producer. She then left to form her own production company, where she was executive producer of such films as "The Terminator," "Aliens," "The Abyss," and the current "Tremors." REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Men Don't Leave," starring Jessica Lange as a recently widowed mother trying to make it on her own.
Interview with David Burnham; Review of Ofra Haza albums; Interview with Galen Rowell; Review of Cindy Sherman's photography exhibit. February 9, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501438].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Investigative reporter DAVID BURNHAM. His new book, "A Law Unto Itself: Power, Politics and the IRS," takes a critical look at the Internal Revenue Service, which Burnham calls "the single most powerful instrument of social control in the United States." Burnham's previous book, "The Rise of the Computer State," is about the threat to democracy posed by the collection and storage of data by government agencies. He's also done investigative reporting on police corruption in New York City, and was the reporter Karen Silkwood was on her way to talk to about abuses in the nuclear power industry when she was killed in a car accident. ("A Law Unto Itself" is published by Random House). REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles reviews the work of Israeli singer Ofra Haza. Haza's the closest thing to a world music "Superstar," with several very successful albums to her credit. INT. 2: Photographer and adventurer GALEN ROWELL. Rowell has been called a cross between Sir Edmund Hillary and Ansel Adams. He's made a career out of traveling to the world's wild places and capturing them on film.
An accomplished skier and mountaineer, Rowell has made more than 20 trips to the Himalayas and hundreds of climbs throughout the world. Rowell's photos have appeared in major exhibitions and in publications such as "National Geographic," "Sports Illustrated," and "Outside." He also has several books of photos...the two latest are called "The Art Of Adventure," (Collins publishing) and "The Yosemite." (Sierra Club Books, text by John Muir). REV. 2: Critic LAURIE STONE reviews the latest show by photographer Cindy Sherman. Sherman's known for disguising herself and then featuring herself as the subject of her photos.

Interviews with Abdullah Ibrahim and Raul Juila ; Interview with Michael Roemer; Review of the television show "The Kennedys of Massachusetts." February 12, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501889].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A double interview today....first, Terry talks by telephone with South African musician ABDULLAH IBRAHIM. Long an exile in this country, we find out how Ibrahim thinks this weekend's release of Nelson Mandela will change the artistic climate in South Africa. Then, actor RAUL JULIA.
His films include "Kiss of the Spider Woman," "Moon Over Parador," "Tango Bar" and the recent "Tequilla Sunrise." His latest film, "Romero," is based on the life, and assassination, of the Salvadoran Archbishop Oscar Romero. (Rebroadcast. Original date 8/28/89). REV. 1: PRE-EMP TED BY LONG INTERVIEW II INT. 2: Filmmaker MICHAEL ROEMER. In 1969, Roemer wrote, directed, and co-produced (with Robert Young) a movie called "The Plot Against Harry," about a small-time New York gangster trying to go straight. Now, 20 years later, the film is finally being released, and to huge critical acclaim. Roemer and Young also worked together on a number of documentaries and "Nothing But A Man," a 1964 film about blacks in the South. Since the 60s, Roemer has taught at Yale University and worked on several projects for public television. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "The Kennedys of Massachusetts." It's a 6-hour miniseries based on historian Doris Kearns Goodwin's bestseller, "The Fitzgeralds and the Kennedys," about America's most prominent political family. The series premieres this Sunday on ABC.

Interview with Bill T. Jones; Commentary on Nat King Cole; Interview with Itabari Njeri; Interview with Robert Kaplow and the Punsters. February 13, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501887].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dancer and choreographer BILL T. JONES. For years, Jones collaborated and performed with his partner/lover Arnie Zane. After Zane's death from AIDS in 1988, Jones has continued to dance with the company he and Zane formed. The company is based on a philosophy that disdains the formal training of ballet and draws on athleticism, discovery, and the beauty of the movements of "everyday people." REV. 1: On the 25th anniversary of the death of Nat King Cole, jazz critic Kevin Whitehead has an appreciation of the well-known singer, and he takes a look at Cole's often overlooked skills as a jazz pianist. (By the way, Nat King Cole actually died on February 15th, but we're running the piece today, a couple of days early). INT. 2: Journalist ITABARI NJERI (it-tah-BAR-ay en-jerry). Her new book, "Every Good-bye Ain't Gone," is a touching and at times humorous memoir of growing up black in Harlem and Brooklyn during the 50s. REV. 2: ROBERT KAPLOW and the PUNSTERS' Basil Starling visits the show to play Valentine's Day songs.
Interview with Peggy Noonan; Commentary on kissing; Interview with Valerie Martin; Review of John Kenneth Galbraith's novel "A Tenured Professor." February 14, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924438].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Speechwriter PEGGY NOONAN. In 1984 she was hired away from CBS news to write speeches for Ronald Reagan. She wrote the elegy to the heroes of D-Day that Reagan delivered in Normandy 1984, his description of the contras as the "moral equal of our Founding Fathers," and his eulogy to the Challenger astronauts in 1986: "We will never forget them nor the last time we saw them this morning as they prepared for their journey and waved goodbye and slipped the surly bonds of Earth to touch the face of God." She writes occasionally for George Bush, having coined such phrases as, "a thousand points of light." Her new book, "What I Saw at The Revolution," is an account of her time at the Reagan White House. (published by Random House, New York.) REV. 1: Novelist TOM ROBBINS commemorates the kiss on this Valentine's Day. INT. 2: Novelist and professor VALERIE MARTIN. She's been called the "heir apparent to Edgar Allen Poe." She's taken the Robert Louis Stevenson classic tale of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde and given it a new twist. Her new historical novel, "Mary Reilly," tells the story of Jekyll's descent into madness from the point of view of Mary, a Victorian maid in Jekyll's household. Mary escaped the squalor and brutality of the slums to become a servant. As she becomes Jekyll's confidant she's once again drawn into the underworld she sought to escape. MARTIN's other books include a collection of short fiction, "The Consolation of Nature" (1988), and the novel, "A Recent Martyr" (1987). ("Mary Reilly" is published by Doubleday.) REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews economist John Kenneth Galbraith's first novel in 22 years.

Interview with Vladimir Pozner; Review of the Smithereen's album "11"; Interview with Dave Edmunds; Review of the film "Revenge." February 15, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501339].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soviet commentator VLADIMIR POZNER (poez-ner, not pahs-ner). Pozner is a fixture on American talk shows...an intelligent, affable, understandable interpreter of Soviet events and policies. Pozner was born in France, grew up in Brooklyn, and moved to the Soviet Union at age 19. In his new book, "Parting With Illusions," Pozner looks back on his life, talks about the Soviet Union under leaders from Stalin to Gorbechev, and discusses the recent "ending" of the cold war. (The book's published by the Atlantic Monthly Press). REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "11," the latest album by the Smithereens. Although the album's been out for a few months, Ken says it's getting little notice, and it deserves a listen. INT. 2: Musician DAVE EDMUNDS. Although he was born in Wales, his music is influenced by the American roots of rock and roll. As a producer, he's worked with the Stray Cats, The Fabulous Thunderbirds, and he produced the come-back albums of the Everly Brothers and Dion. In the 1970's, he got together in London with Nick Lowe and formed the band Rockpile. Edmunds has a new album on Capitol called "Closer to the Flame." It's his first in five years. (Rebroadcast. Original date 12/5/89). REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Revenge," starring Kevin Costner and Anthony Quinn.
Interview with Margaret Drabble; Review of Billy Pierce's album "Equilateral"; Interview with John Malpede and Kevin Williams; Review of the television movie "Challenger." February 19, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501344].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British novelist MARGARET DRABBLE. She made a name for herself in the early 60's as one of the first woman writers to make domestic life the focus of her novels. But after the publication of "The Middle Ground" in 1980, Drabble took a seven-year break from fiction to concentrate on revising "The Oxford Companion to English Literature." Since then she has published two more novels, "The Radiant Way" and "A Natural Curiosity," which reflect a shift in focus to more external, societal concerns. (original broadcast 10/5/89). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album from tenor and soprano saxophonist Billy Pierce. It's called "Equatorial," and it's on Sunnyside Records. INT. 2: JOHN MALPEDE and KEVIN WILLIAMS of the Los Angeles Poverty Department, a performance group comprised primarily of homeless and formerly homeless people. The LAPD tries to show the reality of life on the streets. John Malpede is a former performance artist and founder of LAPD (in 1985). He now serves as the group's director and a legal advocate for the homeless. Kevin Williams is LAPD's assistant director and former resident of Skid Row. (Rebroadcast. Original date November 1, 1989). REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews a new ABC docudrama based on the Challenger disaster. It stars Karen Allen, Peter Boyle, and Barry Bostwick. BIANCULLI says the movie is helped by the limits it keeps.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Theatre critic, director, and educator ROBERT BRUSTEIN (pronounced "steen," not "stein"). Brustein is a venerable voice in the American theatre...he's the founder and Artistic Director of the American Repertory Company, director of the Harvard Drama Center (he held a similar position at Yale for 13 years), drama critic for the New Republic for more than 30 years and the author of seven books on the theatre. Among them "The Theatre of Revolt" and a collection of essays called "Who Needs Theatre." (published respectively by Atlantic, Little, and Brown, and Atlantic Monthly Press). REV. 1:
Rock historian ED WARD traces the history of 2 Tone, a musical movement that started in industrial England in the late 70's. It was started by groups like The Specials, the Selecter, and Madness, playing ska, a form of pre-reggae Jamaican music. INT. 2: Film maker PETER WANG (it's spelled "wang," but it's pronounced "Wong"). Wang wrote, produced, directed, and acts in his new movie, "The Laserman." It's a suspense-comedy about a Chinese-American physicist who discovers his laser research is being used for evil purposes. Much the same thing happened to Wang himself. He holds a PhD. in laser technology but left the field after deciding he could no longer use his skills to help create new weapons systems. After a stint teaching, Wang migrated into acting and film. Wang played the crazy short-order cook in "Chan is Missing," and his first feature, "A Great Wall," was a huge critical success. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews presidential speechwriter Peggy Noonan's book "What I Saw At the Revolution" about her experiences writing speeches for Ronald Reagan and George Bush. Some of their most memorable lines, like "Read my lips" and "A thousand points of light" were written by Noonan. (Published by Random House). and great-grandfather were also whalers. Ahmaogak was the person who spotted the three gray whales trapped in the ice in Barrow that drew such media attention. A recent book by Tom Rose about the trapped whales has drawn criticism from residents of Barrow who feel they were misrepresented by Rose. We talk to Ahmaogak about whaling and native life in Barrow. REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG gives his views on Prince Charles' campaign to save the English language.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer and folklorist CHRIS STRACHWITZ (rhymes with "crock-witz"). In 1960, Strachwitz started Arhoolie records as a leading outlet for many types of music that were disappearing our outside the mainstream. Today, the label has hundreds of titles, featuring blues, cajun, country and bluegrass, Tex-Mex, and many other styles. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new albums from The Residents and Kris Kristofferson. The Residents are a bizarre California-based art band, who make spooky, dreary, multi-layered music. Recently, the Residents have been releasing a series of albums paying homage to great American composers and performers. After having covered artists such as John Phillip Sousa and Hank Williams, the group has just issued "The King and I," their homage to Elvis Presley (it's on Enigma). Kristofferson's new album is called "Third World Warrior," (on Mercury). It continues Kristofferson's musical analysis of world politics and American foreign policy. INT. 2: Actor TIMOTHY BUSFIELD. He plays Elliot Weston on the ABC series, "thirtysomething." (he's the one with the red hair). He also appeared last summer in the movie, "Field of Dreams." Those roles follow a career that included commercials, parts in "Revenge of the Nerds," "Reggie," and "Trapper John M.D." Next week, Busfield is hosting a Lifetime cable special called "Don't Divorce the Children," about the trauma of childhood separation and divorce. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews John Boorman's new movie, "Where the Heart Is." It's a farce about three rich kids forced by their father to make it on their own. It stars Dabney Coleman, Uma Thurman, Joanna Cassidy, Crispin Glover, and Christopher Plummer. Boorman's earlier films include "Deliverance," "The Emerald Forest," and "Hope and Glory."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian and author HILLEL SCHWARTZ. His latest book is "Century's End: A Cultural History of the Fin-de-Sie?cle From the 990's through the 1990's." (Published by Doubleday.) According to Schwartz, certain events happening now, as we approach the year 2000, are part of a pattern that repeats itself at the end of each century. Schwartz's earlier book about dieting, "Never Satisfied: A Cultural History of Diets, Fantasies, and Fat," has just come out in paperback. (Published by Anchor Books, Doubleday.) REV. 1: World music commentator MILO MILES gives an overview of the Japanese pop scene, focusing on Ryuichi Sakamoto (ree-OO-chee sa-kuh-MO-to), who starred with David Bowie in the film, "Merry Christmas Mr. Lawrence," and composed the soundtrack. Milo says Sakamoto manages to combine many musical styles into a harmonious whole. INT. 2: We debrief our rock historian ED WARD about the music he heard during recent trips to Europe. He sat in on a recording session with an underground East Berlin band which is now making its first album, and he also brought back some Polish punk and dance music from Belgium. REV. 2: Critic LAURIE STONE comments on a successful little book being sold at bookstore cash registers. It's called "A Kiss is Just a Kiss" and it's a collection of photographs of people kissing. Laurie says the book could have been too sappy, but it's not.

Interview with Thomas McGuane; Review of Barbara Denerlein's album "Straight Ahead!"; Interview with Danny Elfman; Review of the television shoe "Rescue 911." February 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501747].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer THOMAS McGUANE. McGuane's been called "Ernest Hemingway with a sense of humor ... (and) ... Franz Kafka journeying through Montana." He's the author of the acclaimed novels The Sporting Club, Ninety-Two In The Shade, and To Skin A Cat. McGuane's latest novel is called Keep The Change. It follows a self-despising artist as he travels to Montana to try to make a new life for himself. McGuane himself runs a ranch in Montana. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast September 22, 1989.) REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album by German jazz organist Barbara Dennerlein (DEN-er-line). The album, "Straight Ahead!" is her first to be released in the U.S. and Kevin says part of the reason for its success is that Dennerlein doesn't sound like other jazz organists.

INT. 2: Composer and musician DANNY ELFMAN. Elfman has been gaining a reputation as one of Hollywood's most talented film composers, and just won a Grammy Award in Instrumental Composition for his theme from "Batman." He also composed the music for "Beetlejuice," "Midnight Run," and both Pee Wee Herman movies, and he leads the rock band Oingo Boingo. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast June 12, 1989.)

REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews an episode of "Rescue 911," the CBS series that sends a film crew out on emergency police calls. Their most famous piece of tape yet is the call from Charles Stuart in Boston to say he and his pregnant wife had been shot by a black assailant (this turned out to be a cover up for Stuart, who apparently murdered his wife and shot himself). Bits of the tape have been shown on newscasts, but this is its first full airing on the show.

---

Interview with Volker Schlöndorff; Commentary on the music of Mardi Gras Indians; Interview with Alice Tepper Marlin; Commentary on translation. February 27, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501745].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: German film director VOLKER SCHLÖNDORFF. He just finished the film adaptation of Margaret Atwood's best-selling novel, "The Handmaid's Tale." It stars Natasha Richardson, Faye Dunaway, Elizabeth McGovern, and Robert Duval. Schlondorf's other films include "The Tin Drum," which won the Oscar for Best Foreign Film, "The Lost Honor of Katherina Blum," and "Swann in Love."

REV. 1: In celebration Mardi Gras, New Orleans pianist Mac Rebennack (otherwise known as Dr. John) plays some Mardi Gras tunes. (this is a rebroadcast of an earlier performance piece, April 22, 1988).

INT. 2: Consumer advocate ALICE TEPPER MARLIN. Marlin's executive director fo the Council on Economic Priorities and one of the authors of "Shopping For a Better World: A Quick and Easy Guide to Socially Responsible Supermarket Shopping." The guide helps consumers choose what items to buy, based on the environmental, social, and employment practices of the manufacturers. The guide rates more than 1800 supermarket items and 168 companies for factors such as environment, employee family benefits, ties to South Africa, and management opportunities for women. (The guide's available for {dollar}4.95 plus {dollar}1 postage and handling from The Council on Economic Priorities, 30 Irving Place, New York, NY 10003, or call 1-800-U-CAN-HEL(P). There's also a mass-market, paperback sized Interview with Joseph Salerno; Review of Conchita Supervia's album "Conchita Supervia February 28, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501748].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former mafia member Joseph Salerno. Salerno's damming court testimony was the lynchpin that brought down Philadelphia mafia don Nicodemo "little Nicky" Scarfo. Salerno was drawn into the Cosa Nostra in 1976. After taking part in a mob hit in 1979, Salerno decided to testify against Scarfo. That led to a 200-thousand dollar contract against Salerno and his fleeing into the witness protection program and assuming a new identity. With Stephen J. Rivele, Joseph Salerno has written an account of his mafia life, called "The Plumber: The True Story of How One Good Man Helped Destroy the Entire Philadelphia Mafia." (Knightsbridge Publishing). REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new compact disc of opera recordings by Spanish mezzo-soprano Conchita Supervia (pronounced super-VEE-a). It's been released as part of the Club 99 series. INT. 2: Author and illustrator LAURENT de BRUNHOFF (with a silent "h"). He's followed his father's footsteps, and for the past 40 years has written and drawn the continuing adventures of Babar the Elephant. There are now 36 Babar kids books, in 17 languages, as well as a movie and T-V shows. (by the way, it's bah-BAHR, or BAA-bahr, but NEVER BAY-bahr!!!). REV. 2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads his poem "Tonette" about one of life's lessons that he learned via the tonette.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Judge ROBERT SATTER. Satter is a judge on the Connecticut Superior Court, and in his new book, "Doing Justice: A Trial Judge At Work," he explains such things as how a judge operates, what influences him, and how he deals with conflicting evidence. Satter also gives his ideas on reforms of the jury system that he thinks are necessary to improve the judicial process. ("Doing Justice" is published by Simon & Schuster.) REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album by J.J. CALE. It's CALE'S first album in six years. INT. 2: Short story writer STEPHANIE VAUGHN. Her first collection of stories is "Sweet Talk." Most of these stories chronicle the childhood, youth, and adulthood of Gemma, the daughter of a career army man. The New York Times says VAUGHN "emerges as a thoroughly original writer, blessed with a distinctive voice, by turns witty and lyrical, wisecracking and nostalgic." VAUGHN'S stories first appeared in "The New Yorker," and in the O. Henry and Pushcart Prize collections. ("Sweet Talk" is published by Random House.) REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews, "Mountains of the Moon," the movie about the expedition in the late 1800's to the source of the Nile. It's directed by Bob Rafelson. Rafelson's other movies include "Five Easy Pieces," and "Black Widow."

Interview with Annie Ross; Commentary on Del Shannon; Interview with Vincent Gardenia; Commentary on children's names. March 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501750].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and actress ANNIE ROSS. Ross is best-known as a member of the jazz vocal trio Lambert, Hendricks and Ross. She also wrote "Twisted," which was recorded by both Joni Mitchell and Bette Midler. She made her acting debut in the 1974 play "Kennedy's Children," and has appeared in such films as The Homecoming, Yanks, and Superman III. Her latest role is in the film "Basket Case 2." REV. 1: The recent suicide of rocker Del Shannon triggered rock historian ED WARD's reflections on his early fame and later obscurity. Shannon's fame came with his 1960 hit, "Runaway." INT. 2: Character actor VINCENT GARDENIA. He received Oscar nominations for his roles in "Moonstruck" and "Bang the Drum Slowly." His other movies include "The Front Page," "Little Shop of Horrors," and "Little Murders." He also was a regular on the T-V series "All In The Family" and "Breaking Away." In addition, Gardenia has appeared on Broadway, winning a Tony for his role in "The Prisoner of Second Avenue" and a nomination for "Ballroom." Vincent Gardenia recently co-starred with Hume Cronyn in "Age-Old Friends," an HBO movie about two old friends facing the end of their days. (Rebroadcast. Original date 12/7/89). REV. 2: Commentator PATRICIA MCLAUGHLIN on what people are naming their kids. (Rebroadcast Original date September 21, 1989).
Interview with Ken Kesey; Review of Dave Frishberg's album "Let's Eat Home"; Interview with Lester Brown, Part 1; Review of the television show "The Secret Life of Ian Fleming." March 5, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501885].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer KEN KESEY. Kesey was a leading figure of the 60's counterculture. As the leader of the Merry Pranksters, Kesey did as much as anyone to popularize the use of LSD and other hallucinogens. Kesey also wrote two of the most popular books of the era, "Sometimes a Great Notion" and "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." In 1986, Kesey wrote "Demon Box," a look back at his life since the 60s. Kesey's latest book is called "Caverns." It's a novel he co-wrote with the 13 members of his University of Oregon fiction class. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Friday, December 15, 1989). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Let's Eat Home," the new album by singer/songwriter Dave Frishberg. It's on the Concord Jazz label. INT. 2: LESTER BROWN, president of the Worldwatch Institute, a Washington-based think tank that monitors the state of the environment. The Institute has just issued it's 7th annual "State of the World" report. Brown's been nicknamed "Doctor Doom," for his dire predictions about subjects such as the dwindling forests and the global warming trend. But critics use that term less and less these days as more of Brown's predictions have come true. The 1990 edition of "State of the World" is published by Norton. (Part 1 of a two-part interview. Today's segment focuses on the state of the world today. Tomorrow, Brown outlines the steps we'll need to take over the next 40 years.) REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Secret Life of Ian Fleming," a telemovie on the man who created James Bond. It stars Jason Connery, the son of Sean Connery, the first 007. And it shows the real-life inspirations for some of the characters who peopled the 007 movies and stories. BIANCULLI says it's enjoyable if you approach it with the right attitude. It airs over the TNT cable network.

Interview with John Frankenheimer; Review of Otto Klemperer's albums "Symphony No. 2 in C Minor" and "Symphony No. 9 in D"; Interview with Lester Brown, Part 2; Review of Philip Roth's novel "Deception." March 6, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501744].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director JOHN FRANKENHEIMER. His films include The Manchurian Candidate, French Connection 2, and The Birdman of Alcatraz. Frankenheimer's latest film, The Fourth War, stars Roy Scheider and Harry Dean Stanton. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a reissued series of performances by German conductor Otto Klemperer. Klemperer was a disciple of Gustave Mahler, and Lloyd says his performances of classical German pieces are one of this century's greatest musical legacies. The series has been digitally remastered by Angel Records. INT. 2: LESTER BROWN, president of the Worldwatch Institute, a Washington-based think tank that monitors the state of the environment. The Institute has just issued it's 7th annual "State of the World" report. Brown's been nicknamed "Doctor Doom," for his dire predictions about subjects such as the dwindling forests and the global warming trend. But critics use that term less and less these days as more of Brown's predictions have come true. The 1990 edition of "State of the World" is published by Norton. (Part 2 of a two-part interview. Today, Brown outlines the steps we'll need to take over the next 40 years.) REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Philip Roth's new book, called "Deception."

Interview with Leonard Leff; Review of three hard rock albums; Interview with Michael Moriarty; Commentary on cursing. March 7, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501343].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film historian LEONARD LEFF. His new book is "The Dame in the Kimono: Hollywood, Censorship and the Production Code from the 1920's to the 1960's. It's a history of the Motion Picture Production Code and its impact on American life. The Production Code was a set of Hollywood guidelines to help regulate morals in the movies. (The Dame in the Kimono is published by Grove Weidenfeld). REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER gives an update on the hard-rock scene and plays some music by three talented new groups: the Southern band "The Black Crowes," the Irish folk-influenced "Raindogs," and the "Rave-Ups," who aren't really new, but have just released their first album on a major label. INT. 2: Actor MICHAEL MORIArTY. He's best-known for his roles in the films "Bang the Drum Slowly" and "Who'll Stop the Rain," and in the TV miniseries, "Holocaust." Moriarty is the star of a new TV series called "Law and Order," and he's also just released an album of original jazz songs, called "Reaching Out." REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg tells us why cursing ain't what it used to me. He explains how in Elizabethan times an oath carried with it the true fear of God. (Note: Nunberg uses some examples in this commentary, for example "Jesus Christ!" "Goddamn it," and "son of a bitch.")
Interview with John Dinges; Commentary on the Five Keys; Interview with Peter Riegert; Review of the film "Joe Versus the Volcano." March 8, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501746].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist JOHN DINGES (pronounced DING-gess, with a hard G in the second syllable). Dinges' new book, "Our Man in Panama," traces the history of Manuel Noriega's relationship with the United States, from his recruitment by the CIA in the 60s to his fate in the wake of the U. S. invasion of Panama. Dinges has covered Central and South America for many years. Currently he's a foreign editor for National Public Radio. ("Our Man in Panama" is published by Random House). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD has a retrospective on the Five Keys, a black harmony group that turned out a number of pop and R&B hits in the early 1950's. Their hits included "The Glory of Love," "Ling Ting Tong," and "Close Your Eyes." INT. 2: Actor PETER RIEGERT. In "Local Hero" he co-starred with Burt Lancaster, playing a young oil executive who goes to Scotland with the intent of buying a Scottish village. And in the romantic comedy "Crossing Delancey," he played a Lower East Side pickle merchant smitten by an ambitious and literary single Manhattan woman. He's also acted in "Animal House," and "Chilly Scenes of Winter." He'll soon be appearing in the film, "A Shock to the System," with Michael Caine and Elizabeth McGovern. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new comedy, "Joe Versus the Volcano." It stars Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan. John Patrick Shanley is the writer/director. He also wrote "Moonstruck."

Interview with Francine du Plessix Gray; Review of Michele Rosewoman's album "Contrast High"; Interview with Kathryn Bigelow; Commentary on the "perils" of winter. March 9, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501342].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and essayist FRANCINE DU PLESSIX GRAY. In her latest book, "Soviet Women: Walking the Tightrope," Gray documents the lives and attitudes of contemporary Soviet women in the era of glasnost. They talk about everything from birth control to Stalin to the constant struggle to balance the demands of work and family in their lives. ("Soviet Women" is published by Doubleday.) REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews composer and pianist Michele Rosewoman's new album, "Contrast High." (It's on enja records). INT. 2: Film director KATHRYN BIGELOW. Her new film, starring Jamie Lee Curtis and Ron Silver, is called "Blue Steel." BIGELOW also directed "The Loveless," in which a motorcycle gang faces off against small-town rednecks. It starred Willem Dafoe. And she gained a cult-following with the film "Near Dark," a film which mixed vampire and western genres. REV. 2: With winter still here, but spring hinting it's arrival, commentator PATRICIA MCLAUGHLIN considers the perils of winter on the mind, body, and spirit.

Interview with John Gregory Dunne; Interview with Martin Amis; Review of the television shows "Life of Python" and "Twenty Years of Monty Python--Parrot Sketch Not Included." March 12, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501286].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Journalist, screenwriter and novelist JOHN GREGORY DUNNE. In his latest book, "Harp," Dunne explores what it means to be Irish Catholic in America. Dunne explores his own history - "from steerage to suburbia in three generations" - his college days longing to be a WASP, his family's scarred history (suicides, murders), and what he calls his "insane desire to be assimilated." Dunne's earlier novels include "The Red, White and Blue," "True Confessions," "Vegas" and "Dutch Shea, Jr." He is married to the writer Joan Didion, and together they've written the screenplays for the films "The Panic in Needle Park," "A Star is Born," "Play it as it Lays" and "True Confessions." His brother is the writer and former film producer Dominick Dunne. (Rebroadcast. Original date 9/6/89). REV 1: MUSIC REVIEW PREEMPTED. EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2. INT 2: British novelist MARTIN AMIS (pronounced like Amos). Newsweek magazine calls his new novel, "London Fields," "an upside-down murder mystery, morality tale, nuclear science fiction and postmodern love story." His earlier novels, such as "The Rachael Papers," "Other People" and "Money," have made him a literary star in England, and also placed him under attack from British feminists, who object to his satirical portrayals of women. REV 2: Television critic David Bianculli two Showtime cable specials about the British comedy group, Monty Python's Flying Circus. The specials are called "Life of Python," and "Twenty Years of Monty Python--Parrot Sketch Not Included." David says they're both fun, but both fall short of telling the full story of the group.
Interview with Jamie Lee Curtis; Interview with Josef Skvorecky; Review of Toby Olson's novel "Dorit in Lesbos." March 13, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501374].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Actress JAMIE LEE CURTIS. She stars in the new thriller, "Blue Steel," as a rookie cop tracking down a serial killer, who turns out to be her lover. Her earlier film roles include "Halloween," "The Fog," "Trading Places," and "A Fish Called Wanda." She also co-stars on the ABC TV series, "Anything But Love." REV 1: MUSIC REVIEW PREEMPTED. EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2. INT 2: Czechoslovakian writer and publisher JOSEF SKVORECKY (shkor-et-skee). Since fleeing Czechoslovakia in 1968, Skvorecky and his wife have lived in Toronto, where they run "68 Publishers," an outlet for dissident writers. For years, the output of his publishing house has been smuggled into his former homeland, and secretly passed from hand-to-hand, keeping alive the voices of Czech writers such as Vaclav Havel and Milan Kundera. REV 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the novel "Dorit in Lesbos" by Toby Olson.

Interview with Howard Alden, Dan Barrett, and Frank Tate; Review of an Otto Klemperer album; Interview with Todd Gitlin, Alberto Vitale, and Roger Straus; Commentary on the "Breck girl." March 14, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501373].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Studio concert with guitarist HOWARD ALDEN, trombonist DAN BARRETT and bassist FRANK TATE. They are members of the A-B-Q (ALDEN-BARRETT QUINTET) which records for Concord Records. They play music inspired by the small jazz groups of the 30's and 40's. REV 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ presents the second in his two-part review of conductor Otto Klemperer. This time, Lloyd plays some of Klemperer's opera recordings and recordings of Mozart. (Angel Records has begun to reissue some of Klemperer's recordings on remastered compact discs.) INT 2: Recently, the Managing Director of Pantheon Books, Andre Schiffrin, was forced to resign. Four senior editors at Pantheon then resigned in protest. We'll talk to publisher ROGER WILLIAM STRAUS Jr. of Farrar, Strauss, Giroux, and media critic and professor TODD GITLIN about the events at Pantheon and what they say about the state of the publishing industry in America today. GITLIN is a Pantheon author who drafted a petition to protest the forced resignation of Schiffrin and the events surrounding it. We

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Rock musician and producer NICK LOWE. Lowe was a main figure of the British pub-rock scene in the early 70s, then in the late 70s Lowe joined forces with Dave Edmunds to form "Rockpile." At the same time, Lowe was producing albums for artists such as Elvis Costello and Graham Parker. Lowe went solo in 78, and had hits with "I Love the Sound of Breaking Glass," and "Cruel to be Kind." His production credits during that period included The Pretenders, the Fabulous Thunderbirds, and John Hiatt. Lowe now has a new album, called "Party of One." (It's on Reprise). REV 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker checks out singers Michael Bolton and Lisa Stansfield. Ken says Bolton's nothing to sing about, despite his recent Grammy for best pop male vocal. However, Ken says Stansfield's done a good job in mixing 70's disco-soul with 90's dance music. INT 2: Underground cartoonist KIM DEITCH. In 1967 he began doing comic strips for the "East Village Other" where he introduced his more famous characters, Waldo the Cat, and Uncle Ed, the India Rubber Man. Since then he has contributed to dozens of underground comics. DEITCH'S strips show a fascination for "lost America" of the 20's and 30's and include the recurring characters of Miles Microft, the psychic detective, and his midget wife Blanche; Larry Farrel, old-time movie star and inveterate practical joker; Nathan Mishkin, an alcoholic whose DT's usually feature Waldo. His books include "Hollywoodland," and the new "Beyond the Pale! Krazed Komics and Stories." (Published by Fantagraphics Books.) REV 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews a couple of new movies: "House Party" by first time black director, Reginald Hudlin, and "Love at Large," directed by Alan Rudolph, who also directed "Trouble in Mind," and "Choose Me." SCHIFF says the movies are improbable, but likable.
Interview with John Hope Franklin; Commentary on Japanese pop music; Interview with Ben Vaughn; Review of Timothy O'Grady's novel "Motherland." March 16, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501765].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Historian JOHN HOPE FRANKLIN. Years before there were any black history departments, FRANKLIN was researching the stories of free-blacks in the antebellum south. His interest in black history began while he was a graduate student in the 1930's. Since then he has written a number of books on the subject. His latest book "Race and History," is a collection of essays written between 1938 and 1988. FRANKLIN is Professor of Legal History at Duke University. REV 1: World music commentator MILO MILES explores the continuing influence of punk rock on Japanese music in the second of his two-part examination of Japanese pop music. Milo looks at two Japanese groups -- The Plastics and The Frank Chickens. INT 2: Rock musician BEN VAUGHN. Vaughn's been a cult staple for years in the Philadelphia/New Jersey area, where he's become known for his tongue-in-cheek lyrics and tunes that draw from rocks early influences. Vaughn's just put out his fourth album, titled "Dressed In Black." (It's on Enigma records). REV 2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN gives us her family's version of how to celebrate St. Patrick's Day, and recommends the novel "Motherland" by Timothy O'Grady as perfect St. Patrick's Day reading.

Description of show segment(s)

film tells the story of Christy Brown, who became a painter and writer in spite of having cerebral palsy. PEARSON, who produced the film, knew Christy and his family and SHERIDAN co-wrote as well as directed it. "My Left Foot," a first film for both, has been nominated for Academy Awards for Best Director, Best Adapted Screenplay, Best Supporting Actress, and Best Picture. REV 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new CBS sitcoms: "Normal Life," starring Frank Zappa's kids, Dweezil and Moon Unit Zappa, and "Sydney," starring Valerie Bertinelli of "One Day at a Time" fame. BIANCULLI says one is pretty good, and the other needs some polishing.

Interview with Robert A. Caro; Commentary on Vietnam protest songs; Interview with Vitaly Komar and Aleksandr Melamid; Review of David McLellan's biography "Utopian Pessimist." March 20, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501211].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Pulitzer prize winning biographer ROBERT A. CARO. His book "The Path to Power," published in 1982, was the first of a projected four volume epic on Lyndon Baines Johnson. The book focused on Johnson's early years. The Boston Sunday Globe called it, "a powerful, absorbing, at times awe-inspiring, and often deeply alarming story." In the just-published second volume, "Means of Ascent," CARO examines seven years of Johnson's life, from 1941 to 1948. "Time" magazine calls the book, a "white-knuckle, hair raising tale." The book begins with Johnson's election defeat for the Senate and concludes with his successful race for the Senate seat in 1948, an election Johnson was purported to have "stolen." ("The Path to Power," and "Means of Ascent" are published by Knopf). REV 1: Rock historian ED WARD plays some of the lesser known, but more effecting, protest songs about the Vietnam War. INT 2: Soviet-born artists VITALY KOMAR and ALEKSANDR MELAMID. The pair are the creators of two huge, multi-paneled works called "Yalta 1945" and "Winter in Moscow 1977." Both works are being shown in America for the first time at the Brooklyn Museum. "Yalta 1945" is made of 31 4x4 foot panels depicting Lenin and the four leaders from the Yalta Conference. "Winter in Moscow 1977" uses 26 panels to show Komar and Melamid's home town shortly before they fled to the West. (The exhibit runs until June 4th). REV 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new biography of French philosopher and mystic Simone Weil (pronounced "vile"). It's called "Utopian Pessimist," and it's by David McLellan.
Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Author and Journalist T.J. ENGLISH. His new book is "The Westies: Inside the Hell's Kitchen Irish Mob." From the 1960's to the 1980's the mob led by James Coonan terrorized Manhattan's Hell's Kitchen neighborhood. Testimony from a former hitman of the gang, Mickey Featherstone, eventually broke up the gang. ENGLISH'S book has been called, "a grotesque chronicle" of the gang and "reminiscent of Poe and Dostoyevsky in subject and character," by New York Newsday. ENGLISH's book is published by Putnam. REV 1: A spring medley from stride pianist DAVE MCKENNA. The tunes are: "Spring Can Really Hang You Up the Most," "Spring is Here," and "It Might as Well Be Spring." INT 2: Cuban-born poet HEBERTO PADILLA (air-BARE-toe puh-DEE-uh). He was a friend of Castro and an early supporter of the revolution in Cuba. But later he became disillusioned and was imprisoned by Castro as a counter-revolutionary in 1971. He left Cuba in 1980 and has been living and teaching in the U.S. He has a new memoir, "Self Portrait of the Other," published by Farrar, Straus, and Giroux. REV 2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG has some thoughts on the different accents you'll find in California. Not all of them are as distinctive as those of a "Valley Girl." (originally broadcast 3/9/88).

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Sportswriters ALEXANDER WOLFFand ARMEN KETEVIAN. The pair have covered college basketball for years, and now they've collaborated on a new expose of college recruiting practices. It's called "Raw Recruits." (Pocket Books). Terry also talks with DAVID BERST, the head of enforcement for the NCAA. REV 1: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT 2: Novelist TIM O'BRIEN. He was writing about Vietnam long before it became fashionable to do so. His Vietnam memoir, "If I die in a Combat Zone," was published in 1973. O'BRIEN's 1979 novel "Going After Cacciato" was praised for its depiction of the Vietnam War. It also was the surprise winner of the 1979 National Book Awards -- beating out books by John Irving and John Cheever. He's also written the

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Batman creator BOB KANE. In his new autobiography, "Batman & Me," Kane tells how he came up with the idea for the caped crusader, and what influence he had on the T-V series and last year's movie. Kane drew Batman from its inception in 1939 to the late 60s. REV 1: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN checks out "Sucker." It's a rock band made of four guys who grew up and got real jobs a long time ago, but still keep their rock and roll dreams alive. (This piece is :30 longer than usual). INT 2: Film maker JOHN McNAUGHTON, director of the controversial movie, "Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer." The film is loosely based on real-life murderer Henry Lee Lucas. McNaughton shot the film in 1986, but it's only now gaining wide release. The delay is in large part do to the fact that the Motion Picture Association insisted on giving the film a "X" rating, a rating that stemmed less from the graphic violence that the absolute unrepentant nature of the killer. Despite that, the film's already made many critic's ten best lists. REV 2: Poet Mark Halliday joins us again to read a poem.

Interview with Murray Louis; Review of Sonny Rollins' albums "Falling in Love With Jazz" and "The Freedom SUite"; Interview with Rick Aviles; Review of three new television shows. March 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501805].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dancer and choreographer MURRAY LOUIS. He's spent 40 years pioneering modern dance, and recently he merged his company with that of his mentor, Alwin Nikolais (nik-oh-lie). (Rebroadcast. Original date 10/13/89). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album and a reissue of an old album by tenor saxophonist Sony Rollins. The new recording is "Falling in Love with Jazz" on the Milestone Label; the reissue is "The Freedom Suite," on Fantasy Records' Original Jazz Classics. It was first recorded in the late 50's and featured bassist Oscar Pettiford and drummer Max Roach. INT. 2: Street performer turned film actor RICK AVILES (a-VEEL-us). Aviles started out doing comedy on the streets of Manhattan, and was named "Comic of the Year" by the Village voice in 1980. He's since appeared in the movies "Mondo NY," "Street Smart," and "Spike of Bensonhurst." Aviles has a part in Jim Jarmusch's recent movie, "Mystery Train." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 1/5/90). REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews three new shows, coming up this week on each network. They are: "Bagdad Cafe?," "Equal Justice," and "Carol & Co." (with Carol Burnett).

Interview with Ron Chernow; Commentary on Red Bird and Blue Cat Records; Interview with Daniel Akst; Review of Fay Weldon's novel "The Life and Love of a She-Devil." March 27, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502248].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author RON CHERNOW (CHUR-now). His new book is, "The House of Morgan: an American Banking Dynasty and The Rise of Modern Finance." CHERNOW examines one of the financing world's once most powerful institutions: the J.P. Morgan financing empire. And he traces the history of modern finance from the genteel, clubby world of banking to Wall Street of the 1980's when ruthlessness, and machismo became the rule. "A brilliant, generation-spanning history of the Morgan banking empire, which offers a wealth of social and political as well as economic perspectives," says the Kirkus Reviews. ("The House of Morgan" is published by Atlantic Monthly Press.) REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles the Red Bird and Blue Cat record labels. They were the creations of the 60s songwriting and producing team, Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller. The labels' hits include "Going to the Chapel," and "Boy From New York City." INT. 2: Journalist DANIEL AKST. His new book is "Wonder Boy Barry Minkow: The Kid Who Swindled Wall Street." While a reporter for the Los Angeles Times and later the Wall Street Journal, AKST showed Minkow in his true light...not a clean-cut teenage success story...but rather the mastermind of a multi-million dollar fraud operation. (published by Scribner & Sons.) REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews the new book by British writer Fay Weldon, "The Cloning of Joanna May." Weldon has also written, "The Life and Love of a She-Devil."
Interview with Salvador Minuchin; Review of albums that combine popular and classical music; Interview with Hettie Jones; Interview with Mark Halliday. March 28, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501806].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Family therapist SALVADOR MINUCHIN. (mi-NOO-chin). In the early 50's, he helped launch the field of family therapy, shifting the focus of psychotherapy from the individual to the entire family. He's also known for aggressive, short-term intervention for dealing with delinquent children and anorectic girls. His books include "Families of the Slums," a look at the impact of poverty on a family; "Family Kaleidoscope," based on observations of families in London, England; and "Family Therapy Techniques," which he co-authored. In 1978 MINUCHIN was the subject of a "New Yorker" profile. MINUCHIN's new book is "Institutionalizing Madness: Families, Therapy and Society," which he co-authored with Joel Elizur, Director of Medical Psychology, Kibbutz Child and Family Clinic, Tel Aviv. (Published by Basic Books, Inc.) REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ examines some recordings in which the worlds of classical and popular music combine. The most recent example is "Anything Goes: Stephane Grappelli and Yo-Yo Ma play (mostly) Cole Porter." SCHWARTZ looks at other recordings that bring together Jascha Heifetz and Bing Crosby; Paul McCartney and George Mason of the New Philharmonia Orchestra; and Frank Sinatra and the Hollywood String Quartet. INT. 2: Writer HETTIE JONES. Her new memoir, "How I became Hettie Jones" (published by E.P. Dutton) is an account of living at the center of New York bohemianism during the 50's and 60's. It's also the story of JONES' interracial marriage to black poet LeRoi Jones. LeRoi Jones later became involved in the black militant movement, and changed his name to Amiri Baraka. The two divorced. From the New York Times Book Review: "She writes utterly without rancor, communicating nothing short of wistfulness for the colorblind marriage they were able to achieve for a few short years before the march of events made it impossible." REV. 2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads two new poems.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author PAUL MONETTE. His memoir, "Borrowed Time," (Avon books) told his story of living with death and aids. His latest book is a novel, "Afterlife," (Crown books) about how three different men deal with the grief of losing a lover from aids. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER compares two new solo albums by Dave Edmunds ("Closer to the Flame") and Nick Lowe ("Party of One"). INT. 2: Animator PAUL FIERLINGER (FEAR-ling-er). His animated documentary film, "And Then I'll Stop" won the best film award from the International Association of Animators. It's the first animated documentary to explore the issue of alcoholism. REV. 2: Film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN (GLY-ber-man) reviews the movie, "A Shock to the System," starring Michael Caine and Peter Reigert.

Interview with Sergio and Odair Assad; Commentary on the Haitian music "compas"; Interview with Paul Auster; Review of the film "Cinema Paradiso." March 30, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501802].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A studio concert by the ASSAD BROTHERS. The two brothers, Sergio and Odair, are from Brazil. They perform classical acoustic guitar duets, including works by 20th century South American composers. The Assads also commission works by prominent contemporary composers such as Astor Piazzolla. (Rebroadcast. Original date 10/21/88). REV. 1: World music commentator MILO MILES talks about compas (or kompa, or konpa), the popular music of Haiti. He shows how the roots of compas are in the eclectic musical influences Haiti has absorbed over the years. INT. 2: Writer PAUL AUSTER. Auster began his writing life first as a poet and translator. In a review of his fifth novel, "Moon Palace," Jane Smiley said, "Auster's style is continually surprising and arresting...the characters are drawn with precision and wit...with great generosity and love." Auster's other books include City of Glass, Ghosts, and a memoir, The Invention of Solitude. REV. 2: Critic-at-large Laurie Stone reviews "Cinema Paradiso," winner of this year's Academy Award for best foreign film.
Interview with Steve Fishman; Interview with Gerry Mulligan; Review of the television show "Twin Peaks." April 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502253].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer STEVE FISHMAN. Fishman suffered a brain hemorrhage while in Nicaragua several years ago. His book, "A Bomb in the Brain," is a first person account of that experience and the subsequent surgery that left him with a mild form of epilepsy. (Rebroadcast. Original date 12/21/88). REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Arranger and baritone saxophonist, GERRY (pronounced "jerry") MULLIGAN. He's been an innovator in modern jazz orchestration. Early in his career he was staff arranger for Gene Krupa's big band. In 1949 he collaborated with Gil Evans and Miles Davis in the Nonet. The nine-piece band shook up jazz arrangers and launched the era of so-called cool jazz. He achieved international acclaim when he started a "pianoless" quartet with trumpeter Chet Baker in the early 1950's. (Rebroadcast. Original date 12/18/89). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews film director David Lynch's new television series, "Twin Peaks," starring Kyle McGlaughlin. Lynch is best-known for directing the film "Blue Velvet."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and mountain climber JON KRAKAUER. His first book, "Eiger Dreams," is a collection of his articles from magazines such as Outside and Smithsonian. (Eiger Dreams is published by Lyons & Burford) REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD examines the second chapter in Liverpool's rock and roll history. After the Beatles, Liverpool became the focus of the emerging punk scene, with bands such as the Teardrop Explodes, and Echo and the Bunnymen. INT. 2: A cappella vocalist BOBBY MCFERRIN. He's best known for his recording, "Don't Worry Be Happy," one of several records that's earned McFarren Grammy awards. Another was for the title track from the film "Round Midnight," in which he used his voice to sound like a trumpet. MCFERRIN's newest project is "Voicestra," a 10 member vocal ensemble, with a background that ranges from classical music and jazz to theatre and dance. The group has its debut in Los Angeles, April 10-15. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Janet Malcolm's controversial book, "The Journalist and the Murderer." The book questions the ethics involved in the trust journalists create in their subjects, focusing on the case of writer Joe McGinnis, whose book "Fatal Vision," was a portrait of murder suspect Jeffrey MacDonald.

---

Interview with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar; Review of Vaclav Talich's album "Symphony no. 8"; Interview with Imogene Coca; Interview with Jimmy Rowles. April 4, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502250].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Basketball great KAREEM ABDUL-JABBAR. Abdul-Jabbar is unquestionably one of the greatest players to ever take the court, and has been honored with selections to numerous All-Star games and as well as being named Sports Illustrated "Sportsman of the Year." (His pending selection to the Basketball Hall of Fame is a certainty). ABDUL-JABBAR put in 20 years in the NBA before retiring from the Los Angeles Lakers at the end of last season. He's written a memoir of that final season, called "Kareem." (It's co-written with Mignon McCarthy, and it's published by Random House). REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new reissue featuring Czech conductor Vaclav Talich (VATZ-lahf TAH-litch). Talich led the Czech Philharmonic off and on from the 20s to 1961. Lloyd says this recording shows Talich's national flavor, a trait that's lost in this modern world of globe-hopping star conductors. This recording features performances of Dvorak's 8th Symphony, and Smetana's "Moldau" and "From Bohemian Woods and Fields." (the recording is on Supraphon). INT. 2: Comedian IMOGENE COCA. Coca is a television legend, co-starring with Sid Caesar on the groundbreaking comedy series, "Your Show of Shows," in the 1950s. Since then, Coca's had numerous roles on TV, on stage, and in movies. Imogene Coca is teeming up with Sid Caesar once again, for a series of appearances at Michael's Pub in New York City, beginning April 17th. REV. 2: Pianist JIMMY (or JIMMIE) ROWLES joins the show to discuss Sarah Vaughan, who recently died of lung cancer.
Interview with Barry Commoner; Review of Sinead O'Connor's album "I Don't Want What I Haven't Got"; Interview with Fay Weldon; Review of the film "I Love You to Death." April 5, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501800].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scientist BARRY COMMONER, founder and director of the Center for the Biology of Natural Systems in New York. For years COMMONER has been at the forefront of the ecology movement. "Time" magazine once dubbed him the "Paul Revere of Ecology." Early on he crusaded about the dangers of nuclear fallout. In 1970 he helped organize the first Earth Day, and a year later published "The Closing Circle," an examination of the affect of technology on the environment. He looked at the energy crisis in "The Poverty of Power." In 1980 COMMONER ran for president on the Citizens Party ticket, with a platform based on energy and liberal themes. COMMONER'S new book is "Making Peace with the Planet." (Pantheon Books) REV. 1: Ken Tucker reviews "I Do Not Want What I Haven't Got," the new album from Irish singer/songwriter Sinead (shh-NAY) O'Connor. (It's on Chrysalis records). INT. 2: British writer FAY WELDON. She's most famous for her book, "The Life and Loves of a She-Devil," which was recently made into a movie. WELDON'S novels deal with certain aspects of the female experience. In her first novel, "Fat Women's Joke" (1967), an over-weight middle-aged woman leaves her husband and struggles for self-respect in a world where youth and sex appeal count. And the heroine of "Down Among the Women," is an unwed mother. In all, WELDON has written fourteen novels and story collections. Her new novel, "The Cloning of Joanna May," tells the story of a 60-year-old divorced woman who discovers that she has three daughters as a result of a cloning experiment carried out by her husband thirty years earlier. (Published by Viking Penguin Inc.) REV. 2: Film Critic Steven Schiff reviews the new comedy, "I Love You to Death," starring Kevin Kline, Tracy Ullman, and William Hurt.

Interview with Chuck Jones; Interview with Dave McKenna; Interview with Lester Bowie; Review of the film "Camille Claudel." April 6, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501804].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Animator CHUCK JONES. Jones made many of the greatest Warner Brothers cartoons, and he created the characters Pepe LePew, Wile E. Coyote, and the RoadRunner. Jones has written a memoir of his years at Warner Brothers, called "Chuck Amuck." (Rebroadcast. Original date 10/18/89). REV. 1: Jazz pianist Dave McKenna plays an April medley. INT. 2: Jazz trumpeter LESTER BOWIE (BOO-ee). Bowie is considered one of the most original trumpeters in jazz, and a master of horn effects. Bowie started out playing with St. Louis R&B bands. In 1969, he helped found the Art Ensemble of Chicago as an outlet for more eclectic and avant-garde jazz. Bowie also heads his own band, Lester Bowie's Jazz Fantasy. Their latest album is "Serious Fun." (Rebroadcast. Original date 11/3/89). REV. 2: Critic-at-large Laurie Stone reviews the film "Camille Claudel," starring Isabelle Adjani as sculptor Camille Claudel and Gerard Depardieu as Auguste Rodin.

Interview with Ernest Volkman; Interview with John Waters; Review of the television show "Capital News." April 9, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501755].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ERNEST VOLKMAN. He and co-author John Cummings' new book "Goombata: The Improbable Rise and Fall of John Gotti and His Gang," chronicles the history of the mafia godfather once proclaimed the "Teflon Don." Since 1986, when Gotti took over the leadership of the Gambino crime family, he's been acquitted in three criminal trials. The latest was an assault and conspiracy trial in New York, in which he was acquitted February 9, 1990. Gotti became head of the multimillion dollar mafia empire after allegedly murdering Paul Castellano the reputed boss of the Gambino family. VOLKMAN is a former correspondent for Newsday. Both he and Cummings have written extensively on organized crime. ("Goombata" is published by Little, Brown and Company). REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Filmmaker JOHN WATERS. His latest film is "Cry Baby," a juvenile delinquent love story set in the 1950's, which brings together such performers as Patty Hearst, Johnny Depp (of Fox's tv show "21 Jump Street"), Ricki Lake, David Nelson, and Polly Bergen. WATERS is known for his independent, off-beat films, such as "Pink Flamingos," "Female Trouble," and "Polyester." In 1988 WATERS entered the mainstream with his popular film, "Hairspray." REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Capital News," starring Lloyd Bridges as the head of a Washington DC newspaper. It premieres this week on ABC.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Edward Villella; Review of Pablo Casals' album "Sinfonia Concertante in E-Flat, K. 364 ; Divertimento in E-Flat, K. 563"; Interview with Tom Robbins; Commentary on celebrities. April 11, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501859].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dancer EDWARD VILLELLA. For thirty years he was a principal dancer with the New York City Ballet where his performances in Balanchine's "Apollo" and "Prodigal Son," first brought him to critical acclaim. Though shorter in stature than most dancers, VILLELLA, has been heralded for his ability to handle vigorous athletic roles with grace. VILLELLA developed his dancing style under the guidance of choreographer George Balanchine. He was also influenced by choreographer Jerome Robbins. For the past four years, VILLELLA has served as artistic director for the newly formed Miami City Ballet. The company is known for its repertoire of Balanchine ballets as well as ballets by America's most talented contemporary choreographers. The Miami City Ballet will be performing at Annenberg Center in Philadelphia from April 11 through the 14th. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews conductor and cellist Pablo Casal's recording of Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante. INT. 2: Novelist TOM ROBBINS. His latest book "Skinny Legs and All," (Bantam Books) involves a young Virginia artist, Ellen Cherry, who moves to New York to pursue an art career and ends up a waitress at Isaac &
Ishmael's, a restaurant owned by an Arab and a Jew which sits across the street from the United Nations. Other characters of note: Salome, the teenage belly dancer, and some magical objects: a conch, a stick, a sock, a can o'beans, and a spoon. ROBBINS' other novels include: "Another Roadside Attraction," "Even Cowgirls Get the Blues," "Still Life with Woodpecker," and "Jitterbug Perfume." REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan shares her thoughts on celebrity stars, thoughts generated by her recent trip from the East Coast halls of Academe to Hollywood.

Interview with Robert Cullen; Review of the Shoes's album "Stolen Wishes"; Interview with Pat Oliphant; Review of the film "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles." April 12, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501857].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ROBERT CULLEN. He's a former Moscow correspondent for Newsweek, and he writes regularly on Eastern Europe for The Atlantic and the New Yorker. An eyewitness to the fall of the Ceaucescu regime in Romania, CULLEN discusses with Terry the difficulties that country faces in setting up a democracy after so many years under a dictatorship. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Stolen Wishes," the new album by a band called Shoes, a little-known group from Zion, Illinois, who happen to write great, and we mean GREAT, pop songs. (The record's on Black Vinyl Records, 2269 Sheridan Road, Zion, IL, 60099). INT. 2: Political cartoonist PAT OLIPHANT. His jabs at the high and mighty are seen in more than 500 newspapers and numerous collections. Oliphant's depictions of American politics have earned him the anger of presidents and a Pulitzer Prize. The National Portrait Gallery in Washington, DC, has just opened an exhibit of 41 of Oliphant's cartoons, as well as his lesser-known sculpture, lithographs, and color work. The exhibit runs through November 25th, then tours nationally. REV. 2: Film critic Steven Schiff reviews the latest media breakthrough of those heroes on a half-shell, "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles,"--the movie.
Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ALICE WALKER. She's best known for the novel The Color Purple, a seminal account of the life of poor, rural blacks in the south as experienced by the women. The novel revolves around letters that Celie, the principal character, addresses to God after her father has impregnated her for the second time. The Color Purple won the American Book Award and the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction, and was later adapted for the screen by Steven Spielberg. Walker has written four novels, two collections of short stories (including You Can't Keep a Good Woman Down), four volumes of poetry, two collections of essay (In Search of Our Mothers' Gardens), two children's books, and a biography of Langston Hughes. Her latest novel, which Walker describes as a "romance of the last 500,000 years," is titled The Temple of My Familiar. (originally broadcast 5/1/89). REV. 1: World Music critic MILO MILES takes a look at the music of two Latin American singers who live as ex-patriots: Celia Cruz and La Lupe. And he considers how being an ex-patriot can influence a singer's work (originally broadcast 12/15/89). INT. 2: British singer-songwriter JOHN WESLEY HARDING. Born in the historical seaside town of Hastings, HARDING has looked to the United States for his creative influences--from his Cambridge doctoral dissertation on the role of Jimmy Stewart in American films--to the songs of bluesman Robert Johnson, and folksingers John Prine and Jim Croce. His new album is called, "Here Comes the Groom." REV. 2: Critic LAURIE STONE reviews British performer and clown GEOFF HOYLE. In his solo piece, "Feast of Fools," HOYLE uses physical and verbal comedy to portray a series of caricatures. Though HOYLE has training in classical theatre and mime, STONE says his performance is anything but refined. HOYLE is performing "Feast of Fools," in New York.
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter LAWRENCE WESCHLER. Weschler is a staff writer for the "New Yorker," where he writes on human rights, political, and cultural issues. Weschler's new book, "A Miracle, A Universe: Settling Accounts with Torturers," (published by Pantheon) looks at how victims of torture in Brazil and Uruguay worked to bring their captors activities to light (portions of the book ran as a five-part series in the New Yorker). Weschler's earlier books include "The Passion of Poland," and "Shapinsky's Karma."

REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a couple of Ornette Coleman reissues from 1968: "New York is Now," and "Love Call." (Both on the Blue Note label). They include some alternate takes of tunes never before released in the U.S. INT. 2: Writer OSCAR HIJUELOS (E-Whell-Los). His recent novel, "The Mambo Kings Play Songs of Love," just won the Pulitzer Prize for fiction. It's the story of Cuban immigrant brothers who work by day at grimy, exhausting jobs in a meat-packing house, but by night, in silk suits and lace ties, play the mambo, the vibrant, footloose music of Cuba. Surrounded by musicians wearing vests decorated with sequined palm trees, the Castillo brothers try to secure their own version of the American Dream. Their lives climax when they appear on the "I Love Lucy Show." Hijuelos' first novel, "Our House In the Last World," was a largely autobiographical account of the Cuban immigrant experience. (Repeat. Originally broadcast 8/28/89). REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Spy Magazine Presents How To Be Famous." It's a prime-time special by the same folks who put out the satire and humor magazine. It airs this Wednesday night on NBC.

Interview with Michael Palin; Commentary on doo-wop music; Interview with Bob Feller; Review of Deirdre Bair's biography "Simone de Beauvoir." April 17, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501860].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor, comedian, filmmaker, and author MICHAEL PALIN. In the fall of 1988, Palin set out to recreate the journey Jules Verne described in "Around the World in 80 Days." Palin circled the globe by using just about every means of transportation except airplane (since that wasn't available in Verne's time). Palin turned his journey into an 8-part TV BBC series (it aired in this country on the A&E network) and a book that's a bestseller in England. Palin is of course also known for his tenure as a member of Monty Python's Flying Circus and his appearances in "The Missionary" and "A Fish Called Wanda."

REV. 1: Rock and roll historian Ed Ward explores the roots of doo-wop. INT. 2: Baseball Hall-of-Fame pitcher BOB FELLER. Some call him the fastest pitcher in history---taking the mound for the Cleveland Indians when just a teenager, FELLER racked up 266 wins, struck out over 2500 batters, and pitched the only opening day no-hitter in major league history. In his new book, "Now Pitching, BOB FELLER: A Baseball Memoir," he recounts his more 50 years in the game. (The book is co-authored with writer Bill Gilbert and published by Birch Lane Press). REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Deirdre Bair's new biography of Simone de Beauvoir.

---

Interview with Ram Dass; Interview with Philip Glass and Allen Ginsberg; Commentary on word processing programs; April 18, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/958461434].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Spiritual teacher RAM DASS. Ram Dass' book, "Be Here Now," was a widely used spiritual guide during the early 70s. Ram Dass followed that book up with several others, among them "The Only Dance There Is" and "How Can I Help?" Ram Dass started out as Harvard professor Richard Alpert. While at Harvard in the early 60s, Alpert joined with Timothy Leary and others in the early psychedelic experiments. That led him to investigations of meditation and spiritual practices. Currently, Ram Dass serves as Chairman of the Seva Foundation, a service group that runs a variety of health and ecology programs in the third world. REV. 1:  PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 *****

INT. 2: Poet ALLEN GINSBERG and composer PHILLIP GLASS. The pair have collaborated on an interpretation of Ginsberg's poem, "Hydrogen Jukebox." The work gets it's premiere April 26th at the American Music Theatre Festival in Philadelphia, and features six singers, a five piece orchestra, and a mix of songs, chants, and the spoken word. REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg shares his second thoughts about the word processor.
Interview with Peter Brook; Review of Roland Hayes's album "The Art of Roland Hayes"; Interview with Jan Staller; Commentary on Earth Day fashion. April 19, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501941].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Theatre and film director and screenwriter PETER BROOK. In 1985, Brook staged an epic, nine hour play based on the Indian sacred text, "The Mahabharata (mah-hah-ber-rah-tah)." He's also directed a 6 hour T-V version and a 3-hour film version. Previously, Brook directed the Royal Shakespeare Company, founded the International Center for Theater Research, and directed the premiere of the groundbreaking play "Marat/Sade." REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new CD collection of songs by the late Roland Hayes. Hayes was the first major black concert singer, and paved the way for performers such as Marion Anderson. (It's issued by the Smithsonian). NT. 2: Photographer JAN STALLER. His photographs capture the well-traveled outskirts of cities. His subjects are viaducts, tunnels, piers, and subway entrances - the places we pass on the way to somewhere else. He's just published a new collection of such photographs taken around New York over the past ten years, "Frontier New York" published by Hudson Hills Press. In the book's introduction Paul Goldberger writes, "To look at New York through Staller's photographs is to feel that the familiar city has become somehow mystical, ephemeral, almost haunted." REV. 2: Commentator Patricia McLaughlin (mic-LOFF-lin) tells us how to dress for Earth Day.

Interview with Allan Be?rube?; Commentary on Steve Jordan; Interview with Max DePree; Review of the film "Miami Blues." April 20, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501757].

Description of show segment(s) and accordionist Steve Jordan. The eclectic performer's recorded almost 40 albums and has provided music for films like, "Born in East L.A." and "True Stories." INT. 2: Business executive MAX DePREE. DePree turned his company, a once obscure office furniture manufacturer, into the "nation's most admired corporation" (according to Fortune magazine). DePree has published his thoughts on enlightened management in a book called, "Leadership Is An Art." Whereas most management books these days push an Attila the Hun approach, DePree's is closer to Saint Francis of Assisi. (Rebroadcast. Original date November 16, 1989). REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Miami Blues," starring Alec Baldwin, Jennifer Jason Leigh, and Fred Ward.

Mike Royko; Interview with Nelson George; Review of the television movie "Fall From Grace." April 23, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501854].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist MIKE ROYKO. For more than 26 years, Royko has written a daily column on happenings in his native Chicago and throughout the world, and last year he released his 6th collection of his writings. Along the way, Royko has earned the Pulitzer, the Mencken, and Pyle Award. His column is now carried in more than 500 papers. Royko also wrote "Boss," a best-selling portrait of Chicago mayor Richard Daley. (Rebroadcast. Original date October 26, 1989). REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INT. 2 INT. 2: Writer and critic NELSON GEORGE. George is one of this county's most prominent chroniclers of black music. He's the black music editor at Billboard, is a columnist for Playboy, and regularly writes for the Village Voice and Essence. George was the editor of a new book called, "Stop the Violence," a collaboration of today's top rappers working to end black on black violence. George's earlier books include a history of Motown called "Where Did Our Love Go?" and "The Death of Rhythm and Blues." REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli previews "Fall From Grace," a NBC telemovie about Jim and Tammy Baker. It airs this Sunday and stars Kevin Spacey and Bernadette Peters.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MORLEY SAFER. His first book is "Flashbacks: On Returning to Vietnam" (published by Random House). In 1965 SAFER went to Vietnam as CBS'S correspondent. His famous report of U.S. marines torching the Cam Ne hamlet in August 1965 angered the White House with threats to expose SAFER'S "Communist ties" unless CBS fired him. SAFER went back to Vietnam in 1989 as a correspondent for 60 Minutes, and out of this trip came "Flashbacks," a look back at the war and an examination of Vietnam today. REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "That's a Serious Thing," a new reissue featuring trombonist Jack Teagarden. Kevin says the album shows how Teagarden brought a country influence into jazz. The album's on the RCA/Bluebird label and it features Teagarden performances from 1929 to 1957. INT. 2: Cartoonist and Animator BILL PLYMPTON. His work combines the humorous and the grotesque. Most recently his "Plymptoons" have been showing on MTV. His award-winning animated cartoons, "25 Ways to Quit Smoking," "How to Kiss," "Your Face," and "Drawing Lesson," have appeared in numerous animated film festivals. Before he took up animation, PLYMPTON'S political cartoon strip was syndicated in 25 newspapers. His other illustrations and cartoons have been featured in Harpers, Rolling Stone, Newsweek, The New York Times, and others. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Quest for El Cid," by Richard Fletcher.

Interview with Jonathan D. Spence; Commentary on Dexter Gordon; Interview with Vikram Seth; Review of Hettie Jones's and Molly Haskell's memoirs "How I Became Hettie Jones" and "Love and Other Infectious Diseases." April 25, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501504].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian JONATHAN D. SPENCE. His new book is "The Search for Modern China" (published by W.W. Norton & Company). SPENCE is a professor of History at Yale University. He's written eight other acclaimed works on China including "The Gate of Heavenly Peace," which was named one of the best nonfiction books of the year by the New York Times Book Review and, "The Question of Hu." In his new book SPENCE writes about four centuries of Chinese history, beginning with the waning days of the Ming dynasty and ending with last year's events on Tiananmen Square. REV. 1: Jazz tenor saxophonist Dexter Gordon was one of the creators of bop and one of the most influential players of the 1940s and 1950s. Gordon received a Best Actor Academy Award nomination for his role in the 1986 film Round Midnight. He died this morning of kidney failure. Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD joins the show to remember Gordon. INT. 2: Poet VIKRAM SETH (VICK-ram SATE) He was born in India and has lived in England, China and the U.S. He's just completed his first novel -- a novel written in verse, "The Golden Gate" (published by Knopf). David Rieff of "Vanity Fair" says of the book, "At once a bittersweet love story, a wickedly funny novel of manners and an unsentimental meditation on mortality and the nuclear abyss." REV. 2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews two new autobiographies by women: "How I Became Hettie Jones," by Hettie Jones, and "Love and Other Infectious Diseases," by Molly Haskell.

Interview with Ehud Ya'ari; Review of a new recording of Leon Kirchner's music; Interview with Jessica Hagedorn; Commentary on Louise DuArt. April 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501239].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Israeli journalist Ehud Ya'ari (A-hood yah-HAR-ee). He's the co-author of "Intifada: The Palestinian Uprising-Israel's Third Front." The book chronicles the events leading up to the Palestinian uprising, and it examines how the Israeli government misread, and misreported, the events surrounding the Intifada. Ehud Ya'ari covers Middle East affairs for Israeli television. The book's co-author, Ze'ev Schiff is military correspondent for the Israeli newspaper "Ha'aretz." The pair also collaborated on the books "Israel's Lebanon War," and "The Year of The Dove." ("Intifada" is published by Simon and Schuster). REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new release of works by 20th century composer Leon Kirchner. Lloyd say Kirchner has managed to fuse the two major influences of 20th-century classical music, Schoenberg and Stravinsky. (the album's on the Elektra/Nonesuch label). INT. 2: Writer JESSICA HAGEDORN. Her debut novel, "The Dogeaters," is set amid the mixture of cultures that makes up the Philippines. Hagedorn herself was born and raised in the Philippines. Prior to this novel, she's been a poet, performance artist, playwright, and commentator for "Crossroads." ("The Dogeaters" is published by Pantheon). REV. 2: Critic Laurie Stone reviews the work of impressionist Louise DuArt. On her recent Showtime special, DuArt portrayed everyone from Cher to Barbara Walters, Woody Allen to Doctor Ruth.
Interview with Wayne Wang; Commentary on Little Richard, Part 1; Interview with Eugene Richards; Review of the film "The Cook, the Thief, His Wife and Her Lover." April 27, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501851].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker WAYNE WANG. With the films "Chan is Missing," "Dim Sum," "Slamdance" and "Eat a Bowl of Tea," to his credit, Wang is the first Chinese-American film director to make an impact in the American film industry. Wang has focused his work around the problems of identity and assimilation, and other issues in the lives of Chinese-American immigrants. He made his first film, "Chan is Missing," on a budget of only $22,000, but the mystery set in San Francisco's Chinatown became both a critical and box-office success. Chan's latest movie, "Eat a Bowl of Tea," takes place just after World War Two, when Chinese women were first allowed to immigrate to America in large numbers. It will be shown next week on public television's "American Playhouse" series. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, July 26, 1989). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD begins a two-part profile on Little Richard. This week he tells us about Little Richard's early years, when he had more ambition than success and was still trying to make his mark in the music world. INT. 2: Photojournalist EUGENE RICHARDS. His latest book, "The Knife & Gun Club: Scenes from an Emergency Room," has been called the "modern day version of Dante's 'Inferno.'" It chronicles the trauma center of Denver General Hospital, where RICHARDS spent twelve to twenty hours a day photographing and talking to the staff. Richards' work has appeared in "Life," "The New York Times Magazine," and the London "Sunday Times." His other books include "Exploding Into Life," an inspirational diary in words and photographs of his wife's life as a cancer patient, and "Below The Line: Living Poor in America." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast on Wednesday, September 27, 1989). REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the controversial new film "The Cook, The Thief, His Wife and Her Lover." It's by British director Peter Greenaway, who directed "The Draftsman's Contract."
Interview with Deirdre Bair; Review of Teo Macero's album "The Best of Teo Macero"; Interview with Laura Dean; Review of the television show "Twin Peaks." April 30, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502029].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer DEIRDRE BAIR. Her latest book is a biography of French writer, intellectual and feminist SIMONE DE BEAUVOIR. Bair has also written a biography of Samuel Beckett. REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "The Best of Teo Macero," a reissue of Macero's so-called "third stream" work from the 50s. It's on Stash records. INT. 2: Choreographer and dancer LAURA DEAN. Her company's performing a two-week retrospective at the Joyce Theater in New York (through May 6). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli takes another look at the ABC series "Twin Peaks."

Interview with Charles Glass; Interview with Mike Myers; Review of Peter Handke's novel "Absence." May 1, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502187].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and network news correspondent CHARLES GLASS. His new book is "Tribes With Flags: A Dangerous Passage Through the Chaos of the Middle East." (The Atlantic Monthly Press). Glass was kidnapped and held hostage by pro-Iranian terrorists in 1987. He escaped from his captors 62 days later. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Comic MICHAEL MYERS. He's the newest member of Saturday Night Live, where he's created the characters and sketches for "Wayne's World" and "Sprockets." MYERS began his career at Second City in Toronto. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Absence," a new novel by Austrian writer Peter Handke.

Interview with Allister Sparks; Commentary on Little Richard, Part 2; Interview with Laurent de Brunhoff; Commentary on the parlor game "Misapprehensions." May 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501853].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African journalist ALLISTER SPARKS. He's been a correspondent for The Economist, the Washington Post, and The Observer. Sparks' new book, "The Mind of South Africa," is a historical study of that country, and an analysis of the roots of apartheid. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD concludes his two part look at the early days of singer Little Richard. INT. 2: Author and illustrator LAURENT de BRUNHOFF (with a silent "h"). He's followed his father's footsteps, and for the past 40 years has written and drawn the continuing adventures of Babar the Elephant. There are now 36 Babar kids books, in 17 languages, as well as a movie and T-V shows. (by the way, it's bah-BAHR, or BAA-bahr, but NEVER BAY-bahr!!!). (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast Wednesday, February 28, 1990.) REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg explains Misapprehensions, a game for people who find Jeopardy too easy.

Interview with Joel Forrester; Commentary on Manu Dibango; Interview with Leon Golub and Gerald Marzoratu; Review of the film "Q & A." May 3, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501501].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A combination concert and interview with pianist and composer JOEL FORRESTER. Forrester is co-founder of the quirky jazz group, The Microscopic Septet. REV. 1: MILO MILES looks at the career of Cameroonian musician Manu Dibango. INT. 2: Painter Leon Golub and writer Gerald Marzorati. Golub's known for his paintings of torturers and death squads; Marzorati's book asks if works such as Golub's can really change things. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new thriller, "Q & A," starring Nick Nolte.

Interview with Hubert Selby, Jr.; Review of Kurt Weill's album "Der Lindberghflug ; Magna Carta"; Interview with John Banville; Commentary on the passage of time. May 4, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501238].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author HUBERT SELBY, JUNIOR. His first novel, "Last Exit to Brooklyn," was published in 1957. It's just been made into a movie, and SELBY was an advisor and plays a small part in the film, which opened this week. SELBY teaches at the University of Southern California, and is working on a new novel. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a never-before-released recording of two Kurt Weill pieces...."The Lindbergh Flight," a collaboration with Bertolt Brecht, and "The Ballad of the Magna Carta," with a text by Maxwell Anderson. INT. 2: Writer JOHN BANVILLE.

REV. 2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads two of his poems.

---

Interview with Johnny Otis; Review of Cassandra Wilson's album "Jumpworld"; Interview with Sue Miller; Review of the television show "The Story Behind the Story." May 7, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501400].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Bandleader, singer, songwriter, and talent scout JOHNNY OTIS. His musical career spans the big band era, rhythm and blues, and rock and roll. In the 40's he played and traveled with the big bands, with the Ink Spots and Louis Jordan. Later, with a pared down band, he was on the forefront of the rhythm and blues. He's credited with discovering Etta James, Big Mama Thornton, Jackie Wilson and Ernestine Anderson. His songwriting hits include "Willie and the Hand Jive," "Roll with Me Henry," and "Every Beat of My Heart." A collection of his work was recently reissued on Capitol Records. (Rebroadcast. Original date 11/21/89). REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Jumpworld," the new album from jazz singer Cassandra Wilson. It's on JMT records. INT. 2: Novelist SUE MILLER. She wrote the best-seller, "The Good Mother," which was made into a movie starring Diane Keaton. She has a new novel, called "Family Pictures." It's about a family coping with an autistic child. (It's published by Harper and Row). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli previews the new NBC show, "The Story Behind the Story." The program will look at well-known events from little-explored angles. Planned features include a look at who else was on Ed Sullivan the night the Beatles premiered, and a profile of Abe Zapruder, the man who filmed John Kennedy's assassination.

---

Interview with Arthur Laurents; Commentary on the "Million Dollar Quartet" sessions; Interview with Tom and Ian Spanic; Review of Mark Huson's novel "Our Grandmother's Drum." May 8, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502215].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer, producer, and director ARTHUR LAURENTS. Laurents wrote the stories for the plays "Gypsy" and "West Side Story" and the screenplays for the movies "The Way We Were" and "The Turning Point." Laurents is currently directing the Broadway revival of "Gypsy," starring Tyne Daily.
The show's just been nominated for a Tony Award for Best Revival (Rebroadcast. Original date 1/31/90).

REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward plays us some tracks from the "Million Dollar Quartet" sessions. It was an early 60s recording date at the Sun Studios in Memphis, featuring Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis, Carl Perkins, and Johnny Cash. INT. 2: Musicians TOM AND IAN SPANIC. Together, the pair form the rock and roll band, The Spanic Boys. The band plays a country-twang influenced type of rock and they just released their first album, also called "The Spanic Boys." It's on Rounder Records. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Our Grandmother's Drum," by Mark Hudson. Hudson draws the novel from his experiences living with a small tribe in Gambia.

Interview with Andrew Weil; Review of Paul Hindemith's album "Symphonie in B[-Flat] [fu?r Concert-Band]; Die Vier Temperamente"; Interview with Hanif Kureishi; Commentary on slang.

