Interview with Chris Hedges; Interview with Johnetta Cole; Review of the television shows "Space Rangers" and "Star Trek January 5, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501808].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times Reporter CHRIS HEDGES. He's based in Cairo, Egypt where he covers the Middle East. Terry will talk with him about the rise of Islamic fundamentalism in countries like Sudan, Algeria, Egypt, and Jordan. She'll also talk with HEDGES about being held captive at the end of the Gulf War by Saddam's Republican Guard. He was held along with NPR's Neil Conan. Before HEDGES covered the MidEast for The New York Times, he was reporting out of Central America. INT. 2: President of Spelman College, JOHNNETTA COLE. Spelman College is an all-women's college, that has historically been all-black. COLE was it's first woman president. Most recently, COLE was head of the Clinton transition team's education group, and was at one time considered as a possible secretary of education. She has a new book, "Conversations: Straight Talk with America's Sister President." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new outer space adventure series, "Space Rangers," "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Marty talks with three young drug dealers from Camden, New Jersey. (Camden is across the river from Philadelphia and is considered one of the most violent cities in New Jersey; it also has a higher than average poverty rate for children. ) The three gang members go by aliases, Eddie Bauer, 16 years old, Interview with Ralph Reed and John Chafee; Interview with Lewis Puller; Review of Maan Myers' novel "The Dutchman." January 7, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501411].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Republican leaders RALPH REED and SENATOR JOHN CHAFEE. REED is the Executive Director of the Christian Coalition, based in Chesapeake, VA. CHAFEE is a Republican from Rhode Island. He's a member of the newly formed Republican Majority Coalition. The Republican National Committee is meeting at the end of this month to elect a new chairman. The two men will talk about what direction the Republican party needs to take to win the 1996 Presidential election, and why the party failed to win in '92. INT. 2: Writer LEWIS PULLER. His book, "Fortunate Son," is now out in paperback. His father, Chesty Puller, was a famous Marine. Lewis also joined the marines in 1967, and he was badly wounded in Vietnam. REV. : Maureen Corrigan reviews, "The Dutchman" by Martin and Annette Myers.

Interview with Steve Roberts; Interview with Edward Zigler; Review of the film "Chaplin." January 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501409].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist STEVE ROBERTS. He's the senior writer for "U.S. News & World Report." Before that he covered Congress for The New York Times. He'll talk with Marty about the 103rd Congress which just went into session. It's the most diverse group yet. ROBERTS will tell us what to expect. INT. 2: Professor of Psychology at Yale, EDWARD ZIGLER. He's one of the founders of the Headstart education program which began in the 60's and continues to this day. He's written a new book about the history of

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Photojournalist JAMES NACHTWEY (KNOCKT-way). He was in Somalia in October, and photographs of his visit were the cover story in The New York Times Magazine section on December 6, 1992. Terry talks with him about his trip to Somalia: why he took the pictures he did, how he was received, why he wanted to go, etc. NACHTWEY has been awarded the Robert Capa Gold Medal three times. The award is the highest honor among photographers and is given to those for the "best photographic reporting or interpretation from abroad requiring exceptional courage and enterprise," and it entails a deliberate decision to go in harm's way. NACHTWEY is only the seond photojournalist to be given the award three times. He's been to areas of conflict in Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Lebanon, the West Bank, Sudan, the Philippines, Northern Ireland and more. A book of NACHTWEY's photographs, "Deeds of War," was published in 1989 by Thames and Hudson. INT. 2: Writer RICHARD RODRIGUEZ. He was called a traitor to his heritage (Mexican-American) after he published a collection of autobiographical essays, "Hunger of Memory: The Education of Richard Rodriguez" in 1982. He was accused of "selling out." He has a new book of essays, "Days of Obligation: An Argument with My Mexican Father." (Viking Press) in which he still struggles with questions about his heritage. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "The Future," the new release by singer/songwriter/poet Leonard Cohen. (Columbia)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1 & 2: Former President JIMMY CARTER. He's written a new book about his early days in politics, "Turning Point: A Candidate, A State, and a Nation Come of Age," (Time Books). Terry will talk with him about his presidency, the work he's done since he's left the office, and what he thinks about a Clinton presidency. (This interview continues into the second half of the show). REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Bone," the new first-novel by Fae Myenne Ng.

Interview with Walid Khalidi; Interview with Ze'ev Chafets; Review of the television show "'The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour.'" January 13, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501483].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Palestinian scholar and spokesman WALID KHALIDI (Wah-LEED Ha-la-DEE). He's currently the senior member of the Jordanian-Palestinian delegation to the Middle East Peace Conference. He's considered one of the most influential thinkers about the Arab-Israeli conflict, and a man who has never shied away from criticizing policies pursued by all parties in the conflict. His latest book is a collection of his classic essays and writings as well as some unpublished pieces about the history and politics of the Arab-Israeli conflict, "Palestine Reborn," (British publisher, I.B. Tauris & Co Ltd.) INT. 2: ZE'EV-CHAFETS (SHAY-fetz) editor of "The Jerusalem Report," a news magazine published in Israel. Chafets is an Israeli who grew up in Pontiac, Michigan. He was the director of the government press office under prime minister Menacham Begin. He's also the author of "Inherit the Mob," a comic novel about a journalist lured into the Jewish Mafia, baited by a large inheritance. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews reruns of "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour," which air on the cable channel, E! Entertainment Television. The comedy show was canceled in 1969.
Interview with Gene LaRocque; Interview with Jim Hightower; Review of the television show "Santa Barbara." January 14, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502441].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry speaks with ADMIRAL GENE LAROCQUE (la- ROCK), director of the Center for Defense Information in Washington, D.C. They discuss the future of the American military: Is the American military becoming a world police force in the post-Cold War era?. General LaRocque offers an analysis of yesterday's allied air strike on missile bases in southern Iraq and also sheds light on question of military intervention in Bosnia-Herzegovina and the Balkans. They also talk about the American military and the U.N. and how the military may fare during the transition between the Bush and Clinton presidencies. INT. 2: Populist voice JIM HIGHTOWER, a former Texas Commissioner of Agriculture. His current project is Hightower Radio, a new daily syndicated two-minute radio commentary. He plans on sewing the seeds of grass roots activism in commentaries on subjects ranging from doctor bills and the deficit to toxic dumps and the recession. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD switches art forms and has some thoughts on the tv soap opera form, specifically on the waning days of his soap opera obsession "Santa Barbara." The last episode airs tomorrow.

Interview with Lorenzo Carcaterra; Interview with Thomas Hoving; Review of the art exhibit "Forefront January 15, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502234].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author LORENZO CARCATERRA (Car-CA-terra). He is managing editor of the CBS weekly series "Top Cops." He's written a memoir, "A Safe Place," (Villard Books) about growing up, the son of a violent, loving, murderous, and generous father. They lived in New York's Hell's Kitchen during the 50s and 60s. Lorenzo found out at the age of 14 that his father had murdered his first wife when she threatened to leave him. Lorenzo's father went on to terrorize his second wife, beating her and Lorenzo. Yet his father also could be warm and affectionate, taking Lorenzo to the ballpark, or showering him with kisses. His father would cry at the sound of a beautiful aria, but he could also be extremely violent at even the midest affront to his ego. INT. 2: Former Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the former Editor-in-Chief of "Connoisseur," THOMAS HOVING. ("Hoving" with a long "O"). He's written a new book "Making the Mummies Dance: Inside the Metropolitan Museum of Art." (Simon & Schuster). The metropolitan is probably the richest museum in the world, "owning" three million works of art, and artifacts that span 50 centuries. HOVING was with the Met for ten years and has been credited with transforming it from a somber monolith into a friendly and exciting place. His book is about the "battleground" behind the calm surface of the institution. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN looks at who won't be performing at the upcoming inauguration activities, but who should be.

Interview with Bobby Rush; Obituary for Sammy Cahn; Review of Alpha Blondy's album "Masada." January 18, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502437].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FRESHMAN CONGRESSMAN BOBBY RUSH (D-Illinois), who in the late 60's and early 70's was a leader of the Black Panther Party. At one time he served as minister of Defense for the Panthers. From 1983 till his election to Congress last year he served as an Alderman in Chicago. INT. 2: We remember songwriter SAMMY CAHN, who died last Friday at the age of 79 with an interview Terry Gross recorded with him in 1985. Cahn wrote many of the songs that Frank Sinatra recorded, including Come Fly With Me, Teach Me Tonight and High Hopes. He also wrote the scores for many Broadway shows including Walking Happy and Skyscraper, and for the movies Come Blow Your Horn, Robin and the Seven Hoods, and A Pocketful of Miracles. REV. : World music critic MILO MILES reviews the music of African reggae star Alpha Blondy. Blondy's new albums are Masada (World Pacific label) and The Best of Alpha Blondy. (Shanachie)

Interview with Thomas Christian and Gary Geiger; Review of the television shows "Class of 96" and "Key West"; Interview with Thulani Davis; Review of a CD box set of the Budapest String Quartet performing Mozart's string quintets. January 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501321].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two individuals involved with the Victim/Offender Mediation Program (with The Community Dispute Resolution Center in New York City): Program Director THOMAS CHRISTIAN, and GARY GEIGER, who was shot and wounded during a robbery eleven years ago. Through the program, GEIGER confronted the man who shot him, Wayne Blanchard, who is now in prison. GEIGER's meeting with Blanchard is part of a new HBO special, "Confronting Evil: America Undercover." (It premieres tonight (10:00 - 11:00 p.m. E.T.) REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new FOX programs, a youth drama, "Class of 96," and a comedy drama, "Key West." INT. 2: Writer THULANI (pronounced "tah-lawn-nee") DAVIS. Her novel, "1959," is the story of a young black girl coming of age at the dawn of the civil rights movement. Previously, Davis worked for The New York Times and The Washington Post, and wrote the libretto for the opera "X: The Life and Times of Malcolm X." ("1959" is published by Grove Weidenfeld). REBROADCAST. Originally aired 2/13/92. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new reissue of the Budapest Quartet playing Mozart quartets and quintets. (Sony, Legendary Interpretations label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Some reactions to the inauguration and thoughts about the new administration: 1) Satirist HARRY SHEARER, creator/host of Public Radio's "Le Show," on which he often satirizes American politics, culture and social conventions. He's also the voice for a number of characters on "The Simpson's." Terry will talk with him about his reactions to Clinton's inauguration. 2) Language Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG. Terry will talk with him about the language of Clinton's inauguration speech. 3) Senior Associate at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, GEOFFREY KEMP. He's also an expert on the Middle-East. Terry will talk with him about how he thinks the new administration will affect our relations with Iraq. INT. 2: Singer/Songwriter ELVIS COSTELLO. In the late 1970s he burst out of Britain's pop-music scene with a sound and attitude never seen before. He was the angry young-man with a fresh sound. He's known for making connections between different musical communities. He's collaborated with Paul McCartney, Ruben Blades, Aimee Mann of "'til Tuesday," David Was of "Was (Not Was)," and T. Bone Burnett. On his new release, "The Juliet Letters," (Warner Bros.) he's working with the Brodsky Quartet (known for its interpretations of music by Haydn, Schubert, Beethoven and Bartok). The compositions on the new album are based on a correspondence addressed to Juliet Capulet.
Interview with Kate Clinton; Interview with Roger Kendis; Obituary for Audrey Hepburn; Review of Allison Krauss's album "Every Time You Say Goodbye" and Tish Hinojosa's album "Culture Swing." January 21, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501323].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:1) Lesbian, feminist comic KATE CLINTON. Last night she hosted a gay ball in Washington D.C., celebrating the inauguration. She tackles social taboos and politics without putdowns, name-calling, or abusive behavior. One of her jokes: "To me, the avant-garde means not knowing when to clap." She also often tackles touchy subjects like menstruation, men-bashing, and people in wheelchairs. She's been doing comedy since the early 1980s. Before that she was a highschool English teacher. And before that she was raised in a Catholic household. (She now calls herself a recovering Catholic). 2) Producer ROGER KENDIS of Noisy Neighbors Productions. He's here in Philadelphia, and he's put together a rap recording with clips from Clinton's speeches. It's called It's About Hope. INT. 2: We pay tribute to AUDREY HEPBURN, who died yesterday from colon cancer, with a excerpt from a 1988 Fresh Air interview. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new CD's by two country singers who go beyond their country-singer label: "Everytime You Say Goodbye," by Allison Krause, and "Culture Swing," by Tish Hinojosa (Ina-HOAS-ah). (Both on the Rounder label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Interview one consists of two segments:1) JEAN HUNT, gives a grassroots perspective on abortion rights and accessibilty. Hunt is a registered nurse who has been an activist in the women's health movement since the late 60's . From 1988-1992 she was director of the Elizabeth Blackwell Health Center for Women in Philadelphia. She says that even if the federal government ensures the right to an abortion, local politics, health care economics and physician shortages make it difficult for women to get abortions. 2) DR. MILDRED JEFFERSON, a founding member of the state and national right-to-life movement, she is a former President of the National Right To Life Committee and now serves as President of Right To Life Crusade, Inc. Dr. Jefferson was the first African-American woman to graduate from Harvard Medical School and is currently a general surgeon and professor of surgery in Boston. INT. 2: Two segments: 1) Pro-life activist HELEN ALVARE (AL-va-ray). Alvare is an attorney who is Director of Planning and Information for Pro-Life Activities at the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. She talks about the pro-life movement is re-grouping in light of the new Administration in Washington. Alvare considers herself an anti-abortion feminist and has also worked to get pro-life women candidates elected. 2) Pro-choice activist KATHRYN (KITTY) KOLBERT. She is an attorney who argued against Pennsylvania's restrictive abortion law in the Supreme Court last year. This summer, she founded the Center for Reproductive Law And Policy to focus on reproductive rights worldwide.

Interview with Joseph Fernandez; Interview with Ben Stiller; Review of Neal Stephenson's novel "Snow Crash." January 25, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502440].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chancellor of the New York City school system, JOSEPH FERNANDEZ. He's been a controversial figure: he's made condoms available in the public schools, and approved a multi-cultural curriculum, "Children of the Rainbow," that teaches respect for gays and lesbians. FERNANDEZ is Puerto Rican and grew up in Spanish Harlem. He was a gang member and a heroin addict. Later he joined the Air Force, where he kicked the habit, and attended college on the G.I. bill. He's got a new book, "Tales Out of School: Joseph Fernandez's Crusade to Rescue American Education" (Little, Brown & Co.). INT. 2: Actor and filmmaker BEN STILLER. He's the son of the comedy team, Stiller and Meara, (Jerry Stiller & Anne Meara). He's acted in the Lincoln Center's revival of "House of Blue Leaves," and appeared in the films, "Fresh Horses," "Stella," and "Empire of the Son." He's also made a number of comedy shorts that parody movies and television. He's got his own comedy show "The Ben Stiller Show," on FOX, which premiered last fall. The show grew out of his work as a writer-performer with "Saturday Night Live," in 1989. Stiller plays various roles ranging from an obnoxious Hollywood agent to an adult Eddie Munster. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 9/25/92). REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews, "Snow Crash," by Neal Stephenson.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: L.A. rocker and "spoken-word" artist HENRY ROLLINS. He used to be with the hard-core punk-rock group, Black Flag. He's also the current leader of the Henry Rollins Band. His "spoken word" performances are story-telling that goes back and forth between comedy and serious commentary. He has a new album of these performances, "Boxed Life," and a video, "Talking from the Box." (both by Imago). INT. 2: Novelist and short-story writer CHARLES BAXTER. He has a new novel, Shadow Play," (W.W. Norton & Co.) about a Faustian contract a man makes with a former classmate. BAXTER has written several volumes of short stories. His stories have appeared in "The New Yorker," "Harper's Magazine," "The Atlantic Monthly,." One reviewer writes, "Baxter is a master at creating loopy, poetic, and meaningfully unhinged psyches."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Creator and CEO of the Cable Satellite Public Affairs Network (C-SPAN), BRIAN LAMB. He launched the network in 1979 because he felt society was being unfairly treated by the television news. He wanted to broadcast information from beginning to end, so that audiences could get a full picture of what transpired, and not just pieces of it. The channel provides hours of footage of the U.S. Congress and its committees, party conventions, and provided sprawling coverage of the Presidential campaign -- all without commentary or editing. The network has no advertisers, no government or corporate funding, and has no concern for ratings. (It's funding comes from local cable companies). INT. 2: One of Britian's most radical and uncompromising film and television directors, KEN LOACH. He was a member of the British "Free Cinema Movement" of the '50s (committed to dealing with issues of the working class and lower-class of British society), and he was a pioneer of the docu-drama of the '60s. His socially-conscious film "Cathy Come Home," (1966) about a homeless mother, aired over the BBC, created a scandal, and forced a public debate about the homeless in London. He's produced many features for BBC television. His latest film "Riff-Raff," about construction workers is his first comedy, but it doesn't depart from what LOACH tries to do with his films. The London "Times" calls it, "an abrasive front-line report from the bottom of society's ladder." A retrospective of LOACH's work will be presented by The Film Society of Lincoln Center, February 2 - 13, 1993. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Nocturne Parisian," (Muse) by Graham Haynes, and "Overlays," by the Ned Rothenberg Double Band (Moers music).

Interview with Elaine Brown; Interview with Jerome Groopman; Review of the television show "Homicide January 28, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503202].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Black Panther ELAINE BROWN. Her new book, A Taste of Power, (Pantheon), tells the story of Brown's rise to the head of the Black Panther Party in the mid-70s and her later break with the Party. INT. 2: AIDS researcher and pioneer DR. JEROME GROOPMAN. Groopman, who is chief of the Division of Hematology/Oncology at the New England Deaconess Hospital, is director of an innovative AIDS program there that is unusual in combining clinical research and medical services to approximately 1000 HIV-infected people. As a cancer specialist, Groopman has been at the forefront of the battle against AIDS since the early 80's. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new cop show, Homicide, which premieres this Sunday night. It's the latest project of Barry Levinson, the director of such films as Diner, Rain Man, and Good Morning, Vietnam.

Interview with Tracy Johnston; Interview with Yetta Sorensen; Review of the film "Matinee." January 29, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502733].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer TRACY JOHNSTON. She's written a new book, "Shooting the Boh: a Woman's Voyage Down the Wildest River in Borneo," (Vintage Books). The book is not only an account of her adventure going down the river dealing with leeches, waterfalls, foot rot, and moldy clothes, but about her own realization that the hot flashes she was feeling in the middle of the night weren't the steamy jungle but the onset of menopause. One reviewer writes, "A powerful adventure of the head as well as the body: not to be missed," (Kirkus Reviews). INT. 2: Spokesperson for the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), YETTA SORENSEN. She's based in Zagreb, Croatia. Terry speaks with her from Croatia about the organizations relief efforts in the former Yugoslavia. Their work has been extremely dangerous there. In May one of their relief convoys was attacked and an ICRC delegate was killed and the organization pulled out of the area until mid-July. Last December, in response to the "ethnic cleansing" in Bosnia-Herzegovina, the ICRC issued an unprecedented public statement condemning the atrocities there. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Matinee," by director Joe Dante who directed "Gremlins," and starring John Goodman.

---

Interview with Alvin Poussaint; Interview with Laurence Gonzales; Commentary on Superman.

February 1, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502737].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of Psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, ALVIN POUSSAINT (Poo-saunt). He was also a consultant to "The Cosby Show." He co-authored the book, "Raising Black Children: Two Leading Psychiatrists Confront the Educational, Social, and Emotional Problems Facing Black Children" in 1975. A reissue of the book has recently been published. (by Plume). INT. 2: Novelist, journalist, essayist, and pilot, LAURENCE GONZALES. He has a new book about his love affair with flying, "One Zero Charlie: Adventures in Grass Roots Aviation." (Simon & Schuster). His love affair with flying began early, listening to the stories his mother told of his father's last flight in a B-17 bomber over Dusseldorf in World War II. (His father survived the war). GONZALES is a commercial pilot and he competes in aerobatics flying as well. "One Zero Charlie" is the term for the Galt Airfield in Illinois that he flies out of. REV. : On the occasion of end of the Superman comic, and the Superbowl, language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG considers the origin of the word "Superman," and how "super" began to be used in other ways.

---

Interview with Kevin Phillips; Interview with Carl Hiaasen; Commentary on popular music from 1953.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NPR commentator and political analyst KEVIN PHILLIPS. He's known for his ability to tap into the mood of American voters and forecast what's to come: in 1969 he predicted the conservative

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:From the relief and development organization CARE, PHILIP JOHNSTON, President and CEO. Marty talks with him about the organization's next efforts in Somali, helping farmers rehabilitate farms, and training village health workers to monitor the nutritional status of mothers and young children. REV. : 1963. Rock historian ED WARD continues his look back. This time, the year 1963. INT. 2: Novelist and short-story writer ROBERT BOSWELL. He's best known for his novels, "Crooked Hearts," and "The Geography of Desire." Of those books, one reviewer wrote (Mr. Boswell) "has a marvelous ability to creat ensemble pieces populated by people who are rich in both psychological detail and idiosyncrasy." His novels focus on families, and the connections between people. BOSWELL'S new novel is "Mystery Ride," (Knopf) about a failed marriage that endures, however, in the hearts of the couple. BOSWELL also teaches at New Mexico State University and at the Warren Wilson Master of Fine Arts Program for Writers in North Carolina. REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Homestead: The Glory and Tragedy of an American Steel Town," (Times Books) by William Serrin.
Interview with Maria Riva; Interview with Willem Dafoe. Review of the television show "I'll Fly Away." February 4, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502510].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The daughter of Marlene Dietrich, MARIA RIVA (REE-va). Dietrich died last May at the age of 90, with her mystique still intact. RIVA has written a memoir, "Marlene Dietrich," (Knopf) which relies on Riva's memories and on Dietrich's letters and diaries (80 years worth). It's been called a "sympathetic" and not a bitter book, though it describes a woman who is "uncaring" and not very "likeable," and who belies the image of great sexuality (she didn't like sex), though she had many lovers. RIVA also describes her mother's decline into alcoholism, and decrepit old age. INT. 2: Actor WILLEM (WILLIAM) DEFOE. He's starred in "Platoon," "The Last Temptation of Christ," "Mississippi Burning," and "Wild at Heart." He's currently starring in "Body of Evidence," with Madonna. (REBROACAST. Originally aired 8/18/92) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the season finale of "I'll Fly Away," on NBC. He says it's probably the last episode of the show all together.

Interview with Steven Weinberg; Interview with Betty Pendlr; Review of the films "The Vanishing" and "Sommersby." February 5, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502511].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Physicist STEVEN WEINBERG. He received the 1979 Nobel Prize for Physics. He's the author of "The First Three Minutes," about the 'Big Bang.' He's currently working on something known as the "final theory," the search for the ultimate laws of nature--for the final answer to our questions about why nature is the way it is. That search is tied up with work on the Superconducting Super Collider. His new book about that is "Dreams of the Final Theory," (Pantheon). INT. 2: BETTY PENDLER is the mother of a 36 year-old developmentally disabled daughter. PENDLER conducts sexuality workshops for parents of the developmentally disabled, teaching them how to talk to their children about sex and relationships. (A related story ran in The New York Times, Jan. 26). There's currently a trial in New Jersey about four young men accused of sexually assaulting a retard young woman. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews two new films: "The Vanishing," starring Jeff Bridges and Keifer Sutherland, and "Sommersby," starring Richard Gere and Jodie Foster.
Interview with Mathea Falco; Interview with Elliott Currie; Obituary for Arthur Ashe; Commentary on rock music in 1973. February 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502509].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director of Health Policy, Department of Public Health, MATHEA (pronounced "ma-THAY-ah") FALCO. She was an advisor to Clinton, during the presidential campaign. She's written extensively about drugs, drug abuse, and drug policy. She has a new book, "The Making of a Drug-Free America: Programs that Work," (Random House). INT. 2: Sociologist, and research associate at the Institute for the Study of Social Change, ELLIOTT CURRIE. He's also taught sociology and criminology at Yale and at the University of California. He's written a number of books, "Dope and Trouble: Portraits of Delinquent Youth," and "Confronting Crime." He has a new book, "Reckoning: Drugs, the Cities, and the American Future," (Hill and Wang, 19 Union Square West, New York, N.Y. 10003). INT. 3: We remember tennis star ARTHUR ASHE, with an excerpt from a 1989 interview. ASHE died over the weekend, from complications related to the AIDS virus. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD remembers the year 1973.

Interview with Arthur Caplan; Interview with Wu Ningkun; Review of two CDs featuring the music of Samuel Coleridge-Taylor. February 9, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502736].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biomedical ethicist ARTHUR CAPLAN. Among the topics Marty discusses with him are the right to die and the implications of the doctor-assisted suicides, specifically how Dr. Jack Kevorkian has been helping patients die. Caplan is Director of Biomedical Ethics and a professor in the Departments of Philosophy and Surgery at the University of Minnesota. INT. 2: WU NINGKUN (WOO NING-kwun), author of a new personal and political memoir, A Single Tear, about surviving three decades of Communist rule in China. Wu was born in China and received his college education in the United States. He left a promising academic career in this country to return to China in 1951 with hopes that the new Communist regime would benefit his country. Instead, he was labeled counter-revolutionary for teaching works by Western authors and was sentenced to serve time at various labor camps and prisons. He now lives in the United States with his family. (Atlantic Monthly Press). REV. : Classical music critic
LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two recordings of works by the turn-of-the-century black British composer Samuel Coleridge-Taylor. One of them features historical recordings from the 1920s and 30s. (Pearl label) The other includes modern recordings of his chamber compositions and spirituals. (Koch International Classics)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and film Director BILL DUKE. He's directed several off-Broadway plays, and lots of television, including PBS's award winning teleplays, "The Meeting," and "Raisin in the Sun." He directed the movies, "A Rage in Harlem," and "Deep Cover." His latest film is "The Cemetary Club," about three Jewish widows, who meet up with an charming widower. INT. 2: Journalist BETTY ROLLIN. Her 1976 best-selling book about surviving breast-cancer, "First, You Cry," is being reissued. (Harper Rollins). ROLLIN lost one breast to cancer in 1975 and then in 1984 she had the other breast removed. ROLLIN also wrote the book, "Last Wish," in 1986 about helping her mother -- who was dying from ovarian cancer -- to die. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new memoir, "H.L. Mencken: My Life as Author and Editor," (Knopf) edited by Jonathan Yardley.

Interview with Harold Ramis; Review of the television show "Prime Suspect 2"; Interview with Karen Nussbaum; Review of Guy Clark's album "Boats to Build." February 11, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501503].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer, actor, director HAROLD RAMIS. He's one of the most influential forces behind some of the biggest comedy hits of the late 70s and 80s. But his influence is not generally known by those outside the industry. (For that reason he's been called the "Clark Kent" of comedy. Also because he's "mild-mannered," "bespectacled," and he "looks as if he would be the first to duck under the table at the first sign of a food fight"). RAMIS wrote for "The National Lampoon Show," and "SCTV." He co-wrote as well as acted in the movies, "Animal House," "Stripes," "Ghostbusters," and others. He directed the new movie, "Groundhog Day," starring his old co-star Bill Murray. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the sequel to "Prime Suspect," the miniseries on PBS a year ago about a woman who becomes chief inspector, played by Helen Mirren. "Prime Suspect 2" begins tonight. INT. 2: Co-founder of the working women's advocacy group, "9 to 5," KAREN NUSSBAUM. She helped found the group 20 years ago. Marty will talk with her about the changing role of women in the workplace in the last twenty years, and about the concerns of women in the workplace, like childcare. Rev.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews a new album by Guy Clark, "Boats to Build." Clark is a songwriter whose songs have been recorded by many other country artists, but hasn't had so much success doing them himself.

Interview with Chai Feldblum; Interview with Lane Nishikawa; Commentary on the fatwa against Salman Rushdie. February 12, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501964].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Chai Feldblum; Interview with Lane Nishikawa; Commentary on the fatwa against Salman Rushdie.

Interview with Garry Wills; Interview with Lloyd Schwartz; Review of J.J. Johnson's album "Vivian." February 15, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501966].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GARRY WILLS. He's analyzed the Gettysburg Address in the book, "Lincoln At Gettysburg: The Words That Remade America." He says that speaking for only three minutes that day, Lincoln changed the history of American political thought. Wills is a presidential historian and and political scientist. He's written other books on Nixon, Reagan and Kennedy, as well as a critical profile of Ross Perot.(REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/7/92) INT. 2: Our classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ has a collection of poems, "Goodnight, Gracie," (published by Phoenix Poets). David Lehman calls this new collection, "a moving and inventive collection, his best and most ambitious to date." LLOYD is also music editor of The Boston Phoenix and is co-director of the Creative Writing Program at the University of Massachusetts. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 4/22/93). REV. :
Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new recording of ballads by trombonist J.J. Johnson. It's "Vivian" on the Concord Jazz label.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PART I) Poet, journalist, and critic LUIS RODRIGUEZ. He's new book, "Always Running: La Vida Loca, Gang Days in L.A." (Curbstone press) is about his participation in gang life in the 1960s in East L.A. RODRIGUEZ was in a gang by the time he was 12. And by the time he was 18, 25 of his friends had been killed. After time in the county jail, RODRIGUEZ turned his back on gang activity. He became involved in the Chicano movement, and was encouraged to write, because he'd shown a talent in it. RODRIGUEZ wrote "Always Running," in an attempt to save his own son from gang life. His son RAMIRO is 16 and is in a gang in Chicago. He'll join his father during the second half of the show. INT. 2: PART TWO, interview with LUIS RODRIGUEZ and his son, RAMIRO. In addition to his new book, RODRIGUEZ has written two volumes of poetry, "Poems Across the Pavement," and "The Concrete River." REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews, "Monnew" (MAH-new) a novel by West African writer Amadou Kourouma (AH-ma-doo Ka-ROO-ma).( Published by Mercury House in San Francisco.)

---

Interview with Carol Tavris; Interview with John Turturro. February 17, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501963].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychologist and writer CAROL TAVRIS. Terry will talk with her about two things: Her latest book, "The Mismeasure of Woman: Why Women are Not the Better Sex, the Inferior Sex, or the Opposite Sex." (Simon & Schuster). In the book, TAVRIS looks at the widespread but unacknowledged custom in the social sciences, medicine, law and history, of treating men as the normal standard and women as abnormal. TAVRIS shows that the real differences in gender are in power, resources, and life experiences. Also TAVRIS recently wrote a review of two books dealing with incest, "Beware the Incest-Survivor Machine," (The New York Times Book Review, Jan 3, 1993) in which she calls for a more reasoned, cautious approach to a very complicated issue. The review received a fire-storm of letters from readers (Feb. 14, 1993). INT. 2: Actor JOHN TURTURRO. He co-starred in Spike Lee's film, "Do the Right Thing." He's a favorite of the Coen Brothers. They wrote parts specifically for him: He was Bernie the Schmatta in "Miller's Crossing," and the writer Barton Fink in the movie of the same name. He's just wrote, directed, and starred in the new movie, "Mac" based on his father. (This interview continues after the ATC promo).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist PHILLIP LONGMAN. He specializes in politics and public policy. He'll talk with Terry about the items in Clinton's address last night dealing with entitlements. Clinton wants to impose a higher-income tax on Social Security benefits for individuals with incomes over $25,000 and couples over $32,000. The administration says this would affect fewer than one-quarter of retirees. LONGMAN is the author of "Born to Pay: The New Politics of Aging in America," (published in 1987 by Houghton Mifflin). INT. 2: Mystery writer BARBARA NEELY. She's brought a strong African-American female voice to the genre. The heroine of her debut book "Blanche on the Lam," is Blanche White, a 40-year old housekeeper with big thighs, a wry sense of humor, and a jaundiced view of the rich. Blanche is "on the lam" from a 30-day jail sentence for a bad check when she accidentally falls into a position of housekeeper with a wealthy white family. She can hide in plain sight, because of her "invisibility" as a black housekeeper. One reviewer writes though the book works well as a crime novel, it's "less about a mysterious murder. . . than it is about social injustice, race relations, and the unique position African-American women hold in our society," (published by St. Martin's). REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN "Flaubert - Sand: The Correspondence," translated by Francis Steepmuller and Barbara Bray, a collection of the more than 400 letters between French writers Gustave Flaubert (FLOW-bare) and George Sand. (published by Knopf) Interview with Andrew Serrano; Commentary on rock music in 1983. February 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501499].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Artist ANDRES SERRANO. His 1987 photograph, "Piss Christ," showed the figure of Christ on a cross, in a pool of urine. It was one of the controversial art works which provoked a storm from the political-right that ended up in the halls of Congress. His work was denounced on the Senate floor by Senator Jesse Helms who then began a crusade against the National Endowment for Arts. SERRANO has a new exhibit of photographs taken of bodies in a morgue. (This interview continues into the second half of the show). INT. 2: Interview with ANDRES SERRANO continues. REV. : Rock critic ED WARD remembers the year 1983.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: REVEREND JOHNNY RAY YOUNGBLOOD. He's the leader of St. Paul Community Baptist Church in one of Brooklyn's poorest and most dangerous neighborhoods. YOUNGBLOOD came to the church and turned it around from a dying institution, to a thriving center for religious and community activity. The church has created a school, and through innovative programs, brought young black men back into the church. St. Paul's has also (as part of a coalition with other churches) built housing in the area and replaced brothels and numbers joints. "Upon This Rock: The Miracles of a Black Church" by Samuel G. Freedman (published by HarperCollins) is about REV. YOUNGBLOOD and St. Paul's. INT. 2: Interview with REV. YOUNGBLOOD cont'd. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Bill Moyers new series, "Healing and the Mind," on PBS about alternative medicines and medical treatments.
Interview with Willie Williams; Interview with Nelson George; Review of the film "Love Field." February 23, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501500].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Police Commissioner of Philadelphia, WILLIE WILLIAMS. He's gone on to head Los Angeles's police force, where he replaced the controversial chief Daryl Gates. WILLIAMS took over last summer and his challenge has been to improve the relationship between the police and the community, and to build-up morale within the force. WILLIAMS has also had to prepare the department for possible further disturbances in the community, in light of the April riots over the Rodney King verdict. Two court cases coming up could ignite more rioting: the Federal civil rights trial of the four white officers acquitted of beating Rodney King, and the trial of three black men accused of beating white truck driver Reginald Denny during the April riot. Yesterday jurors for the federal trial of the officers were sworn in. Opening statements in the trial are expected to take place tomorrow. INT. 2: Writer and critic NELSON GEORGE. George is one of this country's most prominent chroniclers of black music and culture.. He was the black music editor at "Billboard," for seven years, and is a regular columnist for the "Village Voice." His new book "Buppies, B-Boys, Baps and Bohos: Notes on Post-Soul Black Culture," (published by HarperCollins) is a collection of his writings and covers the last two decades in Black urban culture. George also edited the book, "Stop the Violence," a collaboration of top rappers working to end black-on-black violence. George's earlier books include a history of Motown called "Where Did Our Love Go?" and "The Death of Rhythm and Blues." REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Love Field," starring Michelle Pfieffer.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Award-winning historian MICHAEL BESCHLOSS (BEHSH-loss). He's just co-authored a new book, "At the Highest Levels: The Inside Story of the End of the Cold War." (Little, Brown & Co.). BESCHLOSS and co-author Strobe Talbot were in contact with officials and communiques. in both American and Soviet governments, and with officials in NATO and the Warsaw Pact from about 1989 on. They meant to write about relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, and ended up with a confidant's access to the end of the cold war. They show the close tie between George Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev, and how the two were so closely attuned to each other that "it eventually caused both men to lose touch with their domestic constituencies." (This interview continues in the second half of the show). INT. 2: Interview with MICHAEL BESCHLOSS continued. BESCHLOSS is also the author of "Kennedy and Roosevelt: The Uneasy Alliance" (1980), and "The Crisis Years: Kennedy and Khrushchev, 1960-1963" (1991). He is editor at large and foreign affairs columnist for "Time" Magazine, and was CNN-on-air analyst during the years when the cold war was ending. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new Elvis Costello album (yes, you read that right), a collaboration between Costello and The Brodsky Quartet. It's called "The Juliet Letters" (Warner Bros.)
Interview with Eric Clapton; Review of Shai's album "If I Ever Fall in Love"; Review of the film "Falling Down." February 26, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501057].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock guitarist ERIC CLAPTON. His latest album, "Unplugged," swept the Grammy Awards. The album was inspired, in part, by the death of his young son, who fell from a window ledge and died. CLAPTON is considered one of the greatest, if not the greatest, guitar player in rock history. Clapton started out playing blues with the Yardbirds (For Your Love) in the early 60s, then played with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers before forming Cream, one of the 60s most influential bands (Crossroads, White Room). In this interview from 1989, Terry talks with him about his life and work. (Originally aired 12/7/89) INT. 2: CLAPTON interview continued. REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the debut album, "If I Ever Fall in Love," by the new vocal group, Shai. (pronounced "Shy"). They have a hit single with the same name as the album, on MCA. REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Falling Down," the new film starring Michael Douglas.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and filmmaker STEPHEN TROMBLEY. His latest project is a book and documentary, "The Execution Protocol: Inside America's Capital Punishment Industry." (Crown Publishers). The book has little to do with the morality of taking a life. It's more about practical business of causing someone to die. The book is about the workings of the Potosi Correctional Center in Missouri where the staff makes "compulsively fastidious preparations" making sure that everything from the phone lines (incase of a last-minute pardon) to the execution equipment works properly. TROMBLEY also focuses on the work of Fred Leuchter, a specialist in the design and construction of execution devices. S INT. 2: A concert and interview with SHIRLEY HORN. Playing with her will be drummer Steve Williams and bassist Charles Ables. HORN recorded with Miles Davis and Quincy Jones in the 1960s and sang on the movie soundtrack of "For Love of Ivy." After a hiatus in which she stayed home and raised her daughter, she returned to performing and recording in 1988. Her 1991 album, "You Won't Forget Me," brought together

Interview with Robert Kaplan; Interview with Christopher Simpson; Commentary on contemporary interpretations of baroque music. March 2, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501978].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ROBERT KAPLAN. He's been a foreign correspondent for "The Atlantic," and "The New Republic." In the 1980s and early 1990s he was the first American writer to warn of the coming crisis in the Balkans. His latest book is about that region, "Balkan Ghosts: A Journey Through History," (St. Martin's Press) a political travel book that took him through southern Austria and Croatia, Old Serbia and Albania, Macedonia, Romania, Bulgaria, and Greece. One reviewer wrote of the book, it "provides a road map through the centuries-old ethnic hatreds and anti-Semitism that continue to erupt in Eastern Europe."

INT. 2: Journalist, professor, historian CHRISTOPHER SIMPSON. He teaches at American University in Washington, D.C. Last month the U.N. Security Council voted to create a new international tribunal to try those accused of war crimes in the Balkan conflict. SIMPSON has written a new book about the use of mass murder as an instrument of state power, beginning with World War I, "The Splendid Blond Beast: Money, Law, and Genocide in the Twentieth Century," (Grove Press). SIMPSON shows how those who commit such crimes are rarely punished, like high-ranking SS killers from World War II, who were allowed to escape the country with the help of CIA chief Allen Dulles. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ on the new trend in Baroque music performance.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry talks with journalist FORREST SAWYER, whose new television news magazine show, Day One, premieres this Sunday night on ABC. Sawyer was recognized for his reporting during the Gulf War, when he split off from the pack and brought in some of the earliest footage of surrendering Iraqi soldiers and the American liberation of Kuwaiti. They also talk about how Sawyer got into broadcasting and what it's been like working on Nightline. INT. 2: Investigative journalist THOMAS (TOM) POWERS. He's written a new book about the German attempt to get an atomic bomb, the threat that terrified American scientists and military during World War II. The book is, "Heisenberg's War," (Knopf). At the center of the story is German physicist and Nobel laureate Werner Heisenberg. While other preeminent scientists left Germany with the rise of the Reich, Heisenberg chose to stay to defend what was left of "good science." American officials plotted to kill or kidnap him to "deny the enemy his brain." There's long been a debate about whether Heisenberg purposely held back research on the bomb to thwart Hitler, or he just inadvertently bungled the attempt. POWERS makes the case that Heisenberg withheld the kind of encouragement that would have led to development of the bomb. POWERS contrasts this with America's fear of German technology, and zealously to get to the bomb first. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two tribute concert specials airing this weekend on PBS. One to honor Bob Dylan, the other for Stephen Sondheim.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times journalist JANE PERLEZ. She's been reporting from Africa since 1988. And has been credited with recognizing stories before the rest of the media. She was reporting on the trouble in Somolia, and the threat of famine a year ago, long before it became the focus of world attention. PERLEZ's assignment in Africa has ended. Soon she'll be reporting from Eastern Europe. INT. 2: Journalist RAY BONNER. He is former foreign correspondent for The New York Times and former New Yorker staff writer. He's lived in Africa from 1988 until January of this year. He has a new article in "Mother Jones," (Mar/Apr 93) about why the U.S. sent Marines into Somalia, in which he questions our role as the world's "missionary." Bonner also reported from Central America. Just recently he was exonerated for reporting on a massacre in El Salvador. Officials denied the event, but archeologists have since uncovered the mass grave. He's written two books, "Weakness and Deceit: U.S. Policy and El Salvador," (1984), and "Waltzing with a Dictator: The Marcoses and the Making of American Policy," (1987). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Mad Dog & Glory," starring Robert De Niro and Bill Murray.
Interview with Mary Jo Weaver; Interview with Mary Frances Berry; Review of Shulamith Fireston's book "The Dialectic of Sex." March 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501980].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and professor MARY JO WEAVER. She teaches Religious and Women's Studies at Indiana University. Her new book is, "Springs of Water in a Dryland: Spiritual Survival for Catholic Women Today," (Beacon Press). It's about the "double bind" that many Catholic women find themselves in, of either living within a institutionalized church structure that is oppressive, or rejecting a church which is a source of spiritual enrichment. In her book WEAVER argues that it is possible for a woman to be a feminist and remain Catholic. WEAVER is also the author of "New Catholic Women: A Contemporary Challenge to Traditional Religious Authority." INT. 2: Attorney and writer MARY FRANCES BERRY. She's also a member of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, and a professor of history and law at the University of Pennsylvania. She was formerly the assistant secretary for education in the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare. She's written a new book about the tradition of "mother-care" in our society, the notion that women have principal responsibility for childcare. The book is, "The Politics of Parenthood: Child Care, Women's Rights, and the Myth of the Good Mother," (Viking). BERRY argues that women have not always traditionally been responsible for taking care of children, but that society has become accustomed to the arrangement and the existing power structure reinforces it. REV. : Maureen Corrigan reviews, "The Dialectic of Sex," which is now back in print by Shulamith Fireston.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Executive producer and writer, TOM FONTANA. He was writer and producer for the TV show, "St. Elsewhere." He's currently executive producer along with filmmaker Barry Levinson, of "Homicide: Life on the Street," a new cop drama on NBC, that reviewers say goes beyond the usual formula offering, a "more complex psychological portrait." It's set in Baltimore. FONTANA is also the creator and executive producer of a new show to be aired this fall, "Philly Heat," on ABC. INT. 2: Editor JUSTIN KAPLAN. He edited the new edition of Bartlett's book of quotations. Formerly in the publishing... business, KAPLAN has written biographies of Walt Whitman, and Mark Twain, two of the most often quoted men in American history. His biography, "Mr. Clemens and Mark Twain" won a Pulitzer Prize in 1967. Bartlett's last edition was published in 1980. (Little, Brown and Co.) REBROADCAST. Originally aired 11/11/92. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Passion of Michel Foucault," by James Miller, a biography of the French philosopher.

Interview with Philip Roth; Interview with Frank Browning; Review of Mick Jagger's album "Wandering Spirit." March 10, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501975].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Robert Jay Lifton; Interview with Marc Roberts; Review of the film "CB4." March 11, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502045].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Professor ROBERT JAY LIFTON. Lifton is distinguished professor of psychiatry and psychology and director of the Center on Violence and Human Survival at John Jay College, City University of New York. He's been studying cults and fundamentalist groups for many years. Lifton will talk about the armed cult in Waco, Texas run by David Koresh of the Branch Davidians—how typical they are, and what can be done to deal with them. INT. 2: Professor MARC ROBERTS. Roberts is a professor of Political Economy and Health Policy at the Harvard School of Public Health and the Kennedy School of Government. He'll discuss the economics of health care and health care reform in America. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews CB4, the new satirical comedy produced by Nelson George, and starring Chris Rock and Phil Hartman of Saturday Night Live.

Interview with Jim Galipeau; Interview with Robert Cullen; Tribute to Billy Eckstine. March 12, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501924].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Probation officer for Los Angeles County, JIM GALIPEAU (GAL-ih-poh). He works with gangs in Los Angeles, and is currently trying to raise money for a program for older gang members. He'll talk with Terry about the truce between gangs that began last spring, just before the riots; the differences between gangs, between Hispanic and Black gangs, and inner city and suburban gangs; the impact of the riots, and the possibility of riots in the future. GALIPEAU has been a probation officer for 27 years. He's a Vietnam vet, and when he was a teenager, he was a street fighter and drug addict. INT. 2: Journalist ROBERT CULLEN. He was Newsweek's Moscow bureau chief in the Soviet Union. He's also covered Russia for "The New Yorker," and "The Atlantic." He has a new book The Killer Department" (Pantheon). It's about one detective's eight year hunt for the man known as "the most savage serial killer in Russian history." CULLEN is also the author of, "Twilight of Empire: Inside the Crumbling Soviet Bloc," about the breakup of the Soviet Union. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD pays tribute to the singer, Billy Eckstine, who died last Monday.

Interview with Stanley Elkin; Commentary on Mississippi John Hurt; Interview with Fae Myenne Ng; Review of Edward Said's book "Culture and Imperialism." March 15, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502049].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: .Novelist STANLEY ELKIN. He's been called "one of the most entertaining stylists in contemporary American fiction." And that ELKIN's use of metaphor, "transforms grotesque situations and the drab vulgarity of popular consumer culture into comic affirmations of human existence." (from "Contemporary Literary Criticism). His novels include, "The MacGuffin," "The Magic Kingdom," and others. His latest book of novellas is "Van Gogh's Room at Arles." (Hyperion). ELKIN was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis twenty years ago. He'll talk about his writing and his life and how it's changed since the disease has progressed. REV. Rock historian ED WARD profiles blues man, Mississippi John Hurt, who would have celebrated his 100th or 101st birthday this month. INT. 2:Novelist FAE MYENNE NG. (fay me-yen ing) She's just written her first novel, "Bone," (HYPERION) is about three sisters brought up in San Francisco's Chinatown. One reviewer writes, "I learned a lot from "Bone" about the high cost of living in two worlds," another writes that the story is "beautifully conceived, full of feeling and the sound of the streets." REV 2. Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Culture and Imperialism" (Knopf) by Edward Said (Si-eed).

Interview with Haskell Wexler; Interview with Tamra Davis; Review of India's album "Llego la India." March 16, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502051].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: HASKELL WEXLER won Academy Awards for his cinematography on "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" and "Bound for Glory." He's been nominated for work on several other movies, including "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Matewan." He's also the director of "Medium Cool." Wexler is known for moving easily between marginal, political films and more mainstream fare. He's the subject of a retrospective at the American Museum of the Moving Image in New York throughout April. INT. 2: TAMRA DAVIS, director of the new rap satire film "CB4," which stars Chris Rock of Saturday Night Live. Davis is well-known for her work directing music videos with everone from Sonic Youth to Bette Middler. Her first film was "Gun Crazy." REV." MILO MILES reviews new salsa singer India, whose album "Llego la India, features bandleader and salsa veteran Eddie Palmieri.
Interview with Abdulaziz Sachedina; Interview with Gerald Early; Review of Veronica Jane O'Mara and Fionnuala O'Reilly's book "A Trifle, a Coddle, a Fry." March 17, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502050].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ABDULAZIZ A. SACHEDINA is a professor of Religious Studies at the University of Virginia. He has been studying the recent world-wide rise of Islamic fundamentalism. INT. 2: Professor of African-American studies, GERALD EARLY. He'll talk with Terry about the dilemma of being a middle-class African American intellectual. His new book is "Lure and Loathing: Essays on Race, Identity, and the Ambivalence of Assimilation." (Allen Lane/The Penguin Press). REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN on St. Patrick's Day.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RICHARD PRICE wrote and produced the new movie "Mad Dog and Glory," which stars Robert Deniro, Bill Murray and Uma Thurman. His most recent novel is the best seller, "Clockers," (published by Houghton Mifflin). Christopher Lehmann-Haupt of The New York Times wrote "the signal achievement of "Clockers' is to make us feel the enormous power of these giants that are drugs, alcoholism, poverty." PRICE also wrote the screenplays for, "The Color of Money," "Sea of Love," and Martin Scorsese's section of "New York Stories." INT. 2: Economics correspondent for CBS This Morning, ROBERT KRULWICH discusses Clinton's economic plan. Before he went to CBS, KRULWICH was economics correspondent for NPR. He's best known for making money matters interesting and accessible for those of us who are impaired when it comes to understanding economic concerns.
Interview with Neil Young; Interview with Tish Hinojosa; Review of the film "Point of No Return." March 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502073].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock musician NEIL YOUNG. In 66' he joined L.A. rock band Buffalo Springfield; they split up 3 albums later due to inter-band fighting and their lack of commercial success. YOUNG then meandered from band to band, including "Crosby, Stills, Nash, and Young," while doing a lot of solo work as well. He's been called the "Godfather of Grunge," and "The king of punk." His lastest album is "Harvest Moon," intended to be a sequel to his 1972 album "Harvest." (Time Warner) (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 11/5/92) INT. 2: Singer/Songwriter TISH HINOJOSA (Eena-hoosa). Terry talks with her from Austin, Texas, where HINOJOSA's performing in the South by Southwest Music Festival. HINOJOSA's latest album is "Culture Swing," (Rounder Records). REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Point of No Return," directed by John Badham, starring Bridget Fonda.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Educator BOB MOSES. He was a leader in the Civil Rights struggle, helping to register black voters in Mississippi during the Freedom Summer of 1964. He's still a civil rights activist, though his weapon now is Math. He's the director and creator of the innovative Algebra Project which opens up educational opportunities for young African-Americans. MOSES established the project in Cambridge, Mass in 1982. Since then it's been implanted across the country, and has reached 9,000 inner city youths. INT. 2: Playwright LANFORD WILSON. Wilson won the Pulitzer Prize for his play, "Talley's Folly." His most recent play, "Redwood Curtain," is the story of a Amerasian girl in the Pacific Northwest, looking for her father, a Vietnam Vet. REBROADCAST. (Originally aired 3/13/92). REV.: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG reflects on the year 2000, what it used to mean and what it now means.
Interview with Curtis Mayfield; Interview with Peter Schweizer; Review of the television show "Tribeca." March 23, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502047].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CURTIS MAYFIELD. He's been called "the thinking man's soul man." He's known for his floating falsetto voice, gospel sound, and social commentary. He was with the group, "The Impressions" for 12 years recording such classics as "Gypsy Woman," "I'm so Proud," and "People Get Ready." After that he went solo. His score for "Superfly," was considered a musical breakthrough, and has inspired many of today's hip-hop performers. MAYFIELD was preparing for a comeback, with the release of "Return of Superfly," in 1990, when a freak stage accident left him paralyzed from the neck down. INT. 2: PETER SCHWEIZER, author of "Friendly Spies: How America's Allies are Using Economic Espionage to Steal our Secrets," (Atlantic Monthly Press). SCHWEIZER is a consultant for "NBC News," and he's written for the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, and the Washington Post. REV. : T-V critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Tribeca," which premieres tonight on Fox. It's a drama series, and Robert DeNiro is one of the producers.

---

Interview with John Darnton; Interview with Thomas Blanton; Review of Wynton Marsalis's album "Citi Movement." March 24, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501925].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:JOHN DARNTON, former New York Times reporter. He was based in Poland from 1979-1982 during the rise of the Solidarity movement and martial law. DARTON has just returned to Poland and wrote about it for the New York Times (Wed., March 17, 1993). He'll talk with Terry about what he found there. INT. 2: THOMAS BLANTON, of the National Security Archive, a group that declassifies government documents, using the freedom of information act. Recently his group accessed documents indicating that the Reagan administration was aware of human rights abuses in El Salvador in the 1980s. During that time, the administration was required to report to Congress about conditions in El Salvador, with the understanding that if the Salvadorian military did not improve it's human rights record, the U.S. would no longer send aid there. Last week, the U.N.’s Commission on the Truth issued it's report (based on these declassified documents) on abuses by the Salvadorian military, implicating them in the murders of Archbishop Romero, four American churchworkers, and six Jesuit priests. Congress is soon to begin hearings on U.S. policy in El Salvador during the civil war. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Citi Movement" by Wynton Marsalis.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Boris Yeltsin may be forced out of office tomorrow when the Congress of People's Deputies meets in a special session. WILLIAM TAUBMAN, a political science professor at Amherst College, was in Russia this January, and has visited the beleaguered country five times in the last 18 months. He talks about the current chaotic state of Russian politics. INT. 2: OLGA CARLISLE is the granddaughter of renowned Russian writer Leonid Andreyev. She grew up in Paris, but travelled to Russia in the 1960s, where she befriended that country's most prominent writers. For 20 years she was exiled from Russia because of her friendship with Alexander Solzhenitsyn, whose work she published in the west. She returned to her native country in 1989 to find it vastly changed. Her new memoir is "Under A New Sky: A Reunion with Russia" (Ticknor & Fields). REV. : Commentator Maureen Corrigan reviews "Bucket Nut" (Doubleday), a new crime novel by Liza Cody.

Interview with John Goodman; Interview with Kay Jamison; Review of the film "Born Yesterday." March 26, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501769].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: JOHN GOODMAN may be best known for his role as Dan Connor, a.k.a. Roseanne's husband, on the hit TV show "Roseanne." But he's been able to do what most cannot--carry on a successful film career and TV role at the same time. GOODMAN has appeared as a back-slapping traveling salesman who's also a demonic murderer in "Barton Fink," and as home run king Babe Ruth in "The Babe." His new movie is a remake of the Hollywood classic "Born Yesterday." INT. 2: What does 'artistic temperament' really mean? In her new book, "Touched With Fire: Manic-Depressive Illness and the Artistic Temperament" (Free Press), Kay Jamison has studied the psychological makeup of many of our most revered artists--Byron, Tennyson, Van Gogh, Hemingway—and linked their genius to manic-depression. Jamison looks at current treatments for manic-depression, and considers their affect on a patient's ability to create. Kay Jamison is Professor of Psychiatry at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the remake of "Born Yesterday," starring John Goodman, Melanie Griffith and Don Johnson.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: L.A. rocker and "spoken-word" artist HENRY ROLLINS. He used to be with the hard-core punk-rock group, Black Flag. He's also the current leader of the Henry Rollins Band. His "spoken word" performances are story-telling that goes back and forth between comedy and serious commentary. He has a new album of these performances, "Boxed Life," and a video, "Talking from the Box." (both by Imago). REBROADCAST (Originally aired 1/26/93) INT. 2: It's Oscar night. New Yorker film critic TERRENCE RAFFERTY joins Terry to talk about the best and worst of last year's movies, who should win tonight, and who probably will. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new historical novel, "The Rape of the Rose," by Glyn (GLEN) Hughes, about the Luddite rebellion in England. (Simon & Schuster).

Interview with Allan Berube; Interview with Leslie Harris; Review of Rosanne Cash's album "The Wheel." March 30, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501285].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ALLAN BERUBE (bah-RUE-bay). He wrote the book, "Coming Out Under Fire: The History of Gay Men and Women In World War II," (1990, The Free Press). For it, BERUBE spent ten years interviewing gay and lesbian veterans, searching out wartime letters, and consulting newly declassified government documents. He found that hundreds of thousands of gays entered the military despite a procedure for screening out homosexuals. Terry will talk with him about the ban on gays in the military and the hearings going on now, about whether it should be repealed. INT. 2: LESLIE HARRIS is the writer and director of "Just Another Girl on the IRT." This is HARRIS's first film, and with it she became one of few African-American women film directors to have her film released nationally. The tfilm won the special jury prize for a first-time film maker at the Sundance Film Festival. It's about a highschool junior, Chantel, who is an A-student, with a gift of gab and an attitude. The New York Times's Vincent Canby wrote of the character that she is, "almost as significant of her place and time as Booth Tarkington's Penrod is of his." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Rosanne Cash's latest album,
"The Wheel," (Columbia).

---

Interview with Kim Rich; Interview with Erik Larson; Commentary on traveling to the suburbs

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: KIM RICH. She's written a new memoir, "Johnny's Girl," (William Morrow & Co.) about growing up in Anchorage, Alaska during the oil boom years, the daughter of "one of the most notorious underworld figures in the city." Her father operated illegal gambling houses and massage parlors all over the city.
RICH's father was eventually murdered. INT. 2: Writer ERIK LARSON. When Larson's son had his first birthday, he received a corporate birthday card. Larson became interested in how companies know the intimate details of our lives. His new book, "The Naked Consumer" (Henry Holt & Co), is an investigation into direct marketing techniques--into how corporations collect the vast network of data they use to market their products. Larson is a national correspondent for The Wall STreet Journal. REBROADCAST.
Originally aired 12/23/92. REV. : Commentator and city-dweller Maureen Corrigan on venturing carless into the suburbs.

---

Interview with Jane Goodall; Interview with Jack Doroshow and Lewis Allen; Review of

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: She really can talk to the animals. Or at least the chimps. JANE GOODALL reflects on over 30 years in the company of one community of chimpanzees in the wilds of Tanzania. Goodall has co-written a new book, "Visions of Caliban" (Houghton Mifflin). INT. 2: The world of New York drag queens was captured on film long before "Paris Is Burning." In 1968, a movie called "The Queen" documented the Miss All-America Camp Beauty Pageant. The film was a sensation in New York City; it was even shown at the Cannes Film Festival. This month "The Queen" has been revived for a short run at New York's Film Forum. Terry talks with JACK DOROSHOW, also known as Sabrina, the organizer and mistress of ceremonies of the 1968 Miss All-America Camp Beauty Pageant. Executive producer LEWIS ALLEN also joins the conversation. REV. :Book critic John Leonard reviews "Operation Shylock" (Simon & Schuster).

---

Interview with Jim Galipeau; Interview with Rob Nilsson; Review of the television show "Good Advice." April 2, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502108].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Probation officer for Los Angeles County, JIM GALIPEAU (GAL-ih-poh). He works with gangs in Los Angeles, and is currently trying to raise money for a program with older gang members. GALIPEAU has been a probation officer for 27 years. He's a Vietnam vet, and when he was a teenager, he was a street fighter and drug addict. Terry talked with GALIPEAU in March, and invited him back for another conversation. INT. 2: ROB NILSSON is a film maker and founder of the Tenderloin Action Group in San Francisco. NILSSON works with "drifters and dreamers who shared the same conundrums of heart and head that confront us all." He works with people living on the streets. They have a grass-roots theatre group and are putting together a film, "Chalk," a pool-hall drama, with material from the lives of the actors themselves. NILSSON began the project as a way to alleviate his own feelings concerning his younger brother who lives on the streets. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Good Advice," the new sitcom that stars Shelley Long, formerly of "Cheers."

---

Interview with Lorenzo Carcaterra; Interview with Parnell Hall; Review of the CD box set series "DIY." April 5, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501287].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author LORENZO CARCATERRA (Car-CA-terra). He is managing editor of the CBS weekly series "Top Cops." He's written a memoir, "A Safe Place," (Villard Books) about growing up the son of a violent, loving, murderous, and generous father. They lived in New York's Hell's Kitchen during the 50s and 60s. Lorenzo found out at the age of 14 that his father had murdered his first wife when she threatened to leave him. REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 1/15/93. INT. 2: PARNELL HALL has been an actor, a private detective and a screenwriter -- he wrote the screenplay for the horror movie C.H.U.D. Now he is a novelist, writing mysteries featuring Stanley Hastings, a failed actor. REV. : Rock historian EDWARD reviews Rhino Record's DIY anthology (the Do It Yourself punk music of the 70s and 80s).

---

Interview with Tom Gjelten. April 6, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501873].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1 & 2: Foreign Correspondent for NPR, TOM GJELTEN. He's been reporting from Bosnia. Terry will talk with him about what it's been like to cover the war in the former Yugoslavia. GJELTEN just won the prestigious George Polk Award for his piece, "Massacre on the Mountaintop." The piece aired September 22, 1992 and described a massacre of 200 Bosnian Muslim men. The George Polk Award honors excellence in journalism. GJELTEN also reported on the Gulf War and on the conflicts in Central America. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

---

Interview with Bobby Robinson; Interview with Anna Quindlen; Review of Philip Kerr's novel "A Philosophical Investigation." April 7, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502111].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer BOBBY ROBINSON. He recorded many classic blues and R&B sessions for his Red Robin, Fire, Fury and Enjoy labels, and has also produced rap. He recorded Elmore Jones, Buster Brown, and Gladys Knight and the Pips. A new boxed collection has come out, "The Fire/Fury Records Story." (Capricorn Records). INT. 2: ANNA QUINDLEN, Pulitzer-prize winning columnist for The New York Times. She often writes about issues and events as they affect women. She has a new collection of her work, "Thinking Out Loud: On the Personal, the Political, the Public and the Private." REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews, "A Philosophical Investigation," a new science-fiction book by British writer Philip Kerr.
Interview with Paul Rudnick; Interview with Bill Frisell; Review of the made-for-TV movie "The Positively True Adventures of the Alleged Texas Cheerleader Murdering Mom." April 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502554].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PAUL RUDNICK is a essayist, novelist, and playwright. His latest play on off-Broadway is a comedy about AIDS, "Jeffrey," about a man who swears off love and sex. Frank Rich of The New York Times writes, "Instead of writing about the bleak absurdity of meaningless death, Mr. Rudnick. . . focuses on the far more manic, at times bizarrely festive absurdity of those who survive." RUDNICK also wrote the Broadway play, "I Hate Hamlet," about John Barrymore's ghost. And he writes a column in "Premiere, "If You Ask Me," in which he writes in the voice of a quintessential Jewish mother who critiques movie stars' personal lives more than their acting. INT. 2: Guitarist BILL FRISELL. He's recognized as a "genius of the guitar," one reviewer likened him to both a "painter and sonic psychopath:" "Mysterious grace notes emerge from the ether. Billowing sound clouds hover and haunt like the soundtrack to some David Lynch dream sequence." FRISELL is a prolific performer and recording artist. His latest album, "Have a Little Faith," (Elektra) pays tribute to the American music makers such as Muddy Waters, Madonna, John Hiatt and John Philip Sousa. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the second TV movie about the Texas mother who wanted to secure her daughter's place on the cheer leading squad by conspiring to kill a rival student and her mother. This one is on HBO, "The Positively True Adventures of the Alleged Texas Cheerleader Murdering Mom."

Interview with Russ Rymer; Interview with David Dellinger; Review of Calvin Trillin's book "Remembering Denny." April 9, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502340].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RUSS RYMER is a journalist who has written for The New Yorker, the New York Times, and the Washington Post. He has just written his first book, "Genie," (Harper Collins) which began as a couple of New Yorker articles last year. It's about the discovery in 1970 of a "wild-child," a thirteen year old girl who had lived her entire life locked in a room of her parent's house. Genie had no language or social skills. Her discovery coincided with a raging debate among scientists about the origin of language. Michael Dorris writes about the book, "At once a scientific detective story and an examination of professional ethics. . . disturbing, enlightening, and impossible to forget." INT. 2: DAVID DELLINGER is a longtime peace activist, editor and author. He was jailed for civil disobedience a generation before Daniel and Philip Berrigan. He was part of the "Chicago Seven," the group of seven antiwar demonstrators at the 1968 Democratic National Convention which erupted into violence between demonstrators and police. DELLINGER has written six books. His latest is an account of his spiritual journey, "Fram Yale to Jail." (Pantheon). REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Remembering Denny," the new book by Calvin Trillin.

Review of a CD of the opera "Lord Byron"; Interview with Jack Larson; Interview with Larry Rivers; Commentary on mothers protecting their sons. April 12, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502627].

Description of show segment(s)

REV.1 : .Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of the opera "Lord Byron," (Koch International) by American composer Virgil Thomson. It's the first complete recording of the opera. The librettist is JACK LARSON (an interview with LARSON follows): INT. 1: Librettist, poet, playwright JACK LARSON. Though, he got his career start as an actor: he played Jimmy Olsen, the cub-reporter on the original "Superman" TV show. One of his poems "The Relativity of Icarus" was part of a Joffrey Ballet." He's also written a couple of versed plays, "The Candied House," and "Cherry, Larry, Sandy, Doris, Jean, Paul." INT. 2: Painter LARRY RIVERS. He has a new autobiography, "What Did I Do?" (HarperCollins Publishers). RIVERS is known by art historians as "a great figurative painter,""the father of Pop Art," and is recognized as the first American artist to use vulgar objects in an artistic context. The book centers on his experiences as part of a loosely knit association of poets and painters who were young, poor and ambitious in New York in the 50's. RIVERS also was a jazz saxophonist, he appeared on camera and stage, did heavy drugs, and had an unashamed interest in sexuality that went from unconventional entanglements with both sexes to conventional participation in marriage and family life -- all of which he details in his new book. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/27/93) REV. : A reading by GARY PAULESEN from his new book, "Eastern Sun, Winter Moon."
Interview with William J. Crowe; Interview with Larry Colton. April 13, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502012].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Retired ADM. WILLIAM J. CROWE, JR. He was chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff under Presidents Reagan and Bush. He's now chair of Clinton's foreign intelligence advisory board. In the late1980s, CROWE developed an unusual friendship with his Soviet counterpart, Marshal Sergei F. Akromeyev, who later committed suicide after being accused of taking part in the Soviet coup. CROWE urged Bush to delay the start up in the Gulf War. And later, he endorsed Clinton for president. CROWE has written a new book, "The Line of Fire: From Washington to the Gulf, the Politics and Battles of the New Military," (Simon and Schuster). INT. 2: Writer LARRY COLTON. He has a new memoir, "Goat Brothers," (Doubleday) it's about he and his fraternity brothers at the University of California at Berkeley in the early 1960s and what happened to them. It's about a group of superjocks who are unprepared for life ahead. One reviewer writes, "a gripping, often painful look at lives that went right and awry in about equal measure."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer WALLACE STEGNER died today. We remember him with a rebroadcast of our April, 15, 1992 interview. INT. 2: ERNEST GAINES is the author of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" and "A Gathering of Old Men." He talks about growing up in rural Louisiana and his new novel, "A Lesson Before Dying" (Knopf), which brings together two black men, one a teacher, the other a death row inmate. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Marriage of Cadmus and Harmony," by Roberto Colasso (Knopf).
Interview with Marga Gomez; Interview with Michael Palin; Review of Sun Ra's albums "We Travel the Space Ways and Bad and Beautiful," "Super-Sonic Jazz," and "Jazz in Silhouette." April 15, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502014].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: San Francisco monologuist MARGA GOMEZ. In "Memory Tricks," her current show at the Public Theater in New York, Gomez talks about her mother, who worked as an exotic dancer. Her mother now suffers from Alzheimer's disease. INT. 2: MICHAEL PALIN is best known for his comedy work with England's legendary Monty Python troupe. But Palin's new movie, "American Friends," is a romance based on the life of his great-grandfather. Edward Palin was a 35 year-old tutor at Oxford University when he met 17-year-old Brita, an American girl touring Europe. Oxford tutors in the Victorian era were sworn to chastity, so Edward Palin left his job to marry Brita. Michael Palin found the story in his great-grandfather's journal. REV. : Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the Evidence label's reissues of three early SUN RA albums: "Bad and Beautiful," "Super-Sonic Jazz," and "Jazz In Silhouette." The LPs were originally recorded for Sun Ra's own Saturn records.

Interview with Peter O'Toole; Interview with Zbigniew Brezezinski; Review of the television show "Dudley." April 16, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502339].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Rafael Scharf; Review of Christa Wolf's books "What Remains and Other Stories" and "The Author's Dimension." April 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502013].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today is the 50th Anniversary of the beginning of the uprising in the Warsaw Ghetto. Terry talks with RAFAEL SCHARF. He's compiled a new book of photographs, "In The Warsaw Ghetto Summer 1941," (Aperture). The photographs were all taken one summer day in 1941 by German soldier and have never been published before. SCHARF was born in Poland, but left the country shortly before World War II. He is one of the founders of "The Jewish Quarterly," a London literary and political magazine. Many of SCHARF's relatives were killed in the camps.. INT. 2: Interview with RAFAEL SCHARF continued. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews two new books by Germany writer Christa Wolf, "What Remains & Other Stories," and "The Author's Dimension." (Farrar, Strauss & Giroux)

Interview with Sogyal Rinpoche; Interview with Victor Erofeev; Commentary on television coverage of the Waco standoff. April 20, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502555].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Tibetan buddhist master SOGYAL RINPOCHE ("soh-GYAL RIN-poh-chay," the ch as in chair). He was born in Tibet and raised by a master in the buddhist tradition. He also studied at Cambridge University in England. He has lived outside of Tibet, in exile, for 20 years. "Rinpoche" is a title usually given to incarnate Lamas, meaning "the Precious One." A few months ago, John Cleese of Monty Python fame introduced one of Rinpoche's talks, saying it was the first time he played warm-up man to an incarnate lama. Rinpoche is the incarnation of Terton Sogyal (1856-1926), a Tibetan mystic and the teacher of the last Dalai Lama. Rinpoche's new book, "The Tibetan Book of Living and Dying," combines Tibetan wisdom with modern research on death and dying. (HarperCollins) INT. 2: Russian literary critic and dissident writer, VICTOR EROFEEV (ER-row-FAY-ev). He's written his first novel, "Russian Beauty," (Viking). The book, about a young bisexual beauty who leaves the provinces for Moscow, has been a best-seller in Russia. EROFEEV is also the son of a Soviet diplomat. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the coverage of the WACO standoff and tragedy.
Interview with Joe Morgan; Interview with Sebastio Salgado; Review of Krystian Zimmermann's album "Klavierkonzerte." April 21, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503926].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Baseball Hall-of-Famer JOE MORGAN has a new memoir about his sports career. He's an accomplished second baseman as well as a well-rounded player. He talks about developing his skills and his experiences as a black athlete. INT. 2: SEBASTIO SELGADO is a Brazilian economist-turned-photojournalist. His latest exhibition and book are both called "Workers," a visual account of the working class. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new CD of pianist Krystian Zimmermann performing five Beethoven concerti. It's conducted by Leonard Bernstein.

Interview with Ray Bonner and Ginette Hemley; Interview with Peter Garrett; Review of the film "This Boy's Life." April 22, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502016].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist RAY BONNER cricises WWF for exaggerating the problem pay more attention to animals than people need to think about the economic needs of Africans and give them an economic reason for keeping the elephants alive. We also talk with Ginette Hemley, director of the Wildlife trade monitoring program of the World Wildlife Fund. INT. 2: FRESH AIR producer AMY SALIT talks with PETER GARRETT, lead singer of the Australian rock band MIDNIGHT OIL...a band known for its environmental and political activisim. They have a new album, EARTH AND SUN AND MOON (Columbia) REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie "THIS BOY'S LIFE." It's based on an autobiographical novel of the same name by Tobias Wolff. The movie stars Robert DeNiro and Ellen Barkin.
Interview with Amitav Ghosh; Review of Ivan Klima's novel "Judge on Trial"; Interview with Anna Deavere Smith; Review of the home video release of George Handel's "Giulio Cesare in Egitto."
April 26, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502209].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist AMITAV GHOSH. (AHM-eh-TAUUV GOSH) He was born in Calcutta and studied in India, Britian, and Egypt. He has a new novel, "In An Antique Land," (Knopf) which tells the story of two Indians in Egypt: a 12th century slave who GHOSH had read about, and GHOSH's own trip to Egypt to find out about the slave's life. GHOSH will also talk with Terry about the violence in India between Muslims and Hindus. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Judge on Trial," by Czech writer Ivan Klima. INT. 2: Actress and dramatist ANNA DEAVERE SMITH. She performs excerpts from her one-woman show, "Fires in the Mirror," which is currently played to sold out audiences at the Joseph Papp Public Theater in New York. It's about racial and ethnic tensions between African Americans and Hasidic Jews in Crown Heights, Brooklyn. The show will air over PBS's "American Playhouse," this Wednesday (April 28). The interview is a rebroadcast from 7/28/92. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a video version of Handel's opera Julius Caesar. It's by innovative stage director Peter Sellars.

Interview with George Shultz; Commentary on Washington D.C.'s Holocaust Memorial Museum and gay rights march; Interview with Aryeh Neier. April 27, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502140].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Secretary of State GEORGE SHULTZ. He has a new memoir, "Turmoil and Triumph: My Years As Secretary of State," (Scribners). Terry will talk with him mostly about the Iran-Contra Affair. Early on, SCHULTZ opposed any arms-for-hostages deal. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reflects on the opening of the Holocaust Memorial Museum and the Gay Rights March, both in Washington, D.C. INT. 2: Executive Director of Human Rights Watch, ARYEH NEIER (ARIA NIRE). He was in Sarejevo earlier this month. His group has just come out with a second volume of their report on war crimes in Bosnia-Hercegovina.
Interview with Kanan Makiya; Interview with Harry Shearer. April 28, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502137].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Iraqi dissident writer KANAN MAKIYA. He wrote, under the pseudonym Samir al-Khalil, the book "Republic of Fear," about Saddam Hussein's regime. The book was one of the first alarms about the brutality of Hussein's regime. MAKIYA has a new book, "Cruelty and Silence: War, Tyranny, Uprising and the Arab World." (W.W. NORTON). In the book he criticizes Arab intellectuals for keeping silent over escalating cruelties in the Arab world. INT. 2: Satirist, radio host, columnist, and one of the creators of and performers in the mock-rock group Spinal Tap, HARRY SHEARER. He also does several voices on "The Simpsons." SHEARER has a new book of the columns he wrote for the Los Angeles Times Magazine. He'll also be appearing tomorrow at The Museum of Television & Radio in New York City, to talk about his work on "Saturday Night Live" (he was on for a while) and his syndicated radio program, "Le Show." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER ATC PROMO).

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer TOBIAS WOLFF. Terry talked with him in 1989 after the release of his acclaimed memoir, "This Boy's Life" about his unhappy upbringing in a working-class town in Washington State in the late 1950s. The book has been adapted for screen; there's now a movie version starring, Robert DeNiro, and Ellen Barkin. WOLFF, who served in Vietnam, later worked as a reporter for The Washington Post, and has also written two highly regarded collections of short stories. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/31/89). INT. 2: Comic LEA DELARIA. (LEE-ah Dah-LAHR-ea) Don't call her a lesbian. She's a dyke. . . who does standup, and jazz singing. She has a new recording of songs, "Bulldyke in a China Shop," (LadySlipper Music). REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new book by Croatian journalist Slavenka Draculic, "The Balkan Express." (Norton)
Interview with Misha Glenny; Interview with Svetlana Slapsak and Zoran Mutic; Review of the film "Bound by Honor." April 30, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502142].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BBC correspondent MISHA GLENNY. (MEE-shah GLEN-knee) He's covered the war in the former Yugoslavia and is the author of the book "The Fall of Yugoslavia." Terry will talk with him about why he thinks there should be no intervention in Bosnia. (Terry last talked to him in December when his book came out). INT. 2: Two winners of the P.E.N./Freedom to Write Awards: Serbian dissident writer SVETLANA SLAPSAK (Svet-LAUNA SLAP-sack) and Bosnian writer ZORAN MUTIC (zoe-RON MOO-tick). Both fled Sarajevo and Belgrade respectively to avoid repercussions because of their outspokenness and are living in exile in Slovenia. MUTIC is of Serb/Muslim background and is a translator who translated Rushdie's "Midnight Children," into Serbian. After the death sentence against Rushdie, MUTIC became a staunch supporter of him in the Sarajevo community. SLAPSAK wrote the widely acclaimed essay, "When Words Kill." In 1968 she was beaten by police because of her editing of the magazine "Frontisterion." She is president of the Committee for the Liberty of Expression. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Bound by Honor," the new film directed Taylor Hackford.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British mystery writer LIZA CODY. Cody's new book BUCKET NUT (Doubleday) is her first featuring detective and female wrestler Eva Wylie, known in the ring as "The London Lassasin." Cody's earlier series of mystery novels about London security officer Anna Lee, include Headcase, Stalker, Under Contract, and Backhand which was short-listed for this year's Edgar Award for Best Novel. INT. 2: Poet, essayist and screenwriter JIMMY SANTIAGO BACA. He co-wrote the screenplay for the new movie BOUND BY HONOR." It's about three young Chicano men from East Los Angeles and the different paths they take as they grow into adulthood. BACA is a Chicano who grew up in an orphanage in New Mexico and ended up in prison at the age of 20. He taught himself to read and write there. His collections of poetry include Black Mesa Poems, and Immigrants in Our Own Land and Selected Early Poems. (New

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry has a discussion about the politics of identity, the strengths and limitations of social and political movements that define themselves by ethnicity, religion, gender, and sexual orientation. She talks with: 1) ELLEN WILLIS, professor of Journalism at NYU, and a former senior editor of The Village Voice. She's written extensively on feminist issues. Her new book of essays is "No More Nice Girls." (Wesleyan Press) 2) EDWARD SAID ("sigh-eed"), professor of literature at Columbia. He is a Palestinian American and has seen himself as someone who interprets the west for the middle east, and vice versa. His new book is "Culture and Imperialism," (Knopf) 3) GAYLE PEMBERTON, associate director of African American studies at Princeton. She's the author of "The Hottest Water in Chicago," a collection of autobiographical essays. (Faber & Faber). INT. 2: Novelist MICHAEL TOLKIN. He wrote the novel, "The Player," a satirical look at Hollywood which was made into a Robert Altman film. TOKIN also wrote and directed the film, "The Rapture." His newest work is a novel, "Among the Dead," (William Morrow & Co.). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews three new specials: "The Return of Ironside," on NBC; "The Beatles Songbook," on PBS; and HBO's documentary on the making of the sequel to the comedy film, "Hot Shots," which parodies the documentary about the making of Apocolypse Now.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Legendary Broadway dancer GWEN VERDON. She starred in "Damn Yankees," "Sweet Charity," "Redhead," and "Chicago." VERDON won four Tony awards and she's about to receive a lifetime achievement award from the New Dramatists playwrights workshop. INT. 2: Actor and director GARY SINISE (suh-NEESE). He was a founding member of Chicago's Steppenwolf Theater Company and is best known for his starring role in the Tony-award winning production of "The Grapes of Wrath." Sinise's latest project is as producer, director, and star of the new film "Of Mice and Men," which also stars John Malkovich. The screenplay, written by Horton Foote, is based on the John Steinbeck novel. REBROADCAST. Originally aired 9/24/92. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Willie Nelson's latest, "Over the Borderline."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor JASON ALEXANDER. He's best known as George Constanza on the NBC series "Seinfeld", where he plays Jerry Seinfeld's best friend. Alexander won a Tony Award in 1989 for his performance in "Jerome Robbin's Broadway." (REBROADCAST FROM 6/23/92) INT. 2: Terry talks with journalist FORREST SAWYER, who hosts the new television newsmagazine "Day One." Sawyer was recognized for his reporting during the Gulf War, when he split off from the press pack and brought in some of the earliest footage of surrendering Iraqi soldiers and the American liberation of Kuwait. (REBROADCAST FROM 3/3/93) REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews the new novel by Vikram Seth, "A Suitable Boy."
Interview with Arthur Alexander, Ben Vaughn, Bobby Jay, Seth Baer, and Mike Vogelmann; Interview with Jerry Wexler. May 7, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503448].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live concert with singer/songwriter ARTHUR ALEXANDER, whose songs were recorded on early records by The Beatles ("Anna") and The Rolling Stones ("You Better Move On"). Alexander's new album, "Lonely Just Like Me" (Elektra Nonesuch), is his first release in twenty years. INT. 2: A live interview with former Atlantic Records executive JERRY WEXLER. Wexler was the producer behind some of the greatest soul music of the 60s, including classic sessions with Aretha Franklin, Ray Charles, Wilson Pickett and Otis Redding.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor JOHN TURTURRO. He co-starred in Spike Lee's film, "Do the Right Thing." He's a favorite of the Coen brothers, who wrote parts specifically for him: he was Bernie the Schmatta in "Miller's Crossing," and the writer Barton Fink in the movie of the same name. He's just written, directed, and starred in the new movie, "Mac," based on his father. (REBROADCAST FROM 2/17/93) INT. 2: Filmmaker ALLISON ANDERS. Her 1992 film "Gas Food Lodging" has just been released on home video. It's about a single mother and her two teenage daughters living in a trailer. ANDERS herself was a single mother on welfare with two teenage girls. Previously, ANDERS collaborated on the film "Border Radio." (REBROADCAST FROM 7/31/92) REV. : Maureen Corrigan reviews "Rameau's Niece," the new novel by Cathleen Schine.
Interview with Liv Ullman; Interview with Tracy Johnston; Review of the film "Dave." May 11, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503447].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress LIV ULLMAN. She's best known for her work with director Ingmar Bergman. She's making her directing debut with the new film, "Sofie," based on a novel by Danish writer Henri Nathansen. ULLMAN also travels around the world on behalf of starving children, as Goodwill Ambassador for UNICEF. INT. 2: Writer TRACY JOHNSTON. She's written the book, "Shooting the Boh: a Woman's Voyage Down the Wildest River in Borneo," (Vintage Books). The book is not only an account of her adventure going down the river dealing with leeches, waterfalls, foot rot, and moldy clothes, but about her own realization that the hot flashes she was feeling in the middle of the night weren't the steamy jungle but the onset of menopause. One reviewer writes, "A powerful adventure of the head as well as the body: not to be missed," (Kirkus Reviews). REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/29/93 REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Dave" the new film starring Kevin Kline and Sigourney Weaver.

Interview with James Belushi; Interview with Wilton Barnhardt; Review of Zap Mama's self-titled album. May 12, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502789].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and comic JAMES BELUSHI. He's starring in the upcoming ABC series, "Wild Palms," produced by Oliver Stone. It's a thriller, set in the future. BELUSHI plays a television executive caught up in the computer-generated world of illusion that his network broadcasts. This technology known as "virtual reality," gives the illusion of being immersed in another world. BELUSHI is the brother of the late John Belushi. He was a member of Second City improvisational comedy troupe, and "Saturday Night Live." He's been in the films, "Salvador," "The Principal." Most recently he starred in the film, "Traces of Red," and is currently appearing on Broadway in "Conversations with My Father." INT. 2: Novelist WILTON BARNHARDT. He's getting alot of press and praise for his new novel, "Gospel," (St. Martin's Press) an 800-page saga about a present-day search for a lost gospel. It's been described as an "intellectual detective novel. . . written on the grand scale." (Library Journal). And, author Tony Hillerman writes of the book, "every ten years comes a novel so delightful, so exciting, that you want to grab perfect strangers and tell 'em about it." BARNHARDT's first novel was "Emma Who Saved My Life." REV. : World music critic MILO MILES reviews music by the women's acapella group, Zap Mama. They have a debut album called "Zap Mama." (Luaka Bop).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Inventor GARRETT BROWN. He revolutionized cinematography with the the steadicam, skycam, and the mobicam. The steadicam is a camera-suspension system that eliminates the jiggle in hand-held shots. BROWN's work with the steadicam can be seen in "Rocky," "The Shining," and "Return of the Jedi," and in many other films. The skycam is a suspended remote-controlled aerial camera, which gives the affect of putting the viewer in an airplane. It's been used alot in sports coverage and in complicated film shots. The mobicam, is for underwater shots, and has been used in the Olympics. BROWN is being honored at the Philadelphia Festival of World Cinema, where a film of his work has been shown. INT. 2: Writer and criminal defense lawyer, ALFREDO VEA, JR. He's just written his first book, a novel, "La Maravilla" (Dutton). It's based on his own life, growing up in the desert outside of Phoenix, where Mexican, Indian, Spanish, and Afro-American influences converged. The images of growing up there kept creeping up in VEA's work as a criminal lawyer, so he decided to write the book. REV. : T-V critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Wild Palms," the new series coming up on ABC.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer KEN LEVINE (pronounced "Le-Vine"). He's an Emmy Award-winning screenwriter and has been head writer for two of television's greatest shows: MASH and Cheers. He trained himself to be a baseball announcer out of a childhood love for the game, and has written a new book about his season as a broadcaster for the Baltimore Orioles: "It's Gone!...No, Wait a Minute" (Villard Books) He's now an announcer for the Seattle Mariners. INT. 2: Filmmaker ROSS MCELWEE. (Pronounced "Mac-al-wee") His new film is "Time Indefinite", a very autobiographical documentary about his marriage, the birth of his son and the death of his parents. MCELWEE'S earlier film "Sherman's March" started out as a documentary about Civil War General William Sherman's march to the sea and ended up a examination of personal identity and the mysteries of love. REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD fills in for our regular film reviewer STEPHEN SCHIFF who is in Cannes this week with the Film Festival.
WHITEHEAD reviews "Posse" a new film by MARIO VAN PEEBLES.

Interview with Haskell Wexler; Interview with Jeff Bridges; Commentary on print books in the

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: HASKELL WEXLER won Academy Awards for his cinematography on "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," and "Bound for Glory." He's been nominated for work on several other movies, including "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," and "Matewan." He's also the director of "Medium Cool."
Wexler is known for moving easily between marginal, political films and more mainstream fare. He was the subject of a retrospective at the American Museum of the Moving Image in New York in April. And his work and comments can be seen in the new documentary about cinematography, "Visions of Light."
REBROADCAST. Originally aired 3/16/93. INT. 2: Actor JEFF BRIDGES of the famous Bridges Family.
His father is Lloyd Bridges, star of the TV series "Sea Hunt," and his brother is actor Beau Bridges.
King." Now he's let his hair grow for the new film, "American Heart," directed by Martin Bell, who directed the documentary about Seattle street kids, "Streetwise." BRIDGES plays a newly released ex-con who is "cornered" by his teen-age son who he abandoned. REV. : Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG on why books will never be obsolete.

Interview with Michelangelo Signorile; Interview with Butch Thompson; Review of the book "Black
oclc/971502240].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MICHELANGELO SIGNORILE. He writes regularly for "The Advocate," and "Out"
He has a new book, "Queer in America: Sex, the Media, and the Closets of Power," (Random House). SIGNORILE is a proponent of "outing" -- that is revealing the homosexuality of someone in power or position whether that person wants it known or not. INT. 2:Pianist BUTCH THOMPSON. He and his trio, "the Butch Thompson Trio," were a regular on Garrison Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion." His specialty is classic jazz from 1890s to about 1940 including the music of Scott Joplin, Jelly Roll Morton, Fats Waller, Eubie Blake, and others. He has a new series of solo CDs entitled "The 88s" (on Daring, a Boston label distributed by Rounder Records). It includes recordings of classic jazz. REV. : Gayle Pemberton reviews Black Women in White America, edited by GERDA LERNER.

Interview with Arthur Alexander; Interview with Elizabeth Bartholet; Commentary on Connie Chung and the CBS Evening News. May 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502239].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A conversation with singer/songwriter ARTHUR ALEXANDER, whose songs were recorded on early records by The Beatles ("Anna") and The Rolling Stones ("You Better Move On"). He was slated to tour with Otis Redding the week Redding died in a plane crash. Alexander's new album, "Lonely Just Like Me" (Elektra Nonesuch), is his first release in twenty years. INT. 2: Harvard Law professor ELIZABETH BARTHOLET, (pronounced "BARTH-o-let") author of "Family Bonds: Adoption & the Politics of Parenting" (Houghton Mifflin). In her book, Bartholet -- the mother of two adopted Peruvian boys-- examines transracial, single and older-parent families, and challenges current societal priorities about parenting, adoption and infertility. REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN plays hardball with Dan Rather and Connie Chung.

Interview with Anne Lamott; Interview with Mike Huber and Barbara Bowen; Review of the television show "Cheers." May 20, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502788].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ANNE LAMOTT has written a new book about being a mother for the first time (and single, at that), "Operating Instructions: A Journal of My Son's First Year." (Pantheon Books). One reviewer writes of the book, "an emotional roller coaster ride. Painfully honest, laced with humor and poetry and moments of profound insight, it captures the intense fluctuations of feeling, the rapid alternation of exhilaration and fury, love and despair, that characterizes new parenthood." LAMOTT is also the author of the novels, "Hard Laughter," and "All New People." INT. 2: Former staff members on The Johnny Carson Show, MIKE HUBER and BARBARA BOWEN. They were, respectively, correspondent and co-correspondent for Carson and they had the job of reading letters sent from fans and non-fans of the show. They collected the most memorable ones in the new book, "Dear Johnny: Johnny Carson's Most Hilarious & Bizarre Fan Mail." (Optima Books). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the final episode of "Cheers" which airs tonight.

Interview with Cokie Roberts; Review of the film "Sliver." May 21, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502133].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: COKIE ROBERTS, Political Analyst for NPR and ABC. Her full name is Mary Martha Corinne Morrison Claiborne Boggs Roberts and she is perhaps the consummate "Washington Insider". The daughter of parents who shared a Congressional seat for a combined total of fifty years, Roberts' star in journalism is rising, covering the capital for NPR, and on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley", as well as substituting for Ted Koppel on "Nightline" In a conversation recorded live before an audience, Terry asks her about covering Congress and how her political upbringing affects her reporting. (This interview continues into the second half of the show). INT. 2: Conversation with Cokie Roberts continues. REV. : Regular STEPHEN SCHIFF is covering the final days of the Cannes Film Festival, and Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD fills in with a review of "Sliver."

Interview with Randy Shilts; Interview with Andrew Whitley; Tribute to Ella Fitzgerald. May 23, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502136].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist RANDY SHILTS. He's national correspondent for the San Francisco Chronicle. His Book, "And the Band Played On," was one of the earliest books written about the AIDS epidemic and it's impact on the gay community. SHILTS' new book is about gay life in the military, "Conduct Unbecoming:
Lesbians and Gays in the U.S. Military, Vietnam to the Persian Gulf." (St. Martin's Press). SHILTS started the book in 1988, before the current debate about gays in the military. SHILTS, himself, now has AIDS.

INT. 2: Director of the human rights group, Middle East Watch, ANDREW WHITLEY. On Tuesday the Mideast Peace Talks start up again. Terry talks with WHITLEY about the human rights situation in Israel and the Occupied Territories. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD pays tribute to Ella Fitzgerald who turns 75 this Sunday. He uses music from: "The Harold Arlen Songbook," (Verve), "75th Birthday Celebration," (Decca/GRP), "First Lady of Song," (Verve). The Decca and Verve recordings are both new.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Authors SETH CAGIN and PHILIP DRAY. Their new book is "Between Earth and Sky: How CFCs Changed Our World and Endangered the Ozone Layer," (Pantheon Books). It's about how CFCs (or chlorofluorocarbons) went from being the "miracle compound" the the biggest threat to the ozone layer. CFCs came into being in 1928 and made possible the mass use of refrigerators and air conditioners. By the 1950s they were used in aerosol sprays and in the manufacture of Styrofoam. But by 1974, scientists began to see the affects of CFCs on the ozone layer. SETH and CAGIN are also the authors of "We Are Not Afraid: The Story of Goodman, Schwerner, and Chaney and the Civil Rights Campaign for Mississippi." INT. 2: Producer Amy Salit interviews singer/songwriter, guitarist JOE ELY. He's been called the "underappreciated American rock 'n' roll legend." This country rocker hails from Lubbock, Texas and has been recording and playing music for about 20 years, and has released nine albums. He began his career playing more traditional country but now leans more toward the country-rockin' blues that has become a distinctive Texas sound. His latest album is "Love and Danger," (MCA/Nashville). Another reviewer says of ELY's music, "it's got the dynamic locomotion of rock, the righteous sassiness of blues, the narrative twang of country, and the hook-filled melodic sheen of pop." REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Drums Along the Congo," by Rory Nugent (Houghton Mifflin).
Interview with Isabel Allende; Interview with Don Des Jarlais; Commentary on the Estuary English accent. May 25, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502275].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chilean novelist ISABEL ALLENDE (ah-YEN-day). She's one of the few females in the male-dominated world of Latin American novelists. She's the niece of Chile's ousted President Salvador Allende, who was pushed out during a 1973 coup and assassinated. ISABEL left Chile after the military coup and went to Venezuela. She moved to the U.S. five years ago after falling in love with an American, and now lives in California. Her new book, "The Infinite Plan," (HarperCollins) is the first time she's set a story in the U.S. about a white American family. ALLENDE is also the author of "The House of Spirits," "Of Love and Shadows," and other novels. INT. 2: DON DES JARLAIS (Day-gjar-LAY). He's an expert on AIDS and HIV infection among drug users. He's the Director of Research at the Beth Israel Medical Center's Chemical Dependency Institute in New York. And the Deputy Director for AIDS Research, National Development and Research Institutes, New York. He's also a consultant on AIDS to the National Institute on Drug Abuse, Centers for Disease Control, and the World Health Organization. REV. :Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg. Dubious about "Estuary English", a new accent in London.

Interview with Susan Stamberg; Interview with Muriel Spark; Review of Robert Ward's novel "King of Cards." May 26, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502274].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NPR Broadcast journalist, SUSAN STAMBERG. Stamberg was co-host of NPR's award-winning newsmagazine "All Things Considered" for fourteen years and the host of the Sunday show, "Weekend Edition" from its inception in 1987. She's collected her favorite interviews from the past two decades in a new book about her years with public radio, "Talk" (Random House). INT. 2: Writer MURIEL SPARK who has been said to "uphold the great tradition of the English Catholic novel." She's a prolific writer, having written 19 novels, including "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," (1961) and "Momento Mori," (1959). SPARK has a new memoir about her first 39 years, "Curriculum Vitae," (Houghton Mifflin). The memoir includes stories about school teacher Miss Christina Kay (the character of Jean Brodie was based on her), Spark's marriage at 19 to a man 13 years older, (who she later divorced), their Interview with Tom Segev; Interview with James Foley; Review of the film "Cliffhanger." May 27, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502058].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: One of Israel's leading journalists, TOM SEGEV (pronounced like NEGA in negative). He has a new book, "The Seventh Million: The Israelis and The Holocaust," (Hill & Wang) in which he argues that some Israelis use the holocaust to encourage Israeli chauvinism and aggression. SEGEV writes a weekly column on politics and human rights for the daily newspaper "Haaretz." INT. 2: Director JAMES FOLEY. His most recent film is the screen adaptation of David Mamet's Pulitzer Prize winning play, s"Glengarry Glen Ross," which is now out on video. It stars Jack Lemmon, Al Pacino, and Ed Harris. FOLEY made his directorial debut in 1984 with "Reckless." He directed and co-wrote the critically acclaimed thriller "After Dark, My Sweet" two years ago. REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/2/92 REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Cliffhanger".

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and Theater Director, WILLIAM H. MACY. A member of Playwright David Mamet's circle of theater innovators, Macy has most recently starred in Mamet's new play "Oleanna", and was featured in his film "Homocide". They co-founded the Atlantic Theater Company, an ensemble which performs mainly original works by American writers. Members of the company wrote "A Practical Handbook For The Actor", (Vintage Books) from notes taken during acting workshops led by Mr. Macy. One critic writes that the ensemble "has rescued theater from the mindless". Actor NEIL PEPE joins the conversation at the beginning of the interview. INT. 2: Life inside "Super Mario Brothers". Journalist DAVID SHEFF gained unprecidented access to the toy wizards at the Nintendo Corporation, and his new book "Game's Over" (Random House) explores the Japanese domination of the video-game market. REV. : TV critic David Bianculli reviews a new mystery-comedy series NBC seems eager to kill.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Sheldon Harnick; Interview with Kenneth Branagh, Review of three albums featuring Lee Konitz.

Interview with Howard Kurtz; Interview with Evan Handler; Commentary on the female condom. June 1, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501991].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist HOWARD KURTZ. He is media reporter for "The Washington Post." He has a new book, "Media Circus: The Trouble with America's Newspapers," (Times Books). In the book he looks at how the press has bungled some important stories like the HUD scandal and the S&L mess, the William Kennedy Smith trial, and the Clarence Thomas hearings. INT. 2: Actor EVAN HANDLER. He's played leading roles in seven Broadway productions including, "Six Degrees of Separation," "Brighton Beach Memoirs," and "Master Harold. . . and the boys." He's 32 now; seven years ago he was diagnosed with leukemia. He had a bone marrow transplant, and he's not considered free of the disease. He has a new monologue, "Time on Fire," about his four year struggle with leukemia. REV. : Reporter Elizabeth Kaye writes for "The New York Times." Recently she wrote a column on the new birth control device known as the female condom. That's what her commentary is about too. This is her first commentary with Fresh Air.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychiatrist PETER D. KRAMER. Kramer has written "Listening to Prozac" (Viking Books): an examination of the larger issues behind drugs that reshape temperament. Prozac is the most widely prescribed antidepressant today, with some four and a half million users since its introduction in 1987. Kramer raises serious questions about this "miracle mood enhancer": are we headed into an age of cosmetic pharmacology? If a pill is not used to alter an illness, but rather personality, what then is "the self"? And what are the social ramifications for women, in light of the Valium and Lithium use of the 1960's? INT. 2: Interview with Psychiatrist Peter Kramer continues. REV. : Rock Critic Ken Tucker on a new direction in rap: PM Dawn's new album: "The Bliss Album: Vibrations of Love & Anger & the Ponderance of Life & Existence".

Interview with Jo Carol Pierce; Interview with David Halberstam; Review of the film "Menace II Society." June 3, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502134].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Austin singer/songwriter, performance artist, JO CAROL PIERCE. She won the "Songwriter of the Year" award at the 1993 Austin Music Awards. A tribute album of her songs performed by other singers, "Across the Great Divide," won the Album of the Year Award. She's originally from Lubbock, Texas -- where it seems anybody who wants to be somebody in the Texas music scene must be from. She's little known outside Texas, but has a cult following in Austin. PIERCE'S songs are quirky, and spiritual. Her song, "I Blame God," has been called, "a slice of metaphysical slapstick with the dark humor of a honky-tonk Dostoevski." PIERCE also wrote and performed the one-woman show, "'Bad Girls Upset About the Truth," told in story and song about her problems with men and Jesus. INT. 2: Pulitzer-prize winning journalist DAVID HALBERSTAM. He has a new book which is a social, political, economic, and cultural history of what he considers the pivotal decades of the century, "The Fifties." (Villard Books). HALBERSTAM's other books include, "The Best and the Brightest," "The Powers That Be," and others. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Menace to Society."
Interview with Stan Sesser; Interview with Allen Hughes and Albert Hughes; Tribute to Sun Ra. June 4, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501930].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist STAN SESSER. A "Reporter at Large" in Southeast Asia for the New Yorker, Sesser has collected some of those pieces in a new book "The Lands of Charm and Cruelty: Travels in Southeast Asia" (Knopf). Sesser discusses the recent elections in Cambodia; elections which featured violence, twenty political parties and massive voter turnout. INT. 2: ALLEN and ALBERT HUGHES, 21-year old twins, and directors of "Menace To Society" (Fine Line). Their mother steered them away from drugs and gangs when they were twelve by buying them video equipment. After making several music videos and short films, they've made their first feature. It's a picture firmly in the gangster genre, an unflinching film about young men growing up in Watts. The film's 23-year old screenwriter Tyger Williams explains: "For every 'good' kid that makes it out of the ghetto, there are five more who don't. We asked the question, 'What's their story?' REV. : Legendary musician and band-leader SUN RA died Sunday at the age 79; we pay tribute to his otherworldly brand of jazz with an excerpt from a concert he performed six years ago in Philadelphia.

Interview with Mark Pendergrast; Interview with Carole King; Review of Nancy Mairs' book "Ordinary Time." June 7, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501365].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Business Journalist MARK PENDERGRAST. His new book is "For God, Country, and Coca-Cola: The Unauthorized History of the Great American Soft Drink and the Company that Makes It." (Charles Scribners). In the book PENDERGRAST shows how Coca-Cola, a drink that's 99% sugar water, became the world's most widely distributed product, and a symbol for the Western way of Life. INT. 2: REBROADCAST of an interview with singer/songwriter Carole King. In the 60s, she wrote hit songs like "Up on the Roof" and "Will you still love me tomorrow?" But in the 70s, she achieved lasting fame with songs like "Natural Woman" and her album "Tapestry," Best-selling album of the decade. Carole King has a new album, "Colour of Your Dreams," (King's X Records) (Originally aired 6/19/89) REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Ordinary Time: Cycles in Faith, Marriage, and Renewal" the new autobiography by Nancy Mairs, who is dying of the progressive disease, multiple sclerosis.

Interview with Jim Morris; Commentary on language in the business world; Interview with Brian Sietsema; Review of Julianna Raye's album "Something Peculiar." June 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501361].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political satirist and impressionist JIM MORRIS. He's always done impressions. He began lampooning the Presidents at about the time Reagan was sworn in to office. Since then he's impersonated Bush, and Clinton, as well as presidential contenders, Michael Dukakis, Paul Tsongas, and Ross Perot. He's also impersonated some well known broadcasters. He impersonated Bush at the White House Correspondents Association Dinner, in front of the President himself in 1989. CBS's Mike Wallace described it as "Mean. Mean. Mean. Mean." And The New Yorker says of MORRIS, "Like an obsessive character actor, Mr. Morris doesn't just impersonate his subjects; he becomes them." REV. 1.: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG considers the use of language in the business world. INT. 2: The Tenth edition of "Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary," is out. Terry talks about pronunciation with one of the book's Associate Editors, BRIAN SIETSEMA ("seat-SEE-ma"). REV. 2.: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the debut album from JULIANNA RAYR: "Something Peculiar".

Interview with Mark Richard; Interview with Jack Sheldon; Tribute to Arthur Alexander. June 9, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502094].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer MARK RICHARD ("rih-SHAR") of cajun, creole and French descent, has written his first novel: "Fishboy" (Doubleday), after an award winning collection of short stories: "Ice at the Bottom of the World". "Fishboy" is a novel of a boy's sea journey, "replete with ghosts, sea creatures and violent shipmates". Richard's prose style has been singled out for praise, with one critic hailing the novel as "an eloquent fever dream". INT. 2: Trumpeter and Singer, JACK SHELDON. For many years he was bandleader and sidekick for Merv Griffin's talkshow. SHELDON has been involved with some of the great names of jazz: he sang with Benny Goodman, was a childhood friend of Chet Baker's, and played burlesque with Lenny Bruce. He's just released a new record of standards: "On My Own" (Concord Records). REV. : Singer Arthur Alexander died this day. We remember him.

Interview with Max Richtman; Interview with David Remnick; Review of the film "Jurassic Park." June 10, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502100].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Executive Vice President of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, MAX RICHTMAN (the "t" is silent). Terry will talk with him about how Clinton's budget proposal will impact Social Security and Medicare. RICHTMAN is critical of Clinton's plan to raise the tax on Social Security benefits. INT. 2: Journalist DAVID REMNICK talks with Terry about the impact of History on today's Russia. REMNICK was in Moscow recently and wrote the article, "Yeltsin's Tightrope," for The New Yorker. (May 10, 1993 issue). REMNICK also covered the Soviet Union for The Washington Post from 1988-1990. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Jurassic Park," the new Stephen Spielberg film.

Interview with Martin Scorsese; Review of the Thelonious Monk Quartet's album "Live at the Five Spot June 11, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501363].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Legendary American Filmmaker, MARTIN SCORSESE. As part of a retrospective of his work by the Film Society of Lincoln Center, The Department of Cinema Studies at Tisch School of the Arts last week presented "An Evening With Martin Scorsese" a wide ranging question and answer session taped live before an audience at New York University. We play portions of this discussion, where Scorsese examines the art of cinema and his own body of work. For the next several months, the cable channel Cinemax is running "Martin Scorsese Presents", a collection of six of the director's favorite films, hosted and with an introduction by Scorsese. INT. 2: Live question and answer session continues with Martin Scorsese. REV. : Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews a newly discovered concert from 1957 of the Thelonious Monk Quartet featuring John Coltrane, "Live at the Five Spot" (Blue Note).
Interview with Peter Friedman; Review of four mystery novels; Interview with Bill Frisell; Obituary for Ray Sharkey. June 14, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502220].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The film "Silverlake Life: The View From Here" was started by filmmaker and film teacher Tom Joslin to document his and his lover's battles with AIDS. Joslin asked his former film student PETER FRIEDMAN to complete the film after Joslin's death. We'll talk with Friedman about working on "Silverlake Life," which opens the sixth season of PBS' P.O.V. series on Tuesday, June 15. REV. MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews four new and older, lesser known mystery novels. INT. 2: Rebroadcast of interview with BILL FRISSELL. REV.: A tribute to actor RAY SHARKEY who died on Friday, with an excerpt from a 1988 interview with him.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MOLLY MOORE. She is New Delhi bureau chief for "The Washington Post." She covered the war in the Gulf, traveling with a general and his troops into Kuwait, where she says she witnessed "the fiercest and most chaotic 100 hours" of the War. This was the allied ground attack on Iraqi troops, and the liberation of Kuwait. MOORE has written a new book about it, "A Woman at War: Storming Kuwait with the U.S. Marines." (Charles Scribner's Sons). INT. 2: Writer PAUL BOWLES. For 45 years he's been writing novels, stories, essays, poetry and autobiography. But he started out as a composer. Aaron Copeland was his musical mentor. BOWLES was friends with and directed in a literary pursuit by Gertrude Stein and Alice Toklas. Later, BOWLES became a "resident guru" for several generations of American writers including Tennesee Williams and William Burroughs. Since 1947, BOWLES has lived as an American expatriate in Tangier, Morocco. He's best known for his novel, "The Sheltering Sky," . He's written many books. His latest is "Too Far From Home: Selected writings of Paul Bowles," (Ecco Press). BOWLES is 82 years old. REV.: Book critic John Leonard reviews Andre Brink's new novel Cape of Storms.
Interview with Abby Lincoln; Interview with Arnold Rampersad; Commentary on the phrase "you know." June 16, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501932].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz singer/songwriter, ABBY LINCOLN. Her new record is "Devil's Got Your Tounge" (Verve). Once married to legendary jazz drummer Max Roach, she's made her mark on jazz for almost 40 years, singing with giants like Benny Carter, Sonny Rollins and Coleman Hawkins. Lincoln has been hailed by one critic as the "Last Great Diva", and says herself that she sings in the tradition of Sarah Vaughan, Bessie Smith and Billie Holiday. INT. 2: ARNOLD RAMPERSAD, professor of Literature at Princeton, biographer of Langston Hughes and co-author of tennis star Arthur Ashe's memoir, "Days of Grace" (Knopf). Ashe died this year at age 49 from AIDS he contracted during open heart surgery. He was the first African American tennis champion, winning the United States Open in 1968, and going on to capture three Grand Slam titles. He has remained a vital presence in the sport, and his autobiography features portraits of the great celebrities of Tennis. Ashe talks candidly in "Days of Grace" about privacy issues, the media, race and education. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG defends the use of "you know."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: She really can talk to the animals. Or at least the chimps. JANE GOODALL reflects on over 30 years in the company of one community of chimpanzees in the wilds of Tanzania. Goodall has co-written the new book, "Visions of Caliban" (Houghton Mifflin). REBROADCAST. Originally aired 4/1/93. INT. 2: ROBERT SHOPE, Co-chair of the Committee on Emerging Microbial Threats to Health. Shope is also a physician and professor of epidemiology at the Yale University School of Medicine. SHOPE was part of the team that identified the virus that caused Lyme disease, and the rabies-related virus. Terry will talk with him about the on-going threat to our health by emerging viruses. SHOPE was also one of the editors of the book, "Emerging Infections: Microbial Threats to Health in the United States." (National Academy Interview with Leslie Nielsen; Interview with Susan Loesser; Review of the film "Last Action Hero." June 18, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502463].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor LESLIE NIELSEN. Perhaps best known for his comic roles in Airplane! and the Naked Gun films, Nielsen has been acting since the late forties, after he was taught radio broadcasting by Lorne Greene. He's just written a "fictional autobiography" called "The Naked Truth" (Simon & Schuster) a pun-encrusted look at nearly fifty years of showbusiness. INT. 2: Behind the scenes during the golden age of the Broadway musical: SUSAN LOESSER (pronounced "lesser"), daughter of Frank Loesser, composer of the classic songs "Heart and Soul" and "Baby It's Cold Outside". He also wrote the score for "Guys and Dolls" which is now being revived on Broadway. LOESSER's new memoir of her father is "A Most Happy Fella" (Donald I Fine). REV. : Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the "last" big summer film, the one with Arnold Schwarzenegger: "The Last Action Hero".

Interview with Kate McGarrigle and Anna McGarrigle; Commentary on single motherhood. June 21, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502770].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A CONCERT with the McGarrigle sisters, Kate and Anna. There's a new CD of their first two albums, released in the late 70s: "Kate & Anna McGarrigle" and "Dancer with Bruised Knees." The McGarrigles are known for their close and "subtle harmony." Their music is considered hard to categorize, although it sounds folky. The sisters absorbed an eclectic blend of music when they were growing up in Canada: Victorian ballads, blues, jazz, French-Canadian folk songs, Broadway tunes, and country music. They may be best known for their song, "Heart Like a Wheel," which was the title track on Linda Ronstadt's most successful album. INT. 2: CONCERT with the McGarrigles continued. REV. : Writer and single-mom ANNE LAMOTT explains to her son, why he has no father.
Interview with Barnett Rubin; Interview with Terrence McNally; Review of the television show "Late Night with David Letterman." June 22, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502772].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: An expert on Central Asia and Afghanistan, BARNETT RUBIN, Associate Professor of Political Science at Columbia University, and a former Peace Fellow with the United States Institute of Peace. He's just returned from three former soviet republics which have large Muslim populations. RUBIN said the republics are now run by ex-communists. While there, he did some reporting for Human Rights Watch. RUBIN will also discuss the aftermath of the Afghan War, how many of the radical Arabs who went to Afghan to help the rebels, are now taking their "holy war" elsewhere. INT. 2: Playwright TERRENCE MCNALLY. He's best known for the script he wrote for "Kiss of the Spider Woman," based on the Manuel Puig novel which was made into a movie and has recently been made into a Broadway musical. His newest play is, "A Perfect Ganesh." MCNALLY helped develop Off- and Off-Off Broadway in the early 70s. His off-Broadway hits include "The Lisbon Traviata," about a Callas-worshipping opera fanatic, "Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune," (which was made into a movie starring Michelle Pfeiffer and Al Pacino), and "Lips Together, Teeth Apart," and others. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the last of "Late Night with David Letterman." This is the last week of the David Letterman show as we know it. In August he shows up on CBS with another talk show.

Interview with Buddy Killen; Interview with Diana Abu-Jaber; Review of the album "Cortot, Thibaud, Casals June 23, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502771].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Buddy Killen; Interview with Diana Abu-Jaber; Review of the album "Cortot, Thibaud, Casals

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Yelena Khanga; Review of the film "Sleepless in Seattle"; Interview with Stan Winston; Commentary on the rock band Roxy Music.

---

Interview with John Le Carre; Interview with Bill Geist; Review of Donald Fagen's album "Kamakiriad." June 25, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502992].

Description of show segment(s)

MARTY MOSS-COANE guest-hosted INT. 1: Literary Spy Master, JOHN LE CARRE (pronounced "Luh Karay"). An author at the pinnacle of the espionage genre, LE CARRE has written such classics as "Smiley's People", "Tinker Tailor, Soldier, Spy", and "The Russia House". LE CARRE has shifted his gaze to the Gulf War and international arms dealers in his new novel "The Night Manager" (Alfred A. Knopf). INT. 2: Correspondent for CBS's Sunday Morning and the Sunday edition of CBS Evening News, BILL GEIST. (pronounced like "Heist"). He's been a Little League coach for over 10 years and has written a funny book about it, "Little League Confidential: One Coach's Completely Unauthorized Tale of Survival." (Dell). REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new Donald Fagen solo record "Kamakiriad" (Reprise), which was produced by Fagen's longtime Steely Dan cohort, Walter Becker.

---

Interview with Kim Rich; Interview with Ed Harris; Commentary on Merengue rap music. June 28, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502462].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist KIM RICH. She's written a memoir, "Johnny's Girl," (William Morrow & Co.) about growing up in Anchorage, Alaska during the oil boom years, the daughter of "one of the most notorious underworld figures in the city." Her father operated illegal gambling houses and massage parlors all over the city. RICH's father was eventually murdered. [REBROADCAST. Originally aired 3/31/93.] INT. 2:

Interview with Tom Rosenstiel; Review of Ahdaf Soueif's novel "In the Eye of the Sun"; Interview with Kristin Clark Taylor; Review of Hans Reichel's album "Shanghaied on Tor Road." June 29, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502461].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Media and Political Correspondent for The L.A. Times, TOM ROSENSTIEL. During the 1992 Presidential campaign, he followed the ABC news team to see how the news media and the candidates affected each other and the campaign. His new book is "Strange Bedfellows: How Television and the Presidential Candidates Changed American Politics, 1992." (Hyperion). REV: JOHN LEONARD reviews "In the Eye of the Sun" by Ahdaf Soueif. INT. 2: KRISTIN CLARK TAYLOR was President Bush's White House director of media relations. In so doing she was the first African-American woman in history to hold that post. She's written a new book about it, "The First to Speak: A Woman of Color inside the White House." (Doubleday). REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Shanghaied on Tor Road," a new release of German improviser and guitarist Hans Reichel playing an instrument of his own invention, the daxophone. (FMP music).

Interview with Freedy Johnston; Interview with Angela Bassett; Review of the television show "CBS Reports." June 30, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502769].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer, Songwriter, guitarist FREEDY JOHNSTON. (yes, it's "Freedy") He has four albums to his credit. The latest is "Unlucky," (Bar None Records). His previous album, "Can You Fly," brought him to attention of many critics and garnered him much acclaim. One critic wrote, "the strongest album by a new male singer-songwriter in at least a decade." What's he sound like? His songs have been described as "post-punk honky-tonk. . . performed by a lonely, heartbroken wiseass." INT. 2: Actress ANGELA BASSETT. She recently had the intimidating job of playing Tina Turner in the new film, "What's Love Got to Do with it." Her performance has been widely praised. BASSETT's other roles include the mother of a troubled teenager in "Boyz N the Hood," and the wife of the black Muslim leader in Spike Lee's "Malcolm X." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "CBS Reports," the documentary series which is returning to the network.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: In Bosnia, Cambodia, Somalia, and other countries, the role of U.N. peacekeeping forces is being redefined. BRIAN URQUHART, former U.N. Under-Secretary General, talks about what these forces are up against and what they can reasonably achieve. INT. 2: Interview with Brian Urquhart continues. REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new movie "The Firm," which stars Tom Cruise, Gene Hackman, Ed Harris and Holly Hunter.

Interview with George Clinton; Interview with Mel Brooks; Review of Patricia Cornwell's novel "Cruel and Unusual." July 2, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457858].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: The master of funk, GEORGE CLINTON. He began his musical career as a teenager when he formed The Parliaments. But in the early 70s, Clinton put together a second group, "Funkadelic," that became enormously influential on the pop music scene. Their 1970 album, "Osmium," set the tone for Clinton's wickedly eclectic style; songs ranged from metaphysical gospel to country and acid rock. But their big hit came with the album "Mothership Connection." In songs like "Tear the Roof Off the Sucker," "Get Up on the Downstroke" and "Think! It ain't illegal yet," Clinton blended rap with a heavy rhythm line that defined the funk sound and culture.(REBROADCAST from August 8, 1989.) INT. 2: Comedian and film maker MEL BROOKS. Brooks has made some of the funniest films in movie history, including "The Producers," "Young Frankenstein," and "Blazing Saddles." (REBROADCAST from July 30, 1991.) REV. : Maureen Corrigan reviews the new Patricia Cornwell mystery, "Cruel and Unusual".
Interview with Sydney Pollack; Interview with Maya Angelou; Interview with Willie Nelson; Interview with Charles Brown. July 5, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457603].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Sydney Pollack; Interview with Maya Angelou; Interview with Willie Nelson; Interview with Charles Brown.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: President and CEO of Planned Parenthood of New York City, ALEXANDER SANGER. Terry will talk with him about his work there, and about carrying on the work that his grandmother, Margaret Sanger pioneered. One of the projects they are involved in is training doctors in abortion practices. This is in response to a drop in training programs in OB/GYN residency programs, where it's fallen 50 percent since 1985. INT. 2: PETER KINDER, from Kinder, Lydenberg, Domini & Co., Inc., a firm that provides social research on U.S. Corporations to investment professionals. He's just co-written the new book, "Investing for Good: Making Money While Being Socially Responsible." (HarperBusiness). REV. :Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a number of new recordings conducted by composer Pierre Boulez (Boo-LEZZ). Three new discs of Stravinsky, Bartok, and Debussy (on Deutsche Grammophon). The Erato label has a new recording, and so does Sony (Boulez's greatest hits).

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress and Stanford Theater Professor, ANNA DEAVERE SMITH. She performs solo, multi-casted pieces, the scripts of which are transcripts of interviews with real participants of events. "Fires in the Mirrors" (aired on PBS) gave voice to the many facets of the Crown Heights riots. Her new show is "Twilight: Los Angeles, 1992", which condenses 170 interviews Smith conducted herself into a two hour show ranging through the lives of 21 Los Angelenos: Darryl Gates, Reginald Denny, Rodney King's aunt, and a Korean shopkeeper (whose lines are spoken in perfect Korean and translated overhead). INT. 2: Author SUSANNA KAYSEN. At age eighteen, she was hospitalized in Boston's McLean Psychiatric Hospital. Her two years there, from 1967-1969 and experiences of the other young women of her ward are the subject of Kayser's book, "Girl, Interrupted" (Turtle Bay Books). REV.: Maureen Corrigan reviews "Peerless Flats," the new novel by Esther Freud, great-grand-daughter of Sigmund Freud.

Interview with Ron Levy; Interview with Thom Jones; Review of the film "In the Line of Fire." July 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458052].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician and record producer, RON LEVY. He was asked to played in B.B. King's band, when he was just out of high school. He went on to form "Ron Levy's Wild Kingdom, and recorded with the "luminaries" of the late seventies blue wave revival: Kim Wilson and Jimmie Vaughan and others. He started producing for Rounder Records and ended up working with old blues legends on Rounder's Blues label. LEVY has long championed the Hammond B-3 organ which has come back into vogue. And he has a new Wild Kingdom release, "B-3, Blues and Grooves." (Rounder). INT. 2: Writer THOM JONES was a boxer in the Marines in the mid-1960s. He was supposed to ship out to Vietnam, but he suffered an epileptic seizure, which he believes was caused by too many punches to the head. So instead of shipping out, he was thrown out. The rest of his unit did go to Vietnam, where they were ambushed and killed. Jones turned to writing, but couldn't get anything published, so he became a high school janitor. He is finally experiencing literary success this year with the publication of his collection of short stories "The Pugilist At Rest" (Little, Brown). His stories revisit worlds Jones has known: that of the boxer, the Vietnam-era soldier, and the alcoholic. REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews, "In the Line of Fire," the new film starring Clint Eastwood and John Malkovich.
Interview with Joe Morgan; Review of the television show "Laurel Avenue"; Interview with Mickey Mantle; Interview with Jim Bouton. July 9, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457987].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: There are fewer second basemen in the Baseball Hall of Fame than players in any of the other positions. JOE MORGAN is one of the few. Today we rebroadcast an interview with the former Houston Astro and Cincinnati Red. MORGAN was with the Reds in the 70's, along with Pete Rose, Johnny Bench, and Tony Perez, when the team was so successful it was known as the Big Red Machine. In 1975 and 76 MORGAN was named most valuable player, leading the Reds to the world series championships both times. Altogether, MORGAN spent 22 years in the major leagues. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/21/93) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews this weekend's HBO miniseries, "Laurel Avenue," about a large working class African American family in St. Paul, Minnesota. INT. 2: Baseball legend Mickey Mantle. We'll hear a 1985 interview with the Yankees slugger, whose father had his career in pro baseball planned before he was born. Mantle played his entire 17-year career with one team, the New York Yankees. (Rebroadcast of 10/08/1985) INT 3: A 1986 interview with former Yankees pitcher JIM BOUTON. In 1970, BOUTON's memoir "Ball Four" was published. Those who wanted to maintain major league baseball's image as the home of heroes were scandalized by the book; others thought it was about time someone revealed that baseball is full of real people and real problems. "Ball Four" made an enemy for Bouton of baseball legend Mickey Mantle by reminiscing about Mantle's on and off-field drunkenness. (Rebroadcast of 12/8/1986)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDWARD BUNKER. Bunker wrote the crime fiction classic "No Beast So Fierce," which first came out in 1973, about a former criminal trying to go straight. The book has been out of print since 1986, and has just been reissued. It was the basis of the film Straight Time, which starred Dustin Hoffman. Bunker spent almost 20 years in jail himself, and used his experiences as the basis of his book. He's also written 2 other novels, many essays, and screenplays for Straight Time and The Runaway Train. INT. 2:
Continuation of interview with writer EDWARD BUNKER. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a 2-CD reissue of trumpeter Don Cherry's albums recorded for Blue Note in the 1960's.