May 9, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501599].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Physician ANDREW WEIL. Weil is a leading proponent of "alternative" ways of healing...he advocates proper diet, exercise, mental techniques, and herbal remedies as ways to wellness. Weil's new book is called, "Natural Health, Natural Medicine: A Comprehensive Manual for Wellness and Self-Care." It's published by Houghton Mifflin. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ has a review of a new recording of composer Paul Hindemith conducting his own works with the Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra. The composer died in 1963 and these recordings are live recordings from the archives of his Orchestra. (on the Orfeo label) INT. 2: Writer HANIF KUREISHI (kah-REE-she). He wrote the screenplays for the critically-acclaimed movies "Sammy and Rosie Get Laid," and "My Beautiful Laundrette." Now he's just published his first novel, called "The Buddha of Suburbia." It's published by Viking. REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines what has happened to underworld slang. He says it no longer thrives the way it did in centuries gone by.

Interview with Pam Grier; Review of The Spanic Boys' and Ben Vaughn's albums "The Spanic Boys" and "Dressed in Black"; Interview with Judith Miller; Review of the film"Longtime
Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress PAM GRIER. She got her start playing tough, scantily-clad women in black exploitation films, such as "Black Mama, White Mama," "Foxy Brown," and "Sheba Baby." She played a hooker in "Fort Apache: The Bronx," and is now appearing in the new film, "The Class of 1999." REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews what he thinks are some of the best new albums on independent labels...The Spanic Boys' debut album on Rounder Records and Ben Vaughn's new album on Enigma, "Dressed in Black." INT. 2: Writer JUDITH MILLER. She's deputy media editor of The New York Times and author of the new book, "One, by One, by One: Facing the Holocaust." Miller visited six countries (including the U.S.) to examine how the Holocaust is remembered. (published by Simon & Schuster) REV. 2: Guest film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews "Longtime Companion." It's about how AIDS affected the gay community in New York in the 1980's. The film, written by playwright Craig Lucas, was originally produced for the PBS series American Playhouse.

Interview with John Chancellor; Review of Dembo Konte and Kausu Kuyateh's album "Jali Roll"; Interview with Scott Spencer; Commentary on wedding preparations. May 11, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501398].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist HEDRICK SMITH. He's the host of the new PBS series, "Inside Gorbachev's U.S.S.R." SMITH won the Pulitzer Prize for his reporting from the Soviet Union in the 70's. His book, "The Russians" was a bestseller. He's now writing another book on Russia, "The New Russians." REV. 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new CD featuring Carmen McRae. It's "Carmen Sings Monk" on the BMG/RCA label. The recording is a first: no other performer has been permitted to record the lyrics to Monks' songs. McRae got special permission from the Monk family. The CD also features the late saxophonist Carlie Rouse. NT. 2: Photographer BERT ANDREWS. Since the early '50s, Andrews has been photographing the African-American theatre. There's now a collection of Andrews' photos, called "In The Shadow of the Great White Way: Images From the Black Theatre." (Rebroadcast of 11/29/1989) REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the latest in a seemingly endless parade of 60s sit-com revivals. (It's return to Green Acres, on CBS).

Interview with Barbara Hershey; Interview with John Mahoney; Review of Sidney Zion's novel "Markers." May 15, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502214].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress BARBARA HERSHEY. Hershey's had a long career in Hollywood, from films such as "Boxcar Bertha" in the 60s to "Hannah and Her Sisters," and "The Last Temptation of Christ." Next week, she stars in a made for T-V movie called "A Killing in a Small Town." It's based on the true-list story of a Texas woman who brutally murders her friend. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Actor JOHN MAHONEY. He started out in Chicago's Steppenwolf Theater. His film roles include "Tin Men," "Eight Men Out," the randy professor in "Moonstruck," and the father in "Say Anything." REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews the new novel "Markers" by Sidney Zion. Zion wrote a puffball biography of Roy Cohn a couple of years ago, Leonard says this novel, about the New York underworld, also draws from Cohn's life. It's published by Donald I. Fine.
Interview with Carl Finch, Jeffrey Barnes, Bubba Hernandez, and Mitch Marine; Interview with John Lurie; Commentary on recent comedy on television. May 16, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501602].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A stereo concert with BRAVE COMBO. The quartet founded the "nuclear polka" movement, and on their latest album, "Humansville" (Rounder Records), they continue their global exploration of musical styles. REV. 1: pre-empted for extended interview 2 INT. 2: Musician and actor JOHN LURIE. He appeared in Jim Jarmusch's off-beat films "Down By Law," and "Stranger Than Paradise." Lurie also scored the music for these films, and he performs and records with his group, The Lounge Lizards. Lurie has a new album, Voice of Chunk, which he produced and is marketing himself through TV ads and an 800 number. REV. 2: Critic LAURIE STONE comments on two newsworthy comedy events from last weekend--comic Andrew Dice Clay's controversial appearance on Saturday Night Live, and the Comedy Relief special on HBO.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor MARTIN LANDAU. He was nominated for an Academy Award for best supporting actor for his roles in "Crimes and Misdemeanors," and "Tucker." And he's starring in the new HBO movie, "By Dawn's Early Light." He plays a President of the United States who is trying to avert a full-scale nuclear war with the Soviet Union. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two new Angel recordings featuring British conductor Roger Norrington. Norrington is known for his use of original instruments. The albums feature music from the 19th century by Schubert, Mendelssohn, Weber, Wagner, and Berlioz. INT. 2: Poet and teacher FRANK BIDART. His new collection of poems is "In the Western Night, Collected Poems 1965-90." It's published by Farrar Straus & Giroux. REV. 2: Guest film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews "Bird on a Wire," a new movie starring Mel Gibson and Goldie Hawn.
Interview with James Adams; Commentary on Sonny Boy Williamson; Interview with Tim Robbins; Commentary on gardening. May 18, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501597].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Mark Knopfler; Interview with Stephen Schiff; Interview with Michael Roemer; Interview with David Bianculli. May 21, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971504001].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician MARK KNOPFLER, the founder of the rock band Dire Straits. (Rebroadcast of 02/07/1990) REV. 1: Film critic Stephen Schiff checks in from the Cannes Film Festival. INT. 2: Film maker Michael Roemer. His film, "The Plot Against Harry," took 20 years to make it from the editing room to theatres. (Rebroadcast of 2/12/1990) REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli takes an early look at ABC's plans for the fall.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Michael Herr. He wrote what's considered the definitive Vietnam book, "Dispatches." His new book is a novel based on the life of Walter Winchell. REV. 1: PRE-EMP TED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Film maker James Toback. His new film is called "The Big Bang." REV. 2:
Interview with Mary Crow Dog (Mary Brave Bird); Review of Vladimir Horowitz's album "The Last Recording"; Interview with Michael Penn; Commentary on African American Vernacular English. May 23, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971504003].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Nancy Hawley and Esther Rome; Interview with Byllye Avery; Review of Public Enemy's album "Fear of a Black Planet"; Interview with Arthur Danto; Review of the film "Back to the Future 3." May 24, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971504033].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Women's health....Nancy Hawley and Esther Rome of the Boston's Women's Health Collective, the authors of "Our Bodies Our Selves." INT. 2: Byllye Avery of the National Black Women's Health Project. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Fear of a Black Planet," the new album by the rap group Public Enemy. INT. 3: Art critic and philosopher Arthur Danto. His latest collection of essays is called "Encounters and Reflections." It's published by Farrar, Straus, and Giroux. REV. 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Back to the Future 3."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Liberal economist ROBERT REICH. His latest books include "The Next American Frontier" and "The Resurgent Liberal." REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album from pianist Art Hodes, "Pagin' Mr. Jelly." INT. 2: Jazz drummer Tony Williams. REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Homeward Bound," historian Elaine Tyler May's look at family life in the 1950s.

Interview with Chris Strachwitz; Interview with Ernest Dickerson; Review of "The Dave Thomas Comedy Show." May 28, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973568853].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Folklorist Chris Strachwitz. He founded Arhoolie Records. (Rebroadcast of 02/22/1990) REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Cinematographer ERNEST DICKERSON. He's been behind the camera for all of Spike Lee's movies. (Rebroadcast of 02/16/1990) REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The Dave Thomas Comedy Show."

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Peter Sellars; Interview with David Brenner; Commentary on comic Margaret Smith. May 30, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501304].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Theatre director PETER SELLARS. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Comedian DAVID BRENNER. He's written a new book about the pitfalls of traveling. REV. 2: Critic Laurie Stone reviews stand-up comic Margaret Smith.

Interview with Christopher Hitchens; Review of Fleetwood Mac's and Peter Wolf's albums "Behind the Mask" and "Up to No Good!"; Interview with Jerry Harrison; Review of the film "Total Recall." May 31, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501307].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with George Carlin; Commentary on Brian Jones; Interview with Jimmy Tingle; Commentary on Shakespeare. June 1, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501000].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Annie Ross; Review of Miles Davis's album "Birth of the Cool"; Interview with Vitaly Komar and Aleksandr Melamid; Review of the television movie "Paul Simon June 4, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501001].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and actress ANNIE ROSS. Ross is best-known as a member of the jazz vocal trio Lambert, Hendricks and Ross. She also wrote "Twisted," which was recorded by both Joni Mitchell and Bette Midler. She made her acting debut in the 1974 play "Kennedy's Children," and has appeared in such films as The Homecoming, Yanks, and Superman III. Her latest role was in the film "Basket Case 2." (Rebroadcast. Original date 3/2/90). REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews Miles Davis "Birth of the Cool" album. That influential album from 1950 has just been reissued on CD by Capitol. INT. 2: Soviet-born artists VITALY KOMAR and ALEKSANDR MELAMID. The pair are the creators of two huge, multi-paneled works called "Yalta 1945" and "Winter in Moscow 1977." Both works are being shown in America for the first time at the Brooklyn Museum. "Yalta 1945" is made of 31 4x4 foot panels depicting Lenin and the four leaders from the Yalta Conference. "Winter in Moscow 1977" uses 26 panels to show Komar and Melamid's home town shortly before they fled to the West. The exhibit closes today (June 4th). (Rebroadcast. Original date 3/20/90). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews a documentary on musician Paul Simon. It's called "Paul Simon: Solo" and it airs this Sunday on the Disney Channel.

Interview with Robert Draper; Commentary on surf music; Interview with Harold Bronson and Richard Foos; Review of Kate Millett's memoir "The Loony-Bin Trip." June 5, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501305].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Freelance journalist Robert Draper. He's just written a profile of America's leading rock magazine, titled "Rolling Stone Magazine: The Uncensored History." It's published by Doubleday. REV. 1: Rock and roll historian Ed Ward takes the first of a two part look at surf music. INT. 2: Harold Bronson and Richard Foos, the co-founders of Rhino Records. Their label specializes in off-the-wall novelty records and anthologies of out-of-print recordings by the past greats of rock. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard
"The Loony-Bin Trip," feminist Kate Millett's memoir of her dealing with manic depression. It's published by Simon and Schuster.

---

Interview with Dusko Doder; Commentary on Ethiopian music; Interview with Don Byron; Commentary on the language of book jacket "blurbs" and book reviews. June 6, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501303].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Veteran journalist DUSKO DODER. Doder and co-author Louise Branson have just written a comprehensive biography of Mikhail Gorbachev, titled, "Gorbachev: Heretic In the Kremlin." It's published by Viking. Dusko Doder is the former Moscow Bureau chief for the Washington Post. Branson covered the Soviet Union for the Sunday Times of London. REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles checks out the music of Ethiopia. INT. 2: Clarinetist Don Byron. Byron's black, but he plays klezmer, the music created from the mixture of American jazz and European Jewish culture. Byron's an alumnus of the Klezmer Conservatory Band, and he performs on a new anthology album called "Live At The Knitting Factory." It's on A&M records. REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg examines the blurbs on book jackets...those hyperbolic quotes that declare seemingly every new book to be "a blockbuster" or "runaway best-seller." (Rebroadcast of 11/08/1989)

---

Interview with Art Davidson; Review of Madonna's album "I'm Breathless"; Interview with Meshach Taylor; Review of Richard Ford's novel "Wildlife." June 7, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501309].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author ART DAVIDSON. A former planning director for the state of Alaska, Davidson has been a long-time opponent of the Alaska pipeline. He's just written an expose of the events that led to last summer's oil spill. The book's called "In The Wake of the Exxon Valdez: The Devastating Impact of the Alaska Oil Spill." It's published by Sierra Club books. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Madonna's new album, "I'm Breathless." It's music from, and inspired by, the new movie, "Dick Tracy." The album's on Warner. INT. 2: Actor MESHACH (mee-shack) TAYLOR. He plays Anthony Bouvier on the T-V series "Designing Women," and he's appearing in the upcoming film, "Mannequin on the Move." REV.

---

Interview with Elisabeth Bumiller; Review of Benjamin Britten's album "The Turn of the Screw"; Interview with Walter Mosley; Review of the film "Another 48 Hours." June 8, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501306].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ELISABETH BUMILLER (pronounced BUE-mill-er). Her new book, "May You Be the Mother of a Hundred Sons," examines the repressive life of many women in India today. It's published by Random House. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the operatic adaptation of Henry James' story, "The Turn of The Screw." It was composed by Benjamin Britten in 1954, and London records has just reissued a recording of Britten performing the work. INT. 2: Writer WALTER MOSLEY. His first book, "Devil In A Blue Dress," is a hard boiled detective story starring a black gumshoe up against white prejudice. It's published by Norton. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Another 48 Hours," starring Nick Knolte and Eddie Murphy in a sequel to their movie, "48 Hours."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Family therapist SALVADOR MINUCHIN. (mi-NOO-chin). In the early 50's, he helped launch the field of family therapy, shifting the focus of psychotherapy from the individual to the entire family. He's also known for aggressive, short-term intervention for dealing with delinquent children and anorectic girls. His books include "Families of the Slums," a look at the impact of poverty on a family; "Family Kaleidoscope," based on observations of families in London, England; and "Family Therapy Techniques," which he co-authored. In 1978 MINUCHIN was the subject of a "New Yorker" profile. MINUCHIN's new book is "Institutionalizing Madness: Families, Therapy and Society," which he co-authored with Joel Elizur, Director of Medical Psychology, Kibbutz Child and Family Clinic, Tel Aviv. (Published by Basic Books, Inc.) (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast March 28, 1990.) REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Manic Traditions," the new album by Les Miserables Brass Band. They're an eclectic group that plays brass music from around the world, as well as original works. (They're on the Northeastern label). INT. 2: Film director HERK HARVEY and script writer JOHN CLIFFORD. Their 1962 low-budget horror film, "Carnival of Souls," has just been re-released. The film was shown only sporadically at the time of its completion, mostly to drive-ins and as half of a double feature throughout the Southeast. But in the years since, it has attracted a steady and loyal following, largely because of its occasional appearance on late-night TV. Master horror film director George Romero has said that "Carnival of Souls" was the inspiration for his "Night of the Living Dead." Harvey and Clifford, who haven't released a feature film since "Carnival of Souls," make promotional films for industry. (rebroadcast. Originally broadcast Thursday, August 31, 1989.) REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli gives his picks for the best and worst T-V shows of the past season.

Interview with John Hiatt; Interview with Dave Thomas; Review of Lucy Hughes-Hallett's book "Cleopatra June 12, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501196]. Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician and songwriter JOHN HIATT. Hiatt spent years writing country tunes for other performers. In the past few years he's come into his own as a performer, with several critically-acclaimed albums. His latest is called "Stolen Moments," on A&M Records. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Comedian DAVE THOMAS. Thomas first hit it big as a member of the "SCTV" comedy series. He currently has a summer-replacement comedy variety show on CBS, called "The Dave Thomas Comedy Show." REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Cleopatra: Histories, Dreams and Distortions," by historian Lucy Hughes-Hallett (It's published by Harper and Row).

Interview with Joseph Ingle; Interview with Joe Martin; Review of the film "Let it Ride." June 13, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501915]. Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reverend JOSEPH INGLE. He directs the Southern Coalition on Jails and Prisons and ministers to death row inmates. "Last Rights," published by Abingdon. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Actor JOE MORTON. Morton plays attorney Michael James on the ABC series "Equal Justice," and he played the leading role in John Sayles 1984 film, Brother From Another Planet." REV. 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman (gly-ber-mann) reviews the home video release of "Let It Ride," last summer's comedy starring Richard Dreyfus as a man who can't stop betting on the horses.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz great STAN GETZ. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a recording of Pierre Boulez conducting Mahler's 5th Symphony. INT. 2: Photographer WILLIAM P. GOTTLIEB. In the 40s, Gottlieb learned photography and took hundreds of shots of the jazz greats of the time. Many of those shots are now well known through album covers, books, and posters. 200 of those photos appear in Gottlieb's new book, "The Golden Age of Jazz." It's published by Da Capo Press REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new movie "Dick Tracy." (Partial audio).

Interview with Red Rodney; Commentary on surf music; Interview with Hettie Jones; Commentary on Billboard's world music chart. June 15, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501195].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz trumpeter RED RODNEY. Rodney's played with the greats...Benny Goodman, Woody Herman, Charlie Parker, among many others. He has a new album, called "Code Red," on the Continuum label. REV. 1: Rock and roll historian Ed Ward continues his look at the history of surf music. (We're talkin' Beach Boys, we're talkin' Jan and Dean, we're talkin' the MIGHTY CHANTAYS!!!!) INT. 2: Writer HETTIE JONES. Her new memoir, "How I became Hettie Jones" (published by E.P. Dutton) is an account of living at the center of New York bohemianism during the 50's and 60's. It's also the story of JONES' interracial marriage to black poet LeRoi Jones. LeRoi Jones later became involved in the black militant movement, and changed his name to Amiri Bakara. (rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 3/28/90).
REV. 2: World music critic Milo Miles on the significance of Billboard magazine starting a world music chart.

Interview with Jon Krakauer; Review of Gunther Schuller's album "Charles Mingus Epitaph"; Interview with Duane Hanson; Obituary for George Nakashima. June 18, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457844].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and mountain climber JON KRAKAUER. His first book, "Eiger Dreams," is a collection of his articles from magazines such as Outside and Smithsonian. Eiger Dreams is published by Lyons & Burford. (Rebroadcast. Original date 4/3/90). REV. 1 Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Charles Mingus Epitaph" (on the Columbia label) It's a live recording of the Mingus composition conducted by composer Gunther Schuller last year at New York's Lincoln Center. INT. 2: Sculptor DUANE HANSON. His life-size sculptures look almost real, and are of everyday folks -- tacky tourists, cleaning ladies, blue-collar workers. His first solo-exhibition is currently running at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. REV. 2: A remembrance of master woodworker George Nakashima, who died Friday at age 85. (Rebroadcast of 12/11/1985 interview)

Interview with Greil Marcus; Commentary on Gee Records and End Records; Interview with Saul Bellow; Review of the television special "Siskel & Ebert June 19, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501197].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock critic GREIL MARCUS. Dutton books has just issued a third revised edition of Marcus' 1975 classic analysis of rock and roll in America, "Mystery Train." REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the Gee and End record labels. They were the first to produce vocal-group records for teenagers by groups like Frankie Lymon and the Teenagers, the Cleftones, and Arlene Smith and the Chantels. INT. 2: Pulitzer and Nobel prize winning novelist SAUL BELLOW (rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 10/4/89). REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews a new Siskel & Ebert special on CBS that looks at the future of the movies.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Maxine Hong Kingston; Commentary on Maurice Starr; Interview with Reginald McKnight; Review of the film "Gremlins II June 21, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501194].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Jim Hall; Review of albums by British jazz musicians; Interview with Eliot Feld; Review of the television program "POV." June 22, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501914].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz guitarist JIM HALL. In the 50s, Hall was part of the West Coast jazz scene. Several years later he was touring South America with Ella Fitzgerald when the Bossa Nova craze hit. That music's been a lasting influence on Hall. In the 70s, Hall recorded with free-jazz player Ornette Coleman and made several albums with jazz's best bassists. In all, Hall's made more than 100 albums, his latest, with his quartet, is called "All Across The City." It's on the Concord jazz label. (Rebroadcast. original date 12/22/89). REV. 1 Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead looks at another British invasion, this one the current invasion of British jazz musicians. Kevin reviews singer Cleveland Watkiss, saxophonists Evan Parker, Courtney Pine, and Steve Williamson. INT. 2: Choreographer ELIOT FELD. He founded the Feld Ballet in 1974 as a place where classical ballet and modern dance could exist together. The company is still going strong, touring throughout America and overseas. Feld has also created ballets for many of the world's great companies, among them the American Ballet Theatre, the National Ballet of Canada, and the New York City Ballet. (REBROADCAST. Original date 11/10/89). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews the season premiere of "POV," public television's series of independent documentaries.

Interview with John Cleese and Robin Skynner; Commentary on South African music and Ladysmith Black Mambazo"; Interview with Richard Ford; Commentary on buying wedding attire. June 22, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501913].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor, writer, and Monthy Python member JOHN CLEESE and therapist ROBIN SKYNNER. The pair have co-written a new book, "Families and How To Survive Them." REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles examines the vocal music of South Africa, and he examines the career of the country's leading vocal group, "Ladysmith Black Mambazo." INT. 2: Writer RICHARD FORD. He's just published his fourth novel, "Wildlife." It's published by Atlantic Monthly Press. REV. 2: Commentator Patricia McLaughlin (mik-LOFF-lin) examines the travails of buying a something to wear to a wedding.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer LAURENCE BERGREEN. His new book is "As Thousands Cheer: The Life of Irving Berlin." (published by Viking Press). BERGREEN is also the author of "James Agee: A Life."

REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of John Field's Nocturnes, performed by Irish composer and pianist John O'Connor. (on the Telarc label). INT. 2: Artist DAVID WOJNAROWICZ (voy-nah-ro-vich). His work has twice been the cause of controversy, once, when a political essay accompanying his work caused the NEA to suspend funding to a gallery, and more recently, when a conservative organization excerpted parts of his work to dramatize what it calls pornographic art. Wojnarowicz is now suing that organization for copyright infringement and libel. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Magic Lantern," journalist Timothy Garton Ash's account of the democracy movement in Eastern Europe.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Attorney DAVID COLE. Cole is a staff attorney for the Center for Constitutional Rights, and has recently taken part in court cases involving flag burning and controversial art exhibits. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews new albums by the bands Sonic Youth and John Doe. INT. 2: Architect ANDRE?S DUANY (pronounced ahn-drays due-wahn-nee). Duany's specialty is taking on the American suburb. He eloquently argues that the 'burbs stifle the quality of everyday life, and he has concrete proposals on ways to make our neighborhoods livable again. (The first of a two part interview--today what's wrong with the suburbs, tomorrow how to make them better). REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews detective novelist Robert B. Parker's newest Spencer novel, "Stardust."
Interview with Celeste Holm; Commentary on censorship in rock; Interview with Andree's Duany, Part 2; Review of the film "Acting in Film." June 28, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924439].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress CELESTE HOLM. She appeared in the films such as "All About Eve," "Gentlemen's Agreement," and "High Society," on Broadway in shows such as "Oklahoma!" and "The King and I," and in numerous television roles over the years. She's now taking part in a retrospective of 20th Century Fox films being held at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward takes a look at censorship in rock and roll. INT. 2: Part two of a two-part interview with architect ANDREES DUANY (pronounced ahn-drays due-wahn-nee). Duany's specialty is taking on the American suburb. He eloquently argues that the burbs stifle the quality of everyday life, and today he gives concrete proposals on ways to make our neighborhoods livable again. REV. 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman reviews Michael Caine's home video "Acting in Film."

Interview with Andre Codrescu; Interview with Chrissie Hynde; Review of the film "Days of Thunder." June 29, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924351].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer, poet, and commentator ANDREI CODRESCU. His thoughts regularly appear on "All Things Considered," and he also recently reported for ATC on the changes in his native country, Romania. REV. 1: pre-empted by extended interview two* INT. 2: Rock musician CHRISSIE HYNDE. She's the head of the rock band, "The Pretenders." The band's got a new album called "Packed!" It's on Sire/Warner Brothers. REV 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Days of Thunder," starring Tom Cruise as a cocky stock car driver.

Interview with Nick Lowe; Review of the albums "Hearinga Suite" by the Muhal Richard Abrams Orchestra and "Not for Rollo" by Walter Thompson; Interview with David Douglass Duncan;

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Rock musician and producer NICK LOWE. Lowe was a main figure of the British pub-rock scene in the early 70s, then in the late 70s Lowe joined forces with Dave Edmonds to form "Rockpile." At the same time, Lowe was producing albums for artists such as Elvis Costolo and Graham Parker. Lowe went solo in 78, and had hits with "I Love the Sound of Breaking Glass," and "Cruel to be Kind." His production credits during that period included The Pretenders, the Fabulous Thunderbirds, and John Hiatt. Lowe's latest album is called "Party of One." (It's on Reprise). (Rebroadcast. Original date 3/15/90). REV. 1:Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews new albums by two jazz big bands..."Hearinga Suite" by the Muhal Richard Abrams Orchestra (on Black Saint), and "Not for Rollo," by the Walter Thompson Big Band (on Ottava). INT. 2:Photographer DAVID DOUGLAS DUNCAN. Life magazine has called him perhaps the best war photographer since Mathew Brady. Duncan's acclaimed book, "This Is War!" portrayed the Korean conflict in words and pictures. It's just been reissued (by Little Brown) the 40th anniversary of the start of the Korean War. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews the season premiere of the public television series, "American Masters." The opening episode profiles screenwriter/director Preston Sturges. NOTE: In most markets, "American Masters" airs tonight (monday), so this piece will be dated by tomorrow (tuesday).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Veteran film actor Christopher Lee. Lee's horror movie performances were a mainstay of Britan's Hammer Films in the 50s. He's played Dracula, Frankenstein's monster, the Mummy, and any number of mad scientists. Lee appears in the new movie, "Gremlins 2," as a geneticist named Doctor Cathader. REV. 1:Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the two latest albums from Yugoslavian pianist Dubravka Tomsic (doo-BRAV-kah TOM-sitch). Both albums are on the Stradivari label. INT. 2:Jazz cellist DEIDRE MURRAY. She's performed with Henry Threadgill's sextet and other influential jazz bands throughout the past 15 years. She's also made a name for herself as a composer and producer. REV.

Interview with Bob Kane; Commentary on Ray Charles; Interview with Ben Vaughn; Commentary on enunciation. July 4, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924530].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Batman creator Bob Kane. In his new autobiography, "Batman & Me," Kane tells how he came up with the idea for the caped crusader, and what influence he had on the T-V series and last year's movie. Kane drew Batman from its inception in 1939 to the late 60s. (Rebroadcast. Original date 3/23/90). REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward explains how Ray Charles got discovered. INT. 2: Rock musician BEN VAUGHN. Vaughn's been a cult staple for years in the Philadelphia/New Jersey area, where he's become known for his tongue-in-cheek lyrics and tunes that draw from rock's early influences. Vaughn's fourth album is titled "Dressed In Black." It's on Enigma records. (Rebroadcast. Original date 3/16/90). REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg explains why proper enunciation isn't as important as literary snobs would have us believe.

Interview with Julia Child; Interview with Randy Shilts; Review of the film "Die Hard 2." July 5, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924534].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The French Chef, JULIA CHILD. She spent three decades explaining the mysteries of classic French cuisine to modern American audiences. Child has hosted several cooking shows on Public Television, earning Peabody and Emmy Awards in the process, and written several cookbooks. Her latest book, is titled "The Way to Cook." It's a 50-dollar tome that...in Child's words...tells "everything [I] know about the essentials of cooking today." (Rebroadcast from 11/14/1989). REV. 1: Music review preempted by extended Interview 2 INT. 2: Journalist RANDY SHILTS. He wrote the controversial book on the handling of the Aids crisis, "And the Band Played On." He's just returned from the annual aids conference in San Francisco. REV. 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Die Hard 2," starring Bruce Willis as a lone cop once again fighting going up against a band of terrorists.

Interview with David Crosby and Graham Nash; Review of Jeff Lynn's album "Armchair Theater"; Interview with Tommy Davidson; Commentary on TV ads and Eastern European pro-democracy movements. July 6, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924589].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock musicians DAVID CROSBY and GRAHAM NASH. They're two thirds of the rock group Crosby, Stills, and Nash. The trio is celebrating their 21st year together with a 70 city concert tour and a new album, called "Live It Up." (It's on Atlantic records). REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new solo album from Jeff Lynn, formerly of the Electric Light Orchestra and the Traveling Willburys. The album's called "Armchair Theater." INT. 2: Stand-up comedian TOMMY DAVIDSON. He's a cast member of the Fox T-V series, "In Living Color," and he has his own cable T-V special called "Tommy Davidson: Takin' It To D-C." It premieres June 7th (Saturday) on Showtime. REV 2: Commentator Leslie Savin takes a look at the recent plethora of T-V ads exploiting the pro-democracy movement in Eastern Europe.

Interview with Alan Lomax; Review of Kenny Wheeler's albums "The Window by the Window" and "Double, Double You"; Interview with John Wesley Harding; Review of the made-for-TV movie "Fear." July 9, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924463].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Folklorist ALAN LOMAX. He's spent more than a half century recording the folk music and customs of the world. Here in America, he's responsible for priceless recordings of Leadbelly, Woody Guthrie, Jelly Roll Morton, and many others. Lomax has a new five part series about this country's musical roots on P-B-S. It's called "American Patchwork." REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews two new albums by jazz trumpeter Kenny Wheeler. Wheeler has played in groups led by bassist Dave Holland and saxophonist Anthony Braxton. INT. 2: British singer-songwriter JOHN WESLEY
HARDING. Born in the historical seaside town of Hastings, HARDING has looked to the United States for his creative influences--from his Cambridge doctoral dissertation on the role of Jimmy Stewart in American films--to the songs of bluesman Robert Johnson, and folksingers John Prine and Jim Croce. His new album is called, "Here Comes the Groom." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast Friday, April 13, 1990.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scientist MICHAEL OPPENHEIMER. He directs a program at the Environmental Defense Fund that focuses on solutions to the greenhouse problem. He's written a book titled, Dead Heat: The Race Against the Greenhouse Effect. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward takes a look at the Burnette Brothers and their Rock and Roll Trio. Ed says that if it weren't for some bad breaks, they might have been as famous as Elvis Presley. INT. 2: DOUGLAS GOMERY, professor in the Department of Communication Arts at the University of Maryland. He's the author of "The Hollywood Studio System," and wrote an essay in the new book "Seeing Through Movies," about the demise of the old-time movie palace. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Andrei Sakharov's memoirs.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former police officer VINCENT MURANO. Murano's new book, "Cop Hunter," chronicles the years he put in with the Internal Affairs Division of the New York City Police Department. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz has the first of a two part review on composer Arturo Toscanini. RCA is releasing virtually all of Toscanini's commercial recordings, as well as videos of his performances. with the N-B-C orchestra. INT. 2: Musician MARTY EHRLICH. Ehrlich has been a sideman in a wide variety of jazz ensembles, playing saxophonist and clarinet, as well as being a composer in his own right. Ehrlich's quartet has a new album, called "The Traveller's Tale" (on Enja). REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Deborah Tannen's book about male and female speech, called You Just Don't Understand.

Interview with Maya Angelou; Review of Margarich Menezes' album "Elegibo"; Interview with Eric Gregg; Review of the film "Ghost." July 13, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924532].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Writer MAYA ANGELOU. Angelou is perhaps this country's leading black female writer. She has a new collection of poems, called "I Shall Not Be Moved." It's published by Random House. REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles reviews "Elegibo," (ah-LEZH-zee-bo) the new album by Brazilian singer Margarich Menezes. (mar-gah-REECH mah-NEE-zish). INT. 2: National League umpire ERIC GREGG. Gregg's been calling 'em as he sees 'em for the past 13 years, and he's just written a memoir (with Marty Appel) about his life in the big leagues called "Working the Plate: The Eric Gregg Story." (It's published by William Morrow). REV 2: Critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Ghost," starring Patrick Swayze, Demi Moore, and Whoopi Goldberg.

Interview with Ram Dass; Commentary on CBGB; Interview with Stefan Kanfer; Commentary on major television networks. July 16, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924588].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Spiritual teacher RAM DASS. Ram Dass' book, "Be Here Now," was a widely used spiritual guide during the early 70s. Ram Dass started out as Harvard professor Richard Alpert. While at Harvard in the early 60s, Alpert joined with Timothy Leary and others in the early psychedelic experiments. That led him to investigations of meditation and spiritual practices. Currently, Ram Dass serves as Chairman of the Seva Foundation, a service group that runs a variety of health and ecology programs in the third world. (Rebroadcast. Original date 4/18/90). REV. 1: Rock Historian ED WARD looks back at the heydey of the New York club CBGB -- the club that in the mid 1970's helped to make the Talking Heads, the Ramones, Deborah Harry, Patti Smith and others a hit INT. 2:Writer STEFAN KANFER. Kanfer's latest book is called "A Summer World: The Attempt to Build a Jewish Eden in the Catskills, from the Days of the Ghetto to the Rise and Decline of the Borscht Belt." The Borsht Belt nurtured a generation of comics and defined a culture. Kanfer talks about the lives of the people who frequented the Catskill resorts, and the reason those resorts are now in decline.(Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 01/02/90) REV. 2:Television critic David Bianculli rates how well the different networks handle different genres.

---

Interview with Oliver Stone; Interview with Melvin van Peebles; Review of the novels "Coyote Waits" by Tony Hillerman and "Blossom" by Andrew Vachss. July 17, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501261].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: Film director and Vietnam veteran OLIVER STONE's movies include Talk Radio, Platoon, and Wall Street. He's recently wrapped up filming a new biopic about the rock group The Doors. Part I of a two-part interview. INT.2: Filmmaker, writer, director, playwright, producer and actor MELVIN VAN PEEBLES. His 1970 movie, "Sweet Sweetback's Baadass Song" made him famous and made "Variety's" list of all-time money-makers. He's launched two musicals on Broadway and written five novels. His book, "No Identity Crisis: A Father's and Son's Own Story of Working Together," written in collaboration with his son, Mario Van Peebles, is soon to be released as the movie, "Identity Crisis." REV.1: REV. 2:Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Coyote Waits" by Tony Hillerman and "Blossom" by Andrew Vachss (pronounced "Vox)

---

Interview with Oliver Stone; Review of two album of music conducted by Arturo Toscanini; Interview with Sefane Mellino and Mathieu Canavese; Commentary on favorite books. July 18, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501106].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PART II -- Film Director and Screenwriter OLIVER STONE. In today's interview, STONE talks with Terry about how he first got into movies, his first screenwriting and directing jobs and making "Scarface," "Salvador," and "Wall Street." REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ continues his review of RCA's reissue of classic Toscanini recordings. It includes videos from Toscanini's concerts on NBC telecast in the early 1950s which are available for the first time. (This is part II. Part I ran last week). INT. 2: Musicians STEFANE MELLINO (Stef-AHN MELL-eno) and Mathieu Canavese (MAT-you Cana-VEZ) of the French band "Les Negresses Vertes" (Lay Ne-GRESS Vairt). MELLINO founded the group whose music is a blend of gypsy, North African, French folk, and acoustic rock'n'roll styles. The band consists of nine musicians and three backing vocalists. They've just completed a U.S. tour and have a debut album, "Mlah" on Sire Records. REV. 2: Commentator MAUREN CORRIGAN considers the special feelings we have with books we love.

Interview with Frank Friel; Review of albums by David Berwald, John Hiatt, and Steve Earle; Interview with Weird Al Yankovic; Review of the film "Arachnophobia." July 19, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924678].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former co-director and chief-investigator of the Philadelphia Police/FBI Organized Crime Task Force, FRANK FRIEL. In the late 1980s he helped bring down the mafia empire led by Mafia Don Scarfo. Scarfo's gang held a four-year reign of terror that extended from New Jersey to Philadelphia. They infiltrated the Atlantic City casino business and committed at least 29 very public murders. FRIEL'S book, "Breaking the Mob," is an insiders look at how the police went about breaking the mob. (published by McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.) REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER goes in search of a singer-songwriter with a current album he can like. He listens to David Baerwald's Bedtime Stories, John Hiatt's Stolen Moments, and Steve Earle's The Hard Way. REV. 1: Musical satirist WIERD AL YANKOVIC. He's parodied such hits as Michael Jackson's "Beat It" ("Eat It") and "Bad" ("Fat"). He's also parodied hits of James Brown, James Taylor, Mark Knopfler, Cindy Lauper and others. He'll soon be appearing at the International Comedy Festival in Montreal. INT. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Arachnophobia, the new horror film about spiders, starring Jeff Daniels.
Interview with John Storm Roberts; Review of the CD box set "The Jack Kerouac Collection"; Interview with A.C. Greene; Commentary on the tonette. July 20, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924779].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN STORM ROBERTS is the founder of Original Music, a company that's been distributing records of world music years before the current worldbeat craze. Roberts is also the author of the books, Black Music of Two Worlds and The Latin Tinge. REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Jack Kerouac Collection," a new 3-CD reissue of the beat generation's leading poet reading his works. Musical accompaniment is by Steve Allen, Al Cohn, and Zoot Sims. (Rhino records). INT. 2: Journalist A.C. GREENE. He's a columnist for The Dallas Morning News." In 1988 he received a new heart thru the heart transplant program of the St. Paul Medical Center in Dallas. His book, "Taking Heart," is an account of his experience as a transplant recipient and a look at the science of transplantation. (published by Simon & Schuster). REV 2: Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads his poem "Tonette" about one of life's lessons that he learned via the tonette. (RE-Broadcast. Originally broadcast 2/28/90).

Interview with Peter Brook; Commentary on Hawaiian music; Interview with John Glover; Interview with David Bianculli. July 23, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924730].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Theatre and film director and screenwriter PETER BROOK. In 1985, Brook staged an epic, nine hour play based on the Indian sacred text, "The Mahabharata (mah-hah-ber-rah-tah)." He's also directed a 6 hour T-V version and a 3-hour film version. Previously, Brook directed the Royal Shakespeare Company, founded the International Center for Theater Research, and directed the premiere of the groundbreaking play "Marat/Sade." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 4/19/90). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD gives us a history of Hawaiian music. He says it's influences can be heard in country and other music. INT. 2: Character actor JOHN GLOVER. Known for his portrayal of bad guys in such films as 52 Pick-Up and Masquerade. He co-stars in the new film, Gremlins 2. He plays developer/TV mogul Daniel Clamp, who was modeled after Donald Trump and Ted Turner. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI is in California with other critics previewing the upcoming TV season. He'll talk with Terry about what we'll be seeing this Fall.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Edward Villella; Review of two albums featuring Joseph Szigetti; Interview with Mubarak Awad; Commentary on spelling reforms in France. July 25, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924681].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Dancer EDWARD VILLELLA. For thirty years he was a principal dancer with the New York City Ballet where his performances in Balachine's "Apollo" and "Prodigal Son," first brought him to critical acclaim. For the past four years, VILLELLA has served as artistic director for the newly formed Miami City Ballet. REV. 1:Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two new compact disc reissues on the Pearl label featuring violinist Joseph Szigetti (1892-1973). The performances, from the height of his career, include Mendelssohn's Violin concerto, Mozart's Fourth Concerto, Prokofiev's First, and the Brahms and Beethoven Violin Concertos. INT. 2:MUBARAK AWAD (moo-BAR-ak AH-wad). He's a Christian Palestinian who ran a center for non-violence in East Jerusalem. Awad was expelled from Israel in 1988. Currently he runs an international center for non-violence in Washington, D.C. REV. 2:Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG reports on spelling reforms the French government will be implementing in 1991. The reforms, which include eliminating the circumflex in some cases, are intended to make French less complicated to learn, and therefore more competitive on the world's linguistic market.

Interview with Dick Miller; Review of Iggy Pop's album "Brick by Brick"; Interview with Michael Almereyda; Review of the film "Presumed Innocent." July 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924774].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Actor DICK MILLER. During his first 5 years in Hollywood he appeared in 35 Roger Corman films, including "Bucket of Blood" and the original "Little Shop of Horrors." While working with Corman he hooked up with director Joe Dante, and has appeared in every one of his films, including his latest, Gremlins 2. REV. 1:Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Brick by Brick," a new album by the legendary bad boy of rock and roll, Iggy Pop. INT. 2: Independent film-maker and director MICHAEL ALMEREYDA (AL-mer-AY-da). His new film,"Twister," stars Crispin Glover and Harry Dean Stanton. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Presumed Innocent." The film stars Harrison Ford and was directed by Alan J. Pakula. It's based on the best-selling novel by Scott Turow.

Interview with Nicholas Cage; Commentary on calypso music; Interview with Bruno Kirby; Review of the home video release of the film "Harvey." July 27, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924726].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor NICOLAS CAGE. He's starring in the new David Lynch film "Wild At Heart," which won the Palme d'Or at the Cannes Film Festival. Cage has also starred in the films Birdy, Moonstruck, Raising Arizona, and Peggy Sue Got Married. REV. 1: World music commentator MILO MILES begins a two-part series on the music of the islands of Trinidad and Tobago. In the Part 1, he looks at why calypso has gone out of fashion in the United States. INT. 2:Actor BRUNO KIRBY. He was the would-be comedian in "Good Morning, VietNam" and Carrie Fisher's boyfriend in "When Harry Met Sally." He's now appearing in "The Freshman," with Marlon Brando and Matthew Broderick. REV 2: Film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews the release on home video of "Harvey," starring Jimmy Stewart, to see how it holds up in modern times.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Fredric Dannen; Review of Rahsaan Roland Kirk's albums "Rip, Rig and Panic" and "Now Please Don't You Cry, Beautiful Edith"; Interview with Jerry Zucker; Commentary on

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist FREDRIC DANNEN. Dannen examines how the business side of the record industry influences what we hear, and what we don't hear, on the radio. His new book is titled, "Hit Men: Power Brokers and Fast Money Inside the Music Business." It's published by Random House. REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews two reissued albums by saxophonist and flutist Rahsaan Roland Kirk. Kevin says Kirk was considered quite influential before his death in 1977, but more recently jazz fans have forgotten the role Kirk played in defining the styles of the 70s and 80s. (The albums are "Rip, Rig and Panic" and "Now Please Don't You Cry, Beautiful Edith." They've been reissued one a compact disc, on the Emarcy label). INT. 2: Film maker JERRY ZUCKER. With his brother David, and Jim Abrahams, they wrote and directed the films, "Airplane!," and "The Naked Gun," and the television series "Police Story." Now Jerry Zucker's working on his own. His new film is "Ghost," starring Patrick Swazye, Demi Moore, and Whoopi Goldberg. REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg discusses the mental and physical travails of speaking another language.

Interview with Sherman Holmes, Wendell Holmes, and Popsy Dixon; Review of a new recording of Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe"; Interview with Jay Landesman; Review of the made-for-TV movie "Hiroshima August 1, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457462].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live STEREO concert with The Holmes Brothers. They're a quartet that combines gospel, soul, blues, and hot 'n sweaty dance music. The Brothers have a new album on Rounder Records, called "In The Spirit." REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new recording of Ravel's ballet, "Daphnis and Chloe." It's performed by the Boston Symphony under the direction of conductor Bernard Haitink. It's on the Phillips label. INT. 2: JAY LANDESMAN. Landesman was one of the founders of the "beat generation." In the 40s and 50s, his magazine "Neurotica," and his club, "The Crystal Palace," hosted the likes of Jack Kerouac, Allem Ginsberg, the Smothers Brothers, and Lenny Bruce. Landesman has a memoir, titled "Rebel Without Applause." (It's published by Athena Books). REV. 2: Film critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Hiroshima; Out of the Ashes, a tele-movie based on real events surrounding the bombing of the Japanese city.

Interview with Roger Corman; Review of the best music of the summer; Interview with William Tubman; Review of the film "Mo' Better Blues." August 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924777].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The first of a two-part interview with film maker ROGER CORMAN. Corman's the king of the low-budget movie, having made B-movie classics such as "The Little Shop of Horrors," "The Saint Valentine's Day Massacre," and "The Wild Angels." Corman has a new memoir, called "How I Made a Hundred Movies in Hollywood and Never Lost a Dime." It's published by Random House. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker gives his votes for best music of the summer. Among his picks are new albums by The Time and the Allman Brothers, and a new collection of Bonnie Raitt tunes. INT. 2: Political scientist WILLIAM TAUBMAN. Taubman's just translated a biography of the last years of Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev, as seen by Nikita's son, Sergi. The book gives new insights into Khrushchev's fall from power and his final days as a virtual pariah in the Soviet Union. This new book is called "Khrushchev on Khrushchev." It's published by Little, Brown. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews Spike Lee's new movie, "Mo' Better Blues."

Interview with Roger Corman; Commentary on Caribbean soca music; Interview with Gary Troxel; Review of Ms. Magazine. August 3, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501431].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Part 2 of Terry's interview with B-movie king ROGER CORMAN. Corman's new memoir is called "How I Made a Hundred Movies in Hollywood and Never Lost a Dime." It's published by Random House. REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles has the perfect music for the hot days of summer...some Carrabian soca. INT. 2: Gary Troxel of the singing group "The Fleetwoods." Back in the late 50s they had hits such as "Come Softly To Me," and "Mister Blue." REV 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan checks out the new "Ms" magazine. After a hiatus, the magazine is back on newsstands, and without advertising.

Interview with Hubert Selby, Jr.; Review of the CD box set "The Complete Blue Note Recordings of George Loss"; Interview with Scott Spencer; Review of Tadeusz Konwicki's novel "Bohin Manor."

August 6, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924639].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer HUBERT SELBY, JUNIOR. His first novel, "Last Exit to Brooklyn," was published in 1957. It's recently been made into a movie, and SELBY was an advisor and plays a small part in the film, which opened this week. SELBY teaches at the University of Southern California, and is working on a new novel. (Rebroadcast. Original date 5/4/90). REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "The Complete Blue Note Recordings of George Lewis." It's a 5-record/3-CD collection of performances by New Orleans clarinetist George Lewis. The collection is issued by Mosiac Records and available only by mail order. Their address is 35 Melrose Place, Stamford, Ct., 06902. INT. 2: Writer SCOTT SPENCER. He wrote "Endless Love," which was a critical and commercial success. His latest novel is "Secret Anniversaries." (Rebroadcast. Original date 5/11/90). REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Bohin Manor," the novel by Polish writer Tadeusz Konwicki (tah-DAY-osh con-VITZ-skee). It's published by Farrar, Strauss and Giroux.

---

Interview with John Noble Wilford; Commentary on Howlin' Wolf; Interview with William Forsythe; Interview with Stephan Sailsbury.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Science journalist JOHN NOBLE WILFORD. Wilford has won two Pulitzer Prizes for his science reporting at the New York Times. Wilford's new book is "Mars Beckons: The Mysteries, the Challenges, the Expectations of Our Next Great Adventure In Space." It's published by Noble. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles blues great Howlin' Wolf. INT. 2: Character actor WILLIAM FORSYTHE. He plays Flat Top in the movie "Dick Tracy." He also appeared in the films "Patty Hearst," "Raising Arizona," and "Once Upon A Time In America." REV. 2: Terry talks with Philadelphia Inquirer reporter Stephan (steffan) Salisbury attended this weekend's meeting of the National Endowment of the Art's advisory council. It's the first time the council meetings have been open to the public, and they dealt with many of the current controversies surrounding art and obscenity.

---

Interview with Andrew Sarris; Review of the album "Mary Martin Sings, Richard Rodgers Plays"; Interview with Giancarlo Esposito; Review of the made-for-TV movie "Lucy and Desi August 8, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924468].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film critic and scholar ANDREW SARRIS. Sarris has been called "the dean of American film critics." He was a longtime film critic for the Village Voice and is a professor at Columbia University.
REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews "Mary Martin Sings-- Richard Rodgers Plays." It's a new reissue of a 1957 recording...featuring Martin singing some of Rodgers and Hart's biggest Broadway hits, and Richard Rodgers sitting in on the piano. (It's been reissued on RCA).
INT. 2: Actor GIANCARLO ESPOSITO. He's part of Spike lee's ensemble of actors. He plays Left-hand Lacey in Lee's new film "mo'Better Blues," he was Buggin' Out in "Do the Right Thing," and Big Brother All Mighty in "School Daze." Esposito also won an Obie Award for his work with the Negro Ensemble Company.
REV. 2: Book critic Maureen Corrigan was a big fan of the Lucille Ball show, but she doesn't have much good to say in her review of the new made-for-TV movie Lucy and Desi.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Civil rights activist and attorney J. L. CHESTNUT, JUNIOR. Chesnut's written a moving autobiography (with reporter Julia Cass) called "Black In Selma," about his life in the civil rights movement. (It's published by Farrar, Straus, and Giroux).
REV. 1: Ken Tucker reviews three current soundtrack albums..."Ford Fairlane," "Dick Tracy," and "Days of Thunder." INT. 2: Composer and lyricist RICHARD ADLER. In the fifties, he collaborated with his partner, Jerry Ross, on the Broadway musicals...

Interview with Paul Brodeur and William Farland; Review of two albums featuring Euis Komariah; Interview with Jack Barth; Review of the home video release of the film "Warm Summer Rain." August 10, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501280].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A discussion of the possible dangers of electromagnetic radiation. First, Terry talks with journalist PAUL BRODEUR. His book, "Currents of Death," makes the case for serious health problems caused by our everyday exposure to things like high-current power lines, electric appliances, and computer terminals. Later talks with WILLIAM FARLAND, of the E-P-A. He's Director of the Office of Health and Environmental Assessment. REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles explores the music of Java. INT. 2: Writer JACK BARTH. Barth set out across America with ten personal quests...things like working at the world's largest McDonald's, finding and kissing 60s actress Tina Louise, and photographing his dog in from of Babe Ruth's tomb. He chronicles his successes and failures in his new book, "American Quest." (It's published by Simon and Schuster). REV 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Warm Summer Rain." It's a low-budget movie starring the then unknown actress Kelly Lynch. The movie's proliferation of nude scenes and trashy, B-movie plot line kept in out of theaters, but Owen says it's worth checking out on home video.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:A live concert with YOMO TORO. A native of Puerto Rico, Yomo plays the cuatro, (qwat-ROW) a small guitar-like instrument with five sets of double strings. He performs the traditional form of Puerto Rican folk music called "jibaro." (HEE-bar-oh) (Rebroadcast. Original date 1/19/90). REV. 1:Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews some new Duke Ellington reissues. These albums feature trumpeters Louis Armstrong and Bubber Miley. INT. 2: Kent Nagano, conductor of the Berkeley symphony and musical director of the Opera de Lyon. He's championed the work of 20th century composers such as Oliver Messiaen and Pierre Boulez, as well as conducted the London Symphony for a Frank Zappa recording. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Heat Wave," a new telemovie depicting the 1965 Watts riots. It premieres tonight (Monday) on the T-N-T cable network.

Interview with Ralph Blumenthal and E.R. Shipp; Commentary on the 1970s Los Angeles punk scene; Interview with James Ellroy; Commentary on summertime. August 14, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501814].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporters Ralph Blumenthal and E.R Shipp. They were part of the team that covered the Tawana Brawley story for the New York Times. That team has just written a book about the Brawley hoax, called "Outrage." It's published by Bantam. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles the late 70s Los Angeles punk scene... a scene that spawned the bands X, The Blasters, and Los Lobos. INT. 2: Crime novelist James Ellroy. His gritty novels are often set in Los Angeles of the 40's and 50's. His ninth book is L.A. Confidential. It's published by Mysterious Press. REV. 2: Commentator Patricia McLaughlin (mick-LOFF-lin) wonders why summer can't be like it used to be.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Bioethicist RUTH MACKLIN. She's written a new book on the issues of life and death her field deals with. It's called "Mortal Choices: Ethical Dilemmas in Modern Medicine." It's published by Houghton Mifflin. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a recording of Handel's opera, "Flavio." It's the first time this obscure work has been released on disc, Lloyd says it's been worth the wait. (It's on the Harmonia Mundi label). INT. 2: Artist John Baldessari (ball-deh-sorry). A pioneer in the development of conceptual art over the past 20 years, Baldessari has created compositions through joining magazine clippings, his photographs, stills and text; all in an effort to explore the relationship between language and image. REV. 2:Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Going Primitive," Mariana Torgovnick's (tour-GOV-nick) examination of how western culture views so-called "primitive" art.

Interview with Diane Ackerman; Review of Shinehead's album "The Real Rock" and Frighty and Colonel Mike's album "Life"; Interview with Christian Blackwood; Review of the film "Wild at Heart." August 16, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924852].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer Diane Ackerman. Her new book is "The Natural History of the Senses." REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker checks out dancehall reggae...a musical style that combines reggae's rhythm with elements of rap and hip-hop. Ken reviews these dancehall reggae albums... "The Real Rock" by Shinehead (on Elektra), and "Life" by Frighty and Colonel Mite (on Profile Records). INT. 2: Documentary filmmaker Christian Blackwood. His new film, MOTEL," explores the often strange lives of some of the people who own and visit motels. It's being shown as part of the PBS series "P.O.V." REV. 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman reviews David Lynch's new movie, "Wild At Heart."

Interview with Alan Pakula; Commentary on Steve Jordan; Interview with Tony Hiss;

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director ALAN PAKULA. Pakula directed the new movie, "Presumed Innocent," starring Harrison Ford. Pakula's previous credits include "All The President's Men," "Sophie's Choice," and "Klute." REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles profiles accordianist Steve Jordan. (Rebroadcast. Original date 4/20/90). INT. 2: New Yorker staff writer Tony Hiss. For the past ten years he's been writing about the relationship of people to their landscape, both urban and rural. His new book, "The Experience of Place," was first excerpted in the New Yorker. It's published by Knopf. REV 2: Poet Mark Halliday reads two of his works.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Arno Penzias; Commentary on Larry Williams; Interview with Donald Norman; Review of Salman Rushdie's essay "Is Nothing Sacred?" August 21, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924853].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scientist and writer ARNO PENZIAS (PEN-zee-us). He won the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1978 for his work supporting the big-bang theory of the universe. Now, as vice-president of research at AT&T he's responsible for innovation and risk-taking. His book, "Ideas and Information" is a crash course on the history of computers and communications-technology. The book begins with the creation of the first painted images in prehistoric caves and continues through modern technology. (Rebroadcast. Original date 1/18/90). REV. 1: Rock and roll historian Ed Ward profiles the life of the late singer Larry Williams. You probably haven't heard of him, because Larry Williams success was so short lived. He had a couple of hits in 1957 (Short, Fat Fannie and Bonie Maronie) but then had some bad breaks and by 1959 was nowhere. He had a minor comeback in 1967 with a version of Mercy, Mercy, Mercy, but that was it for his recording career. And Williams was found dead of a gunshot wound in 1980. INT. 2: Professor DONALD NORMAN. Normans' specaility is examining the often confusing, and sometimes downright stupid, ways things are designed...doors, computers, airplane cockpits, VCRs, you name it. Norman consults with companies on how they can make their products easier to use. He has a book on the subject, called "The Psychology of Everyday Things." It's published by Basic Books. The paperback is called "The Design of Everyday Things," and it's published by DoubleDay. REV. 2:Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews writer-in-hiding Salman Rushdie's essay, "Is Nothing Sacred?" which has been published in the British literary journal Granta, and in a separate pamphlet available in bookstores. In it Rushdie ponders the role of literature, religion, etc. in the modern world.

Interview with Michael Waldholz; Review of a CD of Liszt's "Transcendental Etudes"; Interview with Frank Maya; Commentary on trivia. August 22, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924851].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter MICHAEL WALDHOLZ. With fellow reporter Jerry Bishop, Waldholz has a new book, called "Genome." It covers recent advances in gene therapy and it explores the controversy surrounding the human genome project. Both Waldholz and Bishop are both staff reporters with the Wall Street Journal. "Genome" is published by Simon and Schuster. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new recording of Liszt's "Transcendental Etudes" performed by pianist Russell Sherman. (Albany Records). INT. 2: Comic Frank Maya. Since 1987 he's been performing his one-man show at clubs and performance spaces, mostly around New York. His style of observational humor, whether through monologues or routines, focus on his suburban background, current issues and gay politics. Maya appears on the Talent Pool comedy show on Ha!, The Comedy Network this weekend. REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg introduces us to the game of misapprehensions. (Rebroadcast).

Interview with Zhores Medved; Interview with Jim Harrison; Review of the film "Darkman." August 23, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924467].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scientist ZHORES MEDVEDEV (jour-ess med-ved-ev). He was the first scientist in the West to determine that the Soviet Union suffered a nuclear accident back in 1957, three decades before Chernobyl. He's now written a book on Chernobyl, called "The Legacy of Chernobyl." Medvedev is a senior research scientist at the National Institute for Medical Research in London. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Fiction writer Jim Harrison. His new collection of novellas is called "The Woman Lit by Fireflies". It's published by Houghton Mifflin. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Darkman."

Interview with Frederick Elmes; Review of Prince's album "Graffiti Bridge"; Interview with Doug Peacock; Commentary on food, memory, and happiness. August 24, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924469].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FREDERICK ELMES has been David Lynch's cinematographer since the director's first movie, Eraserhead. He says they have a truly collaborative, congenial relationship when it comes to crafting a film's visual style. Their latest work is the newly-released Wild at Heart. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Graffiti Bridge, the funky new album by the prolific Prince. INT. 2: After serving in the Vietnam War, DOUG PEACOCK retreated to the woods, where he observed what he calls the "dangerous beauty" of grizzly bears, with whom he had many close encounters. His new book about the experience is called "Grizzly Years." REV. 2: Fresh Air poet-in-residence MARK HALLIDAY recalls a memorable meal, and how the pleasure of that memory endures.

Interview with David Hidalgo and Louie Perez; Review of Fred Ho's album "We Refuse to Be Used and Abused" and the Carlo Actis Dato Quartet's album "Ankara Twist"; Interview with Walter Mosley; Interview with Milo Miles. August 27, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884224].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DAVID HIDALGO and LOUIE PEREZ of the rock band "Los Lobos." The group has a new album, called "The Neighborhood." It's on Warner Brothers. Los Lobos also had a hit a couple of years back with their re-make of Richie Valens hit, "La Bamba." Rev. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews new albums by two jazz saxophonists who bring their own cultural perspectives to jazz: Chinese-American, Fred Ho. His sextet, The Afro-Asian Music Ensemble's, new release is "We Refuse to Be Used and Abused" (on the Soul Note label). And from Italy, the Carlo Actis Dato quartet, with Carlo Actis Dato on sax. Their new album is "Ankara Twist" (on the Italian Splasch label). INT. 2: Writer

Interview with Vilmos Zsigmond; Interview with Don Was; Review of the television documentary "Motel." August 28, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924485].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with John Hiatt; Review of the album 'Creators' Records August 29, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924564].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Musician and songwriter JOHN HIATT. Hiatt spent years writing country tunes for other performers. In the past few years he's come into his own as a performer, with several critically-acclaimed albums. His latest is called "Stolen Moments," on A&M Records. (Rebroadcast...Original date 6/12/90). Rev. 1:Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new double CD set of historical operatic recordings. It features performances by singers who originated operatic roles...such as Cesira Ferrani as Mimi in Puccini's La Boheme, Sir Richard Temple as the first Mikado. It's on Standing Room Only records. INT. 2:Composer ANGELO BADALAMENTI (bad-ah-lah-MEN-tay). He composed the music for David Lynch's television series, "Twin Peaks." He began collaborating with Lynch on the film "Blue Velvet." Rev. 2:Terry talks with Philadelphia Inquirer reporter Stephan Salisbury about the latest changes at the National Endowment for the Arts. The NEA has recently begun enacting a series of internal reforms that are redefining their mission.

Interview with Tim Weiner; Commentary on Wanda Jackson; Interview with Jeff Cohen; Review the film "The Witches." August 30, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924656].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist Tim Weiner. He reports on national security issues and the justice department for the Philadelphia Inquirer. In 1988, he won his second Pulitzer Prize for a series of articles on secret Pentagon spending. Those reports are the basis of his new book, "Blank Check: The Pentagon's Black Budget." Rev. 1:Rock Historian ED WARD remembers singer WANDA JACKSON. She came out of the country western tradition in the 1950's and crossed over into rock 'n roll. Her hits included: "Honey Bop," "Hot Dog, That Made Him Mad," and "Baby Loves Him." ED says she was a woman before her time. A new anthology of Jackson's recordings is now available on Rhino Records. INT. 2:Jeff Cohen, the executive director and founder of FAIR, Fairness and Accuracy in Reporting. FAIR examines the mainstream press, and often charges that the four networks and the big papers and magazines ignore the views and experts of the political left. FAIR executive Martin Lee recently co-authored a book on the subject, called "Unreliable Sources: A Guide to Detecting Bias in News Media." Rev. 2:Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Witches," starring Angelica Huston, Mai Zetterling, and animals and creatures created by the late Jim Henson.

Interview with Holly Near; Review of Carlene Carter's album "I Fell in Love" and Kelly Willis's album "Well-Traveled Love"; Interview with Paul Fierlinger; Review of Kate Simon's memoir

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Folksinger and actress HOLLY NEAR. Near has a new auto-biography, called Fire In The Rain...Singer In The Storm. It's published by William Morrow. Rev. 1:Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews two new albums by country-influenced female singers...Carlene Carter 'I Fell in Love' (on Reprise) and Kelly Willis 'Well Traveled Love' (on MCA). INT. 2:Animator PAUL FIERLINGER (FEAR-ling-er). His animated documentary film, "And Then I'll Stop" won the best film award from the International Association of Animators. It's the first animated documentary to explore the issue of alcoholism. (Rebroadcast. Original date 3/29/90). Rev. 2:Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews the late Kate Simon's third and final memoir.....Etchings in an Hourglass (published by Harper and Row). Simon's two other memoirs are Bronx Primitive and A Wider World.

Interview with Carl Finch, Jeffrey Barnes, Bubba Hernandez, and Mitch Marine; Interview with John Lurie; Commentary on translation. September 3, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501193].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer BRUCE TUCKER. He was the ghostwriter for James Brown's autobiography, The Godfather of Soul. Tucker is a contributing editor for The Black Music Research Journal. REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the New York Composers Orchestra's debut, self-titled album. INT. 2: Comedian STEVEN WRIGHT... he delivers his one-liners in a deadpan, stoic manner. He has a new HBO comedy special coming up. Rev. 2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews John McPhee's new book, Looking for a Ship. It's about the U.S. Merchant Marine, and about his voyage on one of its few remaining ships.

Interview with James Traub; Review of three albums featuring Pierre Boulez; Interview with Charles Shaar Murray; Review of the television show "American Chronicles." September 5, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924657].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Peter Coyote; Review of Was (Not Was)'s album "Are You Okay?" and Too Much Joy's album "Son of Sam I Am"; Interview with Tony Williams; Review of Kurt Vonnegut's novel "Hocus Pocus." September 6, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924655].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor Peter Coyote. His films include Jagged Edge, E.T., and Outrageous Fortune. Coyote has just written the introduction to a new edition of Emmett Grogan's autobiography, Ringolevio: A Life Played for Keeps. It's part of a new series of books called Citadel Underground, which includes reissues of some classic books of the American counterculture of the 1960's. Rev. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker review's "Are You Okay?" by Was (Not Was) and "Son of Sam I Am" by Too Much Joy. INT. 2: Jazz drummer Tony Williams. As a teenager, he played with Herbie Hancock and the Miles Davis Quartet. He now leads his own group. His latest album is called Native Heart on Blue Note Records. (Rebroadcast. Original date 5/25/90). Rev. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Kurt Vonnegut's new novel, Hocus Pocus.

Interview with Albie Sachs; Commentary on Rock and Roll Hall of Fame inductees; Interview with Greg Ford and Hal Willner; Review of the film "Pump Up the Volume." September 7, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924654].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Albie Sachs. He's a white South African, a member of the Constitutional and Legal Department of the African National Congress, and director of the South Africa Constitution Studies Center in London. Sachs has written a memoir titled, "Running to Maputo." (It's published by Harper). Rev. 1: Rock and roll historian Ed Ward lets us in on how he's voting for this year's five inductees to the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. INT. 2: Greg Ford and Hal Willner. They were the producers of a new album called "The Carl Stalling Project." It's a collection of music Stalling wrote for the great Warner Brothers cartoons of the 30s, 40s, and 50s. Rev. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Pump Up the Volume," starring Christian as a high-school kid who runs his own pirate radio station.
Interview with George Carlin; Interview with John Mahoney; Review of four new television sitcoms. September 10, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924569].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress and author Carrie Fisher. She's probably best-known for her portrayal of Princess Leia in the Star War movies. She wrote the screenplay for the film adaptation of her novel, "Postcards From the Edge." It was directed by Mike Nichols, and stars Meryl Streep and Shirley McLaine. Fisher also has a new novel called, "Surrender the Pink." Rev. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews two re-issues. The first is "Paris--Concert" by the co-operative quartet Circle, which featured pianist Chick Corea. The other is "80/81" by guitarist Pat Metheny. (both are on the ECM label). INT. 2: Editor DANIEL LEVY (leh-vee, not lee-vee). He's the founder of "Citadel Underground," a collection of new and re-published books about the 60s, the counter culture, and bohemia. Rev. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "The Final Club," Geoffrey Wolff's novel about college during the Eisenhower years.
Interview with Adrian Cowell; Review of a recording of Schubert's "String Quartet in C"; Interview with Don Cherry; Commentary on the American Immigrant Wall of Honor. September 12, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924658].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker and writer Adrian Cowell. He made his first trip to the rainforest of the Amazon in 1957. Since then he's produced several documentaries and written 3 books about the region. His latest project is a series for the PBS show Frontline, called "Decade of Destruction." Rev. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a compact disc re-issue of Schubert's "String Quintet in C" featuring Pablo Casals (on Sony). INT. 2: Jazz trumpeter Don Cherry. A pioneer in the free jazz avant garde movement, Cherry hooked up with Ornette Coleman in the late 50's and was part of Coleman's first quartet. Cherry is the leader on a new record on A&M called "Multikulti." Rev. 2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN with some thoughts about the American Immigrant Wall of Honor at Ellis Island. CORRIGAN resents that you have to pay {dollar}100 to put your relatives' names on the wall.

Interview with Tracy Morgan and Aldyn McKean; Commentary on Dave Bartholomew; Interview with James Adams; Review of the film "Postcards from the Edge." September 13, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501609].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with John Densmore; Commentary on American landscapes; Interview with Richard Wurman; Interview with Stephan Salisbury. September 14, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924483].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician JOHN DENSMORE. He was the drummer for The Doors. He has a new memoir, "Riders on the Storm: My Life with Jim Morrison and The Doors" (published by Delacorte Press). Rev. 1: Writer BARRY LOPEZ will read an essay. He's the author of "Arctic Dreams," and "Of Men and Wolves." In this essay he writes about how many of us have failed to develop a relationship with the land and how that affects our lives. INT. 2: Architect, graphic designer and writer RICHARD WURMAN. In 1980 he came out with the first of his series of Access city guides. He's gone on to write and design other guides such as "The Wall Street Journal: Guide to Understanding Money & Markets." His emphasis is on organizing information with the use of graphics, layout, and color in a way which is easy to grasp. His book "Information Anxiety: What to do when information doesn't tell you what you need to know" is out in paperback (by Bantam Trade Paperback). Rev. 2: Journalist STEPHAN SALISBURY talks with Terry about the political maneuvering regarding laws which would reauthorize the National Endowment for the Arts. SALISBURY is cultural affairs reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Interview with John Cleese and Robin Skynner; Review of Don Pullen's album "Random Thoughts"; Interview with Don Byron; Review of the television shows "The Flash" and "Evening Shade." September 17, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924723].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor, writer, and Monty Python member JOHN CLEESE and therapist ROBIN SKYNNER. The pair have co-written a new book, "Families and How To Survive Them." (Rebroadcast. This originally aired 6/22/90) REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new release featuring the eccentric and avant-garde jazz pianist Don Pullen and his trio, "Random Thoughts" on the Blue Note label. INT. 2: Clarinetist Don Byron. Byron's black, but he plays klezmer, the music created from the mixture of American jazz and European Jewish culture. Byron's an alumnus of the Klezmer Conservatory Band, and he performs on the anthology album called "Live At The Knitting Factory." It's on A&M records. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 6/6/90) REV. 2: The Emmy Awards were last night and television critic
DAVID BIANCULLI tells us he's not happy with some of the results. He also previews "The Flash" a live action show based on the D.C. comic strip, and "Evening Shade" a new series starring Burt Reynolds by the producers of "Designing Women."

Interview with Steve Cropper; Review of Eyuphuro's album "Mama Mosambiki"; Interview with James Foley; Review of Barbara Ferraro, Patricia Hussey, and Jane O'Reilly's book "No Turning Back." September 18, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924817].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Guitarist, songwriter, and producer STEVE CROPPER. He's best known for his playing with Booker T & the MGs He co-wrote such hits as "In the Midnight Hour," "Soul Man," and Otis Redding's "(Sittin' on) The Dock of the Bay." REV. 1: World music commentator Milo Miles turns to one of the newest countries in the world, Mozambique (in Africa), and discovers a local band called Eyuphuro (Ee-uu-poo-roo). Their new CD, "Mama Mosambiki," is out on Real World Records. INT. 2: Film Director JAMES FOLEY. He's the director of the new film adaptation of Jim Thompson's novel "After Dark, My Sweet." His characters are often drifters and psychos. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "No Turning Back" by Barbara Ferraro and Patricia Hussey with Jane O'Reilly (Poseidon Press). The book describes the lives of two radical nuns.

Interview with William Styron; Interview with Patrick McGrath; Commentary on deep-fried food and the American South. September 19, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924816].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Novelist WILLIAM STYRON. In 1985 he fell into a deep depression. He has now documented the years he was incapacitated by that illness in his new book, "Darkness Visible: A Memoir of Madness" (Random House). NO REV.1INT.2: Author Patrick McGrath's new novel, "Spider"(Poseidon),is written in the style of gothic fiction. Terry interviews McGrath, followed by an extended reading from his new work. REV 2: Southern commentator Jon Jefferson explains how deep fried food is a necessary element of southern living, even in these days of Lean Cuisine.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet GARY SNYDER. He was part of the beat poetry scene in San Francisco in the late 50's. He appears as a character in several of Jack Kerouac's books. Snyder has since won the Pulitzer Prize. He continues to teach and write. He's got two new books out: "Dimensions of a Life" (Sierra Club Books) is a collection of his essays, and his latest poetry is contained in "Riprap & Cold Mountain Poems" (North Point Press). REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Bob Dylan's new album, "Under the Red Sky." (Columbia). INT. 2: Cartoonists JOSH ALAN and DREW FRIEDMAN. The two team up to create strips, panels, and movie poster take-offs that appear in "Spy" magazine, "National Lampoon," and "Raw." They are known for their caustic and satiric wit often targeted at public figures. The Village Voice says "Wicked realism and freakish horror typify the Friedman style." Their new book is "Warts and All" by Penguin. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "GoodFellas" a new film about a mobsters by Martin Scorsese. It stars Robert DeNiro and Ray Liotta.

Interview with Spalding Gray; Review of Virgil Thomson's album "Portraits and Self-Portraits"; Interview with Jeff Goldblum; Review of the television show "The Civil War." September 21, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924653].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer, actor, and monologist SPALDING GRAY. He has a new piece in performance now, "Monster in a Box" about all the interruptions he's had while trying to write a novel "Impossible Vacations" (about a man whose efforts to take a vacation keep on being interrupted). He is now touring with "Monster in a Box" beginning with a run in New York. REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new release of musical character studies composed by the late American composer Virgil Thomson, "Portraits and Self-Portraits" INT. 2: Actor JEFF GOLDBUM. He starred in "The Big Chill," and in the remake of "The Fly." He has a new movie, "The Tall Guy" with British comic Rowan Atkinson. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new series on PBS, "The Civil War". It begins this Sunday, September 23.

---

Interview with Stan Getz; Review of Donald Brown's album "Sources of Inspiration"; Interview with Richard Ford; Review of the television show "Cop Rock." September 24, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924818].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz great and tenor saxophonist STAN GETZ. He's been popular in both jazz and pop. His latest album is "Apasionado." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 6/14/90). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews composer and pianist Donald Brown's new album, "Sources of Inspiration" (on Muse). Also playing on the album are Eddie Henderson, Buster Williams, Gary Bartz, and Carl Allen. INT. 2: Writer RICHARD FORD. He's just published his fourth novel, "Wildlife." It's published by Atlantic Monthly Press. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 6/22/90) REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Cop Rock."

---

Interview with Suzanne Farrell; Commentary on country music brother duos; Interview with Tennessee Ernie Ford; Commentary on beds. September 25, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924651].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Ballerina SUZANNE FARRELL. She spent over twenty years with the New York City Ballet. FARRELL'S new autobiography is "Holding on to the Air" by Simon & Schuster. REV 1: Rock historian Ed Ward discovers some lesser known country music-singing brother duets. INT. 2: Singer TENNESSEE ERNIE FORD. In 1955 he came out with the hit version of Merle Travis' "Sixteen Tons." Later he was known for his gospel music and daily television show. There's a new collection of his hits, "16 Tons of Boogie: The Best of Tennessee Ernie Ford" out on Rhino records. REV 2: Poet Sharon Olds reads from her work.
Interview with Barbara Ferraro and Patricia Hussey; Commentary on Manu Dibango; Interview with David Lodge; Commentary on how to survive a bear encounter. September 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924718].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Former nuns with the Sisters of Notre Dame, BARBARA FERRARO and PATRICIA HUSSEY. In 1984 they were two of the nuns who signed a New York Times ad that called for a dialogue with the Catholic church on the issue of abortion. They eventually resigned from their order in 1988. They've written about the experience in their book, "No Turning Back: Two Nuns Battle with the Vatican over Women's Right to Choose." REV. 1: Rock critic Milo Miles reviews the career of saxophonist and composer MANU DIBANGO, pioneer of Afropop. INT. 2:Novelist and English teacher DAVID LODGE. Many of his books are set in academia. His new book is "Nice Work." REV. 2:Poet MAXINE KUMIN reads her work. This segment is an excerpt from the Geraldine R. Dodge Poetry Festival, held several weeks ago in Waterloo Village, New Jersey.

Interview with Augie Meyers and Freddy Fender; Commentary on Chicana women; Interview with Carlene Carter; Review of the film "Miller's Crossing." September 28, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924722].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:AUGIE MEYERS and FREDDY FENDER, members of the band, The Texas Tornadoes. They both have long histories in Tex Mex music. Augie Meyers played organ with the Sir Douglas Quintet, and Freddy Fender has had many regional hits in Texas and he hit nationally with "Wasted Days and Wasted Nights" and "Til the Last Teardrop Falls". REV. 1:Mexican-American writer SANDRA CISNEROS reads from "La Fabulosa" her story about the wild ways of a Chicana woman. INT. 2:Country singer, CARLENE CARTER... an offspring of the Carter family country music dynasty that includes her mother June and A.P. and Maybelle Carter. Her new album on Reprise Records is "I Fell in Love" REV. 2:Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Miller's Crossing," starring Albert Finney, John Turturro, and Jon Polito. It's the latest film by Joel & Ethan Coen, the creators of "Blood Simple" and "Raising Arizona."
Interview with Dick Miller; Review of Pierre Boulez's album "Passeport pour le XXe sie?cle"; Interview with A.C. Greene; Review of television show "Twin Peaks." October 1, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924815].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DICK MILLER. During his first 5 years in Hollywood he appeared in 35 Roger Corman films, including "Bucket of Blood" and the original "Little Shop of Horrors." While working with Corman he hooked up with director Joe Dante, and has appeared in every one of his films, including his latest, Gremlins 2. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/26/90) REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new CD of excerpts from conductor/composer Pierre Boulez's television series on 20th century music. It includes selections from classic 20th century composers, Stravinsky, Webern, and Varese. (on the French label, Disques). INT. 2: Journalist A.C. GREENE. He's a columnist for The Dallas Morning News." In 1988 he received a new heart thru the heart transplant program of the St. Paul Medical Center in Dallas. His book, "Taking Heart," is an account of his experience as a transplant recipient and a look at the science of transplantation. (published by Simon & Schuster) REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/20/90. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Twin Peaks" season premiere.

Interview with Geoffrey Wolff; Review of anthology albums by Lester Lanin and Jerry Lewis; Interview with Maceo Parker; Review of Gabriel Garcia Marquez's novel "The General in His Labyrinth." October 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924475].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist GEOFFREY WOLFF. His new book is "The Final Club" about Princeton in the late 1950's. His other books include "The Duke of Deception," and "Providence". WOLFF's brother is novelist Tobias Wolff. Their father was a con-man who lied about his background, wrote bad checks, and later had a nervous breakdown and went to jail. Both have written about their father in novels and memoirs.
REV. 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews two releases that he doesn't like to admit to liking:
a compilation of big band classics by the king of society bandleaders, Lester Lanin, and an anthology of recordings by Jerry Lewis. INT. 2: MACEO PARKER is best known as the saxophonist who played with James Brown. His on again off again association with Brown began in 1964.. Parker has a new album of his own, "Roots Revisited" on Verve that is soft jazz than funky soul. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN Interview with Keith Carradine; Review of Living Colour's album "Time's Up"; Interview with Aki Kaurismaki; Commentary on Eric Auerbach, Leon Trotsky, and Fernand Braudel. October 3, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924226].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor KEITH CARRADINE talks about growing up in a family of actors. His movies include Nashville, Pretty Baby, and Choose Me. He's in a new HBO movie called Judgment. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews a new album, Time's Up, by the band Living Colour. (on Epic). INT. 2: Finnish Filmmaker Aki Kaurismaki. His films draw on European literature, American pop culture, Scandinavian culture and a sense of irony associated with living in a country that borders on the East and West. His movies include a trilogy about Finnish culture: Shadows in Paradise, Airel and The Match Factory Girl. His 1989 film Leningrad Cowboys Go America is a road movie about a Finnish rock band coming to America to make it big. It premieres in New York next month. He and his brother, also a filmmaker, are responsible for half the Finnish film industry output. They also distribute independent films in Finland. Two of his films are part of this year's New York Film festival. ...I Hired a Contract Killer and ..Match Factory Girl. REV. 2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN talks about three writers she admires who wrote their great works while in exile...Eric Auerbach, Leon Trotsky, and Fernand Braudel.

Interview with Brian Eno; Review of The Royal Macadamians' album "Experiments in Terror"; Interview with Robert Cray; Commentary on poaching and novel writing. October 4, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924225].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician, composer and producer BRIAN ENO. Many of Eno's musical ideas are related to theories approaches initially developed in the classical avant garde, but he has made his greatest mark in pop music. He has produced many New Wave and other pop bands, like Devo, Talking Heads and the Penguin Cafe Orchestra. And he has returned to his own composing and performing, collaborating on a new recording with musician John Cale. REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles reviews Experiments in Terror, an album by the Royal Macadamians...a loosely organized American rock band that incorporates Middle Eastern and Latin rhythms. INT. 2: Blues Guitarist and Singer ROBERT CRAY. His hits include such songs as "Smoking Gun" and "I Guess I Showed Her." He's got a new album now, "Midnight Stroll" on Polygram. REV. 2: Poet Mark Halliday reads a poem, "The Ivory Novel."

Interview with Lenny Kaye; Commentary on post-college life and video games; Interview with Michael Rooker; Review of the film "Henry and June." October 5, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924477].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician and producer Lenny Kaye. He was a member of the Patti Smith Group and has recorded albums with his own band. He produced Suzanne Vega's first two albums, and more recently worked with Soul Asylum and Michelle Malone. Kaye was the executive producer for the Elektra Records 40th anniversary compilation, Rubaiyat. REV. 1: Actor and writer John O'Keefe performs an excerpt from his new show "VID." INT. 2: Actor MICHAEL ROOKER. He plays Tom Cruise's buddy in the new film, "Days of Thunder." He played bad guys in the films "Sea of Love," and "Eightmen Out." And he stars in the independent film, "Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer" based on serial killer Henry Lee Lucas. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/24/90) REV. 2: Critic Owen Gleiberman reviews the new movie Henry and June about the relationship between writers Henry Miller and Anais Nin, and Miller's wife, June. Stars Fred Ward and Uma Thurman. It's the first movie to be released with the new NC-17 rating. (No children under 17).

Interview with Alan Lomax; Commentary on song verses; Interview with Michael Myers; Review of the television show "The Simpsons." October 8, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924476].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Folklorist ALAN LOMAX. He's spent more than a half century recording the folk music and customs of the world. Here in America, he's responsible for priceless recordings of Leadbelly, Woody Guthrie, Jelly Roll Morton, and many others. Lomax just had a five part series about this country's musical roots on P-B-S. It's called "American Patchwork." (Rebroadcast. Original date 7/9/90). REV.
Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD says some of the best parts of classic songs like "I Left My Heart in San Francisco" and "A Foggy Day" is the half-sung, almost-spoken introductions. But unfortunately few singers include them in their renditions. In this review, WHITEHEAD plays some recordings that include these forgotten intros. INT. 2: Comic MICHAEL MYERS. He's a member of Saturday Night Live, where he's created the characters and sketches for "Wayne's World" and "Sprockets." MYERS began his career at Second City in Toronto. (Rebroadcast. Original date 5/1/90). REV. 2: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the season premiere of "The Simpsons." (That's this Thursday night on Fox).

Interview with Blaine Harden; Commentary on John Lennon's musical influences; Interview with Steve O'Donnell; Review of John Updike's novel "Rabbit at Rest." October 9, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924473].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter Blaine Harden. He was the bureau chief for the Washington Post in sub-Saharan Africa from 1985-1989. He's just written a book called "Africa: Dispatches From a Fragile Continent." REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD remembers John Lennon on what would have been his 50th birthday (on Tuesday). He looks back at the music that may have influenced Lennon before he was a Beatle. INT. 2: Steve O'Donnell, the head writer for "Late Night with David Letterman." Among O'Donnell's duties is the nightly "Top Ten" list. There's now a book of the best of those lists, cleverly called "The Late Night with David Letterman Book of Top Ten Lists." It's published by Pocket Books. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews the fourth, and final installment in John Updike's "Rabbit" novels.

Interview with Dennis Hopper; Interview with William Wegman; Commentary on specialized vocabulary. October 10, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924472].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dennis Hopper. He made his film debut in "Rebel Without a Cause," and has recently appeared in "Blue Velvet," "Rivers Edge," and "Hoosiers." Hopper directed, co-wrote, and starred in the 60's classic, "Easy Rider." He has directed several films, including "Colors," and the new film, "The Hot Spot," which stars Don Johnson as an unscrupulous drifter who disrupts life in a small Texas town. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2:Photographer and artist WILLIAM WEGMAN. Wegman's best known for his photographs of his pet dog, named Man Ray. His latest collection of photos and drawings is called "William Wegman: Paintings, Drawings, Photographs, Videotapes." It's published by Harry Adams. REV. 2:Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg examines the different specialized words different cultures use to describe things important to them. (For example, the different words Inuit use to describe snow).

Interview with Jane Goodall; Interview with Paul Winfield; Commentary on the budget stalemate's effect on tourism in Washington, D.C. October 11, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924224].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Naturalist JANE GOODALL. Goodall's spent 30 years studying the chimpanzees of Tanzania, a body of work that one scientist called "one of the Western world's great scientific achievements." Goodall has a new book about her work, called "Through a Window." It's published by Houghton Mifflin. REV. 1:*PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2*INT. 2: Actor Paul Winfield. He's the judge in "Presumed Innocent." He was nominated for an Emmy for his roles in "Roots" and as Martin Luther King, and was nominated for an Oscar for his role in "Sounder". REV. 2:Critic, and Washington D-C resident, Maureen Corrigan tells us what it was like to take friends sightseeing last weekend, when the government was out of money.

Interview with Mario Vargas Llosa; Commentary on Eleanor Steber; Interview with Mick Fleetwood; Interview with Stephan Salisbury. October 12, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924474].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Peruvian writer Mario Vargas Llosa. Vargas Llosa lost a bid for president of Peru last year. His latest novel is called "In Praise of the Stepmother." His best-known novel, "Aunt Julia and the Scriptwriter", is being made into a movie starring Barbara Hershey and Peter Falk. REV. 1:Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz remembers soprano Eleanor Steber, who died earlier this month at the age of 76. Lloyd calls her one of the very best singers this country ever produced. INT. 2:Musician Mick Fleetwood, co-founder of the band Fleetwood Mac. They're on tour now and have a new record, "Behind the Mask," and Fleetwood has just written an autobiography called "Fleetwood." REV. 2: Philadelphia Inquirer reporter Stephan Salisbury has the latest on the controversy surrounding government funding of the arts. The House of Representatives has voted to drop the anti-obscenity pledge as a requirement to receive money through the National Endowment for the Arts.

Interview with Phillip Kaufman; Interview with Lloyd Schwartz; Interview with Vikram Seth; Review of the television documentary "Nixon." October 15, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924223].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film maker PHILLIP KAUFMAN. Kaufman directed and co-wrote the new movie, "Henry and June," about the lives of writers Henry Miller and Anias Nin, and Miller's wife, June. This is the first movie to receive a NC-17 rating from the Motion Picture Association of America. Kaufman's earlier movies include "The Unbearable Lightness of Being," and "The Right Stuff." REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ talks with Terry about conductor and composer LEONARD BERNSTEIN who died yesterday at the age of 72. INT. 2: Poet VIKRAM SETH. (REBROADCAST) REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Nixon," a three-hour profile of the political rise and fall of Richard Nixon. It's this week's installment of public television's "The American Experience" series.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former police officer VINCENT MURANO. Murano's new book, "Cop Hunter," chronicles the years he put in with the Internal Affairs Division of the New York City Police Department. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/11/90) REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD begins a two-part retrospective of the music of Curtis Mayfield. Mayfield was recently injured during a performance. In this review: Mayfield's work with the Roosters, Jerry Butler and the Impressions and his collaborations with arranger Johnny Pate. INT. 2: Lead singer-songwriter PAUL WESTERBERG. His band, THE REPLACEMENTS, has a reputation for rawness and bad stage behavior, but at the same time using pop structures in their songwriting. Their new album is "All Shook Down." REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews Age of Iron, a new novel by South African writer J.M. Coetzee. (Random House)

Interview with L.J. Davis; Review of three albums by Randy Weston; Interview with John Updike; Obituary for Art Blakey. October 17, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924487].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist ROGER SIMON. His syndicated column originates at the Baltimore Sun. He has a new book out about the 1988 presidential election called "Road Show." REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles samples some of the great bosa nova music from Brazil. He has a review of "The Legendary Joao Gilberto" (JZAH-o jzhil-BARE-toe), a collection of songs by the one of the pioneers of the music. (World Pacific) INT. 2: Writer RUTH SIDRANSKY. Her memoir, "In Silence," is about what it was like to grow up the hearing child of deaf parents. (St. Martin's Press). REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the classic animated Disney film, Fantasia. It's been re-released this year to mark it's 50th anniversary.

Interview with June Tabor and Huw Warren; Review of Neil Young and Crazy Horse's album "Ragged Glory"; Interview with Nadine Gordimer; Review of the film "Reversal of Fortune." October 19, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924492].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live concert (IN STEREO AT 1900!!!) with singer June Tabor. Tabor was a mainstay of the British folk music scene, more recently she's branched out into other forms of music. Her latest album is called "Freedom and Rain." REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Neil Young's new album, "Ragged Glory." On it Young reunites with his old band, Crazy Horse. (The album's on Warner Brothers). INT. 2: South African writer Nadine Gordimer. Gordimer has a new novel called "My Son's Story." It's published by Farrar Strauss. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new movie, "Reversal of Fortune," about the Claus von Bulow trial. It stars Jeremy Irons, Ron Silver, and Glenn Close.

Interview with Tom Savini; Commentary on Indian film music; Interview with Jamaica Kincaid; Review of the television show "WIOU." October 22, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924621].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director TOM SAVINI. Savini was known as the master of ghoulish makeup for George Romero's films. Now he's directed his first film, a remake of Romero's classic, "Night of the Living Dead." REV. 1: MILO MILES on film music from India. (REBROADCAST) INT. 2: Writer JAMAICA KINCAID. Kincaid is from Antigua, and her novels and short stories often draw on her experiences there. Her short stories frequently appear in The New Yorker. Kincaid has a new novel called "Lucy." (Farrar, Straus, Giroux) REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews WIOU, a new sitcom that premieres Wednesday night on CBS. It goes behind the scenes at a low rated local TV station.
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer RICHARD RHODES. He won a Pulitzer Prize for his book, "The Making of the Atomic Bomb." His new book, "A Hole in the World" is his memoir of living with a cruel and brutal step-mother. (It's published by Simon & Schuster). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the last two releases by jazz drummer Art Blakey, who died last week: "I Get a Kick Out of Bu," and "One for All." INT. 2:Jazz guitarist JIMMY RANEY. He began playing when he was 17. He was one of the first jazz guitarists to incorporate modern bop into his music. In the early 50's he played with Stan Getz's group in New York. Some of those early sessions have recently been re-issued on CD. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Two States - One Nation" by Gunther Grass in which Grass contends that the runification isn't a good idea.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:British journalist DILIP HIRO. He's from India. He covers Middle East affairs. His new book on the Iran-Iraq war is, "The Longest War." He's also written books on Islamic fundamentalism and Iran under the Ayatollahs. REV. 1:Rock historian ED WARD continues his tribute to soul composer and musician Curtis Mayfield in this second part of a two part retrospective. INT. 2:Film maker CHARLES BURNETT. He's made a number of documentary films. His first widely distributed, commercial film is "To Sleep with Anger," starring Danny Glover. REV. 2:Maureen Corrigan Corrigan reviews The Runaway Bride: Hollywood Romantic Comedy of the 1930s, by Elizabeth Kendall. (Knopf). Kendall examines the roles actresses like Ginger Rogers, Myrna Loy and Claudette Colbert played in these films. She says these women were allowed to be smarter, funnier and more self-respecting than most women's roles in films today.
Interview with Victor Navasky; Review of the Vaughan Brothers' album "Family Style"; Interview with Arturo Arias; Review of the film "Tune in Tomorrow." October 25, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924489].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and editor VICTOR NAVASKY. He's been editor of "The Nation" since 1978. Now the magazine -- a "journal of commentary and dissent" -- is celebrating its 125th anniversary with a new anthology. NAVASKY talks with Terry about the magazine's editorial stand on the gulf crisis and how the peace movement is responding to events. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews an album by the late blues guitarist STEVIE RAY VAUGHN and his brother Jimmie, called "Family Style". (A&M)

INT. 2: Novelist ARTURO ARIAS. He was the co-author of the film script for the film "El Norte" about one Central American family's journey to the United States. He's written three novels. His latest "After the Bombs" is the story of a young boy's growth into manhood in Guatemala, in the midst of political repression. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Tune in Tomorrow," a new movie based on Mario Vargas Llosa's novel Aunt Julia and the Scriptwriter. The film was directed by Jon Amiel, who directed the television series The Singing Detective.) Keanu Reeves, Barbara Hershey and Peter Falk star.

Interview with Ann Giudici Fettner; Review of Paul Simon's album "The Rhythm of the Saints"; Interview with Larry Brown; Commentary on Anglicisms in American English. October 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924622].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Bill T. Jones; Review of Ralph Moore's album "Furthermore"; Interview with Diedre Murray; Commentary on infomercials. October 29, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924620].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dancer Bill T. Jones. Jones' partner, Arnie Zane, died of AIDS two years ago, ending one of the most successful collaborations in modern dance. REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Furthermore," the new album from tenor saxophonist Ralph Moore. Kevin says it's one of the year's best mainstream records. INT. 2: Jazz cellist DEIDRE MURRAY. She works with some of today's most adventurous composers, such as Henry Threadgill and Muhal Richard Abrams. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli examines infomercials, long commercials that disguise themselves as news or entertainment shows.

Interview with Robert Christgau; Commentary on the Beach Boys' album "Smile"; Interview with Sam Arkoff; Review of Jacobo Timerman's book "Cuba October 30, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924743].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Village Voice rock critic ROBERT CHRISTGAU. Christgau has a new guide to the best records of the 80s. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward tells why perhaps the Beach Boys greatest album, "Smile," was never released. INT. 2: Movie maker SAM ARKOFF. Arkoff co-founded American International Pictures, the company that churned out the great low-budget teen movies of the 50s, 60s, and 70s...movies like "I Was a Teenage Werewolf," and "Blackula." The Film Forum in New York City is running a retrospective of AP movies. REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Cuba: A Journey." It's journalist Jacobo Timerman's account of Cuba under Castro.
Interview with Anne Rice; Review of Tod Machover's album "Flora"; Interview with Robert Peterson; Commentary on H.P. Lovecraft. October 31, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924873].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Jake Eberts; Review of Garth Brooks' album "No Fences" and Rosanne Cash's album "Interiors"; Interview with Mark McKinney and Scott Thompson; Review of the film "Jacob's Ladder." November 1, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501279].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Movie financier JAKE EBERTS. Eberts' company, Goldcrest Films, produced "Chariots of Fire," "Ghandi," "Local Hero," and "The Killing Fields." In 1985, Eberts left that company and formed another that went on to make "Driving Miss Daisy" and "Dances With Wolves." REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker examines the new traditionalism in country music, and he examines how country singers Garth Brooks and Rosanne Cash fit into that movement. INT. 2: Mark McKinney and Scott Thompson of the Canadian comedy group, "The Kids In The Hall." REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Jacob's Ladder."

Interview with Jeffrey Mason; Commentary on reading aloud; Interview with Gilbert Hernandez and Jamie Hernandez; Review of the home video release of the film "Can She Bake a Cherry Pie?" November 2, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924753].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Therapist JEFFREY MASON. Mason was once a leading advocate of Freudian therapist. In recent years, he's condemned that type of therapy. Mason has a new book called "Final Analysis," chronicling his early training as a Freudian. REV. 1: Linguist Geoffrey Nunburg laments the loss of the simple art of reading aloud. INT. 2: Cartoonists GILBERT and JAIME HERNANDEZ. The pair are the co-creators of the comic book "Love And Rockets." REV. 2: Film critic Owen Gleiberman reviews the 1983 low budget comedy, "Can She Bake A Cherry Pie?"

Interview with Burton Lane; Review of Abbey Lincoln's album "The World Is Falling Down"; Interview with Duane Hanson; Interview with Stephan Salisbury. November 3, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924740].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Songwriter Burton Lane. He's written the scores for several Broadway shows, including "Finian's Rainbow" and "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever." Lane has collaborated with Michael Feinstein on the new album, "Michael Feinstein Sings the Burton Lane Songbook", which features many of Lane's classic songs, such as "Old Devil Moon" and "How About You." REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "The World Is Falling Down," the new album by jazz singer Abbey Lincoln. INT. 2: Sculptor DUANE HANSON. His life-size sculptures look almost real, and are of everyday folks -- tacky tourists, cleaning ladies, blue-collar workers. (Rebroadcast. Original date 6/18/90). REV. 2: Philadelphia Inquirer reporter Stephan Salisbury talks with Terry about the most recent news regarding the National Endowment for the Arts. The agency has been re-authorized by Congress, but its role is changing.

Interview with Mickey Hart; Commentary on Percy Mayfield; Interview with Jon Amiel; Review of Michael Crichton's novel "Jurassic Park." November 6, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924618].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Fresh Air producer Amy Salit talks with Grateful Dead drummer, Mickey Hart. Hart's also long been involved with the drumming traditions of other cultures. Hart has a new book called "Drumming At the Edge of the World, A Journey Into the Spirit of Percussion." REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Percy Mayfield. Among other accomplishments, he's the man who wrote the Ray Charles hit, "Hit the Road, Jack." INT. 2: Film maker Jon Amiel (AYE-meal). His new film is "Tune In Tomorrow," starring Peter Falk and Barbara Hershey. Amiel also directed Dennis Potter's ground breaking T-V production, Interview with Mickey Spillane; Review of Sharon Isbin's album "Complete Lute Suites"; Interview with Gordon Parks; Review of the made-for-TV movie "Psycho IV November 7, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924872].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Detective writer MICKEY SPILLANE. One of the world's most popular writers of the hard-boiled private investigator genre. His most famous character is Mike Hammer. (Rebroadcast. Original date 11/22/89). REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz discusses musical transcription....when a musician plays a piece of music that was actually written for another instrument. He reviews a new album of Bach's Four Lute Suites performed by guitarist Sharon Isbin. INT. 2: Photographer, film maker, and writer GORDON PARKS. He's taken fashion pictures for Vogue magazine and others and was the first black photographer on Life magazine. Later he went on to make the "Shaft" movies, "The Learning Tree," and "LeadBelly." He's just written his memoir, "Voices in the Mirror." REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Psycho IV: The Beginning." It's a new telemovie with Anthony Perkins once again playing the role of crazed killer Norman Bates. But David says this time, we get a glimpse of Norman's childhood and find out how why he turned out that way. It's premieres on Showtime this Saturday.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Newsweek magazine's religion writer, Kenneth L. Woodward. Woodward's new book, "Making Saints," examines the politics surrounding how the Roman Catholic Church decides who will become a saint, and who won't. It's published by Simon and Schuster. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "The Traveling Wilburys Volume 3." It's actually the second album collaboration among Bob Dylan, Jeff Lynn, George Harrison, and Tom Petty. (Roy Orbison, who was part of the first Traveling Wilbury's album, died before this album was recorded). INT. 2: Writer Anthony Holden. He took a year off to become a professional poker player, a year he chronicles in his book "Big Deal" (published by Viking). Holden is a biographer, former newspaper columnist and editor. He's also translated classics for the opera. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Dances With Wolves," starring Kevin Costner as soldier stationed on the American frontier in the 1860s.

---

Interview with Shen Tong; Interview with James Fogle; Review of A.S. Byatt's novel "Possession."

November 9, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924742].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chinese student activist SHEN TONG. He has a book about the events leading up to the Tiananmen Square massacre, called Almost a Revolution. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Novelist JAMES FOGLE. The film Drugstore Cowboy is based on his unpublished novel. It's the story of four drug addicts who rob drugstores to support their habits. The novel is now being published. Fogle has spent 35 years in prison on various drug related crimes. Terry talks to him from prison. Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Possession" by A. S. Byatt. It's a throwback to the big Victorian novels of the 19th century, and Maureen says the mix of romance, farce, and mystery make it impossible to put down. (It's published by Random House).

---

Interview with Albie Sachs; Interview with Natalie Kusz; Review of the television shows "Twin Peaks" and "It."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Albie Sachs. He's a white South African, a member of the Constitutional and Legal Department of the African National Congress, and director of the South Africa Constitution Studies Center in London. Sachs has written a memoir titled, "Running to Maputo." It's published by Harper. (Rebroadcast. Original date 9/7/90). REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2:Writer Natalie Kusz (rhymes with douche). When she was six years old, Kusz's family moved from Los Angeles to the Alaska wilderness. That winter, a neighbor's sled dog attacked Kusz, and tore off part of her face. Kusz's new book, "Road Song," is a memoir of that event, and its effect on her family. It's published by Farrar, Straus, and Giroux. REV. 2:FINALLY we know who killed Laura Palmer. Or do we? Television critic David Bianculli has some thoughts on this week's episode of "Twin Peaks," and he reviews the new ABC mini-series, "It," based on the Stephen King novel.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor ELI WALLACH. In an acting career that has spanned nearly 50 years, Wallach has had numerous roles on Broadway, television, and in movies. Wallach is currently touring the country in the play "Love Letters." He also has roles in the recent movie "The Two Jakes," and the upcoming film, "Godfather Part III" REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews a new album by Dutch bassist Maarten Altena and his octet. The album, "Rif" is on the Hat Art label. Altena comes from a family of classically trained musicians and was influenced by 20th century composers such as Stravinsky and Morton Feldman.

INT. 2: Cartoonists JOSH ALAN and DREW FRIEDMAN. The two team up to create strips, panels, and movie poster take-offs that appear in "Spy" magazine, "National Lampoon," and "Raw." They are known for their caustic and satiric wit often targeted at public figures. The Village Voice says "Wicked realism and freakish horror typify the Friedman style." Their latest book is "Warts and All," by Penguin. (Rebroadcast. Original date 9/20/90). REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "The Further Enquiry." It's Ken Kesey's account of his days as a Merry Prankster, traveling the country in his bus "Further," during the 60s. It's published by Viking.

Interview with Red Rodney; Commentary on political folk music in the 1960s; Interview with Denis Donoghue; Review of Dick Francis's novel "Longshot." November 14, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924507].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz trumpeter RED RODNEY. Rodney's played with the greats...Benny Goodman, Woody Herman, Charlie Parker, among many others. His latest album, called "Code Red," is on the Continuum label. (Rebroadcast. Original date 6/15/90). REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward takes a look at the early days... of the folk revival, and he profiles some of the singers that gained exposure through the 60s folk magazine, "Broadside. INT. 2: Literary critic DENIS DONOGHUE He's written a new memoir, "Warrenpoint," about his Roman-Catholic boyhood in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland (published by Knopf). REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Longshot," the new mystery by Dick Francis. This is the 29th mystery by Francis set in the world of horse racing.

Interview with Bill Wyman; Review of Kate and Anna McGarrigle's album "Heartbeats Accelerating"; Interview with Michael Cunningham; Review of the film "Vincent and Theo." November 15, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924510].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Bassist BILL WYMAN of The Rolling Stones. Using his diaries for reference, WYMAN, has recalled the band's early years in "The Story of a Rock 'n' Roll Band: Stone Alone." WYMAN was often the odd-man-out with the band. He was older than the other band members, and he stayed out of the prevalent drug scene. (published by Viking Press). REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Heartbeats Accelerating, the new album by Kate and Anna McGarrigle. (Private Music) (short by :30) INT. 2: Novelist MICHAEL CUNNINGHAM. His new novel is "A Home at the End of the World." (Farrar, Straus & Giroux). It's about the friendship between two gay men and a woman. And it has received critical attention since a chapter of it appeared in The New Yorker in 1988. (interview is extended by :30) REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Vincent and Theo," Robert Altman's new film about painter Vincent Van Gogh.

Interview with Michael Callen; Review of Youssou N'Dour's album "Set"; Interview with James Welch; Review of the film "Rocky V." November 16, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924556].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and gay activist, MICHAEL CALLEN. He co-founded the People With AIDS Coalition and the Community Research Initiative. CALLEN has lived with AIDS for 8 years, and has written a new book called "Surviving AIDS." REV. 1: World Music commentator Milo Miles reviews the work of Senegalese singer Youssou N'Dour. (you-sue endure). INT. 2: Novelist JAMES WELCH. He's a Native American writer whose written a number of books about Indian life in the old west as well as contemporary Indian life. His books include, "Fools Crow," "The Death of Jim Loney," "Winter in the Blood." His latest is, "The Indian Lawyer" about a Blackfeet Indian who rises to success and power in the White man's world but must reexamine who he is when caught up in a blackmail scheme. (published by W.W. Norton). REV. 2:Owen Gleiberman reviews "Rocky V."

Interview with Garry Wills; Review of Carla Bley and Paul Haines's album "Escalator Over the Hill"; Interview with Raymond Andrews; Review of the television show "Broken Badges." November 19, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924512].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Political journalist, GARRY WILLS. He's a former professor of American culture and public policy at Northwestern University, and author of many books on American politics. His new book is called, Under God. It's a collection of essays that comment on the frequent collusion of politics and religion in America. (published by Simon and Schuster) REV. 1:Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD tells us about a reissue of the Carla Bley/Paul Haines extravaganza, "Escalator over the Hill." It featured an eclectic mix of singers and musicians from jazz, to rock, and pop: including singer Linda Ronstadt, singer and bassist Jack Bruce from the group Cream, and jazz trumpeter Don Cherry. (the two-CD box is on the ECM label). INT. 2:Novelist RAYMOND ANDREWS. His books include: "Appalachee Red," which won the James Baldwin Prize for Fiction; "Rosiebelle Lee Wildcat Tennessee," and "Baby Sweet's." He's just published a memoir, "The Last Radio Baby," about growing up the fourth of ten children in a sharecropper family in rural Georgia. (published by Peachtree Publishers). REV. 2:Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Broken Badges," a new series about a group of misfit, psychologically impaired cops. It stars Miguel Ferrer, who played the ultra-rude FBI agent Albert on "Twin Peaks." "Broken Badges" premieres Saturday, November 24th on CBS.

Interview with Edmund White; Review of a CD of Artur Schnabel performing Mozart's piano concertos; Interview with Pierre Sauvage; Review of Raymonde Carroll's book "Cultural
Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer Edmund White. His books include an autobiographical novel called, "A Boy's Own Story," and the nonfiction work, "States of Desire: Travels in Gay America." Now he teaches creative writing at Brown University is working on a biography of Jean Genet. White will be featured on the P-B-S show, The AIDS Quarterly, on November 26. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz shares some thoughts on how music is edited in the recordings to make everything sound perfect. Lloyd says he wishes mistakes were left in recordings of live performances because that would be truer to the moment. He illustrates his point by playing excerpts from a Music and Arts recording of Artur Schnabel performing Mozart's Piano Concertos. INT. 2: Film-maker PIERRE SAUVAGE. His film "Weapons of the Spirit" tells the story of a small, farming village in Nazi occupied France that sheltered 5,000 Jews, including Sauvage's own family, during World War Two. The film was released theatrically last year and will air on public television in December. REV. 2: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg reviews "Cultural Misunderstandings: The French-American Experience" by Raymonde Carroll. It's a look at the different ways different cultures behave and think.
Tim Curry, Susan Sarandon, and Barry Bostwick, has been a cult favorite in midnight shows for almost 15 years.

---

Interview with Lawrence Bergreen; Commentary on American landscapes; Interview with Carlene Carter; Commentary on Thanksgiving. November 22, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501604].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer LAURENCE BERGREEN. His book is "As Thousands Cheer: The Life of Irving Berlin." (published by Viking Press).(originally broadcast 6/26/90). REV. 1: Nature writer Barry Lopez reads from his essay "Rediscovering America." INT. 2: Country singer, CARLENE CARTER.an offspring of the Carter family country music dynasty that includes her mother June and A.P. and Maybelle Carter. Her latest album on Reprise Records is "I Fell in Love" (originally broadcast 9/28/90) REV. 2: Commentator Patricia McLaughlin contemplates Thanksgiving...and the suggestion by some that the holiday be moved up so it doesn't come so close to Christmas. She says we should leave our holidays alone.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet GARY SNYDER. He was part of the beat poetry scene in San Francisco in the late 50's. He appears as a character in several of Jack Kerouac's books. Snyder has since won the Pulitzer Prize, and he continues to teach and write. He's got two new books out: "Dimensions of a Life" (Sierra Club Books) is a collection of his essays, and his latest poetry is contained in "Riprap & Cold Mountain Poems" (North Point Press). (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 9/20/90). REV. 1: Pre-empted by Extended Interview 2. INT. 2:Author Patrick McGrath (pronounced "McGraw"). His latest novel, "Spider"(Poseidon), is written in the style of gothic fiction. Terry interviews McGrath, followed by an extended reading from his new work. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 9/19/90). REV. 2: Critic Owen Gleiberman reviews Three Men and a Little Lady, the sequel to the very popular Three Men and A Baby.

Interview with Theodore Hesburgh; Interview with Billie Whitelaw; Review of the television show "The Tube Test." November 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924558].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reverend Theodore Hesburgh. For 35 years, Hesburgh was the president of Notre Dame University. He has a new autobiography, called "God, Country, Notre Dame." REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW INT. 2: British actress BILLIE WHITELAW. Whitelaw's well-known in Britain, but she's little-recognized in America. She can be seen in the new movie, "The Krays." Whitelaw also worked with playwright Samuel Beckett. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The Tube Test." David says it's an insipid quiz of TV trivia.

Interview with Carol Barkalow; Review of the CD box set "Charles Mingus November 27, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924634].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CAPTAIN CAROL BARKALOW (bark-ah-loe). She was among the first women to enter the military academy at West Point. Her new memoir, "In the Men's House," chronicles her years in the army from cadet to commander. BARKALOW currently works in the Pentagon as a special assistant to the Army Chief of Staff. (Published by Poseidon Press). REV. 1: Kevin Whitehead reviews a new boxed set, "Charles Mingus: The Complete Debut Recordings" It features music Mingus recorded between 1951 and 57 on the label he and Max Roach founded. The 12-CD set is distributed by Fantasy Records. INT. 2: Film producer Ed Pressman. His movies include "Wall Street," "Conan the Barbarian," and "Badlands." He produced three films that are out now, "Reversal of Fortune," "To Sleep With Anger," and "Waiting for the Light." REV. 2: John Leonard reviews Salman Rushdie's new book, Haroun (ha-ROON). It's a children's book, but adults will appreciate it too.
Interview with Betty Carter; Review of the "Broadway Gold" CD series; Interview with Roger Fisher; Commentary on factoids. November 28, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924638].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz vocalist BETTY CARTER. After a four decade career and three Grammy nominations, Carter has a new album out called "Droppin Things." It's on the Polygram label. REV. 1: Classical Music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new compact disc series called "Broadway Gold." It features reissues of original cast recordings for shows like "Oklahoma," "The King and I," and "Carousel." (It's on MCA records).

INT. 2: Roger Fisher, director of the Harvard Negotiation Project and Professor of Law at Harvard. He's the co-author "Getting to YES: Negotiating Agreement Without Giving in." He's proposed a series of negotiations to avoid war in the Persian Gulf. REV. 2: Linguist Geoff Nunberg explores the place factoids have in our lives. They're those bits of information that pass off for facts but aren't actually verifiable. (an example he gives is how much Americans spend a day on tortilla chips).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist DAN NOYES. Noyes is part of the Center For Investigative Reporting, and was in charge of the Center's investigation into the international traffic in toxic waste. That investigation resulted in the PBS documentary "Global Dumping Ground," reported by Bill Moyers. There's now a companion book to the documentary, also co-written by the Center and Bill Moyers. It's published by Seven Locks Press. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Van Morrison's new album, "Enlightenment." (It's on Mercury).

INT. 2: NOW executive vice president PATRICIA IRELAND joins Fresh Air by phone to talk about her organization's stance of the social conditions of Arab women and women soldiers in the U.S. military. REV. 2: Critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Misery," a new movie based on Stephen King's novel of the same name.
Interview with Charlton Heston; Commentary on blues music and record labels; Interview with Nick Kazan; Review of Robert Bly's book "Iron John." November 30, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924478].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director JIM JARMUSCH. After his first feature, "Permanent Vacation," gained a cult as well as a critical following in Europe, Jarmusch made "Stranger Than Paradise," which won the Camera d'Or at the 1984 Cannes Film Festival. Jarmusch's third feature was "Down By Law." His latest film is called "Mystery Train." It's set in a seedy hotel in Memphis, Tennessee and tells the story of two young Japanese tourists. (Originally broadcast December 20, 1989). REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Jelly Roll Morton: The Complete Victor Recordings." It showcases Morton's work during the 20s, in honor of the 100th anniversary of Morton's birth. INT. 2: Blues Guitarist and singer ROBERT CRAY. His hits include such songs as "Smoking Gun" and "I Guess I Showed Her." He's got a new album now, "Midnight Stroll" on Polygram. (Originally broadcast October 4, 1990). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The Divine Garbo." It's a special on the legendary film star, premiering tonight (Monday) on the TNT Network. TNT is also showing 11 of Garbo's films.
Interview with Diane Ravitch; Commentary on John Cale; Interview with Wendy Smith; Review of Michael Freeman and Roger Warner's book "Angkor, the Hidden Glories." December 4, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924663].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Diane Ravitch. She's written many books about American education, and she teaches history and education at Teachers College, Columbia University in New York. Her new book, "The American Reader," is an anthology of classic speeches, poems, and songs that she feels should be taught in the schools. Ravitch has been active in advocating and developing new multi-cultural curriculums for public school systems. REV. 1:Rock historian Ed Ward profiles musician, composer, producer, and all around influential guy John Cale. INT. 2:Writer WENDY SMITH. She's the author of a book on the history of the Group Theater. The Group Theater was founded in the early thirties to bring social realism to the Broadway stage. The ensemble of actors and directors stayed together for ten years and changed American theater forever. Wendy Smith's book is called "Real Life Drama...The Group Theater and America, 1931-1940." (It's published by Knopf). REV. 2:Book critic John Leonard reviews "Angkor, the Hidden Glories" a new coffee-table book about the ancient Cambodian city of Angkor Wat. The photos are by Michael Freeman, the writing is by Roger Warner. It's published by Houghton Mifflin.

Interview with Robert Fisk; Review of a recording of Charles Ives' string quartets; Interview with Richard Sandomir; Review of the television show "Dallas." December 5, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924664].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:British journalist Robert Fisk. He and his wife are the only foreign journalists still living in Beirut. Fisk has been covering Lebanon for the past fourteen years. REV. 1:Classical Music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new compact disc of the string quartets of Charles Ives, performed by the Lydian (pronounced "lid-e-ahn") String Quartet. (It's on Centaur records). INT. 2:Journalist Richard Sandomir tackles the issue of male pattern baldness in others and himself in his new book, "Bald Like Me," (Collier Books). REV. 2:Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the latest season of "Dallas."
Interview with Hedrick Smith; Review of Monie Love's album "Down to Earth" and Shazzy's album "Attitude"; Interview with Harold McGee; Review of the film "Edward Scissorhands."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist HEDRICK SMITH. Smith was a reporter for the New York Times for 26 years. He reported from the Soviet Union from 1971-1974. Out of that came the best-selling book, "The Russians." More recently he returned to the Soviet Union to see the changes under Gorbachev. The result is his new book, "The New Russians." REV. 1: Ken Tucker reviews new albums by two female rappers, Monie Love ("Down to Earth" on Warner Brothers) and Shazzy ("Attitude: A Hip Hop Rapsody"). Ken says these women provide a solid alternative to the prevailing misogynistic lyrics in contemporary rap and heavy metal. INT. 2: Food writer HAROLD McGEE. McGee investigates the science of everyday cooking, things like does blowing on soup really cool it and why is it that sometimes hot water turns into ice cubes quicker than cold water? McGee's latest book is called "The Curious Cook." It's published by North Point Press. REV. 2: Critic Owen Gleiberman reviews "Edward Scissorhands," the new movie directed by Tim Burton (Batman, Beetlejuice). It stars Johnny Depp, Winona Ryder, Dianne Wiest and Alan Arkin.

Interview with Andrew Whitley and George Rowen; Interview with Daniel Yergin; Interview with Marie Burke. December 7, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/.oclc/971501319].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A two part interview...first Terry talks with Andrew Whitley, executive director of Middle East Watch. That group is a division of Human Rights Watch, an organization that monitors human rights violations in different regions of the world. Then Terry talks with Sargent George Rowen, of the of the New York National Guard. Rowen leave for the Gulf in two weeks, Rowen's wife, who's also in the Guard, is ALREADY stationed in Saudi Arabia. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Daniel Yergin, president of Cambridge Energy Research Associates, an international energy consulting firm. Yergin is one of the leading authorities on the oil business and he's written a new book called, "The Prize: The Epic Quest for Oil, Money, and Power." REV. 2: Terry talks Interview with Lionel Aldridge; Review of the CD box set "The Complete Dean Benedetti Recordings of Charlie Parker"; Interview with Diane Kurys; Review of the made-for-TV movie "The Dreamer of Oz." December 10, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501318].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former football player LIONEL ALDRIDGE. Aldridge played in two Superbowls and started a successful career as a broadcaster, then in the 70s he developed schizophrenia and lost everything; his job, money, wife, family and home. Aldridge now travels the country, talking about his disease and recovery, and about our incorrect attitudes toward mental disease. REV. 1: For years, jazz fans have been looking for recordings that a fanatical fan named Dean Benedetti made of Charlie Parker in the late 40s. Those recording recently turned up and they've just been issued on a boxed set of compact discs. Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead has a review. INT. 2: French film director Diane Kurys. Her films include "Entre Nous" and Peppermint Soda. Her new film, "C'est La Vie," is the semiautobiographical story about the summer when she was a young girl and her parents marriage broke up. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The Dreamer of Oz," a NBC telemovie about Frank Baum, the man who created "The Wizard of Oz."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director SYDNEY POLLACK. He directed Tootsie, and his film Out of Africa won an Academy Award for Best Picture. His new film is Havana, starring Robert Redford and Lena Olin. REV. 1: Rock and roll historian ED WARD surveys some of this year's best rock and roll CD re-issues, including re-mastered Byrds, Led Zeppelin, Bo Diddley and Robert Johnson. INT. 2: Zydeco accordion player and band leader, C.J. CHENIER (shuh-NEER). His father, accordion player Clifton Chenier, reigned as the King of Zydeco for nearly four decades. He was the first musician to popularize zydeco music outside of Louisiana. C.J. joined his father's band, The Red Hot Louisiana Band, about ten years ago and took over the band when Clifton Chenier died in 1987. C.J. Chenier and the Red Hot Louisiana Band have a new record, Hot Rod, on Slash Records. REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews John Edgar Wideman's new novel, Philadelphia Fire. It's set against the events surrounding the 1985 burning of the MOVE house in West Philadelphia by the Philadelphia police and also parallels certain events in the author's life.

Interview with Steven Mufson; Interview with Ray Wise; Commentary on slang. December 12, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924667].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We examine the American cemetery, with Kenneth Jackson and Camilo Jose Vergara. Jackson's a professor of social science and urban planning at Columbia University, Vergara is a photographer who specializes in the rise and fall of the urban scene. The pair have collaborated on a new book called "Silent Cities: The Evolution of the American Cemetery." It's published by Princeton Architectural Press. REV. 1: Classical Music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the Great Performances telecast of Peter Sellars production of "The Marriage of Figaro." It airs this Friday night on PBS. INT. 2:Singer Lorna Luft. On the new complete recording of the 1930 musical Girl Crazy, Luft sings the part that gave Ethel Merman her start on Broadway. Luft's mother was Judy Garland, her sister is Liza Minnelli. Luft is currently performing at the cabaret "Rainbow and Stars" in New York. REV. 2:Maureen Corrigan reviews the book Streetwise, by sociologist Elijah Anderson, about racism, crime, and the changing nature of urban neighborhoods.

Interview with Lawrence Weschler; Interview with David Rosengarten, Joshua Wesson, and Corby Kummer; Review of the film "Havana." December 14, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924665].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist LAWRENCE WESCHLER. He's a staff writer for the New Yorker and has been covering Eastern Europe for the past decade. Weschler has an article about the latest political events in Poland in last week's issue of the magazine. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW  INT. 2:We talk Champagne (and other sparkling wines), with DAVID ROSENGARTEN and JOSHUA WESSON, the coeditors of the "Wine and Food Companion," and food writer CORBY KUMMER of the Atlantic magazine. REV. 2:Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Havana," the new movie from director Sydney Pollack, who also made "Out of Africa," and "Tootsie."

Description of show segment(s)

album shows it. INT. 2:Writer JOHN UPDIKE. His fiction, which includes 14 novels and hundreds of short stories, has earned him the Pulitzer Prize, The National Book Award, the American Book Award and the National Book Critics Circle Award. Updike recently finished his fourth, and final, Rabbit novel. (Rebroadcast. Original date 10/17/90). REV. 2:Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Sex in the Soviet Union." It's the latest of Ted Koppel's occasional documentary series, "The Koppel Report." It airs this Wednesday.

Interview with Charles Schulz; Commentary on Joe Liggins and Jimmy Liggins; Interview with Sherry Ettelson; Commentary on archaic vocabulary. December 18, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502036].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:"Peanuts" creator CHARLES SCHULZ. For more than 40 years, Schultz has been drawing what's probably the most popular comic strips in the world. REV. 1:Rock and roll historian ED WARD profiles pioneering rhythm and blues artists Joe and Jimmy Liggins. Joe recorded one of the first rhythm and blues hits..."The Honeydripper" in 1945. Jimmy was a lesser musical figure, but also enjoyed success with his more rough n' ready style. INT. 2:SHERRY ETTLESON. She's a staff attorney for Public Citizen's Congress Watch, and a member of the financial democracy campaign. She did research for the new book, "Who Robbed America? -- a Citizen's Guide to the Savings and Loan Scandal." It's published by Random House. REV. 2:Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG mourns some of the colorful words that seem to have vanished from our language...like galoot, dudgeon, and geegaw.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Film Director TIM BURTON. His new film is "Edward Scissorhands." Burton also directed one of the most popular films of all time "Batman," along with "Pee Wee's Big Adventure" and "Beetlejuice." REV. 1:Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new (and first) recording of John Harbison's cantata "The Flight into Egypt," which won the 1987 Pulitzer Prize. It's based on a passage

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Film maker ROBERT ALTMAN. His new movie is "Vincent and Theo" about painter Vincent Van Gogh and his brother Theo. REV. 1:KEN TUCKER reviews new albums by Guy and Levert (le-VERT), two groups that combine rap with some softer crooning. INT. 2:Actress KATHY BATES. She co-stars in the new film Misery. Most of her work has been on stage including highly praised performances in the plays "'Night Mother" and "Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune." REV. 2:KEVIN WHITEHEAD, who normally reviews jazz for Fresh Air, reviews the new movie "The Russia House".

Interview with Interview with Sherman Holmes, Wendell Holmes, and Popsy Dixon; Commentary on bad Christmas music; Interview with several musicians about Christmas music; Review of the film "Home Alone." December 24, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924893].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:A live concert with The Holmes Brothers. They're a quartet that combines gospel, soul, blues, and hot 'n sweaty dance music. The Brothers have an album on Rounder Records, called "In The Spirit." (Rebroadcast. Original date 8/1/90). REV. 1:Rock historian Ed Ward plays some of the worst in Christmas music. INT. 2:To get the bad taste of the previous segment out of our mouths, we play some great Christmas music, from previous Fresh Air concerts. REV. 2:Critic Ken Tucker tells us what he, and what his kids, think of the new movie "Home Alone."

Interview with Burton Lane; Interview with William Wegman; Commentary on food, memory, and happiness. December 25, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924826].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Songwriter Burton Lane. He's written the scores for several Broadway shows, including "Finian's Rainbow" and "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever." Lane has collaborated with Michael Feinstein on the new album, "Michael Feinstein Sings the Burton Lane Songbook", which features many of Lane's classic songs, such as "Old Devil Moon" and "How About You." (Rebroadcast. Original date 11/5/90). REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2:Photographer and artist WILLIAM WEGMAN. Wegman's best known for his photographs of his pet dog, named Man Ray. His latest collection of photos and drawings is called "William Wegman: Paintings, Drawings, Photographs, Videotapes." It's published by Harry Adams. (REBROADCAST. Original date 10/10/90). REV. 2:Poet Mark Halliday reads one of his works, "I Don't Want To Go Home." (Rebroadcast).

Interview with Evan Lurie, Alfredo Pedernera, and Jill Jaffe; Review of the best jazz albums of 1990; Interview with Mark Alan Stamaty; Commentary on pork chops. December 26, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924828].

Description of show segment(s)

We've been allowing our Fresh Air critics a chance to step outside of their normal roles. Today book critic John Leonard breaks form, and praises the pork chop!

Interview with Stephen Frears; Review of Brian Eno and John Cale's album "Wrong Way Up"; Interview with Sylvia Plachy; Review of the film "Godfather Part III." December 27, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924778].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 2: Photographer SYLVIA PLACHY (PLAH-hee). Her work has appeared in "The Village Voice" for more than a decade, and her work has been shown in several major museums. Now Aperture Press has released a new book of Plachy's photos, called "Sylvia Plachy's Unguided Tours." REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Godfather Part Three."

---

Interview with Steve Cropper; Interview with David Brenner; Review of the television show "Scoop." December 28, 1990. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/959924897].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guitarist, songwriter, and producer STEVE CROPPER. He's best known for his playing with Booker T & the MGs He co-wrote such hits as "In the Midnight Hour," "Soul Man," and Otis Redding's "(Sittin' on) The Dock of the Bay." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 9/18/90). REV. 1 PRE-EMPTED FOR INT. 2

INT. 2: Comedian DAVID BRENNER. He's recently written a book about the pitfalls of traveling. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 5/30/90) REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new Masterpiece Theatre series, "Scoop," based on the Evelyn Waugh novel of the same name about a young inexperienced foreign correspondent in 1935.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF and book critic JOHN LEONARD look back at the movies and books of 1990. They give us their favorites from the year as well as considering the trends and highlights. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2INT. 2: Rock critic KEN TUCKER gives us his ten best for 1990 and more about the music scene over the year. REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG foregoes his usual language commentaries to tell us a tale about being young and limber in Rome.

Interview with Spalding Gray; Commentary on the Red Bird and Blue Cat record labels; Interview with Maceo Parker; Review of the television show "Fernwood 2-Night." January 1, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502153].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer, actor, and monologist SPALDING GRAY. He has a new piece in performance now, "Monster in a Box" about all the interruptions he's had while trying to write his novel "Impossible Vacations" (about a man whose efforts to take a vacation keep on being interrupted). He is now performing "Monster in a Box" at the Lincoln Center in New York. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 9/17/90). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the Red Bird and Blue Cat record labels, responsible for such hits as "Chapel of Love," and "The Boy from New York City." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 3/27/90). INT. 2: MACEO PARKER is best known as the saxophonist who played with James Brown. His on again off again association with Brown began in 1964. Parker's latest album is "Roots Revisited" is soft jazz and funky soul. (On the Verve label). (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/2/90). REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ tries his hand at television reviewing. He turns to one of his favorite Norman Lear shows from the late 70s, "Fernwood 2-Night." It airs nightly on cable TVs Nick-at-Nite.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Film historian KEVIN BROWNLOW. Brownlow's best known as the man who reconstructed the silent movie masterpiece "Napoleon." Brownlow's new book, "Behind the Mask of Innocence," is an examination of how pre-World War One filmmakers addressed social issues of the day. (It's published by Knopf). REV. 1:World music critic Milo Miles examines the Caribbean dance music known as Zouk. INT. 2:Photographer RICHARD MISRACH ("misrack"). Misrach has been photographing the American West since the mid-70s. His new collection of photographs, "Bravo 20," is a photo essay on a region of the Nevada desert that has been illegally used as a bombing range by the navy for the past 30 years. ("Bravo 20" is published by Johns Hopkins University Press). REV. 2:Maureen Corrigan comments on high art, pop culture, and the Great books cannon in her review of the High-Low show at the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer FRANK WHITE. White's new book, "The SETI Factor," looks at the ongoing search for extraterrestrial intelligence. In 1992, NASA will begin a comprehensive scan of the heavens for radio signals from other solar systems. White says, as a result of that search, it's quite likely that within the next 25 years we'll finally know if we're alone in the universe. ("The SETI Factor" is published by Walker and Company). REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2:Actress and performance artist ANN MAGNUSON. She starred in the movies, "Making Mister Right," and "A Night in the Life of Jimmy Reardon," and on the TV series, "Anything But Love." And she's had numerous onewoman monologue shows in Manhattan. On today's show, she preforms an excerpt from one of her recent works. REV. 2:Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Kindergarten Cop," starring Arnold Schwarzenegger.
Interview with Joel Brinkley; Review of Vanilla Ice's album "To the Extreme" and the album "The Simpsons Sing the Blues"; Interview with John Pizzarelli; Review of the television shows "Sons and Daughters" and "Undercover." January 4, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884179].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We talk about the crisis in the Gulf, with Joel Brinkley, the Jerusalem Bureau Chief for the New York Times. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker comments on the success of albums by two fraudulent musical acts, "Vanilla Ice" and "The Simpsons." INT. 2: Guitarist and singer JOHN PIZZARELLI. Pizzarelli's new album, "My Blue Heaven," features his interpretations of some great songs from the swing era. John Pizzarelli is the son of noted jazz guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli. REV. 2: Television's "second season" is underway, and television critic David Bianculli reviews a couple of new series..."Sons and Daughters" and "Under Cover."

Interview with Carl Sagan; Review of the album "Frank Martin Dirige Frank Martin"; Interview with Christopher Durang; Review of Philip Roth's book "Patrimony." January 8, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501954].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scientist and writer CARL SAGAN. Sagan is co-author of the new book, "A Path Where No Man Thought." It's about the theory that even a "small" nuclear war would lead to a "nuclear winter" that would devastate the earth. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews some commemorative recordings with the late Swiss composer and conductor Frank Martin. This 20th century composer isn't well known in the U.S. His music was often moody and unsettling, and religious in nature. ("Martin conducts Martin" on the Jecklin label). INT. 2: Playwright CHRISTOPHER DURANG. Durang is best-known for his controversial play, "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All For You." A new collection of six of his plays has just come out called "Christopher Durang Explains It All For You." (published by Grove Weidenfeld) REV. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Patrimony," Philip Roth's new book about his father's death.
Interview with Joel Forrester; Review of Wynton Marsalis's album "Tune in Tomorrow"; Interview with Bruno Kirby; Review of the television show "Dark Shadows." January 9, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502149].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:A combination concert and interview with pianist and composer JOEL FORRESTER. Forrester is co-founder of the quirky jazz group, The Microscopic Septet. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired May 1990). REV. 1:Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the soundtrack from the movie "Tune in Tomorrow" composed by Wynton Marsalis and recorded by Marsalis and his band. (on the Columbia label). Kevin says the Ellingtonian stuff is the best. INT. 2:Actor BRUNO KIRBY. He was the would-be comedian in "Good Morning, Viet Nam" and Carrie Fisher's boyfriend in "When Harry Met Sally." More recently, he was in "The Freshman," with Marlon Brando and Matthew Broderick. (Rebroadcast. Original date 7/27/90). REV. 2:The 60's soap opera "Dark Shadows" returns from the dead this weekend. Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI has a review.

Interview with Elmer Bernstein; Interview with Rashid Khalidi; Review of the television show "Ballerinas January 10, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884178].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Composer Elmer Bernstein. He's composed the scores for around 80 films, including "The Man With the Golden Arm," "The Magnificent Seven," and "The Ten Commandments. He's done the scores for 2 new films -- "The Field" and "The Grifters." REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2:Rashid Khalidi (Rah-SEED kah-LEE-dee). He's a professor of modern Middle East history at the University of Chicago. He and Terry will be talking about the proposal for an international peace conference on the Mideast. REV. 2:Lloyd Schwartz previews the next Dance in America presentation, highlighting works by choreographer Peter Martins. Many public television stations are airing it this Friday night or this weekend.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Soviet journalist ARTEM BOROVIK (art-ee-yom bore-ah-vick). Borovik covered the Soviet war in Afghanistan, and his first hand accounts of that war appeared in "Life," the French magazine "Actuel," and the German magazine "Stern." The Atlantic Monthly Press has just published a collection of his war dispatches, called "The Hidden War." REV. 1:Rock and roll historian Ed Ward looks back on the music of 1981...a year which included us to the rise of Prince, Rick James, Duran Duran, U2, the Go- Gos and Grandmaster Flash. Ed says music from England was influential that year, and college radio stations played a role in setting musical trends. INT. 2:Author MADISON SMARTT BELL. Bell's new novel, "Doctor Sleep," follows a hypnotist and part-time criminologist through three days and nights as he deals with his domestic life and with tracking down a serial killer. (It's published by Harcourt, Brace, and Jovanovich). REV. 2:Book critic John Leonard reviews "The Secret Pilgrim" by John LeCarre. It's the final chapter in LeCarre's novels starring master spy George Smiley.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: First, Terry talks with TRUDY RUBIN. She's a Mideast expert on the editorial board at the "Philadelphia Inquirer." Rubin's just left Baghdad. We speak to her from Amman, Jordan. Then, Terry talks with DAVID FROMKIN. He's a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and he's written a book on the fall of the Ottoman Empire after World War One and the creation of the modern Middle East. It's called, "A Peace to End All Peace." (It's just out in paperback from Avon Books). REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: We examine the issue of anti-Arab discrimination. Terry talks with ALBERT MOKHIBER (MOE-KI-BER), President of the American Arab Anti Discrimination Committee, about the FBI's recent questioning of prominent members of the Arab American community. We also talk with BILL BAKER, the Assistant Director of FBI's Criminal Investigative Division. Mokhiber and Baker met today to try to smooth over tensions between the two... groups. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie, "Not Without My Daughter". It stars Sally Field and Alfred Molina and is based on the true story of an American woman and her daughter who are trapped in Iran after the Iranian revolution.

Interview with Gene LaRocque; Interview with Janet Aviad and David McReynolds; Interview with Emory Searcy, Jr. January 15, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501828]

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Retired Admiral GENE LaROCQUE (lah-rock), founder of the Center for Defense Information, gives his scenario for war in the Gulf, a scenario which is more pessimistic than the Bush administration's or the House Armed Services Committee Chairman, Les Aspin's. The Center for Defense Information is an independent monitor of the military and is made up of retired military officers as well as civilians with training and experience in military analysis. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO

INT. 2: JANET AVIAD of "Peace Now," an organization in Israel dedicated to finding peaceful solutions to the Israeli/Palestinian conflict. She speaks with Terry about her group's position on Saddam Hussein's linking the invasion of Kuwait with the Palestinian question. Terry also talks with DAVID McREYNOLDS, co-secretary of the War Resistors League. The group is advising military men and women who don't want to fight in the Gulf, advising on the possibility of a re-instated Draft, and coordinating the peace movement. REV. 2: Reporter Pat Ford talks with Reverend EMORY SEARCY (sir-see), JUNIOR, the executive director of Clergy and Laity Concerned. They'll talk about the irony of the UN deadline on Iraq falling on Martin Luther King's Birthday.

Interview with James Adams; Interview with Dan Pipes; Commentary on jingoism during wartime. January 16, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502146]

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Defense Correspondent for The Sunday Times of London, JAMES ADAMS. He gives his scenario for a war in the gulf. Among other points, he says the war will be brief, and the Iraqis troops will be totally unprepared for the opening air assault. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO

INT. 2: Dan Pipes, the Director of the Foreign Policy Research Institute. He'll talk about what might happen AFTER the war in the Gulf, who'll take power, and the diplomatic mistakes we should avoid. REV. 2:Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG on the jingoistic language of the Gulf Crisis and on the words that were added to our language from past wars.

Interview with J.L Chestnut; Interview with Keith Carradine; Commentary on beds. January 17, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501624].

Description of show segment(s)

THURSDAY, JANUARY 17 (ARCHIVE SHOW) (regular shows pre-empted by Gulf War Coverage)
INT. 1:Civil rights activist and attorney J. L. CHESTNUT, JUNIOR. Chesnut's written a moving autobiography (with reporter Julia Cass) called "Black In Selma," about his life in the civil rights movement. (It's published by Farrar, Straus, and Giroux). (REBROADCAST. ORIGINAL DATE 8/9/90).

Interview with Andrew Whitley; Interview with Henny Youngman; Review of the film "Other People's Money." January 18, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457915].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with May Sarton; Interview with Mercer Ellington; Commentary on jingoism during wartime. January 18, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501380].

Description of show segment(s)

FRIDAY, JANUARY 18 (ARCHIVE SHOW) Regular program pre-empted for Gulf Coverage. INT. 1: Writer MAY SARTON. For many readers, Sarton is a heroic figure for her decision to expose her lesbianism in the early 60s, long before society was tolerant of the gay life, and also for her decision to lead a life of solitude. The author of over 35 novels, books of poetry and essays, Sarton is probably best known for her journals, "Recovering," and "At Seventy." Her most recent book of poems, "The Silence Now," explores themes from the solitude of the aging, to AIDS, to world peace. (Rebroadcast. Original date July 7, 1989). REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: Band leader and composer MERCER ELLINGTON. He is, of course, the son of Duke Ellington and now perpetuates the big band tradition his father made famous as head of the Duke Ellington Band. When he was a young man, Mercer Ellington had hoped to break into his father's band on the saxophone. But after years of frustration, he could see that he would never crack the legendary Ellington reed section. He finally was accepted as a trombone player and later played french horn and trumpet. With the death of his father in 1974, Mercer Ellington took over his father's orchestra. Ellington's albums have won wide acclaim: "Digital Duke" and "For Ellington," performed by the Modern Jazz Quartet and produced by Mercer Ellington. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 5/3/89) REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG on the jingoistic language of the Gulf Crisis and on the words that were added to our language from past wars. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/16/91).

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry speaks with Iraqi-American MOHAMMED LATIF (lah-teef). He's lived in the United States for the last 30 years, but still has family in Iraq. He talks with Terry about his experiences in the United States and the situation for his family in Baghdad. Then writer PHILIP KHOURY (core-ee) talks with Terry about the historical roots of Pan Arabism. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO* INT. 2: Writer AMOS OZ talks with Terry from his home in Israel about his family's experiences during the recent Iraqi missile attacks, his work as a lecturer with the Israeli army, his views on the Israeli government's response to the crisis, and his feelings about the Gulf war. REV. 2: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry talks with two guests ...1) Jim Creighton (CRY-ten), the staff councilor with Friends Military Counciling, a group sponsored by the Quakers (technically the Society of Friends). Creighton advises men and women in the military who object to the Gulf war. 2) Seargent Reginald Bullock, an Air Force recruiter here in the Philadelphia area. We'll find out how his job has changed in the past week. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: Terry talks with Charles Tripp, a Middle East scholar at the University of London. He's an expert on the Iran-Iraq war, and has studied the power structure of Saddam Hussain's government. REV. 2:Critic John Leonard, who normally reviews books for "Fresh Air" and the media for "CBS Sunday Morning," talks with Terry about television's coverage of the war.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:RASHID KHALIDI (hahl-ah-DEE), the Associate Director of the Center for Middle Eastern Studies at the University of Chicago. He'll examine the background history of the Palestinians. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: We get the thoughts of three artists...1) Poet and writer ZABYAH KHAMIS. She's from the United Arab Emirates, and now lives in Cairo. Her writing is banned in UE, and she was the first woman in her country to be jailed for her writing. She'll talk about freedom of thought and expression in the Gulf region.2) Poet GALWAY KINNELL, who won the Pulitzer price in 1983, reads a new poem about the war.3)...And we speak with DAN

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We first examine some of the possible environmental consequences of the War with Chris Flavin, the Vice President for research at the WorldWatch Institute in Washington. Then we look at what questions of international law the Gulf war, or any war, poses. Fresh Air producer Amy Salit talks with Alfred Rubin, a professor of international law at Tufts University. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: Psychiatrist Robert Jay Lifton talks about the psychological effects of war. He's studied the psychological effects of the Hiroshima bombing, and coined the term "psychic numbing" to describe the mindset of people who are overwhelmed by the experience of war. REV. 2: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: 1) Journalist VERNON LOEB of the Philadelphia Inquirer gives us a first hand report of the latest missile attack on Israel. 2) Editor MICHAEL LERNER of "Tikkun," the leading magazine of American-Jewish intellectuals and writers based in Berkley, Calif. He discusses the thinking of the liberal Jewish community, and the soul-searching they've been thru since Israel has been under missile attack by Iraq. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: Arab-American EDWARD SAID (Say-EED), Professor of English at Columbia University. He was born in Palestine and was raised there and in Egypt. He's lived in the United States for years. He discusses the West's misconceptions about the Arab world, and how the war looks from the Arab point of view. REV. 2: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO Interview with Robert Cullen; Interview with Randy Shilts; Commentary on nationality and colonialism. January 28, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501385].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ROBERT CULLEN. He's a former Moscow correspondent for Newsweek, and he writes regularly on Eastern Europe for The Atlantic and the New Yorker. He's got a new book coming out about the Soviet Union. He'll talk with Terry about the volatile situation in the Baltic Republics. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO* INT. 2: Journalist RANDY SHILTS. He wrote the controversial book on the handling of the AIDS crisis, "And the Band Played On." He's got a new book coming out about gays in the military and he'll talk with Terry about that. REV. 2: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the way English speakers use the suffix "e" and "i" to lump together most nationalities in the Middle East (Kuwati, Iraqi...), what that says about us, and its origins by Colonial powers.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Three interviews on the African-American Perspective: 1) DIANE PINERHUGHES. She's a professor of Political Science at the University of Illinois and the author of a new report for the National Urban League on the role of blacks in the Gulf War. 2) DAMU SMITH, the founder of the peace group, "The African-American Network Against US Intervention in the Gulf," gives his organization's perspective. 3) MUHAMMAD ABDUL-ALEEM, resident Imam of a Philadelphia Mosque He just returned from a trip to Saudi Arabia as part of a delegation of Muslim American leaders. While there he met with African-American soldiers who are Muslim. Also, in September he attended an Islamic Conference in the Mideast where Muslims debated their position on the war and laid the groundwork for the Fatwa issued earlier this month against the Iraqis. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: ED DORN, a the senior staff member of the Brookings Institution. He's examined the question, "Does the US military really provide equal opportunities for Blacks." REV. 2:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW*

---

Interview with Saeb Erakat and Moshe Fogel; Commentary on responding to war through music; Interview with Yo-Yo Ma; Interview with Bill Griffith. January 30, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973568686].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry talks with Palestinian about living in the occupied territories during the Gulf War. DR. SAEB ERAKAT is a University professor whose school was shut down when the Intifada began. We also get a response from MOSHE FOGEL from the Israeli Defense Department. REV. 1:Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ tells us what music he turned to at the outbreak of war. INT. 2: Cellist YO-YO MA talks about how the war has affected him as an individual and as a musician. REV. 2:Comic strip artist BILL GRIFFITH talks about the impact of the war on his comic strip "Zippy." "Zippy" appears daily in many newspapers around the country.

---

Interview with Patrick Seale; Commentary on songs about the Gulf War; Interview with Sir Michael Howard. January 31, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501383].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fresh Air producer Amy Salit talks with PATRICK SEALE. He's the author of "Asad: The Struggle for The Middle East." They'll discuss Syria's role in the current war, and the country's recent political history. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews some of the recent songs that have come out in favor and against the war. INT. 2: Terry Gross talks with military historian Sir Michael Howard. They'll discuss under what circumstances war is justified, and Howard gives his reasons for why we should be fighting this war. REV. 2: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Native Kuwaities of Palestinian heritage, SHAFEEQ GHABRA and TAGHREED ALQUUDSI-GHABRA. They are a married couple with children currently living in the U.S. They escaped from Kuwait at the end of October, and were activists in the resistance movement during the occupation. Before that, they were professors at the University of Kuwait. REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2: New York Times correspondent THOMAS FRIEDMAN. Friedman spent the last decade covering the Middle East. His work there has won him two Pulitzer Prizes. His book, FROM BEIRUT TO JERUSALEM, looked at the inside of Arab and Israeli power circles, examined the intifadeh and the perceptions American and Israeli jews have of each other. He talks with Terry about the on-going conflict between the Israelis and the Palestinians in light of the Gulf War and the past attempts at resolving the conflict. REV. 2: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two interviews in this segment... First, Terry talks with ROGER FISHER, the head of the Harvard Negotiation Project, and author of the best-seller, "Getting To Yes." He explains why it's still not too late to negotiate with Saddam Hussain. Then Terry talks with journalist and long-time China watcher, ORVILLE SCHELL. They'll discuss the current trials of some of the leaders of the pro-democracy movement. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "If There Was a Way," the new album by country music super-star Dwight Yokum. INT. 2: Journalist RONALD BROWNSTEIN. His new book, "The Power and the Glitter," looks at alliances between politicians and movie stars and other celebrities. Brownstein is the national political correspondent for the Los Angeles Times. (The book's published by Pantheon). REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Wave Me Goodbye," an anthology of women's short stories about World War 2. (It's newly out in paperback, published by Penguin).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:MOHAMMAD MEHDI (MEH-heh-dee), Secretary General of the National Council on Islamic Affairs, and President of the American-Arab relations committee. Born in Bagdad, he moved to the U.S. in the late 1940s. He talks with Terry about Islam and the strong link between the Islamic faith and the law. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2:Actor MARTIN SHEEN. He's got a new movie coming out which he directed, "Cadence." He also acts in it with two of his sons. He talks with Terry about his life, his family, and his work on "Apocalypse Now." REV. 2:Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Smile of the Lamb," by Israeli writer, David Grossman, a novel about Israelis and Palestinians.

Interview with Raymond M. Scurfield; Commentary on Laura Lee; Obituary for Danny Thomas. February 6, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502326].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Raymond M. Scurfield; Commentary on Laura Lee; Obituary for Danny Thomas.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Fresh Air producer Amy Salit interviews JOE STORK, the editor-chief of "Middle East Report." He'll discuss the what's been called the have's and the have-nots; the unequal distribution of wealth in the Middle East. The huge wealth of the Kuwaitis and their reluctance to share it with other, poorer, Arab countries, has been cited as one of the motives behind Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. REV. 1:Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews a recent album by singer Shelly Hirsch and keyboardist David Weinstein. Kevin says when she's on, Hirsch is one of the most amazing singers in any genre. (The album's called "Haiku Lingo" and it's on the German label, "Review"). INT. 2: Pat Ford speaks with photographic historian FRED RITCHIN about the computer manipulation of photographic images. Ritchin's new book, "In Our Image," discusses the implications of a technology that makes the photograph as susceptible to fraud as the printed word. Ritchin is the founding director of the photojournalism at the International Center of Photography, and the director of photography for the "New York Times Magazine." REV. 2:NO ARTS REVIEW*****

Interview with Kenneth Roth; Commentary on Ali Farka Toure; Interview with David Zucchino; Review of the film "L.A. Story." February 8, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501798].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We look at the state of human rights in the Middle East, and throughout the world, with Kenneth Roth, the deputy director of Human Rights Watch. REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles profiles Ali Farka Toure (ahl-lee fah-kah tour-ee), a guitar player from Mali. Milo says Toure's influences are from Africa, but his sound has a lot in common with American blues. INT. 2: We talk about Syria's growing involvement in the international drug trade, with Philadelphia Inquirer reporter David Zucchino (zu-kee-no). Zucchino covers the drug war for the paper, and has spent two years in the Middle East. He also won a Pulitzer for his coverage of South Africa. REV. 2: Owen Gleiberman reviews the new Steve Martin film "L.A. Story."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two interviews in this half... First, reporter Pat Ford talks with retired Admiral EUGENE CARROLL, of the Center for Defense Information, discusses the latest developments in the Gulf War. He'll speculate on what was discussed at this weekend's meeting between Secretary of Defense Dick Chaney, Chief of Staff Colin Powell, and commanding general Norman Schwarzkopf. Then Terry talks... with the Science Advisor to King Hussain of Jordan, Doctor ABDULLAH TOUKAN (too-can). They'll discuss the environmental consequences of the Gulf war. REV. 1:Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews a reissue of tenor saxophonist Clifford Jordan's 1961 album, Bearcat. INT. 2:Terry talks with stand-up comedian JIMMY TINGLE. Tingle's forte is political humor, he'll talk about trying to get laughs during wartime. REV. 2:Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Freud, Dora, and Vienna 1900," by historian Hannah S. Decker. It's an account of one of Sigmund Freud's better known cases, and his first failure. (It's published by Free Press).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Economist ROBERT KUTTNER. He'll talk about how the war affects the economy and how the economy affects the war. REV. 1:*IN FIRST HALFBook critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Search for the Pink Headed Duck," by Rory Nugent, about his travels to India and Tibet after the rare pink headed duck. INT. 2:Actress BLAIR BROWN of the Lifetime cable sitcom, "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd." She plays a single, divorced woman living in New York.REV. 2:PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2*****

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist MILTON VIORST ("veeorst"). He's a frequent contributor to the New Yorker who's written extensively about the Middle East. Viorst will discuss Jordan's role in the Middle East. REV. 1:*PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2:Czech novelist JOSEF SKVORECKY (skor-et-skee). He and his wife immigrated to Canada in 1968. They started a Czech-language publishing house, 68 Publishers, which put out the works of Czechoslovak authors who were banned in their homeland. They will publish a farewell volume, on Antonin Dvorak's arrangement of Stephen Foster's "Old Folks at Home." The score was believed to be lost until recently. SKVORECKY'S novel, "The Miracle Game," has just been published in English. REV. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews three CBS specials that highlight some of the best moments from "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "All in the Family," and "The Ed Sullivan Show."

Interview with Alfred Rubin; Interview with Robbie Coltrane; Review of the home video release of the film "Humoresque." February 14, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502325].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We look at international law with ALFRED RUBIN, a professor of International Law at Tufts University. He'll answer whether the recent bombing that killed hundreds in Iraq was a legal action, and he'll talk about the treatment of POWs in the Gulf war. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: Actor ROBBIE COLTRANE. He played Bob Hoskin's friend in "Mona Lisa," Falstaff in Kenneth Branagh's "Henry the Fifth," and Eric Idle's partner in crime in "Nuns on the Run." He stars in the new comedy, "Perfectly Normal." REV. 2: In honor of Saint Valentine's Day, film critic Owen Gleiberman (gly-ber-man) reviews the 1946 classic romance, "Humoresque," with Joan Crawford and John Garfield.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We talk with Iraq emigre Laith Kubba (lathe koo-bah), the leader of the London-based group, "The Conference on Human Rights and Democracy in Iraq." He'll give his view of this morning's peace proposal, and he'll discuss the feasibility of democracy in a post-Saddam Iraq. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW ONE INT. 2:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW ONE REV. 2:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW ONE**

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Economics writer ROBERT KUTNER returns. Kutner is the author of the new book, "The End of Laissez Faire." In it he proposes that the United States stop worrying so much about being the policeman of the free world, and turn to the type of governmental economic planning that has benefited the Japanese and the Germans. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2:Film maker PAUL MAZURSKY. Mazursky's movies include "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice," "Enemies: A Love Story," and "Down and Out In Beverly Hills." Mazursky's new movie, "Scenes From a Mall," co-stars Bette Midler and Woody Allen. REV. 2:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO**

Interview with Peggy Say; Interview with Fred Halliday; Review of the film "Silence of the Lambs." February 19, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501600].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry talks with PEGGY SAY. Say's brother is Terry Anderson, the Associated Press reporter who's been held hostage in Lebanon since March, 1985. Throughout those five years, Peggy Say has worked to free her brother, and to keep the American government, and the American people, from forgetting her brother's plight. Say has a new book about her ordeal, called "Forgotten." It's published by Simon and Schuster. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2:FRED HALLIDAY. He's a professor of International Relations at the London School of Economics, and he writes for the British newspaper, "The Guardian." He'll discuss some possible motives for the Soviet Union's attempt to find an end to the Gulf war, and he'll give us a primer on the history of the Soviet Union's relations with Iraq. REV. 2:Stephen Schiff reviews the new thriller "Silence of the Lambs," starring Jodie Foster.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist ROBERT FISK. Fisk's war reporting is not cleared by military censors. He refuses to join a pool. Fisk is reporting on the war for the Independent in London. REV. 1:A while back, classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviewed a live recording by the late pianist Artur Schnabel. Schnabel lost his place during the performance, but the error was edited out of the recording. Now Lloyd has a chance to play the original for us. INT. 2:Lithuanian poet THOMAS VENCLOVA ('van-slow-vah'). Venclova's outspoken comments cost him his Soviet citizenship. For the past 14 years, he's lived in the U.S. He now teaches at Yale University. REV. 2:Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Darlings of the Gods," a two part made for TV movie about the real life romance between two of this century's greatest actors; Lawrence Oliver and Vivian Leigh. It airs this Thursday and Friday on the Arts and Entertainment cable network.

Interview with Christopher Flavin; Interview with Denis Johnson; Interview with Calvin Trillin and Edward Koren. February 21, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502213].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:CHRISTOPHER FLAVIN of the Worldwatch Institute, a Washington-based think tank that monitors the state of the environment. The Institute has just issued it's 8th annual "State of the World" report. The 1991 edition of "State of the World" is published by Norton. REV. 1:PRE-EMPTED BY EXTENDED INTERVIEW TWO INT. 2:Poet and novelist DENIS JOHNSON. His new novel is "Resuscitation of a Hanged Man" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) about a man recovering from a botched suicide attempt who goes on to be a Private I. Johnson is also known for traveling to the areas of turmoil in the world like Liberia and the Philippines where he feels he has an obligation to write about what's going on. INT. 3:Terry talks with humorist CALVIN TRILLIN and cartoonist EDWARD KOREN from the The New Yorker about the magazine's move tomorrow. The magazine has been at its present location for almost 60 years. Many of our leading writers and cartoonists worked there. A wall drawing by James Thurber will be moved from the old location to the new. And some of the office's furnishings are going to the Smithsonian.