Interview with Helen Prejean; Interview with Anne Campbell; Review of the album "The Who's Tommy." July 13, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457859].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: HELEN PREJEAN (pray-ZSAHN)'s book, "Dead Man Walking: An Eyewitness Account of the Death Penalty in the United States" (Random House) details her experience working with death row inmates in Louisiana. Prejean has come to believe that the death penalty is not only ineffective as a deterrent, but that the government can't be trusted to decide who should live and who should die. Prejean is a Roman Catholic nun. INT. 2: After researching and writing about girl gangs, psychologist and criminologist ANNE CAMPBELL decided to tackle the question of why men commit the majority of violent crimes. In her book "Men, Women and Aggression" (Basic Books), Campbell says the key lies in what men and women think their own aggression means: control, or loss of control? REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the original cast recording of the Broadway show "The Who's Tommy."

Interview with Deborah Lipstadt; Interview with Peter Calthorpe; Commentary on motherhood. July 14, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458053].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor DEBORAH LIPSTADT examines a chilling new trend in historical revisionism: disavowing the deaths of six million Jews in Nazi concentration camps. Her new book, "Denying the Holocaust" (Free Press) traces the rise of this opposition: its practitioners' change in influence as isolated pamphleteers and cranks forty years ago to their point today, where a new poll found one fifth of the American public think it seems "possible" that the Holocaust never happened. INT. 2: Architect PETER CALTHORPE, whose new book "The Next American Metropolis" (Princeton Architectural Press) advocates designing suburban communities with environmental, social and economic limits in mind, and without a reliance on the automobile. His developments would be connected by light rail systems, not multi-lane freeways. Calthorpe proposes neighborhoods which encourage walking as a way to emphasize community building. REV. : Writer ANNE LAMOTT continues her chronicle of life with her young son, SAM. Lamott is the author of OPERATING INSTRUCTIONS: A JOURNAL OF MY SON"S FIRST YEAR. (Pantheon).

Interview with Mitchell Kapor; Interview with Rob Weiss; Review of the television show "Chantilly Lace." July 15, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457861].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Computer activist MITCH KAPOR (KAY-por). A new digital information highway is in the formative stages that will carry voice, data, and video services to everyone. We'll talk with Mitch Kapor, co-founder of the Electronic Frontier Foundation, which wants to make sure everyone has access to the new highway. Kapor also founded the lotus software company. INT. 2: Filmmaker ROB WEISS. His first film, Amongst Friends, draws on his own experiences growing up affluent on Long Island. His characters reject the values of their parents and are attracted by a world of gangsters and gambling. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Chantilly Lace," on the Showtime cable network. The telemovie stars JoBeth Williams, Lindsay Crouse, Helen Slater, Jill Eikenberry, Martha Plimpton, Ally Sheedy, and Talia Shire. The plot revolves around a reunion of old friends, but the lines and action are mostly improvised by the actresses.

Interview with Jane Curtin; Interview with James Belushi; Interview with Alan Zweibel; Interview with Bill Murray; Interview with Martin Short. July 16, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458056].

Description of show segment(s)

FIRST HALF: We begin our Saturday Night Live flashback show with JANE CURTIN. Curtin was an original cast member of the show and stars in the upcoming film "Coneheads." (Originally broadcast in 10/28/1988.) JAMES BELUSHI. He recently starred in "Wild Palms," the futuristic miniseries produced by Oliver Stone. BELUSHI is the brother of the late John Belushi. He was a member of the Second City improvisational comedy troupe and "Saturday Night Live," and has appeared in films and on Broadway. (Rebroadcast from 5/12/93). Comedy writer ALAN ZWEIBEL. He was one of the original writers for "Saturday Night Live." He wrote the "Samurai" skits for John Belushi, and the Emily Lattila and RoseAnn RoseAnna Danna skits for Gilda Radner. He also worked on "The Gary Shandling Show." (Rebroadcast from 8/3/89). SECOND HALF: JON LOVITZ (LOVE-itz). On Saturday Night Live he played the pathological liar, the Annoying Man and Harry Chanukah. (Rebroadcast from 7/17/92).

BILL MURRAY first came to prominence as a cast member of "Saturday Night Live." He then went on to appear in movies such as "Ghostbusters," "Caddyshack," "Meatballs" and "Stripes." (Rebroadcast from 5/13/91). CHRIS ROCK. Besides his work on "Saturday Night Live," ROCK played the junkie in the movie "New Jack City" and recently co-wrote and starred in the rap parody film "CB4". (Rebroadcast from 12/12/91). Comic Actor MARTIN SHORT. Short was with the Second City troupe for three years, where he created such characters as the infamous Ed Grimley, who lived on in the Saturday morning children's show, "The Completely Mental Misadventures of Ed Grimley." Short brought that character and others to "Saturday Night Live." Since then, he's starred in feature films including "Three Amigos!" and "Innerspace." (Rebroadcast from 1/30/89).

Interview with Nancy Mairs; Interview with Jeff Apple and Jeff Maguire; Review of the film "Orlando." July 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457982].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: .Poet, writer, and teacher NANCY MAIRS. She's a Catholic feminist, who started out Protestant, and who late in life became a feminist. She calls herself, "the connoisseur of catastrophe." She's known for writing honestly about her struggles with multiple sclerosis, depression, and the life-threatening illness of her husband, also about being a woman, a mother, and a wife. Her newest book of personal essays is "Ordinary Time," (Beacon). One reviewer calls it "a small miracle of honesty mediated by dignity and humor." INT. 2: Producer JEFF APPLE and writer JEFF MAGUIRE. Their latest project is the new film, "In the Line of Fire," starring Clint Eastwood as a burnt-out Secret Service agent, haunted by the assassination of President Kennedy. APPLE has produced hundreds of TV commercials as well as documentaries and promotional films. He came up with the idea for the film, and approached MAGUIRE to write the film script. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film, "Orlando," based on the novel by Virginia Wolff.
Interview with Randall Terry; Interview with Diane Strauss; Review of Liz Phair's album "Exile in Guyville." July 20, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457934].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Founder of the anti-abortion group, "Operation Rescue," RANDALL TERRY. Last week his group tried to stop abortions by blocking access to clinics in seven cities across the United States, including Philadelphia. TERRY also has a new book, "Why does a nice guy like me keep getting thrown in jail?" (Huntington House Pub., Lafayette, LA; Resistance Press, Windsor, N.Y.) INT. 2: Regional Director of four women's clinics in Cherry Hill, New Jersey, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Omaha, Nebraska, DIANE STRAUSS. Three of her clinics were the target of Operation Rescue's protests last week. Before that, STRAUSS has been harassed at home by the group. In 1987, one of STRAUSS's clinics was the first clinic to be targeted by Operation Rescue outside of Binghamton, New York where the group is based. REV.: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews a new album by Liz Phair, "Exile in Guyville" (Matador records).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Editor of the editorial page at the Des Moines Register, DENNIS RYERSON. RYERSON and the staff are putting out the paper during the floods, without running water or electricity; they work in daylight with pencils and typewriters. RYERSON was in the unique position to report on the near fistfight between the Des Moines mayor and its city council over the right time to turn on the city's water supply. INT. 2: Forty year Hollywood veteran, and director of almost fifty films, RICHARD FLEISCHER. He's the son of the legendary cartoonist, Max Fleischer, who created Betty Boop. RICHARD FLEISCHER's films include "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea", "Fantastic Voyage", "Doctor Doolittle" and "Conan The Destroyer". His new memoir "Just Tell Me When to Cry" (Carroll & Graf) covers his father's competition with Walt Disney, the studio system, anecdotes about many stars, and what it's like directing a picture underwater in a deep sea diver's suit. REV.: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The 60s" a new collection of essays and journal writings by Edmund Wilson from 1960 to 1972.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chubby Checker got the credit for "The Twist," but the real credit goes to HANK BALLARD who wrote the song and recorded it first (with the Midnighters') in 1958. BALLARD was a notorious figure in the early days of rhythm and blues. His song "Work with me Annie," was considered too lewd for many stations to play. Anyway, BALLARD gets the credit for "The Twist," in a new documentary, "Twist" by film maker RON MANN. Terry talks with both HANK BALLARD and RON MANN. INT. 2: First-time film-maker TIANA (the Americanization of the name THI THANH NGA) has made a personal documentary tracing her 1988 journey back to Vietnam, where she was born: "From Hollywood to Hanoi." Her father was the head of press relations for the South Vietnamese government, and she enjoyed a privileged childhood. But her father moved the family to the United States just before the fall of Saigon. TIANA was raised in California from the age of three and became an actress in low-budget exploitation films. One reviewer writes about the film that TIANIA's "puckish humor and eye for incongruity are editorially lethal." REV.: Rock historian Ed Ward discusses a record collection that "changed his life," "The Anthology of American Folk Music."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country singer CHARLIE RICH. He got his start working with the Sun record label in the late 50s, writing tunes for Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison, and Johnny Cash. From there he began making records himself. In the 70s his songs "The Most Beautiful Girl," and "Behind Closed Doors" were big country-pop hits. During the 80s he dropped out of sight. But he released a new album last year, "Pictures And Paintings," featuring jazz and blues standards (Sire/Warner/Blue Horizon). (REBROADCAST FROM 9/3/92) INT. 2: Guitarist RY COODER. In the 60s he collaborated with Taj Mahal, Captain Beefheart, and the Rolling Stones, and became known for his fingerpicking and slide playing. In the 70s he went solo -- putting together ten albums that explored American roots music including blues, vintage jazz, and gospel. In the 80s he wrote the soundtracks for the films "The Long Riders," "The Border," Interview with Barney Frank; Interview with Dick Dale; Commentary on teaching children about death. July 26, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457991].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: U.S. Congressman BARNEY FRANK, Democratic Representative from Massachusetts, and one of two openly-gay members of Congress. He's been lobbying for lifting the ban on gays and lesbians in the military. Terry will talk with him about President Clinton's announcement last week about gays and lesbians in the military. (In a recent Washington Post op-ed piece, FRANK defends Clinton, blaming, instead, those allied against lifting the ban.) INT. 2: The man known as "the King of the Surf Guitar," DICK DALE. He launched surf rock in 1960 with his band, the Deltones. He described the surf sound in a 1963 article as "a heavy staccato sound on the lowkey guitar strings, with a heavy throbbing beat--like thunder, or waves breaking over you." It's also played loud and with plenty of reverb. DALE defined the California sound, and influenced The Ventures, The Beachboys, and Jan and Dean. He also influenced later groups like Sonic Youth. Now DALE has a new release with a scaled down Deltones, "Tribal Thunder," (Hightone Records). REV. : Writer ANNE LAMOTT teaches her son about death. She's the author of the book, "Operating Instructions: A Journal of My Son's First Year." (Pantheon Books).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and professor RANDALL BALMER. He hosted the PBS series, "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory: A Journey into the Evangelical Subculture in America," which aired in May. There's also a companion book to it, the same title (published by Oxford University Press in 1989). BALMER is Associate Professor of Religion at Barnard College, Columbia University. INT. 2: BETSY LIEBERMAN, Executive Director of AIDS Housing of Washington which has built the country's first nursing home designed for people dying of AIDS. It's called the Bailey-Boushay House. The House also offers adult day-care services and activities for people with AIDS. The House has been in operation for a little over a year now. Since then more than 130 people have died there. A new book about the project has been published, "Breaking New Ground: Developing Innovative AIDS Care Residences." (published by AIDS Housing of Washington, Original Trade Paperback). REV. : Maureen Corrigan reviews a new memoir, "Love & Rutabaga", by Claire Hsu Accomando (St. Martins).

Interview with David Sedaris; Interview with Paul Theroux; Review of the television show "Unplugged." July 28, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457950].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professional New York house cleaner and NPR commentator, DAVID SEDARIS (seh-DAR-iss). Sedaris occasionally reads from his diaries on NPR; he started this year around Christmas time, when he recounted tales of being a Macy's elf named Crumpet during the holiday season. Other pieces have covered life with window hangers, the world of soap operas, and smoking on a bench in Central Park with a non-smoker. He's recently signed with Little, Brown for a book of short stories and a novel. INT. 2: Travel author and novelist, PAUL THEROUX. In a new issue of the Conde Nast Traveler magazine -- July 1993-- THEROUX recounts the abundant ailments and diseases he's contracted during his thirty years of world travel. Luckily, "Kuru" isn't one of them: a Papua New Guinea affliction of the nervous system where one goes mad, then dies trembling. The only way to catch it is after eating human brains. REV. : Television critic David Bianculli reviews a new episode of "MTV Unplugged: Spoken Word", featuring a group of New York poets.

Interview with Charles Busch; Interview with Remo Franceschini; Review of the film "Rising Sun." July 29, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458062].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright, female impersonator, and now novelist CHARLES BUSCH. His play, the camp classic, "Vampire Lesbians of Sodom," was the longest-running play in Off-Broadway history. His other plays include, "Psycho Beach Party," and "Red Scare on Sunset." He has a new show which parodies the variety shows of the 60s, "The Charles Busch Revue," in which he makes seven costume changes in an hour and 15 minutes. One reviewer writes, "Among New York's drag performers, he is certainly the most congenial. Instead of freezing into imperious diva-like poses and spewing hostile sexual challenges, he is a man who revels in the opportunity to get himself up in drag, the more flamingly tacky the better, and create a party around it." BUSCH's first novel, "Whores of Lost Atlantis," will be published in November. (Hyperion). INT. 2: Retired cop, and former head of the Queen's District Attorney's squad, REMO FRANCESCHINI (Fran-chez-KE-nee) spent 35 years keeping track of and busting organized crime in New York City. FRANCESCHINI figured out the family structure of the mafia, keeping a "Wall of Fame" family tree of photos and names of mobsters. Early on he predicted the rise of John Gotti, who became known as the "Teflon Don." FRANCESCHINI personally wire-tapped Gotti's headquarters, which led to indictments. FRANCESCHINI has written a new memoir, "A Matter of Honor: One Cop's Lifelong Pursuit of John Gotti and the Mob." (Simon & Schuster). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Rising Sun, starring Sean Connery and Wesley Snipes. It's based on a novel by Michael Crichton (CRY-ton), who also wrote Jurassic Park.

Interview with Nancy Mairs; Interview with Randall Terry; Review of U2's album "Zooropa." July 30, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458059].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet, writer, and teacher NANCY MAIRS. She's a Catholic feminist, who started out Protestant, and who late in life became a feminist. She calls herself, "the connoisseur of catastrophe." She's known for writing honestly about her struggles with multiple sclerosis, depression, and the life-threatening illness of her husband, also about being a woman, a mother, and a wife. Her newest book of personal essays is "Ordinary Time," (Beacon). One reviewer calls it, "a small miracle of honesty mediated by dignity and humor." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/19/93). INT. 2: Founder of the anti-abortion group, "Operation Rescue," RANDALL TERRY. Recently, his group tried to stop abortions by blocking access to clinics in seven cities across the United States, including Philadelphia. TERRY also has a new book, "Why does a nice guy like me keep getting thrown in jail?" (Huntington House Pub., Lafayette, LA; Resistance Press, Windsor, N.Y.) (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/20/93.) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release by U2, "Zooropa," (Island Records).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Performer, comic and writer SANDRA BERNHARD. Some know her from her role in the ABC sitcom "Roseanne;" she also had a successful one-woman off-Broadway show called "Without You I'm Nothing," which was turned into a film and album of the same name. Her HBO special last year, "Sandra After Dark," satirized the old "Playboy After Dark" variety show. She appeared in Martin Scorsese's "King of Comedy," among other feature films. She was also linked as a possible love interest to Madonna. Her first book was "Confessions of a Pretty Lady." Her new book is called "Love Love and Love," a collection of short stories and essays. (both HarperCollins) INT. 2: DR. KEVIN CAHILL. He specializes in tropical medicine, and he looks at the role of health in promoting world peace. He is President and Director of the Center for International Health and Cooperation in New York. His work looking at health amid natural disasters and wars has taken him all over the world, from Nicaragua in the 70s to Somalia today. He is the author or editor of 22 books. He edited the new book "A Framework for Survival: Health, Human Rights, and Humanitarian Assistance in Conflicts and Disasters." It's a collection 20 essays by international experts looking for a new approach to foreign policy that takes health and human rights into account. REV. : Maureen Corrigan has a review of "The Art of Fiction," novelist David Lodge's collection of 50 essays of literary criticism, published by Viking.

Interview with Joyce Carol Oates; Interview with Elliot Liebow; Review of Tony Toni Tone's album "Sons of Soul." August 3, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457947].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist JOYCE CAROL OATES. The prolific writer has penned 23 novels, in addition to plays, poems, short stories and criticism. Her new novel is called "Foxfire: Confessions of a Girl Gang,"(Dutton) about a group of high school girls who form a violent gang in upstate New York during the Fifties. Their mission is violence against men. OATES is a professor of humanities at Princeton University. Her previous book is the critically acclaimed "Black Water," nominated for the 1992 National Book Critics Circle Award. INT. 2: Anthropologist ELLIOT LIEBOW (LEE-bow). He is the author of the classic 1967 study "Tally's Corner," a look at African-American street corner life. The bestseller was Liebow's doctoral dissertation, and it's still used by many college students. His new work, the first he's published in over twenty years, is called "Tell Them Who I Am: The Lives of Homeless Women." (Free Press/Macmillan). He investigates the patterns and routines of homeless women around Washington, DC. LIEBOW is a guest researcher at the National Institute of Mental Health and a professor at Catholic University in Washington, DC. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Sons of Soul," the new hip-hop album by Tony Toni Tone.

---

Interview wit Laura Jimenez and Carol Levine; Interview with Brian Lamb; Review of the television show "Marilyn and Bobby August 4, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457913].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today's first half is about children who are orphaned after losing their parents to AIDS. Studies estimate that by the year 2000, up to 125,000 U.S. children will be left parentless because of the fatal illness. AIDS workers are now beginning to realize their next step is to help these secondary victims by providing homes, food and counseling. We interview two people on the subject; a single mother with AIDS, and the head of a project designed to address the needs of orphaned kids: 1) LAURA JIMENEZ. ("hee-MEN-ez") She is a 42-year-old divorced mother with AIDS. Jimenez lives in a housing project in the Bronx with her 10-year-old son. Her two other children, in their twenties, are married with their own kids. She has worked through desperate times to become an activist for women with AIDS. 2) CAROL LEVINE. ("la-VEEN") She is the Executive Director of "The Orphan Project," based in Manhattan. She founded the organization two years ago, after working on the Citizen's Commission on AIDS. The Orphan Project undertook a study of how many children in the New York area were affected by HIV in their families. Levine was surprised at the numbers the study turned up. Now the project is looking at social and policy options to help these children. INT. 2: Creator and CEO of the Cable Satellite Public Affairs Network (C-SPAN), BRIAN LAMB. He launched the network in 1979 because he felt society was being treated unfairly by television news. He wanted to broadcast information from beginning to end, so that audiences could get a full picture of what transpired, and not just pieces of it. The channel provides hours of footage of the U.S. Congress and its committees, party conventions, and provided sprawling coverage of the Presidential campaign -- all without commentary or editing. The network has no advertisers, no government or corporate funding, and has no concern for ratings, because its funding comes from local cable companies. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 1/27/93.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Nigerian writer WOLE SOYINKA. (Wo-lay Shaw-INKA) He was the first African to be awarded the Nobel prize for literature (in 1986), and he's been called Africa's "finest writers." He is a dramatist, poet, novelist, critic, and political writer. Some of his works have been banned by Nigerian regimes. He's gone into exile several times and has been imprisoned for political protests. He's written 21 books, including "Myth, Literature, and the African World," and his autobiography, "Ake': The Years of Childhood." (Ventura books). (THIS INTERVIEW WILL BE EXTENDED INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with WOLE SOYINKA, continued. REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Fugitive" starring Harrison Ford and Tommy Lee Jones.

Interviews with Stephen Sondheim and Arthur Laurents; Interviews with Michael Bennett and Cy Feuer; Review of the album "South Pacific." August 6, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457561].

Description of show segment(s)

critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the original cast recording for Roger & Hammerstein's "South Pacific." (on Sony).

Interview with George Kuchar; Interview with Robert Hine; Commentary on saxophone solos. August 9, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457891].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: One of the pioneers of the American underground cinema, film maker GEORGE KUCHAR (COO-char). He worked in ultra-low budget 8mm, and 16mm filming in and around the Bronx, where he lived, creating works that showed the disparity between the fantasy of Hollywood dreams and everyday reality. KUCHAR's films include, "I was a Teenage Rumpot," "Pussy on a Hot Tin Roof," and "Lovers of Eternity." Now KUCHAR is now working in a new form, the video diary. The American Museum of the Moving Image is holding a retrospective of his work (Aug. 6 - Sept. 5, 1993), "Gossamer Garbage: A George Kuchar Film and Video Retrospective." INT. 2: From sight to blindness to sight again. ROBERT HINE is Professor of History at the University of California. He lost his sight 15 years ago, and just recently regained the use of one eye. He's written a new book about what it's like to lose one's sight and then to see again: "Second Sight." (University of California Press). REV. Ed Ward on saxophone solos.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chicago-based blues guitarist BUDDY GUY. Eric Clapton has called his "by far and without a doubt the best guitar player alive." Guy was born in Louisiana, son of a sharecropper. He moved to Chicago in the late fifties and played with all the greats...including Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf and Junior Wells. Guy's now having a comeback. Guy has a new album, "Feels Like Rain." (Silvertone), which follows his Grammy-winning release, "Damn Right I've Got the Blues." INT. 2: Rock and roll critic DAVE MARSH talks about the song "Louie, Louie". He's written a book about it called, "Louie, Louie: The History and Mythology of the World's Most Famous Rock 'n' Roll Song: Including the Full Details of Its Torture and Persecution at the Hands of the Kingsmen, J. Edgar Hoover's F.B.I., and a Cast of Millions; and Introducing, for the First Time Anywhere, the Actual Dirty Lyrics." (Hyperion) The song was written by Richard Berry in 1957...as a tale of a lovesick Jamaican sailor. When the Kingsmen recorded it in 1957, the lyrics were incomprehensible and mistaken for being dirty. It set off a series of events that Marsh details in his book. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the "Oxford Book of Modern Fairy Tales," edited by Alison Lurie. It includes 40 fairy tales written during the last century and a half by British and American writers.(Oxford University Press).

Interview with Jim Northrup; Interview with Paquito D'Rivera; Review of James Lee Burke's book "In the Electric Mist with the Confederate Dead." August 11, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457897].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet and syndicated columnist JIM NORTHRUP. NORTHRUP's first book is "Walking the Rez Road" (Voyageur Press), stories and poems which concern the lives of native people living on a northern Minnesota reservation. Northrup looks at 19th century treaties with 20th century eyes. His work also has to do with the aftermath of the Vietnam war. NORTHRUP was a Marine who served in the war. (The "rez" in the title means "reservation"). NT. 2: Cuban-born saxophonist and composer, PAQUITO D'RIVERA. D'RIVERA defected to the United States in 1980 during a concert tour. Like his mentor, Dizzy Gillespie, D'RIVERA is a tireless performer and purveyor of Latin jazz. His "REUNION" album (Messidor), recorded with trumpeter Arturo Sandoval was called a "high speed tour of the Pan-American musical map." For his newest record D'RIVERA gathered 23 of the top Cuban musicians from around the world: "Paquito D'Rivera Presents 40 Years of Cuban Jam Session" REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews, "In the Electric Mist with Confederate Dead," by James Lee Burke.

Interview with Chris Hedges; Interview with Dean Ornish. August 12, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457895].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:New York Times Reporter CHRIS HEDGES. He's based in Cairo, Egypt where he covers the Middle East. Terry will talk with him about the rise of Islamic fundamentalism in Egypt and Iran. In Iran, the militant group, Basij -- which is being funded by the Iranian Government -- has been cracking down on Western style behavior and culture in the Country. In Egypt, Islamic militants are waging a violent campaign to seize power, bombing Pharaonic temples, and firing on tourists who they say, "spread corruption and vice." The militants want to tear down the Pharaohs' pyramids and their sphinxes, as part of a theological attack on Pharaonic culture. INT. 2: DR. DEAN ORNISH. He, along with other researchers, has developed a "lifestyle" program for reversing heart disease. Working with a group of heart patients, ORNISH, has reversed the disease, thru diet, moderate exercise, and stress reduction. He recommends the program for everyone, not just those at risk for heart disease. ORNISH relies on data from seven years of study on this group of patients. Recently the "lifestyle" program qualified for reimbursement by a major insurance company. It's the first time such a program has qualified. ORNISH also has a new book, "Eat More, Weigh Less: Dr. Dean Ornish's Life Choice Program for Losing Weight Safely While Eating Abundantly." (HarperCollins). REV. : No arts review; interview with Ornish continued.

Interview with Laurence Fishburne; Interview with Joe Mantegna; Review of the film "Searching for Bobby Fischer." August 13, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458024].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor LARRY FISHBURNE. He was Cowboy Curtis on "Pee-wee's Playhouse," and at 15, he played a young GI in "Apocalypse Now." He recently played the musician Ike Turner in the filmed biography of Tina Turner, "What's Love Got To Do With It." His new film is "Searching for Bobby Fischer." REBROADCAST FROM 4/6/92. INT. 2: Stage and screen actor JOE MANTEGNA. Long an associate of Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright David Mamet, MANTEGNA starred in the stage version of "Glengarry Glen Ross", for which he won a Tony Award. MANTEGNA revels in shady characters: gamblers, cutthroat salesman, mobsters and Hollywood hucksters. His film work includes Mamet's "House of Games" and "Homicide" and his newest film has just been released: "Searching for Bobby Fischer". (Rebroadcast of 11/05/1991) REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Searching for Bobby Fischer" (Paramount Pictures).
Interview with Mary Elizabeth Fricke; Interview with Bill Duke; Review of Robert Kincaid's novel "The Bridges of Madison County." August 16, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457893].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Hog farmer and writer MARY ELIZABETH FRICKE (Frick-EE). Her new book is, "Dino, Godzilla and the Pigs: My Life On Our Missouri Hog Farm." (Soho Press). The FRICKE's farm was flooded, just as this book was coming out. Marty will talk with FRICKE about how they and the farm are doing. FRICKE's book describes the intricacies of farm work, like cutting the teeth and tails of piglets, and driving a monster tractor with sixteen gears. INT. 2: Actor and film Director BILL DUKE. He's directed several Off-Broadway plays, and lots of television, including PBS's award winning teleplays, "The Meeting," and "Raisin in the Sun." He directed the movies, "A Rage in Harlem," and "Deep Cover." His latest film is "The Cemetery Club," about three Jewish widows, who meet up with an charming widower. (REBROADCAST from 2/10/93) REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews, "The Bridges of Madison County," by Robert Kincaid (Rant) and acknowledges the 100th anniversary of Dorothy Parker's birth.

Interview with Ted Lewin; Interview with Andre Dubus, III; Commentary on Julio de Caro. August 17, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458025].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Children's book illustrator TED LEWIN (LOO-in). Lewin paid his way through art school in the 50's as a professional wrestler. His new memoir, "I Was a Teenage Professional Wrestler," (Orchard Books) includes Lewin's paintings of wrestlers. NT. 2: ANDRE DUBUS III (da-BYOUSE). He's the son of writer Andre Dubus, and he's recently come out with his first novel, a coming of age story called "Bluesman." Dubus continues to work construction and write on the side. REV. : World music commentator MILO MILES tells us about the tango music of Julio de Caro. He and his band set the standard for tango music in Buenos Aires in the 20's, and his music has just been reissued on the Spanish El Bandoneon label.
Interview with Craig Whitney; Interview with Jim Chambers and Cleophas Jackson; Review of the television program "The Building." August 18, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457894].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times European diplomatic correspondent, CRAIG WHITNEY. WHITNEY is the author of a new book about espionage and spy swaps during the cold war in the two Germanys: "Spy Trader" (Times Books). Now living in Bonn, WHITNEY reports on the issues surrounding European unity: the rise of ethnic conflicts, and the crisis in Bosnia. INT. 2: Documentary filmmaker JIM CHAMBERS, who put together the new film "112th and Central: Through the Eyes of the Children", a documentary about the effects of the Los Angeles riots on the young people who lived through them. The film is put together from interviews of friends and family filmed by the children themselves, including 12 year old CLEOPHAS JACKSON, (Clee-oh-fus) whom Marty also interviews. REV. : TV critic David Bianculli reviews "The Building", a new summer series co-produced by David Letterman.

Interview with Andrew Davis; Commentary on Motown songs; Interview with Jim Murray; Review of the film "Manhattan Murder Mystery." August 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457892].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director ANDREW DAVIS. Davis' string of action-thriller hits include last year's "Under Siege" with Steven Segal and a Chuck Norris picture "Code of Silence". His latest film is a remake of a TV series from the 1960's "The Fugitive" starring Harrison Ford. Davis' Hollywood credentials belie his journalistic background: he began his film career as an assistant cameraman to Haskell Wexler on "Medium Cool" which was filmed during and uses footage of the chaos of the 1968 Democratic Convention. Davis served as a PBS reporter and then moved to Los Angeles, where he was director of photography on 15 films before his debut as a director in 1979. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD shares some of the lesser known works from the Motown label. INT. 2: Sportswriter and winner of the Pulitzer Prize, JIM MURRAY. He's just written his autobiography (Macmillan) about his five decades in journalism: as a young reporter for Time magazine following the 1952 presidential campaign and the rise of Richard Nixon's political career; working as one of the original writers for Sports Illustrated; and beginning in 1961, as sports columnist for the Los Angeles Times. His syndicated column once reached 200 newspapers a day and he has won the Sportswriter of the Year award a record 14 times. REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Manhattan Murder Mystery," the new Woody Allen movie.

Interview with Charles Moskos; Interview with John Le Carre; Commentary on W.F. Harvey's short story "August Heat." August 20, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458044].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor and military sociologist CHARLES MOSKOS. He formulated President Clinton's new policy on homosexuals in the military which has been dubbed "don't ask don't tell" (enlistees would not be asked about sexual orientation nor would they declare it, once in the service). MOSKOS has done field research during every major army deployment over the last 30 years, most recently in Somalia to interview African-American soldiers. MOSKOS is also a proponent of a national service program for college students, which has caught the eye of President Clinton. INT. 2: Literary Spy Master, JOHN LE CARRE (pronounced "Luh Karay"). An author at the pinnacle of the espionage genre, LE CARRE has written such classics as "Smiley's People", "Tinker Tailor, Soldier, Spy", and "The Russia House". LE CARRE has shifted his gaze to the Gulf War and international arms dealers in his new novel "The Night Manager" (Alfred A. Knopf). (Rebroadcast from 6.25.93). REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN tells us about the short horror story that has haunted her through the years. (It's "August Heat," by W.F. Harvey).(Rebroadcast from 8/20/92).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer A.E. HOTCHNER. His memoir, about growing up in a flophouse during the depression, "King of the Hill," is being made into a movie, directed by Stephen Soderbergh (who directed "Sex, Lives, and Videotape). Hotchner is best known for his controversial 1966 biography of his personal friend Ernest Hemingway, "Papa Hemingway: A Personal Memoir." Presented in the unusual form of dialogue, Hotchner faced criticism from the literary community and an attempt by Hemingway's widow to ban the sale of the book. INT. 2: Miami Herald columnist and novelist CARL HIAASEN. "Strip Tease," Hiassen's fifth novel and latest gonzo thriller, is a yarn, pitting a seamy Florida politician against the star stripper at Miami's Eager Beaver club. Mr. Hiaasen has spun tales of environmentalists feeding tourists and senior citizens to alligators ("Tourist Season"), of a villainous South Florida plastic surgeon who kills a woman during a nose job ("Skin Tight"), and about the amusement park, "The Amazing Kingdom of Thrills," where one of the novel's heavies is loved to death by an amorous dolphin ("Native Tongue"). REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "The Girl Who Trod on a Loaf," by Kathryn Davis.

Interview with Daniel Callahan; Interview with Jerry Adler; Commentary on motherhood. August 24, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457941].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Medical ethicist DANIEL CALLAHAN. His new book is "The Troubled Dream of Life: Living with Mortality." (Simon & Schuster). In it he looks at how our society views death: If death is a "part of life," why do we have such trouble accepting it? And how do our attitudes about death affect medical and social policy? CALLAHAN calls for a new understanding of death, so that it could be, "tolerable and familiar, affirmative of the bonds of community and social solidarity, expected with certainty and accepted without crippling fear." INT. 2: Actor JERRY ADLER. He's a former Broadway producer, director and stage manager who took up acting at the age of 62. He worked on over 53 Broadway shows before moving to L.A. where he staged managed a soap opera. On a hunch, a friend, who was casting a film, brought Adler in to read. That resulted in his first appearance as an actor in the film noir thriller, "The Public Eye." Since then, ADLER has acted in a number of television shows. He's now starring in the new Woody Allen film, "Manhattan Murder Mystery." REV. : Writer Anne Lamott on being a good mother AND a phone addict.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and director SUSAN SONTAG. Sontag is just back from Sarajevo, where she has been directing a performance of Beckett's "Waiting For Godot" in the Serbo-Croatian language. She is one of few arts figures to visit the conflict in the former Yugoslavia, a battle she calls "the Spanish Civil War of our time". Her latest novel is the "Volcano Lover," recently published in paperback by Anchor Books.

INT. 2: Professor of History at Princeton, SEAN WILENTZ. His new article in the August 9th, 1993 issue of The New Republic compares the Ross Perot phenomenon to past populist movements in American History. He argues that Perot represents populism as "a surly mood of defeat and powerlessness;" that he perhaps signals a realignment to come of the two major parties. REV. : Conductor and composer Leonard Bernstein would have been 75 today: classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz is a converted fan after hearing the Haydn portion of Sony's new "Royal Edition" of Bernstein performances, complete in 100 compact discs.

Interview with Deborah Meier; Interview with Harold Ramis; Review of the film "The Man Without a Face." August 26, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457846].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Educator DEBORAH MEIER. She's a nationally known authority on education, and the recipient of a MacArthur Foundation "genius" award. She developed and directed three alternative elementary schools in East Harlem and later a Secondary School. The schools accept students on a first-come, first-serve basis. Classes are small and personalized, and the emphasis is on academic learning and inquiry. MEIER wanted to create an atmosphere where students learn democratic values, where teachers can hold kids accountable, and parents can become involved. A new book about what happened in East Harlem, thanks to MEIER and others is, "Miracle in East Harlem: The Fight for Choice in Public Education," by Seymour Fliege with James MacGuire (Times Books). INT. 2: Writer, actor, director HAROLD RAMIS. He's one of the most influential forces behind some of the biggest comedy hits of the late 70s and 80s. But his influence is not generally known by those outside the industry. (For that reason he's been called the
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

"Clark Kent" of comedy. Also because he's "mild-mannered," "bespectacled," and he "looks as if he would be the first to duck under the table at the first sign of a food fight"). RAMIS wrote for "The National Lampoon Show," and "SCTV." He co-wrote as well as acted in the movies, "Animal House," "Stripes," "Ghostbusters," and others. He directed the movie, "Groundhog Day," starring his old co-star Bill Murray. (REBROADCAST from 2/11/93). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews, "The Man Without a Face."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert with the McGarrigle sisters, Kate and Anna. There's a new CD of their first two albums, released in the late 70s: "Kate & Anna McGarrigle" and "Dancer with Bruised Knees." The McGarrigles are known for their close and "subtle harmony." Their music is considered hard to categorize, although it sounds folky. The sisters absorbed an eclectic blend of music when they were growing up in Canada: Victorian ballads, blues, jazz, French-Canadian folk songs, Broadway tunes, and country music. They may be best known for their song, "Heart Like a Wheel," which was the title track on Linda Ronstadt's most successful album. INT. 2: Concert with the McGarrigles continues. REV. : Maureen Corrigan reviews Donald Hall's new book, Life Work and the Mechanical Brides exhibit at the Cooper Hewitt Museum in New York which runs through January 2nd.

Interview with Jimmie Dale Gilmore; Interview with Pearl Cleage. August 30, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458043].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer/Songwriter JIMMIE DALE GILMORE is in the studio for a concert. His music bears the influence of honky-tonk, Tex-Mex rhythms, and country and western. His spiritual influences include Hinduism and writers such as Aldous Huxley and W. Somerset Maugham. GILMORE is the kind of performer who defies definition, though he has been called the "Shaman of the Sagebrush." GILMORE's been playing music for over 20 years, first with the critically-acclaimed group the Flatlanders, then solo.
He says he's "never made music out of the drive to be fashionable." He dropped out of performing for almost ten years to study with a guru. He has a new album, "Spinning Around the Sun." (Elektra). INT. 2: Atlanta-based writer, performance artist, and award-winning playwright PEARL CLEAGE. She's also a columnist for the Atlanta Tribune," and, more importantly, a "third-generation black nationalist feminist." She has a new book of essays, "Deals with the Devil: And other Reasons to Riot," (Ballatine Books). One of her columns, "Mad At Miles," is about her anger at Miles Davis for his "violent crimes against women," about our willingness to forgive the sins of a genius, and the violence done to black women by black men.

Interview with William Gibson; Interview with Cynthia and Brodie Heimel; Review of the television show "Late Show with David Letterman." August 31, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458041].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Science Fiction writer WILLIAM GIBSON. He's part of a small group of writers whose work is known as "cyberpunk" which combines the science of communication and control theory -- cybernetics -- with punk, an anti-social rebel or hoodlum. GIBSON's first novel, "Neuromancer," was the first novel to win Science Fiction's triple crown: the Hugo, Nebula, and Philip K. Dick awards. GIBSON coined the term "cyberspace" to describe the "data highways" or the globe-circling, interconnected telephone network that connects billions of computer, voice, and fax systems. Cyperpunks think of the wires not so much as a conduit but as an actual place that can be entered. GIbSON's "Neuromancer" turned out to be a trilogy. He's got a new book that's part crime and science fiction, "Virtual Light." (Bantam) INT. 2: Writer CYNTHIA HEIMEL is a columnist for The Village Voice, and a witty observer of what goes on between men and women in this society. Her books include, "Sex Tips for Girls," "Enough About You," and "If You Can't Live Without Me, Why Aren't You Dead Yet?" Her latest book is "Get Your Tongue out of my Mouth, I'm Kissing You Goodbye!" (Atlantic Monthly Press). The book begins with an intro by her son, Brodie, who HEIMEL has written about in her columns. Terry will talk with CYNTHIA and BRODIE HEIMEL. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the debut of David Letterman's new talk show which premiered last night.
Interview with Donald Hall and Jane Kenyon; Interview with Jack Sheldon; Review of Carol De Chellis Hill's book "Henry James' Midnight Song." September 1, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457960].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two poets, married to one another, coming to grips with illness and mortality: DONALD HALL and JANE KENYON. HALL's new memoir of life on his New Hampshire farm and his "absorbedness" with writing are the subject of his new book "Life Work" (Beacon Press). Halfway through its completion, HALL was diagnosed with liver cancer; the following surgery and recovery provided rich material for his work and KENYON's: a new book of poems entitled "Constance" (Graywolf Press). INT. 2: Trumpeter and Singer, JACK SHELDON. For many years he was bandleader and sidekick for Merv Griffin's talkshow. SHELDON has been involved with some of the great names of jazz: he sang with Benny Goodman, was a childhood friend of Chet Baker's, and played burlesque with Lenny Bruce. He has a new record of standards: "On My Own" (Concord Records). (REBROADCAST from 6/9/93) REV.: Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Henry James' Midnight Song" by Carol De Chellis Hill.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Bioethicist GEORGE ANNAS and Director of the Law, Medicine & Ethics Program, Boston University Schools of Medicine, Public Health and Law. "Standard of Care," (Oxford University Press) is his new book which examines how the law has shaped medical practice. ANNAS believes the law has a bigger impact on medical ethics than does philosophy or medicine. For instance, he says because doctors are afraid of litigation, they often don't use sound medical judgement. INT. 2: GEORGE ANNAS interview continued. REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The John Coltrane Anthology: The Last Giant" (Rhino/Atlantic).
Interview with Abbey Lincoln; Interview with Tony Bennett; Review of the film "The Ballad of Little Jo." September 3, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457945].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz singer/songwriter, ABBEY LINCOLN. Her new record is "Devil's Got Your Tongue" (Verve). Once married to legendary jazz drummer Max Roach, she's made her mark on jazz for almost 40 years, singing with giants like Benny Carter, Sonny Rollins and Coleman Hawkins. Lincoln has been hailed by one critic as the "Last Great Diva", and says herself that she sings in the tradition of Sarah Vaughan, Bessie Smith and Billie Holiday. (Rebroadcast from 6-16-93). INT. 2: Singer TONY BENNETT. Columbia Records has issued a retrospective set of recordings covering Bennett's 40 years in the business. (Rebroadcast from 7-3-91). REV. : Critic Stephen Schiff reviews the cinema's latest gender-bending foray: "The Ballad of Little Jo".

Interview with Leslie Nielsen; Interview with Harry Shearer; Commentary on Joseph Spence. September 6, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457942].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor LESLIE NIELSEN. Perhaps best known for his comic roles in Airplane! and the Naked Gun films, Nielsen has been acting since the late forties, after he was taught radio broadcasting by Lorne Greene. He's just written a "fictional autobiography" called "The Naked Truth" (Simon & Schuster) a pun-encrusted look at nearly fifty years of show business. (Rebroadcast from 06/18/1993) INT. 2: Satirist HARRY SHEARER. Shearer has an eclectic career: he does many of the voices on the TV series "The Simpsons," he has a weekly program on many public radio stations called "Le Show," he often has character roles in movies, and he's one of the members of the parody heavy metal parody combo "Spinal Tap", who toured the world last year. SHEARER has a new book of the columns he wrote for the Los Angeles Times Magazine: "Man Bites Town" (St. Martins) (Rebroadcast from 4-28-93). REV. : Music Critic Milo Miles thinks Bahamian guitarist Joseph Spence is a gospel-blues great, one who hasn't gotten the recognition he deserves.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Elementary school principal MADELINE CARTWRIGHT took over the run-down Blaine Elementary School in a run-down, drug-infested neighborhood in North Philadelphia and turned it into a school that works. One of her first acts when she took over the school was to get down on her hands and knees and scrub the foul-smelling children's bathroom. CARTWRIGHT got parents involved in the school, made it a safe place for the children to learn, brought up test scores and attendance, and became the subject of a 1990 New York Times Magazine cover story: "Hope in Hell's Classroom." Now she's written her own story of Blaine Elementary School: "For the Children: Lessons from a Visionary Principal." (Doubleday). INT. 2: Terry talks with two authors of children books which were once part of the reading list for the Rainbow curriculum in the New York Public schools. The two books were controversial, and removed from the list, because they dealt with children of gay parents. LESLEA (Les-LEE-ah) NEWMAN is the author of "Heather has Two Mommies," and MICHAEL WILLHOITE wrote "Daddy's Roommate." (Both books are published by Alyson Publishers, Boston, Mass). REV. : John Leonard reviewed the new William Gibson novel, "Virtual Light" (Bantam).

Interview with Harry Belafonte; Interview with Stan Sesser; Review of Sue Townsend's novel "The Queen and I." September 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458074].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and singer HARRY BELAFONTE. He was born in Harlem and raised in the hills of Jamaica where he absorbed the song and music of the island life around him. BELAFONTE's first love was theater, however: he wasn't convinced that popular singing would take him as far emotionally as Shakespeare did. But by embracing the calypso music of his childhood he introduced it to America. This week, he performs his first public concert in New York City in over thirty years. INT. 2: Journalist STAN SESSER, who details the successful marketing of American cigarettes in Asian countries in a New Yorker article, (September 6, 1993). SESSER claims the continent of Asia consumes half the world's cigarettes. Of particular interest to American tobacco firms is China -- despite explicit laws prohibiting the sale or advertising of foreign cigarettes -- because three hundred million people smoke (more people than the entire population of the United States). An official of the World Health Organization says deaths by cigarettes in China will soon wipe out gains made in preventing deaths from malnutrition and communicable diseases. REV. : Maureen Corrigan on a British best seller, published this month: "The Queen and I" by Sue Townsend (Soho Books).

Interview with Paul Mayewski; Interview with Amy Tan and Ron Bass; Review of the films "Kalifornia" and "True Romance." September 9, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457944].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. PAUL MAYEWSKI, chief scientist with the Greenland Ice Sheet Project 2. The project archives tubes of ice extracted from Greenland which chronicle 250,000 years of the earth's atmosphere, and changes in the climate. From the ice, scientists can pinpoint the start of the industrial revolution, or the end of the ice age. Scientists hope, by looking at the ice, they can better understand rapid changes in the earth's climate. INT. 2: Novelist AMY TAN. Her debut novel, "The Joy Luck Club," was a huge critical and commercial success, and it earned TAN a nomination for the National Book Award. It's now been made into a movie. TAN and RON BASS wrote the screenplay. Marty will talk with TAN and BASS about making "The Joy Luck Club" into a movie. RON BASS also wrote the screenplay for "Rain Man" for which he won an Academy Award. REV. : Kevin Whitehead reviews the latest entries in Hollywood's "lovers-on-the-run-through-blinding-deserts" genre: "Kalifornia" and "True Romance" (scripted by Quentin Taratino, who blessed us with his "Reservoir Dogs" last year).

Interview with Curtis Mayfield; Interviews with Richard Lewis and Robert Townsend; Review of the album "Sweet Relief." September 10, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457847].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CURTIS MAYFIELD. He's been called "the thinking man's soul man." He's known for his floating falsetto voice, gospel sound, and social commentary. He was with the group, "The Impressions" for 12 years recording such classics as "Gypsy Woman," "I'm so Proud," and "People Get Ready." After that he went solo. His score for "Superfly," was considered a musical breakthrough, and has inspired many of today's hip-hop performers. MAYFIELD was preparing for a comeback, with the release of "Return of Superfly," in 1990, when a freak stage accident left him paralyzed from the neck down. (REBROADCAST FROM 3-23-93). INT. 2 & 3: Film director and comedian, ROBERT TOWNSEND. His first film, "Hollywood Shuffle" took a satiric look at the roles offered to blacks in Hollywood, and established Townsend --with Spike Lee and others-- as a new group of talented black filmmakers who won industry acceptance after making independent films. His new film is "Meteor Man". (REBROADCAST FROM 6-9-87) Standup comic RICHARD LEWIS. In his act, Lewis portrays a spastic, tortured, self-deprecating man living a life of unrelieved pain. He says of his comedy that after he's finished his act "people throw prescription drugs and the names of their therapists instead of roses. I'm the wreck they can't be." Lewis is in Mel Brook's latest film "Men in Tights" and stars in a new TV series on Fox with Don Rickles. (REBROADCAST FROM 6-16-88). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new benefit album organized to help singer/songwriter Victoria Williams, who is afflicted with multiple sclerosis: "Sweet Relief". The album features Lou Reed, Pearl Jam, Matthew Sweet and others performing her songs.

Interview with Barbara Bush; Review of the album "Webb Pierce September 13, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502125].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former First Lady, BARBARA BUSH. She's written her memoir, "Barbara Bush" (Charles Scribner's Sons). A story of a "life of privilege" she writes. The book chronicles her early life, her marriage to George Bush during World War Two at the age of 19, and the political path that took them to the White House. BARBARA BUSH also writes about a depression she fell into in the mid-1970s in which she wept each night in the arms of her husband, and had thoughts about crashing her car into a tree or oncoming auto. The depression finally lifted on its own. The memoir is based on her diaries. One reviewer writes that BUSH "casts herself mostly as enthralled bystander at her husband's ascent from local Texas politics to the White House." (CONTINUES INTO SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with BARBARA BUSH continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Webb Pierce: King of the Honky Tonk," (from the Original Decca Masters, 1952-1959) on MCA.
Interview with Ze'ev Chafets; Interview with Naseer Aruri. September 13, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458073].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: American-Israeli ZEEV CHAFETS (SHAY-fetz). He is editor of "The Jerusalem Report," a news magazine published in Israel. He was the director of the government press office under prime minister Menacham Begin. He's also the author of "Inherit the Mob," a comic novel about a journalist lured into the Jewish Mafia, baited by a large inheritance. INT. 2: Palestinian-American NASEER ARURI. He's a professor of Political Science at the University of Massachusetts Dartmouth. He's the author of a number of books, his latest is 'Occupation: Israel Over Palestine," in it's second edition (1989), which was selected by Choice magazine as one of the "Outstanding Books for 1984/85." ARURI has written many articles on human rights, the Palestine question, Lebanon, Islam, and U.S. policy in the Middle East in scholarly journals and weekly magazines. ARURI has also been a member of the Board of Directors of Middle East Watch, and Amnesty International-U.S.A.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Foreign correspondent for "Newsday," ROY GUTMAN. He and his photographer were the first western journalists to report on genocide in a Serb-run concentration camp. Shortly after the story was published the camp was closed and the Red Cross let in. Their reporting led to public outrage, and official condemnation by the United Nations. GUTTMAN won a Pulitzer Prize for this reporting. The dispatches have now been collected in a new book, "A Witness to Genocide: The 1993 Pulitzer Prize-Winning Dispatches on the 'Ethnic Cleansing' of Bosnia." (Macmillan Publishing). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with ROY GUTMAN, continued. REV. T.V. critic David Bianculli reviews the new fall line-up.
Interview with James Earl Jones; Interview with Robert Irwin; Commentary on the "Birmingham Bombing." September 15, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457943].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor JAMES EARL JONES. His is one of the distinctive voices of our time, yet few people know he fights a stutter; JONES' stage work off-Broadway in Jean Genet's "The Blacks" and Athol Fugard's "The Blood Knot" lead to a Broadway success in "The Great White Way", for which JONES won a Tony. His work in August Wilson's "Fences" won him another. It took one day to record the voice track for Darth Vader in "Star Wars": a performance which lead to many other commercial voice-over projects. JONES has just released his memoirs, "Voices and Silences" (Scribners). INT. 2: Artist ROBERT IRWIN He's been a pivotal figure in American Art for over 30 years. He was one of the creators in the late 60s of the "light and space" movement, using unobtrusive objects, such as light, tape, and string to alter the viewers perception of the space in which the work is found. His work can be found in public spaces throughout the country, often using material natural to that environment, and delving into the "character" of the place. A new book, encompassing his work, has been published, "Robert Irwin" (published by the Museum of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles). REV. : Commentator Gayle Pemberton remembers the "Birmingham Bombing", which killed four young girls and galvanized support for the Civil Rights Movement.

Interview with Howell Raines; Interview with Linda Fairstein; Review of John Heidenry's and William Leach's books "Their was the Kingdom" and "Land of Desire." September 16, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457946].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:HOWELL RAINES is editorial page editor of "The New York Times." He's written a new "fishing" memoir, that's part sporting autobiography, and part guide-book for the middle years of life. "Fly Fishing Through the Midlife Crisis," (William Morrow & Company). RAINES also won the Pulitzer Prize for "Grady's Gift," a New York Times Magazine article about his friendship with a black woman in segregated Birmingham. INT. 2: For over 15 years, LINDA FAIRSTEIN (FAIR-STINE) has directed the Sex Crimes Prosecution Unit of the Manhattan D.A.'s office. The unit was the first of it's kind, and has become a model for others in cities across the country. When FAIRSTEIN began working there, rape cases were rarely tried in court, rape victims were stigmatized, and there was little understanding about rape in society. Over the years, FAIRSTEIN and her colleagues have made great strides in combating such crimes, and improving conviction rates. FAIRSTEIN has written a new book about their work, "Sexual Violence: Our War Against Rape." (William Morrow & Co.) REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN on two new books of non-fiction: "Theirs Was The Kingdom" by JOHN HEIDENRY (Norton) a history of Readers Digest, and "Land Of Desire" by William Leach (Pantheon) about rise of the department store in the nineteenth century.

Interview with Martin Scorsese; Interview with Harvey Keitel; Review of the film "The Age of Innocence." September 17, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457834].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Legendary American filmmaker, MARTIN SCORSESE. As part of a retrospective of his work by the Film Society of Lincoln Center this summer, The Department of Cinema Studies at Tisch School of the Arts presented "An Evening With Martin Scorsese," a wide ranging question and answer session taped live before an audience at New York University. We play a portion of this discussion, where Scorsese examines the art of cinema and his own body of work. SCORSESE has recently funded the restoration of the Hollywood Classic "El Cid" and released his new film, "Age of Innocence". REBROADCAST FROM 6/11/93 INT. 2: Actor HARVEY KEITEL. He is known for his roles in Martin Scorsese pictures like "Mean Streets," "Taxi Driver," and "Last Temptation of Christ." He played the sympathetic police officer in "Thelma And Louise" and the unsympathetic one in "Bad Lieutenant". REBROADCAST FROM 1-13-92 (Note language advisory above ) REV. : Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews Scorsese's "The Age of Innocence" based on the novel by Edith Wharton.
Interview with Morgan Freeman; Interview with Malcolm Browne; Commentary on single motherhood. September 20, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825313].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor MORGAN FREEMAN. He's one of stage and screen's most acclaimed actors, for his ability to emerse himself in different roles. He's originated the role of the chauffeur in the Broadway production of "Driving Miss Daisy." Later he revived the role in the movie version, for which he was nominated for an Academy Award. FREEMAN's other movies include, "Glory," "Clean and Sober," "Lean on Me," and "The Bonfire of the Vanities." FREEMAN is making his directing debut with the new film, "Bopha," based on a South African play. INT. 2: Correspondent for The New York Times, MALCOLM BROWNE. He has a memoir about his life as a reporter, "Muddy Boots and Red Socks: A Reporter's Life." (Times Books). He spent two decades as a foreign correspondent for wire services, newspapers, and magazines. He followed troops in Vietnam, and took the famous photographs of Buddhist monks setting themselves on fire in the streets of Saigon. He won a Pulitzer for his coverage of Viet Nam. BROWNE has also covered wars in Cambodia, Punjab, Banglades, North Africa, Latin America, and he was the oldest newsman to cover the Gulf War. REV. : Writer ANNE LAMOTT tells us about her real-life nightmare defending single motherhood on national TV.

Interview with Mark Plotkin; Interview with Sherman Alexie; Review of the television show "NYPD Blue." September 21, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457911].

Description of show segment(s)

Fistfight in Heaven." (Atlantic Monthly Press). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the most controversial new TV show of the fall season, NYPD Blue. It's the latest series from Steven Bochco, creator of Hill Street Blues and L.A. Law.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Children's book writer and illustrator MAURICE SENDAK. He's been at it for over 40 years. His books are classics: "Where the Wild Things Are," "In the Night Kitchen," and others. They are "unsentimental fantasizes" (LA Times Magazine), challenging the belief that children should be protected from their fears and anxieties. In all, SENDAK has illustrated 80 children's books (19 of which he wrote). He's also designed over 10 opera sets, including one for "The Nutcracker." SENDAK has a new book, about a pack of homeless kids, "We are all in The Dumps with Jack and Guy." (HarperCollins Publishers).

INT. 2: Biographer ANDREW GOWERS. He's co-written (with Tony Walker) a new biography of Yasser Arafat, "Behind the Myth: Yasser Arafat and the Palestinian Revolution." (Olive Branch Press). The book explores Arafat's nearly 40 years as a Palestinian activist. GOWERS and his co-author spent hundreds of hours interviewing PLO officials, including Arafat, as well as American, Arab and European officials. GOWERS is a Features Editor of the Financial Times and was the paper's Middle East Editor. He comments frequently on the Middle East for British radio and TV. A review of the book in the Wall Street Journal says, the authors "trace his [Arafat's] ascent with skill and dispassion; if you want to understand Mr. Arafat, they tell the story." REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Buccaneers," (Viking) the final novel by Edith Wharton. It was published as an unfinished novel after Wharton's death in 1937. Now it's been completed -- by scholar and novelist Marion Mainwaring -- and published again.
Interview with Arthur Caplan; Interview with Uwe Reinhardt. September 23, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458004].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biomedical ethicist ARTHUR CAPLAN. Caplan was on the Presidential task force that helped form the new health care proposal. He is the Director of the Center for Biomedical Ethics at the University of Minnesota. He is also a professor of surgery and philosophy there. In addition to numerous books and articles, Caplan writes a syndicated column; his work appears weekly in 40 newspapers in the U.S. and Canada. INT. 2: Professor UWE REINHARDT (OOH-vuh). He is a professor of Political Economy at Princeton University. He is also President of the American Association of Health Services Research. Reinhardt has written widely about reforming the U.S healthcare system in such publications as the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Wall Street Journal. He has argued for a universal plan for years now, saying it will control spiraling costs. REV. : NO ARTS REVIEW TODAY

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Mary-Claire King; Interview with Stanley Tucci; Review of Urge Overkill's album "Saturation." September 27, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457906].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry talks with molecular geneticist MARY-CLAIRE KING. She is one of the scientists who's work is featured in the new PBS series, "The Secret of Life." For the past 17 years, her research has focused on finding the gene responsible for the type of breast cancer that is inherited. She believes she is now close to locating the gene.

INT. 2: Terry talks with character actor STANLEY TUCCI. In the new movie, "Undercover Blues," TUCCI plays an hilariously incompetent, yet vicious mugger named "Muerte." (MWARE-tay). He's also appeared in the movies "Prelude to a Kiss," "Beethoven" and "Billy Bathgate." TUCCI's well-known for his role as crime boss Ricky Penzola in the tv series, Wiseguy" and has also appeared on television in "Equal Justice," "Thirtysomething," and "The Equalizer." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Saturation," the new album from the band URGE OVERKILL. (Geffen)

Interview with Michael J. Fox; Interview with Catherine Mackinnon. September 28, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458007].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor MICHAEL J FOX. He got his start on the hit TV show "Family Ties." He went on to star in a number of films, including the "Back to the Future" series. He's also starred in "Casualties of War," and "Doc Hollywood." His latest project is called "For Love or Money," a comedy about a concierge who's trying to raise money to run his own luxury hotel.

INT. 2: Law Professor CATHERINE MACKINNON. She's well known for her feminist take on legal issues, and she's just written a new book called "Only Words." (Harvard University Press) She argues that as long as sexual harassment, pornography and hate speech are protected by the First Amendment, equality will only be a word, not a reality. MacKinnon pioneered the legal claim for sexual harassment as a form of sex discrimination. She now teaches at the University of Michigan Law School.
Interview with Rami Khouri; Interview with Frank Conroy; Commentary on African-American magazines. September 29, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457910].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist RAMI KHOURI (pronounced "Koor-ee"). Khouri, a Palestinian Jordanian, is the former editor-in-chief of the Jordan Times newspaper and is now columnist there. INT. 2: Novelist FRANK CONROY. At 57, he's just published his first novel, "Body & Soul" (Houghton & Mifflin). He is currently the director of the prestigious Iowa Writers Program, and this novel has been long awaited by fans of his 1967 autobiography "Stop Time". Conroy has one other book, a collection of short stories called "Midair"; he's worked as a jazz pianist in Greenwich Village and Nantucket for many years. REV.: Commentator GAYLE PEMBERTON on the importance of African-American magazines.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor PATRICIA TURNER, of the African American Studies department at University of California, Davis. Her new book "I Heard It Through the Grapevine" (U. of California Press) examines the historical and social ramifications of rumor in African American culture. From Ku Klux Klan-owned clothing and cigarette companies to a military conspiracy to infect Africans with AIDS, she looks at the role of legend and rumor, finding it has long been a feature of the community. Turner argues that this widespread type of communication offers a means of coping for the community as they confront and absorb racial oppression. REV. 1: Television Critic DAVID BIANCULLI on the new season opener of the Simpson's show, which begins tonight; and also the season's end of the Larry Sanders's Show, which stars Gary Shandling. INT. 2: Novelist and Poet, JAMES DICKEY. Now 70, the author of the famed novel "Deliverance" and many volumes of poetry has released his third work of fiction, "To the White Sea" (Houghton Mifflin): a taut tale told in bare language of one pilot's survival in the waning interviews with john mahoney, steven bochco, and dennis franz; interview with garry shandling; review of the film "a bronx tale." october 1, 1993. [link to record with audio file http:// www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458006].

description of show segment(s)

int. 1: actor john mahoney. he started out in chicago's steppenwolf theater. his film roles include "tin men," "eight men out," the randy professor in "moonstruck," and the father in "say anything."... mahoney now plays frasier's (kelsey grammer) father in the "cheers" spin-off "frasier". (rebroadcast of 05/15/1990) television producer steven bochco. with shows like "hill street blues," "l.a.law," and this season's "nypd blue," bochco can claim credit for a whole tv genre: intensely realistic dramas that use an ensemble cast and multiple, interweaving plots that quickly cut back and forth. tv critics allude to the "bochco-ization of network tv," as more and more programs use the bochco trademarks of large casts, gallows humor and allusions to unconventional sex. bocho remains an innovative, albeit controversial, force in television. his latest series "nypd blue" has been rejected by a sizable number of abc affiliates for vulgarity and nudity. the ratings and critics, though, assert that this is television at its finest. (rebroadcast of 09/05/1989) actor dennis franz. he played the tough, gum chewing lieutenant norman bunz on the acclaimed tv series, "hill street blues." bunz briefly starred in the short-lived "hill street blues" spin-off, "beverly hills bunz. he returns to television in abc's "nypd blue." as detective sipowicz, he plays a legendary cop that is now battling burn-out and the bottle. int. 2: comedian and actor garry shandling. he stars in hbo's parody of talk-shows, "the larry sanders show." it features shandling as a veteran talk-show host. his guests have included robin williams, howard stern, and, actual talk show host, david letterman playing themselves. shandling also starred in "it's garry shandling's show" a few years back. just this week,"the larry sanders show" completed its second season with larry quitting the show. (rebroadcast of 12/03/1992) rev. : stephen schiff reviews "a bronx tale," actor robert deñoiro's directorial debut.
Interview with Terry Anderson and Madeleine Bassil; Review of Peter Hoeg's novel "Smilla's Sense of Snow." October 4, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457874].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TERRY ANDERSON and his wife MADELEINE BASSIL. ANDERSON was held hostage for seven years in Lebanon. Madeleine was pregnant when he was abducted and gave birth to their daughter, Sulome Theresa, while her husband was in captivity. In ANDERSON's new book, "Den of Lions: Memoirs of Seven Years" (Crown Publishers), Terry and Madeleine describe the challenges they were forced to face until his release in December of 1991. (This interview continues into the second half of the show.) INT. 2: Terry Anderson and wife, Madeleine Bassil, continued. REV. : Book critic JOHN LEONARD reviews "Smilla's Sense of Snow," the new book by Danish writer Peter Hoeg.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lawyer, professor, and former nominee to head the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, LANI GUINIER. GUINIER's nomination was withdrawn by President Clinton, after Republicans and Democrats started to question her views, as expressed in her academic writings, labeling her a "racial separatist," and the "quota queen." GUINIER talks with Terry about her views, her work with the NAACP's Legal Defense and Educational fund to amend the the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and how she was misunderstood and misrepresented during the nomination process. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: INTERVIEW with LANI GUINIER continued. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Morning After," by Katie Roiphe. (Little, Brown).
Interview with Walter Kirn; Interview with Thom Jones; Review of the television show "L. A. Law." October 6, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458019].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer WALTER KIRN. He was raised a Mormon on a Minnesota farm. He has been an editor for "Vanity Fair" and "Spy" magazines. His first collection of stories, "My Hard Bargain," was published two years ago. Kirn now freelances as a media critic for magazines such as Mirabella and GQ. His most recent book, "She Needed Me," is about religion and redemption and is now out in paperback from Simon & Schuster. (REBROADCAST FROM 9-30-92). INT. 2: Writer THOM JONES was a boxer in the Marines in the mid-1960s. He was supposed to ship out to Vietnam, but he suffered an epileptic seizure, which he believes was caused by too many punches to the head. So instead of shipping out, he was thrown out. The rest of his unit did go to Vietnam, where they were ambushed and killed. Jones turned to writing, but couldn't get anything published, so he became a high school janitor. He is finally experiencing literary success this year with the publication of his collection of short stories "The Pugilist At Rest" (Little, Brown). His stories revisit worlds Jones has known: that of the boxer, the Vietnam-era soldier, and the alcoholic. (Rebroadcast of 07/08/1993) REV. : Television critic David Bianculli on the season premier of "L.A. Law".

Interview with Alan and Susan Raymond and Deanna Burney; Interview with Toni Morrison; Review of the film "Short Cuts." October 7, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457873].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Documentary film makers ALAN and SUSAN RAYMOND. They made documentary history with "An American Family," living for seven months with the Loud family, to film the life of a "typical" American family. The 12-part series was broadcast over PBS in 1973, and it turned out to be a portrait of a not-so-typical family, and of a family disintegrating before our eyes. The RAYMONDS' documentary "The Police Tapes," was the inspiration for the TV series, "Hill Street Blues." They filmed life in a North Philadelphia inner-city elementary school for their latest film, "I am a Promise: The Children of Stanton Elementary School." They will be joined in Terry's interview with the principal of the school, DEANNA BURNEY. ("I am the Promise," premieres on HBO Monday, October 11, at 10pm, ET.) INT. 2: Novelist TONI MORRISON. She has a new novel "Jazz," (published by Knopf) and a new book of essays, "Playing in the Dark," (by Harvard). Her novel, "Beloved," won a Pulitzer prize. She's written five novels in all. Today she was awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 4/24/92) REV. : Film critic Steven Schiff reviews "Short Cuts."

Interview with Cynthia Lennon; Interview with Yoko Ono; Commentary on John Lennon's musical influences. October 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457871].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: CYNTHIA LENNON, JOHN LENNON's first wife (REBROADCAST FROM 8/6/85). INT. 2: YOKO ONO (REBROADCAST FROM 4/11/89). Before she met John Lennon, Ono was a sculptor. In fact, Lennon met her at an exhibition of her work in London in the late 60s. An exhibit of her work since 1989 is currently on display at the Cranbrook Academy of of Art Museum, outside of Detroit. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD traces the musical influences of a young John Lennon. (rebroadcast from 10/91).

Interview with Mary Gordon; Interview with Stephen Carter; Review of the television show "I'll Fly Away." October 11, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458017].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Novelist MARY GORDON. Her most recent book, "The Rest of Life" (Viking), is a compilation of three novellas. She explores the delicate love affairs that shape the lives of three women. Gordon's a feminist and a Catholic and often explores those themes in her writing. She has written four other novels as well as a collection of short stories. GORDON teaches at Barnard College. INT. 2: Writer STEPHEN CARTER. He's a professor of constitutional law at Yale University and author of "Reflections of an Affirmative Action Baby." CARTER's newest book, "The Culture of Disbelief: How American Law and Politics Trivialize Religious Devotion" (Harper Collins), argues that although the majority of Americans are religious, our law, politics, media, and universities pressure believers to trivialize their faith and treat "God as a Hobby." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the premiere of "I'll Fly Away," the
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Drama series set in the south at the time of the civil rights movement. It used to air on NBC; PBS has just picked it up and added tonight's episode to it.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: One of Bosnia's leading film makers, and professor of film at the Academy of Film and Theatre in Sarajevo ADEMIR KENOVIC. His newest film "SA-Life" (SA stands for Sarajevo) is compiled of scenes shot by himself, other film makers, and film students in and around Sarajevo that capture the horror of the war. Each day, KENOVIC and his fellow film makers would meet in his basement studio to plan the day's shoot, going out with hand-held cameras. KENOVIC has made three other films. "SA-Life" played at the Cannes Film Festival and is now playing at the "International Video Arts Festival" at Lincoln Center in New York. INT. 2: Journalist and former anchor of the CBS News, WALTER CRONKITE. Thirty years after Martin Luther King delivered his "I Have A Dream" speech, CRONKITE questions whether African-Americans choose to integrate into society or socialize primarily with each other. CRONKITE's newest project "The Faltering Dream," questions whether integration is still a goal or if a "equal but separate" is a more appropriate approach to race relations. In "The Faltering Dream," CRONKITE interviews notable black leaders including Reverend Jesse Jackson and Spike Lee. CRONKITE worked at CBS News for 31 years. REV. : John Leonard reviews "New York Days" (Little, Brown, & Co.) by Willie Morris.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. DAVID SPIEGEL, a professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at Stanford University School of Medicine. His groundbreaking study of breast cancer patients showed that women who had psychosocial intervention lived twice as long, after diagnosis, as those without that intervention. His new book, "Living Beyond Limits" (Times Books) covers current research on mind/body interactions, how to build sustaining support networks, control pain through self-hypnosis and detoxify fears of dying. Dr
Spiegel says, "the fact we do not control death does not mean we cannot control how we live in the face of dying". INT. 2: Interview with Dr. Spiegel continues. REV.: Classical Music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviewed a new recording of the Beethoven Violin Concerto, played by Nigel Kennedy, conducted by Klaus Tennstedt, on the EMI label.

Interview with Tim Green; Review of Garth Brook's album "In Pieces"; Interview with James Crumley; Review of Evan Parker's album "Core Sections." October 14, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458020].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Defensive lineman for the Atlanta Falcons, TIM GREEN. GREEN's written a novel, "Ruffians" (Turner), about a football star who's NFL experience is dominated by money and steroids. During football season, GREEN writes a weekly column for the "Syracuse Herald-Journal". Off season, GREEN attends law school. His sports commentaries can be heard occasionally on NPR. REV.: Ken Tucker reviews Garth Brook's new album, "In Pieces" INT. 2: Detective novelist JAMES CRUMLEY. It's been ten years since his last book. In CRUMLEY's fourth novel, "The Mexican Tree Duck" (Mysterious Press), redneck detective C.W. Sughrue (pronounced Shoog-rue) returns. CRUMLEY gets a lot of materials for his novels hanging out in bars in his hometown of Missoula, Montana. CRUMLEY has written three other detective novels. REV.: Kevin Whitehead reviews saxophonist EVAN PARKER's new release, "Conic Sections" on the Ah Um label.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Peter D. Kramer; Review of the film "The Beverly Hillbillies."
Interviews with Willie Morris and James Merrill; Interview with Dagoberto Gilb; Commentary on Mexican rock music. October 18, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457706].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet JAMES MERRILL. The son of the founder of the Merrill Lynch brokerage house, Merrill took to Europe at age 24, a newly published poet "meaning to stay as long as possible". That was in 1950. His new memoir "A Different Person" (Knopf) details his two and a half years there, and features encounters with psychoanalysts, new and old lovers, and Alice Toklas. MERRILL is the author of eleven books of poems, the winner of two National Book Awards, the Bolligen Prize for Poetry, and the Pulitzer Prize. Also in this half, writer WILLIE MORRIS. As editor-in-chief of Harper's in the 1960's, MORRIS wined and dined with the biggest names of the decade. MORRIS recounts his experiences of fast paced living in his new book "New York Days." He is the author of several other books including "North Toward Home." INT. 2: Writer DAGOBERTO GILB (pronounced "Dog-o-ber-to Gilb"). His new book of short stories, "Magic of Blood" (University of New Mexico Press), offers fiction from the Chicano and Anglo working-class worlds of America's southwest. GILB's prosaic realism has been called by one critic, "the most lethal kind of fiction a Chicano can write". REV. : World music commentator Milo Miles on the rebirth of rock and roll -- in Mexico.

Interview with Bill Littlefield; Commentary on asthma attacks; Interview with Joshua Redman; Review of Gabriel Garcia Marquez's book "Strange Pilgrims." October 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457705].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BILL LITTLEFIELD. He's a writer and regular sports commentator on NPR's "Morning Edition." LITTLEFIELD has a new book about baseball, "Baseball Days: From the Sandlots to the Show" (Bulfinch Press). LITTLEFIELD has been in love with the game since he was a kid, "Baseball Days" is a sentimental look at America's favorite past-time. REV. 1: Anne Lamott on her son's first asthma attack. INT. 2: Jazz musician JOSHUA REDMAN. A self-taught tenor saxophonist, REDMAN has a new album, "Wish," which is his second album released this year. REDMAN won the Thelonious Monk International Jazz Saxophone Competition in 1991. Son of renowned free-jazz saxophonist Dewey Redman, JOSHUA REDMAN had the most influence from his mother who raised him alone. After REDMAN graduated summa cum laude from Harvard in 1991 he decided to pursue his love of jazz. REV. 2: Critic John Leonard reviews Gabriel Garcia Marquez's collection of short stories "Strange Pilgrims."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Middle East expert and British hostage in Beirut, TERRY WAITE. While in Lebanon in 1987, as an Anglican Church envoy to negotiate the release of hostages there, WAITE himself was captured. He was held for 1,763 days (nearly five years); four years of that time was spent in solitary confinement. He had made numerous trips to the Middle East to negotiate hostage releases in Tehran and Beirut, and was no stranger to the danger of factional conflicts: in 1969 WAITE and his wife narrowly escaped the Idi Amin coup in Uganda. WAITE's memoirs of his captivity --composed in his head--while in captivity, are now published, "Taken on Trust" (HBJ). (INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with TERRY WAITE, continues. REV.: Maureen Corrigan reviews "Witness Against the Beast" by the late British writer E.P. Thompson.

Interview with Susan Wicklund; Interview with Howard Rheingold; Review of the film "Nightmare Before Christmas." October 21, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458034].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. SUSAN WICKLUND. She provides abortions services to women in Montana and South Dakota, traveling 4 hours each way. Without WICKLUND's services, abortions would not be available to women in North Dakota. In the past she has worked in up to five clinics in three states while living in Montana with her teenage daughter. WICKLUND has been featured on "60 Minutes." She will receive the Elizabeth Blackwell Award for her outstanding dedication to women's health care on October 29th. INT. 2: Writer HOWARD RHEINGOLD. In his newest book, "The Virtual Community: Homesteading on the Electronic Frontier" (Addison-Wesley) he argues that although computer mediated communication has made it possible for people to have access to almost anything, it is dangerous as well. RHEINGOLD says individuals must keep using the internet as a way to express their views or they will loose the ability to do so, as the government and large corporations become more aware of the technology's capabilities. RHEINGOLD is the author of "Virtual Reality" and three other books and editor of "Whole Earth Review." REV. : Stephen Schiff reviews Tim Burton's "Nightmare Before Christmas."

Interview with Buddy Guy; Interview with Annie Ross; Review of the television program "Picket Fences." October 22, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458031].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chicago-based blues guitarist BUDDY GUY. Eric Clapton has called him "by far and without a doubt the best guitar player alive." Guy was born in Louisiana, son of a sharecropper. He moved to Chicago in the late fifties and played with all the greats...including Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf and Junior Wells. Guy's now having a comeback. Guy has a new album, "Feels Like Rain." (Silvertone), which follows his Grammy-winning release, "Damn Right I've Got the Blues." (Rebroadcast from 8/10/93) INT. 2: Singer and actress ANNIE ROSS. Ross is best-known as a member of the jazz vocal trio Lambert, Hendricks and Ross. She also wrote "Twisted," which was recorded by both Joni Mitchell and Bette Midler. She made her acting debut in the 1974 play "Kennedy's Children," and has appeared in such films as "The Homecoming," "Yanks," and "Superman III." Her latest role is in the Robert Altman film "Short Cuts" (Rebroadcast from 3/2/90). REV. : TV critic David Bianculli reviews CBS's "Picket Fences."

Interview by Bob Edwards; Interview with Dr. John; Interview with Bob Edwards; Commentary on blues music. October 25, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458033].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Nina Totenberg; Interview with Marty Grosz; Interview with Cokie Roberts; Commentary on Sam Phillips. October 26, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457708].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NPR and NBC legal affairs corespondent, NINA TOTENBERG. She broke the story of Anita Hill's allegations of sexual harassment against Clarence Thomas. In covering the Thomas/Hill Judiciary Committee hearings some conservative senators accused TOTENBERG of ruining the lives of both Thomas and Hill. TOTENBERG also brought the fact that Judge Douglas Ginsburg had smoked marijuana into the public eye, costing him a Supreme Court nomination. TOTENBERG's reports regularly for "Morning Edition," "Weekend Edition," and "All Things Considered." REV. 1: A performance from the archives from guitarist Marty Grosz. (Rebroadcast of 07/24/1987) INT. 2: COKIE ROBERTS, Political Analyst for NPR and ABC. Her full name is Mary Martha Corinne Morrison Claiborne Boggs Roberts and she is perhaps the consummate "Washington Insider". The daughter of parents who shared a Congressional seat for a combined total of fifty years, Roberts' star in journalism is rising, covering the capital for NPR, and on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley", as well as substituting for Ted Koppel on "Nightline" In a conversation recorded live before an audience, Terry asks her about covering Congress and how her political upbringing affects her reporting (Recorded 5/21/93). REV. 2: Rock critic Ed Ward on the early days of Sam Phillips, the legendary founder of Sun Records, and discoverer of Elvis Presley. (Rebroadcast of 03/14/1989)

Interview with Michael Jackson, Part 1; Interview with Vernel Bagneris and Morten Gunnar Larsen; Interview with Michael Jackson, Part 2; Commentary on Elvisettes. October 27, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457707].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British Beer maven MICHAEL JACKSON (not THAT Michael Jackson). As a leading expert on beer, he's traveled the planet and northern California to sample and rate the wide range of beer-brewing. JACKSON is also a historian of the drink, offering perspectives on the popularity of local microbreweries and the appeal of home-brewing. His books include "Pocket Guide to Beer -The Connoisseur's companion to over 1000 Beers of the World-" (Simon & Schuster) and "Michael Jackson's Beer Companion" (Running Press). REV. : A performance by Vernel Bagneris and Morten Gunnar
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Interview with Marc Roberts, Part 1; Interview with Dave Frishberg; Interview with Marc Roberts, Part 2; Commentary on Tejano music. October 28, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457704].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of Political Economy and Health Policy MARC ROBERTS. He's written a new book about the health care crisis: "Your Money or Your Life: The Health Care Crisis Explained." (Doubleday). ROBERTS will talk with Terry about Clinton's health care plan, which the president presented to Congress yesterday. ROBERTS is on the faculty at the Harvard School of Public Health and the John F. Kennedy School of Government. REV. 1: Interview with Dave Frishberg. (Rebroadcast of 9/12/1991)

Interviews with various musicians; Commentary on rock, teens, and suicide. October 29, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458035].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz pianist and singer BOB DOROUGH. A top BeBop performer in New York, he later composed for Miles Davis. Since then, he's also composed for the children's show, "Schoolhouse Rock." He'll play the song he co-wrote with Dave Frishberg, "I'm Hip." (Rebroadcast from 01/05/1982) A recorded live performance of "The Worst Tunes We've Played at Weddings" and the Doors' hit "People are Strange" by BRAVE COMBO. The quartet founded the "nuclear polka" movement which was popular with punks and polka fans. (Rebroadcast from 5/16/90). Singer and songwriter LOUDON WAINWRIGHT. He is best known for his 1973 hit "Dead Skunk." He is considered by many to be a satirical and caustic folksinger. He plays his song, "Your Mother and I." (Rebroadcast from 11/27/87) Jazz guitarist MARTY GROSZ. He's been a part of the New York jazz scene for over forty years. His playing mocks the style of Fats Waller. He performs "I'm Crazy 'Bout My Baby." (Rebroadcast of 6/26/1987) INT. 2: Singer, writer, and translator Susannah McCorkle performs selections from the Great American Songbook with pianist Ben Aronov and bassist Chip Jackson. She discovered much of that music while living in Europe, watching American films. (Rebroadcast of 7/17/1987) Pianist Kenny Barron says that the late jazz musician's style was jagged, percussive and dissonant. Barron performs some of Monk's compositions to demonstrate this innovative approach. (Rebroadcast of 03/24/1989) INT. 3: Kansas City pianist JAY MCSHANN. As a big band leader in the 40s and 50s, McShann helped start the careers of jazz stars like Charlie Parker and Big Joe Turner. He performs "When I Grow To Old To Dream." (rebroadcast from 10/8/87) ARTHEL "DOC" WATSON, one of America's premier acoustic folk guitarists. His flat-pick style of playing traditional folk and bluegrass has made his sound one of the most distinctive of any folk artist. He's won at least four Grammys. In the folk music community, Watson is best known for his part in preserving the

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African journalist Rich Mkhondo joins the show to discuss the first multi-racial election in South Africa and the increasing violence in the country. REV. 1 : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the film "Fearless." INT. 2: Star Trek star William Shatner joins the show to discuss his book "Star Trek Memories." REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff remembers Italian director Frederico Fellini, who died over the weekend. (Interview by Naomi Person)

Interview with Wilma Mankiller; Interview with Martin Simecka; Commentary on EuroDisney. November 2, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457553].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Wilma Mankiller, the first female chief of the Cherokee discusses her memoir. INT. 2: Slovak novelist Martin Simecka discusses life after the split of Czechoslovakia. His latest novel to be published in the U. S. is "Year of the Frog." Prior to the fall of Communism, Simecka and his father were dissidents.
REV.: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg, who is currently living outside of Paris, describes his experience taking his daughter to EuroDisney.

Description of show segment(s)

INT: Disaster relief expert Fred Cuny discusses efforts to rebuild gas and water lines in the battle zone of Sarajevo. REV.: TV critic David Bianculli reviews the new sitcom "The Nanny."

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

An archives edition on the recovery movement. INT. 1: Dr. Al Mooney, a specialist in Addictive Medicine and his mother Dot Mooney. Doctor Mooney is the author of The Recovery Book, a guide to drug and alcohol recovery and runs the Willingway Hospital, a drug and alcohol rehabilitation center in Statesboro Georgia. Doctor Mooney knows about addiction first hand. His late father, who was also a doctor, became addicted to drugs and alcohol...so did his mother. When the parents kicked their habits, they turned their house into a rehabilitation center for other addicts. Surrounded by recovering drug and alcohol, Mooney's three siblings also became addicts. Al Mooney was the only member of his family to maintain sobriety. (Rebroadcast of 12/21/1992) INT. 2: Comedian AL FRANKEN: He plays the sensitive twelve-stepper Stuart Smalley on "Daily Affirmations with Stuart Smalley" on Saturday Night Live which was based on Franken's own experience with a 12-step group. He is a co-producer of SNL and works on the cable network "Comedy Central," where he anchored the Democratic and Republican Conventions for "Indecision '92." He has a new book, (written by Stuart Smalley) is "I'm Good Enough, I'm Smart Enough, and Doggone It, People Like Me." (Dell Trade Paperback). (Rebroadcast of 10/30/1992) REV: Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the latest Merchant Ivory release "The Remains of the Day."

Interview with Edmund White; Interview with Roy Lichtenstein; Review of the Breeders' album "Last Splash." November 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458046].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDMUND WHITE. He has been called "unquestionably the foremost American gay novelist." WHITE's novels draw significantly from his own experiences in a style he calls "auto-fiction." In his newest book, "Genet: A Biography" (Knopf), WHITE documents the life of controversial French writer, Jean Genet. Genet had a reputation as a dandy, a thief, a vagabond --- a "thug of genius." WHITE calls him "one of France's most original and forceful novelists of the twentieth century." WHITE has also written "Forgetting Elena," "A Boy's Own Story," and six other books of fiction and non-fiction. INT. 2: American artist, ROY LICHTENSTEIN. He was one of the inventors of pop art in the 1960's, finding inspiration for his paintings in comic books and advertisements. (More recently, he's found it in the yellow pages of the phone book). LICHTENSTEIN's work often replicates the heavy black outlines, bright colors and dots of a color comic strip found in a newspaper. Called by one critic the "supreme virtuoso of pop", his work is filled with constant references to high and low arts as well as to his own work. The Guggenheim Museum is featuring a retrospective of LICHTENSTEIN's paintings, sculpture, and his stage set-sized murals. REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the Breeders new album "Last Splash" (Elektra).
Interview with Helen Suzman; Interview with Amos Oz; Review of Sena Jeter Naslund's and Julia Barrett's novels "Sherlock in Love" and "Presumption." November 9, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457552].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From 1953 until 1989 HELEN SUZMAN served as an Opposition Member of the South African Parliament. SUZMAN was a pioneering political leader in the fight against apartheid and anti-semitism. For thirteen years she was the sole representative in the Parliament to reject race discrimination. In her book, "In No Uncertain Terms: A South African Memoir" (Knopf), she explains how she used her status to gain access to places out of bounds to the general public--prisons, black townships and "resettlement areas"--and how she came to know Nelson Mandela and other political prisoners. INT. 2: Israeli peace activist and novelist AMOS OZ (pronounced AH-mos not A-mos). He lived on a kibbutz for many years and is a veteran of the Six-Day War in 1967 and the Yom Kippur War in 1973. OZ is a leading activist for peace between the Arabs and the Israelis. His new book is called "Fima" (Harcourt Brace), he has written eleven novels in all. AMOS OZ received the German Publishers Peace Prize in 1992. REV.: Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews two sequels to literary classics, "Sherlock Holmes" and "Pride and Prejudice".

Interview with Brian De Palma; Interview with Jerry Stiller; Commentary on the oral culture of Somalia. November 10, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457551].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director BRIAN DE PALMA. Now 53, he's the son of a orthopedic surgeon in Philadelphia, and sometimes watched his father's surgeries. Perhaps this explains the frequent depiction of blood and violence in many of his films, which include "Carrie", "Dressed to Kill", "The Fury", and "Scarface". His thrillers were often compared with those of Hitchcock. In the 1970's, De Palma, along with other young film directors Martin Scorsese, Steven Spielberg and Francis Coppola made films of such quality that the period is sometimes referred to as another Golden Age of Hollywood. De Palma returns to that era with his new film "Carlito's Way", which stars one of the great actors of the 70s, Al Pacino. INT. 2: Comedian and actor, JERRY STILLER. He's currently playing George Costanza's father on this season's "Seinfeld" show. STILLER got his start in standup comedy with his wife Anne Meara as The Stillers, the befuddled jewish guy and the heart-of-gold Irish girl. They performed for nine years on the Ed Sullivan Show, and did popular radio spots for Blue Nun wine and other TV shows and specials. REV.: Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg on the oral culture of Somalia.

Interview with Tim Pat Coogan; Review of the television show "Return to Lonesome Dove"; Interview with J. S. Cartier; Commentary on Otis Redding. November 11, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458048].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Irish writer and journalist TIM PAT COOGAN. In the expanded edition of his twenty-some year old book, "The IRA: A History" (Roberts Rinehart), COOGAN explains the historical background of the Irish struggles. For hundreds of years the Irish Republican Army has been fighting for home rule in Northern Ireland...their latest attack was a massive bombing of London last April. "The IRA: A History," is being released for the first time in the U.S., thought it's been required reading for British and Irish Military officers alike. COOGAN is the author of four other books, including "The Man Who Make Ireland: The Life and Death of Michael Collins" (Roberts Rinehart). REV.1 : T.V. critic David Bianculli reviews the seven-hour miniseries, "Return to Lonesome Dove" (CBS). INT. 2: Photographer J.S. CARTIER. A native to France, CARTIER and his wife, ANNA, returned to France and Belgium to take photographs for their "Western Front Project." Seventy-five years after the end of the First World War, the remaining vestiges and veterans are few, and vanishing quickly. For two years the CARTIERS traveled "The Western Front," talking with villagers and veterans, and documenting the remaining traces of the war. REV. 2: Rock historian Ed Ward pays tribute to Otis Redding.

Interviews with Mickey Spillane and Lawrence Block; Interviews with Walter Mosley and Sue Grafton; Review of the film "Carlito's Way." November 12, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458049].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Detective writer MICKEY SPILLANE. One of the world's most popular writers of the hard-boiled private investigator genre. His most famous character is Mike Hammer. In 1989, SPILLANE wrote his first Mike Hammer story in 19 years. SPILLANE's latest book is called "Big Kill." Last year his book "My Gun is Quick" (Chivers North America), first published in 1950, was reprinted. (REBROADCAST FROM 11/22/89) Veteran crime novelist LAWRENCE BLOCK. He's written ten novels staring Manhattan private eye Matt Scudder. His latest is called "The Devil Knows Your Dead" (William Morrow).

(REBROADCAST FROM 3/17/92) INT. 2: Writer WALTER MOSLEY. His first book, "Devil In A Blue Dress," (Norton) is a hard-boiled detective story starring a black gumshoe up against white prejudice. MOSLEY's mysteries are loosely based on stories his father told him about black culture the 1940's. His latest book is called "A Red Death" (Thorndike).

(REBROADCAST FROM 6/8/90) Mystery writer SUE GRAFTON. Her heroine, Kinsey Millhone, is a new breed of hard-boiled detective: competent and self-reliant, thirty-two years old, twice married with no kids, and currently single. The Kinsey Millhone mystery series began with "A is for Alibi" , and continues through the alphabet. GRAFTON's latest mystery is "I is for Innocent" (Fawcett).

Interview with Phil Proctor, Peter Bergman, and David Ossman; Interview with Laurie Kaye Abraham; Review of Eddie Allen's album "Another's Point of View." November 15, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458047].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: .The four-man comedy troupe, THE FIRESIGN THEATRE. The FIRESIGNS created satire out of the political and civil upsets of the late 1960's, drawing big underground radio and college campus audiences. Now, more than ten years since the last tour, THE FIRESIGN THEATRE is making a comeback. Known for their eclectic comedy routines, they're celebrating their 25th anniversary with a reunion tour. THE FIRESIGNS (Phil Proctor, Peter Bergman, Phil Austin, and David Ossman) got their start doing a late night radio talk show, "Radio Free Oz," with the host in the persona of the Wizard of Oz. Since then, the FIRESIGNS have done 13 comedy albums for CBS, including "Don't Crush That Dwarf, Hand Me The Pliers." NT. 2: Health care reporter LAURIE KAYE ABRAHAM. For her new book, "Mama Might Be Better Off Dead: the Failure of Health Care in Urban America" (U of Chicago), ABRAHAM spent three years with a poor African American family studying the problem of lack of access to medical care. ABRAHAM reveals how difficult it is for a poor family to make sense of Medicaid and Medicare, and the discrimination that blacks face in trying to find health care. REV. : Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews trumpeter Eddie Allen's (aka E.J. Allen) new album, "Another's Point of View."
Interview with Levon Helm; Interview with Martin Espada; Review of the television show "Frontline." November 16, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458045].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Drummer and lead vocalist for the rock group THE BAND, LEVON HELM (pronounced LEE-von). HELM's Arkansas roots gave the Canadian group an American folk sound. In the 1960's THE BAND got it's start backing Bob Dylan. They went on their own in 1968 with "Music From Big Pink." THE BAND is back with a new album, "Jericho," and a tour. HELM's written a book about THE BAND called "This Wheel's On Fire" (Morrow). INT. 2: MARTIN ESPADA, a poet, tenant's right attorney, and now Assistant Professor of English at University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Brooklyn born -in 1957- of Puerto Rican heritage, he calls his work, "poems of advocacy, based on the lives ...consigned to silence." ESPADA was lauded by PEN/Revison Award for Poetry for giving "dignity to the insulted and injured of the earth." Poet Carolyn Forche describes ESPADA as "that subversive someone we know." His new book of poems is "City of Coughing and Dead Radiators" (Norton). REV. : Also, T.V. critic David Bianculli reviews tonights "Frontline" about Lee Harvey Oswald.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Ed Ryder and James McCloskey; Interview with Barbara Cook; Review of the film "The Piano." November 18, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501263].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ED RYDER AND REVEREND JAMES McCLOSKEY. The story of one man's fight for freedom. Three days after RYDER arrived at Holmesburg prison to do time for theft, he was accused of murdering a prisoner in his cell block. For twenty years, RYDER fought to prove his innocence... the city of Philadelphia rallying behind him. REVEREND JAMES McCLOSKEY, who helps prisoners he believes are unjustly convicted get pardons, spearheaded the efforts for RYDER's release. Now RYDER is a free man. During the twenty years RYDER was a model prisoner, teaching himself how to play trumpet, and continuing his education through college level.

INT. 2: Singer and actress BARBARA COOK. Since the 1950's COOK has been in countless Broadway musicals--"Oklahoma", "The King and I", and Leonard Bernstein's "Candide" to name a few. She's been called a "no nonsense singer...able to thrust with gentility of tone." COOK has a new album--her first in five years--called "Dorothy Fields: Close as Pages in a Book." She won a Tony Award for her part as "Marian the librarian" which she originated in "The Music Man." REV. : Stephen Schiff reviews the new film by director Jane Campion, "The Piano," starring Holly Hunter and Harvey Keitel.

Interview with Richard Price; Interview with Jim Galipeau; Review of Nirvana's album "In Utero." November 19, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501262].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RICHARD PRICE wrote and produced the movie "Mad Dog and Glory," which stars Robert Deniro, Bill Murray and Uma Thurman. His most recent novel is the best seller, "Clockers," (published by Houghton Mifflin). Christopher Lehmann-Haupt of The New York Times wrote "the signal achievement of "Clockers' is to make us feel the enormous power of these giants that are drugs, alcoholism, poverty." "Clockers" has just been published in paperback. PRICE also wrote the screenplays for, "The Color of Money," "Sea of Love," and Martin Scorsese's section of "New York Stories." (REBROADCAST FROM 3/18/93) INT. 2: Probation officer for Los Angeles County, JIM GALIPEAU (GAL-ih-poh). He works with gangs in Los Angeles, and is currently trying to raise money for a program for older gang members. He'll talk with Terry about the truce between gangs that began last spring, just before the riots;
the differences between gangs, between Hispanic and Black gangs, and inner city and suburban gangs; the impact of the riots, and the possibility of riots in the future. GALIPEAU has been a probation officer for 27 years. He's a Vietnam vet, and when he was a teenager, he was a street fighter and drug addict. (REBROADCAST FROM 3/12/93) REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Nirvana's new release, "In Utero."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Afrikaner poet, painter and dissident BREYTEN Breytenbach (BRY-ten BRY-ten-back). In 1975, Breytenbach was an anti-apartheid activist in exile. When he made a secret visit to his native South Africa, Breytenbach was arrested, charged for treason, and imprisoned for seven years. In his writing, Breytenbach "alternates outrage at South Africa's governmental policies of apartheid with love for his country and its landscape". Breytenbach's most recent work is "Return to Paradise" (Harcourt Brace). He's also written "A Season in Paradise," "Confessions of an Albino Terrorist," and many other volumes of poetry and essays. INT. 2: Movie producer Art Linson. He broke into Hollywood with "Fast Times at Ridgemont High." His other films include "Casualties of War", "The Untouchables," and "This Boy's Life". The New York Times called him an "energetic tough guy film maker with a tendency for the offbeat." Linson grew tired of everyone (including his mother) always asking what he does. So he's written a book about his job called "A Pound of Flesh: Perilous Tales of How to Produce Movies in Hollywood" (Grove Press).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pete Townsend. In the 1960's he made waves as the lead guitarist in the British rock group The Who. He was world famous for smashing guitars during concerts. Now, years after The Who split up, Townsend is busy with solo projects. "Tommy," the rock opera he wrote for The Who in 1969, is on Broadway. His latest album is called "White City." INT. 2: One of the "Orphans of Jonestown," Stephan Jones. He is one of the surviving sons of Jim Jones, leader of the Peoples Temple in Guyana. Fifteen years ago Jim Jones orchestrated the mass suicide of over 900 people after a California Representative visited the temple, charging Jones with holding people against their will. Now, after the Waco tragedy, Stephan Jones remember the loss. Their were 85 survivors from Jonestown--260 children died. REV. : Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Jacqueline Deval's new book, "Reckless Appetites" (Ecco).

Interview with Garrison Keillor; Interview with Jimmie Dale Gilmore; Review of the film "Mrs. Doubtfire." November 24, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458096].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Storyteller GARRISON KEILLOR. He's the host and writer of "A Prairie Home Companion" on National Public Radio--a show that "pokes at the heart of American sensibilities and sensitivities." His new book is called "The Book of Guys" (Viking). KEILLOR has written five other books including the best-seller "Lake Wobegon Days." INT. 2: GARRISON KEILLOR continues. INT. 3: Singer/Songwriter Jimmie Dale Gilmore is in the studio for a concert. His music bears the influence of honky-tonk, Tex-Mex rhythms, and country and western. His spiritual influences include Hinduism and writers such as Aldous Huxley and W. Somerset Maugham. Gilmore is the kind of performer who defies definition, though he has been called the "Shaman of the Sagebrush." Gilmore's been playing music for over 20 years, first with the critically-acclaimed group the Flatlanders, then solo. He says he's "never made music out of the drive to be fashionable." He dropped out of performing for almost ten years to study with a guru. He has a new album, "Spinning Around the Sun." (Rebroadcast of 8/30/1993) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF, reviews "Mrs. Doubtfire," starring Robin Williams and Sally Field.
Interview with Eileen Farrell; Interview with John Leguizamo; Review of the television show "Bonanza November 25, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457904].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soprano EILEEN FARRELL. At the age of 73, she's had a long career: she began in radio, with her own show on CBS, in the forties. In the fifties she started singing opera, and has performed with every major opera company and symphony orchestra in the U.S., including five seasons with the Metrropolitan Opera in New York. She has also been a professor of music at Indiana University and the University of Maine. Starting in the sixties, she began putting out albums of jazz standards. Terry spoke to her last year after the release of her album,"It's Over." (Reference Recordings RR-46CD) Farrell's latest album is called "Here" (Elba Records.) (REBROADCAST Originally aired 7/9/92) INT. 2: Actor JOHN LEGUIZAMO (pronounced "Leh-gwee-zamo"). Leguizamo created and starred in the hit one-man show "Mambo Mouth," based on his experiences as a Latino growing up in Jackson Heights, Queens. "Mambo" premiered on HBO and later was published as a book (Bantam). Leguizamo's second one-man show, "Spic-O-Rama," had long runs in Chicago and New York, and was also shown on HBO. As an actor, Leguizamo has appeared in "Whispers in the Dark" and "Super Mario Brothers." He now is on the big screen with Al Pacino in "Carlito's Way." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/24/91) REV. : DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new "Bonanza" telemovie.

Interview with Maurice Sendak; Interview with Michael Caine; Commentary on death and friendship. November 26, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457903].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Children's book writer and illustrator MAURICE SENDAK. He's been at it for over 40 years. His books are classics: "Where the Wild Things Are," "In the Night Kitchen," and others. They are "unsentimental fantasizes" (LA Times Magazine), challenging the belief that children should be protected from their fears and anxieties. In all, SENDAK has illustrated 80 children's books (19 of which he wrote). He's also designed over 10 opera sets, including one for "The Nutcracker." SENDAK has a new book, about a pack of homeless kids, "We are all in The Dumps with Jack and Guy." (HarperCollins Publishers). (R) INT. 2: Actor MICHAEL CAINE. He's made over 70 films, from "Alfie" to "Sleuth" to "Dirty Rotten Scoundrels" and "Hannah and Her Sisters." Caine has worked with such esteemed directors as Brian DePalma, John Huston, and Woody Allen. His autobiography, "What's It All About?" (Random House) is coming out in paperback in January of 1994. (R) REV. : Commentator ANNIE LAMOTT reflects on life on the first anniversary of her best friend's death.

Interview with Lars Eighner; Interview with Derek Bok; Review of the album "Jonny Spielt Auf." November 29, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458094].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former homeless man and writer, LARS EIGHNER (EYE-ner). He's written an account of his time on the streets with his dog, "Travels with Lizbeth: Three Years on the Road and on the Streets," (St, Martin's Press). INT. 2: Former president of Harvard DEREK BOK. In his new book, "The Cost of Talent: How Executives and Professionals Are Paid and How It Affects America" (Free Press), BOK argues that the rich shouldn't be so much richer. He says that huge salary gaps result in social and economic losses, "jeopardiz[ing] democracy by weakening faith in the economic system". Bok was the president of Harvard University from 1971 to 1991. He has written five other books. REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews the jazz opera "Jonny spielt auf" (pronounced shpeelt auf) of the new series "Entartete" (pronounced ent-ART-a-tuh, London Records). It's a series of music banned during the Holocaust.

Interview with Marcus Conant; Interview with Tony Trischka; Review of Wendy Lesser's book "Pictures at an Execution." November 30, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458095].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DOCTOR MARCUS CONANT. In the early 1980's DR. CONANT was among the first doctors in San Francisco to treat AIDS cases. Now DR. CONANT heads the largest private AIDS medical practice in San Francisco. After his 1985 study on how condoms block transmission of the AIDS virus, condoms became a household word. DR. CONANT is the director of AIDS Clinical Research Center and the co-director of the Kaposi's Sarcoma Clinic at the University of California at San Francisco. INT. 2: Banjo player, TONY TRISCHKA. He's been called the "premier banjo madman of our time." TRISCHKA incorporates jazz and rock and roll into his style, with bluegrass at the heart of his music. TRISCHKA's new album, "World Turning" (Rounder Records), is a "loose history of the banjo" with everything from an African banjo tune to banjo Dixieland style. He has a number of albums out on the Rounder label. REV: Maureen Corrigan reviews Wendy Lesser's book, "Pictures at an Execution," looking at why we are fascinated with murder.

Interview with Zlatko Dizdarevic; Commentary on the war in Sarajevo; Review of the television program "Great Performances." December 1, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458106].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Bosnian Journalist ZLATKO DIZDAREVIC, (pronounced: ZLOTKO DIZ DAR A VICH) an editor of the only daily newspaper in Sarajevo which has continued to publish during the war, and the author of "Sarajevo Under Siege: A War Journal," (Fromm International). He read last night at the PEN American Center's benefit, "An Evening For Sarajevo". INT. 2: Readings from the PEN American Center's benefit for Bosnian Writers, "An Evening For Sarajevo", held last night in New York City. Fifteen American writers read from their work to raise money for the writers of Sarajevo for food and supplies; writers in the besieged city are fighting to keep their literary culture vital and undiminished in a time of war. REV: TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews an unusual departure PBS' Great Performances: a production of "PsychoDerelict", the new multi-media composition by the rock and roller, Pete Townsend.

Interview with Albert French; Interview with Elaine Marcus Starkman; Commentary on the bicentennial of the French Revolution. December 2, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457902].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist ALBERT FRENCH. He found inspiration for his first novel, "Billy" (Viking), in the true story of an 11-yr-old getting the electric chair in the 1930's. "Billy," is the story of the "legal lynching" of a ten year old boy in the deep south who inadvertently kills a white girl. FRENCH writes in "Delta" dialect, epitomizing racial hatred in America. INT. 2: Writer ELAINE MARCUS STARKMAN.
STARKMAN's new book, "Learning to Sit in Silence: A Journal of Caretaking" (Paper-Mache), is a fictionalized journal of caring for her elderly mother-in-law. STARKMAN explores the love, guilt, and anger that accompanies aging and death for so many. STARKMAN has also written "The Best Time" and "Love Scene." REV. : Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg talks about the bicentennial of the French Revolution.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. PAUL MAYEWSKI, chief scientist with the Greenland Ice Sheet Project 2. The project archives tubes of ice extracted from Greenland which chronicle 250,000 years of the earth's atmosphere, and changes in the climate. From the ice, scientists can pinpoint the start of the industrial revolution, or the end of the ice age. Scientists hope, by looking at the ice, they can better understand rapid changes in the earth's climate. (REBROADCAST from 9/9/93) INT. 2: Children's book illustrator TED LEWIN (LOO-in). Lewin paid his way through art school in the 50's as a professional wrestler. His new memoir, "I Was a Teenage Professional Wrestler," (Orchard Books) includes Lewin's paintings of wrestlers. (REBROADCAST from 8/17/93). REV. : Movie critic Steven Schiff reviews "A Dangerous Woman" starring Deborah Winger.

Interview with Marion Williams; Interview with David Hockney; Obituary for Frank Zappa. December 6, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458092].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Gospel singer MARION WILLIAMS. Her trademark, a long-lasting high A-flat "whooo," has been adopted by most gospel singers and soul singers like Little Richard and Aretha Franklin. A self-proclaimed "Holy Roller", WILLIAMS received the Kennedy Center Honors Award last night in Washington for her lifetime achievement in the arts. When she's not performing, WILLIAMS sings traditional gospel at the African-Methodist-Episcopal church in Philadelphia--the first black church formed in America. Her new album is "Can't Keep It To Myself" (Sanachie). INT. 2: Pop artist DAVID HOCKNEY. He's worked in many mediums--from painting and drawing to working with fax and copy machines. HOCKNEY made waves in the art world with his take on photography--compiling hundreds of polaroid snap-shots in a photocollage. In 1979 HOCKNEY started to lose his hearing. Now, near deaf, his art reflects his insights on his loss of hearing. HOCKNEY's new book, "That's The Way I See It" (Chronicle Books), is his second volume of reflections. REV. : We pay tribute to Frank Zappa who died over the weekend with an excerpt of Terry's 1989 interview with him. (Rebroadcast of 1/17/1989)

---

Interview with Deborah Prothrow-Stith; Interview with Gloria Wade-Gayles; Review of George Clinton's album "Hey Man, Smell My Finger." December 7, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458093].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Violence prevention expert DEBORAH PROTHROW-STITH. She's encouraged America to look at violence as a public health emergency. STITH says that instead of stitching up bullet wounds and returning people to the streets, we should teach violence prevention. STITH, assistant dean at Harvard School of Public Health, received the World Health Day Award in 1993. STITH co-wrote a book on violence called "Deadly Consequences" (Harper Collins) and a health textbook, "Health Skills for Wellness". INT 2: Writer GLORIA WADE-GAYLES. Growing up in Memphis in the 1940's WADE-GAYLES experienced Jim Crow discrimination first hand. In her new book of autobiographical essays, "Pushed Back To Strength: A Black Woman's Journey Home" (Beacon), she reflects on her childhood, the civil-rights movements, abortion in the African-American community, and the death of her mother. WADE-GAYLES is a professor of English and women's studies at Spelman College. She also wrote "No Crystal Stair: Visions of Race and Sex in Black Women's Fiction" (Pilgrim Press). REV. : Ken Tucker on the new George Clinton record, "Hey Man, Smell My Finger".

---

Interview with Roddy Doyle; Interview with Avram Goldstein; Review of Sebastien Japrisot's novel "A Very Long Engagement." December 8, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458535].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Irish author, RODDY DOYLE, winner of the 1993 Booker Prize for his novel "Paddy Clarke Ha Ha Ha" (Viking). Doyle taught school in Dublin for fourteen years; during that time he wrote and self-published his first novel, "The Commitments" about a band of musicians who bring soul music to Dublin. (It was made into a popular film here). Doyle's other novels include "The Snapper" (soon to be a film) and "The Van", all fictions which take place in a rough and tumble neighborhood of Dublin, and whose slang-filled dialogue has been hailed for its authenticity. INT. 2: Pharmacologist DR. AVRAM GOLDSTEIN. He set up some of the first methadone clinics to treat heroin addiction in California, and has a new book "Addiction: From Biology to Drug Policy" (Freeman). GOLDSTEIN argues that addictions are diseases, and must be considered a public health problem. A study released last month may back him up: 500,000 American deaths a year are attributed to cigarette, alcohol and drug use. REV. : Maureen Corrigan reviews "A Very Long Engagement," by French novelist Sebastien Japrisot.

Interview with Eddie Budah and Derrek Penny; Interview with Mary Previte; Interview with Derrek Penny. December 9, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458537].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry talks with two young men who've been through the program at the Camden County Youth Center, a juvenile detention center in Camden, New Jersey: EDDIE BUDAH and DERREK PENNY. BUDAH will read some of his poetry that has appeared in the Center's newsletter, "What's Happening." INT. 2: MARY PREVITE (pronounced prev-eh-tee). She's the administrator of the Camden County Youth Center. Over the 19 years she's been at the CCYC, PREVITE has witnessed the increase of violence in our society, and the effects on among America's young. PREVITE says that most of the kids she sees live in terror, knowing violence as the only way to express their emotions. Fourteen years ago PREVITE started a student newspaper called "What's Happening", establishing a dialogue between herself, the kids, and the community. REV. : Instead of an arts review, more with DERREK PENNY.
Interview with Charles Busch; Review of the television show "Gypsy"; Interview with Paul Rudnick; Review of the film "Geronimo December 10, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458345].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright, female impersonator, and now novelist CHARLES BUSCH. His play, the camp classic, "Vampire Lesbians of Sodom," was the longest-running play in Off-Broadway history. His other plays include, "Psycho Beach Party," and "Red Scare on Sunset." His latest show parodies the variety shows of the 60s, "The Charles Busch Revue," in which he makes seven costume changes in an hour and 15 minutes. BUSCH's first novel, "Whores of Lost Atlantis," (Hyperion) came out in November. (Rebroadcast from 7/29/93) BUSCH can now be seen in the film, "Addams Family Values," playing Morticia's Countess cousin. REV. :T.V. critic David Bianculli reviews the musical "Gypsy," starring Bette Midler. INT. 2: PAUL RUDNICK is a essayist, novelist, and playwright. His latest play off-Broadway is a comedy about AIDS. "Jeffrey," about a man who swears off love and sex. RUDNICK also wrote the Broadway play, "I Hate Hamlet," about John Barrymore's ghost. And he writes a column in Premiere, "If You Ask Me," in which he writes in the voice of a quintessential Jewish mother who critiques movie stars' personal lives more than their acting (Rebroadcast from 4/8/93). RUDNICK also wrote the screenplay for the movie "Addams Family Values," starring Angelica Houston and Raul Julia. REV 2: Movie critic Steven Schiff reviews "Geronimo: An American Legend" starring Robert Duvall.

Interview with James Fallows; Interview with Walter Hill; Review of Ornette Coleman's album "Ornette Coleman December 13, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458091].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAMES FALLOWS is the Washington editor of "The Atlantic Monthly." He has a new book, "Looking at the Sun," (Pantheon) to be published in February about the Asian economy. He's written a three part series of articles drawn from the book in the Atlantic (the last one appears in the Jan 94 issue). INT. 2: Film director WALTER HILL. His newest film, which he produced and directed is "Geronimo: An American Legend." He's best known for action-oriented films which include, "Hard Times," "The Long Riders," "48 HRS," "Streets of Fire," and others. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new CD-box set, just right for the jazz-lover in your circle of family or friends "Ornette Coleman: Beauty is a Rare Thing: The Complete Atlantic Recordings," (on Rhino).

Interview with Octavia Butler; Interview with Charles Kolb; Review of Pearl Jam's album "Vs." December 14, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458339].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Science fiction writer OCTAVIA BUTLER. Because she is black and female, she's considered an atypical science fiction writer. She's won the Hugo and Nebula Awards, science fiction's two most prestigious awards. Butler often describes her work as "speculative fiction" rather than science fiction. She says, "Science fiction, extrasensory perception, and black people are judged by the worst elements they produce." Her main characters are usually black women, and the fictional world they inhabit are racially diverse. BUTLER has written nine novels. Her tenth one is the new "Parable of the Sower," (Four Walls Eight Windows). INT. 2: Former Deputy Assistant for Domestic Policy in the Bush Administration, CHARLES KOLB (pronounced COB). He's written a new memoir about what went wrong with the Bush administration, how they dropped the ball on "gains" made by the Reagan administration. It's called, "White House Daze: The Unmaking of Domestic Policy in the Bush Years." (The Free Press). REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Vs" (Versus) the new album by the Seattle rock band Pearl Jam. (Epic).

Interview with Fatima Mernissi; Interview with Carol Leifer; Review of the film "Schindler's List." December 15, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458343].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Moroccan sociologist and Koranic scholar, Fatima Mernissi ("Mur-NEE-see"). Her new book explores how the sacred texts of Islam are used both by feminists and defenders of democracy as well as the violent fundamentalists which oppose them: "Islam & Democracy" (Addison-Wesley). An earlier book, "The Veil and the Male Elite" (Addison-Wesley) was a feminist interpretation of Women's rights in Islam. Her new book, due out in the summer of 1994 is "Dreams of Trespass: Tales of a Harem Girlhood". INT. 2: Comedienne CAROL LEIFER ("Leefer"). She's been a longstanding regular as a stand up on Late Night With David Letterman, and a writer for Saturday Night Live. This year, she writes for comedy pal
(and former boyfriend) Jerry Seinfeld -- some say the character of Elaine is based on Leifer. Last year she produced "Gaudy, Bawdy & Blue", a fictional recreation of the great "Blue" comedienen of the sixties: Belle Barth, Pearl Williams, and Rusty Warren (who's XXX-rated "Knockers Up" album sold six million copies in 1960). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new Spielberg film, "Schindler's List."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: There are 100 million land mines in place around the world, left over from wars and conflicts. They continue to kill and maim thousands of civilians each year. Human Rights groups are calling for the banning of land mines. Terry will talk with two individuals about this: ERIC STOVER, Executive Director of Physicians for Human Rights. He's one of the authors of "Land Mines: A Deadly Legacy," a study about the medical and social consequences of land mines in Cambodia. And with STEPHEN GOOSE, Washington director of the Arms Project, a division of Human Rights Watch. INT. 2: Writer ANNIE PROULX (pronounced "Prew"). She just won the National Book Award for Fiction, for her second novel, "The Shipping News," (Scribner's). PROULX describes herself as "incautious, heedless, reckless, stupid." Her characters are often compared with Dickens', and her books are rooted in a particular landscape: "The Shipping News" takes place in a barren Newfoundland. It's been called, "a strange book, a stunning book, full of magic and portent." (Boston Globe). REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new Fox children's show, "Mighty Morphin' Power Rangers."

Interview with Rafael Scharf; Interview with Deborah Lipstadt; Review of the film "The Pelican Brief." December 17, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458340].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This year marked the 50th Anniversary of the uprising in the Warsaw Ghetto. Terry talks with RAFAEL SCHARF, one of the founders of "The Jewish Quarterly," a London literary and political magazine. He's compiled a new book of photographs, "In The Warsaw Ghetto Summer 1941," (Aperture). The photographs were all taken one summer day in 1941 by German soldier and have never been published before. He also has papers and diaries from the Ghetto which document daily life there. SCHARF was born in Poland, but left the country shortly before World War II. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/19/93). INT. 2: Professor DEBORAH LIPSTADT examines a chilling new trend in historical revisionism: disavowing the deaths of six million Jews in Nazi concentration camps. Her book, "Denying the Holocaust" (Free Press) traces the rise of this reversal: the change in influence of these practitioners as isolated pamphleteers and cranks forty years ago to the point today, where a poll found one fifth of the American public think it seems "possible" that the Holocaust never happened. (REBROADCAST FROM 7/14/93). REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "The Pelican Brief", another film made from the works of John Grisham.

Interview with Jeanne Moreau; Interview with Abel Ferrara; Commentary on fantasies. December 20, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458588].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: French film legend JEANNE MOREAU. She's best known for her work in the French New Wave films (between 1958 and 1962), working with such directors as Francois Truffaut, Louis Malle, and Jean-Luc Godard. She's probably best known for her role in Truffaut's "Jules et Jim" about a complicated menage a trois. MOREAU has led an admittedly unconventional life, from her choice of movie roles, to her succession of love affairs. She's now 65, and starring the new film, "The Summer House." INT. 2: Independent film director ABEL FERRARA. He's been described as a film maker who has a quest to "confront issues of salvation, grace and dignity within a context of extreme depravity." His films include "King of New York," (a "stylish(ly). . .contemporary gangster movie,"), and the cult classic "The Bad Lieutenant," starring Harvey Keitel. He also directed a couple of TV's "Miami Vice" episodes. His lesser known films include "Ms. 45," "Driller Killer," and "Fear City." FERRARA has a new film starring Harvey Keitel and Madonna, "Dangerous Game." REV. : A new performance piece by performance artist DAVID CALE.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SENATOR PAUL SIMON. He's been spearheading the campaign in Congress against TV violence. Simon has given the networks and cable a January 1st deadline to come up with a way of regulating themselves, or face regulation by Congress. MARJORIE HEINS is the director of the ACLU Arts Censorship Project. She's also written the new book, "Sex, Sin and Blasphemy: A Guide to America's Censorship Wars." (The New Press) INT. 2: Terry continues her discussion about television violence with the former president of NBC Entertainment, BRANDON TARTIKOFF and then with TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:SENATOR PAUL SIMON. He's been spearheading the campaign in Congress against TV violence. Simon has given the networks and cable a January 1st deadline to come up with a way of regulating themselves, or face regulation by Congress. DAVID MILCH, creator and a producer of ABC's police drama, "NYPD Blue". Teaming up again with Steven Bochco (who hired MILCH as a writer on "Hill Street Blues"), "NYPD Blue" has come under fire for the show's panorama of moral ambiguity, violence, partial nudity and profanity. The show's eccentric criminality may be traced to MILCH's fondness for horse racing and gambling (he owns "about a dozen" thoroughbreds), and the time he spent in a Mexican jail. CHARLES DUTTON, star of the T-V comedy series "Roc." Dutton came to acting in a very roundabout way: while serving a manslaughter sentence in the Maryland State Penitentiary, he organized the performance of a play, and realized he loved acting. A future episode of "Roc" concerns guns in the schools, and how a single act of violence can escalate tragically. INT. 2: Filmmaker JOHN MCNAUGHTON, whose first film was the cult hit of 1990, "Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer". "We all have the murderous urge," MCNAUGHTON says of his main character in that film, who as an anonymous everyman, kills many people without recognition nor retribution from society at large. Hailed by some critics as a slasher movie stripped bare of that genre's fantasy elements, "Henry" caught the eye of director Martin Scorsese, who backed MCNAUGHTON for this year's "Mad Dog And Glory", which starred Scorsese regular Robert DeNiro. Steven Jones produced "Henry." Film director WALTER HILL. His newest film, which he produced and directed is "Geronimo: An American Legend." He's best known for action-oriented films which include, "Hard Times," "The Long Riders," "48 HRS," "Streets of Fire," and others.

Interview with Karen Armstrong; Interview with Marvin Traub; Review of the album "On the Town" and the television show "Great Performances." December 23, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457743].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British religious scholar, KAREN ARMSTRONG. Her new book, a bestseller in England, is "A History of God" (Knopf). "All religions have been designed to help us touch the God in each other" ARMSTRONG says of her research, which traces 4000 years of Monotheism in the form of Christianity, Judaism, and Islam. The author, a Catholic nun for seven years in the 1960's, left the order to take a degree at Oxford, and now teaches at the Leo Baeck College for the study of Judaism. INT. 2: How did a second tier New York department store called Bloomingdale's --where the city's domestic help bought their uniforms in 1950-- evolve into "the most celebrated store in the world": the pinnacle of designer fashion and self promotion? The answer can be found in MARVIN TRAUB, the former chairman of Bloomingdale's for forty years. His new memoir is called "Like No Other Store..." (Times Books). REV. : Classical Music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of Leonard Bernstein's "On the Town" (Deutsche Grammophon).

Interview with Ben Vaughn, Aldo Jones, and Gus Cordovox; Review of the film "Philadelphia."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock musician BEN VAUGHN. He's been a cult staple for years in the Philadelphia/New Jersey area, where he's become known for his tongue-in-cheek lyrics and tunes that draw from rocks early influences. He's had several album; his fourth, "Dressed in Black," was released in 1990. He's got a new Interviews with Tom Gjelten and Roy Gutman; Interviews with Fred Cuny and Susan Sontag; Interview with Ademir Kenovic. December 27, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457742].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1 & 2: Foreign Correspondent for NPR, TOM GJELTEN. He's been reporting from Bosnia. GJELTEN won the prestigious George Polk Award for his piece, "Massacre on the Mountaintop." The piece aired September 22, 1992 and described a massacre of 200 Bosnian Muslim men. The George Polk Award honors excellence in journalism. GJELTEN also reported on the Gulf War and on the conflicts in Central America. (REBROADCAST from 4/6/93).Foreign correspondent for "Newsday," ROY GUTMAN. He and his photographer were the first western journalists to report on genocide in a Serb-run concentration camp. Shortly after the story was published the camp was closed and the Red Cross let in. Their reporting led to public outrage, and official condemnation by the United Nations. GUTMAN won a Pulitzer Prize for this reporting. The dispatches have now been collected in a new book, "A Witness to Genocide: The 1993 Pulitzer Prize-Winning Dispatches on the 'Ethnic Cleansing' of Bosnia." (Macmillan Publishing). (REBROADCAST FROM 9/14/93) INT. 2 & 3: Disaster relief expert FRED CUNY (CUE-knee). Since January he's been in Sarajevo, implementing new water and gas systems. A former professor of engineering and public affairs, CUNY is hired by governments and agencies to coordinate responses to floods, famines, cyclones, earthquakes. He says, "Disasters are a function of underdevelopment" and he finds much humanitarian aid and relief satisfies the needs of the donor before it helps the recipient. CUNY was a Senior advisor to the US government on the Somalia famine in 1992. His book is "Disasters and Development" (Oxford University Press). (REBROADCAST from 11/3/93) Writer and director SUSAN SONTAG. Sontag was in Sarajevo in August, where she directed a performance of Beckett's "Waiting For Godot" in the Serbo-Croatian language. She is one of few arts figures to visit the conflict in the former Yugoslavia, a battle she calls "the Spanish Civil War of our time". Her latest novel is the "Volcano Lover," Interview with Terry Anderson and Madeleine Bassil; Interview with Chris Giannou. December 28, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502243].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former hostage and journalist TERRY ANDERSON. For seven years he was held hostage in Lebanon, the longest held western hostage. During much of that time he was blindfolded and chained to a wall. Madeleine -- who later became his wife -- was pregnant when he was abducted and gave birth to their daughter, Sulome Theresa, while ANDERSON was in captivity. In ANDERSON's new book, "Den of Lions: Memoirs of Seven Years" (Crown Publishers), Terry and Madeleine describe the challenges they were forced to face until his release in December of 1991. (REBROADCAST from 10/4/93) INT. 2: One of the most respected war surgeons, DR. CHRIS GIANNOU (YAH-new). He was Director of surgical operations in Somalia with the International Committee for the Red Cross, from February 92 until January 93. He helped set up field hospitals, taught war surgery, and performed surgery. Before that GIANNOU spent over two years in a Palestinian Refugee Camp, which was under constant siege. GIANNOU wrote a book about it, "Besieged: A Doctor's Story of Life and Death in Beirut." (Published by Olive Branch Press). (REBROADCAST FROM 2/25/93). REV. : Interview with CHRIS GIANNOU continued.