Interview with Joseph Shabalala; Interview with James Adams; Interview with Alex Molnar. February 22, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502091].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOSEPH SHABALALA (shah-bah-lah-lah), leader of the South African vocal group Ladysmith Black Mambazo. His group came to American attention following their performances on Paul Simon's album, "Graceland." Ladysmith Black Mambazo's new album is called "Two Worlds, One Heart." REV. 1: PRE-EMPTED FOR EXTENDED INTERVIEW 2 INT. 2: JAMES ADAMS, the defense correspondent for The Sunday Times of London, He's been covering the war from the Pentagon, and he'll tell us the mood there concerning the Soviet peace offerings. INT. 3: Terry talks with ALEX MOLNAR. He's the founder of the "Military Families Support Network," a support group that's very critical of the Gulf war and the government's handling of the war.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MARIAN FAYE NOVAK and DAVID NOVAK. Marian was pregnant when her husband, David, a Marine, was sent to Vietnam. Her daughter, Jeannie is now an army officer serving in the war. We talk with Marian about her new book, LONELY GIRLS WITH BURNING EYES: A Wife Recalls Her Husband's Journey Home from Vietnam, (Little, Brown) and her feelings today about her daughter in the Gulf. We also talk with David about what it's like for him to be waiting at the other end. REV. 1: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews a new biography on Frederick Douglas by pulitzer prize-winning author William McFeely. INT. 3: Retired Col. HOWARD LEVIE, Professor Emeritus of Law, St. Louis University. He is also Adjunct Prof. at the Naval War College. He's written a study about prisoners of war, "Prisoners of War in International Armed Conflict," (Naval War College Press, 1979). He'll talk to Terry about the history of P.O.W.'s and the laws governing their treatment. INT. 4: Terry talks with the great violinist ISAAC STERN. Last week he was performing a concert in Israel when the sirens went off signaling a missile attack. The audience put on their gas masks, and the orchestra left the stage. But STERN stayed, walking up to the edge of the stage, and continued to play for the audience.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Two interviews in this segment:a) Retired General EUGENE CARROLL from the Center for Defense Information. He talks with Terry about the political and military considerations of how a war is endedb) AMITAV GHOSH, (OM-eh-TOF GAHSH) Indian writer and anthropologist, he's visiting the states now. Terry talks to him about an essay he wrote in the January issue of the literary magazine GRANTA called "An Egyptian in Baghdad." GHOSH had spent time living and studying in a village in Egypt about ten years ago. He writes about one of his friends from the village who went to work in Iraq several years ago and who was still in Baghdad when the war started. GHOSH felt that much of the press about the war was depersonalized and he wanted to write about the life of one person caught up in the events. INT. 2:Pulitzer-prize winning writer DAVID HALBERSTAM and former Vietnam war correspondent. In his new book "The Next Century," Halberstam contends that the 20th century is the end of America's economic dominance in the world. In his interview with Terry he questions how much of a victory our victory in the Gulf would be when there are so many problems at home that we've delayed and ignored. He also talks with Terry about press restrictions during war time.

Interview with Muhammad Al-Rumayhi; Commentary on music from Kuwait; Interview with Yehuda Amichai; Review of Eric Hansen's book "Motoring with Mohammed." February 27, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502089].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:From London, DR. MUHAMMAD AL-RUMAYHI (Roo-MA-hee), editor of the "Voice of Kuwait," a paper of the resistance. Ten days after the Iraqis invaded Kuwait, they started publishing the paper in leaflet form from London. Since then it has been distributed to Kuwaitis living in exile throughout the Middle East. AL-RUMAYHI leaves today to go home to Kuwait. REV. 1:World Music Critic MILO MILES profiles music from KUWAIT. INT. 2: Israeli poet YEHUDI AMICAI (Ya-WHO-da AM-ah-kye) He's one of Israel's leading poets. School children read his poems in school. AMICAI has fought in the Israeli army thru many of the country's conflicts. He contemplates war in his new collection of poetry, "Even a Fist was Once an Open Palm with Fingers." REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Motoring with Mohammed" by Eric Hansen.

Interview with Fred Halliday; Interview with Zhabya Kamis; Interview with James Adams; Interview with David McReynolds; Interview with Dan Wasserman. February 28, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502092].

Description of show segment(s)

FIRST HALF OF SHOW: INT. 1: First, we talk again with FRED HALLIDAY. He's a professor of International Relations at the London School of Economics, and he writes for the British newspaper, "The Guardian." INT. 2: Terry checks in with Poet and writer ZHABYA KHAMIS. She's from the United Arab Emirates, and now lives in Cairo. Her writing is banned in UE, and she was the first woman in her country to be jailed for her writing. SECOND HALF OF SHOW: INT. 3: We check back with JAMES ADAMS, the defense correspondent for The Sunday Times of London, He's been covering the war from the Pentagon. INT. 4: Terry talks with DAVID McREYNOLDS, co-secretary of the War Resisters League. The group advised military men and women who didn't want to fight in the Gulf, and co-ordinating the peace movement. INT. 5: And we see what's on the mind, and on the drawing board, of DAN WASSERMAN, editorial cartoonist for the Boston Globe.

Interview with David Alan Grier; Interview with Tim Weiner; Commentary on Charlie Rich. March 1, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501911].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DAVID ALAN GRIER cast member of "In Living Color." He appears in the regular sketches, "Men on Film," as film producer Clavel, and others. INT. 2: Journalist TIM WEINER. He reports on national security issues and the justice department for the Philadelphia Inquirer. In 1988, he won his second Pulitzer Prize for a series of articles on secret Pentagon spending. He discusses the A-X weapon - a stealth bomber which has just been put into production. It's predecessor, the A12, was cancelled.
because of cost overruns and unaccountability. MUSIC REV: Rock historian ED WARD profiles singer CHARLIE RICH.

Interview with Laith Kubba and Rashid Khalidi; Interview with Sir Michael Howard; Interview with Louise Hall; Review of albums by Inspiral Carpets, Happy Mondays, and Lush. March 1, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502020].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry talks again to some of the our guests from earlier in the Gulf coverage. TWO interviews in this segment: 1) Iraq emigre LAITH KUBBA (lathe koo-bah), the leader of the London-based group, "The Conference on Human Rights and Democracy in Iraq." He talks with Terry about planning for democracy in a post-Saddam era. 2) RASHID KHALIDI (Rah-SEED kah-LEE-dee). He's a professor of modern Middle East history at the University of Chicago. He and Terry will be talking about what will become of the Palestinian question, now that Saddam has been defeated and the Palestinian leadership had aligned itself with Saddam. REV. 1:Terry talks again to SIR MICHAEL HOWARD, Professor of military and naval history at Yale. His books include "Studies in War and Peace," "War and the Liberal Conscience," and "The Causes of War." He'll talk with Terry about the Allied military strategy in the Gulf and tell us what aspects of this war his colleagues will be studying a century from now. INT. 2:Terry talks with LOUISE HALL, of the Military Family Support Network. As a mother with a son in the Gulf, she shares her continuing anxieties about his safety. REV. 2: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the latest album by three British bands that are setting their country's post-Thatcher alienation to music.

Interview with Carolyn Becraft; Interview with Tom Stoppard; Interview with Steve Lopez. March 4, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502023].

Description of show segment(s)

Three interviews today... INT. 1: CAROLYN BECRAFT. She's an expert on issues concerning the military family and women in the military. She's the director of the Women and the Military Project. They'll discuss the role of women in the Gulf war. INT. 2: British playwright and screenwriter TOM STOPPARD. He wrote the award winning plays "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead," "The Real Inspector Hound," and "The Real Thing:" and the screenplays for "Empire of the Sun," "Brazil," and "The Russia House." He's just made his debut as a film director, in the movie adaptation of "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead." INT. 3: Philadelphia Inquirer columnist STEVE LOPEZ. He'll talk about his recent columns on the war, and the local reaction to them.

---

Interview with Bill Buzenberg; Interview with R.K. Ramazani; Interview with Anthony Hopkins.
March 5, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501947].

Description of show segment(s)

There will be two interviews and an arts review in the first hour 1) Terry talks with NR's Vice-President for news and information programs, Bill Buzenberg, about the disappearance of NR reporter Neil Conan. Conan is among about 26 journalists that disappeared while on the way to cover the uprisings in Basra. 2) Professor R.K. Ramazani (rah-mah-zahn-ee). He's a professor of Government and Foreign affairs at the University of Virginia. He'll discuss the current uprisings in Southern Iraq, whether the U.S. should be worry about the uprisings being backed by Iran. SECOND HALF: Actor Anthony Hopkins. In the new movie, "The Silence of the Lambs," he plays Doctor Hannibal Lecter, a brillant psychiatrist turned sociopath killer, who also holds the key to the identity of another crazed killer.

---

Interview with Charles Tripp and Patrick Seale; Interview with James Ridgeway; Commentary on doo-wop music. March 6, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501369].

Description of show segment(s)

Two interviews in the first half....1) Charles Tripp discusses the the stability of Saddam's government, and the current civil war in Iraq. Tripp's a lecturer at the University of London. 2) We discuss Syria's role in the post-war Middle East with Patrick Seale, the author of "Asad: The Struggle for The Middle East." INT. 2: Journalist James Ridgeway. Ridgeway has a new book on the rise of the white supremacy movement in the United States. It's called "Blood In The Face" (It's published by Thunder's Mouth Press). Ridgeway also co-produced a documentary film on the subject, also called "Blood On The Face." Ridgeway is the Washington correspondent for "The Village Voice." REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward looks at some of the early integrated doo-wop groups. Ed says unlike today's white acts, like vanilla Ice, that take black music and water it down, those early groups truly mixed black and white performers and black and white musical styles.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist NICHOLAS LEMANN. Lemann's new book, "The Promised Land," is an account of the American black migration; between the early 1940s and the late 1960s more than five million blacks left the Deep South and headed north, looking for a better life. Lemann is a national correspondent for The Atlantic magazine. "The Promised Land" is published by Knopf. INT. 2: Actor and writer WALLACE SHAWN. Shawn co-starred in and co-wrote the movie, "My Dinner With Andre." He also appeared in "Manhattan," "The Princess Bride," and "Radio Days." Now Shawn is performing a one man monologue called "The Fever," about a well to do man coming to grips with the world's poverty. "The Fever" has also been published by The Noonday Press, a division of Farrar, Straus & Giroux. REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Signs of the Times: Deconstruction and the Fall of Paul de Man" by David Lehman. It's an understandable explanation of that literary theory, and a chronicle of the scandal surrounding one of its leading voices.

Interview with Amos Oz; Interview with Stephan Salisbury, John Truscott, and Martha Shea; Review of the film "The Doors." March 8, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501948].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry talks with Israeli journalist and novelist AMOS OZ (the first name is pronounced "ah-mos," not "A-mos"). He'll talk about the postwar discussions toward an end to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. They also discuss Oz's latest novel, "To Know A Woman." REV. 1: Current budgets are proposing massive cuts in the arts budgets of many states. We examine this issue with Stephan ("steff-an," not "steve-an") Salisbury, arts reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer. We'll also have reaction from several people affected by the change (but we don't know who'll they'll be yet). REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews Oliver Stone's new movie, "The Doors."

Interview with Piotr Bikont; Review of the television show "Northern Exposure"; Interview with Charlton Heston; Review of Edward Vesala's album "Ode to the Death of Jazz." March 8, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502150].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Polish documentary filmmaker Piotr Bikont (peeter BEEcaunt). He chronicled the fall of Communism, and rise of democracy, in Poland, an activity that caused him repeated trouble with the Polish authorities. ARTS REV: Television critic David Bianculli reviews the season premiere of "Northern Exposure." INT. 2: Veteran actor CHARLTON HESTON. (Rebroadcast. Original date 11/30/90). MUSIC REV: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album by Finnish bandleader and drummer Edward Vesala (vessa-lah).

Interview with Sattareh Farman-Farmaian; Review of the television program "Unplugged"; Interview with Michael York; Review of Little Village's album "Little Village." March 10, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457578].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Social Worker SATTAREH FARMAN-FARMAIAN (sa-TAH-ray FAR-mahn far-m'YAN). She's the daughter of an Iranian prince of a fallen dynasty. She spent her childhood in a harem in Persia in the 20s and 30s. She's 70 years old and has spent a life time challenging Iran's conventions. She became the first Persian to study at the University of Southern California where she earned an advanced degree in social work. Returning to Iran she founded the Tehran School of Social Work. After the collapse of the Shah's regime she was arrested as a counter revolutionary and faced possible execution. Her autobiography is "Daughter of Persia," (Crown Publishers). REV. 1: TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI tells us about the new season of "MTV Unplugged," the music video network's one-hour acoustic music series. It begins this Wednesday with an acoustic concert by Eric Clapton. INT. 2: British actor MICHAEL YORK. Over the years he's starred in such films as "Romeo & Juliet," "Cabaret," "Logan's Run," and "The Three Musketeers." He's written his autobiography, "Accidentally on Purpose." (published by Simon &
Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release, "Little Village," by Little Village, a new band made up of veteran rockers, Ry Cooder, John Hiatt, Nick Lowe, and Jim Keltner. (on Reprise).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:DAVE FOREMAN, the co-founder of the environmental group "Earth First." The group's been praised and vilified for its use of what's commonly called "monkey wrenching"... acts of sabotage and civil disobedience against organizations that are hurting the earth. Foreman currently faces federal felony charges for allegedly plotting to blow up power lines leading to a nuclear power plant. Foreman has a new book, called "Confessions of an Eco-Warrior." (published by Harmony Books). SECOND HALF OF SHOW:INT. 2:We talk with GERD LEIPOLD (li-pold) of the international coordinator for the Free Seas Campaign of Greenpeace. Leipold's group is calling for another Geneva Convention, this one to establish environmental rules for war. INT. 3:Professor Thomas Naff, of the University of Pennsylvania, and head of the Middle East Water Project. He discusses the overwhelming importance of water in the Middle east. He explains how the water beneath the occupied territories may be a factor in the Israeli government's refusal to cede those lands to the Palestinians. REV. 1:Book critic John Leonard reviews John Richardson's new biography of Pablo Picasso.

Interview with Joe Stork; Review of albums by Big Joe Turner, Jay McShann, and Jeannie and Jimmy Cheatham; Interview with Franz Lidz; Review of the television show "Of Moose and Men." March 12, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502018].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Joe Stork, the editor of "Middle East Report," discusses secretary of State Baker's trip to the MidEast. MUSIC REVIEW:Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews three albums that show the lasting influence of the blues. The artists he features are Big Joe Turner, Jay McShann, and Jeanie and Jimmy Cheatham. INT. 2:Author Franz Lidz. His new book, "Unstrung Heroes," is a memoir growing up with four crazy uncles. ARTS REVIEW: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Of Moose and Men: The Rocky and Bullwinkle Story." It airs this week on many public television stations.

Interview with Dmitry Sitkovetsky; Interview with Jodi Jacobson; Review two CDs featuring the Budapest String Quartet. March 13, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501370].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soviet born violinist DMITRY SITKOVETSKY (Sitz-ka-vets-kee). In the 1970s both he and his mother emigrated to the U.S. In 1988 DMITRY became the first post-war Soviet emigre musician to be invited back to USSR to perform. INT. 2: JODI JACOBSON senior researcher at the World Watch Institute. Her report, "The Global Politics of Abortion," is included in their annual State of the World report. It looks at how various countries handle the issue of reproductive rights and the affect that can have on the global environment. MUSIC REVIEW: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews recordings by the Budapest Quartet. The group was formed in the early 1900s and their recordings have been out of print for years. The new collection contains some Mozart pieces recorded in the early years of the Quartet. (Mozart String Quartet: Benny Goodman/Budapest Quartet on the EMI label).

Interview with Richard Mkhondo; Interview with Joe Davidson; Interview with Brett Easton Ellis; Interview with Tammy Bruce. March 14, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502019].

Description of show segment(s)

TWO reporters who cover South Africa: INT. 1: RICHARD MKHONDO (mah-condo). He's a black South African who covers his country for a western wire service. INT. 2: JOE DAVIDSON. He covers South Africa for the Wall Street Journal. He'll tell us what it's like to be an African American covering South Africa. INT. 3: Novelist BRETT EASTON ELLIS. Ellis has been vilified for his new novel, "American Psycho." That book contains many graphic scenes of violence against women...scenes of rape, murder, mutilation, and cannibalism. INT. 3: TAMMY BRUCE of the Los Angeles chapter of the National Organization for Women. That group opposes Ellis' book, and they've set up a phone hot line explaining their objections to the book, and featuring an excerpt from the novel. Their rationale being that if people use the hot line to sate their curiosity about the novel without buying it, and thereby rewarding Ellis.

Interview with James Fallows; Interview with Susan Schaller; Review of the film "Class Action."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:JAMES FALLOWS, the Washington editor for "The Atlantic Monthly." Fallows will discuss the ways America is still punishing Vietnam through economic means, 16 years after the war ended. INT. 2: Author Susan Schaller. Schaller's new book, "A Man Without Words," is a first-person account of her struggle to teach sign language to a deaf man who had reached adult life without anyone making any effort to teach him how to communicate. (It's published by Summit Books). ARTS REVIEW: Film critic Owen Gleiberman (gly-ber-man) reviews "Class Action," the new courtroom drama starring Gene Hackman and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio.

Interview with William McPherson; Review of Dennis Johnson's novel "Resuscitation of a Hanged Man"; Interview with Lorene Cary; Review of Graham Parker's album "Struck by Lightning."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Novelist and journalist WILLIAM MCPHERSON. He's currently working on a new book about the aftermath of the Romanian Revolution. An excerpt of the book recently appeared in the literary magazine, "Granta." BOOK REV.:Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Denis Johnson's novel, "Resuscitation of a Hanged Man," about a man recovering from a botched suicide attempt who goes on to be part time D.J./private eye. LEONARD calls the book, sad, scary, and existential. (published by Farrar, Straus & Giroux). INT. 2:Writer LORENE CARY. In the 1971 she was one of the first black female students to be enrolled at "St. Paul's" a private prep school in New Hampshire. CARY grew up in Philadelphia and won a scholarship there. Her memoir about entering the priviledged, elite world of the school is "Black Ice." (published by Knopf). MUSIC REV.:Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Graham Parker's new album, "Struck by Lightning."
Interview with Bill Beeman; Commentary on the Apple Records label; Interview with Ron Graham. March 19, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501905].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor BILL BEEMAN of Brown University discusses the historical and cultural background of the Kurdish population in the Middle East. MUSIC REV.: Rock historian ED WARD plays some of the forgotten recordings put out on the Apple Label. The Label was started by the Beatles. INT. 2: World class mathematician and world class juggler RON GRAHAM talks to us about his two great loves. He works at the AT&T Bell labs. He's one of the few people in American who can juggle seven balls.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We explore the history of the Israeli-Arab problem, with CHARLES SMITH, a professor of Middle Eastern history at San Diego State University, and the author of "Palestine and the Arab-Israeli Conflict." (published by St. Martin's). INT. 2: National Affairs Director of the National Black Police Association, Officer RON HAMPTON. HAMPTON has been a policeman for 19 years and he's gotten a reputation for speaking out against the misuse of power in the police force. He'll discuss the Los Angeles police brutality case. ARTS REV.: P-B-S's American Playhouse is celebrating it's tenth anniversary with the showing of two broadway productions: Steven Sonheim's "Into the Woods," and John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath." Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews both.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biologist, special effects expert, and bug wrangler RAY MENDEZ. Mendez' was responsible for the moths in the movie, "Silence of the Lambs" and the cockroaches in "Creepshow." INT. 2: Film maker Mario Van Peebles. He directed and co-starred in the new movie, "New Jack City." ARTS REV.: Film critic
Stephen Schiff reviews the new comedy "Defending Your Life," starring Albert Brooks and Meryl Streep as a recently deceased couple who fall in love.

Interview with Scott Armstrong; Interview with Thomas Laqueur; Commentary on health-themed newsletters and magazines. March 22, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502156].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Washington Post investigative journalist Scott Armstrong. He is co-author of the best-selling book on the Supreme Court, "The Brethren," and he is founder of the National Security Archives, a foreign policy research institute. We'll be talking about what the media has covered, and what it hasn't, in the Gulf War. INT. 2: We examine how our notions of sex and gender has changed over the centuries, with historian THOMAS LAQUEUR, author of the book, "Making Sex." (published by Harvard University Press). ARTS REV.: Critic Maureen Corrigan comments on the profusion of health newsletters and magazines.

Interview with Eric Hansen; Interview with Rick Bass; Commentary Indian pop music; Interview with James Smith; Review of home video releases of two of The Doors' concert films. March 25, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502154].

Description of show segment(s)

(A) Travel and adventure writer ERIC HANSEN. His new book, "Motoring with Mohammed," is a first-person account of Hansen's attempt to recover the dairies he buried on the coast of Yemen a decade before, after being ship wrecked there. (It's published by Houghton Mifflin). (B) Nature writer RICK BASS. His new book, "Winter," chronicles his life on a remote ranch in Montana. (It's also published by Houghton Mifflin). Music Rev: World music critic Milo Miles checks out a couple of acts that have been inspired by the music of India and Asia. INT. 2: Writer JAMES SMITH. His new book, "The Idea Brokers," examines the workings of Washington's many think tanks. Book Rev.: Film critic Owen Gleiberman (gly-ber-man) reviews two documentaries about the rock group the Doors.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two interviews in this half hour...1) Daniel Pipes, the Director of the Foreign Policy Research Institute discusses his recent trip to postwar Kuwait, and the future of that country. 2) Then Terry talks with Andrew Whitley, executive director of Middle East Watch. He'll discuss human rights violations in Kuwait; both abuses the Iraqis committed against the Kuwaitis, and the abuses the Kuwaitis are committing against the Palestinians. INT. 2: The second of a two-part interview with political economist ROBERT REICH. Reich's new book, "The Work of Nations," examines how America's traditional equating of industrial health with the financial well being of its citizens no longer applies. Today, Reich discusses how the U.S. can improve it economic health. (The book is published by Knopf). ARTS REV.: Television critic David Bianculli previews three shows worth catching this week...David Frost's interview with General Norman Schwarzkopf, Bob Costas' interview with musician Paul Simon, and the political comedy "House of Cards," premiering this week on Masterpiece Theater.
Interview with Amy Scholder and Ira Silverberg; Interview with Stephanie Barron; Interview with Tom Wicker; Interview with Josh Wesson. March 28, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502276].

Description of show segment(s)

(A) AMY SCHOLDER and IRA SILVERBERG. They're the editors of "High Risk," a new anthology of writings that challenge the often self-imposed censorships concerning things like unsafe sex, drug use, and sadomasochism. ("High Risk" is published by Dutton). (B) STEPHANIE BARRON. She's the curator of a new exhibit at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art called "Degenerate Art: The Fate of the Avant Garde in Nazi Germany." This exhibit recreates an exhibit the Nazis put together in 1937 to show the German public the types of art that they would no longer tolerate. INT. 2: Veteran journalist TOM WICKER. Wicker's just written a new examination of Richard Nixon, titled "One of Us." (It's published by Random House). ARTS REV.: JOSH WESSON, publisher and executive-editor of the Wine and Food Companion tells us what wines are best for the Seder table.

Interview with Elmer Bernstein; Interview with Faith Ringgold; Interview with Nick Park; Review of the film "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles II March 29, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502039].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer ELMER BERNSTEIN. He's composed the scores for around 80 films, including "The Man With the Golden Arm," "The Magnificent Seven," and "The Ten Commandments. He's done the scores for 2 new films -- "The Field" and "The Grifters." (rebroadcast from 1/10/91 -- was pre-empted at that time for Gulf coverage) INT. 2: Artist FAITH RINGGOLD. She combines painting and quilt making to create brightly colored and patterned story pictures. She lives in Harlem and teaches half the year at the University of California at San Diego. She's just completed a picture book for children, "Tar Beach," inspired by her story quilt of the same name, (published by Random house). INT. 3: Animator NICK PARK. His short animation, "Creature Comforts," won this year's Oscar for Best Animation. It's a five-minute parody of a documentary in which various zoo animals tell the camera how they feel about their living conditions. ARTS REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles Two: The Secret Ooze."
Interview with Alex Kotlowitz; Interview with Barry Michael Cooper; Review of James Clay's album "I Let a Song Go out of My Heart." April 2, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502040].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ALEX KOTLOWITZ (cot-lo-witz). Kotlowitz won the Robert F. Kennedy Journalism Award for a series of articles he wrote for the Wall Street Journal chronicling the lives of two children in a housing project in Chicago. He's expanded those articles into the new book, "There Are No Children Here: The Story of Two Boys Growing Up In the Other America." (It's published by Doubleday). INT. 2: Journalist and screenwriter BARRY MICHAEL COOPER. Cooper wrote the screenplay for the new movie, "New Jack City," and coined the term, "new jack swing," that inspired the movie's title. Cooper's reporting appears in The Village Voice and Spin. MUSIC REV: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album from saxophonist James Clay. Clay was part of the progressive jazz movement in the 50s, Kevin says this album is something of a comeback. (It's on Antilles).

Interview with Andrew H. Malcolm; Interview with Joel Dorn; Review of the television show "Unplugged." April 3, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502041].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ANDREW H. MALCOLM. Malcom's new book, "Someday," is his first-person account of his decision to take his mother off life support and the end of her terminal illness, a decision made ironic by the fact that Malcom often covers issues of medical ethics and the right to die for the New York Times. (The book's published by Knopf). INT. 2: Record producer JOEL DORN. Dorn's in charge of a new series of records on Virgin called Night Records...it's a series of albums featuring great live performances. The first four releases feature performances by Rahsaan Roland Kirk, Cannonball Adderley, Les McCann, and Eddie Harris. ARTS REV: Television critic David Bianculli reviews Paul McCartney's performance this week on "Unplugged." It's a weekly show on MTV that features rock musicians playing acoustic instruments before a small audience.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:(A) Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Book of Embraces," the new book by EDUARDO GALEANO. (B) Terry talks with writer EDUARDO GALEANO. He wrote the trilogy, "Memory of Fire," a latin american surrealistic history of the Americas. GALEANO comes from Uruguay. He fled to Argentina when the dictatorship took over and from Argentina he fled repression to go to Spain. His new book is "The Book of Embraces." (published by Norton.) INT. 2:Journalist JAMES O'SHEA and former chief economic correspondent for The Chicago Tribune. His book, "The Daisy Chain," is a case history of what went wrong with the Savings and Loans in this country. It looks at an S&L in Vernon, Texas owned by Don Dixon who was recently sentenced for defrauding regulators, illegally spending depositors' money, and other misdeeds. MUSIC REV: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Joni Mitchell's new album, "Night Ride Home."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:We speak with two reporters about the aftermath of the Gulf War:(1) New York Times Reporter PATRICK TYLER. He's been covering the gulf war and its aftermath. He talks with Terry about the administration's current goals and dilemmas in the postwar Mideast. (2) We check in again with FRED HALLIDAY, professor of International Relations at the London School of Economics, and a journalist with the British newspaper, "The Guardian." He talks with Terry about what he sees as the administration's obligations in Iraq and the issue of interference in another country's affairs. INT. 2:Film director and writer TODD HAYNES. He talks with Terry about his controversial new film, "Poison." ARTS REV:Film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews the recent video release of "The Last Picture Show."
Interview with Barney Rosset; Review of Betty T. Bennet's book "Mary Diana Dods"; Interview with Allison Krauss; Review of Susannah Hoff's album "When You're a Boy" and Alexander O'Neal's album "All True Man." April 9, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501907].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Publisher Barney Rosset. As founder of Grove Press, Rosset published such controversial works as "Tropic of Cancer" and "Last Exit to Brooklyn." Several years ago he was forced out of Grove and started his own publishing house, Blue Moon. Now works from there are being attacked as well. ARTS REV: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Mary Diana Dods: A Gentleman and a Scholar" by Betty T. Bennett. Dods was a Victorian writer who advanced her literary career by posing as a man. INT. 2: Bluegrass singer and fiddler ALISON KRAUSS. Krauss is still a teenager, but she's already a veteran, with three albums and a decade on the road to her credit. Her new album is called "I've Got That Old Feeling," on Rounder Records. MUSIC REV: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews two new solo albums, from Susanna Hoffs, a member of the Bangles, and from Alexander O'Neal.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Four interviews in this segment. We discuss Free Speech on college campuses with: (1) ED CHEN, Staff Counsel, American Civil Liberties Union of Northern California; (2) Journalist NAT HENTOFF; (3) PAT HODULIK, Senior Legal Counsel for the University of Wisconsin; and (4) VARTAN GREGORIAN, President of Brown University INT. 2: British rocker GRAHAM PARKER. He's been singing and writing songs for 15 years and is known for his angry, biting lyrics. He's just produced his 14th album, "Struck by Lightning." (RCA records).

Interview with Susannah McCorkle, Ben Aronov, and John Goldsby; Review of Kitty Kelley's book "Nancy Reagan"; Interview with Winnie Holtzman and Richard Kramer; Review of the

Description of show segment(s)

1. SUSANNAH MCCORKLE returns to Fresh Air for another in-studio concert. She's joined by pianist BEN ARONOV and bassist JOHN GOLDSBY. 2. Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN review Nancy Reagan: The Unauthorized Biography, by Kitty Kelley. 3. WINNIE HOLTZMAN and RICHARD KRAMER write for the television show Thirtysomething. A new book compiling their scripts has just been released. 4. Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Mister Johnson," directed by Bruce Beresford.

Interview with Pham Thanh and Elizabeth Farnsworth; Interview with Steven Feld; Review of the television show "The 90s." April 15, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502388].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Vietnamesse-American PHAM THANH and American film maker ELIZABETH FARNSWORTH. As a child, Thanh was seriously injured when the Americans bombed his village. He eventually was brought to America and raised by foster parents. Farnsworth has made a documentary about Thanh's life, and the legacy of the Vietnam war on that country's children. It's called "Thanh's War," and it's being shown this week on PBS. INT. 2: Terry talks with ethnomusicologist STEVEN FELD. His new record, "Voices of the Rainforest," captures the songs of the Kaluli (KAH-loo-lee) people of Paupa New Guinea. Feld also works for preservation of the world's rain forests, since if the forests are eliminated, so will much indigenous music. (The record is on Rycodisc). REV. 1: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The 90s," public television's weekly, quirky look at modern life.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:MICHAEL JACKSON (No, not THAT Michael Jackson). He's a beer expert. He's written the "Pocket Guide to Beer (The Connoisseur's companion to over 1000 Beers of the World)," by Simon & Schuster. He lives in England and has also written "The New World Guide to Beer." REV.:Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Sarah Maitland's new novel, "Three Times Table." INT. 2:FAITH SALE of PEN, the international writers group, and CHRISTINA SERFATY (ser-fah-tee) whose husband is the Moroccan writer, Abraham Serfaty. He's been in jail for 17 years because of his writing. PEN just gave Serfaty its "Freedom to Write" award to call attention to his plight. REV.:Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two recent recordings of American composer Elliott Carter's works. One of the Composers String Quartet playing his Fourth Quartet along with Quartets by Milton Babbitt and Mel Powell (on the Music & Arts label); and works by Carter and Bach featuring cellist Thomas Demenga (on the ECM label).

Interview with Kenneth L. Woodward; Interview with Gita Mehta; Commentary on Ray Lema. April 17, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502067].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We examine how the Gulf War has changed the arms race, with journalist JAMES ADAMS. He's the Defense Correspondent and Associate Editor of The Sunday Times of London, and the author of "Engines of War: Merchants of Death and the New Arms Race." INT. 2: Film director and screen writer Paul Schrader. His screenwriting credits include "Taxi Driver" and "The Last Temptation of Christ." Schrader's directing credits include "Hard Core," "Light of Day," "American Gigolo" and "Patty Hearst." Schrader's new movie is the psychological drama, "The Comfort of Strangers." REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new French film, "Daddy Nostalgia," starring Dirk Bogard as a man at the end of his life.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor TONY CURTIS. In 1960 he starred in the film, "Spartacus" about a leader of slaves revolting against Republican Rome. A restored version of the film is being released that includes previously cut scenes. CURTIS was featured in such a scene with Laurence Olivier. In it CURTIS plays a slave who is seduced by his master. Terry talks with CURTIS about making the film, and the censored scene. REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "A Morning for Flamingos," David Lee Burke's fourth novel in a series about a Cajun detective in New Orleans. INT. 2: Documentary film maker ROSS MCELWEE. He made the film, "Sherman's March," in which he set out to trace William Tecumseh Sherman's march to the sea, but it really traces his entanglements with Southern women along the way. His new film, "Something to Do With The Wall," began as a story about the eternal presence of the wall, but ended up a story of the wall's breaking down. He's joined by his partner and editor, MARILYN LEVINE. REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the "Bob Dylan: The Bootleg Series," a three record set which covers three decades of Dylan's career. It includes 57 songs.
Interview with Mary Gordon; Interview with Wendell Harris; Commentary on the FMP record label. April 22, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502069].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist MARY GORDON. She's got a new collection of essays, "Good Boys and Dead Girls: And Other Essays. (Viking Press). Catholicism has been a constant theme in her novels, which include: "Final Payment," and "The Company of Women." American fiction by men, Catholicism, and abortion are some of the issues she write about in her new book. INT. 2: Film maker WENDELL HARRIS. His new movie is "Chameleon Street," about an imposter: a young black man who successfully passed himself off as a surgeon, a Yale Student, a Time magazine journalist, and an attorney. It's based on a true story. It won the 1990 Sundance Film Festival's Grand Jury Prize for Best Dramatic Film. REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD has a review of recordings on the FMP label. The label specializes in free jazz and features many American and European musicians.

Interview with Vitali Korotych; Interview with Sandra Cisneros; Review of the television shows "My Life and Times" and "Dinosaurs." April 23, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502170].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soviet editor VITALYI KORTYCH, (Veh-tal-ee Ka-row-tich) of the Soviet Magazine "Ogonyuk," the first magazine that reflected the Soviet Union's new openness. INT. 2: Writer SANDRA CISNEROS. Her first book, "The House on Mango Street," told the story of Esperanza Cordero, a young girl growing up in the Latino quarter of Chicago. CISNEROS has a new collection of stories, "Woman Hollering Creek." REV.: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI tells us about two new series premiering on ABC this week: "My Life and Times," by the creator of "Beauty and the Beast," and "Dinosaurs," a comedy that was the last project of Jim Henson.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ROBIN WRIGHT of the L.A. Times talks with Frank Browning about autonomy for the Kurds. WRIGHT has written several books about the Mid-East. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews composer Meyer Kupferman's new release, "Images of Chagall," which includes musical depictions of Chagall paintings and incorporates elements from folk and jazz music. (Soundspells label). INT. 2: Essayist and poet DAVID MURA. He's a third generation Japanese-American who in 1984 visited Japan for the first time. His own grandfather left Japan at the turn of the century, and during World War Two MURA's parents were interned in a relocation camp. He's written a memoir about his trip to Japan, "Turning Japanese: Memoirs of a Sansei." (Atlantic Monthly Press). REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN tells us about the new exhibit by photographer Annie Leibovitz.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Michael Pollan; Review of the television show "Larry King TNT Special"; Interview with France Nuyen; Review of REM's album "Out of Time." April 29, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502604].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Gloria Emerson; Interview with William Jordan; Commentary on archaic vocabulary. April 30, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501294].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist GLORIA EMERSON. She's covered wars in Nigeria, Northern Ireland and Zimbabwe. She has a new book about the intifadah and in particular about the Gaza strip where the intifada began four years ago. The book is "Gaza" published by the Atlantic Monthly Press. INT. 2:Biologist WILLIAM JORDAN. His new book of essays contemplates the similarities between the animal and human mind by looking at behavior. It's "Divorce Among The Gulls: An Uncommon Look at Human Nature." (North Point Press) REV.:Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on word that are no longer part of our language. (repeat).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Actress DAISY EAGAN & her father, actor RICHARD EAGAN. DAISY is starring as the young heroine, Mary Lenox, in the Broadway production of "The Secret Garden." RICHARD EAGAN is working on a performance piece about stories from Coney Island. Frank talks to DAISY and her father about pretending, acting, and how a broadway career affects their family life. INT. 2:Sidewalk Astronomer JOHN DOBSON. He travels the country with a collection of telescopes setting them up in locations where people who have never reviewed the heavens can get an opportunity to do so. He recently appeared on the PBS series, "The Astronomers." REV. :Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "The All-American Sousa," a collection of marches by John Philip Sousa that includes both new recordings and recordings of Sousa himself from 70 years ago. (Delos label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Performance artist and comedian JEFFREY ESSMAN. Essman's currently performing his one man show, "Artificial Reality," in New York City. INT. 2: We examine the current craze surrounding low-fat and low cholesterol foods. We talk with three people... First, nutritionist Jayne Hurley of the advocacy group, Science In The Public Interest talks about recent marketing trends in "healthy" food...things like McDonald's "McLean" burger. Second, Wall Street Journal cultural writer Raymond Sokolov talks about America's obsession with food and fat. Third, cardiologist Thomas Graboys of the Harvard School of Public Health gives us some sane advice about diet and health.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:First amendment lawyer MARTIN GARBUS. He recently defended Peter Matthiessen's controversial book, "In the Spirit of Crazy Horse," against two separate libel suits. Among many other projects, Garbus is currently helping to write a new constitution for Czechoslovakia. INT. 2:Writer PETER MARIN (MARE-in). Marin has written a long essay on the moral basis for pacifism, nationalism, and war. His reflections were precipitated by the war in the Gulf. REV. :Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Sylvester Stallone's new movie "Oscar."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:A concert with singer EXENE CERVENKA formerly of the punk-rock group "X." She's now has a solo career. Her most recent album is "Running Sacred." Her debut album from 1989 is "Old Wives' Tales." (both out on Rhino Records). INT. 2:Writer P. F. KLUGE (clue-gah). He was a peace corp volunteer in Micronesia, a group of 2000 islands in the Pacific. He's written a book, "Edge of Paradise" (Random House) contrasting, the exotic quality of this "lost paradise" with the worst aspects of American culture that the Micronesians seem to be drawn to in an effort to become more Americanized.

REV. 1: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks back on the final episode of "Dallas" and the show's 13 year history.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Broadway composer JOHN KANDER of the songwriting team, KANDER & EBB. They wrote the music for "Cabaret" and such songs as "New York, New York," and "And the World Goes Around."

---

Interview with Cynthia Heimer; Interview with Thomas Mapfumo; Review of Gloria Emerson's Book "Gaza May 8, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502601].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist CYNTHIA HEIMEL. Heimel writes about the perils of being a single woman in the 90s for both The Village Voice and Playboy. There's a new collection of her columns, titled "If You Can't Live Without Me, Why Aren't You Dead Yet?" (It's published by Atlantic). INT. 2: Musician THOMAS MAPFUMO. His countrymen call Mapfumo "The Lion of Zimbabwe," for his outspoken political stance during Zimbabwe struggle for independence. (The country used to be the white controlled nation of Rhodesia). Mapfumo, and his band, The Blacks Unlimited, have a new album, called "Chamunorwa." It's

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Artist JUNE WAYNE. She's credited with reviving the art of lithography in this country. In 1960 Wayne founded the Tamarind Workshop in Los Angeles. She's considered one of the prominent lithographers in this country. INT. 2: Writer BERNARD COOPER. He just won PEN's Ernest Hemingway Foundation Award for a first work of fiction for his collection of essays, "Maps to Anywhere." (Published by the University of Georgia Press.) REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Seizing the Enigma" by David Kahn. It's about the enigma project--the allies attempt to break Nazi codes during World War II.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British actress Joan Plowright. She's one of her nation's leading actresses, having appeared on the London stage since the mid 50s. She's also been on Broadway, had numerous role on British television, and appeared in the films "The Dressmaker," "I Love You To Death," and "Avalon." She was also married to the late actor Sir Lawrence Oliver. Plowright stars in the new movie, "Drowning By Numbers." It's by director Peter Greenway, who made last year's controversial movie, "The Cook, The Thief, His Wife, and Her Lover." INT. 2: Film historian KEVIN BROWNLOW. Brownlow's best-known as the man who reconstructed the silent movie masterpiece "Napoleon." Brownlow's new book, "Behind the Mask of Innocence," is an examination of how pre-World War One film makers addressed social issues of the day. (It's published by Knopf). (Rebroadcast. Original date 1/2/91). ARTS REVIEW: JOHN LEONARD reviews the new collection of essays by veteran Polish journalist Ryszard Kapuscinski (ree-shard cap-shin-skee).

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Bill Murray; Interview with Simon Schama; Commentary on the term "politically correct." May 13, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502310].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian and actor BILL MURRAY. Murray first came to prominence as a cast member of "Saturday Night Live." He then went on to appear in movies such as "Ghostbusters," "Caddyshack," "Meatballs," "Stripes," and "Quick Change." He stars now in the new comedy, "What About Bob?" INT. 2: Historian SIMON SCHAMA. His new historical novel, "Dead Certainties," examines the deaths of two historical figures from various perspectives. (It's published by Alfred A. Knopf). REV. 1: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG examines the evolution of the term politically correct.
Interview with Bob Woodward; Interview with John Richardson and Paloma Picasso; Review of several new made-for-TV movies. May 14, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502102].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist BOB WOODWARD. His new book, "The Commanders," examines the key defense figures of the Bush Administration. (It's published by Simon and Schuster). INT. 2: John Richardson. Richardson's new biography, "A Life of Picasso," has been hailed as the best work on the great artist. We'll also talk with Picasso's daughter, Paloma Picasso. (It's published by Random House). REV.: Television critic David Bianculli checks out some made-for-TV movies that you should definitely miss.

Interview with Sam Fussell; Interview with Jeff Weinstein; Review of three new albums featuring jazz saxophone quartets. May 15, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501372].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer SAM FUSSELL. Fussell was scared of living in the big city, so he decided he'd look like less of a target if he took up body building. He chronicles his four year transformation in his book, "Muscle: Confessions of an Unlikely Body Builder." INT. 2: We talk food with Jeff Weinstein ("wine-steen"), the food critic for the Village Voice. REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead has the first of a two part review of several current saxophone quartets.

Interview with Rory Nugent; Review of the compilation album "Deadicated"; Interview with Mark Lewis; Review of the ROVA Saxophone Quartet's albums "Electric Rags II" and "Long on Logic." May 16, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501953].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Rory Nugent; Review of the compilation album "Deadicated"; Interview with Mark Lewis; Review of the ROVA Saxophone Quartet's albums "Electric Rags II" and "Long on Logic."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist GERALD POSNER. His book, "Hitler's Children," examines the lives of sons and daughters of leaders of the Third Reich. It includes the son of Dr. Joesph Mengele, and the son of Rudolf Hess. (published by Random House). KARL SAUR JR joins the interview. INT. 2: Journalist ERIC LAX. He's written a new biography of Woody Allen, called (appropriately enough) "Woody Allen." Lax has been a privileged witness to the rise of Allen's career. He first interviewed Allen in 1971 during the filming of "Bananas," and over the next 20 years they kept up an on-going conversation. (published by Knopf) REV. :Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Eating," the new film by Henry Jaglom.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Morris Dees; Interview with Phil Wheeler and Jonathan Tasini; Review of Henry Kissinger's appearance on the television shows "CBS This Morning." May 21, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502359].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Civil Rights Lawyer MORRIS DEES. He co-founded the Southern Poverty Law Center and has been involved in civil rights cases for years. In 1988 he made legal history when he fashioned a seven million dollar verdict against the Klu Klux Klan that effectively bankrupted the group. He has a new memoir out, "A Season for Justice: The Life & Times of Civil Rights Lawyer Morris Dees," (written with Steve Fifer, published by Scribners). INT. 2:Terry talks with two people about the proposed affiliation between the United Auto Workers (UAW) and the National Writers Union. She talks to PHIL WHEELER, district director of the UAW and Jonathan Tasini, President of the National Writers Union. REV.:Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Henry Kissinger's guest spot on CBS's morning news show this morning. Apparently Kissinger gave a weather report.

Interview with E.J. Dionne; Interview with John Canemaker; Commentary on Buddy Knox. May 22, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501949].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist E.J. DIONNE, JR. His new book is, "Why Americans Hate Politics." It's an analysis of what's gone wrong in American politics. (published by Simon & Schuster). INT. 2:Animator JOHN CANEMAKER. His new book is "Felix: The Twisted Tale of the World's Most Famous Cat." The cartoon character was well known on television, but CANEMAKER argues that Felix's best days were when he was a silent film star. REV.:Rock historian ED WARD remembers West Texas rocker BUDDY KNOX who had a couple of hits in the 1950s. (Like "Party Doll," and "Hoola Love."
Interview with Carl Oppedahl; Interview with Frank Smyth; Commentary on "cacophonism." May 23, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501371].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Attorney and consumer advocate, CARL OPPEDAHL. He's compiled a Consumer Reports Book, "The Phone Book: How to Get the Telephone Equipment and Service you want and Pay Less." INT. 2: Journalist FRANK SMYTH (sm-eye-th). Smyth is a free lance reporter who has worked for the Village Voice and CBS News. He and photographer Gad Gross were travelling with the Kurds in Iraq when they were pursued by Iraqi soldiers--Smyth was captured and Gross was killed. (Part 1 of 2) REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG has invented a new word--cacophomism. Its the opposite of euphemism, and is for all those words that make something sound worse than it is.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soviet emigre DAVID GUREWITCH (GIR-ah-vich). He's the author of "From Lenin to Lennon," a memoir about growing up in the 60s. REV.: In honor of Bob Dylan's 50th birthday, Fresh Air replays comedian Richard Belzer's Dylan impersonation from a 1987 interview (originally broadcast December 31, 1987). INT. 2: PART TWO of Terry's interview with Journalist FRANK SMYTH (sm-eye-th). Smyth is a free lance reporter who has worked for the Village Voice and CBS News. He and photographer Gad Gross were traveling with the Kurds in Iraq when they were pursued by Iraqi soldiers--Smyth was captured and Gross was killed. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews, "Backdraft," the new film about firefighters by director Ron Howard.
Interview with LaVern Baker; Interview with David Alan Grier; Review of Betty's album "Hello Betty!" May 27, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501174].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Veteran rhythm and blues singer LaVern Baker. Baker had a series of hits in the 50s, among them "Bumblebee," and "Jim Dandy to the Rescue." (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 3/26/91) INT. 2: Actor DAVID ALAN GRIER cast member of "In Living Color." He appears in the regular sketches, "Men on Film," as film producer Clavel, and others. (rebroadcast. originally aired 4/1/91) REV. 1: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN on the female trio singing group, "Betty."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Philosopher and writer SISSELA BOK (Siss-ala Bahk). She's the author of several books on the ethics of lying and keeping secrets. Her new book is a memoir about her mother, Alva Myrdal, who was called the most modern woman in the world. Both of Bok's parents were Nobel Prize winners. The book is "Alva Myrdal: A Daughter's Memoir," published by Addison Wesley. INT. 2: Journalist ARI L. GOLDMAN. He's the religion correspondent for The New York Times. He's written a new book, "The Search for God At Harvard," about the year he took off from his job to attend the Harvard Divinity School. It's about his experiences there and how they affected his own faith as an orthodox jew. (published by Random House). REV.: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews a biography of Paul Scott, who wrote the Raj Quartet, which includes the Jewel in the Crown.

Interview with Minnie Bruce Pratt; Commentary on forro music; Interview with Alex Chilton; Review of Myrna Katz Frommer and Harvey Frommer's book "It Happened in the Catskills." May 29, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501527].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet MINNIE BRUCE PRATT. Her book of poetry, "Crime Against Nature," was chosen by the Academy of American Poets as the 1989 Lamont Poetry Selection. Many of her poems are about being a lesbian, and losing custody of her two sons when she came out. Pratt just won the Hammett/Hellman Award, given by the Fund for Free Expression. REV. 1:World music commentator MILO MILES tells us about the Brazilian music called forro. David Byrne just came out with an album of forro music. INT. 2:Singer/Songwriter/Guitarist ALEX CHILTON. He was a teenage rock star in the late 60's as the singer with the group the Box Tops. Their major hits included Cry Like a Baby and The Letter. Chilton went on to found the group Big Star. Their two albums in the early seventies, Number 1 Record and Radio City are highly acclaimed by rock fans and musicians. Chilton has continued a solo career. Rhino Records has just released a new compilation CD called, 19 YEARS: A COLLECTION OF ALEX CHILTON. REV. :Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the book "It Happened in the Catskills," (Myrna Katz Frommer & Harvey Frommer) an oral history of the resorts that made up what was known as the Borsht Belt. (Harcourt, Brace, Jovanich)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Sociologist MARCIA MILLMAN. Her latest book, "Warm Hearts & Cold Cash: The Intimate Dynamics of Families and Money," (The Free Press) is about how people use money as a tool of power and a symbol for certain emotions in family relationships. Millman is professor and chair of sociology at the University of California at Santa Cruz. She also wrote "Such a Pretty Face: Being Fat in America."

INT. 2:Author and professor PADRAIG O'MALLEY. His most recent book, "Biting At the Grave: The Irish Hunger Strikes and the Politics of Despair" (Beacon Press), looks at the IRA hunger strikes in 1981, that ended in 10 deaths, and their meaning for the Irish people. O'Malley challenges conventional wisdom on each side of the conflict. Formal talks between Protestant and Catholic political leaders over the future of Northern Ireland are to begin next Monday. Northern Ireland Secretary Peter Brooke has spent 15 months organizing the talks, which are the first to be held in 15 years.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:DR. IRVING RUST. His clinic in the South Bronx challenged a ban on federally funding family planning clinics giving information on abortion. The case went to the Supreme Court last week and the court upheld the lower court decision. Terry talks with Dr. Rust about his work at the clinic and his experience going before the Supreme Court. REV.:Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new television shows. One by Norman Lear, "Sunday Dinner," and the other by David Attenborough, "Trials of Life." INT. 2:Actor KEVIN SPACEY. Spacey is starring in a new American Playhouse film "Darrow," on the life of the famous lawyer Clarence Darrow. He's best known for his role as Mel Proffitt in the TV series "Wiseguy." Spacey recently played the role of evangelist Jim Bakker in the NBC movie "Fall From Grace" and is currently starring on Broadway in Neil Simon's new play, "Lost in Yonkers." REV. :Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Soap Dish," the new comedy starring Kevin Kline, and Sally Field.

Interview with Ken Jackson and Camilo Jose Vergara; Interview with Billie Whitelaw; Commentary on endangered languages. June 3, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501175].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:We examine the American cemetery, with Kenneth Jackson and Camilo Jose Vergara. Jackson's a professor of social science and urban planning at Columbia University, Vergara is a photographer who specializes in the rise and fall of the urban scene. The pair have collaborated on a new book called "Silent Cities: The Evolution of the American Cemetery." It's published by Princeton Architectural Press. (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 12/13/90) INT. 2:British actress BILLIE WHITELAW. Whitelaw's well-known in Britain, but she's little-recognized in America. She can be seen in the new movie, "The Krays." Whitelaw also worked with playwright Samuel Beckett.(rebroadcast. Originally aired 11/26/90) REV. 1:Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG tells us about endangered languages.
Interview with Sam LaBudde, Josh Floum, and Philippe Charat; Interview with Mary Morris; Commentary on the Max Factor Museum of Beauty. June 4, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501173].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry talks about tuna fishing and free trade with:(1) Activist SAM LABUDDE, of the Earth Island Institute. He went undercover on a tuna boat and video taped the slaughter of dolphins during tuna fishing. The tape was instrumental in starting the tuna boycott.(2) Attorney, JOSH FLOUM sued the Bush Administration to get it to enforce its law regarding dolphin-safe tuna fishing. (3) PHILIPPE CHARAT, President of the Tuna Association of Mexico. He responds to criticism that fishermen are killing dolphins while tuna fishing. INT. 2:Writer MARY MORRIS. Her new book is "Wall to Wall: From Beijing to Berlin by Rail." She took the trip five years ago as glastnost and perestroika were beginning, before the government crackdown in Tiananmen Square and the Eastern European revolutions. This is the second of two travel memoirs that she has written that focus on how it is to travel as a woman. MORRIS also writes novels, stories, and she frequently contributes columns to The New York Times. REV.:Independent producer Harriet Baskas takes us on a tour of the Max Factor Museum of Beauty.

Interview with John Sayles; Review of the television show "I, Claudius"; Interview with Robert Venturi and Denise Scott Brown; Review of a home video of Wagner's "Ring Cycle." June 5, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501530].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Filmmaker JOHN SAYLES. His films include Return of the Secaucus Seven, Brother From Another Planet, Matewan, and Eight Men Out. Sayles has just written a novel, called Los Gusanos, about Cuban Americans living in Miami. (HarperCollins). He also has a new film coming out in August, City of Hope. REV. 1:Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews Masterpiece Theater's "I, Claudius," which is being rebroadcast beginning this Sunday. INT. 2:Architects ROBERT VENTURI and DENISE SCOTT BROWN. Venturi has just been awarded the prestigious Pritzker Architecture Prize. His famous response to the modernist philosophy that "less is more," was "less is a bore," and is credited as a major turning point in modernist architecture. Venturi and Brown are the authors of several books on architecture. Current projects include a new wing of the National Gallery in Trafalgar Square in London, and a new building for the Seattle Art Museum. REV.:Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new videotape of the first time Wagner's Ring Cycle was broadcast on television, with conductor Pierre Boulez and stage director Patrice Chereau.

Interview with Elaine Sciolino; Interview with Lou Cannon; Review of the film "Thelma and Louise." June 6, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501172].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ELAINE SCIOLINO. For more than a decade SCIOLINO has been reporting on the Middle East. She was one of few American journalists who recognized the danger of Saddam Hussein before the invasion of Kuwait. She currently is a diplomatic correspondent covering U.S. foreign policy and national security issues for the New York Times. Her new book is "The Outlaw State: Saddam Hussein's Quest for Power and the Gulf Crisis." (published by John Wiley & Sons, Inc.) INT. 2: Journalist LOU CANNON, the Los Angeles correspondent for the Washington Post. As a reporter for the "San Jose Mercury News," and later as "The Washington Post" White House correspondent he covered Ronald Reagan as Governor and President. He's just written a new book about the Reagan presidency, "President Reagan: A Role of a Lifetime." (published by Simon & Schuster). REV. 1: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Thelma and Louise."

Interview with Barbara Lea and Tony Tamburello; Interview with Ken Roth; Review of the film "Jungle Fever." June 7, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501386].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer BARBARA LEA with a musical tribute to Cole Porter. She had her start singing in the 1950s in Boston and then moved to New York where she recorded her first album in 1955 to critical acclaim. She's been compared to the late Lee Wiley. Her other influences are Mildred Baily and Billie Holiday. She dropped out of singing for a while but made a come back during the 70s in New York's cabaret world. Nat Hentoff, of "The Nation" wrote,"her phrasing is easily personal... thoughtful, sometimes grave, often lightly touched with wit so secure it doesn't have to advertise itself...as natural as a spring breeze." BARBARA LEA is accompanied by pianist, TONY TAMBURELLO. He was Sinatra's rehearsal pianist, and he was on the road accompanying Tony Bennett for 21 years. INT. 2: Deputy Director of Human Rights Watch KEN ROTH. He's just spent 9 days in Kuwait observing the trials of persons accused of being collaborators with the Iraqis. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Spike Lee's new film, "Jungle Fever."

---

Interview with Julia Alvarez; Interview with Ken Roth; Review of the best songs of the summer.

June 10, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501382]

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Latina writer JULIA ALVAREZ. Alvarez was born in to a prosperous family in the Dominican Republic, but when she was 10 her family moved to New York City. Alvarez's new novel, "How the Garcia Girls Lost Their Accents," is a semi-autobiographical work about the clash of cultures in her life.
INT. 2: We examine the state of human rights in post-war Kuwait, with Ken Roth, the deputy director of Human Rights Watch. He just returned from a nine day visit to Kuwait. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker checks out some of this summer's hot singles.

---

Obituary for Stan Getz; Interview with Christopher Durang; Review of five CD releases of Duke Ellington concerts.

June 11, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501951]

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember the late Stan Getz, who died last week at age 64. We rebroadcast an interview Terry had Getz last year (on 6/14/90).
INT. 2: Playwright and performance artist CHRISTOPHER DURANG. Durang is best-known for his controversial play, "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All For You." A collection of six of his plays has been published. It's called "Christopher Durang Explains It All For You." (published by Grove Weidenfeld) (Rebroadcast. Original date 1/8/91). REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Duke Ellington's Carnegie Hall Concerts," a new series of CD reissues that chronicle the annual performances Ellington gave during the 40s. (The set's being issued on the Prestige and JVC labels).
Interview with Jed Perl; Interview with Daniel Stern; Commentary on musicians influenced by Bob Dylan. June 12, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501866].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We examine the crisis in the commercial banking industry, with Washington Post reporter Jerry Knight. INT. 2: Poet and N-P-R commentator Andrei Codrescu. Codrescu's new book, "A Hole In The Flag," examines how the exuberance in his native Romania after the overthrow of Ceausescu turned to cynicism and with the realization that Ceausescu's overthrow changed nothing. REV. 1: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Open Letters," the new collection of writings by Vaclav Havel.

Description of show segment(s)

Jay Gould. INT. 2:Film maker Peter Adair. Adair's new documentary, "Absolutely Positive," profiles 11 people, including Adair, who are HIV positive. It airs this week on PBS. REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves."

Interview with Joseph Vasquez; Commentary on the song "Sally Go Round the Roses"; Interview with Ronald Brownstein; Review of the television show "P.O.V." June 17, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501869].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Filmmaker JOSEPH VASQUEZ. His new movie, "Hangin' With The Homeboys," is a semi-autobiographical movie about Vasquez' home neighborhood in the South Bronx. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward tells the story of "Sally Go Round the Roses," a strange, enigmatic song that was a hit in 1963. INT. 2: Journalist RONALD BROWNSTEIN. His book, "The Power and the Glitter," looks at alliances between politicians and movie stars and other celebrities. Brownstein is the national political correspondent for the Los Angeles Times. (The book's published by Pantheon). (REBROADCAST. ORIGINAL DATE 2/4/91). REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews the season premiere of public television's documentary series, "P.O.V." It debuts this Tuesday night with "Absolutely Positive," Peter Adair's film about 11 people who have tested positive for the virus that causes AIDS.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Author MARC REISNER. His new book, "Game Wars," chronicles the work of undercover agents trying to stop the illegal hunting and sale of endangered species. (It's published by Viking). INT. 2: Writers Lindsy Van Gelder and Pamala Robin Brandt. They're the co-authors of "Are You Two...Together?" It's a gay and lesbian travel guide to Europe. (It's published by Random House). REV.: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new 8 CD reissue of the complete Beethoven piano sonatas, performed by pianist Artur Schnabel.
Interview with Amy Tan; Review of Curlew's album "Bee" and Doctor Nerve's album "Beta 14 OK"; Interview with Patricia Williams; Commentary on women changing their names after marriage. June 19, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501864].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Author AMY TAN. Tan's debut novel, "The Joy Luck Club," was a huge critical and commercial success, and it earned Tan a nomination for the National Book Award. She has a new novel now, called "The Kitchen God's Wife." REV:Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead checks out a couple of bands that are part of New York's so-called "downtown" jazz scene; Curlew and Doctor Nerve. INT. 2:Law professor PATRICIA WILLIAMS. Williams' new book, "The Alchemy of Race and Rights," is her personal reflection on racism in American life and society. (It's published by Harvard University Press). REV: Commentator Maureen Corrigan discusses one aspect of married life that still causes controversy; a bride's decision whether or not to change her name.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Al Green; Interview with Sylvia Thorson-Smith; Review of the film "Dying Young." June 21, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502273].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer AL GREEN. Green's one of the greats of soul and gospel music. He's probably best known for his hit, "Let's Stay Together." He'll talk about his musical career, and about his being "born again" as a Christian. INT. 2: SYLVIA THORSON-SMITH. She's a chief author and the editor of a report on sexuality recently presented to the national convention of the Presbyterian Church. That report urged the Church to relax its strictures against homosexuality and premarital sex. The Presbyterian Church overwhelmingly rejected the report. REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews, "Dying Young," starring Julia Roberts.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British actress Joan Plowright. She's one of her nation's leading actresses, having appeared on the London stage since the mid 50s. She's also been on Broadway, had numerous role on British television, and appeared in the films "The Dressmaker," "I Love You To Death," and "Avalon." She was also married to the late actor Sir Lawrence Oliver. Plowright most recently stared in "Drowning By Numbers." It's by director Peter Greenway, who made the controversial movie, "The Cook, The Thief, His Wife, and Her Lover." (Rebroadcast. Original date 4/11/91). INT. 2: Fresh Air producer Amy Salit interviews filmmaker STEPHEN FREARS. Frears latest film, "The Grifters," has just come out on home video. It stars Angelica Huston and John Cusack. Frears earlier films include "My Beautiful Launderette," "Sammy and Rosie Get Laid," "Prick Up Your Ears," and "Dangerous Liaisons." (Rebroadcast. Original date 12/27/90). REV.: Television critic David Bianculli checks out "Comedy Central." It's the new cable comedy network formed by the merger of "The Comedy Channel," and the "HA! Comedy Network." David's favorite is "Mystery Science Theater 3000." It's kind of a science fiction comedy version of "Saturday Night at the Movies." It features a different bad movie each week, with irreverent comments from the host of the show and his robot sidekicks.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer ANDRE DUBUS ("dah-bues"). Dubus' short stories earned him this year's Bernard Malamud Award from the writers group, PEN. Dubus has just released his first work of non-fiction, a collection of essays, called "Broken Vessels." It's published by Godine. INT. 2:(1) Czech writer Ivan Klima (ee-vahn klee-mah). Klima was one of Czechoslovakia leading dissident writers, and was recently elected the president of the Czech chapter of PEN. We talk with him about his life under Communism, and his reaction to this week's removal of Soviet troops in Czechoslovakia. (2) And MICHAEL MARCH, who organized an international book and writers festival in Prague last month. REV.:Book critic John Leonard reviews "Jernigan," the first novel from writer David Gates. It's published by Knopf.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Marvin Miller; Interview with Jimmy Guterman and Owen O'Donnell; Review of the film "The Naked Gun 2 1/2 June 27, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502054].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Free Agent and author MARVIN MILLER. He was the first executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association when it was formed in 1966. He was executive director until 1983. To some, he's the man responsible for the dramatic increase in player's salaries, and for ending the system that bound an athlete to one team forever. To others, he's the man who depreciated the value of teams and made millionaires out of players. His new book is "A Whole Different Ballgame," (Publishers Weekly).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Singer, Songwriter, guitarist RICHARD THOMPSON from Britian. He first became known from his work with "Fairport Convention." He's since gone solo and is known for his dark songs which blend elements of British folk ballads and the blues. His new album is "Rumor and Sigh," (on Capital Records).

INT. 2:Journalist MILTON VIORST of the New Yorker. His speciality is the Middle East. In April he was in Bagdad. He'll talk with Terry about his trip there. REV. :Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album by MARSHALL CRENSHAW, "Life's Too Short."
Interview with Martin Sanchez-Jankowski; Interview with J. P. Bianchi; Review of Boukman Eksperyans' album "Vodou Adjae." July 1, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457793].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MARTIN ("Mar-teen") SANCHEZ JANKOWSKI, a professor of Sociology at the University of California, Berkeley, lived among ethnically diverse street gangs in New York, Boston and Los Angeles from 1978 to 1988. His observations are contained in his new book, Islands in the Street: Gangs in American Urban Society (Univ. of Cal. Press). NT. 2: J.P. BIANCHI is a Social Studies supervisor for Community School District 8 in the Bronx. He stopped teaching in 1986, and is now responsible for the shape of the Social Studies curriculum for the entire district. A recent New York Board of Regents report examined the state of Social Studies, and Bianchi comments. REV: World music commentator MILO MILES reviews music from Haiti by the group Boukman Eksperyans. ("Vodou Adjae", on the Mango label).

---

Interview with Jon Alpert and Maryann De Leo; Interview with Tim Burton; Review of Charlie Watts's album "From One Charlie..." July 2, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457899].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalists JON ALPERT and MARYANN DE LEO. The two have filmed wars, crimes in progress, and homeless families living in garbage dumps. Their latest documentary, "Rape: Cries from the Heartland," will be shown on PBS. INT. 2: Film Director TIM BURTON. His latest film is "Edward Scissorhands." Burton also directed one of the most popular films of all time "Batman," along with "Pee Wee's Big Adventure" and "Beetlejuice." (Rebroadcast. Original date 12/19/90). REV.: Charlie Watts, the drummer with the Rolling Stones, has always loved the great alto saxophonist Charlie Parker. Watts just recorded a box set that pays tribute to Parker. Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead is unimpressed.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Augie Meyers and Freddy Fender; Interview with Michael Jackson; Commentary on barbecues. July 4, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457799].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:AUGIE MEYERS and FREDDY FENDER, members of the band, The Texas Tornadoes. They both have long histories in Tex Mex music. Augie Meyers played organ with the Sir Douglas Quintet, and Freddy Fender has had many regional hits in Texas and he hit nationally with "Wasted Days and Wasted Nights" and "Til the Last Teardrop Falls".(REPEAT. ORIGINALLY AIRED 9/28/90) INT. 2:MICHAEL JACKSON (No, not THAT Michael Jackson). He's a beer expert. He's written the "Pocket Guide to Beer (The Connoisseur's companion to over 1000 Beers of the World)," by Simon & Schuster. He lives in England and has also written "The New World Guide to Beer."(REPEAT. ORIGINALLY AIRED 4/16/91). REV. 1:Ok, maybe it's unpatriotic, but Rock Historian Ed Ward hates barbecues. It's not the food he minds -- he just doesn't like eating outside.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Actress and author Carrie Fisher. She's probably best-known for her portrayal of Princess Leia in the Star War movies. She wrote the screenplay for the film adaptation of her novel, "Postcards From the Edge." Fisher's latest role is in the film, "Soapdish." (REPEAT. Originally aired 9/11/90) INT. 2:Director TOM SAVINI. Savini was known as the master of ghoulish makeup for George Romero's films. Now he's directed his first film, a remake of Romero's classic, "Night of the Living Dead." (REPEAT. originally aired 10/22/90) REV: Rock Historian Ed Ward reviews a 9-CD reissue from the old soul label Stax, the Memphis label that brought us Otis Redding, Carla Thomas, Sam and Dave, and Booker T and the MG's.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Doctor Rony Brauman, the president of "Doctors Without Borders," the French-based medical aid organization. There the largest such organization in the world, with thousands of volunteer physicians who have traveled to sites of war, disease, famine, or natural disaster throughout the world. (In France, the group's called Medecins Sans Frontieres). INT. 2: Veteran NPR reporter DEBORAH AMOS. Amos has covered the Gulf War, and reported from Poland, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Lebanon, Israel and China. We'll talk to her about the day to day life of a reporter. REV: MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews film maker John Sayle's new novel, "Los Gusanos."

Interview with Oscar Arias; Interview with Deborah Amos, Part 2; Review of Mary Morris's memoir "Wall to Wall." July 9, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457112].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Costa Rican president Oscar Arias. Arias received the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to bring peace to Central America, a task he still pursues. INT. 2: Terry concludes her conversation with veteran NPR reporter Deborah Amos. After nearly ten years covering stories like Lebanon, Afghanistan, and the Gulf War, Amos is back in the states for a one year leave of absence. Today, Amos talks about the problems, and the advantages, of being a woman reporter in the Middle East. REV.: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Wall to Wall," Mary Morris' memoir of her travels through China and the Soviet Union.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor Gary Busey. Busey electrified audiences and the critics with his starring role in "The Buddy Holly Story." More recently, Busey was the arch villain in "Lethal Weapon." He co-stars with Patrick Swayze and Keanu Reeves in the new movie, "Point Break." INT. 2: We talk with JODI JACOBSON, senior researcher at the World Watch Institute, and the author of a new report on the state of women's health around the world. REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Luck of the Draw," the new album from Bonnie Raitt. It's the follow-up to her hugely successful 1989 album, "Nick of Time."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film maker Marlon Riggs. His documentary about the lives of gay black men in America "Tongues Untied," airs next week on the public television series, "P.O.V." However, many PBS stations will not be showing the film, citing the film's strong language and imagery. We'll also talk with three public broadcasting executives involved in the controversy: Jennifer Lawson, the executive vice president for programming at PBS, Jesse Bowers, VP for programming at the South Carolina Educational TV network, and Bob Larson, the president and general manager of station WTVS in Detroit. Both Bowers and Larson have chosen not to air the show. INT. 2: Filmmaker RICHARD LNKATER. Linklater's new movie, "Slacker" is a low-budget look at people who's only goal in life is to just hang out. REV. 1: Film critic Owen Gleiberman ("gly-ber-man") reviews "Who's That Knocking at My Door?", the first feature film by director Martin Scorsese.
Interview with Tim Weiner; Interview with Peter Bressler; Review of the film "Regarding Henry." July 12, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457665].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We examine recent developments in the Iran-Contra Affair, and how those developments is affecting the nomination of Robert Gates to head the CIA. We speak with TIM WEINER, (wi-ner, not we-ner) who covers national security issues for the Philadelphia Inquirer. INT. 2: Industrial designer Peter Bressler. When the city of Philadelphia wanted to put new trash receptacles in the downtown area, they hired Bressler's firm to figure out which trash can worked best. Bressler talks with us about the difficulties of making a simple object. REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Regarding Henry," starring Harrison Ford as a man who's world changes, not totally for the worse, after he's shot in the head.

Interview with Dmitry Sitkovetsky; Interview with Steven Feld; Review of Peter Matthiessen's and Dennis Boyles' essay collections "African Silences" and "Maneaters Motel." July 15, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457497].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soviet born violinist DMITRY SITKOVETSKY (Sitz-ka-vets-kee). In the 1970s both he and his mother emigrated to the U.S. In 1988 DMITRY became the first post-war Soviet emigre musician to be invited back to USSR to perform. (Rebroadcast. Original date 3/13/91). INT. 2: Terry talks with ethnomusicologist STEVEN FELD. His record, "Voices of the Rainforest," captures the songs of the Kaluli (KAH-loo-lee) people of Papua New Guinea. Feld's studies have just earned him a MacArthur Grant. Feld also works for preservation of the world's rain forests, since if the forests are eliminated, it will also mean the loss of much indigenous music. (The record is on Rycodisc). (Rebroadcast. Original date 4/15/91). REV: Book critic John Leonard reviews two collections of essays about Africa; "African Silences" by Peter Matthiessen and "Maneaters Motel" by Denis Boyles.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry will talk to three people about the recent events revolving around RU-486, the abortion-inducing drug. The drug is in use in France and Britain but is illegal in the U.S. Two weeks ago a pregnant woman, Leona Benten, tried to bring the drug into the country, but the drug was seized by authorities. The case is about to go before the Supreme Court. Terry will talk to: 1) From the FDA, spokesman GARY FENDLER. In general, the FDA has a policy of withholding drugs not yet approved in the U.S., although the agency has allowed in unapproved drugs related to AIDS and cancer. 2) Attorney SIMON HELLER of the Center for Reproductive Law and Policy. He's representing Leona Benten. 3) DR. LOUISE TYRER (TIRE), Ms. Benten's physician. INT. 2: Actor MICHAEL LERNER. He was nominated for an Oscar for Best Supporting Actor for his role in "Barton Fink." He's been featured in the films, "Eight Men out," "Harlem Nights," and "The Postman Always Rings Twice." He's now acting in the new HBO movie, "The Comrades of Summer" (it debuted July 11). REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Winterreise" (VIN-ter-rei-za) a series of 24 poems by Wilhelm Mueller set to the music of SCHUBERT.

Description of show segment(s)

reviews the new summer series, "Stephen King's Golden Years," about a man who's doused with some evil chemicals and finds himself getting younger with each day. It premieres this week on CBS.

---

Interview with Sonny Bono, Part 1; Interview with Colin Escott; Review of the film "Boyz N the Hood." July 17, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457664].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The first of a two-part interview with Sonny Bono. Today, Bono discusses his early years in the record business, his work with Phil Specter, and his meeting Cher. Tomorrow, he talks about the Sonny and Cher years, their breakup, and his going on to be elected mayor of Palm Springs, California. Bono has a new autobiography, called "And The Beat Goes On" (published by Pocket Books). INT. 2: Record producer and consultant Colin Escott. Escott's had a long association with Sun Records, the company responsible for many of the great acts from the dawn of rock and roll. Escott has a new book about Sun, called "Good Rockin' Tonight" (published by St. Martin's Press). REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new movie "Boyz N the Hood," about gang violence in L.A.

---

Interview with Moses Deans, Allan Swymmer, Noel Howard, and Joseph Bennett; Interview with Sonny Bono, Part 2; Commentary on changing vocabulary. July 18, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457661].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live STEREO concert with The Jolly Boys. They're a Jamaican band that plays a style of music called mento (It's the Jamaican analogue to calypso, and it paved the way for reggae and ska). The Jolly Boys have a new album on Rykodisc, called "Sunshine 'N' Water." INT. 2: Part two of our interview with Sonny Bono. Today, he talks about the Sonny and Cher years, their breakup, and his going on to be elected mayor of Palm Springs, California. Bono has a new autobiography, called "And The Beat Goes On" (published by Pocket Books). REV. 1: Language commentator Geoffrey Nunberg discusses watching words "head for obscurity."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor Samuel Jackson. Jackson's won critical raves for his portrayal of a crack addict named Gator in the new Spike Lee film, "Jungle Fever." That role's a breakthrough for Jackson after 20 years of bit parts, commercials, and all types of theater. He also put in two years as Bill Cosby's stand-in on The Cosby Show. INT. 2: Writer Howard Rheingold. Rheingold's new book, "Virtual Reality," is a look at the growing promise and impact of a radical new technology. By combining computers with sophisticated equipment (such as 3-D video glasses and gloves that sense how the wearer is moving their hands), it's possible to create the illusion that one is in another world, one that may exist only inside the computer. The technology has implications for everything from space exploration to entertainment, medicine to warfare. (The book's published by Summit Books). REV. : Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "The Adventures of Amos and Andy," writer Melvin Patrick Ely's look at the comedy series, and the controversy it caused.