Interview with Nancy Mairs; Interview with Isabel Allende. December 29, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458586].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet, writer, and teacher NANCY MAIRS. She's Catholic, but started out Protestant; late in life she became a feminist. She calls herself, "the connoisseur of catastrophe." She's known for writing honestly about her struggles with multiple sclerosis, depression, and the life-threatening illness of her husband. MAIRS also writes about being a woman, a mother, and a wife. Her newest book of personal essays is "Ordinary Time," (Beacon). One review calls it, "a small miracle of honesty mediated by dignity and humor." (REBROADCAST FROM 7/19/93). INT. 2: Chilean novelist ISABEL ALLENDE (ah-YEN-day). She's the niece of Chile's ousted President Salvador Allende, who was assassinated during the 1973 coup there. ALLENDE left Chile after the military coup and went to Venezuela. She moved to the U.S. five years ago after falling in love with an American, and now lives in California. Her newest book "The Infinite Plan," (HarperCollins) is about a white American family, and is the first time she's set a story in the United States. ALLENDE is also the author of "The House of Spirits," "Of Love and Shadows," and other novels. (REBROADCAST FROM 5/25/93). REV. : NO ARTS REVIEW; Conversation with ISABEL ALLENDE Continues.

Interview with Arthur Alexander and Ben Vaughn; Interview with Marion Williams. December 30, 1993. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458584].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In May of this year, we broadcast a live concert with singer-songwriter ARTHUR ALEXANDER, whose songs were recorded on early records by The Beatles ("Anna") and The Rolling Stones ("You Better Move On"). ALEXANDER had spent the past fifteen years driving a bus for a community center in Cleveland, but this year he returned to performing and released a new album, "Lonely Just Like Me" (Elektra Nonesuch), his first release in twenty years. This summer, just as he was starting a new tour and a new chapter of his life, ALEXANDER suffered a heart attack and died in Nashville. (Concert Rebroadcast from 5/7/93). INT. 2: Gospel singer MARION WILLIAMS. Her trademark, a long-lasting high A-flat "whooo," has been adopted by most gospel and soul singers singers like Little Richard and Aretha Franklin. A self- proclaimed "Holy Roller", WILLIAMS received the Kennedy Center Honors Award this month in Washington for her lifetime achievement in the arts. When she's not performing, WILLIAMS sings traditional gospel at the African-Methodist-Episcopal church in Philadelphia--the first black church formed in America. Her new album is "Can't Keep It To Myself" (Schananchie). (Rebroadcast from 12/6/93).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER gives his list of bests (and a worst) for 1993. INT. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF has his ten best of movies. REV. : and Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ tells us about his favorite recordings from 1993.
Interview with Charles Strouse; Interview with Nathan Lane; Review of Alice Kaplan's memoir "French Lessons." January 3, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458362].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Broadway Composer CHARLES STROUSE. His hits include, "Bye Bye Birdie," "Applause," and "Annie." He's also written the film scores for "Bonnie and Clyde," and "The Night They Raided Minskys," and others. STROUSE newest production is the sequel to "Annie," -- "Annie Warbucks." It's his second stab at an "Annie" sequel, and it comes after a string of flops. When asked if he'd ever just wanted to quit he said, "Never... The one thing that all the music teachers I had instilled in me was a desire to connect notes... I love composing for the theater." INT. 2: Actor NATHAN LANE. He's currently starring in the new Neil Simon comedy on stage, "Laughter on the 23rd Floor." He played Nathan Detroit in the Broadway revival of "Guys and Dolls." Playwright Terrance McNally has written roles for LANE and says, "I need an actor like Nathan to fully express myself. I can't do it with just the words. I need his faces and gestures to finish the sentence." LANE starred in McNally's "The Lisbon Traviata," and in "Lips Together, Teeth Apart." He also was in the films "Frankie and Johnny," (as Michelle Pfeiffer's neighbor -- a part McNally wrote for him), in "Life with Mikey," (co-starring with Michael J. Fox), and has a cameo in "Adams Family Values." REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "French Lessons," by Alice Kaplan.

Interview with McGeorge Bundy; Interview with Jon Kabat-Zinn; Review of Bob Dylan's album "World Gone Wrong." January 4, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458015].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former special assistant for National Security Affairs under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, MCGEORGE BUNDY. He's co-authored a new book with Admiral William Crowe, "Reducing Nuclear Danger," XXXX. Terry will talk with BUNDY about the threat that still exists of nuclear disaster from such countries as Iraq and North Korea. INT. 2: DR. JON KABAT-ZINN is a pioneer in the area of behavioral medicine. Since 1979 he has used Eastern "mindfulness meditation" techniques in treating chronic pain, stress, and life-threatening disease. He founded the Stress Reduction Clinic at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester, Mass. His clinic was featured in Bill Moyer's PBS series, Interview with Gary Burton; Review of the television show "Homicide." January 5, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458011].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz vibraphonist, GARY BURTON. He invented a four-mallet grip for the instrument that is used by many contemporary players. BURTON left Stan Getz's quartet in the mid 60's (at the age of 24) to form his own combo; a few years later he hired a young guitarist named Pat Metheny, giving Metheny his first taste of big time jazz. BURTON has been teaching percussion and improvisation classes at the Berklee School of Music in Boston; in 1985 he was named Dean of Curriculum there. BURTON has over fifty albums to his credit and three Grammy award. His new album is "It's Another Day." INT. 2: Interview with musician GARY BURTON continues. REV. : TV critic David Bianculli reviews the premiere of the second life of NBC's cop- show, "Homicide".

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet and novelist MICHAEL ONDAATJE (on-DAH-chay). He won Britian's highest literary prize, the Booker Prize, for his novel set in post World War II, "The English Patient," (Vintage Books). ONDAATJE was born in Cylon (now Sri Lanka), emigrated to England, and now lives in Canada. He also has written a personal memoir, "Running in the Family," (Vintage) about his eccentric family. Both books are now out in paperback. INT. 2: Comic writer and actor CHRIS ELLIOTT. He was an emmy-award winning writer for "Late Night with David Letterman," where he originated such characters as "the panicky guy" and "the guy under the seats." ELLIOTT followed his success on the Letterman show with his own FOX TV-series, "Get A Life," about a young adult man who lives with his parents and has a paper route. It was a cult hit. ELLIOTT comes to the business naturally. His father is Bob Elliott, one

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with George Smoot; Interview with Ben Vaughn; Review of the television show "Monty." January 10, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458016].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Astrophysicist GEORGE SMOOT. Since 1974 he's worked on NASA's Cosmic Background Explorer (COBE) satellite, leading the instrument team that detected cosmic "seeds." In 1992 he announced that he and a team of researchers had detected the biggest, oldest objects ever observed in the universe, the "cosmic seeds" that were the origin of galaxies and clusters of galaxies. He was quoted as saying then, "If you're religious, it's like seeing God." SMOOT has co-authored a new book about the development of the big bang theory, and the effort he's been involved in, looking for what he calls "wrinkles in time, those distant echoes of the early formation of the galaxies." It's called "Wrinkles in Interview with Harry Wu; Interview with Ellis Cose; Commentary on car shows. January 11, 1994.
[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458122].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: HARRY WU is a resident scholar at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University. He came to the U.S. from China where he was held in a prison labor camp for 19 years. The son of a wealthy banker, WU was a newly graduated college student when he was arrested in 1960 and denounced as an "enemy of the revolution." In the camps he endured torture, starvation, and he learned to "stop thinking in order to survive." In 1979 he was released. After emigrating to the U.S., WU made a daring trip back to China for the TV show "60 Minutes." Disguising his identity, he and a camera crew went back to the prison labor camp to document abuses there. WU's new memoir is "Bitter Winds: A Memoir of My Years in China's Gulag." (John Wiley & Sons). INT. 2: Contributing Editor and essayist for Newsweek magazine ELLIS COSE. His new book, "The Rage of a Privileged Class: Why are Middle-Class Blacks Angry? Why Should America Care?" (HarperCollins) is about what many middle-class blacks feel, but few white americans understand: that middle-class blacks still struggle against racial stereotyping, discrimination, and alienation, despite their financial success and their best efforts to "play by the rules." COSE argues that many white americans make assumptions about Blacks which are at odds with reality. For instance, that employment discrimination against blacks is no longer a problem. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN tells us about her trip to the auto show.
Interview with Michael Baden; Interview with Timothy Garton Ash; Review of the album "I Puritani." January 12, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458010].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Medical Examiner and "detective of death", MICHAEL BADEN, the former Chief Medical Examiner of New York City. BADEN argues that there is a national crisis in forensic medicine. He writes that the search for scientific truth is often sullied by the pressures of expediency and politics. His new book is "Unnatural Death: Confessions of a Medical Examiner" (Ivy Books). INT. 2: British Journalist TIMOTHY GARTON ASH. George Kennan has compared GARTON ASH's powers of political observation to those of de Toqueville's. ASH's beat is Eastern Europe, and he has been on hand to chronicle the popular disavowal of Communism there (GARTON ASH'S classic account of the Prague Uprising in 1986 is "The Magic Lantern"). His most recent book concerns the German Re-Unification, and what Germany's role will be in the new Europe: "In Europe's Name: Germany & the Divided Continent" (Random House). REV. : Classical Music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ on a live performance of Bellini's opera "I Puritani" which features Luciano Pavarotti and Beverly Sills. (Legato Classics)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:RICHARD PRELINGER is a archivist of films you probably thought were not worth saving: educational, industrial, and public-service films made from the 1930s through the 1960s. He's the director of Prelinger Associates, Inc., and he's collected some 25,000 films with titles like "A is For Atom," "Good Wrinkles: The Story of a Remarkable Fruit," and "Are You Popular?" PRELINGER became interested in the historical importance of such films while researching, and obtaining the rights for footage used in the films "Heavy Petting," (not yet released) and "The Atomic Cafe." PRELINGER has compiled and edited a two volume videotape and disk documentary, "To New Horizons: Ephemeral Films 1931-1945," and "You Can't Get There From Here: Ephemeral Films 1946-1960." (the address for Prelinger Associates, Inc., is 430 West 14th St., Room 403, New York, N.Y. 10014 (212) 255-8866.)Also, in this half hour, TERRY talks with writer KEN SMITH who is writing a book on the films. SMITH is co-author of "Roadside America" books (volumes 1 and 2) about tourist attractions in the U.S. He's also an archivist with Prelinger Associates. INT. 2: The former head of NBC's television programming PAT WEAVER (Sylvester L. "Pat" Weaver, Jr.). He began that job in the early days of the medium - in 1949 - and was the creator of two of television's longest running shows, the "Today" show and the "Tonight" show. WEAVER started his career in radio, where he worked with comic Fred Allen. And he was advertising manager for the American Tobacco Company, under the eccentric tobacco magnate George Washington Hill. WEAVER has a new memoir of his career, "The Best Seat in the House," (Knopf). It was written with Thomas M. Coffey. REV. :Anne Lamott on keeping her son safe AND independent.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAMES FARMER, co-founder of CORE, the Congress On Racial Equality and its National Director from 1961-1966. CORE was one of the Civil Rights groups of the 1960's which followed Gandhi's principles of non-violent resistance. CORE also helped organize the Freedom Rides -- multi-racial busloads of people traveling through the southern states making sure the Supreme Court's decisions on desegregation were being enforced. FARMER's long life as an advocate of civil rights was detailed in in his autobiography, "Lay Bare the Heart" (Dutton). This interview was originally broadcast on 03/06/1985. BERNICE JOHNSON REAGON has sung freedom songs at civil rights marches and sit-ins, at organizing rallies, and in prison. She was a founding member of the Freedom Singers, who were affiliated with SNCC, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. She's also a founder of the a cappella group "Sweet Honey in the Rock", which sings freedom songs, spirituals, and new songs that add to those traditions. She's currently the Host of NPR's African-American music program, "Wade in the Water". This interview was originally broadcast on 02/25/1988. INT. 2: J. L. CHESTNUT, who in 1958 became Selma, Alabama's first and only black lawyer. Working with the NAACP, he defended activists during the civil rights movement. Since then he's been involved in what he describes as the longer march...turning the victories of the civil rights movement into grass roots change. The law firm CHESTNUT founded in Selma is now the largest black law firm in Alabama. CHESTNUT's autobiography is "Black in Selma" (Anchor), co-authored with Julia Cass, a reporter for the Philadelphia
Inquirer. This interview was originally broadcast on 08/091990. REV. : Writer TAYLOR BRANCH. The first volume of his exhaustive history of the Civil Rights movement - "Parting the Waters, America in the King Years"(SS) - was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for History in 1989. In it, Branch covered the period from 1954 to 1963. Branch

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musical theater historian ROBERT KIMBALL. Kimball compiled and edited The Complete Lyrics of Ira Gershwin (Knopf) and is artistic advisor to the estate of Ira Gershwin. Kimball knew Ira Gershwin and his wife Leonore. He also edited The Complete Lyrics of Cole Porter. INT. 2: Documentary filmmakers D.A. PENNEBAKER & CHRIS HEGEDUS. Their film, The War Room, is a behind the scenes look at the Clinton presidential campaign from the New Hampshire primary to the election. Pennebaker and Hegedus chronicled the campaign through the eyes of its two main strategists, James Carville and George Stephanopoulos. REV. : We speak with JOHN BARTH, senior producer of Marketplace and former colleague from WHYY, about life in L.A. following this morning's earthquake.

Interview with Peter Arnett; Review of Huun-Huur-Tu's album "60 Horses in My Herd." January 18, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458075].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: War correspondent and CNN's international correspondent PETER ARNETT. He's best known for his reporting from Baghdad during the allied bombing raid which heralded the start of the Gulf War. ARNETT has over 30 years of experience reporting, mostly for the Associated Press. He won a Pulitzer for his coverage of the Vietnam war. Later he covered wars in Cyprus and Lebanon. In 1981 he made the switch to television, when he joined CNN. After learning the ropes, he was sent to El Salvador, Moscow, and then Iraq. ARNETT has a new memoir, "Peter Arnett: Live From the Battlefield: From Vietnam to Baghdad - 35 Years in the World's War Zones." (Simon & Schuster). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with journalist PETER ARNETT continues. REV. : World Music critic MILO MILES reviews "60 Horses in My Herd," (Shanchie) by the group Huun-Huur-Tu (HUN-HER-TOO), from the Tuva region in Mongolia.

Interview with Pete Hamill; Interview with Chen Kaige; Review of the film "In the Name of the Father." January 19, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458593].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist, journalist and columnist PETE HAMILL. He's written seven novels, including "Flesh and Blood," and "Loving Women." Most recently he was editor-in-chief at the New York Post. He's latest book is a memoir of the years he spent drinking, "A Drinking Life: A Memoir," (Little, Brown & Co.) HAMILL quit drinking twenty years ago. One reviewer in Publishers Weekly writes about HAMILL's new memoir, "This is not a jeremiad condemning drink, however, but a thoughtful, funny, street-smart reflection on its consequences." INT. 2: Chinese film director CHEN KAIGE. His latest film is "Farewell My Concubine," a love story about two male actors and a prostitute which takes place over the course of half a century, taking them through the Cultural Revolution (1966-76). KAIGE first won international recognition with his debut film, "Yellow Earth." In his latest film, KAIGE includes a scene in which the characters betray each other during the Cultural Revolution. Terry will talk with him about his own experiences during the Cultural Revolution when he betrayed his own father, Chen Huaihai. His father is also a film maker and was artistic director of "Farewell My Concubine." REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews, "In the Name of the Father," starring Daniel Day-Lewis.

Interview with Mary Fisher; Interview with Peter Kornbluh; Review of Jane Siberry's and Sheryl Crow's albums "When I Was a Boy" and "Tuesday Night Music Club." January 20, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458407].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MARY FISHER was the face of AIDS/HIV at the Republican National Convention in 1992 where she gave a speech imploring the party to lift the "shroud of silence" about the disease. FISHER comes from a wealthy prominent Republican family. Her father, Max Fisher was Honorary Chairman of the Bush/Quayle '92 National Finance Committee. Since she went public about her HIV-positive status, FISHER has been an eloquent voice in the fight against AIDS misinformation and discrimination. She's also the founder of the Family AIDS Network, Inc. which fosters AIDS awareness and compassion.
(678 Front Street NW, Suite 150, Grand Rapids, MI 49504; Phone: 616-451-2361) She's compiled a new book of her speeches, "Sleep With the Angels: A Mother Challenges AIDS," (MoyerBell). INT. 2:
The final report on Iran contra by independent counsel Lawrence Walsh has just been released. Terry talks with PETER KORNBLUH about the reports findings. KORNBLUH is senior analyst on U.S.-Latin America policy at the National Security Archive and editor of "The Iran-Contra Scandal: The Declassified new albums: Jane Siberry's "When I Was a Boy," and Sheryl Crow's debut album "Tuesday Night Music Club." (Reprise).
Interview with Erik Larson; Review of Morphine's album "Cure for Pain"; Interview with Stephen Wright; Review of the film "Intersection." January 24, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458078].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ERIK LARSON of the Wall Street Journal. LARSON has been on the show before to talk about polling, privacy and direct marketing and about how a gun goes from the manufacturer to the hands of a teenager. In fact he's written a new book, "Lethal Passage: How the Travels of a Single Handgun Expose the Roots of America's Gun Crisis," (Crown Publishers). Today Terry will talk again with LARSON about guns, about gun control laws, the NRA, etc. LARSON is also the author of "The Naked Consumer: How Our Private Lives Become Public Commodities." REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the second album by the Boston Trio "Morphine." It's called "Cure for Pain" (Rykodisc). INT. 2: Novelist STEPHEN WRIGHT. He's written three novels, all described by one critic as creating a "bleak vision of America haunted by Vietnam, desperate with boredom, eager to kill, gaga over flying saucers, addled by drugs, lobotomized by television." WRIGHT'S latest novel is "Going Native," (Farrar Straus Giroux) about a serial killer who seems to come from out of nowhere. In fact, he emerges out of a suburban neighborhood, steals a car, and heads for California. WRIGHT says the inspiration for his new novel was the stories he's seen on "America's Most Wanted." REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new Richard Gere/Sharon Stone movie, "Intersection."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Physicist JAMES TREFIL (pronounced "TRUFF-el"). His new book, "A Scientist in the City," (Doubleday) is a exploration of how the laws of nature and technology came together to make our cities. TREFIL starts by looking at cities as natural ecosystems, and then looks at the key scientific discoveries that made cities possible. TREFIL has written more than ten books on science, including, "1001 Things Everyone Should Know About Science." TREFIL is also a regular commentator for NPR, and he teaches at George Mason University. INT. 2: Clarinetist, jazz musician, and klezmer virtuoso DON BYRON. He's an unlikely candidate to play kelzmer, a product of Eastern European Yiddish culture: BYRON is African American and dreadlocked. BYRON has become best known for klezmer, but musically he's all over the map: He plays jazz with his Don Byron Quintet, modern classical music with the Semaphore quintet, and he toured Europe last fall with Music for Six Musicians, an Afro-Cuban ensemble. He's also currently writing a classical piece for the avant-garde Kronos Quartet. BYRON's most recent CD is "Don Byron Plays the Music of Mickey Katz," (Elektra Nonesuch). REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Partisan" (Atheneum) by Benjamin Cheever.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and former British prisoner, Belfast-born GERRY (pronounced "Jerry") CONLON. In his memoir, "In the Name of the Father," he tells the story of his wrongful conviction and fifteen-year imprisonment by the British Government for the 1974 terrorist bombings of two pubs near London. He was in prison with his father, Giuseppe, who was also falsely convicted as a co-conspirator in the bombings. Film director JIM SHERIDAN. An Academy Award nominee for Best Director of "My Left Foot," he directed, produced and co-authored the screenplay for the new film, "In the Name of the Father," starring Daniel Day-Lewis. It's based on Gerry Conlon's memoir of the same name. INT. 2: Our talk with JIM SHERIDAN continues. REV.: TV critic, DAVID BIANCULLI, reviews new prime-time cartoon series, "The Critic," created by a team of three writer-producers from "The Simpsons." "The Critic" is about New York film reviewer and single father, Jay Sherman.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer/Songwriter ELVIS COSTELLO. In the late 1970s he burst out of Britain's pop-music scene with a sound and attitude never seen before. He was the angry young-man with a fresh sound. He's known for making connections between different musical communities. He's collaborated with Paul McCartney, Ruben Blades, Aimee Mann of "'til Tuesday," David Was of "Was (Not Was)," and T. Bone Burnett. The last time COSTELLO was on the show, he had been working with the Brodsky Quartet (known for its interpretations of music by Haydn, Schubert, Beethoven and Bartok) on the release, "The Juliet Letters," (Warner Bros.) Now COSTELLO is back with his original band, "The Attractions," and with producer Nick Lowe. Their latest release is "Brutal Youth," (Warner Bros). INT. 2: ROBERT OLEN BUTLER is the 1993 Pulitzer Prize winner in fiction for "A Good Scent From a Strange Mountain," (Henry Holt & Co.) a collection of 15 first-person stories by Vietnamese immigrants living in Louisiana. BUTLER has written seven novels in all, several of them dealing with the Vietnamese experience, in Vietnam and in America. BUTLER's latest book is "They Whisper," (Henry Holt), about intimacy between a man and a woman. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Morning Song," (Enja) the new release by tenor and soprano saxophonist John Stubblefield.

Interview with Eddie Budah and Derrek Penny; Interview with Mary Previte; Interview with Derrek Penny. January 28, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501064].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry talks with two young men who've been thru the program at the Camden County Youth Center, a juvenile detention center in Camden, New Jersey: EDDIE BUDAH and DERREK PENNY. BUDAH will read some of his poetry that has appeared in the Center's newsletter, "What's Happening." (REBROADCAST 12/9/93) INT. 2: MARY PREVITE (pronounced prev-eh-tee). She's the administrator of the Camden County Youth Center. Over the 19 years she's been at the CCYC, PREVITE has witnessed the increase of violence in our society, and its effect on America's young. PREVITE says that most of the kids she sees live in terror, knowing violence as the only way to express their emotions. Fourteen years ago PREVITE started a student newspaper called "What's Happening", establishing a dialogue between herself, the kids, and the community. (REBROADCAST from 12/9/93) REV. : Instead of an arts review, more with DERREK PENNY. (REBROADCAST from 12/9/93)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DAVID GARROW is a Pulitzer Prize winning author for his biography of Martin Luther King, Jr., "Bearing the Cross." His newest book is a history of the struggle for birth control rights during the 1920s and 30s and how that paved the way for the abortion rights struggle. Along the way, GARROW examines how these rights are tied in with issues of privacy and sexuality. GARROW found that the arguments used in the birth control rights struggle were the same ones used in the struggle for abortion rights. His new book is "Liberty & Sexuality: The Right to Privacy and the Making of Roe v. Wade."(MacMillan Publishing Co.) INT. 2: Writer SHIRLEE TAYLOR HAIZLIP. Her book "The Sweeter the Juice: a Family Memoir in Black and White, (Simon & Schuster), chronicles her exploration of six generations of her multiracial family tree. HAIZLIP is a light-skinned African-American. Her father was a prominent black Baptist minister in Connecticut. Her mother was the descendant of an Irish immigrant and a mulatto slave. The lineage of HAIZLIP's mother's family was unclear because early in HAIZLIP's mother's life she was seperated from the rest of her family who "disappeared" into the white world. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Blink" the new film directed by Michael Apted, starring Madeline Stowe and Aidan Quinn.

Interview with William Taubman; Interview with Max Weinberg. February 1, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458079].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILLIAM TAUBMAN is a political science professor at Amherst College. He is a frequent visitor to Russia and is currently working on a biography of Nikita Krushchev. TAUBMAN talks to Terry about the status of the reform movement in Russia, the legacy of Communism and the mood of the Russian people. INT. 2: Drummer and drum historian MAX WEINBERG. For over a decade, WEINBERG was the drummer for Bruce Springstein's E Street Band. Now he leads the 7-piece band on Late Night With Conan O'Brien on NBC. WEINBERG co-authored The Big Beat: Conversations with Rock's Great Drummers (Chicago: Contemporary Books, 1984). Now, he has produced and annotated a three-volume compilation of music performed by his favorite rock 'n roll drummers of the 50's, 60's and 70's. (MAX WEINBERG PRESENTS: LET THERE BE DRUMS, VOLS. 1-3. on the Rhino label.

- Page 1249 -
Interview with Sonny Rollins; Interview with Beverly and Dereck Joubert. February 2, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458648].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SONNY ROLLINS, tenor saxophonist, is one of the jazz world's greatest improvisational artists. At the tender age of 23, he played with Miles Davis and Charlie Parker. After successfully battling a heroin addiction in the early 1950s, he joined the Clifford Brown-Max Roach quintet. He also began a critically-acclaimed solo career. Now in his sixties, he feels obligated to carry on the vision of his own mentors to today's rising stars. His latest album, "Old Flames" (Milestone), focuses on jazz standards and features Sonny backed by a brass section.

INT. 2: BEVERLY AND DERECK JOUBERT (pronounce "Jo-Bear"), wildlife documentary producers. This husband and wife team lives in northern Botswana, seven hours from the nearest village. Working and living out of a four-wheel drive vehicle, they have captured the family relationships of the last free-roaming elephants left in Africa. Their latest wildlife film, "Reflections on Elephants," contains ground-breaking footage of lions attacking an elephant calf. Previously, such attacks were thought to be only mythical. The documentary premieres on PBS this Wednesday at 8:00 PM ET. (Interview with Jouberts continues after the ATC promo)

Interview with James Brooks; Interview with Julie Kavner; Review of the television show "I Spy Returns." February 3, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458389].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Academy Award winning writer-producer-director JAMES BROOKS. BROOKS will discuss his new movie, "I'll Do Anything," a romantic comedy about a struggling but talented Hollywood character actor, played by Nick Nolte. BROOKS directed the movies "Terms of Endearment" and "Broadcast News." In television, his credits include "Room 222," "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Lou Grant," "Rhoda," "Taxi," "The Tracey Ullman Show," "The Associates," "The Simpsons" and the new animated series, "The Critic." INT. 2: Actress JULIE KAVNER. In her first professional role, she played Brenda Morgenstern, the insecure younger sister of the title character, in the television series "Rhoda." She landed an Emmy award for that role. Also on television, she co-starred in "The Tracey Ullman Show" and now can be heard as the unforgettable voice of Marge on the animated sitcom, "The Simpsons," for which she also won an Emmy. She starred in the movie "This Is My Life," co-starred in "Awakenings," and appeared in 5 Woody Allen movies. She will talk with Terry Gross today about her role in the new movie "I'll Do Anything" as a brilliant Hollywood opinion researcher afflicted with a compulsion for telling the truth. REV. : Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new CBS telemovie "I Spy Returns," which re-pairs stars Bill Cosby and Robert Culp from the old "I Spy" series. BIANCULLI tells us how the telemovie stacks up against its competition, the regular lineup of NBC sitcoms.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Michael Dorris; Review of Von Freeman and Chico Freeman albums; Interview with Nicholson Baker; Commentary on the television show "thirtysomething." February 5, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501681].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer MICHAEL DORRIS. He and his wife, Louise Erdrich, have written several novels together, including "Love Medicine" and "Yellow Raft in Blue Water." Both are part Native American, and Dorris spent several years of his childhood on an Indian reservation. He has adopted many children, one of which he later discovered was born with fetal alcohol syndrome. Dorris's book, "The Broken Cord," is about this syndrome, and also his personal story of dealing with it in his family. (originally broadcast
7/20/89). REV. 1: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the music of two tenor saxophonists, who are father and son. Von Freeman from the Chicago blues style, plays with his son, Chico Freeman, on the album "Freeman & Freeman," (on the India Navigation label). WHITEHEAD also reviews Von Freeman's album "Walkin Tuff!" (on Chicago's "Southport" label). INT. 2: Writer NICHOLSON BAKER. His debut novel, "The Messanine," published in 1987, received enthusiastic critical reviews. Though thin on plot - man breaks shoelace, goes to CVS on his lunch hour to replace it, rides escalator back to work - the novel was praised for the unexpected magnitude of the hero's everyday thoughts, and for the way Baker's technique examined the minutiae that form the often undocumented daily texture of our lives. (originally broadcast on 3/24/89). REV. 2: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reflects on the television show, "thirtysomething," and how the illness of one of the characters has affected the show.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A STEREO in the studio concert and interview with singer/songwriter, guitarist RICHARD THOMPSON. He first became known for his work with "Fairport Convention." He's since gone solo and is known for his dark songs which blend elements of British folk ballads and the blues. His latest album is "Mirror Blue," (Capitol). There's also a retrospective collection of his work released last year, "Watching the Dark: The History of Richard Thompson," (on Rykodisc.) (THIS CONCERT/INTERVIEW continues into the second half of the show). INT. 2:Stereo concert and interview with RICHARD THOMPSON continued. REV. : NO ARTS REVIEW

Interview with Gregory Alan-Williams; Interview with Caryl Phillips; Review of the film "I'll Do Anything." February 8, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458281].

Description of show segment(s)

heard that violence had erupted in South Central L.A. and chose to walk into the heart of the riot. He ended up risking his own life to rescue a Japanese American man who was being brutally beaten by some in the angry crowd. ALAN-WILLIAMS talks about the forces that took him into the melee and fueled his heroism and the lessons he took out.* * [includes a :30 floating cutaway between 4:15 and 4:22] *

* INT. 2: CARYL PHILLIPS, author of five novels, a work of nonfiction and many scripts for film, theater, radio and television. His new novel,"Crossing the River" (Knopf), tells stories of slavery and the relationships forged by and among some of its perpetrators and victims. PHILLIPS takes liberties with time in following the lives of three African children sold into slavery by their desperate father -- one freed and sent back to Africa as a missionary, one searching for her lost husband and child in the American wild west and one, a World War II GI stationed in Yorkshire, England. PHILLIPS was born in St. Kitts, West Indies, but was brought up and presently lives in England. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD fills in for film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF and reviews the new movie, "I'll Do Anything," starring Nick Nolte.

---

Interview with Chris Giannou; Interview with Thomas Lennon; Review of Yo-Yo Ma's album "Made in America." February 9, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458393].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:War surgeon DR. CHRIS GIANNOU (YAH-new), who recently worked through the devastating civil war in the East African country of Burundi. In the ensuing ethnic and political conflict between the Hutu and the Tutsi peoples there, at least two hundred thousand people were been killed, oftentimes not with guns, but with machete knives and spears. GIANNOU has spent over 12 years working in the world's hotspots: Somalia, Lebanon, Cambodia. He was Director of surgical operations in Somalia with the International Committee for the Red Cross, from February 1992 until Jan 1993 where he helped set up field hospitals, and both taught and performed war surgery. Before that GIANNOU spent over two years in a Palestinian Refugee Camp, which was under constant seige; his memoir is called "Besieged: A Doctor's Story of Life and Death in Beirut." (Published by Olive Branch Press). GIANNOU is a Canadian citizen. (THIS IS THE SECOND TIME WE'VE HAD GIANNOU ON THE SHOW) INT. 2:Emmy-Award winning documentary filmmaker and producer, THOMAS LENNON. His newest documentary examines the interaction between the tabloid press and the mainstream media: "Tabloid Truth: the Michael Jackson Scandal" (which airs on PBS stations February 15th). By watching the story of alleged sexual abuse swell from verifiable news to national spectacle, LENNON questions the state of American journalism, as CNN fights for the same stories once relegated to the National Inquirer. REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews Yo-Yo Ma's new album "Made in America." The album consists of American music.
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

---

Interview with Charles Kupchan; Interview with Anchee Min; Review of the film "Romeo is Bleeding." February 10, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458279].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CHARLES KUPCHAN (KUP chin), Senior Fellow for Europe at the Council on Foreign Relations and former Director of European Affairs on the National Security Council in the Clinton White House. He'll discuss the political motivations of the European players in NATO's ultimatum to Bosnian Serb forces. The Bosnian Serbs must withdraw artillery and mortars from their stranglehold positions on Sarajevo by February 21st or face NATO air strikes. INT. 2: Shanghai-born author, ANCHEE MIN (AHN-chee MIN). She grew up in China during the last years of Mao's Cultural Revolution. In her memoir, "Red Azalea" (Pantheon), MIN recounts her experiences as an 11-year old leader in her school's Little Red Guard, then as a laborer at a work camp where she became the secret lover of her female commander. When Madam Mao began her reform of China's film industry, MIN was chosen from 20,000 candidates to become a screen actress because she had a face that was thought to represent the working class. MIN was also cast to star in a film about Madam Mao's life, but before the film was finished Chairman Mao died, Madam Mao was denounced and MIN was punished. In 1984, with the help of actress Joan Chen, MIN emigrated to the United States, where she works as a writer and photographer. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie "Romeo is Bleeding," a black comedy directed by Peter Medak and starring Gary Oldman, Lena Olin, Annabella Sciorra, Juliette Lewis and Roy Scheider.
Interview with Ellie Greenwich; Interview with Carole King; Interview with Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller; Interview with Ronnie Spector. February 11, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458324].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Songwriter and Producer, ELLIE GREENWICH. She co-wrote some of the most popular songs of the early 1960's, for the girl groups produced by Phil Spector: songs like "Leader of the Pack" and "River Deep, Mountain High". She got her start out of the Brill Building with the songwriting team of Lieber and Stoller. In the 1980's, when she was writing songs for Cyndi Lauper and Irene Cara, she performed some of her hits in a Broadway Review called "Leader of the Pack". (Rebroadcast from 1986). INT. 2: Singer and songwriter CAROLE KING. In the 1960s, she wrote hit songs like "Up on the Roof" and "Will you still love me tomorrow?" But in the 70s, she achieved lasting fame with songs like "Natural Woman" and her album "Tapestry," which was the best-selling album of the decade. Carole King's latest album is titled "Color of Your Dreams" (Rebroadcast from June 19, 1989.) INT. 3: Rock and roll songwriting team JERRY LEIBER and MIKE STOLLER. They're responsible for many of the greatest hits in rock history, among them "Hound Dog," "Yakity Yak," and "Stand By Me." Rhino records has a collection of their songs, called "There's A Riot Goin' On." And their songs have been published in the "Lieber & Stoller Songbook" (Warner Books). (Rebroadcast from December 19, 1991). INT. 4: RONNIE SPECTOR, who in the 1960s was a member of the girl group The Ronettes. She left the music business for several years, but the late Eighties, recorded a new album. Here she talks about her hit song, "Be My Baby". (Rebroadcast from August 31. 1987).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. SHERWIN NULAND is a surgeon, and he teaches surgery and the history of medicine at Yale. In his new book, "How We Die: Reflections on Life's Final Chapter," (Knopf), he writes that few of us have an understanding of the way people die because 80 percent of Americans die in the hospital, and, for the most part their deaths are concealed. NULAND's new book is an attempt to "demythologize" the process of dying and he presents death in its biological and clinical reality. Oliver Sacks writes of the book, "A series of portraits or analyses, as powerful and sensitive, and unsparing and unsentimental, as anything I have ever read." INT. 2: Singer, actress, dancer, ANN-MARGRET (no last name necessary) has written her autobiography, "Ann-Margret: My Story," (with Todd Gold, Putnam). In the book she writes about her relationship with Elvis Presley, her battle with alcohol abuse, and the stage accident that almost ended her career. ANN-MARGRET has appeared in the movies, "Bye Bye Birdie," "Carnal Knowledge," "Tommy," and others. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release by the country-music band, The Mavericks. It's called "What a Crying Shame."

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Rapper and actor ICE-T...one of the most popular of the "gangsta" rappers. Although he does not often get his songs played on the radio, all five of his albums have gone gold. Greg Knot of The Chicago Tribune has written that "ICE-T is that rare gangster rapper who leads with his brain instead of his gun or his crotch." ICE-T's 1992 song "Cop Killer," landed him at the center of a controversy about gangsta rap--is it a legitimate form of expression or is it incendiary hate-mongering. ICE-T has also starred in films "New Jack City," "Trespass," and "Ricochet." He's written a new book called "The Ice Opinion" (St. Martin's Press). In it he offers his opinions on such topics as racism, drugs, poverty, the L.A. riots. INT. 2: Interview with ICE-T continues. REV. : Interview with ICE-T continues.

Interview with John Cavanagh; Interview with Wayne Koestenbaum; Commentary on Eurocentric culture. February 16, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458516].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1:Author JOHN CAVANAGH (Pronounced "cav-AN-ah"). CAVANAGH is a Fellow at the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington D.C. He is the co-author with Richard Barnet, of "Global Dreams: Imperial Corporations & the New World Order" (Simon & Schuster), which examines the growth of multi-national corporations. They profile five of the world's most powerful corporations, and show how they are less accountable to public authorities, are paving the way for future political conflict, and are "stimulating political and social disintegration". INT. 2: Poet and Professor of English at Yale, WAYNE KOESTENBAUM explores the affinity of gay men for opera in his new book: "The Queen's Throat: Opera, Homosexuality and the Mystery of Desire" (Vintage). KOESTENBAUM traces the art-form back to its origins in The Camerata, a 16th century group of Florentine gentlemen, who studied ancient Greek musical theory. A self proclaimed "Opera Queen", KOESTENBAUM explores this rarely examined territory with what one critic has called "a brilliantly obsessive and funny memoir". REV. : Linguist Geoffrey Nunberg on Eurocentric culture.

---

Interview with Hanan Al-Shaykh; Interview with Sheila Rothman; Obituary for Randy Shilts.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lebanese-born author and journalist HANAN AL-SHAYKH. Her novel "The Story of Zahra" (Anchor Books) has just been published in the United States. Several Arab countries have banned the book since its original publication 14 years ago. The Story of Zahra tells of a contemporary Lebanese woman struggling with life in her family and her war-ravaged native city of Beirut. AL-SHAYKH'S novel "Women of Sand and Myrrh" was published in the United States last year. INT. 2: SHEILA ROTHMAN author of "Living in the Shadow of Death: Tuberculosis and the Social Experience of Illness in America." REV. : Tribute to Randy Shilts who died of AIDS.

---

Interview with Edmund White; Interview with Alan Lomax; Review of the film "Reality Bites."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDMUND WHITE. He has been called "unquestionably the foremost American gay novelist." WHITE's novels draw significantly from his own experiences in a style he calls "auto-fiction." In his newest book, "Genet: A Biography" (Knopf), WHITE documents the life of controversial French writer, Jean Genet. (The book just won the National Book Critic's Circle Award for biography). Genet had a reputation as a dandy, a thief, a vagabond --- a "thug of genius." WHITE calls him "one of France's most original and forceful novelists of the twentieth century." WHITE has also written "Forgetting Elena," "A Boy's Own Story," and six other books of fiction and non-fiction. (REBROADCAST from 11/8/93). INT.
2: Folklorist ALAN LOMAX. He's spent more than a half century recording the folk music and customs of the world. Here in America, he's responsible for priceless recordings of Leadbelly, Woody Guthrie, Jelly Roll Morton, and many others. (REBROADCAST from 7/9/90). LOMAX won the National Book Critics Circle Award for his non-fiction book, "The Land Where the Blues Began." REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the film "Reality Bites," a comedy about Love in the '90's, directed by Ben Stiller and starring Winona Ryder and Ethan Hawke.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter for The Washington Post NATHAN MCCALL. He's written a new autobiography, "Makes Me Wanna Holler: A Young Black Man in America." (Random House). When MCCALL was twenty years old he was sent to prison for armed robbery. In his new book, MCCALL writes about growing up in a suburban neighborhood, and the anger he felt toward white's that made him and his friends go after and beat up white guys because it made them "feel good inside." After MCCALL was released from jail, he studied journalism and reported for the Virginian Pilot-Ledger Star and the Atlanta Journal Constitution. His book has been compared to Richard Wright's "Black Boy," and been described as "more than a coming of age story: it's a story of an America that should never have come to be." INT. 2: Drummer ARTHUR TAYLOR. He's played with Sonny Rollins, Charlie Parker, Miles Davis, John Coltrane and Thelonious Monk and he's put together a new expanded collection of interviews he's done with fellow musicians: "Notes and Tones: Musician-to-Musician Interviews," (Da Capo Press). It's one of the few books about black jazz musicians by a black man, and because of that TAYLOR's subjects were able to talk freely about the role of black artists in white society. It includes interviews with Dexter Gordon, Miles Davis, Max Roach, Betty Carter, Thelonious Monk and others. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Irrawaddy Tango," by Burmese novelist Wendy Law-Yone.
Interview with Orville Schell; Commentary on coyote hunting. February 22, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458658].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and long-time observer and student of China ORVILLE SCHELL. SCHELL is correspondent for "Red Flag over Tibet," which will air tonight on PBS's FRONTLINE (February 22 at 9 P.M. check local listings). In "Red Flag over Tibet," SCHELL takes the viewers to that mysterious and isolated country on the "Roof of the World." He explores the question: Will Tibet survive its 40 years of occupation by China? He explains why the survival of Tibet--its people and its culture--has become an international issue. SCHELL has written 8 books on China and has another in the works.

INT. 2: (Interview with ORVILLE SCHELL continues) REV.: Commentator DAGOBERTO GILB on a Wyoming coyote hunt, sponsored by the state's sheep ranchers.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Doctor of Psychology and editorial writer for the New York Times, BRENT STAPLES. His new memoir is "Parallel Time: Growing Up in Black & White" (Pantheon). In 1984, Staples' younger brother, a cocaine dealer, was murdered. Staples began a process of reconsideration of the major questions in his life: his distance from his family by graduate study at the University of Chicago; the demise and racial divisions of his industrial hometown in Pennsylvania. On missing his brother's memorial, Staples writes "Choose carefully the funerals you miss." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with BRENT STAPLES (continued) REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews pianist Leon Fleisher's new album, "Piano Works for the Left Hand." (on Sony).
Interview with Keith Hernandez; Review of coverage of the figure skating competition at the Olympics. February 24, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458050].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Major Leaguer KEITH HERNANDEZ. Called by some baseball purists the finest First Baseman in the game, HERNANDEZ played with the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Mets, and the Cleveland Indians. He is the winner of eleven consecutive Golden Glove Awards for fielding, and played in two World Championships. HERNANDEZ's new book is "Pure Baseball: Pitch by Pitch for the Advanced Fan" (Harper): analysis of two 1993 match-ups, with play by play commentary, based on his seventeen years in the game. (THE INTERVIEW WITH KEITH HERNANDEZ WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: Interview with KEITH HERNANDEZ continues. REV.: TV critic David Bianculli will review the television coverage of the Olympic skating showdown.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and former British prisoner, Belfast-born GERRY (pronounced "Jerry") CONLON. In his memoir, "In the Name of the Father," he tells the story of his wrongful conviction and fifteen-year imprisonment by the British Government for the 1974 terrorist bombings of two pubs near London. He was in prison with his father, Giuseppe, who was also falsely convicted as a co-conspirator in the bombings. Film director JIM SHERIDAN. An Academy Award nominee for Best Director of "My Left Foot," he directed, produced and co-authored the screenplay for the new film, "In the Name of the Father," starring Daniel Day-Lewis, which has just been nominated for seven academy awards, including best picture and best director. It's based on Gerry Conlon's memoir of the same name. (REBROADCAST FROM 1/26/94) INT. 2: Film director JIM SHERIDAN. An Academy Award nominee for Best Director of "My Left Foot," he directed, produced and co-authored the screenplay for the new film, "In the Name of the Father," starring Daniel Day-Lewis, which has just been nominated for seven academy awards, including best picture and best director. It's based on Gerry Conlon's memoir of the same name.
Interview with Milton Viorst; Interview with Janeane Garofalo; Commentary on Black History Month. February 28, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458352].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political writer and correspondent in the Middle East for the New Yorker, MILTON VIORST. Terry will talk with him about the massacre last week in the mosque in the West bank, and it's affect on the peace process between Israel and the P.L.O. They'll also discuss his new book "Sandcastles: The Arabs in Search of The Modern World" (Knopf). Called by one commentator "a psychological and social tour of the Arab people and the wondrous cities they live in", "Sandcastles" features VIORST's travels in Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon. In high-level talks with the political and intellectual leadership of these countries, like Nobel Laureate Naguib Mahfouz and Iraq's, Tariq Aziz, former Iraqi Foreign Minister, VIORST offers an inside look into the diplomacy of the Gulf War, and a background to the Israeli-Palestinian peace talks. INT. 2: Actress and comedian JANEANE GAROFALO. She's a regular on HBO's "The Larry Sanders Show," where she plays the caustic casting agent, and was a regular on FOX's "The Ben Stiller Show." Now she's appearing in the new film directed and starring Ben Stiller, "Reality Bites." Her stand-up persona has been described as "a bitter, boot-wearing feminista." Which they go on to describe as "no act" on her part. REV.: Commentator GAYLE PEMBERTON comments on Black History Month.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MISHA GLENNY. GLENNY has been covering the war in former Yugoslavia--first as correspondent for the BBC and now as an independent journalist. He is the author of the book "The Fall of Yugoslavia." He will talk about the recent mortar attack on the market in Sarajevo and the effects of the recent downing by NATO forces of four Serbian warplanes. (Interview with MISHA GLENNY continues into the second part of the show.) INT. 2: Interview with MISHA GLENNY continues.
REV. : Commentator Maureen Corrigan on the return of the "dirty" book: Robert Olen Butler's "They Whisper" (Henry Holt) and Nicholson Baker's "The Fermata" (Random House)

Interview with Donna Williams; Interview with Steven Pinker; Commentary on the use of English in Berlin, Germany. March 2, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458068].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DONNA WILLIAMS. Her first book "Nobody Nowhere" offered a journey through the mysterious condition of autism; it was an international bestseller. Once her case was properly diagnosed, Williams began therapy which took her out of the "world under glass" and into the real world of speech and emotion. This treatment is the subject of her new book "Somebody, Somewhere: Breaking Free from the World of Autism" (Times Books). INT. 2: STEVEN PINKER, a psycholinguist at MIT and director of its Center for Cognitive Neuroscience, has a new book on how language works: "The Language Instinct: How the Mind Creates Language" (Morrow). He argues that language is not simply a cultural invention taught by parents and schools, but a biological system, --an instinct-- partly learned, and partly innate. To Pinker, a three year old toddler is a "grammatical genius", capable of obeying adult rites of language, similar to web-spinning in spiders or sonar in bats. His book also takes on "language mavens" like William Safire and Richard Lederer, accusing them of underestimating the average person's language skills. REV. : Rock Critic ED WARD on encountering the hip new language in Berlin: English.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedienne and superstar ROSEANNE ARNOLD. Her show "Roseanne" debuted in 1988 and has consistently been a top TV series. She has often made news--she forced out the show's executive producer in a dramatic confrontation, she went public with accusations of incest, she performed a controversial rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner" at a baseball game. In 1989, she published her first book, "Roseanne: My Life as a Woman" which became a best seller. Now she has written "My Lives" (Ballantine Books). In this latest memoir, ROSEANNE discourses on her life since "Roseanne" became a hit. She also writes about her past, her troubles with drugs, with her body image and with the press. INT. 2: Israeli political scientist EHUD SPRINZAK. SPRINZAK has written a book called "The Ascendance of Israel's Radical Right" (Oxford University Press 1991). He follows the emergence in Israel since 1984 of a radical right-wing movement shaped by religious fundamentalism, extreme nationalism and aggressive anti-Arab sentiment. SPRINZAK believes that the influence of the radical right pervades Israeli politics and culture as well as Arab-Israeli relation. He sees Israel's radical right exercising increasing control over the Jewish settlements in the West Bank. SPRINZAK is a professor of political science at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new TV series: ABC's "The Byrds of Paradise" and CBS's "The Road Home." He says both are products of this year's trend--Family Values on TV.

Interview with Anna Deaveare Smith; Interview with John Schlesinger; Review of the film "Ace Ventura, Pet Detective." March 4, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458150].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress and Stanford Theater Professor, ANNA DEAVERE SMITH. She performs solo, multi-casted pieces, the scripts of which are created from interviews she did with people who lived thru events of social upheaval. "Fires in the Mirrors" (aired on PBS) gave voice to the many facets of the Crown Heights riots. Her new show "Twilight: Los Angeles, 1992", condenses 170 interviews Smith conducted with 21 Los Angelenos, including: Darryl Gates, Reginald Denny, Rodney King's aunt, and a Korean shopkeeper (whose lines are spoken in perfect Korean and translated overhead). "Twilight" begins a run at New York's Public Theater. SMITH also has a cameo role in "Philadelphia" as a key witness. (Rebroadcast from 4-26-93). INT. 2: Film director JOHN SCHLESINGER. He started his career directing publicity films on the making of "The Guns of Navarone"; his first feature film was "Terminus," a documentary on 24 hours in the life of the enormous Waterloo train station. His films include "Sunday Bloody Sunday," "The Day of the Locust," "Marathon Man," and "Madame Sousatzka." His first American film was "Midnight Cowboy" which was first given an X rating when it opened in 1969, later that was scaled to an R after it won the Oscar for best picture; SCHLESINGER was awarded the Best Director Award for the film. "Midnight Cowboy" has been rereleased in New York to mark its Twenty-Fifth Anniversary. (Rebroadcast from 10-5-88). REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff on the new comedy: "Ace Ventura, Pet Detective."

Interview with Nguyen Qui Duc; Interview with Benjamin Cheever; Review of ZZ Top's album "Antenna." March 7, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457932].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist NGUYEN QUI DUC. He works for KALW-FM in San Francisco, supplies commentaries to NPR and received the Overseas Press Club's 1989 Award of Excellence for his public radio series about returning to Viet Nam. NGUYEN has written a new memoir about his family's struggle during and after the war. NGUYEN's father was an official in the South Vietnamese government who was captured by the Viet Cong and imprisoned for 12 years. In 1975, NGUYEN gained passage to the U.S. on a cargo ship, and moved about from relative to relative until he settled in California. His mother stayed behind in Vietnam, lost her job as a school principal and hawked beef noodle soup on the streets of Sai Gon. Eventually NGUYEN was reunited with his family in the U.S. His new memoir is "Where the Ashes Are: The Odyssey of a Vietnamese Family." (Addison-Wesley). INT. 2: .Novelist BENJAMIN CHEEVER. He's written a second novel, "The Partisan," (Atheneum). It follows on the heels of his first novel, "The Plagiarist." Both books are funny novels. Of his first, one reviewer wrote, "Wit and pathos, so finely meshed they become inseparable, buoy the main events in this achingly funny first novel. . . This is a touching, entertaining debut." Ben is the son of the late writer John Cheever. In writing his novels Ben said he finally found his own voice, separate from his father's. Ben was also the editor of "The Letters of John Cheever," published in 1988. REV. : KEN TUCKER reviews ZZ Top's new record "Antenna" (RCA).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and museum director JAMES CAMERON. Sixty four years ago, an organized mob of more than 10,000 white men and women dragged CAMERON and two other black teenage men from a jail cell in Marion, Indiana. The mob mercilessly beat the three young men. They lynched two. CAMERON was spared. In 1984, he recounted this experience in his memoir "A Time of Terror" (Available now from Black Classic Press). Then in 1988, CAMERON founded the Black Holocaust Museum in Milwaukee. The Museum houses photographs, books, articles and artifacts documenting the atrocities endured by blacks in this country. CAMERON modeled the Museum after the Jewish Holocaust museum in Israel. (THE INTERVIEW WITH JAMES CAMERON WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: JAMES CAMERON interview continues.

REV: MAUREEN CORRIGAN with a review of Martin Amis' new collection of Essays, "Visiting Mrs. Nabokov and Other Excursions" (Random House).

Interview with Zlata Filipovic; Interview with Alan Kraut; Review of Claude Williams' album "Live at J's." March 9, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458070].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ZLATA FILIPOVIC ("zuh-LAT-uh fi-LEEP-ovich") is a thirteen year-old Sarajevan, whose diaries of the war in Bosnia have been published this month as "Zlata's Diary" (Viking). The book begins in August of 1991, with a new school year --fifth grade-- and the trappings of girlhood: piano lessons and tennis. By that spring, Sarajevo was under siege and Zlata's schoolmates were being killed, her family hiding in the basement and abandoned purebred dogs wandered the streets. UNICEF published part of her diaries in a Croat edition; a French publisher then helped Zlata and her family escape Sarajevo and emigrate to France, where the book has become a bestseller. INT. 2: Holding immigrants responsible for various health epidemics has been an American pastime for two centuries argues ALAN KRAUT, Professor of History at American University. Just as the Irish were wrongly blamed for the cholera epidemic in the 1830's so too were Haitians in Miami branded as AIDS carriers in the 1980's. His new book "Silent Travelers: Germs, Genes, & the "Immigrant Menace"" (Basic Books) traces how immigration policy and health care have been affected by xenophobia and public fears of contamination. REV. :Kevin Whitehead reviews jazz fiddler CLAUDE WILLIAMS two volume set: "Live at J's" (Arhoolie)

Interview with Gary Paulsen; Interview with David Drake; Review of the film "The Ref." March 10, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458067].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and former field engineer, editor, actor, migrant farm worker, farmer, trapper, truck driver and sailor GARY PAULSEN. PAULSEN has authored books for adults, young adults and children. His latest book for adult readers is "Winterdance: The Fine Madness of Running the Iditarod" (Harcourt Brace and Company). The Iditarod has been called "the last great race on earth." It is the grueling 1,180 mile dogsled race over the Arctic terrain from Anchorage to Nome. PAULSEN ran it twice. During training for the race, PAULSEN almost lost his dogs and his own life. Relying on a combination of luck and brute will, he saved himself and his team. After that, he understood he would never be able to stop running dogs of his own free will. He is driven to write too. He has said "I can't not write. . . . I love doing it, putting the bloody skins on and dancing around the fire." INT. 2: Actor and playwright DAVID DRAKE. In 1985, DRAKE saw the play "The Normal Heart" by playwright Larry Kramer. It was a turning point for DRAKE. Kramer went on to become a founder of ACT UP--the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power. DRAKE, a gay man, started on a path of self discovery and activism that has led to his writing a series of vignettes called "The Night Larry Kramer Kissed Me" (Anchor Books). REV. : Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film "The Ref".

Interview with A. E. Hotchner; Review of Sam Phillips' album "Martinis & Bikinis"; Interview with Andrew Davis; Review of the television show "Heart of Darkness." March 11, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458071].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer A.E. HOTCHNER. His memoir "King of the Hill" (Harper), about growing up in a flophouse during the depression, was made into a movie, directed by Stephen Soderbergh (the director of "Sex, Lives, and Videotape"). Hotchner is best known for his controversial 1966 biography of his personal friend Ernest Hemingway, "Papa Hemingway: A Personal Memoir." Presented in the unusual form of dialogue, Hotchner faced criticism from the literary community and an attempt by Hemingway's widow to ban the sale of the book. (Rebroadcast from 8-23-93). REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release by singer/songwriter Sam Phillips, "Martinis & Bikinis." (Virgin Records). INT. 2: Film director ANDREW DAVIS. Davis' string of action-thriller hits include "Under Siege" with Steven Seagal and a Chuck Norris picture "Code of Silence". His last film was a remake of a TV series from the 1960's "The Fugitive" and starred Harrison Ford. It has been nominated for a "Best Picture" Academy Award. Davis' Hollywood credentials belie his journalistic background: he began his film career as an assistant cameraman to Haskell Wexler on "Medium Cool" which was filmed during and uses footage of the chaos of the 1968 Democratic Convention. Davis served as a PBS reporter and then moved to Los Angeles, where he was director of photography on 15 films before his debut as a director in 1979. (Rebroadcast from 8-19-93). REV. 2: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the premiere of TNT's screen adaptation of Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LIONEL DAHMER is the father of serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer, who committed some of the most ghastly crimes imaginable. LIONEL has written a new memoir about his life with his son, "A Father's Story." (William Morrow), in which he tries to understand what happened to his son, and how he could turn into such a monster. INT. 2: LIONEL DAHMER interview continues. REV. :Continued with LIONEL DAHMER interview.

Interview with Gary Orfield; Interview with Henry Alford; Review of the album "Tougher than Tough March 15, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458069].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GARY ORFIELD. He is a professor at the Harvard Graduate School of Education and Director of its Project on School Desegregation. His report, "The Growth of Segregation in American Schools: Changing Patterns of Separation and Poverty since 1968" was recently issued to the National School Board Association. In 1954 the United States Supreme Court found that the races in America's schools were segregated and the education was unequal. For awhile, integration was on the increase. But ORFIELD has found that today our schools have slipped backward. African American and Latino students are increasingly isolated by both race and poverty. ORFIELD argues that well designed school desegregation programs can help. INT. 2: Author HENRY ALFORD. Newsday reviewer Adam Begley mused about what to call ALFORD. "New York prankster?" Manhattan Monkeyshine Maven?" "Gotham Caparist?" His publisher calls him an investigative humorist. ALFORD has chronicled his offbeat investigations in his new book "Municipal Bondage: One Man's Anxiety-Producing Adventures in the Big City." (Random House.) ALFORD writes of his efforts to enter professions for which he was completely untutored--cosmetologist, snack food creator, dog groomer, earlobe model. He includes essays about city life and ventures into the realm of the hypothetical in sections beginning with the phrase "What if . . .?" REV. : World music commentator MILO MILES reviews the newly released boxed CD set "Tougher Than Tough: The Story of Jamaican Music" (available on the Mango label).

Interview with Sam Phillips; Interview with Rip Torn; Review of the album "Overture." March 16, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458055].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Singer/songwriter SAM PHILLIPS is a former Christian singer who became disillusioned with the form, left it, changed her name (from Leslie), and started writing songs which explored her own singular spirituality. Since 1989 she's been making pop music that's been admired by the critics. One critic wrote of her 1991 album; "On the surface, Phillips seems just another wispy-voiced, ethereal singer-songwriter, writing moody songs chronicling the dangers of corruption and obsessive love. But (its) fraught with both beauty and tension." PHILLIPS newest album is "Martinis & Bikinis." (Virgin Records). PHILLIPS is married to T. Bone Burnett, who has produced several of her albums. INT. 2: Actor RIP TORN, who now plays the Arty, the producer on the HBO comedy series, "The Larry Sanders Show". TORN has been a stage actor since the mid-1950's, when he left his native Texas (and his first name "Elmore") behind, for New York City and the Actors Studio. Described by one reviewer as "the good-looking no-talent with the ludicrously sinister name", Torn was often typecast as a heavy in television shows like "Dr. Kildare" and "Bonanza," (He also portrayed Henry Miller in an X-rated film version of "Tropic of Cancer."). His latest feature film is "Where the Rivers Flow North" (Caledonia Pictures), where he plays a rural hero who has to survive by his wits, and with a hook hand. REV. : Classical Music critic
LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new album of opera overtures played on wind instruments, "Overture" by the Harmonie Ensemble of New York, conducted by Steve Richman (on the Music & Arts Programs of America label: 510-525-4583).

Interview with Alejandro Escovedo; Interview with Teresa "Terry" Phelps; Review of the television show "The Birds II March 17, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458082].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Singer/songwriter ALEJANDRO ESCOVEDO. ESCOVEDO has just released his second solo album. It is called "Thirteen Years" (Watermelon Records). He was a founding member of San Francisco's '70's punk band the Nuns, the cowpunk band Rank & File and rock band True Believers. The title of the new album refers to a point during his marriage when all he had to offer his wife was song. After ESCOVEDO and his former wife separated, she committed suicide. INT. 2: TERESA "TERRY" PHELPS. Author, law professor and wife of Digger Phelps, former head basketball coach at Notre Dame. TERRY PHELPS has written a memoir called "The Coach's Wife" (Norton). In 1991, Digger Phelps left Notre Dame and not one Notre Dame official attended his farewell address. TERRY PHELPS says her husband was the victim of the clashing demands placed on college coaches--be an educator, but be a money maker and entertainer too. She writes about her role as the "lovely wife," as coach's wives are often called in the world of college sports. TERRY PHELPS wanted more. She earned three degrees at Notre Dame and is now a tenured professor in the law school. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews a telemovie sequel called "The Birds II: Land's End." Its predecessor is "The Birds," made by Hitchcock 31 years ago. The TV follow-up will be aired this Saturday night on the Showtime cable network.

Interview with Garrett Brown; Interview with Mercedes McCambridge; Interview with Alan Splet; Interview with Dave Brody; Review of the film "Guarding Tess." March 18, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457770].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Cinematographer GARRETT BROWN, who in 1978 won an Oscar for his invention of the Steadicam, a camera-suspension system that eliminates the jiggle in hand-held shots. His shots are striking; They include scenes from "Rocky," running up the stairs of the Philadelphia Art Museum, in "The Shining", when the young child is chased through the garden maze, and from "Return of the Jedi" the speeder-bike chases. BROWN also invented the Skycam, a process whereby a camera is suspended by cables over a large span, like at a football field. (Rebroadcast of 01/14/1985) INT. 2: Actress MERCEDES MCCAMBRIDGE who chilled audiences in the 1970's as the voice of the Devil in "The Exorcist". She won an Academy Award for her first film role -- in 1949 for "All the King's Men". She also starred with Joan Crawford in Nicholas Ray's western, "Johnny Guitar". INT. 3: ALAN SPLET, the sound designer for the David Lynch films, "Blue Velvet," "The Elephant Man" and "Eraserhead." (REBROADCAST from 06/05/87). INT. 4: Entomologist DAVE BRODY, curator of the entomology department of the Museum of Natural History in New York. Brody was the insect consultant -- a "bug wrangler"-- for films like "Creepshow" and "The Believers." (REBROADCAST from 7/9/87). REV. : Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF on "Guarding Tess", starring Shirley McClaine and Nicholas Cage.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FLOYD COCHRAN used to be a recruiter and public relations man for the racist, anti-Semitic Aryan Nations, based in Idaho. But about two years ago COCHRAN left the group and denounced it and it's racist views. Now he travels the country speaking out against the Aryan Nations. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with FLOYD COCHRAN continues. REV. : Interview with FLOYD COCHRAN continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Drug Czar WILLIAM BENNETT. He is currently co-director of the conservative organization "Empower America." In 1981, he was appointed by Ronald Reagan to be Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities. In 1985, he became President Reagan's Secretary of Education, and from March of 1989 to November of 1990, he served as President Bush's director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy. Bennett has written extensively on social and domestic issues and is the author of five books. His latest is "The Book of Virtues: a treasury of Great Moral Stories," a collection of hundreds of stories and poems he hopes will instruct children in "moral literacy." INT. 2: Film director TED DEMME. His new movie is "The Ref," starring Denis Leary, Kevin Spacey and Judy Davis. It's a dark comedy about a burglar stuck with two obnoxious hostages on Christmas Eve. Demme, who is 30, has also directed and produced for MTV; he's responsible for creating the popular hip-hop show "Yo! MTV Raps." His first feature film was "Who's The Man?" He is director Jonathan Demme's nephew. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the Academy Awards presentation, which aired last night on ABC.
Interview with Wole Soyinka; Interview with Thomas Keneally; Review of Brooke Kroeger's biography "Nellie Bly March 24, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458083].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Nigerian writer WOLE SOYINKA (Wo-lay Shaw-INKA) He was the first African to be awarded the Nobel prize for literature (in 1986), and he's been called one of Africa's "finest writers." He is a dramatist, poet, novelist, critic, and political writer. Some of his works have been banned by Nigerian regimes. He's gone into exile several times and has been imprisoned for political protests. He's written 21 books, including "Myth, Literature, and the African World," and his autobiography, "Ake': The Years of Childhood." (Ventura books). INT. 2:Australian writer THOMAS KENEALLLY. His 1982 novel "Schindler's List" (Simon & Schuster) was turned into a film by Steven Spielberg; this year the film won an Oscar for Best Picture. He often uses historical events for his fiction: The Eritrean independence movement for "To Asmara"; the American Civil War for "Confederates"; the 18th century Australian convict camps for "The Playmaker". His newest novel is "Woman of the Inner Sea" (out in paperback this spring from Dutton). REV. : Commentator Maureen Corrigan has a review of a new biography of a turn of the century journalist: "Nellie Bly: Daredevil, Reporter, Feminist." (Times Books).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor CHARLTON HESTON. A consistent lead in the biblical epics of the 1950's and 1960's, HESTON had starring roles in " The Greatest Story Ever Told" and "The Ten Commandments"; HESTON also covered the Roman era in epics like "Ben Hur", "Julius Cesar", and "Antony & Cleopatra." Medieval Spain was not beyond his ken: HESTON had the lead as well in "El Cid." (REBROADCAST FROM 11/30/90). Film Director, MARTIN SCORSESE. He directed "The Last Temptation of Christ" in 1988. In June of 1993, as part of a retrospective of his work by the Film Society of Lincoln Center, the Department of Cinema Studies at NYU presented "An Evening With Martin Scorsese": a wide ranging question and answer session taped live before an audience at New York University. Scorsese explores some of the special difficulties involved in shooting a biblical epic in the desert with very little money.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: .DR. IRA RUTKOW is a surgeon and the author of the new book, "Surgery: An Illustrated History," (Mosby). The book has 386 illustrations including documents, photographs, cartoons, drawings and paintings related to surgery, taken from museums throughout the world. RUTKOW has also written a two-volume history of surgery in the U.S. and has written studies on Civil War surgery. He's also consulting editor for surgical history for the Archives of Surgery. RUTKOW is founder and surgical director of The Hernia Center in Freehold, N.J. and is clinical associate professor of surgery at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey. REV. : World Music critic MILO MILES reviews two new releases by Oumou Sangare, the woman singer from Mali; "Moussolou" and "Ko Sira" both on Rounder's World Circuit Label. INT. 2: Author JERVEY TERVALON. He has written a first novel, titled "Understand This" (William Morrow and Company, Inc.). TERVALON set "Understand This" in today's South Central Los Angeles where he grew up and returned after college to teach in a public high school. He believes life is much more difficult in South Central L.A.--and everywhere in America--now. TERVALON's characters are faced with often overwhelming, life and death decisions. Their lives are complex--often intruded upon by guns and drugs, but also involved with the everyday struggle to Interview with Mel White; Interview with Maria Jimena Duzan; Commentary on spring in Paris. March 29, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458085].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MEL WHITE is the ghost-writer of biographies for such Religious Right leaders as Jerry Falwell, Pat Robinson and Billy Graham. That was before he came out as a gay man, after a long struggle accepting it. WHITE tried aversion therapy and exorcism to purge himself of his homosexual feelings. Now WHITE is the Dean of the largest gay church in the world, Dallas's Cathedral of Hope and the author of "Stranger at the Gate: To be Gay and Christian in America," (Simon & Schuster). INT. 2: Colombian journalist MARIA JIMENA DUZAN helped expose the connection between Colombia's drug traffickers and the nation's military in 1988. DUZAN and her paper, El Espectador, were the targets of death threats and attacks. By 1990 all of the members of the paper's former investigative unit were either dead or in exile. DUZAN went into exile, but her sister, a documentary film maker, was murdered. DUZAN returned to Columbia in 1992. She has a new book, "Death Beat: A Colombian Journalist's Life Inside the Cocaine Wars." (HarperCollins) REV. : Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg has a revised look at springtime in Paris.

Interview with John Dominic Crossan; Interview with Donald Barlett and James Steele, Part 1; Review of the television show "I Lombardi." March 30, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458104].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor JOHN DOMINIC CROSSAN (CROSS-in). A native of Ireland, ordained as a priest in the U.S. (he left the Priesthood in 1969), CROSSAN now teaches biblical studies at DePaul University. CROSSAN is a founding member of the Jesus Seminar, a group of scholars who meet to determine the authenticity of Jesus' sayings in the Gospels. CROSSAN's new work is "Jesus: A Revolutionary Biography" (HarperCollins) which seeks to place Jesus in the context of his Jewish, Mediterranean and peasant roots; to see him as a Socratic philosopher and radical egalitarian. INT. 2: Journalists DONALD BARLETT and JAMES STEELE. Their reports from the front pages of the "Philadelphia Inquirer" later became the book "America: What went Wrong"; it was a bestseller for eight months, and added fuel to the fire of the 1992 Election. Their new book of investigative reporting is "America: Who Really Pays the Taxes?" (Simon & Schuster). They argue the middle class has been soaked by the current tax system; that the same dollar earned by a neighborhood grocer is taxed more than if it was earned by a foreign corporation doing business here. (PART TWO OF THIS INTERVIEW WILL AIR TOMORROW).

REV.: Classical Music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ has a review of the Metropolitan Opera's televised version of Verdi's fourth opera, "I Lombardi", starring Luciano Pavarotti and bass Samuel Ramey. It airs tonight on most PBS stations.

---

Interview with Donald Johnanson; Interview with Donald Barlett and James Steele, Part 2; Commentary on shopping in Berlin. March 31, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458562].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today it was announced that scientists had unearthed in Ethiopia the first nearly complete skull of the earliest recognized human ancestors. It's that of a male who lived three million years ago, giving a face to the species first identified in 1974 with the discovery of the skeleton named "Lucy." Paleoanthropologist DONALD JOHANSON discovered Lucy and was part of the team to make this new discovery. The discovery could settle the debate of whether various fossils from this time period were from a single species, Australopithecus afarensis, or from different species. It also completes the picture of what the species looked like and will help confirm Lucy's position in human lineage. DR. JOHANSON is the president and founder of the Institute of Human Origins in Berkeley, and hosted a three-part Nova miniseries "Ancestors: In search of Human Origins." The companion book to the series is also called "Ancestors." (Villard Books) INT. 2: Part TWO of the interview with journalists DONALD BARLETT and JAMES STEELE. Their reports from the front pages of the "Philadelphia Inquirer" later became the book "America: What went Wrong"; it was a bestseller for eight months, and added fuel to the fire of the 1992 Election. Their new book of investigative reporting is "America: Who Really Pays the Taxes?" (Simon & Schuster). They argue the middle class has been soaked by the current tax system; that the same dollar earned by a neighborhood grocer is taxed more than if it was earned by a foreign corporation doing business here. . REV.: Rock critic Ed Ward on the troubles of shopping in Berlin.
Interview with Harry Anderson; Interview with Ricky Jay; Interview with James Randi; Interview with Penn Jillette; Review of the film "House of the Spirits." April 1, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458409].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Con-man-turned actor HARRY ANDERSON. Anderson is best known as Judge Harry Stone on the former NBC comedy series "Night Court." Anderson began his con-man career as a street performer. He eventually drifted to San Francisco where he would perform near Fisherman's Wharf or to lines of moviegoers outside theaters. He then graduated to Las Vegas, opening for acts like Kenny Rogers. Appearances on "Saturday Night Live" and in various television shows led to his work on "Night Court." Anderson put his cons and schemes into a book, "Games You Can't Lose: A Guide for Suckers." In the introduction, titled "Hello, Sucker!," Anderson states his intent: "It's not whether you win or lose ... it's whether I win or lose." (REBROADCAST FROM 5/5/89) INT. 2: RICKY JAY, one of the world's great sleight-of-hand artists: a scholar of the unusual, curator of the Mullholland Library of Conjuring and the Allied Arts, an actor and author of "Learned Pigs and Fireproof Women." Currently, JAY performs to sold out shows at Broadway's Second Stage, in a show directed by playwright David Mamet, "Ricky Jay and his 52 Assistants." (REBROADCAST from 10/21/87). INT. 3: JAMES RANDI, magician and debunker of people with claims to extrasensory perception. (REBROACCAST FROM 9/7/87). INT. 4: Magician and juggler PENN JILLETTE. He's one half of the comedy team of Penn and Teller. They are to traditional magic what the Rolling Stones are to the Vienna Symphony Orchestra. Penn and Teller revel in making fun of traditional magicians, whom they characterize as sleazy lounge performers. Their hit Broadway show was a mix of rock and roll, insults, self-injury and baffling illusions. When David Letterman invited Penn and Teller to "Late Night," the pair made hundreds of hissing cockroaches appear on Dave's desk. On "Saturday Night Live," they seemingly cut a live snake in half. Their home video and book were both titled "Penn and Teller's Cruel Tricks for Dear Friends"; their latest book is "Penn & Telle Interview with Milos Forman; Commentary on the French people and language. April 4, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458413].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director MILOS FORMAN (ME-loash For-man). Originally from Czechoslovakia, FORMAN is the director of such American films as "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "Amadeus," "Hair," and "Ragtime." FORMAN began his film career in his native country, apprenticing with some of the country's best film makers for the Communist state-controlled film industry. He was part of the Czech New Wave cinema with films such as "Black Peter," "Loves of a Blonde," and "Fireman's Ball." FORMAN was orphaned during World War II; both his parents were seized by the Gestapo. Then he lived under Communism. FORMAN has a new memoir, "Turnaround," (written with Jan Novak, published by Villard Books). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF). INT. 2: Interview with MILOS FORMAN continues. REV.: Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG talks about how the French are trying to keep their language pure.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker HAILE GERIMA ("Highly Guh-REE-ma"). He was born in Ethiopia and now lives in America. His latest movie, "Sankofa," ("San-KOH-fah") which he wrote and directed, is an epic about African-American slavery, from Africans' 18th century journey to America to their struggles for liberation, told for the first time from an African viewpoint. Gerima is a professor of film at Howard University in Washington, DC. Along with "Sankofa," two of his past features, "Harvest: 3,000 Years" and "Ashes and Embers" have won international awards. Recently, the Smithsonian's Museum of African Art showcased his career with a seven-film retrospective. "Sankofa" means "returning to one's roots, recuperating your losses, and moving on," in the Akan language of Ghana. INT. 2: Once one of the most powerful reviewers in America, The New York Times' former drama critic, FRANK RICH. It was a great day for many playwrights when RICH stepped down as critic late last year. The British press once dubbed him "The Butcher of Broadway;" playwright David Mamet called him "a terrible critic. . . an unfortunate blot on the American theatre." Some playwrights and directors even chose to take their work elsewhere to save themselves from a review by RICH. But he's also been called "one of the most gifted critics ever to write for a newspaper... a rare and brilliant talent." Now, after thirteen years as drama critic, RICH is a columnist on the Times' Op-Ed page. REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the work of soprano saxophonist Lol Coxhill. ("Lohl") (The Dunois Solos, Nato records)
Interview with Charles Krauthammer; Interview with Selig Harrison; Review of Carol Shields' novel "The Stone Diaries." April 6, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458559].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SELIG HARRISON ("SEE-lig") spent four years as Washington Post Bureau chief in Japan, and is now Senior Associate at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. He argues that the nuclear threat posed by North Korea is overstated -- that they are using the "nuclear card to get diplomatic recognition and economic help." Negotiations offer a chance for nuclear disarmament and dismantling throughout the area. He writes, "The only way to stop nuclear proliferation without paying off would-be nuclear powers in one form or another is to move purposefully toward a nuclear free world." (Wash Post, 1/30/94) INT. 2: Syndicated columnist and writer for TIME magazine, CHARLES KRAUTHAMMER. He favors an economic blockade of North Korea to force its government to stop any development of nuclear weapons. Of President Clinton's policy on North Korea KRAUTHAMMER has said, "To allow North Korea to flout the nonproliferation treaty and become bomb supplier to every outlaw state on the planet would be Clinton's most humiliating and most dangerous foreign policy retreat yet." (Wash Post 3/25/94). REV. : Commentator Maureen Corrigan reviews Carol Shields' novel "Stone Diaries."

Interview with Carlos Fuentes; Interview with Neal Knox; Review of the films "Bitter Moon," "Sirens," and "Four Weddings and a Funeral." April 7, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458697].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Mexican author CARLOS FUENTES. Mexico is in flux. On New Years Day, a violent peasant uprising broke out in Chiapas, and thru negotiations, the Zapatistas (as they call themselves) reached a tentative agreement with the government. Then frontrunner presidential candidate Luis Donaldo Colosio was assassinated as he campaigned in Tijuana. The Mexican government says at least seven people conspired in the killing. FUENTES will discuss recent events in Mexico and the history that shaped them. INT. 2: Pro-gun activist NEAL KNOX. KNOX is a powerful weapon for those who abhor any regulation of firearms. Champion target shooter and former gun journalist, he is considered the most influential voice in the National Rifle Association. He has been called the NRA's "spiritual master." He is a hardliner who believes that the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution guarantees the individual an absolute right to keep and bear guns. The Wall Street Journal said "Knox is likely to have a greater impact on the rapidly escalating firefight over gun control than any other individual in America" (October 26, 1993). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the recent body of work by British actor Hugh Grant. Grant appears in three new movies: "Bitter Moon," "Sirens" and the very popular "Four Weddings and a Funeral."

Interview with Philip Levine; Interview with Kurt Vonnegut; Interview with Grace Paley; Obituary for Marlon Riggs. April 8, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458225].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet PHILIP LEVINE. He's considered one of this country's pre-eminent poets, but before he turned to poetry he worked for years at factory jobs. The images of those early days continue to influence his writings. Levine's collection of poems "What Work Is." won 1992's National Book Award. His new memoir is "Bread of Time" (Knopf). (Rebroadcast from 7/22/91). INT. 2: Author KURT VONNEGUT. Perhaps his most famous book, the anti-war novel"Slaughterhouse Five," has been rereleased in a twenty-fifth anniversary edition (Delacourte Press). Based on VONNEGUT's own experiences during the Dresden firebombing during the Second World War, the novel was a cultural icon at the height of popular protest against the war in Vietnam. (REBROADCAST FROM MAY, 1986.) INT. 3: Writer GRACE PALEY. Born in the Bronx in 1922, she's written three highly acclaimed volumes of short stories. PALEY was actively involved in the feminist and anti-war movements, and regards herself as a "somewhat combative pacifist and a cooperative anarchist." Her "Collected Stories" have just been released by Farrar, Straus & Giroux. (Rebroadcast from 3/26/92). INT. 4 : We pay tribute to Professor and filmmaker MARLON RIGGS, who died Tuesday. His film about gay black sexuality, "Tongues Untied," unleashed a storm of controversy for its graphic content; it was used by Senator Jesse Helms (Republican, North Carolina), to argue against government grants to the arts. Another RIGGS film was "Color Adjustment," a critique of prime time TV's myths and messages on American race relations. RIGGS was on the faculty of the Graduate School of Journalism at the University of California at Berkeley. (Rebroadcast of 7/11/1991)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Major Leaguer KEITH HERNANDEZ. Called by some baseball purists the finest First Baseman in the game, HERNANDEZ played with the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Mets, and the Cleveland Indians. He is the winner of eleven consecutive Golden Glove Awards for fielding, and played in two World Championships. HERNANDEZ's new book is "Pure Baseball: Pitch by Pitch for the Advanced Fan" (Harper): analysis of two 1993 match-ups, with play by play commentary, based on his seventeen years in the game. (Rebroadcast Originally aired 2/24/94) INT. 2: KEITH HERNANDEZ continues REV. : LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a world premier of composer John Harbison's "Cello Concerto," performed by Yo-Yo Ma and The Boston Symphony Orchestra.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist, journalist and columnist PETE HAMILL. He's written seven novels, including "Flesh and Blood" and "Loving Women." Most recently he was editor-in-chief at the New York Post. His latest book is a memoir of the years he spent drinking: "A Drinking Life: A Memoir." (Little, Brown & Co.) HAMILL quit drinking twenty years ago. One reviewer in Publishers Weekly writes of HAMILL's new memoir, "This is not a jeremiad condemning drink, but a thoughtful, funny, street-smart reflection on its consequences." (REBROADCAST from 1/19/94) INT. 2: Writer SHIRLEE TAYLOR HAIZLIP. Her book "The Sweeter the Juice: a Family Memoir in Black and White," (Simon & Schuster), chronicles her exploration of six generations of her multiracial family tree. HAIZLIP is a light-skinned African-American. Her father was a prominent black Baptist minister in Connecticut. Her mother was the descendant of an Irish immigrant and a mulatto slave. The lineage of HAIZLIP's mother's family was unclear because early in HAIZLIP's mother's life she was separated from the rest of her family who "disappeared" into the white world. (REBROADCAST from 1/31/94) REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Silent Woman: Sylvia Plath and Ted Hughes" by Janet Malcolm (Knopf). The book is a reflection on the various attempts by biographers to chronicle the life of the late poet Sylvia Plath.

---

Interview with Richard Thompson. April 13, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458412].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Richard Thompson.

---

Interview with Kemal Kurspahic; Interview with Lawrence Wright; Review of the film "Serial Mom." April 14, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458226].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: KEMAL KURSPAHCIC. ("Ke-MAL COURSE-pack-hitch") He was editor-in-chief of Sarajevo's only surviving daily newspaper, "Oslobodenje." ("Oslobodenje" means liberation in Serbo-Croatian.) Now he is Washington correspondent for the paper. It has been a trial to get out the paper each day. The staff braved sniper fire just to get to work. After the paper's high rise offices were gutted by mortar fire, publication was transferred to an underground bunker. Three staffers were killed covering the war and KURSPAHCIC himself was wounded. KURSPAHCIC offers his perspective on recent developments in Bosnia-Herzegovina and on post-war prospects there. INT. 2: Journalist and author LAWRENCE WRIGHT. WRIGHT'S latest book is "Remembering Satan: A Case of Recovered Memory and the Shattering of an American Family" (Knopf) WRIGHT explores the nature of memory and the notions of recovered memory and repression. "Remembering Satan" is the story of Paul Ingram and his family. Ingram was a Washington state deputy sheriff. His two grown daughters accused him of sexually abusing them. They said that Ingram and other members of the sheriff's department had committed Satanic ritual atrocities. At first, Ingram said he had no memory of assaulting his daughters. But after hours of interrogation, Ingram was able to "remember" his crimes and he confessed. He is serving a 20 year prison sentence even though no physical evidence against him has ever been found. WRIGHT is a staff writer for the "New Yorker" where portions of "Remembering Satan" appeared last summer. He has written three previous books. REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new John Waters film "Serial Mom," starring Kathleen Turner and Sam Waterston.

Interview with John Waters; Interview with Divine; Interview with John Waters; Review of Beck's album "Mellow Gold." April 15, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458679].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker JOHN WATERS. We replay one of his earlier conversations with Terry, shortly after he made the cult film "Polyester," starring Divine and Edith Massey. "Polyester" was Waters' first studio film, and the first of his movies that didn't carry a self imposed X-rating. Prior to this July 9, 1985 Fresh Air interview, Waters also wrote, produced and directed other sleaze classics such as "Multiple Maniacs," "Pink Flamingoes," "Mondo Trasho," "Female Trouble" and "Desperate Living." Waters made all his trashy films on location in his hometown of Baltimore. INT. 2: It's DIVINE, the late leading lady of John Waters' films. Born Harris Glen Milstead, the 300-pound transvestite passed away in March of 1988, shortly after starring in John Waters' first big budget studio film, "Hairspray." He was 42. Divine was an integral part of Waters' ensemble cast, appearing in all his earlier films except "Desperate Living." Divine and Waters knew each other from childhood. It was Waters' movie "Pink Flamingoes" that made Divine famous, because he ate dog feces (yes, real feces) at the end of the film. Divine also made 2 films independent of Waters, playing a male gangster in "Trouble in Mind," and Tab Hunter's love interest in "Lust in the Dust." Divine spoke with Terry on February 23 of 1988. INT. 3: We feature a new interview with JOHN WATERS on the day his latest film, "Serial Mom," is released. After the low-budget "Polyester," Waters went to Hollywood to make the big-budget films "Hairspray" and "Cry Baby." Waters still lives in Baltimore, where he was born. "Serial Mom" stars Kathleen Turner and Sam Waterston. Waters is also the author of several books, including "Shock Value" and "Trash Trio." REV: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Mellow Gold," by Beck.
Interview with Fred Hersch; Interview with Iain Softley; Review of Bill Frisell's album "This Land." April 18, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458681].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz pianist Fred Hersch. His new solo album is "Fred Hersch at Maybeck." Hersch recently revealed he is HIV positive and appears on several recordings to fund raise for the disease. INT. 2: Iain Softley is the writer and director of the film "Backbeat." The film focuses on the early days of The Beatles when Stu Sutcliffe was the bass player. REV. : Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews Bill Frisell's album "This Land."

Interviews with Dumisani Kumalo and Jennifer Irish; Interview with Gerhard Mare; Review of George Gershwin's album "Gershwin Plays Gershwin April 19, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458224].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dumisani Kumalo grew up in Johannesburg, South Africa, and fled the country in the 1970s. Kumal is back in the country to act as a monitor for South Africa's upcoming elections. Jennifer Irish is a human rights activist who is not optimistic about the elections. Irish is coordinator for the Network of Independent Monitors who are tracking election related violence. INT. 3: South African writer Gerhard Mare is the author of the biography "Appetite for Power." He discusses the upcoming elections in South Africa. REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a recording of George Gershwin piano rolls.

Interview with James Fallows; Interview with Mike Post. April 20, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458411].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:JAMES FALLOWS. He's the Washington Editor for the "Atlantic Monthly" and the author of a new book, "Looking at the Sun" (Pantheon). FALLOWS examines new political and economic systems that have arisen in East Asia which challenge Western principles of capitalism and democracy. FALLOWS argues the impact of Asia on the West has been hidden by America's false perception about the "success" of individual enterprise and rights in the area. He predicts Korea, Taiwan and "Greater China" are the most likely countries to dominate the region economically. INT. 2: Musician and television composer MIKE POST. A session guitarist in the LA area, he was 20 years old when he played on Sonny & Cher's "I Got You, Babe." In 1967, POST produced and arranged a top ten hit for Kenny Rogers & the First Edition (POST founded the group, which fused rock and folk music): "Just Dropped In (To See What Condition My Condition Was In)." POST's TV career began at 24, when he was made the Music Director for the "Andy Williams Show." He has since composed theme music for shows like "The Rockford Files" (which won a Grammy), "Magnum P.I.", "Hill Street Blues", and most recently, "NYPD Blue".

Interview with Allister Sparks; Interview with R. Laurence Moore; Review of the film "Backbeat." April 21, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458522].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and author ALLISTER SPARKS. SPARKS is a fifth-generation South African. He heads the Johannesburg Institute for the Advancement of Journalism. In 1990, he published his historical study of South Africa called "The Mind of South Africa" (Knopf). His recent piece in "The New Yorker," called "The Secret Revolution" (April 11, 1994, p.56), reveals the little known, behind the scenes drama that started unfolding within South Africa almost 10 years ago. The revolution in South Africa that will be played out in next week's all-race elections actually evolved through a series of secret negotiations between Nelson Mandela and members of the white government. The talks started in 1985 while Mandela was briefly released from prison to undergo surgery. SPARKS calls the secret negotiating process a "remarkable phenomenon." INT. 2: History professor and author R. LAURENCE MOORE. His new book is "Selling God: American Religion in the Marketplace of Culture." (Oxford) MOORE explores the relationship between spiritualism and consumerism in this country over a two-century span. He develops his theses with examples from the lives as such American personalities as P. T. Barnum, Cecil B. DeMille and Sylvester Graham, inventor of the Graham cracker. REV.: Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film "Backbeat" directed by Iain Softley. It is a reenactment of the early days of the Beatles . . . before they were stars.
Interviews with Rian Malan, Emma Mashinini, and Helen Suzman; Interviews with Athol Fugars and Dennis Brutus; Interview with Desmond Tutu. April 22, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458677].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: White South African writer RIAN (rhymes with "neon") MALAN. Malan is an Afrikaner, descendent of a family that settled in South Africa over three hundred years ago, and Malan's great-uncle was the chief architect of the Apartheid system. Malan only realized the horror of Apartheid after he became a crime reporter for a Johannesburg paper. What he learned led him to leave South Africa, and spend the next eight years in exile. Malan's written a book about his return to his homeland, called "My Traitor's Heart: A South African Exile Returns to Face His Country, His Tribe, and His Conscience." (REBROADCAST FROM 1/30/90). South African labor leader EMMA MASHININI. Mashinini was Secretary of the Commercial, Catering, and Allied Workers Union of South Africa, one of South Africa's biggest trade unions, and was arrested and detained for six months. Mashinini's autobiography, is " Strikes Have Followed Me All My Life." (by Routledge). (REBROADCAST FROM 7/23/91). From 1953 until 1989 HELEN SUZMAN served as an Opposition Member of the South African Parliament. SUZMAN was a pioneering political leader in the fight against apartheid and anti-semitism. For thirteen years she was the sole representative in the Parliament to reject race discrimination. In her book, "In No Certain Terms: A South African Memoir" (Knopf), she explains how she used her status to gain access to places out of bounds to the general public--prisons, black townships and "resettlement areas"--and how she came to know Nelson Mandela and other political prisoners. (REBROADCAST FROM 11/09/93). INT. 2: South African playwright ATHOL FUGARD. He still makes his home in South Africa, though he writes plays which confront the apartheid system; his plays were the among the first to bring white and black actors on stage together. Perhaps his most well known play was "Master Harold and the Boys"; his latest work was 1993's "Playland." (Rebroadcast of 02/18/1986) Professor of African Literature (at the University Interview with John Matissonn; Interview with Mary Pipher; Review of Mircea Eliade's and Maitreyi Devi's novels "Bengal Nights" and "It Does Not Die." April 25, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458766].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African journalist JOHN MATISONN. MATISONN is white and grew up in the suburbs in Johannesburg. (His grandparents emigrated to South Africa at the turn of the century). To NPR listeners he's best known for his coverage from South Africa from 1986 to 1991. MATISONN also worked in Washington, D.C. He's now the head of elections for the South Africa Broadcasting Company, SABC, (which before the end of apartheid, broadcast purely government propaganda). He also co-founded the PBI, Public Broadcasting Initiative, to train and recruit South African journalists for the SABC to teach them about balance and fairness in the media. INT. 2: Psychologist MARY PIPHER has worked mostly with teenage girls for over ten years. She's witnessed the "oppression" of teenage girls today, more pronounced than that of their mothers because of the "more dangerous, sexualized and media saturated culture." She argues also that something happens to girls when they reach adolescence, that they lose their "assertive, energetic and 'tomboyish' personalities" to become "more deferential, self-critical and depressed." PIPHER has found greater incidents of eating disorders, self-mutilation, underachievement and depression among her clients. PIPHER's new book is "Reviving Ophelia: Saving the Selves of Adolescent Girls." (Putnam) REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Bengal Nights," and "It Does Not Die," two autobiographical novels about the same romantic affair. They've just been republished. "Bengal Nights" is by Mircea Eliade, "It Does Not Die," is by Maitreyi Devi. (Both University of Chicago Press).

Interview with Ken Tucker, Maureen Corrigan, and David Bianculli; Interview with Jon Katz. April 26, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458525].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Ken Tucker, Maureen Corrigan, and David Bianculli; Interview with Jon Katz.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ALISON DES FORGES (pronounced DAY-FORZSH). She's a professor at the State University of New York at Buffalo, where her specialty concerns the central African countries of Rwanda and Burundi. She's also the Co-Chair of the International Commission on Human Rights Abuse in Rwanda, and a consultant to Human Rights Watch Africa on Rwanda and Burundi. Rwanda has descended into civil strife since April 6th, when the Rwanda and the Burundi presidents were both killed in a plane crash. Rebels, mostly made up of the minority Tutsi tribe, have battled the Rwandan government's troops and army, which are both dominated by the Hutu majority. An estimated 100,000 Rwandans have been killed in tribal massacres and clashes between troops and civilians since the beginning of the month. INT. 2: Writer MICHAEL IGNATIEFF ("ig-NAT-tee-ef"), who has investigated six of the world's trouble spots for a BBC television series, and a companion book: "Blood & Belonging: Journeys into the New Nationalism" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux). A Canadian of Russian ancestry who lives in England, IGNATIEFF's book raises the question of why nationalism, which once unified countries like Germany and Italy, today pulls countries apart. IGNATIEFF reports from Germany, the Ukraine, Quebec, and the former Yugoslavia, and writes, "The world is not run by skeptics and ironists but by gunmen and true believers, and the new world they are bequeathing to the next century already seems a more violent and desperate place..." REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new album by the Seattle band Soundgarden, voted by "Sassy" magazine "America's ugliest band". It's their fourth, "Superunknown," on A & M Records.

 Interview with Marshall Crenshaw; Review of Lokua Kanza's album "Lokua Kanza"; Interview with Dan Penn; Review of the television programs "Mystery" and "Tonya and Nancy April 28, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458420].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock musician MARSHALL CRENSHAW. According to The New York Times, many critics have ranked CRENSHAW "among the finest rock artists of the last dozen years." Now he has written a book. It's a reference guide to Rock 'n' Roll in the movies ("Hollywood Rock" HarperPerennial). According to his longtime bass player Graham Maby, CRENSHAW has an encyclopedic knowledge of rock music. And he knows about the rock and roll movie genre from first-hand experience. He played Buddy Holly in the 1987 movie "La Bamba" about musician Ritchie Valens. REV. 1: MILO MILES, world music COMMENTATOR, reviews "Boto" or "Lokua Kanza," a debut album by Lokua Kanza on the French label Night and Day. INT. 2: Singer, songwriter, guitar player, DAN PENN. PENN has written soul music classics--"Do Right Woman," "Cry Like a Baby," "Sweet Inspiration," "I'm Your Puppet," for example. His compositions have been made famous by the likes of Aretha Franklin, James Carr, Percy Sledge, Solomon Burke and Otis Redding. PENN left his tiny hometown of Vernon, Alabama when he was sixteen. . . a white kid, singing like Ray Charles and in love with black music. Now, 36 years later, Penn performs his own songs on his upcoming release "Do Right Man" (Warner Brothers, Sire Label).

REV. 2: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the third installment of "Prime Suspect." It will air on PBS tonight. Helen Mirren stars as Detective Chief Inspector Jane Tennison. "Prime Suspect" is part of PBS's anthology series "Mystery."

---

Interview with Floyd Cochran. April 29, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502164].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FLOYD COCHRAN used to be a recruiter and public relations man for the racist, anti-Semitic Aryan Nations, based in Idaho. About two years ago, COCHRAN left the group and denounced it and its racist views. Now he travels the country speaking out against white supremacy movements, and the philosophy of hatred. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). (Rebroadcast from 3.21.94) INT. 2: Interview with FLOYD COCHRAN, continues. REV. : Interview with FLOYD COCHRAN, continued.

---

Interview with Ted Hawkins; Interview with Gloria Steinem; Obituary for John Preston. May 2, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458246].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: .TED HAWKINS is a singer, a songwriter, and a guitarist who for almost 30 years was a street musician in L.A. His music isn't the blues though he's qualified to sing them: he grew up in poverty in Mississippi, his mother was a prostitute, he never knew his father. As a teenager, HAWKINS spent time in jail. His first two marriages ended quickly: one was annulled, his second wife died two months into the marriage. HAWKINS music is a blend of country, folk and soul; his songs have been described as cutting through, "the vapid conventions of pop music and offer as raw a slice of reality as you are likely to find."

In 1971 he recorded a number of songs for producer Bruce Bromberg. In 1982 they were compiled on a Rounder Record "Watch Your Step." It received a five-star review in "The Rolling Stone Record Guide."

That led to two more albums recorded in Nashville and interest from the BBC. He became a star in England where he lived for four years, though he was still virtually unknown in the U.S. Back in the U.S. he went back to street performing and was "discovered" again by a DGC record producer. HAWKINS has a new album "The Next Hundred Years," (DGC label). INT. 2: Writer, feminist, organizer, and the founder of Ms. Magazine, GLORIA STEINEM. She has a new book of essays, "Moving Beyond Words, (Simon & Schuster). In one of the essays she wonders -- what if Freud were female? -- and imagines what life would be like if one of the most "enduring, influential, and fiercely defended thinkers in Western civilization were Dr. Phyllis Freud. In her new book STEINEM also reflects on turning 60. REV. : A remembrance of writer JOHN PRESTON who died of AIDS. We play an excerpt from a 1992 interview.

---

Interview with Kenneth Iserson; Review of Hole's album "Live Through This"; Interview with Murray Kempton; Review of the films "With Honors" and "PCU." May 3, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458417].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Physician and author KENNETH ISERSON, M.D. ISERSON wanted to promote organ and tissue donation. So he wrote a book about what happens to dead bodies. It's called "Death to Dust" (Galen Press). ISERSON believes that death is the pornography of our culture. He says that after-death activities are shrouded in secrecy. His book explores the mundane--burial choices and advance directives--and the arcane--head shrinking, cannibalism and cryonic preservation. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Hole's album "Live Through This." INT. 2: Columnist and commentator MURRAY KEMPTON. The New Yorker says he's "surely among the greatest of all living newspapermen" . . . "the one true original in the business." For years he wrote a column for the old New York Post. Now he writes for New York Newsday and The New York Review of Books. At 76, he bicycles around Manhattan in his elegant attire to gather material for his columns on the City's "rebels, losers and rascals." His latest book is a collection of his newspaper pieces. It's called "Rebellions, Perversities and Main Events" (Times Books/Random House). REV. 2: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD fills in for Stephen Schiff and reviews two new movie releases--"With Honors" with Joe Pesci and "PCU" with David Spade. They're both campus comedies.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Texas-born musician and Nashville songwriter, BILLY JOE SHAVER. At 54, he plays with his son in a band called "Shaver" -- their new album is "Tramp on Your Street" (Zoo/Praxis), his first recording in ten years. SHAVER's songs, as recorded by Waylon Jennings on the 1973 "Honky Tonk Heroes" album, began the "outlaw" movement in country music. Since then, his songs have been recorded by Elvis Presley, Willie Nelson, and Johnny Cash. SHAVER has been called a "redneck William Blake" by the Chicago Tribune, and the album has received acclaim for, "its unaffected blend of hot-lickin' honkey tonk and roadhouse rock, offering disgruntled country fans a potent antidote to the formulas of the New Nashville". REV. 1: Commentator Maureern Corrigan has a review of a new novel by Louis Begley, "As Max Saw It." (Knopf). INT. 2: Writer for the Village Voice and The Nation, PAGAN KENNEDY. KENNEDY ("Pagan" is not her real first name) has staked out a niche for herself as a "1970's survivor and devotee." KENNEDY has written an investigation of that decade, seen through its artifacts and social upheaval, "Platforms: A Microwaved Cultural Chronicle of the 1970's" (St. Martins). In the 70's she says, "we inherited this idea of recycling culture. I wanted to write a nostalgia book about the period when nostalgia began as an industry and everything became like an image of itself..."Sha-Na-Na," "Happy Days," "American Graffiti." KENNEDY'S new book of fiction is "Stripping & Other Stories" (Serpent's Tail Press). REV. 2:Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Revelation" the new album by 30-year old pianist Cyrus Chestnut (On the Atlantic Jazz label).
INT. 1: Former Mouseketeer, ANNETTE FUNICELLO. At the age of 12, she was discovered by Walt Disney at a dance recital; he was looking for kids for his new show, "The Mickey Mouse Club." FUNICELLO became the "most popular" Mouseketeer, and went on to star in a number of Disney films: "The Shaggy Dog," "Babes in Toyland," and "The Monkey's Uncle." Before she went to star in the beach party movies for which she is also known, Disney requested that she wear a one-piece bathing suit instead of a bikini. FUNICELLO agreed. In 1987 FUNICELLO was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis and she founded the Annette Funicello Research Fund for Neurological Diseases. FUNICELLO's new autobiography is "A Dream is a Wish Your Heart Makes, (Hyperion - written with Patricia Romanowski).

INT. 2: Documentary film maker ALLIE LIGHT. Her new film, "Dialogues With Madwomen," won the 1994 "Freedom of Expression Award" at the Sundance Film Festival. In the film, seven women describe their bouts with mental illness, including LIGHT, who checked herself into a day psychiatric facility for three months in 1963 because of problems with depression. LIGHT co-produced the film with Irving Saraf. Their previous work, "In The Shadow of the Stars," won the 1991 Academy Award for Best Documentary Feature. REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff on the new Robin Williams picture, "Being Human".

Interview with Stephen King, Part 1; Interview with Stephen King, Part 2; Review of the television show "Stephen King's The Stand." May 6, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458676].

INT. 1: Part one of a two part interview with "Mr Horror": writer STEPHEN KING. He ushered in a whole new era of horror fiction with his first novel in 1974, "Carrie." In the ensuing twenty years he has penned novels, short stories, screenplays, comic books, and TV movies. His latest collection of short stories was "Nightmares & Dreamscapes" (Viking); KING has also written the adaption of his apocalyptic novel "The Stand" for a mini-series which airs next week on ABC. (This portion rebroadcast from 7/22/92). INT. 2: PART TWO of our interview with "Mr. Horror," writer STEPHEN KING. He'll talk with Terry about his greatest fear, his first writing efforts and about his childhood. His new collection of stories is "Nightmares & Dreamscapes" (Viking). (This portion rebroadcast from 7/23/92). REV. : Television critic David Bianculli has a review of ABC's mini-series, "Stephen King's The Stand," which begins Sunday.

Interview with Lloyd Van Brunt; Interview with Stephen Sondheim. May 9, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884293].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet LLOYD VAN BRUNT (pronounced like "grunt"). He grew up poor and white in Oklahoma. He writes, in the The New York Times magazine section, "To be poor in a country that places a premium on wealth is in itself shameful. To be white and poor is unforgivable." (March 27, 1994). BRUNT says poor whites have no defenders ("white trash" they are called) and they are made to feel ashamed of themselves because of the assumption that they "should" be able to make a success of themselves. BRUNT's father abandoned the family, his mother died when he was 8. BRUNT spent years in foster homes and orphanages where he was abused. BRUNT has written several volumes of poetry. His latest is "Poems New and Selected 1962 - 1992," (The Smith, Brooklyn). He's currently working on his memoir, "I fall in Love with Nancy Drew: Tales of Childhood." INT. 2: Songwriter STEPHEN SONDHEIM. Last fall he gave a talk at the Museum of Television and Radio in New York City. We broadcast that talk. SONDHEIM's latest work, "Passion," opens tonight. REV. : Talk with STEPHEN SONDHEIM continues.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor JOHN DOMINIC CROSSAN (CROSS-in). A native of Ireland, ordained as a priest in the U.S. (he left the Priesthood in 1969), CROSSAN now teaches biblical studies at DePaul University. CROSSAN is a founding member of the Jesus Seminar, a group of scholars who meet to determine the authenticity of Jesus' sayings in the Gospels. CROSSAN's new work is "Jesus: A Revolutionary Biography" (HarperCollins) which seeks to place Jesus in the context of his Jewish, Mediterranean and peasant roots; to see him as a Socratic philosopher and radical egalitarian. (This is a replay of an interview originally broadcast on March 30, 1994.) INT. 2: Neurophysiologist WILLIAM CALVIN. He assisted in neurosurgery on a patient named Neil. Neil was to have a portion of his temporal lobe removed to cure his severe epilepsy. But the neurosurgeon, George Ojemann, had to know where to cut. A mistake could cost Neil part of his normal brain function. So, while Neil was awake on the operating table, Dr. Ojemann, probed and stimulated Neil's exposed brain, the whole time carrying on a conversation with the patient. The purpose was to create a detailed roadmap of Neil's brain functioning. CALVIN and co-author George Ojemann wrote about this surgical journey in their new book "Conversations with Neil's Brain: the Neural Nature of Thought and Language" (Addison-Wesley). REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new CD. It's a reissue from The Hollywood String Quartet, a chamber group made up of studio musicians who wanted to perform the classics. (on the Testament label).

Interview with Sekou Sundiata; Interview with Mario Vargas Llosa; Review of Boz Scaggs's album "Some Change." May 11, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458325].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Performance poet SEKOU SUNDIATA (SAY-coo SOON-de-ah-ta). Often he performs with his music ensemble, "Dadahdoodahda." A Village Voice critic wrote of SUNDIATA, "... like Billie Holiday, Sundiata surprises with images and tumbling phrases that blend with subtle rhythmic variations. Dadahdoodahda provided enough familiar riffs and melodies to fill a dance floor. ... With boy next door charm and trickster wit, Sundiata leaves your skull intact, but repositions it to square the glitter of false prophets with the voices in your head." SUNDIATA's work includes the performance piece, "The Circle Unbroken is a Hard Bop." His latest "The Mystery of Love," is currently making its world premiere at the American Music Theater Festival in Philadelphia. INT. 2: Peru's eminent novelist and former presidential candidate MARIO VARGAS LLOSA (pronounced YO-sah). LLOSA is the author of many books including "Aunt Julia and the Scriptwriter," (which was made into a movie, based on his own relationship with his 32-year old aunt, who he married at the age of 19), "The Storyteller," and "In Praise of the Stepmother." A London Times writer says of LLOSA's novels that they are "among the finest coming out of Latin America." LLOSA lived for many years in Europe. He said of his country, "Peru is for me a kind of incurable disease, and my feeling for her is intense, bitter, and full of violence that characterizes passion." In 1990 he ran an unsuccessful bid for the Presidency of Peru. Running on a reformist platform, LLOSA was threatened by the Shining Path guerrillas whose "violent terrorism"
LLOS A pledged to thwart. LLOS A has a new memoir about his personal and political life, "A Fish in the Water." (Farrar, Strauss and Giroux). REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new Boz Scaggs record, "Some Change" (Virgin).

Interview with Robb Forman Dew; Interview with Garry Wills; Review of the film "Crooklyn." May 12, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458680].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author ROBB FORMAN DEW. In her novels--"Dale Loves Sophie to Death" (Harper Perennial) and "Fortunate Lives" (Harper Perennial)--DEW explored the ambiguities and intricacies of families. So she thought she understood the complexities of family love. But then her son informed her he was gay. DEW has written a new memoir about her son's coming out and the family evolution that followed. It's her non-fiction debut and it's called "The Family Heart" (Addison-Wesley). INT. 2: Historian and author GARRY WILLS. He looks at leadership in his new book "Certain Trumpets: The Call of Leaders" (Simon & Shuster). WILLS chooses a broad spectrum of leaders--FDR, Harriet Tubman, Socrates, Martha Graham and others--and examines their leadership qualities and the bases of their success. He looks at the relationship between leading and following. He responds to the charge by some that there is now a dearth of leaders. And he sets forth his understanding of the universal conditions of leadership. REV. : Stephen Schiff on Spike Lee's new film "Crooklyn."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: French film legend JEANNE MOREAU. She's best known for her work in the French New Wave films (between 1958 and 1962), working with such directors as Francois Truffaut, Louis Malle, and Jean-Luc Godard. Perhaps MOREAU's most famous role was in Truffaut's "Jules et Jim," as the woman in a complicated menage a trois. MOREAU has led an admittedly unconventional life, from her choice of movie roles, to her succession of love affairs. She's now 65, and starring in the new film, "The Summer House." (Rebroadcast from 12/23/93). INT. 2: Actor PETER COYOTE. It was once said of him that he "came from nowhere and was working his way back." COYOTE was active in San Francisco street theater during the 1960's, and was part of the diggers, a group who ran a free store and gave out free meals in Golden Gate Park. He was Chairman of the California Arts Council for eight years and returned to acting in films during the 1980's, ("Jagged Edge," "E.T.," and "Outrageous Fortune." ) Lately, COYOTE can be seen in films from Europe: Roman Polanski's "Bitter Moon" and Pedro Almodovar's "Kika."

REBROADCAST FROM 9/6/90. REV. : Commentator Maureen Corrigan reviews "Where the Girls Are" by media theorist Susan J. Douglas.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rapper and actor ICE-T...one of the most popular of the "gangsta" rappers. Although he does not often get his songs played on the radio, all five of his albums have gone gold. Greg Knot of The Chicago Tribune has written that "ICE-T is that rare gangster rapper who leads with his brain instead of his gun or his crotch." ICE-T's 1992 song "Cop Killer," landed him at the center of a controversy about gangsta rap--is it a legitimate form of expression or is it incendiary hate-mongering. ICE-T has also starred in films "New Jack City," "Trespass," and "Ricochet." He's written a new book called "The Ice Opinion" (St. Martin's Press). In it he offers his opinions on such topics as racism, drugs, poverty, the L.A. riots. His latest album is "Home Invasion," and he's co-starring in the new film "Surviving the Game." (REBROADCAST from 2/15/94). INT. 2: Interview with ICE-T continued. REV. : Interview with ICE-T continued.

---

Interview with Melba Beals; Interview with Michael Dorris. May 17, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457728].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author MELBA BEALS. Forty years ago today the United States Supreme Court ruled that school segregation was unconstitutional in "Brown v. Board of Education." Three years later, BEALS and eight other black teenagers chose to attend the all white Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas. In the process BEALS suffered a school year marked by unremitting violence and hatred. Danny, the soldier assigned to protect her, warned her that she too would have to become a soldier. He advised her, "Never let them see you cry." BEALS has written a memoir about her experience called "Warriors Don't Cry" (Pocket Books). INT. 2: Author MICHAEL DORRIS. His work is wide-ranging in topic and emotional impact. In his earlier book "The Broken Cord" he wrote of his struggle to understand the severe health and behavior problems of an adopted son, Abel, who had Fetal Alcohol Syndrome. Abel, a Native American, died in an accident after a difficult life. DORRIS himself is part Modoc Indian. He founded the Native American Studies Program at Dartmouth College where he now teaches Anthropology. DORRIS'S new book is called "Paper Trail." It's a collection of some of his previously published writings. It includes essays on the problems facing Native Americans today, DORRIS'S own childhood, and his experiences as adoptive father of three children, all diagnosed with varying degrees of Fetal Alcohol Syndrome. REV. : Dorris interview continues (no review).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and teacher REYNOLDS PRICE. A native of North Carolina, PRICE has written works known for their sense of place and off-beat characters. He's a prolific and a varied writer: he's written short stories, poems, plays, and essays, and since the publication of his first novel, "A Long and Happy Life," in 1962, he's published more than two dozen books. In 1984 PRICE was diagnosed with spinal cancer, and became paralyzed from the waist down. Cancer, though, didn't slow his writing down. In fact, self-hypnosis prescribed for pain relief, "opened a floodgate of memories," -- and materials for more stories, novels, and memoirs. PRICE has a new memoir, "A Whole New Life: An Illness and a Healing." (Atheneum). INT. 2: British-Asian film-maker GURINDER CHADHA (Gur-IN-der CHA-da) is making her feature-film debut with the new comedy-drama, "Bhaji (BAH-gee) on the Beach," a movie in the British social realist tradition, about three Asian women on a day trip to a working class resort in England. CHADA is of Indian descent; she was born in Kenya, but has lived in Britain most of her life. She formed her own independent production company, Umbi Films, in 1990 which produced three documentaries for television. "Bhaji on the Beach," has recently made the round of film festivals REV. :

Interview with Bernardo Bertolucci; Interview with Phil Niekro and Lisa Martinez; Commentary on Baden Powell. May 19, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457727].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director BERNARDO BERTOLUCCI. He broke new ground with his 1972 film "Last Tango in Paris." Pauline Kael called it "a landmark in movie history." In the 80's, he became dismayed by the pervasive materialism he saw in the West. His focus turned to the East. He made "The Last Emperor" set in China and "The Sheltering Sky" set in the Sahara Desert. His new movie is "Little Buddha." It's a fable. A Tibetan monk travels from the Kingdom of Bhutan to Seattle to visit a young American boy. The boy may be the reincarnation of an important Buddhist lama. "Little Buddha" stars Keanu Reeves, Chris Isaak, Chinese actor Ying Ruocheng and Bridget Fonda. INT. 2: PHIL NIEKRO, Manager, and LISA MARTINEZ, pitcher for the new all female professional baseball team, the Colorado Silver Bullets. This is the team's inaugural season. The Silver Bullets are the first all-female team to be recognized by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues and the first to compete only against men. Manager NIEKRO says, "Every time they make an error, they say 'I'm sorry.'" REV. : World music commentator MILO MILES looks at old and new releases by BADEN POWELL, a guitarist associated with Bossa Nova.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and museum director JAMES CAMERON. Sixty four years ago, an organized mob of more than 10,000 white men and women dragged CAMERON and two other black teenage men from a jail cell in Marion, Indiana. The mob mercilessly beat the three young men. They lynched two. CAMERON was spared. In 1984, he recounted this experience in his memoir "A Time of Terror" (Available now from Black Classic Press). Then in 1988, CAMERON founded the Black Holocaust Museum in Milwaukee. The Museum houses photographs, books, articles and artifacts documenting the atrocities endured by blacks in this country. CAMERON modeled the Museum after the Jewish Holocaust museum in Israel. (THE INTERVIEW WITH JAMES CAMERON WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) (Rebroadcast from 3/8/94) INT. 2: Interview with JAMES CAMERON continues. REV. : Movie Critic Stephen Schiff reviews the Western spoof, "Maverick," starring Jodie Foster, James Gardner and Mel Gibson.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and physician ABRAHAM VERGHESE (Ver-GEEZ, sounds like Bear with a "V") An Indian raised in Ethiopia, Abraham Verghese arrived in the United States in 1980 as a rookie doctor. Upon completing an internship in infectious diseases, Dr. Verghese accepted a position in the rural, Appalachian town of Johnson City, Tennessee. The year was 1985 and AIDS had begun to ravage large metropolitan areas. Within the year, Dr. Verghese was treating his first case of AIDS in this rural outpost. Baffled by the arrival of the disease, he looked closer and discovered that his patients had not contracted HIV in Johnson City, rather they were choosing to return home to die. These men were seen as outsiders, not unlike the Indian Dr. Verghese, in this small town. In his memoir "My Own Country," (Simon & Schuster) Dr. Verghese captures the diversity of his patients and his own experience treating AIDS in rural America.

INT. 2: Interview with Abraham Verghese continues. REV. : Ken Tucker reviews the new Pretenders album, "Last of the Independents".

Interview with Jack Greenberg; Interview with Robert Krulwich; Commentary on technology and Native Americans. May 24, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457723].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Civil rights attorney and law professor JACK GREENBERG. He was just out of law school--a white Jewish man from the Bronx when he joined the fledgling NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund (LDF). GREENBERG took over the helm of the LDF from his mentor Thurgood Marshall when Marshall was appointed to the Federal Court of Appeals. During GREENBERG'S tenure there, the LDF litigated some of the watershed cases of the civil rights struggle. He has just published a memoir of his 35 years at the LDF. It's called "Crusaders in the Courts: How a Dedicated Band of Lawyers Fought for the Civil Rights Revolution" (Basic Books). INT. 2: Television correspondent ROBERT KRULWICH. In a FRONTLINE production (co-produced with the Center for Investigative Reporting) called "Public Lands, Private Profits" to be aired at 9 p.m. tonight on PBS (check local listings), KRULWICH examines today's gold mining industry--the impact of mining activities and the current political battle for control of mineral resources on public lands. The Mining Law of 1872 was passed to encourage settlement and development in the West. It's still on the books. Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt thinks the law allows mining companies--even foreign ones--to legally rip off American taxpayers. The mining companies and western legislators like the status quo. The show's producer Stephen Talbot calls it "a fight over who will rule the West in the twenty-first century." REV. : Commentator JIM NORTHRUP looks at computers on Native American Reservations.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer MIKAL GILMORE, youngest brother of executed killer Gary Gilmore. Gilmore's 1977 death --at his own request-- by firing squad in Utah, was the first American execution in ten years. Brother MIKAL finds seeds of his brother's two murders sown far back in Gilmore family history, and its Mormon roots. When asked why he writes a memoir twenty years after the events many Americans remember from Norman Mailer's book "Executioner's Song", GILMORE says, ''I'm writing about it now because for many years I tried to live my life as if I wasn't a member of the same family. I put a good deal of distance between myself and other people in my family, and between myself and the history of my family."

Recapturing that history is the aim of his new memoir, 'Shot in the Heart" (Doubleday). INT. 2: Interview with MIKAL GILMORE continues. REV. : Final portion of MIKAL GILMORE interview.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Mystery writer WALTER MOSLEY. He's written a new book in his series about gumshoe hero Easy Rawlins. It's called "Black Betty" (Norton). Betty's a shark of a woman who leaves dead men in her wake. Like the other books in the series, "Black Betty" has Easy in post-War, but pre-present South Central L.A.--this time the year is 1961. MOSLEY gained public attention when then-presidential candidate Bill Clinton said that MOSLEY was his favorite mystery writer. MOSLEY'S earlier Easy Rawlins book "Devil in a Blue Dress" will be released as a movie this spring. Denzel Washington will play Easy. INT. 2: Film Director JOHN DAHL. His new film is a thriller called "Red Rock West." It takes place in a tough little town in Wyoming over a forty-eight hour period. It has a film noir feeling and plot that twists and turns. It stars Nicholas Cage, Dennis Hopper, Lara Flynn Boyle and J.T. Walsh. REV. : MOVIE critic Stephen Schiff preview the upcoming live action film, "The Flintstones".

Interview with Dave Frishberg; Interview with John Goodman; Commentary on Dashiell Hammett; Commentary on Dennis Potter. May 27, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457828].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We rebroadcast a 1991 live concert with jazz pianist, singer, and lyricist DAVE FRISHBERG. Frishberg's long been known for his satirical songs, such as "My Attorney Bernie," and "I'm Hip" (written with Bob Dorough), and the "I'm a Bill" segment for ABC's Schoolhouse Rock series. A record of his songs is "Quality Time" (Sterling Records), and a new record of standards (as pianist) with singer Rebecca Kilgore is "Looking At You." (PHD Music, Portland, Oregon). (Rebroadcast from (9/12/91). INT. 2: Actor John Goodman, who now stars as Fred Flintstone in "The Flintstones". GOODMAN may be best known for his role as Dan Connor, a.k.a. Roseanne's husband, on the hit TV show "Roseanne." But he's been able to do what most cannot--carry on a successful film career and TV role at the same time. GOODMAN has appeared as a back-slapping traveling salesman who's also a demonic murderer in "Barton Fink," and as home run king Babe Ruth in "The Babe." (Rebroadcast from 3/26/93). REV. 1: Commentator Maureen Corrigan on the legacy of Dashiell Hammett, who was born one hundred years ago today. REV. 2:Critic David Bianculli on the veteran British television writer, DENNIS POTTER, the author of "The Singing Detective" and "Pennies From Heaven"; POTTER is gravely ill, and yet he continues to compose a new mini-series. At New York's Museum of Television & Radio, they are running his most recent miniseries, "Lipstick on Your Collar".

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lt. Gen. HAROLD MOORE and U.S. News and World Report Senior Writer JOSEPH GALLOWAY. On November 14, 1965 they were together at the site of one of the first and bloodiest major land battle of the Vietnam War, Ia Drang. MOORE was in command of the 1st battalion of the 7th Cavalry, and GALLOWAY, then a UPI reporter, accompanied them. MOORE and GALLOWAY have written a book about their experiences in the Ia Drang valley, "We Were Soldiers Once...And Young."(HarperCollins). (Rebroadcast from 11/11/92). INT. 2: Novelist TIM O'BRIEN. He was writing about Vietnam long before it became fashionable to do so. His Vietnam memoir, "If I die in a Combat Zone," was published in 1973. O'BRIEN's 1979 novel "Going After Cacciato" was praised for its depiction of the Vietnam War. It also was the surprise winner of the 1979 National Book Awards -- beating out books by John Irving and John Cheever. His book of stories that followed a group of soldiers in Vietnam, "The Things They Carried," (Houghton Mifflin) began as a short story in "Esquire," and received the 1987 "National Magazine Award." A new novel is due in October. (Rebroadcast from 3/22/90) REV. : Maureen Corrigan on "A Very Long Engagement" by Sebastien Japrisot. (YAP-ri-sow) (Rebroadcast from 12/8/93).

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Mary Previte, superintendent of the Camden County (NJ) Youth Center. Previte, the great granddaughter of missionary pioneer Hudson Taylor, grew up in China with her missionary parents. During World War II, she and her fellow students and teachers spent three years in a Japanese concentration camp. Previte credits the structure her teachers' created with making the horrific experience bearable. For the past twenty years, Previte has run the youth center, a holding center for boys and girls charged with serious crimes. She has applied the lessons of her teachers to the center, creating a place of structure and security for children used to violent, chaotic lives. Her new book, "Hungry Ghosts" (Zondervan), relates her experience as head of this acclaimed youth center and her own life story.

INT. 2: Jazz musicians RED RODNEY and SONNY SHARROCK. They're both important jazz figures who recently died. We will rebroadcast previous interviews with both RODNEY was a trumpeter and band leader. He rose through the big band ranks and played in Charlie Parker's quintet. He was known as one of jazz's best improvisers. And he was known for regaling journalists with his stories-- often of dubious veracity. REV.:SONNY SHARROCK was a guitarist. His genre was the free-jazz movement of the late 1960's Jon Pareles said in the New York Times that SHARROCK'S "guitar solos streaked and clanged, using blistering speed and raw noise to create music that had both the openness of jazz and power of rock."