Interview with Philip Levine; Commentary on D. J. John Peel; Interview with Bill Murray; Review of the television show "Morton and Hayes." July 22, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457732].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet Philip Levine. Levine's considered one of this country's preeminent poet, but before he turned to poetry he put in years working factory jobs. The images of those early days continue to influence his writings. Levine's latest collection of poems is called "What Work Is." (It's published by Knopf). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD profiles English disc jockey John Peel. INT. 2: Comedian and actor BILL MURRAY. Murray first came to prominence as a cast member of "Saturday Night Live." He then went on to appear in movies such as "Ghostbusters," "Caddyshack," "Meatballs," "Stripes," and "Quick Change." His latest role is in the comedy, "What About Bob?" REV 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Morton and Hayes," a new CBS series about a fictitious comedy team from the 40s. It's the creation of Rob Reiner, who made "When Harry Met Sally," and "This is Spinal Tap."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African labor leader EMMA MASHININI. Mashinini was Secretary of the Commercial, Catering, and Allied Workers Union of South Africa, one of South Africa's biggest trade unions, and was arrested and detained for six months. Mashinini's autobiography, "Strikes Have Followed Me All My Life," has just been published. (by Routledge). INT. 2: British rocker GRAHAM PARKER. He's been singing and writing songs for 15 years and is known for his angry, biting lyrics. He recently released his 14th album, "Struck by Lightning." (RCA records). (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast April 11, 1991). REV.: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Brief Lives," the latest novel from professor and writer Anita Brookner. Brookner also recently edited a two volume collection of the stories of Edith Wharton. Maureen sees some similarities between the works of the two.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalists KATIE HAFNER and JOHN MARKOFF. Their new book "Cyberpunk: Outlaws and Hackers on the Computer Frontier" (Simon & Schuster) is about the growing importance of computer networks, and the growing importance of computer crime. INT. 2: Jazz French horn player WILLIE RUFF. Ruff's new autobiography, "A Call to Assembly," chronicles his childhood in the South, his enlistment in the army in 1946, his gaining admission to Yale, and his decision to pass on a career in classical music and follow a life in jazz. (It's published by Viking). REV.: Writer DAVID GUREVITZ (GIR-ah-vich) gives us his perspective as a Soviet emigre on the new revisions that Gorbachev is suggesting for the Soviet Union. He's the author of "From Lenin to Lennon," a memoir about growing up in Russia during the 60s.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry talks about crime watch groups with:(1) Former chief justice and current judge on West Virginia's Supreme Court, RICHARD NEELY. His new book, "Take Back Your Neighborhood," is about how ordinary citizens throughout the country have come together to protect their communities. (2) Founder of the Mt. Airy Crime Watch Group in Philadelphia, MARK HARTSFIELD. Two years ago he co-founded the group after witnessing and stopping crime in his neighborhood. INT. 2:First-time film director JOHN SINGLETON. His new film is "Boyz N the Hood," which is set in South Central L.A. where SINGLETON grew up. A number of theatres across the country have cancelled the showing of "Boyz N the Hood," because of violent outbreaks at or near theatres where its been shown. Over 30 people have been injured and one killed. But the film itself is plea to stop the violence and killing. REV. 1:Film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews "The Doctor," the new film starring WILLIAM HURT, about a doctor who gets cancer.

Interview with Andrew and Leslie Cockburn and Benny Morris; Interview with Glenda Riley; Review of the film "V. I. Warshawski." July 26, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457869].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:We look at the connection between the Israeli and U.S. intelligence communities. We first talk with journalists Andrew and Leslie Cockburn. Their new book, "Dangerous Liaison," alleges the two nations relationship extends far beyond the Mideast, into areas like the war against drugs, the South African nuclear weapons program, and the Contras. (The book's published by Harper Collins). We also talk with Benny Morris, co-author of the book, "Israel's Secret Wars: A History of Israeli's Intelligence Services." Morris is an historian and a fellow at the Brookings Institute. (That book's co-authored with Ian Black and published by Grove Weidenfeld). INT. 2:Historian GLENDA RILEY. Riley's new book, "Divorce: An American Tradition," looks at the long history of divorce. Among the book's revelations: the first divorce in America happened way back in 1639 (on grounds of bigamy) and that in 1880 as many as one in 16 marriages ended in divorce. (The book's published by Oxford university Press). REV. :Maureen Corrigan reviews the new movie, "V.I. Warshawski." It stars Kathleen Turner as a great looking babe who's also a tough nails private eye.

---

Interview with Suzanne Farrell; Interview with James Toback; Commentary on "Martha Stewart Living." July 29, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457917].

Description of show segment(s)

---

Interview with Mel Brooks; Interview with Reuven Frank; Commentary on the Soviet Union. July 30, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457993].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Thomas Friedman; Interview with Johnnie Johnson; Commentary on the word "zeal." July 31, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457866].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times correspondent THOMAS FRIEDMAN. Friedman has spent the last decade covering the Middle East, work that has won him two Pulitzer Prizes. Today he looks at the current state of the Mideast, as we approach the first anniversary of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. INT. 2: Pianist JOHNNIE JOHNSON. For nearly 30 years, Johnson was Chuck Berry's pianist. He played on all of Chuck's great hits, and he gained rock and roll immortality when Chuck Barry wrote the song "Johnnie B. Goode" about him. Now Johnnie Johnson has his own album, called "Johnnie B. Bad." (It's on Elektra/Nonesuch). REV. : Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg examines the word "zeal." Nunberg has noticed that the euphemism "overzealous" has been used to explain away everything from executions during the French Revolution to the beating of Rodney King.

Interview with Admiral Stanfield Turner; Interview with Jonathan Beaty; Commentary on MTV. August 1, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457990].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ADMIRAL STANSFIELD TURNER. The former director of the CIA under Jimmy Carter, Turner has just come out with his second book, "Terrorism & Democracy." (Houghton Mifflin). Turner looks at the failed and successful policies of eight American presidents in dealing with terrorism. INT. 2: Time magazine reporter JONATHAN BEATY. He was covering the BCCI bank scandal months before it erupted, and gives the background on the scandal. REV. 1: It was 10 years ago today that MTV first debuted. Television critic David Bianculli looks back at the network's influence.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:TWO INTERVIEWS: 1) Film maker Samuel Fuller. Fuller's B-movies of the 50s and 60s have influenced many other directors. His 1982 movie, "White Dog," about a racist who trains a dog to attacks blacks, was considered too controversial to be released in this country. It's finally being shown, along with all Fuller's other works, during a major retrospective of his work at New York's "Film Forum.2) Martin Scorsese, one of today's most prominent filmmakers, tells us the movies of Samuel Fuller influenced him.

REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews a new Impulse reissue of saxophonist Stanley Turrentine's album, "Let It Go." On that album Turrentine is accompanied by his wife, organist Shirley Scott. INT. 2:Historian Robert Dallek. Dallek's new biography of President Lyndon Johnson, "Lone Star Rising," has been praised for its scholarship, and for painting a more balanced portrait of LBJ than some other recent biographies. Dallek was nominated for an American Book award for an earlier biography, "Franklin D. Roosevelt and American Foreign Policy." ("Lone Star Rising" is published by Oxford University Press).

REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Hot Shots," the new spoof of all those macho fighter pilot movies.

Interview with Andres Oppenheimer; Interview with Cy Feuer; Commentary on Olympic athletes. August 5, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502438].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist ANDRES OPPENHEIMER, senior foreign correspondent for The Miami Herald. He's covered Latin America for the past 15 years. He spent more than five months in Cuba researching his new book, "Castro's Final Hour: The Secret Story Behind the Coming Downfall of Communist Cuba," (Simon & Schuster). One reviewer writes, "... reads like a thriller. Carefully researched, it describes the last throes of the Cuban dictatorship." INT. 2: Broadway Producer CY FEUER. He co-produced the original "Guys & Dolls" on Broadway, which is currently being revived on Broadway. FEUER produced 11 Broadway musicals with producer Ernest Martin, including "Can-Can," "The Boyfriend," and "Silk Stockings." They also produced the film versions of "Cabaret," and "A Chorus Line." REV.: Commentator DAVID GUREVITZ tells us about his reflections on athletes competing in this year's Olympics.

Interview with John Balaban; Interview with Gus Lee; Commentary on women and magazines. August 5, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457951].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer JOHN BALABAN. Balaban was one of the very few Vietnam-era conscientious objectors who volunteered to go to Vietnam. Once there, he was overwhelmed with the paradoxes of the war...among other things, he found himself picking up a gun, in order to defend a hospital from attack. His memoir of that time, called "Heaven's Face: A Moral Witness in Vietnam" has just been published by Poseidon Press. INT. 2:Writer GUS LEE. Lee's novel, "China Boy" is the story of a young immigrant boy growing up in a rough neighborhood of San Francisco. (The book's published by E.P. Dutton). REV: Commentator Maureen Corrigan says she's just about had it with the recent spate of magazines offering the same old cliches about women.

Interview with Eric Bogosian; Interview with Charlie Watts; Review of David Byrne's Cuba Classics albums. August 6, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457948].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Actor and writer ERIC BOGOSIAN. Bogosian's one man, multi-character performances highlight the pressures of modern life and explore the underside of the American Dream. Bogosian's latest show, "Sex, Drugs, Rock and Roll" has been released in book form (by Harper Collins) and as a movie. INT. 2:Drummer CHARLIE WATTS. For a quarter century, Watts has been the drummer for the rock band The Rolling Stones. Watts has also had a life-long love for jazz, particularly the jazz of Charlie Parker. Watts has put together a jazz combo that pays homage to Parker, called "From One Charlie," and he's written a kid's book about Parker, called "Ode to a Highflying Bird." (Both are published by UFO Records in England). REV.:World music commentator MILO MILES tells us about David Byrne's latest anthologies of world music--Cuba Classics.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer JOYCE SCHUCK (shuck). In 1986, her husband ran for governor of Colorado, and lost in the primaries. But the experience gave Schuck the impetus to interview other wives of politicians. Schuck's book, "Political Wives: Veiled Lives," combines the interviews, along with excerpts from a diary Schuck kept during her husband's campaign. INT. 2:Mystery writer SUE GRAFTON. She's known for her "alphabet series" with female detective Kinsey Milhone, "A is for Alibi" through "G is for Gumshoe." Grafton's latest mystery is "H is for Homicide." REV. :Rock and roll historian ED WARD looks back at the Gold Star recording studio and the summer of 1958, when a 17-year-old Phil Spector wrote his first hit.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Computer programmer RICHARD STALLMAN. Stallman's a genius, he's been called "the best programmer who's ever lived", and he received one the MacArthur Foundation's so-called "Genius Awards," but he's become more widely known for his push to make computer programs freely accessible to everyone. Instead of software companies charging hundreds or thousands of dollars for programs and forbidding the purchasers from giving copies to other people, Stallman wants an unrestricted exchange of programs, and thereby the creativity that they represent. To further these aims he created what he calls the "Free Software Foundation." REV. 1:Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "American Nervousness." It's a new book by Tom Lutz about a turn of the century disease called neurasthenia. Neurasthenia was a term applied to a wide variety of conditions related to just being "stressed out" by 19th century life. Perversely, neurasthenia was taken as a sign of status, that if you suffered from it, it meant you were fashionably sensitive. (It's published by Cornell University Press). INT. 2:Nature writer PAUL SCHULLERY. Schullery has a new collection of essays, called "Pregnant Bears and Crawdad Eyes" (published by the Mountaineers). Schullery also writes and talks often about Yellowstone National Park, where he's lived off and on for 15 years. That's the subject of his earlier book, "Mountain Time: Man Meets Wilderness in Yellowstone" (published by Fireside/Simon and Schuster). REV. 2: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Warm Your Heart." It's the first solo album in a decade from Aaron Neville, of the Neville Brothers. The album was produced by Linda Rondstadt.

Interview with Ben Hamper; Interview with Stryker McGuire; Review of the films "Pure Luck" and "Delirious." August 9, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457672].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer BEN HAMPER. His funny first-person account of working in GM's auto factory is "Rivethead: Tales from the Assembly Line." HAMPER is a third generation auto worker in Flint, Michigan. He first started writing when he submitted articles to the alternative newspaper, "The Flint Voice." The editor then was Michael Moore, who made the documentary "Roger and Me." From a Village Voice review, "The material is Beat and blunt...dense with sensations close to the metal floor...Ben Hamper is a modern worker writer, proletarian journalist and one of the best writers I know about." ("Rivethead," is published by Warner Books). INT. 2: Journalist STRYKER MCGUIRE. He covered the Nicaraguan revolution for Newsweek where he is Chief of Correspondents. After the war, he came back to New York but discovered that he hadn't settled in his own mind what he experienced in Nicaragua. He began a 20,000 mile driving trip from North America to South America to try and understand what had happened and to get a different look at Latin America. His book, "Street with No Names," is an account of that trip. (published by Atlantic Monthly Press.) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews two new comedies starring two stars from "SCTV," and wonders why they haven't been more successful. They are Martin Short who's starring with Danny Glover in, "Pure Luck," and John Candy whose new film is "Delirious."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer SAM FUSSELL. Fussell was scared of living in the big city, so he decided he'd look like less of a target if he took up body building. He chronicles his four year transformation in his book, "Muscle: Confessions of an Unlikely Body Builder." (REBROADCAST. ORIGINAL DATE 5/15/91).
INT. 2:Writer ROBERT BAUSCH. Bausch's new novel, "Almighty Me," is the story of an average guy who, for one year, is given the powers of God. (It's published by Houghton Mifflin). REV 2:Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Shadows 'N' Dreams," the new solo album by jazz pianist Dave McKenna. (It's on Concord).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Former hostage DAVID JACOBSEN. In 1985 he was abducted in Beirut where he was director of the American University of Beirut's Medical Center and was held for 17 months. He was held captive along with Terry Anderson, Tom Sutherland, Ben Weir, and Martin Jenco. He's written about it in, "Hostage: My Nightmare in Beirut." (Published by Donald I. Fine, Inc.) INT. 2:Screenwriter and novelist BRUCE WAGNER. He wrote the screenplays for "Nightmare on Elm Street 3," and "Scenes from The Class Struggle in Beverly Hills." He's just come out with his first novel, a black comedy, "Force Majeure." It's a collection of his "Bud Wiggins" stories. Wiggins is a struggling screenwriter, actor, and some time chauffeur who is "circling the drain." (published by Random House). REV.:Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews, "Topless: a Novel" by D. Keith Mano, a thriller about a young priest who returns to his former New York neighborhood to help manage the family business. The family's business turns out to be a topless bar and the "girls" there begin to get murdered. Mano's other books include, "Bishop's Progress," "War is Heaven," and "Take Five." ("Topless" is published by Random House.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We look at the recent nomination of Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court, with Duke University law professor WALTER DELLINGER. Dellinger's written several articles on how the nomination process has evolved throughout the nation's history. INT. 2: EDWARD FISKE, the education correspondent for the New York Times. Fiske's new book is called "Smart Schools, Smart Kids: Why Do Some Schools Work?" In it, Fiske looks at the decline of the American school system, and he examines some of the grass-roots programs that are reversing that trend. (It's published by Simon and Schuster). REV. : Television critic David Bianculli goes out on a limb, and reviews two live shows before they air..."Paul Simon Live in Central Park," which airs Thursday night on HBO, and "The Elvis Files," a syndicated show that tries to prove that Elvis Presley is still alive.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer STEPHEN PIZZO. Pizzo's the co-author of "Inside Job: The Looting of America's Savings and Loans." Last month he testified before Congress, saying that the proposed further deregulation of the banks will lead to a further banking crisis. He'll discuss that testimony today. INT. 2: Food writer EDWARD BEHR (pronounced "bear"). Behr writes, illustrates, and publishes the quarterly newsletter, "The Art of Eating." In each issue, Behr writes in-depth, personal essays about food and cuisine. The newsletter's subscription is small, but it's read by a large number of the top names in the food business. (If your listeners call, subscriptions are $22/year. Write to "The Art of Eating", HCR 30, Box 3, Peacham, VT, 05862). REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews two new Brahms recordings by the Boston Chamber Music Society. Lloyd says it's great music, and a great argument for chamber music written for something OTHER than string quartet. (The recordings are on Northeastern).
Interview with D. Keith Mano; Interview with John Feinstein; Review of Chris Whitley's album "Living with the Law." August 16, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457668].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer D. KEITH MANO. He often combines the spiritual and the profane in his writing. He's best known for his novels, "Bishop's Progress," "War is Heaven," "The Proselytizer," and "Take Five," all having to do with the themes of Christianity, and for his columns in the "National Review," and "Oui," as well as his reporting for "Playboy." He once lived as a transvestite for "Playboy." His new novel is a thriller, "Topless," about a priest who returns to his home town to take care of the family restaurant. It turns out that the restaurant is a topless one, and the dancers are getting murdered. MANO spent years of research on the novel, and conducted over 300 interviews. ("Topless" is published by Random House).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We discuss last night's overthrow of Mikhail Gorbachev, with journalist ROBERT CULLEN. He's a former Moscow correspondent for Newsweek, and he writes regularly on Eastern Europe for The Atlantic and the New Yorker. He was most recently in the USSR this past June, working on an article on the influence of the Soviet military. Cullen has a book coming out this autumn, titled, "Twilight Of Empire: Inside the Crumbling Soviet Bloc." INT. 2: Film maker PAUL MAZURSKY. Mazursky's movies include "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice," "Enemies: A Love Story," and "Down and Out In Beverly Hills." Mazursky's latest movie, "Scenes From a Mall," co-stars Bette Midler and Woody Allen. (Rebroadcast. Original date 2/18/91). REV. 1: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Commitments," the new movie about a struggling R'n'B band in Dublin, Ireland. The film's directed by Alan Parker, who made the movie "Mississippi Burning" and "Fame."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Author and labor attorney, THOMAS GEOGHEGAN (GAY-GUN). He was an observer for the dissident faction in a United Mine Workers election in the 1970s and he defended steelworkers stripped of their pension rights in the 1980s. He's written a new book, "Which Side Are You On?: Trying to be for Labor When it's Flat on its Back," which looks at the decline of the labor unions in the 1980s from the view of someone who came to join the union staff as a young idealistic lawyer hoping to use the law as an instrument for social change. (published by Farrar, Straus and Giroux). REV.:Critic Ken Tucker reviews the new album from country singer Willie Nelson. The album's called "Who'll Buy My Memories," and it's subtitled "The IRS Tapes" since Nelson made the album to pay off back taxes. Tucker says the album's much better that you'd expect. INT. 2:From the Comedy Central cable channel's "Mystery Science Theater 3000," creator and host JOEL HODGSON, and head writer MIKE NELSON. Their show spoofs badly made science-fiction movies by talking back to the them, much like you'd talk back to your TV. REV.:Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "The Book Wars" by James Atlas. It's the latest book in the growing debate over whether or not students should be required to read a set curriculum of "great books." Maureen says the more interesting thing about the book is that it's filled with ads for Federal Express.

Interview with Robert Cullen; Interview with Stansfield Turner; Interview with Mikhail Iossel. August 21, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457357].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:We check in again with journalist ROBERT CULLEN, for his take on the latest events in the Soviet Union. He's a former Moscow correspondent for Newsweek, and he writes regularly on Eastern Europe for The Atlantic and the New Yorker. (Cullen has a book coming out this autumn, titled, "Twilight Of Empire: Inside the Crumbling Soviet Bloc"). INT. 2:ADMIRAL STANSFIELD TURNER. The former director of the CIA under Jimmy Carter. He talks with Terry about what he thinks is going on in both American and Soviet intelligence communities in the wake of the Soviet coup attempt. (Turner has just come out with his second book, "Terrorism & Democracy" (Published by Houghton Mifflin)). INT. 3: We get a personal view of recent events in the Soviet Union, with Soviet emigre writer Mikhail Iossel ("YO-sill"). Iossel's latest book, "Every Hunter Wants To Know: A Leningrad Life," is a collection of short stories about life during the Brezhnev years. (It's published by W.W. Norton).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political Science professor EHUD SPRINZAK (A-houd Sprin-zack) of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. He talks with Terry about how the radical right in Israel is no longer a fringe group but a growing force in Israeli politics and life. His new book is, "The Ascendance of Israel's Radical Right," (Oxford University Press). INT. 2: Editor VITALY KOROTICH or VITALII KOROTYCH (Veh-tal-ee Ka-row-tich) of the reformist Soviet magazine, "Ogonyok" (AH-gone-yuck) He talks with Terry about his own questions about the coup, about the lessons learned from it, and about what he thinks should happen now. REV.: Milo Miles reviews the music of two African guitarists: Diblo Dibala and Zanzibar, he heads a band called Les Têtes Brulées.

Interview with Sanford Sylvan; Commentary on Yo-Yo Ma and Tod Machover; Obituary for Colleen Dewhurst; Review of the film "Barton Fink." August 23, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457688].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Baritone SANFORD SYLVAN. He portrayed Zhou Enlai in John Adams' "Nixon in China." He's a regular in Peter Sellars' repertory company, having played in "The Marriage of Figaro," and "Cosi Fan Tutte." He's playing the title role in Adams's "Death of Klinghoffer," which has its American premiere at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in September. He also has his first solo record, "Beloved That Pilgrimage," on which he is accompanied by pianist, David Breitman. (on the Nonesuch label). It includes a repertory of American songs. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reports on cellist Yo-Yo Ma's performance at Tanglewood last week. He played the world premiere of electronic music composer Tod Machover's "Begin Again Again," which was written for the cellist. INT. 2: Actress COLLEEN DEWHURST died last night in New York. We remember her with an excerpt from a November 1987 interview with Terry. REV. :Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie by Joel and Ethan Coen, "Barton Fink," starring John Turturro and John Goodman.

Interview with William Taubman; Interview with Mary Beth Hurt; Commentary on the 1991 Emmy Awards. August 26, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457788].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political scientist professor WILLIAM TAUBMAN discusses who wields power in the Soviet Union, in the wake of the past week's events. Taubman had an editorial this weekend in the New York Times saying that the time has come for Mikhail Gorbachev to step down. (Taubman teaches at Amherst College, and is currently working on a biography of Nikita Khrushchev). INT. 2: Actress MARY BETH HURT. She co-stars in the new thriller "Defenseless." REV. 1: Television critic David Bianculli shares his thoughts on last night's Emmy awards.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Alto Saxophonist VERNARD JOHNSON. He's best known for his Gospel playing, performing with preachers like, E.V. Hill, Billy Graham, and Bishop L. H. Ford. His saxophone was considered too racous for the Gospel circuit when he began playing there in the mid-60's, but eventually he became a favorite on the evangelical circuit. Robert Palmer, in "The New York Times," writes, "The force and passion of the man's alto saxophone sounds are matched only by its creamy richness...listeners may think it sounds more like rhythm and blues, rock, or jazz than conventional Gospel music." He's got a new release of his performances, "I'm Alive," on the Elektra Nonesuch label. INT. 2: Professor of History at Harvard, RICHARD PIPES. He's written over ten books on the Soviet Union. Including, "The Formation of the Soviet Union," published in 1957 and "The Russian Revolution," published last year. He talks with Terry about the formation of the Soviet Union, so that we can understand the breaking up of the empire.

REV.: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Coming Into the End Zone," by novelist and critic Doris Grumbach. It's a journal of her 70th year.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and editor BEN SONNENBERG, JUNIOR. Sonnenberg was born into one of New York City's most prominent families. He went on to be a poet and playwright, and he started the influential literary magazine, "Grand Street." Sonnenberg's new memoir, "Lost Property," talks about those events, and about his being stricken with multiple sclerosis. (The book's published by Summit Books). INT. 2: We talk with DAVID FANNING, the executive director of public television's "Frontline" series. Frontline's now in its 10th year of showing documentaries and investigative reporting pieces. The show continues to win journalism awards (ten Emmys, four duPont Columbia Awards, and three Peabody Awards). It also continues to generate controversy. INT. 3: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Jumptime," the first in a series of reissues of 50s singles from alto saxophonist and singer TAB SMITH. (Smith originally recorded these tunes for the United label. They're being reissued by the Delmark label in Chicago).

---

Interview with Kenneth Branagh; Interview with David Sanborn; Commentary on the start of the school year. August 29, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457691].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and director KENNETH BRANAGH (rhymes with "Savannah"). His new movie, "Dead Again," is a psychological thriller starring Branagh and his real-life wife, Emma Thompson. In 1989, Branagh made a film adaptation of Shakespeare's "Henry the Fifth," with himself in the title role. That movie was nominated for an Oscar as best film. Branagh studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, spent two years with the Royal Shakespeare Company, as well as acting, managing, and directing other groups and working on several BBC productions. INT. 2:Saxophonist DAVID SANBORN. Sanborn has a new album, called "Another Hand." He also has a syndicated radio show heard on more than 200 stations, and he was the host of the ground-breaking TV show, "Night Music." REV. : Commentator, and teacher, Maureen Corrigan is gearing up for another semester. She talks about one of the ways she does that, by becoming a student again.

Interview with Diane Wood Middlebrook; Interview with Carole Ione; Commentary on "show bands." August 30, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457689].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Biographer DIANE WOOD MIDDLEBROOK. She's written a controversial new book about the troubled writer Anne Sexton. The controversy surrounds MIDDLEBROOK's source material: she had access to transcripts of Sexton's psychiatric sessions with the approval of Sexton's daughter and psychiatrist. Sexton killed herself in 1974. She began writing poetry in 1956 following a suicidal breakdown and after her therapist suggested she try writing poetry. ("Anne Sexton: A Biography," published by Houghton Mifflin). INT. 2: Writer CAROLE IONE. She's written a new memoir of her foremothers, "Pride of the Family: Four Generations of American Women of Color." (Published by Summit Books). It tells the stories of her mother, a journalist, her great-auntie Sistonie, one of the first black women doctors in Washington, D.C., her grandmother Be-Be a vaudeville dancer and later soul food restaurant owner, and her great-grand-mother, Frances Anne "Frank" Rollin Whipper. REV. :Rock historian ED WARD remembers the little known era of the show bands and groups like The Boogie Kings, The Triumphs, and The Uniques.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Singer AL GREEN. Green's one of the greats of soul and gospel music. He's probably best known for his hit, "Let's Stay Together." He'll talk about his musical career, and about his being "born again" as a Christian.(Rebroadcast. Originally aired 6/21/91) REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new CD set featuring George Gershwin playing his own compositions. (on the British Pearl label). INT. 2: Journalist Studs Terkel. He talks about his own work and about workers. (This is an excerpt from a 1985 interview with Terry). Rev. 2: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews a new book about the decline of the labor movement, "Which Side are you on: Trying to be for Labor When its flat on its back," by Thomas Geoghegan.

Interview with Jane Bryant Quinn; Interview with Rod Sorge; Review of Jane Dunn's and Rebecca Goldstein's books "A Very Close Conspiracy" and "The Dark Sister." September 3, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457790].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist JANE BRYANT QUINN. Her finance columns appear in "Newsweek," and "Woman's Day." She's written a new guide to personal finance, "Making the Most of Your Money: Smart Ways to Create Wealth and Plan Your Finances in the '90s." (published by Simon & Schuster.) INT. 2: Yesterday President Bush voiced his opposition to federally funded needle exchange programs to stop the spread of AIDS. Today Terry talks with activist ROD SORGE (pronounced like GEORGE). He's the director of PWA's (People with AIDS Working for Health, Inc.) Harm Reduction Institute, a program that runs a needle-exchange program in New York City. Giving out needles in New York is against the law and SORGE and his group have been arrested for it. REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews two books about sisters: "A Very Close Conspiracy," by Jane Dunn, and "The Dark Sister," by Rebecca Goldstein.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: STEPHEN CARTER, who's written the book "Reflections of an Affirmative Action Baby" (Basic Books) has led a privileged and fortunate life, growing up in a professional black family, attending Ivy League schools and subsequently becoming one of the youngest tenured law professors in Yale University's history. But Carter has also weathered academic and professional experiences in which he... was pigeonholed and patronized on account of his race. INT. 2: The age of the big three networks is over. Ten years ago, ABC, CBS and NBC monopolized 90% of the television audience. Now they attract a bit over sixty. Reporter KEN AULETTA has written about the impact of the decline of the networks and the rise of cable and home video. His new book is called Three Blind Mice: How the TV Networks Lost Their Way. (Random House) REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD has just returned from the Chicago Jazz Festival, where Swiss composer George Gruntz premiered his "Chicago Cantata."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jury selection for the Noriega trial starts today. Los Angeles Times reporter DOUGLAS FRANTZ (FRANZ) has been following the Noriega story and will review events leading up to the trial. FRANTZ will also tell us about Noriega's BCCI connection. INT. 2: Professor and educator E.D. HIRSCH, JR. He's the author of the best selling book, "Cultural Literacy," (paperback published by Vintage Books) in which he argues that children in the United States lack "cultural literacy," or the basic grasp of background information that allows them to be literate and to function effectively in society. He has put his theories to work in an elementary school curriculum, The Core Knowledge Series. The first two books have just been published: "What Your 1st Grader Needs to Know," and "What Your 2nd Grader Needs to Know." (published by Doubleday). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews, "Europa, Europa," the foreign film based on a true story about a Polish-German Jewish boy who escapes the Germans and Russians by hiding his true identity.

Interview with Walter Clemens; Review of Josephine Herbst's memoir "The Starched Blue Sky of Spain"; Interview with Arnolds Karklis and Vidvuds Mednis; Review of Jimmie Dale Gilmore's

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We discuss the upcoming confirmation hearings of Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court with New York Times columnist ANTHONY LEWIS. In the late 50s and early 60s, Lewis covered the Supreme Court for the Times. His new book, "Make No Law," examines one of those cases, the Sullivan libel case against the Times. (It's published by Random House). INT. 2: Jazz trumpeter JACK WALRATH. Walrath is the musical director of Mingus Dynasty Band, a group that continues to explore the compositions of the late Charles Mingus. Their new album is called "The Next Generation." (It's on Columbia Records). REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album from tenor saxophonist Joe Lovano. It's called Landmarks, and it's on the BlueNote label.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Dave Frishberg; Interview with Amy Tan; Review of John Adams' opera "The Death of Klinghoffer." September 12, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457830].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:A live concert with jazz pianist, singer, and lyricist DAVE FRISHBERG. Frishberg's long been known for his satirical songs, such as "My Attorney Bernie," and "I'm Hip." His new album, "Classics," is a collection of some of his best-known songs from previous albums. (It's on Concord Jazz records).

Interview with C. Everett Koop; Interview with David Carradine; Review of fall television. September 13, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457833].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 2:Actor DAVID CARRADINE. He's still known as the star of the 70s TV series, "Kung Fu." Carradine's written a new book about his personal journey through the martial arts, called "Spirit of Shaolin." (It's published by Tuttle).

REV. :Television critic David Bianculli takes a first look at the new fall TV season.

Interview with Marcia Millman; Interview with David Rieff; Commentary on bands that have changed their names. September 16, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457962].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Sociologist MARCIA MILLMAN. Her latest book, "Warm Hearts & Cold Cash: The Intimate Dynamics of Families and Money," (The Free Press) is about how people use money as a tool of power and a symbol for certain emotions in family relationships. Millman is professor and chair of sociology at the University of California at Santa Cruz. She also wrote "Such a Pretty Face: Being Fat in America." (Rebroadcast. Original date 5/30/91). INT. 2:Writer DAVID RIEFF (pronounced "reef"). his new book, "Los Angeles: Capital of the Third World," looks at how the millions of poor immigrants that have come to the Los Angeles area in the past two decades have changed the shape of that city...changing it from the "City of Dreams" that's long been L.A.'s popular image, to a much poorer, problem-ridden, and diverse, place. Rieff says something similar is in store for many other American cities. (The book's published by Simon and Schustter). REV.: Rock historian Ed Ward looks at some of the bands that have changed their identities, and names, along the way.

Interview with Jonathan Kozol; Interview with Raymond Sokolov; Commentary on accents and prejudice. September 17, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457829].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Author and Educator and activist JONATHAN KOZOL. In 1967 he wrote about teaching fourth graders in a poor black Boston public school in the book, "Death at an Early Age." Since then he's written three other books about schools and teaching, as well as a book on adult illiteracy, "Illiterate America," and on the homeless, "Rachel and Her Children: Homeless Families in America." For his new book, "Savage Inequalities," (Crown Publishers) he visited rich and poor schools across the country, where he found schools in worse shape than when he was teaching in the 60s. INT. 2:Editor and columnist RAYMOND SOKOLOV. His new book is "Why We Eat What We Eat: How the Encounter Between the New World and the Old Changed the Way Everyone on the Planet Eats." (published by Summit Books) His premise is that Christopher Columbus initiated a worldwide culinary revolution when he discovered the New World. Sokolov is the editor of the Leisure & Arts page of "The Wall Street Journal," a columnist for "Natural History" magazine, and a contributor to "Food and Wine" magazine. REV.: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg examines accents and the prejudices we still have against them. (Rebroadcast).
Interview with Russell Banks; Interview with Carl Hiaasen; Review of The Burning Flames' album "Dig." September 18, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457567].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:.Novelist RUSSELL BANKS. In his new novel, "The Sweet Hereafter," Banks explores the aftermath of one of those tragedies that occasionally appear in the news and then quickly fade away. Banks' story revolves around a school bus crash that kills 14 children in a rural New York town. (It's published by Harper Collins). INT. 2:Writer CARL HIAASEN (produced "hi-ah-sen"). Hiaasen's latest crime novel, "Native Tongue," continues his tradition of poking fun at his native Florida. When he's not writing crime stories, Hiaasen is an investigative journalist and columnist for the Miami Herald. (It's published by Knopf). REV. 2:World music critic Milo Miles checks out "Dig," the new album from The Burning Flames, a Caribbean band that started out playing soca, added a strong rock beat, and came up with some of the most infectious dance music anywhere. (It's on Island Records).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:International Lawyer and senior associate at the Carnegie Endowment for Peace. DAVID SCHEFFER. His writings appear in the book, "Right v. Might," (published by Council on Foreign Relations Press). He's been following the progress of the UN resolutions since the end of the Gulf War. He'll tell Marty how Iraq has been underreporting its weapons and what the United States is allowed to do about it. INT. 2:Writer DAVID RIEFF (pronounced "reef"). he's the author of the new book, "Los Angeles: Capital of the Third World,"(published by Simon and Schuster). He'll talk to Marty about the recovery movement, the proliferation of such self-help books as "Healing the Child Within," and "Choice-Making for Co-dependents," and the popularity of such pop-psychology gurus as John Bradshaw. Rieff says that such groups are radical in their beliefs and even dangerous, that they encourage individuals to remember real and imagined injuries at the expense of the rest of society that doesn't have time or money for such self-indulgence. Rieff has just written an article in the October Harper's Magazine, "Victims, All? Recovery, co-dependency, and the art of blaming somebody else." REV. :Film critic OWEN GLEIBERMAN reviews "The Fisher King" the new film by Terry Gilliam, the director of "Brazil." It stars Robin Williams and Jeff Bridges.

Interview with John Ellis; Review of Guns and Roses' album "Use Your Illusion"; Interview with Hume Cronyn; Commentary on the comic strip Blondie. September 20, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457835].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Political analyst JOHN ELLIS. Ellis has recently proposed that George Bush and whoever wins the Democratic nomination for president engage each other in a series of nine Sunday night debates in the weeks before the 1992 election. Ellis says this would counteract the trend toward soundbites that have defined recent elections. REV: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Use your Illusion," the new two-album set from the heavy metal band "Guns 'N Roses." INT. 2: Actor HUME CRONYN. For more than 50 years, Cronyn has been one of the most distinguish actors working. He's written a new memoir about his life, called "A Terrible Liar." (It's published by Morrow). REV: After decades of domestic bliss, the comic strip character Blondie is venturing out into the work force. Commentator Maureen Corrigan tells us what she thinks of that development.

Interview with Jung Chang; Interview with Clive Barker; Review of the television shows "Good & Evil" and "Brooklyn Bridge." September 23, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457565].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chinese writer JUNG CHANG. She was born in China but left in 1978 to study. She now lives in England. Her book, "Wild Swans: Three Daughters of China," (published by Simon & Schuster). It's the story of Jung Chang, her mother, and her grandmother Chang's grandmother was born into feudal society, whose feet were bound at the age of two; she was a concubine at 15. Chang's mother grew up under Japanese occupation, was a part of the Communist-led student underground, and later a heroine of the revolution. JUNG CHANG, herself grew up inside the hierarchy of China's Communist elite but with the cultural revolution her parents were denounced and beaten. INT. 2: British writer CLIVE BARKER. Some call him the "King of Horror," but he likes to think of himself as a writer who "delivers his readers into a new realm and states of reality." His novels include, "Cabal," and "The Great and Secret Show." He's also a filmmaker; his films include, "Hellraiser," and "Nightbreed." His new book is "Imajica," (published by HarperCollins.) REV.: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new programs this season: "Good & Evil," by the creator of "Soap," and "Golden Girls," and "Brooklyn Bridge" by the creator of "Family Ties."

Interview with Norman Rush; Interview with Sylvia Ann Hewlett; Commentary on Don Harris and Dewey Terry. September 24, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457568].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer WARD JUST. Just's new novel, "The Translator," is a thriller set in Europe after the fall of the Berlin Wall. Just has written nearly a dozen other novels, including "Jack Gance" and "The American Ambassador." Prior to becoming a full-time writer, Just was a journalist, covering the Vietnam War for Newsweek. ("The translator" is published by Houghton Mifflin). REV. 1: Classical music fans around the world are commemorating the bicentennial of Mozart's death. Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz is observing a happier anniversary, the 100th anniversary of Prokofiev's birth. He reviews a new compact disc (on the Pearl label) of Prokofiev playing his own works. INT. 2: Actress CLAIRE BLOOM. After a long and illustrious career playing opposite the likes of Charlie Chaplin, Richard Burton, and Sir John Gielgud, Bloom is now performing a one woman show, called "Women Observed." In it, she reads roles from Anna Karenina, Jane Eyre, The Turn of the Screw, and A Room of One's Own. (The performance runs Thursday through Sunday at New York's Symphony Space). REV. 2: Book critic John Leonard reviews, "Saint Maybe," the new novel from Anne Tyler.

Interview with June Reinisch; Interview with Hal Lipset; Commentary on Brazil and poetry. September 26, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457836].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JUNE REINISCH, the Director of the Kinsey Institute, and the principle author of "The Kinsey Institute New Report on Sex." In it, she debunks many myths Americans have about sex, and she discusses what she calls the "sexual illiteracy" of many Americans. (It's published by St. Martin's Press). NOTE: The interview (taped yesterday) is a frank and anatomically precise discussion about sexuality. Dr. Reinisch does not say "woo-woo", she says "vagina". You get the idea. Some of the topics discussed are: changing attitudes towards sexuality over the last 40 years; penis size obsession; sexual fantasies; and masturbation. Although Dr. Reinisch is an animated speaker, the discussion is straight forward, and from a clinical perspective. It is not prurient, obscene or indecent in any respect. INT. 2: Private eye HAL LIPSET. Lipset's the subject of Patricia Holt's new book, "The Bug In The Martini Olive." That title refers to Lipset's ability to plant secret listening devices just about anywhere. He also photographed adulterous couples and worked for everyone from the Senate Watergate Committee to cult leader Jim Jones. REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz is also an accomplished poet. The U.S. Information Agency recently sent Lloyd to Brazil for a lecture tour. He tells us he found a country with a huge love of poetry. interview with Nora Dunn; Review of Aldo Romano's album "To Be Ornette To Be"; Interview with Jeff Danziger; Review of the film "Rambling Rose." September 27, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457563].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian NORA DUNN. Dunn was a cast member of Saturday Night Live for 6 years, and portrayed such roles as the vapid talk show host Pat Stevens, the lounge singing Sweeney Sisters, and French sex kitten Babette. She was also at the center of controversy when she refused to appear on SNL when Andrew Dice Clay was the guest host. Dunn has written a new book, in the personas of her characters, called "Nobody's Rib." (It's published by Harper Perennial). REV. Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new album from drummer Aldo Romano. It's called "To Be Ornette To Be," and it's a musical tribute to free jazz composer Ornette Coleman. (It's on the French Owl label). INT. 2: Cartoonist and novelist JEFF DANZIGER. Danziger is the political cartoonist for the Christian Science Monitor, and his cartoons are featured in more than one hundred newspapers around the country. Danziger's just written his first novel. It's called "Rising Like The Tucson," and it's a dark comedy about the Vietnam War. (It's published by Doubleday). REV: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Rambling Rose," starring Robert Duval and Laura Dern.

Interview with Andre Dubois; Interview with Willie Ruff; Obituary for Miles Davis. September 30, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457566].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ANDRE DUBUS ("dah-bues"). Dubus' short stories earned him this year's Bernard Malamud Award from the writers group, PEN. This summer, Dubus released his first work of non-fiction, a collection of essays, called "Broken Vessels." It's published by Godine. (Rebroadcast. Original date 6/25/91). INT. 2: Jazz French horn player WILLIE RUFF. Ruff's autobiography, "A Call to Assembly," chronicles his childhood in the South, his enlistment in the army in 1946, his gaining admission to Yale, and his decision to pass on a career in classical music and follow a life in jazz. It's published by Viking. (Rebroadcast. Original date 7/24/91). REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead remembers jazz great Miles Davis, who died this weekend at age 65.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Sam Dillon; Interview with JoAnn Falletta; Commentary on leaves changing color. October 2, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457817].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist SAM DILLON. Dillon was part of the Miami Herald's team of reporters that won a Pulitzer Prize for their reporting on the Iran Contra scandal. His new book, "Comandos: The CIA and Nicaragua's Contra Rebels," looks at the history of the contras during their ten year struggle with the Sandinistas. (published by Henry Holt). INT. 2: Musician and conductor JOANN FALLETTA. Falletta is conductor of the Bay Area Women's Philharmonic in San Francisco, which is dedicated to finding and playing music by women that was previously undiscovered or unrecorded. Falletta has a PhD from Juilliard. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARZ is also a poet, and today he reads one of his poems about leaves changing color.
Interview with Molly Ivins; Interview with Walter Dellinger; Interview with Nadine Gordimer.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist MOLLY IVINS from Austin, Texas. She calls herself a "dripping fangs liberal," and believes that by being objective journalists take all the color out of human affairs. She says, "politics ought to be covered the way sports is, as a celebration of heroes and villains." She's taken on Ron and Nancy Reagan, George Bush, and the "bubbas" in the Texas Legislature. She's been a reporter for 25 years, for the "Texas Observer," "The New York Times." IVINS has also been contributor to the "MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour," and a columnist for the "Dallas Times Herald." A new best-of-Ivins-collection has just been published, "Molly Ivins Can't Say That, Can She?" (Random House). INT. 2:The U.S. Senate begins debate today on confirmation of Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court; and Senator Biden has called for hearings examining the confirmation process. Duke University Law Professor WALTER DELLINGER gives his critique of the confirmation process. REV.:South African Novelist NADINE GORDIMER was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature today. We'll have an excerpt from Terry's interview with her in May 24, 1989.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist and Associate Professor at Hampshire College MICHAEL KLARE. He directs the Five-College Program in Peace and World Security Studies. He talks to Terry about Bush's recent call for cutting back of our nuclear arsenal in eastern Europe. Klare says, though, it isn't a sign of disarmament, it's the beginning of a re-armament to fight the wars of the post cold-war era. His 1990 article, "Who's Arming Who?" warned of the growing global violence deriving from the arms trade. He's also the author of "American Arms Supermarket (University of Texas Press, 1985). REV.:Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Norman Mailer's new novel, "Harlot's Ghost." INT. 2:We check in again with journalist ROBERT CULLEN. He's the former Moscow correspondent Newsweek, and he writes regularly on Eastern Europe for "The Atlantic," and the "New Yorker." CULLEN will talk with Terry about his recent trip to Moscow after the coup and he'll update us on the state of the Soviet military. His new book is "Twilight of Empire: Inside the Crumbling Soviet Bloc." REV.: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new historical shows, one on PBS and the other on ABC. One is a documentary series, "Columbus and the Age of Discovery," and the other a docudrama about the Gulf War, "Heroes of Persian Gulf."

Interview with David A. Vise; Review of Molly Ivins' book "Molly Ivins Can't Say That, Can She?"; Interview with Maira Kalman; Commentary on the band Quicksilver Messenger Service. October 7, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457720].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Norman Mailer; Interview with Jake Lamar; Review of Luc Sante's book "Low Life." October 8, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811371].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author NORMAN MAILER. Over the past four decades Mailer's evolved into one of America's most important, and at times most flamboyant, writers. He has a new novel, titled "Harlot's Ghost". INT. 2: Writer JAKE LAMAR. In his new memoir, "Bourgeois Blues," Lamar examines the issue of race in his life, and in American society. (published by Summit Books). REV.: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Low Life," by Luc Sante (pronounced "luke sahn-tay"). The book explores the every-day existence of New Yorkers a century ago.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Peter Scheider; Interview with John Kander; Review of the film "Frankie and Johnny." October 10, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457815].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We discuss Tibet with Robert Thurman. Thurman is professor of Indo-Tibetian Buddhist Studies at Columbia University, the organizer of the Year of Tibet activities, and the first American to be ordained a Tibetan Buddhist monk by the Dalai Lama. INT. 2: Doctor Jonathan Mann, the director of the 1992 International Conference on AIDS. That conference has already become controversial, because the site of the conference was moved from Boston to Amsterdam. That decision was made because of the U.S. government did not give assurance that people with AIDS would be able to enter the U.S. to attend the conference. Mann is a professor of epidemiology and international health at the Harvard School of Public Health, and the former head of the World Health Organization's Global Program on AIDS. REV.: World music critic Milo Miles reviews some current books on African music. His big recommendation is "Sweet Mother: Modern African Music," by Wolfgang Bender (published by University of Chicago Press).

 Interviews with Barbara Ehrenreich, Michel McQueen, Tony Auth, and Signe Wilkinson; Commentary on the word "harassment"; Interview with Susan Faludi; Review of Heavy D and the Boyz and 3rd Bass albums. October 14, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457816].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We get several views on this weekend's Clarence Thomas proceedings...First, feminist and Time magazine essayist BARBARA EHRENREICH (air-rike) gives her views. Then Terry talks with Wall Street Journal reporter Michel McQueen about what African Americans think of the hearings. Finally, we talk with Philadelphia's two editorial cartoonists: Tony Auth (rhymes with "broth") of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and Signe Wilkinson of the Philadelphia Daily News. REV.: The Thomas hearings leads linguist Geoffrey Nunberg to wonder, is it "HAIR-ess-ment" or "heh-RASS-ment"? INT. 2: Journalist SUSAN FALUDI ("fah-lude-ee"). Her new book, "Backlash," looks at how the gains women made as a result of the feminist movement are being reversed and undermined. (It's published by Crown). REV.: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews two current rap acts, Heavy D and the Boyz and 3rd Bass.
Interview with James B. Stewart; Interview with Marvin Miller; Review of Jimmy Breslin's biography "Damon Runyon." October 15, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457718].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fresh Air producer Amy Salit talks with Wall Street Journal reporter JAMES B. STEWART. Stewart won the Pulitzer Prize for his work on the stock market crash and the inside trading scandal. He's expanded on the insider trading story in his new book, "Den of Thieves." (Published by Simon and Schuster). INT. 2: MARVIN MILLER. He was the first executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association when it was formed in 1966. He was executive director until 1983. To some, he's the man responsible for the dramatic increase in player's salaries, and for ending the system that bound an athlete to one team forever. To others, he's the man who depreciated the value of teams and made millionaires out of players. His book is "A Whole Different Ballgame," (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 6/27/91). REV.: Book critic John Leonard reviews Jimmy Breslin's new biography of Damon Runyon.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We take one last look back at the Clarence Thomas confirmation process, and look ahead to what future confirmation's may be like, with law professor DAVID KAIRYS (pronounced "carries"). Kairys has a long history in personal freedom and civil rights issues. INT. 2: News anchor DAN RATHER. As anchor of the CBS Evening News, Rather's probably the most visible journalist in America. He has a new memoir called "I Remember." (It's published by Little, Brown). REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles checks out "Samba," writer Alma Guillermoprieto's (geair-mo-prer-toe) new book on Brazil's most famous musical form, and how it pervades Brazilian life and culture.
Interview with Stan Lee; Interview with Michael Tolkin; Review of the television shows "Dynasty October 17, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457756].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The creator of such Marvel comic book superheroes as Spiderman, The Incredible Hulk, and The Fantastic Four -- cartoonist STAN LEE. He joined Marvel comic books at the age of 16, more than 30 years ago. A new book about Marvel Comics has just been published, "Five Fabulous Decades of the World's Greatest Comics." (published by Harry A. Abrams, New York). INT. 2: Novelist, and screenwriter MICHAEL TOLKIN. He's just directed his first film, "The Rapture," based on his own screenplay about a woman's search for faith. TOLKIN'S novel, "The Player" will soon come out as a movie, directed by Robert Altman. REV.: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI comments on the counter-programing in place to compete with the 1991 World Series. ABC will present a miniseries of "Dynasty," and NBC dredges up, "I Still Dream of Jeannie."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Editor ZE'EV CHAFETS (SHAY-fetz) of "The Jerusalem Report," a news magazine published in Israel. He's also the author of "Inherit the Mob," a comic novel about a journalist lured into the Jewish Mafia, baited by a large inheritance. CHAFETS will talk to Terry about his own life as an American living in Israel and about the upcoming peace talks. INT. 2: Composer, director, and writer ELIZABETH SWADOS. She's written a memoir about her family, "The Four of Us." Much of it has to do with her brilliant but schizophrenic brother, Lincoln, and how his illness affected the family. Her brother became a street person, and later died. (published by Farrar, Straus & Giroux). REV.: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Song Dog," by James McClure, and "Personal Effects," by Marissa Piesman.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian BILL COSBY. Cosby talks about his TV show, his early years doing stand-up comedy, and his new book, "Childhood." It recounts some of his favorite stories of his youth. (It's published by Putnam). INT. 2: PAMELA CONSTABLE and ARTURO VALENZUELA. Their new book, "A Nation of Enemies," examines how Chile, a country with a long history of democracy, slipped into more than a decade of dictatorship under Augusto Pinochet. Constable is Latin America correspondent for the Boston Globe, Valenzuela is director of the Center for Latin American Studies at Georgetown University. (The book's published by W.W. Norton). REV.: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new recording of music by Czech composers Gideon Klein and Viktor Ullmann. Klein and Ullmann were both imprisoned at the Theresienstadt (ter-RAYZ-shtat) concentration camp during World War 2, and later put to death at Auschwitz. This is the first of 6 planned recordings of music the pair wrote while under Nazi imprisonment.

Interview with Seymour Hersh; Interview with Sonny Sharrock; Review of Paul Fussell's book "BAD, or the Dumbing of America." October 23, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457808].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Investigative reporter SEYMOUR HERSH. In his new book, "The Samson Option," Hersh contends that Israel has had a secret nuclear arms program for years, had those arms aimed at the Soviet Union for years, and was ready to fire those weapons at Arab capitals during the recent Gulf war. Hersh's previous book, "The Target Is Destroyed," looked at what really happened when Korean Airlines flight 007 was shot down near Japan. INT. 2: Jazz musician SONNY SHARROCK. He's been called America's leading free jazz guitarist. His new album is called "Ask the Ages." (It's on Axiom records). REV. 1: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "BAD, or the Dumbing of America," by Paul Fussell. In his book, Fussell decries the decline of quality and taste in everything from movies to education. (It's published by Summit Books).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Filmmaker GARRY MARSHALL. Marshall produced and directed the new movie "Frankie & Johnny." He also directed last year's hit movie "Pretty Woman," and he has a long distinguished career in TV, with shows like "Happy Days," "Laverne & Shirley," "Mork and Mindy," and "The Odd Couple" to his credit. INT. 2:Actor JOHN LEGUIZAMO (pronounced "Leh-gwee-zamo"). Leguizamo created and stars in the hit one-man show "Mambo Mouth," based on his experiences as a Latino growing up in Jackson Heights, Queens. "Mambo Mouth" premieres on television this Saturday, on HBO's Comedy Hour. REV.:Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Hymns To The Silence," the new double album from Van Morrison.

Interview with Lillian Faderman; Interview with Lesley Gore; Commentary on the expression "the body politic." October 25, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457650].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Professor LILLIAN FADERMAN. Faderman's written a new book on the history of lesbians and lesbian life in 20th Century America. It's called "Odd Girls and Twilight Lovers." (It's published by Columbia University Press). INT. 2:Singer LESLEY GORE. In 1963, when she was only 16, Lesley Gore recorded one of the greatest songs in rock and roll history, "It's My Party, and I'll Cry If I Want To." Gore has stayed in the business since the 60s, and she's currently appearing at the New York City club, "Rainbow and Stars." Also, Rhino records has recently released a two record retrospective of her greatest hits. REV.:Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg has some thoughts on the literal meaning of "the body politic."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Philadelphia Inquirer reporters DONALD BARLETT and JAMES STEELE. For the past 9 days, the Inquirer has run a series of scathing front page articles by Barlett and Steele titled "America: What Went Wrong?" In it, they examine how government policies as diverse as changes in the bankruptcy laws and the sanctioning of political action committees have worked to make the rich richer and the poor poorer. INT. 2: We remember rock impresario BILL GRAHAM, who died this weekend in a helicopter crash. Terry Gross talked with Graham in May of 1989. We'll play back part of that interview. REV.: Book critic John Leonard reviews Martin Amis' new novel, "Time's Arrow." It's the story of a former Nazi doctor who looks back on the horror he committed during the Holocaust.

Interview with Bapsi Sidhwa; Commentary on Willem Breuker's work; Interview with Willem Breuker. October 29, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457754].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pakistani writer BAPSI SIDHWA (Bop-see SEED-wah). Her new novel is "Cracking India," which tells the story of the Partition of India through the eyes of an eight-year-old girl named Lenny. SIDHWA has written other novels as well, "The Bride," and "Ice-Candy-Man," both stories told through female characters. She'll talk with Terry about her books and women's rights in Pakistan. REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the music of WILLEM BREUKER. INT. 2: Saxophonist and clarinetist WILLEM BREUKER {lcub} as in GROW: Brow-ker), leader of the Dutch jazz band, The Willem Breuker Kollektief. They are known for their stage performances which draw heavily from street theatre and vaudeville. Their releases include "Bob's Gallery," (on the BVHAAST label from West Germany, distributed by North Country Distributors, Calif. 315-287-2852) and "Baal Brecht Breuker Handke," on the BVHAAST label, phone # 020-23 97 99.
Interview with Roger Fisher; Commentary on advertising trends; Interview with James Reston; Review of Nigel Kennedy and Klaus Tennstedt's album "Violin Concerto." October 30, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457752].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Reporter SCOTT ARMSTRONG. Jones has an article in the current issue of "Mother Jones" magazine, describing the long history of secret military agreements between the governments of the U.S. and Saudi Arabia. Armstrong contends the military deals, which cost more than 150 billion dollars, violate the Constitution. INT. 2:Writer WILLIAM LEAST HEAT MOON. His 1983 chronicle of traveling the back roads of America, "Blue Highways," became a literary classic and a huge best-seller. In his new book, "PrairyErth," Least Heat Moon looks at the geography, geology, and history of one county in Kansas. (The book's published by Houghton Mifflin, and "PrairyErth" is the correct spelling. There's no second "a"). REV.:Rock historian ED WARD looks at rock's fascination with teen death and suicide, an influence that led to hits like "Teen Angel" and "Leader of the Pack." (Rebroadcast of October 30, 1989).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Basketball great WILT CHAMBERLAIN. Chamberlain has a new memoir of his career on the court, and his sometimes controversial life off the court. It's called "A View From Above." REV 1.: Television critic David Bianculli reviews a four-hour miniseries starting this weekend on NBC starring country singer Kenny Rodgers in his role as "The Gambler." INT. 2: We remember theater impresario Joe Papp. He was responsible for bringing out such hits as "A Chorus Line" and "Hair," and for staging many memorable performances at the New York Shakespeare Festival. He died yesterday at age 70. We'll listen to a Fresh Air interview with Papp from 1987. REV 2 & 3: First, novelist E.L. Doctorow reads from his novel, "Billy Bathgate." Then, film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Billy Bathgate," the film adaptation of E. L. Doctorow's best-selling novel. It stars Dustin Hoffman and Bruce Willis.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: One of Africa's greatest novelists, NURUDDIN FARAH (New-ru-DEAN Fair-ah). He was born in what is now known as the Somalian Republic. He writes in English, and his work has been widely praised for its treatment of women. His books include, "From A Crooked Rib," "A Naked Needle," and a trilogy, "Variations on an African Dictatorship." For a long time Farah was living in exile because of a death sentence placed against him for his writing. It has since been lifted. INT. 2: Cartoonist DAN PERKINS, otherwise known as "Tom Tomorrow," the creator of the comic strip, "This Modern World." This social/political strip appears regularly in a number of alternative papers and magazines such as the Utne Reader, Whole Earth, and Z. It's just recently began running in the San Francisco Examiner. The strip uses the collage imagery from 40s and 50s advertising and features Sparky the Wonder Penguin who has been known to call George Bush a "Wanker." REV.: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Mexican writer Carlos Fuentes' new book, "The Campaign."
Interview with Joe Mantegna; Interview with Stanley Burns; Commentary on the difference between "can" and "may." November 5, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457870].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor Joe Mantegna. Mantegna plays a tough cop investigating a murder in the new David Mamet film, "Homicide." Mantegna's worked with Mamet several times before, starring in his movie, "House of Games," and in the Mamet play, "Glengarry, Glen Ross." INT. 2: Surgeon and photographic historian STANLEY BURNS. Burns has just compiled a book called "Sleeping Beauty: Memorial Photography In America." It chronicles what was a common occurrence in the late 1800s and early 1900s... taking one last photograph of a dead relative. (The book's published by Twelvetrees Press). REV.: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg examines one of the early rules of grammar we all have shoved down our throats,... the difference between can and may.

---

Interview with Garrison Keillor; Interview with Daniel Halpern; Commentary on Skip James. November 6, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457734].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and radio performer GARRISON KEILLOR. Keillor's weekly program, "The American Radio Company," is heard on many public radio stations. Keillor's now written a new novel, about the golden days of radio, titled "WLT." (It's published by Viking). INT. 2: Poet DANIEL HALPERN. Halpern's latest collection of poems, "Foreign Neon," has just been published by Knopf. Halpern himself is also a publisher, the head of Ecco Press, and the editor of the literary journal, "Antaeus" (pronounced "an-es"). REV.: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Skip James, a great bluesman of the 30s who vanished from the scene, then reappeared 30 years later.
Interview with Alan Rabinowitz; Interview with John Prine; Review of Garth Brooks' album "Ropin' the Wind." November 7, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457806].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Zoologist ALAN RABINOWITZ. He spends his time tracking and trying to protect endangered large cats in Central America, Africa, and Southeast Asia. He's written two books about his adventures, "Jaguar" and his latest, "Chasing the Dragon's Tail." (Both are published by Doubleday.) INT. 2: Singer-songwriter JOHN PRINE. He's just come out with his first studio album in 5 years, "The Missing Years." (It's on Oh Boy Records). REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album "Ropin' the Wind" by country singer Garth Brooks.

Interview with Joan Rivers; Interview with Kathy Najimy and Mo Gaffney; Review of the television show the "Carol Burnett Show." November 8, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457733].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Talk show host JOAN RIVERS. Rivers has a new memoir, called "Still Talking." (It's published Random House). REV 1.: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The Carol Burnett Show," which premiered last Friday on CBS. INT. 2: Comic actresses KATHY NAJIMY ("nah-JEE-me") and MO GAFFNEY. Their two-woman satirical revue, "The Kathy & Mo Show," has been an Off-Broadway hit since 1985. It's debuts on HBO this Saturday. INT. 3: We talk with Washington Post sports writer MIKE FREEMAN about yesterday's revelation that basketball great Magic Johnson has tested positive for the AIDS virus.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DAVE ALVIN is the former guitarist for the Los Angeles band The Blasters. He's just put out a new album called "Blue Blvd." (Hightone Records) After writing songs for others, he's now writing for

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GARY SICK was an aide to President Carter during the Iranian hostage crisis. Now Sick charges that in 1980, the Reagan campaign made a secret deal with the Iranians to hold the release of the American hostages until after the election. In his new book "October Surprise" (published by Random House), Sick tries to reconstruct the story. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF HOUR OF TODAY'S SHOW)! INT. 2: We continue our discussion on the October Surprise, with former White House aide Gary Sick. REV.: Book critic John Leonard reviews "The Runaway Soul," the long-awaited first novel from writer Harold Brodkey. (It's published by Farrar Strauss).

---

Interview with Vladimir Lobas; Interview with Glen Matlock; Review of the film "Life is Sweet." November 13, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457666].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soviet emigre, and Manhattan cab driver VLADIMIR LOBAS. In 1977, Lobas was living in New York, and needed some quick cash, so he got a job driving a cab. His first day on the job was also the first time he had Ever driven an automobile. He's written about his experiences in a new memoir, called "Taxi From Hell." (It's published by Soho). INT. 2: Musician GLEN MATLOCK. Matlock was an original member of the British punk band, The Sex Pistols. He was kicked out of the band in 1977, and replaced by Sid Vicious. Matlock has written a new book about the band, titled "I Was A Teenage Sex Pistol." (It's published by Faber and Faber). REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new British comedy, "Life Is Sweet."
Interview with Lance Hill; Interview with David Touchstone; Interview with Richard Baudouin; Interview with John Slade. November 14, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457921].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today, we examine the Louisiana governor's race, and the controversy surrounding republican candidate David Duke. First, we talk with LANCE HILL, of the Louisiana Coalition Against Racism and Naziism. He discusses what he calls Duke's long term strategy to build mass appeal among voters. INT. 2: Terry next talks to DAVID TOUCHSTONE, coordinator of David Duke's campaign in northwest Louisiana. INT. 3: Terry talks with RICHARD BAUDOUIN ("BO-dwahn"), editor of the Times Of Acadiana, a weekly newspaper in Lafayette, Louisiana, the heart of Cajun country. He'll talk about how the Duke and Edwards campaigns are playing in his part of the state. INT. 4: Finally, we hear from JOHN SLADE, editorial cartoonist for the Louisiana Weekly, an African American newspaper based in New Orleans.

Interview with Edward Said; Interview with Mark Sofer; Commentary on Michael Jackson's music videos; Interview with John Mariani; Review of the film "Cape Fear." November 15, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457922].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Arab scholar EDWARD SAID ("sigh-eed") discusses the recent Middle East peace conference, and the changing leadership of the Palestinian movement. Said is a member of the Palestine National Council (the Palestinian government in exile) and a professor of English at Columbia University. NT. 2: Deputy General Counsel of Isreal in New York, MARK SOFER talks with Terry about the possible arrest of Hanan Ashrawi, a spokesperson and advisor for the Palestinian delegation. REV 1.: Television critic David Bianculli reviews last night's premiere of Michael Jackson's new music video, "Black Or White." He also discusses how Jackson has changed the world of music videos. INT. 3: Restaurant critic JOHN MARIANI. He's written a book about the history of going out for a meal. "America Eats Out" (Morrow) portrays the origin and significance of every type of restaurant known to the American public, from the tavern to the automat to the golden arches. Rev. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new Martin Scorsese film, "Cape Fear."
Interview with Volker Schlondorff; Interview with Mark L. Plummer; Commentary on cumbia. November 18, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811301].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: German Film Director VOLKER SCHLONDORFF. His films include "The Tin Drum," and as "The Handmaid's Tale." He's also directed for television: "Death of a Salesman," starring Dustin Hoffman and "A Gathering of Old Men." His new film is "Voyager," starring Sam Shepard. He talks with Terry about the new film as well as how life has changed for he and his friends since the reunification of Germany. INT. 2: Writer MARK L. PLUMMER, co-author (with Charles Mann) of "The Aspirin Wars: Money, Medicine, and 100 Years of Rampant Competition." The book traces the history of aspirin from its discovery in Germany in 1897. Eventually it spread overseas and the competition began. Because all aspirins are essentially identical, companies had to use marketing and advertising to promote their product as better than another. "The Aspirin Wars," is a "history of the mixture of marketing, litigation, technology and reluctant competition that characterizes so much of business...in this century." (published by Knopf). REV.: World music critic Milo Miles discusses Cumbia (COOM-bia), the leisurely musical form that took shape in the northern regions of Colombia, and now influences bands in Mexico and the Southwestern United States. You may have already heard a Cumbia tune on TV, during a Colombian coffee commercial.

Interview with Linda McCarriston; Interview with Vincent Scully; Review of the television show "Civil Wars." November 19, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458081].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet LINDA McCARRISTON. Her new book of poems, "Eva-Mary," is up for a National Book Award. Many of the poems in the book are about how her father sexually abused her and her mother. (published by TriQuarterly Book/Northwestern University). The winner of the award will be announced tomorrow in New York. INT. 2: Architectural historian VINCENT SCULLY. Last spring he retired from regular teaching at Yale. His Modern Architecture class which he taught since 1947 was considered the most popular class in the school's history. He talks with Terry about his teaching technique, the necessity of new architecture in the inner cities, and the design of skyscrapers. REV.: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Civil Wars" a new weekly series on ABC about the battle of the sexes.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: English professor ARNOLD RAMPERSAD. He's just edited a new edition of the works of black writer Richard Wright. Wright's novel, "Native Son," was a breakthrough in African American literature when it was published in 1940. It also turns out many scenes dealing with the sexual activities of the main character were removed, to make the novel more palatable to Book Month Club subscribers. Those cuts have been restored in this new edition (by The Library of America). Arnold Rampersad heads the Program in American Studies at Princeton University, and he's the author of an award-winning biography of Langston Hughes. INT. 2: Actress HOLLY WOODLAWN. Woodlawn was part of Andy Warhol's New York's scene in the 60s and early 70s. Perhaps her high point came when she starred in Warhol's movie "Trash." Woodlawn was born a boy, her career as a transvestite was immortalized in Lou Reed's song, "Take A Walk On the Wild Side." Woodlawn has a new memoir, called "A Low Life in High Heels: The Holly Woodlawn Story." (It's published by St Martin's Press). REV.: Book critic John Leonard reviews "Mariette In Ecstasy," (pronounced "mah-ree-ett") by Ron Hansen. It's the story of a young woman who enters a convent and then develops the Stigmata (published by Harper and Collins).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British writer A.S. BYATT. Her book, "Possession," has become a bestseller. It's a literary mystery about a couple of scholars whose own lives begin to mirror the lives of two 17th century poets whose secret correspondence they are researching. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new and first recording of conductor Benjamin Zander and the Boston Philharmonic Orchestra. INT. 2: Novelist and doctor ETHAN CANIN. His first book, "Emperor of the Air," a collection of short stories was published when he was only 27 and was the winner of a Houghton Mifflin Literary Fellowship. His new novel is "Blue River," about two brothers who make new discoveries about their childhood when they are reunited after a long separation. (published by Houghton Mifflin Company).

Interview with Glen Keane; Interview with Norman Lear; Commentary on Charlie Green.

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1.: The head animator for the character of the Beast in the new Disney film "Beauty and the Beast," Glen Keane. Keane stated at Disney Studios in 1974. He's worked on "The Fox and the Hound" and "The Little Mermaid." (Interview by Marty Moss-Coane) INT 2.: Legendary television producer Norman Lear. His shows include All in the Family, Maude, the Jeffersons, and Good Times. Lear returns to the small screen next year with the show The Powers that Be. Lear is also the founder of People for the American Way, a citizens' group dedicated to stemming the influence of the Religious Right. The group is currently fighting the "gag" rule preventing doctors from discussing abortion in federally funded facilities. (Interview by Marty Moss-Coane) REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead profiles trombonist Charlie Green who worked with Bessie Smith.

Interview with Leticia Johnson; Interview with King Lou; Review of the television show "Memories of M*A*S*H." November 25, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457920].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Teenage mother LETICIA JOHNSON. She's the main focus of a new book that deals examines one family with a legacy of teenage pregnancy. The book's called "Before Their Time: Four Generations of Teenage Mothers," by Joelle Sander. Sander uses oral history to look at the effect poverty and society has had on one family. It's published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. INT. 2: Rapper KING LOU. He's one half of "The Dream Warriors," a rap duo out of Toronto. Lou and his partner, Capital Q, were both born in the Caribbean, and they bring Caribbean influences to their music. Their latest album is called "And The Legacy Begins." (It's on Island). REV.: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "Memories of MASH," a 90-minute special that looks back at the popular TV series. It airs tonight on CBS.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Denver Post financial reporter STEVEN WILMSEN. Wilmsen was the reporter who discovered the ties between the President's son, Neil Bush, and the collapse of Colorado's Silverado Banking Savings and Loan. That's the subject of his new book, "Silverado," (published by National Press Books). INT. 2: Cartoonist JOHN CALLAHAN. Callahan comes up with comics that are both funny and often offensive (a typical example: an obese man stands with his obese son in front of the refrigerator, saying "Son, someday all of this will be yours."). Callahan often pokes fun at alcoholics and the disabled, something he's qualified to do. Callahan was an alcoholic for many years, and he was left a quadriplegic after a drunk driving accident. Callahan's latest book of cartoons is called "Digesting The Child Within." It's published by Quill (a division of William Morrow). REV.: Book critic John Leonard reviews the novel "Eve's Tattoo," by Emily Praeger. ('pray-gerr'). It's published by Random House.

Interview with Barry Sonnenfeld; Interview with Julie Salamon; Review of Kenneth Silverman's biography "Edgar A. Poe November 27, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457919].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Cinematographer BARRY SONNENFELD. He was the cinematographer for the Coen Brothers' "Blood Simple," "Raising Arizona," "Miller's Crossing," and for "Misery." He's just made his directing debut with the new film, "The Addams Family." INT. 2: Film critic for the Wall Street Journal, JULIE SALAMON. She's just written a new book about the making of the film, "The Bonfire of the Vanities." The book is "The Devil's Candy: The Bonfire of the Vanities Goes to Hollywood," (published by Houghton Mifflin). The movie, based on the Tom Wolfe novel of the same name, was directed by Brian DePalma and was eagerly anticipated but turned out to be a critical and financial bomb. SALAMON

---

Interview with Lynda Barry; Interview with David Sanborn; Commentary on rock "turkeys." November 28, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458080].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Cartoonist and writer LYnda BARRY. Barry's comic strip about her childhood, "Ernie Pook's Comeek," is popular in many alternative newsweeklies around the country. She's also written a show based on the comic, called "The Good Times Are Killing Me." It's playing now Off-Broadway. (This interview was recorded this summer before a live audience in Seattle, when Terry visited station KPLU).

INT. 2: Saxophonist DAVID SANBORN. Sanborn's latest album is called "Another Hand." He also has a syndicated radio show heard on more than 200 stations, and he was the host of the ground-breaking TV show, "Night Music." (Rebroadcast. Original date 8/29/91). REV.: In honor of Thanksgiving, rock historian Ed Ward carves up some rock and roll turkeys.

---

Interview with Vernard Johnson; Interview with Annie Leibovitz; Review of the album "Two Room." November 29, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457794].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Alto saxophonist VERNARD JOHNSON. He's a musical oddity, a gospel saxophonist. His saxophone was considered too raucous for the Gospel circuit when he began playing in the mid-60's, but eventually he became a favorite on the evangelical circuit. Robert Palmer, in "The New York Times," writes, "The force and passion of the man's alto saxophone sounds are matched only by its creamy richness...listeners may think it sounds more like rhythm and blues, rock, or jazz than conventional Gospel music." He has an album called "I'm Alive," on the Elektra Nonesuch label. (Rebroadcast. Original date 8/27/91).

INT. 2: Photographer ANNIE LEIBOVITZ. She's famous for her portraits of celebrities that capture the person behind the public image. She's photographed John Lennon and Yoko Ono, Ella Fitzgerald, Mick Jagger, Tennessee Williams and others. Her photographs have been featured in Interview with Richard Ellis; Interview with James Fallows; Commentary on using dictionaries. December 2, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457798].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Marine artist RICHARD ELLIS. He's been studying and painting whales for the past two decades. His new book "Men and Whales," is the history of the relationship between the two, beginning with the hunting of whales. It's just been recent in history that whaling has been outlawed in most areas of the world. (published Alfred A. Knopf). INT. 2: Washington editor of "The Atlantic," JAMES FALLOWS. He's also a commentator for NPR's Morning Edition. And he's writing a book about the future of East Asia. He lived in Japan for years and frequently writes about relations between America and Japan, and the cultural differences involved. He'll talk with Terry about how the Japanese view the upcoming anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor. REV.: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the ambiguity of the dictionary. (rerun of 9/13/1989)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDWARD "HACKSAW" JONES -- so named for his many prison escapes. He was the only criminal put on the FBI's most-wanted list without a history of physical violence. When he was still in prison he began writing. He's written two novels, "Cage," and "Awake," as well as an autobiography, "Hacksaw." He's got a new novel, "Stoneface." (published by Donald I. Fine, Inc., New York). INT. 2: Journalist TED CONOVER. His new book is "Whiteout: Lost in Aspen" about the two years he spent immersed in the culture of Aspen, Colorado, a mecca of sorts for the rich and famous. CONOVER's other books are "Rolling Nowhere," about riding the rails with America's hoboes, and "Coyotes," about

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In light of the current dilemma over the fate of Haitian refugees, we examine the U.S.'s current immigration policy. First we talk with Representative LAMAR SMITH, vice chairman of the House Subcommittee on Immigration. Then Terry talks with FRANK SHARRY, the executive director of the National Immigration Refugee and Citizenship Forum, a group that works for the rights of new immigrants. INT. 2: Village Voice art critic PETER SCHJELDAHL ("shell-dahl"). He's just published a new collection of his writings from the late 70s to 1990. The collection's called "The Hydrogen Jukebox." It's published by the University of California Press. REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Violin Music for Restaurants" by violinist Jon Rose. In the album, Rose assumes several musical personae, among them Jo "Doc" Rosenberg, an Australian cafe violinist.

Interview with Andrea Sankar; Interview with Alan Rickman; Review of the television shows "Pearl Harbor December 5, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457898].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Medical anthropologist ANDREA SANKAR. She's written a new book that explains how to take care of a dying loved one at home. It's called "Dying At Home: A Family Guide for Caregiving." It's published by the Johns Hopkins University Press. INT. 2: Actor ALAN RICKMAN. Rickman stars in the new drama, "Close My Eyes." In recent years, he's played a couple of great bad guys...the suave terrorist Hans Gruber in "Die Hard," and the Sheriff of Nottingham in "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves." REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews two of the many specials commemorating the 50th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor. Tonight's two hour special on ABC, "Pearl Harbor: Two Hours That Changed the World," and Saturday's special on CBS, called "Remember Pearl Harbor."

Interview with Peter Medak; Commentary on the Isley Brothers; Interview with David Feinberg; Commentary on La-Z-Boys. December 6, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457341].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director PETER MEDAK. Medak's new movie, "Let Him Have it," is the true-life story of two London teenagers who shot a policeman in 1952. What makes the case controversial is that the boy who actually pulled the trigger was a minor, and therefore couldn't get the death penalty. The other boy was put to death, even though there's evidence that he was trying to surrender. Medak's own life reads like a movie...he was born in Hungary, fled the Nazis and later the Communists, arrived nearly penniless in London, worked his way up through the business, and eventually make movies like "The Ruling Class" and "The Krays." REV 1.: Rock historian Ed Ward profiles the Isley Brothers. INT. 2: Author DAVID FEINBERG. His new novel, "Spontaneous Combustion," is the further adventures of an HIV-positive man in New York City. (It's published by Viking). REV. 2: Commentator Maureen Corrigan tells us about her latest concession to the sedentary lifestyle...the purchase of a La-Z-Boy recliner.

Interview with Donald Fagen; Interview with Max Kampelman; Review of Julie London's album "Time for Love December 9, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457796].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Co-founder of the 1970s rock group Steely Dan, DONALD FAGEN. Their hits included "Rikki, Don't Lose that Number," "Deacon Blues," and "Josie." Since then he's issued a solo album and some singles, and worked at film scoring. He's just come out with a new all-star album, "New York Rock & Soul Revue -- Live at the Beacon," featuring Fagen, Michael McDonald, Phoebe Snow and Boz Scaggs. (Giant Records). INT. 2: Ambassador MAX KAMPELMAN. He was head of the U.S. delegation to the Geneva negotiations on nuclear and arms reduction. He also headed the U.S. delegation at the Madrid East-West Conference on Human Rights. Though a moderate Democrat, he worked for the Reagan and Bush administrations. And he was a pacifist until the end of World War Two when he realized that nuclear weapons changed the way wars would be waged. He's written a memoir, "Entering New Worlds: The Memoirs of a Private Man in Public Life." (HarperCollins Publishing). REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Time For Love: The Best of Julie London." It's a new reissue of songs by Julie London, who was a sex-kitten singer back in the 50s and 60s. (It's on Rhino Records).

Interview with Graef Crystal; Interview with Diane Noomin; Commentary on Indonesian popular music. December 10, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457342].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Business consultant and professor GRAEF (rhymes with "waif") CRYSTAL. Crystal spent many years telling CEOs of major corporations how to get bigger salaries. Now he's taking the exact opposite tack, speaking out against the astronomical salaries many executives receive, whether or not their companies do well. That's the subject of his new book, "In Search of Excess." INT. 2: Comic book artist DIANE NOOMIN. She's the editor of (and a contributor to) a new collection of underground comics drawn by women. It's called "Twisted Sisters." It's published by Penguin. REV.: World music critic Milo Miles checks out popular music from Indonesia. (He plays selections from the album "Indonesian Popular Music: Kroncong, Dangdut, & Langgam Jawa" on the Smithsonian Folkways label).