---

Interview with Henry Louis Gates, Jr.; Interview with Beck; Review of the television show
"Unplugged." June 1, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/
oclc/971501447].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scholar and activist HENRY LOUIS GATES, JR. He's Professor of English and Chairman of Afro-American Studies at Harvard and one of Afro-American studies most visible and controversial proponents. GATES believes that Black studies should be a methodology, not an ideology, and that you don't have to be black to teach African-American literature. He defended the rap group 2 Live Crew in court in Florida testifying that the group was "parodying stereotypes of blacks, following the old African-American tradition of 'signifying,' or humorous put-downs." GATES has a new memoir of his early years, "Colored People," (Knopf). INT. 2: BECK is a 23 year-old hip/hop folk rocker, who goes by first name only and whose single, "Loser" has become the anthem for the underachievers of Generation X. His music has been described as "triumphantly anti-professional, idiot-savant music in which a heartfelt solo can be provided by kazoo as easily as guitar." BECK was part of the Los Angeles underground, with songs like "MTV Makes Me Want to Smoke Crack." BECK's first album, "Mellow Gold," (released on DGC) was recorded at home on four and eight-track recording equipment. BECK's second album, "One Foot in the Grave," is due out June 14. (released independently: Box 7154, Olympia, WA 98507, (206) 786-1594).
REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the latest of MTV's "Unplugged" concert series, featuring Tony Bennett.

Interview with Pete Davies; Interview with David Sedaris June 2, 1994. Link to record with audio file.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The biggest event in soccer, the World Cup, takes place in the United States this month (June 17 - July 17), in nine different cities. Journalist PETE DAVIES will talk with Terry about the game so few Americans know about. He's written a new book about the game and the upcoming event, "Twenty-Two Foreigners in Funny Shorts: The Intelligent Fan's Guide to Soccer and World Cup '94." (Random House).

INT. 2: Playwright, NPR commentator, housecleaner and former elf to Santa, DAVID SEDARIS. He launched his radio commentator career with his "SantaLand Diaries," broadcast during NPR's "Morning Edition in 1992. His humor has been described as a "caustic mix of J. D. Salinger and John Waters." Along with his sister, Amy Sedaris, he wrote the play "Stitches," which was described as a "macabre and hilarious social satire." Now he's making his literary debut, with a new collection of stories and essays, "Barrel Fever." (Little, Brown and Company). REV. : Classical Music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews some historic recordings by composer Benjamin Britten. (EMI Classics).

Interview with Mercer Ellington; Interview with Woody Herman; Interview with Artie Shaw; Review of the film "Widow's Peak." June 3, 1994. Link to record with audio file.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Band leader and composer MERCER ELLINGTON. The son of Duke Ellington, he perpetuates the big band tradition his father made famous as head of the Duke Ellington Band. When he was a young man, Mercer Ellington had hoped to break into his father's band on the saxophone. But after years of frustration, he could see that he would never crack the legendary Ellington reed section. He finally was accepted as a trombone player and later played french horn and trumpet. With the death of his father in 1974, Mercer Ellington took over his father's orchestra. (UPDATE: Ellington's band is preparing to go into the studio to record his father's opera, Queenie Pie, for Motown Records. And the band will attend this summer's major jazz festivals, including the North Sea Jazz Festival and the Monterey Jazz Festival. Vocalist Natalie Cole will appear with the band for limited engagements this summer.) (INTERVIEW RECORDED IN 5/3/89) INT. 2: Band leader WOODY HERMAN. This interview was originally recorded on August 19, 1986. Herman was the leader of numerous big bands, all variously called The Thundering Herd. His bands were noted for their dazzling improvisation combined with their incisive ensemble playing. (HERMAN died in 1987) INT. 3: Band leader and clarinetist ARTIE SHAW. In the 1930s and 40s his band ranked with the Goodman, Dorsie, and Miller bands in popularity. But he rejected many of the pop tunes and stuck with music by composers like Porter, Gershwin, and Berlin. SHAW is also known for working with many fine Black musicians and singers, including Billie Holiday. SHAW is now retired from performing. (From an interview recorded on 12/24/1985). REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film, "Widow's Peak," starring Mia Farrow, Joan Plowright, and Natasha Richardson.
10.) REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new memoir by Henry Louis Gates, Jr., "Colored People."

---

Obituary for Dennis Potter; Interview with Julianne Malveaux; Review of Steve Tibbets' album "The Fall of Us All." June 7, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458617].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rebroadcast of a January 14, 1992 interview with DENNIS POTTER who died today at the age of 59. INT. 2: Columnist, commentator and "mad economist" JULIANNE MALVEAUX. Her new book "Sex, Lies and Stereotypes: Perspectives of a Mad Economist" (Pines One Publishing) is a compilation of her newspaper columns. She's also a commentator on PBS and CNN. MALVEAUX says everything is economic from gender relations to job applications to toxic waste. The issues, she says, are issues of "who has and who doesn't, who will and who won't." MALVEAUX likes to incite, inspire and make people think. REV. : World music commentator MILO MILES showcases guitarist Steve Tibbetts.

---

Interview with John Seabrook and Stewart Brand; Interview with Gretel Ehrlich; Review of Jon Secada's album "Heart, Soul and A Voice". June 8, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502425].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Terry talks with New Yorker writer JOHN SEABROOK about the downside of electronic mail. Then she gets a response from STEWART BRAND, the inventor of The Well, a computer conference system. . . Last January SEABROOK wrote an article in the New Yorker magazine about Microsoft chairman, Bill Gates. SEABROOK was flooded with electronic mail as a result, and to his surprise he was "flamed" for the first time. In Internet jargon, to be "flamed" is to receive an obscene or derogatory E-mail message. SEABROOK said he'd never received anything like it before. His article about the lawless frontier of computer networks appears in the May 30, 1994 issue of the magazine, "My First Flame."

STEWART BRAND is an inventor and designer who founded the Whole Earth Catalog, and The WELL, (the Whole Earth 'Lectronic Link) a computer teleconference system. INT. 2: Writer and former film maker GRETEL EHRLICH is the author of "The Solace of Open Spaces," a collection of essays about life on Wyoming's high plains. It was while walking on the Wyoming plains, that EHRLICH was struck by lightning. The force of it threw her forty feet, severely damaged part of her nervous system, and sent her into a "solitary limbo." EHRLICH returned to her parents home for medical treatment and began trying to understand what happened to her. She found explanations in medical books and in The Tibetan Book of the Dead, which described a wandering state between life and death, confusion and enlightenment. EHRLICH's new book is "A Match to the Heart." (Pantheon). REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Jon Secada's "Heart, Soul and A Voice".

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NORMA MCCORVEY. She was the plaintiff in Roe vs. Wade. In the lawsuit she was called Jane Roe to shield her privacy. In her new book "I Am Roe" (Harper Collins), she tells her story. She was poor, alone and pregnant. Her case became a landmark Supreme Court decision--it gave women the right to choose abortion. But MCCORVEY ended up giving birth to the child because the Supreme Court decision came too late. INT. 2: PENNSYLVANIA GOVERNOR ROBERT P. CASEY. June 14th will be the first anniversary of his "return from the dead." Last year when he was close to death from a fatal liver disease that was destroying his heart, CASEY received a heart and liver transplant. The donor was a young African American man who was savagely beaten by drug dealers. CASEY talks about his second chance at life. And he discusses his views--pre and post-surgery--on political issues of life and death such as abortion and the death penalty. REV. : There will be no arts review. The interview with GOVERNOR ROBERT CASEY will continue.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director MILOS FORMAN (ME-loash For-man). Originally from Czechoslovakia, FORMAN is the director of such American films as "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "Amadeus," "Hair," and "Ragtime." FORMAN began his film career in his native country, apprenticing with some of the country's best film makers for the Communist state-controlled film industry. He was part of the Czech New Wave cinema with films such as "Black Peter," "Loves of a Blonde," and "Fireman's Ball."

FORMAN was orphaned during World War II; both his parents were seized by the Gestapo. Then he lived under Communism. FORMAN has a new memoir, "Turnaround," (written with Jan Novak, published by Villard) REBROADCAST from a 4/4/94 interview. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with MILOS FORMAN continues. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new summer thriller, "Speed," starring Keanu Reeves and Dennis Hopper.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. STUART LEVY is a professor at Tufts University Medical School, and has just written a book, "The Antibiotic Paradox: How Miracle Drugs Are Destroying the Miracle," (Plenum). This book looks at the threat of antibiotic-resistant bacteria that are resulting from over-prescription of antibiotics. Dr. Levy is recognized internationally as an expert on resistance and as a critic of the widespread misuse of antibiotics. He is also president of the International Alliance for Prudent Use of Antibiotics. He has been profiled in "The New Yorker", and has also been quoted in Time Newsweek, The New York Times, and the Washington Post. INT. 2: STEWART UDALL served three terms in Congress, and as Secretary of the Interior under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. He is the author of a new book, "The Myths of August", (Pantheon) which chronicles his struggle as one of the first lawyers to represent thousands of Americans who were injured or killed by the testing of atomic weapons. Udall spent years investigating and litigating cases filed by Southwestern families who had been harmed by atmospheric testing of atomic bombs, and by families of Navajo men who developed lung cancer after mining Uranium for the Government. His book, which has been heralded by "The New York Times" condemns the Government for deeming nuclear testing safe, and ignoring the damage done by downwinds nuclear fallout. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews: "Kay Boyle: Author of Herself," by Joan Mellen.
Interview with Nicholas Dawidoff; Interview with Brendan McGarry; Interview with Mary Scullion. June 14, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502428].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist NICHOLAS DAWIDOFF recently wrote a New York Times Magazine piece (24 Apr 94) about it, "The Business of Begging: To Give or Not to Give." DAWIDOFF went into New York's subways where panhandlers had gotten increasingly aggressive. In January the New York Transit officials announced a crackdown and began arresting the most persistent of the lot. INT. 2: New York City transit police officer BRENDAN MCGARRY. He's been at the job for 21 years. MCGARRY wrote (also in a recent New York Times article, 10 Apr 94) about the homeless and the panhandlers on the subways, "for a transit cop, they are a tough, unpleasant, sometimes dangerous part of a sometimes thankless job." MCGARRY complains the public misunderstands them and accuses them of mistreatment. But he says they've worked hard at finding shelter and services for the subway's homeless, setting up a homeless outreach unit. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT 3: SISTER MARY SCULLION. She's worked with the homeless and the mentally ill for 16 years, as an advocate and a co-founder of: Women of Hope, a permanent residence and support services center for homeless mentally ill women; the Outreach Coordination Center, which coordinated the services of private and public agencies working with chronically homeless persons; and Project H.O.M.E. which provides residential and rehabilitative services to the chronically homeless. SISTER MARY was honored for her efforts with the 1992 Philadelphia Award. REV. : NO Arts Review

Interview with Roger Connor; Interview with Doug Honig; Interview with Maria Foscarinis; Review of the television show "CBS Reports." June 15, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502423].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROGER CONNOR is founder and Executive Director of the American Alliance for Rights and Responsibilities (AARR), a legal organization aimed at making individuals more responsible for their communities. CONNOR and the AARR have been active in helping communities enact anti-panhandling laws. His group recently drafted a law making it illegal for panhandlers to step in someone's path, or to panhandle in subway stations or at ATM machines. CONNOR talks today about how panhandling affects communities, and what individuals and governments can do to solve the problems of homelessness and poverty. INT. 2: DOUG HONIG works for the ACLU in Washington State. They recently challenged a Seattle ruling which makes it a crime to panhandle aggressively, and to sit on sidewalks in the downtown district. INT. 3: MARIA FOSCARINIS is founder and executive director of the National Law Center on Homelessness and Poverty. FOSCARINIS has been active in legal issues affecting the homeless since 1983. In 1985, she established the office of the National Coalition for the Homeless in Washington. She calls anti-panhandling laws inhumane and possibly unconstitutional, and works to prevent cities from passing laws which attempt to sweep people off the streets. She has litigated several federal laws which enforce the individual rights of homeless people. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new "CBS Reports" documentary "When America Trembled -- Murrow/McCarthy."

Interview with Martha Honey; Interview with Gerald Early; Review of David Byrnes's album "David Byrne." June 16, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458576].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MARTHA HONEY. She worked as a freelance journalist in Costa Rica from 1983 to 1991. Her clients included Times (London), The Nation, ABC television, and National Public Radio. In 1984, she and her husband, Tony Avirgan were covering a press conference called by contra leader Eden Pastora Gomez, when a bomb exploded killing three journalists, and injuring dozens of other people, including Pastora, who was the intended target. (Tony Avirgan was also one of the people injured.) HONEY and AVIRGAN and other journalists set out to find the person(s) responsible. Their search led them to an Argentine leftist guerrilla, who had been killed in the meantime. What they found also implicated the CIA and Contra extreme right. HONEY writes that the CIA "put out false leads, stole evidence and worked to derail Costa Rica's Investigation of the incident." HONEY has a new book "Hostile Acts: U.S. Policy in Costa Rica in the 1980s," (University Press of Florida.) INT. 2: GERALD EARLY is Director of African American Studies at Washington University, and author of several books. His newest book is a memoir about raising his two daughters, "Daughters: On Family and Fatherhood," (Addison-Wesley). One reviewer wrote, "a powerful reminder of the complexity and mystery, and abiding love that exists in families. . . this narrative. . . is also suffused with the glory and pain and generational patience of black culture in America." REV. :Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album by David Byrne, called "David Byrne," (Luakabop/Sire)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Television and movie score composer HENRY MANCINI, who died of cancer on Tuesday. He is best known for composing "Moon River" for the film "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and the title theme to the movie "The Pink Panther." In 1954 he received his first Academy Award nomination for his score to "The Glenn Miller Story," and in 1961 his score for the movie "Breakfast at Tiffany's" won that year's Academy Award. Among his other film scores were those for "Mommie Dearest" (1981), and the remake of "The Glass Menagerie" (1987). When he died, Mancini was completing work on a musical-theater adaptation of "Victor/Victoria". The show is scheduled to open on Broadway in the fall. (INTERVIEW RECORDED IN 11/11/87) REV. Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews two new reissues which were both recorded in New York in the mid-1960's. Steve Lacy and Roswell Rudd combine modern jazz, avant-garde, and old blues in their album "School Days" (Hat Art). Duke Pearson combines piano with Caribbean music on "The Right Touch" on the (Blue Note). INT. 2: Actor DENNIS HOPPER. He made his film debut in "Rebel Without a Cause," and has appeared in "Blue Velvet," "Rivers Edge," and "Hoosiers." Hopper directed, co-wrote, and starred in the 60's classic, "Easy Rider," for which he was nominated for an Academy Award. He has directed several films, including "Colors," and "The Hot Spot." He co-starred with Christian Slater in the 1993 movie "True Romance," and with Wesley Snipes in "Boiling Point." He currently appears in the new film "Speed" with Keanu Reeves, and stars in "Red Rock West," which also stars Nicholas Cage and Lara Flynn Boyle. (INTERVIEW RECORDED IN 10/10/90) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film "Wolf."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Bandleader and pianist Eddie Palmieri. Through his first band, La Perfecta, labeled "the band with the crazy roaring elephants," Palmieri was credited with originating Latin jazz's trombone sound in New York during the sixties. With the release of "Palmas," (Elektra), many critics feel that this respected 58-year old innovator will finally get the exposure and respect that his sound has long merited. Palmieri's lobbying over the past year culminated in the announcement of a new Grammy Award category for Afro-Carribbean Jazz. "I proposed the category to give proper distinction to that segment of jazz music based on rhythmical elements and instrumentation of Africa, as opposed to jazz which developed from blues, gospel and other expressions of African-Americans." INT. 2: Actor SIR Ian McKellan. Tomorrow Ian McKellen takes his one-man show, "Ian McKellen: A Knight Out" to Broadway's Lyceum Theatre. Since coming out in 1988, Britain's highly acclaimed Shakespearean actor has become an international voice for the gay and lesbian community. His role in Peter Schafer's "Amadeus" earned him a Tony Award in 1981. He has appeared in the recent popular films, "Last Action Hero" and "Six Degrees of Separation," and has plans for a film version of "Richard III." (THIS INTERVIEW EXTENDS THRU THE ARTS REVIEW SEGMENT). REV. : (Continuation of MCKELLEN interview.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Authority on complementary cancer treatments MICHAEL LERNER. His book is called "Choices in Healing: Integrating the Best of Conventional and Complementary Approaches to Cancer" (The MIT Press). LERNER believes that cancer patients are wise to use "whatever combination of conventional and complementary cancer therapies that makes sense to them." So he wrote this book to provide "credible maps and training in reading these maps" to patients "actually trying to traverse the forbidding landscape of cancer diagnosis and treatment." LERNER won a MacArthur Prize Fellowship for his work in public health in 1983. The research institute he founded, called The Commonweal Cancer Help Program, was recently featured on Bill Moyers' PBS series "Healing and the Mind." INT. 2: Merchant Seaman CAPTAIN RUDOLPH PATZERT. In 1947 he captained a ship that was part of a clandestine effort by the Jewish underground to smuggle Holocaust survivors into Palestine. Palestine at that time was under British rule, and a British air and sea blockade prevented immigration to the country. PATZERT's ship, the Paducah, was a 45 year-old rundown converted gunboat, his crew inexperienced; and they were thwarted every step of the way: British intelligence hounded them, preventing them from refueling and re-watering. PATZERT and his crew performed "midnight requisition." Eventually PATZERT, his crew and almost 1400 passengers were captured and sent to prison camps on Cyprus. PATZERT has written an account

---

Interview with Dave Alvin. June 22, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458497].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:A concert and interview with singer/songwriter and musician DAVE ALVIN. He's best known for his guitar "firepower" with the Blasters (for which he was also primary composer and songwriter). He also had a short stint with the band X. ALVIN went solo a few years ago, and began honing his voice. He's just released his third solo album -- his first acoustic one -- "King of California" (HighTone Records). One reviewer wrote of ALVIN that he's "one of the few artists capable of drawing on the spirits of both Woody Guthrie and Johnny 'Guitar' Watson for a populist vision of storytelling in a bluesy setting." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: DAVE ALVIN continued. REV. : DAVE ALVIN continued.

---

Interview with John Darnton; Interview with Maggie Esterp; Review of the Beastie Boys' album "Ill Communication." June 23, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458415].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:New York Times reporter JOHN DARNTON. This past Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, DARNTON published a series of articles in the Times about the current state of Africa. He was the Times' Africa correspondent in the 70s. This 3-part series is his return to see how conditions have changed. He reports that living standards have declined far below the rest of the world, with most African countries in economic turmoil, replete with famine, war and drought. He says the World Bank has become the new superpower of Africa with the post-cold war pullout of the U.S. and Russia. And despite economic collapse, he writes that countries are proclaiming democracy throughout Africa: the era of president-for-life is ending. "But," he writes, "political liberalization may be widening ethnic cleavages." INT. 2: Singer-songwriter-poet-performance artist MAGGIE ESTEP. ESTEP calls herself "an angry, sweaty girl." As a teenager, she settled in New York City, and she's been in rock bands since the age of 17. Her current back-up band is called "I love Everybody." She was the cover girl on the February 1994 issue of "High Times" magazine; the article inside called her "the leader of the spoken word pack." She recently had a sold-out one-woman show at the Nuyorican Poets Cafe in Manhattan's Lower East Side. Her debut album is called "No More Mr. Nice Girl." (NuYO Records) REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "ILL COMMUNICATION," the new album by The Beastie Boys.

---

Interviews with Elvis Costello; Interview with Nick Lowe; Commentary on the definition of "world music." June 24, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458242].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two archive interviews with singer-songwriter ELVIS COSTELLO. First, we present a conversation from 1989, then we fast forward to an interview recorded earlier this year (1/27/94). In the late 1970s COSTELLO burst out of Britain's pop-music scene as the angry young man with a fresh sound. He's known for making connections between different musical communities. He's collaborated with Paul McCartney, Ruben Blades, Aimee Mann of "'til Tuesday," David Was of "Was (Not Was)," and T. Bone Burnett. Now COSTELLO is back with his original band, "The Attractions," and with producer Nick Lowe. Their latest release is "Brutal Youth," (Warner Bros). INT. 2: Rock musician and producer NICK LOWE. Lowe was a main figure of the British pub-rock scene in the early 70s, then in the late 70s Lowe joined forces with Dave Edmunds to form the band "Rockpile." At the same time, Lowe was producing albums for artists such as Elvis Costello and Graham Parker. Lowe went solo in "78, and had hits with "I Love the Sound of Breaking Glass," and "Cruel to be Kind." His production credits during that period included The Pretenders, the Fabulous Thunderbirds, and John Hiatt. (Originally broadcast 3/15/90) REV. : Commentator Milo Miles discusses the definition of the term "world music." Miles discusses Angelique Kidjo, Deep Forest, Big Mountain.
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Speech Therapist SAM CHWAT. Chwat's New York Speech Improvement Services attracts 200 to 250 clients a week. He taught Robert DeNiro how to gain an Appalachian accent for his role in "Cape Fear." Julia Roberts sought him out to relearn her southern drawl for "Steel Magnolias." He helped another southerner, Andie McDowell, after her lines for "Greystoke: The Legend of Tarzan" were dubbed by Glenn Close. In addition to the stars, Chwat assists people in business, politics, and communications to lose their accents and or to learn Standard American English. INT. 2: Author/Attorney STEPHEN GODDARD. His new book is "Getting There: The Epic Struggle between Road and Rail in the American Century" (Basic Books). GODDARD's interest in trains began as a boy in the 1940s. At that time the regulated railroads were fighting back against the subsidized highways by creating luxurious trains with fancy dining cars that boasted elegant crystal on the tables. "Getting There" documents how the highway lobby succeeded in convincing government to "feed the roads and starve the rails." In this context, Goddard addresses the resulting social and environmental ills and the future of American transportation. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews E.L. Doctorow's new novel, "The Waterworks."

Interview with Gus DiNoia; Interview with Bob Moses; Review of Ry Cooder and V. M. Bhatt's and Ry Cooder and Al Farka Toure's albums "A Meeting by the River" and "Talking Timbuktu." June 28, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458561].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FATHER 'GUS' DI NOIA (De-NOY-a) is a Dominican Priest and a theologian to the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. On May 31, the Pope issued an Apostolic letter to bishops declaring that women could not be ordained as priests. Though not a formal statement of doctrine, the letter was strongly put, and meant to cut off discussion about the issue. In it the Pope writes that the church "has no authority whatsoever to confer priestly ordination on women," and that "this judgement is to be definitively held by the all the church's faithful." The letter was timed to counter the Church of England's ordination of 1,000 women to the priesthood. Terry will talk with FATHER DI NOIA about his views on it as an official of the church and as a sociologist. INT. 2: Educator BOB MOSES. He was a leader in the Civil Rights struggle, helping to register black voters in Mississippi during the Freedom Summer of 1964. He's still a civil rights activist, though his weapon now is Math. He's the director and creator of the innovative Algebra Project which opens up educational opportunities for young African-Americans. MOSES established the project in Cambridge, Mass in 1982. Since then it's been implemented across the country, and has reached 9,000 inner city youths. (REBROADCAST from 3/22/93) REV. : World Music critic MILO MILES reviews guitarist Ry Cooder's two new collaborations: with Indian musician V.M. Bhatt ("A Meeting by the River" -- Water Lily Acoustics label), and with African Guitarist Ali Farka Toure ("Talking Timbuktu" -- on the Hannibal/World Circuit/Rykodisc label).

Interview with Christopher Buckley; Interview with James Glab; Review of the television show "Models, Inc." June 29, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458421].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CHRISTOPHER BUCKLEY has just written a new political satire, "Thank you for Smoking" (Random), which pokes fun at everything and everyone associated with the tobacco industry-- from anti-smoking advocates to tobacco company executives. BUCKLEY was George Bush's speechwriter from 1981-1983 when Bush served as Vice President. The son of William F. Buckley, he is the author of other political and social satires, including "The White House Mess" and "Wet Work." He is the editor of "Forbes FYI" magazine. INT. 2: JAMES GLAB is an airline industry reporter, who is a contributing editor of "Travel and Leisure," "Frequent Flyer" and "Travel Weekly." He recently co-wrote "Rapid Descent," (Simon and Schuster) that looks at how the airline deregulation law, which promised better service and lower airfares, led to chaotic airline fares and deteriorated customer service. REV. : Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Aaron Spelling's newest Fox network show, "Models, Inc.," about a woman who runs a modeling agency. Spelling is the executive producer of the successful shows "Beverly Hills 90210" and "Melrose Place."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DAVID LEVY is an amateur astronomer. He's discovered 21 comets, both as an amateur and as part of a professional team. He recently discovered the comet that will crash into Jupiter on July 16th, and the comet is named after him. In a Smithsonian magazine article, he called this comet "the most cataclysmic event observed in our solar system since the dawn of civilization." LEVY is a contributor to many astronomical magazines, and is the author of numerous books on astronomy. He has recently published "Quest for Comets: An Explosive Trail of beauty and Danger" (Plenum Press), and has another book "Skywatching" (Nature Company) forthcoming in July. REV.: Classical Music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of a major Stravinsky score, "Les Noces and Village Wedding Songs" performed by the Pokrovsky Ensemble on the Elektra label. This recording presents the pieces in the style of folk singing, rather than the usual concert style.

Interview with Joan Plowright; Interview with Leslie Gore; Review of the film "I Love Trouble." July 1, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502351].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British actress JOAN PLOWRIGHT. She's one of her nation's leading actresses, having appeared on the London stage since the mid 50s. She's also been on Broadway, had numerous role on British television, and appeared in the films "The Dressmaker," "I Love You To Death," and "Avalon." She was also married to actor Sir Lawrence Oliver. She's stars in the new movie "Widow's Peak." (REBROADCAST from 4/10/91) INT. 2: Singer LESLIE GORE. In 1963, when she was only 16, Leslie Gore recorded one of the greatest songs in rock and roll history, "It's My Party, and I'll Cry If I Want To." Gore has stayed in the business since the 60s, and she's currently performing a cabaret act at the New York City club "Rainbow and Stars." (REBROADCAST from 10/25/91) REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie "I Love Trouble", starring Julia Roberts and Nick Nolte.
Interview with Johnny Otis; Interview with Lavern Baker; Review of the album "The Lester Young Trio." July 4, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502350].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHNNY OTIS is a pioneer of rhythm and blues music. He has been a R&B musician, singer, and songwriter. He is best known for his 1945 big band hit "Harlem Nocturne," and his 1958 his record "Willie and Hand Jive," which was in the top ten on R&B charts. Otis is back on the road and in the recording studio now. In January he was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, and in February, he was inducted into the Rhythm & Blues Hall of Fame. His latest CD, "The Black Territory Bands," was nominated for a Grammy in the Big Band category for 1994. Capitol records reissued OTIS's sessions from the 1950's. OTIS has also just written his memoirs, "Upside Your Head! Rhythm and Blues on Central Avenue." (University Press of New England) (REBROADCAST from 11/21/89). INT. 2: Veteran rhythm and blues singer LAVERN BAKER. She had a series of hits in the 50s, among them "Bumblebee," and "Jim Dandy to the Rescue." Her latest recordings are "The Blue Side of Rock and Roll," and "Woke Up This Morning." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new reissue "The Lester Young Trio," (on Verve).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: IAN BURUMA has written extensively on Asian and European culture and politics. He has just written a book, "The Wages of Guilt: Memories of War in Germany and Japan," (Farrar.Straus.Giroux) which explores the different ways in which the people of Germnay and Japan remember World War II. In his book, he seeks to explain why Germnay has a collective sense of guilt over its war crimes, while Japan tries to forget its involvement in the war. Buruma's other books include "God's Dust: A Modern Asian Journey" (Farrar.Straus.Giroux, 1989) and "Playing the Game (FSG 1991) INT. 2: Gospel singer MARION WILLIAMS. She died on Saturday at the age of 66. Her trademark, a long-lasting high A-flat "whooo," has been adopted by most gospel singers and soul singers like Little Richard and Aretha Franklin. A pioneer of gospel music, she started singing with the Clara Ward Singers, the first gospel group to perform outside the church. A self- proclaimed "Holy Roller", in 1993 WILLIAMS received the MacArthur Foundation grant and the Kennedy Center Honars Award in Washington for her lifetime achievement in the arts. She recorded ten albums, and her music was used in the movie "Fried Green Tomatoes," which was dedicated to her, and in the film "Mississippi Masala." Her last album was "Can't Keep It To Myself" (Sanachie). (REBROADCAST FROM 12/06/93) REV. :Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews two new collections of essays. "Criminal Convictions" by Nicholas Freeling (David R. Godine) and "Skin: Talking about Sex, Class and Literature" by Dorothy Allison (Firebrand Books).

Interview with Lise Funderburg, Debo Adegbile, and Zenobia Kujichagulia; Interview with Fred Lager; Commentary on computer language in the 1990s. July 6, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501919].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LISE FUNDERBURG is a journalist who has written for "Mirabella" and "New York Newsday." She is bi-racial, and recently wrote a book called "Black, White, Other," (William Morrow and Company, Inc.) exploring the identities of Americans from racially mixed families. Do they consider themselves white, black, neither, or both? On the show with Funderburg are two other people whose interviews are featured in the book, DEBO ADEGBILE and ZENOBIA KUJICHAGULIA. INT. 2: FRED "CHICO" LAGER, former CEO of the Ben & Jerry's ice cream company. He joined the company in 1982, and together with Ben Cohen and Jerry Greenfield, built the company from a small ice cream parlor to a {dollar}100 million publicly held company. LAGER just wrote a book, "Ben & Jerry's: The Inside Scoop (Crown Publishers, Inc.)," about his experiences building a successful business while upholding Ben and Jerry's original philosophy of business as a catalyst for social change. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG talks about the computer language of the nineties, and looks at how new "information age" words sound remarkably like George Orwell's Newspeak.
Interview with Christopher Joyce; Interview with Josephine Humphreys and Ruthie Bolton; Review of the film "Forrest Gump." July 7, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501833].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CHRISTOPHER JOYCE. He has just written a book, "Earthly Goods" (Little, Brown and Company)" about searching for medicinal plants in rainforests. CHRISTOPHER JOYCE will talk about the history of seeking drugs in the rainforests, and the recent attempt of pharmaceutical companies, medical researchers, and anthropologists, to preserve the rainforests and comb them for AIDS, alzheimers and diabetes cures. JOYCE is also the founder and editor of the U.S. bureau of "New Scientist" magazine, and is currently a reporter and editor for National Public Radio. INT. 2: JOSEPHINE HUMPHREYS and RUTHIE BOLTON. HUMPHREYS is a fiction writer, who won the Pen/Hemingway award in 1985 for "Dreams of Sleep." She recently transcribed and edited the life story of RUTHIE BOLTON, who grew up in the same area of Charleston, South Carolina, as HUMPHREYS did. The novel is called "Gal" (Harcourt, Brace and Co.) and details the the stories of BOLTON's life growing up with an abusive grandfather in 1960's South Carolina. The interview will include both BOLTON and HUMPHREYS.

REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Tom Hanks' new movie "Forrest Gump"

Interview with Bruce Chatwin; Interview with Tracy Johnston; Interview with Tim Cahill; Interview with Paul Theroux. July 8, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501098].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember writer BRUCE CHATWIN, one of the most influential travel writers of his generation. CHATWIN died five years ago from a rare bone marrow disease he contracted while in China. He was 48 years old. CHATWIN spent over 20 years exploring the people and geography of the world. His 1978 travel book "In Patagonia" chronicled his solitary journey through South America. His last novel Utz was set in the art world. (RE-BROADCAST of show first aired 9/10/87) Writer TRACY JOHNSTON. JOHNSTON is the author of "Shooting the Boh: a Woman's Voyage Down the Wildest River in Borneo" (Vintage Books), which isd now inm its eighth printing. The book is not only an account of her adventure going down the river dealing with leeches, waterfalls, foot rot, and moldy clothes, but about her own realization that the hot flashes she was feeling in the middle of the night weren't the steamy...
jungle but the onset of menopause. Amy Tan described JOHNSTON as being "as hilariously observant of her own tics and wrinkles as she is of . (RE-BROADCAST of show first aired 1/29/93) INT. 2: Adventure writer TIM CAHILL. CAHILL writes in a self-deprecating way about his death-defying experiences around the world. His accounts of adventures in caves, mountains, deserts, and rapids appear in his collections, "A Wolverine is Eating My Leg," and "Jaguars Ripped My Flesh." He's also a columnist for "Outside Magazine." Last summer, CAHILL traveled to the North Pole on an old Soviet Ice-breaker, and currently he is working on a book describing his travels in the unexplored and uninhabited Ndoke Forest of the northern Congo. (RE-BROADCAST of interview first aired 4/5/89.) Travel author and novelist, PAUL THEROUX. THEROUX is no ordinary travel writer: his books are about exotic voyages, some by train, and others by foot. His work includes "The Great Railway Bazaar," "The Old Patagonian Express," and "The Kingdom By The Sea." He's also a novelist, perhaps best known for "The Mosquito Coast," which bec Interview with Fred Sheftell; Interview with Donna Murphy; Review of the television show "The Steven Banks Show." July 11, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502007].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. FRED SHEFTELL. He's founder and co-director of the New England Center for Headache and National President for the American Council on Headache Education. In 'Headache Relief' (Simon & Schuster), which SHEFTELL co-authors with Alan Rapoport, the authors argue that chronic headache sufferers have suffered further from the stigma that they brought it on themselves and that headaches are not a genuine illness. 'Unlike the pain of ulcers or colitis, the pain caused by a headache has no easily visible source. This reflects more on the state of medical knowledge than on the reality of the condition.' FOR LISTENERS' INFO: The American Council on Headache Education is 875 King's Highway, Suite 200, Woodbury, N.J. 08096; phone: 1-800-255-ACHE. . INT. 2: Singer/Actress DONNA MURPHY. In 1986, Donna Murphy was a woman in drag in 'The Mystery of Edwin Drood.' In 1991, she was introduced as 'a girl who will steal your heart and then forget where she put it,' playing the amnesiac songstress in 'Song of Singapore.' Having become one of Broadway's most sought-after actresses, MURPHY is now playing the lead in Stephen Sondheim's latest musical, 'Passion.' Of the role, which has her playing an ugly, hysterical woman obsessively pursuing a handsome army captain, MURPHY says, 'I love transformation of any kind...I want to look in the mirror and not see Donna looking back at me.' REV.: TV critic David Bianculli reviews new PBS sitcom 'The Steven Banks Show.'

---

Interview with Patrick Bellegarde-Smith; Interview with Susan Douglas; Review of the Rolling Stones' album "Voodoo Lounge." July 12, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502009].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PATRICK BELLEGRARDE-SMITH is a professor of Africology at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. Today, he will place Haiti's current political situation in a historical context, explaining the history of American involvement in Haiti. BELLEGRARDE-SMITH grew up in Haiti, at the height of the Duvalier dictatorship. His grandfather was Dantes Bellegarde, one of Haiti's leading social philosophers. BELLEGRARDE-SMITH will talk about Haiti from a personal standpoint as well. INT. 2: SUSAN DOUGLAS is a professor of media and American studies at Hampshire College. She has just written a book 'Where the Girls Are (Random House),' that looks at women in baby-boomer pop culture. She explains how the media's alternating images of stereotypical femininity and feminism created a kind of 'schizophrenia' in American women. She talks about how this confusion has caused ambivalence in American women about what feminism means. In her book, she deconstructs such TV shows as 'Bewitched,' whose female heroines have magical powers, and 'Mary Tyler Moore,' whose heroine remains permanently poised between and assertiveness and submissiveness. REV.: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the Rolling Stones new album, 'Voodoo Lounge' (Virgin).

---

Interviews with Harry Wu and Orville Schell; Interview with Newton Minow; Review of Neil Young's album "Mirror Ball." July 12, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458268].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A rebroadcast of a 1994 interview with Chinese-American human rights campaigner and scholar HARRY WU. He is currently being held on espionage charges in China. He was detained on June 19 when he attempted to enter the country. WU had made several secret trips to China under an assumed identity to document human rights abuses in Chinese prisons. WU himself was held for 19 years in Chinese labor camps from 1960 to 1979. When he was released he emigrated to the U.S. China scholar ORVILLE SCHELL. He'll discuss the arrest of Harry Wu and reflect on how that affects U.S and China relations. One human rights advocate called the action a, "declaration of war against the United States on the human rights issue." SCHELL has written nine books about China, as well as contributing to magazines and television. His latest book is Mandate of Heaven: A New Generation of Entrepreneurs, Dissidents, Bohemians, and Technocrats Lays Claim to China's Future. (Simon & Schuster, 1994) INT. 2: Chairman of the Board of the Carnegie Corporation and former Chairman of PBS NEWTON MINOW. As President Kennedy's chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, MINOW astonished the public in 1961 when he referred to television broadcasting as a "vast wasteland". His new book, Abandoned in the Wasteland, (Hill and Wang), which he co-wrote with Craig L. May, examines the nation's television system (both past and present) and looks into the negative effects it poses on our children. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Neil Young's new album "Mirror Ball" (Warner).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN HELYAR'S new book, 'Lords of the Realm' (Villard Books) looks at the corporate world of baseball. Instead of tracing the history of the game through its players, HELYAR focuses on the behind the scenes people-- the agents, owners, and general managers-- who shaped baseball. HELYAR is a reporter for The Wall Street Journal, and co-author of the New York Times bestseller, Barbarians at the Gate. INT. 2: DAVID RUSSELL is the writer and director of movie 'Spanking the Monkey,' (Fine Line Features). The film is about Raymond, who returns after his freshman year at MIT to find he has to spend the summer caring for his mother, who's broken her leg. His loneliness combined with his mother's depression results in a dark comedy about mother-son incest. 'Spanking the Monkey' won the Audience Award for the most popular dramatic film at the Sundance Film Festival in January. DAVID RUSSELL has also written and directed two short narrative films, Bingo Inferno and Hairway to the Stars, which were also shown at the Sundance Film Festival. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews No Gifts from Chance (Scribners), Shari Benstock's new biography of writer Edith Wharton

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NELSON PEERY has just published his memoir, "Black Fire: The Making of an American Revolutionary (The New Press)," about coming of age against a background of racism, the Depression, and World War II. The book chronicles PEERY's travels west during the Depression, and his experiences as a soldier fighting in World War II. He writes about his simultaneous love for America and hatred for the people who discriminated against African Americans, especially in the army. The book details his vision of a worldwide revolution of people of color, his involvement in the Communist party, and his own personal revolutions against officers in his unit who were cruel to black soldiers. PEERY began his book when he was 24, but did not finish it until now, almost 25 years later. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THROUGH THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

Interview with David Levy; Interview with Chuck Yeager; Interview with Alan Shepard; Review of the film "True Lies." July 15, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501829].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Astronomer DAVID LEVY. He's discovered 21 comets, both as an amateur and as part of a professional team. He discovered the comet that will crash into Jupiter on July 16th, and the comet is named after him. LEVY is a contributor to many astronomical magazines, and is the author of numerous books on astronomy. He has recently published "Quest for Comets: An Explosive Trail of beauty and Danger" (Plenum Press), and has another book "Skywatching" (Nature Company) forthcoming in July. (Originally broadcast 6/30/94) INT. 2: In honor of the 25th anniversary of the Apollo mission to the moon, we speak with: 1) GENERAL CHUCK YEAGER, test pilot, war hero, and the first man to break the sound barrier.(Originally broadcast 9/13/88) 2) Retired Astronaut and former test pilot ALAN SHEPARD. He was America's first man in space in 1961. Ten years later with Apollo 14, he made it to the moon, playing golf on the moon's surface. (In 1969, the Apollo 11 landed on the moon). SHEPARD has co-written a new book: "Moon Shot: The Inside Story of America's Race to the Moon." (Turner Publishing).
Interview with Alexs Pate; Review of Hal Ketchum's album "Every Little Word" and David Ball's album "Thinkin' Problem"; Interview with Fred Waitzkin; Review of Keith Jarrett's album "At the Deer Head Inn." July 18, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502004].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ALEXS PATE ("Alex Payt"). His first novel is called "Losing Absalom." It's a memoir, and tribute, to his father, Absalom Goodman. Pate's book chronicles the end of Absalom's life as his family has gathered around his hospital bed. Writer John Willimas wrote, "Losing Absalom is a powerful yet sensitive embrace with black America today." Pate lives in Minneapolis, where he works as a writer, poet and performance artist. (Coffee House Press) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new country albums -- Hal Ketchum's "Every Little Word," (Curb Records) and David Ball's "Thinkin' Problem." (Warner Bros.) INT. 2: FRED WAITZKIN has written two books about chess. His first, "Searching For Bobby Fischer," is about his young son Josh's gift for chess. The book was made into a movie of the same name, starring Joe Mantegna as Fred Waitzkin, with Laurence Fishburne and Ben Kingsley. Waitzkin's latest book is called "Mortal Games." It's a portrait of the world chess champion Garry Kasparov as he prepares, in 1990, to defend his title against sworn enemy Anatoly Karpov. REV. 2: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews Keith Jarrett's new album, "At the Deer Head Inn." Jarrett, on piano, teams up with bassist Gary Peacock and drummer Paul Motian. (ECM Records/BMG Classics)
The report, "Arming Rwanda," is about the arms trade and the human rights violations in Rwanda. INT. 2: PABLO MEDINA is a Cuban-born poet and essayist who has just written his first novel, "The Marks of Birth" (Farrar.Straus.Giroux). In the novel, MEDINA explores the experience of exile through the eyes of a young character whose family is forced to flee the political unrest of a Caribbean island-nation, and begin again in America. MEDINA has also written two collections of poems: "Pork Rind and Cuban Songs" and "Arching into the Afterlife," and a book of personal essays entitled "Exiled Memories: A Cuban Childhood." MEDINA currently teaches at the MFA writing program at Warren Wilson College in North Carolina. REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Bird Artist," by Howard Norman (Farrar.Straus & Giroux).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Executive Director of the Christian Coalition, RALPH REED. The Christian Coalition is a national organization dedicated to mobilizing the religious right, for political and legislative objectives. The coalition was founded by evangelist Pat Robertson. It's "Contract with the American Family" includes calls for: school prayer; eliminating federal funding for abortions; limits on late-term abortions; restrictions on pornography on the Internet, and eliminating federal funding for the NEA and public broadcasting. RALPH REED is considered to be a very media-savvy spokesman for the Christian Coalition agenda. His recent book, Politically Incorrect (Word), looks into the world of politics and the world of faith. INT. 2: Actor/Director RON HOWARD. As a child actor he appeared in "The Music Man" and the long running television series "The Andy Griffith Show." He also starred in the TV series "Happy Days" and was known for his roles in "American Graffiti." HOWARD later made a name for himself as a director of several movies including "Splash," "Cocoon," "Parenthood," and "Backdraft." His new film "Apollo 13" which stars Tom Hanks is now in theaters. Terry recently talked with HOWARD about "Apollo 13,". This time, HOWARD will discuss his years as a child actor. REV. : TV. Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Larry Sanders Show" on HBO and "TV Nations" which debuts on Fox.
Interview with Anthony Aveni; Interview with Ang Lee; Review of Spike Jones' albums "The Spike Jones Anthology" and "Spiked!" July 20, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502669].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ANTHONY AVENI is one of the pioneers in the field of archaeoastronomy, which traces how different cultures throughout the ages have interpreted the skies and planets. He has just written a book, "Conversing with the Planets," (Kodansha International). In it, he weaves together cosmology, mythology, and anthropology, to look at the significance of stars and how they have been perceived in various cultures. AVENI is a professor of Physics and Astronomy, as well as Sociology and Anthropology, at Colgate University. He was voted one of the country's ten best professors by "Rolling Stone Magazine" in 1991. INT. 2: ANG LEE is the co-writer and director of the new movie, "Eat Drink Man Woman." The movie looks at sex and food as the two main things that create and maintain families. The film centers on Taiwan's leading chef and his disappointments-- both in his career as a chef, and in his attempts to raise his three daughters. The movie also examines his daughters' relationships to food and sex. LEE is the director of "The Wedding Banquet," a movie about a love triangle between an American man, a Chinese woman and, a Chinese-American man. "The Wedding Banquet" won the Golden Bear award. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two new Spike Jones reissues-- "The Spike Jones Anthology" (Rhino), and "Spiked!" (Catalyst).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GIOCONDA BELLi's first novel, "The Inhabited Woman," (Curbstone Press) is about a young architect whose body becomes inhabited by the soul of an Indian woman from the time of the Conquistadors. The soul urges the young woman to abandon her privileged lifestyle and join an underground movement against the dictatorship. BELLi is from an affluent Nicaraguan family. She studied English and advertising abroad, before returning to Nicaragua and joining the Sandinistas and playing a role in the overthrow of Nicaragua's dictator Somoza. Her book of poetry, "Line of Fire" won the Casa de las Americas Prize for poetry in 1979. "The Inhabited Woman" has been published in the US, Latin America, and Europe. INT. 2: FRANK LANGElla is the star of the new HBO Showcase film "Doomsday Gun," the true story of Dr. Gerald Bull, a brilliant arms designer who fulfills his lifelong dream of building a "Supergun." When he builds the weapon for Sadaam Hussein, he becomes involved in the political dangers of the international arms trade. "Doomsday Gun" is scheduled to air Saturday, July 23rd. LANGLELLA has played Dracula in the Broadway revival of "Dracula" for which he received a Tony nomination, as well as in the 1979 film version of "Dracula." Most recently, he has appeared in the Broadway play "Booth," and in the movie "Dave," as Bob Alexander, the evil White House Chief of Staff.

REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD substitutes for Stephen Schiff and reviews the new movie "The Client" based on John Grisham's bestseller.

---

Interview with John Le Carre; Interview with James Lee Burke; Interview with Walter Mosley; Tribute to Dorothy Collins. July 22, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502261].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Spy novelist JOHN LE CARRE. His novels, almost every one of which is considered a masterpiece of the genre, include "The Spy Who Came In From the Cold," "A Small Town in Germany," "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy" and "The Little Drummer Girl." To many critics, Le Carre is not simply the finest spy novelist of his era, but perhaps the finest all-around novelist. Several of his works have been made into movies, most notably "Spy Who Came In From the Cold," which starred Richard Burton and Claire Bloom. His new best-seller is called "The Night Manager." (Knopf) (REBROADCAST FROM 5/30/89)

INT. 2: Novelist JAMES LEE BURKE. He's been writing for 35 years but he's best known for his more recent detective novels about Dave Robicheaux (ROW-bah-show), a recovering alcoholic, who is also a troubled Vietnam vet, and a New Orleans police lieutenant. His books include: "The Neon Rain," "Heaven's Prisoners," "Black Cherry Blues," "A Morning for Flamingos" and "A Stained White Radiance." BURKE's new book, his eighth Dave Robicheaux novel, is called "Dixie City Jam." (Hyperion) (REBROADCAST FROM 4/8/92)

INT. 3: Mystery writer WALTER MOSLEY. He's written a new book in his series about gumshoe hero Easy Rawlins. It's called "Black Betty" (Norton). Betty's a shark of a woman who leaves dead men in her wake. Like the other books in the series, "Black Betty" has Easy in post-War, but pre-present South Central L.A.--this time the year is 1961. MOSLEY gained public attention when presidential candidate Bill Clinton said that MOSLEY was his favorite mystery writer. His next book, "RL's Dream" (Norton) comes out this August. (REBROADCAST FROM 5/26/94)

REV. : We feature a tribute to singer Dorothy Collins, who died yesterday at the age of 67.
Collins was the star of the 1950's tv show "Your Hit Parade," and received a Tony nomination in 1971 for her role in Stephen Sondheim's Broadway show "Losing My Mind." We will play "Losing My Mind," from the show "Follies." (The recording is from "So

Interview with Jerrold Ladd; Interview with Marin Alsop; Review of Shoe's album "Propeller" and Freedy Johnston's album "This Perfect World." July 25, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502256].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JERROLD LADD is a 24-year-old writer, who has just published an autobiography, "Out of the Madness." (Warner Books) In his book, he writes about growing up in the Dallas housing projects, with his mother who was a heroin addict. He describes how he struggled to educate himself and eventually became a writer. His book started out as an article, written when he was 20, and published in "Dallas Life." This article won him the prestigious "Sunday Magazine Editors Association National Essay of the Year Award." LADD currently writes for the "Dallas Morning News," and attends college. . INT. 2: MARIN ALSOP is the music director of the Colorado Symphony. One of the few woman conductors in the world, she has also served as music director of the Lond Island Philharmonic, and has been the guest conductor for many orchestras, including the St. Louis Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Boston Pops Orchestra. ALSOP founded Concordia, a 50-piece chamber orchestra whose repertoire combines classical and jazz music, and String Fever, a swing band for which she plays violin. ALSOP has recorded three CD's: "Fever Pitch," by String Fever, and "Blue Monday" and "Victory Stride" by the Concordia Orchestra. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews new albums by Shoes and Freedy Johnston.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Last week, a cholera epidemic broke out in Rwanda, and the country now has limited medical facilities and few physicians. Dr. JOHN SUNDIN worked during May and June at the Red Cross hospital in Kigali, Rwanda. He'll talk about the cholera epidemic, and about his experiences working as the only surgeon in Kigali. INT. 2: Internationally renowned gymnastics coach BELA KAROLYI who coached Nadia Comaneci in the 1976 Olympics, where Comaneci was the first person to score perfect tens in Olympic history. KAROLYI and writer Nancy Ann Richardson have collaborated on a biography of KAROLYI, called "Feel No Fear: The Power, Passion, & Politics of a Life in Gymnastics" (Hyperion). The book tells of KAROLYI's defection from Rumania to the U.S., and how KAROLYI brought the American gymnasts Mary Lou Retton and Kim Zmeskal into the public eye. REV. : Author Digoberto Gilb on the struggles of son's Little League team.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer SHELBY FOOTE has created a niche for himself as a civil war historian. He is best known for his three volume history of the Civil War, called "The Civil War: A Narrative." He has just written a new book, "Stars in Their Courses," (The Modern Library) which re-creates the three-day Gettysburg Campaign. He was also the narrator of the eleven-hour PBS series "The Civil War," which aired in 1990. FOOTE is also the author of six novels. INT. 2: JAMES RESTON, JR. has just written a biography of Galileo, called "Galileo: A Life." (HarperCollins) In it he explores how Galileo was publicly humiliated for supporting the theory that the Earth revolved around the sun. RESTON recently wrote a cover story for "Time Magazine," on the comet crash into Jupiter, before the crash became national news. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Thomas Mallon's new novel, "Henry and Clara." (Ticknor and Fileds)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ISAAC HAYES is a renowned soul musician, who rose to the top of the charts in the 1970's on the Stax label, a soul record label. He released his first solo album, "Presenting Isaac Hayes," in 1968. His next album, "Hot Buttered Soul," became a gold record in the 1970's. His 1972 soundtrack to the movie "Shaft," went platinum and won an Oscar for "Theme From Shaft." HAYES is also an actor, who has held roles in the movies "Robin Hood: Men in Tights," "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka," and "Posse." He is in the new Nicholas Cage movie, "It Could Happen to You," in which he plays a news photographer who puts Nicholas Cage into the media spotlight when he wins the lottery. INT. 2: The interview with ISAAC HAYES continues through the second half of the show. REV.: Television critic DAVID BIANCULLI talks about the power of TV programs' opening theme songs. The president of ABC Entertainment wants to do away with them.

---

Interview with Sonny Rollins; Interview with Betty Carter. July 29, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502672].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SONNY ROLLINS, tenor saxophonist, is one of the jazz world's greatest improvisational artists. At the tender age of 23, he played with Miles Davis and Charlie Parker. In the early 1950s, he joined the Clifford Brown-Max Roach quintet. He also began a critically-acclaimed solo career. Now in his sixties, he feels obligated to carry on the vision of his own mentors to today's rising stars. His latest album, "Old Flames" (Milestone), focuses on jazz standards and features Sonny backed by a brass section. ROLLINS will be the guest of honor at the JazzTimes Convention in November 16-19, in New York. (REBROADCAST from 2/2/94)

INT. 2: Jazz vocalist BETTY CARTER. Her last album in her four decade career is "It's Not About the Melody," on the Verve Record Label. Carter signed to Verve in 1988, and released her Grammy-winning debut, Look What I Got, that same year. She has another album coming out in October called "Feed the Fire." She's often been called jazz's preeminent female singer. (REBROADCAST from 11/24/90)

---

Interview with Mike Stroud; Interview with John Cale; Review of L7's album "Hungry for Stink." August 1, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502260].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MIKE STROUD and his companion Ranulph Fiennes were the first people to cross Antarctica on foot. Their 95-day expedition culminated in 1993. STROUD has just written a book, "Shadows on the Wasteland," (The Overlook Press) about the 95-day, 1350-mile journey. STROUD is a doctor, nutritionist, and survival consultant to the British Ministry of Defense, and has participated in other Polar expeditions.

INT. 2: Musician JOHN CALE was the violist, keyboardist and bassist of the 60's avant garde band, The Velvet Underground. Since the breakup of the group in 1968, JOHN CALE has had a career as a solo artist. Most recently, he collaborated with former Velvet Underground member Lou Reed, on "Songs for Drella," the 1990 tribute to artist Andy Warhol. This past month, he released "Seducing Down the Door: A John Cale Collection," (Rhino) which is a compilation of his post-Velvet Underground solo recordings.

REV. : KEN TUCKER reviews "Hungry for Stink" (Slash Records) by L7, an all-woman quartet who is appearing in the Lollapalooza tour.

---

Interview with Nick Cave; Interview with Laurence Bergreen. August 2, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502078].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Australian singer NICK CAVE. CAVE and his band "The Bad Seeds," are best known for his angry, twisted ballad-like lyrics. The latest NICK CAVE and The Bad Seeds album, "Let Love In," (Elektra) is marked by a dark, bitter view of love and relationships. NICK CAVE and the Bad Seeds have released eight other albums, and have contributed songs to the last three Wim Wenders films, including "Far Away, So Close," and "Until the End of the World." NICK CAVE and The Bad Seeds are performing in this summer's Lollapalooza concert.

INT. 2: Biographer LAURENCE BERGREEN. He has just written a biography of Al Capone, "Capone: The Man and the Era," (Simon and Schuster) which challenges many of America's popular beliefs about famous gangster Al Capone. BERGREEN reveals the complexity of Capone's life, by displaying more of the personal details of his life-- his married life, his role as a loving father, generous giver. BERGREEN has also written biographies of James Agee and Irving Berlin.
Interview with Daniel Schorr; Commentary on the rock band the Undertones. August 3, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501921].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DANIEL SCHORR is the Senior News Analyst for National Public Radio. He was the CBS Chief Watergate Correspondent, and is now narrating a five-part BBC documentary, "Watergate." After ending up on Nixon's "enemy list," SCHORR resigned from CBS in 1976, and wrote a book about the Watergate scandal called "Clearing the Air." Before joining CBS, SCHORR was a foreign correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor and The New York Times. The "Watergate" series will air this week on the Discovery channel, and will coincide with the twentieth anniversary of Nixon's resignation. INT. 2: The interview with DANIEL SCHORR continues into the second half of the show. REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER looks back at the career of the Irish rock band The Undertones.

Interview with Thomas Friedman; Interview with Sindiwe Magona; Review of the television program "Watergate." August 4, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501831].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: THOMAS FRIEDMAN is a middle east correspondent for "The New York Times," and author of the Pulitzer-Prize winning book "From Beirut to Jerusalem." He'll talk today about last week's pact between Israel and Jordan. INT. 2: SINDIWE MAGONA is a fiction writer who was born and educated in South Africa. Her autobiography, "To my Children's Children," (Interlink Books) traces her life under the apartheid system. In her memoir, she describes her childhood in a poor South African town, and the hasty end a teenage pregnancy put to her career as a teacher. The memoir won an honorable mention from the 1991 Noma Award for Publishing in Africa. MAGONA has also published another novel, "Forced to Grow," and a collection of short stories. She currently works as a translator for the United Nations. REV.: T-V critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new Watergate documentary that premieres Sunday on the Discovery channel.
Interview with Andrew Bergman; Interview with Stanley Tucci; Interview with Jamie Lee Curtis; Review of the film "A Clear and Present Danger." August 5, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502077].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Ray Shell; Interview with Jane Hamilton; Review of Robert Pete Williams' albums "I'm as Blue as a Man Can Be" and "When a Man Takes the Blues." August 8, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502046].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Actor and writer RAY SHELL. He has just written his first novel, "Iced," (Harper Collins) about a talented and ambitious man who is also addicted to crack. SHELL has appeared in many shows in England, including "Miss Saigon," "Starlight Express," "Jesus Christ Superstar," and "Hair." He is also a songwriter, and has written music for singer Kate Bush. INT. 2: JANE HAMILTON is the author of the new novel, "A Map of the World" (Doubleday) about a Midwestern farm family whose lives are changed irrevocably by one terrible incident. Hamilton's first novel, "The Book of Ruth," won the 1989 PEN/Hemingway Foundation Award for best first novel. REV. : Commentator MILO MILES reviews two new anthologies of music by early bluesman Robert Pete Williams.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A broadcast of a panel held at New York University in April called "Cops and Writers: Crime and Punishment in Literature and Real Life." The panel, sponsored by the PEN American Center and The New York Review of Books, features police officials and writers, including crime writer Walter Mosley, whose novel "Black Betty" is on the bestseller list, and author Joyce Carol Oates. The panel focuses on the fine line between crime fiction and crime reality. The writers talk about the fact that crime novelists generally draw on real criminals and real crimes to create their characters and plot. While these crime novels often seem implausible to readers, they say, what happens in the real world of crime is often even more unbelievable. INT. 2: The broadcast of the PEN crime panel will continue into the second half of the show. REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reiviews Julia Blackburn's new novel "Daisy Bates in the Desert."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist PATRICIA O'BRIEN. She spent twenty years as a reporter for the Chicago Sun Times. In 1988, she worked as Michael Dukakis' press secretary when he ran for president. She now writes novels about women on the inside of Washington power circles. Her latest novel is called "The Ladies Lunch," (Simon and Schuster) about a group of Washington women who meet weekly for lunch, until one of their group, the White House press secretary, dies a violent and mysterious death. INT. 2: Singer/songwriter IRIS DeMEN'T. In her music, which is a combination of country and folk, she mainly uses just her voice and guitar. Her latest album is called "My Life." (Warner Bros. Records). On the album, she draws from her and her family's life experiences growing up in rural Arkansas, and Southern California. Her first album, "Infamous Angel" was released in 1992. Some of the music from it is used in the recent movie, "LIttle Buddha."
Interview with Fawaz Turki; Interview with Allen Sanderson; Review of the album "Juan Reynoso

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FAWAZ TURKI is a Palestinian writer living in exile in the United States. He talks about his youth in Palestine, his relationship with Israeli Jews, and how the conflict in the region radicalized him. Turki later became disillusioned with Palestinian liberation movements. His new book is called "Exile's Return." INT. 2: In light of a potential players' strike, economist ALLEN SANDERSON joins Fresh Air to give a more complete picture of Major League Baseball's financial situation. REV.: World music critic MILO MILES reviews a CD of a neighborhood favorite, Mexican violinist Juan Reynoso.

Interview with Joan Baez; Interview with Levon Helm; Interview with David Crosby and Graham Nash; Review of the film "The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert." August 12, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501920].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Folk singer JOAN BAEZ. A leading figure in the heyday of the Greenwich Village folk scene, BAEZ has continued to use her music in the service of various political causes, including a number of human rights organizations. In 1987, she published an autobiography called "And a Voice to Sing with: A Memoir." (Summit Books) Most recently, BAEZ has performed at the Amnesty International's "Conspiracy of Hope" and "Human Rights Now!" concerts, and has been involved in human rights work for Bosnia. Her latest album, "Play Me Backwards," (Virgin Records) was released in 1992. (Rebroadcast from 1987) INT. 2: Drummer and lead vocalist for the rock group THE BAND, LEVON HELM (pronounced LEE-von). HELM's Arkansas roots gave the Canadian group an American folk sound. In the 1960's THE BAND got it's start backing Bob Dylan. They went on their own in 1968 with "Music From Big Pink." THE BAND's most recent album is called "Jericho." HELM's written a book about THE BAND called "This Wheel's On Fire" (Morrow). THE BAND is playing Woodstock this weekend, and will then continue to tour. (Rebroadcast from November 16, 1993) Int 3: Rock musicians DAVID CROSBY and GRAHAM NASH. They're two thirds of the rock group Crosby, Stills, and Nash. The trio is celebrating their 21st year together with a 70 city concert tour and a new album, called "Live

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SUSAN WALKER is refugee specialist working with Physicians for Human Rights, an organization of health professionals which investigates and tries to prevent violations of international human rights law. She was recently a member of a team that conducted an "early warning" assessment of Burundi, the country which borders Rwanda. The team warns that Burundi may soon face a bloody civil conflict similar to Rwanda's. INT. 2: Composer and saxophonist MANU DIBANGO. He is considered one of the founders of world music. His first album, "Soul Makossa," was a big hit in 1973. His latest album is called "Wakafrika" (Giant Records) and blends traditionally African music with European pop. This album features such artists as Youssou N'Dour, Peter Gabriel and Sinead O'Connor. His new autobiography is "Three Kilos of Coffee" (The University of Chicago Press). REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "True North," (Knopf) a sequel to Jill Kerr Conway's autobiography, "The Road from Coorain."

Interview with James Ellroy; Interview with Maxine Kumin; Review of an album of Muzio Clementi's piano sonatas. August 16, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502048].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Crime writer JAMES ELLROY. He sets his novels in 1950's LA, where he grew up. His series of novels, "LA Quartet," was a bestseller. His latest novel is called "Hollywood Nocturnes." (Otto Penzler Books). When he was ten, his mother was murdered near their LA home. He wrote an article about returning to LA to go through the police files on his mother for this month's issue of "Gentleman's Quarterly" where he is a contributing editor. He'll talk today about how his mother's murder led to his crime writing. INT. 2: Poet and essayist, MAXINE KUMAN. Her latest collection of essays and stories on living on a New Hampshire farm, is called "Women, Animals and Vegetables" (Norton). KUMIN received the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in 1973, and is Poet Laureate of New Hampshire. She has published ten volumes of poetry, as well as collections of stories and essays. REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews "Maria Tipo playing Clementi Piano Sonatas" (EMI Classics).

Interview with Fleet Maull; Interview with Robert Sheets; Review of the television shows "She TV" and "National Lampoon's Attack of the 5 Foot 2 Woman." August 17, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502816].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Prisoner FLEET MAULL. In 1985, he was sentenced to 25 years in prison for drug smuggling. Since then, he has devoted most of his time in prison to working with dying prisoners, and to teaching Buddhist practice and meditation. In 1988, MAULL helped establish the National Prison Hospice Association, which establishes hospices to help dying prisoners prepare for death. MAULL is also a devout Buddhist. After establishing a meditation group in his own prison in Springfield, Missouri, he founded the Prison Dharma Network, for prisoners who want to become involved in Buddhist study and meditation. He is now completing his Ph.D in Psychology. INT. 2: DR. ROBERT SHEETS is the director of the National Hurricane Center near Miami, Florida. The Center keeps a constant watch on tropical disturbances which may turn into hurricanes. He'll talk today about what causes hurricanes, and how people who live in regions with many hurricanes prepare for the storm season. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new comedy shows-- ABC's "She TV," and Showtime's "National Lampoon's Attack of the 5 Foot 2 Women."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. MARK FEINBERG is the director of the Virology Research Laboratory at San Francisco General Hospital and the Associate Director of the UCSF Center for AIDS Research. He just returned from the 10th International Conference on AIDS in Japan. For the past ten years, FEINBERG has been studying how the HIV virus causes AIDS; recently he has focused on people who have had the HIV virus for many years, but have not yet shown AIDS symptoms. INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH DR. MARK FEINBERG continued. REV. : Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Color of Night," starring Bruce Willis.

Interview with Marga Gomez; Interview with Benjamin Cheever; Review of Neil Young and Crazy Horse's album "Sleeps with Angels." August 19, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502875].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: San Francisco standup comic and performance artist MARGA GOMEZ. In "Memory Tricks," Gomez talks about her mother, who worked as an exotic dancer. Her mother now suffers from Alzheimer's disease. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 4/15/93.) GOMEZ is currently performing "Memory Tricks" at the Edinburgh Festival in Scotland. She take the show to Marin, California (Nov. 5 & 6) and to Eugene, Oregon (Nov. 11 & 12). INT. 2: Novelist BENJAMIN CHEEVER. He's the author of two humorous novels; the latest is called "The Partisan" (Atheneum). It follows on the heels of his first novel, "The Plagiarist." Of his first, one reviewer wrote, "Wit and pathos, so finely meshed they become inseparable, buoy the main events in this achingly funny first novel. . . This is a touching, entertaining debut." Ben is the son of the late writer John Cheever. In writing his novels Ben says he finally found his own voice, separate from his father's. Ben is also the editor of "The Letters of John Cheever," published in 1988. (Rebroadcast. Originally broadcast 3/7/94.) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Sleeps with Angels," the latest collaboration between Neil Young and the band Crazy Horse.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: DAVID WHYTE is a poet who uses poetry to teach corporate executives and employees how to find satisfaction in the work place. In his new book, "The Heart Aroused: Poetry and the Preservation of the Soul in Corporate America," (Doubleday) WHYTE looks at the ways people can use their careers not only as a means to earning a living, but as a way of finding personal happiness. WHYTE has served as a consultant for such companies as AT&T and Kodak, teaching his clients how to use poetry and myth to

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. DAVID HILFIKER is a physician who left a rural family practice in Minnesota to treat the urban poor. In his new book, "Not All of Us Are Saints: A Doctor's Journey with the Poor" (Farrar, Strauss and Giroux), he describes his frustration both with "the system" that allows people to live in poverty, and with the patients, who frequently flout his medical advice. HILFIKER's first book, "Healing the Wounds" won the "American Medical Writers Associatin" prize, and was named among the "Best Books of the Year" from the NYT book review. He is Medical Director of Washington's Community of Hope Health Services, and has recently founded a clinic for homeless AIDS patients. INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH DR. DAVID HILFIKER CONTINUED. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews poet Peter Davison's account of the thriving literary scene in 1950s Boston, called "The Fading Smile."

Interview with Etta James; Interview with Martha Reeves. August 24, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502821].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Blues and R&B singer ETTA JAMES. She was a teenager when she was discovered by bandleader/talent scout Johnny Otis, who helped her record her first single, "Dance with Me Henry." Her career took off in the sixties, until she battled a drug addiction at the end of that decade. Although JAMES mostly sang R&B, she has just released "Mystery Lady," (Private Music) on which she covers songs by her favorite jazz singer, Billie Holiday. INT. 2: MARTHA REEVES is the lead singer of Martha and the Vandellas, the Motown group which made it big in the 60's with such hits as "Nowhere to Run," "Heat Wave," and "Dancing in the Street." Her new autobiography "Dancing in the Street: Confessions of a Motown Diva," (Hyperion) is about her career at the height of Motown music's popularity, and about her conflicts with other Motown singers and managers.

---

Interview with Adrienne Gemaine; Review of the television show "My So-Called Life"; Interview with Michael Hudson; Review of four albums of Soukous music. August 25, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502615].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ADRIENNE GERMAIN is Vice President for the International Women's Health Coalition, which works to improve women's reproductive health care and rights in Asia, Africa, and Latin America. She will serve as one of the delegates to next month's U.N. International Conference on Population and development in Cairo. She is also co-author of "Population Policies Reconsidered" (Harvard University Press), about channelling efforts to control the population not only through fertility programs, but also by offering broad-spectrum health care to women. ARTS REVIEW 1: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews ABC's new drama, "My So-Called Life," by the producers of "thirtysomething." This series premieres tonight. INT. 2: MICHAEL (MIKE) HUDSON is a contributing editor for "Southern Exposure," a public policy magazine. This past fall, HUDSON wrote a series of stories on the "poverty industry"-- how pawn shops, finance companies, and rent-to-own stores charge high interest rates, sometimes as high as 35%, to people who can almost never pay them back. His articles placed "Southern Exposure" as a finalist for this year's National Magazine Award for Public Interest reporting. REV. : World Music Critic MILO MILES talks about Soukous music...it's a popular style of guitar music from Zaire. He reviews four recently released Soukous albums.

---

Interview with Allen Toussaint; Interview with Vernel Baneris and Morten Gunnar Larson; Review of the film "Natural Born Killers." August 26, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502872].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New Orleans songwriter, pianist and singer ALLEN TOUSSAINT. Toussaint has worked in different capacities-- as wither a session pianist, producer, or songwriter, with such artists as Paul Simon, Ringo Starr, and Elvis Costello. This year, Toussaint recorded "The Ultimate Session" with the New Orleans group Crescent City Gold, and "Rhythm Country and Blues," which received a Grammy Nomination. Currently, Toussaint is currently working on a project with songwriter/guitarist Michelle Shocked. (REBROADCAST FROM 1/6/88) INT. 2: A concert with playwright VERNEL BAGNERIS (ver-NEL BAHN-er-eese), pianist MORTEN GUNNAR LARSEN. BAGNERIS has just rewritten his and LARSEN's 1992 nightclub revue "Jelly Roll Morton: A Me-morial," and expanded it into an Off-Broadway musical, called "Jelly Roll!" The show is about the legendary New Orleans pianist and composer Jelly Roll Morton, who boasted that he was the inventor of jazz. BAGNERIS also wrote, directed, and performed in the off-Broadway shows "One Mo'Time," and it's sequel, "Further Mo'." He also wrote the musical fable "Staggerlee," with Allen Toussaint. (CONCERT REBROADCAST FROM 11/12/92) REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Natural Born Killers," starring Woody Harrelson and Juliette Lewis.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author ROBB FORMAN DEW. In her novels--"Dale Loves Sophie to Death" (Harper Perennial) and "Fortunate Lives" (Harper Perennial)--DEW explored the ambiguities and intricacies of families. So she thought she understood the complexities of family love. But then her son informed her he is gay. DEW has written a new memoir about her son's coming out and the family evolution that followed. It's her non-fiction debut and it's called "The Family Heart" (Addison-Wesley). (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 5/12/94.) INT. 2: CHRISTOPHER BUCKLEY has just written a new political satire, "Thank you for Smoking" (Random House), which pokes fun at everything and everyone associated with the tobacco industry--from anti-smoking advocates to tobacco company executives. BUCKLEY was George Bush's speechwriter from 1981-1983 when Bush served as Vice President. The son of William F. Buckley, he is the author of other political and social satires, including "The White House Mess" and "Wet Work." He is the editor of "Forbes FYI" magazine. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 6/29/94.)
Interview with Sherwin Nuland; Interview with David Sedaris; Review of Richard Holmes's book "Doctor Johnson and Mr. Savage." August 30, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502613].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. SHERWIN NULAND is a surgeon, and he also teaches surgery and the history of medicine at Yale. In his recent book, "How We Die: Reflections on Life's Final Chapter" (Knopf), he writes that few of us have an understanding of the way people die because 80 percent of Americans die in the hospital, and, for the most part their deaths are concealed. NULAND's new book is an attempt to de-mythologize the process of dying and he presents death in its biological and clinical reality. Oliver Sacks writes of the book, "A series of portraits or analyses, as powerful and sensitive, and unspiring and unsentimental, as anything I have ever read." (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 2/14/94) INT. 2: Playwright, NPR commentator, housecleaner and former elf to Santa, DAVID SEDARIS. He launched his radio commentator career with his "SantaLand Diaries," broadcast during NPR's "Morning Edition" in 1992. His humor has been described as a "caustic mix of J. D. Salinger and John Waters." Along with his sister, Amy Sedaris, he wrote the play "Stitches," which was described as a "macabre and hilarious social satire." Now he's making his literary debut, with a new collection of stories and essays, "Barrel Fever." (Little, Brown and Company) (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 6/2/94) REV.: Maureen Corrigan reviews Doctor Johnson and Mr. Savage, by Richard Holmes (Pantheon)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Writer MIKAL GILMORE, youngest brother of executed killer Gary Gilmore. Gilmore's 1977 death --at his own request-- by firing squad in Utah, was the first American execution in ten years. Brother MIKAL finds seeds of his brother's two murders sown far back in Gilmore family history, and its Mormon roots. When asked why he writes a memoir twenty years after the events many Americans remember from Norman Mailer's book "Executioner's Song", GILMORE says, "I'm writing about it now because for many years I tried to live my life as if I wasn't a member of the same family. I put a good deal of distance between myself and other people in my family, and between myself and the history of my family."
Recapturing that history is the aim of his new memoir, "Shot in the Heart" (Doubleday). (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 5/25/94)

Interview with Sam Chwat; Interview with Nathan Lane; Review of the film "Fresh." September 1, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502123].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Speech Therapist SAM CHWAT. Chwat's "New York Speech Improvement Services" attracts 200 to 250 clients a week. He taught Robert DeNiro how to gain an Appalachian accent for his role in "Cape Fear." Julia Roberts sought him out to relearn her southern drawl for "Steel Magnolias." He helped another southerner, Andie McDowell, after her lines for "Greystoke: The Legend of Tarzan" were dubbed by Glenn Close. In addition to the stars, Chwat assists people in business, politics, and communications to lose their accents and or to learn Standard American English. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 6/27/94.) INT. 2: Actor NATHAN LANE. He's currently starring in the new Neil Simon comedy on stage, "Laughter on the 23rd Floor." He played Nathan Detroit in the Broadway revival of "Guys and Dolls." Playwright Terrance McNally has written roles for LANE and says, "I need an actor like Nathan to fully express myself. I can't do it with just the words. I need his faces and gestures to finish the sentence." LANE starred in McNally's "The Lisbon Traviata," and in "Lips Together, Teeth Apart." He also was in the films "Frankie and Johnny," (as Michelle Pfeiffer's neighbor -- a part McNally wrote for him), in "Life with Mikey," (co-starring with Michael J. Fox), and has a cameo in "Adams Family Values." (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 1/3/94.) REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Fresh."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer, Songwriter, guitarist FREEDY JOHNSTON. (yes, it's "Freedy") He has five albums to his credit. His latest album is called "This Perfect World." His previous albums have garnered him much acclaim among music critics. One critic wrote, "the strongest album by a new male singer-songwriter in at least a decade." What's he sound like? His songs have been described as "post-punk honky-tonk. . . performed by a lonely, heartbroken wiseass." (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 6/30/93.) INT. 2: Writer and former filmmaker GRETEL EHRLICH is the author of "The Solace of Open Spaces," a collection of essays about life on Wyoming's high plains. It was while walking on the Wyoming plains that EHRLICH was struck by lightning. The force of it threw her forty feet, severely damaged part of her nervous system, and sent her into a "solitary limbo." EHRLICH returned to her parents' home for medical treatment and began trying to understand what happened to her. She found explanations in medical books and in The Tibetan Book of the Dead, which described a wandering state between life and death, confusion and enlightenment. EHRLICH's new book is "A Match to the Heart." (Pantheon) (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 6/8/94.) REV.: KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new box set of jazz pianist and big band leader Fletcher Henderson.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A STEREO Concert and interview with singer/songwriter and musician DAVE ALVIN. He's best known for his guitar "firepower" with the Blasters (for which he was also primary composer and songwriter). He also had a short stint with the band X. ALVIN went solo a few years ago, and began honing his voice. He's just released his third solo album -- his first acoustic one -- "King of California" (HighTone Records). One reviewer wrote of ALVIN that he's "one of the few artists capable of drawing on the spirits of both Woody Guthrie and Johnny 'Guitar' Watson for a populist vision of storytelling in a bluesy setting." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 6/22/94.)

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: COLIN ESCOTT talks about his new book, "Hank Williams, The Biography"(Little Brown.) He's also the author of "Good Rockin' Tonight: Sun Records & The Birth of Rock & Roll", and he produced and annotated the CD Collection "Hank Williams: The Original Singles Collection...Plus" (a1990 Polygram Records release). INT. 2: EVAN MCKENZIE is the author of "Privatopia: Homeowner Associations and the Rise of Residential Private Government", (Yale University Press.) He is an assistant professor of political science at Albright College in Reading, Pa, and has represented homeowner associations as an attorney in California.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JUAN GARCIA ESQUIVEL produced innovative recordings of pop music in the fifties and sixties. His work has been re-issued on CD. It's called "ESQUIVEL!: SPACE AGE BACHELOR PAD MUSIC" (Bar/None). Terry Gross also speaks with IRWIN CHUSID, the producer of "ESQUIVEL!", and YVONNE DE BOURBON, one of Esquivel's ex-wives, and a former performer in his live show. INT. 2: ROBERT EVANS is an actor and producer of such films as "The Odd Couple", "Love Story", "Chinatown" and "The Godfather." His new memoir is called "The Kid Stays in the Picture." (Hyperion) REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new re-issue by the little-known jazz organist BABY FACE WILLETTE called "STOP AND LISTEN" (BLUE NOTE).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychiatrist and novelist RODERICK ANSCOMBE. He oversees a psychiatric ward at a hospital outside of Boston, and has written a new novel that retells the dracula myth, "The Secret Life of Laszlo Count Dracula," (Hyperion). Anscombe says he wanted to "humanize" Dracula, making him more a man than a monster. In writing the book, ANSCOMBE drew on his previous experience working with the criminally insane. INT. 2: Singer/guitarist BOB MOULD. In the 1980's, he pioneered "alternative rock" with the band "Husker Du," making "angry, self-hating music." MOULD went solo for a while after the band fell apart. Now he's with the band "Sugar" and they've released their third album, "File Under: Easy Listening." (Ryko). One reviewer writes of the new release that it "shows Mould near the peak of his power-pop form and harbors a few prominently catchy songs." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE ATC PROMO).

---

Interview with Madeline Cartwright; Review of the fall television season; Interview with Mary Previte; Review of the film "A Good Man in Africa." September 9, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502361].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Elementary school principal MADELINE CARTWRIGHT took over the run-down Blaine Elementary School in a run-down, drug-infested neighborhood in North Philadelphia and turned it into a school that works. One of her first acts when she took over the school was to get down on her hands and knees and scrub the foul-smelling children's bathroom. CARTWRIGHT got parents involved in the school, made it a safe place for the children to learn, brought up test scores and attendance, and became the subject of a a 1990 New York Times Magazine cover story: "Hope in Hell's Classroom." Now she's written her own story of Blaine Elementary School: "For the Children: Lessons from a Visionary Principal." (Doubleday). (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 9/7/93.) REV. : (1) T-V critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the Fall lineup INT. 2: Mary Previte, superintendent of the Camden County (NJ) Youth Center. Previte, the great granddaughter of missionary pioneer Hudson Taylor, grew up in China with her missionary parents. During World War II, she and her fellow students and teachers spent three years in a Japanese concentration camp. Previte credits the structure her teachers' created with making the horrific experience bearable. For the past twenty years, Previte has run the youth center, a holding center for boys and girls charged with serious crimes. She has applied the lessons of her teachers to the center, creating a place of structure and security for children used to violent, chaotic lives. Her new book, "Hungry Ghosts" (Zondervan), relates her experience as head of this acclaimed youth center and her own life story. (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 5/31/94) REV. : (2) Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "A Good Man in Africa."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JILL KER CONWAY. CONWAY grew up in a remote sheep station in the Australian outback, and later became the president of Smith College. Her girlhood memoir, "The Road from Coorain," was a bestseller, but it ended as CONWAY entered adulthood. In her new book, "True North," (Knopf) she continues her story, writing about organizing for women's rights on campus, and creating a marriage in which she and her husband are equal partners. CONWAY was the first female vice president of The University of Toronto, and from 1975 to 1985 was the president of Smith. Since then, she has been a visiting scholar and professor at M.I.T.'s Program in Science, Technology and Society. INT. 2: JONATHAN MANN, M.D. talks about the connection between health and human rights. MANN is the director and one of the founders of the Francois-Xavier Bagnoud ("Fran-SWAH ZA-vree-yay bahn-YOU") Center For Health and Human Rights at the Harvard School of Public Health. He was the founding director of the World Health Organization's Global AIDS Program from 1986-1990. It was during his work with AIDS that he first noticed the connection between health and human rights. The Bagnoud Center is holding its first international conference on Health and Human Rights from September 22 to 24, 1994, at Harvard University. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel, "Shelter" by Jayne Anne Phillips.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Legal journalist STEPHEN ADLER. He is legal affairs editor of "The Wall Street Journal." And he's written a new book about what's wrong with the jury system and how it can be fixed: "The Jury: Trial and Error in the American Courtroom," (Times Books/Random House). ADLER looks at the history of the jury system and how our attitudes about juries have changed over the years. ADLER blames poor jury selection, shrewd and savvy lawyers, and judges who don't explain the legal issues well enough to jurors. INT. 2: ADLER interview continued. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new recording of Charles Mingus's infamous New York Town Hall concert from October 12, 1962. It's the first time a complete recording of the concert has been available. "Charles Mingus: The Complete Town Hall Concert," (Blue Note).

Interview with Steve Lopez; Interview with Sara Lawrence-Lightfoot; Review of the album "Brain, Kell, Goossens Play Schumann & Beethoven." September 15, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502120].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist for the Philadelphia Inquirer STEVE LOPEZ. He's just written his first novel, "Third and Indiana" (Viking) about life in Philadelphia's "Badlands." The origin of the story is a two-paragraph item LOPEZ read in the paper about a 14 year-old boy shot and killed on a drug corner in North Philadelphia. LOPEZ was disturbed by the casualness and brevity of the report. Terry talks with LOPEZ about his new book, and about his popular columns. LOPEZ was last on Fresh Air when he talked about the hate mail he'd received for his columns about the Gulf War. INT. 2: Sociologist SARA LAWRENCE-LIGHTFOOT has written a new book about the Black middle class, "I've Known Rivers: Lives of Loss and Liberation" (Addison-Wesley Publishing). In the book she follows the lives of six people who are at midlife and in the black middle class, reflecting on the "necessary losses" for the price of privilege. Her book was written, in part, as a response to the 1957 book "Black Bourgeoisie" by the black sociologist Franklin Frazier. LAWRENCE-LIGHTFOOT took issue with Frazier's portrait of middle class blacks as materialistic assimilationists, repressed and disconnected from the larger black community. LIGHTFOOT is herself the product of the Black middle class. Her mother is a child psychoanalyst and was the subject of LIGHTFOOT's 1984 book, "Balm in Gilead: Journey of a Healer." LIGHTFOOT teaches at Harvard and was a recipient of a MacArthur Prize Award. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Brian/Kell/Goossens Play Schumann & Beethoven." (Testament label: distributed by Allegro 1-800-288-2007).
Interview with Samuel L. Jackson; Review of the television show "Baseball"; Interview with John Turturro; Review of the film "Quiz Show." September 16, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501984].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor SAMUEL JACKSON. JACKSON won critical raves for his portrayal of a crack addict named Gator in the Spike Lee film, "Jungle Fever." That role was a breakthrough for Jackson after 20 years of bit parts, commercials, and all types of theater. He also put in two years as Bill Cosby's stand-in on The Cosby Show. Jackson currently appears in the new film "Fresh", and in perhaps this fall's most anticipated release, "Pulp Fiction." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/19/91) REV. TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews producer KEN BURNS new nine-part documentary series, "BASEBALL." INT. 2: Actor JOHN TURTURRO. He co-starred in Spike Lee's film, "Do the Right Thing." He's a favorite of the Coen brothers, who wrote parts specifically for him: he was Bernie the Schmatta in "Miller's Crossing," and the writer Barton Fink in the movie of the same name. He wrote, directed, and starred in the movie, "Mac," based on his father. He's currently co-starring in the new movie "Quiz Show." (REBROADCAST from 2/17/93) REV. : Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new Robert Redford film "QUIZ SHOW."

Interview with James Carville and Mary Matalin; Interview with Mark Danner. September 19, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501988].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAMES CARVILLE was President Clinton's chief strategist in the 1992 election. MARY MATALIN was a top political aide to George Bush. They dated during the campaign and are now married. They've just written a book together, "All's Fair: Love, War, and Running for President," (Random House/ Simon & Schuster) that tells the story of their romance and the campaigns. INT. 2: Journalist MARK DANNER has reported from Haiti for "The New Yorker" since 1986. He's been working on a book about Haiti for the last year and spent most of August there. He's in Port-au-Prince and he talks about what is happening there now.
Interview with Peggy Orenstein; Interview with Alan Zweibel; Review of Luscious Jackson's album "Natural Ingredients." September 20, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502119].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In 1990, an American Association of American Women survey found that the self-esteem of young girls plummets during adolescence. A year later, journalist PEGGY ORENSTEIN was commissioned to do a follow-up study to this survey, which resulted in her new book, "SchoolGirls: Young Women, Self-Esteem, and the Confidence Gap" (Doubleday). ORENSTEIN talked to girls in two junior high schools, and examined some of the factors that influenced their feelings about themselves, including schooling, family, and class. INT. 2: Comedy writer ALAN ZWEIBEL discusses his 14 year friendship with Gilda Radner. They met working on the original Saturday Night Live and teamed up to create such memorable characters as Roseanne Roseannadanna and Emily Litella. ZWEIBEL has written a new memoir about their friendship, called "Bunny Bunny: Gilda Radner: A Sort of Love Story" (Villard Books). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Natural Ingredients"(Grand Royal). It's the first full-length collection by Lucious Jackson, a four-woman band from lower Manhattan, whose drummer was the original drummer for the Beastie Boys.

Interview with Anne Perry; Interview with John Lucas; Review of Anna Quindlen's novel "One True Thing." September 21, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502118].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British mystery writer ANNE PERRY is the author of 19 crime novels based in Victorian England. It was recently discovered that forty years ago, PERRY took part in a murder. She was 15 and on medication for an illness she had at the time. She went to jail for five and a half years. Her newly released 20th book, "The Sins of the Wolf" (Fawcett Columbine), is about a nurse imprisoned for a crime she didn't commit. INT. 2: Basketball player JOHN LUCAS was the number one draft pick for the NBA in 1976, before his career went downhill as a result of drug use. He conquered his drug addiction and started a recovery program for other drug-addicted athletes. He coached the San Antonio Spurs to the playoffs twice, and is now the head coach, general manager, and vice president of the Philadelphia 76ers. LUCAS has just written a memoir, "Winning a Day at a Time" (Hazelden). REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "One True Thing" (Random House), by Anna Quindlen. This is Quindlen's second novel, which coincides with her announcement that she's going to give up her editorial page column and become a full-time novelist.

Interview with Nicholas Kristof and Sheryl WuDunn; Interview with Orville Shchell; Review of the television shows "Madman of the People" and "The Martin Short Show." September 22, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502570].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalists NICHOLAS KRISTOF and SHERYL WUDUNN were Beijing correspondents of "The New York Times" from 1988 to 1993. They won a Pulitzer Prize for their reporting of the Tiananmen Square massacre in 1989. They have just written a book, "China Wakes: The Struggle for the Soul of a Rising Power" (Times Books). It explores the contradiction in China of a booming economy paired with terrible human rights abuses, as China struggles to be a new world power. INT. 2: China scholar ORVILLE SChELL has written nine books about China, as well as contributing to magazines and television. His latest book, "Mandate of Heaven: A New Generation of Entrepreneurs, Dissidents, Bohemians, and Technocrats Lays Claim to China's Future" (Simon & Schuster). This latest work examines the Tiananmen Square massacre and looks at how the younger generation will come to power. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new shows "Madman of the People," with Dabney Coleman and "The Martin Short Show."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer BARBARA LEA with a musical tribute to Cole Porter. She had her start singing in the 1950s in Boston and then moved to New York where she recorded her first album in 1955 to critical acclaim. She's been compared to the late Lee Wiley. Her other influences are Mildred Bailey and Billie Holiday. She dropped out of singing for a while but made a comeback during the 70s in New York's cabaret world. LEA is accompanied by pianist TONY TAMBURELLO. He was Sinatra's rehearsal pianist, and he was on the road accompanying Tony Bennett for 21 years. (REBROADCAST FROM 6/07/91)

INT. 2: Leonard Feather, one of the world's most prominent jazz critics died of pneumonia, yesterday at the age of 80. Jazz critic Francis Davis once wrote of him, No other critic has fought the good fight longer, on as many fronts, or communicated the joys of jazz to as many generations of readers. Leonard Feather grew up in England and moved to America in 1940. Feather's LA Times column was syndicated around the world. His most important writing was his encyclopedia of jazz, an essential reference work of musician bios. He had spent his final months editing a new edition, which is scheduled for publication next year. Feather also produced about 200 recording sessions, composed for many of the musicians he worked with, and even played piano on some of their sessions. Throughout his career he campaigned on behalf of women in jazz, and worked for racial equality in field. (REBROADCAST FROM 7/24/87)

REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "The New Age," starring Judy Davis and Peter Weller. The film is directed by Michael Tolkin, author of "The Player."

Interview with Lucy Grealy; Interview with Marianne Faithfull; Review of Eric Clapton's album "From the Cradle." September 26, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501982].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: As a child, LUCY GREALY spent five years being treated for cancer, which left her face disfigured. She has since had over thirty reconstructive procedures and years of living with a distorted self-image. She's just written "Autobiography of a Face" (Houghton Mifflin Company), her memoir about coming to terms with looking less than perfect in a society that values female beauty. INT. 2: Singer MARIANNE FAITHFULL got her start in the English music scene of 1964, when she dated Mick Jagger and had the hit song, "As Tears Go By." In the following years she had a drug addiction that almost killed her, before recovering in 1985 and releasing new albums. Her memoir, "Faithfull: An Autobiography" (Little Brown), tells her story of highs and lows with music and drugs. REV.: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Eric Clapton's new release, "From the Cradle."
Interview with Grant Tinker; Interview with Patrice Gaines. September 27, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502115].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Television executive GRANT TINKER has written a memoir about his life in TV. "Tinker in Television: From General Sarnoff to General Electric" (Simon & Schuster). TINKER was co-founder of the production company MTM Enterprises with his then wife Mary Tyler Moore. He left MTM at the peak of its success to become the chairman of NBC, and made it the top-rated network, with shows like "Cheers," "The COsby Show," and "St. Elsewhere." INT. 2: Reporter PATRICE GAINES was a teen-age mother with a drug rap when she spent the summer of 1970 in jail. She is now a regular reporter for the "Washington Post," and has written a book about how she turned her life around. It's called "Laughing in the Dark: From Colored Girl to Woman of Color-A Journey from Prison to Power" (Crown Publishers). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE ATC PROMO) REV. : Interview with PATRICE GAINES continued.

Interview with Corey Sandler; Review of Bad Religion's album "Stranger Than Fiction"; Interview with Mahnaz Afkhami; Review of Philip Roth's novel "Portnoy's Complaint." September 28, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501753].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Computer viruses are computer users' worst nightmare, but a mystery to many of us. Computer expert COREY SANDLER has written an easy-to understand article about viruses in the September issue of "PC Computing." In the article, SANDLER explains how viruses work and talks to virogens, the writers of virus programs. REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "Stranger Than Fiction." It's the new album from Bad Religion. INT. 2: Author and activist MAHNAZ AFKHAMI lobbied for many years for women's rights in her native Iran. For the past fifteen years, she has been in exile from her country for this work. In coming to terms with her exile in the United States, she talked with other women in exile from all over the world. Twelve of these women's stories are recorded in her new book, "Women in Exile" (University Press of Virginia). REV. 2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the 25th anniversary edition of "Portnoy's Complaint" by Philip Roth.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Editor, author, and Jewish theologian MICHAEL LERNER is founder and editor of "Tikkun" magazine, a bimonthly Jewish critique of politics, culture, and society. In his new book, "Jewish Renewal: A Path to Healing and Transformation" (G.P. Putnam's Sons), LERNER presents a new interpretation of Jewish texts and history, and a new approach to God and prayer. INT. 2: Activist and preacher JIM WALLIS is the editor of "Sojourners" magazine, and the author of the new book, "The Soul of Politics" (The New Press/Orbis Books). In his book, he asserts that "the world isn't working," and neither the liberal left or the conservative right know how to fix it. WALLIS says the solution will come from a new morality that combines social justice and personal responsibility. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Vivaldi: 6 Cello Sonatas," by Pieter Wispelwey and Florilegium (Channel Classics).

Interview with Terry Jones, Interview with Michael Palin; Interview with John Cleese; Interview with Graham Chapman; Review of the film "The River Wild." September 30, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501944].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: It's the 25th anniversary of British broadcast debut of "Monty Python's Flying Circus." Therefore, we feature archive interviews with four members of the troupe:TERRY JONES, a member of the comedy troupe Monty Python. JONES did much of the writing for the troupe. He directed most of their movies, often appearing as one of the Python women. JONES now writes children's books in England. He's been involved with two recent films, "Nuns on the Run," and "Splitting Heirs." (REBROADCAST FROM 11/13/87) INT. 2: Actor, comedian, filmmaker, and author MICHAEL PALIN. In the fall of 1988, PALIN recreated the journey Jules Verne described in "Around the World in 80 Days." PALIN turned his journey into a very successful 8-part TV BBC series. He is of course also known for his tenure as a member of Monty Python's Flying Circus and his appearances in "The Missionary" and "A Fish Called Wanda." (REBROADCAST FROM 4/17/90) INT. 3: Actor, writer, and Monty Python member JOHN CLEESE. Post-Python, CLEESE is best known for "Fawlty Towers," and a number of movies, including his 1988 comedy, "A Fish Called Wanda." He's also written a book called "Families and How to Survive Them" with therapist Robyn Skinner, and he makes training films for corporations. (REBROADCAST FROM 6/22/90) INT. 4: Comic GRAHMAN CHAPMAN. He was the straight man in the Monty Python troupe who would come in and break up the skits. A physician by training, he was a writer and activist for gay rights. He died in 1989. (REBROADCAST FROM 7/2/87) REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new adventure movie, "The River Wild." It stars Meryl Streep and Kevin Bacon.

---

Interview with Tim Weiner; Interview with Greg Sarris; Commentary on satellite television.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Congress has decided to conduct a study of the role of the Central Intelligence Agency in the post-Cold War world. The agency suffered a shake-up following the discovery of the double agent Aldrich Ames. Pulitzer Prize winner TIM WEINER writes about the CIA for "The New York Times." He talks with Terry Gross today about what changes may take place in the agency as a result of the investigation. INT. 2: English professor and author GREG SARRIS is part American Indian, Filipino, and Jewish, and was raised in both Indian and white families. He has just written two books related to his experiences growing up. "Grand Avenue" (Hyperion) is a collection of short stories about whites and Native Americans tied by a common ancestor; "Mabel McKay: Weaving the Dream" (University of California Press) is a biography of SARRIS' aunt, a world-renowned basket weaver. SARRIS teaches at UCLA. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI has just gotten a satellite dish. He reflects on seeing network feeds of programs before they're actually aired.

---

Interview with Peter Guralnick; Commentary on broadcasters' pronunciation of foreign words.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author PETER GURALNICK has written the first of a two part biography of Elvis Presley, retelling the story of the King's childhood "soberly, thoroughly and unsensationally" (says the ALA Booklist). "Last Train to Memphis: The Rise of Elvis Presley" (Little Brown) tells much of the story through quotes both from Elvis and people who knew him then. It attempts to portray Elvis' human side, rather than the mythical figure he has become. INT. 2: Interview with PETER GURALNICK continues. REV.: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG reflects on pronunciation of foreign words by broadcasters.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In 1989, there was a small outbreak of an extremely contagious virus, the Ebola virus, in a lab in Reston, Virginia. The army was brought in to stop the spread of the disease. The disease essentially causes its victims to bleed to death. RICHARD PRESTON has written a new book about the incident, "The Hot Zone" (Random House). INT. 2: Israeli author DAVID GROSSMAN has just written his third novel, "The Book of Intimate Grammar" (Farrar, Straus, Giroux). It tells the story of a young Israeli boy struggling with his family and the world he lives in. GROSSMAN's hero has been compared to Huck Finn and Holden Caulfield, as a boy fighting against growing up. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new recording of the work of composer Elliot Carter.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DAVID PAYMER received an Oscar nomination for his role in "Mr. Saturday Night." He's now starring in the new movie "Quiz Show." He plays Dan Enright, the villain producer who rigs the show "Twenty-One." REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Monster," the new release by R.E.M. (Warner Brothers). INT. 2: Former Cardinals' pitcher BOB GIBSON was a record-breaking baseball player in the 1960's, and was inducted into the baseball Hall of Fame in 1981. He's just written his autobiography, which explores his rise from the Omaha projects to the major leagues, and being an early black ballplayer. The book is "Stranger to the Game" (Viking). REV. 2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Western Canon: The Books and School of the Modern Age" by Harold Bloom (Harcourt Brace).

Interview with Michael Baden; Interview with Morgan Freeman; Review of the film "Ed Wood." October 7, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501756].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Medical Examiner and "detective of death", MICHEAL BADEN, the former Chief Medical Examiner of New York City. BADEN argues that there is a national crisis in forensic medicine. He writes that the search for scientific truth is often sullied by the pressures of expediency and politics. His new book is "Unnatural Death: Confessions of a Medical Examiner" (Ivy Books). (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/12/94) DR. BADEN is now working on O.J. Simpson's defense team. INT. 2: Actor MORGAN FREEMAN. He's one of stage and screen's most acclaimed actors, for his ability to emerse himself in different roles. He's originated the role of the chauffeur in the Broadway production of "Driving Miss Daisy." Later he revived the role in the movie version, for which he was nominated for an Academy Award. FREEMAN's other movies include, "Glory," "Clean and Sober," "Lean on Me," and "The Bonfire of the Vanities." FREEMAN made his directing debut with the film, "Bopha," based on a South African play. Now he's starring in the new film, "The Shawshank Redemption." (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 9/20/93) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film, "Ed Wood," starring Johnny Depp.

Interview with Bootsy Collins; Interview with Linda Gray Sexton; Commentary on electronic dictionaries. October 10, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501858].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician BOOTSY COLLINS got his start with James Brown, where he "defined the finger-popping funk bass style" (Rolling Stone). He went on to work with George Clinton as part of the Parliament-Funkadelic tribe, before forming Bootsy's Rubber Band. On stage, he created alter egos, including Bootzilla, Boot-Tron, and King of the Geepies. He's put out more than 30 albums, and has just released "Blasters of the Universe" (Rykodisc), with a new band. INT. 2: Author LINDA GRAY SEXTON has just written "Searching for Mercy Street: My Journey Back to My Mother, Anne Sexton" (Little, Brown), her seventh book. She spent a long time coming to terms with her relationship with her mother, who committed suicide in 1974. REV.: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG tells us about his hand held electronic dictionary.

Interview with John Gagnon; Review of the television show "NYPD Blue." October 11, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501943].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Sociology professor JOHN GAGNON co-authored the new book "Sex in America: A Definitive Survey" (Little, Brown). This two year study overturns common beliefs about sexual practices in America, and finds that "the public image of sex in America bears virtually no relationship to the truth." GAGNON claims that this study is more representative of the population because they used a scientifically selected group, instead of a random sample. INT. 2: JOHN GAGNON interview continues. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the season premiere of "NYPD Blue."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist TIM O'BRIEN has been called "one of our most eloquent writers about Vietnam" (Playboy). "In the Lake of the Woods" (Houghton Mifflin / Seymour Lawrence) is his new novel about a man whose involvement in the war is much like O'BRIEN's. The character was at the My Lai massacre, as was O'BRIEN, and they shared a need to be accepted which drove many of their actions in the war. INT. 2: Walter Winchell was the man who legitimized gossip columns, tabloid news, and celebrity watching. He rose from a poor New York family to become one of the most read columnists, and eventually consulted with F.D.R. and Joe McCarthy. Writer NEAL GABLER has written a biography about Winchell. "Winchell: Gossip, Power, and the Culture of Celebrity" (Alfred A. Knopf Inc.) helps explain the man who was the source of our current celebrity-obsessed culture.
Interview with Fred Halliday; Interview with Doris Grumbach; Review of Liz Phair's album "Whip-Smart." October 13, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502644].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and professor FRED HALLIDAY. He's a professor of International Relations at the London School of Economics, and has written extensively on the Cold War and the Third World for "The Nation," and "The Middle East Report." He also writes for the British newspaper, "The Guardian." He'll talk about the possible threat of another military showdown in Iraq. INT. 2: Author DORIS GRUMBACH has written a second memoir, which picks up where her first, "Coming into the End Zone," left off. "Extra Innings: A Memoir" (W.W. Norton) begins with her feelings about the release of the first memoir, and chronicles her life in Maine, her travels, and coming to terms with mortality. GRUMBACH is a book reviewer for National Public Radio, and was literary editor for "The New Republic." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER has a review of "Whip-Smart" (Matador Records), the new album by Liz Phair.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and Theater Director, W. H. MACY. A member of Playwright David Mamet's circle of theater innovators, Macy recently starred in Mamet's play "Oleanna", and was featured in his film "Homocide". They co-founded the Atlantic Theater Company, an ensemble which performs mainly original works by American writers. Members of the company wrote "A Practical Handbook For The Actor", (Vintage Books) from notes taken during acting workshops led by Mr. Macy. One critic writes that the ensemble "has rescued theater from the mindless". Actor NEIL PEPE joins the first part of the conversation (REBROADCAST from 5/28/93) INT. 2: Actor JOE MANTEGNA. Mantegna plays a tough cop investigating a murder in the new David Mamet film, "Homicide." Mantegna's worked with Mamet many times before, starring in his movie, "House of Games," and in the Mamet play, "Glengarry, Glen Ross." (REBROADCAST from 11/5/91) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Pulp Fiction."
Interview with David Mamet; Commentary on Louis Jordan; Interview with Daniel Schorr; Review of the anthology album "Duende." October 17, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502232].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Lauren Bacall; Commentary on Stu Sutcliff; interview with Robbie Robertson; Review of Laurie Moore's novel "Who Will Run the Frog Hospital?." October 18, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503076].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress LAUREN BACALL is a legend, though she doesn't like to think of herself as such. She's been a star of stage and screen for fifty years, was married to Humphrey Bogart, and won the National Book Award for her 1978 autobiography "By Myself." Her new book, "Now" (Alfred A. Knopf Inc.), tells the story of her last fifteen years and the experiences that have shaped her life. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD reflects on Stu Sutcliff, an original member of the Beatles. INT. 2: Musician ROBBIE ROBERTSON was a guitarist and songwriter for The Band until their break-up in 1976. Since then, he has put out solo albums and done film soundtracks for director Martin Scorsese. His newest work is "The Native Americans" (Capitol), inspired by his Native American heritage. REV. 2: ARTS REVIEW TWO: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Lorrie Moore's new novel, "Who Will Run the Frog Hospital?" (Knopf)

Interview with Wallace Shawn and Andre Gregory; Commentary on the Million Dollar Quartet recording session; Interview with John Dominic Crossan; Review of Johnny Hartman's album "The Voice That Is!" October 19, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502646].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright and actor WALLACE SHAWN and director/actor ANDRE GREGORY co-wrote and co-starred in the 1981 film, "My Dinner with Andre." They have since both worked on many other projects individually in television, theater, and film. They have now collaborated again in "Vanya on 42nd Street," (Sony Pictures) a film adaptation of Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya." REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD talks about the Million Dollar Quartet session released on RCA several years ago. The recording is of Elvis Presley, Carl Perkins, Jerry Lee Lewis and others playing in the Sun Records studios in 1956. INT. 2: Professor JOHN DOMINIC CROSSAN. A native of Ireland, ordained as a priest in the U.S. (he left the Priesthood in 1969), CROSSAN now teaches biblical studies at DePaul University. CROSSAN is a founding member of the Jesus Seminar, a group of scholars who meet to determine the authenticity of Jesus' sayings in the Gospels. Earlier this year, CROSSAN wrote "Jesus: A Revolutionary Biography" (HarperCollins) which seeks to place Jesus in the context of his Jewish, Mediterranean and peasant roots; to see him as a Socratic philosopher and radical egalitarian. (REBROADCAST from 3/30/94) REV. 2: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a reissue of "The Voice That Is!" (Impulse!), by baritone singer Johnny Hartman.
Interview with Laurie Garrett; Commentary on music from the Vietnam War era; Interview with Laurie Garrett; Review of Hrant Kenkulian's album "Udi Hrant." October 20, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502640].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer LAURIE GARRETT has been a science reporter for NPR, New York "Newsday," "Omni," and other publications. GARRETT is also the author of the new book, "The Coming Plague: Newly Emerging Diseases in a World Out of Balance" (Farrar, Straus, Giroux). The book explores the emergence of new infectious viruses like AIDS and Ebola, and the new strains of known diseases that are resistant to many treatments. GARRETT examines the conditions that favor the spread of these microbes and looks at possible solutions to stop the diseases. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD explores some of the lesser known music from the Vietnam War era. INT. 2: Interview with LAURIE GARRETT continues. REV. 2: World music critic MILO MILES reviews "Udi Hrant" (oud-ee HA-rant) by Hrant Kenkulian (HA-rant Ken-KUL-i-an) It's on the Traditional Crossroad label.

Interview with Maurice Sendak; Commentary on Ray Charles; Interview with David Spiegel; Commentary on stride piano. October 21, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502233].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Children's book writer and illustrator MAURICE SENDAK. He's been at it for over 40 years. His books are classics: "Where the Wild Things Are," "In the Night Kitchen," and others. They are "unsentimental fantasizes" (LA Times Magazine), challenging the belief that children should be protected from their fears and anxieties. In all, SENDAK has illustrated 80 children's books (19 of which he wrote). He's also designed over 10 opera sets, including one for "The Nutcracker." (REBROADCAST FROM 9/22/93) REV 1: Rock historian ED WARD discusses how Ray Charles got his start. (REBROADCAST FROM 10/24/89) INT. 2: DR. DAVID SPIEGEL, a professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at Stanford University School of Medicine. His groundbreaking study of breast cancer patients showed that women who had psychosocial intervention lived twice as long, after diagnosis, as those without that intervention. His book, "Living Beyond Limits" (Times Books) covers current research on mind/body interactions, how to build sustaining support networks, control pain through self-hypnosis and detoxify fears of dying. Dr Spiegel says, "the fact we do not control death does not mean we cannot control how we live in the face of dying." (REBROADCAST FROM 10/13/93) REV. 2: Boogie-woogie pianist MARCIA BALL performs. Ball lives in Austin, Texas, where she is known as the Queen of the Keyboards and a pioneer of the vibrant Rhythm and Blues scene there. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/28/89)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biologist EDWARD O. WILSON has been called "The Ant Man" by "The New York Times Magazine." He has spent most of his life studying ants and other insects, and has written a number of books on the subject. He co-authored the critically-acclaimed "The Ants," with Bert Holldobler. The pair have just published a sequel to that work, "Journey to the Ants" (The Belkap Press of Harvard University Press), and WILSON has written a memoir, "Naturalist" (Island Press), that chronicles his love of ants. INT. 2: Actor RAUL JULIA. His films include "Kiss of the Spider Woman," "Moon Over Parador," "Tequilla Sunrise." and "Romero." He also starred in "The Addams Family" series, as Gomez, the patriarch. He had a long career in musical theater as well, including "The Three-Penny Opera," "Nine," and "Man of la Mancha." JULIA died this morning, after a stroke last week. (REBROADCAST FROM 8/28/89) REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a reissue of "True Blue," by saxophonist Tina Brooks (Blue Note).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Twenty-five years ago, most of the middle class wasn't involved in Wall Street affairs, and investments were for the rich. Now that's changed, in what financial journalist JOSEPH NOCERA calls "a money revolution." NOCERA has written "A Piece of the Action: How the Middle Class Joined the Money Class" (Simon & Schuster) The book explores how the middle class became involved in the stock market, largely, he says, through the rise of credit cards, mutual funds, and discount brokerage houses. INT. 2: Writer and professor JOHN EDGAR WIDEMAN is the author of "Fatheralong: A Meditation on Fathers and Sons, Race and Society" (Pantheon), which explores WIDEMAN's relationship with both his father and his son. WIDEMAN's earlier book, "Brothers and Keepers," tells of his relationship with his brother, who, like his son, was convicted of murder. WIDEMAN is also the author of novels and short stories, and is a professor of English literature. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Love

Interview with Ann Maguire and Patrick Maguire; Interview with Brian Benben; Review of Howard Zinn's book "You Can't Be Neutral on a Moving Train." October 26, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502920].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ANNE and her son PATRICK MAGUIRE were part of the Maguire Seven, the family who was wrongfully arrested in 1974 on suspicion of manufacturing bombs for the Irish Republican Army. The family was tortured, tried, convicted, and jailed, and was not reunited for eleven years. ANNE spent eight years in prison, in what Sir John May called the "worst miscarriage of justice I have ever seen."
PATRICK spent four years in prison after being convicted at the age of 13. ANNE MAGUIRE has written a book about their experience, "Miscarriage of Justice: An Irish Family's Story of Wrongful Conviction as IRA Terrorists" (Roberts Rinehart Publishers). INT. 2: Actor BRIAN BENBEN is co-starring in the new movie, "Radioland Murders," as a radio scriptwriter trying to save his marriage. BENBEN also stars in "Dream On," the HBO comedy series. "The New York Times" has called his "Dream On" character
"an adult Charlie Brown," with "offbeat charm." REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews
"You Can't be Neutral on a Moving Train," by Howard Zinn (Beacon).

Interview with Dagoberto Gilb; Interview with Harvey Kravitiz and Jack Treatman; Review of the television shows "Homicide October 27, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http:// www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502574].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and Fresh Air commentator DAGOBERTO GILB was a finalist for the PEN/Faulkner Award for his collection of short stories, "The Magic of Blood." In his new novel, "The Last Known Residence of Mickey Acuna" (Grove Press), he tells us more about life in the poor Chicano community of the Southwest. INT. 2: HARVEY KRAVITZ and JACK TREATMAN are coffee experts. KRAVITZ is a coffee consultant. TREATMAN is the co-proprietor of Old City Coffee in Philadelphia. They talk about coffee beans, coffee history and the coffee culture. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reflects on "Homicide: Life on the Streets" and "Picket Fences."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor and writer RAYMOND McNALLY has studied the many portrayals of vampires in folklore and film. He has traced the origins of the Dracula story in Transylvania. His book about what he's found is "In Search of Dracula" (Houghton-Mifflin), written with Radu Florescu. McNALLY is a professor of Rumanian and Eastern European culture at Boston College. (REBROADCAST FROM 10/29/85) INT. 2: Horror film director JOHN CARPENTER. He's best known for the film "Halloween," one of the most successful independent films ever ( {dollar}300,000 budget, over {dollar}30 million in receipts). His other credits include "The Thing," "Christine," "Starman," and "Memoirs of an Invisible Man," starring Chevy Chase. His upcoming movie is "Into the Mouth of Madness." (REBROADCAST FROM 10/31/88) INT. 3: Horror writer PATRICK MCGRATH. McGrath has been described as "a Poe for the 80's," a postmodern-gothic storyteller. Horror writing is a genre that comes easily to McGrath, who grew up on the grounds of an English asylum for the criminally insane. He's written a collection of short stories and several novels. He does a reading from his 1990 book, "Spider" (Poseidon). His latest book is "Doctor Haggard's Disease" (Simon & Schuster), from 1993. (REBROADCAST FROM 9/19/94) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Woody Allen's new movie, "Bullets Over Broadway."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Colonel MARGARETHE CAMMERMEYER was named Nurse of the Year by the Veterans Administration and was Chief Nurse of the Washington State National Guard. She was discharged from the service in 1992 because she revealed that she is a lesbian, becoming the highest-ranking officer to be discharged solely for homosexuality. She challenged the ruling, and was reinstated in July. "Serving in Silence" (Viking) is her new book about her experiences. INT. 2: From the new movie documentary "Hoop Dreams" (Fine Line Features), young basketball player ARTHUR AGEE and film director STEVE JAMES. The film traces the lives of AGEE and his friend William Gates for five years as they try to follow their dreams of rising from inner city Chicago to play in the NBA. James is the director, producer and co-editor of the film. REV. : World music critic Milo Miles reviews "Sam Cooke's SAR Records story, 1959-1965."

---

Interview with Dawn Upshaw; Interview with Ian Frazier; Review of Abraham Burton's album "Closest to the Sun." November 1, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502924].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From the Metropolitan Opera, soprano DAWN UPSHAW. She has a new recording of Broadway showtunes, called "I Wish It So" (Electra/Nonesuch). It includes lesser known works by Marc Blitzstein and Kurt Weill as well as songs by Sondheim and Bernstein. UPSHAW has played more than 20 roles at the Met, including the current "The Marriage of Figaro" (through November 5), and the recently completed "Idomeneo," both by Mozart. INT. 2: Novelist IAN FRAZIER is the author of "Family" (Farrar, Straus, Giroux), a book which traces his ancestors back to the 1600's. His inspiration for the book came from old letters he found after the death of his parents in 1987 and 1988. Their death gave him the desire to find "a meaning that would defeat death" in the letters. FRAZIER is also the author of "Dating Your Mom," "Nobody Better, Better Than Nobody," and "Great Plains." He is a regular contributor to the "New Yorker." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the debut recording of Abraham Burton, "Closest to the Sun" (Enja Records).
Interview with David Milch; Commentary on Detective Matt Scudder; Interview with Steve Roberts. November 2, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502922].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor David Caruso left "NYPD Blue" on last night's episode, to pursue a film career. The show's co-creator, DAVID MILCH, will talk about writing out Caruso, who played one of the main characters. MILCH was also co-creator of "Hill Street Blues," with "NYPD Blue" collaborator Steven Bochco. REV. : Writer LAWRENCE BLOCK with a reading from his new novel, "A Long Line of Dead Men" (William Morrow). It's the newest in his series about his detective hero, Matthew Scudder. INT. 2: Journalist STEVE ROBERTS. He's the senior writer for "U.S. News & World Report." Before that he covered Congress for "The New York Times." He'll talk about Tuesday's election.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer TOBIAS WOLFF has been nominated for the National Book Award for his memoir "In Pharaoh's Army: Memories of the Lost War" (Alfred A. Knopf). The book is an account of WOLFF's tour in Vietnam. WOLFF is also the author of two short story collections, a novella, and "This Boy's Life," a memoir about his childhood. INT. 2: Writer HOWARD NORMAN has been nominated for the National Book Award for his new novel "The Bird Artist" (Farrar, Straus, Giroux). The book takes place in Newfoundland in 1911, and is about an artist who murders the town's lighthouse keeper. NORMAN is also the author of a short story collection and "The Northern Lights," a National Book Award Nominee in 1987. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Joni Mitchell's new album, "Turbulent Indigo" (Warner Brothers).
Interview with Steve Lopez; Interview with Dick Dale; Review of the film "Mary Shelly's Frankenstein." November 4, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502575].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist for the Philadelphia Inquirer, STEVE LOPEZ. His first novel, "Third and Indiana" (Viking), was published in September. It's about life in Philadelphia's "Badlands." The origin of the story was a two-paragraph item LOPEZ read in the paper about a 14 year-old boy shot and killed on a drug corner in North Philadelphia. LOPEZ was disturbed by the casualness and brevity of the report. Terry talks with LOPEZ about his new book, and about his popular columns spearing local politicians. (REBROADCAST FROM 9/15/94) INT. 2: The man known as "the King of the Surf Guitar," DICK DALE. He launched surf rock in 1960 with his band, the Deltones. He described the surf sound in a 1963 article as "a heavy staccato sound on the lowkey guitar strings, with a heavy throbbing beat--like thunder, or waves breaking over you." DALE defined the California sound, and influenced The Ventures, The Beachboys, and Jan and Dean. He also influenced later groups like Sonic Youth. His music is now heard under the titles in the new movie, "Pulp Fiction." (REBROADCAST FROM 7/26/93) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the newest retelling of the Frankenstein story, "Mary Shelly's Frankenstein," directed by Kenneth Branagh.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: "Wall Street Journal" senior writer JANE MAYER is co-author of "Strange Justice: The Selling of Clarence Thomas" (Houghton Mifflin). MAYER and her co-author, Jill Abramson, investigated sexual harassment allegations against Thomas made by Anita Hill. They found other women who had had similar experiences with Thomas, but who were never called to testify. They wanted to write an objective account of the process, and they bring their harshest criticism on the Senate Judiciary Committee. INT. 2: Comedian BRETTL BUTLER had an abusive marriage before getting on stage with her comedy act. She is now the star of the sitcom "Grace Under Fire," one of the top rated shows of the season. Her character is a single mother with three kids, and, like BUTLER, is divorced from an abusive husband. REV. : Critic
MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Borderliners" the new novel by Danish writer Peter Hoeg, author of "Smillas Sense of Smell."

Interview with Allen Ginsberg; Interview with Barbara Cook; Commentary on fathers and sons. November 8, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502573].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet and countercultural activist ALLEN GINSBERG. There's a new four-CD boxed set of Ginsberg's work, "Holy Soul Jelly Roll - Songs and Poems (1949-1993) (on Rhino's Word Beat label). INT. 2: Singer and actress BARBARA COOK. Since the 1950's COOK has been in countless Broadway musicals--"Oklahoma", "The King and I", and Leonard Bernstein's "Candide" to name a few. She's been called a "no nonsense singer...able to thrust with gentility of tone." COOK latest album--her first in five years-- is "Dorothy Fields: Close as Pages in a Book." She won a Tony Award for her part as "Marian the librarian" which she originated in "The Music Man." (REBROADCAST from 11/18/93) REV.: Dagoberto Gilb with a commentary about his son. ("Books Suck")

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Washington political commentator ELIZABETH DREW, author of "On the Edge: The Clinton Presidency" (Simon & Schuster). The book examines Clinton's first eighteen months in office. She talks with Terry about last night's election and what it will mean for the White House. INT. 2: From the film "The Last Seduction" (October Films), actress LINDA FIORENTINO and screenwriter STEVE BARANCIK. BARANCIK's screenplay tells the story of a woman who robs her husband of the proceeds of a drug deal and then leaves town. FIORENTINO stars as "one of the screen's most formidable femme fatales ever" ("Variety"), as she displays her character's "spellbinding talent for getting exactly what she wants" ("The New York Times").

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor BURT REYNOLDS. Star of "Evening Shade," and such films as "Deliverance" and "Smokey and the Bandit." He's written his autobiography, "My Life" (Hyperion). Terry spoke with REYNOLDS before he cut short his book tour. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER has a review of "Pretty Close to the Truth" (Atlantic), the new recording by Jim Lauderdale. INT. 2: Biographer PETER MANSO. He's written "Brando: The Biography" (Hyperion), the result of seven years of research and over 700 interviews. It tells the story of Brando as a man with a hidden troubled life. MANSO is also the author of an oral biography of Norman Mailer. REV. 2: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Scarlett," CBS' eight-hour mini-series that starts this Sunday.

Interview with Otis Williams; Commentary on Smokey Robinson; Interview with Martha Reeves; Review of the film "Interview with a Vampire"; Interview with Kevin Whitehead. November 11, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502552].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer OTIS WILLIAMS. He was the founder of The Temptations, whose smooth five-part harmonies and synchronized dance steps made them one of the hottest of Motown's super groups. Their hits included "My Girl," "Just My Imagination," and "Pappa Was a Rolling Stone." (REBROADCAST FROM 9/15/88) REV. 1. Rock historian ED WARD profiles soul singer Smokey Robinson. INT. 2: MARTHA REEVES is the lead singer of Martha and the Vandellas, the Motown group which made it big in the 60's with such hits as "Nowhere to Run," "Heat Wave," and "Dancing in the Street." Her autobiography, "Dancing in the Street: Confessions of a Motown Diva," (Hyperion) was published in September. The book is about her career at the height of Motown music's popularity, and about her conflicts with other Motown singers and managers. (REBROADCAST FROM 8/24/94) REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Interview with a Vampire," starring Tom Cruise. INT. 3: We talk with critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD about jazz singer Carmen McRae, who died last night at age 74. McRae has been called one of the three greatest female jazz singers, along with Ella Fitzgerald and Sarah Vaughan.
Interview with Wilbert Rideau and John Whitley; Review of the album "Passion November 14, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811305].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry speaks with WILBERT RIDEAU, an inmate serving a life term at the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola. As a special correspondent for Fresh Air, Rideau will report on various aspects of life, culture and rehabilitation at the Penitentiary. This segment will focus on the issue of literacy, education programs and self-education at Angola. This piece will also feature interviews with JOHN WHITLEY, the Warden at Angola; the prison librarian; and with another inmate who taught himself to read and write while in prison. These reports from prison have been arranged in cooperation with prison officials, who administer a number of outreach programs to educate the public about prison policies and rehabilitation efforts. RIDEAU is an eighth grade dropout and taught himself to write while in prison. He is a well-known prison journalist, and the editor of "The Angolite," the official prison newsmagazine. RIDEAU and the magazine have won a number of awards for journalism and public service, including the Robert F. Kennedy Journalism Award, and the American Bar Association Silver Gavel for "outstanding contribution to public understanding of the American system of law and justice." RIDEAU has also been awarded an official Certificate of Merit from the city of New Orleans for his "outstanding public service." RIDEAU was sentenced to death in 1961 for a murder which occurred during a bank robbery. His sentence was commuted to life in 1972 when the Supreme Court declared the death penalty unconstitutional. INT. 2: Interview with Wilbert Rideau continues. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the cast recording of Stephen Sondheim's "Passion."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Conservative columnist GEORGE WILL, regular contributor to "Newsweek" and "The Washington Post." He has just published a collection of his best essays of the past four years, "The Leveling Wind: Politics, the Culture & Other News 1990-1994" (Viking). He talks with Terry about last week's elections. INT. 2: Journalist MISHA GLENNY. GLENNY has been covering the war in former Yugoslavia--first as correspondent for the BBC and now as an independent journalist. He is the author of the book "The Fall of Yugoslavia: The Third Balkan War" (Penguin). He will talk about the decision of the U.S. to no longer participate in the enforcement of the arms embargo to Bosnia. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Fables of Abundance: A Cultural History of Advertising in America," by Jackson Lears (BasicBooks).