Interview with Philip Levine; Interview with JoAnn Falletta; Review of the film "Backtrack." December 11, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457344].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Philip Levine; Interview with JoAnn Falletta; Review of the film "Backtrack."
Interview with Bruce Thomas; Interview with Chris Rock; Obituary for Buck Clayton. December 12, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457900].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Elvis Costello's former bass player, BRUCE THOMAS. He was with Elvis Costello and the Attractions, from 1977-1987. Thomas has just written a journalistic book about touring with a band based on his own experiences, "The Big Wheel: Rock & Roll and Roadside Attractions." (published by Faber & Faber). INT. 2: Comedian CHRIS ROCK. Rock's a cast member on Saturday Night Live. He also played the junkie in the movie "New Jack City." REV.: We remember trumpeter BUCK CLAYTON, who died on Sunday at age 80. Clayton played with Count Baise's original band.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with John Rothchild; Interview with William Potter; Review of the film "Hook."

Interview with Andrei Konchalovsky; Interview with Walter Gunn; Review of James Taylor's and Warren Zevon's albums "New Moon Shine" and "Mr. Bad Example." December 16, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458057].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Russian filmmaker and Soviet emigre ANDREI KONCHALOVSKY (kahn-sha-LAHV-sky) has just completed "The Inner Circle." It is the first major motion picture out of Hollywood filmed inside the Kremlin and the KGB. Konchalovsky was a filmmaker in the Soviet Union for many years, where about 40 of his movies had been banned, before he left for America. Konchalovsky's other films include "Runaway Train" and "Tango & Cash." INT. 2: WALTER GUNN is an epidemiologist at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. He talks to Terry about the flu season, which came early this year. Americans are battling three different strains of the virus. He also talks about whether or not it's worth getting a vaccine. REV.: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews two new albums from some classic rock singer-songwriters: James Taylor's "New Moon Shine" (Columbia) and Warren Zevon's "Mr. Bad Example" (Giant Records).

Interview with Susan Meislas; Interview with Paul Schrader; Commentary on the Soviet Union. December 17, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457933].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Photographer SUSAN MEISELAS (My-SELL-us). She went to Nicaragua in the late 70s to photograph the Sandinista Revolution. She returned to Nicaragua recently to talk to the people she photographed more than ten years ago. Only this time she made a film about it, "Pictures From a Revolution." INT. 2: Film director and screen writer PAUL SCHRADER. His screenwriting credits include "Taxi Driver" and "The Last Temptation of Christ." Schrader's directing credits include "Hard Core," "Light of Day," "American Gigolo" and "Patty Hearst." SCHRADER'S latest movie is the psychological drama, "The Comfort of Strangers," just out on video. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 4/18/91). REV.:Commentary by Soviet emigre DAVID GUREVITCH (GIR-ah-vich). He's the author of "From Lenin to Lennon," a memoir about growing up in the 60s.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Robert Greenstein; Interview with William Rubenstein; Review of Christmas television specials and episodes.
Interview with Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller; Interview with Isaac Julien; Commentary on Christmas gifts for fans of jazz. December 19, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458054].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:. Rock and roll songwriting team JERRY LEIBER and MIKE STOLLER. They're responsible for many of the greatest hits in rock history, among them "Hound Dog," "Yakity Yak," and "Stand By Me." Rhino records has just released a collection of their songs, called "There's A Riot Goin' On." INT. 2: Filmmaker ISAAC JULIEN. His new movie, "Young Soul Rebels," explores the rise of British funk clubs in late 70s London. REV.2: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead tells us what to get the jazz fan on your Christmas list.

Interview with Thomas Pakenham; Commentary on Haitian popular music; Interview with Marjorie Garber; Review of the film "JFK." December 20, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457985].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Until the mid 1870s, most of Africa remained untouched by slave traders and explorers. And then, in a little over three decades of conquest, Western European countries carved up and colonized all of Africa. THOMAS PAKENHAM ("packin-em") has written "The Scramble for Africa" (Random House), a comprehensive account of this period where the white man invaded the Dark Continent. REV. 1: With Haiti so much in the news these days, World Music commentator Milo Miles decided to look into the world of Haitian pop music. INT. 2: Why does cross-dressing stir up so much anxiety in our culture? Harvard professor MARJORIE GARBER talks about where cross dressing has turned up in popular culture, and what it means to wear the clothes of the opposite sex. Garber's new book on the subject is "Vested Interests: Cross-Dressing and Cultural Anxiety." (It's published by Routledge). REV 2.: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "JFK," the new Oliver Stone film about the Kennedy's assassination.
Interview with Pedro Almodovar; Review of rock anthology albums; Interview with Phil Hilts; Review of the film "Bugsy." December 23, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457939].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Spanish film director PEDRO ALMODOVAR. He made the campy comedies "Women On The Verge of a Nervous Breakdown" and "Tie Me Up! Tie Me Down." His new movie, "High Heels" is a more sober story, the tale of a romantic triangle involving a mother, her daughter, and a murder. REV. 1: There's been a flood of CD anthologies this year documenting the careers of many great early rock and rollers. Rock historian Ed Ward tells us what ones he likes best, and what ones would make the best Christmas presents. INT. 2: We examine the controversy surrounding Vice President Dan Quayle's Council on Competitiveness. We talk with New York Times reporter PHIL HILTS, who covers the Council. REV. 2: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Bugsy," Warren Beatty's new movie about gangster Bugsy Siegel.

Interview with Tony Bennett; Interview with Penn Jillette; Review of the film "Beauty and the Beast." December 24, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457988].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer TONY BENNETT. Columbia Records has issued a retrospective set of recordings covering Bennett's 40 years in the business. (Rebroadcast). INT. 2: With everyone making plans for Christmas and New Year's Eve, we wondered what magician PENN JILLETTE (pronounced like "Gillette") would be up to. Jillette's one half of the magic team, Pen and Teller. The pair's latest show, "Penn and Teller Rot In Hell," is now playing off-Broadway. REV.: Film critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new Disney animated film "Beauty and the Beast."
Interview with Charles Schulz; Interview with Lesley Gore; Review of the film "Prince of Tides." December 25, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458102].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: "Peanuts" creator CHARLES SCHULZ. For more than 40 years, Schulz has been drawing what's probably the most popular comic strip in the world. (Rebroadcast. Original date 12/18/90). INT. 2: Singer LESLEY GORE. In 1963, when she was only 16, Leslie Gore recorded one of the greatest songs in rock and roll history, "It's My Party, and I'll Cry If I Want To." Gore has stayed in the business since the 60s, and she's currently appearing at the New York City club, "Rainbow and Stars." Also, Rhino records has recently released a two record retrospective of her greatest hits. (Rebroadcast. Original date 10/25/91).

REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Prince of Tides." It stars Barbara Streisand (who also directed the film) and Nick Nolte.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker discusses the year in rock music, and he runs down his choice for the top ten records of 1991. INT. 2: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks back at the television year 1991. REV.1: Maureen Corrigan considers the New York City subway system. She reviews Jim Dwyer's new book, "Subway Lives," and she discusses an exhibit of Walker Evans subway photographs from the 1930s and 40s. It's now at the National Gallery in Washington.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker and screenwriter JAMES TOBACK. Toback wrote the script for Warren Beatty's new gangster movie, "Bugsy." His previous films include "The Pickup Artist" and "The Big Bang." INT. 2: In
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Dave Frishberg; Interview with Maxine Hong Kingston; Interview with Cynthia Heimel. December 31, 1991. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457702].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live STEREO concert with jazz pianist, singer, and lyricist DAVE FRISHBERG. Frishberg's long been known for his satirical songs, such as "My Attorney Bernie," and "I'm Hip." His latest album, "Classics," is a collection of some of his best-known songs from previous albums. (It's on Concord Jazz records). (Rebroadcast. Original date 9/12/91). INT. 2: Writer MAXINE HONG KINGSTON shares her thoughts at the end of the year. Her novel, "Tripmaster Monkey," was a huge critical success in 1989. This year, Kingston lost the only copy of the manuscript for her new novel when her house in Oakland...
California burned down earlier this year. INT. 3: Columnist CYNTHIA HEIMEL ("HIGH-mel") tells us what the new year holds for her. Heimel writes about the perils of being a single woman in the 90s for both The Village Voice and Playboy. There's a recent collection of her columns, titled "If You Can't Live Without Me, Why Aren't You Dead Yet?" (It's published by Atlantic).

Interview with Mel Brooks; Interview with Nora Dunn; Commentary on food, memory, and happiness. January 1, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457797].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian and film maker MEL BROOKS. Brooks has made some of the funniest films in movie history, including "The Producers," "Young Frankenstein," and "Blazing Saddles." (Rebroadcast. Original date 7/30/91). INT. 2: Comedian NORA DUNN. Dunn was a cast member of Saturday Night Live for 6 years, and portrayed such roles as the vapid talk show host Pat Stevens, the lounge singing Sweeney Sisters, and French sex kitten Babette. She was also at the center of controversy when she refused to appear on SNL when Andrew Dice Clay was the guest host. Dunn has written a new book, in the personas of her characters, called "Nobody's Rib." (It's published by Harper Perennial). (Rebroadcast. Original date 9/27/91). REV.: Poet Mark Halliday reads one of his works, titled "Life's Bounty." (Rebroadcast. Original date 12/25/90).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LARRY DAVID, the co creator, executive producer, and on of the writers of the comedy series "Seinfeld." David's also the basis for the character "George," Jerry Seinfeld's neurotic best friend. He was a writer for Saturday Night Live and the short lived ABC late night series, "Fridays." INT. 2: Writer SANDRA CISNEROS. Her first book, "The House on Mango Street," told the story of Esperanza Cordero, a young girl growing up in the Latino quarter of Chicago. Cisneros has a recent collection of stories, "Woman Hollering Creek." (Rebroadcast. Original date 4/23/91). Rev.1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the new opera, "The Ghosts of Versailles ("vahr-SIGH") by composer John Corigliano ("core ee ahn no"). It premiered two weeks ago at the Metropolitan Opera in New York, the first new opera to premiere at the Met in 25 years.

Interview with Norman Mailer; Review of the film "Naked Lunch"; Interview with Joe Keenan; Commentary on rock in 1952. January 3, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457853].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Jules Shear; Interview with Ernest Dickerson; Review of the television show "The American Experience." January 6, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457795].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and interview with singer/songwriter/guitarist JULES SHEAR. He was with the "Funky Kings," and later, "Jules & The Polar Bears." The songs he has written have been recorded by The Bangles, Cyndi Lauper, and many others. He has a new album out this month, "The Great Puzzle." (on Polydor). INT. 2: Cinematographer ERNEST DICKERSON. He shot all of Spike Lee's films. He's now making his debut as a film director with the movie, "Juice," for which he also wrote the script. REV. : T.V. Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Quiz Show Scandal," a new documentary that's part of PBS's "The American Experience" series. It's about the quiz shows that were fixed during the 1950s.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The late songwriter Doc Pomus co-wrote such hits as "This Magic Moment," "Save The Last Dance for Me," "Teenager in Love," and "His Latest Flame." We remember Pomus with three interviews: 1) Music critic PETER GURALNICK (Gurr-AL-nick), a friend and admirer of Pomus. Guralnick wrote "Searching For Robert Johnson," a book that examined the life of blues musician Robert Johnson. And he's currently working on a biography of Elvis Presley. 2) The great DR. JOHN (a.k.a. Mac Rebennack). He wrote a lot of songs with Doc Pomus. He performs with Johnny Adams on his new album (see below) and performs with Adams on it. 3) Rhythm and Blues singer JOHNNY ADAMS. He has a new collection of Doc Pomus songs, "Johnny Adams sings Doc Pomus: The Real Me," (Rounder Records). Adams was one of Pomus's favorite singers. They began working on the collection before Pomus died. INT. 4: First amendment lawyer MARTIN GARBUS. He recently defended Peter Matthiessen's controversial book, "In the Spirit of Crazy Horse," against two separate libel suits. Garbus is currently helping to draft a new constitution for Czechoslovakia. He talks with Terry about that. REV. 1: Book critic JOHN LEONARD on "Professors, Politics, and Pop," a new book of essays on campus politics and pop culture by journalist Jon Wiener.

Interview with Soledad Santiago; Interview with Gary Busey; Commentary on the rhythm and blues aspects of Elvis Presley's music. January 8, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457958].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist SOLEDAD SANTIAGO and her children were homeless fourteen years ago. From there she went on to become a journalist and she headed the press office for New York State Controller Ned Regan. She talks to Terry about her life, about raising children in a dangerous urban environment, and the difficult choices she's had to make. Her new novel is called "Room 9." (Perfect Crime Press). INT. 2: Actor GARY BUSEY. Busey electrified audiences and the critics with his starring role in "The Buddy Holly Story." More recently, Busey was the arch villain in "Lethal Weapon." (REBROADCAST.)
Originally aired 7/10/91. REV. : Rock critic Ed Ward, in honor of Elvis' birthday, looks into the rhythm and blues roots of his music.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer ROBERT LACEY. Lacey's new book, "Little Man" is an examination of the life of gangster Meyer Lansky. (It's published by Little, Brown). Lacey and Terry Gross will discuss how the movie's portrayal of gangsters differs from reality. INT. 2: Surgeon and photographic historian STANLEY BURNS. Burns has just compiled a book called "Sleeping Beauty: Memorial Photography In America." It chronicles what was a common occurrence in the late 1800s and early 1900s... taking one last photograph of a dead relative. (The book's published by Twelvetrees Press). (Rebroadcast. original date 11/5/91). Rev.1: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new movie "Rush," starring and Jason Patric and Jennifer Jason Leigh as a pair of undercover cops trying to stop a drug kingpin.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist STAN SESSER. He is a staff writer and reporter for The New Yorker. He talks with Terry about Singapore and the neo-authoritarianism that exists there. Neo-authoritarianism combines communism's authority over its population with capitalism's free market system. SESSER says its a growing trend in the Pacific Rim. (His article about Singapore appears in the January 13, 1992 issue of The New Yorker.) INT. 2: Writer PATRICK McGILLIGAN. He's just written a new biography of film director George Cukor (KOOK-er), "A Double Life, George Cukor: A Biography of the Gentleman Director." (published by St. Martin's Press). Cukor's films included, "Little Women," "GasLight," "The Philadelphia Story," and "Dinner at Eight." This new biography reveals the part of his life that he kept private while he was alive, his homosexuality. REV 1.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ tells us about a new release of some early performances by New York Philharmonic Conductor Sir John Barbirolli.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Dennis Potter; Interview with Ann Charters, Part 1; Commentary on rock in 1962. January 14, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457887].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British writer, screenwriter and director DENNIS POTTER. Potter's television creations, such as "Pennies From Heaven" and "The Singing Detective," have been some of the most innovative ones ever presented on British or American TV. Potter's now made his film directorial debut, with the new movie "Secret Friends." INT. 2: The first of a two-part interview with historian ANN CHARTERS. She's spent 30 years studying the literature of Beat movement writers such as William Burroughs, Jack Kerouac, and Allen Ginsberg. She's the editor of a new compilation called "The Portable Beat Reader" (published by Viking). Today, Charters discusses writer William Burroughs, his seminal novel, "Naked Lunch," and its new film adaptation. Tomorrow, Charters talks about her work with Jack Kerouac and the larger significance of the Beat movement. REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward continues his look at the last four decades in rock. Today he turns the clock back to 1962.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: On the anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther King, junior, we discus his legacy with CLAYBORNE CARSON, the Director and Senior Editor of the Martin Luther King, Junior Papers Project. Next month, they release the first of 14 volumes of Kings's writings. Carson is a professor of history at Stanford University. INT. 2: The second half of a two-part interview with historian ANN CHARTERS. She's spent 30 years studying the literature of Beat movement writers such as William Burroughs, Jack Kerouac, and Allen Ginsberg. She's the editor of a new compilation called "The Portable Beat Reader" (published by Viking). REV. : Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews the new collection of writings by African-American author Richard Wright.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We look back on the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait one year later:1) CNN producer ROBERT WIENER (wee-ner). Wiener was executive producer in Baghdad for 5 months leading up to and including the beginning of the war. His book, Live From Baghdad, tells how Wiener worked with Iraqi officials to cover the war from inside.2) We speak with Aziz Abu Hamad, senior researcher on Kuwait for Middle East Watch about the current state of human rights in Kuwait..3) Kuwaiti ABDULLAH AL-NIBARI He's secretary general of the Kuwaiti Democratic Forum, a pro-democracy movement in Kuwait. INT. 2: Iraqi dissident LAITH KUBBA. Kubba is living in exile in London, where he heads an opposition group called the Democratic Reform Movement. Kubba discusses a meeting of Iraqi dissident groups that was held in December in Damascus.
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458042].
Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Musician and inventor LES PAUL. Paul shaped much of the sound of rock and roll. He invented the electric pickup, the device that made the electric guitar possible, he made the first multi-track recorder, and his innovations established the recording studio itself as a legitimate musical instrument. Gibson has sold guitars designed by Les Paul since the early 50s, vintage models are now worth thousands of dollars. Paul also had many top 40 hits in the 50s and his own TV show. There's a new boxed set of his music, called "Les Paul: The Legend and the Legacy." (It's on Capitol). INT. 2: Travel writer PICO
IYER (rhymes with 'tire"). Iyer has an article on traveling to Vietnam in the new edition of "Conde Nast Traveler." Iyer's the author of "Video Night In Kathmandu" and the new book, "The Lady and the Monk:
Four Seasons in Kyoto". REV 1.: Rock historian Ed Ward goes back 20 years, to 1972.

Interview with Manning Marable; Interview with Roger Wilkins. January 20, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457885].
Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: On Martin Luther King, Junior Day, we devote the show to a look at the present and future of the Civil Rights movement. Terry talks with columnist, radio commentator, and professor MANNING MARABLE. He'll discuss what issues the civil rights movement should address, now that the basic legal rights that Martin Luther King, Junior worked for have largely been secured. INT. 2: Continuing our look at the future of the civil rights movement, Terry talks with journalist and professor ROGER WILKINS.
He'll discuss how there's a vacuum in leadership in the civil rights movement. Wilkins says more and more, the traditional organizations like the NAACP are seen to be of a previous generation, and not adequately addressing the current issues.

- Page 961 -



Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RONALD WALTERS, chairman of the department of political science at Howard University. He'll discuss the influence of the black vote in the presidential election. INT. 2: Veteran political journalist JULES WITCOVER. His new book is "Crapshoot: Rolling the Dice On the Vice Presidency." It examines the cavalier method in which we choose our vice presidents. REV. 1: Television critic David Bianculli reviews two shows you should see, and one you should make certain you NEVER watch.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Educator THEODORE SIZER. His 1984 book, "Horace's Compromise," was the fictionalized tale of a typical American high school. It was based on Sizer's own experiences as a teacher, and two years of field research. Sizer resurrects Horace in his new book, "Horace's School." It's a look at some possible roads toward educational reform. (It's published by Houghton Mifflin). Sizer is the chairman of the Coalition of Essential Schools at Brown University, the former Headmaster of Phillips Academy, and the former dean of the Graduate School of Education at Harvard. INT. 2: English actress HELEN MIRREN. She stars in "Prime Suspect," a three-part thriller premiering this week on public television's "Mystery" series. Mirren has performed with the Royal Shakespeare Company, and the films "The Comfort of Strangers," "Age of Consent," "The Long Good Friday," and "Excalibur." REV 1.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new movie, "Juice."

Interview with Eleanor Coppola; Interview with Michael Klare; Commentary on sports and language. January 24, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457968].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ELEANOR COPPOLA filmed a documentary called "Hearts of Darkness." It's a behind-the-scenes view of the making of Apocalypse Now. Coppola is the wife of director Frances Ford Coppola. INT. 2: MICHAEL KLARE, defense correspondent for The Nation. In the February third issue, Klare examines the current state of arms sales throughout the world. He says although nuclear arms sales have been curtailed, and the Soviet Union is gone, the sale of conventional arms to the third world continues unabated. Klare is also an associate professor at Hampshire College, and director of the Five-College Program in Peace and World Securities. REV 1.: In the final few hours before the Super Bowl, linguist Geoffrey Nunberg compares the literary language of football and baseball.
Interview with Wayne Barrett; Interview with Sonny Sharrock; Commentary on Americans and reading. January 27, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457539].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Investigative reporter WAYNE BARRETT. His new book, "Trump: The Deals and the Downfall," is a fresh look at America's most famous wheeler-dealer. In his book, Barrett deflates what he calls the myth that Trump is a financial genius. (It's published by Harper-Collins). INT. 2: Jazz musician SONNY SHARROCK. He's been called America's leading free jazz guitarist. His new album is called "Ask the Ages." (It's on Axiom records). (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 10/23/91). REV. 1: Maureen Corrigan wonders why Americans don't read as much as they used to.

Interview with Rashidah Hassan and Richard Jennings; Interview with Mira Nair; Review of the television show "Capitol Critters." January 28, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457852].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry Gross talks with two people who are working to spread the word about AIDS. 1) RASHIDAH HASSAN ("reh-shee-dah heh-ssan") is the Executive Director of BEBASHI ("beh-bah-shee"), short for "Blacks Educating Blacks About Sexual Health Issues." It's a Philadelphia-based group that used down-to-earth strategies to warn people of color about AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases. 2) RICHARD JENNINGS, the Executive Director of "Hollywood Supports." That group works to fight homophobia and AIDS-phobia in the entertainment industry. INT. 2: Indian born film maker MIRA NAIR. Her new movie, "Mississippi Masala," is the story of an African-American man and an Indian woman who come together in a little Southern town. Nair's previous film, "Salaam Bombay," got an Oscar nomination for best foreign film and won the Camera d'Or at Cannes. REV. 1: Television critic David Bianculli reviews the new primetime animated series, "Capitol Critters."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The Environmental Protection Agency recently released a report that examined the link between race and pollution. That report said that while things like toxic waste dumps are disproportionately located in poor areas, they're NOT disproportionately located in black areas. We look at both sides of the question...1) First, Terry talks with sociologist Robert Bullard, author of the book, "Dumping in Dixie: Race, Class, and Environmental Quality." He disagrees with the EPA report.2) We also talk with ROBERT WOLCOTT, who chaired the EPA's Environmental Equity Panel. INT. 2: Writer TATYANA TOLSTAYA ("taht-tee-an-yah tol-STOY-yah"). She's gaining a reputation as one of the (former) Soviet Union's most critically acclaimed new writers. She's also a distant relative of Leo Tolstoy. Her new collection of stories is called "Sleepwalker In A Fog" (published by Knopf). REV. : Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg reviews "Fifty Years Among the New Words," a new collection of columns from the journal "American Speech."

---

Interview with Kathryn Kolbert and Nancy Myers; Interview with George Packer; Review of Coleman Hawkins' songs "Picasso" and "Dali." January 30, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457851].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pennsylvania's abortion law places restrictions on a woman's ability to get an abortion. The Supreme Court has agreed to hear a challenge to the law. Their ruling is expected to be an referendum by the court on the Roe versus Wade decision. On this edition of Fresh Air, we hear from both sides. Terry Gross talks with...1) Kathryn Kolbert, the attorney who will be arguing against the Pennsylvania law before the high court, and2) Nancy Myers, the communications director of the National Right To Life Committee. She favors the Pennsylvania law and opposes Roe V. Wade. INT. 2: Writer GEORGE PACKER. Packer's new novel, "The Half Man," is the story of a Western journalist caught in the turmoil of a fictitious Pacific Asian country. In real life, Packer spent two years with the Peace Corps in Togo, and that experience helped shape this book. (It's published by Random House). REV 1.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews two great solo saxophone pieces by Coleman Hawkins. The first is called "Picasso," and is based on the music of cellist Pablo Casals. The second is called "Dali."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JESSICA TUCHMAN MATHEWS, Vice President of the World Resources Institute, which she helped to found, discusses global environmental issues. Many environmental issues, like the greenhouse effect and air and water pollution, cross national borders and their solutions depend on international cooperation. Mathews is also a columnist for The Washington Post and was on the staff of the National Security Council during the Carter Administration. INT. 2: Singer-songwriter JOHN PRINE. He recently came out with his first studio album in 5 years, "The Missing Years." (It's on Oh Boy Records. Rebroadcast- Original date 11/7/91). REV 1.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Shining Through," starring Michael Douglas and Melanie Griffith as lovers who are also spies fighting the Nazis during World War Two.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We get two opposing views of the New Alliance Party...In the first half hour, Terry Gross talks with journalist CHIP BERLET ("ber-LAY") of Political Research Associates. He'll discuss the racist and authoritarian aspects of Lenora Fulani's ("fah-lahn-nee") New Alliance Party. INT. 2: We hear a defense of the New Alliance Party...Terry talks to FRED NEWMAN, the founder of the Party, and Lenora Fulani's ("fah-lahn-nee") campaign manager. REV. 1: Book critic John Leonard reviews Andre Brink's novel of political intrigue in South Africa, "An Act of Terror."
Interview with Charles Dutton; Interview with Patricia Ireland; Review of the album "Sonatas in E-Flat, K. 380..." February 4, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457850].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CHARLES DUTTON, star of the T-V comedy series "Roc." Dutton came to acting in a very roundabout way: while serving a manslaughter sentence in the Maryland State Penitentiary, he organized the performance of a play, and realized he loved acting. ("Roc" airs Sunday nights on Fox.) INT. 2: Terry interviews PATRICIA IRELAND, the new president of the National Organization for Women (NOW). Ireland talks about NOW's agenda, as well as her own. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a reissue of an album of Mozart and Beethoven Duos and Sonatas.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: White South African writer ANDRE BRINK was the first Afrikaner to have a novel censored by the government. Brink has written six novels and many essays about the moral dilemmas facing Afrikaners of conscience. His novel "A Dry White Season," was adapted into a film of the same name. His new novel, a political thriller, is called "An Act of Terror." (Summit press) INT. 2: Terry talks phone sex with writer Nicholson Baker. Baker's new novel "Vox" is one long, erotic, expensive conversation between a man and a woman on a 900 talk line. (Random House). REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Lou Reed's new album, "Magic and Loss" and Robbie Robertson's album "Storyville."
Interview with Nick Caramandi and George Anastasia; Review of the Mal Waldron Trio's album "Our Colline's a Treasure." February 6, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458498].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry talks by phone to NICK CARAMANDI, a made man in the mafia who turned witness for the government, while in the studio, Philadelphia Inquirer organized crime reporter GEORGE ANASTASIA will join Terry to talk about the life of the Philadelphia mobster. Anastasia has just written a book about the Philadelphia Mafia called "Blood and Honor: Inside the Scarfo Mob - The Mafia's Most Violent Family" (Morrow). Caramandi was a major player in Scarfo's organization before going into hiding under the Federal Witness Protection Program. INT. 2: Terry continues her conversation with NICK CARAMANDI and GEORGE ANASTASIA. REV 1.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the latest album by the MAL WALDRON TRIO, "Our Colline's A Treasure." (Soul Note).

Interview with Martin Marty; Interview with Jim Isaac; Review of the film "Final Analysis." February 7, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458121].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Religion historian MARTIN MARTY. Marty, who teaches at the University of Chicago, is one of the foremost authorities on religion and society. He's the author of a four volume work on religion in the 20th century. His new work is a multi-volume look at fundamentalism. The first volume has just been published, and that's what he'll be talking about. INT. 2: Special effects expert JIM ISAAC. He did the special effects in the new David Cronenberg's new movie, "Naked Lunch." REV 1.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new thriller, "Final Analysis," starring Richard Gere, Kim Bassinger, and Uma Thurman.
Interview with Robert Heilbroner; Commentary on infomercials; Interview with Alex Chilton; Review of Jonathan Franzen's novel "Strong Motion." February 10, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458116].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Economist ROBERT HEILBRONER (rhymes with "runner"). He'll discuss the current recession, and our long-standing obsession with the deficit. He'll also give some suggestions about how to end the recession, and he'll tell us why sometimes a deficit isn't a bad thing. REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli takes us on a tour of the world of infomercials. INT. 2: Singer/Songwriter/Guitarist. ALEX CHILTON. He was a teenage rock star in the late 60's as the singer with the group the Box Tops. Their major hits included Cry Like a Baby and The Letter. Chilton went on to found the group Big Star. Their two albums in the early seventies, Number 1 Record and Radio City are highly acclaimed by rock fans and musicians. Chilton has continued a solo career. Last year, Rhino Records released a new compilation CD called, "19 Years: A Collection Of Alex Chilton." (Rebroadcast. Original date May 29, 1991). REV. 2: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Strong Motion," Jonathan Franzen's new novel that mixes thriller, science fiction, feminism, and romance. (It's published by Farrar, Strauss, and Giroux).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today we look at the growing problem of inhalant abuse. More and more kids and teenagers are getting high by inhaling substances like glue, gasoline, solvents and industrial cleaners. We'll talk with DOCTOR MARVIN SNYDER, of the National Institute on Drug Abuse. We'll also speak with "Jimmy" and "Kathy," a teenager who became addicted to inhalants and his mother (they prefer to use pseudonyms). INT. 2: Satirist HARRY SHEARER. Shearer has an eclectic career: he does many of the voices on the TV series "The Simpsons," he has a weekly program on many public radio stations called "Le Show," he often has character roles in movies, and he's one of the members of the parody heavy metal rock group "Spinal Tap." This year, Spinal Tap's releasing a new album and going out on tour. REV. 1: Book critic John Leonard reviews "To The End of Time," by former Time magazine journalist and executive Richard Clurman. The book is an account of the big stakes merger between Time Inc and Warner Communications.

Interview with Eddy L. Harris; Interview with Nik Cohn; Review of Craig Smith's album "The Motets of Heinrich Schutz." February 12, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458313].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDDY L. HARRIS. Like many African Americans, Harris felt a kinship to the continent of his ancestors. He went to Africa, traveled throughout the continent, and came away feeling disillusioned and feeling that he was not an African at heart after all. He's written about his journey in the new book, "Native Stranger" (published by Simon and Schuster). Harris' earlier book was the critically acclaimed "Mississippi Solo." INT. 2: Writer NIK COHN (pronounced "cone"). Cohn walked the length of Broadway in New York City, talking with the various characters along the Great White Way. His chronicle of that experience is "The Heart of the World." (published by Knopf). REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the new release by conductor Craig Smith. Smith is best known as the conductor of Peter Sellars' controversial stagings of Mozart operas. His new recording is of a series of motets by German composer Heinrich Schutz (rhymes with "putz"). It's performed by the Chorus of Boston's Emanuel Church, and it's on the Koch International Label.

Interview with David McCallum; Interview with Thulani Davis; Review of the film "The Hand that Rocks the Cradle." February 13, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458118].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DAVID MCCALLUM. He's still known for the TV role he had back in the 60s, as secret agent Illya Kuryakin in "The Man From UNCLE." Since then, he's had dozens of stage, TV, and movie roles. Currently, he has a supporting role as a police detective in the new English movie "Hear My Song." INT. 2: Writer THULANI (pronounced "tah-lawn-nee") DAVIS. Her new novel, "1959," is the story of a young black girl coming of age at the dawn of the civil rights movement. Davis' earlier works include reporting for The New York Times and The Washington Post, and writing the libretto for the opera "X:
The Life and Times of Malcolm X." ("1959" is published by Grove Weidenfeld.) REV 1.: Film critic Stephen Schiff analyzes the reasons behind the popularity of the thriller "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle."

Interview with Gay Talese; Review of two Scottish rock albums; Interview with Michael Barson; Commentary on academics and romance. February 14, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458493].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GAY TALESE. His new book, "Unto The Sons," is the story of the immigrant experience in America, and also the chronicle of Talese's own Italian ancestors coming to this country. Talese's previous works include the best-sellers "The Kingdom and the Power," "Honor Thy Father," and "Thy Neighbor's Wife." REV 1.: Rock critic Ken Tucker checks out Scotland's current contributions to rock. He looks at the bands Primal Scream and Teenage Fanclub. INT. 2: Popular culture junkie MICHAEL BARSON. Barson's latest book is a collection of postcards. The pictures are the covers from vintage romance comic books. It's called "Boy Loves Girl, Girl Loves Boy." REV 2.: Commentator, and professor, Maureen Corrigan examines some of the strange courting rituals of academics.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter PETE EARLEY. Earley spent two years observing life at the federal penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kansas. He was given complete access to the prisoners, guards, staff, and the warden. He tells about life in Leavenworth in his new book, "The Hot House." (published by Bantam). INT. 2: Writer RICHARD BAUSCH. His new novel, "Violence," explores that subject from several points of view,...among then an adult man's memory of child abuse, his wife's earlier experience with an abusive husband, and a violent robbery. REV. : Book critic John Leonard reviews "The Dead Sea Scrolls Deception," by Michael Baigent ("baa-gent") and Richard Leigh. The authors contend that the interpretation of the scrolls has been deliberately slowed by scholars that want to protect their religious views. (It's published by Summit Books).

Interview with Norman Rush; Review of the television show "Nova"; Interview with Michael Jacobson; Review of the album "Naked Lunch." February 18, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458316].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Christopher Hitchens; Interview with Roger Simon; Review of Albert Murray's novel "The Spyglass Tree." February 19, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457805].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Edward Villella; Interview with Nancy Lieberman-Cline; Review of the film

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dancer and choreographer EDWARD VILLELLA. Villella's new autobiography, "Prodigal Son," chronicles his rise as one of the best known male dancers and choreographers in the history of American ballet. It also looks at his often stormy working relationship with choreographer George Balanchine. (It's published by Simon and Schuster). INT. 2: NANCY LIEBERMAN-CLINE dominated women's college basketball and was the youngest woman ever to play on the women's Olympic basketball team. She was also a star of the short-lived women's pro basketball league. She also spent several years as companion and trainer to tennis star Martina Navrtilova. She has a new autobiography called "Lady Magic." (Published by Sagamore). REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new comedy "Wayne's World."

Interview with Nan Robertson; Interview with Norma Field; Review of Funkallero's and Ken Schaphorst Big Band's albums "Orange Then Blue" and "After Blue." February 21, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457803].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist NAN ROBERTSON. Robertson spent more than three decades at the New York Times. Her new book, "The Girls In the Balcony," is a look back at the sexual inequality that for many years was part of working life at the Times, and throughout journalism in general. (It's published by Random House). INT. 2: Author NORMA FIELD. Field teaches Japanese literature at the University Chicago and was born to a Japanese mother and an American father. Her new book, "In the Realm Of A Dying Emperor," tells the true stories of three Japanese who went against the ultra-conformist Japanese society, and the condemnation they suffered. (It's published by Pantheon). REV. : Used to be that big bands were the thing. Now, they're pretty much a thing of the past. But jazz critic Kevin Whitehead says he's found a couple of big bands from Boston where teachers and students are drawn to schools like the New England Conservatory and the Berklee College of Music. He reviews "Orange Then Blue," by Funkallero, and "After Blue," by the Ken Schaphorst Big Band.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist HEDRICK SMITH. Smith has spent years covering the Soviet Union, as a reporter for the New York Times, as an author, and as a TV documentary producer and correspondent. He's just returned from the former Soviet Union, and his latest report, "After Gorbachev's U.S.S.R." airs this week on the public television documentary series, "Frontline." INT. 2: Author ROBERT OLEN BUTLER. Butler's first novel, "The Alleys of Eden," has been called one of the finest books ever written about Americans in Vietnam. Butler has a new collection of stories, called "A Good Scent From A Strange Mountain." (It's published by Henry Holt). REV. : Television critic David Bianculli reviews three new CBS series premiering this week; "Scorch," "Fish Police," and "The Boys of Twilight."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DOROTHY BEAM. Her son Joe Beam died of AIDS three years ago. He was a writer who was in the process of editing his second anthology of Black gay writing. Dorothy helped finish the work her son started, along with editor Essex Hemphill. The collection is "Brother to Brother: New Writings by Black Gay Men," (published by Alyson Publications). Joseph Beam's first anthology is "In the Life: A Black Gay Anthology." INT. 2: Mystery writer SARA PARETSKY. Paretsky's just written the seventh in her series of mysteries starring tough-nails female private eye V.I. Warshawski ("war-shaw-skee). (Published by Delacorte Press). REV. 1: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews a new guide to cheating, titled "Cheating 101: The Benefits and Fundamentals of Earning the Easy 'A'."
Interview with Alan Menken; Interview with Allen Kurzweil; Commentary on Italian popular music. February 26, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457802].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer ALAN MENKEN. With his partner, the late lyricist Howard Ashman, Menken wrote the music for the Disney movies "Beauty and the Beast" and "The Little Mermaid." The pair also collaborated on the Broadway musical "Little Shop of Horrors." INT. 2: Author ALLEN KURZWEIL. Kurzweil's new book, "A Case of Curiosities," is a comic novel about the life of a 18th Century watchmaker living in France in the days before the Revolution. (It's published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich). REV. : World music critic Milo Miles checks out the pop music of Italy.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Frederick Wiseman; Interview with Rowan Atkinson; Review of the film "This is My Life." February 28, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457801].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Documentary film maker FREDERICK WISEMAN. Wiseman's made more than 20 documentaries, but his most famous is his first. It was a 1967 film called "Titicut Follies," about the conditions inside a Massachusetts hospital for the criminally insane. A state court banned the film, and it took 24 years for Wiseman to get the ban overturned. The film will be RE-premiered next week at New York's Film Forum. INT. 2: Actor ROWAN ATKINSON. Atkinson's one of England's best-known comic actors. He starred in the TV series, "Black Adder," and co-starred in the 1990 comedy, "The Tall Guy." Atkinson stars in his own H-B-O Comedy hour special throughout March. REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "This Is My Life," the new comedy starring Julie Kavner as a cosmetic saleswoman turned stand-up comic. It's the directorial debut of writer Nora Efron.

Interview with Hodding Carter; Interview with "Dame Edna Everage"; Commentary on the KGB. March 2, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457713].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political journalist HODDING CARTER. This week, the Public television series "Frontline" is airing Carter's report, "Who Is David Duke?" about the Klansman turned presidential candidate. INT. 2: DAME EDNA EVERAGE. Dame Edna describes herself as a housewife, megastar, investigative journalist, chanteuse, swami and polymath. She's become a media star in England and Australia, and has just written her memoir, called "My Gorgeous Life: The Life, The Loves, The Legend" (published by Simon and Schuster). Dame Edna, in case you didn't know, is a fictitious creation, the alter-ego of Australian comic Barry Humphries. REV.: Commentator DAVID GUREVTZ checks out some rumors about the KGB in the wake of the collapse of the Soviet empire. He's the author of "From Lenin to Lennon."
Interview with Chip Berlet; Interview with Deirdre English; Obituary for S. I. Hayakawa and Dwight Bolinger. March 3, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457711].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Analyst CHIP BERLET of the Political Research Associates, a research center which collects and disseminates information on right-wing political groups and trends. Terry will talk with him about some of the currently popular conspiracy theories such as the motive for the JFK assassination, and the view of some African Americans that AIDS and drugs are attempts to destroy the race. INT. 2: Feminist writer DEIRDRE ENGLISH. She wrote a recent New York Times review of Gloria Steinem's new book "Revolution From Within: A Book of Self-Esteem." ENGLISH is critical of Steinem's "quiet revolution of self-worth," because it supplants "the cause." She talks with Terry about Steinem's book and how it reflects the women's movement today. REV. 1: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG looks at the contributions made by two men of language: former Senator S.I. Hayakawa, an English professor and former president of San Francisco State University; and Professor Dwight Bolinger, who he calls "one of the most distinguished semanticists of the age." Both men died last week.

Interview with Teresa Carpenter; Interview with Charles Lewis; Review of the television show "The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles." March 4, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457800].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer TERESA CARPENTER. Carpenter's new book, "Mob Girl," is the true life story of Arlyne (pronounced "Arlene") Weiss, who worked her way the ranks of the New York mafia, and then began a second career as a government informant. Carpenter won a Pulitzer Prize for her article on the murder of Playboy Playmate Dorothy Stratten. That article was the basis for the movie "Star 80." NT. 2: CHARLES LEWIS, the founder and Executive Director of the Center For Public Integrity. That group monitors the ethics of public officials, and investigates possible conflicts-of-interest. Today, Lewis tells us what his group's found out about the current presidential candidates. REV.: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles," the TV spin-off of the popular film trilogy.
Interview with Douglas Frantz; Interview with Christina Garcia; Review of Don Byron's album "Tuskegee Experiments." March 5, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457579].

Description of show segment(s)

---

Interview with Stephen Lang; Interview with Stan Lee; Review of the film "The Mambo Kings." March 6, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457710].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor STEPHEN LANG. He starred in the film adaptation of "Last Exit to Brooklyn," and is about to play Hamlet on Broadway. He's also co-starring in a made-for-TV movie based on the story of the rape of Nancy Ziegenmyer. INT. 2: The creator of such Marvel comic book superheroes as Spiderman, The Incredible Hulk, and The Fantastic Four -- cartoonist STAN LEE. He joined Marvel comic books at the age of 16, more than 30 years ago. A new book about Marvel Comics has just been published, "Five Fabulous Decades of the World's Greatest Comics." (published by Harry A. Abrams, New York). (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 10/17/91). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Mambo Kings."
Interview with Alan Rabinowitz; Interview with Nestor Almendros; Review of Robert Stone's novel "Outerbridge Reach." March 9, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811306].

Description of show segment(s)

---

Interview with Mike Rose; Commentary on jazz piano music; Interview with Ursula K. Le Guin; Review of Wayne C. Booth's "The Vocation of a Teacher" and Robert Coles' book "The Call of Stories." March 10, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971504002].

Description of show segment(s)

INT.1: MIKE ROSE is an educator who works with underprivileged youth who haven't been served by the school system. Rose came a working class family and had a similar experience growing up; though he developed close relationships with several of his teachers, he still found himself struggling throughout his education. His new book about his life and current work is called "Lives on the Boundary." REV.1: Jazz pianist KENNY BARRON stops by the studio to perform a few songs that influenced his style.

INT.2: URSULA LeGUIN has a new collection of essays called "Dancing at the Edge of the World," about her life as a writer of genre fiction, her perspective as a woman sci-fi author who is also a mother, and the various tropes she explore in her classic works, like 1969's "Left Hand of Darkness." REV.2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews books by Wayne C. Booth and Robert Coles, writers who, while offering different solutions, both believe that the teaching of literature deserves a greater place in colleges and universities.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAMES ADAMS, the Washington bureau chief for the Sunday Times of London. His new book, "Bull's Eye," is the story of Gerald Bull, the man who invented the huge canon called the Supergun, his dealings with Iraq, and his assassination. (It's published by Times Books). Adams is a longtime expert on the international trade. INT. 2: Duke law professor WALTER DELLINGER talks about the Supreme Court; big cases coming up in the next few months, Clarence Thomas' early performance on the Court; and how who wins the presidential election in November will effect the future of the court. REV. : Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "The Overworked American," Harvard economics professor Juliet Schor's examination of why we all work more than we did a few decades ago. (It's published by Basic Books).

Interview with David Wise; Interview with Jane Byrne; Review of Aster Aweke's album "Kabu." March 12, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457712].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Lanford Wilson; Interview with Dave Alvin; Review of the film "Othello." March 13, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457577].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright LANFORD WILSON. Wilson won the Pulitzer Prize for his play, "Talley's Folly." His new play is "Redwood Curtain," the story of a Amerasian girl in the Pacific Northwest, looking for her father, a Vietnam Vet. INT. 2: DAVE ALVIN, the former guitarist for the Los Angeles bands "The Blasters" and "X". He recently put out an album called "Blue Blvd." (Hightone Records). (Rebroadcast. Original date 11/11/91). REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the newly re-released Orson Welles adaptation of Shakespeare's "Othello."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Time magazine art critic ROBERT HUGHES. Despite his huge influence in the art world, Hughes prides himself on being a perennial outsider in that world. He'll talk about the current state of the arts. INT. 2: German Film Director VOLKER SCHLONDORFF. His films include "The Tin Drum," and as "The Handmaid's Tale." His new film is "Voyager," starring Sam Shepard. (Rebroadcast. Original date 11/18/91). REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new collection of works by French composer Charles Koechlin ("Kuhch-LAN") performed by Boston Symphony flutist Fenwick Smith. (The album's called "Music for Flute" and it's on the Hyperion label).

Interview with Joel Blau; Interview with Lawrence Block; Review of the television show "MGM March 17, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457581].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Homeless expert JOEL BLAU (rhymes with "plow"). Blau spent years as a policy analyst for the city of New York, trying to solve their homeless problem. He eventually became disillusioned with government's approach to dealing with the homeless. He explains the fallacy of some of our basic assumptions about the homeless in his new book, "The Visible Poor: Homelessness in The United States." (It's published by Oxford University Press). REV. 1: Veteran crime novelist LAWRENCE BLOCK. He's written nine novels staring Manhattan private eye Matt Scudder. His latest is called "A Ticket To The Boneyard." REV. 2: Television critic David Bianculli reviews "MGM: When the Lion Roars." It's an eight-hour documentary about the MGM studios. It premieres this Sunday on the TNT cable network (which by the way is owned by the same man who owns MGM, Ted Turner).

Interview with Judy Davis; Interview with Barbara Kopple; Review of Lydia Minatoya's memoir "Talking to High Monks in the Snow." March 18, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457929].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Australian actress JUDY DAVIS. She first gained fame in the 1979 film "My Brilliant Career." She later starred in "A Passage To India." More recently, she had supporting roles in "Barton Fink" and "Naked Lunch." Her latest role is as a prissy Victorian Englishwoman in the film version of E.M. Forster's "Where Angels Fear To Tread." INT. 2: Documentary film maker BARBARA KOPPLE. Her documentary, "American Dream," chronicles one of the most bitter strikes in recent labor history, the 1984 strike against the Hormel meat packing plant in Austin Minnesota. The film won the 1991 Oscar for best documentary feature. Kopple also won an Oscar in 1977 for "Harlan County, UsA," her documentary of a coal mine strike in Kentucky. REV. : Book critic John Leonard reviews "Talking To High Monks In The Snow," Lydia Minatoya's memoir of growing up a Japanese American (It's published by Harper Collins).

Interview with Danny Aiello; Interview with Andrew Krieger; Review of the album "Original Dixieland Jazz Band, the 75th Anniversary." March 19, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457927].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DANNY AIELLO (eye-EL-oh). He starred in "Moonstruck," and "Do the Right Thing." He's now starring in "Ruby," the new film about Jack Ruby, the man who shot Lee Harvey Oswald. He talks with Terry about acting. He used to be an official with the New York transit union and quit it when he was 35 to take up acting. INT. 2: Money Trader ANDREW KRIEGER. He resigned in 1988 from his position at Bankers Trust where he specialized in trading currency-options, and in taking long-term riskier positions for the bank. The bank so believed in his strategies that they entrusted him with $700 million of bank funds, whereas other individual traders usually worked with $50 million. He's co-authored a new book, "The Money Bazaar: Inside the Trillion-Dollar World of Currency Trading." (published by Random House.) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new reissue, "Original Dixieland Jazz Band, the 75th Anniversary." (on the RCA/Bluebird label).

Interview with David Osborne; Interview with Tom Seaver; Review of the film "Basic Instinct." March 20, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457760].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer DAVID OSBORNE. He's co-author of a new book, "Reinventing Government: How the Entrepreneurial Spirit is Transforming the Public Sector." The book argues that government bureaucracies are outdated and inefficient, and comes up with proposals to decentralize city and state governments, and promote competition. Osborne has been a consultant to Bill Clinton, among other politicians. (Addison-Wesley Publishing Co). INT. 2: Baseball great TOM SEAVER. He was recently voted into the Baseball Hall of Fame by the largest vote in baseball history. His new book is "Great Moments in Baseball." REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Michael Douglas' new thriller, "Basic Instinct." The movie has provoked controversy among gay rights groups because the one bisexual female character is portrayed as a murdering psychopath.

Description of show segment(s) and his Harlem record labels which were responsible for such hits as "Kansas City," and "Fannie Mae," and for launching the career of Gladys Knight.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British actress JULIET STEVENSON of the Royal Shakespeare Company. She's probably best known for her role in "Truly, Madly, Deeply," a role that was written for her. She create the role of Madame de Tourvel in the original British production of "Les Liaisons Dangereuses." And she's playing the role of Nora in Ibsen's "A Doll's House," which airs on PBS'S Masterpiece Theatre this Sunday (March 29). REV. 1: Ken Tucker reviews the new album by "Chic," called "Chic-ism." INT. 2: Israeli writer A.B. YEHOUSHUA (ya-HOE-shoe-ah). He's one of Israel's most acclaimed authors. His work, written in Hebrew, includes essays, short stories and novels and spans 30 years. His writing has often been compared to William Faulkner. His books include the novel, "Five Seasons," the collected stories, "The Continuing Silence of a Poet," and his latest novel, "Mr. Mani," is about six generations of a Jewish family. (published by Doubleday). REV. 2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Girls in the Balcony," by Nan Robertson about how women at "The New York Times," struggled for equality.

Interview with Adam Ulam; Review of Dave Burrell and Anthony Braxton albums; Interview with John Doe; Review of the television show "Nickelodeon Special Edition March 25, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457761].

Description of show segment(s)

be reunited band, "X." Since the band broke up, he went solo with his own album, and took up acting. He's now starring in a new independent film, "Roadside Prophets," written and directed by Abbe Wool, who co-wrote the punk rock movie, "Sid & Nancy." REV. : Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Nickelodeon Special Edition: A Conversation with Magic." on the Nickelodeon network in which Magic Johnson discusses AIDS with a group of kids. (David says, don't miss it).

---

Interview with Sheila Kuehl; Interview with Grace Paley; Commentary on computers. March 26, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457764].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SHEILA KUEHL is now a women's rights lawyer. But most people will remember her as Zelda Gilroy on the old T-V show "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis." Her T-V career ended when rumors began to circulate that she was a lesbian -- and those rumors were true. Now Kuehl is one of the most vocal lesbian activists in Los Angeles. INT. 2: GRACE PALEY was New York's first official woman state writer. Known for writing about neighborhoods including the Bronx and Greenwich Village, Paley now lives in Vermont. Paley is known for her collections of short stories, but is also a poet. Her new book is "New and Collected Poems." REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG considers an alternative to the question, "Can computers think?"

---

Interview with James McCloskey; Interview with Natalie Robbins; Commentary on relationships. March 27, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457926].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAMES MCCLOSKEY, founder of Centurion Ministries, Inc., which was organized to free innocent men and women from prison. Since McCloskey began his work in 1980 at least ten innocent prisoners have been freed. Just this week Clarence Chance, 42, and Benjamin Powell, 44 were freed after serving 17 and 1/2 years of life sentences. They were wrongly accused of murdering a sheriff's deputy. Witnesses who initially implicated them later told officials that they were pressured to lie. INT. 2: Writer NATALIE ROBINS. Her new book, "Alien Ink: The F.B.I.'s War on Freedom of Expression," (published by William Morrow & Co.) is about the secret files the FBI has kept on American writers like Ernest Hemingway, Norman Mailer, E.L. Doctorow, and Grace Paley. The author obtained access to the files... going back to writers like Jack London and Lincoln Steffens. The files are still being kept and many writers are unaware that they exist. REV. : Performance artist DAVID CALE. He'll do a reading from his show, now in San Francisco. "Deep in a Dream of You." (rebroadcast).

Interview with Andrew Hacker; Interview with Vernon Loeb; Review of Slavenka Drakulic's book "How We Survived Communism." March 30, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457762].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political Science Professor ANDREW HACKER. His new book is "Two Nations: Black and White, Separate, Hostile, Unequal" (published by Charles Scribner's Sons) about race relations in the United States. INT. 2: Reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer VERNON LOEB. He's been reporting from the Far East for the last several years. He'll talk with Terry about the problems facing the region like the explosion of AIDS in Thailand and especially Bangkok; the repression and ethnic fighting in Burma; and the amassing on the Thai/Burmese border of refugees fleeing repression in Burma. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews, "How We Survived Communism," by Yugoslavian critic and feminist Slavenka Drakulic. (Slah-VENKA Drah-COOL-ITCH).

Interview with Lester Thurow; Interview with Gil Cates; Interview with Jeff Yarbrough; Review of Jim Lauderdale's and Wynonna Judd's albums "Planet of Love" and "Wynonna." March 31, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973568768].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Economist LESTER THUROW (say it like "Thoreau"), author of "The Coming Economic Battle Between America, Europe, and Japan." THUROW will discuss how Europe and Japan are playing by a new set of business rules and that it's time to update our own. INT. 2: Producer GIL CATES. He produced the Academy Awards last night. Terry will talk with him about what it takes to put together such an endeavor. INT. 3: JEFF YARBROUGH is a senior editor of the Los Angeles based bi-weekly national gay magazine "The Advocate." He'll tell us what went wrong with the gay rights protest that was supposed to take place during the academy awards ceremony. REV. 2: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Planet of Love," by Jim Lauderdale and "Wynonna" by Wynonna Judd.

Interview with Slavenka Drakulic; Interview with Mira Nair; Review of the television show "Dateline NBC." April 1, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457763].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GEOFFREY WOLFF. His new collection of essays, "A Day At The Beach" (Alfred A. Knopf), is about the worst vacation ever. It started with over-priced dinners and ended in open heart surgery. Wolff is best known for his book "The Duke of Deception," a memoir about being the son of a con man. INT. 2: Macabre cartoonist and illustrator EDWARD GOREY talks to Terry from his house in Cape Cod (he's not fond of leaving home). His longtime favorite children's books include "The Curious Nosebleed," (Dodd, Mead) "The Loathesome Couple," (Dodd, Mead) and "Amphigorey," (G.P. Putnam's Sons) which was recently made into a musical that's currently playing in Philadelphia. You might have also seen his illustrations on the opening credits of the PBS show "Mystery." REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the restored score of Voltaire's "Candide," conducted by Leonard Bernstein a year before his death.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILLIAM TAUBMAN is a political science professor at Amherst College. He was recently in Moscow as one of the scholars invited to help open up the archives of the government under Communism. He was able to get a sense of the day to day workings of the Soviet empire. INT. 2: Writer and radio talk show host STUDS TERKEL. His new book, "Race: How Blacks and Whites Think and Feel About the American Obsession," (The New Press) is the latest in his series of collected oral histories. He won a Pulitzer prize for his collection "The Good War," about World War 2. His other books include "Working," "Hard Times," and "Division Street: America." REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "White Men Can't Jump."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor LARRY FISHBURNE. He was Cowboy Curtis on "Pee-wee's Playhouse," and he played a young G.I. in "Apocalypse Now" when he was only 15. He was last in "Boyz in the Hood" as the main character's father. His latest role is in the soon-to-be-released film "Deep Cover," in which he plays an undercover cop. (Fine Line Pictures). REV. 1: Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "The Candidate's Wife," a political novel written by Michael Dukakis' former campaign press secretary, Patricia O'Brien (published by Simon and Schuster). INT. 2: ISAAC ASIMOV, the prolific science fiction writer, has passed away at the age of 72. Asimov wrote nearly 500 books, and was honored, among other times, in 1966 with a special Hugo Award for the best science fiction series ever for his "Foundation" trilogy. We present highlights from an earlier interview. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 9/25/87.) REV. 2: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a recording of Stan Getz and Kenny Barron called "People Time" (on the Gitanes Jazz label), billed as Getz's last recording before his death.

Interview with William Schmidt; Interview with Peter Case; Commentary on music from Jajouka, Morocco. April 7, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457825].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British elections are coming up this week: We'll look at the elections, and how the British media is covering them, with New York Times London correspondent WILLIAM SCHMIDT. INT. 2: Singer-songwriter PETER CASE. He took a Greyhound to California in the 70s, played guitar on the streets of San Francisco, and later got involved in the L.A. band scene in the early 80s, where he started a band called The Plimsouls. Since then, he's had a solo career. His new album is called "Six Pack of Love" (it's on the Geffen label). REV. 2: World music commentator Milo Miles explores the eerie music of the master musicians of Jajouka, Morocco.

Interview with James Lee Burke; Interview with Ron Shelton; Review of the television programs "Bob Newhart April 8, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457821].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Novelist JAMES LEE BURKE. He's been writing for 35 years but he's best known for his more recent detective novels about Dave Robicheaux (ROW-bah-show), a recovering alcoholic, who is also a troubled Vietnam vet, and a New Orleans police lieutenant. The books are: "The Neon Rain," "Heaven's Prisoners," "Black Cherry Blues," and "A Morning for Flamingos." His fifth Robicheaux novel is, "A Stained White Radiance." (published by Hyperion). INT. 2: Writer and Director RON SHELTON. His latest movie is a movie about basketball, "White Men Can't Jump," starring Woody Harrelson, Wesley Snipes, and Rosie Perez. SHELTON is a former professional baseball player. He also was writer and director of the films, "Blaze," and "Bull Durham." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two shows that highlight two veteran performers: James Taylor and Bob Newhart. One is on Disney and the other on Showtime. With Newhart, this is his first full-length standup act in 25 years. They'll be broadcast on Sunday.

Interview with Gyorgy Konrad; Interview with Emma Thompson; Review of the film "The Player." April 9, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969456829].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Hungarian writer GYORGY KONRAD. When he was 11 he bribed local police so that he and his sister could leave town and escape being deported. In 1974 he and a fellow writer were arrested in Budapest and imprisoned shortly for writing a sociological manuscript which was considered "subversive." Asked to leave the country, he decided a writer "should not emigrate, should not turn away from the risks of his profession." KONRAD has written several novels, "The Case Worker," "The City Builder. Now his books are no longer banned, and he's helping to protect the freedom of other writers, as president of PEN, the international writers organization. His new novel, the first in ten years is, "A Feast in the Garden," (published by Harcourt Brace). INT. 2: British actress and comedienne EMMA THOMPSON. She's best known here for the double role she played in "Dead Again," as a woman with amnesia and a past life. (she played opposite her husband, Kenneth Branagh). She also played a dippy Duchess in "Impromptu," and Jeff Goldlum's girlfriend in "The Tall Guy." In England she had her own show, "Thompson," which featured her in a series of comedy sketches. She's now appearing in "Howards End," a Merchant-Ivory production based on the E.M. Forster novel. REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new Robert Altman film, "The Player," starring Tim Robbins.

Interview with Roland Joffe; Interview with Richard Rayner; Review of Bruce Springsteen's albums "Human Touch" and "Lucky Town." April 10, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457822].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director ROLAND JOFFE. His movies include, "The Killing Fields," and "The Mission." His latest film is "City of Joy," based on the book of the same name by Dominique Lapierre about life in the slums of Calcutta. INT. 2: British writer RICHARD RAYNER. His new semi-autobiographical novel is "The Elephant," about a son's relationship with his father. The father steals a lot of money, fakes his own death, and disappears for ten years. Once reunited, the two engage in scandalous exploits. One reviewer wrote that the novel progresses from the picaresque to the poignant "densely woven with brilliantly macabre, hilarious details..." (published by Random) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews TWO new albums by Bruce Springsteen, "Human Touch," and "Lucky Town," -- his first out in almost five years.

---

Interview with Ian MacKay and Guy Picciotto; Interview with Huma Sarshar and Parviz Sayyad; Review of Toni Morrison's novel "Jazz." April 13, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457824].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two members of the punk rock group FUGAZI: singer-guitarist IAN MACKAYE (Mac-KEYE) and guitarist GUY PICCIOTTO (Ghee-ah Pah-CHOWH-tow). The Washington, D.C. band has become internationally known despite the fact that the band refuses to sign with a major label. They abhor commercialism and stardom. The impassioned band sings on it's new album, "Steady Diet of Nothing," about having control of their own bodies, TV - "nothing going on in there," and about the supreme court, "Justice Brennan, I know it's not your fault." (the new album is on "Dischord Records.") INT. 2: Terry talks with two Iranian exiles who are working to lift the fatwa off of Salman Rushdie: Journalist HUMA SARSHAR (Homah Sar-SHAR), who lives in L.A., helped to organize a statement of Iranian exiles artists and intellectuals in support of Rushdie; and film maker and playwright PARVIZ SAYYAD (Par-VEEZ Sigh-YHAD) who signed the statement. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the long-awaited new book by Toni Morrison, "Jazz."

---

Interview with William Greider; Interview with Shelley Duvall; Review of Jane Tomkins' book "West of Everything April 14, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969456832].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Investigative reporter WILLIAM GREIDER (GRY-der). He's written a new book about the breakdown of democracy in the United States, "Who will tell the people: The Betrayal of American Democracy." (published by Simon and Shuster). It's also the subject of GREIDER'S "Frontline"

Interview with Wallace Stegner; Interview with Israel Rosenfield; Commentary on television networks and ratings. April 15, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457823].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer WALLACE STEGNER. His novels and essays are often based in the West where he grew up and lived for many years. STEGNER started the creative writing program at Stanford University in California, which he ran for 26 years. He's now in his eighties. His new book of essays is called "Where the Bluebird Sings to the Lemonade Springs." (Random House) INT. 2: ISRAEL ROSENFIELD studies the concept of consciousness. He was trained as a physician, mathematician, and a philosopher -- all of which he now brings to his thinking about neurology. His new book is "The Strange, Familiar and Forgotten." (published by Knopf). In it he reinterprets classic cases of neurology, and theorizes that its impossible to understand states of neurological illness without reference to a person's body image, consciousness and being. Neurologist Oliver Sacks, calls ROSENFIELD a "powerful and original thinker." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks at how the different television networks are reacting to their ratings in the 1991-1992 rating results which just came out.
Interview with Dennis Potter; Interview with Timothy Ferris; Review of Josephine Barstow's album "Opera Finales." April 16, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457509].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer DENNIS POTTER. He wrote "Pennies from Heaven," and "The Singing Detective," both on PBS, originally from the BBC. He also wrote the screenplay for the American film adaptation of "Pennies from Heaven," which starred Steve Martin and Bernadette Peters. A retrospective of his work is showing in New York. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/14/92). INT. 2: Science writer TIMOTHY FERRIS. His new book is "The Mind's Sky: Human Intelligence in a Cosmic Context," about questions that face us about intelligence in the galaxy and our own human minds. His writing about astronomy and physics has won him awards from the American Institute of Physics and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/13/92) REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of Opera Finales performed by soprano Josephine Barstow. (on the Decca label).

Interview with Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller; Interview with John Leguizamo; Review of David Byrne's album "Uh-Oh." April 17, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457767].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock and roll songwriting team JERRY LEIBER and MIKE STOLLER. They're responsible for many of the greatest hits in rock history, among them "Hound Dog," "Yakity Yak," and "Stand By Me." Rhino records has just released a collection of their songs, called "There's A Riot Goin' On." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 12/19/91) INT. 2: Actor JOHN LEGUIZAMO (pronounced "Leh gwee zamo"). Leguizamo created and stars in the hit one-man show "Mambo Mouth," based on his experiences as a Latino growing up in Jackson Heights, Queens. "Mambo Mouth" premieres on television this Saturday, on HBO's Comedy Hour. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/24/91). Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews David Byrne's album "Uh-Oh."
Interview with Annie Dillard; Interview with Michael Barson; Review of Studs Terkel's book "Race

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author ANNIE DILLARD. She's written several non-fiction books; her new book, "The Living," (HarperCollins) is her first novel. Dillard's other works include the bestseller "The Writing Life," and the Pulitzer prize winning "Pilgrim at Tinker Creek." (Both are published by Harper &Row.) INT.
2: Now that the Cold War's over, Pop culture scholar MICHAEL BARSON has written "Better Dead
Than Red! A Nostalgic Look At The Golden Years Of Russiaphobia, Red-Baiting, And Other Commie Madness." (Hyperion) It's a look at how popular culture fueled public hysteria during the cold war -- from the Children's Crusade Against Communism bubble gum card series to the Hollywood production "I was a Communist for the F-B-I." By the way... the book is due to arrive in stores on Mayday 1992. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Studs Terkel's new book, "Race: How Blacks and Whites Think and Feel About the American Obsession." (The New Press)

Interview with Elaine Sciolino; Interview with Lewis Thomas; Review of the television show
"Bedtime Stories." April 21, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457512].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times reporter ELAINE SCIOLINO (Sha-LEE-no). She was the first American and the first woman to interview the Ayatollah when he came into power in 1979. She was expelled from Iran ten years ago and recently returned there for the first time since to cover the elections. Terry talks with her about the changes she saw in Iran from the ten years previous. INT. 2: Pathologist, professor, and essayist LEWIS THOMAS. As an essayist he takes a philosophical look at biomedicine. His books include the
"The Lives of a Cell," and "The Medusa and the Snail," which were both best sellers. But he began writing for only the medical community with his 1974 column in the "New England Journal of Medicine." Terry talks with him from his hospital room, where THOMAS is recovering from several ailments. He has a new Shelley Duvall's "Bedtime Stories" on Showtime.
Interview with Donella Meadows; Interview with Lloyd Schwartz; Review of Sophie B. Hawkins' album "Tongues & Tails." April 22, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457511].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and professor of environmental studies DONELLA MEADOWS. Twenty years ago she co-authored the book, "The Limits to Growth." The book used a computer model to project the impact of growth on the environment. It caused a sensation because of it's eco-gloom and helped spur the environmental movement. Now in the authors' sequel, "Beyond the Limits," they argue that we have shot past the earth's limited resources but that we are in a better position to avoid global economic collapse because of new technical possibilities. They also argue that human society must give up growing at any cost, and sustain itself with the resources now at hand. (published by Chelsea Green Publishing).

INT. 2: Our classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ has a new collection of poems, "Goodnight, Gracie," (published by Phoenix Poets). David Lehman calls this new collection, "a moving and inventive collection, his best and most ambitious to date." LLOYD is also music editor of The Boston Phoenix and is co-director of the Creative Writing Program at the University of Massachusetts. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release by Sophie B. Hawkins, "Tongues & Tails," (on the Columbia label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MICHAEL TOLKIN, who wrote the novel and screenplay for the new Robert Altman movie, "The Player" (Fine Line Features, opening wide tomorrow), gives a screenwriter's take on the way Hollywood works -- or doesn't. Tolkin also wrote, directed and produced the film, "The Rapture," now available on home video. INT. 2: Conductor and arranger JOHN MCGLINN. He re-orchestrated the Irving Berlin musical "Annie Get Your Gun" according to the original 1946 performance. In preparing the remake, McGlinn discovered that the 1966 revival of the show left out several musical numbers, which he incorporated into the current performance. McGlinn also included a song that had been written for the 1946 version, but never before recorded. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the film, "Howard's End," the new Merchant-Ivory production. (Sony Classics; opens tomorrow)
Interview with Toni Morrison; Commentary on the song "Sally Go Round the Roses"; Interview with David Marc; Obituary for Satyajit Ray. April 24, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457766].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Paul Cox; Interview with Neal Jimenez; Commentary on the Memphis Jug Band. April 27, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457510].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: .Filmmaker PAUL COX. He was born in Holland, and then settled permanently in Australia. You might remember his 1981 film "Lonely Hearts," which brought him international acclaim and somewhat of a cult following. His latest film, which he wrote and directed, is called "A Woman's Tale." It's about an 80 year old woman who has cancer, and in fact, it was played by an actress with cancer. Since the film was made, the woman who plays the lead, Sheila Florance, passed away. (Orion Classics) INT. 2: NEAL JIMENEZ wrote and co-directed the new film "The Waterdance." (Samuel Goldwyn) It's about the five months Jimenez spent in the hospital following a hiking accident that paralyzed him from the waist down. Jimenez is now in a wheelchair, as is the main character in the film, played by Eric Stoltz. Jimenez also wrote "River's Edge" and co-wrote "For the Boys," starring Bette Midler. REV. : Rock and roll historian Ed Ward remembers The Memphis Jug Band.
Interview with Jon Lovitz; Interview with Sue Halpern; Review of Mike Davis's book "City of Quartz." April 28, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457769].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian JON LOVITZ. He played the pathological liar on Saturday Night Live, among many other characters, such as Annoying Man and Harry Chanukah. Now he's got a comedy special coming up on May 17th on the Fox Television Network (right after "Married With Children"). INT. 2: SUE HALPERN has written the new book "Migrations to Solitude," which explores the other side of privacy: seclusion. She visited a monastery in Kentucky, whose monks have vowed a life of silence, a prisoner in solitary confinement, and others, drawing out what it's like to be inescapably alone, and how people's versions of privacy differ. (Pantheon Books) REV. : Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "City of Quartz" by Mike Davis (Vintage), a non-fiction look at the city of Los Angeles.

Interview with Shane Connaughton; Commentary on music reissues; Interview with Joe Spear; Review of the final episode of the television show "The Cosby Show." April 29, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457768].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Irish screenwriter and novelist SHANE CONNAUGHTON co-wrote the screenplay for "My Left Foot." Now he's written the screenplay for the new film "The Playboys," starring Aidan Quinn and Albert Finney.(Samuel Goldwyn) He also has a new novel out called "The Run of The Country." (St. Martin's Press) REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD tells us how not to do a reissue. INT. 2: Architect JOE SPEAR. He was the principal designer of the Baltimore Orioles new ballpark. He's also worked on many other football and baseball stadiums. REV 2: T-V critic DAVID BIANCUlli previews the final "Cosby" show that airs on Thursday night.
Interview with Janet Clayton; Interview with Mark Whitlock; Interview with Neil Oxman; Review of the film "The Playboys." April 30, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457629].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From the Los Angeles Times, Assistant Editor of the editorial page JANET CLAYTON. In addition to functioning in her official media capacity, she'll be leaving work early to visit her mother, who lives in the curfew zone. INT. 2: From the AME church in south L.A., where a rally was held after the announcement of the verdict, MARK WHITLOCK. He headed a security force organized by the church to stand between the police and protesters in order to head off violence. INT. 3: Political consultant NEIL OXMAN. He specializes in media consulting and designed Lynn Yeakel's ads for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate. She'll run against Senator Arlen Specter. Yeakel was a virtual unknown at the start of the race. It's believed that Yeakel's T-V ads made the difference in the campaign. One emphasized her work as head of Women's Way. The other received national attention because it attacked Specter for his role in the Thomas hearings. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The Playboys," set in an Irish border town and starring Aidan Quinn (Samuel Goldwyn).

Interview with Janet Clayton; Interview with Tony Massengale; Interview with Ice-T; Interview with William Julius Wilson. May 1, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457773].

Description of show segment(s)

We continue our coverage of the unrest in Los Angeles, devoting the whole show to interviews with some who were affected. INT. 1: JANET CLAYTON, assistant editor of the editorial page of the Los Angeles Times. We spoke with her yesterday; we check in again with her today. INT. 2: TONY MASSENGALE, who works with gangs in Los Angeles. INT. 3: Ice-T, the Los Angeles based rap musician. INT. 4: WILLIAM JULIUS WILSON, professor of sociology at the university of Chicago. He's written several books on urban poverty and the underclass.
Interview with Patti Davis; Interview with Sweet Alice Harris; Review of Howlin' Wolf's album "Howlin' Wolf May 4, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457678].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We air our previously scheduled interview with PATTI DAVIS, Ronald and Nancy Reagan's daughter. While the Reagans stressed family values while in the White House, their daughter says they didn't practice them. Davis has a new autobiography called "The Way I See It." (G.P. Putnam's Sons) INT. 2: SWEET ALICE HARRIS lives in Watts, in South Central Los Angeles. She started and runs Parents of Watts Working With Youth and Adults after the Watts riots of 1965. She says she knew last week's riots would be bigger than Watts. REV. : Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead surveys a recent boxed set of vintage recordings by blues singer Howlin' Wolf ("Howlin' Wolf: The Chess Box" is on MCA records).

Interview with Bob Simon; Interview with B. D. Wong; Review of the Terem Quartet's album "Terem." May 5, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457772].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BOB SIMON is the CBS News correspondent who was taken prisoner during the gulf war and held for six weeks. He's just written a book about the experience called "Forty Days." (Putnam) In it, he describes the indignity and loss of control he felt as a captive. INT. 2: B.D. WONG won a Tony award for his performance in the title role of "M. Butterfly." He played a man posing as a woman. Now, he's taking on another challenge: in the new one-man musical "Herringbone," which opened last week at the American Music Theater Festival in Philadelphia, he plays eleven characters, including a eight-year-old boy, his parents, his grandmother, his dance teacher, and a tap-dancing midget nicknamed Lou the Frog. REV.: World music commentator Milo Miles reviews the new album by the Terem ("Ter-yem") Quartet from St. Petersburg (formerly Leningrad). It's a group that couldn't have existed in the past. (Realworld Records)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JESS MOWRY. His novel, "Way Past Cool," is about an Oakland gang. He works with inner city youths in Oakland, California. Mowry used to be in a gang himself. In 1988, he bought a used typewriter for 10 dollars and started writing. (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, Inc.)

INT. 2: Writer GAIL SHEEHY became famous for her bestselling book Passages, in which she described the changing phases of an adult life. Now she's focussed on one phase of a woman's life that no one wants to talk about -- menopause -- in her new book, "The Silent Passage." (Random House) REV. : BOOK CRITIC JOHN LEONARD reviews "Monday's Warriors" by Maurice Shadbolt, about Maoris fighting the British Imperialists in New Zealand. (published by David Godine)

Interview with Marcel Ophuls; Interview with Christopher Jencks; Review of Blanche Wiesen Cook's biography "Eleanor Roosevelt May 7, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457774].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Documentary filmmaker MARCEL OPHULS. He is best known for his 1970 work "The Sorrow and the Pity," about the conduct of the French people during the Holocaust. He also made the film "Hotel Terminus: The Life and Times of Klaus Barbie." His latest work is about life behind the iron curtain and the changes underway in Europe since the fall of the Berlin wall. It's called "November Days," and it's described as "the runaway hit of the 1991 Berlin Film Festival." It's showing as part of the 1992 Human Rights Watch Film Festival in New York City.