Interview with Berry Gordy; Interview with Chazz Palminteri; Review of Harvey Pekar and Joyce Brabner's memoir "Our Cancer Year." November 16, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502434].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BERRY GORDY, founder of Motown. GORDY and Motown made stars out of musicians including Diana Ross and the Supremes, Marvin Gaye, Stevie Wonder, and Michael Jackson. GORDY has written his autobiography, "To Be Loved: The Music, the Magic, the Memories of Motown: An Autobiography" (Warner Books). INT. 2: Actor and playwright CHAZZ PALMINTERI. He wrote the play, "A Bronx Tale," which was made into a movie directed by Robert DeNiro. He is now in Woody Allen's "Bullets Over Broadway," playing a gangster turned playwright. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Our Cancer Year," the book-length comic about a couple's battle with cancer, by Harvey Pekar and Joyce Brabner (Four Walls Eight Windows).

Interview with Rosalynn Carter; Commentary on an aging mother; Interview with Lindy Boggs. November 17, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502626].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former First Lady ROSALYNN CARTER. She has a new book, "Helping Yourself Help Others: A Book for Caregivers" (Times Books). She talks with Terry about helping others and about her life since she and her husband left the White House. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ is also a poet. Today, an autobiographical poem called "She Forgets." INT. 2: Former Congresswoman LINDY BOGGS, who became Louisiana's first woman member of Congress in 1972. She was elected after her husband, then House majority leader Hale Boggs, died in a plane crash. BOGGS was an advocate for civil rights and women's issues before her retirement in 1990. She is the mother of NPR and ABC-TV's Cokie Roberts, Washington lobbyist Thomas Hale Boggs, and the late Barbara Sigmund, who was mayor of Princeton, New Jersey. BOGGS has written her autobiography, "Washington Through a Purple Veil: Memoirs of a Southern Woman" (Harcourt, Brace & Company).

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Julius Erving; Interview with Robert Siegel; Commentary on gnawa music. November 21, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502435].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Philadelphia 76ers' forward "Dr. J" -- JULIUS ERVING. When he retired in 1987, ERVING was one of the highest scorers in professional basketball. He was elected to the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1993. ERVING has written the foreword to "The Official NBA Basketball Encyclopedia, Second Edition" (Villard Books). INT. 2: "All Things Considered" host ROBERT SIEGEL. He has co-anchored the show since 1987. He opened NPR's London Bureau in 1979, and was appointed as director of the News and Information Department in 1983. SIEGEL has just edited "The NPR Interviews, 1994" (Houghton Mifflin). This interview was recorded last Thursday in front of an audience at the WHYY studios. REV. : World music critic MILO MILES discusses how gnawa music has been "discovered" by mainstream groups.
Interview with Edmund White; Interview with Deborah Tannen; Review of the television show "Jim Henson's Animal Show with Stinky and Jake." November 22, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502630].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDMUND WHITE. He's the author of seven books, including "Forgetting Elena," "States of Desire: Travels in Gay America," and "Genet: A Biography," for which he was awarded the National Book Critics Circle Award and the Lambda Literary Award. He has a new collection of essays from the past 25 years, "The Burning Library" (Alfred P. Knopf). Many of his essays focus on gay life in America. INT. 2: Linguist DEBORAH TANNEN, author of the bestselling, "You Just Don't Understand." She has a new book about communication between the sexes, "Talking From 9 to 5: How Women's and Men's Conversational Styles Affect Who Gets Heard, Who Gets Credit, and What Gets Done at Work" (Morrow). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Jim Henson's Animal Show with Stinky and Jake," part of the new daytime show "The Fox Cubbhouse" on PBS.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker KEN BURNS is the director of "The Civil War" and "Baseball," the hit documentaries on PBS. The former was the network's highest rated series. BURNS' other documentaries include "The Brooklyn Bridge," "The Statue of Liberty," and "Empire of the Air," about the early history of radio. (This interview was recorded in front of an audience at the Flynn Theater on October 27, in a benefit for Vermont Public Radio.) INT. 2: Actress TANTOO CARDINAL. She appeared in the film "Black Robe" and played Black Shawl, wife of the spiritual leader, in "Dances With Wolves." She has earned very positive reviews for her performance in the new independent film "Where the Rivers Flow North" (Caledonia Pictures) has been acclaimed. CARDINAL and will soon be seen in "Legends of the Fall" with Anthony Hopkins and Brad Pitt. (This interview was recorded in front of an audience at the Flynn Theater on October 27, in a benefit for Vermont Public Radio.) REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Remember Laughter," Neil Grauer's biography of James Thurber (University of Nebraska Press).

Interview with Burton Lane; Interview with Charles Strouse. November 24, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502454].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Songwriter BURTON LANE. He's written the scores for several Broadway shows, including "Finian's Rainbow" and "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever." Lane has collaborated with Michael Feinstein for two volumes of "The Burton Lane Songbook," [Elektra/Nonesuch] which feature many of Lane's classic songs. A touring production of "Finain's Rainbow" is expected to go on the road next year. (REBROADCAST FROM 11/5/90). INT. 2: Broadway composer CHARLES STROUSE. His hits include, "Bye Bye Birdie," "Applause," and "Annie." He's also written the film scores for "Bonnie and Clyde," and "The Night They Raided Minskys," and others. Last year, STROUSE mounted a sequel to "Annie," -- "Annie Warbucks." When asked if he'd ever just wanted to quit he said, "Never. . . The one thing that all the music teachers I had instilled in me was a desire to connect notes. . . I love composing for the theater." (REBROADCAST FROM 1/3/94)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress LAUREN BACALL is a legend, though she doesn't like to think of herself as such. She's been a star of stage and screen for fifty years, was married to Humphrey Bogart, and won the National Book Award for her 1978 autobiography "By Myself." Her new book, "Now" the experiences that have shaped her life. (THIS IS AN EXTENDED VERSION OF THE INTERVIEW BROADCAST 10/18/94) INT. 2: Interview with LAUREN BACALL continues. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Junior," in which Arnold Schwarzenegger gets pregnant.
Interview with Michael Eric Dyson; Interview with James Traub; Commentary on the word "yes." November 28, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502257].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and professor MICHAEL ERIC DYSON, author of "Making Malcolm: The Myth and Meaning of Malcolm X" (Oxford University Press). The book explores the different sides of Malcolm X and how his influence is felt today. DYSON is also the author of "Reflecting Black," and a professor of Communications Studies at the University of North Carolina. INT. 2: Journalist JAMES TRAUB has written "City on a Hill: Testing the American Dream at City College." This is an exploration of the "open admissions policy" that was implemented at the College in 1970, and the effects this policy has had on the school. TRAUB examined remedial classes and struggling students, and talked to administrators and professors including Leonard Jeffries, the controversial Chair of the Black Studies Department. REV. : Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on his young daughter's use of the exclamation "YESSSS!"

Interview with Art Spiegelman; Review of the Misha Mengelberg Trio's album "Who's Bridge"; Interview with Nicole Panter; Review of Madonna's album "Bedtime Stories." November 29, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502456].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Cartoonist ART SPIEGELMAN, author of "Maus," for which he won a Pulitzer Prize, and "Maus II." The two book-length comics are accounts of SPIEGELMAN's parents' experiences in the Holocaust. He is also co-founder and editor of "Raw," a magazine of avant-garde comics. He has now illustrated "The Wild Party: The Lost Classic by Joseph Moncure March" (Pantheon Books) REV. 1: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Who's Bridge," by the Misha Mengelberg Trio. (Avant) INT. 2: Writer, performer and activist NICOLE PANTER. She is well known in the punk-rock scene, and was a founding member and writer of "Pee-Wee's Playhouse." She is a member of the punk band Honk if Yer Horny. In 1992, PANTER co-founded The Bohemian Women's Political Alliance, a feminist organization of "...the teenagers who dressed in black, the bad girls who climbed out of [their] bedroom windows at dark and caught taxis home at dawn." REV. 2: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Madonna's new release, "Bedtime Stories" (Warner).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JEFF MOSS was one of the original creators and writers of "Sesame Street." He created Cookie Monster and Oscar the Grouch, and wrote such songs as "Rubber Ducky" and "People in Your Neighborhood." He has won 13 Emmy's, four Grammy's, and an Oscar nomination for his work on "Sesame Street" and with the Muppets. Moss is also the author of four books for children, the newest of which is "Hieronymus White: A Bird Who Believed That He Always Was Right" (Ballantine Books).

INT. 2: Former film critic for "The New Yorker," PAULINE KAEL. She reviewed movies for the magazine for 25 years, and is the author of 13 books about the cinema, including a National Book Award winner. Her newest book is a collection of more than 275 of her reviews, called "For Keeps: Thirty Years at the Movies" (Dutton). REV. : No Arts Review, PAULINE KAEL interview continues.

Interview with Mark Doty; Interview with Tony Kushner; Interview with Michael Denneneey; Interview with David Trinidad; Interview with Essex Hemphill. December 1, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502258].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet MARK DOTY. He won the 1994 National Book Critics Circle award for his poetry collection, My Alexandria (University of Illinois Press). He is currently a Fannie Hearst Visiting Professor at Brandeis University. INTERVIEW TWOPlaywright TONY KUSHNER. He's the author of "Angels in America," for which he won a Pulitzer Prize and a Tony Award for Best Play. The play is a two-part "seven hour epic about gays, AIDS and Reaganism" (New York "Newsday"). KUSHNER is also the author of "A Bright Room Called Day," an adaptation of Pierre Corneille's "The Illusion," and "Slavs!" INT. 3: MICHAEL DENNENEY is currently an editor at Crown Publishers. He worked with many gay authors in his 17 years at St. Martins Press, where he had his own imprint, Stonewall Editions. INTERVIEW FOURPoet DAVID TRINIDAD. His latest book is "Answer Song" (High Risk). He and Dennis Cooper are co-editing a volume of selected poems by Tim Dlugos called "Powerless" (High Risk, Fall 1995). INTERVIEW FIVEESSEX HEMPHILL is the author of two books of poetry, "Earth Life" and "Conditions," and a collection of prose and poetry called "Ceremonies." He's also the editor of "Brother to Brother: New Writings by Black Gay Men." He's reading from his work "Vital Interview with Tobias Wolff; Interview with Geoffrey Wolff; Commentary on Tom Snyder. December 2, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502451].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer TOBIAS WOLFF. Terry talked with him in 1989 after the release of his acclaimed memoir, "This Boy's Life" about his unhappy upbringing in a working-class town in Washington State in the late 1950s. The book was adapted for screen; the movie version stars Robert DeNiro, and Ellen Barkin. Last month WOLFF was nominated for the National Book Award for his memoir "In Pharaoh's Army: Memories of the Lost War" (Alfred A. Knopf). The book is an account of his tour in Vietnam. WOLFF also worked as a reporter for The Washington Post, and has written two highly regarded collections of short stories. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 1/31/89). INT. 2: Novelist GEOFFREY WOLFF. His books include "The Final Club," "Providence," and a collection of essays, "A Day at the Beach." His book "The Duke of Deception" is about his father, who was a con-man who lied about his background, wrote bad checks, and later had a nervous breakdown and went to jail. His brother, novelist Tobias Wolff, has also written about their father. WOLFF's newest book, "Age of Consent" is due to be released in February (Alfred P. Knopf). (REBROADCAST FROM 10/2/90) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI talks about former "Tomorrow" host Tom Snyder's move from CNBC to a late show on CBS.

Interview with Darcy Frey; Interview with Randall Rothenberg; Review of Christopher O'Riley's album "Histoire du Soldat; Pe?trouchka; Apollo." December 5, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502255].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer DARCY FREY, a contributing editor to "Harper's" and "The New York Times Magazine." FREY spent a year at the Abraham Lincoln High School on Coney Island, where he says African-American boys usually turn either to dealing drugs or playing basketball. He followed four young basketball players trying to make it out of the ghetto and into a Division I school. "The Last Shot: City Streets, Basketball Dreams" (Houghton Mifflin Company) is his record of what happens to the dreams of these young men. INT. 2: Writer and former "New York Times" advertising columnist RANDALL ROTHENBERG. His new book is "Where the Suckers Moon: An Advertising Story" (Alfred A. Knopf). ROTHENBERG follows Subaru's ad campaign from start to finish, from choosing a new ad agency to the finished commercial's debut during the Superbowl. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews Christopher O'Riley's piano versions of three Stravinsky orchestral scores. (Elektra Nonesuch: #9 79343-2).

Interview with Steven Levy; Interview with Kevin Canty; Commentary on the French language. December 6, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502457].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist STEVEN LEVY, author of "Hackers," is one of the premiere writers on technology. He writes The Iconoclast column for "Mac World" magazine, and is a contributor to "Wired," "The New Yorker," and the "New York Times Magazine." His new book is "Insanely Great: The Life and Times of Macintosh, The Computer That Changed Everything" (Penguin Books). He talks with Terry today about e-money, the electronic money of the future. LEVY has an article in the December issue of "Wired" about the computerization of money. INT. 2: Writer KEVIN CANTY. His stories have been published in "Esquire" and "Story" magazine. His first book is a collection of short stories, "A Stranger in This World" (Doubleday). The stories are about people feeling alien in their own world; CANTY says, "the moment I'm interested in, the moment I'm working toward in these stories, is when the familiar world seems strange... where they are forced to confront how little they know about themselves and about the world around them." REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the importance of language to the French.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Grammy Award winning jazz musician WYNTON MARSALIS. He's been playing the trumpet since he was six, and won his first Grammy at 20. His albums include "The Majesty of the Blues," "Thick in the South," and "Citi Movement," with the Wynton Marsalis Septet. MARSALIS is also the cofounder and artistic director of Jazz at Lincoln Center. He recently announced that he is breaking up the Septet so he can spend more time with the Lincoln Center. "Sweet Swing Blues on the Road" (W.W. Norton & Company), is his new book, written in collaboration with photographer Frank Stewart. The book, in MARSALIS's words, "tries to document [the great American quest...to play as much of the life of our society as possible] as my fellow musicians and I have lived it." INT. 2: Interview with WYNTON MARSALIS continues. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN has a holiday round-up of some of her favorite books of the year, including two newly published books, "Inspector Imanishi Investigates" by Seicho Matsumoto (Soho), and "The Folding Star" by Alan Hollinghurst (Pantheon). Also included are"The Alienist," Caleb Carr; "Henry and Clara," Thomas Mallon; "The Bird Artist," Howard Norman; "A Map of the World," Jane Hamilton; "The Western Canon," Harold Bloom; "Where the Girls Are," Susan Douglas; "Nellie Bly," Brooke Kroeger; "No Gifts From Chance," Shari Benstock; "You Can't Be Neutral on a Moving Train," Howard Zinn;"The Silent Woman," Janet Malcolm.

Interview with Jim Grimsley; Interview with Rob Huizenga; Review of Tom Petty's album "Wildflowers." December 8, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502668].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and playwright JIM GRIMSLEY. He is a writer-in-residence at the 7 Stages Theater in Atlanta, and the winner of Newsday's George Oppenheimer Award for Best New American Playwright in 1988. His first novel is "Winter Birds" (Algonquin Books of Chapel Hill), about a eight-year-old hemophiliac in a poor family, watching a violent fight between his parents on Thanksgiving. GRIMSLEY says the book is "autobiographical, but not an autobiography." He also has been HIV positive for 14 years, making him one of the longest survivors of the virus. INT. 2: Sports doctor ROB HUIZENGA, team doctor to the Los Angeles Raiders for seven years. He is a past president of the National Football League Physicians' Association and has written for "Sports Illustrated" and other publications. His book about his time in the NFL is "'You're Okay, It's Just a Bruise': A Doctor's Sideline Secrets About Pro Football's Most Outrageous Team" (St. Martin's Press). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Tom Petty's new album.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NELSON PEERY recently published his memoir, "Black Fire: The Making of an American Revolutionary (The New Press)," about coming of age against a background of racism, the Depression, and World War II. The book chronicles PEERY's travels west during the Depression, and his experiences as a soldier fighting in World War II. He writes about his simultaneous love for America and hatred for the people who discriminated against African Americans, especially in the army. The book details his vision of a worldwide revolution of people of color, his involvement in the Communist party, and his own personal revolutions against officers in his unit who were cruel to black soldiers. PEERY began his book when he was 24, but did not finish it until now, almost 25 years later. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THROUGH THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: NELSON PEERY interview continues.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Forensic psychiatrist Dr. PARK DIETZ. He has served as an expert witness for the prosecution in the murder trials of John Hinkley, Joel Rifkin, Jeffrey Dahmer and others. In each case he presented evidence against the defense of insanity, saying that these men knew that they were committing terrible crimes. DIETZ also has a consulting firm, Threat Assessment, which focuses on workplace violence. He is a consultant to the HBO special "Murder 9 to 5," which examines murder at work. INT. 2: Interview with PARK DIETZ continues.
REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER has a review of Bob Dylan's "Greatest Hits Volume Three" (Columbia). Dylan will also be on MTV's "Unplugged" on December 14 and 18.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music singer and yodeler DON WALSER, "the best pure cowboy singer in the state" ("Houston Chronicle"). At age 60, WALSER has retired from his job as a Texas state internal auditor to concentrate on his music, and has just released an album, "Rolling Stone From Texas" (Watermelon Records). He is "a middle-aged man with a potbelly and glasses" ("Houston Chronicle") whose "yodeling is better than sex." ("Playboy") INT. 2: Writer REBECCA BROWN, author of a new book "Gifts of the Body" (HarperCollins Publishers). The book is a collection of connected short stories about caring for people with AIDS. Though the work is fiction, many of the characters are based on people she herself worked with. BROWN is the author of other books including "The Terrible Girls," "Annie Oakley's Girls," and "The Children's Crusade." REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviewed "Kind Relations" by Robert Liddell (Dufour).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TRACY ULLMAN, who prefers being called a "social satirist" than an actress or a comedian. She was the star of "The Tracy Ullman Show," where she played characters including "girls half her age and matrons twice her age; ... a psychologist and a postal worker, a bitter Beverly Hills divorce and a suicidal chorine." ("The New York Times Magazine") Her film debut was "Plenty," with Meryl Streep, and she recently appeared in Woody Allen's "Bullets Over Broadway." Her latest movie is "Ready to Wear (Pret-a-Porter)," Robert Altman's film about the fashion industry. INT. 2: Actor GRAHAM PAYN has written "My Life with Noel Coward" (Applause Books) with Barry Day. Theater legend Coward is the author of "Hay Fever," "Private Lives," and "Blithe Spirit." PAYN met him as a child, when he acted in Coward's "Words and Music" in 1932. The two were friends for thirty years until Coward's death in 1973. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the release of a recently discovered Cole Porter home recording. It's called "Cole Sings Porter: Rare and Unreleased Songs from 'Can-Can' and 'Jubilee.'" (Koch International)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director DAVID LYNCH, who Mel brooks called "Jimmy Stewart from Mars." LYNCH is the director of "Eraserhead," "The Elephant Man," "Dune" and "Blue Velvet," all of which have received critical acclaim and attained cult status. He is also the creator of the popular but short-lived TV series, "Twin Peaks." LYNCH has published a book of photographs of his movies and his art, called "Images" (Hyperion). INT. 2: Journalist YOUSEFF IBRAHIM, reporter at "The New York Times" since 1977. He has been the regional Middle East correspondent for the paper for seven years. IBRAHIM has won a George Polk Award, the Overseas Press Club Award and the International Energy Economists Association Award for best coverage of energy affairs. He talks about the current situation in the Middle East. REV. : No arts review. YOUSEFF IBRAHIM interview continues.

Interview with Etta James; Interview with Julia Child; Review of the film "Speechless"; Review of the made-for-TV movie "Don't Drink the Water." December 16, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502945].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rhythm and blues singer ETTA JAMES. She was a teenager when she was discovered by bandleader/talent scout Johnny Otis, who helped her record her first single, "Dance with Me Henry." Her career took off in the sixties, until she battled a drug addiction at the end of that decade. Although JAMES mostly sang R&B, she recently released "Mystery Lady," (Private Music) on which she covers songs by her favorite jazz singer, Billie Holiday. She has a new live album, "Etta James Live From San Francisco," a recording of a 1981 performance at the Boarding House. (On the Spot Live Recordings) (REBROADCAST FROM 8/24/94) REV. 1: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Don't Drink the Water," Woody Allen's made-for-TV movie, which airs Sunday on ABC. INT. 2: The French Chef, JULIA CHILD. She spent three decades explaining the mysteries of classic French cuisine to modern American audiences. Child has hosted several cooking shows on public television, earning Peabody and Emmy Awards in the process, and written several cookbooks. Her most recent TV series, "Cooking with Master Chefs" was aired in February and March and will be continued in April 1995. She is also a co-founder of The American Institute of Wine and Food. (REBROADCAST FROM 11/14/89) REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Speechless," which stars Geena Davis and Michael Keaton in a story much like that of James Carville and Mary Matalin, though the movie script was written before the real life story.

Interview with Harvey Cox; Interview with Youssef Ibrahim; Review of six jazz CD box sets. December 19, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503025].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Theologian HARVEY COX. His new book is "Fire From Heaven: The Rise of Pentecostal Spirituality and the Reshaping of Religion in the Twenty-first Century" (Addison-Wesley). It is estimated that by the year 2010, there will be more Pentecostals than all other non-Catholic Christians put together. COX traces the growth of the religion from its origins in a converted stable in Los Angeles in 1906 to its present membership of 410 million worldwide. COX is a professor of divinity at Harvard Divinity School, and the author of "The Secular City." INT. 2: Journalist YOUSSEF IBRAHIM, reporter at "The New York Times" since 1977. He has been the regional Middle East correspondent for the paper for seven years. IBRAHIM has won a George Polk Award, the Overseas Press Club Award and the International Energy Economists Association Award for best coverage of energy affairs. He talks about the current situation in the Middle East. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews six new box sets for the holiday season. The box sets are: "Early Ellington," Duke Ellington (GRP/Decca);"Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man, 1923-1954," Louis Armstrong (Columbia);"The Complete Blue Note Recordings," Thelonious Monk (Blue Note);"The Complete Blue Note and Roost Recordings," Bud Powell (Blue Note);"The Complete Bud Powell" (Verve);"The Jazz Scene," Various Artists (Verve).
Interview with Ann Rabson, Gaye Adegbalola, and Andra Faye McIntosh; Interview with Mark Bowden; Review of Oasis's album "Definitely Maybe." December 20, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502943].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musicians ANN RABSON, GAYE ADEGBALOLA and ANDRA FAYE McINTOSH, who make up the blues group Saffire - The Uppity Blues Women. The "Chicago Tribune" says "these women have [attitude] in abundance," in their songs about "domestic violence, self-respect and being a woman." Their fourth album is "Old, New, Borrowed & Blue" (Alligator Records). The group says the album was named because "We embrace the old. . . we celebrate the new. . . We've begged, stolen, and borrowed a variety of songs, rhythms, licks and tricks." INT. 2: Sportswriter MARK BOWDEN. He covered the Philadelphia Eagles for "The Philadelphia Inquirer" for three seasons, and now has a book about the team, "Bringing the Heat: A Pro Football Team's Quest for Glory, Fame, Immortality, and a Bigger Piece of the Action" (Knopf). The book follows the team through the 1992 season, after their coach was fired and after the death of their star defensive lineman, Jerome Brown. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Definitely Maybe," the debut album by Oasis (Epic).

Interview with Forest Whitaker; Review of the CD box sets "Emperors of Soul" by The Temptations and "Anthology December 21, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502480].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor FOREST WHITAKER. He's one of the most respected character actors in Hollywood. He developed that reputation doing roles that got away from the stereotypes often given to black actors. WHITAKER was the British soldier kidnapped by the IRA in the "Crying Game." In "The Color of Money," he had a brief part as a pool hustler. He also starred in "Good Morning, Vietnam." His biggest starring role was portraying jazz great Charlie Parker in the movie, "Bird." WHITAKER is currently co-starring in Robert Altman's new film, "Ready to Wear (Pret-A-Porter)." REV. : World music critic MILO MILES reviews two new box sets of The Temptations, and War (Avenue Records). INT. 2: Irish actor/producer GABRIEL BYRNE. He got his big break playing a slick gangster in the Coen Brothers' "Miller's Crossing." One reviewer wrote, "a subtle yet forceful performance as an impassive man, concealing deep pain." BYRNE was the executive producer of "In the Name of the Father." He also starred in and produced the films "A Dangerous Woman," and "Into the West." BYRNE is now appearing as Prof. Baer in the remake of "Little Women," directed by Gillian Armstrong.

Interview with Anne Perry; Interview with Peter Jackson and Frances Walsh; Review of the film "Little Women." December 22, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503097].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The new film, "Heavenly Creatures" tells the story of two teenage girls, so caught up in an intense friendship that they murder the mother of one of them, when she tries to separate the two. It's set in New Zealand during the 1950s and based on a true story. We feature a previous interview Terry did with writer ANNE PERRY. It was recently revealed that PERRY was one of those young girls, was convicted of murder, and spent time in prison. She's now a popular mystery writer in Britain. (ORIGINAL Broadcast from 9/21/94). In the second half of the show we feature interviews with two individuals involved in the film. INT. 2: We feature interviews with two individuals involved in the film, "Heavenly Creatures." New Zealand film director and writer PETER JACKSON and co-screenwriter FRANCES WALSH. They have collaborated on two other films, "Dead Alive" a horror-movie spoof which developed a cult following in New Zealand, and "Meet The Feebles," a zombie film which was also a hit in that country. REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF has a review of Little Women.

Commentary on Christmas elves; Commentary on bad Christmas music; Interview with Charles Brown, Susannah McCorkle, Lee Musiker, Dean Johnson; Hugh Martin, and Ralph Blane; Review of the film "Ready to Wear." December 23, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502145].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We feature a performance by humorist and NPR commentator DAVID SEDARIS ("suh-DAHR-iss"). He charms us with "Santaland Diaries." We've played excerpts of his work on previous shows, but this is the Diaries in its entirety. "Santaland Diaries" comes from Sedaris' book "Barrel Fever." (Little Brown) This piece first ran on NPR's Morning Edition a few days before Christmas 1992. Even though Sedaris has achieved national fame and movie contracts for his humor writing, he still cleans apartments... during the day, because, he says, he can only write at night. (This is not an interview). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD tells us about his least favorite pop Christmas songs. INT. 2: To get the bad taste of the previous segment out of our mouths, we play some great Christmas music, from previous Fresh Air concerts. The segment includes Susannah McCorkle, Charles Brown singing "Merry Christmas Baby," and composers Martin and Blane telling the story behind their song, "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas." (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 12/14/90) REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF has a review of "Ready To Wear," Robert Altman's ensemble film about the Paris fashion shows.

Interview with Karen Armstrong; Interview with Ari Goldman; Interview with Sogyal Rinpoche. December 26, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502767].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British religious scholar, KAREN ARMSTRONG. She wrote the bestseller, "A History of God" (Knopf), now in paperback. In that book Armstrong says "All religions have been designed to help us touch the God in each other" Her research traces 4000 years of Monotheism in the form of Christianity, Judaism, and Islam. The author, a Catholic nun for seven years in the 1960's, left the order to take a degree at Oxford, and now teaches at the Leo Baeck College for the study of Judaism. (REBROADCAST. Originally broadcast 12/23/93) INT. 2: Journalist ARI L. GOLDMAN. He's the former religion correspondent for The New York Times. He's the author of "The Search for God At Harvard". It's about the year he took off from his job to attend the Harvard Divinity School and his experiences there and how they affected his own faith as an orthodox jew. (published by Random House). (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 5/28/91). GOLDMAN now teaches at the Columbia School of Journalism. . Tibetan buddhist master SOGYAL RINPOCHE ("soh-GYAL RIN-poh-chay," the ch as in chair). He was born in Tibet and raised by a master in the buddhist tradition. He also studied at Cambridge University in England. He has lived outside of Tibet, in exile, for 20 years. "Rinpoche" is a title usually given to incarnate Lamas, meaning "the Precious One." John Cleese of Monty Python fame once introduced one of Rinpoche's talks, by saying it was the first time he played warm-up man to an incarnate lama. Rinpoche is the incarnation of Terton Sogyal (1856-1926), a Tibetan mystic and the teacher of the last Dalai Lama. Rinpoche's book, "The Tibetan Book of Living and Dying," combines Tibetan wisdom with modern research on death and dying. (HarperCollins) (REBROADCAST. Originally Interview with Mary Jo Weaver; Interview with Michael Lerner; Interview with Richard Belzer.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and professor MARY JO WEAVER. She teaches Religious and Women's Studies at Indiana University. She wrote the book, "Springs of Water in a Dryland: Spiritual Survival for Catholic Women Today," (Beacon Press) about the "double bind" that many Catholic women find themselves in, either living within a institutionalized church structure that is oppressive, or rejecting a church which is a source of spiritual enrichment. In her book, WEAVER argues that it is possible for a woman to be a feminist and remain Catholic. WEAVER is also the author of "New Catholic Women: A Contemporary Challenge to Traditional Religious Authority." (Originally aired 3/8/93) INT. 2: Editor, author, and Jewish theologian MICHAEL LERNER is founder and editor of "Tikkun" magazine, a bimonthly Jewish critique of politics, culture, and society. In his new book, "Jewish Renewal: A Path to Healing and Transformation" (G.P. Putnam's Sons), LERNER presents a new interpretation of Jewish texts and history, and a new approach to God and prayer. (Originally aired 9/29/94) REV. : Comedian RICHARD BELZER. He talks with Terry about growing up Jewish. BELZER now stars in the TV series "Homicide." (Originally aired 12/31/87)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Religion historian MARTIN MARTY. Marty, who teaches at the University of Chicago, is one of the foremost authorities on religion and society. He's the author of a four volume work on religion in the 20th century. In 1992 he published the first volume of a multi-volume look at fundamentalism, "The Fundamentalism Project." (The University of Chicago Press). That's when Terry talked with him. He has since published three other volumes; the fifth and last volume in the project will be published next year. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 2/7/92) INT. 2: Journalist and professor RANDALL BALMER.
He hosted the PBS series, "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory: A Journey into the Evangelical Subculture in America," which aired in 1993. There's also a companion book to it, the same title (published by Oxford University Press in 1989). BALMER is Associate Professor of Religion at Barnard College, Columbia University. In 1995 BALMER's book "History of Religion in America" will be published also by Oxford University Press. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 7/27/93) INT. 3: Writer and Naturalist-in Residence at the Utah Museum of Natural History TERRY TEMPEST WILLIAMS. She was described by "Newsweek" as "one of the West's most striking new writers." Born a Utah Mormon, Williams has written several books about the environment and the West, such as "Coyote's Canyon" and "Earthly Messengers." Her book, "Refuge: An Unnatural History of Family and Place," concerned her mother's unsuccessful battle with cancer and the flooding of the Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge by the rising Great Salt Lake waters. It also asserts that the seven cancer deaths in her family probably resulted from atomic testing in Nevada in the fifties and sixties. (Published by Random House.) (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/1/92)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:REVEREND JOHNNY RAY YOUNGBLOOD. He's the leader of St. Paul Community Baptist Church in one of Brooklyn's poorest and most dangerous neighborhoods. YOUNGBLOOD came to the church and turned it around from a dying institution, to a thriving center for religious and community activity. The church has created a school, and through innovative programs, brought young black men back into the church. St. Paul's has also (as part of a coalition with other churches) built housing in the area and replaced brothels and numbers joints. "Upon This Rock: The Miracles of a Black Church" by Samuel G. Freedman (published by HarperCollins) is about REV. YOUNGBLOOD and St. Paul's. (REBROADCAST/ Originally aired 2/22/93) INT. 2: Alto Saxophonist VERNARD JOHNSON. He's best known for his Gospel playing, performing with preachers like, E.V. Hill, Billy Graham, and Bishop L. H. Ford. His saxophone was considered too raucous for the Gospel circuit when he began playing there in the mid-60's, but eventually he became a favorite on the evangelical circuit. Robert Palmer, in "The New York Times," writes, "The force and passion of the man's alto saxophone sounds are matched only by its creamy richness...listeners may think it sounds more like rhythm and blues, rock, or jazz than conventional Gospel music." Johnson's collection of performances called "I'm Alive" was released in 1991 on the Elektra Nonesuch label. (REBROADCAST/ Originally aired 8/27/91) REV. : Music critic Milo Miles has a review of "My Soul Looks Back", a new collection of the music of gospel singer MARION WILLIAMS.

Interview with Ken Tucker; Interview with Stephen Schiff; Commentary on the song "What Are You Doing New Year's Eve?" December 30, 1994. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502464].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER picks the best pop music of 1994. He reviews his ten favorite new albums: The Mavericks, "What a Crying Shame" (MCA); Sam Phillips, "Martinis and Bikinis" (Virgin); L7, "Hungry for Stink" (Warner Bros.); Joni Mitchell, "Turbulent Indigo" (Warner Bros.); Pearl Jam, "Vitalogy" (Epic); Liz Phair, "Whip-Smart" (Atlantic); Sugar, "File Under Easy Listening" (Rykodisc); Oasis, "Definitely Maybe" (Sony); Madonna, "Bedtime Stories" (Warner Bros.); and Pretenders, "Last of the Independents" (Warner Bros.). His runners-up include Sheryl Crow's "Tuesday Night Music Club", Richard Thompson's "Mirror Blue", and Mark Chesnutt's, "What a Way to Live". TUCKER plays some samples of the top ten and talks about what's alternative and what's mainstream. INT. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF makes his top ten picks for 1994....10. "Natural Born Killers" 9. "To Live" 8. "Ladybird, Ladybird" 7. "Quiz Show" 6. "L627" (L-6-2-7) 5. "The Madness of King George" 4. "Hoop Dreams" 3. "Vanya on 42nd Street" 2. "The Boys of St. Vincent" 1. "Pulp Fiction". His runners-up include "Bullets Over Broadway", "Speed", "Little Women", and "Ed Wood". Terry also talks with SCHIFF about the growing number of independent American films, the state of Hollywood, and the message of Forrest Gump. REV. Terry shares her favorite holiday song to listen to after Christmas.

Description of show segment(s)

Int 1: From the Metropolitan Opera, soprano DAWN UPSHAW. She has a new recording of Broadway showtunes, called "I Wish It So" (Electra/Nonesuch). It includes lesser known works by Marc Blitzstein and Kurt Weill as well as songs by Sondheim and Bernstein. UPSHAW has played more than 20 roles at the Met, including Susannah in the current "The Marriage of Figaro" (through January 28), and Ilia in the recently completed "Idomeneo," both by Mozart. In February she'll be headed to Frankfurt to perform a Mozart program with the Frankfurt Opera. She's also working on a couple of recordings, including a collection of Debussy Nocturnes with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and "Songs of the Auvergne" with the Opera of Lyon. (REBROADCAST/ Originally aired 11/1/94) Int 2: Novelist IAN FRAZIER is the author of "Family" (Farrar, Straus, Giroux), a book which traces his ancestors back to the 1600's. His inspiration for the book came from old letters he found after the death of his parents in 1987 and 1988. Their death gave him the desire to find "a meaning that would defeat death" in the letters. FRAZIER is also the author of "Dating Your Mom," "Nobody Better, Better Than Nobody," and "Great Plains." He is a regular contributor to the "New Yorker." (REBROADCAST/ Originally aired 11/1/94) Rev: Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Patricia Meyer Spacks' new book. It's called "Boredom: The Literary History of a State of Mind", published by the University of Chicago Press.

Interview with Fran Lebowitz; Interview with Anne Lamott; Review of the film "Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle." January 3, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502766].

Description of show segment(s)

ABOUT THE NUTS AND BOLTS OF HOW TO WRITE BUT ALSO HOW TO LIVE A WRITER'S LIFE. HER OTHER BOOKS INCLUDE "OPERATING INSTRUCTIONS". SHE WAS A BOOK REVIEWER FOR MADEMOISELLE. Rev:CRITIC MAUREEN CORRIGAN EXAMINES THE LIFE OF DORTHY PARKER AS THE NEW MOVIE "MRS PARKER AND THE VICIOUS CIRCLE." COMES OUT.

Description of show segment(s)

Int 1: We'll hear from Jason De Parle (duh-PARL). He covers anti-poverty policy for the New York Times. With the New Congress in session, a major debate over America's social welfare policy is expected. De Parle talks about what proposals we're likely to see from the Republicans and from the Clinton Administration. Also how anticipated changes would affect those receiving welfare, food stamps and Medicaid. Int 2: An interview from our archives with singer, songwriter and guitarist TED HAWKINS, who died Sunday in Los Angeles. He was 58. For almost 30 years, Hawkins was a street musician in L.A famous for his trademark milk crate. HAWKINS' music is a blend of country, folk and soul. He became a star in England where he lived for four years, though he was still virtually unknown in the U.S. Back in the U.S. he went back to street performing and was "discovered" again by a DGC record producer. Last year, HAWKINS released a new recording titled "The Next Hundred Years" (DGC label). (REBROADCAST. This interview was originally aired 5/2/94) Rev: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new sitcoms.

Description of show segment(s)

Int 1 Segment: DR. SUSAN WICKLUND runs a Women's Health Clinic in Montana that gives well women's health care and performs abortions. In the past she provided abortion services to women in Montana and South Dakota, traveling as much as four hours each way. WICKLUND has been harassed and threatened because of her work. She has been featured on "60 Minutes." National Director of the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue, REV. PHILIP (FLIP) BENHAM. The group organizes huge blockades outside abortion clinics. In a recent press release Operation Rescue writes of the recent violence in Boston as, "a harbinger of what is to come. . . We as a nation, are reaping the horrible consequences of what we have sown these past twenty-two years of legalized child killing." Director of the Christian Defense Coalition, and former spokesman for Operation Rescue REV. PAT MAHONEY. In a recent New York Times article, MAHONEY was quoted as saying he was sobered by the scope of the violence and that he may be moved to re-evaluate the language he and others use to condemn abortion. Int. 2 Segment: Journalist VERLYN KLINKENBORG. His article "Violent Certainties" appears in this month's edition (Jan 95) of Harper's Magazine. In the article, KLINKENBORG reports from a Milwaukee abortion clinic. KLINKENBORG teaches at Harvard University and is the author of "The last Fine Time." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE ATC PROMO) Interview with Fred Schepisi; Interview with Lowell Handler; Commentary on race and Motown music. January 9, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502374].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director FRED SCHEPISI hails from Australia. Along with directors Peter Weir and Bruce Beresford he was considered one of the leaders of the "Australian New Wave." His film, "The Chant of Jimmy Blacksmith," was the first Australian film ever accepted in competition in the Cannes Film Festival, and his first film distributed in the U.S. (in 1980). SCHEPISI went on to direct "Plenty," "Roxanne," "A Cry in the Dark," "The Russia House," and "Six Degrees of Separation." His latest film "I.Q." stars Meg Ryan, Tim Robbins, and Walter Matthau. INT. 2: From the new documentary "Twitch and Shout," the associate producer/narrator LOWELL HANDLER. HANDLER is a photojournalist and has Tourette's Syndrome. The film is about people with TS. HANDLER has traveled the world photographing people with TS. A photojournalism story HANDLER published in Life magazine caught the idea of the film's director, who then approached HANDLER about doing the documentary. REV.: Professor of English, and Director of African and Afro-American Studies at Washington University, GERALD EARLY. He reflects on the meaning of Motown music to whites and blacks.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist DENNIS COVINGTON. He's written a new book about the practice of snake handling in a Southern Appalachian church. Practitioners use snake handling as a kind of "annointing", in a belief that the Holy Spirit comes down to protect them from fear and danger in handling the poisonous snakes. COVINGTON came to write the book as a journalistic endeavor and it became an exploration of his own faith. He himself handled the snakes. COVINGTON's new book is "Salvation on Sand Mountain," (Addison-Wesley). INT. 2: British actress VANESSA REDGRAVE. She's appeared in over 50 films, including "Morgan!", "Blow Up", "Julia" and "Howards End". Her stage work has included Shakespeare, Chekhov, Noel Coward and Tennessee Williams. She comes from a celebrated theater family, and her daughters (Natasha and Joely Richardson) are both actresses. VANESSA REDGRAVE is also well known for her political activism, including support for Nuclear Disarmament and Palestinian

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Health care analyst and substance abuse expert JOSEPH CALIFANO. He was LBJ's assistant for domestic affairs from 1959-65 and Secretary for Health, Education and Welfare under Jimmy Carter from 1977-79. JOSEPH CALIFANO has written a book about health care reform called "Radical Surgery" (Random House) and is president of the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse, a research and experimental care facility at Columbia University. Terry will be talking to him about health care reform, welfare reform and substance abuse. INT. 2: Biologist EDWARD GOLUB, whose book "The Limits of Medicine" (Random House) explores the history of medical advances and argues that medicine's new goal should be to extend health, not life span. There will be no "magic bullet" for today's major illnesses (cancer, heart disease, Alzheimer's) like there was for earlier scourges like polio, smallpox and diphtheria, he says. EDWARD GOLUB was a professor of biology at Purdue University for twenty years and a director of research in the pharmaceutical industry for five years. He is president of the Pacific Center for Ethics and Applied Biology, a nonprofit group exploring the relationship between basic and applied biology. REV. : Television critic David Bianculli reviews tonight's debut of Warner Bros' "WB Network."

---

Interview with Brian Wilson; Interview with Timothy White; Interview with Edward Zwick; Commentary on adverbs. January 12, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502378].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From the Beach Boys, BRIAN WILSON. We feature a segment from a 1988 interview with WILSON. This ties in with the next interview: INT. 2: Editor in Chief of Billboard Magazine TIMOTHY WHITE. He has written a new book that traces the evolution of the "myth" of Southern California. WHITE uses the history of the Wilson family and its migration to California in the 1920s. The Wilson family is that of Brian Wilson, one of the Beach Boys, the band that helped put Southern California on the map as the place of sun and fun. WHITE's new book is "The Nearest Faraway Place: Brian Wilson, the Beach Boys, and the Southern California Experience" (Henry Holt). INT. 3: Film and T-V director EDWARD ZWICK. He directed the film's "About Last Night. . ." "Glory" and "Leaving Normal." He collaborated with producer Marshall Herskovitz on the creation of the Emmy Award-winning series, "thirtysomething" and the new highly-acclaimed, but underwatched T-V drama series, "My So-Called Life. The two have also collaborated on the new film, "The Legends of the Fall," starring Brad Pitt, Anthony Hopkins, and Aidan Quinn. ZWICK directed the film. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG reflects on the adverb.

Interview with Al Green; Interview with Neil Young; Interview with Frank Zappa; Review of the film "Higher Learning." January 13, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502699].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer AL GREEN. Green's one of the greats of soul and gospel music. He's probably best known for his hit, "Let's Stay Together." He'll talk about his musical career, and about his being "born again" as a Christian. (REBROADCAST, Originally Aired 6/21/91) INT. 2: Rock musician NEIL YOUNG. In '66 he joined L.A. rock band Buffalo Springfield; they split up 3 albums later due to inter-band fighting and their lack of commercial success. YOUNG then meandered from band to band, including "Crosby, Stills, Nash, and Young," while doing a lot of solo work as well. He's been called the "Godfather of Grunge," and "The King of Punk." (REBROADCAST, Originally aired 11/5/92) Rock musician FRANK ZAPPA, who died in 1993. For more than 20 years, [including 11 years leading the Mothers of Invention] Zappa made rock and roll music that was in turn funny, gross, esoteric, satirical, and danceable. (REBROADCAST, Originally aired 6/6/89) . REV. : Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Higher Learning". The new film from director John Singleton. A film featuring actors Laurence Fishburne, Ice Cube and Omar Epps.
Interview with Henry Hampton and Nicholas Lemann; Interview with Nicholas Turturro; Review of the television show "Star Trek January 16, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502698].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Tonight PBS debuts the documentary series, "America's War on Poverty: Untold Stories from the Front Line." The five-part series documents President Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty, which he declared during his State of the Union Address in January 1964. It included programs like Head Start, and Job Corps. Terry will talk with: 1) Executive Producer and President of Blackside, Inc., HENRY HAMPTON. He was also responsible for the Emmy Award-Winning PBS series, "Eyes on the Prize." 2) Journalist NICHOLAS LEMANN. He served as consultant on the series. He's the author of "The Promised Land," about the migration of African-Americans from the South to the North. (Knopf) INT. 2: Actor NICHOLAS TURTURRO. He's a regular in the TV-series, "NYPD Blue," as the young detective James Martinez. TURTURRO is now starring in the new film, "Federal Hill." It's his first starring film role. He also had parts in Spike Lee's films (along with his brother, John) "Do the Right Thing," "Mo' Better Blues," and "Jungle Fever." REV. : T-V Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new Star Trek series, "Star Trek: Voyager" on the new network United Paramount Network (UPN).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former U.S. President JIMMY CARTER. He's written eight books since his presidency, including several memoirs. His newest book is a collection of his poems, "Always a Reckoning: and other Poems," (Random House). Terry will talk with him about his poetry, and about his diplomacy work, most recently, negotiating agreements in Bosnia and Haiti. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF) INT. 2: Interview with JIMMY CARTER continues.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: House speaker Newt Gingrich has called for abolishing the National Endowment for the Arts. We discuss the pros and cons of federal funding of the Arts with: Art critic HILTON KRAMER. He is the founder of the Arts magazine, "The New Criterion," and is former chief art critic for The New York Times. He has also published several volumes of criticism. KRAMER is against federal funding for the arts. JOHN BRADEMAS is Chair of the President's Committee on the Arts and Humanities, and former Democratic Congressman from Indiana. He also helped write the legislation that created the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA). INT. 2: LYNN MUNSON is former Special Assistant to Chairman Lynn Cheney at the NEA, under President Bush. She is now a Research Associate at the American Enterprise Institute, a Conservative Think Tank. PAUL GOLDBERGER is The New York Times' Chief Cultural Correspondent. He is also a former architecture critic. (GOLDBERGER's interview continues after the ATC promo).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor ANDRE BRAUGHER (rhymes with "flower"). In the NBC series, "Homicide," he plays the shaved-headed Detective Frank Pembleton, a man described as "eloquent but icy." BRAUGHER was educated at Julliard and is an experienced Shakespearean actor. His other acting credits include, the film, "Glory," and the TNT special, "The Court Martial of Jackie Robinson." REV. 1: MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Sigrid Nunez's novel "A Feather on the Breath of God." INT. 2: Journalist LESLIE SAVAN (pronounced SAVE-in) is the advertising columnist for "The Village Voice." She writes that the subject of her "Op Ad," columns is how advertising works, "how commercial values infiltrate our beliefs and desires, how we become more and more sponsored." SAVAN has a new collection of her columns, "The Interview with Lloyd van Brunt; Interview with Brian Benben; Review of Helen Merrill's album "Brownie." January 20, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501986].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet LLOYD VAN BRUNT (pronounced like "grunt"). He grew up poor and white in Oklahoma. He writes, in the The New York Times magazine section, "To be poor in a country that places a premium on wealth is in itself shameful. To be white and poor is unforgiveable." (March 27, 1994). BRUNT says poor whites have no defenders ("white trash" they are called) and they are made to feel ashamed of themselves because of the assumption that they "should" be able to make a success of themselves. BRUNT's father abandoned the family, his mother died when he was eight. BRUNT spent years in foster homes and orphanages where he was abused. BRUNT has written several volumes of poetry. His latest is "Poems New and Selected 1962 - 1992," (The Smith, Brooklyn). He's currently working on his memoir, "I fall in Love with Nancy Drew: Tales of Childhood." (REBROADCAST from 5/9/94) INT. 2: Actor BRIAN BENBEN recently co-starred in the movie, "Radioland Murders," as a radio scriptwriter trying to save his marriage. BENBEN also stars in "Dream On," the HBO comedy series. The FOX network recently started airing reruns from the series first season. "The New York Times" has called his "Dream On" character "an adult Charlie Brown," with "offbeat charm." (REBROADCAST from 10/26/94) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new Helen Merrill release,"Brownie," a tribute to Clifford Browne, on the Verve label.

Interview with Michelle Slatalla and Joshua Quittner; Interview with John Lee; Review of Baaba Maal's album "Firin' in Fouta." January 23, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811351].

Description of show segment(s)

It's about two rival gangs of teenage computer hackers in New York City: Masters of Deception and the Legion of Doom. The gangs, broke into phone company computers, downloaded confidential credit histories, and broke into private and corporate computer files. The rivalry was friendly until a computer remark by one hacker set off a "gang war." (MORE ON THE COMPUTER GANGS IN THE SECOND HALF). INT. 2: JOHN LEE is a former member of the Masters of Doom. Federal agents had been monitoring the rivalry between the two gangs. LEE was arrested and sent to jail. REV.: World Critic MILO MILES reviews the new album by Sengalese performer Baaba Maal, "Firinin Fouta," (Island/mango records)

---

Interview with Nick Lowe; Commentary on literary celebrity. January 24, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501985].

Description of show segment(s)

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: It's been almost six years since the Ayatollah Khomeini issued a death sentence against writer SALMAN RUSHDIE. Since then he's lived in hiding, continuing to write, and to make a few semi-public appearances. His book, "Haroun and the Sea of Stories," published in 1990 was a fairy tale written for his son. His new book is collection of stories about the line that divides East and West, migrancy, exile, and the notion of home, "East, West" (Pantheon). Terry also talked with RUSHDIE in 1990 and 1992. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist GERALDINE BROOKS, author of "Nine Parts of Desire: The Hidden World of Islamic Woman" (Anchor Books). While BROOKS was Middle East correspondent for "The Wall Street Journal," she investigated the role of women in the Islamic societies where she lived and worked. INT. 2: Then, playwright and screenwriter PAUL RUDNIK, author of "Jeffrey," and "Addams Family Values." His alter-ego is Libby Gelman-Waxner, "Premiere" magazine's film critic, who "The New York Times" described as "a guerrilla movie fan, happily throwing brickbats and valentines at the screen." RUDNIK has published a new book of Libby's best columns, called "If You Ask Me" (St. Martin's Press). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two collections by country singer George Jones, plus a new release by Jones. The albums are "Cup of Loneliness: The Classic Mercury Years" (Mercury), "The Essential George Jones: The Spirit of Country" (Epic) and "The Bradley Barn Sessions" (MCA).

Interview with Elie Weisel; Interview with Marcel Ophuls; Interview with Steve Reich; Interview with Art Spiegelman; Review of the album "Chamber Music from Theresienstad 1941 - 1945." January 27, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502117].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This first half hour consists of three interview segments. One long one before the FLOATER, and then two shorter interviews: Writer and humanitarian ELIE WEISEL. WEISEL won the 1986 Nobel Peace Prize for his message of "peace and atonement and human dignity." A concentration camp survivor, he has been the most impassioned and poetic supporter of efforts to memorialize the six million Jews who died in Hitler's death camps. He is author of many works, including "Night," "Dawn".and "Twilight." His most recent book is "The Forgotten," published in 1992 (Summit Books). WEISEL also has a new book that has been published in France, and will be published in the U.S. later this year. (REBROADCAST
FROM 6/8/88) INT. 2: Documentary filmmaker MARCEL OPHULS. He is best known for his 1970 work "The Sorrow and the Pity," about the conduct of the French people during the Holocaust. He also made the film "Hotel Terminus: The Life and Times of Klaus Barbie." His 1992 film "November Days," is about life behind the iron curtain and the changes underway in Europe since the fall of the Berlin wall. It was described as "the runaway hit of the 1991 Berlin Film Festival." (REBROADCAST FROM 5/7/92)
INT. 3: Minimalist composer STEVE REICH. He talks about his 1989 piece "Different Trains." (Electra Nonesuch) It was commissioned by the Kronos Quartet and inspired by Reich's childhood memories of traveling across the country by train during the late 30s and early 40s. Reich says those memories have mingled with his later realization that at the same time Jews in Europe were traveling on trains to their deaths. REICH recently released a new version of his "Tehillim." (Electra Nonesuch). "The Cave," a multimedia piece composed with his wife, is due out later this year. (REBROADCAST FROM 3/31/89)
INT. 4: Cartoonist ART SPIEGELMAN, author of "Maus," for which he won a Pulitzer Prize, and "Maus II." The two book-length comics are accounts of SPIEGELMAN's parents' experiences in the Holocaust.

Interview with Denise Chong; Interview with Sarah Jessica Parker; Commentary on television coverage of the O.J. Simpson trial. January 30, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502266].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and economist DENISE CHONG, author of "The Concubine's Children" (Viking). The book is a history of her family, beginning with her grandmother, May-Ying, a concubine brought to Canada by CHONG's wealthy grandfather. May-Ying had two daughters in China, and CHONG's mother in Canada -- three sisters who hadn't met until Chong persuaded her mother to take the trip to China when she was writing this book. "Publisher's Weekly" says "this suberbly told saga of family loyalties and disaffections reads...like a novel." INT. 2: Actress SARAH JESSICA PARKER. She's been acting for most of her life, including playing Annie on Broadway, the young bimbo SanDeE* in "L.A. Story," and a fed-up fiancee in "Honeymoon in Vegas." PARKER is now starring in the film "Miami Rhapsody," playing a woman having second thoughts about marriage as she learns that everyone in her family has had an affair. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks at television coverage of the O.J. Simpson trial.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Anthropologist BIRUTE GALDIKAS. "The New York Times Magazine" called her the "third angel" of Louis Leakey, who also taught Jane Goodall and Dian Fossey. GALDIKAS has been studying orangutans in Indonesia since 1971, when virtually nothing was known about the animal in the wild. Since then, there have been articles about her and her research in "National Geographic" and other magazines, and she has just written a new book about her work, "Reflections of Eden: My Years with the Orangutans of Borneo" (Little, Brown and Company). REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new CD of Virgil Thomson's songs called "Mostly About Love." INT. 2: Writer LES ROBERTS, author of eleven detective books featuring Cleveland private eye Milan Jacovich or L.A. actor/detective Saxon. The most recent, "The Lake Effect" (St. Martin's Press), is a Milan Jacovich mystery. ROBERTS also produced episodes of "The Lucy Show," "The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," and "The Andy Griffith Show," and was the first producer of "The Hollywood Squares." REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Before Sunrise."

Interview with Betty Johnson; Interview with Steven Levy; Commentary on the black middle class. February 1, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501987].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer BETTY JOHNSON. She was a member of "The Johnson Family," which sang gospel and country music for two decades. President Franklin D. Roosevelt was a fan, and the group was invited to sing at his memorial service. JOHNSON went solo in the late 1950s and was a regular on Don McNeill's "Breakfast Club," and Jack Paar's TV show. She also made many guest appearances on TV shows. During that time she made over 150 records and a dozen albums. JOHNSON left show business to raise a family and receive a degree in drama at Dartmouth. JOHNSON has since returned to her singing career, with a cabaret act at The Oak Room at The Algonquin Hotel (June 1994). It also featured her daughter, Lydia Gray. She has a new recording "A Family Affair," (Bliss-Tavern Music Productions). For info call 800-287-2061. INT. 2: STEVEN LEVY is an expert on computer technology, a Fellow of the Freedom Forum Media Studies Center in New York, and a columnist for the magazine
"Macworld." His new book is, "Insanely Great: The Life and Times of Macintosh, the Computer that Changed Everything." (Penguin). REV. Commentator GERALD EARLY reflects on the black middle class.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILLIAM GREIDER (GRY-der) is a political reporter for Rolling Stone Magazine. His most recent contribution is titled, "Why the Rich Get Richer." Greider speaks with Terry about his most recent article, the status of our economy, and the just announced interest rate hike. Greider is also author of two best-selling books "Secrets of the Temple: How the Federal Reserve Runs the Country" (Simon & Schuster) and "Who Will Tell the People: the Betrayal of American Democracy." (Simon & Schuster)

INT. 2: Special correspondent WILBERT RIDEAU (Ree-doe), editor-in-chief of the award winning prison magazine The Angolite. RIDEAU is an inmate of the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola serving a life term for murder. In 1989 the Penitentiary was "under a state of emergency". In early 1990 Warden John P. Whitely was hired. In his five year tenure Whitely's management style helped turn the prison around garnering national and international attention. It also gained the attention of the inmates who recently hosted a farewell dinner in honor of the departing warden. Terry speaks with inmate-editor-correspondent RIDEAU about the farewell. REV. : Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Wedding," by Dorothy West, one of the last surviving members of the Harlem Renaissance. (Doubleday) Interview with Ira Rutkow; Review of Kenneth Iserson; Review of the film "Boys on the Side." February 3, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501532].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. IRA RUTKOW is a surgeon and the author of the book, "Surgery: An Illustrated History," (Mosby). The book has 386 illustrations related to surgery, including documents, photographs, cartoons, drawings and paintings taken from museums throughout the world. RUTKOW has also written a two-volume history of surgery in the U.S. and has written studies on Civil War surgery. He's consulting editor for surgical history for the Archives of Surgery, founder and surgical director of The Hernia Center in Freehold, N.J., and clinical associate professor of surgery at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey. (Rebroadcast from 03/28/1994) INT. 2: Physician and author KENNETH ISERSON. ISERSON wanted to promote organ and tissue donation, so he wrote a book about what happens to dead bodies. It's called "Death to Dust" (Galen Press). ISERSON believes that death is the pornography of our culture, because after-death activities are shrouded in secrecy. His book explores the mundane--burial choices and advance directives--and the arcane--head shrinking, cannibalism and cryonic preservation. (Rebroadcast from 05/03/1994) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Boys on the Side."

---

Interview with Marita Golden; Interview with Greg Graffin; Review of Dionne Farris's album "Wild Seed-Wild Flower." February 6, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502268].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer MARITA GOLDEN, author of "Saving Our Sons: Raising Black Children in a Turbulent World" (Doubleday). GOLDEN writes about bringing up her son in Washington D.C., where homicide is the leading cause of death for Black males between 18 and 24. In the preface, she says, "I stopped work on a novel in order to write this book. The unremitting press of young lives at risk, the numbing stubbornness of annual, real-life death tolls, rendered fiction suddenly unintriguing, vaguely obscene." She has instead written a book called "moving, disturbing and important" by Marian Wright Edelman, president of the Children's Defense Fund. INT. 2: Musician GREG GRAFFIN, lead singer of the punk band, Bad Religion. The group started 15 years ago, and helped pioneer the hard rock/punk style of bands like Green Day and Offspring. Bad Religion's eighth recording is "Stranger Than Fiction," and it's their first on a major label (Atlantic). When GRAFFIN isn't performing, he's spending time with his wife and child, or working on his Ph.D. in Biology at Cornell. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new recording by Dionne Farris, who used to sing with Arrested Development.
Interview with Michael Gordon and Bernard Trainor; Obituary for Art Taylor; Obituary for James Merrill; Review of five CDs by Sir Thomas Beecham. February 7, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502710].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: "New York Times" defense correspondent MICHAEL GORDON and retired Marine Corps General BERNARD TRAINOR. They have collaborated on a book about the Persian Gulf war, "The General's War: The Inside Story of the Conflict in the Gulf." (Little, Brown) The book examines why the war was "an incomplete success." INT. 2: Drummer ARTHUR (ART) TAYLOR. He died Monday at age 65. TAYLOR played with Sonny Rollins, Charlie Parker, Miles Davis, John Coltrane and Thelonious Monk. His recent book "Notes and Tones: Musician-to-Musician Interviews" (Da Capo Press) was a new expanded collection of interviews he's done with fellow musicians: . It was one of the few books about black jazz musicians by a black man, and because of that TAYLOR's subjects were able to talk freely about the role of black artists in white society. It includes interviews with Dexter Gordon, Miles Davis, Max Roach, Betty Carter, Thelonious Monk and others. (REBROADCAST FROM 2/21/94) INT. 3: Poet JAMES MERRILL. He died Monday at age 68. The son of the founder of the Merrill Lynch brokerage house, Merrill took to Europe at age 24, a newly published poet "meaning to stay as long as possible". That was in 1950. His memoir "A Different Person" (Knopf) detailed his two and a half years there, and featured encounters with psychoanalysts, new and old lovers, and Alice Toklas. MERRILL wrote eleven books of poems, and was the winner of two National Book Awards, the Bollingen Prize for Poetry, and the Pulitzer Prize. (REBROADCAST FROM 10/18/93) REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews five CDs featuring reissued recordings by conductor Sir Thomas Beecham.

Interview with Leonore Tiefer; Review of the CD box set "The Doo Wop Box." February 8, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811363].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Sexologist LEONORE TIEFER. (Tee-fur) has written a new book "Sex Is Not a Natural Act: and Other Essays." (Westview) In her book she looks at our society's anxieties and ignorances towards sex. She also questions what is "normal" sex and how people are to know how to have sex if no one talks about it. TIEFER received a Ph.D. in physiological psychology with a dissertation on hormones and mating behavior of rats. But TIEFER came to realize she knew nothing of the social norms of sexuality and questioned how sexual norms evolved. She re-specialized in clinical psychology and became a sex researcher, sex therapist and an Associate Professor of Urology and Psychiatry at the Montefoire Medical Center in New York City. Tiefer has also been a sex columnist for the New York Daily News. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with LEONORE TIEFER continued. REV.: Rock historian ED WARD reviews Rhino's new "Doo Wop Box."

---

Interview with Tom Gjelten. February 9, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502263].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NPR foreign correspondent TOM GJELTEN (jell-ton) has a new book, "Sarajevo Daily: a city and its newspaper under siege." During the height of the Serbian siege on Sarajevo the city was in ruins but one symbol of hope remained constant for its people, Oslobodjenje (Oh-slo-bo-JANE-ya), the city's multi-ethnic daily newspaper. When the siege began the paper's editor vowed, "As long as Sarajevo exists this paper will publish everyday." Gjelten uses the paper as a backdrop for his book in order to look at the larger issue of the war torn country and its people. GJELTEN was the Eastern and Central European correspondent for NPR from September 1990 to December 1993. (GJELTEN INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO SEGMENT TWO.) INT. 2: GJELTEN INTERVIEW CONTINUED. (GJELTEN INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO REVIEW SEGMENT.) REV.: GJELTEN INTERVIEW CONTINUED

---

Interview with Dan Penn; Interview with Jerry Wexler; Interview with Steve Cropper; Review of the film "The Secret of Roan Inish." February 10, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502711].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer, songwriter, guitar player, DAN PENN. PENN has written soul music classics like "Do Right Woman," "Cry Like a Baby," "Sweet Inspiration," and "I'm Your Puppet." His compositions have been made famous by the likes of Aretha Franklin, James Carr, Percy Sledge, Solomon Burke and Otis Redding. PENN left his tiny hometown of Vernon, Alabama when he was sixteen... a white kid, singing like Ray Charles and in love with black music. Now, 36 years later, Penn performed his own songs on his album released last year, "Do Right Man." (Warner Brothers, Sire Label) (REBROADCAST FROM 4/28/94) INT. 2: An interview with former Atlantic Records executive JERRY WEXLER. Wexler was the producer behind some of the greatest soul music of the 60s, including classic sessions with Aretha Franklin, Ray Charles, Wilson Pickett and Otis Redding. (REBROADCAST FROM 5/7/93) INT. 3: Guitarist, songwriter, and producer STEVE CROPPER. In the 60's, he was with Stax Records, the record company that defined the Memphis sound of the time. He's best known for his playing with Booker T & the MGs; he also played in the band from the film "The Blues Brothers." He co-wrote such hits as "In the Midnight Hour," "Soul Man," and Otis Redding's "(Sittin' on) The Dock of the Bay." (REBROADCAST FROM 9/18/90) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews John Sayles' new movie, "The Secret of Roan Inish."

Interview with Andre Aciman; Obituary for Paul Monette; Review of Sonny Landreth's album "South of I-10." February 13, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502715].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor and writer ANDRE ACIMAN, author of "Out of Egypt: A Memoir." (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) The book follows ACIMAN's close-knit, flamboyant Jewish family through 50 years of residence in Alexandria. The family was forced to leave Egypt when ACIMAN was 14, during a long wave of Anti-Semitism and Arab nationalism. The New York Times says, "there is a whole gallery of characters here, vividly realized," as ACIMAN explores the lives and relationships of his grandparents, parents, uncles and aunts, and finally his own emotions about leaving his idyllic childhood home. INT. 2: Poet and novelist PAUL MONETTE. He died of complications from the AIDS virus on Friday, at age 49. His 1988 book "Borrowed Time: An Aids Memoir," was the first such memoir to be published about AIDS, and won a National Book Award. In it, MONETTE told the story of his "beloved" friend and lover's two year struggle with AIDS. The book was called "a gallant, courageous love story." In 1992, MONETTE wrote a memoir about his own life before he came out of the closet at the age of 25, "Becoming a Man: Half a Life Story," (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich). (REBROADCAST FROM 7/20/92) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new solo album by slide guitarist Sonny Landreth, "South of I-10," (Zoo Entertainment)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor MICHAEL KAZIN. His new book, "The Populist Persuasion: An American History" (Basic Books) explores the rise and change of populism an its effect on the political structure. He examines populism's roots as a leftist, liberal movement and how populist ideas came to be used as rhetoric of conservative Presidents Nixon and Reagan. REV.: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews two new murder mysteries: "Original Sin," by P.D. James (Knopf) and "Cranks and Shadows" by K.C. Constantine (Mysterious Press). INT. 2: Irish Writer WILLIAM TREVOR, whom The New Yorker called "probably the greatest living writer of short stories in the English language." Besides his eight volumes of short stories, he has written eleven novels, several plays for stage and for radio and television, and stories for The New Yorker, The New York Times, and other magazines. Early last year he published his memoir, "Excursions in the Real World" (Alfred A. Knopf), in which he writes about his family and childhood in Ireland. His most recent novel is "Felicia's Journey" (Viking). REV.: Poet MARK HALLIDAY reads "Separated Father," a poem about tensions between two kinds of love. HALLIDAY's last book of poems is "Tasker Street."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor NICHOLAS NEGROPONTE (Neg-row-pont-ay). His new book "Being Digital" (knopf) explores the future of new information technology and how it will challenge today's perceptions of the future. Ten years ago NEGROPONTE created the now famous and innovative Media Laboratory at MIT. He believes a fundamental change in how we live is coming with the newest computer technologies. He is also a popular columnist for Wired Magazine. INT. 2: Australian film director, GILLIAN ARMSTRONG has made a new film, "Little Women," (Columbia Pictures) based on the popular nineteenth century novel. In 1978 Armstrong's career took off with the critically acclaimed film "My Brilliant Career." The movie also made her the first woman in Australia to direct a feature film. Armstrong has garnered many film awards since, including the Australian Film Institute Awards, U.S.
National society of Film Critics Award and a best film at the Festival International de Creteil, France.

REV. : (Interview with ARMSTRONG continued).

Interview with Robert Rector; Interview with Richard Clifford; Review of the television show "Mad About You." February 16, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502714].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT RECTOR, policy analyst at the conservative think tank, Heritage Foundation. He is credited as being the driving force behind the rightward swing of the newest GOP welfare reform. He believes the welfare system creates illegitimacy and that, "the more you spend [on welfare] the more clientele for the programs you create." He also believes to bring people out of their "behavioral poverty" they need to work for their assistance. INT. 2: Child care innovator and reformer RICHARD (DICK) CLIFFORD. In 1993-94 he took a year leave from his professorship at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to establish and direct the North Carolina Smart Start Early Childhood Initiative under Governor Hunt. The program is a working model of partnership between public and private groups. It has been considered a success and is being expanded into other counties of North Carolina. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews tonight's episode of "Mad About You."

Interview with Carl Reiner; Interview with Jack Larson; Interview with Sheila James Kuehl; Review of the film "Just Cause." February 17, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502712].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director CARL REINER. He was a writer and appeared in Sid Caesar's "Your Show of Shows." He's best-known to baby boomer audiences as the creator and writer of "The Dick Van Dyke Show." He also staged several Broadway plays, including "Enter Laughing," which is based on his novel and which he later adapted to the screen. Since then, he has concentrated on film direction, specifically comedies. His films include "Where's Poppa?" "The Jerk," "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," "All of Me" "Oh God," and "Bert Rigby, You're a Fool." (REBROADCAST FROM 3/2/89) Librettist, poet, playwright JACK LARSON. He got his start as an actor, playing Jimmy Olsen, the cub-reporter on the original
"Superman" TV show. He was the librettist for "Lord Byron," an opera by Virgil Thompson (Koch International Classics, 1992). He's also written the versed plays, "The Candied House," and "Cherry, Larry, Sandy, Doris, Jean, Paul," and he has been a film producer. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/12/93)

INT. 2: Many people will remember SHEILA JAMES KUEHL as Zelda Gilroy on the old T-V show "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis." Her T-V career ended when rumors began to circulate that she was a lesbian -- and those rumors were true. She's now a prominent lesbian activist and women's rights lawyer in Los Angeles. In November 1994, she became the first openly gay or lesbian person to be elected to the California State Assembly. (REBROADCAST FROM 3/26/92)

REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Just Cause," the new thriller starring Sean Connery.

---

Interview with David Maraniss; Interview with Jim Morris; Commentary on visionaries. February 20, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502265].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist for The Washington Post, DAVID MARANISS. He's just completed a new biography of President Clinton, "First in His Class," (Simon & Schuster). In researching the book, MARANISS interviewed more than 400 people, including Clinton's friends, relatives, and colleagues. One reviewer writes, "the portrait of Mr. Clinton that emerges from this biography is not one of a visionary leader or statesman, but of an indefatigable, instinctual politician, driven throughout his life to seek the approval of friends and strangers alike." MARANISS won a Pulitzer for his reporting on Clinton's presidential campaign. INT. 2: Political satirist and impressionist JIM MORRIS. He's always done impressions. He began lampooning the Presidents at about the time Reagan was sworn in to office. Since then he's impersonated Bush, and Clinton, as well as presidential contenders, Michael Dukakis, Paul Tsongas, and Ross Perot. He's also impersonated some well known broadcasters. In 1989 he impersonated Bush at the White House Correspondents Association Dinner, in front of the President himself. CBS's Mike Wallace described it as "Mean. Mean. Mean. Mean." Recently MORRIS was invited again to the White House, where he did his impersonations of Vice President Gore, and President Clinton in front of them. The New Yorker says of MORRIS, "Like an obsessive character actor, Mr. Morris doesn't just impersonate his subjects; he becomes them." REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG on visionaries.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor GREGORY HOWARD WILLIAMS. He spent the first ten years of his life believing he was white in segregated Virginia, and that his dark-skinned father was Italian. When his parents marriage ended, his father took him and his brother to Muncie, Indiana, where the boys learned that they were half black. WILLIAMS has written "Life on the Color Line: The True Story of a White Boy Who Discovered He Was Black" (Dutton) about the struggle and repression he faced growing up between the races. Publisher's Weekly calls it "(an) affecting and absorbing story." INT. 2: Entomologist and professor MAY BERENBAUM, who was afraid of bugs until she took a course on insects in college. Her new book is "Bugs in the System: Insects and Their Impact on Human Affairs" (Addison-Wesley), which tries to show insects in a new light. BERENBAUM demonstrates the importance of insects in everyday life and throughout history, and explores the lifestyles of some of the more than ten quintillion insects that inhabit the earth at any given moment. BERENBAUM is also hosts the annual Insect Fear Film Festival, which will be held this weekend, February 25 & 26, at the University of Illinois. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY reviews "Collected Poems of Langston Hughes," edited by Arnold Rampersad (Knopf)

Interview with Sam Raimi; Interview with Phil Ramone; Review of Gary Bartz's albums "Episode One, Children of Harlem" and "The Red and Orange Poems." February 22, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502805].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer/Director/Producer SAM RAIMI. He is best known for 1982's cult classic, "The Evil Dead," which Steven King called "the most ferociously original horror film of the year." He has just directed his first big budget film, "The Quick and The Dead," starring Sharon Stone and Gene Hackman. It is a 90's western with a touch of humor. He also directed 1990's hit "Darkman." INT. 2: Record producer PHIL RAMONE. He has been called the "Pope of pop," producing and engineering artists from Bob Dylan to Gloria Estefan, Paul McCartney, Barbra Streisand, Paul Simon, Billy Joel and dozens of others. Last year he produced Frank Sinatra's Duets 2. RAMONE has just finished recording a classical album with the Curtis Institute Orchestra(EMI). He also produce the cast recording of Stephen Sondheim's "Passion."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Canadian author ROBERTSON DAVIES has a new novel, "The Cunning Man."(Viking) The novel surrounds the life of a Toronto based doctor during World War 2 who witnesses the death of a Father at the High Altar. The Washington Post has called it "one of [the] author's most entertaining and satisfying novels." DAVIES, 81, has had three successive careers. He began as an actor, then was a journalist and newspaper publisher, and in 1981 retired as professor of the Massy college at the University of Toronto. DAVIES has more than thirty books to his credit. INT. 2: SARGENT SHRIVER... he is currently Chairman of the Special Olympics. He was organizer and first director of the Peace Corps, elevating it to become one of the most successful programs of the Kennedy Administration. SHRIVER headed president Johnson's War On Poverty in the 60's. During his tenure he also created VISTA, Headstart, Job Corps and many other successful programs. He recently received the Medal of Freedom from President Clinton - the country's highest civilian honor. REV. : Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews the new book, "Terrible Honesty: Mongrel Manhattan in the 1920s" by Ann Douglas. (Farrar, Straus & Giroux)

Interview with Allen Ginsberg; Review of William Burrough's album "Call Me Burroughs"; Interview with Gary Snyder; Review of the film "Mr. Payback." February 24, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503105].

Description of show segment(s)

He was part of the beat poetry scene in San Francisco in the late 50's. He appears as a character in several of Jack Kerouac's books. Snyder has since won the Pulitzer Prize. He continues to teach and write. In 1990 he published two books: "Dimensions of a Life" (Sierra Club Books) a collection of his essays, and poetry in "Riprap & Cold Mountain Poems" (North Point Press). (REBROADCAST from 9/20/90). SNYDER's latest book is, "No Nature: New & Selected Poems," (Pantheon, 1992). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Mr. Payback," a new interactive film.

Interview with Fred Cuny; Interview with Oliver Sacks. February 27, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825294].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Engineer FRED CUNY, relief worker for the International Rescue Committee. He worked in Sarajevo to restore gas and water to civilians in early 1994. He just returned from Chechnya, where he was evaluating the humanitarian situation. INT. 2: Clinical neurology professor and doctor OLIVER SACKS. He is the author of six books about his patients, people with autism, Parkinson's Disease, Tourette's Syndrome, and other neurological disorders. SACKS was portrayed by Robin Williams in the 1991 film version of his book "Awakenings." His other books include "A Leg to Stand On," and "The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat." His newest is "An Anthropologist On Mars: Seven Paradoxical Tales," which tells the stories of the disorders of seven of his subjects. (Alfred P. Knopf) REV. : OLIVER SACKS interview continues.

Interview with Eric Davis; Review of the television show "Love and Betrayal February 28, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502709].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chicago police officer ERIC DAVIS, known as "21" in the rap group the Slick Boys. DAVIS and two other officers founded the group in 1991 to provide positive role models for the inner-city kids they encountered on their jobs every day. The group has received national acclaim for their songs about the importance of getting an education and staying off of drugs and out of gangs. DAVIS grew up in the Cabrini-Green development of Chicago, where the three officers work. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: ERIC DAVIS interview continues.
REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Love and Betrayal: The Mia Farrow Story, the miniseries that airs tonight and tomorrow on Fox.

---

Interview with David Von Drehle; Interview with Sherwood Schwartz; Interview with Betty Thomas; Commentary on Ike Turner. March 1, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503102].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DAVID VON DREHLE (VON DRA-Y-Lee) has written a new book, "Among the Lowest of the Dead: the Culture of Death Row" (Times Books). VON DREHLE reawakens the capital punishment debate using historical and personal observations and accounts of death row inmates, victims survivors, and the people in charge of the executions. He says keeping people in prison is a bargain compared to the price of death row appeals and the fact that only 5% of death row executions actually occur. VON DREHLE is arts editor of the Washington Post. INT. 2: A brief excerpt from our 1988 interview with TV producer SHERWOOD SCHWARTZ (Rebroadcast from 08/26/1988) INT. 3: Director BETTY THOMAS has directed a new movie, "The Brady Bunch." The film is straight from the TV series that ran from 1969-74, even down to the story line. But there is a twist. The innocent family is transported with all its 70's values and fashion into the 90's. THOMAS also directed "Only You" and "My Breast" She is also known for playing Sergeant Lucy Bates on the TV series "Hill Street Blues." REV. : Rock Historian EDWARD looks back at Ike Turner's career before Tina, when he secured his place in American Pop music history.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Olympic gold medal diver GREG LOUGANIS (Lew-GAIN-is) has written a book, "Breaking the Surface," (Random House) detailing the private life behind his diving persona. In 1988 LOUGANIS became the first diver in history to win consecutive Olympic gold medals in both the 10 meter platform and 3 meter springboard events. In 1994 he admitted he was gay. He now admits he has AIDS and knew it prior to the '88 games. To write to Greg: P.O. Box 4130, Malibu, CA 90264

INT. 2: Writer/Director MILCHO MANCHEVSKI (MEEL-choe Man-CHEF-skee). The native Macedonian, now based in the U.S. went home to make his first feature film, "Before the Rain." One critic at the Venice Film Festival said the film is "written and directed with surprising skill and ability, wonderfully filmed." MANCHEVSKI is also well known for directing the music video, "Tennessee" by Arrested Development which won an MTV video award in 1992.

Interview with Jeff Moss; Interview with Tony Bennett; Review of James Spaulding's album "Blues Nexus." March 3, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502807].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JEFF MOSS was one of the original creators and writers of "Sesame Street." He created Cookie Monster and Oscar the Grouch, and wrote such songs as "Rubber Ducky" and "People in Your Neighborhood." He has won 13 Emmys, four Grammys, and an Oscar nomination for his work on "Sesame Street" and with the Muppets. Moss is also the author of four books for children, the newest of which is "Hieronymus White: A Bird Who Believed That He Always Was Right" (Ballantine Books). (REBROADCAST FROM 11/30/94)

INT. 2: Singer TONY BENNETT, winner of two Grammy awards at Wednesday night's Grammy ceremony. He has won four other Grammys in his career, which spans four decades. He has been called "the best singer in the business" by Frank Sinatra, and "the best singer I've ever heard" by Bing Crosby. BENNETT's recent award-winning album is "Tony Bennett - Unplugged," recorded for "MTV Unplugged" in 1994. (Columbia) (REBROADCAST FROM 7/3/91) REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Blues Nexus," the new recording by James Spaulding. (Muse Records)

Interview with David Whyte; Commentary on metaphors and the Internet. March 6, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502707].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DAVID WHYTE is a poet who uses poetry to teach corporate executives and employees how to find satisfaction in the work place. In his new book, The Heart Aroused: Poetry and the Preservation of the Soul in Corporate America, (Doubleday) WHYTE looks at the ways people can use their careers not only as a means to earning a living, but as a way of finding personal happiness. WHYTE has served as a consultant for such companies as AT&T and Kodak, teaching his clients how to use poetry and myth to find happiness in the workplace. He also runs a small press in Seattle, Washington. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) (REBROADCAST FROM 8/22/94) INT. 2: DAVID WHYTE interview continues. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on metaphors used for the Internet.

Interview with Stanley Greenberg; Interview with Al Alvarez; Review of an album of Kurt Weill's "The Seven Deadly Sins." March 7, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502806].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pollster STANLEY B. GREENBERG. He was pollster and senior advisor to Bill Clinton's presidential campaign, and is currently pollster to the president and advisor to the Democratic National Committee. GREENBERG is credited with recognizing, nearly ten years ago, the dissatisfaction among middle class voters with the two political parties. GREENBERG has a new book about the historic forces that put Bill Clinton in the White House, and (consequently) led to 1994's midterm Republican landslide. It is, Middle Class Dreams: The Politics and Power of the New American Majority. (Times Books). INT. 2: British poet, novelist and critic AL ALVAREZ. His new book Night: Night Life, Night Language, Sleep, and Dreams (W.W. Norton & Co.) is about the dark and the night, literally and figuratively. ALVAREZ examines night terrors, dreams, sleep research, fear of the dark, and "the dark night of the soul." ALVAREZ writes, "Daylight, with its routines and busyness, keeps. . . fantasies mostly at bay. But at night, when the external world is hidden, common sense loses its points of reference, and there is space for less amenable figures to make their presence felt." REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new recording of Kurt Weill's "The Seven Deadly Sins," featuring the New York Philharmonic and soprano Angelina Reaux (on Teldec).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soviet born journalist MASHA GESSEN (GUES-N) has just edited a new collection of post-Soviet fiction by women, Half A Revolution: Contemporary Fiction by Russian Women (Cleis Press, Pittsburg, PA.). GESSEN says that most of the writers in the collection belong to the "mute generation" that came of age under Brezhnev. GESSEN's immigrated to the U.S. in 1981, when she was 14 to be with her parents. She's been an editor, primarily in gay and lesbian press, and was international editor at THE ADVOCATE. GESSEN has now repatriated to Russia. INT. 2: Poet LI-YOUNG LEE. He's written two volumes of poetry, Rose, (Boa Editions), and The City in Which I Love You, (Boa Editions). LEE's won many awards for his work, including the Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellowship. He's just completed a memoir about his family's refugee experience in America, The Winged Seed (Simon & Schuster). LEE was born in Indonesia. His parents were from China, where his father had been private physician to Mao. LEE's father became a political prisoner in Indonesia, and escaped. After traveling through Southeast Asia, the family ended up in a small town in Pennsylvania, where his father headed an all-white Presbyterian church. LEE was six years old then. One reviewer writes of the memoir, "a powerful attempt to conquer the past and--with compassion--to sign a truce with it." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews some film music.

Interview with Peter Leschak; Interview with Frank Cardon; Review of the television show "VR. 5." March 9, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811258].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Freelance firefighter PETER LESCHAK battles forest fires in the Northwoods and the West...He's not a smoke jumper he says, he's a grunt-hiking to remote locations, putting out fires sometimes on his hands and knees-spark by spark. His new memoir is called Hellroaring. INT. 2: FRANK CARDON is one of three teenagers who was given a video camera for a year to record his daily life in North Philadelphia. His footage is part of the documentary, Teen Dreams. Cardon says he wanted to show a world composed of a lot of angry people trying to survive. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI REVIEWS VR.5, the new series on Fox about virtual reality.

Interview with Richard Preston; Interview with Mark Plotkin; Review of Bobby Bland's albums "Turn on Your Love Light" and "I Pity the Fool." March 10, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502685].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In 1989, there was a small outbreak of an extremely contagious virus, the Ebola virus, in research monkeys in a lab in Reston, Virginia. The body is stripped of its clotting factors and victims essentially bleed to death. The army was brought in to stop the spread of the disease. RICHARD PRESTON has written book about the incident in The Hot Zone (Random House). (Aired 10/5/94) INT. 2: Ethnobotanist MARK PLOTKIN. He wrote a book about what he learned about botany and medicine from the Medicine Men of the tropical rain forests. His book is Tales of a Shaman's Apprentice: An Ethnobotanist Searches for New Medicines in the Amazon Rain Forest (Viking). The book was issued in paper back 8/94 by Penguin Books.(Aired 9/21/93) REV. : Music Critic MILO MILES reviews two CD anthologies of Bobby "Blue" Bland "Turn on Your Love Light" and "Pity the Fool". Bland had a number of hits on the "Black Charts" in his peak years from 1957 to 1964 with his big band blues sound. Bland still makes records and performs.

Interview with Alvin Toffler and Heidi Toffler; Interview with Deirdre Bair; Commentary on children and reading. March 13, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502895].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scholars, social critics, and futurists ALVIN and HEIDI TOFFLER, authors of Future Shock (1970). They've gotten a lot of publicity lately, because of their association with Newt Gingrich. GINGRICH sought them out 20 years ago because he was fascinated by their ideas about the "intersection of history and the future." One of the books that GINGRICH has suggested that every member of congress read, is the TOFFLERS' newest. It's Creating a New Civilization: The Politics of the Third Wave. (Turner Publishing) INT. 2: Biographer DEIRDRE BAIR (pronounced "Bear") has written acclaimed biographies of Samuel Beckett (which won the 1981 National Book Award) and Simone de Beauvoir (listed as one of the top ten books of 1990 by The New York Times). BAIR's newest subject is writer and diarist Anais Nin. A reviewer in the Kirkus Reviews writes, "Bair's Nin emerges as the complex woman she was, a woman who inspired both wrath and passion in those whose paths crossed hers." Anais Nin: A Biography (published by G.P. Putnam). REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG talks about reading to his five-year-old daughter.

Interview with Wilbert Rideau; Interview with Jamie Hammerstein; Review of the television show "Under One Roof." March 14, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502896].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fresh Air prison correspondent WILBERT RIDEAU (Ree-doe), editor emeritus of the Angolite, the news magazine of the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola where he is serving a life sentence, talks about dying in prison. With longer sentences and less parole, prisoners are beginning to die in prison. RIDEAU recently spoke with a dying inmate, a prison nurse and a warden who handles funeral arrangements. INT. 2: JAMIE HAMMERSTEIN, Broadway producer, director and past president of the Society of Stage Directors and Choreographers. He has recently helped in the making of a new PBS tribute show about his father, OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN. REV. : NPR TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new CBS drama series "Under One Roof," starring James Earl Jones and Joe Morton.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor PETER FALK (FALL-k). He is best known for his role as a rumpled L.A. detective in the TV series "Columbo," where he garnered three Emmy awards. He currently stars in the recently released film "Roommates," detailing the relationship between a grandfather and grandson. INT. 2: Pulitzer Prize winning playwright DAVID MAMET (MAM-ette) has written a new book, Passover. (St. Martin's Hood) It details a conversation between a grandmother and granddaughter preparing a traditional Passover meal. Through their conversation the grandmother reveals the horrific family history of living through the Polish Pogroms. MAMET also wrote Glengary Glen Ross (for which he won the Pulitzer Prize), Writing in Restaurants, and he wrote the screenplays for The Untouchables and Hoffa. REV. : Fresh Air commentator Maureen Corrigan reviews The Diary of a Young Girl: The Definitive Edition by Anne Frank (Doubleday). The book is a newly expanded edition of the famous diary which Anne's father, Otto Frank, the only survivor, published.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ED GILLESPIE, co-editor of the book, The Contract With America and policy and communications director of the House Republican Conference. He believes the welfare reforms outlined in the Republican agenda are accurate assessments of what is needed to correct the current welfare system. Since 1985 MR. GILLESPIE has worked for Rep. DICK ARMNEY . INT. 2: Director of the National Center on Hunger, Poverty and Nutrition at Tufts University, DR. LARRY BROWN. He directed a recent study titled "Statement on Key Welfare Reform Issues: The Empirical Evidence." The study revealed the assumptions behind the Republican "Contract With America" regarding welfare reform to be wrong. He agrees reform is necessary but feels reform must be focused on the right target. REV. : Fresh Air rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album "To Bring You My Love,"(Island Records) from the English band PJ Harvey. The album is being touted as the bands commercial breakthrough.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former U.S. President JIMMY CARTER. He's written eight books since his presidency, including several memoirs. His newest book is a collection of his poems, Always a Reckoning, and Other Poems, (Random House). In this half of the show, Terry will talk with him about his diplomacy work, most recently negotiating agreements in Bosnia and Haiti. (This interview continues in the second half of the show, after the interview with ROSALYNN CARTER) (REBROADCAST FROM 1/17/95) Former First Lady ROSALYNN CARTER. She has a new book, Helping Yourself Help Others: A Book for Caregivers (Times Books). She talks with Terry about helping others and about her life since she and her husband left the White House. (REBROADCAST FROM 11/17/94) INT. 2: Interview with JIMMY CARTER continues. In this half, Terry talks with him about his poetry. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Exotica."

---

Interview with Michael Tonry; Interview with Ann Charters; Review of Medesk Martin & Wood's album "Friday Afternoon in the Universe." March 20, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502491].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MICHAEL TONRY. TONRY is a professor of Law and Public Policy at the University of Minnesota. His new book Malign Neglect: Race Crime, and Punishment in America (Oxford University Press) discusses how our current approach to fighting crime victimizes disadvantaged black Americans. He calls for a reform of sentencing and parole policies. INT. 2: ANN CHARTERS, the biographer of beat writer Jack Kerouac. She has just edited two new collections of Kerouac's writings: The Portable Jack Kerouac, and Jack Kerouac: Selected Letters (both published by Viking). She reads from some of Kerouac's letters, and discusses how he translated his life into his writing. CHARTERS teaches at the University of Connecticut in Storrs, CT. REV. : Jazz Critic Kevin Whitehead reviews the new cd by the jazz trio Medeski, Martin and Wood. It's called "Friday Afternoon in the Universe" (Gramma Vision).

---

Interview with Judith Musick; Interview with Fontella Bass; Review of the television show "NewsRadio." March 21, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502894].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JUDITH MUSICK, director of the Ounce of Prevention Fund, a pregnancy prevention and teenage-parent programs in Illinois, and author of the new book, Young, Poor and Pregnant: The Psychology of Teenage Motherhood (Yale University Press). Musick believes that impoverished adolescent girls become young mothers as an attempt to create a future and an identity. INT. 2: Gospel/R&B singer FONTELLA BASS has a new gospel album, "No Ways Tired." Her R&B hit "Rescue Me" came out in 1965. She was given no credits and no royalties for the song. Soon after, disenchanted with the industry, she retired to raise a family. In recent years she has been on a comeback while getting back to her roots as a gospel singer. REV.: Fresh Air TV critic David Bianculli reviews the new sitcom premiering on NBC tonight, "NewsRadio."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ONCE WERE WARRIORS director LEE TAMAHORI (TOM-a-hore-ee) and it's star RENA(Rain-a) OWEN. This critically acclaimed new film takes a front-line look at an urban Maori(MOW-er-ee) family plagued by poverty, violence and alcoholism. The movie recently became the top grossing film in New Zealand history. INT. 2: DR. JODY HEYMANN, physician, and author of the new book Equal Partners: A Physicians Call for a New Spirit of Medicine (Little, Brown & Co.) She chronicles her own story of turning from physician to patient overnight after suffering a seizure and consequent brain surgeries. The extremes of care she received revolutionized her perception of a physicians role in patient treatment. REV.: Fresh Air Rock Critic KEN TUCKER looks back at the music of DOC POMUS(PALM-us) and the new tribute album to him, "Till the Night Is Gone."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist/Rock Historian DANIEL WOLFF has written a new biography, You Send Me: The Life and Times of Sam Cooke (Morrow) WOLFF was aided in his research by many people who were close to Cooke. One of them, S.R. CRAIN, a co-founder of the Soul Stirrers (Sam Cooke) and later Cooke's manager, is also interviewed. Susan Richardson of Rolling Stone describes WOLFF'S book as "alive, springing off the page to engage you like the latest box office draw." WOLFF has also written about pop and gospel for Vogue, Musician, The Nation and many other publications. INT. 2: Film Writer/Director ATOM EGOYAN (EE-goy-an) has just made a new movie, "Exotica." The movie won the International Critics Prize at the Cannes Film Festival at the 1994 awards. Exotica is considered to be EGOYAN'S breakthrough movie. Andrew Sarris of the New York Observer says when the movie ended, "I sat stunned in the theater...Exotica [was] high on my ten best list."

Interview with Samuel L. Jackson; Review of the CD box set "The Envelope Please"; Interview with Chazz Palminteri; Interview with Gary Sinise; Review of the film "Losing Isaiah." March 24, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503026].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor SAMUEL JACKSON was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor for his role as Jules Winnfield in "Pulp Fiction." Jackson's character is a partner in crime with Vincent Vega who is played by John Travolta. Jackson also stars in the new film "Losing Isaiah," and will be in two upcoming films "Kiss of Death" and "Die Hard With a Vengeance." Jackson won wide acclaim for his role in Spike Lee's "Jungle Fever." (REBROADCAST 07/19/1991) REV : Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a five-cd set of all of the Oscar winning songs of the last 60 years. INT. 2: Actor Chazz Palminteri was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor for his role in Woody Allen's film "Bullets over Broadway." (REBROADCAST FROM 11/16/1994) INT. 3 : Actor Gary Sinise is up for an Oscar for his supporting role in "Forrest Gump." Senise also starred in a film version of "Of Mice and Men." (REBROADCAST FROM 09/24/1992) REV. ; Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Losing Isaiah."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African Journalist ALLISTER SPARKS. He's written about secret negotiations that started in 1986 between South African leaders and then-jailed political prisoner Nelson Mandela. The meetings ultimately led to the dismantling of Apartheid. His new book is Tomorrow is Another Country. He served as South African Correspondent for The Observer and for The Washington Post from 1981-1992. He lives in Johannesburg, South Africa. INT. 2: In 1989, EVELYN LAU became a best-selling author with her first book: Runaway: Diary of a Street Kid (Harper Collins), a memoir of her years on the streets as a suicidal drug addicted teenage prostitute. She also wrote two books of her poetry: You Are Not Who You Claim and Oedipal Dreams. LAU’s latest is a collection of short stories titled Fresh Girls and Other Stories. It’s been released in the United States by Hyperion. It was released by Harper Collins in 1993 but its distribution was limited. The 23 year old writer lives in Vancouver, Canada. REV. Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Wonder Boys," by Michael Chabon (SHAY-bin). His first novel, a best seller, "The Mysteries of Pittsburgh" was originally written as his Master’s Thesis in college.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Defense analyst and professor MICHAEL KLARE, author of Rogue States and Nuclear Outlaws: America's Search for a New Foreign Policy. (Hill and Wang/Farrar, Straus & Giroux). The book explores the current tendency of the Pentagon to focus on Third World countries as the new threat to U.S. national security. KLARE is defense correspondent for The Nation, a frequent commentator on National Public Radio, and Professor of Peace and World Security Studies at Hampshire College. REV. TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "A Comedy Salute to Andy Kaufman," which airs Wednesday on NBC. INT. 2: Writer JAN L. WALDRON was 17 when she gave her baby daughter, Simone, up for adoption. WALDRON’s own mother was adopted, and in turn left her children when WALDRON was eleven. In Giving Away Simone: A Memoir (Times Books) WALDRON tells of the parting and then meeting again with her eleven-year-old daughter, now renamed Rebecca. Rebecca is the fifth generation of women in the family to be abandoned by their mothers and in reuniting with her, WALDRON is determined to break that cycle of leaving. Rebecca joins the conversation. REV. MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Jane Smiley's novel Moo.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer WILLIAM MAXWELL has a new collection of short stories All the Days and Nights (Knopf) MAXWELL was fiction editor of the New Yorker from 1936-1976. He worked with such authors as J.D. Salinger, Jon Cheever, Jon Updike, Eudora Welty and scores of others. Jon Updike has said Maxwell's voice is "one of the wisest in American fiction. It is, as well, one of the kindest. INT. 2: MAXWELL CONTINUED REV. : MILO MILES reviews an anthology of bluegrass collections by Bill Monroe.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. THOMAS MOORE, Senior Fellow at George Washington's Center for Health Policy Research and author of the new book, Deadly Medicine: Why Tens of Thousands of Heart Patients died in America's Worst Drug Disaster (Simon & Schuster) Moore tells the story of a certain line of drugs that prevented irregular heartbeats but were consequently shown to be dangerous and even fatal. Yet the drug remained on the market due in large part to the giant pharmaceuticals power over the FDA. Deadly Medicine is MOORES's third book on the medical system. INT. 2: DR. ROBERT TEMPLE, Director of the FDA's Office of Drug Evaluation. TEMPLE is a large figure in Thomas Moore's new book. He is the man Moore says let the harmful drugs remain on the market virtually unrestricted, even though the risks were known. He gives the reason why the FDA let the drugs remain on the market. REV. Interview with ROBERT TEMPLE continues.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BEVERLY AND DERECK JOUBERT (pronounce "Jo-Bear"), wildlife documentary producers. This husband and wife team lives in northern Botswana, seven hours from the nearest village. Working and living out of a four-wheel drive vehicle, they have captured the family relationships of the last free-roaming elephants left in Africa. Their wildlife film, "Reflections on Elephants," contains ground-breaking footage of lions attacking an elephant calf. Previously, such attacks were thought to be only mythical. (REBROADCAST FROM 2/2/94) The JOUBERTS have just won a Peabody award for the film. INT. 2: Biologist EDWARD O. WILSON has been called "The Ant Man" by The New York Times Magazine. He has spent most of his life studying ants and other insects, and has written a number of books on the subject. He co-authored the critically-acclaimed The Ants with Bert Holldobler. The pair have just published a sequel to that work, Journey to the Ants (The Belkap Press of Harvard University Press), and WILSON has written a memoir, Naturalist (Island Press), that chronicles his love of ants. (REBROADCAST FROM 10/24/95) REV. Commentator GERALD EARLY reflects on saxophonist Charlie Parker. His commentary is inspired by "Charlie Parker with Strings: The Master Takes" (Clef Records).

Interview with John Dominic Crossan; Commentary on Specialty Records; Interview with John Dominic Crossan; Review of Germaine Montero's album "Folk Songs of Spain." April 3, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503207].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor JOHN DOMINIC CROSSAN (CROSS-in). A native of Ireland, ordained as a priest in the U.S. (he left the Priesthood in 1969), CROSSAN now teaches biblical studies at DePaul University. CROSSAN is a founding member of the Jesus Seminar, a group of scholars who meet to determine the authenticity of Jesus' sayings in the Gospels. CROSSAN was last on the show in 1994 to talk about his book, Jesus: A Revolutionary Biography (HarperCollins). CROSSAN's latest book is Who Killed Jesus: Exposing the Roots of Anti-Semitism in the Gospel Story of The Death of Jesus (Harper San Francisco). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD remembers the 1950s record label Specialty Records. INT. 2: Interview with JOHN DOMINIC CROSSAN continues. REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a reissue of Germaine Montero's album "Folks Songs of Spain."

Interview with Al Franken; Commentary on Island Records; Interview with Geshe Thupten Jinpa; Review of Harold Melvin and the Blue Notes' album "If You Don't Know Me By Now." April 4, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503095].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian AL FRANKEN, writer and actor on "Saturday Night Live." His characters have included the one-man mobile uplink unit, Pat Robertson, Paul Tsongas, and Stuart Smalley, host of "Daily Affirmations with Stuart Smalley." In 1992, FRANKEN published a book under Stuart's name; Stuart's new project is an upcoming movie called "Stuart Saves His Family." REV.: Rock Historian Ed Ward continues his five part series on what impact several small record companies have had on the music world. Today he discusses musician Chris Blackwell and the origins of his label, Island. INT. 2: GESHE THUPTEN JINPA (GE-shee TOOP-ten JIN-pa), the principle translator for the Dalai Lama. THUPTEN JINPA was a refugee in India as a child, became a monk at a Tibetan monastery, and is now working on his Ph.D at Cambridge University. He is the translator, editor and annotator of The World of Tibetan Buddhism (Wisdom Publications, written by the Dalai Lama. The Dalai Lama is the spiritual and political leader of the Tibetan people, and won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1989. Rev. 2: World music critic Milo Miles has a review of a new CD called "If You Don't Know Me by Now: The Best of Harold Melvin and Blue Notes." (Legacy's Rhythm & Soul Series)

Interview with Linda Wertheimer; Commentary on Casablanca Records; Interview with Linda Wertheimer; Tribute to Julius Hemphill. April 5, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503425].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LINDA WERTHEIMER has been with NPR since the network first went on the air with All Things Considered, May 3, 1971. Wertheimer is a host of NPR's All Things Considered. Wertheimer has come out with a book that looks back at some of the key events in American history as they were

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music legend, MERLE HAGGARD. HAGGARD has been on the country music scene since the early sixties and has more no. 1 hits than any country music star except Conway Twitty. Recently two tribute albums of the songs of MERLE HAGGARD were released: Mama's Hungry Eyes and Tulare Dust. HAGGARD was also recently inducted to the Country Music Hall of Fame. REV. 1: Fresh Air rock historian Ed Ward profiles the Sugar Hill Records label. INT. 2: Writer WENDY KAMINER has a new book, It's All the Rage: Crime and Culture (Addison-Wesley). Kaminer's new book starts where her last one, I'm Dysfunctional, You're Dysfunctional left off. The new book offers insights into our culture's larger questions of individual responsibility, victimization, punishment, innocence and guilt. Kaminer is also a contributing editor to the Atlantic Monthly and Public Fellow at Radcliffe College. REV. : Fresh Air book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN looks at the short story collection "Krik? Krak!" by acclaimed novelist Edwidge Danticat.

Interview with Charlton Heston; Interview with Elmer Bernstein; Interview with Martin Scorsese; Commentary on SST Records; Commentary on foreign accents in Hollywood films; Interview with

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor CHARLETON HESTON. A consistent lead in the biblical epics of the 1950's and 1960's, HESTON had starring roles in "The Greatest Story Ever Told" and "The Ten Commandments"; HESTON also covered the Roman era in epics like "Ben Hur," "Julius Caesar," "Antony & Cleopatra," and medieval Spain, in "El Cid." "The Ten Commandments" is being shown on ABC on Sunday. (REBROADCAST FROM 11/30/90). Composer ELMER BERNSTEIN. He's composed the scores for almost 80 films, including "The Man With the Golden Arm," "The Magnificent Seven," and "The Ten Commandments". Lately he's done the scores for "The Field" and "The Grifters." (REBROADCAST FROM 1/10/91) Film Director MARTIN SCORSESE. He directed "The Last Temptation of Christ" in 1988. His other films include "Taxi Driver," "Goodfellas," and "Age of Innocence." In 1993, as part of a retrospective of his work by the Film Society of Lincoln Center, the Department of Cinema Studies at NYU presented "An Evening With Martin Scorsese" - a wide ranging question and answer session taped live before an audience at New York University. In this excerpt from that talk, Scorsese explores some of the special difficulties involved in shooting a biblical epic in the desert with very little money. (REBROADCAST FROM 6/11/93) REV 1: Rock critic ED WARD looks at the history of the SST record label. INT. 2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses good and bad accents in the movies. Actor KIRK DOUGLAS. The star of "Lust for Life," "Paths of Glory," "Champion" and Stanley Kubrick's epic, "Spartacus," about a leader of slaves revolting against Republican Rome. (REBROADCAST FROM 8/22/88). Actor TONY CURTIS. In 1960 he starred in "Spartacus." A restored version of the film was released in 1991 that includes previously cut scenes, including one where Lawrence Olivier --as a general-- tries to seduce his slave, played by CURTIS. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/19/91). REV. 2: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Priest," the new movie that has been co

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer TAD SZULC (Schultz) has a new book, Pope John Paul II: The Biography. (Scribner) The book details the Pope's early years in Poland through his climb to the papacy after being elevated to archbishop in 1963. Szulc traveled with the Pope extensively, had access to many of his private papers and interviewed many of the Pope's old schoolmates, friends and fellow priests. Szulc is a former New York Times bureau chief. INT. 2: PAUL SIMMS, creator of the new NBC sit-com "News Radio." This is SIMMS' first entry into the world of sit-coms but SIMMS previously worked as writer for both the "The Larry Sanders Show," and "Late Night with David Letterman." He also wrote for Spy Magazine.

REV. :Commentator GERALD EARLY looks back at the legacy of Jackie Robinson.

---

Interview with Sidney Lumet; Review of John Prine's album "Lost Dogs and Mixed Blessings"; Interview with Dubravka Ugresic; Review of an album of Tchaikovsky's "Mazeppa." April 11, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502159].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film Director SIDNEY LUMET has directed 40 films, which have received over 50 Academy Award Nominations. His films include "Network," "Fail-Safe," "Dog Day Afternoon," and "The Prince of the City." He details his craft in his new book Making Movies. We'll feature an interview with Lumet recorded in 1988. (Originally aired 8/23/88) REV 1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews John Prine's new CD "Lost Dogs and Mixed Blessings" (Ohboy Records). INT. 2: Terry Gross talks with Croatian writer DUBRAVKA (doo-BRAV-kah) UGRESIC (ooh-GREH-sich) about her book Have a Nice Day: From the Balkan War to the American Dream. Part memoir, part short story collection, the book chronicles the writer's transplanted life as a lecturer in Middletown, Connecticut, a world away from the brutal Balkan war. Using the form of a personal "dictionary," UGRESIC pieces together a world and identity from fragmentary headings like "Couch Potato", "Refugee", and "Harassment." REV. :Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new recording of a major Tchaikovsky opera that's virtually unknown in the United States. It's called "Mazeppa" (Deutsche Grammophon) Interview with Tim Roth; Interview with Winifried Bonengel; Tribute to Rachid Baba Ahmed and Selena. April 12, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502369].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor TIM ROTH. ROTH has been in many recent films such as "Tom and Viv" and "Pulp Fiction." He is currently in the new release "Rob Roy." INT. 2: Documentary film maker WINFRIED BONENGEL. In 1993 BONENGEL made the film "Profession: Neo Nazi," which follows Ewald Althans, a rising leader on Germany's neo-nazi scene. Althans is different from the stereotypical neo-nazi: intelligent, successful and well-dressed. The film ignited one of the fiercest debates on documentary film making in Germany's history. The film was barred from many states and the distributor was forced to withdraw it from circulation. REV. :World music critic MILO MILES remembers two musicians who were recently killed by violence: Rachid Baba Ahmed, a producer and musician of Algerian Rai Music, and Tejano music's Selena.

Interview with Willie Mitchell; Interview with Martin Scorsese; Review of the film "Don Juan de Marco." April 13, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502161].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record Producer WILLIE MITCHELL. A new retrospective album of the 60's and 70's "Hi Label" hits has been released. Mitchell was one of the hit makers for the Memphis based label in its early days and later was the influential producer who made the sounds of soul greats Al Green, Ann Peebles and Otis Clay so well known. INT. 2: Film director MARTIN SCORSESE, one of the most influential men of contemporary film. SCORSESE has helped restore four classic films from the 1950s which he says had a profound influence on his own films: "Force of Evil," "Johnny Guitar," "Pursued" and "A Double Life." REV. : Film critic STEVEN SCHIFF reviews the new film "Don Juan de Marco" starring Johnny Depp, Marlon Brando and Faye Dunaway.
Interview with Wallace Stegner; Interview with Harry Carey, Jr.; Interview with James Conaway; Commentary on Carl Perkins. April 14, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502157].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer WALLACE STEGNER. STEGNER died in 1993. A new edition of his collected stories will be published in June. STEGNER's novels and essays are often based in the West where he grew up and lived for many years. STEGNER started the creative writing program at Stanford University in California, which he ran for 26 years. His last book of essays, published in 1992, is called Where the Bluebird Sings to the Lemonade Springs (Random House) (REBROADCAST FROM 4/15/92) INT. 2: Actor HARRY CAREY, JR., who appeared in many John Ford westerns, including "3 Godfathers" and "Rio Grande," and the Howard Hawks film "Red River." (REBROADCAST FROM 10/13/89) INT. 3: Journalist JAMES CONAWAY. His 1987 book author of The Kingdom in the Country looks at the wide expanse of public lands in the West and how the myths of the west - cowboys, gunslingers, gold miners - are enduring. (REBROADCAST FROM 10/16/87) REV: Rock historian ED WARD remembers Carl Perkins.

Review of the film "Crumb"; Interview with Terry Zwigoff; Interview with Bill Griffith; Commentary on the Treniers. April 17, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502158].

Description of show segment(s)

REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER review the new documentary, Crumb. INT. 1: Producer/ Director TERRY ZWIGOFF. ZWIGOFF recently released a new documentary, "CRUMB." The film was shot over seven years and follows the life of Robert Crumb, the famous underground artist who popularized character's such as Mr. Natural, Flakey Foont and Keep on Truckin'. The film won the Grand Jury Prize for best documentary and cinematography at the Sundance Film Festival. ZWIGOFF'S last documentary was "Louie Bluie." INT. 2: Cartoonist BILL GRIFFITH creator of "Ziggy." GRIFFITH traveled to Cuba last fall which became the inspiration for "Cuba Uncovered", a month long series of strips on the Cuban situation. GRIFFITH created "Ziggy" over 25 years ago and it is currently syndicated in over 200 newspapers. GRIFFITH is also one of the cartoonists interviewed in the new documentary, "CRUMB."

REV. : Fresh Air rock critic MILO MILES looks back on the Treniers and rock and roll before Elvis.

---

Interview with Steven Waldman; Interview with Timothy Penny; Review of James Carter's albums "The Real Quietstorm" and "JC on the Set." April 18, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502727].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist STEVEN WALDMAN is National Correspondent for Newsweek. His new book The Bill: How the Adventures of Clinton's National Service Bill Reveal What is Corrupt, Comical, Cynical - and Nobel - about Washington (Viking), follows Bill Clinton's plan to revamp the college loan system, from idea to implementation. Clinton first talked about his plan during the Presidential campaign, and once he was in the White House, work began on what became AMERICORPS. WALDMAN was there for many private meetings on the subject where everyone from the President, the White House staff, the Department of Education, Congress people, National Service Reps, and student aid groups were in attendance. INT. 2: Former Congressman TIMOTHY J. PENNY was in Congress for twelve years. He's just written a new book about the cultures that modern lawmakers bring to Congress which he says "have gnawed away at the sturdy foundations of republican democracy and trustworthy service that our Founding Fathers bequeathed." PENNY’s new book is Common Cents (Little, Brown & Co.) which he wrote with journalist Major Garrett. PENNY is now spokesperson for the Concord Coalition, a bipartisan coalition that promotes fiscal responsibility and deficit reduction. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITHEAD reviews two new releases by saxophonist James Carter: "The Real Quietstorm" (Atlantic) and "JC on The Set," (Columbia).

---

Interview with Frank Salomon; Interview with Thomas Hine; Interview with Scott Peck and Fred Peck. April 19, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502368].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: 1) FRANK SALOMON, a member of the Phoenix Fire Department's Urban Search and Rescue Unit, which is one its way to Oklahoma City to help with the rescue efforts there. 2) Architecture and Design Critic THOMAS HINE. HINE has written a new book, The Total Package: The Evolution and Secret Meanings of Boxes, Bottles, Cans and Tubes (Little, Brown Co.) HINE explores the affect packages have on consumer emotions and purchases. He unveils how packaging, from Tide's orange box to Lifesaver's sleek cylinder plays on our sensibilities in making brand choices. INT. 2: Writer SCOTT PECK and his father Colonel FRED PECK. PECK has written his first book, All American Boy (Scribner) a memoir of his life growing up in an abusive home with his step-father and the rebuilding of his relationship with his father after a fourteen year estrangement. PECK was thrust on the national scene in May 1993 when his Marine Colonel father spoke against gays in the military to the Senate Armed Services Committee. Col. Peck went on to say his oldest son, Scott, was gay, and though he loved him, he should not be able to serve in the military.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PATRICK MCGUIGAN, editorial page editor of the Daily Oklahoman. INT. 2: ROBERT JAY LIFTON, expert psychologist on mass social trauma and psychological after affects from anger, rage and vulnerability. LIFTON directs the center on violence and Human Survival at the City University of New York John Jay College. INT. 3: DAVID FISHER, author of Hard Evidence, about the FBI Lab's work to investigate bombings.

Interview with Mickey Mantle; Interview with Jim Bouton; Review of the film "Kiss of Death"; Interview with Frank Robinson; Interview with Bob Gibson; Interview with Keith Hernandez. April 21, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502899].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Baseball legend MICKEY MANTLE. Terry talks with the Yankees' slugger, whose father had his career in pro baseball planned before he was born. Mantle played his entire 17-year career with one team, the New York Yankees. This was recorded in 1985. INT 2: A 1986 interview with former Yankees pitcher JIM BOUTON. In 1970, BOUTON's memoir Ball Four was published. Those who wanted to maintain major league baseball's image as the home of heroes were scandalized by the book; others thought it was about time someone revealed that baseball is full of real people and real problems. Ball Four made an enemy for Bouton of baseball legend Mickey Mantle by reminiscing about Mantle's on- and off-field drunkenness. REV. : Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Kiss of Death." It stars David Caruso, Samuel Jackson, and Nicolas Cage. INT 3: FRANK ROBINSON, Assistant General Manager of the Baltimore Orioles. In 1975, he became the first black manager in baseball, As a player, Robinson was legendary. He is the only player ever to win the Most Valuable Player award in both leagues. His book, Extra Innings, addresses the question of racism in baseball, first broached in a broadly public way when Al Campanis, the former general manager for the Los Angeles Dodgers said on a "Nightline" interview that blacks "lacked the necessities" to manage a baseball team. (Originally broadcast 6/10/88) INT. 4: Former Cardinals' pitcher BOB GIBSON was a record-breaking baseball player in the 1960's, and was inducted into the baseball Hall of Fame in 1981. His autobiography explores his rise from the Omaha projects to the major leagues, and being an early black ballplayer. The book is Stranger to the Game (Viking). (Originally Broadcast 10/6/94) INT 5: Former Major Leaguer KEITH HERNANDEZ. Called by some baseball purists the finest First Baseman in the game, HERNANDEZ played with the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Mets, and the Cleveland Indians. He is the winner of eleven consecutive Golden Glove Aw

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Secretary of Defense ROBERT McNAMARA has written a book, In Retrospect: The Tragedy and Lessons of Vietnam (Times Books) The book contains the long awaited admission that McNAMARA felt the U.S. policy in Vietnam was wrong and the war was unwinnable. He details the behind-the-scenes decision making policies that escalated the war and the atmosphere of the times which made them feel they had no choice but to do so. INT. 2: Actor PETER GALLAGHER. GALLAGHER is starring in two soon to be released films, "The Underneath," and "While You Were Sleeping." The New York Times said, "the first hit of summer is here," about "While You Were Sleeping." Gallagher has been on the acting scene for over two decades. He has worked steadily, but only recently has he garnered commercial success in film. Gallagher is well known on Broadway as the star of "Guys and Dolls." REV. : Fresh Air TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks back at the 1994-95 TV season that just ended and the ratings that just came in.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROCHELLE & ANTHONY YATES. On July 18, 1988 the YATES' five year old son Marcus was killed in gun crossfire between two drug dealers fighting for turf in a corner store. There were 11 children in the store playing video games, two others were shot but survived, one of them was Marcus' six year old brother. Since the incident the YATES' have become activists against senseless violence; they lecture to high schools, take in foster children who have lost family members to violence, run a day care center and organize community activities to take back neighborhoods. INT. 2: YATES interview continued. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews The Information, by Martin Amis.
Interview with Norman Mailer; Interview with Sharon Gless and Tyne Daly; Commentary on proper nouns. April 27, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502904].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two time Pulitzer Prize winning novelist, NORMAN MAILER, joins us to talk about his new book Oswald's Tale: An American Mystery (Random House 1995. non-fiction) Mailer says we must ask "Who was Oswald?" as a prelude to asking "Who killed JFK?". The book profiles Lee Harvey Oswald's life.... Mailer published his first book in 1948. The Naked and the Dead Oswald's Tale... is Mailer's 28th book. In 1968, He won a Pulitzer Prize for Armies of the Night and was again a Pulitzer recipient in 1980 for The Executioner's Song. He is co-founder of The Village Voice and was president of AMERICAN PEN from 1984 to 1986. INT. 2: The stars of the Emmy Award winning TV series "Cagney & Lacey" SHARON GLESS (Christine Cagney) and TYNE DALY (Mary Beth Lacy). The two play New York City Police detectives. The series aired on CBS from 1982 to 1988. This Tuesday the two will be reunited in the two-hour TV movie "Cagney & Lacey: Together Again." The movie is the second two-hour episode since the series ended. "C&G" was the first TV crime show in which the two central characters were female. The TV series won 14 Emmy Awards and one Golden Globe Award. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG looks at how some proper nouns, lose their capital letter status, but in exchange gain a coveted slot as common nouns.

Interview with Harold Moore and Joseph Galloway; Interview with David Halberstam; Interview with Michael Herr; Obituary for Maggie Kuhn; Commentary on Pierre Boulez. April 28, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502900].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lt. Gen. HAROLD MOORE and U.S. News and World Report Senior Writer JOSEPH GALLOWAY. On November 14, 1965 they were together at the site one of the first and bloodiest major land battle of the Vietnam War, Ia Drang. MOORE was in command of the 1st battalion of the 7th Cavalry, and GALLOWAY, then a UPI reporter, accompanied them. MOORE and GALLOWAY wrote a book about their experiences in the Ia Drang valley, We Were Soldiers Once...And Young (Random House). (REBROADCAST FROM 11/11/92) Journalist and best-selling author DAVID HALBERSTAM. He won a Pulitzer Prize in 1964 for his reporting from Vietnam. He was one of the first American reporters to contradict the government's optimistic picture of the war. He was attacked by officials of South Vietnam and the United States for negativism and inaccuracy in his reporting. In 1967 HALBERSTAM retired from newspaper reporting. His books since then include The Best and Brightest, The Powers That Be, The Fifties, and others. (REBROADCAST FROM 08/22/1995) Writer MICHAEL HERR. He wrote what's considered the definitive Vietnam book, Dispatches. The movie "Apocalypse Now" is loosely based on his writings. (REBROADCAST FROM 5/22/90) INT. 2: Advocate for the aging, MAGGIE KUHN. She died last Saturday at age 89. She won national attention for the cause of the elderly when she formed The Gray Panthers, a highly successful lobbying group that pressured local, state and federal agencies recognize the rights of the aging. (REBROADCAST FROM 5/5/89) REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews new and reissued recordings conducted by Pierre Boulez on Sony and Deutsche Gramophone.

Interviwe with Isabel Allende; Interview with Kayo Hatta; Commentary on Dutch jazz. May 1, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502776].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ISABEL ALLENDE (I-en-day) has published her first work of non-fiction, Paula (Harper Collins) The book was inspired when her 28 year old daughter fell into an irreversible coma. Paula began as a letter to her dying daughter and turned into an autobiographical work telling of life from ALLENDE's childhood in Chile to her exile in Venezuela and her move to San Francisco. Publisher's Weekly says, "Only a writer of Allende's passion and skill could share her tragedy with her readers and leave them exhilarated and grateful." Two of Allende's previous works of fiction, The House of Spirits and Of Love and Shadows, have been made into motion pictures. INT. 2: Writer/Director KAYO HATTA. Hatta's film "Picture Bride," is the story of a young woman who moves to Hawaii as a "picture bride." Picture brides were Japanese women who moved to Hawaii in order to marry the Japanese plantation workers who settled there. The women would only have seen a picture of their future husband before they were married. The film is HATTA'S first commercial release and the first Hawaiian production to gain a commercial release. "Picture Bride," won the 1995 Sundance Film Festival Audience Award for best dramatic film. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD discusses Dutch jazz.

Description of show segment(s)

REV 1: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Scott Spencer's new book, Men In Black (Knopf)
INT. 1: Novelist SCOTT SPENCER. His new book, Men In Black (Knopf), was called "charmingly funny-sad" by the New York Times. His previous books include Last Night at the Brain Thieves' Ball, Endless Love, and Waking the Dead. SPENCER has been writing for most of his life, but says that "there is really nothing interesting about my life of a biographical nature -- born, raised, educated, etc., etc." INT. 2: Writer MARTIN AMIS, author of The Information (Harmony Books). The book is about rivalry in the literary world, which some have said parallels AMIS' own life. Britain's literary world was shocked when AMIS demanded a half-million pound advance on The Information, supposedly to pay for his divorce and costly dental work, and then dumped his long-time agent, who was also the wife of his best friend. The New York Times has called The Information "an uncompromising and highly ambitious novel that should also be a big popular hit." REV. 2: Language commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG takes the "Cosmopolitan" grammar quiz.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN SACRET(SAY-kret) YOUNG, producer of VR.5. VR.5 is the newest show to hit the Fox TV lineup. The show's plot is about Sydney Bloom (Lori Singer), who accidentally discovers she can enter any landscape or time of her choosing through her computer. Once into the new world Bloom is unable to control the events that take place or the actions of those she brings with her. Young also produced the TV show "China Beach." INT. 2: Writer WILLIAM ADLER. ADLER'S first book, Land of Opportunity: One Family's Quest For The American Dream In The Age of Crack (Atlantic Monthly Press) tells the story of the Chambers brothers. The brothers moved to Detroit from Mississippi in the mid-80's in search of economic freedom and found it by setting up the biggest drug business in the city. It was run like a Fortune 500 company with quality control, discounts, employee bonuses and a dress code. William Ferris calls the book a "chilling view of the urban drug scene and the black experience [which] should be read by every American." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Joan Osborne's debut album "Relish."

Interview with Dean Kahler; Interview with Paul Weyrich. May 4, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502637].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DEAN KAHLER (KAY-ler), wounded in the Kent State University shootings. 25 years ago today the Ohio National Guard fired into a crowd of students at Kent State University demonstrating over raids into Cambodia. Four students were killed and nine were injured in the shooting. The National Guard and Governor of Ohio (who ordered the Guard's presence) were exonerated of any responsibility for the shooting. KAHLER was the only survivor to be paralyzed. He is currently a substitute teacher still living in Ohio. INT. 2: Founder of National Empowerment Television (NET) and president of the Free Congress Foundation, PAUL WEYRICH. WEYRICH is a staunch conservative who wants to lead people out of political apathy and towards involvement and influence. The NET likes to refer to itself as C-SPAN with an attitude. And conservatives, especially Newt Gingrich who hosts his own show on the NET, are big advocates of the programming. REV. : No Review, PAUL WEYRICH interview continues.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor ANDRE BRAUGHER (rhymes with "flower"). In the NBC series, "Homicide," he plays the shaved-headed Detective Frank Pembleton, a man described as "eloquent but icy." BRAUGHER was educated at Juilliard and is an experienced Shakespearean actor. His other acting credits include the film, "Glory," and the TNT special, "The Court Martial of Jackie Robinson." (REBROADCAST FROM 1/19/95) REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Ethel Merman - I Get a Kick Out of You." (Flapper) INT. 2: Broadway singer and actor MANDY PATINKIN. He won a Tony Award for his portrayal of Che Guevara in "Evita." He also starred in Stephen Sondheim's "Sunday in the Park with George." He has recorded three solo albums: "Mandy Patinkin," "Dress Casual," and "Experiment." His movies include "The Princess Bride," Yentl, "True Colors," and "The Doctor." Now he plays Dr. Jeffrey

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TONY VARONE remembers V.E. DAY 50 years ago today. He served in the 9th Infantry Division which fought in Europe. He now is Commander of VFW POST in Long Island, New York. DONALD PEARCE fought in Europe in the Canadian Army. Peace kept a diary during his tour of duty. His 1965 book Journal Of A War: North-west Europe 1944-1945 chronicles the battles fought in Belgian and the Netherlands. INT. 2: Biographer BARBARA LEAMING. She's written a new biography of Katharine Hepburn, in which she places the actress' life in the context of her family's history: one of tragic and political importance. Katherine Hepburn's grandfather committed suicide, as did her brother. In fact Hepburn discovered the body of her 15 year old brother. Hepburn's mother was a major figure in the radical suffrage movement, and a friend of Margaret Sanger. Katharine Hepburn is published by Crown. Leaming is also the author of a biography of Orson Welles. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new CD by the British singer/songwriter and pianist Steve Beresford: "Steve Beresford Signals for Tea" (Avant)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: HANAN MIKHAIL-ASHRAWI, former spokesperson for the P-L-O from 1991 to 1993. ASHRAWI was the chief spokesperson for the Palestinian delegation at the Middle East peace negotiations. There are two books about her life and her role in the peace process: her personal account, This Side of Peace (Simon & Schuster), and A Voice of Reason: Hanan Ashrawi and Peace in the Middle East by Barbara Victor (Harcourt Brace). INT. 2: Screenwriter and novelist RICHARD PRICE. His books include The Wanderers, Bloodbrothers, and Clockers, which was a National Book Critic Circle Award nominee. He was also nominated for an Academy Award in 1986 for his screenplay of "The Color of Money." His other screenplays are "Sea of Love," "Night and the City" and "Mad Dog and Glory." His newest credit is "Kiss of Death," which stars David Caruso, Samuel Jackson and Nicholas Cage. REV.: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews The Distinguished Guest by Sue Miller. (HarperCollins)

Interview with Michael Reynolds; Interview with Cornel West and Michael Lerner. May 10, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502182].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Investigator MICHAEL REYNOLDS with the Klan watch Militia Task Force, with the Southern Poverty Law Center. The task force assisted in the investigation of the Oklahoma City bombing. They have information on more than 180 militias around the country. INT. 2: Two men influential in their communities: CORNEL WEST, professor of Afro-American studies at Harvard, and author of Race Matters, and MICHAEL LERNER, editor of Tikkun, a magazine of Jewish political and social commentary, and author of Jewish Renewal: A Path to Healing and Transformation. They have collaborated on a new book about the relationship between Jews & Blacks. It's called Jews & Blacks: Let the Healing Begin (Grosset/Putnam). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE ATC PROMO) REV.: No Review, Interview with CORNEL WEST and MICHAEL LERNER continued.

Interview with Alison Des Forges; Interview with Iqbal Riza; Review of the television show "E.R." May 11, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502308].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ALISON DES FORGES (pronounced DAY-FORZSH) is a consultant to Human Rights Watch Africa. Last month, the Rwandan Patriotic Army opened fire at a refugee camp. Human Rights Watch says 2000 people were killed. Des Forges visited the camp following the massacre. DES FORGES is also the Co-Chair of the International Commission on Human Rights Abuse in Rwanda. She is a professor at the State University of New York at Buffalo, where her specialty is the African countries of Rwanda and Burundi. (THIS CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: We'll then hear from IQBAL RIZA (EEK-bahl-Ree-zah). He is Assistant Secretary of General for Peace Keeping Operations for the United Nations. He talks about the UN's role in Rwanda. REV. : T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI has a review of tonight's episode of "E.R." It will be directed by Quentin Tarantino, director of "Pulp Fiction."

Interview with Jimmy Tingle, Paul Mazursky, Robb Forman Dew, and Gary Paulsen; Interview with Dorothy Beam; Interview with Merle Haggard; Interview with Allen Ginsberg; Interview with Amy Tan; Review of the film "Crimson Tide." May 12, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884314].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Stand-up comic JIMMY TINGLE. (REBROADCAST FROM 6/1/90) Filmmaker PAUL MAZURSKY. Mazursky's movies include "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice," "Enemies: A Love Story," "Down and Out In Beverly Hills" and "Scenes From a Mall." (REBROADCAST FROM 2/18/91) Author ROBB FORMAN DEW. In her novels--Dale Loves Sophie to Death (Harper Perennial) and Fortunate Lives (Harper Perennial) - DEW explored the ambiguities and intricacies of families. DEW made her non-fiction debut with a memoir about her son's coming out and the family evolution that followed. It's called The Family Heart and it's just been published in paperback (Ballantine). (REBROADCAST FROM 5/12/94) Writer GARY PAULSEN. He is a prolific writer of children's books. He began writing over twenty years ago, when he was coming to terms with his alcoholism. In 1985, PAULSON won the Newberry Award for children's fiction with Dogsong. He reads from his memoir Eastern Sun, Western Moon. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/12/93) DOROTHY BEAM- Her son Joe Beam died of AIDS in 1989. He was a writer who was in the process of editing his second anthology of Black gay writing. Dorothy helped finish the work her son started, and it was published in 1992 as Brother to Brother: New Writings by Black Gay Men (Alyson Publications). (REBROADCAST FROM 2/25/92) INT. 2: Country music legend, MERLE HAGGARD. HAGGARD has been on the country music scene since the early sixties and has more number one hits than any country music star except Conway Twitty. Recently two tribute albums of his songs were released: Mama's Hungry Eyes and Tulare Dust. HAGGARD was also recently inducted to the Country Music Hall of Fame. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/6/95) INT. 2: Country music legend, MERLE HAGGARD. HAGGARD has been on the country music scene since the early sixties and has more number one hits than any country music star except Conway Twitty. Recently two tribute albums of his songs were released: Mama's Hungry Eyes and Tulare Dust. HAGGARD was also recently inducted to the Country Music Hall of Fame. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/6/95) INT. 2: Country music legend, MERLE HAGGARD. HAGGARD has been on the country music scene since the early sixties and has more number one hits than any country music star except Conway Twitty. Recently two tribute albums of his songs were released: Mama's Hungry Eyes and Tulare Dust. HAGGARD was also recently inducted to the Country Music Hall of Fame. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/6/95) INT. 2: Country music legend, MERLE HAGGARD. HAGGARD has been on the country music scene since the early sixties and has more number one hits than any country music star except Conway Twitty. Recently two tribute albums of his songs were released: Mama's Hungry Eyes and Tulare Dust. HAGGARD was also recently inducted to the Country Music Hall of Fame. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/6/95) Poet and countercultural activist ALLEN GINSBERG. His poems include "Howl," and "Kaddish." GINSBERG was part of the group of Beat poets, which also included Jack Kerouac. A four-CD boxed set of Ginsberg's work, "Holy Soul Jelly Roll - Songs and Poems (1949-1993) was released last November (on Rhino's Word Beat label
Interview with Russell Banks; Interview with Fred Wertheimer; Review of Matthew Sweet's album "100% Fun." May 15, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502183].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist RUSSELL BANKS. His new novel is Rule of the Bone (Harper Collins). It's been compared to Mark Twain's The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn because of it's young first-person narrator, and use of comedy to convey grim realities. BANKS'S narrator is 14 year-old Chappie from upstate New York who wears a nose ring and Mohawk. He steals from his parents to pay for dope, is kicked out of the house, becomes homeless, and sets off on a low-life adventure. BANKS is the author of twelve novels including The Sweet Hereafter, Affliction, and Continental Drift. INT. 2: Former president of the public affairs non-partisan lobbying group Common Cause, Fred Wertheimer. As president of the organization (also called the "good government" group) Wertheimer led the charge for campaign finance reform, the banning of special-interest honoraria for members of Congress, and a lobby disclosure law. Wertheimer stepped down earlier this year after 14 years as President. He's been called "the capital's most vocal crusader for reforming the political system" by The Wall Street Journal. REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews "100% Fun," the new release by Matthew Sweet. (Zoo Entertainment).

Interview with Jerry Stahl; Interview with David Salle; Review of Skip James's album "She Lying.' May 16, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502107].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JERRY STAHL. His new memoir is Permanent Midnight (Warner Bros). STAHL was a successful journalist, a scriptwriter for cult film classics like "Cafe Flesh," and "Dr. Caligari," who went on to write for the hit TV shows "Moonlighting," "ALF" and "thirtsomething." STAHL was also a junkie. His new memoir he writes, "You might say that success ruined me. You might say I ruined success." Tobias Wolff says of Stahl's book, "An original, appalling, indelible picture of a man trying to swim and drown at the same time." (Segment) INT. 2: Artist DAVID SALLE' new movie "Search and Destroy" is an adaptation of the Howard Korder play. The film stars Griffin Dunne, Dennis Hopper, Christopher Walken, John Turturro, and Rosanna Arquette. The executive producer is Martin Scorsese. SALLE's work as an artist prompted this quote by the New York Times, "one of the most thoughtful, gifted, and curious artists of his generation." REV. : World music critic Milo Miles reviews the previously unreleased concert recording by Delta Bluesman Skip James. It's called "She Lying." (on the Genes label as part of the 'Blues Vault' series).

Interview with Matthew Broderick; Interview with Thomas Keneally; Obituary for Jimmy Raney. May 16, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502353].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor MATTHEW BRODERICK. He's making his singing and dancing debut in the revival of the broadway musical, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." BRODERICK plays J. Pierrepont Finch, an ambitious window washer who climbs the corporate ladder by "fawning, brown-nosing, sucking up and a touch of backstabbing." The satirical musical was written by Frank Loesser and Abe Burrows and first hit the stage in 1961. BRODERICK is best known for his acting, in such movies as "Torch Song Trilogy," "War Games," and "The Freshman." BRODERICK was recently nominated for a 1995 Tony Award for his performance in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." (Segment) INT. 2: Novelist THOMAS KENEALLY. He's best known for his novel, Schindler's List which was put to film, by director Stephen Spielberg. His new novel, A River Town (Doubleday) is based on the story of his grandfather who left Ireland for Australia at the turn of the century to escape confining social codes. But in Australia he became the outsider, "a white nigger" he says. KENEALLY has written over 20 novels. He is a Distinguished Professor of English and Comparative Literature at the University of California, Irvine. (Segment) REV. : An excerpt of a 1990 interview with jazz guitarist Jimmy Raney. He died May 9 at the age of 67.

Interview with Donald Francis; Review of Michael Sahlins' book "How 'Natives' Think." May 18, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502105].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Epidemiologist DONALD FRANCIS has worked on the AIDS epidemic since 1981, and is currently working on developing a vaccine. He was portrayed by Matthew Modine in "The Band Played On" and was a consultant on "Outbreak." He's worked for the Centers for Disease Control, and has researched Ebola outbreaks in Africa. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews anthropologist Michael Sahlin's book 'How "natives" think : about Captain Cook, for example"

Interview with Robert Haas; Interview with Sharon Olds; Interview with W.S. Merwin; Commentary on an aging mother. May 19, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502305].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Criminologist WALTER DICKEY. He is the author of the report What Every Policy Maker Should Know About Imprisonment and the Crime Rate. Professor Dickey of the University of Wisconsin Law School, has a new way of viewing crime in our society. Based on his recent report issued by the Campaign for an Effective Crime Policy, he and officials have concluded that incarceration has little effect on crime rates. They believe that there are number of factors which limit the impact of prison on crime.

INT. 2: Actor/Comedian RICHARD PRYOR. This nationally acclaimed comedian has recently released his book Pryor Convictions and Other Life Sentences (Pantheon Books). Pryor's autobiographical novel takes readers on a journey through his successful yet struggle-filled life. A strong man who has overcome such ordeals as a drug addiction, self immolation, and six marriages, Pryor is determined to overcome his most recent battle with multiple sclerosis. REV. : Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews The First Recordings of the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the BSO classic label.

Interview with Tanya Metaksa; Interview with Osha Gray Davidson; Commentary on Connie Chung's dismissal from "CBS Evening News." May 23, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502284].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Executive Director of the Institute for Legislative Action, the National Rifle Association's (NRA's) Lobbying Arm TANYA METAKSA (Mah-TAX-a). She responds to criticism of the letter sent to NRA members calling federal agents "jackbooted Government thugs." Metaksa denies that the group has any association with paramilitary groups. The NRA has suffered image problems since the Oklahoma City Bombing. The group recently ended their national convention.

INT. 2: Journalist OSHA GRAY DAVIDSON. His book Under Fire: The NRA and The Battle For Gun Control is now available in paperback. It provides an in-depth look at the growth and evolution of one of the nation's most powerful lobby, the NRA. Davidson has written for a several publications including The New Republic and The

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Member of the Exile Tibetans' Parliament, the Assembly of the Tibetan People's Deputies, TENDZIN CHOEGYAL (ten ZIN 'SHO gyel). He is the youngest brother of the His Holiness the Dalai Lama. Choegyal will be featured in the documentary "Shadow Over Tibet: Stories in Exile." The film will be nationally broadcasted on PBS on Thursday, June, 8, 1995 at 10PM ET/9PM CT. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with TENDZIN CHOEGYAL continued. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY remembers one of the most amazing events in professional boxing’s history: when Mohammed Ali knocked out former champion Sonny Liston.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: KEITH FOURNIER, Head of the American Center for Law and Justice (ACLJ). The ACLJ helped draft the Christian Coalition's Contract with the American Family. The contract, which has been a controversial topic on Capitol Hill, calls on Congress to allow prayer and religious displays in public places, curb pornography, restrict abortion, give tax relief to families, get tough with criminals, promote school choice and end taxpayer funding of the arts. Activist and preacher JIM WALLIS is the editor of Sojourners magazine. Wallis and other Protestant and Catholic officials have started a new coalition "Cry for Renewal." It's their alternative to the conservative agenda of the Christian Coalition. WALLIS is also the author of the book, The Soul of Politics (The New Press/Orbis Books). INT. 2: Actor PETER BOYLE. The Philadelphia native, is the son of early kiddy show star, Uncle Pete. Boyle has made a name for himself in both the TV and film industry. He has been featured in films such as Mel Brooks' "Young Frankenstein," "Taxi Driver," "The Dream Team," and more. Boyle recently played a regular character in the TV show "NYPD Blue." He is currently featured in the movie "While You Were Sleeping."

REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Julian Schnabel's, new album "Every Silver lining has a Cloud." (Island Records)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz vibraphonist, GARY BURTON. He invented a four-mallet grip for the instrument that is used by many contemporary players. BURTON left Stan Getz's quartet in the mid 60's (at the age of 24) to form his own combo; a few years later he hired a young guitarist named Pat Metheny, giving Metheny his first taste of big time jazz. BURTON has been teaching percussion and improvisation classes at the Berklee School of Music in Boston; in 1985 he was named Dean of Curriculum there. BURTON has over fifty albums to his credit and numerous Grammy awards. His unreleased recordings with Stan Getz "Nobody Else But Me" (Verve Records) is now available. His new album is "Face to Face" with pianist Makoto Ozone (GRP). (REBROADCAST FROM 1/5/94) INT. 2: Jazz Saxophonist, STAN GETZ. Born in Philadelphia in 1927, Getz got his start playing with Woody Herman's band. He later went on to form his own quartet. He has worked with such greats as Dizzy Gillespie and Lionel Hampton. In the early 1960's, Getz became the first American musician closely identified with the bossa nova movement. He died in 1991. (REBROADCAST FROM 6/14/90) REV. : Movie critic Stephen Schiff, reviews Mel Gibson's new movie, "Braveheart."

Interview with Laurie Garrett; Commentary on Internet pornography. May 30, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502450].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist LAURIE GARRETT has recently returned from Zaire, where many people have died due to the spread of the Ebola virus. She is the author of the new book, The Coming Plague: Newly Emerging Diseases in a World Out of Balance (Farrar, Straus, Giroux). It explores the emergence of new infectious viruses like AIDS and Ebola, and the new strains of known diseases that are resistant to many treatments. She has been a science reporter for NPR, New York Newsday, Omni, and other publications.

INT. 2: Interview with LAURIE GARRETT continued. REV. : Technology Columnist for Newsweek STEVEN LEVY comments on porn and the internet.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist for the New York Times, ROGER COHEN. He is presently Sarajevo where he has been covering the war. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)
INT. 2: Interview with ROGER COHEN continued REV. : Book critic, MAUREEN CORRIGAN, reviews two summer thrillers The Rainmaker by John Grisham (Doubleday), and Poison by Kathryn Harrison (Random House).

Interview with Martin Mull; Interview with David Margolick; Commentary on the fall television season. June 1, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502448].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian-Actor, MARTIN MULL. He became known for his performance as the anchor man on "Weekend Update," the news parody on Saturday Night Live," and as talk show host for late night show "Fernwood Tonight." MULL recently released his book Paintings, Drawings and Words (Journey Editions). It provides not only a generous survey of his enigmatic art works, but the process by which he creates them. MULL is presently a regular on the TV sitcom "Roseanne." INT. 2: Legal commentator DAVID MARGOLICK. He's the former author of the New York Times "At The Bar" column, and now a frequent contributor. MARGOLICK was recently promoted from the national legal affairs correspondent to San Francisco bureau chief for the New York Times. MARGOLICK is presently covering the O.J. Simpson trial for the Times. His legal columns have been collected into a new book, At the Bar: The Passions and Peccadilloes of American Lawyers (Touchstone) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI shares his thoughts on the trends of the upcoming TV season.
Interview with Don Wasler; Obituary for Stanley Elkin; Review of the film "Bridges of Madison County." June 2, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502288].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music singer and yodeler DON WALSER, "the best pure cowboy singer in the state" (Houston Chronicle). At age 60, WALSER has retired from his job as a Texas state internal auditor to concentrate on his music, and has just released an album, "Rolling Stone From Texas" (Watermelon Records). He is "a middle-aged man with a potbelly and glasses" (Houston Chronicle) whose "yodeling is better than sex." (Playboy) (REBROADCAST FROM 12/13/94) INT. 2: Novelist STANLEY ELKIN. He was called "one of the most entertaining stylists in contemporary American fiction." ELKIN's use of metaphor, "transforms grotesque situations and the drab vulgarity of popular consumer culture into comic affirmations of human existence." (from Contemporary Literary Criticism). His novels included, The MacGuffin, The Magic Kingdom, and others. ELKIN was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis twenty years ago. ELKIN died of heart failure on Wednesday, May 31, 1995. His novel Mrs. Ted Bliss will be published in September. (REBROADCAST FROM 3/15/93) REV. : Movie Critic, STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Bridges of Madison County," starring Clint Eastwood and Meryl Streep.

Interview with Deborah Hoffmann; Interview with Susan Eisenhower; Commentary on surfing the Web. June 5, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502449].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker, DEBORAH HOFFMAN. She produced, directed and wrote the Oscar-nominated documentary, "Complaints of a Dutiful Daughter." In the documentary, which airs on PBS's "Point Of View" series June 6, HOFFMAN tells how she copes with her mother, Doris, now 87, who began suffering memory lapses in the early 1980s and was diagnosed with Alzheimer's Disease in 1991. INT. 2: Writer and Chairman of the Center of Post-Soviet Studies, SUSAN EISENHOWER. She is the granddaughter of President Eisenhower who led the United States in the early years of the Cold War. She met and married Roald Sagdeev, the former leader of the Soviet space program. Eisenhower's new book is Breaking Free: A Memoir of Love and Revolution (Farrar Straus Giroux). It focuses on her relationship with husband Roald Sagdeev, and interweaves their romantic memoir with the inner history of the Cold War. REV. : Technology Columnist for Newsweek, STEVEN LEVY comments on The World Wide Web.
Interview with Geoffrey Canada; Commentary on talk radio. June 6, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501265].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Child Advocate and Writer GEOFFREY CANADA. His book Fist Stick Knife Gun: A Personal History of Violence in America (Beacon Press), provides a look into the lives of children living in violence. CANADA is President and CEO of Rheedlan Centers for Children and Families in New York. He is dedicated to serving at risk children in the inner-city. INT. 2: Interview with GEOFFREY CANADA continues. REV.: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG reviews talk radio.

Interview with George Foreman; Review of the books "No Ordinary Time" by Doris Kearns Goodwin and "Babe" by Susan E. Cayleff. June 7, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501267].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Heavyweight champion GEORGE FOREMAN. At age 46 FOREMAN still retains the title. He is presently a preacher, community leader and dedicated child advocate. His new book By George: The Autobiography of George Foreman (Villard Books) written with Joel Engel, reveals the man behind the champion. INT. 2: Interview with GEORGE FOREMAN continued. REV.: Book critic, MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews No Ordinary Time (Simon and Schuster) by Doris Kearns Goodwin and Babe (University of Illinois Press) by Susan E. Cayleff.

Interview with Bill Pullman; Interview with Paul Auster; Review of Dwight Yoakam's album "Dwight Live." June 8, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501266].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor BILL PULLMAN. He taught drama at the University of Montana, where he rose to department head at age 27. PULLMAN later made his acting debut in "Ruthless People." This year alone, he is featured in the films, "Casper," "While You Were Sleeping," and "The Last Seduction." INT. 2: Novelist, PAUL AUSTER. AUSTER has been called "America's most spectacularly inventive writers."
AUSTER recently "broadened his creative reach" with his work on two films, "Smoke" and "Blue in the Face", in a double collaboration with director Wayne Wang, who also directed "The Joy Luck Club.' AUSTER has a BA and an MA in English and Comparative Literature from Columbus University. His novels include "Moon Palace," "The Music of Chance," "Leviathan," and "Mr. Vertigo." REV. : Rock Critic, KEN TUCKER reviews country singer, Dwight Yoakam's, first concert album, "Dwight Live."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guitarist LES PAUL. His 80th birthday is celebrated by featuring our 1992 interview with him. Les Paul has spent his life playing guitar, inventing guitars to play, and inventing devices to record himself on. He's often been called the 'Thomas Edison of music.' He invented the solid body electric guitar, overdubbing, reverb, and multitracking-inventions that helped make rock n roll possible. Paul himself has stuck to jazz, and a more middle of the road pop. In the 1950's he had several hits with his wife Mary Ford, including 'How High the Moon,' 'Vaya Con Dios,' and 'Bye Bye Blues.' His Capitol recordings, several of his old radio shows from the late 40's and early 50's, and some of his commercial jingles are collected on a 4CD box set, called 'Les Paul: The Legend and The Legacy.' To hear the delightful jazz he's playing today, you need to go to the Manhattan club Fat Tuesday's, where he's performed Monday nights for over 10 years. We began with his 1948 recording of 'lover.' (ORIGINALLY AIRED 1/17/92) INT. 2: Guitarist BOB MOULD, one of the most influential musicians in alternative rock. With his first band 'Husker Du,' he created a loud, fast and furious guitar sound. It set the stage for what later became known as 'grunge rock.' Mould is also a songwriter and singer. His career has progressed through several distinct stages. He co-founded Husker Du when he was 17. His guitar playing, singing and song writing are now showcased with his band 'Sugar.' The band has a new CD scheduled for release next month by Rykodisc. This interview was recorded last year after the release of a Sugar CD ironically titled 'File Under Easy Listening.' Rykodisc will release a the next Sugar album, 'Besides,' July 25, 1995. (ORIGINALLY AIRED 9/8/94) REV. : Producer Kathleen Kennedy and her husband, the producer-director Frank Marshall, made their names by helping Stephen Speilberg make his movies. Now they have a new company for which Marshall has just directed a new movie, 'Co Interview with Clarence Williams; Interview with Stephen J. Cannell; Review of the album "George Gershwin Memorial Concert." June 12, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501883].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor, CLARENCE WILLIAMS III. He is best known as the bell-bottomed clad hippie cop on the "The Mod Squad." WILLIAMS is noted as a theater actor and Tony Award nominee. In addition, he has appeared in numerous TV shows such as "The Cosby Show" and "Hill Street Blues", and films such as "Purple Rain" and "Sugar Hill." WILLIAMS plays a mortician in the new action horror film "Tales From The Hood." INT. 2: TV Producer, STEPHEN J. CANNELL. During the 1970's STEPHEN J. CANNELL was one of television's most successful writers, penning scripts for such hits as "The Rockford Files," "Barretta," and "Black Sheep Squadron." Cannell later established his own production company, Stephen J. Cannell Productions. His productions include such programs as "The A-Team", "Stingray", and "Hardcastle and McCormick." CANNELL has a new novel called "The Plan" (Morrow). REV. : Classic Music Critic, LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "George Gershwin Memorial Concert" (Radio Years).

Interview with Susan Love; Interview with Sy Montgomery; Review of the album "Sif Safaa June 13, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501882].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Surgeon SUSAN LOVE. She is the founding member of the Breast Cancer Coalition. LOVE is also the founding director of the UCLA Breast Cancer, which is one of the world's leading breast treatment facilities. Her book Dr. Susan Love's Breast Book (Addison Wesley) is said to be one of the most important books in women's health in the last decade. A new updated second edition has just been published. INT. 2: Nature Writer SY MONTGOMERY. A New Jersey reporter turned freelance naturalist, MONTGOMERY developed a fascination for Bengal tigers. Her book Spell of the Tiger (Houghton Mifflin), takes a fascinating and frightening look at these Bengal tigers - and the people who worship them. REV. : World Music Critic, MILO MILES reviews Arab pop album "Sif Safaa: New Music From The Middle East" (Hanan, "Ya Leyl A' ah").

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Drummer, RINGO STARR. The ex-Beatle is back with his third All Starr Band. Produced by David Fishof, (who created and produced the first two tours), this world tour begins in Japan in June, and will be in America in July and August. He'll talk to Terry about his life before, during and after the Beatles. INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH RINGO STARR CONTINUED. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Independence Day by Richard Ford, the sequel to his acclaimed novel, The Sports Writer.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Major general LEWIS MACKENZIE. He commanded the United Nations Peacekeeping force in the former Yugoslavia until he retired in 1993. Since then MACKENZIE has been critical of the UN's ability to command and control its forces. His best-selling book Peacekeeper (HarperCollins) is now available in paperback and updated with two new chapters. INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH LEWIS MACKENZIE CONTINUED. REV. : TV critic, DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Diane Sawyer's interview with Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley, which aired June 14th on ABC's "Primetime."

Interview with Chris Elliott and Bob Elliott; Interview with Benjamin Cheever; Interview with Walter Mosley; Interview with Bruno Kirby; Interview with Jim Galipeau; Review of the film "Batman Forever." June 16, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811105].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Entertainers CHRIS and BOB ELLIOTT. Bob has entertained generations as half of the legendary comedy team of Bob and Ray. His son Chris was a writer and performer for Late Night with David Letterman, creating such characters as the Panicky Guy, and the Fugitive Guy. The two of them starred in the Fox comedy, Get A Life. Together, the two wrote a memoir, Daddy's Boy: A Son's Shocking Account of Life with a Famous Father. Chris Elliott was a member of the team this past year. (REBROADCAST from 6/7/89) Writer BENJAMIN CHEEVER. He's the son of the late novelist and short story master JOHN CHEEVER, and he collected and edited a collection of his father's letters. The letters tracked the elder Cheever's secret bisexuality. Later Benjamin wrote two novels, The Plagiarist, and The Partisan. (REBROADCAST from 11/11/88) INT. 2: Mystery writer WALTER MOSLEY. He is known for his series about gumshoe hero Easy Rawlins. Mosley gained public attention when then-presidential candidate Bill Clinton said that Mosley was his favorite mystery writer. His new book R.L.'s Dream will be released in August. (REBROADCAST 05/26/1994) Actor BRUNO KIRBY. He was the would-be comedian in "Good Morning, VietNam" and Carrie Fisher's boyfriend in "When Harry Met Sally." He's now appearing in "The Freshman," with Marlon Brando and Matthew Broderick. (REBROADCAST 07/27/1990) Probation officer for Los Angeles County. JIM GALIPEAU. He works with gangs and older gang members in Los Angeles. Galipeau has been a probation officer for over 27 years. He's a Vietnam vet and when he was a teenager he was a street fighter and drug addict. (REBROADCAST) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews new summer release 'Batman Forever.'

Interview with Fran Lebowitz; Interview with Anne Lamott; Review of the album "Legends of Western Swing." June 19, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502227].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer, FRAN LEBOWITZ. The Washington Post called LEBOWITZ "the funniest woman in America." Her first children's book Mr. Chas and Lisa Sue Meet the Pandas was published in 1994. In 1978, LEBOWITZ wrote the critically acclaimed book Metropolitan Life a collection of witty essays about life. (REBROADCAST FROM 1/3/95) INT. 2: Writer ANNE LAMOTT'S. Her new book is Bird By Bird: Instructions on Writing and Life (Pantheon Books). LAMOTT talks about the nuts and bolts of how to write but also how to live a writer's life. Her other books include Operating Instructions. LEBOWITZ was a book reviewer for Mademoiselle. (REBROADCAST FROM 1/3/95) REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Legends of Western Swing (Hillbilly Fever Vol. 1)" (Rhino ).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soul Musician ISAAC HAYES. He is a renowned soul musician, who rose to the top of the charts in the 1970's on the Stax label, a soul record label. HAYES released his first solo album, "Presenting Isaac Hayes," in 1968. His next album, "Hot Buttered Soul," became a gold record in the 1970's. His 1972 soundtrack to the movie "Shaft," went platinum and won an Oscar for "Theme From Shaft." HAYES is also an actor, who has held roles in the movies "Robin Hood: Men in Tights," "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka," and "Posse." He was in the Nicholas Cage movie, "It Could Happen to You." It's been seven years since he's released any new albums. Now he has two new releases: "Branded," (a vocal album) and "Raw & Refined" (an instrumental.) (REBROADCAST from 1994) INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH ISAAC HAYES CONTINUED. REV. (1) : Linguist GEOFFREY NUMBER comments on a new CD which has renditions of Elvis ballads sung in Latin by a Finnish singer REV. (2) : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Mutineer" Warren Zevon's new album.

Interview with Ken Auletta; Interview with Mary Karr; Review of Michael Jackson's album "History." June 21, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502785].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist KEN AULETTA (AWE-letta). He wrote the book Three Blind Mice: How the TV Networks Lost Their Way (Random House). AULETTA is currently a writer for the New Yorker. He will talk about the new telecommunications bill which the Senate just approved. INT. 2: Writer MARY KARR. She has two volumes of poetry The Devil's Tour, and Abacus. Karr has won Pushcart Prizes for both poetry and essays, and her work appears in such magazines as Granta, Ploughshares, and Vogue. She has a new novel called The Liars' Club (Viking). KARR currently teaches literature and creative writing at Syracuse University upstate New York. REV. : Rock Critic, KEN TUCKER reviews Michael Jackson's new album "History" (Epic).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer RICHARD FORD. His book Independence Day (Knopf), the sequel to The Sportswriter (Vintage), has recently been released. FORD is also the author of Wildlife, The Ultimate Good Luck, A Piece of My Heart, and Rock Springs. INT. 2: Writer CATHLEEN SCHINE. She has a new book The Love Letter (Houghton Mifflin). SCHINE has written three previous novels: Alice in Bed, To the Bird House, and Rameau's Niece. She has also written for the New York Times Book Review, Vogue, and the Village Voice. REV. : Book Critic, MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new book The Price of a Child (Knopf) by Lorene Cary.

Interview with Bob Kane; Interview with Stan Lee; Interview with Chuck Jones; Review of the film "Pocahontas." June 23, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502667].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Batman creator BOB KANE. In his autobiography, Batman & Me, KANE tells how he came up with the idea for the caped crusader, and what influence he had on the TV series and previous Batman movies. Kane drew Batman from its inception in 1939 to the late 60s. DC Comic still publishes Batman in a monthly and quarterly form. (REBROADCAST FROM 3/23/90) The creator of such Marvel comic book superheroes as Spiderman, The Incredible Hulk, and The Fantastic Four - cartoonist STAN LEE. He joined Marvel comic books at the age of 16, more than 30 years ago. LEE is currently launching Excelsior Comics, an independent comic book division of Marvel Entertainment. He is also co-executive producer of several top rated television series including "X-Men." (REBROADCAST FROM 10/17/91) INT. 2: Animator CHUCK JONES. Jones made many of the greatest Warner Brothers cartoons, and he created the characters Pepe LePew, Wile E. Coyote, and the RoadRunner. He wrote a memoir of his years at Warner Brothers, called Chuck Amuck (Avon Books). (REBROADCAST FROM 10/18/89). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new Disney animated feature "Pocahontas."
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist JOHN HOCKENBERRY. He spent more than a decade with National Public Radio as a general assignment reporter, Middle East correspondent, and program host. HOCKENBERRY is paralyzed from the waist down and he writes of his life's obstacles and accomplishments in his new book Moving Violations (Hyperion). He is presently a correspondent for ABC's news magazine show "Day One," for which he received an Emmy. INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH HOCKENBERRY CONTINUED. REV.: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording by the young Danish baritone singer Skovhus (BO-vuh SKO-fuss). We remember ESTER ROME of the Boston's Women's Health Collective. She co-founded the Collective which published the book that became women's bible for healthcare, Our Bodies Ourselves. She talked with Terry in 1990 when the Women's Health Collective was celebrating it's 20th anniversary. ROME died of breast cancer on Saturday, June 24, 1995.

Interview with Pieter-Dirk Uys; Interview with Todd Haynes; Review of the television show "The Real World." June 28, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502959].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright and satirist from South Africa PIETER-DIRK UYS (Peter - Durk - ACE). He has a television talk show in South Africa. UYS' show has unusual twist. Instead of hosting his show as himself, he dresses drag as an Afrikaner dowager named Evita. His guests include such leaders as Nelson Mandela. UYS's show is said to be "a way of making the country's leaders seem more human." INT. 2: Writer/Director TODD HAYNES. He made his directing debut in 1988 with "Superstar: The Karen Carpenter Story." HAYNES' first feature film "Poison" won the Grand Jury Prize Award at the Sundance Film Festival in 1991. The film was partly funded by the National Endowment for the Arts and created a controversy because of its adult themes. His latest project "Safe" is a modern horror film about environmental pollution. REV.: TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the fourth segment of MTV's "The Real World " documentary series, which airs tonight.

Description of show segment(s)

REV. : Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the soon to be released "Apollo 13." INT. 1: Actor/Director RON HOWARD. As a child actor he appeared in "The Music Man" and the long running television series "The Andy Griffith Show." He also starred in the TV series "Happy Days" and was known for his roles in "American Graffiti." HOWARD later made a name for himself as a director of several movies including "Splash," "Cocoon," "Parenthood," and "Backdraft." His new film "Apollo 13" which stars Tom Hanks, will be released Friday June 30. INT. 2: Actress JULIANNE MOORE. She was in several movies including "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle," "The Fugitive," and "Vanya on 42nd Street." MOORE stars in Todd Haynes' new film, "Safe," about environmental pollution. She also stars in the soon to be released movie, "Nine Months" along with Hugh Grant and Tom Arnold.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TRACY ULLMAN, who prefers being called a "social satirist" than an actress or a comedian. This Emmy winner will return to HBO in 1996 with "Tracy Takes On," a new half-hour comedy series. She was the star of "The Tracy Ullman Show," where she played characters including "girls half her age and matrons twice her age; a psychologist and a postal worker, a bitter Beverly Hills divorcee and a suicidal chorine." ("The New York Times Magazine") Her film debut was "Plenty," with Meryl Streep, and she recently appeared in Woody Allen's "Bullets Over Broadway." and "Ready to Wear (Pret-a-Porter)," Robert Altman's film about the fashion industry. "Ready to Wear" is now on video. (REBROADCAST FROM 12/14/94) INT. 2: From the documentary "Twitch and Shout," the associate producer/narrator LOWELL HANDLER. HANDLER is a photojournalist and has Tourette's Syndrome. The film is about people with TS. HANDLER has traveled the world photographing people with TS. A photojournalism story HANDLER published in Life magazine caught the attention of the film's director, who then approached HANDLER about doing the documentary. The documentary will air on PBS July 11. HANDLER is currently writing a book about his life entitled "A Tourette's Tale" (REBROADCAST FROM 1/9/95). REV. : Book Critic, MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Postman" (Miramax).

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer PAT CONROY. He has written several novels including The Great Santini and The Prince of Tides. Both books were made into movies. "The Great Santini" about a powerful and abusive father starred Robert Duvall. "The Prince of Tides" starred Barbara Streisand and Nick Nolte. CONROY'S new novel is called Beach Music. (Doubleday). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH PAT CONROY CONTINUED. REV. : World music critic MILO MILES reviews Bukka White's new record "1963 Isn't 1962." (Genes records)

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: REV. WANDA JENKINS. She is the founder and director of the grief assistance program headquartered at the Philadelphia Medical Examiner's office. JENKINS became an authority on the bereavement process for family of murder victims. Her program helps families cope with the aftermath of homicide. INT. 2: Writer MICHAEL CHABON (SHAY-bon). This 24 year old graduate student gained his fame when his master's thesis became a critical and commercial success. His book was not only on the New York Times bestseller list for for three months, but he was also featured in People Magazine's 50 most important people edition. CHABON has a new novel called Wonder Boys. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "The Romantic Generation" (Music masters) by pianist Charles Rosen.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former New York Daily News reporter and author LORENZO CARCATERRA. His first book, A Safe Place: The True Story of a Father, a Son, a Murder, was about growing up in New York's Hell's Kitchen, the son of a violent, abusive man who none-the-less loved his son. CARCATERRA learned as a teenager that his father had murdered his first wife. CARCATERRA's newest book Sleepers, (Ballantine Books) is also about growing up in Hell's Kitchen and the bond of friendship between him and three friends. A childish prank landed them in a reformatory where they were abused and beaten. Years later, they plotted revenge. Two of CARCATERRA's friends are now dead, and the other has become a recluse. Sleepers will be made into a film, directed by Barry Levinson. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with LORENZO CARCATERRA continues.

Interview with Tristan Jones; Commentary on the 1995 Africa Fete Show; Interview with Manu Dibango; Review of the film "First Knight." July 7, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458328].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember adventurer and author TRISTAN JONES. Tristan Jones was almost certainly the most intrepid sailor alive. He journeyed more than 450-thousand miles in small boats. That includes 20 crossings of the Atlantic, and three and a half circumnavigations. After losing a leg to an old World War two injury, Jones continued to travel, and later worked with disabled kids throughout the world. At 71 he died of complications after a stroke on Wednesday, June 23, 1995. (REBROADCAST FROM 12/13/89) REV. 1: MUSIC REVIEW World Music Commentator MILO MILES comments on the 1995 Africa Fete Show in Boston. INT. 2: Composer and saxophonist MANU DIBANGO. He is considered one of the founders of world music. DIBANGO's first album, "Soul Makossa," was a big hit in 1973. His autobiography Three Kilos of Coffee (The University of Chicago Press) was released last year. His latest album is called "Wakafrika" (Giant Records). (REBROADCAST FROM 8/15/94) REV. 2 : Film Critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews new movie "First Knight."

Interview with Roger Cohen; Commentary on black police officers and the film "The Glass Shield."

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Correspondent for the New York Times, ROGER COHEN. He will talk with Terry about the five weeks he recently spent in Sarajevo where he covered the war. INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH ROGER COHEN CONTINUED. REV. : Gerald Early discusses the film "Glass Shield," and how it doesn't capture the reality of black police in South Philadelphia.

Interview with Danny Rubinstein; Interview with Tim McLaurin; Commentary on Solomon Burke.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Award-winning Israeli journalist DANNY RUBINSTEIN (RUBIN-STEEN). He has a new book called The Mystery of Arafat (Steerforth Press) which looks into the image of the P-L-O leader, Yasser Arafat. RUBENSTEIN is a columnist for the Hebrew daily Ha'aretz and has been writing on Palestinian issues since 1967. He is also the author of the book The People of Nowhere. RUBENSTEIN presently lives in Jerusalem where he teaches in the department of Middle East History at Ben-Gurion University. INT. 2: Writer TIM McLAURIN. He has a new novel called Cured by Fire (Putnam). McLAURIN is also the author of two other novels The Acorn Plan, and Woodrow's Trumpet. He has been a Marine, a Peace Corps volunteer, and a snake handler. He currently teaches writing at North Carolina State University. REV. : World Music Critic MILO MILES offers a tribute to the persistence and range of soul singer Solomon Burke. MILES reviews Burke's new CD "Live at the House of Blues."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. ANDREW WEIL (pronounced "WHILE"). He is one of the world's leading authorities on health, healing and medicine. His latest book Spontaneous Healing (Knopf) explores how to discover and enhance our body's natural ability to maintain and heal itself. DR. WEIL is currently Associate Director of the Division of Social Perspectives in Medicine. He also has a private practice, based at the Center for Integrative Medicine at Tucson, where he treats patients from around the world. INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH DR. ANDREW WEIL CONTINUED. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews new recording by pianist and composer Andrew Hill.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A Host of NPR's All Things Considered LINDA WERTHEIMER. She has been with NPR since the network first went on the air with All Things Considered, May 3, 1971. Wertheimer recently came out with a book that looks back at some of the key events in American history as they were covered by NPR stations: Linda Wertheimer's Listening to America: Twenty-Five years in the Life of a Nation as Heard on National Public Radio (Houghton Mifflin). It was released May 29, 1995. The book marked the 25th Anniversary of the founding of NPR not ATC. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/5/95) All Things Considered host ROBERT SIEGEL. He has co-anchored the show since 1987. He opened NPR's London Bureau in 1979, and was appointed as director of the News and Information Department in 1983. SIEGEL has recently edited The NPR Interviews, 1994 (Houghton Mifflin). (REBROADCAST FROM 11/21/94) INT. 2: All Things Considered Host NOAH ADAMS. After dropping out of college he began his radio career as a DJ. He was also a car salesman. ADAMS came to National Public Radio over twenty years ago as a writer and tape editor; he started working for "All Things Considered" soon after he was hired. ADAMS wrote a book, Noah Adams on All Things Considered. It discusses his involvement with ATC and how the show and his journalistic style have changed. (REBROADCAST FROM 10/19/92) REV. : Language Commentator Geoffrey Nunberg on how the word "French" has been associated with sexual activities and references... such as "French kiss", "pardon my French" and an 18th Century term for condoms: "French Letters.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: STEPHEN ENGELBERG of the New York Times. He is a former Eastern Europe correspondent and is presently an investigative reporter in the Washington bureau. ENGELBERG will reconstruct the story of the turning point in the Bosnian war: how the U.N. and Nato decided to bomb Serb headquarters last May, and then stop after the Serbs took peace keepers hostage. INT. 2: Professor RAPHAEL EZEKIEL. A former psychology professor at the University of Michigan, EZEKIEL has spent the last ten years investigating the leaders and members of the Klans and Neo-Nazi groups. His new book The Racist Mind: Portraits of American Neo-Nazis and Klansmen (Viking) looks into these groups and provides a foundation for understanding the personal and social roots of white racism. EZEKIEL is presently based at the Harvard School of Public Health where he is studying youth violence prevention. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the debut album of English rapper Tricky. His album "Maxinquaye" is on the Island label.

Interview with Michael Ryan; Obituary for May Sarton. July 18, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502629].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet and writer MICHAEL RYAN. His first book of poems won the Yale Series of Younger Poets Award and was nominated for a National Book Award in 1974. RYAN'S book Good Hunger won the Lenore Marshall/Nation Award for the most outstanding book of poems published in 1989. His new book Secret Life (Pantheon) is his autobiography in which he shares his experiences of childhood molestation and sexual addiction. INT. 2: Writer MAY SARTON. She died of breast cancer on Sunday, July 16, 1995. For many readers, Sarton was a heroic figure for her decision to expose her lesbianism in the early 60s, long before society was tolerant of the gay life, and also for her decision to lead a life of solitude. The author of over 35 novels, books of poetry and essays, Sarton was probably best known for her journals, Recovering, and At Seventy. (REBROADCAST FROM 7/7/89). REV. : INTERVIEW WITH MAY SARTON CONTINUED.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FATHER GREGORY J. BOYLE. He is described as being "the priest who loves gangsters." BOYLE is a pastor at the Dolores Mission Church in Los Angeles where they provide shelter for the women and children, a day care center, and an alternative high school. He provides support and guidance to young men in Latino gangs and shows them alternatives to their life of crime. His biography Father Greg and the Homeboys (Hyperion) was written by Celeste Fremon. INT. 2: T.B.A (INTERVIEW WITH FATHER GREGORY J. BOYLE MAY BE CONTINUED)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker, writer, director, playwright, producer and actor MELVIN VAN PEEBLES. His 1970 movie, "Sweet Sweetback's Baadass Song" made him famous and made Variety's list of all-time money-makers. He's launched two musicals on Broadway and written five novels. (REBROADCAST FROM 7/17/90) ISAAC HAYES is a renowned soul musician, who rose to the top of the charts in the 1970's on the Stax label, a soul record label. His 1972 soundtrack to the movie "Shaft," went platinum and won an Oscar for "Theme From Shaft." HAYES is also an actor, who has held roles in the movies "Robin Hood: Men in Tights," "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka," and "Posse." (REBROADCAST FROM 7/28/94) Actress PAM GRIER. She got her start playing tough, scantily-clad women in black exploitation films, such as "Black Mama, White Mama," "Foxy Brown," and "Sheba Baby." She played a hooker in "Fort Apache: The Bronx," and appeared in the film, "The Class of 1999." (REBROADCAST FROM 5/10/90) INT.
2: KEENAN IVORY WAYANS. He co-wrote and acted in "Hollywood Shuffle," Robert Townsend's film about a black actor trying to make it in a world of show business stereotypes. He wrote, directed and starred in, "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka," a comedy that parodies black exploitation, kung fu and wild action movies. (REBROADCAST FROM 8/9/89) Stand-up comic and actor DAMAN WAYANS. Wayans is a former cast member of "Saturday Night Live." He also had a role in the film "Earth Girls Are Easy," and appeared in the films "Beverly Hills Cop," "Punchline" and "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka" which was written and directed by his older brother Keenan. (REBROADCAST FROM 5/2/89) INT. 3: Film director ROBERT TOWNSEND. His film, "Hollywood Shuffle," took a satiric look at the roles offered to blacks in Hollywood. He's a former standup comedian and actor. (REBROADCAST FROM 6/9/87)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychologist ROBERT JAY LIFTON. His new book Hiroshima in America: Fifty Years of Denial (Grosset Putnam), which he co-wrote with Greg Mitchell, assesses the political, ethical and psychological impact on our nation of the dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima. August 6 marks the fiftieth anniversary of this event. LIFTON is the author of many other important books including the Nazi Doctors and The Protean Self. INT. 2: Singer/Actor HERB JEFFRIES. In the late 1930's he became the first and only black singing cowboy on the silver screen. Then in the late 1940's he sang with the Duke Ellington Orchestra. At 83, JEFFRIES has recently recorded his western songs for the first time on an album - "The Bronze Buckaroo (Rides Again)" (Warner). Included on this album are highlights from his work with Earl Hines (who discovered him) and Ellington, including "Flamingo" and the original version of "You, You Darlin."
REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Charles Willeford's book High Priest of California, and Wild Wives (Search). It has been republished.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Gay rights activist CANDACE GINGRICH. She is the sister of Newt Gingrich, the Speaker of the House. GINGRICH is the spokeswoman for the Human Rights Campaign Fund, the nation's largest gay and lesbian lobbying organization. She is presently on a 48 city tour as a part of the Human Rights Campaign Fund's National Coming Out Project. INT. 2: Writer WILLIAM J. MURRAY. He was raised in the home of atheist and Marxist leader Madalyn Murray O' Hair. In 1963, at age 14, he became the focus of media attention when his mother took her anti-prayer campaign to the U.S. Supreme Court where they later banned school prayer. In 1980, MURRAY turned away from atheism and became a Christian. His new book Let Us Pray: A Plea for Prayer in Our Schools (Morrow) looks into his past and present religious beliefs. MURRAY has written other books including, My Life Without God, and The Church is Not for Perfect People.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: An update on the investigation of mass graves in Srebrenica. On July 8, a six-member forensic team, coordinated and sponsored by Physicians for Human Rights, began exhuming the graves. Terry Gross talks to DR. WILLIAM HAGLUND, who is in the Bosnia. As the lead forensic anthropologist for PHR, he and the other members of his team are working to identify bodies. HAGLUND is the former Chief Medical Investigator for King County, Washington and an assistant professor of anthropology at the University of Washington, University of Alberta and the University of New Mexico. INT. 2: Writer, MARIO PUZO. His new novel is "The Last Don" (Random House, to be released in September 1996) He is best known for "The Godfather" (1969) and this new book returns him to that genre: the inner workings of the Mafia. The main character is an old man trying to secure his family's future in an era of legalized gambling, motion picture investments and the threat of government informers. His goal is threatened by familial in-fighting. Besides "The Godfather," PUZO has written "The Fortunate Pilgrim," and "The Dark Interview with Claudia Brenner; Interview with Anthony Mazzocchi; Review of Jerry Lee Lewis's album "Young Blood." July 26, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458620].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Activist CLAUDIA BRENNER, one of the prominent voices against anti-gay violence. Her new book Eight Bullets: One Woman's Story of Anti-Gay Violence, (Firebrand) which she co-wrote with Hannah Ashley, is a personal account of her lover's murder and its aftermath: her path to recovery and activism. BRENNER is an architect who lives in upstate New York with her lesbian family. INT. 2: Union leader ANTHONY MAZZOCCHI. He has been President of OCAW (Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union) Local 8-149; Vice-President of the Nassau-Suffolk CIO Council; and he was active in the legislative struggles of the 1960's and 1970's, including a key role in the passage of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA). MAZZOCCHI'S present position is Presidential Assistant of OCAW. His other works include establishing the Alice Hamilton College, a school without-walls dedicated to the educational needs of Union members and forming the Labor Party Advocates, a nationwide effort to organize a political alternative for working people. REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Jerry Lee Lewis's new album "Young Blood." The album contains songs written by Hank Williams and Bobby Darrin.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter for New Yorker magazine DAVID REMNICK. He recently traveled to the Republic of Chechnya where he, toured the devastation, talked to survivors and officials of the Russian Army and the Chechen Army. His article, "In Stalin's Wake," appears in this week's edition of New Yorker. He also covered the Soviet Union for The Washington Post from 1988-1990. INT. 2: CRAIG CUNY son of FRED CUNY, the founding president of Intersect Relief and Reconstruction Corporation in Texas. FRED was on a humanitarian mission, conducting an assessment of Chechnya for the Open Society Institute. He has been missing since April 7th. CRAIG has spent the last three months searching for his father. REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews Montreal jazz guitarist Rene? Lussier's album "Le corps de l'ouvrage."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country singer CHARLIE RICH. He died, earlier this week, of a blood clot in his lung. Known as the "Silver Fox," (because of his premature gray hair) RICH got his start working with the Sun record label in the late 50s, writing tunes for Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison, and Johnny Cash. From there he began making records himself. In the 70s he reached his commercial peak with his country hits, "The Most Beautiful Girl," and "Behind Closed Doors." (REBROADCAST FROM 9/3/92). INT. 2: Rock musician MARSHALL CRENSHAW. He is best known for the songs "Whenever You're on My Mind," "Somewhere, Someway" and "Mary Jean." He also played the part of Buddy Holly in the movie "La Bamba." CRENSHAW'S new album of live recordings is called "My Truck is my Home." INT. 3: Actor ED HARRIS. He starred in "The Right Stuff," "The Abyss," and David Mamet's "Glengarry Glen Ross." He's now starring in the new film, "Apollo 13." REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new movie "Waterworld."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Foreign Correspondent STEPHEN HANDELMAN. He spent nearly six years in the former Soviet Union as chief of the Moscow Bureau of the Toronto Star, where he covered the final years of the Soviet regime. His new book Comrade Criminal: Russia's New Mafiya (Yale) examines and uncovers the intricate networking of the post-Soviet criminal underworld. HANDELMAN is also the author of Uncommon Kingdom. He is currently an associate fellow at Columbia University's Harriman Institute. INT. 2: Mystery Writer R.D. ZIMMERMAN (real name Robert Alexander). He is a member of the Mystery Writers of America, and has written mystery jigsaw puzzles as well as short mysteries that appeared on the backs of 15 million boxes of Total Cereal. His new book Red Trance (Morrow), is a Russian mystery of hypnotic detection. ZIMMERMAN also talks about his business dealings in Russia, and the corruption he faced as a result. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the history and grammatical use of split infinitives.

---

Interview with Christina Schmitz; Interview with Slavenka Drakulic; Review of the film "Choreography by Balanchine August 1, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502902].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Nurse CHRISTINA SCHMITZ. She volunteers with the international medical relief organization, Doctors Without Borders. SCHMITZ was in Srebrenica when it fell. She has also volunteered with Doctors Without Borders in Croatia, Liberia, Kurdistan, South Sudan, and Chechnya. INT. 2: Croatian journalist, critic, and feminist SLAVENKA DRAKULIC (SLA-vinka DRA-coo-lich). She is the author of How We Survived Communism and Even Laughed, and The Balkan Express. DRAKULIC will talk about the recent developments in the Bosnian conflict: that is, the Croatian Government's assault to reclaim the Serb populated area, Krajina, which broke away when Croatia established its independence. REV. : Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews "The Balanchine Library", a series of videotapes which document the work of choreographer George Ballanchine with the New York City Ballet.

---

Interview with Judith S. Wallerstein; Interview with Fred Schulte; Review of Alanis Morissette's album "Jagged Little Pill." August 2, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457865].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Clinical Psychologist JUDITH S. WALLERSTEIN. She is widely considered the world's foremost authority on the effects of divorce. WALLERSTEIN is the co-author of Second Chances: Men, Women, and Children a Decade after Divorce. Her new book The Good Marriage: How and Why Love Lasts.
(Houghton Mifflin), which she co-wrote with Sandra Blakeslee, takes a look at marriages that work. WALLERSTEIN is the founder and executive director of the Center for the Family in Transition. INT. 2: Investigations Editor for the Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel FRED SCHULTE (Fred Shul-ti). He has received many awards for consumer-oriented journalism including the George Polk award for exposing patient abuses in health maintenance organization. SCHULTE'S new book Fleeced (Prometheus), looks into telemarketing rip-offs and how to avoid them. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Alanis Morissette's (A-lanis Mor-i-set) debut album "Jagged Little Pill" (Maverick).

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This Sunday marks the 50th anniversary of the dropping of the first atomic bomb. We talk with JAMES YAMAZAKI, the Japanese-American pediatrician who was sent to Nagasaki four years later to study the impact of radiation on children. Yamazaki has written a memoir about his life and work in Nagasaki called Children of the Atomic Bomb. He is currently clinical professor of Pediatrics in the School of Medicine at the University of California. INT. 2: Indian filmmaker, BLONDIE SINGH KHAN has made his share of popular Indian cinema produced in Bombay called Bollywood. He has taken all the cliche?s and multiplied them tenfold. He talks about his new film based on the novel by Shashi Tharoor. REV. : Book Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Tree of Heaven by R.C. Binstock, about the Japanese invasion of China during the 1930s.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Freelance firefighter PETER LESCHAK battles forest fires in the Northwoods and the West...He's not a smoke jumper he says, he's a grunt-hiking to remote locations, putting out fires sometimes on his hands and knees-spark by spark. His memoir is called Hellroaring. INT. 2: Novelist JANE HAMILTON. Her novel A Map of the World (Anchor Books), is a searing account of guilt and forgiveness and an unflinching portrait of small town mean spiritedness. This is Hamilton's second novel, her first, The Book of Ruth, won the PEN/Hemingway Foundation Award in 1989. REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff has a review of the Gus Van Sant produced 'Kids;' director Larry Clark's first film.

---

Interview with Ben H. Bagdikian; Interview with Jo Giovannoni; Review of Dale Watson's album "Cheatin' Heart Attack." August 7, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501315].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Veteran journalist BEN H. BAGDIKIAN (bag-DIK-kee-ann) discusses the recent buyout offers for ABC & CBS. Bagdikian's book The Media Monopoly (Beacon Press 1983) examines the influence corporate ownership has on programming. Bagdikian newest book Double Vision, (Beacon 1995) is his personal memoir. He has been a Washington bureau chief and foreign correspondent for the Providence Journal, an assistant managing editor for the Washington Post and a dean of the Graduate School of Journalism at the University of California at Berkeley. INT. 2: JO GIOVANNONI, she is the editor of Harley Women. She says the sound of a loud Harley can hardly be described as noise but finds the word "music" a better description and she says women are changing the image of "bikers." REV. :Music Critic Ken Tucker reviews the new country music CD by Dale Watson "Cheatin' Heart Attack." Tucker says he thinks most of today's country music is soft rock "safe" Watson's first CD has a refreshing sound of traditional country music.

---

Interview with Clifton Taulbert; Commentary on popular music; Interview with Thomas Keating; Review of Francine Prose's novel "Hunters and Gatherers." August 8, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457812].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer CLIFTON Taulbert grew up in the segregated South in the 1950s. His experiences growing up black in America are chronicled in his two memoirs When We Were Colored and the Pulitzer Prize nominated The Last Train North, (Penguin Books). Taulbert lives in Tulsa Oklahoma where he is a businessman. REV.: Rock Historian ED WARD looks at why "Pop" music has hit the charts around the world but remains buried in the subculture in America. "Pop” music, as it is known internationally, is not to be mistaken with Top 40. Ward says American radio stations in the late 1970s and early 80s didn't pick up the sound and a lot of the "Pop" music went unheard. INT. 2: FATHER THOMAS KEATING teaches the centuries old art of Contemplative Prayer. This prayer is done without words and even without thoughts. Keating believes this opens the heart and mind to God. Keating teaches at the St Benedict's Monastery in Snowmass, Colorado. The Monastery also supports a network of prayer workshops through Contemplative Outreach Ltd. in Butler, New Jersey. REV.: Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Hunters and Gatherers the new comic novel by Francine Prose, a story about a Manhattan community of New Age Goddess worshippers (Farrar, Straus and Giroux, August 1995).
Producer Amy Salit about the life of Grateful Dead band leader Jerry Garcia. Marin County officials in California say Garcia died early this morning of apparently natural causes. He was 53.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and Historian RICHARD RHODES discusses the Cold War battle for the Hydrogen Bomb. His latest book is Dark Sun: The Making of the Hydrogen Bomb (Simon & Shuster August 1995) Using recently declassified files in the United States and the Soviet Union he details the escalation of the Superpower arms race. He won a Pulitzer Prize for chronicling the Manhattan Project in The Making of the Atomic Bomb. He is the author of several other books including Nuclear Renewal: Common Sense about Energy, A Hole in the World, Sons of Earth, and Looking for America. INT. 2: Writer WILLIAM ADLER. His first book, Land of Opportunity: One Family's Quest For The American Dream In The Age of Crack (Atlantic Monthly Press) tells the story of the Chambers brothers. The brothers moved to Detroit from Mississippi in the mid-80's in search of economic freedom and found it by setting up the biggest drug business in the city. It was run like a Fortune 500 company with quality control, discounts, employee bonuses and a dress code. William Ferris calls the book a "chilling view of the urban drug scene and the black experience [which] should be read by every American." (Originally aired 5/3/95) REV. :Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the recent performance of American pianist Leon Fleisher. Thirty years ago he suffered a disabling repetitive stress syndrome injury. Since then, he's played almost exclusively with the Left Hand. This recent performance featured Fleisher attempt a Mozart concerto with both hands.

Interview with Lucy Grealy; Interview with Edmund White; Review of the film "Clueless." August 11, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457753].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LUCY GREALY had cancer in her jaw as a child, for which she underwent 5 years of treatment. The surgery and other therapy left her disfigured. Over the next 15 years she had about 30 reconstructive operations. Her memoir Autobiography of a Face is about her illness, and about the pain from feeling ugly, which she says made cancer seems minor in comparison. Her memoir is expanded from an article which won a National Magazine Award when it was published in Harpers. (Originally aired 9/26/94) INT. 2: EDMUND WHITE has written about American gay culture for over two decades. White, who himself is gay, discusses the loss of a lover to Aids. White says he has tested positive for HIV. His essays chronicle the gay rights movement from the 1969 Stonewall riots to the present. His newest book, Skinned Alive was published last month by Knopf. White's next book is due out in November titled Our Paris: Sketches from Memory. His other books include; Genet: a biography, Forgetting Elena, Nocturnes for the King of Naples, States of Desire, Travels in Gay America, A Boys Own Story, Caracole, and The Beautiful Room is Empty. (Originally aired 11/22/94) REV. : Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews "Clueless." The film stars Alicia Silverstone and was written and directed by Amy Heckerling who Schiff considers one of the top two female directors in Hollywood. Heckerling's other films include "Fast times at Ridgemont High," and "LookWho's Talking."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music legend, MERLE HAGGARD. HAGGARD has been on the country music scene since the early sixties and has more number one hits than any country music star except Conway Twitty. Recently two tribute albums of the songs of MERLE HAGGARD were released: Mama's Hungry Eyes and Tulare Dust. HAGGARD was also recently inducted to the Country Music Hall of Fame. (IN APRIL WE BROADCAST A SHORT INTERVIEW WITH HAGGARD. TODAY'S INTERVIEW IS THE LONGER VERSION; AND IT CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with MERLE HAGGARD continues. INT. 3: An excerpt from a 1985 interview with baseball legend MICKEY MANTLE. He died yesterday of liver cancer.
Interview with Larry Clark; Interview with Peter Kuper; Commentary on Windows 95. August 15, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457651].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director LARRY CLARK. He's making his directing debut with the new film "Kids." The film has generated controversy for its "throwaway brutality," and its graphic portrayal of a group of antisocial teenagers in Manhattan, where sex is easy and deadly and drugs are common place. CLARK has photographed the gritty side of teenage life for two books, Tulsa, and Teenage Life. The film's screenwriter is a 21 year old skateboarder CLARK met while hanging out with a group of them in Manhattan's Washington Square Park. INT. 2: Illustrator and comic-book artist PETER KUPER. His work has appeared in Time, Newsweek, The New Yorker, The Village Voice, and his "Eye of the Beholder" was the first comic strip to regularly appear in The New York Times. He is also co-founder and co-editor of World War 3 an illustrated political comics magazine. He's illustrated a number of books. Most recently, Give it Up! And Other Short Stories by Franz Kafka, (NBM Publishers) REV. : Technology columnist for Newsweek, STEVEN LEVY, comments on Microsoft's Windows 95.

Interview with Spalding Gray; Interview with Sharon Schwartz; Commentary on upgrading computer technology. August 16, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458499].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Monologist, actor and writer SPALDING GRAY. He's written and performed several monologues including, "Monster in a Box" about all the distractions that prevented him from completing his novel, Impossible Vacation, and Swimming to Cambodia about filming a movie in Cambodia. Now GRAY has a new monologue and book about his eye problems, and his adventures in the mainstream and alternative health care industries. It's called Gray's Anatomy. (Vintage Books). INT. 2: Novelist LYNNE SHARON SCHWARTZ. Her new novel is The Fatigue Artist, (Scribner) about a 40 year old woman who comes down with chronic fatigue syndrome. One reviewer calls it "witty and hopeful and fierce." SCHWARTZ is also the author of Disturbances in the Field, and Leaving Brooklyn. REV. : Commentator STEVEN LEVY, columnist for Newsweek, considers the decision to upgrade or not.
Interview with Paolo Cherchi Usai; Interview with Caleb Sampson; Review of Foo Fighters' and Wilco's albums "Foo Fighters" and "A. M."; Interview with Bill Wendell; Commentary on gender
oclc/971502298].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Senior curator of the motion picture collection at the George Eastman House, PAOLO CHERCHI USAII (Paolo Keerke U-sai) He is also Associate Professor of Film Studies at the University of Rochester.
He is an expert on silent films, and is co-director and co-founder of the Pordenone Silent Film Festival.
He has worked with Alloy Orchestra on several film projects. And he restored the print of "Lonesome."
He's the author of numerous articles and studies of silent film. His latest is "Burning Passions: An Introduction to the Study of Silent Cinema," (British Film Institute, distributed by Indiana University Press, 812-855-8054). INT. 2: From The Alloy Orchestra, composer and keyboardist CALEB SAMPSON.
The band has gained a reputation for composing and performing exciting, percussive silent film scores.
Their repertoire includes scores for "Metropolis," "Nosferatu," "Lonesome," and their newest, for the Russian classic "Man with a Movie Camera." The film has a "sneak preview" at the Telluride Film Festival in early September, and it premieres at the Pordenone Silent Film Festival in Italy in October.
They have two CD's. Selections from their first CD, "New Music for Silent Films," (Accurate Records, Cambridge, MA) are played often on Fresh Air. Their new release is "Lonesome," (BIB Records, P.O.
Box 41606, Somerville, MA 02144, 617-576-7997). REV 1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new bands that are spin-offs from the bands Nirvana and Uncle Tupelo. INT. 3: Veteran television announcer BILL WENDELL retires this week after 37 years at NBC. Wendell is currently the announcer for "Late Night with David Letterman." He's famous for adding the long "A" in his introduction "Here's...Daayvid Letterman" Wendell also emceed several games shows and was the Tonight Show announcer in 1956 and 1957. REV 2.: Mike Tyson returns to the ring Saturday night after a four year absence. Three of those years were spent in jail on a rape conviction. Tyson continues to deny the char Interview with Russell Banks; Interview with Fred Cuny; Review of the film "The Usual Suspects." August 18, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502079].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist RUSSELL BANKS. His new novel is Rule of the Bone (Harper Collins). It's been compared to Mark Twain's The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn because of it's young first-person narrator, and use of comedy to convey grim realities. BANKS narrator is 14 year-old Chappie from upstate New York who wears a nose ring and Mohawk. He steals from his parents to pay for dope, is kicked out of the house, becomes homeless, and sets off on a low-life adventure. BANKS is the author of twelve novels including The Sweet Hereafter, Affliction, and Continental Drift. (REBROADCAST from 5/15/95) INT. 2: FRED CUNY is an American relief worker who is believed to have been killed this year in Chechnya. He was there assessing the Chechen needs in an effort to one day help rebuild the ruined cities. Russian troops have battled Chechen fighters since late last year to quell the Chechen move towards independence. CUNY was the founder and president of the Intersect Relief and Reconstruction Corporation, which is based in Dallas. His work has taken him to Somalia, Northern Iraq, the Sudan, Nicaragua, Mexico, Biafra and other places where there is war, famine or natural disaster. In 1993 he worked on a water infrastructure project in Sarajevo funded by the Soros Humanitarian Foundation in conjunction with the UN High Commission for Refugees. We playback an interview with CUNY from 1993 when he was in Sarajevo. (REBROADCAST from 11/3/93) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new thriller "The Usual Suspects," starring Gabriel Byrne, Stephen Baldwin, Chazz Palminteri, and Kevin Pollack.

Interview with Don Was; Commentary on favorite words. August 21, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458615].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer and musician DON WAS. He co-founded the funk rock group, "Was (Not) Was." This year he won a Grammy for Producer of the Year. In addition, he's produced a number of albums for Bonnie Raitt (WAS produced Raitt's "Nick of Time" album which revived her career), Rolling Stones, Lyle Lovett, Al Green, Iggy Pop, and the B-52's. He's ventured into documentary film production with "I Just Wasn't Made for These Times," about ex-Beachboy Brian Wilson. WAS directed the film. He also co-produced a new album with Wilson, of the same title (MCA records). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES
INT. 2: Interview with DON WAS continued. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG wonders what makes some words are favorite words, is it sound or are we affected by the word's meaning?

Interview with Lonny Shavelson; Interview with Reg Theriault; Commentary on Mable John. August 22, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458495].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LONNY SHAVELSON writes about five people who were considering assisted suicide. His book A Chosen Death: The Dying Confront Assisted Suicide explores the agonizing dilemma that family and friends must face in deciding whether to assist. Shavelson argues in favor of legalized Physician-assisted suicide. Shavelson is a writer, photojournalist and emergency-room physician living in Berkeley, California. A Chosen Death is published by Simon and Shuster 1995. INT. 2: Former longshoreman and Vice President of the Union local, REG THERIAULT (THEER-EE-AULT). For over 30 years he worked on the piers in San Francisco, where he watched automation take over the industry, and break up the gangs who worked together. Before that THERIAULT worked as a "fruit tramp" with his family. He has written a new book about work, How to Tell When You're Tired (Norton). REV. : Rock Historian ED WARD highlights the music of singer Mable John. She hit the black radio top ten chart in the 1960s with her song "Your Good Thing." Her music never caught on and not surprisingly most of her material never was released by Stax Records. But in 1993, Fantasy Records, assembled her music and released what turns out to be her first album.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Neurologist WILLIAM LANGSTON. His work plunged him into a medical mystery, and a hot political controversy about the ethics of medicine. In 1982 LANGSTON was called in to examine a number of "frozen" patients, young men and women in the San Francisco Bay Area who suddenly could neither move or speak, though conscious. LANGSTON recognized the signs of Parkinson's disease, and determined that these patients had all used the same batch of tainted heroin. LANGSTON prescribed L-dopa, a treatment for Parkinson's which only provided short-term relief. Then he prescribed a daring new medical procedure: fetal-tissue transplant, and his patients recovered. LANGSTON's new book (co-written by Jon Palfreman) is The Case of the Frozen Addicts: How the solution of an extraordinary medical mystery spawned a revolution in the understanding and treatment of Parkinson's disease (Pantheon). INT. 2: Professor of American Studies and History at the Univ. of Minnesota ELAINE TYLER MAY. Her new book Barren in the Promised Land: Childless Americans and the Pursuit of Happiness (Basic) is said to be the first book to examine the history of childlessness in America in all its complexities, from infertility to forced sterilization to childfree by choice." MAY is the author three previous books including Great Expectations, and Homeward Bound. She has also written widely in the scholarly and popular press, including articles in The New York Times, and Los Angeles Times. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Love, Gloom, Cash, Love," the new reissue (Bethelem Jazz) by the late piano player Herbie Nichols.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Tuskegee Airman ROBERT WILLIAMS. He was with the Army Air Corps "Fighting 99th" the first squadron of Black fighter pilots in World War II. Now, after 45 years of trying he's gotten a studio interested in making a movie about the squadron. The new HBO movie, "The Tuskegee Airmen," stars Laurence Fishburne; WILLIAMS is the co-executive producer. The film debuts August 26th. INT. 2: From the trio YO LA TENGO, singer/guitarist IRA KAPLAN, and drummer GEORGIA HUBLEY. They are married. The band is a cult favorite and hails from Hoboken, New Jersey. They have seven albums to their credit including the latest, "Electr-o-pura" (on the Matador label). One reviewer says the band blends "fragile, delicate beauty with raw, bash-it-out crudeness better than anyone." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews The Intersection of Law and Desire, (Norton) which debuts the feminist lesbian private investigator, Micky Knight by J.M. Redmann. And a collection of lesbian pulp romances, The Beebo Brinker Chronicles (Quality Paperback Book Club) by Ann Bannon which has just been republished.

Interview with Sam Raimi; Interview with Gabriel Byrne; Review of the film "Beyond Rangoon." August 25, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458398].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer/Director/Producer SAM RAimi. He is best known for 1982's cult classic, "The Evil Dead," which Steven King called "the most ferociously original horror film of the year." His first big budget film, "The Quick and The Dead," starring Sharon Stone and Gene Hackman has just come out on video. It is a 90's western with a touch of humor. He also directed 1990's hit "Darkman." (REBROADCAST from 2/22/95) INT. 2: Irish actor/producer GABRIEL BYRNE. (pronounced BURN) He got his big break playing a slick gangster in the Coen Brothers' "Miller's Crossing." One reviewer wrote, "a subtle yet forceful performance as an impassive man, concealing deep pain." BYRNE was the executive producer of "In the Name of the Father." He also starred in and produced the films "A Dangerous Woman," and "Into the West." BYRNE appeared as Prof. Baer in the remake of "Little Women," directed by Gillian Armstrong. It's just come out on video. BYRNE is also starring in the new thriller, "The Usual Suspects." And he will soon publish a memoir. (REBROADCAST from 12/21/94) REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Beyond Rangoon" the new adventure film directed by John Boorman, who also directed "Deliverence," and "The Emerald Forest."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROCHELLE & ANTHONY YATES. On July 18, 1988 the YATES' five year old son Marcus was killed in gun crossfire between two drug dealers fighting for turf in a corner store. There were 11 children in the store playing video games, two others were shot but survived, one of them was Marcus' six year old brother. Since the incident the YATES' have become activists against senseless violence; they lecture to high schools, take in foster children who have lost family members to violence, run a day care center

Interview with Geoffrey Canada; Commentary on Dave Bartholomew. August 29, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458711].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GEOFFREY CANADA is a community activist in Harlem and author of Fist, Stick, Knife, Gun: A Personal History of Violence in America. It is published by Beacon Press 1995. Canada is President of Rheedlen Centers for Children and Families in Harlem. Through his work, Canada teaches children how to solve problems without using violence. Part of this approach is to teach martial arts to his kids. INT. 2: CANADA continued. REV. : Rock and Roll Historian ED WARD looks back at the impact Record Producer Dave Bartholomew had on the New Orleans music scene. He produced recordings for Fat's Domino, The Hawks, Lloyd Price and Shirley & Lee. Bartholomew's work as a record producer was collected by EMI in an anthology in 1992.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FATHER GREGORY J. BOYLE. He has been described as being "the priest who loves gangsters." BOYLE is a pastor at the Dolores Mission Church in Los Angeles. The Church provides shelter for the women and children, a day care center, and an alternative high school. He provides support and guidance to young men in Latino gangs and shows them alternatives to their life of crime. His biography Father Greg and the Homeboys (Hyperion) was written by Celeste Fremon. (Originally aired 7/20/95) INT. 2: BOYLE interview continued. INT. 3: BOYLE interview continued.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: ERIC DAVIS, an undercover cop who patrols Chicago housing projects. Davis grew up in one, but life in the projects is much tougher today. The proliferation of drugs and guns has made the environment almost hopeless. There's a lot of distrust of cops in the projects but Davis has won the respect of a lot of young people...some of them are fans of his group "The Slick Boys," a rap group composed of three Chicago undercover cops. INT. 2: DAVIS interview continued REV. : Film critic Stephen Schiff reviews the new romantic comedy "The Brothers McMullen."

Interview with Ronnie Spector; Interview with Dion; Interview with Little Anthony; Interview with Ben E. King. September 1, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458315].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1:Ronnie Spector, who in the 60s was a member of the girl group The Ronettes.(Originally aired 8/31/87) INT. 2: DION - 1989 R&R Hall of Fame Inductee. Singer Dion. In the 60s, he was the leader of Dion and Belmonts. They performed such hits as "Runaround Sue" and "The Wanderer." Dion is expected to release his 39th album next year (Originally aired 8/24/87) INT. 3:Singer LITTLE ANTHONY. In the late 50s and 60s, he led the doo-wop group Little Anthony and the Imperials. Among their hits were "Tears on my Pillow," and "Shimmy, Shimmy, Ko-Ko-Bop." (Originally aired 3/17/89) INT. 4: Rhythm and Blues singer BEN E. KING. He was a member fo the Drifters in the late 50s. His smooth vocals graced such popular hits as "There Goes My Baby" and "Save The Last Dance for Me." His solo career has produced hits like "I (Who Have Nothing)," "Spanish Harlem" and, his best-known song,"Stand By Me." (Originally aired 9/2/88)
Interview with Peter Guralnick; Interviews with Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller and D. J. Fontana; Commentary on women rockabilly stars; Commentary on Elvis Presley songs in Latin. September 4, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458447].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author PETER GURALNICK has written the first of a two part biography of Elvis Presley, retelling the story of the King's childhood "soberly, thoroughly and unsensationally" (says the ALA Booklist). Last Train to Memphis: The Rise of Elvis Presley (Little Brown) tells much of the story through quotes both from Elvis and people who knew him then. It attempts to portray Elvis’ human side, rather than the mythical figure he has become. (REBROADCAST from 10/04/94) INT. 2: The songwriting team JERRY LEIBER and MIKE STOLLER. They wrote many hit songs, including "Hound Dog" which Presley recorded. (REBROADCAST from 12/19/91). Drummer D.J. FONTANA. He was the backup drummer for many of Elvis Presley's hits. (REBROADCAST from 6/26/87) REV.: Rock historian ED WARD remembers some of the female singers who tried to duplicate Elvis's style and success. (REBROADCAST from 3/6/87) REV 2.: Commentator GEOFFREY NUNBERG discusses how Elvis sounds in Latin.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ERIC LOMAX was captured by the Japanese during World War II. He was used as forced labor to help build the Burma-Siam railroad. He was also tortured by the Japanese. He has reconciled with the Japanese interpreter present during his beatings. His book The Railway Man: A P.O.W.'s Searing Account of War, Brutality and Forgiveness (W.W. Norton & Company 1995) chronicles his story from WWII and his life 50 years later. INT. 2: BEN SANDMEL and LUDERIN DARBONE are two members of the Cajun band "The Hackberry Ramblers." Darbone is a founding member of the band who is now in his 80s. The Ramblers started in 1933 in Louisiana. The Ramblers were among the first Cajun bands to abandon the accordion's dominance for the more American guitar-fiddle string band sound. In 1993, The Ramblers released their first album in 30 years titled "Cajun Boogie." prior to this album the Ramblers recorded on the Bluebird Label. REV:Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Bonfire of the Humanities:

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Independent film director ROBERT RODRIGUEZ. At the age of 23 he made the Spanish-language action film, "El Mariachi" for {dollar}7,000. His techniques for keeping the budget down included, shooting before lunch so he wouldn't have to buy the actors lunch, and using a wheelchair that he'd borrowed from the local hospital for a dolly. RODRIGUEZ's film won the Sundance Audience Award in 1993, and went on to be distributed nationally. He's just completed the sequel "Desperado" starring Antonio Banderas. RODRIGUEZ also has a new book about the making of "El Mariachi," -- Rebel Without a Crew: or How a 23-Year-Old Filmmaker with {dollar}7,000 Became a Hollywood Player (Dutton). INT. 2: Psychologist and Professor of Education at the Harvard Graduate School of Education HOWARD GARDNER. He's written a new book, Leading Minds: An Anatomy of Leadership, (Basic Books) in which he profiles a number of leaders, exploring the link between creativity and leadership. GARDNER has written thirteen books, and is also a recipient of the MacArthur Prize Fellowship. He'll talk with Terry about his theory of multiple intelligence which was the subject of his 1983 book Frames of Mind. In the book he writes about the notions of intelligence not often valued in standard school curriculum: musical, spatial, bodily kinesthetic, interpersonal, and intrapersonal. GARDNER is also Co-director of Project Zero at the Harvard Graduate School of Education. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Kissingsohard" on the Forward label (distributed by Rhino) by The John Doe Thing.
Interviews with Amrita Basu and Vicky Que; Interview with Bill T. Jones; Commentary on Cui Jian. September 7, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501877].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political scientist, specializing in women's studies, AMRITA BASU. She teaches at Amherst College, and has just edited a collection of essays on women's movements worldwide, Local Feminisms: Women's Movements in Global Perspective, (Westview Press). Reporter VICKY QUE is a reporter at WHYY in Philadelphia, and is attending the NGO Forum on Women, and the Conference on Women in Beijing. INT. 2: Dancer and choreographer BILL T. JONES. He founded the acclaimed Bill T. Jones/Arnie Zane Dance Company with his partner and lover, Arnie Zane. Their partnership lasted 17 years until Zane's death in 1988 from AIDS-related complications. JONES has been a recipient of the MacArthur "Genius" Award. His recent work, "Still/Here" is what he terms a "poem" about death. It's based on a series of "survival workshops" he conducted with people across the country who are dealing with illness and death. "Still/Here" will be the focus of a Bill Moyers special in October. JONES has also published a memoir, Bill T. Jones: Last Night on Earth (with Peggy Gillespie, published by Pantheon). REV. : World Music critic MILO MILES on Chinese rock star Cui Jian (Choy Jee-ON). His latest album is "Balls Under the Red Flag" (Look for it in local Chinatown music stores).

Interview with Sattareh Farman-Farmaian; Interview with Bapsi Sidhwa; Interview with Mary Pipher; Review of the film "To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything! Julie Newmar." September 8, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458759].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Social Worker SATTAREH FARMAN FARMAIAN (sa-TAH-ray FAR-mahn far-m'YAN). She's the daughter of an Iranian prince of a fallen dynasty. She spent her childhood in a harem in Persia in the 20s and 30s. She in her 70's, and has spent a life time challenging Iran's conventions. She became the first Persian to study at the University of Southern California where she earned an advanced degree in social work. Returning to Iran she founded the Tehran School of Social Work. After the collapse of the Shah's regime she was arrested as a counter revolutionary and faced possible execution. Her autobiography is Daughter of Persia, (Crown Publishers). (REBROADCAST from 3/10/92) INT. 2: Pakistani writer BAPSI SIDHWA (Bop-see SEED-wah). Her novel Cracking India, tells the story of the Partition of India through the eyes of an eight-year-old girl named Lenny. SIDHWA has written other novels as... well, The Bride, and Ice-Candy-Man, both stories are told through female characters. (REBROADCAST originally aired 10/29/91) INT. 3: Psychologist MARY PIPHER has worked mostly with teenage girls for over ten years. She's witnessed the "oppression" of teenage girls today, more pronounced than that of their mothers because of the "more dangerous, sexualized and media saturated culture." She argues that something happens to girls when they reach adolescence: they lose their "assertive, energetic and 'tomboyish' personalities" to become "more deferential, self-critical and depressed." PIPHER has found greater incidents of eating disorders, self-mutilation, underachievement and depression among her clients. PIPHER's book is Reviving Ophelia: Saving the Selves of Adolescent Girls. (Putnam) (REBROADCAST from 4/25/94) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film "To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything! Julie Newmar" starring Wesley Snipes, Patrick Swayze, and John Leguizamo. . . in drag.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Publisher and editor RICHARD STRATTON of the magazine Prison Life. The magazine is written for and about prisoners, and includes such regular features as In Cell Cooking and Cellmate of the Month. It also includes legal advice, medical and health tips, and fiction, poetry, and art by prisoners and ex-prisoners. STRATTON spent eight years in prison for pot smuggling. This year HBO began a series of documentaries on life behind bars with the Prison Life magazine. (The phone number for the magazine is 1-800-207-2659). (THIS INTERVIEW RUNS INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with RICHARD STRATTON continued. REV. : T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI tells us about the new TV season.

Interview with Mark Bowden; Interview with Cynthia Brown; Interview with Jim Galipeau. September 12, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501879].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MARK BOWDEN ("Bow" like "Cow") for The Philadelphia Inquirer. He's just concluded a three part series (September 10-12, 1995) of articles on police corruption in Philadelphia.
Most of the corruption was centered at the 39th Police District, and involves potentially thousands of cases in which persons have been falsely arrested and imprisoned. INT. 2: Newspaper publisher CYNTHIA BROWN of American Police Beat. The newspaper's motto is to be "The Voice of the Nation's Police Officers." The tabloid-style paper is written for and by cops and caters to their concerns. (The paper's address is P.O. BOX 382702, Cambridge, MA 02238-2702; Tel: 617-491-8878; FAX: 617-354-6515)
INT. 3: Probation officer for Los Angeles County, JIM GALIPEAU (GAL-ih-poh). He works with gangs in Los Angeles GALIPEAU has been a probation officer for almost 30 years. He's a Vietnam vet, and when he was a teenager, he was a street fighter and drug addict. Terry also talked with GALIPEAU in 1993 when he discussed the truce he was working on with the gangs.

Interview with Jeff Greenfield; Review of the film "Jeffrey"; Interview with Ellen DeGeneres; Review of Peter Sellars operas. September 13, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973568681].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ABC News political and media analyst JEFF GREENFIELD. He appears regularly on Nightline and World News Tonight. He also has a weekly column on World News Sunday. He's just written his first novel about presidential politics and the electoral college, The People's Choice: A Cautionary Tale, (G.P. Putnam). REV. : STEVE VINEBERG reviews the new film "Jeffrey" based on the Paul Rudnick play about sex in the age of AIDS. INT. 2: Stand up comic ELLEN DEGENERES, the star of the sitcom "Ellen." The show airs on Wednesday nights on ABC. Last year DEGENERES co-hosted the 1994 Emmy awards and received a People's Choice Award for Favorite Female in a New Television series. She now has a new book, My Point. . . And I Do Have One. (Bantam News). REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two new productions by Peter Sellars.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychologist KAY REDFIELD JAMISON is an authority on manic-depression, and the author of the 1993 book Touched with Fire: Manic-Depressive Illness and the Artistic Temperament, (Free Press/MacMillan). Recently JAMISON disclosed her own 30-year battle with manic-depression in the new memoir, An Unquiet Mind: A Memoir of Moods and Madness (Knopf). JAMISON is Professor of Psychiatry at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. INT. 2: Novelist KAYE GIBBONS. She's the author of several acclaimed novels: Ellen Foster and Charms for the Easy Life. One reviewer says "Gibbon's brilliance lies in examining with unsentimental tenderness a family poised on the brink of disaster." GIBBONS has a new novel, Sights Unseen (Putnam) about a girl's life with her manic-depressive mother. GIBBONS herself has the illness, and she'll talk with Terry about that.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer WILLIAM MAXWELL has a collected his short stories in All the Days and Nights (Knopf) MAXWELL was fiction editor of the New Yorker from 1936-1976. He worked with such authors as J.D. Salinger, Jon Cheever, Jon Updike, Eudora Welty and scores of others. Jon Updike has said Maxwell's voice is "one of the wisest in American fiction. It is, as well, one of the kindest."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Four-star General, and former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff COLIN POWELL. He has a new autobiography My American Journey (Random House, written with Joseph E. Persico), and an anxious audience, waiting to see if he will declare his candidacy for President of the United States.
POWELL first came to the attention of the American public during the Gulf War, officiating at the televised Gulf War briefings. POWELL retired from the military in 1993, after 35 years in uniform. During that time he was the Army's youngest brigadier general, as well as the youngest chairman ever of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. (INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with GEN. COLIN POWELL continued. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY reflects on the legacy of Booker T. Washington, who among other things, founded the Tuskegee Institute. Today is the 100th anniversary of a speech given by Washington at the Atlanta Exposition, which celebrated a "new" industrialized, post-reconstruction South.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Correspondent for The New York Times ROGER COHEN who is covering the war in Bosnia. He'll discuss the recent offensive by Bosnian Muslims and Croats around Banja Luka in northwestern Bosnia, and he'll talk about the history of Serbs, and the betrayal many Serbs feel by Serbian nationals. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with ROGER COHEN continues. REV. 1 : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ REVIEWS a new reissue of the original soundtrack for The Wizard of Oz, a 2-CD set that includes some music never used in the film. (Rhino) REV. 2: T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new shows this fall: "Murder One" which premieres on ABC tonight, and "American Gothic" on CBS Friday Night.

Interview with Philip Glass; Interview with Kevin Pollack; Interview with Jonathan Katz; Review of John Oswald's album "Grayfolded." September 20, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458321].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer PHILIP GLASS. His latest work is a new score for the 1946 Jean Cocteau film adaptation of "La Belle et la Be?te" ("Beauty and the Beast"). GLASS' score includes four voices who sing a libretto, based on the screenplay. GLASS has toured the live music-film event in Europe and the United States. One reviewer called it "a beautiful, superbly integrated work." (Time, Dec. 19, 1994). (The score is available on Nonesuch Records.) INT. 2: Actor/comic KEVIN POLLACK. He got his start in standup. It was his performance in Barry Levinson's "Avalon," as Izzy the TV salesman, that catapulted his acting career. Since then he's appeared in "A Few Good Men," "Miami Rhapsody" and "Grumpy Old Men." He's currently starring in "The Usual Suspects." Later this Fall you can see him in the new Martin Scorsese film, "Casino." INT. 3 JONATHAN KATZ is another comic who has broadened his horizons. He went into animation. His "Dr. Katz, Professional Therapist" is a half-hour animated sitcom on Comedy Central (Sundays at 10:30 PM and Tuesdays at 8:30 PM). Katz is the voice of the psychiatrist, and fellow comics supply the voice of the patients, and the routines on therapy. (ALSO: Tonight Jonathan Katz will be doing standup on HBO's Comedy Half-Hour) REV. : World music critic MILO MILES reviews "Grayfolded" by the Canadian avant-gardist John Oswald which is two extended versions of the Grateful Dead song "Dark Star." Using a technique called "plunderphonics" Oswald took recordings from the Dead and manipulated them electronically. (If you can't find the album in your record store, it can be ordered from Swell Productions, 253 College St., #295, Toronto, Canada, M5T 1R5. Phone: 416-531-33330.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Tattoo artist and tattoo historian DON ED HARDY. He came to tattooing by way of a Fine Arts degree in printmaking, and he studied in Japan with a traditional tattoo master. He was the first non Asian to gain access to that world. HARDY also publishes colorfully illustrated books of tattoo art. (Hardy Marks Publications, P.O. Box 90520, Honolulu, Hawaii 96835). And he's curated the exhibition, "Pierced Hearts & True Love," which is at The Drawing Center in New York City (Sept. 16-Nov. 11). The exhibit then travels to Williamstown, Mass., Miami, and San Francisco. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews The Education of a Woman: The Life of Gloria Steinem, by Carolyn Heilbrun (Dial Publishing). INT. 2: Editor of The New Republic, ANDREW SULLIVAN. He's the first openly gay editor of a national political magazine. His new book, Virtually Normal: An Argument About Homosexuality, (Knopf), examines how our society deals with homosexuality, and looks at the different viewpoints on it. REV. Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG considers the movement to make English the official language.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist and screenwriter RICHARD PRICE. His screenwriting credits include "The Color of Money," "Sea of Love," and Martin Scorsese's section of "New York Stories," and now, "Clockers." He co-wrote the screenplay with Spike Lee. His novel "Clockers" is a murder mystery set in the world of a crack dealer in New Jersey. Christopher Lehmann-Haupt of The New York times writes "the signal achievement of the book "Clockers" is to make us feel the enormous power of these giants that are drugs, alcoholism, poverty." (published by Houghton Mifflin). (REBROADCAST from March 18, 1993) REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Bjork's album "Post." INT. 2: Singer pianist RANDY NEWMAN in the studio for music and conversation. Known for his satiric songs, NEWMAN has portrayed a racist, a rapist, and even God in songs like "Suzanne" and "Rednecks." In 1990 NEWMAN composed the soundtrack for the short-lived musical cop show, "Cop Rock." He also composed music for the movies "Parenthood," and "Avalon." His newest CD is "Faust" by Reprise Records 1995. (REBROADCAST from November 16, 1992) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Unstrung Heroes."

Interview with Boy George; Interview with Michael Berk; Interview with Danny Amis; Review of Stanley Elkin's novel "Mrs. Ted Bliss." September 25, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502348].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pop star BOY GEORGE. In 1982, he and his band Culture Club first hit the charts with, "Do You Really Want to Hurt Me?" He has a new autobiography in which he says he got "trapped" in the image he created. His band feel apart, his relationship, and he developed a drug addiction. He's now recovered. He has a new autobiography, Take It Like a Man: The Autobiography of Boy George. (written with George O'Dowd, published by HarperCollins.) He also has a new release, "Cheapness & Beauty," (Virgin). INT. 2: TV Producer MICHAEL BERK for the show "Baywatch." The show, which is filmed in Malibu, California, is about a group of lifeguards who patrol the beach. It's been called the "number one show on earth." It has one billion viewers in more than 110 countries. INT. 3: Guitarist DANNY AMIS from the band, "Los Straitjackets." The group hails from Nashville. They perform in Mexican wrestling masks, and play instrumental surf-rock with a "dark vibe lurking in the mix." (Guitar Player). They have a new CD, "The Utterly fantastic and totally unbelievable sound of. . . Los Straitjackets." (Upstart records 617-354-0700). REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the final novel by Stanley Elkin, Mrs. Ted Bliss (Hyperion).

Interview with Nick Hornby; Interview with Robert Palmer; Review of the film "Nadja."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British writer NICK HORNBY. His autobiographical memoir about being an obsessed soccer fan, Fever Pitch (1992, now in paperback, Penguin) achieved cult status. With his second book, and his first novel High-Fidelity one reviewer writes that HORNBY has "established himself in England as a maestro of the male confessional." High-Fidelity (Riverhead Books, div. of Putnam) is about 36-year old Rob Fleming, an obsessed record-collector, who's just lost his girlfriend, a casualty of his devotion to music.

INT. 2: Rock writer and critic ROBERT PALMER. He was the New York Times's first full-time rock writer and chief pop critic, and he's a contributing editor at Rolling Stones. He's written several books on blues and rock and roll, and was the writer and music director for the award-winning documentary films, "The World According to John Coltrane," and "Deep Blues." His latest work is chief advisor to the ten-part PBS documentary, "Rock & Roll: An Unruly History," currently airing on PBS. He's also a companion book (Harmony Books). REV. : Guest film critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews "Nadja" a vampire movie set in contemporary New York City. David Lynch was executive producer, and has a cameo role.

Interview with Michael Tilson Thomas; Review of Cathy Berberian's album "Recital I for Cathy and Folk Songs"; Interview with Roger Mangum. September 27, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458370].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Music director and conductor MICHAEL TILSON THOMAS. This month he took over the San Francisco Symphony. He's been conducting for 25 years. At the age of 24 years old he was appointed assistant conductor of the Boston Symphony, and began filling in regularly as conductor when the musical director's health began to fail. THOMAS was mentored by Leonard Bernstein. However, THOMAS's roots are in the theater: His grandparents were Boris and Bessie Thomashefsky, who founded the Yiddish theater in New York. There's a new book about him, Michael Tilson Thomas: Viva Voce. Conversations with Edward Seckerson. (Faber and Faber). REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a reissue by the late mezzo-soprano Cathy Berberian: Luciano Berio's "Recital I for Cathy and Folk Songs." (RCA) INT. 2: San Antonio Police officer ROGER MANGUM. In 1982, he shot and killed a man in the line of duty. Recently he and other officers set up a support group for officers involved in "critical incidents." The group is called, Police Officer Support Team (P.O.S.T.). In 1992 MANGUM left the police force, and began teaching at the San Antonio Police Academy.

Interview with Nicholas Pileggi; Review of Ennio Morricone's album "A Fistful of Film Music."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NICHOLAS PILEGGI (pill-LEH-GEE) discusses his book Casino: Love and Honor in Las Vegas. (Simon & Schuster Oct. 1995) It is based on the true story of Frank "Lefty" Rosenthal and his account of how the mob controlled several casinos in Las Vegas in the 1970s and early 80s. Pileggi also wrote the screenplay for a movie based on "Casino." A film directed by Martin Scorsese starring Robert DeNiro, Sharon Stone and Joe Pesci. Pileggi's best-selling book Wiseguy was used as the basis for the film "Goodfellas." Pileggi lives in New York City. INT. 2: Interview with NICHOLAS PILEGGI continued. REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new box-set of film music by Italian composer Ennio Morricone, "A Fistful of Film Music" (Rhino).

Interview with Walter Mosely; Review of the film "Devil In a Blue Dress"; Interview with Walter Mosley; Review of Walter Mosley's novel "R.L.'s Dream"; Interview with Alan Arkin; Commentary on bullfighting.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: (A) Writer WALTER MOSLEY. This interview took place after the publication of his book, Devil With A Blue Dress, a hard boiled detective story about a black gumshoe, Easy Rawlins, up against white prejudice. It's just been made into a film starring Denzel Washington. (REBROADCAST from 6/8/90). REV.: Guest film critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews the new film, "Devil With a Blue Dress."

INT. 1: (B): More from WALTER MOSLEY. He followed up his first Easy Rawlins book with another, Black Betty. Betty's a shark of a woman who leaves dead men in her wake. Like the other books in the series, Black Betty has Easy in post-War, but pre-present South Central L.A.--this time the year is 1961. MOSLEY gained public attention when then-presidential candidate Bill Clinton said that MOSLEY was his favorite mystery writer. (REBROADCAST from 5/26/94) REV.: Critic MILO MILES reviews the newest book by Walter Mosely. It's not an Easy Rawlins book. It's R.L.'S Dream, (Norton) a book about the blues told in the voice of down and out, country-blues musician Soup Spoon. INT. 2: Actor and director ALAN ARKIN. He's currently co-starring, with Andy Garcia, in the new film, "Steal Big, Steal Little," Arkin began his career with Chicago's Second City improv group. He went on to win a Tony on Broadway, in Carl Reiner's play "Enter Laughing," and to star in movies such as "The Russians Are Coming, The Russians Are Coming," "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter," "Wait Until Dark," "Catch-22," and "The In-Laws." Arkin's directing credits include "The Sunshine Boys" and "Little Murders" on Broadway, and several movies and T-V shows, including an episode of the P-B-S comedy series, "Trying Times." (REBROADCAST from 11/2/89) REV.: Commentator DAGOBERTO GILB wonders why he keeps returning to the bullfights.

Interview with Harry Shearer; Commentary on race, music, and class. October 2, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458372].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Satirist, columnist, one of the creators of and performers in the mock-rock group Spinal Tap, and host of the syndicated radio program, "Le Show," HARRY SHEARER. He also does several voices on "The Simpsons." SHEARER has collected onto a CD his satirical pieces about the O.J. Simpson trial: "O.J. on Trial: The Early Years." (to order call, 1-800-YES-OJ-CD). These pieces originally were aired on "Le Show." INT. 2: Interview with HARRY SHEARER, continued. REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER comments on the way rock music may be once again uniting people of different race and class again.
Interview with Andrew Weil; Commentary on Ray Charles. October 3, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458369].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. ANDREW WEIL (pronounced "WHILE"). He is one of the world's leading authorities on health, healing and medicine. His latest book Spontaneous Healing (Knopf) explores how to discover and enhance our body's natural ability to maintain and heal itself. DR. WEIL is currently Associate Director of the Division of Social Perspectives in Medicine. He also has a private practice, based at the Center for Integrative Medicine at Tucson, where he treats patients from around the world. (Rebroadcast of July 13, 1995). INT. 2: Interview with ANDREW WEIL continued. REV.: Rock historian Ed Ward tells the story of how Ray Robinson--an obscure emerging R & B singer--broke away from his image as a Nat King Cole imitator, changed his name, his record label, and established his identity as Ray Charles. (Rebroadcast of 8/23/1988)

Interview with Stephen Adler; Interview with Brent Staples; Interview with Jim Crogan; Tribute to Buster Keaton. October 4, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502600].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist STEPHEN ADLER. He is former legal affairs editor of The Wall Street Journal and is now the paper's investigative editor. Terry will discuss with him the O.J. Simpson trial and the jury process. Last year ADLER'S book about what's wrong with the jury system and how it can be fixed, was published: The Jury: Trial and Error in the American Courtroom, (Times Books/Random House). ADLER looked at the history of the jury system and how our attitudes about juries changed over the years. ADLER blamed poor jury selection, shrewd and savvy lawyers, and judges who don't explain the legal issues well enough to jurors. INT. 2: Editorial writer for the New York Times BRENT STAPLES. He wrote a memoir last year: Parallel Time: Growing Up in Black & White (Pantheon). In 1984, Staples' younger brother, a cocaine dealer, was murdered. Staples began a process of reconsideration of the major questions in his life: his distance from his family by graduate study at the University of Chicago; the demise and racial divisions of his industrial hometown in Pennsylvania. INT. 3: Journalist JIM CROGAN is a freelance writer with the L.A. Weekly and Newsweek. He covered the O.J. Simpson trial for the past 15 months, and the Los Angeles Police Department for several years. REV.: Silent film legend Buster Keaton was born 100 years ago today. Kino Video collected many of Keaton's films in box set. An interview with Keaton from the set will be played. We will also hear a portion of guitarist and composer Bill Frisell's score for Keaton's film "Go West."

Interview with Marc Mauer; Interview with Ronald Williams. October 5, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502704].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MARC MAUER is a co-author for a new study that says there has been a sharp increase over the past five years in the number of African-American males age 20-29 in jail, on probation or on parole. The study finds, on any given day, one in three black men in their 20s is under some form of court supervision. Five years ago, a similar study found that the percentage at one in four blacks. The study is titled Young Black Americans and the Criminal Justice System: Five Years Later. it's two authors are Marc Mauer and Tracy Huling. Mauer is Assistant Director of The Sentencing Project 202-628-0871. INT. 2: RONALD WILLIAMS is Executive Director of New York Therapeutic Communities Inc. It was founded in 1977 to pilot a program called "Stay'n Out." The program provides substance abuse treatment to New York state's prisons. The program is to reduce recidivism in prisons. 212-971-6033.

Interview with Betty Johnson; Interview with Eileen Farrell; Review of the film "To Die For." October 6, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457827].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer BETTY JOHNSON. She was a member of "The Johnson Family," which sang gospel and country music for two decades. President Franklin D. Roosevelt was a fan, and the group was invited to sing at his memorial service. JOHNSON went solo in the late 1950s and was a regular on Don McNeill's "Breakfast Club," and Jack Paar's TV show. She also made many guest appearances on TV shows. During that time she made over 150 records and a dozen albums. JOHNSON left show business to raise a family and receive a degree in drama at Dartmouth. JOHNSON has since returned to her singing career, with a cabaret act in 1994 at The Oak Room at The Algonquin Hotel. (REBROADCAST from 2/1/95). She has two new albums to be released later this month: a solo album, "My Heart Sings" (on her own label, Johnson Gray) and a gospel album with her daughter, "In the Garden." (same label.) INT. 2: Soprano
EILEEN FARRELL. At the age of 75, she's had a long career: she began in radio, with her own show on CBS, in the forties. In the fifties she started singing opera, and has performed with every major opera company and symphony orchestra in the U.S., including five seasons with the Metropolitan Opera in New York. She has also been a professor of music at Indiana University and the University of Maine. Starting in the sixties, she began putting out albums of jazz standards. Terry spoke to her in 1992 after the release of her album, "It's Over." (Reference Recordings RR-46CD) Farrell's other recent album is "Here" (Elba Records.). Her newest album -- and she says her last -- is "Love is Letting Go,: (DRG Records). (REBROADCAST Originally aired 7/9/92) REV. : Guest film critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews "To Die For."

Interview with Ben Bradlee; Review of the television program ""The Private Life of Plants."" October 9, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502703].

Description of show segment(s)

INT 1: Former Executive Editor of The Washington Post BEN BRADLEE. During his stint at the paper he helped transform the Post into one of the most influential investigative newspapers. Under his leadership, reporters investigated and broke open the Watergate story. The paper also challenged the federal government over the right to publish the Pentagon Papers. BRADLEE has written his autobiography: Ben Bradlee: A Good Life: Newspapering and Other Adventures. (Simon & Shuster). INT. 2: Interview with BEN BRADLEE continues. REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews a two-part documentary titled "The Private Life of Plants." It will be featured on cable TV's TBS network tonight and tomorrow night. Bianculli says its the best documentary he's seen this year.

Interview with James Baker; Review of Eric Zencey's and Caleb Carr's novels "Panama" and "The Alienist"; Interview with Anatoly Dobrynin; Commentary on the use of the word "n-----." October 10, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458367].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Secretary of State JAMES BAKER talks about his role during the Bush Administration. His new autobiography is The Politics of Diplomacy: Revolution, War & Peace, 1989-1992. It was co-written with Thomas M. DeFrank and published by G.P. Putnam's Sons 1995. As the 61st Secretary of State, James Baker oversaw U.S. relations during many historic geo-political changes. Among those include The Persian Gulf War, Tiananmen Square, and The fall of the Berlin Wall. Bio: Baker has served under three Presidents: as Under Secretary of Commerce for Gerald Ford, as White House Chief of Staff and Treasury Secretary for Ronald Reagan, and as Secretary of State for George Bush. Baker is a lawyer in private practice today. REV. : Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Panama by Eric Zencey. INT. 2: Former Soviet Ambassador to the United States ANATOLY DOBRYNIN (doe-BRINN-yen). Dobrynin has written his autobiography In Confidence: Moscow's Ambassador to America's Six Cold War Presidents published by Times Books 1995. Dobrynin was Ambassador from 1962 (Kennedy) through 1986 (Reagan). He was a key diplomat in many U.S./Soviet conflicts including The Cuban Missile Crisis. Dobrynin, now 76 years old, is still active in Russian diplomacy as senior advisor to the Foreign Ministry. He lives in Moscow. REV. : Geoffrey Nunberg comments about the return of the "N" word in American dialogue.

---

Interview with Kazuo Ishiguro; Interview with Raul Malo; Commentary on the Million Man March. October 11, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458368].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: KAZUO (ka-zoo-oh) ISHIGURO (ish-ee-gew-roe) won international recognition with his novel The Remains of the Day. He won the distinguished Booker Award for this book in 1989. It was later adapted to a movie starring Anthony Hopkins and Emma Thompson. The Japanese born British writer has released his latest book The Unconsoled, Alfred A. Knopf 1995. A story about the mixed blessings of celebrity from the point of view of a concert pianist. Other titles by Ishiguro include: A Pale View of the Hills, An Artist of the Floating World. INT. 2: We talk with RAUL MALO the lead singer for the country music band The Mavericks. The group's latest CD is "Music For All." by MCA Nashville 1995. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY gives his thoughts on next week's scheduled Million Man March in Washington.
Interview with Terry Johnson; Interview with Mark Harrell; Interview with Glenn Loury; Interview with Geoffrey Canada. October 12, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502543].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TERRY JOHNSON..is a local organizer for the Philadelphia contingent headed to Monday's Million Man March. Johnson plans to walk to Washington to help symbolize his determination for a positive change in U.S. race relations. He and others will follow the path once used by the Underground Railroad. INT. 2: MARK HARRELL (her-ell) is a local organizer for the Philadelphia contingent headed to Monday's Million Man March in Washington D.C. Last year, Harrell chaired a three-day forum in Philadelphia that brought together several hundred African-American men together to discuss problems in the black community. He is the Director of the Youth Gang and Drug Prevention Program for the Philadelphia Mayor's office. INT 3: GLENN LOURY (lau as in cow) is an African-American conservative who is an outspoken critic of affirmative action programs. He has just written the book One by One From The Inside Out: Essays and Reviews on Race and Responsibility in America. Free Press 1995. In 1987, Loury was nominated to become Reagan's Deputy Secretary of Education. Loury withdrew his name citing "personal reasons." Later that year, Loury was arrested for possession of marijuana and cocaine. He now a Professor of Economics at Boston University. INT 4: GEOFFREY CANADA is author of Fist Stick Knife Gun: A Personal History of Violence in America (Beacon Press 1995) It provides a look into the lives of children living in violence. CANADA is President and CEO of Rheedlan Centers for Children and Families in New York. He helps at risk children in the inner-city to find alternatives to violence.

Interview with Brian Eno; Review of the film "Strange Days"; Interview with Wynton Marsalis; Interview with Arthur Miller. October 13, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458671].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician, composer and producer BRIAN ENO. Many of Eno's musical ideas are related to theories approaches initially developed in the classical avant-garde, but he has made his greatest mark in pop music. He has a produced many New Wave and other pop bands, like Devo, Talking Heads and the Penguin Cafe Orchestra. He also collaborated on a recording with musician John Cale. ENO has a new recording "Brian Eno & Jah Wobble: "Spinner" (All Saints Records, due out 10/24/95) (REBROADCAST from 10/4/90) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Strange Days" the new action film directed by Katherine Bigelow. INT. 2: Grammy Award winning jazz musician WYNTON MARASALIS. He's been playing the trumpet since he was six, and won his first Grammy at 20. His albums include "The Majesty of the Blues," "Thick in the South," and "Citi Movement," with the Wynton Marsalis Septet. MARASALIS is also the co-founder and artistic director of Jazz at Lincoln Center. He recently broke up the Septet so he could spend more time with the Lincoln Center. "Sweet Swing Blues on the Road" (W.W. Norton & Company), is his recent book, written in collaboration with photographer Frank Stewart. MARASALIS has a new four-part PBS series, "Marsalis on Music" which debuted this week. (REBROADCAST from 12/7/94) INT. 3: Playwright, novelist and essayist Arthur Miller. His plays include "All My Sons," "The Crucible," "After the Fall" and "Death of a Salesman," for which he won the 1949 Pulitzer Prize for Drama and lasting fame in American theater. He has written an autobiography titled Timebends. (Rebroadcast of 11/25/1987)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Broadcast journalist JOHN MERROW. He's the anchor and Executive Editor of "The Merrow Report" a quarterly series of documentaries on PBS that examines education and surrounding issues. Their latest documentary is "Attention Deficit Disorder: A Dubious Diagnosis?" In the documentary MERROW disputes the widely held belief that Ritalin, the drug given to children with Attention Deficit Disorder, is not "dangerous and addictive." MERROW also found that the drug has been overprescribed, and that some kids have begun to abuse it. (It airs Friday, October 20, at 10 PM) MERROW is the former host of the NPR program, "Options in Education" which ran from 1974-1982. INT. 2: Professor RICHARD FOULDS. He teaches at the University of Delaware. He's the father of a child with A.D.D. (Attention Deficit Disorder) and a member of C.H.A.D.D. a non-profit organization directed by parents of children with ADD. INT. 3: Co-founders of Brooklyn's Bedford Stuyvesant Volunteer Ambulance Corp. JAMES "ROCKY" ROBINSON and JOE PEREZ. They began the corp in 1988, after watching people die because the Ambulances responded too slowly to calls. (There are 39 volunteer ambulance corps in New York

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lead singer and songwriter for The Kinks, RAY DAVIES. He's just written his "unauthorized autobiography." The book is written in the third, nameless person, and takes place in a corporation-run future. It's called, Ray Davies: X-Ray. (The Overlook Press). RAY started The Kinks in 1964 with his brother. They are said to be the pioneers of the rowdy garage band genre of rock music. Their many hits included: "You Really Got Me," "Lola," "All Day and All of the Night," and "Tired of Waiting for you."

INT. 2: More with RAY DAVIES. REV. : Guest film critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews two new college movies: "A Reason to Believe" and "Kicking and Screaming"

Interview with George Soros; Review of Emmylou Harris's album "Wrecking Ball." October 18, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458483].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: International investor and philanthropist GEORGE SOROS and one of the world's wealthiest men. He's been called the "world's greatest investor." As head of the Soros Foundation, (a philanthropic organization) he's given away millions internationally, funding such things as a water-treatment plant for Sarajevo, low-income housing units for South Africa's urban townships, and a University for Central Europe in Budapest. SOROS is also known as the "man who broke the Bank of England" by betting against the British currency and earning a billion dollars on Black Wednesday. SOROS was criticized for crowing about profiting from the pounds collapse. SOROS has written a new book Soros on Soros: Staying Ahead of the Curve. (John Wiley & Sons). There's also another new book about SOROS, Soros: The Life, Times, & Trading Secrets of the World's Greatest Investor, by Robert Slater, published by Irwin). INT. 2: Interview with GEORGE SOROS continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Emmylou Harris' new album, "Wrecking Ball." (Elektra/Asylum)

Interview with Athol Fugard; Interview with Jimmy Tingle; Review of the television programs "Prime Suspect" and "Homicide October 19, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458377].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African playwright and actor ATHOL FUGARD. For years FUGARD fought apartheid on the stage in his plays including "My Children! My Children," "The Blood Knot," (in which he put a black actor alongside a white actor on the same stage) and "Sizwe Banzi is Dead." For his efforts FUGARD's passport was revoked, and he was put under virtual house arrest from 1967-1971. His new play "Valley Song" is his first play in the post-apartheid Africa. INT. 2: Political and social comic, JIMMY TINGLE. He was featured on the album of political humor "Strange Bedfellows." He's also appeared on "The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson," "HBO's One Night Stand," and in Showtime's documentary "But Seriously" about American social satirists. TINGLE has a new one-man show, "Jimmy Tingle's Uncommon Sense," which had an off-Broadway run last year. It's just been held over through November 4th at the Hasty Pudding Theatre in Cambridge. TINGLE's show will be released on a new CD, "Jimmy Tingle's Uncommon Sense: Live from the Hasty Pudding Theatre" (Lyric Moon records) REV. : T-V critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new "Prime Suspect" which airs Sunday night on PBS, and "Homicide" which begins a new season tomorrow night on NBC.

Interview with Robert MacNeil; Interview with David Brinkley; Interview with Walter Cronkite; Review of the film "Get Shorty." October 20, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458294].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Television anchor and author ROBERT MACNEIL. He steps down tonight as co-anchor of the PBS news show The MacNEIL/Lehrer Newshour. Terry talked with him this week. We'll hear that interview and one from 1985. His books include, Wordstruck, a memoir that explores the roots of MacNeil's fascination with language and the best-selling The Story of English. (Contains excerpt of MacNeil's March 14, 1989 interview). INT. 2: Veteran TV journalist DAVID BRINKLEY. His book, Washington Goes to War, was a surprise best-seller. The book, based on Brinkley's personal experiences and reflections, told the story of Washington in the early 40s, and how both the government and town itself were transformed by the responsibilities thrust on them as a result of the war. (REBROADCAST from 7/6/89). BRINKLEY has a new book: David Brinkley: A Memoir (Knopf). INT. 3: Journalist and former anchor of the CBS News, WALTER CRONKITE. CRONKITE worked at CBS News for 31 years. This interview took place in 1993 after his documentary "The Faltering Dream," in which he interviewed notable black leaders including Reverend Jesse Jackson and Spike Lee about race relations. (REBROADCAST from 10/12/93) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Get Shorty" the new film based on the novel by Elmore Leonard and starring John Travolta.

Interview with Evan Thomas; Interview with Dennis Diken; Review of Mary Cantwell's memoir "Manhattan, When I Was Young." October 23, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458600].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist EVAN THOMAS. He is Assistant Managing Editor and Washington Bureau Chief at Newsweek. His new book is The Very Best Men: Four Who Dared: The Early Years of the CIA (Simon & Schuster). In the book he tells about the men who ran the CIA's covert operations during the worst of the cold war years. THOMAS had access to the CIA's own records about their operations, and he interviewed many of the men involved. THOMAS was the only person to have such access to the CIA's archives. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: DENNIS DIKEN of the band The Smithereens. He's just compiled a collection of recordings by the English record producer Joe Meek. Meek's heyday was in the late 50s and early 60s, and was responsible for "the best pop to come out of pre-Beatles England." Meek committed suicide in 1966. The new CD is "It's Hard to Believe It: The Amazing World of Joe Meek" (Razor & Tie Music, P.O. Box 585, Cooper Station, New York, N.Y. 10276) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new memoir by Mary Cantwell, Manhattan, When I Was Young.
Interview with Robert Krulwich; Obituary for Don Cherry; Interview with Ornette and Denardo Coleman; Review of the television show "NYPD Blue." October 24, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458604].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ROBERT KRULWICH. He's correspondent for the PBS series Frontline. His documentary "High Stakes in Cyberspace" airs Tuesday, Oct. 31 (at 9 PM). KRULWICH explores the growing industry of advertising in cyberspace, and its social and cultural impacts. He interviews software designers who are creating the new programs used by advertisers, and also the advertisers themselves, who are counting on the information superhighway as an arena where they can keep track of the buyers' behavior, and where they can also successfully market their products. INT. 2: An excerpt of a 1990 interview with trumpeter DON CHERRY. He died recently. He played with Ornette Coleman's free jazz revolution which began in 1959. INT. 3: Composer and jazz musician ORNETTE COLEMAN and his son, producer DENARDO COLEMAN. They've just collaborated on a new album, "Ornette Coleman & Prime Time: Tone Dialing." It's on a new label that Coleman has founded: Harmolodic (a division of Verve Records). In 1959 COLEMAN he started the era of "free jazz." Since then COLEMAN has been one of jazz's most innovative and controversial composers. In 1994 COLEMAN was a recipient of the MacArthur Fellowship Award. REV. : T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the season opener of "NYPD Blue."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT CARTER is a clinical social worker with Project RAP (Reduce Abuse Program) part of the Family Service of Philadelphia. He counsels men who are abusive with their partners and family. CARTER is also a group facilitator working with adolescent fathers, and he meets with pre-teen and teen groups in a prevention to violence program. (Family Service of Philadelphia, 215-875-3300). INT. 2: Psychologist DONALD DUTTON is a pioneer in the study and treatment of abusive men. He is a psychology professor at the University of British Columbia, and the director of the Assaultive Husbands Program in Vancouver, Canada. Recently DUTTON was an expert witness for the prosecution in the pretrial of O.J. Simpson. His new book (co-authored with Susan Golant) is The Batterer: A Psychological Interview with Marlin Fitzwater; Commentary on CD-ROMs. October 26, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458725].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former press secretary for Reagan and Bush, MARLIN FITZWATER. He spent 17 years as a government flak before being appointed to his position in the Reagan White House. In his new memoir, Call the Briefing! Reagan and Bush, Sam and Helen: A Decade with Presidents and the Press (Times Books), FITZWATER writes about the relationship between the press secretary, the White House, and the press. INT. 2: Interview with MARLIN FITZWATER continued. REV. : Steven Levy tells us why it's taken him so long to use CD-ROMs and other multimedia.

Interview with Matthew Broderick; Review of the album "For the Love of Harry"; Interview with Paul Auster; Review of the film "Leaving Las Vegas." October 27, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458485].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor MATTHEW BRODERICK. He recently made his singing and dancing debut in the revival of the Broadway musical, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." BRODERICK plays J. Pierrepont Finch, an ambitious window washer who climbs the corporate ladder by "fawning, brown-nosing, sucking up and a touch of backstabbing." The satirical musical was written by Frank Loesser and Abe Burrows and first hit the stage in 1961. BRODERICK is best known for his acting, in such movies as "Torch Song Trilogy," "War Games," and "The Freshman." BRODERICK was nominated for a 1995 Tony Award for his performance in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." BRODERICK steps down from his role as J. Pierrepont Finch, early next month. (REBROADCAST from 5/16/95) REV. : Milo Miles reviews a tribute album to Harry Nilsson "For the Love of Harry." (Music Masters). INT. 2: Novelist, PAUL AUSTER. AUSTER has been called "America's most spectacularly inventive writers." AUSTER recently "broadened his creative reach" with his work on two films, "Smoke" and "Blue in the Face", in a double collaboration with director Wayne Wang, who also directed "The Joy Luck Club. AUSTER has a BA and an MA in English and Comparative Literature from Columbus University. His novels include Moon Palace, The Music of Chance, Leviathan, and Mr. Vertigo. His film "Blue in the Face" is now out in theaters. (REBROADCAST from 6/8/95) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the new film, "Leaving Las Vegas," directed by Mike Figgis and starring Nicholas Cage.

Interview with Mary Tyler Moore, Part 1; Commentary on Los Angeles and rock music; Interview with Mary Tyler Moore, Part 2; Review of Mary Martin's album "Mary Martin--The Decca Years 1938-1946." October 30, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458480].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress MARY TYLER MOORE. She starred in the Emmy award television show "The Dick Van Dyke Show," "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," and the film "Ordinary People." She is now starring in a new CBS series "New York News," a drama about life at a fictional New York newspaper, and has recently written her autobiography, "After All," (Putnam's Sons). In her book, MOORE traces the track of her career and reveals the hardships of the person whom America considered "the typical American girl," including her struggles and triumphs over alcoholism and diabetes. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV. : Rock historian ED WARD begins a special series on the contribution of various cities to rock and roll. He begins with Los Angeles. INT. 2: Interview with MARY TYLER MOORE continued. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new CD of early recordings by Mary Martin, "Mary Martin--The Decca Years 1938-1946" (Koch label). It includes songs by Cole Porter, the Gershwin's, Frank Loesser, and others.

Interview with David J. Skal; Commentary on New Orleans and rock music; Interview with Elmore Leonard. October 31, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458375].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film historian DAVID J. SKAL. He's an expert on the horror film genre. His books include Hollywood Gothic: The Tangled Web of Dracula from Novel to Stage to Screen (W.W. Norton) and The Monster Show: A Cultural History of Horror (Penguin, paperback). His newest book (written in collaboration with Elias Savada) is Dark Carnival: The Secret World of Tod Browning, Hollywood's Master of the Macabre (Anchor Books). Tod Browning was a film director who earned the reputation as "the Edgar Allan Poe of the cinema." He directed Lon Chaney and Bela Lugosi and made such films as "Dracula" and the "repellent. . . and pathetic" "Freaks." REV. : Rock historian ED WARD continues his series on cities and rock and roll. Today's city is New Orleans. INT. 2: Novelist ELMORE LEONARD. He's 70 years old and has been called "the greatest living writer of crime fiction" (New York Times). Though he'd been writing for decades, critics didn't take notice of him until the 1980s. Now his work is known for it tight prose, "ear-perfect" dialogue and depiction of lower class life. LEONARD's written thirty-two novels, including the bestsellers Pronto, Maximum Bob, and Get Shorty which has been made into a film, starring John Travolta and Gene Hackman.