Interview with Spalding Gray; Interview with Natasha Richardson; Commentary on television during May Sweeps. May 8, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457679].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Monologuist, actor and writer SPALDING GRAY. His latest monologue "Monster in a Box" is about all the distractions that prevented him from completing his novel, "Impossible Vacation." Now the monologue has been made into a film of the same name. It's also out in book form, and on top of that, "Impossible Vacation" has just been published. (The book "Monster in a Box" is published by Vintage Press, the book "Impossible Vacation" is published by Knopf, and the film "Monster in a Box" is distributed by Fine Line Features.) INT. 2: NATASHA RICHARDSON has starred in the films "The Comfort of Strangers," "The Handmaids Tale" and "Patty Hearst." Now she plays Sybil in the new film "The Favor, The Watch and the Very Big Fish," an offbeat romantic comedy about a group of idiosyncratic characters living in Paris. (Trimark Pictures) REV. : TV critic David Bianculli looks at May Sweeps programs, and notices that the networks are relying on violence to get high ratings.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Anthropologist DAVID MAYBURY-LEWIS. He's the founder of Cultural Survival, an organization that that helps indigenous peoples whose ways of life are threatened by development. He's hosting a new PBS series called "Millennium," which starts tonight, and he's the author of the companion book, also called "Millennium." The series and the book seek to gain tribal wisdom for the modern world. (The book is published by Viking.) INT. 2: Pollster DAVID W. MOORE is the Director of the Survey Center at the University of New Hampshire, where he also teaches political science. His polling results have been picked up by all the T-V networks and most of the major newspapers and newsmagazines in the country. He's written a new book about the history of polling, called "The Superpollsters: How The Measure and Manipulate Public Opinion." (Four Walls Eight Windows Press) INT. 3: Jazz singer SYLVIA SYMS passed away yesterday at the age of 74. She had a heart attack just as she finished a performance at the Algonquin Hotel. Syms was known as the quintessential saloon singer, and foremost among her admirers was Frank Sinatra, who produced and conducted a 1982 album of standards called "Syms By Sinatra." Her one hit was "I could Have Danced All Night," from the 1956 musical "My Fair Lady." Her nightclub career spanned 51 years. Today we rebroadcast highlights of Terry's interview with Sylvia Syms, which originally aired on June 14th, 1988.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT BLY is one of the founders of the modern men's movement. He wrote the movement's most influential book, "Iron John." Terry asks him if the men's movement is in conflict with the women's movement. Robert Bly is also a poet, critic essayist and translator. (Bly's book "Iron John" is published by Vintage). INT. 2: JOHN LEE is a first-generation Korean reporter whose beat at the Los Angeles Times has been Koreatown during and since the riots. Many Korean merchants were targeted, and many wielded guns to defend themselves. He feels that the Korean side of the conflict hasn't been accurately portrayed by the media. REV.: Book critic John Leonard reviews "New York in the Fifties," a new memoir by Dan Wakefield. (Published by Houghton Mifflin)

Interview with David Savage; Interview with Aram Saroyan; Review of TLC's and Kriss Kross's albums "Ooooooohhh... On the TLC Tip" and "Totally Krossed Out." May 13, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457675].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DAVID SAVAGE is the Supreme Court reporter for the Los Angeles Times. He's just written a book called "Turning Right: The Making of the Rehnquist Supreme Court," (John Wiley and Sons) about how the Supreme court turned conservative in the 80s, and what future decisions the court will make. INT. 2: Writer ARAM SAROYAN ("AH-rum"). His father was William Saroyan; his stepfather is Walter Matthau. In the Sixties, he went through a minimalist poetry writing phase. Then he turned to autobiographical narrative, concentrating on his parents' turbulent marriage, his father's death, and his own family. His new book is called "Friends In The World: The Education of A Writer." (Coffee House press) REV.: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the hip-hop hits of TLC (their current hit is "Ain't 2 Proud 2 Beg")
Interview with Stan Sesser; Interview with Christine Lahti; Review of the television shows "Strangers" and "The Red Shoe Diaries." May 14, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457616].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: STAN SESSER, a staff writer at The New Yorker magazine, just wrote a lengthy article called "Report From Cambodia." A country that's been dirt poor for several decades is experiencing a new prosperity since the United Nations peace agreement was signed last October. Oddly, the agreement calls for a sharing of power with the Khmer Rouge, an action Sesser equates with allowing the Nazis back into power in post war Germany. (The article is in the May 18, 1992 issue of The New Yorker.) INT. 2: Actress CHRISTINE LAHTI. She starred in the movie "Housekeeping," co-starred with Goldie Hawn in "Swing Shift," which won her the New York film Critics Award as Best Supporting Actress, and is now in the new film "Leaving Normal." (Universal Pictures) She also has a long stage career, appearing in "The Heidi Chronicles." She talks about how hard it is for women to get good roles in Hollywood, and how she's turned many down because she didn't like the characters she'd be portraying. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the sexiest new shows on the premium cable channels.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Cinematographer and director ED LACHMAN. He's shot films for many famous directors both in Europe and America, including Werner Herzog, Wim Wenders, Bernardo Bertolucci, Paul Schrader and David Byrne. He's also shot his own films and videos. He most recently worked on the new Hanif Kureishi film "London Kills Me." INT. 2: FRANCES LEAR founded Lear's Magazine. At one time she was married to TV producer Norman Lear, and though her life, from the outside, seems quite pleasant and successful, her new memoir "The Second Seduction" details a life full of pain. REV.: Film critic John Powers reviews "Lethal Weapon 3."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Controversial author SALMAN RUSHDIE. Terry last talked to him in late 1990 about his life. For over three years, Rushdie's been in hiding, a result of the reaction to his novel "The Satanic Verses." That novel offended many Muslims and led to the Ayatollah Khomeini putting a one-million-dollar death sentence on Rushdie's head. Just lately, he's begun to travel and make public appearances, even though he's still a target for assassination. Rushdie called us from his hiding place somewhere in Great Britain.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pop artist and sculptor CLAES (klaus) OLDENBURG. He turns everyday objects into colossal public monuments. He created a giant clothespin for Philadelphia, a rubber stamp for Cleveland, a fruit bowl for Miami, and others. Before taking on the large public sculptures, CLAES worked in multiples, where a small object is repeated. A new book about this period of his work is called, "Claes Oldenburg: Multiples in Retrospect 1964-1990." (by Rizzoli International Publications, Inc.) INT. 2: We mark the anniversary of Malcolm X's birth with historian and writer CLAYBORNE CARSON editor of "Malcolm X: The FBI files." CARSON is the Director and Senior Editor of the Martin Luther King, Jr., Papers.
Interview with Seth Shulman; Interview with Rhodessa Jones; Review of Hal Russell's album "Hal Russell and NRG Ensemble, the Finnish/Swiss Tour." May 20, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457783].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Marty talks with science writer SETH SHULMAN about how the military has left toxic wastes in bases all across the country. His new book is "The Threat at Home: Confronting the Toxic Legacy of the U.S. Military." (Interview by Marty Moss-Coane) INT. 2: Performance artist RHODESSA JONES. She wrote and performs "Big Butt Girls, Hard Headed Women," a theatre piece that grew out of her work as an aerobic instructor in the San Francisco City Jail. Her work has been seen in international festivals in Amsterdam, Munich, and Boston. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new CD by avant-garde multi-instrumentalist Hal Russell, "Hal Russell and NRG Ensemble, The Finnish/Swiss Tour" (on ECM)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:JAMES MCCLOSKEY, founder of Centurion Ministries, Inc., which was organized to free innocent men and women from prison. Terry last talked to him in March after he helped free two prisoners from a California prison who were both serving life sentences. But yesterday, McCloskey lost a battle with the execution of Roger Keith Coleman. Coleman was convicted of raping and killing his sister-in-law in 1981, but always maintained his innocence. He was put to death in a Virginia prison. INT. 2: Southeast Asia Correspondent for The New York Times, PHILIP SHENON (SHE-none). He's been following the protests between Thai troops and pro-democracy protestors in Bangkok, Thialand. The protestors: students, professionals, and workers have been demanding that the Prime Minister Suchinda Kraprayoon step down. Suchinda, a former military leader, led a coup last year against the democratic Government and took power in April as an unelected Prime Minister. Many people have died in the protests. SHENON will update us on the situation.

INT. 3: Avant-garde guitarist and producer HENRY KAISER. He's known as an innovative and versatile musician. He's recorded and/or performed with a number of artists including, Herbie Hancock, Richard Thompson, Bob Weir, The ROVA Sax Quartet, Sergei Kuriokhin, and Sonny Sharrock. He's just completed a recording of music of Madagascar, "A World Out of Time: Henry Kaiser & David Lindley in Madagascar," (on Shanachie records). (This interview was done by Fresh Air Producer Amy Salit) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Alien 3.

---

Interview with Ry Cooder; Interview with David Bianculli; Interview with Tommy Newsom. May 22, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457615].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guitarist RY COODER. In the 60s he collaborated with Taj Mahal, Captain Beefheart, the Rolling Stones and became known for his fingerpicking and slide playing. In the 70s he went solo -- putting together ten albums that explored American roots music including blues, vintage jazz, and gospel. In the 80s he wrote the soundtracks for the films, "The Long Riders,""The Border," Alamo Bay," "Southern Comfort," and "Paris, Texas," and "Johnny Handsome." Now he's joined up with fellow musicians, Jim Keltner, Ry Cooder, and Nick Lowe to form the group "Little Village." REV. : Maureen Corrigan looks at a series of books and a movie with canine heroes: the "Taxi Dog" books and "Beethoven." INT. 2: Terry talks with TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI about the end of a TV era -- the end of Johnny Carson's Tonight Show. INT. 3: Tonight show band saxophonist TOMMY NEWSOM talks with Terry about the end of his longest running gig (30 years with The Tonight Show).

---

Interview with Barbara Lee and Tony Tamburello; Interview with Lawrence Block; Review of Aster Aweke's album "Kabu." May 25, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457609].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: .Singer BARBARA LEA ("lee") with a musical tribute to Cole Porter. She had her start singing in the 1950s in Boston and then moved to New York where she recorded her first album in...
1955 to critical acclaim. She dropped out of singing for a while but made a comeback during the 70s in New York's cabaret world. Nat Hentoff, in "The Nation," wrote, "her phrasing is easily personal...thoughtful, sometimes grave, often lightly touched with wit so secure it doesn't have to advertise itself...as natural as a spring breeze." BARBARA LEA is accompanied by pianist, TONY TAMBURELLO. He was Sinatra's rehearsal pianist, and he was on the road accompanying Tony Bennett for 21 years. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast June 7, 1991) INT. 2: Veteran crime novelist LAWRENCE BLOCK. He's written nine novels starring Manhattan private eye Matt Scudder. His latest is called "A Ticket To The Boneyard." (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast March 17, 1992.) REV. : World music critic Milo Miles reviews Kabu (kah-boo), the recent album from Ethiopian singer Aster Aweke (ah-ster ah-week-a). (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast March 12, 1992)

Interview with Dorothy Beam; Interview with Ben Okri; Review of Thelonious Monk's album "Solo Monk." May 26, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457779].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Bill Buford; Interview with Angelina Re?aux; Commentary on the words force and violence. May 27, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457617].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist BILL BUFORD (BEW-ford). He traveled for eight years with "soccer thugs" -- England's hardcore soccer fans known for their violent outbreaks surrounding England's soccer games. BUFORD witnessed "lads" urinating on fellow spectators, commuter trains being demolished, a pub being robbed, and saw stabbings. He wanted to understand the violence that has caused many deaths (including the death of 66 fans asphyxiated in a crush of people trying to get out of a stadium in Glasgow in 1971). His new book is "Among the Thugs: The Experience, and the Seduction, of Crowd Violence." (published by W.W. Norton & Co.) John Gregory Dunne calls the book "A grotesque, horrifying, repellant and gorgeous book." INT. 2: Singer ANGELINA RE?AUX (ROW). She's gained international recognition for her interpretation of Kurt Weill music. She performed in a one-woman show, "Stranger Here Myself," a collection of Weill music, dramatically linked. (A recording of the show is on the Koch Classics International label). RE?AUX also performs in Opera and Concert engagements and collaborated with Leonard Bernstein in some of his final projects: recordings of "West Side Story" and "A Quiet Place." She began her career in Broadway musicals. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG considers the difference between the words "force" and "violence."

Interview with Wendy Kaminer; Interview with Gayle Pemberton; Review of the television show "Julie." May 28, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457740].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and lawyer WENDY KAMINER (cam-AH-ner). Her new book, I'm Dysfunctional, You're Dysfunctional, is a critical look at the recovery and self-help movement. KAMINER believes that the movement tends to trivialize suffering by refusing to distinguish among levels of suffering or victimization (for instance, one recovery expert suggests that childhood is a holocaust.) KAMINER also considers the political implications for democracy if people view themselves as victims. (by Addison-Wesley Publishing Company). INT. 2: Writer and professor GAYLE PEMBERTON. She is associate director of Afro-American Studies at Princeton University. Her new book, The Hottest Water in Chicago: on family, race, time, and American culture, is a collection of autobiographical essays. Pemberton was born into a northern black middle-class family in the late 1940s. (by Faber & Faber) REV. : TV critic
DAVID BIANCULLI previews Julie, a new summer sitcom starring Julie Andrews, directed by her husband Blake Edwards.

Interview with Benjamin Cheever; Interview with Amy Madigan; Review of the film "Sister Act." May 29, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org.oclc/969457739].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BENJAMIN CHEEVER is the son of the late John Cheever. Ben is also a writer, and he grew up in the shadow of his father’s fame. He's just written his first novel, for which he says he finally found his own voice, separate from his father's. "The Plagiarist" (Atheneum) is loosely based on Ben's life, and the time he spent working at "Reader's Digest" magazine. Ben was also the editor of "The Letters of John Cheever," published in 1988. INT. 2: Actress AMY MADIGAN. She's now playing on Broadway as Stella in "A Streetcar Named Desire" opposite Jessica Lange and Alec Baldwin. You may remember her as Kevin Costner's wife in the film "Field of Dreams." She's also played in the films "Uncle Buck" and "Roe V. Wade," among others. REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new Whoopi Goldberg movie, "Sister Act." (Buena Vista Pictures)

---

Interview with Glenda Lockwood; Interview with Randall Kenan; Review of the Beastie Boys' album "Check Your Head." June 1, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457655].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GLENDA LOCKWOOD. She and her family were living in Kuwait when the Iraqis invaded in August 1990. Later the family was taken to Bagdad as "human shields" and GLENDA'S son, Stuart Lockwood, was seen on international television being coaxed by Saddam Hussein. It was a propaganda effort on Hussein's part that failed, and ended up infuriating viewers around the world. GLENDA LOCKWOOD's new book is " Dairy of a Human Shield." (by Bloomsbury, distributed by Trafalgar Square, North Pomfret, Vermont 05053). INT. 2: Novelist RANDALL KENAN. (KEY-NUN) He was raised in the rural, North Carolina, a part of the country in which he says "it's hard to distinguish between the myths and reality." His new book, "Let the Dead Bury Their Dead," is a collection of stories, about a five-year old who can hear the dead speak, an Asian man who falls from the sky and encounters mindless violence and racism, and a conventional widow who copes with the revelation that her grandson is a homosexual, and others. KENAN has also written a novel, "A Visitation of Spirits." (His latest book is published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release by the Beastie Boys, "Check Your Head. (Capitol Records)

Interview with Terry McMillan; Commentary on music from Seattle; Interview with Jon Robin Baitz; Interview with Jill Collins; Review of the film "A Midnight Clear." June 2, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457738].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Writer TERRY MCMILLAN. Her new novel, "Waiting to Exhale," (Viking) is about four strong, urban black women in their thirties, their successful careers, and their sometimes volatile relationships with black men. She says women -- both black and white -- are frustrated because they can't find a man who's willing to commit, and won't lie and cheat. Her previous novels are "Mama" and "Disappearing Acts." REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD reacquaints us with music from Seattle over the past 30 years. INT. 2: JON ROBIN BAITZ is a playwright who was awarded a {dollar}15,000 grant from the National Endowment of the Arts (NEA). While he has accepted the money, he has turned around and donated the exact amount to the two institutions that were recently turned down by the NEA's acting Chairwoman, Anne-Imelda Radice. He wrote a scathing letter to the endowment informing them of his two {dollar}7,500 donations to MIT and Virginia Commonwealth, saying, "I simply will not be complicit with faux-moralist sharpies of the Right, nor with psycho-sexual hysterics in the cultural sacking of this country." Baitz currently has two of his plays running Off-Broadway in New York: "The End of the Day" and "The Substance of Fire." INT. 3: NEA spokesperson Jill Collins. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Keith Gordon's new film "A Midnight Clear."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist and screenwriter RICHARD PRICE. His screenwriting credits include "The Color of Money," "Sea of Love," and Martin Scorsese's section of "New York Stories." He's returned to novel writing with "Clockers," a murder mystery set in the world of a crack dealer in New Jersey. Christopher Lehmann-Haupt of The New York Times writes "the signal achievement of "Clockers' is to make us feel the enormous power of these giants that are drugs, alcoholism, poverty." (published by Houghton Mifflin).

INT. 2: Terry talks about the fighting in Sarajevo between the Serbs, the Muslims, and the Croats with Yale University Professor IVO BANAC (BAH-nitz.) He is a native of Croatia, although he's lived in the United States for a long time. REV.: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Strange Loyalties," the latest novel by William McIlvanney.

Interview with Margarethe Cammermeyer; Interview with Roger D. Stone; Review of the television show "The Tonight Show." June 4, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457741].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: COL. MARGARETHE (pronounced like MARGARET) CAMMERMEYER, chief nurse of the Washington National Guard. Last week she was discharged from the army for being a lesbian. CAMMERMEYER is one of the highest ranking members of the military ever to be removed because of her sexual orientation. She served in Vietnam where she received the Bronze Star and in 1985 was chosen from 34,000 candidates to be the Veterans Administration's Nurse of the year. She is challenging her dismissal in Federal Court. INT. 2: Author and Senior Fellow at the World Wildlife Fund, ROGER D. STONE. He's on his way to Rio de Janeiro for the Earth Summit. His book, "The Nature of Development: A Report from the Rural Tropics on the Quest for Sustainable Economic Growth," (by Knopf) in which he theorizes that the only way to protect an environment is to provide economically viable, ecologically sound alternatives for the the people who live there. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Jay Leno's "Tonight Show," now in its second week.
Interview with John Corigliano; Interview with Charlie Sifford; Review of the film "Patriot Games." June 5, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457657].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer JOHN CORIGLIANO, Composer-in residence with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. His composition "Symphony No. 1" is Corigliano's personal statement about the AIDS crisis. The first three movements of the Symphony are dedicated to three of his lifelong musician-friends who died of AIDS. CORIGLIANO was inspired to write the composition after seeing the AIDS memorial quilt. (Corigliano: Symphony No. 1, Chicago Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Daniel Barenboim -- on the Erato Label, #2292-45601-2). INT. 2: Pro Golfer CHARLIE SIFFORD. He was the first black admitted to the PGA in 1961. Even so, he's found that blacks are still not welcome in the game of golf. His new book is "Just Let Me Play," written by SIFFORD with James Gullo (by British American Publishing, 19 British American Boulevard, Latham, New York, 12110). REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS from the L.A. Weekly and New York Magazine reviews "Patriot Games," the new thriller starring Harrison Ford.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: HENRY LOUIS GATES, JR. is an African-American historian. He attended Yale University in the late '60s. The New York Times describes Gates as "a 41-year-old academic entrepreneur who has been one of the most sought-after scholars in the country in the last decade." Gates has taught at Yale, Cornell and Duke. Now he's been recruited to revitalize Harvard's African-American studies department, serving as its new chairman. He's written for Newsweek, Time, and The Nation. He recently interviewed Spike Lee on his controversial film about Malcolm X for the New York Times, and has also written a book called "Loose Canons: Notes on the Culture Wars," about multiculturalism. (Oxford University Press). INT. 2: Actor DAVID McCALLUM. He's still known for the TV role he had back in the 60s, as secret agent Illya Kuryakin in "The Man From UNCLE." Since then, he's had dozens of stage, TV, and movie roles. Currently, he has a supporting role as a police detective in the new English movie "Hear My Interview with Nahid Rachlin; Interview with Paul Theroux; Review of the television documentary "Street Scenes June 9, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457737].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NAHID RACHLIN. ("na-HEED ROCK-lin") She was born in Iran, but came to the United States to go to school. She decided to stay, and today lives and writes in New York. She's just published her 3rd book; her novels and stories weave together the lives of two kinds of Iranians: those who stay in their country, and those who come to America. Her first two novels, "Foreigner," and "Married To a Stranger," are both critically acclaimed. Her latest book, a collection of short stories, is called "Veils." (City Lights Books) INT. 2: PAUL THEROUX ("Thuh-RUE") is no ordinary travel writer: his books are about exotic voyages, some by train, and others by foot. His work includes "The Great Railway Bazaar," "The Old Patagonian Express," and "The Kingdom By The Sea." He's also a novelist, perhaps best known for "The Mosquito Coast," which became a film starring Harrison Ford. In his latest book, "The Happy Isles of Oceania," Theroux explores the far-off Pacific Islands, travelling from island to island in a one-man, collapsible kayak. During his 18 month journey, he passes from Fiji to Samoa, on to the Marquesas, the Cook Islands, and beyond. (G.P. Putnam's sons) REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Street Scenes: New York on Film," a new hour-long documentary on the AMC cable network.

Interview with Sidney Jones; Interview with Katt Shea and Andy Ruben; Review of Ann Peebles' and Otis Clay's albums "Full Time Love" and "I'll Treat You Right." June 10, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457656].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Executive Director of the human rights group Asia Watch, SIDNEY JONES. In light of the pro-democracy demonstrations in Thailand, Terry talks with JONES about the state of democracy and human rights in Asia. INT. 2: Film Director KATT SHEA (Cat Shay). She's an alumna of the Roger Corman film factory. And has a new film out "Poison Ivy," about a sexy manipulative teenager who insinuates herself into the lives of a rich, dysfunctional L.A. family and wreaks havoc. SHEA co-wrote the screenplay along with the film's producer, ANDY RUBEN who Terry also interviews. Reviews of the film have varied from "laughingly bad," to "brilliant and powerfully disturbing." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new come-back albums by 70s singers Ann Peebles and Otis Clay, ("Full Time Love," and "I'll Treat You Right," both on the Bullseye Blues Label - a subsidiary of Boston's Rounder Records)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Drummer and composer BOBBY PREVITE (PREV-IT) He's ranks among the best known of Jazz's new generation of composers. In 1991 "Rolling Stone Magazine," named him their "Hot New Jazz Artist." His most recent project is the score for the Moscow Circus. He was in Russia late last summer working with the Circus's musicians when the coup attempt took place. He's collaborated on albums with such musicians as John Zorn, Wayne Horvitz, Butch Morris, and Elliot Sharp, and has released six albums for his own bands. (His new score is on CD: "Bobby Previte: Music of the Moscow Circus," on the Gramavision label.) INT. 2: Creators and Executive Producers, DAVID CRANE and MARTA KAUFFMAN for the HBO comedy series, "Dream On." The show's main character is a divorced father who often doesn't do the right thing. The voice of his conscious is played out -- using clips from old TV shows which are edited into the show. "Dream On," won the CableACE Award for Best Comedy Series in 1991. CRANE and KAUFFMAN have been writing together for over ten years. They were co-writers with another writer of the book and lyrics for the musical "Personals," for which they won an Outer Critics Circle award. They've also written book, sketch material, and lyrics for several Off-Broadway revues. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reivews "The Bride Price," by Grete Weil. The book is half autobiography, and half biblical story. (published by David Godine)
Interview with Marlon Riggs; Interview with Francisco Goldman; Commentary on the phrase "you're fired." June 12, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458640].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker MARLON RIGGS. His film about gay black men, "Tongues Untied," was shown on PBS last year, and it unleashed a storm of outrage in powerful right-wing circles. Sen. Jesse Helms (R, NC) even put together and distributed a seven-minute tape of scenes from the film, which, taken out of context, completely distorted Marlon Riggs' intentions. The documentary is often used by Congresspeople as an example of what's wrong with public broadcasting, and why it shouldn't be federally funded. Riggs now has a new documentary airing on this year's public TV series "P.O.V." called "Color Adjustment," a critique of prime time TV's myths and messages on American race relations. ("Color Adjustment" airs on many PBS stations Monday June 15 at 10 p.m.; check local listings.) INT. 2: Writer FRANCISCO ("fran-SIS-co") GOLDMAN. He was born in Guatemala, and was raised outside of Boston. His family often returned to Guatemala for visits. After college, he returned to Guatemala to live and write, and was awakened to the brutal political reality there. He then began a career in political journalism, writing for Harper's, The New York Times Sunday Magazine and Playboy. He's now written a novel, called "The Long Night of White Chickens," a "rich portrait of life in Guatemala under military tyranny, of growing up bi-cultural in America, of family and of love." (The Atlantic Monthly Press) REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG thinks about the many different ways to say "you're fired." (rerun)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Medical anthropologist ANDREA SANKAR. She's written a new book that explains how to take care of a dying loved one at home. ("Dying At Home: A Family Guide for Caregiving," published by the Johns Hopkins University Press.) (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 12/05/91) INT. 2: Journalist LAWRENCE WESCHLER. He's a staff writer for the New Yorker and has been covering Eastern Europe for the past decade. Terry talks with WESCHLER about leadership in Czechoslovakia, where parliamentary elections were just held. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Intellectual "Memoirs," by Mary McCarthy. It's the last book by McCarthy and it's about her years in New York 1936-1938.

Interview with Anthony Davis, Cynthia Aaronson, Mark Doss, and Alan Johnson; Interview with Robert Schmuhl; Commentary on Papa Wemba. June 16, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458000].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Concert and interview with composer ANTHONY DAVIS and performers from his new opera, "Tania," -- Soprano CYNTHIA AARONSON, bass/baritone MARK DOSS, and pianist ALAN JOHNSON. DAVIS's opera premiered this week at the American Music Theatre Festival in Philadelphia. "Tania," is loosely based on the Patty Hearst story. INT. 2: Author ROBERT SCHMUHL (Smool), Professor and Director of the Program on Ethics and Media at the University of Notre Dame. His new book is "Statecraft and Stagecraft: American Political Life in the Age of Personality." (published by Notre Dame Press). He'll talk with Terry about the personalities in this year's election. REV. : World music critic MILO MILES profiles veteran Zaire performer, Papa Wemba.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: JOAN MICKLIN SILVER directed the upcoming HBO special "A Private Matter." It's the story of Sherri Chessen Finkbine, host of the children's T-V show Romper Room, and her decision to have an illegal abortion in 1962. Publicity about her choice led to intense public condemnation. In the HBO special, "Miss Sherri" is played by Sissy Spacek, and her husband is played by Aidan Quinn. Among SILVER'S other directing credits are several films, including "Crossing Delancey," and several HBO specials. ("A Private Matter" airs Saturday, June 20th at 8 P.M.) REV. 1: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead discusses Marty Ehrlich's album "Side by Side." INT. 2: GREG TATE is an African-American journalist who writes for the Village Voice. Under the guise of writing about a single subject, often a musician or artist, Tate's essays branch out and explore culture, politics and economic issues. He's written about topics Interview with Mordecai Richler; Interview with Lise Bissonnette; Interview with Judith Rodin; Review of the television show "On the Air." June 18, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457998].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: One of Canada's best-known writers MORDECAI RICHLER. He's a novelist, journalist and screenwriter. His novels include, "The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz," and "Solomon Gursky Was Here." His new book about Quebec's language-obsessed separatist movement is "Oh Canada! Oh Quebec! Requiem for a Divided Country," (by Alfred A. Knopf). In October a referendum will be voted on in Quebec which could create a separate, French-speaking nation. RICHLER charges that the French-speaking Quebecers constitute a xenophobic group whose movement is tainted by racism and anti-Semitism. Int. 2: Publisher and Editor of "Le Devoir," (Le Duh-VWAR) LISE BISSONNETTE (LEASE Bee-Son-ETTE). The paper is the province's most influential French-language newspaper. (RICHLER says in his book that the paper has told readers to avoid Jewish shopkeepers who have "cheating and corruption in their bloodstream.") INT. 3: Founder of the Eating Disorders Clinic at Yale University, DR. JUDITH RODIN. She's written a new book about the distorted body images that many women have of themselves, "Body Traps: Breaking the Binds that Keep You From Feeling Good About Your Body," (William Morrow & Co.). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the latest collaboration between David Lynch and Mark Frost, "On the Air." It premieres on ABC this Saturday night.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1 & 2: Former Democratic presidential candidate PAUL TSONGAS. He talks with Terry about the campaign process and being on the campaign trail. Also his book, "Heading Home," has just been reissued. It's about his fight with and recovery from cancer. (Vintage Books). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the long awaited "Batman Returns," starring Michael Keaton, Michelle Pfeiffer, Danny DeVito, and Christopher Walken.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: THOMAS BLANTON is the Executive Director of the National Security Archive, and a nationally recognized expert on the Iran-Contra scandal. We talk to him today in the wake of the indictment of former defense secretary Caspar Weinberger. The trial is set for November 2, one day before the presidential election, which raises the possibility that President Bush might face some embarrassment, since as Vice President he attended some of the meetings concerning arms shipments to Iran. Weinberger's notes on the meetings (which he failed to turn over during Congressional hearings) may also point the finger at Ronald Reagan. INT. 2: MARIAN WRIGHT EDELMAN ("EH-del-man") is the founder of the Children's Defense Fund, a Washington advocacy group that works to prevent teen pregnancy, and provide for children's health, education and employment. The Los Angeles Times has called her "the most powerful advocate in America for children." She was the first black woman admitted to the bar in Mississippi. She has 3 children of her own, and she's just written a book called "The Measure of Our Success: A Letter to My Children and Yours." It's an open letter to America, including a chapter on "The Twenty-Five Lessons For Life." (Beacon Press) REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN talks about going back to school.

Description of show segment(s)

"Dust to Dust," chronicles the experience using his personal journal entries and photographs. Heiden has also been a medical relief worker at refugee camps in Thailand and Somalia. (published by Temple University Press, Philadelphia). REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two recent reissues of violinist Joseph Szigeti (si-GET-ee) playing Bach. Lloyd says that Szigeti was one of the 20th centuries Bach pioneers.

Interview with Bryan Steveson; Commentary on pop stars who began in gospel music; Interview with Miguel Ferrer; Review of the television show "Home Fires." June 24, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458642].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Attorney BRYAN STEVENSON is the Executive Director of the fledgling Alabama Capital Representation Resource Center. He represents prisoners on Alabama's death row, and tries to persuade other lawyers to do the same on a pro bono basis. He's a graduate of Harvard Law School, and he earns $25,000 a year in his job. He was raised in rural southern Delaware, and says the people he defends are much like people he grew up with, but who didn't get the breaks he did. REV. 1 : Rock historian EDWARD looks at some pop singers who got their start in gospel. INT. 2: Actor MIGUEL FERRER (fah-RARE). He played the caustic FBI pathologist Albert in "Twin Peaks." And was a bad executive in the film "Robocop." For a short while he had his own TV show, "Broken Badges," which followed his work on "Twin Peaks." Now he's starring in David Lynch's new sitcom, "On the Air." FERRER is the son of singer Rosemary Clooney, and actor Jose Ferrer. REV. 2: T-V critic David Bianculli reviews "Home Fires," the new show from the creators of "St. Elsewhere." Three different episodes are airing tonight, Thursday and Saturday on NBC, a stunt the network is using to get viewers to sample a new show.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Philosopher and writer SISSELA BOK (Siss-ala Bahk). She's the author of several books on the ethics of lying and keeping secrets. Her latest book is a memoir about her mother, Alva Myrdal, who was called the most modern woman in the world. Both of Bok's parents were Nobel Prize winners. The book is "Alva Myrdal: A Daughter's Memoir," published by Addison Wesley and now out in paperback. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 5/28/91) INT. 2: Journalist LEROY AARONS and President of the newly formed National Lesbian & Gay Journalists Association. AARONS is founder of the group which was organized to deal with issues in the media involving gays and lesbians, to counter the homophobia often found in the mass media, and to promote fair and ethical treatment of gay and lesbian journalists who often fear exposure. The group is holding its first conference this week in San Francisco. AARONS is former editor, national correspondent, and bureau chief for The Washington Post and former executive editor for The Oakland Tribune. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Alice Walker's new novel, "Possessing the Secret of Joy," (Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich).

Interview with Laurence Fishburne; Interview with Eleanor Coppola; Review of the film "Unlawful Entry." June 26, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457986].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor LARRY FISHBURNE. He was Cowboy Curtis on "Pee-wee's Playhouse," and he played a young G.I. in "Apocalypse Now" when he was only 15. He was last in "Boyz in the Hood" as the main character's father. His latest role is in the film "Deep Cover," in which he plays an undercover cop. (Fine Line Pictures). (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 4/6/92) INT. 2: ELEANOR COPPOLA filmed a documentary called "Hearts of Darkness." It's a behind-the-scenes view of the making of "Apocalypse Now." Coppola is the wife of director Frances Ford Coppola. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/24/92) "Apocalypse Now," has just come out on video; "Hearts of Darkness," will be released on home video next week. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Unlawful Entry," the new suspense film starring Kurt Russell, and Ray Liotta.
Interview with Shirley Horn, Charles Ables, and Steve Williams; Interview with Nick Tosches; Review of Billy Ray Cyrus's and Iris DeMent's albums "Some Gave All" and "Infamous Angel." June 29, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457857].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and interview with SHIRLEY HORN. Playing with her will be drummer Steve Williams and bassist Charles Ables. HORN recorded with Miles Davis and Quincy Jones in the 1960s and sang on the movie soundtrack of "For Love of Ivy." After a hiatus in which she stayed home and raised her daughter, she returned to performing and recording in 1988. Her 1991 album, "You Won't Forget Me," brought together Toots Thielemans, Buck Hill, Wynton and Branford Marsalis, and Miles Davis. The album was nominated for a Grammy. She has a new album and video "Here's to Life: Shirley Horn with Strings," of Johnny Mandel compositions (on Verve). INT. 2: Journalist and biographer NICK TOSCHES (TAW-chez). His new biography is "Dino: Living High in the Dirty Business of Dreams," (by Doubleday). It's about singer Dean Martin but it also looks at the culture that created him. He was part of the mob culture, and Hollywood's "Rat Pack." The book also delves into the reasons for the infamous breakup between Dean Martin and his comedy partner, Jerry Lewis. Dean Martin is now 75 years old. REV.: Rock critic Ken Tucker confronts the success of Billy Ray Cyrus.

Interview Kathryn Kolbert and David Wagner; Interview with Alice Walker; Commentary on television's Nick at Nite programming. June 30, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457862].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1 & 2: Two views of the Supreme Court's decision on "Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pennsylvania V. Casey," the latest case that brought Roe V. Wade, and a woman's right to an abortion, into question. They'll react to the Court's decision to uphold most of the Pennsylvania restrictions, including parental notification for minors, a 24-hour waiting period, and provision of information about the development of the fetus and alternatives to abortion. The Supreme Court felt that notification of a husband was an undue burden, and that the precedent set by Roe V. Wade in 1973 should be upheld. 1) KATHRYN KOLBERT is the attorney who challenged Pennsylvania's restrictions on abortion, arguing the case before the Supreme Court. She is also the Vice President of the newly established Center for Reproductive Law and Policy. 2) DAVID WAGNER, the Editorial Director of the Family Research...
Council, speaks for the pro-life side. Prior to joining PRC, he was a speech and op-ed writer with the U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Public Affairs, writing for the Attorney General and other high department officials. INT. 2: Writer ALICE WALKER. Her new book, "Possessing The Secret of Joy," is about Tashi, an African woman who lives most of her life in North America, and yet submits to the tribal custom of female circumcision. Walker's other books include "The Color Purple," which was made into a film starring Whoopi Goldberg and Oprah Winfrey, and "The Temple of My Familiar." The character Tashi has made peripheral appearances in those books. ("Possessing The Secret of Joy" is published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich.) REV.: TV critic David Bianculli talks about Nick at Nite, the Nickelodeon Cable Network's broadcasts of old TV shows.

Interview with John Updike and Geoffrey Stokes; Interview with Richard Ben Cramer; Review of the film "A League of Their Own." July 1, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502141].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1 & 2: The publishing world was stunned yesterday by the announcement that Tina Brown, editor of Vanity Fair, is to be the new editor of "The New Yorker," replacing Robert A. Gottlieb who resigned. Gottlieb resigned because of philosophical differences with the magazine's publisher about the direction of the magazine. For her part, Ms. Brown has promised not to change the magazine in ways that many staffers fear. Terry will talk to TWO people about the situation: 1) Writer JOHN UPDIKE. He's been writing for "The New Yorker," for years. He'll talk with Terry about the changes he's seen since he's been there, and what this new change might mean. 2) GEOFFREY STOKES, former media critic for The Village Voice. He wrote a profile of Tina Brown in the May 1992 issue of "Spy" magazine. INT. 3: Journalist RICHARD BEN CRAMER. He won a Pulitzer Prize for The Philadelphia Inquirer in 1979. His new book is "What it Takes: the way to the White House," (Random House). In the book he explores the lives of the candidates who ran for president in 1988, (including George Herbert Walker Bush) trying to discover what made them think they could lead the United States. CRAMER takes a novelistic approach in his book. It's been said the book does for politicians what Tom Wolfe's "The Right Stuff," did for astronauts. REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie directed by Penny Marshall, "A League of Their Own," starring Tom Hanks, Geena Davis, and Madonna.
Interview with John Straley; Interview with Richard Belzer; Commentary on the rock group The Falcons. July 2, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502138].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Alaska writer John Straley. His first novel is "The Woman Who Married a Bear: An Alaskan Mystery," (Soho Press). The protagonist is Cecil Younger, a hard-drinking private eye in Sitka who writes haiku, has a failed career, and wife who has left him. The story weaves back and forth between fact and Native American folklore. Straley is, himself, a criminal investigator for the state of Alaska. He was chief investigator for John Peel, a man acquitted of mass murder aboard the fishing boat Investor. And he also helped Capt. Joe Hazelwood get out of legal responsibility for the Exxon Valdez spill. The book is the first in a series.

INT. 2: Comic Richard Belzer. He'll talk with Terry about the candidates for president. He's performed off broadway, on radio, in movies ("Night Shift," "Scarface," "Bonfire of the Vanities," etc.) and on television.

REV.: Rock and roll historian Ed Ward profiles The Falcons.

Interview with Toni Morrison; Interview with Tom Seaver; Review Ernie Krivda's album "Ernie Krivda Jazz." July 3, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501348].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist TONI MORRISON. She has a new novel "Jazz," (published by Knopf) and a new book of essays, "Playing in the Dark," (by Harvard). Her novel, "Beloved," won a Pulitzer prize. She's written five novels in all. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 4/24/92.).

INT. 2: Baseball great TOM SEAVER. He was recently voted into the Baseball Hall of Fame by the largest vote in baseball history. His most recent book is "Great Moments in Baseball." (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 3/20/92)

REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new CD by Cleveland saxophonist Ernie Krivda. ("Ernie Krivda Jazz," Cadence Jazz Records CJR-1409)
Interview with Carl Franklin and Billy Bob Thornton; Interview with Terry Williams; Interview with John Powers. July 4, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501347].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two people from the new film "One False Move:" director CARL FRANKLIN, and co-writer and star BILLY BOB THORNTON. It's a low-budget movie playing in only a few cities, but nonetheless, it's getting critical acclaim. Dave Kehr, of the Chicago Tribune, called it a "resourceful, gripping and grittily authentic thriller." The movie's about a drug deal that went bad, a brutal murder, and the dealers' flight from the police. INT. 2: Sociologist TERRY WILLIAMS. He spent four years in a New York City crackhouse, and talks about the complex culture that's evolved around the drug. Williams teaches at the New School For Social Research in New York, and he's previously published books about a teenage cocaine ring and inner-city poverty.*STATIONS PLEASE NOTE: this interview includes a discussion about how oral sex fits into the crack culture. However, it is not vulgar; rather, it is of an academic nature. INT. 3 : JOHN POWERS, who's been a film critic for Fresh Air, is covering the Democratic National Convention this week for the L.A. Weekly.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Journalist TIMOTHY M. PHELPS. He's the Supreme Court reporter who broke the Anita Hill story (along with NPR's Nina Totenberg) in New York Newsday. He's co-written an account of the Thomas hearings, called "Capitol Games: Clarence Thomas, Anita Hill, and the Story of a Supreme Court Nomination." (Hyperion; co-written with journalist Helen Winternitz.) INT. 2:ASTOR PIAZZOLLA ("pee-ut-SOL-ah") died Sunday at the age of 71. He was an Argentinian composer whose updated tangos were a hybrid of classical music, jazz and rock. He was a gifted player of the bandoneon ("ban-DOH-nee-in"), a kind of accordion that gives tango its distinctive sound. Piazzolla had suffered a stroke nearly two years ago, from which he never recovered. He is being buried today outside Buenos Aires. We present a rebroadcast of our 1988 interview with him. (Originally aired 4/19/88.) Rev.: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN compares the speeches of Abraham Lincoln and George Bush by way of two new books:
"Lincoln at Gettysburg: The Words that Remade America," by Garry Wills (Simon & Schuster), and "Bushisms: President G.H.W. Bush in his own Words," compiled by the editors of the "New Republic."

Interview with Garry Wills; Review of albums by Me Phi Me, Basehead, and Arrested Development. July 7, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502206].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GARRY WILLS. He's analyzed the Gettysburg Address in a new book called "Lincoln At Gettysburg: The Words That Remade America." He says that speaking for only three minutes that day, Lincoln changed the history of American political thought. Wills is a presidential historian and and political scientist. He's written other books on Nixon, Reagan and Kennedy, as well as a recent critical profile of Ross Perot. INT. 2: Our interview with Garry Wills continues. REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews three new rap albums by Me Phi Me, Basehead and Arrested Development.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Yugoslavian journalist and critic SLAVENKA DRAKULIC (SLA-vinka dra-COO-lich). We last spoke to her in April when her book "How We Survived Communism and Even Laughed," came out. Now we'll talk to her about living in Zagreb, the capitol of Croatia: that city is not in ruins and the stores are stocked. But war refugees from nearby Sarajevo are flowing into the city in this civil war-torn country. She recently wrote an article in "The Nation" about the subject. (June 15, 1992) INT. 2: JUDY NIEMACK started out singing opera, but she switched to jazz, and a whole other set of style rules. The Village Voice called the singing on "Heart's Desire," her new album, "Barbra Streisand without the hysterics....She combines the best of both worlds; a cabaret singer's respect for melody as written and a jazz singer's eagerness to have a go at it." (Stash Records) REV. : Book critic John Leonard reviews "Chinese Roundabout: Essays in History and Culture," by Jonathan D. Spence (Norton).
Interview with Eileen Farrell; Interview with Peter Arno; Review of the Clifford Jordan Big Band's album "Down Through the Years." July 9, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501349].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soprano EILEEN FARRELL. At the age of 72, she's had a long career: she began in radio, with her own show on CBS, in the forties. In the fifties she started singing opera, and has performed with every major opera company and symphony orchestra in the U.S., including five seasons with the Metropolitan Opera in New York. Starting in the sixties, she began putting out albums of jazz standards, and has just released her twelfth, called "It's Over." (Reference Recordings RR-46CD) She has also been a professor of music at Indiana University and the University of Maine. INT. 2: In the first ten years of the AIDS epidemic, the Food and Drug Administration approved only two drugs to treat the disease. Yet a third drug, approved last month, took only eight months. Health economist PETER ARNO's new book, "Against The Odds: The Story of AIDS Drug Development, Politics & Profits" tells how AIDS activists, critical of the FDA bureaucracy, have sparked sweeping reforms of the drug approval process, and sped up access to drug development for all illnesses. Peter Arno is an associate professor in the Department of Epidemiology and Social Medicine at Montefiore Medical Center and Albert Einstein Medical College in New York City. (Published by HarperCollins; co-written with Karyn L. Feiden) REV. : Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews "Down Through The Years," a new live album from the Clifford Jordan Big Band. (Milestone) elections." INT. 2: Feminist, journalist and essayist BARBARA EHRENREICH talks with Terry about the Clinton/Gore ticket. She'll be covering the convention for New York Newsday. INT. 3: WARRINGTON and REGINALD HUDLIN produced and directed the new Eddie Murphy film "Boomerang," said, at {dollar}40 million, to be the largest budget film made by African-Americans. Their previous film, "House Party," was made for {dollar}2.6 million and was one of the most profitable movies ever made by African-American filmmakers. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Prelude to a Kiss," the new film starring Alec Baldwin and Meg Ryan. It's an adaptation of the Broadway hit. By the way, Kathy Bates, Ned Beatty and Patty Duke are also in the movie.

Interview with Barry Bloom; Interview with Peter Bagge; Review of Lindsey Buckingham's album "Out of the Cradle." July 13, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501351].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. BARRY BLOOM, Professor of Microbiology and Immunology and investigator for the Albert Einstein College of Medicine. He was chair of the Tuberculosis Committee of the Special Programme for Vaccine Development at the WHO (he just retired from that in April). He'll talk with Terry about the return of tuberculosis fueled by poverty, homelessness, and AIDS. INT. 2: Alternative cartoonist PETER BAGGE (pronounced "Bag"). His cartoons are a mixture of bitter social observation and slap-stick silliness. He's best known for his "Hate" by-monthly comic books (published by Fantagraphics) about the life of Seattle slacker Buddy Bradley, his pal Stinky, and his girlfriend, Val. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "OUT OF THE CRADLE," the new solo album by Lindsey Buckingham, of Fleetwood Mac fame.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Anthropologist, archaeologist and the director of the University of Arizona's 20 year-old Garbage Project, WILLIAM RATHJE (rath-GEE) The project applies the principles of archaeology to modern garbage to see what could be learned about our civilization. They've processed over 250,000 pounds of garbage. RATHJE has co-authored a book about the findings of the project, "Rubbish! The Archaeology of Garbage: What our Garbage Tells us about Ourselves." (with Cullen Murphy, published by HarperCollins). INT. 2: Journalist NICHOLAS LEMANN (LEMON) Lemann is a national correspondent for The Atlantic magazine. He's just written an article for "The New York Times" about how politicians need to stop pandering to the middle class at the expense of the working class and minorities. Lemann's also the author of, "The Promised Land," an account of the American black migration. REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Nightingale," the new release by Scottish saxophonist JOE TEMPERLEY (HEP Records, P.O. Box 50, Edinburgh EH7 5DA Scotland)

---

Interview with Al Jean and Mike Reiss; Interview with Jon Lovitz; Commentary on television news coverage of the Democratic National Convention; Review of the film "A Stranger Among Us." July 17, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501927].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From "The Simpsons," -- producers AL JEAN and MIKE REISS. ("RICE") Both have been with the show since it went on the air. They're part of the "Harvard Mafia," comedy writers from Harvard who have influenced the comedy business from "Saturday Night Live" to "The Muppet Show." REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI takes at the unconventional coverage of the Democratic convention. INT. 2: Comedian JON LOVITZ. (LOVE-itz) He played the pathological liar on Saturday Night Live, among many other characters, such as Annoying Man and Harry Chanukah. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 4/28/92) REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film "A Stranger Among Us," starring Melanie Griffith.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet and novelist PAUL MONETTE. His book "Borrowed Time: An AIDS Memoir," published in 1988, was the first such memoir to be published about AIDS. In it, MONETTE told the story of his "beloved" friend and lover's two year struggle with AIDS. The book was called, "a gallant, courageous love story." Since then, MONETTE has watched another lover die of AIDS, and has been diagnosed with AIDS himself. MONETTE has written a new memoir about his own life before he came out of the closet at the age of 25, "Becoming a Man: Half a Life Story," (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich). INT. 2: Producer NAOMI PERSON talks with writer EDWARD JONES. He's just published a new collection of short stories, "Lost in the City," (William Morrow & Company), about the "lives and souls" of black people living in Washington, D.C. This is his first book. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Nobel prize winning writer Joseph Brodsky's new book of essays, "Watermark."

Interview with Frederick Kempe; Interview with Peter Medak; Review of 8 Bold Souls' album "Sideshow." July 21, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502095].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist FREDERICK KEMPE (KEMP -- "E" as in KEPT) foreign correspondent and Berlin Bureau Chief for "The Wall Street Journal." He spent five weeks traveling thru Siberia and has written an account of it in, "Siberian Odyssey: A Voyage Into the Russian Soul," (Putnam Publishing). In many areas, KEMPE was the first American there. He visited a nomadic tribe of reindeer herders, a former Gulag site, and the site of a Stalinist mass grave, talking to survivors of the former, and children of victims from the later. KEMPE made the trip shortly before the August 1991 coup that ushered out the communist party. INT. 2: Film director PETER MEDAK. Medak's latest movie, "Let Him Have it," is the true life story of London teenager who was wrongly accused of helping to shoot and kill a policeman in 1952. The teenager was mentally handicapped and his role in the shooting was at best ambiguous. The teenager was hanged. MEDAK's own life reads like a movie...he was born in Hungary, fled the Nazis and later the Communists, arrived nearly penniless in London, worked his way up through the business, and eventually make movies like "The Ruling Class" and "The Krays." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 12/6/91) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new CD by composer Edward Wilkerson's group, "8 Bold Souls." It's called "Sideshow" on the Arabesque Jazz label.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PART TWO of our interview with "Mr. Horror," writer STEPHEN KING. He'll talk with Terry about his greatest fear, his first writing efforts and about his childhood. He's got a new novel, "Gerald's Game," (published by Viking). INT. 2: Singer JIMMY SCOTT. He sang with Lionel Hampton's band in the late 1940s early 50s and influenced such singers as Nancy Wilson, Marvin Gaye, and Stevie Wonder. Quincy Jones who played with Hampton's band then said of Scott's singing, "It's a very emotional, soul-penetrating style. Jimmy used to tear my heart out every night." He became best known for his ballads. Despite his talent, SCOTT has had a sporadic singing career marked by long periods of obscurity. Now he's got a new album -- his first in over 15 years, "All the Way," (Sire Records) with Kenny Barron - Piano, Ron Carter - Bass, Grady Tate - Drums, John Pisano - Guitar and David "Fathead" Newman - Sax. REV. : Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews the new biography of Margaret Sanger by Ellen Chesler.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DANNY AIELLO (eye-EL-oh). He starred in "Moonstruck," and "Do the Right Thing." His most recent movie is "Ruby," about Jack Ruby, the man who shot Lee Harvey Oswald. He talks with Terry about acting. He used to be an official with the New York transit union and quit it when he was 35 to take up acting. "Ruby" is now out on video.(REBROADCAST. Originally aired 3/19/92)

INT. 2: CHARLES DUTTON, star of the T-V comedy series "Roc." Dutton came to acting in a very roundabout way: while serving a manslaughter sentence in the Maryland State Penitentiary, he organized the performance of a play, and realized he loved acting. ("Roc" airs Sunday nights on Fox.) REBROADCAST. (Originally aired 2/4/92) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film, "Mo' Money."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright and director GEORGE C. WOLFE. He wrote and directed the hit Broadway musical Jelly's Last Jam, starring Gregory Hines, about Jelly Roll Morton. Wolfe also wrote the play The Colored Museum, a satire about the black experience in America. NOTE:The segment will also feature JOEL FORRESTER of the Microscopic Septet and composer of Fresh Air's theme music. He'll play and talk about some of his Jelly Roll Morton-inspired compositions. INT. 2: Jazz guitarist BUCKY PIZARELLI (Pitz-uh-RELL-ee). Pizzarelli has played with musicians as diverse as Benny Goodman, Zoot Sims, Bud Freeman, Dionne and the Belmonts, as well as his son, John Pizzarelli.

Interview with Anna Deavere Smith; Interview with Guy Klucevsek; Interview with Joel Forrester. July 29, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501992].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Anna Deavere Smith; Interview with Guy Klucevsek; Interview with Joel Forrester.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Lieutenant LUCIE DUVALL, founder of Cleveland's landmark sex crimes unit. She was one of the first woman street cops in Cleveland and one of the first women in the country to head a vice squad. A new biography has just been written about her, "Working Vice." (published by Harper Collins). INT. 2: Writer WILLIAM KITTREDGE. He's best known for his writings about the West of the United States. He grew up on a ranch in southeastern Oregon and ranched himself for ten years. He also taught for years at the University of Montana. His new book is a memoir, "Hole in the Sky," (published by Knopf). Writer Thomas McGuane says of KITTREDGE's new book, "Out of the pain and glory of growing up in Interview with Allison Anders; Interview with Nancy Wackstein; Review of the film "Death Becomes Her." July 31, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502270].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film maker ALLISON ANDERS. Her new film is "Gas Food Lodging," about a single mother and her two teenage children living in a trailer. ANDERS herself was a single mother on welfare with two teenage daughters. Previously, ANDERS collaborated on the film "Border Radio." INT. 2: Terry talks about solutions for homelessness with NANCY WACKSTEIN, Executive Director of the Lenox Hill Neighborhood Association, a settlement house in New York City. WACKSTEIN recently gave up her job as Director of New York's Office on Homelessness. Before that she was an advocate for the homeless at the Citizens' Committee for Children. WACKSTEIN used to believe that the solution to homelessness was more housing. But she now believes that housing alone will not solve the problem. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film, "Death Becomes Her."

Interview with Wilbert Rideau; Review of the television show "P.O.V." August 3, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502272].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Since 1975, WILBERT RIDEAU has been the editor-in-chief of "The Angolite," the prison newsmagazine of the Louisiana State Penitentiary, where he's serving a life sentence for murder. An eighth-grade dropout, he was convicted of murder in 1961 and spent eleven years on death row at Angola, where he taught himself to write. "The Angolite" won the Sidney Hillman Award in 1981, the George Polk award in 1980, and the Robert F. Kennedy Award for Outstanding Coverage of the Problems of the Disadvantaged in 1979. INT. 2: Our interview with Wilbert Rideau continues. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews public television's "P.O.V." episode called "Dream Deceivers," an analysis of a
Nevada court case in which the heavy metal band Judas Priest was sued by the parents of two teenagers who shot themselves after listening to the band's music.

Interview with Melle Mel; Interview with Archie Roach; Review of Susan Sontag's novel "The Volcano Lover." August 4, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502129].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: When the hit rap song "The Message," by Grandmaster Flash and the Furious Five came out ten years ago, many rappers regarded it as an inspiration as well as a political message. Now "The New Message," an updated version has been released. MELLE MEL ("Melly Mell") was the original vocalist on "The Message;" he's also rapping on "The New Message." (imago records) INT. 2: ARCHIE ROACH is an Australian singer/songwriter. When he was 3 years old, he was taken from his Aboriginal family and placed with a white family, as part of an Australian assimilation program intended to dilute the aboriginal population. The policy, common practice until 1964, was neither publicized nor explained. At 14, he ran away to find his natural family, and spent ten years on the streets, mostly in Melbourne. He sang first for friends, and then was invited to sing in clubs and on radio. "Charcoal Lane," his acclaimed debut album, has just been released. He's currently on a U.S. tour (tonight, Minneapolis; 8/6 Chicago; 8/7 Ann Arbor MI; 8/8 Toronto; 8/12 Boston MA; 8/14 New York City, and more. Stations can call Lisa Shively, 213-466-6277, for more tour info. "Charcoal Lane" is on Hightone Records). REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Susan Sontag's new novel, "The Volcano Lover."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Executive Director for the human rights group, Asia Watch, Rakiya Omaar (ROCK-e-ya O-MAR). She'll talk to Terry about the tragic situation in Somalia where war and famine are killing thousands of people. OMAAR has just returned from visits at refugee camps in Somalia and Ethiopia. She herself is Somolian. INT. 2: Film director and writer TOM DICILLO (Deh-CHILL-o). His film, "Johnny Suede," is a strange comedy about a untalented musician and housepainter with a ridiculously high pompadour, and a love for Ricky Nelson. DICILLO created the character for a one-man show he performed in New York. Before that, DICILLO was cinematographer for two of Jim Jarmusch's early films, "Stranger Than Paradise," and "Permanent Vacation." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new albums, one by the Black Crowes, and the other by the former drummer for the Replacements, Chris Mars. ("The Southern Harmony and Musical Companion," by The Black Crowes on the Angelus label; and "Horseshoes and Hand Grenades," by Chris Mars on the Smash label).

Interview with Rhonda Cornum; Interview with Francisco Jose; Review of the film "Unforgiven." August 7, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502132].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Army Major RHONDA CORNUM. She was one of few women held P.O.W. during the Gulf War. She's a physician and was on a search-and-rescue mission when the helicopter she was in was shot down by Iraqis. Five crew members were killed in the crash. CORNUM and three others survived and were immediately taken prisoner by Iraqi soldiers. CORNUM broke both arms and was sexually molested by one of her captors. "She went to War," is the new book about her experience written by Peter Copeland. (published by Presidio Press). INT. 2: Filipino writer, publisher, and political organizer FRANCISCO (FRANKIE) JOSE. He's one of the two or three most celebrated writers in the Philippines. His new book is a novella, "Three Filipino Women," (published by Random House). Since 1965, JOSE, has presided over a bookstore in Manila, a gathering place for intellectuals. JOSE also publishes "Solidarity," a forum for authors worldwide. He's also founder and secretary-general for the Philippines PEN Center. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Unforgiven," the new Clint Eastwood film starring himself and Gene Hackman.
Interview with Wallace Stegner; Interview with Lillian Faderman; Commentary on Arthur Brown.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer WALLACE STEGNER. His novels and essays are often based in the West where he grew up and lived for many years. STEGNER started the creative writing program at Stanford University in California, which he ran for 26 years. He's now in his eighties. His new book of essays is called "Where the Bluebird Sings to the Lemonade Springs." (Random House). REBROADCAST. Originally aired 4/15/92. INT. 2: Professor LILLIAN FADERMAN (FAY-der-man). Faderman's written a book on the history of lesbians and lesbian life in 20th Century America. It's called "Odd Girls and Twilight Lovers." (It's published by Columbia University Press).REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/25/91. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD fills us in on the whereabouts of one eccentric British ex-rocker.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of Slavic Languages at the University of Wisconsin, TOMA (To-MAH) LONGINOVIC (Long-GIN-o-vich). He is Serbian, but has been in the U.S. for about ten years. He still has family in Sarajevo. He'll talk with Marty about the history of Muslims in the region, and about his concerns for his family. REV.1: BOOK CRITIC John Leonard reviews "The Emperor's Last Island," by Julia Blackburn.
INT. 2: Film maker ERROL MORRIS. His documentary films include, "The Thin Blue Line," a movie credited with helping to free an innocent man from death row, and "Gates of Heaven." His latest film is "A Brief History of Time," about the work and life of physicist Stephen Hawking. Hawking has ALS, a muscle wasting disease, and very little movement. But his brillant mind has been untouched by the disease. Hawking wrote a book about the birth and fate of the universe that was a bestseller, "A Brief History of Time." REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of chamber music composed by John Harbison, a contemporary classical musical composer. "John Harbison: String Quartets" (Harmonia Mundi label), performed by the Lydian String Quartet.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAMES ADAMS, the Washington bureau chief for the Sunday Times of London, and former Defense Correspondent. He's written several books, including, "Engines of War: Merchants of Death and the New Arms Race." He'll talk with Marty about the military options in Bosnia. INT. 2: Writer and journalist NEIL SHEEHAN. He won a Pulitzer Prize for his best-selling book, "A Bright Shining Lie," about America's disastrous involvement in Vietnam. SHEEHAN was Vietnam correspondent for the New York Times during the war, and was the man who broke the Pentagon Papers story. His new book, "After the War was Over: Hanoi and Saigon," (Random House) is about his trip to Vietnam three years ago, the first time he'd been back since the fall of Saigon in 1975. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Larry Sanders Show," Gary Shandling's new HBO show that feeds off the talk show frenzy (AIRS SATURDAYS 10:30 PM).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MICHAEL DUFFY, a white house correspondent for Time magazine. He's just co-written the book "Marching in Place: The Status Quo Presidency of George Bush." It's the first critical assessment of the Bush presidency. He says that "on the one hand, George Bush brought a great deal of energy and enjoyment to the White House, with all his travel, sports, speeches and parties. On the other hand, this blur of activity wasn't directed toward accomplishing anything in particular." (Simon & Schuster; co-written with Dan Goodgame) INT. 2: Composer JOHN CAGE died yesterday at the age of 79. The New York Times wrote that Cage "started a revolution by proposing that composers could jettison the musical language that had evolved over the last seven centuries, and in doing so he opened the door to Minimalism, performance art and virtually every other branch of the musical avant-garde." His compositions include spoken texts, radios, toys and the sounds of vegetables being chopped. In honor of his passing, we present highlights of his 1982 interview with Terry Gross. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "American Mythologies" by Marshall Blonsky.

---

Interview with Tom Brokaw; Commentary on Caetano Veloso; Interview with William Vollman; Review of the film "Single White Female." August 14, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502160].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NBC news anchor TOM BROKAW. As with the Democratic convention, he'll be covering the Republican National Convention from Houston along with Jim Lehrer and Robert MacNeil as a joint effort by NBC and PBS. REV. 1: World music critic Milo Miles surveys the work of Caetano Veloso.

INT. 2: Writer WILLIAM VOLLMANN. His latest book, "Fathers and Crows," is a historical novel that's part of his Seven Dreams Series. This book is about "the spiritually charged wars of belief" between the Iriquois and French Jesuits in Canada from the 16th to 18th centuries. He's also written about Afghanistan, prostitution, as well as some fiction. (Viking) REV. 2: Critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Single White Female," the new Barbet Schroeder film.

---

Interview with Ben Hamper; Interview with Eran Riklis; Review of Irvin D. Yalom's novel "When Nietzsche Wept." August 17, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502909].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer BEN HAMPER. His funny first-person account of working in GM's auto factory is "Rivethead: Tales from the Assembly Line." HAMPER is a third generation auto worker in Flint, Michigan. He first started writing when he submitted articles to the alternative newspaper, "The Flint Voice." The editor then was Michael Moore, who made the documentary "Roger and Me." From a Village Voice review: "The material is Beat and blunt...dense with sensations close to the metal floor...Ben Hamper is a modern worker writer, proletarian journalist and one of the best writers I know about." (published by Warner Books; Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 8/19/91.) INT. 2: Israeli film director Eran Riklis ("uh-RAHN RICK-liss"). His new film, "Cup Final," takes place in 1982: the Israelis have just invaded Lebanon and the World Cup soccer games are taking place in Barcelona. The main character of the movie, an army reservist, is taken hostage by PLO fighters. What they all share is a love of soccer. (Now playing in NYC at the Film Forum 1.) REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "When Nietzsche Wept," by Irvin D. Yalom.

Interview with Charles Simic; Interview with Willem DaFoe; Review of the television show "Arresting Behavior." August 18, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502005].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Yugoslavian born poet CHARLES SIMIC. He won the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in 1990. He has a new book of poems, "The Book of Gods and Devils," (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich). He came to the U.S. when he was 15. He'll talk to Marty about poetry, about growing up in Yugoslavia and leaving it, and about what it's like for him now to see the stories about the war in Bosnia Herzegovina. INT. 2: Actor WILLEM (WILLIAM) DAFOE. He's starred in "Platoon," "The Last Temptation of Christ," "Mississippi Burning," and "Wild at Heart." He's currently starring in the new Paul Schrader film, "Light Sleeper," along with Susan Sarandon. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new ABC show, "Arresting Behavior," which pokes fun at so-called reality shows.

Interview with Sean Barron and Judy Barron; Interview with Roddy Doyle; Review of the anthology album "'Til Their Eyes Shine." August 19, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502286].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SEAN and JUDY BARRON. This son and mother have written a book together, "There's A Boy in Here," about Sean's escape from autism. (Simon & Schuster). Sean tells of the rigid rules he developed to control the world which had been terrifying to him since the day he was born: he had an obsessional preference for right turns and screamed in rage if his parents made a left turn in the car, or he had to be the first one in the kitchen in the morning or the day started out all wrong. Sean's parents refused to let him withdrawal, and after years of badgering and interrupting his isolation, he gradually emerged. He has graduated from college and is pursuing a degree in occupational therapy. INT. 2: Dublin writer RODDY DOYLE. His first book, "The Commitments," was published in 1987 and made into the hit movie of the same name, about a working-class Dublin band with soul. DOYLE's inspiration for the book were the students he teaches in a north Dublin school. DOYLE has continued writing about Barrytown (the mythic suburb of Dublin which "The Commitments was set in), and about the Rabitte family (Jimmy Rabbitte Jr., was the manager of the soul band) in two other novels, "The Snapper," (Penguin) and his new novel, "The Van." (Viking Press). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Til Their Eyes Shine," a new record of lullabies put together by Rosanne Cash.

Interview with Terry Jeffrey; Interview with Samuel Popkin; Commentary on W.F. Harvey's short story "August Heat." August 20, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502906].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Policy Director for Pat Buchanan, TERRY JEFFREY. He'll talk to Marty about the conservative agenda that Pat Buchanan and other conservatives are putting forth and about the religious and cultural war Buchanan talked about Monday night at the GOP convention. INT. 2: Political consultant SAMUEL POPKIN. He's an advisor to the Clinton campaign and author of "The Reasoning Voter," a book about how voters chose candidates. He'll talk with Marty about the importance of family values on the campaign. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN tells us about the short horror story that has haunted her through the years. (It's "August Heat," by W.F. Harvey).

Interview with Marvin Liebman; Interview with Kathy Arendsen; Review of the film "The Best Intentions." August 21, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502008].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Republican Party insider and one of the founders of the modern American conservative movement, MARVIN LIEBMAN. He shocked his political associates and friends when he announced in 1990 that he was gay. His new autobiography is, "Coming Out Conservative," (Chronicle Books of San Francisco). INT. 2: Fast-pitch, softball pitcher KATHY ARENDSEN. For the past 15 years she's played with the amateur women's softball team, the Raybestos Brakettes. They've just won their third national championship in a row. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS of the L.A. Weekly reviews Ingmar Bergman's new film, "The Best Intentions."

Interview with James Lee Burke; Interview with Terry Adams; Review of Bill Morris's novel "Motor City." August 24, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502579].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist JAMES LEE BURKE. His novels are set in New Orleans and the surrounding bayou, and feature Cajun detective Dave Robicheaux. His latest novel is "A Stained White Radiance." (Rebroadcast 4/8/92). INT. 2: Keyboardist TERRY ADAMS of the quirky band NRBQ. They have a new album out called "Honest Dollar." REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Motor City by Bill Morris (Knopf).

Interview with Kathleen Hall Jamieson; Interview with Georgi Arbatov; Commentary on trends in television broadcast schedules. August 25, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502580].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Campaign analyst KATHLEEN HALL JAMIESON. (pronounced "JAY-mih-son") She's Dean of the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania, and she's been called "the leading academic authority on politics and advertising" by the New York Times. She'll talk about negative campaigning by both parties, and give her take on the recent conventions. Her new book, "Dirty Politics: Deception, Distraction and Democracy," is about how TV ads and speeches shape contemporary campaigns (Oxford University Press). She is also the author of "Packaging the Presidency," "Eloquence in an Electronic Age," and other books on political discourse. INT. 2: Kremlin insider GEORGI ARBATOV. (pronounced "YOR-ghi ar-BAH-toff") His new book, "The System," is a memoir of his long political career as Director of the Institute for the U-S-A and Canada, the Soviet Union's most influential foreign policy think-tank. He was not a dissident or an enemy of the system; rather, he worked within it. His book begins with his World War II career, chronicles the repressive Stalin era, the cold war, the August 1991 coup attempt and its aftermath. He's been an adviser to every Soviet leader from Khruschev to Yeltsin.
TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI takes a look at the new fall lineup, which no longer actually starts in the fall, but has already begun -- and it's not even September!

Interview with Robert Knight; Interview with Scott Lively and Peggy Norman. August 26, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501652].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT KNIGHT, director of the Cultural Studies Project at the Family Research Council (FRC), a Washington-based lobbying group that concerns itself with family values. He says that the two-parent heterosexual family is the foundation of civilization, and that anything else is dysfunctional (that includes homosexuals and one-parent households). Terry last spoke to a member of the FRC on June 30, 1992, following the supreme court's most recent abortion decision. The PRC spoke for the pro-life side.

INT. 2: Two guests in this segment: SCOTT LIVELY is the Director of communications for the Oregon Citizen's Alliance, the group that brought an anti-gay initiative to the ballot. It would amend the Oregon constitution to outlaw "promoting, encouraging or facilitating homosexuality." Portland resident PEGGY NORMAN is the manager of "No on 9," the committee to defeat the Oregon anti-gay rights initiative. She says the lesbian and gay community wants equal rights and to be free from discrimination, and that Measure 9 will strip away any legal protections for that community.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Co-founder of the band, "Talking Heads," DAVID BYRNE. Since the group disbanded, BYRNE has made several solo albums and collaborated with other performers like, Brian Eno and Phillip Glass. He also scored the films, "Something Wild," and "Married to the Mob," and won an Academy Award and an Emmy for co-scoring, "The Last Emperor." In 1989 he released an album, "Rei Momo," of original songs combining Latin and pop styles. His latest album "Uh-Oh," (Luaka Bop label) encompasses all the styles that BYRNE has worked in his career. BYRNE's also got a new book of photography, "American Originals." (Thunder's Mouth Press). INT. 2: Actor and first-time director BARRY PRIMUS. He was a regular in the TV-show, "Cagney & Lacey," and acted in the films "Absence of Malice," and "New York, New York." He's also taught acting, and directed for the stage. His first film is a Hollywood satire, "Mistress," about a man trying to get his film made. The idea of it came from his own experience trying to get his film made. It stars Robert DeNiro, Eli Wallach, and Laurie Metcalf. It's also the first film to be produced out of De Niro's new production company, Tribeca. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new reissue of the Jimmy Guiffre Trio, "Jimmy Guiffre 3, 1961" (on the ECM label).

Interview with Lucinda Williams and Gurf Morlix; Interview with Steve Roberts. August 28, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501413].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and interview with Louisiana born singer/songwriter LUCINDA WILLIAMS. She's joined by guitarist GURF MORLIX. Williams' influences have been Bob Dylan, Delta Blues man, Robert Johnson, Van Morrison, and writers Flannery O'Connor and Eudora Welty. In the late 70s she made two obscure folk albums. But she didn't really find her own voice until 1988 when she produced her own album ("Lucinda Williams," Rough Trade Records) of original songs. One reviewer wrote of the album,"such stunning directness. . . and unforced artistry that it exposed the bulk of that year's . . .pop music as embarrassingly bloated and hollow." Her newest album is "Sweet Old World," (Chameleon Records). INT. 2: Senior writer for U.S. World and News Report, STEVE ROBERTS and a regular on PBS's "Washington Weekend Review." He's covered Congress and politics for 28 years. . . President Bush has often blamed Congress for stalling or gridlocking on legislation. Terry talks with ROBERTS about this assertion, whether or not its true, and if so, why? And what kind of impact does it have on the President's ability to govern.

Interview with Susan Sontag; Interview with Susan Trento; Review of two albums of Andrew Rangell performing Beethoven's late piano sonatas. August 31, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501480].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer SUSAN SONTAG. Her new novel is "The Volcano Lover: A Romance." (published by Farrar Straus Giroux) INT. 2: Writer SUSAN TRENTO. Her new book about the merging of lobbying

Interview with Lynn Yeakel; Interview with Robert Brustein; Review of the television show "Going to Extremes." September 1, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501354].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Democratic candidate for the Pennsylvania U.S. Senate Seat, LYNN YEAKEL. She is running against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Spector. YEAKEL has never run for elected office before, but says she was inspired to run because of Spector's treatment of Anita Hill during the Clarence Thomas confirmation hearings. YEAKEL helped found, and for 15 years has been President of "Women's Way," a coalition of organizations raising money to help women and their families. It's the first and largest regional women's fund in the U.S. and has been the model for similar organizations in other communities. INT. 2: Theatre critic, director, and educator ROBERT BRUSTEIN (pronounced "steen," not "stein"). Brustein is a venerable voice in the American theatre...He's the founder and Artistic Director of the American Repertory Company, director of the Harvard Drama Center (he held a similar position at Yale for 13 years), drama critic for the New Republic for more than 30 years and the author of seven books on the theatre. He'll talk with Terry about how the Arts are under attack by the left, the middle, and the right. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new comedy-drama series, "Going to Extremes," by the same team that created "Northern Exposure," and "St. Elsewhere."

Interview with Claes Oldenburg; Interview with Charlie Sifford; Review of the film "Honeymoon in Vegas." September 2, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501810].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pop artist and sculptor CLAES (klaus) OLDENBURG. He turns everyday objects into colossal public monuments. He created a giant clothespin for Philadelphia, a rubber stamp for Cleveland, a fruit bowl for Miami, and others. Before taking on the large public sculptures, CLAES worked in multiples, where a small object is repeated. A new book about this period of his work is called, "Claes Oldenburg: Multiples in Retrospect 1964-1990." (by Rizzoli International Publications, Inc.) (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 5/19/92) INT. 2: Pro Golfer CHARLIE SIFFORD. He was the first black admitted to the PGA in 1961. Even so, he's found that blacks are still not welcome in the game of golf. His new book is "Just Let Me Play," written by SIFFORD with James Gullo (by British American Publishing, 19 British American Boulevard, Latham, New York, 12110). (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 6/5/92) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews, "Honeymoon in Vegas," the new film starring Nicholas Cage and Sarah Jessica Parker.

Interview with Charlie Rich; Review of Miles Davis's album "Doo-Bop" and Jim Hall's album "Youkali"; Interview with Richard Green; Review of the film "Bob Roberts." September 3, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501648].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country singer CHARLIE RICH. He got his start working with the Sun record label in the late 50s, writing tunes for Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison, and Johnny Cash. From there he began making records himself. In the 70s his songs, "The Most Beautiful Girl," and "Behind Closed Doors," were big country-pop hits. During the 80s he dropped out of sight. But he has a new album now, "Pictures And Paintings," of jazz and blues standards. (Sire/Warner/Blue Horizon). REV.1 : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD tells us about the unethical practice by record producers of scavenging their vaults for unreleased music by deceased musicians. He tells us about "Doo-Bop," (Warner) featuring Miles Davis, and "Youkali," (CTI) featuring Chet Baker. INT. 2: Director of the Crown Heights Youth Collective in Brooklyn, RICHARD GREEN. A year ago there were racial riots in Crown Heights spurred by the accidental death of a young black boy, and the subsequent murder of a Yeshiva student. During the disturbances GREEN was outside with a bullhorn trying to keep the peace in the streets. Since then, GREEN has launched a program to bring black and Jewish youth together. Rev. 2: Film critic John Powers reviews "Bob Roberts," directed by and starring Tim Robbins.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: One of America's best known literary figures, GORE VIDAL. His work (plays, novels, essays, reviews) is known for its intelligence, urbane humor, biting satire, and for its attacks on political sacred cows. He was once called "the Gentleman Bitch of American Letters." He has two new books out, "Screening History," part memoir and part film commentary, about how our personal and national images are influenced by film, (Harvard Univ.). And "Live from Golgotha (goal-GAUTH-a): The Gospel According to Gore Vidal," about what would happen if the crucifixtion happened in the age of television. (Random House). VIDAL is also starring in a new movie,"Bob Roberts," directed by Tim Robbins. INT. 2: Bassist CHARLIE HADEN. He played with and was influenced by Ornette Coleman. In Coleman he found a kindred spirit, another musician who wanted to play "free," improvising on the feeling and the inspiration of a song rather than on the chord changes. Coleman's Quartet caused a revolution in the jazz world. HADEN also worked with John Coltrane, and Keith Jarrett. Later he formed the "Liberation Music Orchestra" with composer Carla Bley, and then, the group, "Old And New Dreams." His latest group is "Quartet West." They have a new album "Haunted Heart," (Verve). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album by Jennifer Warnes.

Interview with Philip Levine; Interview with John Cullum; Review of the songs "Life Is a Highway" and "Giving Him Something He Can Feel." September 7, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501352].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: .Poet Philip Levine. Levine's considered one of this country's pre-eminent poet, but before he turned to poetry he put in years working factory jobs. The images of those early days continue to influence his writings. Levine's latest collection of poems is called "What Work Is." (It's published by Knopf). REBROADCAST. (Originally aired 7/22/91) INT. 2: Actor JOHN CULLUM. He plays Holling Vincoeur on the TV show "Northern Exposure." Holling is a 63-year-old bartender in a relationship with an 18-year-old beauty queen. CULLUM is best known for his broadway roles in "Camelot," "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever," and others. CULLUM talked with Terry before a live audience in Seattle in May.
(REBROADCAST. Originally aired 5/18/92). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER tells us about two of his favorite hits from the summer.

Interview with Joan DelFattore; Interview with Charles Band; Commentary on the band the Troggs. September 8, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501812].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of English JOAN DELFATTORE (DEL-fah-TORE) at the University of Delaware. Her new book is "What Johnny Shouldn't Read," (Yale University Press). In the book she examines several of the more publicized Federal court cases of the 1980s involving attempts to censor schoolbooks, looking at the resulting impact on publishers and on state education officials. She looks at efforts of both the right and the left to influence textbooks. INT. 2: Producer/director, CHARLES BAND. He founded Full Moon Entertainment, which specializes in low-budget B-films of sci-fi, horror and fantasy. The movies go straight to video distribution (through Paramount Home Video). BAND's older films include, "Re-Animator," "Ghoulies" and "Trancers." Some of the videos currently out include, "Demonic Toys," about a Jack-in-the Box, baby doll, and a teddy bear, that come to life and terrorize adults trapped in a warehouse; and "Subspecies," about a demon herd that come to life when a vampire breaks off his fingers at the joint. (YUCK!!) REV. : Rock historian Ed Ward looks back at the Troggs, who celebrate their 26th anniversary in the Rock and Roll business this year.