Interview with David Milch and Bill Clark, Part 1; Commentary on Memphis and rock music;
Interview with David Milch and Bill Clark, Part 2; Review of PM Dawn's album "Jesus Wept."
November 1, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458727].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Co-creator, executive producer and head writer of "NYPD Blue," DAVID MILCH, and Detective BILL CLARK who is a consultant to the show. CLARK is a former New York City homicide detective. Many of the story lines for the show, come from the cases he worked on. The two have collaborated on a new book, True Blue: The Real Stories Behind NYPD Blue (William Morrow). REV. : Rock historian ED WARD continues his series on cities and their contribution to music. Today's city is Memphis. INT. 2: Interview with MILCH and CLARK continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new CD by PM Dawn, "Jesus Wept."

Interview with Jason Robards; Commentary on Chicago and rock and roll; Interview with Maya Lin; Review of Barry Unsworth's novel "Morality Play." November 2, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457750].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor JASON ROBARDS. He's 73 years old and he's been acting for 50 of those. He won an Oscars for his performance as Ben Bradlee in "All the President's Men," and Dashiell Hammett in "Julia."
In 1956 ROBARDS first came to the attention of the critics with his performance in Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh." His performance helped define the role for a generation. It also began ROBARDS collaboration with director Jose Quintero, resurrecting the works of O'Neill. ROBARDS is currently performing in New York in Harold Pinter's new play "Moonlight." In January he'll open in "Molly Sweeney" the new Brian Friel play. REV. :Rock historian ED WARD looks at Chicago's contribution to music. INT. 2: Designer, sculptor, architect MAYA LIN. She was a 21 year-old undergraduate student when her design was selected for the Vietnam War Memorial. Her works are known for their ability to elicit powerful emotions. LIN also designed the Civil Rights Memorial in Montgomery, Alabama, and the "Women's Table" at Yale ( which dealt with the history of female students at Yale, which was mostly all-male for 300 years.) Most recently LIN designed "The Wave Field" in memory of Francois-Xavier Bagnoud, pilot, aeronautical engineer and humanitarian. LIN is the subject of an academy award winning documentary, "Maya Lin: A Strong Clear Vision." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Morality Play, the new novel by British writer Barry Unsworth.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Drummer, RINGO STARR. The ex-Beatle recently came back for a world tour with his third All Starr Band. He talked to Terry about his life before, during and after the Beatles. (Rebroadcast of 6/14/1995) REV. : Rock historian ED WARD continues his look at the contribution various cities have made to rock and roll. INT. 2: Interview with RINGO STARR, continued. REV. :Guest film critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews the new thriller "Copycat" starring Holly Hunter, Sigourney Weaver, and Harry Connick, Jr.

Interview with Ze'ev Chafets; Interview with Yossi Klein Halevi; Interview with Thomas Friedman. November 6, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457879].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ZE'EV CHAFETS (SHAY-fetz) columnist for "The Jerusalem Report," a news magazine published in Israel. Chafets is an Israeli who grew up in Pontiac, Michigan. He was the director of the government press office under prime minister Menachem Begin. He's also the author of several novels. INT. 2: Writer YOSSI KLEIN HALEVI is a senior writer for "The Jerusalem Report." He's the author of Memoirs of A Jewish Extremist: An American Story, (Little, Brown) which tells the story of his involvement with Jewish right-wing movements in the United States, and with the extremist rabbi Meir Kahane. HALEVI eventually broke away from the movement. INT. 3 : New York Times columnist THOMAS FRIEDMAN. Friedman spent the last decade covering the Middle East, work that won him two Pulitzer Prizes. His book, From Beirut to Jerusalem has recently been updated, to include information on the Peace Process. It's now available in paperback. The book looked at the inside of Arab and Israeli power circles, and examined the Intifada and the perceptions American and Israeli Jews have of each other.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From the Library of Congress, Recording Sound Specialist, SAMUEL BRYLAWSKI and Acquisition Specialist COOPER GRAHAM. The two have just compiled a collection of presidential speeches dating back 85 years. The collection is Historic Presidential Speeches (1908-1993) (on Rhino/World Beat label) and begins with William Howard Taft's recorded during the presidential campaign of 1908. INT. 2: Nicaraguan poet DAISY ZAMORA. She was born into a well-to-do, upper-middle class family. When she was four her father was arrested for his part in an attempted coup against the dictator Somoza. Later in adult life ZAMORA was part of the Sandinista Revolution. After going into exile in Honduras and Costa Rica, ZAMORA was announcer for the clandestine Radio Sandino. She'll talk with Terry about her work with the voice of the revolution. ZAMORA now teaches at the Universidad Centroamericana in Managua, Nicaragua. ZAMORA's poems are published in a new collection The City

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist AMY TAN. Her best-selling books include The Joy Luck Club, and The Kitchen God's Wife. Her newest novel is The Hundred Secret Senses (Putnam's), about two half-sisters. One is Chinese-American, the other is Chinese, and has the ability to see ghosts. REV. : Ken Tucker reviews the Smashing Pumpkins new album, "Mellon Collie and the Infinite Sadness." INT. 2: Actor ERIC STOLTZ. He's gotten a reputation playing parts in films like "Killing Zoe," "Pulp Fiction," and "The Waterdance," "Some Kind of Wonderful," and many other films. As a child he played the disfigured boy in "Mask," and was a Sean Penn's surfing high school pal in "Fast Times at Ridgemont High." He's played Helen Hunt's ex-boyfriend in the TV show "Mad About You." Currently he's starring in "Kicking and Screaming." Soon he'll be playing the insect in the upcoming film, "Fly II." REV. :Maureen Corrigan reviews The Missionary Position by Christopher Hitchens.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright and satirist from South Africa PIETER-DIRK UYS (Peter - Durk - ACE). He has a television talk show in South Africa. UYS' show has unusual twist. Instead of hosting his show as himself, he dresses drag as an Afrikaner dowager named Evita. His guests include such leaders as Nelson Mandela. UYS' show is said to be "a way of making the country's leaders seem more human." (REBROADCAST from 6/28/95) REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews the album "Vietnam Blues: The Complete L+R Records" by J. B. Lenoir. INT. 2: Actor DAVID PAYMER received an Oscar nomination for his role in "Mr. Saturday Night." He's starred in the movie "Quiz Show." as Dan Enright, the villain producer who rigs the show "Twenty-One." . He's currently in the new film "Get Shorty." (REBROADCAST from 10/6/94) REV. :Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Persuasion," the new British adaptation of the Jane Austen novel.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Miami Herald columnist and novelist CARL HIAASEN. His newest comic thriller set in South Florida is Stormy Weather, about the rip off artists and corrupt construction and insurance industries that take advantage of hurricane victims. He's also the author of five other books in the same vein: Strip Tease, a yarn, pitting a seamy Florida politician against the star stripper at Miami's Eager Beaver club. Mr. Hiaasen has spun tales of environmentalists feeding tourists and senior citizens to alligators ("Tourist Season), of a villainous South Florida plastic surgeon who kills a woman during a nose job ("Skin Tight"), and about the amusement park, The Amazing Kingdom of Thrills, where one of the novel's heavies is loved to death by an amorous dolphin ("Native Tongue"). INT. 2: Stand-up comic SUZANNE WESTENHOEFER. She recently appeared on the latest "Comic Relief" special on HBO (November 11). WESTENHOEFER is a lesbian, and uses her humor to challenge the stereotypes about gays and lesbians. She also was the first lesbian to have a comedy special on HBO, "Nothing in My Closet but my Clothes." REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews recordings by British singers soprano Margaret Tate, and tenor Heddle Nash. (on the British label, Pearl.)

Interview with Elie Wiesel; Commentary on names and businesses. November 14, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457746].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and Nobel Peace Prize recipient ELIE WIESEL. He's the author of over 30 books. WIESEL, a survivor of the Holocaust, is known for his work which bears witness to that tragedy. WIESEL has just published the first volume of his memoirs, All Rivers Run to the Sea. In this book WIESEL writes about his childhood before the war, the horrors of Auschwitz, and his life after the war as a Paris based journalist, and as a New York writer, who struggled with the tragedies of the past, and the commitment to not letting the world forget what happened. The memoir is described by Publishers Weekly as "immensely moving, unforgettable... This haunting, impassioned book will make you cry yet, somehow, leave you renewed, with a cautious hope for humanity's future." INT. 2: Interview with ELIE WIESEL continued. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on what it means to rename something.

Interview with George Lardner, Jr.; Interview with Arthur Agee and Steve James; Review of Faron Young's albums "Faron Young, Live Fast, Love Hard" and "Golden Hits." November 15, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501774].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist GEORGE LARDNER, JR. is an investigative reporter for The Washington Post. In 1993 he had to investigate the murder of his own daughter, who was stalked and killed by an ex-boyfriend. LARDNER won a Pulitzer Prize for his story which showed how the system had failed to protect his daughter, Kristin. His new book is The Stalking of Kristin: A Father Investigates the Murder of his Daughter. (Atlantic Monthly Press). INT. 2: Interview with GEORGE LARDNER, JR. continued. INT. 3. From the new movie documentary "Hoop Dreams" (Fine Line Features), young basketball player ARTHUR AGEE and film director STEVE JAMES The film traces the lives of AGEE and his friend William Gates for five years as they try to follow their dreams of rising from inner city Chicago to play in the NBA. James is the director, producer and co-editor of the film. (REBROADCAST from 10/31/94). REV. 1: Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews two albums showcasing country musician Faron Young.

Interview with Richard Dicker; Interview with Brian Anderson; Interview with Elizabeth Streb.

November 16, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501773].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Associate Counsel for Human Rights Watch, RICHARD DICKER. He'll discuss the situation in Nigeria. Last week poet, playwright and minority rights activist Ken Saro-Wiwa was sentenced to death and killed, along with eight other men. Saro-Wiwa lead the "Movement for the Survival of Ogoni People," a movement to help the impoverished Ogoni. They had been fighting for rights to petroleum reserves and compensation for environmental damage by Shell Oil Company, a lead oil operator in the country. The deaths have been condemned by many world leaders. (WE'LL HAVE ANOTHER INTERVIEW ON THIS IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Managing Director of Shell Petroleum Development Co., BRIAN ANDERSON. In 1993, Shell pulled out of Ogoniland, the oil rich part of Nigeria, after it's pipelines were sabotaged. But they still operate in other parts of Nigeria. Human Rights Watch is calling on them, and other oil companies to close down their operations in Nigeria. INT. 3 Choreographer ELIZABETH STREB. Her troupe, "The Ringside Company" is currently on national tour, with "PopAction." Streb's works combine dance, athletics, daring and precision. Her dancers work on and around such props as scaffolding towers, trampolines, and walls. One reviewer described it as "dazzling speed, wit and daring." (THIS CONTINUES after the FLOATER).
Obituary for Ralph Blane; Interview with Philip Roth; Review of the television show "The Beatles Anthology"; Interview with Garry Marshall; Review of the film "The American President."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer and Lyricist RALPH BLANE died Monday at the age of 81 at his home in Oklahoma. He is best known for his work with HUGH MARTIN. Together they wrote songs for Broadway and Hollywood. They are best known for songs in the MGM classic, "Meet Me in St. Louis," That starred Judy Garland and featured the songs "The Trolley Song," "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas," and "The Boy Next Door." (Originally aired 10/31/89) INT. 2: Writer PHILIP ROTH. best known for his books, Goodbye, Columbus, and Portnoy's Complaint, has won this year's National Book Award for fiction for his new novel Sabbath's Theater. ROTH has been criticized in the past for his treatment of Jewish themes. Some readers think his satirical take in his writing is anti-Semitic. His book Portnoy's Complaint, (1969) a sexual autobiography of a young lawyer, was labeled obscene by some because of its descriptions of masturbation and sexual conquest. Though the literary critics liked it, "a deliciously funny book, absurd and exuberant, wild and uproarious." Other books include his autobiography, The Facts, and a portrait of his father, Patrimony: A True Story, (1989) and Operation Shylock. Roth has also edited the Writers from Other Europe series for Penguin Books. (Originally aired 3/10/93) REV: TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews next week's Beatles documentary. The six hour series features new music by the Beatles. The recordings use archive tape of John Lennon. INT. 3: TV producer, writer, director and actor GARRY MARSHALL. He's considered a "One man Who's Who" of Television. He's written for The Lucy Show, The Danny Thomas Show, The Tonight Show, The Dick Van Dyke Show, The Jack Parr Show, and Love American Style. He created 14 prime time sitcoms including Happy Days, Laverne & Shirley, Mork & Mindy, The Odd Couple. During one week in 1979, Marshall boasted four of the top five rated TV shows. As a film maker, Marshall directed Beaches, Overboard, Nothing in Common, The Flamingo Kid, Fran Interview with Joe Kane; Interview with Nina Blanchard; Review of the film "GoldenEye."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JOE KANE talks about his new book Savages (Knopf 1995) It's his first hand account on the confrontations between Amazonian warriors and multi-national oil companies, environmentalists and missionaries. Kane writes about the Huaorani (Wow-rahn-nee) tribe's fight for its culture and environment. Kane's earlier book Running the Amazon was a 1989 New York Times best-seller. INT. 2: An inside account of the world of high-fashion. NINA BLANCHARD is founder of Nina Blanchard Agency which is considered one of nation's most prestigious modeling agencies. Blanchard herself discovered supermodel Cheryl Tiegs. She's been called The Beauty Broker. She has written a novel based on the fashion world The Look, (Dutton 1995) Blanchard talks about what it takes to be a model, the pressures they're under and why she herself finally had enough. REV. : Film Critic STEVEN VINEBERG reviews the latest James Bond film GoldenEye. It features the newest 007, Pierce Brosnan.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: New York Times Reporter ROGER COHEN updates us on today's announced peace agreement between the warring factions in the former Yugoslavia. Cohen has extensively covered the war from Bosnia, Croatia and Serbia. President Clinton announced today that the three sides have agreed to preserve Bosnia within its current borders -- but divide it into two republics under one national government. INT. 2: American folk singer ROSALIE SORRELS may not be wildly famous but since the 1960s she's developed a near cult like following. Her admirers describe Sorrels as someone who has lived the life she now sings about. In fact, she was immortalized in a song by Nanci Griffith describing Sorrels as "Salt of the earth.....with a voice like wine.". Her newest CD is "Borderline Heart" by Green Linnet Records Inc. The book "Way Out in Idaho" is a collection of her poems, songs and recipes. In 1992, She received the recording industry "Indie" award for Best Storytelling album for her CD "Report From Grimes Creek." REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews two re-issues from novelist Angela Thirkell, The Headmistress and Growing Up. The publishing company is Moyer Bell. Both books were originally published in the 1940s in Great Britain. Thirkell had a loyal following of readers who in the late 1930s and 40s would set up reading groups called "Thirkell Circles." Thirkell wrote nearly 40 novels.
Interview with Larry McMurtry; Review of Little Buster and the Soul Brothers' album "Right on Time"; Interview with Corby Kummer; Review of the film Casino. November 22, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501775].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LARRY MCMURTRY is considered one of Texas most prominent fiction writers even though he has not lived in that state for nearly two decades. Over his career, he has written 19 novels...including the 1986 Pulitzer Prize winning book Lonesome Dove.. His newest Dead Man's Walk (Simon & Schuster 1995) takes readers to the early days of his Lonesome Dove heroes Gus McCrae and Woodrow Call. Other books by McMurtry include: Streets of Laredo (sequel to Lonesome Dove), Terms of Endearment and The Last Picture Show. REV: Music Commentator Milo Miles reviews Right on Time by Little Buster and the Soul Brothers. It is put out by Bullseye Blue. INT. 2: Corby Kummer has been called the Dean of food writers in America. As one of the most respected food journalists, he writes for The New York Times Magazine, New York and Food and Wine. In addition he also a senior editor at The Atlantic Monthly. Kummer talks about his newest book The Joy of Coffee: The Essential Guide to Buying, Brewing and Enjoying (Chapters Publishing Ltd 1995) He talks about the reasons behind America's love affair with gourmet coffees and some tips on how to make a good cup. Kummer lives in Boston, Mass. REV. : Film Critic Stephen Schiff reviews Casino.

Description of show segment(s)

1997, he released "Our Love is Here to Stay" (RCA) which features re-workings of songs by Johnny Mercer. Pizzarelli usually performs with his trio, modeled on the Nat Cole trio, featuring guitar, piano and bass. but on this ocassion PIZZARELLI performs solo. JOHN is the son of jazz guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with JOHN PIZZARELLI cont'd. REV. :

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TEMPLE GRANDIN is one of the nation's top designers of livestock facilities. She is also autistic. In her book, Thinking in Pictures: and other reports from my life with Autism she describes how her inner-autistic world has led her to develop animal empathy. She is currently an assistant professor of animal sciences at Colorado State University in Fort Collins. Her new book is published by Doubleday 1995. Grandin was the subject of Oliver Sack's 1993 New Yorker article An Anthropologist on Mars. INT. 2: French filmmaker LOUIS MALLE in February 1988. Malle died last Thursday [11/23] of complications from lymphoma. He was 63. Malle was best-known for such films as "Atlantic City," "My Dinner with Andre," "Au Revoir, Les Enfants," and "Pretty Baby," the 1978 movie about child prostitution that made Brooke Shields a star. He was married to TV actress Candace Bergen for 15 years. They have a ten-year-old daughter, Chloe. (Rebroadcast of 02/19/1988) REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Women on Ice: Feminist Essays on the Tonya Harding/Nancy Kerrigan Spectacle (published by Routledge).

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BILL GATES is chief executive and co-founder of Microsoft, the world's largest software company. Microsoft has made Gates rich and famous, and has earned him a reputation as a computer visionary. GATES recently wrote the book The Road Ahead (Viking). GATES explores the new, growing technology and how it will effect people's lives, including the realms of education, politics, and business.
GATES says that he does not "necessarily have all the answers, but the book is my way of getting us all to start thinking about the opportunities and challenges ahead." INT. 2: STEPHEN MANES (MAN-es) writes the "Personal Computers" column for The New York Times. He's been writing about computers for over a decade, and was a columnist and contributing editor for PC Magazine and PC/Computing. He is the co-author of the book about Bill Gates, Gates: How Microsoft's Mogul Reinvented an Industry and Made Himself the Richest Man in America (1993, Doubleday). REV. : No review.

Interview with Bill Shore; Interview with Prince Be; Review of the film "Toy Story." November 29, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501433].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BILL SHORE is founder and executive officer of the non-profit hunger organization, Share Our Strength (SOS). The organization is a new form of non-profit, the "nonprofit run for profit." It gets no money from the government. It generates wealth through entrepreneurial ventures and has raised $30 million which it then gives to programs dealing with hunger. SHORE has written a new book, Revolution of the Heart: A New Strategy for Creating Wealth and Meaningful Change (Riverhead Books). S.O.S. is located at 1511 K Street NW, Suite 940, Washington, D.C. 20005 (202) 393-2925. INT. 2: From the hip-hop group, PM Dawn, PRINCE BE. The duo consists of PRINCE BE (Attrell Cordes) and his brother J.C. the Eternal (Jarrett Cordes). One reviewer writes of them, "the duo effortlessly blends disparate elements -- balladeering and rapping, samples and live orchestration -- into gorgeous, wide-screen tableaux of sound. They also write terrific songs, from galloping melodies. . . to exquisite forlorn ballads." Their new album is "Jesus Wept" (Gee Street, Island Records). REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Toy Story."

Interview with Itzhak Perlman; Review of Bruce Springsteen's album "The Ghost of Tom Joad"; Interview with John Raitt; Review of the television show "Bye Bye Birdie." November 30, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501434].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Internationally-renowned violinist ITZHAK PERLMAN. He celebrates his 50th birthday this year. He has several new releases, and a PBS special: "The Beethoven Triple Concert" two live concert recordings with pianist and conductor Daniel Barenboim, and cellist Yo Yo Ma. And "In the Fiddler's House," featuring PERLMAN playing Klezmer music with four Klezmer bands. There's also a PBS Great Performance special on Klezmer music featuring PERLMAN. (It aired nationally November 27 at 10PM. Check local listings). Both CD's are on the EMI Classics label. REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews Bruce Springsteen's album "The Ghost of Tom Joad." INT. 2: Broadway singer JOHN RAITT. He's the father of singer Bonnie Raitt. They have collaborated on a new album of show tunes, "The Broadway Legend," (Angel). RAITT made his Broadway debut as Billy Bigelow in the original production of "Carousel." He also was in the original Broadway cast and film of "The Pajama Game." He's performed in many other musicals including "Oklahoma," and "South Pacific." REV. : T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Bye Bye Birdie," a three hour TV version of the 1960 stage musical. It airs on ABC Sunday night.

Interview with Mark Doty; Interview with Essex Hemphill; Interview with Michael Denneny; Interview with David Trinidad; Interview with Felice Picano. December 1, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501435].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet MARK DOTY’s newest book of poems called Atlantis reflects back on the life and death of his longtime lover who died of AIDS last year. His last collection, My Alexandria (University of Illinois Press), won the 1994 National Book Critics Circle award. (Rebroadcast of 12/1/1994) INT. 2: ESSEX HEMPHILL was a poet who's written about being black and gay and edited anthologies of black gay poets. He died this year. During our interview last year he read from his work "Vital Signs" which was written in 1993 after he discovered how low his T-cell count had fallen. Hemphill also wrote two poetry books Earth Life and Conditions and a collection called Ceremonies. He was also the editor of Brother to Brother: New Writings by Black Gay Men. (Rebroadcast of 12/1/1994) INT. 3: MICHAEL DENNENY is currently an editor at Crown Publishers. He worked with many gay authors in his 17 years at St. Martins Press, where he had his own imprint, Stonewall Editions. (Rebroadcast of 12/1/1994) INT. 4: Poet DAVID TRINIDAD. His latest book is Answer Song (High Risk). He's edited a forthcoming volume of selected poems by Tim Dugos. It is expected out in Spring of 1996. Dugos died of AIDS in 1990. (Rebroadcast of 12/1/1994) INT. 5: FELICE PICANO talks about losing 74 friends to AIDS. He recently came across a list with 75 people who attended his 40th birthday party in 1984. All but one...who is unaccounted for have died from AIDS.

Interview with John Douglas; Interview with Corban Walker. December 4, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502956].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former head of the FBI's Serial Crime Unit, JOHN DOUGLAS. For 20 years he investigated serial murders for the FBI, and developed techniques to get criminals to talk, and to lure them into capture. He also pioneered criminal profiling. Many of his techniques have been adopted by police departments and prosecutors nationwide. DOUGLAS interviewed such notorious killers as Charles Manson and Richard Speck. He has a new memoir, Mind Hunter: Inside the FBI's Elite Serial Crime Unit (Lisa Drew book, written with Mark Olshaker). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Dublin actor and sculptor CORBAN WALKER. He is making his film debut in "Frankie Starlight." The film is based on the novel "The Dark of Cork" by American author Chet Raymo about a dwarf who is an amateur astronomer who is love with beautiful women and the stars. The film is produced by Noel Pearson who also produced "My Left Foot." WALKER is "of small stature." The film also stars Gabriel Byrne and Matt Dillon. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE REVIEW SEGMENT)

Interview with Mike Figgis; Review of D'Angelo's and R. Kelly's albums "Brown Sugar" and "R. Kelly." December 5, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502783].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British film director and screenwriter MIKE FIGGIS. His latest film is "Leaving Las Vegas." The film is based on the novel by John O'Brien. FIGGIS wrote the screenplay. Shortly after the film went into production, O'Brien killed himself. His father said that the book was O'Brien's suicide note. In the film an alcoholic named Ben, played by Nicholas Cage, goes to Las Vegas to end his life in a final binge. He meets and falls in love with a prostitute and they form a desperate bond. FIGGIS also directed "Stormy Monday," (which he wrote and scored), and "Internal Affairs." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with MIKE FIGGIS continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Brown Sugar" (EMI label) the debut album by the singer named D'Angelo and "R. Kelly" (Jive records) by the rapper R. Kelly. Both are R&B albums.

Interview with Stephen Engelberg; Interview with Manning Marable; Review of the National Gallery of Art's exhibit "Johannes Vermeer." December 6, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502781].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Investigative journalist for the New York Times, STEVE ENGELBERG. He's the co-author of the article "Birth of a Vision" (Sunday, Dec 3, NYT) about Newt Gingrich and GOPAC, the political committee that supports Republican party candidates and office holders. The organization was headed by Gingrich until last spring. Documents that have just become public disclose that as early as five years ago Gingrich and his "political intimates" planned a takeover of Congress. But they failed to gain support from President Bush. GOPAC is currently in court, fighting a lawsuit by The Federal Election Commission for not fully registering and disclosing it's contributions to candidates running for Federal office, including Gingrich's re-election campaign in 1990. INT. 2: Director of the Institute for Research in African-American Studies at Columbia University, MANNING MARABLE. His new book is Beyond Black & White, (Verso). In the book he argues that race is "essentially a social construction, not a permanent fact of biology or genetics." He calls for a politics that goes beyond "racial-identity" where the goal is "a black face in a high place." REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews an exhibition of paintings by the 17th century Dutch painter Vermeer.

Description of show segment(s)

REV: Rock historian ED WARD remembers The Velvet Underground. Andy Warhol produced their first album in 1966. INT. 1: Actress/painter MARY WORONOV. She was part of Andy Warhol's "Factory" in the 1960s. She was discovered while still a college student and was in Warhol's film, "Chelsea Girls," about New York bohemian life. She has a new memoir about those years, Swimming Underground:
My Years in the Warhol Factory (Journey Editions). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: From the United States Catholic Conference's Film and Broadcasting office, HENRY HERX. He's is office director. They provide reviews of current films, evaluating them for plot, entertainment value, and moral content. Their number is 1-800-311-4222. The office has five ratings, A-1 (for general audiences) to 0 (morally offensive). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE REVIEW SEGMENT.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Canadian author ROBERTSON DAVIES. He died last weekend at the age of 82, from a stroke. Terry talked with him earlier this year upon the publication of his novel, The Cunning Man (Viking) The Washington Post called it "one of [the] author's most entertaining and satisfying novels." DAVIES had three successive careers. He began as an actor, then was a journalist and newspaper publisher, and in 1981 retired as professor of the Massy college at the University of Toronto. DAVIES wrote more than thirty books. (REBROADCAST from 2/23/95) INT. 2: Former Executive Editor of The New York Times JAMES RESTON. He died this week at the age of 86, from cancer. He spent fifty years with The New York Times. He began as a reporter in London in 1940, covering the war. He was also Washington bureau chief, executive editor, and columnist. He retired in 1989 at the age of 80. In 1991 he wrote a new memoir, called Deadline (Random House). (REBROADCAST from 10/30/91) REV. : Part (2) of ED WARD's review of the new box set of music by the Velvet Underground.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A STEREO concert and interview in the Fresh Air studio with JOHN DOE, former bassist/vocalist with the punk rock group "X". He recently released a new solo album, "Kissingsohard," (Rhino's Forward label). There's also a new acoustic best-of live album featuring "X". It's called
"Unclogged" (Infidelity Records, L.A., CA). (THIS CONCERT CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: TAMMY SCHNITZER lives in Billings, Montana. She grew up there, as a Lutheran and married Brian Schnitzer, a Jew, and then converted to Judaism. They are the subject of a new PBS documentary "Not In Our Town," (December 17th, 10:30 p.m. EST) about how the community in 1993 rallied behind Schnitzer and her family when they were targets of hate crimes. The local newspaper printed full page menorahs and they were displayed in nearly 10,000 homes and businesses. This week, December 10-17, has been declared "Not In Our Town Week," a nationally-coordinated campaign against hate crimes. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE REVIEW SEGMENT)

Interview with Nancy Sinatra; Interview with Charles Granata; Interview with James Isaacs; Interview with Billy May; Interview with Matt Dennis. December 12, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502747].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today is Frank Sinatra's 80th birthday. So we've brought a number of people on the show to comment on Sinatra's life and work: NANCY SINATRA, Sinatra's daughter. She's recorded a few hits of her own including "These Boots are Made for Walking," and "Something Stupid," the duet she recorded with her father. NANCY SINATRA has written a book about her father, Frank Sinatra: An American Legend (General Publishing Group). NANCY SINATRA has a new album too, (her first in 20 years) "One More Time." (Cougar records). INT. 2: CHARLES GRANATA is a Cop who has an extensive archive of Sinatra recordings. Many of the them have been used for Sinatra reissues. He was Project Director for the box set: "Frank Sinatra: The Best of the Columbia Years 1943-1952). INT 3: JAMES ISAACS has co-produced reissues of Sinatra recordings for Columbia and Reprise. INT 4: Trumpet player and arranger BILLY MAY. INT 5: Songwriter MATT DENNIS. He wrote "Angel Eyes," "Everything Happens to Me," and "Let's Get Away From it All."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Correspondent for The New York Times, CHRIS HEDGES. He's been reporting from Bosnia and Croatia. He talks about the expected signing of the Bosnian Peace Agreement, and the arrival of NATO troops. INT. 2: Interview with CHRIS HEDGES continued. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN gives her holiday picks.

Interview with Evelyn Glennie; Interview with Chris Van Allsburg; Review of the film "Heat."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scottish percussionist EVELYN GLENNIE. She's one of the world's few classical percussion soloists. And she plays with orchestras worldwide. But instead of hearing the music, she feels it. GLENNIE is deaf, and has been since the age of 12. She's made several solo albums, and several years ago wrote her autobiography, Good Vibrations (Hutchison Publishers, London). GLENNIE performs at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia Dec 15 and 16. INT. 2: Children's book author and illustrator CHRIS VAN ALLSBURG. His book The Polar Express a fable about a little boy who meets Santa Claus was/is a bestseller. It was written ten years ago, and each year at Christmas it's a big favorite. His new book is Bad Day At Riverbend (Houghton Mifflin). His book Jumanji (published in 1981) has been made into a new movie starring Robin Williams. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Heat" starring Robert DeNiro and Al Pacino.

Review of the film "Sabrina"; Interview with Sydney Pollack; Review of the album "Brasil

Description of show segment(s)

REV 1: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the remake of the film "Sabrina," starring Harrison Ford. INT. 1: Film director SYDNEY POLLACK. He directed "Tootsie," and his film "Out of Africa" won an Academy Award for Best Picture. His new film is "Sabrina". (REBROADCAST from 12/11/90) REV.
2: Music review by MILO MILES. Subject TBA. INT 2: Writer CLIFTON TAULBERT grew up in the segregated South in the 1950s. His experiences growing up black in America are chronicled in his two memoirs When We Were Colored and the Pulitzer Prize nominated The Last Train North (Penguin Books). Taulbert lives in Tulsa, Oklahoma where he is a businessman. When We Were Colored has been made into a new film. (REBROADCAST from 8/8/95) REV. 3: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new albums by The Smithereens: a new best-of, "Blown to Smithereens," (Capital Records) and a collection of rare old tracks, "Attack of the Smithereens."

Interview with Jimmy and Amy Carter; Interview with Robert Morgan; Commentary on gifts
.oclc/971502110].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former U.S. President Jimmy Carter and his daughter Amy Carter. The two have collaborated on a new children's book, The Little Baby Snoogle-Fleejer (Times Books). The story is one that Carter made up, and told his children when they were young. Amy Carter illustrated the book. (THIS INTERVIEW He's written nine volumes of poetry and four novels. His latest novel is The Truest Pleasure (Algonquin Books of Chapel Hill). MORGAN'S work centers on the place where he grew up, The Blue Ridge Mountains. MORGAN also teaches English at Cornell University. REV. : Linguist Geoff Nunberg has some gift suggestions for the language lovers on your gift list.

Interview with Harrison Ford; Interview with R. S. Jones; Review of the album "American www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502114].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor HARRISON FORD. He's starred in "Star Wars," "Raiders of the Lost Ark," and "Indiana
INT. 2: Novelist R.S. JONES. His first novel, Force of Gravity was published in 1991. One reviewer called it, "a moving, acutely intelligent story about going insane." He's just published his second novel, Walking on Air (Houghton Mifflin) about a man who is dying of AIDS. A reviewer for The New York Times writes, "The novel's power resides in its almost total refusal to do anything but starkly describe this process, to trace the effects of the disease on this suffering man and his two friends. It rings true from start to finish." REV. : Commentator MILO MILES reviews the five-CD box set featuring Chicago and country blues performers from the early 60s. It's called "American Folk Blues Festival '62 to '65." (Evidence label).

Interview with Ang Lee; Interview with Lawrence Block; Review of the film "Nixon." December 20, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502112].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director ANG LEE. He grew up in Taiwan, but studied theater and film production in the United States. His second feature film, "The Wedding Banquet," was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Foreign Language Film, as was his next film, "Eat Drink Man Woman." LEE's films often portray family relationships with poignancy, respect, and a light comic touch. His latest film is "Sense and Sensibility," the film based on the novel by Jane Austen. INT. 2: Veteran crime novelist LAWRENCE BLOCK. He's written 11 novels featuring Manhattan private eye Matt Scudder. His novels have followed Scudder through alcoholism and into recovery through an Alcoholics Anonymous program. His newest Scudder novel, A Long Line of Dead Men will be published in February. REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews Oliver Stone's "Nixon."

Interview with Jerry Yang; Commentary on the power of words; Interview with Rebecca Walker; Review of Pat Barker's novel "The Ghost Road." December 21, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502605].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JERRY YANG is co-founder of YAHOO, a directory to the World Wide Web. YAHOO has an on-line site, as well as a companion book. YAHOO is one of the most popular sites on the Web. Users can access YAHOO, once in the Web at http://www.yahoo.com. Their new book is YAHOO! Unplugged (IDG books). REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG considers the power of words. INT. 2:
Writer REBECCA WALKER. She's a contributing editor to Ms. magazine, and is cofounder of Third Wave, a national, multicultural organization devoted to encouraging young women's activism. She has edited a new book of writings about feminism today, To Be Real: Telling the Truth and Changing the Face of Feminism. (Anchor Books). REV. 2: Commentator MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews British writer Pat Barker's The Ghost Road. (Dutton). It won Britain's Booker Prize. The book is the third part of a trilogy of novels about World War I. (Her others are Regeneration and The Eye in the Door.)

Interview with Terry McMillan; Interview with Michael J. Fox; Review of the film "Othello." December 22, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501243].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer TERRY MCMILLAN. Her novel, Waiting to Exhale (Viking) has been made into a movie. It opens this week in selected theaters. It's about four strong, urban, black women in their thirties, their successful careers, and their sometimes volatile relationships with black men. She says women -- both black and white -- are frustrated because they can't find a man who's willing to commit, and won't lie or cheat. Her previous novels are Mama and Disappearing Acts. (Rebroadcast from June 2, 1992) INT. 2: Actor MICHAEL J. FOX. He got his big break on the hit TV show "Family Ties." He went on to star in a number of films, including the "Back to the Future" series. He's also starred in "Casualties of War" and "Doc Hollywood." Currently he plays a fictional character based on George Stephanopolous in the new movie "The American President." (Rebroadcast from September 28, 1993) REV. : Critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews a new film version of Shakespeare's "Othello." It stars Laurence Fishburne as Othello, and Kenneth Brannagh (BRAN - UH) as Iago.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and director KENNETH BRANAGH (rhymes with "Savannah"). He stars as Lago in the new film adaptation of Shakespeare's Othello. We feature excerpts from two interviews with BRANAGH from our archives. Branagh's films include a film adaptation of Shakespeare's Henry the Fifth, with himself in the title role, "Dead Again," a psychological thriller starring Branagh and Emma Thompson, and Much Ado About Nothing," also starring himself. Branagh was born in Northern Ireland, studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, spent two years with the Royal Shakespeare Company, as well as acting, managing, and directing other groups and working on several BBC productions. (Rebroadcast from interviews recorded on October 25, 1989, and August 21, 1991.) INT. 2: Actor LAURENCE FISHBURNE. He was Cowboy Curtis on "Pee-wee's Playhouse," and at 15, he played a young G.I. in "Apocalypse Now." He also played the musician Ike Turner in the film biography of Tina Turner, "What's Love Got To Do With It," and portrayed a streetwise chess pro in "Searching for Bobby Fischer." He plays the title role in the new film adaptation of "Othello." (Rebroadcast from April 6, 1992) REV. : Critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews the film adaptation of "Sense and Sensibility."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert with jazz singer REBECCA KILGORE, accompanied by pianist David Frishberg. KILGORE is known as Portland's premier singer, and is just now emerging as a major talent. She and Frishberg comprise one of the longest running jazz duos in the country. KILGORE's latest CD is "I Saw Stars." "I Saw Stars" with Dan Barrett's Celestial Six, Arbors Records [ARCD 19136, 1994. Her first CD release was "Looking at You", with Dave Frishberg on piano, [PHD Music, 1994.] INT. 2: Concert with REBECCA KILGORE continues. Includes a preview of tomorrow's concert with DAVE FRISHBERG. TERRY GROSS talks about the upcoming show and plays a song.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Nicolas Cage; Interview with Joseph Vasquez; Interview with Mel Brooks. December 29, 1995. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501245].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor NICOLAS CAGE. He starred in the David Lynch film "Wild At Heart," which won the Palme d'Or at the Cannes Film Festival. Cage has also starred in the films "Birdy," "Moonstruck," "Raising Arizona," "Peggy Sue Got Married," and "Honeymoon in Vegas." This year he is getting rave reviews for his performance in the new film about an alcoholic who goes to Las Vegas to drink himself to death, "Leaving Las Vegas." (REBROADCAST from 7/27/90) INT. 2: Independent filmmaker JOSEPH VASQUEZ. His movie, "Hangin' With The Homeboys," was a semiautobiographical movie about Vasquez' home neighborhood in the South Bronx. He won a 1991 Sundance Film Festival award for the screenplay, which he wrote in three days. VASQUEZ died earlier this week of complications related to the AIDS virus. He had recently finished work on a new film, "Manhattan Meringue." (REBROADCAST from 6/17/91) INT. 3: Comedian and film maker MEL BROOKS. Brooks has made some of the funniest films in movie history, including "The Producers," "Young Frankenstein," and "Blazing Saddles." His latest film is a spoof on the vampire film genre, "Dracula: Dead and Loving It." (REBROADCAST from 7/30/91)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GESHE THUPTEN JINPA, the principle translator for the Dalai Lama. THUPTEN JINPA was a refugee in India as a child, became a monk at a Tibetan monastery, and is now working on his Ph.D at Cambridge University. He is the translator, editor and annotator of "The World of Tibetan Buddhism" (Wisdom Publications, written by the Dalai Lama. The Dalai Lama is the spiritual and political leader of the Tibetan people, and won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1989. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/4/95) INT. 2: Member of the Exile Tibetans' Parliament, the Assembly of the Tibetan People's Deputies, Tenzin Choegyal. He is the youngest brother of the His Holiness the Dalai Lama. Choegyal was featured in the documentary "Shadow Over Tibet: Stories in Exile." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. (REBROADCAST FROM 5/24/95) REV. : Interview with TENDZIN CHOEGYAL continued.

Interview with Caroline Hebard; Interview with Mary Jo Weaver. January 2, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458489].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CAROLINE HEBARD (HE(short "e")-BIRD) is the co-founder of the U.S. Disaster Response Team. She and her German shepherd dogs have carried out search and rescue missions at the world's most tragic disaster sites: earthquakes in Japan, Mexico and Armenia, floods in Tennessee, hurricanes, and bridge collapses. The work is dangerous: trainers often follow their dogs into a collapsed building. HEBARD lives in Bernardsville, New Jersey with her husband, children and dogs. Her new book (written with Hank Whittemore) is "So That Others May Live." (Bantam Books). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Professor of Religious Studies at Indiana University MARY JO WEAVER. Her previous book is "Springs of Water in a Dry Land: Spiritual Survival for Catholic Women Today," (Beacon) about women who are Catholic and feminist. Her book, "New Catholic Women: A Contemporary Challenge to Traditional Religious Authority." (Indiana University Press) has a new 10th anniversary edition. WEAVER's latest book (edited with R. Scott Appleby) "Being Right: Conservative Catholics in America" is a collection of essays (Indiana University Press).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and professor TODD GITLIN. His new book is a liberal's criticism of the "culture wars" that have destroyed the notion of common good in our country. It's called "The Twilight of Common Dreams: Why America is Wracked by Culture Wars," (Metropolitan Books). GITLIN is also the author of "The Sixties: Years of Hope, Days of Rage." He teaches culture and communications, journalism, and sociology at New York University. INT. 2: Personal Health columnist for the New York Times JANE BRODY. Her new book is a timely one: "Jane Brody's Cold and Flu Fighter" (W.W. Norton, in paperback). In it she gives advice on how to tell if you are suffering from a cold, the flu, or an allergy, and the best treatment for each. REV. : Maureen Corrigan reviews Jamaica Kincaid's novel "The Autobiography of My Mother."

Interview with Kelsey Grammer; Interview with Michael Eric Dyson; Review of Maria Callas's album "Maria Callas at Juilliard--The Masterclasses." January 4, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458027].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Emmy award winning actor KELSEY GRAMMER. The former co-star of "Cheers" and the current star of "Frasier," has written his memoir, "So Far." (Dutton). GRAMMER, who got his start in classical theatre, is now known for his comic gifts in "Frasier" which is one of television's top ten shows.
INT. 2: MICHAEL ERIC DYSON is considered one of our most important black intellectuals. He's also an ordained Baptist minister who once struggled as an 18-year old father in Detroit. His work has appeared in "The New York Times," "Rolling Stone," "Vibe" and other publications. His new book is "Between God and Gangsta Rap" (Oxford University Press) about contemporary Black culture. DYSON teaches at the University of North Carolina where he is a Professor of Communications Studies. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new 3-CD box set of music by the Soprano Maria Callas, "Maria Callas at Juilliard--The Masterclasses" (EMI) Interview with Helen Prejean; Interview with Ian McKellan; Review of the film "12 Monkeys." January 5, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458638].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: HELEN PREJEAN (pray-ZSAHN). Prejean is a Roman Catholic nun. Her book, "Dead Man Walking: An Eyewitness Account of the Death Penalty in the United States" (Random House, 1993) details her experience working with death row inmates in Louisiana. It's been made into a new film, starring Susan Sarandon and Sean Penn. Prejean has come to believe that the death penalty is not only ineffective as a deterrent, but that the government can't be trusted to decide who should live and who should die. (REBROADCAST from 7/13/93). INT. 2: Actor SIR Ian McKellan. Since coming out in 1988,
Britain's highly acclaimed Shakespearean actor has become an international voice for the gay and lesbian community. His role in Peter Shafer's "Amadeus" earned him a Tony Award in 1981. He has appeared in the popular films, "Last Action Hero" and "Six Degrees of Separation." He's now starring in the film version of "Richard III." (REBROADCAST from 6/20/94) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "12 Monkeys"

Interview with Chris Giannou; Interview with Thomas E. McNamara; Review of Mud Boy and the Neutrons' album "They Walk Among Us." January 8, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502010].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Surgeon for the International Committee of the Red Cross CHRIS GIANNOU (YAW-new). For almost 15 years he has been a surgeon in war torn parts of the world in Burundi, Somalia, and in a Palestinian Refugee Camp. As such he has seen the devastation on human beings from land mines GIANNOU is currently leading the Red Cross's campaign for a ban on anti-personnel land mines worldwide, which kill or injure hundreds of civilians each week. (GIANNOU has been on the show a number of times. He wrote a memoir in 1994 about his work in the refugee camp, "Besieged: A Doctor's Story of Life and Death in Beirut." (Published by Olive Branch Press). INT. 2: Assistant Secretary of State for Political-Military Affairs, THOMAS E. MCNAMARA. He will explain why the U.S. has chosen not to go along with the ban on anti-personnel land mines, and what measures they are taking to control their use. REV. : Music commentator MILO MILES tells us about Mud Boy and the Neutrons. Their new CD is "mud boy & the neutrons: they walk among us" (Koch)

Interview with Laura Kaplan; Interview with Ben Vaughn. January 9, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502011].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LAURA KAPLAN is the author of the new book, "The Story of Jane: The Legendary Underground Feminist Abortion Service," (Pantheon Books). In 1969 this underground abortion service began operation in Chicago, four years before Roe v. Wade. The members of "Jane" were lay-persons who learned how to perform abortions themselves. LAURA KAPLAN was a member of Jane. She was also a founding member of a Chicago-based women's health-care center. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Record producer, musician, and composer BEN VAUGHN. The New Jersey-based musician, and a favorite with Fresh Air, has relocated to L.A. to work in film and television. He composed the theme music for the new sitcom, "Third Rock from the Sun," starring John Lithgow, and Jane Curtin, which premieres tonight (TUES, JAN 9, at 8:30 PM ET/PT on NBC). VAUGHN most recent release is "Instrumental Stylings" (Bar/None).
Interview with Don Ed Hardy; Interview with Lauren Bacall; Interview with Sally Field; Review of the film "Dead Man Walking." January 12, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458636].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Tattoo artist and tattoo historian DON ED HARDY. He came to tattooing by way of a Fine Arts degree in printmaking, and he studied in Japan with a traditional tattoo master. He was the first non-Asian to gain access to that world. HARDY also publishes colorfully illustrated books of tattoo art. (Hardy Marks Publications, P.O. Box 90520, Honolulu, Hawaii 96835). And he curated the exhibition, "Pierced Hearts & True Love," which was at The Drawing Center in New York City (Sept. 16-Nov. 11). The exhibit then traveled to Williamstown, Mass., Miami, and San Francisco. (REBROADCAST from 9/21/95) INT. 2: Actress LAUREN BACALL is a legend, though she doesn't like to think of herself as such. She's been a star of stage and screen for fifty years, was married to Humphrey Bogart, and won the National Book Award for her 1978 autobiography "By Myself." Her new book, "Now" (Alfred A. Knopf Inc.), tells the story of her last fifteen years and the experiences that have shaped her life. (REBROADCAST from 10/18/94) INT 3: Actress SALLY FIELD. She's currently starring in the new film "Eye for an Eye." (REBROADCAST from 9/27/88) REV. : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Dead Man Walking."

Interview with Hilary Rodham Clinton; Interview with Jon Krakauer; Review of Kirk Franklin's album "Kirk Franklin and the Family." January 15, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458381].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: First Lady HILARY RODHAM CLINTON. Mrs. Clinton, a longtime children's advocate, talks about her new book, "It Takes a Village; And Other Lessons Children Teach us." [Simon & Shuster]. And she addresses the Whitewater and White House travel office issues, and the challenges of being the First Lady. INT. 2: Writer JON KRAKAUER. JON KRAKAUER is a contributing editor for Outside magazine, and the author of "Into the Wild" [Villard Books]. "Into the Wild" tells the story of a young man's rash and tragic journey into the Alaskan wilderness. Christopher Johnson McCandless gave away all his money to charity, abandoned his car and possessions, hiked into the woods and within four months had starved to death. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Kirk Franklin and the Family.

---

Interview with Sean Penn; Review of the film "Richard III." January 16, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458029].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor/director/writer SEAN PENN. The "reluctant actor" is starring in the new film "Dead Man Walking" directed by Tim Robbins, co-starring Susan Sarandon. (It's based on the book, of the same title, by Sister Helen Prejean). PENN has moved away from acting in favor of writing/directing: the 1991 film "The Indian Runner" which he wrote based on a Bruce Springsteen song, and last year's "The Crossing Guard" starring Angelica Huston and Jack Nicholson. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with SEAN PENN continued. REV. : Film critic for The Boston Phoenix, STEVEN VINEBERG. He reviews "Richard III."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Computer security expert TSUTOMU SHIMOMURA (She-TOE-moo SHE-mo-mur-AH) and reporter JOHN MARKOFF. MARKOFF writes about computers and technology for the New York Times. The two have collaborated on a new book, "Takedown: The Pursuit and Capture of Kevin Mitnick, America's Most Wanted Computer Outlaw-By the Man Who Did It." (Hyperion). Mitnick was the most wanted computer hacker in the world, having stolen thousands of data files, and 20,000 credit card numbers. For two years he had eluded the FBI. Mitnick broke into SHIMOMURA's home computer, and SHIMOMURA joined the search. Mitnick was caught February 15, 1995. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Novelist/screenwriter HANIF KUREISHI (Ha-NEEF Koor-EE-shee). KUREISHI has been termed by the British press a "literary terrorist" for his works which encompass racist and sexual themes. He wrote the screenplays for "My Beautiful Laundrette," and "Sammy and Rosie Get Laid." Both were directed by Stephen Frears. His new novel is "The Black Album," (Scribner). HANIF was born and brought up in south London; his father is Pakistani, his mother English. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Salman Rushdie's new book, "The Moor's Last Sigh." (Pantheon).

---

Interview with James Fallows; Interview with Al Franken; Review of the album "Notfadeaway January 18, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458492].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Washington Editor of "The Atlantic Monthly," and NPR commentator JAMES FALLOWS. He won a National Book award for his 1981 book "National Defense" about the post Vietnam War era national defense establishment. FALLOWS new book examines what has gone wrong with the media, how it has failed to meet its public responsibilities, and what can be done about it. His new book is "Breaking the News: How the Media Undermine American Democracy," (Pantheon). INT. 2: Political satirist AL FRANKEN. He was one of the original writers for Saturday Night Live. He's won four Emmys for his writing on the show. His most popular character is Stuart Smalley, the new age cable TV host. He left the show last season. His new book "Rush Limbaugh is a Big Fat Idiot and Other Observations" (Delacorte Press) is his look at American politics and the Republican revolution. The Kirkus Reviews writes, "he attacks with a wonderful lack of civility. . .and he does it with two murderous weapons: satire and facts. . ." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the tribute album to Buddy Holly, "Not Fade Away."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ARTHEL "DOC" WATSON, one of America's premier acoustic folk guitarists. His flat-pick style of playing traditional folk and bluegrass has made his sound one of the most distinctive of any folk artist. Watson is best known for his part in preserving the traditional ballads and melodies of southern Appalachia. (REBROADCAST from 8/26/88). There's a new retrospective box set of his music: "Doc Watson: The Vanguard years." (Vanguard Records). (WE BROADCAST A DOC WATSON CONCERT
IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: A STEREO concert with country musician DOC WATSON. His versatility in many genres is well known, but much of his national exposure came from his performances at bluegrass festivals. His guitar artistry has had a strong impact on bluegrass guitarists. He also plays banjo and French harp. (REBROADCAST from 1/13/89) REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Waiting to Exhale."

Interview with Joel E. Cohen; Obituary for Gerry Mulligan; Review of the film "Georgia." January 22, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502219].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biologist JOEL E. COHEN. He heads the laboratory of populations at Rockefeller University in New York City. His new book is "How Many People Can the Earth Support?" (W.W. Norton). COHEN's book is "neither an alarmist tract nor a cornucopian lullaby." COHEN considers the central population issues: Has rapid population growth, brought us close to destruction? And what is the carrying capacity of the earth? The New York Times Book Review writes, "it would be hard to conceive of a better book for those interested in a scholarly and non-ideological review and analysis of population issues." INT. 2: Arranger and baritone saxophonist GERRY MULLIGAN died Saturday, January 20th, from complications due to surgery. He was 68. We will rebroadcast a 1989 interview with him. MULLIGAN was an innovator in modern jazz orchestration. Early in his career he was staff arranger for Gene Krupa's big band. In 1949 he collaborated with Gil Evans and Miles Davis in the Nonet. The nine-piece band shook up jazz arrangers and launched the era of so-called cool jazz. He achieved international acclaim when he started a "pianoless" quartet with trumpeter Chet Baker in the early 1950's. (REBROADCAST from 12/18/89) REV.: Guest film critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews "Georgia."

Interview with Sidney Jones; Interview with Janice Neilson; Interview with Kay An Johnson; Interview with Kate Blewett. January 23, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502689].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SIDNEY JONES, is regional director of Human Rights Watch in Asia. Recently Human Rights Watch published a report on abandoned children in China, and their treatment in China's state-funded orphanages, "Death by Default: A Policy of Fatal Neglect in China's State Orphanages." The report finds the death rate in the orphanages "staggering," and in some cases constitutes a sinister "systematic program of child elimination." INT. 2: JANICE NEILSON, Executive Director of World Association for Children and parents (WACAP), a non-profit organization for parents who are interested in adopting children at risk worldwide. She has worked with Chinese children's institutions since 1991. NEILSON says her observations are "at variance" with the conclusions of the Human Rights Watch report. NEILSON urges that China not be judged by our standards but by the "standards of the developing world." She says that Chinese authorities are trying to improve the situation. INT. 3: KAY ANN JOHNSON does research on adoption and abandonment in China, for the Committee for Scholarly Communications with China 1995-1996. She says that the Human Rights Watch report misrepresents the scope of the problem in Chinese state-run orphanages and that she has seen no systematic official policy of letting children die. JOHNSON is a Professor of Asian Studies and Political Science at Hampshire College. INT. 4: British filmmaker KATE BLEWETT. Using a concealed camera, BLEWETT and crew visited eleven state-funded orphanages in China and filmed in nine of them. They documented such things as toddlers whose hands and legs were tied to potty chairs all day, and the rooms where children are left to die. They also say that many of the children were girls, victims of China's One Child Policy, and the Chinese tradition that favors sons over daughters. "The Dying Rooms: China's Darkest Secret" debuts on CINEMAX (Jan 24 at 8 PM).

Interview with Tom Blanton; Review of Rosetta Tharpe and Mahalia Jackson's albums; Interview with Walter Turnbull; Commentary on traveling to New York. January 24, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458349].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TOM BLANTON is the editor of the book "White House E-Mail: The Top Secret Computer Messages The Reagan/Bush White House tried to Destroy." It is published by New Press. Blanton is the executive editor of the National Security Archive, a freedom of information advocacy group. REV 1: MILO MILES reviews Sister Rosetta Tharpe's Complete Recorded Works 1938-1944 by Document Records. also Mahalia Jackson's Apollo recordings. INT 2: WALTER TURNBULL is the founder and of the Boys Choir of Harlem. He has written about his work in "Lift Every Voice" by Hyperion. REV. 2: Commentator DAGOBERTO GILB tells us about his trip to NYC.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and musician JAMES MCBRIDE. His new book, is "The Color of Water: A Black Man's Tribute to his White Mother" (Riverhead) about his mother who was white and Jewish, but refused to admit her race. MCBRIDE's father was black. For years, MCBRIDE knew nothing about his mother's early life. It wasn't until he started work on the book, that she opened up to tell him that her father was a failed itinerant Orthodox rabbi in rural Virginia, a racist, and he sexually abused her. MCBRIDE has written for "The Washington Post," "The Boston Globe," and "People" magazine. INT. 2: Pianist and composer LEON FLEISHER. The 67 year old musician was a child prodigy. Thirty years ago he lost the use of his right hand, because of a disability, (later diagnosed as "repetitive stress syndrome") and so he began to play the left-hand repertory. Last year he made a "two-handed" comeback. It culminated with a performance on January 13, with the Orchestra of St. Luke's at Carnegie Hall. He credits the increased movement in his right hand to the deep message therapy, rolfing. REV. : Interview with LEON FLEISHER continued.

Interview with Richard Prelinger and Ken Smith; Review of the film "From Dusk Till Dawn"; Interview with Leonore Tiefer; Commentary on Superbowl programming and the television shows "Friends" and "Seinfeld." January 26, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502218].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RICHARD PRELINGER is a archivist educational, industrial, and public-service films made from the 1930s through the 1960s. He's the director of Prelinger Associates, Inc., and he's collected some 25,000 films with titles like "A is For Atom," "Good Wrinkles: The Story of a Remarkable Fruit," and "Are You Popular?" Some of his collected films will be shown at the American Museum of the Moving Image (Jan 27-Feb 11). The retrospective is called: "Millennial Mysteries: Continuing Revelations from the Prelinger Archives." PRELINGER compiled and edited a two volume videotape and disk documentary, "To New Horizons: Ephemeral Films 1931-1945," and "You Can't Get There From Here: Ephemeral Films 1946-1960." Also writer KEN SMITH who was writing a book on the films. SMITH is co-author of "Roadside America" books (volumes 1 and 2) about tourist attractions in the U.S. He's also an archivist with Prelinger Associates. (REBROADCAST from 1/13/94) REV. 1 Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "From Dusk Till Dawn" the new film starring George Clooney, Harvey Keitel, and Quentin Tarantino. INT. 2 : Sexologist LEONORE TIEFER. (Tee-fur) book "Sex Is Not a Natural Act: and Other Essays."(Westview) was published in 1995, and has since come out in paperback. In the book she looks at our society's anxieties and ignorances towards sex. She also questions what is "normal" sex and how people are to know how to have sex if no one talks about it. TIEFER received a Ph.D. in physiological psychology with a dissertation on hormones and mating behavior of rats. But TIEFER came to realize she knew nothing of the social norms of sexuality and questioned how sexual norms evolved. She re-specialized in clinical psychology and became a sex researcher, sex therapist and an Associate Professor of Urology and Psychiatry at the Montefoire Medical Center in New York City. Tiefer has also been a sex columnist for the New York Daily News. (REBROADCAST from 2/8/95) REV. 2: T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI on t

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Senior Editor at National Review, RICHARD BROOKHISER. Recently the conservative magazine has come out in favor of some kind of drug legalization. BROOKHISER is also a columnist for The New York Observer. INT. 2: ETHAN NADELMANN, Director of The Lindesmith Center, a research center devoted to broadening the debate on drug policy, and looking at strategies that have been overlooked or ignored. (The Lindesmith Center is located in New York City, 212-887-0695) INT. 3: Health care analyst and substance abuse expert JOSEPH CALIFANO. He was LBJ's assistant for domestic affairs from 1959-65 and Secretary for Health, Education and Welfare under Jimmy Carter from 1977-79. JOSEPH CALIFANO is also president of the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse, a research and experimental care facility at Columbia University.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert with LOUDON WAINWRIGHT III. he performs songs from his new album "Grown Man." by Virgin Records. This is his 15th album. Interview conducted by Rock Critic Ken Tucker. REV.: Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Anita Brookner's novel "Incidents in the Rue Laugier."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Senator BILL BRADLEY has written a book about his life called Time Present, Time Past published by Knopf. Bradley announced last year that he would not seek re-election in 1996. In addition to his political career, Bradley was also a star basketball player with the New York Knicks. REV. 1: Classical music critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews Yo-Yo Ma's album "Concertos from the New World." REV. 2: Guest film critic Steve Vineberg reviews the French film "City of Lost Children."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former British diplomat LORD DAVID OWEN has written a new memoir about his efforts to broker a peace plan in the Former Yugoslavia. It is called Balkan Odyssey published by Harcourt Brace. Owen along with Cyrus Vance drafted the Vance-Owen peace plan that was considered but never adopted by the warring sides. REV: Music critic Milo Miles reviews Mo Boma's album "Myths of the Near Future" and the Rothenberg-Bonne-Velez Trio's album "On the Cliffs of the Heart."
Interview with Diane Wood Middlebrook; Interview with Linda Gray Sexton; Interview with Maggie Estep; Review of the television mini-series "Gulliver's Travels." February 2, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458794].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer DIANE WOOD MIDDLEBROOK. She wrote a controversial book about the troubled writer Anne Sexton. The controversy surrounded MIDDLEBROOK's source material: she had access to transcripts of Sexton's psychiatric sessions with the approval of Sexton's daughter and psychiatrist. Sexton killed herself in 1974. Sexton began writing poetry in 1956 following a suicidal breakdown and after her therapist suggested she try writing poetry. Anne Sexton: A Biography, was published by Houghton Mifflin and is now a paperback. [Originally aired 8/30/91]. INT. 2: Author LINDA GRAY SEXTON's book Searching for Mercy Street: My Journey Back to My Mother, Anne Sexton is out in paperback, [Little, Brown]. She spent a long time coming to terms with her relationship with her mother who committed suicide in 1974. [Originally aired 10/10/94] INT. 3: Singer-songwriter-poet-performance artist MAGGIE ESTEP. ESTEP calls herself "an angry, sweaty girl." As a teenager, she settled in New York City, and she's been in rock bands since the age of 17. She was the cover girl on the February 1994 issue of "High Times" magazine; the article inside called her "the leader of the spoken word pack." Her debut album was "No More Mr. Nice Girl." NUYO Records. [Originally aired 6/23/94]. REV. : TV critic David Bianculli reviews the mini-series "Gulliver's Travels."

Interview with Ronald Brownstein; Interview with Laurie Pepper; Review of the film "The Juror." February 5, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458346].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: National Political correspondent for the Los Angeles Times, RONALD BROWNSTEIN. He has collaborated on a new book, Storming the Gates: Protest Politics and the Republican Revival (Little, Brown and Company, written with Dan Balz, national editor of the Washington Post). In the book they look at how the Republicans captured Congress, so shortly after the defeat of George Bush in the presidential election, and how the Republican party has changed dramatically in the last ten years. INT. 2: LAURIE PEPPER is the wife of the late alto saxophonist Art Pepper, who died in 1982 and was considered to be the greatest alto saxophonist of the post-Charlie Parker generation. Terry talks with PEPPER on the occasion of the updated version of her husband's autobiography, Straight Life, (which he

Interview with Dan T. Carter; Commentary on the Junior League of St. Louis; Review of albums featuring Erica Morini. February 6, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458426].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian DAN T. CARTER. His book, Scottsboro was the winner of the Bancroft Prize in History for the best book in American History. CARTER's newest book is a biography of George Wallace, The Politics of Rage: George Wallace, The Origins of the New Conservatism, and the Transformation of American Politics. (Simon & Schuster). In the book CARTER contends that Wallace paved the way for the conservatism that is now a big part of Republican politics. CARTER is Kenan Professor of History at Emory University. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

REV. 1: Commentator GERALD EARLY reflects on his wife's work with the Junior League of St. Louis. She is the first African-American woman to be elected president of that city's chapter. REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of live performances from the 1959 Salzburg Festival, including the late Erica Morini playing Mozart's Violin concerto No. 5, conducted by George Szell with the French National Radio and Television Orchestra. (on Sony)

Interview with Tim Berners-Lee; Interview with Ron Popeil; Review of Anonymous's novel "Primary Colors." February 7, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458657].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The creator of the World Wide Web, TIM BERNERS-LEE. He created the web in 1989, as a way to organize his own projects. The Web has grown rapidly since then. In 1992 there were 100 sites on it, as of last May there were 22,000. BERNERS-LEE is dedicated to keeping the Web open as a public good. He now works at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he heads the World Wide Web Consortium, a nonprofit organization dedicated to developing standards, protocols and new software for

---

Interview with Stanley Donen; Interview with Adesola Osakalumi a.k.a. D'Incredible; Commentary on the phrase "congenital liar." February 8, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458543].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film Director and choreographer STANLEY DONEN (DON-in). He directed "On the Town," "Singin' in the Rain," "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," "Funny Girl," and more. He collaborated with Gene Kelly as dance director on such films as "Cover Girl," and "Anchors Away." There's a new biography of DONEN, Dancing on the Ceiling: Stanley Donen and his Movies (Knopf), written by Stephen M. Silverman. INT. 2: Hip-hop dancer ADESOLA OSAKALUMI (pronounced "a-DES-uh-lah o-sah-kah-LOU-me") otherwise known as D'Incredible. He's performed on the American Music Awards and in music videos. He comes from a family of dancers. His parents formed the group Africa I Dance Theatre. OKAKALUMI and other pioneering hip-hop groups formed Ghettooriginal Productions. Their production "Jam on the Groove" is at the Minetta Lane Theatre in New York until February 18th. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG comments on William Safire's recent choice of words for describing Hillary Clinton: "congenital liar."
Obituary for Mercer Ellington; Interview with Ellen DeGeneres; Interview with Bill Pullman; Review of the film "Broken Arrow." February 9, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458733].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember band leader and composer MERCER ELLINGTON, the son of Duke Ellington. He perpetuated the big band tradition his father made famous as head of the Duke Ellington Band. When he was a young man, Mercer Ellington had hoped to break into his father's band on the saxophone. But after years of frustration, he could see that he would never crack the legendary Ellington reed section. He finally was accepted as a trombone player and later played french horn and trumpet. With the death of his father in 1974, Mercer Ellington took over his father's orchestra. (REBROADCAST from 5/3/89) INT. 2: Stand up comic ELLEN DEGENERES, the star of the sitcom " Ellen." The show airs on Wednesday nights on ABC. Last year DEGENERES co-hosted the 1994 Emmy awards and received a People's Choice Award for Favorite Female in a New Television series. She now has a new book, My Point. . . And I Do Have One (Bantam News). She's now starring in "Mr. Wrong." (REBROADCAST from 9/13/95) INT. 3: Actor BILL PULLMAN. He taught drama at the University of Montana, where he rose to department head at age 27. PULLMAN later made his acting debut in "Ruthless People." In 1995 he was featured in the films, "Casper," "While You Were Sleeping," and "The Last Seduction." He's now starring in "Mr. Wrong." (REBROADCAST from 6/8/95) REV.: Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Broken Arrow."

Interview with Laura Silber; Interview with Simon Callow. February 12, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458734].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Balkans correspondent for the Financial Times, LAURA SILBER. She's the co-author of the new book, The Death of Yugoslavia (TV Books/Penguin, with Allan Little). In the book they look at the decisions that led to war. They write that Yugoslavia did not die a "natural death" that it was "deliberately and systematically killed off by men who had nothing to gain and everything to lose from a peaceful transition from state socialism and one-party rule to free-market democracy." There is also a accompanying TV documentary series to the book. INT. 2: Actor, director & writer SIMON CALLOW. He's written a new acclaimed biography of Orson Welles, Orson Welles: The Road to Xanadu (Viking).
CALLOW has appeared on stage and in many films, including "Four Weddings and a Funeral." He's also written two books on acting and a biography of Charles Laughton. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES through THIS HALF HOUR) REV. : Interview with SIMON CALLOW continued.

Interview with E. J. Dionne, Jr.; Interview with Nancy Sinatra; Review of Aimee Mann's album "I'm With Stupid." February 13, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458301].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Columnist for The Washington Post, E.J. DIONNE JR. He's the author of the book, Why Americans Hate Politics. His latest book is They Only Look Dead: Why Progressives will Dominate the Next Political Era (Simon & Schuster). He'll talk with Terry about the book and the results of the Iowa Caucuses. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with E.J. DIONNE, JR. continued. INT. 3: NANCY SINATRA daughter of Frank Sinatra. She's recorded a few hits of her own including "These Boots are Made for Walking," and "Something Stupid," the duet she recorded with her father. NANCY SINATRA has written a book about her father, Frank Sinatra: An American Legend (General Publishing Group). NANCY SINATRA has a new album too, (her first in 20 years) "One More Time." (Cougar records). (WE AIRED PART OF HER INTERVIEW 12/12/95 ON THE OCCASION OF HER FATHER'S 80TH BIRTHDAY.) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Aimee Mann's new release, "I'm with Stupid." (Geffen)

Description of show segment(s)

OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with FRED SHEFTELL continued. REV. : Maureen Corrigan review
Atticus by Ron Hansen.

Interview with Steven Levy; Interview with Bruce Taylor; Interview with Jerry Berman; Interview
oclc/971502801].

Description of show segment(s)

REV. 1: Two weeks ago Congress passed a sweeping new telecommunications bill, the biggest overhaul of telecommunications law in 62 years. The bill contains a provision (the Communications Decency Act) which makes obscenity on the internet illegal, punishable by fines of up to {dollar}100,000 and prison sentences to "knowingly" transmit to minors material deemed "indecent" on on-line services. Indecency is defined as any communication that "in context, depicts or describes, in terms patently offensive as measured by contemporary community standards, sexual or excretory activities or organs." Terry Gross will be talking to several individuals with differing points of view. First, Newsweek's STEVEN LEVY gives an overview. INT. 1: BRUCE TAYLOR, President and Chief Counsel of the National Law Center for Children and Families. His organization is a resource and education center which assists law enforcement and prosecutors in the enforcement of obscenity and child exploitation laws. He helped draft the legislation in the Communications Decency Act. (The National Law Center Children and Families is located in Fairfax, VA, (703) 691-4626.) INT. 2: JERRY BERMAN is Executive Director of the Center for Democracy and Technology. Its mission is to develop public policies that advance democratic values and constitutional civil liberties in new computer and communications technologies. His group has joined a coalition of on line services, telecommunications companies, librarians, and others in filing a federal suit seeking less restrictive means to protect minors on the internet. (The Center for Democracy and Technology is located in Washington, D.C. (202) 637-9800.) INT. 3 : NIGEL SPICER, President of Microsystems Software, Inc. They developed a parental-control software called Cyber Patrol.
Interview with Paul Schrader; Interview with Harvey Keitel; Interview with Neal Gabler; Review of the film "City Hall." February 16, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458731].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Screenwriter and director PAUL SCHRADER. He wrote the screenplay for Taxi Driver, which is being redistributed for its 20th anniversary, and has been restored in 35 mm with Dolby stereo. Schrader also wrote the screenplays for Scorsese's Raging Bull and The Last Temptation of Christ, and directed The Comfort of Strangers and Light Sleeper. He is co-screenwriter of the political thriller City Hall. (REBROADCAST from 9/7/88) INT. 2: Actor HARVEY KEITEL, who first gained attention in a series of films by Martin Scorsese, including Taxi Driver, where he played Jodie Foster's pimp. Keitel's latest films include Pulp Fiction, Smoke, Blue in the Face, and From Dusk Till Dawn. (REBROADCAST from 1/13/92) INT. 3: Neal Gabler, author of a biography of Walter Winchell. He'll talk about Winchell and the power of celebrity. Martin Scorsese has bought the film rights to his biography of Winchell. (REBROADCAST from 10/12/94) REV. : Steve Vineberg reviews the film City Hall, which stars Al Pacino, John Cusack, and Bridget Fonda.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of Religion, and distinguished scholar HUSTON SMITH. His book "The World's Religions" (formerly "The Religions of Man") has been the most widely-used textbook for courses in world religion for thirty years. There's now an illustrated version of his book, a companion to Bill Moyer's upcoming series featuring SMITH. ("The Wisdom of Faith" premiers MARCH 26 - APRIL 23 on PBS.) "The Illustrated World's Religions: a Guide to Our Wisdom Traditions" is published by Harper. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with HUSTON SMITH continued. REV. : Interview with HUSTON SMITH continued.
Interview with Elizabeth McAlister; Interview with Dennis Brennan; Commentary on Black History Month. February 20, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458546].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Anthropologist ELIZABETH MCALISTER is an expert on Haitian Vodou and she's studied Haitian Vodou in Brooklyn and in Haiti. She's compiled a new album of sacred and ceremonial music recorded in Haiti and in New York, "Rhythms of Rapture" and contributed to a new book "Sacred Arts of Haitian Vodou." (Smithsonian Folkways). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with ELIZABETH MCALISTER continued. INT. 3:Singer/songwriter/guitarist DENNIS BRENNAN. His new album is "Jack-In-The-Pulpit" (Upstart Records). BRENNAN names Barry & the Remains, Howlin' Wold, Buck Owens, Otis Redding, and the Stones as his influences. BRENNAN is from Boston and a review in The Boston Globe calls him "one of the city's foremost melodic-rock songwriters. He has a raw survivor's voice, but he delves under the skin like Elvis Costello. . .then rocks with the populist abandon of Bruce Springsteen and the Stones." REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY considers Black History Month.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN UPDIKE. America's preeminent writer has written forty-six books, including 17 novels. His latest work is a four-generation saga, a historical novel, "In the Beauty of the Lilies." (Knopf). INT. 2: Art historian and curator MARK ROSENTHAL. He is curator of the new exhibition "Abstraction in the Twentieth Century: Total Risk, Freedom, Discipline" at the Guggenheim Museum in New York (Feb 9 - May 12). There's also a companion book to the exhibition, same title, published by Guggenheim. ROSENTHAL is Curator of Twentieth Century at the National Gallery of Art, Washington D.C. and formerly Consultative Curator at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Lieutenant Nun: The Memoir of a Basque Transvestite in the New World" by Catalina De Erauso (published by Beacon).
Interview with Steve Jobs; Commentary on the Ramones' final tour; Interview with Joey Ramone; Review of the film "Angels & Insects." February 22, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458303].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: STEVEN JOBS is one of the founders of Apple Computers; and he led the development of the Macintosh computer. In 1985 he founded NeXT Computer. It's mission is to develop customized software for businesses; two of their applications are OPENSTEP and NEXTSTEP. JOBS is also the owner of the computer animation company, Pixar. They've made the first feature-length computer-animated film, "Toy Story," in conjunction with Walt Disney, Inc. JOBS will talk with Terry about the future of computer technology. JOBS has won numerous awards including a National Medal of Technology in 1990. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with STEVEN JOBS continued. REV. 1: Music critic MILO MILES comments on the final tour of the Ramones. After the tour the group is disbanding. INT. 3: An excerpt of a 1988 interview with JOEY RAMONE. REV. 2 : Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews the film "Angels & Insects".

Interview with Arnold Rampersand; Review of the film "Before and After"; Interview with Stephen Schiff. February 23, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458547].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer ARNOLD RAMPERSAD is professor of Literature at Princeton. His two-volume biography of writer Langston Hughes was praised by critics as one of the best biographies of a black American writer. RAMPERSAD also is the author of a biography of Richard Wright and co-author of tennis star Arthur Ashe's memoir, "Days of Grace. There's a new paperback edition of "The Collected Poems of Langston Hughes" edited by Rampersad and David Roessel (Vintage Classics). We'll hear Terry's interview with RAMPERSAD about Langston Hughes. (REBROADCAST from 11/4/88) REV. Film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF reviews "Before and After" the new film starring Meryl Streep and Liam Neeson. . . This will be STEPHEN's last Fresh Air film review. He'll be going on to a new career in screenwriting. His adaptation for "Lolita" will hit the screen this Fall. INT. 2: Following the review, Terry will talk with STEPHEN about his work. REV. : Conversation with STEPHEN SCHIFF continued.
Interview with Bonnie Raitt; Review of the film "Last Summer in the Hamptons"; Review of Cibo Matto's album "Viva! La Woman." February 26, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458536].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer/songwriter BONNIE RAITT. Her newest release is her first live album, "Road Tested," (Capitol). It's been nominated for a Grammy. But today, RAITT is on Fresh Air to talk about the musicians and performers that inspired her. She'll play recordings by such blues artists as B.B. King, Mississippi Fred McDowell, and Sippie Wallace. RAITT recorded one of McDowell's songs on her new album. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with BONNIE RAIATT continued. REV. 1: Guest film critic STEVE VINEBERG reviews "Last Summer at the Hamptons" the new Henry Jaglom film. REV. 2: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews a debut album by two Japanese women from the Lower East side of Manhattan, "Viva! La Woman" by Miho Hatori and Yuka Honda. The name of their duo is Cibo Matto.

Interview with John Perry Barlow; Interview with Mark Rappaport. February 27, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458603].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN PERRY BARLOW is the co-founder of the Electronic Frontier Foundation, which defends civil liberties in cyberspace. BARLOW is also a former cattle rancher in Wyoming, and a former lyricist for the Grateful Dead. The Electronic Frontier Foundation is located at 1667 K St. NW, Suite 801, Washington, D.C. 20006-1605. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 1a Interview with JOHN PERRY BARLOW continued. INT. 2: Independent film director, writer and editor MARK RAPPAPORT. His newest film is "From the Journals of Jean Seberg," about the actress Jean Seberg. The movie is a "fictitious autobiography" and places Seberg's life and work in a political context of the 1960s. Seberg's life ended in a tragic suicide. She grew up in Iowa, was best known for her role in Jean Luc Godard's "Breathless," and Otto Preminger's "Saint Joan." In the 60s she got involved with the Black Panthers. The film stars Mary Beth Hurt as Seberg, and also uses footage and photos of Seberg. INT. 2A: Interview with MARK RAPPAPORT continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director PHILIP HAAS. His newest movie is "Angels & Insects" based on the novella "Morpho Eugenia" by writer A.S. Byatt. Previously, HAAS made his feature film debut with "The Music of Chance," adapted from a Paul Auster novel. REV. 1: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Disappearance: A Map," by Sheila Nickerson, a meditation on loss. (Doubleday). INT. 2: RAMBLIN' JACK ELLIOTT is a folksinger who has hopped freights, hitched cross-country, competed in rodeos, toured with Woody Guthrie, and influenced a young Bob Dylan. He's been singing since the late 1940's. He has his first studio album in over twenty-five years, "South Coast." (Red House Records, P.O. Box 4044, St. Paul, MN 55104 1-800-695-4687). REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews Volume 1 of a series called "Keyboard Wizards of the Gershwin Era" featuring pianist Pauline Alpert (Pearl label).

Interview with James Carville; Interview with Bryn Freedman; Interview with Kathy and John Polec. February 29, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502330].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAMES CARVILLE, chief strategist of Bill Clinton's 1992 War Room, and an adviser to President Clinton. He has a new book in which he responds to the Republican's contract with America. It's called "We're Right, They're Wrong: A Handbook for Spirited Progressives," (in paperback, RANDOM HOUSE) CARVILLE is also the co-author with his wife, Mary Matalin, of "All's Fair: Love, War, and Running for President." INT. 2: On November 11, 1994, Eddie Polec was clubbed to death in a Philadelphia suburb by a group of rival high school kids. He was clubbed with a baseball bat on the steps of the St Cecilia's Church where he had been an altar boy. Investigators say he was beaten until limp and then held aloft "to give the bat-wielding youths a better shot." He had been waiting for his young brother, to walk home together when the group of kids arrived, looking for a fight. Eddie hadn't been part of the rivalry. He was in the wrong place at the wrong time. The story gained national attention because of the poor response, and rudeness of 911 operators to callers who called about the attack. MARTY MOSS COANE will talk with a journalist and the parents of Eddie Polec: Broadcast journalist BRYN FREEDMAN ("Brin Freedman"). She covered the trial of Eddie Polecs' attackers. Nineteen year old Kevin Convey, pleaded guilty to third-degree murder in the slaying, and was sentenced to five to 20 years in prison as part of a plea agreement. Convey struck the first blow with a baseball bat, causing Polec to fall. Convey is the only one to be sentenced so far. FREEDMAN reports for FOX news in Philadelphia. INT. 3: Parents of Eddie Polec, KATHY and JOHN POLEC ("Paul-ie").

---

Interview with Jay McShann; Review of the television show "Neil Simon's 'Jake's Women'";

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Kansas City pianist-vocalist-bandleader, JAY MCSHANN. Last night he received the Lifetime Achievement award from the Rhythm & Blues Foundation in Washington, D.C. We'll rebroadcast a 1987 interview with MCSHANN. (from 10/8/87) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Neil Simon's Jake's Women" on CBS, Sunday night at 9, starring Alan Alda. INT. 2: Actor DANNY AIELLO (eye-EL-oh). He starred in "Moonstruck," and "Do the Right Thing" and "Ruby," about Jack Ruby, the man who shot Lee Harvey Oswald. AIELLO's latest film is "City Hall." He talks with Terry about acting. He used to be an official with the New York transit union and quit it when he was 35 to take up acting. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 3/19/92) REV. : Guest film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Up Close and Personal" the new film starring Michelle Pfeiffer and Robert Redford.

---

Interview with Sting; Interview with Greil Marcus. March 4, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458599].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British musician STING was the bassist and lead singer for the Police, which from 1978 to 84 produced a creative and popular blend of jazz and rock. Since begining his solo career in 1982, Sting has released six albums. His latest "Mercury Falling," is scheduled for release in the United Sates on March 12. (THIE INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Cultural critic GREIL (pronounced "Gre-ill") MARCUS. He is the author of "The Dustbin of History" (Harvard University Press) about the history embedded in cultural moments. He'll talk with Terry about one of the essays in the book about the song, "Too Soon to Tell," written by Deborah Chessler and recorded by the Orioles in 1948. REV. : No Review Interview with Harold J. Rothwax; Commentary on Louis Farrakhan's foreign trip. March 5, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458344].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Judge HAROLD J. ROTHWAX, author of "Guilty, The Collapse of Criminal Justice," (Random House). For twenty-five years he's been a judge on the New York State Supreme Court and has developed a reputation for tough rulings. He'll talk with Terry about his ideas for reform of the criminal justice system. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with JUDGE HAROLD J. ROTHWAX continued. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY puts into historical context Louis Farrakhan's foreign delegation.

Interview with Michael Kinsley; Interview with Stephen McCauley; Commentary on Apple Computer, Inc. March 6, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458342].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:MICHAEL KINSLEY, former editor of "The New Republic," and co-host of CNN's "Crossfire," has been hired by Microsoft to start an on-line magazine of political dialog and cultural commentary. TERRY GROSS will also be speaking with him about the Republican primary. He has a new collection of his essays, "Big Babies," (William Morrow). INT. 2:Novelist STEPHEN MCCCAULEY was a yoga instructor and travel agent before writing his first novel, "The Object of My Affection". His newest and third novel is "The Man of the House". (Simon & Schuster) REV. :Commentator STEVEN LEVY on Apple computer.
Interview with Dave Alvin; Interview with Gregory Vistica; Interview with Bill Adler and Bob Holman. March 7, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458728].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet, musician DAVE ALVIN, is best known for his songwriting and guitar playing for the Blasters and the influential punk band X, as well as his solo career. He has a new collection of his poems and writings called, "Any Rough Times Are Now Behind You," (Incommunicado) INT. 2: Journalist GREGORY VISTICA, has received numerous local and national awards including the George Polk Award for exposing the sex-abuses and irresponsible authority of the Tailhook scandal. He has written a book entitled, "Fall from Glory: The Men Who Sank the U.S. Navy" (Simon & Schuster) detailing his investigation into the failed Navy leadership which has fostered the growth of wide spread dissipation in Navy conduct. INT. 3: Veteran music businessman BILL ADLER, and poet BOB HOLMAN are partners of Mouth Almighty Records which is distributing the condensed soundtrack of the PBS series, "The United States of Poetry", a MTV version of the spoken words featuring everything from rappers to beat poets. (the label Mouth Almighty, is distributed by Mercury Records, in New York, 212-333-8000) (THIS CONTINUES AFTER THE 1:00 FLOATER) BILL ADLER and BOB HOLMAN continued.

Interview with Astor Piazzolla; Review of the television show "Muppets Tonight"; Interview with Charles Strouse; Review of the film "Fargo." March 8, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458602].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Tango innovator ASTOR PIAZZOLLA. Since the early 60s, PIAZZOLLA lead groups that played an updated tango that connected this Argentinian form with musical innovations from Europe and America, both classical and contemporary. The adjustments had earned him the enmity of Argentinians, and for the most of the 70s he lived in France where he wrote film scores. PIAZZOLLA was a classically trained composer who wrote symphonies and studied with Nadia Boulanger, the renowned French instructor of composition. PIAZZOLLA died July 4th, 1992. "57 Minutos Con La Realidad" (Intuition Music, New York) released March 5, is the final recording of the great bandoneonist with his own group. (REBROADCAST from 4/19/88) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Muppets Tonight." INT. 2: Broadway composer CHARLES STROUSE. His hits include, "Bye Bye Birdie," "Applause," and "Annie." He's also written the film scores for "Bonnie and Clyde," and "The Night They Raided Minskys," and others. In 1993, STROUSE mounted a sequel to "Annie," -- "Annie Warbucks." There's a new show of his songs "A Lot of Living!" performed by Linda Lavin, at the Rainbow Room in New York City. From March 5 - 30. (REBROADCAST FROM 1/3/94) REV. : Film critic JON POWERS reviews the new film by the Coen Brothers, "Fargo."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: President of the Social Democratic and Labour Party of Northern Ireland, JOHN HUME. He's been an advocate of nonviolence throughout the 25 years of violence in Ireland. He has received numerous peace and humanitarian awards, has been nominated several times for the Nobel Peace Prize, and is thought to be a leading contender for the award this year. He has a new memoir "A New Ireland: Politics, Peace, and Reconciliation" (Roberts Rinehart Publishers). INT. 2: National Correspondent for U.S. News and World Report SCOTT MINERBROOK. He writes regularly for public radio and his work has appeared in a myriad of publications including The New York Times, and Emerge, where he is a contributing editor. He has received several awards, most recently one from the National Association of Black Journalists. His new book "Divided to the Vein: A Journey into Race and Family" (Harcourt Brace & Co.) discusses the racism he encountered within his own family as the son of a white woman and a black man. REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews a new novel entitled "Criminals" (Knopf) by the Scottish writer Margot Livesey.

Interview with Fazal Sheikh; Interview with Nicholas Dodman, Part 1; Commentary on Austin, Texas's music scene. March 12, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458335].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Photographer FAZAL SHEIKH. Since graduating from Princeton University in 1987 he has won an impressive collection of awards including the Leica Medal of Excellence, The Ruttenberg Award, and a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship. His new book "A Sense of Common Ground," (Scalo) presents a series of photographs taken of African refugees from several different camps. The book was published along with a traveling exhibition, opening at the International Center for Photography in New York City. INT. 2: Internationally renowned professor of behavioral pharmacology at Tufts University School of Veterinary Medicine, NICHOLAS DODMAN, is an expert in domestic animal behavior and psychology. In the new book "The Dog Who Loved Too Much" (Bantam) he illustrates his unique treatments and creative cures for pet disorders with stories from his own practice. DR. DODMAN'S therapeutic innovations include, changes in the dog's diet, exercise regime, and even the prescription of some "human" personality drugs. REV.: Rock historian ED WARD on the burgeoning Austin, Texas music scene. The SXSW (South by Southwest Music & Media Conference) is meeting at the Austin convention Center March 13-17.
Interview with Austin Sarat; Interview with James Park Morton; Commentary on the chess match between Garry Kasparov and a computer program. March 14, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458337].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Amherst College professor AUSTIN SARAT, a Ph.D. in political science with a law degree from Yale University, is teaching a course on Murder which is the most popular in the school's history—with one fifth of the entire student body enrolled. It breaks the record of a course on Human Sexuality offered in the 70's. The syllabus includes selections from literature, film, and television like "Crime and Punishment," and "Macbeth," as well as "Pulp Fiction," and "Psycho." INT. 2: The VERY REV. JAMES PARKS MORTON, Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine has announced his intentions to resign on Jan. 1, 1997. He will be leaving after 25 years of leadership at the world's largest Gothic cathedral to head a new organization, the Interfaith Center of New York. During his tenure as Dean of the nation's largest church he has created a congregation of 1,000, built 20,000 apartments for the poor, and established a living community of faith having much of the same energy and intellectual stimulation possessed by medieval cathedrals. REV. :STEVEN LEVY recounts the dramatic battle between world chess champion Garry Kasparov and the cutting edge chess program "Deep Blue."

Interview with Shirley Horn, Charles Ables, and Steve Williams; Review of the film "Chungking Express"; Interview with Nathan Lane; Commentary on the television shows "Murder One" and "The Dana Carvey Show." March 15, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458476].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and interview with SHIRLEY HORN. Playing with her will be drummer Steve Williams and bassist Charles Ables. HORN recorded with Miles Davis and Quincy Jones in the 1960s and sang on the movie soundtrack of "For Love of Ivy." After a hiatus in which she stayed home and raised her daughter, she returned to performing and recording in 1988. Her latest album is "The Main Ingredient" (on Verve). (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 6/29/92). REV. : Film Critic for the L. A. Weekly ELLA TAYLOR reviews the new movie "Chungking Express" by writer/director Wong Kar-Wai. INT. 2: Actor NATHAN LANE. He's currently in the film "The Bird Cage." He played Nathan Detroit in the Broadway revival of "Guys and Dolls." Playwright Terrance McNally has written roles for LANE and says, "I need an actor like Nathan to fully express myself. I can't do it with just the words. I need his faces and gestures to finish the sentence." LANE starred in McNally's "The Lisbon Traviata," and in "Lips Together, Teeth Apart." He also was in the films "Frankie and Johnny," (as Michelle Pfeiffer's neighbor -- a part McNally wrote for him), in "Life with Mikey," (co-starring with Michael J. Fox), and has a cameo in "Adams Family Values." (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 1/3/94.) REV. :T.V. critic David Bianculli explains how two programs are making changes to appease their respective audiences: "Murder One" and Dana Carvey's Variety Show.

Interview with James Stewart; Review of the album "More than Mambo" and Bebo Valdez's and Marc Anthony's albums "Bebo Rides Again" and "Todo A Su Tiempo." March 18, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458333].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist JAMES STEWART. He won the George Polk award in 1988 and the Gerald Loeb awards in 1987 and 1988. He was the recipient of the 1988 Pulitzer prize for his articles in the Wall Street Journal on the 1987 stock market crash and the insider trading scandal. That same year he became the page one editor for The Wall Street Journal and held that position until November of 1992. Currently he is a contributor to The New York Magazine and an editor-at-large at SmartMoney magazine. He has a new book on the Whitewater scandal, "Blood Sport: The President and His Adversaries." (Simon & Schuster)(THIS SEGMENT CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: JAMES STEWART interview continued. REV. : World Music critic MILO MILES comments on his three favorite Latin releases of the last few months.

Interview with Nick Venet; Review of Kurt Weill's album "From Berlin to Broadway"; Interview with Erik Barnouw. March 19, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458332].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Record producer NICK VENET. He has produced more than 300 albums in his career and has collected numerous Grammy nominations and awards. He is co-producer of a new Bobby Darin box set (Rhino). VENET was also Darin's producer and friend. REV. :Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new two-disc set of historical recordings of the theater music of Kurt Weill: "From Berlin to Broadway," (Pearl Records) INT. 2: One of the most respected historians of the media ERIK BARNOUW. (Pronounced "BAR-NO"). He is the author of the three-volume "History of Broadcasting." BARNOUW was the first chief of the Library of Congress' Motion Picture, Broadcasting, and Recording Sound Division." BARNOUW has a new memoir about his life, "Media Marathon: A 20th Century Memoir." (Duke University Press).

Interview with William Kristol; Review of Lou Reed's album "Set the Twilight Reeling"; Interview with Ed Perkins. March 20, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458475].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: "New eras demand new voices." words from WILLIAM KRISTOL defending the creation of his new conservative magazine "The Weekly Standard." Kristol talks with Terry Gross about why he feels vigorous debate among conservatives is needed if republicans want to lead the nation. Kristol is editor and publisher of the Standard which has been criticized for highlighting divisions within the Republican Party. Kristol has served as chief of staff for one time Secretary of Education William Bennet and for Vice President Day Quayle. In 1990, The New Republic dubbed Kristol "Dan Quayle's Brain." He also has served as director of the conservative think tank "Project for the Republican Future." He is often featured on TV's Nightline and "This Week with David Brinkley." INT. 2: Interview with WILLIAM KRISTOL continues. REV.: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER review's Lou Reed's new album "Set the Twilight Reeling." Int 3: Editor of Consumer Reports Travel Letter (CRTL), ED PERKINS. He has spent 25 years in travel research and consulting He began editing CRTL, widely known for its objective consumer oriented research. He has a nationally syndicated travel column and has appeared as a travel expert on Good Morning America, The CBS Evening News With Dan Rather, and other TV and radio programs. He received ASTA's Traveler's Advocate Award for 1993, and is the co-author of "Best Travel Deals, 1996 Edition." (Consumer Reports Books) Perkins talks with Terry Gross about how to get the best seat on an airplane.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film Critics GENE SISKEL and ROGER EBERT join Terry Gross on stage in Chicago for a "live" audience version of Fresh Air. This was recorded in February 1996. The duo began their TV collaboration in 1975 on Chicago Public Television station WTTW. After two successful season, the program became a national PBS show. In 1981 it moved to commercial television. Their show is now known as "Siskel and Ebert" and is heard in 180 markets. Gene Siskel is film columnist for the Chicago Tribune, and Roger Ebert is critic for the Chicago Sun-Times. "Siskel and Ebert" has been nominated for five national Emmy awards. Ebert has received a Pulitzer Prize for film criticism. INT. 2: INTERVIEW with Siskel and Ebert continues. REV. : INTERVIEW with Siskel and Ebert continues.

Description of show segment(s)

REV: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new collection of stories by Andre Dubus "Dancing After Hours." (Knopf) INT. 1: Writer ANDRE DUBUS ("dah-bues"). Dubus' short stories earned him 1991's Bernard Malamud Award from the writers group, PEN. In 1986 DUBUS was crippled when he was hit by a car as he was trying to assist another motorist. We'll broadcast a 1991 interview with DUBUS. (REBROADCAST from 6/25/91). His new collection of essays is "Dancing After Hours." (Knopf) INT. 2: Terry telephones ANDRE DUBUS, for a new interview. REV. : Critic KEN TUCKER'S review of "Crumb" the documentary by Terry Zwigoff about the underground artist Robert Crumb. It's now out on video. INT. 3: Producer/ Director TERRY ZWIGOFF (ZWy-goff). His documentary, "CRUMB" has just been released on video. The film was shot over seven years and follows the life of Robert Crumb, the famous underground artist who popularized character's such as Mr. Natural, Flakey Foont and Keep on Truckin'. The film won the Grand Jury Prize for best documentary and cinematography at the Sundance Film Festival. ZWIGOFF'S last documentary was "Louie Bluie." (REBROADCAST from 4/17/95)
Interview with Vito Russo; Interview with Rob Epstein and Jeffrey Friedman; Interview with Joseph Cates; Review of Anthony Davis's album "Episteme." March 25, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458472].

Description of show segment(s)

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROSANNE CASH. The singer/lyricist has released nine albums. In 1985 she won a Grammy for "I don't Know Why You Don't Want Me." CASH is the daughter of Johnny Cash. She currently has a new album, "Ten-Song Demo" (Capitol Records) and her first work of fiction: "Bodies of Water" (Hyperion) a collection of nine short stories. One reviewer writes, "her talent as a lyricist translates beautifully into short fiction." REV. 1: MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Kraven Images" (BridgeWorks Books) by Alan Isler. INT. 2: Co-host of NPR's All Things Considered, NOAH ADAMS, has written a book called "Piano Lessons,"(Delacorte Press) describing his one year study of the piano after years of admiration and longing, amidst the busy schedule of a twelve-hour work day. REV. 2: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews last night's Academy Awards.
Interview with Nahid Tounia. March 27, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458690].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Associate Professor at Columbia University of Public Health DR. NAHID TOUBIA. She is from Sudan, and was the first woman surgeon in her country. TOUBIA is director of "Rainbo" a research and information organization dedicated to the health and human rights of women, particularly women's reproductive and sexual rights. They've begun a campaign against female genital mutilation. TOUBIA has written a report: "Female Genital Mutilation: A Call for Global Action." (for copies contact: Women, Ink., 777 United Nations Plaza, New York, NY, (212) 687-8633.) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with DR. NAHID TOUBIA continued. REV. : Interview with DR. NAHID TOUBIA continued.

Interview with Margaret Morton and Bob Kalinski; Commentary on the word "suburbs;" Commentary on loneliness. March 28, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501993].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Photographer MARGARET MORTON has a new collection of photographs: "The Tunnel: The Underground Homeless of New York City," (Yale University Press). The community has existed for 20 years. The book's text is taken from the words of the people who live there. Terry also talks with BOB KALINSKI who lived underground for eight years, and recently left the tunnel to live in a homeless shelter. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on the long history of the word "suburbs." REV. : Poet ROBIN BECKER reads "The Roast Chicken" from her collection "All-American Girl."
Interview with Chuck Jones; Review of the film "Diabolique"; Interview with Kirk Douglas; Review of albums by British artists. March 29, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501995].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Animator CHUCK JONES. He recently won an honorary Oscar during the Academy Awards. JONES is the animation director responsible for many of Warner Brothers greatest cartoons: Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Porky Pig, and Road Runner. (REBROADCAST from 10/18/89) Rev: Film critic for Entertainment Weekly, LISA SCHWARZBAUM. She reviews "Diabolique" starring Sharon Stone.

INT. 2: Actor KIRK DOUGLAS. He also won an honorary Oscar this week. He's made over 75 films, including: "Champion," "Spartacus," "Lust for Life," "Lonely Are the Brave," and more. He wrote an autobiography, "The Ragman's Son." (REBROADCAST from 8/22/88) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER tells us about the latest British invasion: Spacehog (their new album is "Resident Alien"--Sire Records), Black Grape ("It's Great When You're Straight"--Radioactive Records) and Pulp ("Different Class"--Island Records).

Interview with Dennis Hopper; Interview with Bertrand Tavernier. April 1, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458505].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DENNIS HOPPER co-stars in the new film "Carried Away." Hopper plays Joseph Svenden a school teacher who has an affair with a 17 year old female student. The film is based on the Jim Harrison novel "Farmer." Hopper made his feature film debut in "Rebel Without a Cause" in 1955. some other, but not all, of the films he has appeared include: "Easy Rider," "Apocalypse Now," "Blue Velvet." "Speed," "Waterworld," "River's Edge," "Hoosiers," and "Red Rock West." Hopper was born May 17, 1936 in Dodge City, Kansas. Trained for the stage in San Diego. In addition to acting, Hopper has directed film and written screenplays. INT. 2: BERTRAND TAVERNIER is considered one of the most acclaimed French film makers since the New Wave artists appeared in the late 50s. The New Wave method was marked by relying heavily on handheld cameras and improvisational acting. Tavernier gained fame as an important post-New Wave film artist. Probably his best known work to Americans is "Round Midnight."
Tavernier is currently touring various cities as part of the Lumiere Institute's celebration of 100 years of motion pictures. Tavernier is president of the Institute. REV. : NONE Interview with Al Sharpton; Interview with Edward Serotta. April 2, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458689].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reverend AL SHARPTON. The controversial advocate for the rights of African Americans has written his autobiography (w/Anthony Walton): "Go and Tell Pharaoh: The Autobiography of The Reverend Al Sharpton." (Doubleday) INT. 2: Photojournalist EDWARD SEROTTA has documented the community of Bosnian Jews in Sarajevo, and their efforts to rescue their Muslim, Serb, and Croat friends and neighbors during the siege. His book is "Survival in Sarajevo: How a Jewish Community Came to the Aid of its City." (Central Europe Center for Research & Documentation). Terry will also talk with him about his recent trip to Sarajevo to look for the the legendary Sarajevo Haggadah -- a 700 year old Spanish masterpiece that's valued at 10 million dollars. During the Holocaust, Muslims hid it from the Nazis. SEROTTA was sent by ABC's "Nightline." (The "Nightline" about it airs 4/2/96) REV. : No review

Interview with Christopher Darden; Commentary on Camille Howard. April 3, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458503].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Los Angeles prosecutor CHRISTOPHER DARDEN. He'd been a Deputy District Attorney with the Los Angeles County District Attorney's office for fifteen years before being selected to be on the team that prosecuted O.J. Simpson. He's written his memoir, "In Contempt," (Regan Books, written with Jess Walter. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with CHRISTOPHER DARDEN, continued. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD on one of the forgotten heroines of rhythm and blues: Camille Howard. She played piano with Roy Milton and his sold Senders during the 1940s and 1950s. She also made a couple of hit recordings of her own. ("Camille Howard, Vol. 1: Rock Me Daddy" -- Speciality Records (Dist. by Fantasy, Berkeley, CA)
Interview with Tanya Tucker; Interview with Kem Nunn. April 3, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884369].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country singer TANYA TUCKER. She became a star at 13 years old with the chart-topping song "Delta Dawn." Since then she has had countless other hit songs, grammy nominations, and in 1991 was voted the Country Music Association's Female Vocalist of the Year. But her success has not been without it's low points, such as problems with drug and alcohol abuse and controversy over the "mature" lyrics she sang as a teenager. She writes about her experiences in her new autobiography "Nickel Dreams" (Hyperion) and has just released her 30th CD "Complicated" (Capitol Nashville).

(THE INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Novelist and screenwriter KEM NUNN. His new book "The Dogs of Winter" (Scribner) is the story of a photographer who hopes to jumpstart his career by capturing pictures of surfers on California's most dangerous waters.

(THE INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER) REV. : KEM NUNN continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Defense attorney ROBERT L. SHAPIRO. He put together the defense strategy and the team of high-profile attorneys who successfully defended O.J. Simpson. Eventually SHAPIRO was replaced by Johnny Cochran as lead attorney. And by the trial's end the team members were denouncing each other. SHAPIRO has written his memoir, "The Search for Justice: A Defense Attorney's Brief on the O.J. Simpson Case," (Time Warner, written with Larkin Warren). (THE INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with ROBERT SHAPIRO continued. INT. 3: Author JONATHAN HARR has written a new nonfiction book: "A Civil Action: A Real-Life Legal Thriller." (Random House). The Boston Globe describes it as "a narrative as deeply involving as one of the earliest of its genre, "In Cold Blood." A fascinating work of literary reportage."
Interview with John Dominic Crossan; Interview with Elaine Pagels; Review of the film "Flirting with Disaster"; Review of the television movie "To Sir, With Love, Two." April 5, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458692].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor Emeritus of biblical studies at DePaul University in Chicago JOHN DOMINIC CROSSAN (CROSS-in). A native of Ireland, ordained as a priest in the U.S. (he left the Priesthood in 1969). CROSSAN is a founding member of the Jesus Seminar, a group of scholars who meet to determine the authenticity of Jesus' sayings in the Gospels. CROSSAN wrote the book, "Jesus: A Revolutionary Biography." CROSSAN's latest book is "Who Killed Jesus: Exposing the Roots of Anti-Semitism in the Gospel Story of The Death of Jesus" (Harper San Francisco 1995). His book, "Who is Jesus" will be coming out in the Fall. (REBROADCAST from 4/3/95) REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Flirting with Disaster." A comedy starring Ben Stiller, Patricia Arquette and Tea Leona. It also features Alan Alda, Mary Tyler Moore and Lily Tomlin. INT. 2: Professor of Religion at Princeton University ELAINE PAGELS. She has written four books including "The Gnostic Gospels" (which won both the National Book Award and the National Book Critics Circle Award). PAGELS most recent book is "The Origin of Satan" (Random House 1995). (REBROADCAST from 6/26/95) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "To Sir with Love, Two" the sequel to the film, "To Sir With Love," which was released 29 years ago. Both star Sidney Poitier. It airs on CBS, Sunday night.

Interview with Marga Gomez; Review of Lorraine Hunt's album "Handel's Ariodante"; Interview with Lorraine Hunt. April 8, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458177].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comic and performance artist MARGA GOMEZ. Her new show is "A Line Around the Block" a solo memoir performance about her father, New York Cuban comedian Willy Chevalier. In 1991 GOMEZ wrote and performed a piece about her mother a flamboyantly self-dramatizing Puerto Rican dancer, "Memory Tricks." GOMEZ is performing her new show at The Public Theatre in New York, this month. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the latest recording by mezzo-soprano Lorraine Hunt: "Handel's Ariodante" (AH-rio-DAN-tay) on the Harmonia Mundi label. INT. 2: Mezzo-Soprano LORRAINE HUNT. She appeared in Peter Sellars' productions of Handel and Mozart. HUNT has been called the "reigning Handel diva of our day." HUNT's Handel recordings can be found on the Harmonia Mundi label. Her latest is "Handel: Ariodante." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE 1:00 FLOATER)

Interview with Joseph and Julia Quinlan; Interview with Art Caplan. April 9, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458694].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOSEPH and JULIA QUINLAN. They are the parents of Karen Ann Quinlan. It's been twenty years since the New Jersey State Supreme Court issued its landmark decision (March 31, 1976) allowing their comatose daughter to be removed from a ventilator. She then lived nine more years. The Quinlans wrote about Karen in the book "Karen Ann: The Quinlans Tell Their Story," (Doubleday-1977). In 1980 they used the proceeds from the book to open the Karen Ann Quinlan Center of Hope Hospice in Newton, New Jersey. (201)383-0115 (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with JOSEPH AND JULIA QUINLAN continued. INT. 3: Medical ethicist ART CAPLAN. He's Director of the Center for Bioethics and Trustee Professor of Bioethics at the University of Pennsylvania. He'll talk with Terry about the ethics of death and dying and how the debate has changed since the Quinlin's first brought their case before the court. CAPLAN's most recent book is "Moral Matters: Ethical Issues in Medicine and the Life Sciences." (John Wiley & Sons).

Interview with Art Caplan; Interview with Mark Eitzel. April 10, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458176].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Medical ethicist ART CAPLAN. Director of the Center for Bioethics and Trustee Professor of Bioethics at the University of Pennsylvania. This is a continuation of yesterday's interview with CAPLAN. His most recent book is "Moral Matters: Ethical Issues in Medicine and the Life Sciences." (John Wiley & Sons). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with ART CAPLAN continued. INT. 3: Singer/songwriter MARK EITZEL (Eye-tzel) is the former leader of American Music Club, which meshed blues, country, folk, R&B and post-punk rock.
He's just released his first solo album, "60 Watt Silver Lining" (Warner Bros). He's backed by a jazz trio. (CONTINUES AFTER FLOATER)

Interview with Lawrence Shainberg; Interview with Michael Cuscuna and Charlie Lourie; Review of The Congos' album "Heart of the Congos." April 11, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458501].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer LAWRENCE SHAINBERG. His new book, "Ambivalent Zen: A Memoir," (Pantheon) is about his years practicing Zen Buddhism, and centers on SHAINBERG's relationship with his Zen teacher, Kyudo Nakagawa Roshi. "Both master and student live on in this hilarious, provocative account of what being a student of Zen has been." writes Gretel Ehrlich in her review. INT. 2: MICHAEL CUSCUNA (COOS-cuna) and CHARLIE LOURIE (LOO-RY) are co-founders of Mosaic Records, a label committed to reissuing classic jazz recordings, many of them originally recorded by Blue Note. The two have also collaborated on the new book, "The Blue Note Years: The Jazz Photography of Francis Wolff," (Rizzoli International Publications). It includes 200 photographs taken by Francis Wolff from 1941-1965, who also co-founded the Blue Note label. Many of Wolff's photographs were used as Blue Note album covers. REV. : Milo Miles reviews "Heart of the Congos" by The Congos. (Blood and Fire, USA--in L.A.)

Description of show segment(s)

REV. :Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Richard Ford's novel "Independence Day." (REBROADCAST from 6/14/95) INT. 1: Writer RICHARD FORD. His book "Independence Day" (Knopf) has just won a Pulitzer Prize, as well as a National Book Critics Circle Award. It's the sequel to FORD's "The Sportswriter" FORD is also the author of "Wildlife," "The Ultimate Good Luck," "A Piece of My Heart," and "Rock Springs." (REBROADCAST from 6/22/95) INT. 2: Record producer and musician DON WAS. He co-founded the funk rock group, "Was (Not) Was." Last year he won a Grammy for Producer of the Year. In addition, he's produced a number of albums for Bonnie Raitt (WAS produced Raitt's "Nick of Interview with Robert Duvall; Commentary on drums and rock music; Interview with Walter Murch; Review of the television program "Saturday Night Special"; Review of Steve Earle's album "I Feel Alright." April 15, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502743].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor ROBERT DUVALL. His roles include his film debut as Boo Radley in "To Kill a Mockingbird," a crazy colonel in "Apocalypse Now," counsel to the mob in "Godfather" I and II, and a country singer in "Tender Mercies" (for which he won a Oscar). In all he's acted in more than 50 films. His latest is "A Family Thing," in which he co-stars with James Earl Jones. REV: Rock historian ED WARD begins a series on the instruments of rock n' roll. Today's installment is drums. INT. 2: Film editor and sound designer WALTER MURCH. He won an Academy Award for sound design for "Apocalypse Now." Some of the films he's edited and/or mixed are "The Conversation," "American Graffiti," "Apocalypse Now," "The Godfather (II, and III)" and "Crumb." He's written a new book about his work, "In the Blink of An Eye: A Perspective on Film Editing," (Silman-James Press, L.A.) REV 2: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews Saturday Night Live's new late-night comedy show competitor: Saturday Night Special on FOX. REV 3: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "I Feel Alright" (Warner Bros) the latest release by country-rock artist Steve Earle.
Interview with James Gilligan, Part 1; Commentary on the bass and rock music; Interview with James Gilligan, Part 2; Review of Frank Walsh's book "Sin and Censorship." April 16, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458280].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychiatrist JAMES GILLIGAN. He's spent twenty-five years treating violent men, as former medical director of the Bridgewater State Hospital for the criminally insane, and director of mental health for the Massachusetts prison system. In his new book "Violence: Our Deadly Epidemic and Its Causes" (Grosset/Putnam) GILLIGAN puts forth his views on violence: that it is possible to eliminate most of the violence that plagues us, and that violence in America is 'the result of our collective 'moral choice' to maintain the social policies" that contribute to violence. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD continues his look at the instruments of rock and roll. Today's installment: the bass. INT. 2: Interview with JAMES GILLIGAN continued. REV. 2: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Sin and Censorship: The Catholic Church and the Motion Picture Industry," by Frank Walsh (Yale Univ. Press).

Interview with Morris Dees, Part 1; Commentary on the guitar and rock music; Interview with Morris Dees, Part 2; Review of Virgil Thomson's album "Four Saints in Three Acts." April 17, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502588].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Victor Navasky; Commentary on keyboards and rock music; Interview with Jack Miles; Review of Guus Janssen's album "Lighter." April 18, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458282].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Publisher of The Nation, VICTOR NAVASKY. He was one of a group of writers who in 1967 conceived of a literary hoax. The book "Report From Iron Mountain," was penned by Leonard Lewin and was a satire, supposedly written by a commission of eminent scholars about the problems that would arise in the United States if "permanent peace" should arrive. The book has been compared to Swift's "A Modest Proposal" and "Dr. Strangelove" for its social and political commentary. It wasn't until 1972 that Lewin admitted the hoax. Even so, extreme-right fringe groups have now taken the book to heart "as proof of a secret government plot to suppress personal liberties." The book has been reissued, (by The Free Press) with an introduction by VICTOR NAVASKY. REV: Rock historian ED WARD continues his series on the instruments of rock and roll. Today's installment: the keyboards. INT. 2: Former Jesuit seminarian and literary critic JACK MILES. He's just won the Pulitzer prize for his book, "God: A Biography." (Vintage). In the book he examines God as a character -- the protagonist -- of the Old Testament. MILES is also a columnist and member of the editorial board of the Los Angeles Times. REV: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Lighter" (Geestgronden label, dist. by BVHaast Records, Prinseneiland 99 1013 LN Amsterdam, Phone: 020 6239799, FAX 020 6243435) the new release by Dutch musician Guus Janssen (khoos YAHNsuH).

Interview with Ben Stiller; Commentary on the saxophone and rock music; Interview with William Link; Interview with Peter Falk; Review of the Fugees' album "The Score." April 19, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458278].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and filmmaker BEN STILLER. He's the son of the comedy team, Stiller and Meara, (Jerry Stiller & Anne Meara). He's acted in the Lincoln Center's revival of "House of Blue Leaves," and appeared in the films, "Fresh Horses," "Stella," and "Empire of the Sun." He's also made a number of comedy shorts that parody movies and television. (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 9/25/92). REV: Rock historian ED WARD continues his series on the instruments of rock and roll. Today's installment: is the Saxophone. INT. 2: Screenwriter WILLIAM LINK. With his partner Richard Levinson, Link created more than a dozen T-V series, including "Columbo" and "Mannix." They also wrote the books "Stay Tuned: An Inside Look at the Making of Prime-Time Television," and "Off Camera: Conversations with the Makers of Prime-Time Television." Link has been inducted into the TV Hall of Fame and also stars in the new movie "Flirting with Disaster." REBROADCAST (Originally aired 10/12/89) INT. 3: Actor PETER FALK (FAL-k). He is best known for his role as a rumpled L.A. detective in the TV series "Columbo," where he garnered three Emmy awards. REBROADCAST (Originally aired 3/15/95) REV. Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album "The Score" by the hip-hop band the FUGEES.

Interview with David Morse; Interview with George Covington. April 22, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458390].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DAVID MORSE. He's best known for his role in the 1980's hospital TV series "St Elsewhere" as Dr. "Boomer" Morrison. Last year he costarred with Jack Nicholson in "The Crossing Guard" which was directed and written by Sean Penn. Most recently MORSE can be seen in the film "12 Monkeys." INT. 2: Photographer, writer, attorney, and former Special Assistant for Disability Policy to the Vice President of the U.S., GEORGE COVINGTON. He was born legally blind, with less than ten percent of normal vision. He says he photographs "to see." Through his pictures he's able to hone in on the subject. His work is featured in the book, "Chronicles of Courage: Very Special Artist." (Random House). He was also featured in the PBS documentary series "People In Motion." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE 1:00 FLOATER) REV. : GEORGE CONVINGTON interview, cont'd.

Interview with Robert Hass; Interview with Noa Ben Artzi-Pelossof; Commentary on Salif Keita. April 23, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458705].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: U.S. Poet Laureate ROBERT HASS. (Rhymes with "ass"). He's written several books of poetry including "Praise" and "Human Wishes." He also edited "The Essential Haiku: Versions of Basho, Buson & Issa." (The Ecco Press). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF) INT. 2: The grand-daughter of former Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, NOA BEN ARTZI-PELOSSOF. During his funeral NOA gave a moving tribute to the grandfather she knew as opposed to the political leader

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet, performer, and punk rocker PATTI SMITH. Early in her career she lived with photographer Robert Mapplethorpe, and -- she says -- the two helped each other form and develop their individual talents. (Her 1975 debut album cover was photograph was taken by Mappelthorpe.) Terry talks with SMITH on the occasion of the publication of, "Mappelthorpe Altars," (Random House) the color companion volume to the collection of his black-and-white prints, "Mappelthorpe" published in 1992. Also SMITH has a new short book she wrote dedicated to Mappelthorpe, "The Coral Sea," (W.W. Norton). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Film writer/director DAVID RUSSELL. He made his film debut with the prize-winning independent film, "Spanking the Monkey." His latest film is "Flirting with Disaster" starring Ben Stiller and Patricia Arquette. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Last Orders" (Knopf) the new novel by Graham Swift.

Interview with Donald Hall; Review of the album "Susannah." April 25, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458509].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet DONALD HALL. A year ago, his wife, poet Jane Kenyon died of leukemia. There's a new collection of her work, "Otherwise: New & Selected Poems" (Graywolf Press). HALL will read from the book, including the last poems she wrote, and discuss their life together. HALL also has a forthcoming book of poetry, "The Old Life," (Houghton Mifflin) to be published in June. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with DONALD HALL continued. REV. : Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new two-cd set of a 1962

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PETE TOWNSEND. In the 1960's he made waves as the lead guitarist in the British rock group The Who. He was world famous for smashing guitars during concerts. Now, years after The Who split up, TOWNSEND is busy with solo projects. His newest CD is "The Best of Pete Townsend," (Atlantic) (REBROADCAST from 11/23/93). INT. 2: Former Philadelphia 76ers' forward "Dr. J" -- JULIUS ERVING. When he retired in 1987, ERVING was one of the highest scorers in professional basketball. He was elected to the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1993. ERVING wrote the foreword to "The Official NBA Basketball Encyclopedia, Second Edition" (Villard Books). (REBROADCAST from 11/21/94) REV. : Guest film critic LISA SCHWARZBAUM reviews "The Truth About Cats & Dogs."

Interview with Hakeem Olajuwon; Commentary on T.V. Land; Interview with Graef Crystal; Interview with Ira Kay; Commentary on business language. April 29, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458507].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Center for the Houston Rockets, HAKEEM OLAJUWON (O-LAH-JHUE-ON) He was born in Nigeria, and came to the United States on a basketball scholarship to attend the University of Houston. He helped the team reach the NCAA Final Four. He's written his memoir, "Living the Dream: My Life and Basketball," (Little, Brown). REV. : T.V. critic David Bianculli comments on the launch of Nickelodeon's new network T.V. Land. INT. 2: Compensation expert GRAEF ("GRAFE") CRYSTAL. He used to design compensation packages for CEOs. But he's since become critical of the widening gap between what top executives make and what workers do. He recently conducted a preliminary survey of executive compensation in the nation's largest corporations. The survey found that the pay of chief executives has been rising, while that of workers has stagnated. INT. 3: IRA KAY is the Practice Director of Watson Wyatt's Executive Compensation Practice. He's also the author of "Value at the Top: Solutions to the Executive Compensation Crisis" (Harper Collins). REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on the language of downsizing.

Interview with Richard Kluger; Interview with Michel Legrand. April 30, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458511].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist RICHARD KLUGER. He's written a new history of the tobacco industry in America: "Ashes to Ashes: America's Hundred-Year Cigarette War, the Public Health, and the Unabashed Triumph of Philip Morris." (Knopf). KLUGER was literary editor of the New York Herald Tribune. He also wrote for The Wall Street Journal and the New York Post. INT. 2: French Composer MICHEL LEGRAND. He composed the score for the 1964 classic French film, "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg." In the film every bit of dialogue is sung to Legrand's music. The film has recently been restored; for years it was unavailable because no decent print existed. LEGRAND has won three Oscars for the song, "The Windmills of Your Mind," from the film "The Thomas Crown Affair," best original dramatic score for "Summer of '42," and best original song score for "Yentl." "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg" will be playing in city's across the nation April-June. Some of LEGRAND's compositions are included on the CD "Musique & Cinema," (Travelling, dist. by Auvidis, France) REV. : interview with LEGRAND CONTINUED.

Interview with Terry McMillan; Interview with Mai Pham; Review of Hootie and the Blowfish's album "Fairweather Johsnon." May 1, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458506].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist, TERRY McMILLAN. The film adaptation of her 1992 novel, "Waiting to Exhale" was last year's box office hit. The book sold nearly 4 million copies. McMillan has recently completed her fourth novel, "How Stella Got Her Groove Back" (Viking) which is available in bookstores this week. It tells the story of a 42-year old career woman on vacation in Jamaica who falls in love with a 20-year old unemployed resort worker. According to McMillan, "it's as close to autobiography as I've written in a long time". INT. 2: Restaurant-owner and chef, MAI PHAM. Born in Vietnam and raised in Thailand, Pham came to the United States in 1975 and became the first Vietnamese journalist in this country. Her first cookbook, "The Best of Vietnamese and Thai Cooking" (Prima) is a collection of recipes coupled with memories and reflections of life and food in South East Asian culture. Subtitled, "Favorite Recipes from the Lemon Grass Restaurant and Cafes", the book includes 150 of Pham's recipes that have drawn accolades for her three Sacramento restaurants. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the latest release by Hootie and the Blowfish "Fairweather Johnson" (Atlantic)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and Professor of Law, JAMES BOYLE. What are intellectual property rights and who owns your genetic information? In his book "Shamans, Software and Spleen" (Harvard University Press), James Boyle explores the dilemmas posed by the information age - the ethical, legal and economic implications of who owns and controls access to information. INT. 2: Linguist and author NAOMI S. BARON. Her book, "Growing up with Language" (Addison-Wesley publishers, 1992) examines the process by which children learn to use language. Baron is Professor of Linguistics and associate dean in the College of Arts and Sciences at the American University in Washington DC. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY comments on "The Future of the Race."

Interview with Mary Tyler Moore; Interview with Dr. John; Review of the musical "Rent." May 3, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971504041].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress MARY TYLER MOORE. She starred in the Emmy award television show "The Dick Van Dyke Show," "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," and the film "Ordinary People." She is now starring in a new CBS series "New York News," a drama about life at a fictional New York newspaper, and has recently written her autobiography, "After All," (Putnam's Sons). In her book, MOORE traces the track of her career and reveals the hardships of the person whom America considered "the typical American girl," including her struggles and triumphs over alcoholism and diabetes. (Rebroadcast of 10/30/95)INT.
2: Songwriter, performer, and session musician Malcom Rebennack adopted the name DR. JOHN when he developed his New Orleans-based, theatrical stage show. He worked largely as a guitar player until a stray bullet injured his hand. A multi-instrumentalist, Dr. John continued to record and perform as a bass guitarist, drummer, and, most prominently, keyboard player. (Rebroadcast of 9/23/86) REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new musical "Rent."

Interview with Frances McDormand; Interview with Lili Taylor. May 6, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458158].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress FRANCES MCDORMAND who's currently appearing in the reality-based crime drama, "Fargo." She plays a pregnant chief-of-police in a rural Minnesota town who is confronted by her first homicide investigation. Her previous movies include, "Raising Arizona" and "Mississippi Burning." INT. 2: Actress LILI TAYLOR the lead character in the new movie "I Shot Andy Warhol" The film is based on a true story and Taylor plays the outraged feminist loner Valerie Solanas, who shot Andy Warhol in June 1968. REV. : LILI TAYLOR cont'd.

Interview with Lynda La Plante; Interview with Keith Melton; Interview with Glenn Holsten. May 7, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458159].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British detective author, LYNDA LA PLANTE, who created the TV detective series, "Prime Suspect" which stars Helen Mirren as Superintendent Jane Tenneson. LA PLANTE has also published a new crime novel, "Cold Shoulder" about a woman cop on the skids. (Random House) INT. 2: Spy-watcher and gadget collector, KEITH MELTON who's book, "The Ultimate Spy Book" (DK Publishing) has been published recently. INT 3 : Documentary producer, GLENN HOLSTEN who's recent documentary, "Mothers who March" focuses on the lives and commitment of four mothers who've lost children to Aids. It debuts on PBS television nation-wide tonight (Tuesday May 7).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music star, GEORGE JONES. He's widely acclaimed as one of the greatest country singers, but his 40-year career has also been marked by alcohol and drug abuse. He recently published his autobiography, "I Lived to Tell it All" (Villard, New York). INT. 2: Photographer ROY DE CARAVA. A collection of his photographs, featuring leading jazz musicians and life in Harlem, spanning the past 50 years has been published recently: "Roy DeCarava: A Retrospective." (Museum of Modern Art) REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the latest CASSANDRA WILSON album, "New Moon Daughter". (Blue Note)

Interview with Bob Dorough; Interview with Dave Frishberg; Interview with Lou Barlow; Commentary on fathers and sons. May 9, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458695].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz musician, BOB DOROUGH, musical director of the 1970s educational TV series, "School House Rock" and composer of the popular song "Three is a magic number". A new CD, "Schoolhouse Rock Rocks", has been released with contemporary artists such as Blind Melon, Lemonheads and Pavement, playing the old songs. Also, just published, "School House Rock: The Official Guide". (Hyperion Books) by the creators of the series, Tom Yohe and George Newall. INT. 2: Jazz pianist and songwriter, DAVE FRISHBERG, sings his Schoolhouse Rock classic, "I'm Just a Bill". INT. 3: LOU BARLOW, whose group The Deluxx Folk Implosion perform the contemporary version of "I'm Just a Bill" on the new release of Schoolhouse Rock. REV. : Commentator DAGOBERTO GILB on this trip to New York City with his son.
Review of the television mini-series "Dead Man's Walk"; Interview with Larry McMurtry; Interview with Laurence Bergreen; Review of the film "Twister." May 10, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502237].