Interview with Dorothy Allison; Interview with Ruben Martinez; Review of Sonic Youth's album "Dirty." September 9, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501896].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer DOROTHY ALLISON. Her new novel is called "Bastard Out of Carolina." It's about a poor South Carolina family's violence and incest, and it's largely autobiographical. She says that she doesn't like most abuse literature out today because it tends to eroticize abuse. Allison has also written a book of short stories called "Trash" and a book of poems called "The Women Who Hate Me." The idea for her novel came from a poem in "The Women Who Hate Me," called "To The Bone." ("Bastard" is published by Dutton.) INT. 2: Journalist RUBEN MARTINEZ. He was born of Mexican-Salvadoran parents and raised in Los Angeles. He's a staff writer at "LA Weekly," and co-host of a local PBS show in Los Angeles. His new book is called "The Other Side: Fault Lines, Guerrilla Saints adn the True HEart of Rock 'n' Roll." It's a collection of reports, interviews, diary entries, photographs and poems that reflect living on the border between the "first world" of Los Angeles and the "third world" of El Salvador. He speaks with guerrillas in exile, earthquake survivors, war orphans and linerationist priests, which he juxtaposes with accounts of racial tension in the schools, Latino Graffiti art, and hip hop. (Verso Press, 29 w 35th st., NY NY 10001-2291) REV: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new Sonic Youth release, "Dirty" (David Geffen Co.)

Interview with Rosellen Brown; Interview with Trish Riley; Review of the fall television season. September 10, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501895].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ROSELLEN BROWN. The author of the novels "Civil Wars" and "Tender Mercies" has just written a new book, called "Before and After." It's the story of a family's struggle to survive tragedy: their seventeen-year-old son Jacob conceals his darker side from his parents until the chief of police comes looking for Jacob one night in connection with the murder of his pregnant girlfriend. (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) INT. 2: TRISH RILEY, the executive director of the National Academy for State Health Policy, talks about health care reforms in light of the fact that 35 million Americans are lacking health insurance. National health insurance is also a big campaign issue on both sides of the presidential race. Riley's organization works with states on health care policy, and will talk about what various states are doing, and where the balance should be struck between national and state responsibilities. The National Academy for State Health Policy is located in Portland, Maine. REV: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks at the fall season, and says it's not too pretty.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1 & 2: WALTER ISAACSON has just written an extensive (893 page) book about the life of Henry Kissinger. He takes us from Kissinger's boyhood in Germany, his family's flight to America in 1938, through his army career, his years at Harvard as a student and later a professor, and his rise to political power. He joined the Nixon administration in 1969, and came through Watergate mostly unscathed. Kissinger was made Secretary of State in 1973 under Nixon. He won a Nobel Peace Prize for negotiating an end to the Vietnam War. Kissinger is now an international business consultant; he turns 70 next May. Isaacson notes Kissinger's many accomplishments, but also portrays him as secretive, paranoid and duplicitous. Isaacson conducted extensive interviews with Kissinger, Richard Nixon, and Gerald Ford, among many others during the course of writing the book. Walter Isaacson is an Assistant Managing Editor of Time Magazine. REV.: Writer Norman McLean died in 1990, leaving behind an unfinished manuscript of the book Young Men and Fire. It's just been published, and critic Maureen Corrigan has a review.

Interview with Abraham Rodriguez; Review of Betty Carter's albums "It's Not About the Melody" and "I Can't Help It"; Interview with David Clennon. September 14, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502192].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ABRAHAM RODRIGUEZ, JR. He grew up, and still lives in the South Bronx. His first book of short stories, "The Boy Without a Flag: Tales of The South Bronx" chronicles his life, and the people in his neighborhood. He has said, "I write about the rancid underbelly of the American Dream." He's also in a punk rock band called Urgent Fury. (His book is published by Milkweed Editions, P.O. Box 3226, Minneapolis, Minnesota, 55403, (612) 332-6248). REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews 2 new albums by Betty Carter. INT. 2: Actor DAVID CLENNON. Many listeners will know him from his role as Miles Drentell on the ABC TV show "thirtysomething." He received and Emmy nomination for the part. Now he plays a drug dealer in the new Paul Schrader film "Light Sleeper" along with Willem Dafoe Interview with Andrew Bergman; Interview with Anne Soukhanov; Review of Donna Tart's novel "The Secret History." September 15, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502198].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director and writer ANDREW BERGMAN. He's responsible for the new hit "Honeymoon in Vegas," starring Nicholas Cage, James Caan and Sarah Jessica Parker. He also wrote and directed "The Freshman," and has a long list of screenwriting credits, the first of which is the 1974 Mel Brooks movie "Blazing Saddles." He also wrote the screenplays for "Fletch," "The In-Laws," and "Soapdish," to name a few more. INT. 2: ANNE SOUKHANOV, the Executive Editor of the new "American Heritage Dictionary of English Language, Third Edition." She's been a lexicographer and editor of reference books for over 20 years. She's also been writing the "Word Watch" column for "The Atlantic Monthly" magazine. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD "The Secret History," by Donna Tart.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Transplant Surgeon Pioneer THOMAS STARZL. Last June he supervised the surgical team that transplanted a baboon's liver into a 35 year-old man who was dying of hepatitis B, a virus that destroyed his liver. The man has since died. And it has become known that the he was HIV-positive, though he was showing no symptoms of the disease. The case then opened up a controversy, whether it's ethical to "experiment" on a person who is HIV-positive: would the results be compromised because of the patient's health; and is it ethical to take such risks on a person who would take any desperate measure to prolong his/her life? STARZL performed the world's first successful human-liver transplant in 1967. He has a new book, "Memoirs of a Transplant Surgeon: The Puzzle People," (University of Pittsburg Press). INT. 2: Comic SUSIE ESSMAN. She'll alternate with two other hosts, hosting the new HBO comedy show, "One

Interview with Sarah Weddington; Interview with Jim Lehrer; Review of the film "Husbands and Wives." September 17, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502196].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Attorney SARAH WEDDINGTON. She's the lawyer who won Roe V. Wade. She was in her 20's when she argued the landmark abortion case before the Supreme Court. She has a new memoir, "A Question of Choice." (published by Putnam) INT. 2: Journalist JIM LEHRER of "The MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour." He has a new autobiography, "A Bus of My Own." (published by Putnam). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Woody Allen's latest film, "Husbands & Wives."

Interview with Eric Alterman; Interview with Eleanor Antin; Review of the television show "The Kennedys." September 18, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502193].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ERIC ALTERMAN. His new book is about pundits -- the likes of George Will, Sam Donaldson, and William Safire -- who appear on TV and write newspaper columns, affecting political discourse in this country. ALTERMAN's new book is "Sound and Fury: The Washington Punditocracy and the Collapse of American Politics." (HarperCollins) INT. 2: Performance artist and film director ELEANOR ANTIN. She's just made a silent film (yes, it's silent), "The Man Without a World." It's set in the late 1920s, in Poland, in a Jewish "shtetl." The movie appears to be a made by the late exiled Russian film director, Yevgeny Antinov, and it's supposedly just been rediscovered in some forgotten archive. But it's really been filmed by ANTIN. The story about the discovery of the film and the Russian film director is all fiction created by Antin. One reviewer wrote of the film, "A shaggy-shtetl story. . . both funny and
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist BEVERLY LOWRY. She has a new non-fiction book, "Crossed Over: a Murder, a Memoir." (Knopf) LOWRY wrote the book as a way to understand the life and death of her son, Peter, who was killed in a hit-and-run accident. The book interweaves Peter's story with that of Karla Faye Tucker, a woman on death row in Texas. Both had happy early childhoods but became troubled teenagers, rebellious, angry and out of control. INT. 2: Former boxer, novelist, and teacher FLOYD SALAS. He's the author of three critically-acclaimed novels. His new book, "Buffalo Nickel," (Arte Publico) is a novelistic autobiography: SALAS's mother died when he was 11 and he was left in the primary care of his two older brothers, Al, a Golden Gloves champion, and Eddy, a college student. SALAS eventually had to break away from his brother Al, who he idolized, because of Al's involvement in drugs and crime. His brother, Eddy, committed suicide. One reviewer wrote, "Salas's photographic re-creation of the 1950's seedy Oakland bars, lowlifes, and vice squads from which he tried to rescue Al could make a book in itself." REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN on Madonna's new book of photograph's, "Sex."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and former information management editor of "Business Week," JEFFREY ROTHFEDER. (ROTH-FADER) He's just written a new book, "Privacy for Sale: How Computerization Has Made Everyone's Private Life an Open Secret," (Simon & Schuster). Using Dan Quayle and Dan Rather as examples, ROTHFEDER shows how easy it is to get access to a person's personal life -- such as a person's birthdate, unlisted phone number, financial status, health status, even what prescription drugs you take and where you shop -- all through a computer. INT. 2: Writer RICHARD RHODES. He won both the Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Award for his book, "The Making of the Atomic Bomb." His book, "A Hole in the World," an account of his abused childhood, was critically acclaimed. His new book, "Making Love," (Simon & Schuster) is a sort of sexual autobiography, an account of how he used sex to help him work through the trauma of child abuse. The book has been called, "A stunning act of self-revelation, bound to create a stir." (Kirkus Reviews). REV. : TV-critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the season opener of "Murphy Brown," and he previews the premiere of "Mad About You."

Interview with Arlen Specter; Interview with Linda McCartney; Commentary on the Watts Riot and rock music. September 23, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501956].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Incumbent Republican Senator ARLEN SPECTER for the state of Pennsylvania. He's up for re-election this year, running against Lynn Yeakel. Yeakel has never run for office, but says she was inspired to do so after Specter's questioning of Anita Hill during the Clarence Thomas confirmation hearings. This is one of the closely watched senate races this year. INT. 2: Producer AMY SALIT interviews LINDA MCCARTNEY. She has a new book of photographs, "Sixties: Portrait of An Era." (Little, Brown and Company). The book is a collection of photographs taken of rock groups and personalities from the sixties. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD tells us about the infamous "riot" on Sunset Strip in 1966 and the music that "scored" it, more or less.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political writer JOHN JUDIS. He talks about conservative politics in America. He was a radical in the Sixties, and came to appreciate the intellectualism and dialogue in the conservative movement, and he took it on as a journalist. He says that in the Seventies that whatever was happening intellectually in America was happening among conservatives. He'll also talk about the recent factioning in the conservative party, and where President Bush fits in. Judis is the author of a biography of William F.
Buckley, Jr. and is a contributing editor to The New Republic. His latest book is "Grand Illusion: Critics and Champions of the American Century." (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) INT. 2: Actor and director GARY SINISE (suh-NEESE). He was a founding member of Chicago's Steppenwolf Theater Company and is best known for his starring role in the Tony-award winning production of "The Grapes of Wrath." Sinise's latest project is as producer, director, and star of the new film "Of Mice and Men," which also stars John Malkovich. The screenplay, written by Horton Foote, is based on the John Steinbeck novel. REV.: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the grand and sweeping (even epic) new movie "The Last of The Mohicans," starring Daniel Day Lewis.

Interview with Ben Stiller; Interview with Agnieszka Holland; Review of Tom Waits's album "Bone Machine." September 25, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502336].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and filmmaker BEN STILLER. He's the son of the comedy team, Stiller and Meara, (Jerry Stiller & Anne Meara). He's acted in the Lincoln Center's revival of "House of Blue Leaves," and appeared in the films, "Fresh Horses," "Stella," and "Empire of the Son." He's also made a number of comedy shorts that parody movies and television. He's got a new comedy show "The Ben Stiller Show," . The show grew out of his work as a writer-performer with "Saturday Night Live," in 1989. Stiller plays various roles ranging from an obnoxious Hollywood agent to an adult Eddie Munster. It premieres on FOX this weekend. INT. 2: Polish-born film director AGNIESZKA HOLLAND (Ag-kyNES-ka). She directed critically acclaimed and controversial film, "Europa Europa." She also made, "To Kill a Priest," in 1987. Her latest film is "Olivier, Olivier" (pronounced like the actor Laurence Olivier). It's about a woman reunited with her son, six years after he disappeared at the age of nine. Yet it's never clear if this really is him; he doesn't remember anything about his childhood. HOLLAND got the idea for the movie from a newspaper article. REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Tom Wait's new album, "Bone Machine."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1 & 2: Writer George F. Will. A liberal in his early years, Will joined the conservative camp while studying at Oxford. Will is regarded as one the most intellectual conservative thinkers in his field. His syndicated column appears in 470 newspapers nationally. He's been writing regular columns for Newsweek since the '70s, where he's also contributing editor. He won the Pulitzer Prize for Commentary in 1977. His most recent book is "Restoration: Congress, Term Limits and the Return of Deliberative Democracy." (SIMON AND SCHUSTER) REV: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviewed "Now & Now," the new release by the Myra Melford Trio (Enemy label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Army General NORMAN SCHWARZKOPF, otherwise known as "Stormin Norman." He commanded American troops in the Mideast during the Gulf War. He's got a new memoir, "It Doesn't Take a Hero," (Bantam Books) in which he claims "hawks" in the Bush administration pushed to start a land offensive against Iraq -- before troops were ready and before diplomatic efforts were exhausted. INT. 2:Professor of Political Science JOHN SCHWARZ, of the University of Arizona. He's just co-written a new book (with Thomas Volgy), "The Forgotten Americans: Thirty Million Working Poor in the Land of Opportunity." (W.W. Norton & Co.) The authors challenge conventional wisdom: They found that the working poor are neither uneducated nor unskilled, that the working poor encompass all age, ethnic, and racial groups in the U.S.; and that the situation can't necessarily be blamed on declines in domestic manufacturing or decreases in industrial productivity. REV John Leonard reviewed James Ellroy's "White Jazz."
Interview with Walter Kirn; Interview with Iva Pekarkova; Review of the album "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too!"; Review of the song "Read My Lips." September 30, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502458].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer WALTER KIRN. He was raised a Mormon on a Minnesota farm. He has been an editor for "Vanity Fair" and "Spy" magazines. His first collection of stories, "My Hard Bargain," was published two years ago. Kirn now freelances as a media critic for magazines such as Mirabella and GQ. His most recent book, "She Needed Me," is about religion and redemption. (Simon & Schuster) INT. 2: Writer and cabbie IVA PEKARKOVA ("EE-va Peh-kar-KO-vuh"). She emigrated from Czechoslovakia in 1985. She has worked in New York as a cab driver for four years. Her novel "Truck Stop Rainbows: A Road Novel," was published this year. According to Pekarkova, she carried the story in her head while fleeing Czechoslovakia. The novel deals with a rebellious young woman in communist Czechoslovakia who hitchhikes around the country, trying to raise money to buy a wheelchair for her invalid friend. It is translated by David Powelstock. (Farrar, Staus and Giroux). REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new collection of American political campaign songs from past elections. REV. 2: Rock critic reviews the song "Read My Lips," which takes aim at President Bush by sampling several of his contradictory statements.

Interview with Terry Tempest Williams; Interview with Rick Reynolds; Review of the film "Hero." October 1, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502460].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and Naturalist-in Residence at the Utah Museum of Natural History TERRY TEMPEST WILLIAMS. She has been described by "Newsweek" as "one of the West's most striking new writers." Born a Utah Mormon, Williams has written several books about the environment and the West, such as "Coyote's Canyon" and "Earthly Messengers." Her most recent book, "Refuge: An Unnatural History of Family and Place," concerns her mother's unsuccessful battle with cancer and the flooding of the Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge by the rising Great Salt Lake waters. It also asserts that the seven cancer deaths in her family probably resulted from atomic testing in Nevada in the fifties and sixties. (Published by Random House.) INT. 2: Comedian RICK REYNOLDS. After nine years of stand-up comedy, he wrote a one-man show based upon his life, "Only the Truth is Funny." After ten months of sold-out shows, Reynolds was discovered by the agents to Woody Allen and David Letterman. He then moved his show to New York City. He recently published his first book, "Only the Truth is Funny: My Family and How I Survived It," which is based on his show. (Published by Hyperion). REV. Stephen Schiff reviews "Hero."

---

Interview with James Foley; Interview with Jimmy Scott; Review of the television documentary "The Making of Sergeant Pepper." October 2, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502334].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director JAMES FOLEY. Originally planned to attend medical school, but after taking film classes at New York's University's film school, he decided to be a director. Made his directorial debut in 1984 with "Reckless." Starred Aidan Quinn and Daryl. Hannah. He directed and co-wrote the critically acclaimed thriller "After Dark, My Sweet" two years ago. He recently directed the screen adaptation of David Mamet's "Glengarry Glen Ross." The stage version won a 1984 Pulitzer Prize. The movie, starring Al Pacino, Jack Lemmon and Ed Harris, deals with men working in a real estate office who, because of the bad economy, must work in cut-throat conditions in order to survive. (New Line Cinema).

INT. 2: Singer JIMMY SCOTT. He sang with Lionel Hampton's band in the late 1940s early 50s and influenced such singers as Nancy Wilson, Marvin Gaye, and Stevie Wonder. Quincy Jones who played with Hampton's band then said of Scott's singing, "It's a very emotional, soul-penetrating style. Jimmy used to tear my heart out every night." He became best known for his ballads. Despite his talent, SCOTT has had a sporadic singing career marked by long periods of obscurity. Now he's got a new album -- his first in over 15 years, "All the Way," (Sire Records) with Kenny Barron - Piano, Ron Carter - Bass, Grady Tate - Drums, John Pisano - Guitar and David "Fathead" Newman - Sax. (REBROADCAST FROM 07/23/1992)

REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews a new documentary about the Beatles called "The Making of Sergeant Pepper," airing on the Disney Channel. It is part of a month-long salute to the Beatles on the channel.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author MICHAEL DORRIS. Dorris is best known for his books for adults--A Yellow Raft in Blue Water, The Crown of Columbus, which he wrote with his wife, writer Louise Erdrich, and The Broken Cord, about his adopted son's struggle with fetal alcohol syndrome. (The book was made into an ABC TV-movie). His latest book, Morning Girl, is for children. It's about the Taino, the 15th century Native Americans Columbus first encountered (Hyperion). INT. 2: The ACLU announced its Arts Censors of the Year recently. They include acting NEA chair Anne-Imelda Radice, Rev. Donald Wildmon, Oliver North, feminist Catherine MacKinnon, and the Duval County, Florida Public School District. We talk with MARJORIE HEINS, the director of the ACLU's Arts Censorship Project. REV. :Maureen Corrigan who is a lapsed Catholic herself, reviews the book Catholic Girls, a collection of essays by other lapsed Catholics. The writers feelings about being raised Catholic range from nostalgic to angry.

Interview with Gary Paulsen; Commentary on Sleepy John Estes. October 6, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502335].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GARY PAULSEN. He is a prolific writer of children's books. He began writing over twenty years ago, when he was coming to terms with his alcoholism. For many years he and his wife lived in poverty in rural Minnesota. This changed when Paulsen won the Newberry Award for children's fiction in 1985 with "Dogsong." He won two subsequent awards during the next three years. Paulsen's children's books often deal with adventurous youths who triumph over adversity in the wilderness. His most recent adult book is "Clabbered Dirt, Sweet Grass." It celebrates American farm life and recounts the activities of a multigenerational farm family. (Harcourt, Brace and Janovich) INT. 2: Gary Paulsen part 2 REV.: Our rock historian Ed Ward has a profile of bluesman Sleepy John Estes. He was one of the trailblazers whose songs were so memorable they have become American classics. And Ed says, unlike so many stories of the blues, Estes' story has a happy ending.
Interview with Mark Perry; Interview with Derrick Bell; Review of the film "1492 October 7, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502104].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MARK PERRY. Has written for The Washington Post, Newsday, The Nation and many other publications. Author of "Four Stars: The Joint Chiefs of Staff." Most recent book is "Eclipse: The Last Days of the C.I.A. PERRY examines the power struggle that took place after William Casey died. He also dispells the notion that the C.I.A. is still a highly effective and powerful organization. (William Morrow and Co.) INT. 2: Professor and writer DERRICK BELL. He made the headlines in 1990 when he refused to return to Harvard Law School after an extended leave of absence. Bell, then the only tenured African American law professor, cited "reasons of conscious" for leaving. He was protesting the school's decision not to hire a woman of color. In 1959 he quit his job in the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice rather than give up his membership in the NAACP. In 1977 Bell wrote "And We are Not Saved," a collection of parables about race and class. His most recent book is "Faces At The Bottom of the Well: The Permanence of Racism." It combines fact and fiction to tell about the obstacles blacks continue to face. (HarpersCollins) REV.: Christopher Columbus the movie has already flopped, even with Marlon Brando in it. But just in time for Columbus Day, Paramount is releasing 1492: Conquest of Paradise, starring Gerard Depardieu as the legendary navigator and directed by Ridley Scott, who made Alien, Blade Runner, and Thelma and Louise. Film critic Stephen Schiff has this review.

Interview with Germaine Greer; Interview with James Crawford; Review of Cole Porter's CD box set "You're the Top." October 8, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502106].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Feminist Writer GERMAINE GREER. She came into the spotlight in 1970 with her controversial book, "The Female Eunuch." Since then GREER has written many books dealing with women's issues and is widely thought of as one of the forebears of the Women's Movement. GREER has written a new book, "The Change: Women, Aging and the Menopause," which challenges accepted beliefs about female aging and menopause. INT. 2: Author JAMES CRAWFORD. Has been the editor for "Education Week," and has spent many years investigating the "English Only" movement. His most recent book is "Hold Your Tongue: Bilingualism and the Politics of English Only." It explores the underlying racism of an English Language Amendment. (Addison-Wesley) He has also edited "Language Loyalties," a comprehensive collection of the major issues and policies surrounding the bilingualism debate. (University of Chicago Press) REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a box set of Cole Porter recordings.

Interview with Sheila Kuehl; Interview with Judy Niemack; Review of the television show "Great Performances." October 9, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502179].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: SHEILA KUEHL is now a women's rights laywer. But most people will remember her as Zelda Gilroy on the old T-V show "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis." Her T-V career ended when rumors began to circulate that she was a lesbian -- and those rumors were true. Now Kuehl is one of the most vocal lesbian activists in Los Angeles. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 3/26/92) INT. 2: JUDY NIEMACK started out singing opera, but she switched to jazz, and a whole other set of style rules. The Village Voice called the singing on "Heart's Desire," her new album, "Barbra Streisand without the hysterics....She combines the best of both worlds; a cabaret singer's respect for melody as written and a jazz singer's eagerness to have a go at it." (Stash Records). (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/8/92). REV. : T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Great Performances" on the twentieth anniversary of P.B.S.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Family Historian STEPHANIE COONTZ. A faculty member at The Evergreen State College. In 1989 she won the Washington Governor's Writers Award for her book "The Social Origins of Private Life: A History of American Families." She has written numerous articles on family issues in The Wall Street Journal, the New York Times, and Harpers among others. COONTZ has just written another book, "The Way We Never Were: American Families and the Nostalgia Trap." She uses historical evidence to dismantle the myths about so-called "family values." She says that many of the family problems prevalent today have always been around. She says that today the survival of the family depends on realistically recognizing and dealing with diversity. (Basic Books) INT. 2: Political Science professor and author RON WALTERS. He has advised the Congressional Black Caucus and been a consultant to Jesse Jackson's presidential campaigns. WALTERS is a political science professor Howard University, where he is also the department chair. He is the author of "Black Presidential politics in America," offers history of black politics and a strategic approach for blacks breaking into presidential politics. (State University of New York Press). REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Doris Lessing's new book, "African Laughter."

Interview with Douglas Frantz; Interview with Jon Scieszka and Lane Smith; Commentary on Scepter Records. October 13, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502487].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Investigative reporter DOUGLAS FRANTZ for the Los Angeles Times. He and reporter Mark Waas first broke the story that the Bush Administration continued to guarantee loans and to export military equipment to Iraq in late 1989 even though intelligence reports warned that Baghdad was developing a nuclear weapon and ballistic missles. Currently the Senate Intelligence Committee is investigating an alleged cover-up by the C.I.A. and the Justice Department related to activities of an Italian bank branch in Atlanta, which loaned Iraq five billion dollars to Hussein in the years before the war, some of which was used to finance Iraq's arms program. The committee contends that the agencies withheld information to Atlanta prosecutors and the Federal judge in the bank case. The documents could prove the complicity of the bank's headquarters in Rome. Terry will talk with FRANTZ about the latest developments. INT. 2: Children's book author JON SCIESZKA (she^ ska--rhymes with "fresca"). SCIESZKA has a couple of guiding principles to writing: never underestimate the intelligence of your audience, and have fun and tell lots of bad jokes as often as possible. His first children's book was "The True Story of the Three Little Pigs," a retelling of the three little pigs story told from the perspective of the big bad wolf, (who, it turns out, was misunderstood). He and illustrator LANE SMITH have created several books under their Time Warp Trio editions. The latest is "The Good, The Bad, and the Goofy," a cowboys-and Indians story written for boys, and "The Stinky Cheeseman and Other Fairly Stupid Tales," written for "hardcore silly kids." (Viking Press). We also talk with the illustrator of Scieska's books, Lane Smith. REV. Rock and roll historian ED WARD gives us the first part of a two part history of Scepter Records, who discovered and produced the Shirelles and Dionne Warwick, and helped bring black music into the mainstream.

---

Interview with Martin Tolchin; Interview with Rocky Carrol; Commentary on Scepter Records.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times correspondent MARTIN TOLCHIN. He has written several books with his wife, Susan Tolchin, including, "Dismantling America," and "Buying Into America." Their most recent book is "Selling Our Security." It examines the ways U.S. political leaders, especially during the Reagan-Bush years, have pursued laissez-faire policies to the extent that most of America's valuable technological secrets have been sold to other countries. INT. 2: Actor ROCKY CARROL. He plays Joey on the live t.v. sit-com "Roc," on Fox. "Roc," which deals with the lives of working-class blacks, is the first live sit-com since the 1950s. CARROL worked with the First Shakespeare Co. in New York for two years, presenting multicultural versions of Shakespeare's classics for the New York Public Schools. He also appeared in "The Piano Lesson" on Broadway with his future "Roc" co-stars Charles Dutton and Carl Gorden. It was Dutton who convinced CARROL to audition for "Roc." REV. Rock historian ED WARD talks about the Scepter record label. This segment is part 2, part 1 was aired yesterday, October 13.

---

Interview with Tom Blanton; Review of the television show "Gilligan's Island."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Head of the National Security Archive TOM BLANTON. He helped research information for "The Cuban Missile Crisis," scheduled for release today, the thirtieth anniversary of the crisis. In the book, newly released documents and top-secret files reveal how close the U.S. came to a nuclear entanglement. In 1987, the National Security Archive filed suit against the U.S. government for failing to produce the documents they requested. Since then there has been more compliance with the archive, especially since the Russian government told the U.S. to go ahead and release the Kennedy-Krushchev letters. (The New Press) INT. 2: WE CONTINUE OUR INTERVIEW WITH TOM BLANTON (INTERVIEW ONE). REV. 1: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the original pilot for "Gilligan's Island."

Interview with Martin Delaney; Interview with Suzanne Goldberg and Mark Huvard. October 16, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502356].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:AIDS activist MARTIN DELANEY. In 1980 he was suffering from life-threatening Hepatitis. He treated it with drugs then unapproved in the U.S. In 1985 DELANEY, a former Jesuit seminarian, founded Project Inform--which gathers information and speeds access to AIDS treatments. DELANEY is involved in both worlds of the AIDS epidemic. He works with the a growing underground movement in California. He has helped to bring thousands of Compound Q, an unapproved AIDS drug, out of China. DELANEY also works closely with Washington officials, especially in the FDA. DELANEY's life and work are discussed extensively in Jonathon Kwitny's controversial new book, "Acceptable Risks." (Poseidon Press)

INT. 2:Lawyers SUZANNE GOLDBERG and MARK HUVARD (pronounced HUE-vahrd). Both are involved with a lawsuit against the U.S. Federal Courts. A recent federal court ruling allows employers to slash insurance coverage for AIDS victims. (Cited in the ruling was a 1974 law, which allowed companies to cut coverage for patients with diseases like cancer and Alzheimer's) Representatives of the American Medical Association, the Association of Retired Persons, and the American Bar Association have all written letters to the U.S. Solicitor General, stating that the ruling was wrong. The original plaintiff in the case has already died from AIDS complications.

Interview with Noah Adams; Review of Suzanne Vega's album "99.9 F." October 19, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502686].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: All Things Considered Host NOAH ADAMS. After dropping out of college he began his radio career as a DJ. He was also a car salesman. ADAMS came to National Public Radio over twenty years ago as a writer and tape editor; he started working for "All Things Considered" soon after he was hired. ADAMS has written a new book, "Noah Adams on All Things Considered." It discusses his involvement with ATC and how the show and his journalistic style have changed. INT. 2: NOAH ADAMS part 2.
REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER. He reviews Suzanne Vega's new album "99.9 F," which he says is a "welcome departure" for Vega. (A & M records)

Interview with Jerry Knight; Interview with Brandon Tartikoff; Review of the television show "Frontline." October 20, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502103].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Journalist JERRY KNIGHT. He's been covering the Savings & Loan Crisis for the Washington Post. He'll talk about the predicted bank closings that will probably occur in early 1993 triggered by a federal law that goes into effect December 19. The law requires that federal regulators take over failing banks when their financial problems "reach the point of no return." There are 1,000 banks on the FDIC's "problem bank list." The closings have hardly been mentioned in the presidential campaign, though the next president will have to deal with the mess. The issue was brought up in last night's presidential debate.
INT. 2: Former president of NBC Entertainment BRANDON TARTIKOFF. He was the youngest person to hold that position (he was 31 when he took it in 1980). While there he was responsible for such hit series as "The Cosby Show," "Cheer," "Miami Vice," and "Hill Street Blues." Now TARTIKOFF is chairman at Paramount Pictures. He has a new book about his NBC years, "The Last Great Ride." (Turtle Bay Books). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Choice '92" a look at the presidential candidates which airs as a part of PBS's "Frontline" series tomorrow night.

Interview with Alan Dershowitz; Interview with Doris Lessing; Review of Ike Quebec's album "The Art of Ike Quebec." October 21, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501377].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Lawyer ALAN DERSHOWITZ. He is one of America's most famous attorneys. He teaches at Harvard, where he became the youngest member of the faculty at 25. He has defended Claus Von Bulow, Mike Tyson, Leona Helmsely, and many other well-known figures. DERSHOWITZ has a reputation for being controversial and out-spoken. He refuses to align himself on the right or the left, but considers himself a Civil Libertarian. DERSHOWITZ has written a new book, "Contrary to Popular Opinion," which examines the most difficult legal, political and moral problems of our era. He also looks at the highly publicized Rodney King verdict and the Anita Hill/Clarence Thomas hearings. (Pharos Books).

INT. 2:British Writer DORIS LESSING. She is the author of more than thirty books including, "The Fifth Child," and "The Golden Notebook." Her first novel, published in 1950, was "The Grass is Singing." LESSING grew up in Southern Rhodesia (now Zimbabwe), but was exiled for twenty-five years when she began to speak out against the oppressive white-ruled government. LESSING has just written a new book, "African Laughter," a personal story about the trips she took to Zimbabwe between 1982 and 1992.

REV. :Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Art of Ike Quebec," a new reissue by the late tenor saxophonist Ike Quebec. (Blue Note).

Interview with Anna Quindlen; Interview with Al Young; Review of Patricia Highsmith's novel "Ripley Under Water." October 22, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501378].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Columnist ANNA QUINDLEN. She has been a reporter since the age of 18 and is a syndicated Op-Ed columnist for the New York Times. Some of her recent columns have dealt with the double standards applied to the wives of republican and democratic presidential candidates, the rumor alleging that Clinton tried to renounce his citizenship, and the expectations that could accompany a new president.

INT. 2:Writer AL YOUNG. He has been accused of not truly reflecting the black experience in his writing because he is not militant. In much of his work, however, YOUNG employs humor as means of protest. His characters have been parodies of white stereotypes of black people. His poetry has appeared in "Harper's," The New York Times, "Rolling Stone," and many other publications. He is most noted for his poetry and novels, but has also written musical memoirs and screenplays. His new book is "Heaven: Collected Poems 1956-1990." YOUNG currently is a visiting professor at The University of Michigan. (Creative Arts Book Company) REV. : Critic Maureen Corrigan has will review "Ripley under Water," a new crime novel by Patricia Highsmith.
Interview with William Safire; Review of the film "Night and the City." October 23, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502172].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Conservative columnist WILLIAM SAFIRE. He writes a Pulitzer Prize winning op-ed column for The New York Times and the "On Language" column in the New York Times magazine. He has written a new book, "The First Dissident," that explores Job's position in modern politics. Before writing columns, SAFIRE worked on the Eisenhower campaign and wrote speeches for the Nixon administration. In his recent column he has investigated "Iraq-gate" and has written about why for the first time he may not vote Republican this fall. INT. 2: Continuation of our interview with WILLIAM SAFIRE. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie "Night and the City," starring Robert DeNiro.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JACK BEATTY. He has written a biography of four-time Boston Mayor James Michael Curley, "The Rascal King." Curley, an Irish-Catholic, is a Massachusetts legend, having run in 32 elections, serving as governor, congressman, and mayor. While Curley could be dismissed as an old-fashioned machine politician, BEATTY portrays him as a forerunner of the modern entrepreneurial politician. BEATTY is a senior editor at "The Atlantic." (Addison-Wesley) REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Us" the new release by Peter Gabriel. INT. 2: Actor STEVE BUSCEMI. His list of movie credits include "Parting Glances," "Slaves of New York," "Mystery Train," and "Reservoir Dogs." BUSCEMI'S characters are often nerdy... director Jim Jarmusch once said he looked like a young Don Knotts. His newest movie is "In The Soup," (Trinton Pictures), a low budget film directed Alexandre Rockwell. REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new edition of "Our Bodies, Ourselves."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT KRULWICH is hosting a new "Frontline" documentary on PBS, "The Best Campaign Money Can Buy," about the funds that go into the presidential campaign. In particular, the documentary looks at contributors that give "soft money," -- money given to a party rather than to a candidate. Top contributors give millions of dollars. This kind of contributing bypasses the law which limits individual donations to presidential candidates to $1,000. Both the Republicans and the Democrats have formed groups of donors who contribute $100,000 or more and they can help select the party's nominee long before the primaries or the conventions. (It airs tonight on PBS). INT. 2: Painter LARRY RIVERS. He has a new autobiography, "What Did I Do?" (HarperCollins Publishers). RIVERS is known by art historians as "a great figurative painter," "the father of Pop Art," and is recognized as the first American artist to use vulgar objects in an artistic context. The book centers on his experiences as part of a loosely knit association of poets and painters who were young, poor and ambitious in New York in the 50's. RIVERS also was a jazz saxophonist, he appeared on camera and stage, did heavy drugs, and had an unashamed interest in sexuality that went from unconventional entanglements with both sexes to conventional participation in marriage and family life -- all of which he details in his new book. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of Mahler's "Adagietto."

Interview with Armistead Maupin and Terry Anderson; Interview with John Frohnmayer. October 28, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502175].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ARMISTEAD MAUPIN (MOP-in). He served in Vietnam and worked for Jesse Helms in his pre-senate days, but when MAUPIN moved to San Francisco, he came out of the closet. He was a journalist for several years before writing his "Tales of the City" series. The tales blend gay and straight storylines, and in the series' last installment, "Sure of You," MAUPIN deals with the impact of AIDS. His latest novel,"Maybe the Moon," expounds upon Hollywood's hypocrisy, as seen through the eyes of 31" tall actress. (HarperCollins). His partner, TERRY ANDERSON, joins the conversation. INT. 2:Former head of the National Endowment for the Arts, JOHN FROHNMAYER. A Bush appointee, FROHN Mayer ran the NEA from 1989 until last May, when Sam Skinner asked him to resign. FROHN Mayer was routinely attacked by the religious right for giving grants to what it deemed "obscene" art. He also angered many who thought he didn't question the administration's pandering to the right enough. Since his resignation, FROHN Mayer has changed many of his views concerning the NEA.

---

Interview with John Updike; Interview with Lyn Nofziger; Commentary on television's role in the Presidential election. October 29, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502173].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JOHN UP DIKE. His new book is 'Memories of the Ford Administration,' which introduces a new hero, Alf Clayton..... a history professor who is invited to write his memoirs of working for Gerald Ford. But the memoirs turn out to be more a chronicle of the Clayton's sex life during the sexually liberal 70's. Updike is best known for his quartet of books chronicling the life of "Rabbit" Angstrom. He began his writing career at "The New Yorker," where he is still a contributor. ('Memories of the Ford Administration' is published by Alfred A. Knopf) INT. 2: LYN NOFZIGER was an official in the Nixon administration and was Reagan's press secretary and later his aide in the White House, where he was known as a "hatchet-man". In his memoir, "Nofziger: A Reagan Insider and Spokesman in His Own Words," he talks about his "goo-goo" [good government] philosophy and explains why, of all modern presidents, Reagan was the best manager. (Regnery Gateway). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI considers the strange trends in this year's election, among which involves all three major candidates making an unprecedented number of television appearances.

---

Interview with Al Franken; Review of the film "Zebrahead"; Interview with Al Franken; Interview with Wayne Stayskal. October 30, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501375].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PART 1 of two-part interview with Comedian AL FRANKEN: He plays the sensitive twelve-stepper Stuart Smalley on "Daily Affirmations with Stuart Smalley" on Saturday Night Live which was based on Franken's own experience with a 12-step group. He is a co-producer of SNL and works on the cable network "Comedy Central," where he anchored the Democratic and Republican Conventions for "Indecision '92." He has a new book, (written by Stuart Smalley) is "I'm Good Enough, I'm Smart Enough, and Doggone It, People Like Me." (Dell Trade Paperback). INT. 2: Part Two of AL FRANKEN interview. He talks about his work with Saturday Night Live, and his work with the Comedy Channel, parodying the presidential campaign. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Zebrahead." INT. 3: Conservative cartoonist WAYNE STAYSKAL: His recent cartoons have focused on the Democrats, particularly Clinton. His syndicated cartoon appears weekly in the Tampa Tribune.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Consumer advocate RALPH NADER and conservative PAUL WEYRICH tell how "legalized bribery" has corrupted our government. The unlikely pair has written an introduction in Philip Stern's new book, "Still The Best Congress Money Can Buy." They say that consumer and safety-oriented legislation gets trampled in Congress, because Representatives and Senators pander to everyone but their constituents in order to raise PAC [Political Action Committee] money! ("Still The Best Congress Money Can Buy" is published by Regnery Gateway) INT. 2: Senior analyst and Latin American specialist at the National Security Archive PETER KORNBLUH. He helped edit "The Cuban Missile Crisis, 1962," which just came out. He is also a professor of International and Public Affairs at Columbia University. He talks with Marty about the Iran-Contra scandal, particularly about the implications of the publicized 1986 note written by then-Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger. The note implies that Bush knew about the affair, though he has denied this. REV. : John Leonard reviews "Shadows of Forgotten Ancestors," the new book by Carl Sagan and his wife Ann Druyan.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From Newsweek magazine, political reporter and media columnist JONATHAN ALTER. Marty talks with ALTER from Little Rock, Arkansas, about how the media did on the presidential campaign trail. INT. 2: From the Wall Street Journal, ERIK LARSON. He'll talk with Marty about the problems with polls. He says things like a questioner's personality, the questions asked, and the "passion index," can all affect poll results. LARSON has a new book, "The Naked Consumer" about how direct marketing, supermarket scanners and poll-taking have invaded our privacy. (published by Henry Holt). REV. :British journalist XAN (pronounced ZAN) SMILEY. He's been covering the election process -- beginning with the primaries -- for the Sunday Telegraph. He gives his impressions of the campaign and makes comparisons between American and British styles of politics. (Believe it or not, he says Americans are much more "decorous and dignified.") SMILEY is soon to be political editor for the Economist magazine.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAMES FALLOWS Washington editor for the Atlantic and former speech writer in the Carter administration. He has spent considerable time in the Pacific Rim countries and is writing a book about Japanese culture. Today he'll talk with Terry about the implications of last night's presidential election. INT. 2: Harvard political economist ROBERT REICH. He advised his good friend President-elect Bill Clinton on economic issues. He talks about the economic issues facing Clinton. REV. New York Times op-ed and language columnist WILLIAM SAFIRE. He will talk about what last night's election means to the Republican party and administration, and reveals who he voted for!
Interview with Neil Young; Interview with Paul Reiser; Review of Tony Bennett's album "Perfectly Frank." November 5, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501871].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock musician NEIL YOUNG. In 66' he joined L.A. rock band Buffalo Springfield; they split up 3 albums later due to inter-band fighting and their lack of commercial success. YOUNG then meandered from band to band, including "Crosby, Stills, Nash, and Young," while doing a lot of solo work as well. He's been called the "Godfather of Grunge," and "The king of punk." His new album is "Harvest Moon," intended to be a sequel to his 1972 album "Harvest." (Time Warner) INT. 2: Comedian PAUL REISER. He has been a stand-up comedian for years and was in the sit-com "My Two Dads." He's the creator and star of a new show, "Mad About You," a Seinfeldesque comedy on NBC. REV. : Music critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews Tony Bennett's new release, "Perfectly Frank." (Columbia Records)

Interview with Mark Miller; Interview with Tom DeFrank and Andrew Murr; Review of the exhibit "Personal Legacy November 6, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501420].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Newsweek reporter MARK MILLER talks about the Clinton campaign. INT. 2: Senior White House correspondent for Newsweek, TOM DEFRANK He was given inside access to the Bush campaign. And ANDREW MURR talks about the Perot campaign. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews an exhibition that opened last week in Washington, D.C., which displays objects left at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial over the years.

Interview with Ursula Seinege; Interview with James Gleick; Tribute to Ralph Manheim. November 9, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501416].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Surgeon URSULA SEINEGE. When she started her surgical residency, few women were involved and not much about breast cancer was known. In the early 80s more choices opened up with the modified radical mastectomy. A surgeon with a special interest in breast disease, SEINEGE started a support group for breast cancer patients, but was often considered an outsider because she didn't understand the emotions involved with the disease. Two and a half years ago, SEINEGE was diagnosed with breast cancer. Having the disease changed SEINEGE'S role in her support group because she was no longer an outsider. INT. 2: Writer JAMES GLEICK. He is a former New York Times science reporter and author of the best seller "Chaos." He talks to Terry about concepts of chaos. He also discusses his new book, "Genius: The Life and Science of Richard Feynman. After Einstein, Feynman is considered to be the father of modern physics. (Pantheon Books) REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD considers the vital role book translators have on literature on the occasion of the death of translator Ralph Manheim.

Interview with Mitchell Froom; Interview with David Byrne; Review of the film "Reservoir Dogs."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record Producer MITCHELL FROOM (pronounced like "Comb). He's produced albums by Elvis Costello ("Mighty Like a Rose"), Los Lobos, Richard Thompson, and Suzanne Vega. INT. 2: Co-founder of the band, "Talking Heads," DAVID BYRNE. Since the group disbanded, BYRNE has made several solo albums and collaborated with other performers like, Brian Eno and Phillip Glass. He also scored the films, "Something Wild," and "Married to the Mob," and won an Academy Award and an Emmy for co-scoring, "The Last Emperor." In 1989 he released an album, "Rei Momo," of original songs combining Latin and pop styles. His latest album "Uh-Oh," (Luaka Bop label) encompasses all the styles that BYRNE has worked in his career. BYRNE's also got a new book of photography, "American Originals." (Thunder's Mouth Press). REBROADCAST. Originally aired 8/27/92. REV. :Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie "Reservoir Dogs."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lt. Gen. HAROLD MOORE and U.S. News and World Report Senior Writer JOSEPH GALLOWAY. On November 14, 1965 they were together in the at the site one of the first and bloodiest major land battle of the Vietnam War, Ia Drang. MOORE was in command of the 1st battalion of the 7th Cavalry, and GALLOWAY, then a UPI reporter, accompanied them. MOORE and GALLOWAY have written a book about their experiences in the Ia Drang valley, "We Were Soldiers Once...And Young." (Random House). INT. 2: Editor JUSTIN KAPLAN. He edited the new edition of Bartlett's book of quotations. Formerly in the publishing business, KAPLAN has written biographies of Walt Whitman, and Mark Twain, two of the most often quoted men in American history. His biography, "Mr. Clemens and Mark Twain" won a Pulitzer Prize in 1967. Bartlett's last edition was published in 1980. (Little, Brown and Co.) REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new reissue of recordings by the late contralto Kathleen Ferrier (on the London label).

Interview with Vernel Bagneris and Morten Gunnar Larsen; Interview with Catherine O'Hara; Review of the television show "The Jacksons November 12, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884213].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: STEREO concert with actor and playwright VERNEL BAGNERIS (ver-NEL BAHN-er-eese) and pianist MORTEN GUNNAR LARSEN. They'll perform from their show, "Jelly Roll Morton: A Memorial," with music written by the Morton, and a script taken from Library of Congress tapes of Morton from 1938. The New Yorker calls it, "an experimental study, done within a traditional Broadway-musical framework, of the life and death of a black misanthrope. . . a psychomusical." BAGNERIS also wrote, directed, and performed in the 1979 hit, "One Mo'Time," and it's sequel, "Further Mo'." He also wrote the musical fable "Staggerlee," with Allen Toussaint. LARSON is from Norway and is considered one of the world's finest ragtime pianists. INT. 2: Actress CATHERINE O'HARA. She's one of the co-founders of the comedy series, "SCTV," and started her acting career with Toronto's Second City comedy troupe. She's best known for her role as the distraught mom in "Home Alone." There's now a sequel, "Home
"Cop Rock." He also composed music for the movies "Parenthood," and "Avalon." He is currently working on a musical composition of "Faust." INT. 2: Chairman of The Walt Disney Studios JEFFREY KATZENBERG. He came to Disney after serving as president of production for Paramount Pictures. Since KATZENBERG has been at Disney, the studio has produced hits such as "Down and Out in Beverly Hills," "Dick Tracy," and "Pretty Woman." Disney's latest release is "Aladdin," an animated fantasy starring Robin Williams that promises to follow the box-office success of "The Little Mermaid" and "Beauty and the Beast." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Madonna's new release, "Erotica," and Prince's, which is untitled. Both are on Warner Brothers

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor MICHAEL CAINE. He's made over 70 films, from Alfie to Sleuth to Dirty Rotten Scoundrels to Hannah and Her Sisters. Caine has just come out with an autobiography, "What's It All About?" (Random House), and will be appearing in the upcoming Muppet's Christmas movie. INT. 2: Part 2 of the interview with MICHAEL CAINE. REV.: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new novel "The Call of the Toad" by German writer Gunter Grass. Grass is best known for his novel "The Tin Drum."

---

Interview with Sashi Tharoor; Review of Remmy Ongala's album "Mambo"; Interview with John Preston; Review of the film "Malcolm X." November 18, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501872].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Indian novelist SHASHI THAROOR. (thah ROAR) He also works at the United Nations, and is currently heading up the U.N. peacekeeping forces in the former Yugoslavia. His newest novel, "Show Business" is about the Indian film industry. (Arcade) REV. 1: World music critic MILO MILES reviews "Mambo," by Remmy Ongala. INT. 2: Writer JOHN PRESTON. He is quickly emerging as a voice for gay writing...his work is being archived in many universities for new gay and lesbian studies departments. He has edited many anthologies including "Hometowns" and "Safe Sex." He is a former Interview with Clive Barker; Interview with Rita Dove; Review of the made-for-TV movie "Stalin." November 19, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502242].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fantasy and horror writer CLIVE BARKER. He has written many short stories and novels, including "Weaveworld,," "Imajica," and "Hellbound Heart." BARKER also writes, directs and produces movies; he is the creator of the "Hellraiser" trilogy. His newest book "The Thief of Always: A Fable," is aimed at children. (Harper Collins). INT. 2: Writer RITA DOVE. She is a Pulitzer Prize winning poet; her collections include, "Grace Notes," "Thomas and Buela," and "Museum," among others. She has just written her first novel, "Through the Ivory Gate." It's about a woman who returns to her hometown, only to unleash a flood of memories. DOVE teaches English at the University of Virginia. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the HBO telemovie "Stalin."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter PETE EARLEY. Earley spent two years observing life at the federal penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kansas. He was given complete access to the prisoners, guards, staff, and the warden. He tells about life in Leavenworth in his book, "The Hot House." (published by Bantam) .(REBROADCAST. Originally aired 2/17/92) INT. 2: Reporter GEORGE ANASTASIA. He is a reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer. His beat is the Mafia; most recently he's been covering the .Robert Simone trial where the prosecution rested its case today. Simone was attorney for Philadelphia mob boss Nicky Scarfo and has been accused of crime activity, of attempted extortion and of participating in discussions of murder. Simone was turned in by a government informant. ANASTASIA says he's seeing a new generation of mobsters -- the grandchildren and great-grandchildren of older mafia members who don't have the same sense of family loyalty and who crack under government pressure faster--often turning informant. REV. :Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Free Speech for Me--But Not for Thee," by Nat Hentoff (Harper Collins).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet ALICIA PARTNOY. She was among the 30,000 Argentines who disappeared during military rule in the mid 70s. She was imprisoned for almost three years, released in 1979, and forced to leave the country. While in prison her poetry was smuggled out by human rights groups. The U.S. granted PARTNOY refugee status. She is the author of 'The Little School," and edited "You Can't Drown The Fire," an anthology of exiled Latin American women's writings. Her new collection is "Revenge of the Apple." (Cleis press). PARTNOY is also on the board of Amnesty International. INT. 2: Anthropologist and Documentary film maker DAVID FEINGOLD. He talks about the Peruvian Shining Path guerrillas, their connection to the drug trade, and their impact on the elections in Peru (held over the weekend). His new film, "Washington/Peru: We ain't Winning," is about U.S. efforts to stop the drug flow from Peru. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new biography of Mary McCarthy, "Writing Dangerously," by Carol Brightman.

Interview with Gerald Early; Review of Anthony Davis's album "X"; Interview with Anthony Davis. November 24, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502037].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and professor, GERALD EARLY. He is director of African Afro-American Studies at Washington University in St. Louis. He'll talk with Terry about why he used to like Malcolm X, and why he no longer does. His article about it appears in December's issue of Harper's Magazine, "Their Malcolm, My Problem: On the abuses of Afrocentrism and black anger." He is editor of "Lure and Loathing," a collection of essays on ethnicity and race in America to be published in January (Viking Penguin).
REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "X" the opera by composer Anthony Davis, about the life and times of Malcom X. It's just come out on CD. The opera is Wagnerian in scale and style, but it also has allusions to the music of Duke Ellington, Charles Mingus, Fats Waller, Cab Calloway, and John Coltrane, and others INT. 2: Composer ANTHONY DAVIS. His opera "X" based on the life of Malcom X has just come out on CD. It premiered in 1986. Terry talks with DAVIS about what Malcolm X meant to him and why he decided to compose an opera on his life. DAVIS has received international recognition for his compositions as well as his performances as a solo pianist and the leader of the ensemble Episteme. His works have been performed by the New York Philharmonic, San Francisco Symphony, and the Beethovenhaile Orchestra in Bonn. DAVIS was on Fresh Air earlier this year to talk about his recent opera "Tania," based on the life of Patty Hearst.

Interview with Harris Wofford; Interview with Neil Jordan; Review of the television shows "Climax" and "Head of the Family." November 25, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502247].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ARTHEL "DOC" WATSON, one of America's premier acoustic folk guitarists. His flat-pick style of playing traditional folk and bluegrass has made his sound one of the most distinctive of any folk artist. Watson is best known for his part in preserving the traditional ballads and melodies of southern Appalachia. (Rebroadcast, Original date: August 26, 1988) INT. 2: A concert with country musician DOC WATSON. His versatility in many genres is well known, but much of his national exposure came from his performances at bluegrass festivals. His guitar artistry has had a strong impact on bluegrass guitarists. He also plays banjo and French harp. (Rebroadcast, Original date: January 13, 1989) REV.: Music critic KEN TUCKER reviews folk singer Loudon Wainwright's new album, "History." (Charisma records)

Interview with Eli Wallach; Interview with Matt Groening; Interview with Bob Hoskins; Interview with Vernel Bagneris. November 27, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502033].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor ELI WALLACH. In an acting career that has spanned nearly 50 years, Wallach has had numerous roles on Broadway, television, and in movies. He also has roles in the movie "The Two Jakes," and the "Godfather-3." (Rebroadcast. Original date November 13, 1990.) INT. 2: Cartoonist MATT GROENING (pronounced GRAY-ning). He's the creator of the Simpsons, the all-too-real cartoon family featured on Fox. It first aired on Fox January 14th, 1989, and is the first animated prime time series since "The Flintstones." GROENING also draws the comic strip, "Life In Hell," which appears in many alternative and college newspapers. "Life In Hell" stars Binky the sullen, buckeyed rabbit, his girlfriend Sheeba, and his illegitimate son Bongo. The strip inspired Groening's best selling books, "Love In Hell," "Work Is Hell," "School Is Hell," and "Childhood Is Hell." This interview aired the day "The Simpsons" premiered on Fox. (Rebroadcast, Original date January 14, 1989) INT. 3.: Actor BOB HOSKINS. He starred in "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" in which he acted opposite a cartoon bunny. His other roles include the mob chief in "The Long Good Friday," a low-level hoodlum in "Mona Lisa," and the gangster club owner in "The Cotton Club." (Rebroadcast. Original date June 22, 1988 ) REV.: An encore song

Interview with Donna Williams; Interview with Bernard Rimland; Review of Julian Barnes' novel "Porcupine." November 30, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501945].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Autistic author DONNA WILLIAMS. She grew up in an abusive family. They didnt know she was autistic. WILLIAMS has been labeled "deaf," "retarded," and "crazy." She ran away from home at a young age, lived on the streets, and managed to put herself through college. When she was 25, she learned the word "autistic," and set out to articulate to others her experience living in "a world under glass." WILLIAMS is highly gifted and articulate and has just written an autobiography, "Nobody Nowhere." (Times Books). . INT. 2: Psychologist BERNARD RIMLAND. He is the director of the Autism Research Institute and is recognized by many as an authority on the treatment of autism and hyperactivity in children. RIMLAND was also an advisor on autism for the movie, "Rainman." He wrote the forward to Donna Williams' autobiography. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel by Julian Barnes, "Porcupine." It's about deposed communist leaders on trial in Eastern Europe.

Interview with Jonathan Mann; Interview with Larry Kramer. December 1, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502244].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director of Harvard's International AIDS Center JONATHAN MANN. He's also a member of The Global AIDS Policy Coalition which has just come out with it's first annual "AIDS in the World" report. MANN will talk with Terry about the findings in the report. INT. 2: Playwright and activist LARRY KRAMER. He's considered the "voice of articulate rage," railing against the government for its indifference to AIDS. His plays include, "The Normal Heart," and the new play, "The Destiny of Me." KRAMER founded the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power (ACT-UP) and the Gay Men's Health Crisis (GMHC). Terry will talk with him about being a writer, an activist, and a person with HIV. REV.:
(continuation of Kramer interview).

Interview with Abba Eban; Interview with Fred Halliday. December 2, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501946].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Israel's first ambassador to the United Nations and the United States ABBA EBAN. (Pronounced AH-bah EEE-bon). He resigned from both embassies in 1948 and was elected to Israel's Knesset and worked in the Cabinets of many Israeli leaders. EBAN served with the British in the Middle East during W.W.II. He has been president of the Weizmann Institute of Science, a professor at Columbia University and worked with the Center for Advanced Studies at Princeton. His latest book, "Personal Witness," is a political memoir about the past five decades of Israel. (G.P. Putnam's Sons) EBAN is also working on a TV series, "Israel, A Nation is Born." INT. 2: Journalist and professor FRED HALLIDAY. He's a professor of international relations at the London School of Economics, and has written extensively on the cold war and the third world for "The nation," and "The Middle East Report." He also writes for the British newspaper, "The Guardian." He is the author of a book on Soviet-American relations, "From Kabul to Managua." Today he talks to Terry about international hotbeds of chaos... the former Yugoslavia and Somalia. He will also discuss problems in the Middle East. REV.:
(continutuation of HALLIDAY interview).

Interview with Garry Shandling; Interview with John Duigan; Review of the film "Distinguished Gentleman." December 3, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502127].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian and actor GARRY SHANDLING. He stars in HBO's parody of talk-shows, "The Larry Sanders Show." It features SHANDLING as a veteran talk-show host. His guests have included Mimi Rogers and Robin Williams, playing themselves. SHANDLING also starred in "It's Garry Shandling's Show" a few years back. Starting December 7, "The Larry Sanders Show" will compete with late-night talk-shows by presenting a different edition each night for ten days. INT. 2: Australian film director and writer JOHN DUIGAN (pronounced DIE-gehn). His latest movie is "Flirting." It is the second movie in a projected trilogy; the first was "The Year My Voice Broke." "Flirting" is set in a boy's boarding school in Australia. The movie's young hero falls in love with a Ugandan girl from the girls' school across the lake. DUIGAN's films include "Romero," and "The Wide Sargasso Sea." REV: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Distinguished Gentleman," starring Eddie Murphy.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Music Director EDDIE STRAUSS talks about the making of the new Broadway cast album of "Guys and Dolls," which is now being revived on Broadway. STRAUSS has worked as musical director in numerous off-Broadway and Broadway productions, including: "Drood," "Evita," and "Very Good Eddie." INT. 2: Music archivist JOSEPH WEISS. He has archived the music of the late Frank Loesser, who wrote the music for many broadway productions, including "Guys and Dolls." WEISS recently wrote the liner notes on "An Evening With Frank Loesser," which has material sung by Frank and his friends never released before.

Interview with Barry Bluestone and Irving Bluestone; Interview with Wendell Berry; Review of the television show "Buy Me That 3!" December 7, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502594].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political Economist BARRY BLUESTONE and former United Auto Workers (UAW) Vice President and Barry's father, IRVING BLUESTONE. IRVING retired from his position at the UAW and as director of its General Motors department in 1980. BARRY has co-authored two books: "The De- industrialization of America," and "The Great U-Turn," and teaches economics at the University of Massachusetts. IRVING teaches Labor Studies at Wayne State University. The two have written "Negotiating The Future," which offers a new 'Enterprise Compact' for business and labor.(Basic Books) INT. 2: Poet, essayist and fiction writer WENDELL BERRY. His new book is "Fidelity,"(published by Pantheon.) a collection of stories about birth, life, death and nature in a small Kentucky town. BERRY'S work has often documented rural life in his native Kentucky and he's been compared to Thoreau because of his pragmatic outlook on environmental and ecological issues. BERRY has written over twelve dozen books, including: "Nathan Coulter," and "The Memory of Old Jack." REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Buy Me That 3!" a consumer reports special on HBO about food commercials aimed at children.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Associate Director for International Communications for the American Red Cross, ANN STINGLE. She was in north and south Mogadishu in May and also worked in several refugee camps. She's been to crisis areas around the world with the Red Cross but says this has been the hardest to deal with. She'll talk with Terry about what she saw and what it's like to reconcile your own life to the suffering you see. INT. 2: Director of TransAfrica, RANDALL ROBINSON. His group works to influence American policy in Africa. He'll talk with Terry about his group's concerns about American military going into Somolia to insure the delivery of food to the starving. He says there are areas of Somolia that are not as bad off as in the south and we should consider the country as a whole before going in. REV.: Associate Professor of Peace and World Security Studies MICHAEL KLARE at Hampshire College. He's also Defense correspondent for "The Nation." He talks with Terry about the new role of the U.S. military in Somolia, how this is a test-case for the post-cold war era, how we can't go in and use force alone, we have to negotiate and mediate with local leaders.

Interview with Edward Gargan; Interview with Carolyn Becraft; Interview with Jeanne Holm; Obituary for Vincent Gardenia. December 9, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502203].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times reporter EDWARD GARGAN. He's in India covering the erupting conflict between the Muslims and Hindu fundamentalists. Last Sunday a symbol of India's Muslim minority—a 16th century mosque—was destroyed by Hindu zealots. GARGAN, along with other British and American journalists, was brutally beaten during the chaos.. INT. 2: Military policy expert CAROLYN BECRAFT discusses the role of women in the military during the U.S.'s mission in Somalia. INT. 3: Retired Major General JEANNE HOLM was the highest-ranking woman ever to serve in the U.S. armed forces. She worked her way up the to become a major general and in 1976 was appointed Special Assistant for Women to the President. HOLM held this position until the end of the Ford administration. She also served on DACOWITS, the Defense Advisory committee on Women in the Services. HOLM has written a book, "Women in the Military: An Unfinished Revolution." It covers the role of military women in all post-Vietnam operations. She says that though discrimination against women in the military still exists, it's impossible for America to engage in a war without women. (Presidio Press). REV. : Actor VINCENT GARDENIA passed away today. We will re-broadcast excerpts from our interview with him three years ago.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Singer and songwriter LOUDON WAINWRIGHT. He is best known for his 1973 hit "Dead Skunk." He is considered by many to be a satirical and caustic folksinger. His latest album, History, is a highly personal album. In a "A Father And A Son," WAINWRIGHT sings with irony about his son following in his footsteps. In "Hitting You," he speaks frankly about child abuse. (Charisma Records) INT. 2: LOUDON WAINWRIGHT interview and concert continued. (This segment continues after the ATC promo. There's no arts review).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Somali writer NURUDDIN FARAH (New-ru-DEAN FAH-rah). He came from a long line of poets and storytellers and was one of first to use Somalia's written language, which was developed in the 60s. Prior to that, he wrote in English. He's recently had several books published in the United States.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ROSELLEN BROWN. The author of the novels "Civil Wars" and "Tender Mercies" has a new book, called "Before and After." It's the story of a family's struggle to survive tragedy: their seventeen-year-old son Jacob conceals his darker side from his parents until the chief of police comes looking for Jacob one night in connection with the murder of his pregnant girlfriend. (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 9/10/92) INT. 2: Drama critic JOHN LAHR. He's written a number of books and screenplays, including "Notes on a Cowardly Lion:" (about his father, the comedian Bert Lahr), and "Prick up Your Ears; The Biography of Joe Orton (which was then made into a movie). LAHR has been the drama critic for over 25 years for "The Village Voice," and for "Vogue" (of Britian). He's written a new book about Barry Humphries and his creation, the dandy/alter ego Dame Edna Everage. "Dame Edna Everage: and the Rise of Western Civilisation."(Farrar Straus Giroux). One reviewer wrote of it, "Lahr is the most penetratingly perceptive and articulate analyst of theatrical comic performances since Kenneth Tynan departed from this vale of belly laughs." REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews Marguerite Duras' novel "North China Lover," a more explicit version of her earlier novel "The Lover," which has been made into a movie.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Yugoslavian journalist, critic, and feminist SLAVENKA DRAKULIC (SLA-vinka DRA-coo-lich). We last spoke to her in July about living in Zagreb, the capital of Croatia, with the outbreak of war. Recently, DRAKULIC has been researching and writing about Muslim women who have been raped by Serbs for genocidal purposes. Her articles have appeared in the New York Times. Drakulic also wrote a book of essays which came out earlier this year, "How We Survived Communism and Even Laughed." (Norton & Co.) INT. 2: KENNETH ROTH, deputy director of Human Rights Watch and editor of its annual World Report. The report, which was just released, reviews human rights developments in 1992 and examines U.S. human rights policies. REV.: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the novel Regeneration by Pat Barker. It's about a British poet, wounded in World War I, who tries to make his anti-war views known.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GUNTER GRASS (GUHN-ter GRAHSS). His new novel is "The Call of the Toad" (Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich). Some consider GRASS Germany's greatest contemporary writer, both for his fiction, including The Tin Drum, which was later turned into a movie, and for his political essays. Grass argued for years against against German reunification because of the hatred and resentments he was afraid it would unleash. REV.: World music critic MILO MILES reviews a new collection of vintage African rumbas on the French label "African." It's part of their "Merveilles du Passe" series. INT. 2: Author ALJEAN HARMETZ. Her new book, Round Up the Usual Suspects (Hyperion, NY), tells the inside story of the making of the film Casablanca. Harmetz is also the author of The Making of the Wizard of Oz. She was the Hollywood film correspondent for The New York Times for 12 years, and is now a contributing editor for Esquire. REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album of Christmas music by Mel Torme. Torme wrote the classic, The Christmas Song, and he tries to repeat his success with this album.

Interview with Alvin Carter; Interview with Alger Hiss and Tony Hiss; Review of the film "Toys." December 17, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502488].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Counselor ALVIN CARTER. He founded the Al Carter Foundation at Cabrini Green, a housing project in Chicago of 6000 people. The foundation is a hands-on intervention program that reaches youth by going into the streets, and makes referrals to the 13 human service agencies within Cabini Green. CARTER's work with the Foundation and Cabrini Green is all volunteer. He has a day job as a youth city coordinator with the City of Chicago. He started the Foundation in 1977. INT. 2: ALGER HISS & his son TONY HISS. This is the infamous ALGER HISS who was convicted and jailed in 1950 for perjury after denying, under oath, that he had been a Soviet spy. (He spent 44 months in jail). This was during the McCarthy Communist witchhunts and it became the dominant political event of the early cold war. In October, with the opening of Soviet archives, there was found to be no evidence that HISS had ever been an agent of the Kremlin. (Though, there is still argument that the evidence is not conclusive). HISS is 88 years old now, and has maintained his innocence all along. His son, TONY HISS is a staff writer at "The New Yorker," and he wrote about his father's ordeal and exoneration in the November 16 issue of the magazine. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Toys."

Interview with Terry Tempest Williams; Interview with Steve Buscemi; Review of the home video "There'll Always Be Stars in the Sky" and Vijaya Anand's album "Dance, Raja, Dance." December 18, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502101].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and Naturalist-in Residence at the Utah Museum of Natural History TERRY TEMPEST WILLIAMS. She has been described by "Newsweek" as "one of the West's most striking new writers." Born in Utah, Williams is Mormon and has written several books about the environment and the West, such as "Coyote's Canyon" and "Earthly Messengers." Her most recent book, "Refuge: An Unnatural History of Family and Place," concerns her mother's unsuccessful battle with cancer and the flooding of the Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge by the rising Great Salt Lake waters. It also asserts that the seven cancer deaths in her family probably resulted from atomic testing in Nevada in the fifties and sixties. (Published by Random House.) REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/1/92. INT. 2: Actor STEVE BUSCEMI. His list of movie credits include "Parting Glances," "Slaves of New York," "Mystery Train," and "Reservoir Dogs." BUSCEMI'S characters are often nerdy... director Jim Jarmusch once said he looked like a young Don Knotts. His newest movie is "In The Soup," (Trinton Pictures), a low budget film directed Alexandre Rockwell. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/26/92.) REV. : World Music critic MILO MILES reviews some music from India.

---

Interview with Al Mooney and Dot Mooney; Interview with Gilbert Gottfried; Review of Michael Bedard's book "Emily" and the anthology "The Open Door." December 21, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502304].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Doctor Al Mooney, a specialist in Addictive Medicine and his mother Dot Mooney. Doctor Mooney is the author of The Recovery Book, a guide to drug and alcohol recovery and runs the Willingway Hospital,a drug and alcohol rehabilitation center in Statesboro Georgia. Doctor Mooney knows about addiction first hand. His late father, who was also a doctor, became addicted to drugs and alcohol...so did his mother. When the parents kicked their habits, they turned their house into a rehabilitation center for other addicts. Surrounded by recovering drug and alcohol, Mooney's three siblings also became addicts. Al Mooney was the only member of his family to maintain sobriety. INT. 2: Stand up comic and actor GILBERT GOTTFRID. In the new animated movie Aladdin, Gottfried plays an evil parrot. Gottfried's stand-up style can best be described as "cranky" but he delivers it all at a very high decibel. He's also done a stint on Saturday Night Live and was in the movie Beverly Hills Cop II. REV. : Critic Maureen Corrigan recommends two books that you might want to give as holiday presents. First, a children's book called Emily, by Michael Bedard, about a young girl who meets Emily Dickinson. (Doubleday)...and The Open Door, a new paperback collection of writers writing about what made them love to read books when they were young.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BBC correspondent MISHA GLENNY. He's returned to London from covering the war in the former Yugoslavia. Terry will talk with him about the war and the history that led up to it. He's also the author of the book "The Fall of Yugoslavia." (This is Part 1 of the interview. Part 2 is in the second half.)

INT. 2: Continued interview with MISHA GLENNY. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new premo box-set of Billy Holiday recordings, "Complete Billie Holiday on Verve, 1945-1959."

Interview with Erik Larson; Review of the Fellow Travellers' album "Just a Vistor"; Interview with Katha Pollitt; Review of the film "Scent of a Woman." December 23, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502306].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ERIK LARSON. When Larson's son had his first birthday, he received a corporate birthday card. Larson became interested in how companies know the intimate details of our lives. His new book, The Naked Consumer (Henry Holt & Co), is an investigation into direct marketing techniques--into how corporations collect the vast network of data they use to market their products. Larson is a national correspondent for The Wall Street Journal. REV. : World music critic MILO MILES tells us about Fellow Travellers, an English acoustic band who plays reggae as well as country music. INT. 2: Journalist, critic, feminist KATHA POLLITT. She writes frequently for "The Nation." The latest edition of "The Nation" (December 28, 1992) features a cover story by POLITT, "Are Women Morally Superior to Men?" The article grew out of an experience POLITT had. She was asked to sign a women's peace petition on the presumption that women were more naturally opposed to violence, having a special awareness of the precariousness of human life. POLITT refused to sign and began to think about this assumption and the pitfalls for women who believe it. REV: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film Scent of a Woman, starring Al Pacino.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock musician BEN VAUGHN. He's been a cult staple for years in the Philadelphia/New Jersey area, where he's become known for his tongue-in-cheek lyrics and tunes that draw from rock's early influences. He's had several albums; his fourth, "Dressed in Black," was released in 1990. He's got a new one that is basically his own greatest hits. In this first half hour, VAUGHN will play some of his favorite Christmas recordings from a variety of music influences.

Interview with Al Green; Interview with Mike Myers; Commentary on Christmas songs by the Beatles. December 25, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502184].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer AL GREEN. Green's one of the greats of soul and gospel music. He's probably best known for his hit, "Let's Stay Together." He'll talk about his musical career, and about his being "born again" as a Christian. (Rebroadcast. Original date 6/21/91.) INT. 2: Saturday Night Live's MIKE MYERS. Myers is best known for writing and starring in the hit movie Wayne's World with Dana Carvey. The movie, about a heavy metal teen hosting a cable access show from his basement, was originally a sketch on Saturday Night Live. Myers also created the characters of Dieter, host of an avant-garde German tv show, Sprockets, and middle aged man. (Rebroadcast. Original date 5/1/90). REV.: Rock historian ED WARD tells us about a series of Christmas singles the Beatles made in the 60s. If you were a member of their fan club, you got one each year.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Choreographer TWYLA THARP. She's studied ballet with George Balanchine, and modern dance with Martha Graham, Merce Cunningham, and Paul Taylor. In 1965 she formed her own company, Twyla Tharp Dance which she ran for more than 20 years with over 70 works created and performed. She's collaborated with Mikhail Baryshnikov and David Byrne. She has a new autobiography, "Push Comes to Shove." (published by Bantam Books). INT. 2: Associate Director for International Communications for the American Red Cross, ANN STINGLE. Terry talked with her about three weeks ago the day before she was on her way back to Somalia. She was also there last spring before international attention was focused on the starving. She's been to crisis areas around the world with the Red Cross. She's just returned from Somalia; she'll talk with Terry about what she saw there after the arrival of American troops. REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album by Freedy Johnston, a 31 year old rock musician from Kansas. He has a new second album, "Can You Fly." (Bar/none label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DEL MARTIN and PHYLLIS LYON, founders of the Daughters of Bilitis, (Beh-LEE-tis) the first-ever lesbian organization. They started the group in the 1950s way before any gay liberation movement, and during a period of conformity to social norms. Shortly after that, they began publishing, "The Ladder," the first Lesbian magazine. Their landmark book, "Lesbian/Woman," published in 1972 has been updated. The two are also partners in private life, they've been a couple for 39 years. INT. 2: Actor NICHOLAS CAGE. He starred in the David Lynch film "Wild At Heart," He has also starred in the films, "Birdy," "Moonstruck," "Raising Arizona," and "Peggy Sue Got Married." His most recent film was "Honeymoon in Vegas." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/27/90). REV.: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Fletcher's Spain," by British scholar Richard Fletcher. (published by Henry Holt).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry talks with rock critic KEN TUCKER about his list of favorite records from 1992 and we'll hear some of them. INT. 2: Terry talks with film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF about his favorite ten movies from the year. REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reflects on 1992 -- the Year of the Woman -- in a review of Helen Benedict's book "Virgin or Vamp."

Interview with Carl Finch, Jeffrey Barnes, Bubba Hernandez, and Mitch Marine; Interview with Martin Short; Interview with Jay McShann. December 31, 1992. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501408].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A stereo concert with BRAVE COMBO. The quartet founded the "nuclear polka" movement. Their albums include, "Humansville," "Musical Varieties," and their latest, "It's Christmas Man!" (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 5/16/90) INT. 2: Comic Actor MARTIN SHORT. A native of Canada, Short appeared for three years with the Second City company in Toronto. And he was a regular on SCTV. He created such characters as the infamous Ed Grimley, who lived for a while on the Saturday morning children's show, "The Completely Mental Misadventures of Ed Grimley." Short was also a regular on "Saturday Night Live." Since then, he's starred in the feature films "Three Amigos!" "Innerspace," and "Three Fugitives." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/30/89) REV.: Jazz singer and pianist JAY MCSHANN performs a song in-studio.
Interview with Les Paul; Interview with John Cleese and Robin Skynner; Review of New and Used's album "Souvenir." January 1, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501410].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician and inventor LES PAUL. Paul shaped much of the sound of rock and roll. He invented the electric pickup, the device that made the electric guitar possible, he made the first multi-track recorder, and his innovations established the recording studio itself as a legitimate musical instrument. Gibson has sold guitars designed by Les Paul since the early 50s, vintage models are now worth thousands of dollars. Paul also had many top 40 hits in the 50s and his own TV show. There's a boxed set of his music, called "Les Paul: The Legend and the Legacy." (It's on Capitol). REBROADCAST. ORIGINAL DATE 1/17/92).

INT. 2: Actor, writer, and Monthy Python member JOHN CLEESE. When we interviewed Cleese in June 1990, he was in Philadelphia for a family therapy conference. He co-wrote a book with his therapist called, "Families and How To Survive Them." Cleese's last film was A Fish Called Wanda. Since then, he has been making corporate training videos. (REBROADCAST. ORIGINAL DATE 6/22/90). REV.:

Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new album by the New York quintet, New and Used, called "Souvenir." It's on the Knitting Factory Label.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ERIK LARSON. His article "The Story of a Gun," is the cover story on this month's issue of "The Atlantic." It tells the tale of what happens with a gun, beginning with the maker, to the dealer, and to the murderer who uses the gun. LARSON writes that the story of a gun is a defacto conspiracy of gun dealers, gun manufacturers, and federal regulators, "which makes guns all too easy to come by and virtually assures their eventual use in the bedrooms, alleys, and school yards of America." Terry will talk with LARSON about the article. LARSON is a feature writer for "The Wall Street Journal," and author of "The Naked Consumer: How Our Private Lives Become Public Commodities." INT. 2: A pioneer in brain and memory research, DR. DANIEL ALKON. His new book, is "Memory's Voice: Deciphering the Mind-Brain Code," (Harper Collins). In the book, ALKON, uses the example of one disturbed person to look at how the brain remembers. It's a sort of personal memoir and scientific work. ALKON traces the memories of a childhood friend who was abused by her father and emotionally scarred. ALKON suggests that people like his friend, never completely unlearn behavior brought upon by such traumas, that the impressions made on a child's memory will permanently linger in the complexities of the brain. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews, "Balancing Acts," the new book of essays by Edward Hoagland.