Description of show segment(s)

REV. 1: DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Dead Man's Walk" the TV adaptation of Larry McMurtry's novel which will be shown on ABC. INT. 1: LARRY MC MURTRY is considered one of Texas's most prominent fiction writers even though he has not lived in that state for nearly two decades. Over his career, he has written 19 novels...including the 1986 Pulitzer Prize winning book "Lonesome Dove". His newest "Dead Man's Walk" (Simon & Schuster 1995) takes readers to the early days of his "Lonesome Dove" heroes Gus McCrae and Woodrow Call. "Dead Man's Walk" premieres this Sunday on ABC. (REBROADCAST from 11/22/95) INT. 2: Biographer LAURENCE BERGREEN. Saturday May 11 is the 108th anniversary of Irving Berlin's birthday. Bergreen's biography of Berlin, entitled "As Thousands Cheer: The Life of Irving Berlin", was first published in 1990 and re-issued in paperback (Da Capo Press) in 1996. (REBROADCAST from 6/26/90) REV. : LISA SCHWARZBAUM reviews "Twister"

Interview with John Douglas; Interview with Reynolds Price; Commentary on the Internet and the English language. May 13, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458500].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN DOUGLAS... author and former FBI unit chief who originated the Unabomber profile talks about the 18-year manhunt for the Unabomber suspect. Douglas has published a new book, "Unabomber: on the trail of America's most wanted serial killer" (Pocket Books, a division of Simon & Schuster). His previous book is, "Mindhunter", a report on the criminal profiling program of the FBI's behavioral science unit. INT. 2: REYNOLDS PRICE... writer, teacher, poet ... has turned his attention to the life of Jesus and the gospels. His latest book, "Three Gospels" (Scribner) is a translation of the gospels of Mark and John from the original Greek and includes a new gospel, "An Honest Account of a Memorable Life". In 1984 PRICE was diagnosed with spinal cancer, and became paralyzed from the waist down. His other books include, "The Promise of Rest", "A Whole New Life" and "The Collected Stories". REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG considers whether the internet is on the way to making English the official language of the world.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer MARY GORDON. Her new memoir, "The Shadow Man: A Daughter's Search for Her Father" (Random House), is about her research into her father's past. Gordon's father died when she was seven. Gordon has written several bestselling novels, including "Final Payments" and "The Company of Women." INT. 2: Gordon interview continued. REV.: Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Christopher Tilghman's novel "Mason's Retreat."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chinese-Canadian journalist, JAN WONG.... She went to China as an idealistic radical student in the 70's and believed in the Cultural Revolution and even informed on a couple of people. But she eventually left China, totally disillusioned. Years later she returned as a reporter for the Toronto Globe and Mail and covered the Tiananmen Square massacre. She talks about her new book, "Red China Blues". (Doubleday/Anchor Books, 1996) INT. 2: Haitian filmmaker RAOUl PECK. He's also the new Minister of Culture in Haiti. His most recent movie is "The Man By the Shore", a dark movie set in a seemingly sleepy, run-down fictional town during the middle of the dictatorship of Francois (Pappa Doc) Duvalier in the 1960s. The film is being distributed by a small New York entertainment group, KJM3 (tel. 212-689-0950). It opens on Friday May 17 at the Quad Cinema in Manhattan.
Interview with Kay Redfield Jamison; Interview with Kaye Gibbons. May 16, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458504].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychologist KAY REDFIELD JAMISON is an authority on manic-depression, and the author of the 1993 book Touched with Fire: Manic-Depressive Illness and the Artistic Temperament, (Free Press/ MacMillan). JAMISON disclosed her own 30-year battle with manic-depression in the recent memoir, An Unquiet Mind: A Memoir of Moods and Madness (Knopf). JAMISON is Professor of Psychiatry at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. (Rebroadcast of 9/14/1995) INT. 2: Novelist KAYE GIBBONS. She's the author of several acclaimed novels: Ellen Foster and Charms for the Easy Life. One reviewer says "Gibbon's brilliance lies in examining with unsentimental tenderness a family poised on the brink of disaster." GIBBONS' novel, Sights Unseen (Putnam) is about a girl's life with her manic-depressive mother. GIBBONS herself has the illness, and she'll talk with Terry about that. (Rebroadcast of 9/14/1995)

Interview with Oliver Sacks; Interview with Temple Grandin; Commentary on the film "The Great White Hype." May 17, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458300].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Clinical neurology professor and doctor OLIVER SACKS. He is the author of six books about his patients, people with autism, Parkinson's Disease, Tourette's Syndrome, and other neurological disorders. SACKS was portrayed by Robin Williams in the 1991 film version of his book "Awakenings." His other books include "A Leg to Stand On," and "The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat." His newest is "An Anthropologist On Mars: Seven Paradoxical Tales," which tells the stories of the disorders of seven of his subjects. (Alfred P. Knopf) (REBROADCAST FROM 2/27/95) INT. 2: TEMPLE GRANDIN is one of the nation's top designers of livestock facilities. She is also autistic. Grandin was also one of the subjects in Oliver Sacks' book, "An Anthropologist On Mars: Seven Paradoxical Tales". In Grandin's book, Thinking in Pictures: and other reports from my life with Autism she describes how her inner-autistic world has led her to develop animal empathy. Her book is published by Doubleday 1995.
(REBROADCAST FROM 11/27/95) REV. : GERALD EARLY takes a look at the new movie, "The Great White Hype".

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: "Society" Pianist PETER MINTUN for a concert and interview in the Fresh Air Studio. He specializes in popular song classics of the 1920s, 30s and 40s. He just finished an engagement at the Carlyle Hotel's Bemelmans Bar in New York City and returns there in August. His recordings can be found on the PREMIER RECORDINGS Label. His latest is "Grand Piano: American Popular Music of the '20's, '30's, & '40's." He also wrote the liner notes for the CD, "The Night is Young: Concert Music of Dana Suesse." MINTUN also wrote the liner notes for a Dana Suesse Cd which is part of a series called "Keyboard Wizards of the Gershwin Era, Master Composers and Stylists of American Piano Music." (Pearl) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: PETER MINTUN continued. REV. : More with PETER MINTUN.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PHILIP HILTS, correspondent on health and science policy for The New York Times. His new book is "Smokescreen: The Truth Behind the Tobacco Industry Cover-up" (Addison-Wesley). HILTS first broke the story of the now-infamous Brown and Williamson tobacco papers, which revealed when tobacco executives first learned about the addictive nature of nicotine and the dangers of smoking. HILTS' stories for the New York Times led to Congressional hearings. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with PHILIP HILTS continued. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS attended the Cannes Film Festival, which ended last night. He talks with Terry about the winners and the controversial moments.
Interview with Karen Armstrong; Commentary on journalism and the Internet; Review of Curtis Mayfield albums. May 22, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458297].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Jon Krakauer; Review of the television show "Walter Cronkite Remembers." May 23, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458548].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Mountain climber and writer JON KRAKAUER was with the group of climbers who were climbing Mt. Everest May 10-11 when a storm hit. Eight climbers were killed. JON KRAKAUER was covering the climb for Outside Magazine. Terry Gross will talk with him about it. KRAKAUER is also the author of the book "Eiger Dreams: Ventures Among Men and Mountains" (1990, paperback Dell) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with JON KRAKAUER continued. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Walter Cronkite Remembers" on CBS tonight.
Interview with Harrison Ford; Commentary on Miles Davis; Commentary on Miles Davis and hero worship. May 24, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502773].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor HARRISON FORD. He's starred in "Star Wars," "Raiders of the Lost Ark," and "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," "Witness," and "The Fugitive." His latest film is, "Sabrina." It's out on video soon. (REBROADCAST from 12/19/95) REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY reflects on what would have been the 70th birthday of trumpeter Miles Davis. INT. 2: An excerpt from the new public radio program "This American Life" by Ira Glass. Miles Davis' biographer shares his memories, and funny stories about Davis. "This American Life" premiers nationally in June. (THIS CONTINUES AFTER THE 1:00 FLOAT)

Interview with David Milch and Bill Clark; Interview with Elmore Leonard. May 27, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458732].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Co-creator, executive producer and head writer of "NYPD Blue," DAVID MILCH, and Detective BILL CLARK who is a consultant to the show. CLARK is a former New York City homicide detective. Many of the story lines for the show, come from the cases he worked on. The two have collaborated on the book, "True Blue: The Real Stories Behind NYPD Blue" (William Morrow). (REBROADCAST FROM 11/1/95) INT. 2: Novelist ELMORE LEONARD. He's 70 years old and has been called "the greatest living writer of crime fiction" (New York Times). Though he'd been writing for decades, critics didn't take notice of him until the 1980s. Now his work is known for it tight prose, "ear-perfect" dialogue and depiction of lower class life. LEONARD's written thirty-two novels, including the bestsellers "Pronto," "Maximum Bob," and "Get Shorty" which was made into a film, starring John Travolta and Gene Hackman. It's now out on video. LEONARD's novel "Riding the Rap" has come out in paperback. (REBROADCAST from 10/31/95) REV. : LEONARD continued.
Interview with Michael Korda; Interview with John Kawie; Review of the television movie "Cold Comfort Farm." May 28, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458298].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Editor and chief of Simon & Schuster MICHAEL KORDA. He's written a new memoir: "Man to Man: Surviving Prostate Cancer," (Random House). INT 2: Stand up comic JOHN KAWIE. The Arab-American hails from Springfield, Conn. He's worked in concert with fellow comics Dennis Miller and Howie Mandel, and has been a contributor to Comedy Central's "Politically Incorrect." He appears regularly on Comedy Central's "Stand-up, Stand-up." REV. : Film critic Lisa Schwarzbaum reviews the BBC movie "Cold Comfort Farm."

Interview with Charlie Haden; Interview with Carl Sagan. May 29, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458544].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz bassist CHARLIE HADEN. He's released his fifth album with his Quartet West, "Now is the Hour," (Verve). HADEN formed the quartet to play the music of the 1940s and early 50s. He's worked with jazz musicians Art Pepper, Paul Bley, Ornette Coleman. And he's recorded with many artists including Abbey Lincoln, Bill Frisell, Joshua Redman, Rick Lee Jones, and others. Last year HADEN released a much regarded album of spirituals with pianist Hank Jones, "Steal Away--Spirituals, Hymns and Folk Songs." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Scientist and Pulitzer Prize winner CARL SAGAN. His new book is "The Demon-Haunted World: Science as a Candle in the Dark," (Random House).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Host of ABC'S "Nightline" TED KOPPEL. He has a new memoir about his 16 years with the news show and his life before journalism. It's called "Nightline: History in the Making and the Making

Interview with Susan Loesser; Interview with Jamie Hammerstein; Interview with Stephen Sondheim; Review of the film "Welcome to the Dollhouse." May 31, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458299].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Behind the scenes during the golden age of the Broadway musical: SUSAN LOESSER (pronounced "lesser"), daughter of Frank Loesser, composer of the classic songs "Heart and Soul" and "Baby It's Cold Outside". He also wrote the score for "Guys and Dolls" which was revived on Broadway. LOESSER's memoir of her father is "A Most Remarkable Fella" (Donald I Fine). (REBROADCAST from 6/18/93) INT. 2: JAMIE HAMMERSTEIN, Broadway producer, director and past president of the Society of Stage Directors and Choreographers. He has recently helped in the making of a new PBS tribute show about his father, OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN. (REBROADCAST from 3/14/95) INT. 3: Songwriter Stephen Sondheim In 1993, he gave a talk at the Museum of Television and Radio in New York City. We broadcast that talk. Sondheim's latest work, "Passion," opens tonight. (Rebroadcast of 05/09/1994). REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Welcome to the Dollhouse."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: On December 3, 1994, World class cyclist GREG LEMOND announced his retirement. This ended a dramatic career that included winning the Tour De France three times. Two of the wins came after he was seriously wounded in a hunting accident. Lemond talks to Terry about the struggles of his comeback. Lemond left the sport after being diagnosed with a rare muscle disease that weakened his performance. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF). INT. 2: Filmmaker CARMA HINTON talks about "The Gate of Heavenly Peace" a film she co-produced with her husband Richard Gordon. The film chronicles the Chinese democracy movement that began in the spring of 1989 and ended in the Tiananmen Square massacre. The film will show on PBS' Frontline program on Tuesday, June 4, 1996 which marks the 7th anniversary. Hinton and her husband run a production company called Long Bow Group, Inc in Brookline, Massachusetts. REV. : INT. continued.

Interview with Elvis Costello; Interview with Peter Ackroyd. June 4, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458456].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer/songwriter ELVIS COSTELLO. Previously with the band The Attractions, he later went solo. Since then he has performed and recorded with The Brodsky Quartet and jazz guitarist Bill Frisell. He's written about 300 songs. His new release is "All This Useless Beauty" (Warner Bros) which he recorded with The Attractions. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Novelist and biographer PETER ACKROYD. He's written nine novels and and biographies of Charles Dickens and T.S. Eliot. His latest biography is of the 18th century poet, painter and engraver William Blake. It's "Blake: A Biography," (Alfred A. Knopf) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE 1:00 FLOATER)

Interview with Kristin Luker; Interview with Hal Sirowitz; Review of the film "The Best of Aardman Animation." June 5, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458100].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with A. S. Byatt; Interview with David and Peter Turnley; Review of the television show "Xena June 6, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458574].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British author A.S. BYATT. BYATT is known by many Americans for "Possession," a Booker Prize-winning Victorian novel published here in 1990. Her new novel, "Babel Tower," is just hitting the bookstores (Random House). Set in the turbulent 1960s, the book is about Frederica, a young woman involved in a divorce and custody suit, as well as the prosecution of an "obscene" book. "Babel Tower" is the third book in a planned quartet of novels ("The Virgin in the Garden" and "Still Life") set in different mid-century time frames. Besides being a best selling author, BYATT is also a critic, a reviewer, a radio dramatist, an editor, and a university lecturer. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Photojournalists and identical twins DAVID and PETER TURNLEY. Between them they have photographed every major news event in the last 15 years. They work independently, but a joint display, ("In Times of War and Peace: The Photographs of David and Peter Turnley") will be exhibited from June 7 - September 8 in New York City. Currently, both TURNLEYs are based in Paris. PETER works as a contract photographer for "Newsweek" and David is a staff photographer for the "Detroit Free Press." REV. : TV CRITIC DAVID BIANCULLI tells us about "Xena."

Interview with Carl Hiaasen; Review of books for the summer; Interview with Joe Kane; Review of the film "The Rock." June 7, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458571].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Miami Herald columnist and novelist CARL HIAASEN. The adaption of "Striptease," Hiassen's fifth novel, will be released on June 28 in a film starring Demi Moore and Burt Reynolds. In it, a seamy Florida politician is pitted against the star stripper at Miami's Eager Beaver club. (re-broadcast from 8/23/93) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN gives her summer reading round-up (part one): "Neanderthal," by John Darnton (Random House); "Firestorm," by Nevada Barr (Putnam); "The World at Night," by Alan Furst (Random House); "Ruined By Reading," by Lynne Sharon Schwartz (Beacon). INT. 2: Writer JOE KANE talks about his book "Savages." (Knopf 1995) It's his first-hand account on the confrontations between Amazonian warriors and multi-national oil companies, environmentalists and missionaries. Kane writes about the Huoarani (Wow-rahn-nee) tribe's fight for its culture and environment. Kane's earlier book "Running the Amazon" was a 1989 New York Times best-seller. (re-broadcast from 11/20/95) REV: Movie critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new action thriller "The Rock," starring Sean Connery and Nicholas Cage. In the film, Cage and Connery team up to retake Alcatraz from a crazed general.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Specialist in memory and language disorders, DR. BARRY GORDON. Gordon's book "Memory: Remembering and Forgetting in Everyday Life" (Mastermedia Ltd. The book can be ordered by calling 1-800-334-8232) looks at recognition, recall, memory blocks and the effects of drugs. The book also gives tips to increasing memory recall and dispels some common myths about the brain and memory. GORDON is a behavior neurologist, cognitive neuroscientist and experimental psychologist at Johns Hopkins University. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: (Continue with BARRY GORDON interview) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new reissue "Now's the Time (1957-58)," by saxophonist Hal McKusick. (Decca)

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Former U.S. Senator GEORGE MCGOVERN. He has a new book called "Terry: My Daughter's Life and Death Struggle with Alcoholism." (Villard) After a night of drinking in December of 1994, Terry was found dead in a parking lot near her home in Madison, Wisconsin. Terry's addiction plagued her almost her entire life, despite countless efforts at rehabilitation. The book draws upon Terry's letters and journals, interviews with loved ones, and medical and police records. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: (continue with GEORGE MCGOVERN interview) REV. : Rock critic Ken Tucker reviews the new CD by Ani DiFranco, "Dilate." Interview with Dapo Olorunyomi; Interview with Alejandro Escovedo. June 12, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458098].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Nigerian journalist DAPO OOLORUNYOMI... He is the editor of five of the country's leading opposition publications. His work uncovering corruption in the Nigerian Government helped him win the World Press Review 1995 Editor-of-the-Year Award. Olorunyomi is now in exile in the United States. It's the third anniversary of the democratic elections annulled by the military. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with DAPO OOLORUNYOMI continued. REV. : Fresh Air Producer AMY SALIT interviews singer ALEJANDRO ESCOVEDO. He's formerly with the band True Believers. ESCOVEDO is esteemed for his songwriting ability and described as "poet of the ordinary event." His new solo release is "With These Hands," (Rykodisc)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Host of Comedy Central's "Politically Incorrect," BILL MAHER. The former stand-up comic's new book is "Does Anybody Have a Problem With That: Politically Incorrect's Greatest Hits," (Villard) With panelists of diverse ideologies (Patty Hearst to Al Sharpton to G. Gordon Liddy...) and sometimes explosive conflicts, the show has been described as "the McLaughlin Group on acid." Beginning in January, "Politically Incorrect" will air right after Nightline on ABC. BILL MAHER'S previous book is a novel called "True Story" (Random House). INT. 2: The nation's most trusted source on proper etiquette, JUDITH MARTIN... better known as MISS MANNERS. Her new book is "Miss Manners Rescues Civilization: From Sexual Harassment, Frivulous Lawsuits, Dissing and Other Lapses in Civility" (Crown Publishers). Coinciding with the release of her new book, Martin has declared June 24 the start of "National Civility Week," in an effort to liberate society from problems caused by the rejection of etiquette. Since 1978, millions of readers have referred to the nation-wide distribution of the "Miss Manners" column to check their own civility. Martin has written seven other books. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Transgender Warriors" by transgender activist Leslie Feinberg (Beacon)

Interview with Bill T. Jones; Review of the film "Stealing Beauty"; Interview with Mel Torme; Commentary on fathers and daughters. June 14, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502571].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dancer and choreographer BILL T. JONES. He founded the acclaimed Bill T. Jones/Arnie Zane Dance Company with his partner and lover, Arnie Zane. Their partnership lasted 17 years until Zane's death in 1988 from AIDS-related complications. JONES has been a recipient of the MacArthur "Genius" Award. His new piece, "Ursonate," opened this week in New York. His previous work, "Still/Here," was based on his conversations with people across the country who were dealing with life threatening illnesses. (RE-BROADCAST FROM 9/7/95) REV.: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews director Bernardo Bertolucci's latest film. "Stealing Beauty" stars Liv Tyler and Jeremy Irons. INT. 2: Singer MEL TORME. For more than 50 years, Torme has been one of most accomplished and versatile pop and jazz singers. Known for years as "The Velvet Fog," Torme, who grew up in show business, first made his reputation in the Big Band era as a songwriter, arranger, drummer and singer. He later sang in MGM musicals. Described by Ethel Waters as "the only white man who sings with the soul of a black man," Torme is one of the few white performers to share the spotlight with jazz greats like Sarah Vaughan and Ella Fitzgerald. "The Mel Torme Collection: 1944-1985," a four CD box set, has just been released. (Rhino) (REBROADCAST FROM 10/19/88) REV.: Another segment from Ira Glass' new show, "This American Life": Chinese-American writer SANDRA TSING LOH with a story about her eccentric father who lives in LA. He was hitch-hiking one day and was picked up by actress Angelica Houston.
Interview with Carl Finch; Interview with Tiny Tim; Review of Robert Cantwell's book "When We Were Good." June 17, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458451].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guitarist CARL FINCH. His band, Brave Combo, just released "Girl" (Rounder) in conjunction with the legendary Tiny Tim. Brave Combo is a Texas world beat polka band and the members weren't sure what to expect when they began working on this project with the eccentric Tiny Tim eight years ago. The CD features many familiar tunes (including "Bye Bye Blackbird," "Hey Jude" and even "Stairway to Heaven") like they've never been performed before. INT. 2: Singer and performer TINY TIM. Born Herbert B. Khaury, TIM began performing in the 1950s. He is best known for his performances on Laugh-In, especially his croonings of "Tip Toe Through the Tulips." At 65, the long-haired, white-faced TIM is as passionate about old songs as ever... and as odd as ever. REV. : Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "When We Were Good," a book about the folk revival by Robert Cantwell.

Interview with Barbara Grizzuti Harrison; Interview with Lucille Treganowan. June 18, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458453].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author BARBARA GRIZZUTI HARRISON. Her new book is "An Accidental Autobiography" (Houghton Mifflin). In this unconventional memoir, Harrison arranges the chapters alphabetically because she says "the path of memory is circular and coherent." HARRISON grew up in Brooklyn and was converted by her mother to Jehovah's Witness, a source of much pain and a major influence in her writing. Also a journalist, essayist and short story writer, she has traveled extensively in Libya, India, Guatemala and Italy. HARRISON has seven other non-fiction books and one novel. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Auto mechanic LUCILLE TREGANOWAN. Her book, "Lucille's Car Care," (Hyperion) is an easy-to-understand guide to auto maintenance and repair. She began as a bookkeeper in an auto repair shop in 1960 and became involved in every aspect of the business. Eventually, her strong communication skills and grasp of repair theory led to a partnership in the shop. By 1973, she had opened her own shop. Today, she is one of the foremost experts on auto repair and has her own cable show, "Lucille's Car Clinic." (Home and Garden Interview with Andrew Holleran; Interview with Christinam Middlebrook. June 19, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458127].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author ANDREW HOLLERAN. His latest novel, "The Beauty of Men" (William Morrow), is about a gay man in his late forties who is obsessed with the beauty of youth and his own mortality. At the same time, he harbors guilt for mourning the loss of his youth when so many around him are dying young. Holleran, whose real name is not known, has written two other novels under the pseudonym and is a frequent contributor to "Christopher Street" magazine. INT. 2: Author and Jungian analyst, CHRISTINA MIDDLEBROOK. Her new book, "Seeing the Crab: A Memoir of Dying" (Basic Books) describes how she and her family came to terms with her breast cancer diagnosis. In 1991, Middlebrook had a mastectomy and doctors told her she had a fifty percent chance of living two years. Her book honestly details the physical and emotional rigors of cancer treatment, as well as the changes it has caused in relationships with her family and friends. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : MIDDLEBROOK interview continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author, jazz writer and musician, STUART NICHOLSON. He is an expert on and biographer of late jazz great ELLA FITZGERALD. Through interviews with those closest to her, "Ella Fitzgerald: A Biography of the First Lady of Jazz" (1994, Charles Scribner's Sons) shows the public and private side of the media-shy legend. In her career of over 60 years, she gained the admiration of her contemporaries in the business. At the age of 79 and after years of suffering from diabetes, Fitzgerald died Saturday (June 15) at her home in California. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: (CONTINUE WITH NICHOLSON INTERVIEW)
Interview with Mary Woronov; Interview with John Cale; Interview with Moe Tucker; Review of the film "Eraser." June 21, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458471].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress/painter MARY WORONOV. She was part of Andy Warhol's "Factory" in the 1960s. She was discovered while still a college student and was in Warhol's film, "Chelsea Girls," about New York bohemian life. (RE-BROADCAST FROM 12/7/95) INT. 2: Musician JOHN CALE was the violist, keyboardist and bassist of the 60's avant garde band, The Velvet Underground. Since the breakup of the group in 1968, JOHN CALE has had a career as a solo artist. In 1990, he collaborated with former Velvet Underground member Lou Reed, on "Songs for Drella," a tribute to artist Andy Warhol. (RE-BROADCAST FROM 8/1/94) INT. 3 : MOE TUCKER, drummer for The Velvet Underground, Lou Reed's band that won cult status in the mid-70s. (RE-BROADCAST FROM 10/6/87) REV: Film critic John Powers reviews the film "Eraser."

Interview with Patti Smith; Review of the television shows "Karaoke" and "Cold Lazarus." June 24, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458467].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and poet, PATTI SMITH. Her new CD, "Gone Again" (Arista), is inspired by the passing of her musician-husband, Fred "Sonic" Smith of the MC5, and her brother, Todd. They died weeks apart in the fall of 1994. Her first four albums, recorded in the 1970s, established SMITH as skinny "Godmother" of punk. Through the 1980s, while raising her children in a Detroit suburb, SMITH recorded one album but made plans to record new music with Fred in the summer of 1995. SMITH says unlike her punk days, her current performances have attracted a wide range of listeners, from truck drivers to Dead Heads to suburbanites. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2:(CONTINUE WITH PATTI SMITH INTERVIEW) REV. : Fresh Air's television critic, David Bianculli, reviews the final works of British TV producer Dennis Potter.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director BERNARDO BERTOLUCCI. His new film is "Stealing Beauty". It's the first time in 15 years that he has worked in his native country, Italy. At the age of 20, he began his career working for filmmaker Pier Paolo Pasolini and wrote his first screenplay the next year. In 1973, BERTOLUCCI achieved international, critical and commercial success with the release of the controversial "Last Tango in Paris" with Marlon Brando. "Stealing Beauty" stars Liv Tyler as a young woman who travels to Tuscany to spend the summer searching for romance and answers about the mother who abandoned her. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new collections: guitarist Rick Holmstrom's "Lookout," (Black Top) and Ronnie Dawson's "Just Rockin' & Rollin'" (Upstart). INT. 2: Author and journalist, MARSHALL FRADY. His new book is "Jesse: The Life and Pilgrimage of Jesse Jackson (Random House). The book tells the story of Jackson's ambitious life, from his illegitimate birth in poverty stricken South Carolina through his years working with Martin Luther King and his unprecedented runs for the presidency. FRADY writes about political figures and social and racial tensions in the United States for the New Yorker. His first two biographies were about George Wallace and Billy Graham. REV. 2: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Hellman and Hammett" by Joan Mellen--a chronicle of the unconventional 30 year relationship between mystery writer Dashiell Hammett and playwright Lillian Hellman.

Interview with Elaine Pagels; Interview with Rusty Cundieff; Review of Karl Denson's album "Chunky Pecan Pie." June 26, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502780].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of Religion at Princeton University ELAINE PAGELS. She has written four books including The Gnostic Gospels (which won both the National Book Award and the National Book Critics Circle Award). PAGELS has a new book called The Origin of Satan (Random House). INT. 2: Writer, director and co-star of the new horror flick "Tales From The Hood" RUSTY CUNDIEFF. He has been

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and author VERONCA CHAMBERS. Her new memoir, "Mama's Girl" (Riverhead Books), describes her ascent from childhood poverty into the middle class. Growing up in the 1970s in Brooklyn and Los Angeles, CHAMBERS struggled to ease the strain on her single mother and to help her brother stay out of trouble. She overcame racial stereotypes by excelling in the gifted and talented program in school and graduating from college at the age of 20. She is a former editor of the New York Times Magazine and a frequent contributor to Essence, Seventeen and the New York Times Book Review. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: (VERONICA CHAMBERS INTERVIEW CONTINUED) REV./INT. : Fresh Air's TV critic, DAVID BIANCULLI. His new book is "The Dictionary of Teleliteracy: Television's 500 Biggest Hits, Misses, and Events" (Continuum). It explores the shows and events that have had the biggest impact--good and bad--on American culture. From the funeral of JFK to Hee Haw, the book provides background and context for the America's most memorable TV moments. BIANCULLI also reviews television for the New York Daily News.

Interview with Dennis Lawson; Interview with Sharon Robinson; Review of Positive Black Soul's album "Salaam." June 27, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502415].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Of the Canaan AME church in Columbia, Tennessee, Pastor DENNIS LAWSON. In January last year the church was damaged when three local men erected a cross and threw fire bombs into the basement kitchen-area. In the last 18 months, over three dozen churches with predominantly black congregations have been destroyed or damaged in fires. LAWSON and other church leaders have joined forces to support each other in the wake of this crisis. Today, he discussed the epidemic in Washington with President Clinton, Vice President Gore, and members of the cabinet. INT. 2: Author and daughter of Jackie Robinson, SHARON ROBINSON. Her new book is "Stealing Home: An Intimate Family Portrait by the Daughter of Jackie Robinson" (Harper Collins). She grew up highly privileged in a comfortable Connecticut suburb in the 1950s. Despite the celebrity of her father, ROBINSON was not immune to racism and was often conflicted over her father's role in the civil rights movement. The book traces ROBINSON's search for her own success and identity. REV.: World Music critic Milo Miles reviews Positive Black Soul's rap album "Salaam."

Interview with Itzhak Perlman; Review of the album "Concertos for Violin and Orchestra.."; Interview with Kevin Brownlow; Review of the film "Striptease." June 28, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458468].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Internationally-renowned violinist ITZHAK PERLMAN. Last year, he released "The Beethoven Triple Concert," two live concert recordings with pianist and conductor Daniel Barenboim, and cellist Yo Yo Ma. Also, the CD "In the Fiddler's House," featuring PERLMAN playing Klezmer music with four Klezmer bands. (Both CD's are on the EMI Classics label). In November, he was also featured on a PBS Great Performance special on Klezmer music. On July 2, PERLMAN will be in New York performing at Radio City Music Hall. (Rebroadcast of 11/30/1995) Rev. 1: Fresh Air's classical music critic, Lloyd Schwartz reviews a new recording of Prokofiev violin music with violinist Gil Shahahm. (Deutsche Grammophon) INT. 2: Film historian KEVIN BROWNLOW. Brownlow's best known as the man who reconstructed the silent movie masterpiece "Napoleon." He also wrote a highly respected history of silent film, "The Parade's Gone By." His book, "Behind the Mask of Innocence," (Knopf, 1991) is an examination of how pre-World War One silent film makers addressed social issues of the day. He also collaborated (with David Gill) on the documentaries: The Unknown Chaplin, Buster Keaton--A Hard Act to Follow and D.W. Griffith--Father of Film. Their newest collaboration is "Cinema Europe: The Other Hollywood" which is showing on Turner Classic Movies this week. (Rebroadcast of 1/2/91 interview). REV.: Fresh Air's movie critic John Powers reviews Striptease, a new film starring Demi Moore.
Interview with Alan Berlow; Interview with David Quammen; Review of Everything But the Girl's album "Walking Wounded." July 1, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502584].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and journalist and NPR reporter, ALAN BERLOW. His new book is "Dead Season: A Story of Murder and Revenge on the Philippine Island of Negros" (Pantheon Books). The book evolves from an investigation into a massacre of a peasant family to a series of interrelated crimes. BERLOW also examines the broader problems facing the Philippines and the impact of American colonialism and imperialism. INT. 2: Science writer, DAVID QUAMMEN. His new book is "The Song of the Dodo: Island Biogeography in an Age of Extinctions" (Scribner). During his eight years of research, QUAMMEN studied the biogeography of islands around the world. His travels introduced him to plants and animals previously unimagined. QUAMMEN is a two-time recipient of the National Magazine Award for his science essays and other work in Outside magazine. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Walking Wounded" by the English duo, Everything But the Girl. (Atlantic)

Interview with Cher; Interview with Robert Thayer; Review of the film "Independence Day." July 2, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502280].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and actress, CHER. She's just released "It's a Man's World" (Warner Brothers), her first CD in five years. INT. 2: Research psychologist ROBERT E. THAYER. His new book is "The Origin of Everyday Moods: Managing Energy, Tension, and Stress" (Oxford University Press). THAYER says moods are not just psychological in origin, but the direct result of biological conditions. The book explains the nature of moods and teaches ways to control them. THAYER is a biopsychologist and Professor of Psychology at California State University, Long Beach. REV. : Fresh Airs film critic, John Powers, reviews the new film "Independence Day."

Interview with David Hajdu; Review of the novels "A Little Yellow Dog" by Walter Mosley, "Cause of Death" by Patricia Cornwell, and "Lily White" by Susan Isaacs; Interview with Susanna

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer DAVID HAJDU. He's just written "Lush Life: A Biography of Billy Strayhorn" (Farrar, Straus and Girous). The book not only explores the life of Strayhorn, a Duke Ellington collaborator, but also the lives of other black and gay artists in New York from the 1930s to the 1960s. Under Ellington, Strayhorn composed "Take the 'A' Train," "Lush Life" and "Something to Live For." But he did not gain much recognition and has been called "the great unsung hero of American music." HAJDU is an editor for "Entertainment Weekly." REV. : Fresh Air book critic, Maureen Corrigan has more suggestions for summer reading: "A Little Yellow Dog" by Walter Mosely (W.W. Norton); "Cause of Death" by Patricia Cornwell (G.P. Putmans Sons); and "Lily White," by Susan Isaacs (HarperCollins).

INT. 2: A concert and interview with vocalist SUSANNAH MCCORKLE, accompanied by pianist CHRIS KORMAN. Last week, McCorkle finished a cabaret of Cole Porter tunes in New York City. "The Passionate Cole Porter" was an attempt by MCCORKLE to prove that Porter was not an unfeeling observer of romance. Included in the show was "The Censorship Medley," six songs denied radio air play because of their sexual content. She also has a CD featuring Cole Porter tunes, "Easy To Love" (Concord Jazz). MCCORKLE is the youngest singer ever to be included in the Smithsonian Institution's "Popular Music Record Series."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer NICK VENET. He has produced more than 300 albums in his career and has collected numerous Grammy nominations and awards. He is co-producer of a new Bobby Darin box set (Rhino). VENET was also Darin's producer and friend. (ORIGINAL BROADCAST 3/19/96) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Film Critics GENE SISKEL and ROGER EBERT join Terry Gross on stage in Chicago for a "live" audience version of Fresh Air. This was recorded in February 1996. The duo began their TV collaboration in 1975 on Chicago Public Television station WTTW. After two successful seasons, the program became a national PBS show. In 1981 it moved to commercial television. Their show is now known as "Siskel and Ebert" and is heard in 180 markets. Gene Siskel is film colmnist for the Chicago Tribune, and Roger Ebert is critic for the Chicago Sun-Times. "Siskel and Ebert" has been nominated for five national emmy awards. Ebert has recieved a Pulitzer Prize for film criticism (ORIGINAL BROADCAST 3/21/96) (CONTINUES AFTER FLOATER) REV. : NO REVIEW

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Sapphire; Interview with Daniel Schacter; Review of the CD box set "Crescent City Soul." July 8, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502585].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Performance poet SAPPHIRE has written a new novel, "Push" (Knopf) in the voice of a 16 year-old black girl named Precious Jones, who is pregnant for the second time by her father. Her world opens up when a teacher encourages her to learn to read and write. SAPPHIRE taught reading and writing to teenagers and adults in Harlem and the Bronx for eight years. There's also a new edition of her book, "American Dreams" (Vintage) INT. 2: Professor of Psychology at Harvard, DANIEL L. SCHACTER. He has studied memory for the past twenty years, the way the mind remembers. One chapter in his new book, "Searching for Memory: the brain, the mind, the past" (Basic Books) is about the controversial issue of "repressed" memory. REV. : World music critic MILO MILES reviews new releases of New Orleans Interview with Michael Lind; Interview with Allen Toussaint; Interview with Wallace Johnson. July 9, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502282].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former conservative MICHAEL LIND. As a writer and editor he worked closely with the leaders of American conservatism: as research assistant to William F. Buckley, Jr. and editor of the National Interest. He became disillusioned with the party because of it's economic policies and the dominance of such groups as the Christian Coalition. He also denounced Pat Buchanan in 1992. LIND's new book is "Up From Conservatism: Why the Right is Wrong for America." (The Free Press) LIND is currently senior editor of The New Yorker. INT. 2: Composer/producer and New Orleans native ALLEN TOUSSAINT. He's been making hit records for nearly 40 years. He has a new record label, NYNO. On his new label, he's released "Connected" his first full-length national release in two decades. (NYNO is located in New York City, 212-245-5010) INT. 3: Soul and blues singer WALLACE JOHNSON. His new CD is "Whoever's Thrilling You" (NYNO--a new label headed by Allen Toussaint). It's his first full-length album and marks his return to the music scene after a 20-year absence. He gave up his music career for steadier work as a longshoreman in 1972 in order to take care of his wife and five children. Friends convinced him to return to performing around the New Orleans area in 1993 and this year he appeared at the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE CUTAWAY) REV.: WALLACE JOHNSON continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Our POSTPONED interview with journalist CHRIS HEDGES. He's been covering the Bosnian conflict for the New York Times and offers insight to the current political and social atmosphere in the former yugoslavia. This week marks the anniversary of the slaughter of thousands of Muslims in Srebrenica as they were attempting to retreat from the Serbs. Investigators from the international war crimes tribunal are currently exhuming the graves of that former U.N. "safe area." (This interview continues into the second half of the show.) INT. 2: Interview with CHRIS HEDGES continued. REV.: Interview with CHRIS HEDGES continued.

---

Interview with David Mamet; Review of the television show "Signal to Noise July 11, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502052].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Essayist, poet and playwright DAVID MAMET. His new book, "Make-Believe Town" (Little, Brown and Co), is a selection of essays about everything from theater to politics to Judaism. His work has been called opinionated, forceful, original and always surprising. MAMET won a Pulitzer Prize for his play "Glengarry Glen Ross" and has written and directed several motion pictures. REV. 1: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new three part series on PBS, "Signal to Noise: Life with Television. INT. 2: Playwright MART CROWLEY. His works were recently re-published in a book, "3 Plays by Mart Crowley" (Alyson Publications). "The Boys in the Band" (1968), is the classic portrait of a gay artist living in New York and was one of the first plays to break the taboo on the portrayal of homosexuality. A revival of "The Boys in the Band" opened in June and the film version is being featured at the Philadelphia International Gay and Lesbian Film Festival this summer. CROWLEY's other works in the book are "A Breeze from the Gulf" (1974) and "For Reasons that Remain Uncertain" (1994). REV. 2: Rock historian ED WARD tells us about the music genre known as "techno."

---

Interview with Nick Hornby; Commentary on high school theater; Review of the film "Courage Under Fire." July 12, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825479].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British writer NICK HORNBY. His autobiographical memoir about being an obsessed soccer fan, "Fever Pitch" (1992, now in paperback, Penguin) achieved cult status. With his second book, and his first novel "High-Fidelity" one reviewer writes that HORNBY has "established himself in England as a maestro of the male confessional." "High-Fidelity" (Riverhead Books, div. of Putnam) is about 36-year old Rob Fleming, an obsessed record-collector, who's just lost his girlfriend, a casualty of his devotion to music. Next week, the book comes out in paperback (also by Riverhead Books). (RE-BROADCAST OF 9/26/95 INTERVIEW) INT. 2: A new monologue by DAVID SEDARIS. "Drama Bug" was featured on This American Life, a nationally broadcast radio program hosted by Ira Glass and produced at WBEZ in Chicago. SEDARIS is a playwright, NPR commentator and a house cleaner. Now known nationally for his humor writing, he launched his radio commentator career with his "SantaLand Diaries," broadcast during NPR's "Morning Edition in 1992. His humor has been described as a "caustic mix of J. D. Salinger and John Waters." (THIS IS NOT INTERVIEW) REV. : LISA SCHWARTZBAUM reviews the new film "Courage Under Fire," starring Denzel Washington. SCHWARTZBAUM is a writer for Entertainment Weekly.

Interview with David Mixner; Review of Go to Blazes's album "Waiting Around for the Crash"; Interview with Dale Chihuly; Review of Tom De Haven's novel "Derby Dugan's Depression Funnies." July 15, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502186].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political advisor and gay activist, DAVID MIXNER. His new book, Stranger Among Friends (Bantam Books), is a memoir of the 1992 Clinton campaign and life inside the Clinton White House. MIXNER was pivotal in getting then-Governor Clinton the support of gay voters and was hopeful that the Democratic victory would expand civil rights to gays and lesbians. With Clinton's watered-down support of gays in the military and recent rejection of gay marriage, MIXNER has become disillusioned with the administration, and his book reflects this. MIXNER has worked on over 75 political campaigns and is currently the president of DBM Associates, a corporate strategic planning firm. REV. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Waiting Around for the Crash," the new album by the Philadelphia group, Go to Blazes. It's the sixth album. (ESD label, Minneapolis, MN) INT. 2: The artist who moved studio glass from craft to fine art, DALE CHIHULY. The world premier showing of translucent sculpture from his Finland Suite is currently at Jack Lenor Larsen's Long House Foundation in East Hampton, New York. This fall, his exhibit 'Chihuly Over Venice' will be featured at the international Contemporary Art Glass exhibition. CHIHULY is among the best known American artists working today and is one of only four Americans to be given a one-man show at the Louvre. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Derby Dugan's Depression Funnies," by Tom De Haven.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer, songwriter, guitarist and actor, WILLIE NELSON. He's recently released two new albums. With "Spirit," NELSON is the first country musician to record with Island Records. NELSON wrote the 12 new songs and they demonstrate influences of country, gospel, and pop. He recorded "How Great Thou Art" (Fine Arts Records) with his sister, Bobbie Nelson. That CD is a collection of gospel standards, like "Swing Low Sweet Chariot" and "Just A Closer Walk With Thee." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: (Interview with WILLIE NELSON continued)

REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews MSNBC--NBC's new cable news channel

Interview with Sarah Buel; Interview with Mark Epstein; Commentary on the Further Festival. July 17, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825478].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Advocate of children's and women's rights, SARAH BUEL. Nineteen years ago she struggled to put her life together after leaving an abusive marriage. After a short time on welfare, BUEL began working full-time and taking undergraduate classes. In 1990, she graduated cum laude from Harvard Law School. BUEL is the co-founder of the Massachusetts Domestic Violence Council and currently serves as juvenile prosecutor for the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office in Quincy, MA. She believes the entire community must take responsibility for domestic violence. INT. 2: Psychologist MARK EPSTEIN. His new book is "Thoughts Without a Thinker: Psychotherapy From a Buddhist Perspective" (Basic Books). EPSTEIN discovered both Buddhism and psychology in college and combines Eastern spirituality and Western psychology to help patients reach solutions to their problems. REV. : Critic MILO MILES recently attended the Further Festival near Boston, a reunion of Grateful Dead band members, their colleagues and their fans.

Description of show segment(s)

Review of George Clinton and the P-Funk All-Stars' album "T.A.P.O.A.F.O.M."; Interview with George Clinton; Commentary on George Clinton; Interview with Maceo Parker; Interview with Bootsy Collins; Review of the film "Trainspotting." July 19, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884229].

Description of show segment(s)

REV: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews George Clinton's new CD: "George Clinton & the P-Funk Allstars: T.A.P.O.A.F.O.M." (550 Music/Epic) and his recent performance in New York City. INT 1: The master of funk, GEORGE CLINTON. He began his musical career as a teenager when he formed The Parliaments. But in the early 70s, Clinton put together a second group, "Funkadelic," that became enormously influential on the pop music scene. Their 1970 album, "Osmium," set the tone for Clinton's wickedly eclectic style; songs ranged from metaphysical gospel to country and acid rock. But their big hit came with the album "Mothership Connection." In songs like "Tear the Roof Off the Sucker," "Get Up on the Downstroke" and "Think! It ain't illegal yet," Clinton blended rap with a heavy rhythm line that defined the funk sound and culture. (REBROADCAST from 8/8/89) An excerpt from Steve Rowland's documentary series "The Music Makers" featuring George Clinton. INT. 2: MACEO PARKER is best known as the saxophonist who played with James Brown. His on again off again association with Brown began in 1964.. Parker's latest album is "Roots Revisited" is soft jazz and funky soul. (On the Verve label). (REBROADCAST. Originally aired 10/2/90). INT. 3: Musician BOOTSY COLLINS got his start with James Brown, where he "defined the finger-popping funk bass style" (Rolling Stone). He went on to work with George Clinton as part of the Parliament-Funkadelic tribe, before forming Bootsy's Rubber Band. On stage, he created alter egos, including Bootzilla, Boot-Tron, and King of the Geepies. He's put out more than 30 albums. Currently he's on tour with George Clinton in Europe and will return to the U.S. for more touring. (REBROADCAST from 10/10/94) REV.: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Trainspotting."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Activist and former Black Panther JOHNNY SPAIN. He was born to a white mother and black father in the South, and when he was six years old was adopted by a black family in California. His mother sent him away for his own safety, but he never understood why, and grew up feeling abandoned. At the age of 17 he was sent to prison after killing a man during an aborted mugging. In prison he met George Jackson who changed his life, by exposing him to the teachings of the Black Panther movement. SPAIN became a leader in the Black Panther Movement in prison. Jackson was killed during an attempted prison break, and SPAIN was convicted of conspiracy. Later that charge was overturned and SPAIN was freed in 1988. He's now a community organizer in San Francisco. There's a new book about him: "Black Power White Blood: The Life and Times of Johnny Spain" (Pantheon Books). INT. 2: Film maker JACK HILL. He's best known for his blaxploitation films, "Coffy" and "Foxy Brown" which he both wrote and directed. He was a classmate of Francis Ford Coppola and during the 60s he and Coppola worked for the master of the exploitation films, Roger Corman. HILL worked on the last of Boris Karloff's films. His 1975 film "Switchblade Sister" is now being re-released under the aegis of Quentin Tarantino's Rolling Thunder Films. REV.: KEVIN WHITEHEAD REVIEWS THE NEW BOXSET: "ERIC DOLPHY: THE COMPLETE PRESTIGE RECORDINGS."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz musician JAMES MOODY. His new CD, "Young At Heart" (Warner Brothers) is a collection of Frank Sinatra tunes. Just after World War II, MOODY joined the bebop big band of Dizzy Gillespie and played with Milt Jackson. His most famous recording is of an improvisatory piece he performed in 1949, now known as "Moody's Mood For Love." In the new CD, MOODY performs as vocalist, tenor/alto/soprano saxist and flutist. Some of the selections include "Love and Marriage," "Nancy," "Only the Lonely" and "In the Wee Small Hours of the Morning." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Assistant Professor of Political Science, SARAH MENDELSON. She spent a year in Moscow working for the National Democratic Institute. Her work helped the Russian reformist political parties in their preparation of the Parliamentary and Presidential elections. The goal of the Institute is to bring modern Western campaign techniques into Russian elections. MENDELSON also talks to Terry about being a young American expatriate in the former Soviet Union. She currently teaches political science at the State University of New York at Albany. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE 1:00 FLOATER) REV. : Interview with SARAH MENDELSON continued.

Interview with Sonia Ancoli-Israel; Review of the film "A Time to Kill." July 24, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502057].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Doctor of psychology and director of a sleep disorder clinic in San Diego, SONIA ANCOLI-ISRAEL. Her new book, "All I Want Is A Good Night's Sleep" (Mosby-Year Book), addresses both sleep and the full range of sleep disorders, with advice on how to improve everyday sleep and how to overcome chronic sleep problems. Jet lag, snoring, sleepwalking and talking, and insomnia are all addressed. ANCOLI-ISRAEL is a professor of psychiatry at the University of California, San Diego, School of Medicine. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH SONIA ANCOLI-ISRAEL CONTINUED REV. : Fresh Air film critic, JOHN POWERS, reviews the movie version of John Grisham's novel, "A Time To Kill."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ISABEL ALLENDE (I-en-day). Her first work of non-fiction, "Paula" (Harper Collins) is now a bestseller in paperback. The book was inspired when her 28 year old daughter fell into an irreversible coma. "Paula" began as a letter to her dying daughter and turned into an autobiographical work telling of life from ALLENDE's childhood in Chile to her exile in Venezuela and her move to San Francisco. Publisher's Weekly says, "Only a writer of Allende's passion and skill could share her tragedy with her readers and leave them exhilarated and grateful." Two of Allende's previous works of fiction, "The House of Spirits" and "Of Love and Shadows", have been made into motion pictures. (ORIGINALLY BROADCAST 5/1/95) REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new re-issue of jazz saxophonist Lester Young. It's called "The Complete Aladdin Recordings of Lester Young" from Blue Note. INT. 2: Muckraker JESSICA MITFORD. She died of cancer at the age of 78 on Tuesday (July 23). She was considered one of the premiere investigative journalists of her day, a muckraker in the tradition of Sinclair Lewis and John Dos Passos. Her targets included the Famous Writers School, a Midwest correspondence school, and the U.S. penal system ("Kind and Usual Punishment: The Prison Business"). MITFORD's most recent book, "The American Way of Birth" (1992), declares that doctors perform too many C-Sections and de-legitimize midwifery. Near her death, MITFORD was working on a revision of her most acclaimed work, "The American Way Of Death" (1963), which was a criticism of the American funeral industry. (ORIGINALLY BROADCAST 5/16/89)

Interview with Tim Collins; Review of the books "Please Kill Me" by Legs McNeil and Gillian McCain and "Go Now" by Richard Hell. July 29, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502185].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Manager of the rock band Aerosmith, TIM COLLINS. Recently, (July 20, 1996) he wrote on Op-Ed piece for the New York Times about the drug problem in the music industry. COLLINS is a former addict and in his early days with Aerosmith, he often procured drugs for the band. In 1984, he helped the band reform from addiction and widened the band's appeal to international audiences. He believes managers and music executives need to work with musicians to overcome the systemic use and abuse of drugs. COLLINS works in Cambridge, MA as the founder and president of Collins Management. INT. 2: Interview with Tim Collins continues. REV. Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews two books on punk rock. "Please Kill Me: The Uncensored History of Punk," by Legs McNeil and Gillian McCain. Also "Go Now," by Richard Hell.

---

Interview with Steve Earle; Interview with Mark O'Donnell. July 30, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502759].

Description of show segment(s)

---

Interview with Jim McGee; Interview with Christine Vachon; Review of Tony Braxton's album "Secrets." July 31, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502782].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Washington Post investigative reporter JIM McGEE. He has co-written with Brian Duffy the new book "Main Justice: The Men And Women Who Enforce The Nation's Criminal Laws And Guard Its Liberties." It's published by Simon and Schuster. The book is about the changing role of the U.S. Justice Department. As the fears of terrorism increase, Congress and the White House are giving the Justice Department more investigative powers and a wider jurisdiction which include sanctions in foreign countries. McGee warns in the book that along with the apparent protection this could provide Americans it could also erode individual liberties. McGee shared a 1987 Pulitzer Prize for a series of stories on the Iran Contra Affair. McGee lives in Virginia. INT. 2: Independent film maker CHRISTINE VACHON. Her newest movie is "Stonewall." a fictional account of the real life 1969 uprising by gays after police

---

Interview with Marcus Conant; Commentary on television coverage of the Olympics. August 1, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502663].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DOCTOR MARCUS CONANT. He talks to Terry about new drug therapies for AIDS patients. In the early 1980's, DR. CONANT was among the first doctors in San Francisco to treat AIDS cases. Now DR. CONANT heads the largest private AIDS medical practice in San Francisco. After his 1985 study on how condoms block transmission of the AIDS virus, condoms became a household word. DR. CONANT is the Medical Director of The Conant Medical Group in San Francisco and is a Clinical Professor of Dermatology at the University of California at San Francisco. REV.: TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI assesses the coverage of this year's Olympics on television.

---

Interview with Edward Bunker; Interview with Charles Dutton; Interview with Sean Penn; Review of the film "Manny and Lo." August 2, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502760].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDWARD BUNKER. His new book, "Dog Eat Dog" (St. Martin's Press) comes out August 13. Bunker also wrote the crime fiction classic "No Beast So Fierce," which first came out in 1973, about a former criminal trying to go straight. It was the basis of the film Straight Time, which starred Dustin Hoffman. Bunker spent almost 20 years in jail himself, and used his experiences as the basis of his book. He's also written 2 other novels, many essays, and screenplays for Straight Time and The Runaway Train. (Re-broadcast, originally aired JULY 12, 1993) INT. 2: Actor, CHARLES DUTTON. DUTTON came to acting in a very unusual way: while serving a manslaughter sentence in the Maryland State Penitentiary, he organized the performance of a play and realized he loved acting. Now furthering the irony, he plays Sheriff Ozzie Walls in the new movie, "A Time To Kill." Prior to the film, he received Tony nominations for work in two plays by August Wilson as well as a Best Actor Emmy for the Hallmark Hall of Fame film version of "The Piano Lesson." Other film credits include "Mississippi Masala," "Rudy" and "Nick of Time." Dutton was the lead character in FOX's "Roc," which is now syndicated on Black Entertainment Television. (Re-broadcast, originally aired 02/04/92) INT. 3: Actor/writer/director SEAN PENN. The "reluctant actor" starred in the film "Dead Man Walking" directed by Tim Robbins, co-starring Susan Sarandon. PENN has moved away from acting in favor of directing and writing: the 1991 film "The Indian Runner" which he wrote based on a Bruce Springsteen song, and last year's "The Crossing Guard" starring Angelica Huston and Jack Nicholson. All three films are out in video. (Re-broadcast. originally aired 1/16/96). REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Manny and Lo," a low-budget film about runaway orphan sisters.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GERALD POSNER. He's just written a biography about the founder of the Reform Party, Ross Perot, called "Citizen Perot: His Life & Times" (Random House). This month, the party will hold two conventions to decide who will be their candidate for President. Perot is expected to win the nomination. POSNER's book is the result of two years of research--including exclusive access to Perot himself. It explores how Perot made his billions, influenced Presidents, rescued his employees from Iran... and much more about the life of this eccentric and controversial business man and politician. POSNER is a former Wall Street lawyer and the author of "Case Closed," a reexamination of the JFK assassination. he's also written for The New York Times, The New Yorker and U.S. News & World Report. INT. 2: GERALD POSNER INTERVIEW CONTINUED REV. : Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "Typhoid Mary," by Judith Walzer Leavitt.
Interview with Irene Vilar; Commentary on I.K. Dairo; Interview with Edward Tenner; Review of the television show 'P.O.V.' August 6, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502762].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: First-time author, IRENE VILAR (ih-REHN-ay vee-LAR). Her book is "A Message from God in the Atomic Age" (Pantheon). This memoir chronicles three generations of self-destructive behavior: in 1954, her grandmother was imprisoned for opening fire at the U.S. House of Representatives; in 1977, her mother leapt to her death from a speeding car; and in 1988, she was committed to a psychiatric hospital after attempting suicide. Alternating between her notes from the psychiatric ward and the chronicling of the history of her family, VILAR tells of her own attempts to come to terms with her family history. REV.: Commentator MILO MILES talks about the late Nigerian "Juju" music master I.K. Dairo. His music became very popular in Africa in the 1960's. INT. 2: EDWARD TENNER is author of "Why Things Bite Back" from Knopf. It's about the unintended effects that new technological breakthroughs bring us. Such as using more paper, not less, as a result of increased use of computers. Tenner is also a researcher at Princeton University in the Department of Geological and Geophysical Sciences. REV.: TV critic David Bianculli reviews this week's edition of the PBS summer series "P.O.V."

Interview with Jason DeParle; Commentary on the Lincoln Center Festival. August 7, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502786].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times writer JASON DEPARLE. He covers poverty and social welfare issues for the Times. This month President Clinton will sign a welfare reform bill that will cut benefits off to recipients after two years. Deparle talks about what changes the new law will bring and about the evolution of the welfare program. INT. 2: Interview with JAMES DEPARLE continues.... REV.: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews some of the performances he saw at this year's Lincoln Center Festival 96. It is a three week festival in New York City that celebrates the performing arts.
Interview with Ed Rollins; Commentary on rock music fans. August 8, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502665].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Retired Republican political consultant ED ROLLINS. He's just written a book chronicling his 30 years in American politics, "Bare Knuckles and Back Rooms: My Life in American Politics" (with Tom DeFrank, published by Broadway Books). ROLLINS began his political life a Democrat, working for Bobby Kennedy's campaign in 1968. After an experience at a violent demonstration, though, he became a Republican and worked his way up to become President Reagan's top political advisor. He managed the landslide Reagan re-election. He also chaired Jack Kemp's unsuccessful 1988 presidential bid and for a short stint managed Ross Perot 1992 independent presidential campaign. Controversial for his outspoken and rough manner, ROLLINS is most recently remembered for inadvertently revealing the supposed pay-offs given to black ministers so they would surpress black voter turnout in the 1993 gubernatorial campaign of Christine Todd Whitman. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: (Ed Rollins Interview continues....) REV. : Another excerpt from "This American Life".... Sarah Vowell tells us about a fan of the Seattle pop-punk band Fastbacks. He's no ordinary groupie, though, and dedicates as much energy to fandom as many performers devote to their music. "This American Life" airs weekly on public radio stations and is produced by Ira Glass at Chicago's WBEZ.

Interview with Ben Hamper; Interview with Philip Levine; Commentary on an ailing mother; Review of the film "Emma." August 9, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502784].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer BEN HAMPER. His funny first-person account of working in GM's auto factory is "Rivethead: Tales from the Assembly Line" (Warner Books). HAMPER is a third generation auto worker in Flint, Michigan. He first started writing when he submitted articles to the alternative newspaper, "The Flint Voice." The editor then was Michael Moore, who made the documentary "Roger and Me." Hamper appeared in Moore's documentary and also in the short lived TV program "TV Nation." In 1995 he appeared in "Canandian Bacon," a film starring John Candy. Last year, he moved from the factory town of Flint to Sutton's Bay, MI. (Rebroadcast, originally aired 8/09/91.) INT. 2: Poet PHILIP LEVINE. He's considered one of this country's pre-eminent poets, but before he turned to poetry he worked for years at factory jobs. The images of those early days continue to influence his writings. Levine's collection of poems "What Work Is." won 1992's National Book Award. His memoir is "Bread of Time" (Knopf). Most recently he wrote, "The Simple Truth" (Knopf), which won him a Pulitzer Prize for poetry. It comes out in paperback in September. (Rebroadcast, originally aired 7/22/91). REV. :Fresh Air classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reads a new poem about his mother. REV. : Film critic John Powers reviews the latest Jane Austen novel-turned-film, "Emma."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Environmentalist DOUG PEACOCK. He's devoted the last 20 years to saving the grizzly bear. Like many Veterans, he had trouble adjusting when he returned from Vietnam. He sought a life of seclusion in the mountains and it was then that he first encountered grizzly bears. Now, he performs research alone through the mountains of Wyoming and Montana studying the behavior, social hierarchy, and communication methods of grizzlies in their natural habitat. His books include "Grizzly Years," "Baja" and a memoir of Edward Abbey, "Walking It Off." Most recently, he contributed to "Mark of the Bear: Legend and Lore of An American Icon" (edited by Paul Schullery , Sierra Club Books). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV.1: Film critic LISA SCHWARZBAUM reviews Hong Kong marshall arts artist Jackie Chan's new film, "Supercop." REV.2: Music critic MILO MILES reviews the new CD "Funk Power" a collection of recordings by James Brown. (Polydor)
Interview with Barbara Hendricks; Interview with Douglas McGrath; Review of the novels "The Angry Ones" by John A. Williams and "The Scene" by Clarence Cooper, Jr. August 13, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502765].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Opera soprano and Goodwill Ambassador for the United Nations High Commission for Refugees, BARBARA HENDRICKS. She has appeared on over fifty recordings and has won critical acclaim in performances with all the major opera companies in the world--but she remains a relatively obscure figure in the United States. This is her seventh year with the UN Commission and she says through her music, she has been able "to get people to listen in a way they wouldn't listen to a diplomat or bureaucrat." Her CD, "Four Last Songs" (EMI), was recorded with the Philadelphia Orchestra and features the works of Richard Strauss. Her most recent UN appointment is as Special Advisor on Interculturality to the Director General of UNESCO. INT. 2: Director and writer of the film version of Jane Austen's "Emma," DOUGLAS MCGRATH. Already known as a playwright, screenwriter and columnist, this is his debut as a director. "Emma" is generally regarded as Austen's most accomplished and wittiest novel--a matchmaker doing all the wrong things for all the right reasons. MCGRATH is author of the New Republic column, "Flapjack File." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews two novels from the series,"Old School Books" (W.W. Norton): 1) "The Angry Ones" by John A. Williams (1960) and 2) "The Scene" by Clarence Cooper, Jr. (1960). "Old School Books" is a reprint series of black pulp novels originally published between the mid 1950s and the 1970s.

Interview with Margaret Bergmann Lambert; Interview with Joseph McCormick and Susan Fisher-Hoch; Review of Syd Straw's album "War and Peace." August 14, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503155].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The Nazi Olympics.... German track star, MARGARET BERGMANN LAMBERT. She trained for the 1936 Berlin Olympics, but was not allowed on the German team because she is Jewish. She emigrated to the United States in 1937 and worked as a masseuse, maid and physical therapist. That same year, she won the U.S. high jump and shot-put titles. This year, LAMBERT accepted an invitation by the German Olympic committee to attend the Atlanta Games. LAMBERT'S story is featured in an exhibit at the Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, "The Nazi Olympics Berlin 1936." The exhibit examines the International Olympic Committee's decision to leave the Games in Berlin after Hitler came to power because of well-known and on-going persecution of Jews and other "non-Aryans." (The exhibit will remain until July 27, 1997) INT. 2: Scientists DR. JOSEPH B. MCCORMICK and DR. SUSAN FISHER-HOCH. Their book, in collaboration with Leslie Alan Horvitz, is "Level 4: Virus Hunters of the CDC" (Turner Publishing, Inc). It's a personal account of this husband/wife team's work with the world's most horrible diseases: Ebola, Lassa fever, Crimean Congo Hemorrhagic Fever, AIDS.... MCCORMICK was instrumental in the creation of the high-tech "hot zone" lab at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. He spent many years researching and treating patients in remote areas of the world and is now chairman of the Community Health Sciences Department of Aga Khan University in Pakistan. FISHER-HOCH was a pioneer in research on Legioniire's Disease, Ebola and Lassa Fever. She is currently a professor at Aga Khan University. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "War & Peace" the new album by Syd Straw, the singer with the New York cult band the Golden Paliminos.

Interview with Thomas McKenna; Interview with Jim McKay and Lili Taylor. August 15, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503073].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York City homicide detective, THOMAS MCKENNA. He's just written "Manhattan North Homicide: The True Story of One of New York's Best Homicide Cops" (with William Harrington, St. Martin's Press). In his 30 years with the NYPD, he's worked on some of the cities most infamous cases and he describes them in the book: The Central Park Jogger Case, The Preppie Murder Case, The Brooklyn Bridge Shootings, and The Baby Maldonado Case. MCKENNA worked his way up as a uniformed patrolman to detective first grade to Manhattan North homicide--an elite force within the NYPD. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: A discussion with two of the makers of the feminist film "Girls Town," JIM MCKAY, the co-writer and director, and LILI TAYLOR, the lead. TAYLOR plays Patti Lucci, an abused teen mother who struggles to understand the suicide of her friend, Nikki. Patti and her two best friends learn that Nikki killed herself because she was raped--they then boldly confront the man who did it. TAYLOR recently starred in the film version of "I Shot Andy Warhol" and was also featured in "Short Cuts," a Robert Altman film. MCKAY got his start shooting music videos for REM and Public Service Announcements. "Girls Town" is his first feature
The film has been praised for its intelligent writing and fine acting. It won the dramatic Filmmaker's trophy and a special jury prize for its improvisational techniques at this year's Sundance Film Festival.

Interview with James McBride; Interview with Mary Karr; Commentary on a computer analysis of Republican National Convention speeches; Review of the film "Tin Cup." August 16, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503072].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and musician JAMES MCBRIDE. His recent book, is "The Color of Water: A Black Man's Tribute to his White Mother" (Riverhead) about his mother who was white and Jewish, but refused to admit her race. MCBRIDE's father was black. For years, MCBRIDE knew nothing about his mother's early life. It wasn't until he started working on the book, that she opened up to tell him that her father was a failed itinerant Orthodox rabbi in rural Virginia, a racist, and he sexually abused her. MCBRIDE has written for "The Washington Post," "The Boston Globe," and "People" magazine. (Rebroadcast)

INT. 2: Writer MARY KARR. She has two volumes of poetry The Devil's Tour, and Abacus. Karr has won Pushcart Prizes for both poetry and essays, and her work appears in such magazines as Granta, Ploughshares, and Vogue. She also has a memoir called The Liars' Club (Viking). (Rebroadcast) REV.: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG has done a computer generated summary of a large number of republican convention speeches delivered this week. The software analyzes the frequency of key words and recurring themes. It produced a five sentence compressed paragraph. REV: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Tin Cup" starring Kevin Costner.

Interview with Larry Gelbart; Commentary on Sam Shepard's short fiction; Commentary on French and American coverage of the Olympics. August 19, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825448].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedy writer LARRY GELBART. In the 1950s he was part of a team of television writers that included Carl Reiner, Mel Brooks, Neil Simon, and others who wrote for Sid Caesar's "Your Show of Shows" and "Caesar's Hour." GELBART went on to develop and write for the television version of "M*A*S*H. Also, he wrote the screenplays for "Oh, God!" and "Tootsie," and the stage play for "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" (which has recently been revived on Broadway). There's a new PBS special about Sid Caesar's comedy team, "Caesar's Writers." (to be broadcast next week) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Segment of a reading by playwright/actor SAM SHEPARD. (NO REBROADCASTS ARE ALLOWED OF THIS READING). It took place at the 92nd Street Y Unterberg Poetry Center in New York on October 6, 1994. SHEPARD has a new novel, "Cruising Paradise" (Knopf, published in May). SHEPARD has written more than 45 plays and appeared in sixteen films. In 1979 he was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for his play "Buried Child." REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG compares the different ways France and the U.S. covered the Olympics.

Interview with Nile Rodgers; Review of Marilyn French's novel "My Summer with George." August 20, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503439].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer and former guitarist for the band Chic, NILE RODGERS. In the late 1970s Chic was one of the most successful disco groups. Its hits included "Dance, Dance, Dance," "Everybody Dance," and "Le Freak." RODGERS is featured in "VH1 Presents the 70's" a new five part documentary series by the cable channel VH1 on the music of the 1970s. (Premiering August 19th). As a record producer RODGERS has worked with Sister Sledge, Diana Ross, Mick Jagger, David Bowie, and Madonna (for which he produced "Like a Virgin.") (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: INTERVIEW WITH NILE RODGERS CONTINUED. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel by Marilyn French, "My Summer With George." (Knopf)

Interview with Kweisi Mfume; Review of Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers' album "She's the One." August 21, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503438].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, KWEISI MFUME (pronounced Kwah-EE-zee Oom-FOO-mae). He was a five term U.S Congressman for Maryland, and is of the most respected African American politicians. Earlier this year he was appointed the head of the NAACP. He has a new memoir, "No Free Ride: From the Mean Streets to the Mainstream." (Ballintine Books, with Ron Stodghill, II). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

INT. 2: Interview with KWEISI MFUME continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "She's the One," the soundtrack to the film of the same name, the first new album by Tom Petty & the Heartbreakers in over five years. (Warner Bros)

---

Interview with Geoffrey Faux; Interview with Ike Turner; Review of the television show "Debt."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 2: Performer, producer and musician IKE TURNER. In 1991 TURNER was inducted into the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame. His 1951 hit "Rocket '88" is considered by some to be the first true rock n' roll recording. He discovered Tina Turner (then known as Anna Mae Bullock), and the two started performing together. Their stormy relationship was portrayed in the film "What's Love Got to Do with It." TURNER spent 18 months in jail for drug charges in the early 1990s. He's currently making a comeback with "The Ike Turner Revue." This Saturday and Sunday they'll be performing in Manhattan at Tramps. "What You Hear is What You Get: Ike & Tina Turner Live at Carnegie Hall" (EMI) has just been reissued on CD as part of a series of classic soul recordings.

REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Debt" the new cable game show.

---

Interview with Samuel Brylawski and Cooper Graham; Commentary on a Tom Jones Impersonator; Review of the film "She's the One."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From the Library of Congress, Recording Sound Specialist, SAMUEL BRYLAWSKI and Acquisition Specialist COOPER GRAHAM. The two have just compiled a collection of presidential speeches dating back 85 years. The collection is "Historic Presidential Speeches (1908-1993)" (on Rhino/World Beat label) and begins with William Howard Taft's recorded during the presidential campaign of 1908. (REBROADCAST from 11/7/95) INT. 2: An excerpt from the NPR program "This American Life" produced by Ira Glass: The story of a Tom Jones impersonator produced by Jay Allison... with consulting producer Christina Egg-loff and comes from Jay's ongoing series Life stories. REV. : Film critic LISA SCHWARZBAUM reviews "She's the One."

Interview with Andrew Weil; Interview with Michael Lerner; Commentary on the WB and UPN television networks. August 26, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503068].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. ANDREW WEIL (pronounced "WHILE"). He is one of the world's leading authorities on health, healing and medicine. His latest book "Spontaneous Healing" (Knopf) came out in paperback in May. It explores how to discover and enhance our body's natural ability to maintain and heal itself. DR. WEIL is currently Associate Director of the Division of Social Perspectives in Medicine at the University of Arizona. He also has a private practice, based at the Center for Integrative Medicine at Tucson, where he treats patients from around the world. In addition, He has a web page created by Hotwired magazine http://www.drweil.com (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) (REBROADCAST) INT. 2: Authority on complementary cancer treatments MICHAEL LERNER. His book is called "Choices in Healing: Integrating the Best of Conventional and Complementary Approaches to Cancer" (The MIT Press). Lerner believes that cancer patients are wise to use "whatever combination of conventional and complementary cancer therapies that makes sense to them." So he wrote this book to provide "credible maps and training in reading these maps" to patients "actually trying to traverse the forbidding landscape of cancer diagnosis and treatment." Lerner won a MacArthur Prize Fellowship for his work in public health in 1983. The research institute he founded, called The Commonweal Cancer Help Program, was recently featured on Bill Moyers' PBS series "Healing and the Mind." (REBROADCAST) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews new programs on the Warner Bros. (WB) and Paramount (UPN) networks.
Interview with David Spiegel; Interview with Mark Epstein. August 27, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503070].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. DAVID SPIEGEL, a professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at Stanford University School of Medicine. His groundbreaking study (1989) of breast cancer patients showed that women who had psychosocial interventon lived twice as long, after diagnosis, as those without that intervention. His book, "Living Beyond Limits" (paperback, Ballintine Books) covers research on mind/body interactions, how to build sustaining support networks, control pain through self-hypnosis and detoxify fears of dying. Dr Spiegel says, "the fact we do not control death does not mean we cannot control how we live in the face of dying." (REBROADCAST FROM 10/13/93) INT. 2: Psychologist MARK EPSTEIN. His new book is "Thoughts Without a Thinker: Psychotherapy From a Buddhist Perspective" (Basic Books). EPSTEIN discovered both Buddhism and psychology in college and combines Eastern spirituality and Western psychology to help patients reach solutions to their problems. (REBROADCAST FROM 7/17/96)

Interview with Barry Gordon; Interview with Fred Sheftell. August 28, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502639].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Specialist in memory and language disorders, DR. BARRY GORDON. Gordon's book is "Memory: Remembering and Forgetting in Everyday Life" (Mastermedia Ltd. The book can be ordered by calling 1-800-334-8232...It is not widely distributed) It looks at recognition, recall, memory blocks and the effects of drugs. The book also gives tips to increasing memory recall and dispels some common myths about the brain and memory. GORDON is a behavior neurologist, cognitive neuroscientist and experimental psychologist at Johns Hopkins University. INT. 2: DR. FRED SHEFTELL is the co-founder of The New England Center for Headache and the co-author of the book, "Headache Relief." He's also co-authored the book, "Headache Relief for Women: How You Can Manage and Prevent Pain" (Little, Brown & Co.) (The New England Center for Headache is located in Stamford, Connecticut). He is President of ACHE. American Council for Headache Education.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two interviews this segment: Former head of the FBI's Serial Crime Unit, JOHN DOUGLAS. For 20 years he investigated serial murders for the FBI, and developed techniques to get criminals to talk, and to lure them into capture. He also pioneered criminal profiling. Many of his techniques have been adopted by police departments and prosecutors nationwide. DOUGLAS interviewed such notorious killers as Charles Manson and Richard Speck. He has a memoir, Mind Hunter: Inside the FBI's Elite Serial Crime Unit (Lisa Drew book, written with Mark Olshaker). (Originally aired 12/4/95) Psychiatrist JAMES GILLIGAN. He's spent twenty-five years treating violent men, as former medical director of the Bridgewater State Hospital for the criminally insane, and director of mental health for the Massachusetts prison system. In his most recent book "Violence: Our Deadly Epidemic and Its Causes" (Grosset/Putnam) GILLIGAN puts forth his views on violence: that it is possible to eliminate most of the violence that plagues us, and that violence in America is "the result of our collective 'moral choice' to maintain the social policies" that contribute to violence. (Originally aired 4/16/96) INT. 2: We continue our interview with JOHN DOUGLAS INT. 3: Forensic psychiatrist Dr. PARK DIETZ. He has served as an expert witness for the prosecution in the murder trials of John Hinkley, Joel Rifkin, Jeffrey Dahmer and others. In each case he presented evidence against the defense of insanity, saying that these men knew that they were committing terrible crimes. DIETZ also has a consulting firm, Threat Assessment, which focuses on workplace violence. He is a consultant to the HBO special "Murder 9 to 5," which examines murder at work. (REBROADCAST from 12/12/94)

Interview with Dennis Hopper; Interview with Dave Alvin; Review of Paula Sharp's novel "Crows Over a Wheatfield." August 30, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502436].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DENNIS HOPPER stars in the new film "Basquiat" (BASS-key-ott), The film is about American painter Jean-Michel Basquiat. Hopper plays international art dealer Bruno Bischofberger. Today's featured segment has the actor talking art collecting. Hopper himself is an art collector. Hopper made his feature film debut in "Rebel Without a Cause" in 1955. Some other, but not all, of the films he has appeared include: "Easy Rider," "Apocalypse Now," "Blue Velvet." "Speed," "Waterworld," "River's Edge," "Carried Away" "Hoosiers," and "Red Rock West." Hopper was born May 17, 1936 in Dodge City, Kansas. Trained for the stage in San Diego. In addition to acting, Hopper has directed film and written screenplays.

INT. 2: Poet, musician DAVE ALVIN, is best known for his songwriting and guitar playing for the Blasters and the influential punk band X, as well as his solo career. He has a collection of his poems and writings called, "Any Rough Times Are Now Behind You," (Incommunicado). REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Crows Over A Wheatfield." by Paula Sharp.

---

Interview with Bonnie Raitt; Interview with John Raitt. September 2, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502433].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer/songwriter BONNIE RAITT. Her newest release is her first live album, "Road Tested," (Capitol). RAITT will talk about the musicians and performers that inspired her. She'll play recordings by such blues artists as B.B. King, Mississippi Fred McDowell, and Sippie Wallace. RAITT recorded one of McDowell's songs on her new album. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). (REBROADCAST from 2/26/96)

INT. 2: Broadway singer JOHN RAITT. He's the father of singer Bonnie Raitt. The two have collaborated on a new album of show tunes, "The Broadway Legend," (Angel). RAITT made his Broadway debut as Billy Bigelow in the original production of "Carousel." He also was in the original Broadway cast and film of "The Pajama Game." He's performed in many other musicals including "Oklahoma," and "South Pacific." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE 1:00 FLOATER) (REBROADCAST from 11/30/95) REV. : JOHN RAITT continued.
Interview with Nathan Breedlove; Interview with Stephan Rechtschaffen; Review of Roberto Alagna and Angela Gheorghiu's album "Duets & Arias." September 3, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502430].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz trumpeter NATHAN BREEDLOVE of the Jamaican group, "The Skatalites". The group is credited with creating the music known as "ska", a precursor to reggae, which is often mistaken for reggae. The group got their start in the 1960s. BREEDLOVE is an American musician who worked with Lionel Hampton, and began playing with The Skatalites about seven years ago. The Skatalites have a new album, "Greetings from Skamania" (on the Shanachie label). INT. 2: DR. STEPHAN RECHTSCHAFFEN (pronounced "Rek-Shah-fin"), author of the book "Time Shifting: Creating More Time to Enjoy Your Life," (Doubleday) is about how to change the way we think about time. RECHTSCHAFFEN is also a pioneer of the wellness movement and founder of the Omega Institute for Holistic Studies in New York's Hudson River Valley. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new album of Duets and Arias by opera singers Roberto Alagna (A-Lan-YA) and Angela Gheorghiu (gYOR-gyoo). (on the EMI label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: President of the AFL-CIO, JOHN SWEENEY. He was elected in October 1995 and has been credited with revitalizing the labor movement. He's known for championing the cause of the poorest and least powerful members of the workforce. Last week JOHN SWEENEY spoke before the Democratic Convention. His new book is "America Needs a Raise: Fighting for Economic Security and Social Justice" (Houghton Mifflin) INT. 2: Journalist PETER GODWIN. His new memoir is "Mukiwa: A White Boy in Africa" (The Atlantic Monthly Press), about growing up in Rhodesia in 1964 as the British colony is collapsing. GODWIN was formerly a foreign correspondent for the London Sunday Times. He now makes television documentaries for the BBC. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviewed The Beatles Anthology which is out on video. (This is an expanded 10-hour version of the 6-hour version which aired on television last fall).

Interview with Michael Specter; Review of Frank McCourt's memoir "Angela's Ashes." September 5, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502343].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MICHAEL SPECTER. He's been reporting on the war in Chechnya for The New York Times. He'll talk with Terry about getting into Grozny after the fall, meeting rebel leaders and fighters, Russian soldiers, and the agreement between Russian and Chechen officials that has, for now, put a stop to fighting. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with MICHAEL SPECTER continued. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Angela's Ashes" (Scribner) a new memoir by Frank McCourt.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ERIC LOMAX was captured by the Japanese during World War II. He was used as forced labor to help build the Burma-Siam railroad. He was also tortured by the Japanese. He has reconciled with the Japanese interpreter present during his beatings. His book The Railway Man: A P.O.W.'s Searing Account of War, Brutality and Forgiveness (W.W. Norton & Company 1995,) chronicles his story from WWII and his life 50 years later. The BBC is expected to make a movie from his book "Railway Man." And Ballentine will release "Railway Man" out on paperback this month. INT. 2: Journalist/Rock Historian DANIEL WOLFF has written a the biography, You Send Me: The Life and Times of Sam Cooke (Morrow) WOLFF was aided in his research by many people who were close to Cooke. One of them, S.R. CRAIN, a co-founder of the Soul Stirrers and later Cooke's manager, is also interviewed. WOLFF has also written about pop and gospel for Vogue, Musician, The Nation and many other publications.
Interview with Donald Barlett and James Steele; Commentary on the Emmy Awards; Interview with Merald "Bubba" Knight. September 9, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502342].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pulitzer Prize winning Philadelphia Inquirer reporters DONALD BARLETT and JAMES STEELE. "Barlett and Steele" as they are often referred to in Philly, are writing a new ten part series in the Inquirer titled "Who Stole the Dream?" Barlett and Steele say American public policy is largely to blame for why many American jobs have been sent overseas. Barlett and Steele will publish these stories in book form later this year by Andrews and McMeel. In 1991, They wrote a series entitled "America: What Went Wrong?" that generated the greatest reader response in the history of The Inquirer, generating more than 20 thousand letters. The series chronicled how government and corporate policies hurt the earning power of America's middle class. That series was turned into a 1992 New York Times best-seller "America: What Went Wrong?" from Andrews and McMeel. Other books by them include "Empire: The Life, Legend and Madness of Howard Hughes," and "Forevermore: Nuclear Waste in America." Barlett and Steele won Pulitzer Prizes for their reporting in 1975 and 1989. REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews last night's Emmy Award ceremonies. INT. : MERALD "BUBBA" KNIGHT is a founding member of Gladys Knight and the Pips. He is Gladys' brother. Terry talked with "Bubba" about his years, as one of the Pips, with one of the longest established soul vocal groups, spanning four decades.

Interview with Gladys Knight; Commentary on the song "Macarena." September 10, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502550].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GLADYS KNIGHT began her singing career at age 4. Since that modest start, she went on to lead one of the most successful vocal soul groups in America, "Gladys Knight and The Pips." The group stayed together for 39 years before disbanding. Among, the group's most notable songs include: "I Heard It Through The Grapevine," "Neither One of Us," and "Midnight Train to Georgia." Knight has launched a solo career since. Terry interviewed Knight before a "live" audience in San Francisco earlier this year. REV. : Music Critic MILO MILES talks about Los Del Rio's hit "Macarena." It even comes with its own dance. MILES says, given the songs substance, its popularity will likely be just a fad.
Interview with Richard Darman; Interview with Marc Parent; Review of the album "Sergio Fiorentino in Germany." September 10, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502341].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Reagan advisor and Bush budget director, RICHARD DARMAN has written the book "Who's In Control?: Polar Politics and the Sensible Center," from Simon and Schuster. As Budget Director under President Bush, Darman pressured Bush to approve a tax increase. This broke Bush's promise "Read My Lips, No New Taxes." Darman today defends the tax increase. Terry talks to Darman about the tax increase, this year's Presidential elections, and about why Darmen thinks both parties are too polarized today to be effective. Darmen argues for what he calls the "Sensible Center" as a middle ground. INT. 2: Former caseworker in New York City's Emergency Children's Services, MARC PARENT. It was PARENT'S job to investigate cases of abused children during the evening and nighttime hours. He's written a new memoir about his experiences, "Turning Stones: My Days and Nights with Children at Risk." (Harcourt, Brace & Company). Kirkus Reviews writes, "At once heart-wrenching and heart-lifting is this record of four years spent riding to the rescue of abused and neglected children." REV. : Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Sergio Fiorentino in Germany," a live recording from 1993, on the Appian Label. Schwartz is also classical music editor of the Boston Phoenix.

Interview with Jeffrey Toobin; Review of Quad City DJs' album "Get on up and Dance." September 12, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502432].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and former prosecutor JEFFREY TOOBIN talks to Terry about new revelations related to the O.J. Simpson criminal trial which ended last October. TOOBIN says O.J. failed a lie detector test and that O.J. was told what the verdict was before it was announced. TOOBIN'S new book is "The Run of His Life: The People v. O.J. Simpson." It is published by Random House. In addition, TOOBIN has written an in-depth story about O.J. prosecutor Marcia Clark in the Sept 9th issue of The New Yorker. He has been a staff writer for The New Yorker since January, 1993. Before that TOOBIN served as an Assistant United States Attorney in Brooklyn, New York. He also served as an associate counsel in the Office of Independent Counsel Lawrence Walsh. TOOBIN lives in Manhattan. REV. : Music Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new record Quad City DJs The Florida based group's album "Get On Up & Dance" has spun out the dance hit "C'mon and Ride It."

Interview with Joe Dante; Interview with Roger Corman; Interview with Dick Miller; Review of the film 'First Wives Club.' September 13, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502721].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Film director/actor JOE DANTE. He started out making trailers for Roger Corman movies. He's since gone on to make movies such as "Gremlins," "The Burbs," and "Matinee." A trademark of Dante is always casting actor Dick Miller in a cameo or supporting role. Miller and Dante worked together during their Roger Corman years. (Originally aired 2/15/89) INT. 2:Film producer/director/actor ROGER CORMAN is known as "King of the B movies." Many of today's actors and directors got their start in Corman's low budget films. He has produced or directed more than 225 (new figure) films. This month, the American Museum of the Moving Image is showing a series of films by directors who worked under Corman. Some of those who work will be featured in the New York show include Francis Ford Coppola, Martin Scorsese and Joe Dante. The series is called "Corman's Children." Corman is president and executive producer of Concord/New Horizon, an independent film production house. At age 70, Corman is primarily producing films for the Showtime cable channel. This Saturday, his new film "Humanoids from the Deep" will debut on Showtime. In 1990, Corman's autobiography "How I Made a Hundred Movies in Hollywood and Never Lost a Dime" was published by Random House. Corman got his start in Hollywood working as a messenger for 20th Century Fox, eventually rising to the position of story analyst. That led to opportunities to screenwrite, direct and produce. (Originally aired pt 1. 8/2/90 pt 2. 8/3/90) INT 3.: Actor DICK MILLER appeared in 35 of Roger Corman's film including "the original "Little Shop of Horrors" which was filmed in one night. Miller has appeared in more than 90 movies which include "Pulp Fiction," "Tales From the Crypt Presents: Demon Knight," and "The Happy Hooker goes to Hollywood." REV. : Film Critic LISA SCHWARTZBAUM reviews "1st Wives Club."
Interview with Leon Dash; Review of the fall television season. September 16, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502720].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Washington Post reporter LEON DASH won a Pulitzer Prize in 1994 for his eight part series "Rosa Lee's Story." He has turned that into the new book "Rosa Lee: A Mother and Her Family in Urban America." It is published by Basic Books. DASH shadowed Rosa Lee's life for four years. The book shows Lee's day to day life in one of Washington D.C.'s poorest neighborhoods. DASH joined the Washington Post in 1966 and served as West Africa bureau chief. In 1984, He joined the Post's investigation's unit in Washington. His previous book, "When Children Want Children," was based on a Post series on teen moms. He lives in Mt. Rainier, Maryland. REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the fall television season. He highlights the best bets and those "D.O.A."

Interview with Steve Martin; Interview with Robert Wuhl. September 17, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502718].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor/Comedian/Screenwriter and now Playwright STEVE MARTIN talks with Terry Gross about his life on stage. Next month, his new book "Picasso at The Lapin Agile and Other Plays" will be published by Grove Press. It contains one full length play and three one-acts. Martin is also author of a collection of short stories, "Cruel Shoes." His screenwriting credits include "L.A. Story," and "Roxanne." He has also starred in such films as: "The Jerk," "Planes, Trains and Automobiles," "The Lonely Guy," "Parenthood," "Father of the Bride," "Housesitter," "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," "All of Me," "The Man with Two Brains," "Sgt Bilko," "Leap of Faith," "Little Shop of Horrors." He also won a Grammy Award for his album "Let's Get Small." INT. 2: Actor/Comedian ROBERT WUHL (Wall) talks with Terry about his new HBO comedy series "Arliss." It is about the life of Arliss Michaels a high powered Los Angeles sports agent. The cable sitcom began airing last month and airs Wednesday nights. If the name doesn't strike you...He was Larry in "Bull Durham," Alex Knox the investigative reporter in the movie "Batman" and was fellow D.J. Marty Driewitz in the film "Good Morning Vietnam." He also had parts in "Flashdance," "Bull Durham," and "Wedding Band."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Nobel Prize winning playwright and activist WOLE SOYINKA (Wall - Shoy-enka) talks with Terry about his newest book "The Open Sore of a Continent: A Personal Narrative of the Nigerian Crisis." It is published by Oxford University Press. It's been nearly a year since the Nigerian military government executed dissident writer Ken Saro-Wiwa. The killing sparked international protests that today has left Nigeria politically isolated. The events that led up to the execution in November 1995 mark Nigeria's decline from a thriving post-colonial state to its present military dictatorship. SOYINKA was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1986. Born in Nigeria, an out-spoken proponent for democracies, lives in exile dividing his time between London and Cambridge, Ma. INT. 2: Chicago Tribune science writer RONALD KOTULAK talks with Terry about his new book "Inside the Brain: Revolutionary Discoveries of How the Mind Works." It is published by Andrews and McMeel. KOTULAK has interviewed more than 300 of the leading researchers and reveals the latest theories on how the brain thinks. KOTULAK recieved the Pulitzer Prize for two related newspaper series on brain research: "Unravelling the Mysteries of the Brain" and "Roots of Violence." REV.: Music critic KEN TUCKER reviews New Edition's reunion album "Home Again."

Interview with David Denby; Interview with Allison Anders; Interview with Elvis Costello. September 19, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884197].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York magazine Film Critic DAVID DENBY is interviewed by Fresh Air's Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN about his new book "Great Books: My Adventures with Homer, Rousseau, Woolf, and Other Indestructible Writers of the Western World." It is published by Simon and Schuster. The book comes from Denby's recent return to Columbia University to take two western civilization classes. He did this to explore the current debate in literature of whether these classic books should be required reading in today's multi-cultural society.. i.e. whether african, asian or hispanic students should be compelled to read books by dead white european males. He says they should be, but he believes his book is a liberal defense of the Western tradition. In addition to being a film critic, Denby is a contributing editor for The New Yorker magazine. Denby lives in Manhattan. INT. 2: Screenwriter and director ALLISON ANDERS talks about her new film Grace of My Heart. Her other films include: "Four Rooms," "Mi Vida Loca," "Gas Food Lodging." To give you a better idea of why she's considered one of the hot new women film directors here's a comment from Time magazine. "Anders knows the women in...[her] films. She is herself a single mother, who found expression behind the camera as a screenwriter and director. But her movies are not studio films where endings are mandated by preview audiences. Life doesn't mete our happy endings very often. That's left to Hollywood, alas. She cares for her characters, she gives them breathing room and life, dignity and laughter. She doesn't cut them any slack -- they're earthy and human, often foolish and capable of terrible missteps." -- Richard Corliss, Time Magazine, September 12, 1994. INT. :Singer/songwriter ELVIS COSTELLO wrote the title song for Allison Ander's newest movie. He talked with Terry Gross earlier this year about his career which includes the band The Attractions, and a solo career. He has also performed and recorded with The Brodsky Quar

Interview with Ellie Greenwich; Interview with Carole King; Interview with Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller; Interview with Ronnie Spector; Review of the film "Surviving Picasso." September 20, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502722].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Songwriter and Producer, ELLIE GREENWICH. She co-wrote some of the most popular songs of the early 1960's, for the girl groups produced by Phil Spector: songs like "Leader of the Pack" and "River Deep, Mountain High". She got her start out of the Brill Building with the songwriting team of Lieber and Stoller. In the 1980's, when she was writing songs for Cyndi Lauper and Irene Cara, she performed some of her hits in a Broadway Review called "Leader of the Pack". (Rebroadcast from 1986). Singer and songwriter CAROLE KING. In the 1960s, she wrote hit songs like "Up on the Roof" and "Will you still love me tomorrow?" But in the 70s, she achieved lasting fame with songs like "Natural Woman" and her album "Tapestry," which was the best-selling album of the decade. (Rebroadcast from June 19, 1989.)

INT. 2: Rock and roll songwriting team JERRY LEIBER and MIKE STOLLER. They're responsible for many of the greatest hits in rock history, among them "Hound Dog," "Yakity Yak," and "Stand By Me." Rhino records has a collection of their songs, called "There's A Riot Goin' On." And their songs have been published in the "Lieber & Stoller Songbook" (Warner Books). (Rebroadcast from December 19, 1991). RONNIE SPECTOR, who in the 1960s was a member of the girl group The Ronettes. She left the music business for several years, but the late Eighties, recorded new music. Here she talks about her hit Interview with Helen Caldicott; Interview with Charles Moskos; Review of the fall television season. September 23, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502252].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Australian-born physician HELEN CALDICOTT. She helped found and was the first president of the Physicians for Social Responsibility (PSR) and the Women's Action for Nuclear Disarmament (WAND). Her new autobiography, "A Desperate Passion" (W.W. Norton) is about her life, her activism, and the effect of notoriety on her personal life. In 1985 PSR's umbrella affiliate, the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, received the Nobel Peace Prize. INT. 2: Professor of Sociology CHARLES MOSKOS. He teaches at Northwestern University. He's written many articles on race relations in the military for the New York times, the Washington Post, the Chicago Tribune, and The New Republic. He's co-authored a new book about the U.S. Army's success at integration: "All That We Can Be: Black Leadership and Racial Integration the Army Way" (Basic Books, with John Sibley). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI continues his look at new television shows, including "The Jeff Foxworthy Show," "Mr. Rhodes," and "Relativity."

Interview with Jim Morris; Interview with Harry Shearer; Interview with Dan Perkins; Interview with Bob Dole; Review of Lauryn Hill's album "The Miseducation of Lauryn Hill." September 23, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502868].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Political satirist and impressionist JIM MORRIS. He began lampooning the Presidents at about the time Ronald Reagan was sworn into office. Since then he's impersonated George Bush and Bill Clinton. He'll discuss what he's done with his act since the Clinton scandal broke. INT. 1B: Satirist and columnist HARRY SHEARER. He's the host of the syndicated NPR radio program, "Le Show," does several voices on "The Simpsons" and is a weekly commentator on ABC TV's World News Now. INT. 2A: Political cartoonist DAN PERKINS, otherwise known as Tom Tomorrow, the creator of the weekly syndicated cartoon strip "This Modern World." It stars Sparky the Wonder Penguin. PERKINS discusses

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Sociologist and foremost authority on urban poverty WILLIAM JULIUS WILSON. He was with the University of Chicago for 24 years before becoming the Malcolm Wiener Professor of Social Policy at Harvard. His new book is "When Work Disappears: The World of the New Urban Poor" (Knopf). In the book he looks at how joblessness has affected inner city neighborhoods. He says that the consequences of high joblessness in the inner city are more devastating than those of high neighborhood poverty. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL MOST LIKELY EXTEND INTO THE SECOND HALF). INT. 2: Memphis based musician SID SELVIDGE. He's a guitarist whose music synthesizes classic blues styles and Appalachian traditions. SELVIDGE has been part of the Memphis music scene for 30 years, learning from such Delta blues legends as Bukka White, and Mississippi Fred McDowell. SELVIDGE is also senior producer of the new public radio blues show, "Beale Street Caravan" which premieres on October 1. SELVIDGE was featured on "It Came From Memphis" (Upstart) a companion CD to the book by Robert Gordon. SELVIDGE'S most recent CD is "Twice Told Tales" (Elektra Nonesuch/American Explorer Series, 1993) REV. : no review

- Page 1638 -

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian and author NELL IRVIN PAINTER. She is a Professor of American History at Princeton University. She's written a biography of the ex-slave and fiery abolitionist who was born Isabella Van Wagenen and rechristened herself Sojourner Truth. "Sojourner Truth: A Life, A Symbol." (W.W. Norton). INT. 2: Director of Political Coverage for ABC News HAL BRUNO. He'll talk with Terry about how the network is covering the upcoming election. As political director BRUNO works with the producers and correspondents for all ABC news programs including "World News Tonight," "Nightline" and "This Week With David Brinkley." He's been with ABC News since 1978. Before that he worked for Newsweek magazine as reporter, foreign correspondent, bureau chief, News Editor and Chief Political Correspondent. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new collection from R.E.M., "New Adventures in Hi-Fi" (Warner Bros)

Interview with Brenda Blethen and Marianne Jean-Baptiste; Interview with Mike Leigh; Review of the album "Orchids in the Moonlight September 26, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972883934].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two British actresses: BRENDA BLETHYN and MARIANNE JEAN-BAPTISTE. BLETHYN is one of the UK's best-known stage and television actresses. She's currently starring in the new MIKE LEIGH film "Secrets & Lies" (for which she won the Best Actress award at the 1996 Cannes Film Festival). She recently had a supporting role in "A River Runs Through It" as Brad Pitt's mother. JEAN-BAPTISTE also co-stars in "Secrets & Lies." She's worked with Leigh most recently in his play "It's a Great Big Shame." INT. 2: British film and theatrical director MIKE LEIGH (pronounced "Lee"). In the United States he's best known for his more recent films "Life is Sweet" "High Hopes" and "Naked." Though he's been making films for British television and theatre for nearly 30 years. His social-realist comedies depict British working class life. He begins work on his films without a script, piecing them together from improvisations with his cast. His latest film is "Secrets & Lies." MIKE LEIGH is also the subject of a new book "The World According to Mike Leigh" by Michael Coveney (HarperCollins).

Interview with Philip Hilts; Interview with Christopher Buckley; Obituary for Paul Weston.
September 27, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503249].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PHILIP HILTS, correspondent on health and science policy for The New York Times. His new book is "Smoke Screen: The Truth Behind the Tobacco Industry Cover-up" (Addison-Wesley). HILTS first broke the story of the now-infamous Brown and Williamson tobacco papers, which revealed when tobacco executives first learned about the addictive nature of nicotine and the dangers of smoking. HILTS' stories for the New York Times led to Congressional hearings. Originally aired 5/21/96 INT. 2: CHRISTOPHER BUCKLEY is the author of the political satire, "Thank you for Smoking" (Random), which pokes fun at everything and everyone associated with the tobacco industry- from anti-smoking advocates to tobacco company executives. BUCKLEY was George Bush's speechwriter from 1981-1983 when Bush served as Vice President. The son of William F. Buckley, he is the author of other political and social satires, including "The White House Mess" and "Wet Work." He is the editor of "Forbes FYI" magazine. Originally aired 8/29/94. REV. : Songwriter PAUL WESTON died last Friday. We replay part of our interview with him and his wife, JO STAFFORD, from 1988. (Rebroadcast)
Interview with Phil Jackson; Review of Kate and Anna McGarrigle's album "Matapedia."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Head coach of the Chicago Bulls, PHIL JACKSON. Jackson played for eleven years with the New York Knicks, worked as a television color commentator, and coached minor-league for four years, before becoming the head coach of the Bulls who led them through three consecutive NBA championships with a unique coaching style. He pulled together a winning team of star players Michael Jordan, Scottie Pippen, and Dennis Rodman. In his book, "Sacred Hoops" (Hyperion) JACKSON shares the ways in which he seeks to transform the every-man-for-himself professional play of three of the world's best basketball players into selfless team play. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL EXTEND INTO THE SECOND HALF). INT. 2: PHIL JACKSON interview cont'd. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album by Kate & Anna McGarrigle, "Matapedia". It's their first new album in six years. (Hannibal, Rykodisc)

Interview with Faye Wattleton; Review of the film "Big Night"; Interview with Stanley Tucci.
October 2, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503031].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former president of Planned Parenthood, FAYE WATTLETON. She headed the organization from 1978 to 1992. She was raised in a fundamentalist Christian family (her mother was a minister), and later studied to be a nurse. Her work as a public-health nurse, exposed her to the hardship of women who tried to terminate their pregnancies in the days before legal abortion. WATTLETON went on to be executive director of the local Planned Parenthood, and then president of Planned Parenthood nationally. WATTLETON has written her memoir "Life on the Line" (Ballantine Books). REV. :Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new film "Big Night" co-starring Stanley Tucci, and then. . . INT. 2:Actor STANLEY TUCCI (pronounced TWO-CHEE). He's appeared in the films "Kiss of Death" and "The Pelican Brief." On television he was nominated for an Emmy for his portrayal of the slimy billionaire on "Murder One." His latest project is the film "Big Night," a homage to Italian food and family, which he co-wrote, co-directed, and co-stars in.
Interview with Catherine Deneuve; Interview with Donald Barlett and James Steele; Review of the television shows "The X-Files" and "Millennium." October 3, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502412].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: French actress CATHERINE DENEUVE talks about her new movie "Les Voleures" (Thieves). Some of her best known films include: "Belle De Jour," "Repulsion," "Indochine,""The Umbrellas of Cherbourg." Born in Paris in 1943. INT. 2: Philadelphia Inquirer investigative reporters DONALD BARLETT AND JAMES STEELE. The two talk with Terry Gross about why campaign promises related to taxes should be carefully scrutinized. BARLETT AND STEELE say if you want to know how a 15 percent tax cut would help you, you need to look at how it would impact all of the taxes you pay. They say that often the highest tax rates are found at the state or local level. BARLETT AND STEELE took several years investigating their new series "Who Stole The Dream?" It looks at how global competition and U.S. trade policies have hurt America's middle class. This series was printed in the Philadelphia Inquirer last month. Excerpts of the series can be viewed on the Inquirer's website. REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new season of the X-Files and the new show Millennium.

Interview with Eddi Palmieri; Interview with A.S. Byatt; Review of the film "Secrets & Lies."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Bandleader and pianist EDDI PALMIERI. Through his first band, La Perfecta, labeled "the band with the crazy roaring elephants," Palmieri was credited with originating Latin jazz's trombone sound in New York during the sixties. He has a new cd "Vortex" by RMM Records. Originally aired 6/20/94
INT. 2: British author A.S. BYATT. BYATT is known by many Americans for "Possession," a Booker Prize-winning Victorian novel published here in 1990. Her most recent novel is "Babel Tower." (Random House). Set in the turbulent 1960s, the book is about Frederica, a young woman involved in a divorce and custody suit, as well as the prosecution of an "obscene" book. "Babel Tower" is the third book in a planned quartet of novels ("The Virgin in the Garden" and "Still Life") set in different mid- century time frames. Besides being a best selling author, BYATT is also a critic, a reviewer, a radio dramatist, an editor, and a university lecturer. The movie "Angels and Insects" which is based on Byatt's novella "Morpho Eugenia" has recently come out on home video. Originally aired 6/6/96. REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews
"Secrets and Lies." A film from director Mike Leigh. It won the top prize at this year's Cannes Film festival in May. This film features actress Brenda Blethyn and Marianne Jean-Baptiste who were recently featured on Fresh Air.

Interview with Jam Ghajar; Interview with Phillip Johnston. October 7, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503027].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: On today's fresh air...Terry talks to neurosurgeon, DR. JAM GHAJAR. (Zham Ga Jaar) With his team of neurotrauma specialists he worked to save the life of the young piano teacher who was severely beaten in Central Park this past June. He has pioneered national guidelines in hopes of establishing national standards for the care of brain trauma patients. He is the chief neurosurgeon at Jamaica Hospital in Queens as well as the President of the Aitken Neuroscience Institute in Manhattan. On his father's side, he is a descendant of the royal family who ruled Persia from the late 1700's until 1925. His grandfather on his mother's side was the Shah of Iran's personal physician. INT. 2: Modern jazz artist PHILLIP JOHNSTON is best known for his work with the Microscopic Septet from 1980 to 1992. His latest band, "Big Trouble" has just released the album, "Flood At The Ant Farm" (Black Saint). He has a reputation as one of contemporary music's most versatile writers. In addition to playing the saxophone, Johnston has a growing interest in scoring music for film, T.V., and radio programs. He has written the theme music for "Fresh Air." He has also written music for other NPR programs, MTV, and Comedy Central.

Interview with Jay McInerney; Interview with Jim Dickinson; Review of Sheryl Crow's self-titled album. October 8, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502947].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAY MCINERNEY (Mac 'n' Ernie) talks about his latest novel, "The Last of the Savages." (Knopf) He has also written "Brightness Falls," "Story of My Life," "Ransom," and "Bright Lights, Big City," which was made into a movie starring Michael J. Fox. INT. 2: Music artist, JIM DICKINSON, talks about his friend, and legendary Memphis deejay, Dewey Philips. Philips is best known as the first deejay to play Elvis Presley on the air. Dewey Philips also pushed the racial barriers of the time by playing a mix of Interview with Bill Moyers; Interview with Jo Ann Kay McNamara. October 9, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503028].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist BILL MOYERS talks with Terry Gross about his new PBS 10-part series "Genesis: A Living Conversation." The series will premier Wednesday, Oct 16th on many PBS stations. It also has the companion book "Genesis: A Living Conversation." The book is published by Doubleday. Moyer's TV show features writers, theologians and artists discussing the first book in the bible. INT. 2: Jo Ann Kay McNamara talks with Terry Gross about her book "Sisters In Arms: Catholic Nuns Through Two Millennia." It is published by Harvard University Press. McNamara is a Professor of History at Hunter College amd at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York.

Interview with Amos Oz; Interview with John Shelby Spong; Review of Shena Mackay's novel "The Orchard on Fire." October 10, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502413].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Israeli peace activist and novelist AMOS OZ (pronounced AH-mos not A-mos). He is a veteran of the Six-Day War in 1967 and the Yom Kippur War in 1973. OZ is a leading acivist for peace between the Arabs and the Israelis. He's written his 11th novel, "Don't Call it Night." (Harcourt Brace & Co.) AMOS OZ received the German Publishers Peace Prize in 1992. Terry will also talk with him about the latest violence in the Middle East. INT. 2: BISHOP JOHN SHELBY SPONG. In his newest book "Liberating the Gospels: Reading the Bible with Jewish Eyes" (Harper, San Francisco) he reveals how Christians have misread the Gospels, by ignoring the Jewish traditions which the New Testament grew out of. SPONG has attracted controversy from the Christian community for his challenges of traditional views on women, sexual morality, and gays. Bishop Spong is the Episcopal Bishop of Newark, New Jersey. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Orchard on Fire" (Moyer Bell) by British writer Shena MacKay.

---

Interview with Johnnie Cochran; Interview with Andrew Young. October 10, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502941].

Description of show segment(s)

---

Interview with Del Martin and Phyllis Lyon; Interview with Jane Rule; Interview with Martin Duberman; Interview with Lea Delaria. October 11, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503030].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DEL MARTIN and PHYLLIS LYON, founders of the Daughters of Bilitis, (Beh-LEE-tis) the first-ever lesbian organization. They started the group in the 1950s way before any gay liberation movement, and during a period of conformity to social norms. Shortly after that, they began publishing, "The Ladder," the first Lesbian magazine. Their landmark book, "Lesbian/Woman," published in 1972 has been updated. The two are also partners in private life, they've been a couple for 39 years. For their work on public awareness of sexual issues, public advocacy, and legislation, the Society for the Scientific Study of Sexuality will present both Martin and Del with the Society's Public Service Award for 1996. Since we spoke to them in 1992, they continue to remain active in politics. They were both delegates at the White House Conference on Aging. (Originally aired 12/29/92) INT. 2:Canadian author Jane Rule, one of the best known and most widely read lesbian writers. Rule is best known for her 1985 novel Desert of the Heart, which was later adapted into the movie "Desert Hearts." She also wrote Memory Board. (Originally aired 1/29/88) INT. 3: Historian MARTIN DUBERMAN. He's written a memoir about growing up gay in the 1950s before the gay liberation movement and at a time when homosexuality was considered deviant behavior by the psychiatrists. It's "Cures: A Gay Man's Odyssey." (published by Dutton). Since our interview with him, he's authored a number of books and articles. He published "Stonewall" (Penguin) in 1993 in which he tells of the riots which were the catalyst of the modern gay and lesbian movement. His newest book, "Midlife Queer"(Simon and Schuster) came out this past spring. It is a sequel to "Cures" in which Duberman gives an autobiographical recount of the gay and lesbian movement in the 1970's. He has two anthologies which are due out this winter. After ten years, he has stepped down from the position of executive director of the Center for Lesbian and Gay St Interview with Waylon Jennings; Commentary on the word "rich." October 14, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503033].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: He's had sixteen #1 records, won two Grammy's and four Country Music Awards. Country music star, WAYLON JENNINGS has not only been awarded recognition for his talent, but he is recognized for helping to unify the country music audience. He intermingled the strict country-only traditions with rock and roll. Jennings was Buddy Holly's bass player, friend, and prot. It was Jennings who gave his seat up to the Big Bopper on the plane which would crash, killing, among others, Buddy Holly. Jennings' career began in the 1950's when he played in a band at the age of 12 and was a deejay at 14. In Jennings' autobiography, "Waylon"(Warner Books) which has just come out, he describes the ups and downs, drugs, women, rebellious young life, up through his transformation into a clear-thinking, open-minded, and inspiring country music artist. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG looks at how Americans use the word "Rich." In this election year, it has used extensively by the two presidential candidates. Nunberg looks at the origin of the word and why some "well to do" Americans don't like being called "rich."
Interview with Michael Lindsay-Hogg; Interview with James Katz and Robert Harris; Review of Claire Bloom's memoir "Leaving a Doll's House." October 15, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502815].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Music video producer and director Michael Lindsay-Hogg talks with Terry Gross about the new film "The Rolling Stones Rock and Roll Circus." Lindsay-Hogg directed the movie. The concert footage was shot 28 years ago but this will be the first time it will be shown. The film was shelved by the Rolling Stones and later lost before being rediscovered and edited into the new concert film. A companion C.D. under the same title will be released today 10/15/96 by ABKCO Records. INT. 2: JAMES KATZ and ROBERT HARRIS talk to Terry Gross about the recently restored version of Alfred Hitchcock's classic "Vertigo." KATZ was the restoration producer while HARRIS acted as restorer. REV. :Book Critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Leaving a Doll's House, a memoir by British Actress Claire Bloom (Little Brown & Co.).

Interview with Vivian Gornick; Commentary on the music group The Diablos; Interview with Edward Behr; Commentary on children starting college. October 16, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502614].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Essayist VIVIAN GORNICK talks with Terry Gross about her new collection "Approaching Eye Level." It is published by Beacon Press. Gornick writes about the many issues she's wrestled with: fear of loneliness, being alone, and her need to live in a "densely populated area. Her previous book "Fierce Attatchments" published by Simon and Schuster also contains her observations on living in the city alone. Including essays on avoiding marriage, why the telephone has killed the letter, and post-divorce living. REV. : Music Commentator MILO MILES reviews the latest CD by the Diablos INT. 2: Journalist and author EDWARD BEHR talks with Terry Gross about his new book "Prohibition: Thirteen Years That Changed America." It is published by Arcade. Behr has written ten other books including: "The Last Emperor," and "Hirohito: Behind the Myth." Behr lives in Paris and also has a home in New York. REV. :Commentator DAGOBERTO GILB has some thoughts on his son and college.
Interview with Neil Simon; Interview with Geoffrey Nunberg. October 17, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503032].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Peter Mintun; Review of the film "Get on the Bus." October 18, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502877].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: "Society" Pianist PETER MINTUN for a concert and interview in the Fresh Air Studio. He specializes in popular song classics of the 1920s, 30s and 40s. He just finished an engagement at the Carlyle Hotel's Bemelmans Bar in New York City and returns there in August. His recordings can be found on the PREMIER RECORDINGS Label. His latest is "Grand Piano: American Popular Music of the '20's, '30's, & '40's." He also wrote the liner notes for the CD, "The Night is Young: Concert Music of Dana Suesse." MINTUN also wrote the liner notes for a Dana Suesse Cd which is part of a series called "Keyboard Wizards of the Gershwin Era, Master Composers and Stylists of American Piano Music." (Pearl) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). (REBROADCAST from 5/20/96) INT. 2: PETER MINTUN continued. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Spike Lee's new film, "Get On the Bus."
Interview with Jay Leno; Commentary on early blues musicians; Interview with Jay Leno; Review of the television show "Ink." October 21, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502542].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Stand up comic and host of The Tonight Show, JAY LENO. He talks with Terry about his life: growing up, his struggling years as a standup (with other comics like Robin Williams, Andy Kaufman, and Steve Martin), and taking over The Tonight Show. LENO has written a new book "Leading With My Chin." (HarperCollins). REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD begins his five-part series on the history of the Blues. Today's installment includes Mamie Smith, Blind Lemon Jefferson, Furry Lewis, Blind Willie Johnson, and Tommy Johnson. INT. 2: Our interview with JAY LENO continues. REV. 2: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new Ted Danson sitcom "Ink."

Interview with B.B. King; Commentary on blues music after the Great Depression; Interview with B.B. King. October 22, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502545].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: He's known as the King of the Blues. B.B.(Blues Boy) KING was born on a cotton plantation in Mississippi before moving to Memphis where he began his career. Since then, among numerous other awards, he's received seven Grammies, an MTV award, and a Presidential Medal of the Arts. He is also a member of the Rock-and-Roll Hall of Fame. In his biography, entitled "Blues All Around Me"(Avon Books) he recounts his life from his early days in Mississippi, to breaking into the music business in Memphis, to his career today. He has over 74 albums to his credit. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV.: Music critic, ED WARD has part two in our week long series tracing the evolution of blues music in America. Today Ed focuses on the growth of blues music after The Depression. INT. 2: B.B. KING (continued)
Interview with Burton Visotzky; Commentary on blues music after World War II; Interview with Burton Visotzky; Review of Mona Simpson's novel "A Regular Guy." October 23, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502871].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Al Pacino; Commentary on blues and rock and roll; Interview with Frank McCourt. October 24, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503110].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor AL PACINO talks with Terry Gross about his new movies "Looking for Richard." Pacino directed, produced and stars in this experimental film that takes us behind the scenes of a production of Shakespeare's Richard the Third. This film features appearances by Winona Ryder, Alec Baldwin, Vanessa Redgrave and Kenneth Branagh. Pacino has said that putting this production together has been a lifelong dream of his. The film opened October 11th in New York. Also Pacino currently stars in the Broadway production "Hughie." Eugene O'Neil's story about a deflated gambler. The production will close November 2nd. Some of the films Pacino has been featured in include: Serpico, Scarface (remake), Scent of a Woman, Carlito's Way, The Godfather I,II,III., City Hall, The Panic in Needle Park, Sea of Love, Dog Day Afternoon, Heat, Bobby Deerfield, Scarecrow. Also Pacino currently stars in the Broadway production "Hughie." Eugene O'Neil's story about a deflated gambler. The production will close November 2nd. REV. : Rock Critic ED WARD has part four of our five part series on the evolution of blues music in America. The music comes from the CD box: "The Blues: A Smithsonian Collection Interview with Robert Haas; Commentary on blues and the folk revival; Interview with Elvis Costello; Review of the television show "EZ Streets"; Review of the film "Swingers." October 25, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502612].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: U.S. Poet Laureate ROBERT HASS. (Rhymes with "ass"). He's written several books of poetry including "Praise," "Human Wishes," He also edited "The Essential Haiku: Versions of Basho, Buson & Issa." (The Ecco Press) He's been nominated to receive the National Book Award for his latest collection of poems, "Sun Under Wood" (The Ecco Press). In addition to his job as a Poet Laureate, which will continue through to this May, Hass is involved in environmental activism and he continues to teach in the English department of the University of California at Berkeley. (REBROADCAST from 4/23/96)

REV. 1: Rock Critic ED WARD has part five of our five part series on the evolution of blues music in America. The music comes from the CD box: "The Blues: A Smithsonian Collection of Classic Blues Singers" (The Smithsonian Collection). INT. 2: Singer/songwriter ELVIS COSTELLO. Previously with the band The Attractions, he later went solo. Since then he has performed and recorded with The Brodsky Quartet and jazz guitarist Bill Frisell. He's written about 300 songs. His latest release is "All This Useless Beauty" (Warner Bros) which he recorded with The Attractions. (REBROADCAST from 6/4/96) REV. 2 TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new cop drama "EZ Streets" which premieres on CBS Sunday Night REV. 3 Film critic JOHN POWERS review the new independent film "Swingers," about a group of young men trying to make it in Hollywood.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Documentary film producer PAUL STEKLER. He co-produced the new film series, "Vote for Me - Politics in America" a look at how American culture is reflected in local politics. This PBS series, to be aired October 28 and 29, examines the various things candidates will do in their campaigns to be elected. STEKLER, with his co-producers received a DuPont-Columbia Journalism Award for a series done in 1993, entitled "Louisiana Boys, Raised on Politics." Also interviewed at the same time was MAGGIE LAUTERER, the subject of one "Vote for Me" episode. She's a former journalist and first-time candidate who ran for Congress in North Carolina, and lost. INT. 2: BEN KINGSLEY. He is the British actor who won an Academy Award for Best Actor for his performance in the film, "Ghandi." He's also known for his roles in "Bugsy," Schindler's List," "Sneakers," "Dave" "Searching for Bobby Fischer," "Species," and many more movies as well as plays. Kingsley was a member of the Royal Shakespeare Company, the Royal Court in London and the National Theatre. His new film is "Twelfth Night." REV. : Music Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the CD "The Voice of Tony Burrows." It is released by Varese Sarabande Records. Burrows rode up the charts during the British invasion. The CD is a collection of hits by Burrow's who was known for spinning out hit after hit in the late 1960's and early 70s under a different name or bands.

Interview with Carl Perkins; Review of the television show "Public Morals." October 29, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502086].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: He's the man who wrote "Blue Suede Shoes," the hit song sung by Elvis Presley which became the first Sun label record to sell over a million copies. CARL PERKINS has also written the songs, "Matchbox," "Honey Don't," and "Everybody's Trying to Be My Baby" which have been recorded by the Beatles. PERKINS is the pioneer of a style of music called Rockabilly, which is described as "a country man's song with a black man's rythm." PERKINS, born in Tennessee, learned to play guitar from his uncle and formed a band with his two brothers before touring the South with Elvis Presley and Johnny Cash. It was Cash who gave Perkins the idea for the song, "Blue Suede Shoes." PERKINS has just written a new

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Late-night talk show host CONAN O'BRIEN. He took over David Letterman's spot in 1993, and his "Late Night with Conan O'Brien" has just celebrated it's third birthday. Previous to that, O'BRIEN was a writer for Saturday Night Live. His sketches included "Mr. Short Tery Memory" and "The Girl Watchers." He was also a writer/producer for "The Simpsons." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Novelist GEOFF NICHOLSON. He's been described by Kirkus Reviews as "The British master of social satire." He's written nine novels, short stories, and written for radio, television, and the stage. His newest novel is "Footsucker" whose narrator is a serious man with a full life and a foot fetish. (published by the Overlook Press). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE 1:00 FLOATER) REV. : No review.

Interview with John Dilulio; Interview with Jerome Miller. October 31, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503551].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director of the Brookings Institution Center for Public Management, JOHN DILULIO, JR. (pronounced "D-OO-lee-oh"). He's also a professor at Princeton University and member of the Council on Crime in America. He's just co-authored a new book in which he and others warn that though violent crime by juveniles may be down now, the worse is yet to come. They blame violent crime not on economic poverty, guns, or the use of lack of prisons. They argue that "moral poverty" is the cause, the absence of "loving, capable, responsible adults who teach the young right from wrong." Their book is "Body Count: Moral Poverty... And How to Win America's War Against Crime and Drugs" (Simon & Schuster) INT. 2: President and founder of the National Center on Institutions and Alternatives JEROME MILLER. When he was commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Youth Services (1969-1972) he closed down the state reform schools and placed residents in community programs. MILLER closed down the reform schools because of the brutal, inhumane way the residents were treated. His "experiment" turned out to be a success. He wrote about it in the book "Last One Over the Wall: The Massachusetts Experiment in Closing Reform Schools" (1991, Ohio State University Press). MILLER also has a newer book, "Search and Destroy: African-American Males in the Criminal Justice System" (Cambridge University Press) in which he blames the criminal justice system for contributing to the breakdown of the inner city. REV. : No review

Interview with Toni Morrison; Review of Amy Rigby's album "Diary of a Mod Housewife"; Commentary on skiing; Commentary on email. November 1, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502676].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pulitzer Prize winning novelist TONI MORRISON. At next week's national book awards ceremony she will receive a special medal for distinguished contribution to American letters. In 1992, at the time of this interview she had a new novel "Jazz," (published by Knopf) and a book of essays, "Playing in the Dark." (by Harvard). Her novel, "Beloved," won the Pulitzer prize. She's written five novels in all. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/24/92). REV. 1: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new solo album by Amy Rigby. In the early eighties, Amy Rigby was part of the all-woman punk band the Shams, and following that, a country-rock outfit called Last Roundup. After a long silence, she's back with a new solo album called "Diary of a Mod Housewife." Ken Tucker is also critic at large for Entertainment Weekly.

INT. 2: An excerpt from the next edition of "This American Life" from WBEZ: A performance excerpt from monologist, actor and writer SPALDING GRAY. His latest show "It's a Slippery Slope" opens this Sunday at New York's Lincoln Center Theater. This excerpt was recorded at Chicago's Goodman Theater. He's known for his monologues which include; "Monster in a Box" about all the distractions that prevented him from completing his novel, Impossible Vacation, and Swimming to Cambodia about filming a movie in Cambodia. Last year GRAY released a book about his eye problems, and his adventures in the mainstream and alternative health care industries. It's called Gray's Anatomy. (Vintage Books). REV. 2:Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG looks at the evolution of new media technology. He looks at how it has affected our language Interview with Lynda Obst and Bruce Wagner; Review of the Cardigan's album "First Band on the Moon." November 4, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503552].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Two guests discuss their work in Hollywood: (1) Movie producer LYNDA OBST. Her films include "The Fisher King" and "Sleepless in Seattle." More recently she produced "One Fine Day" with Michelle Pfeiffer and George Clooney. She's written a new memoir about her ten years producing: "Hello, He Lied: Other Truths From the Hollywood Trenches" (Little, Brown and Company) (2) writer BRUCE WAGNER. His credits include scripts for the disturbing TV series "Wild Palms" and the film "Scenes From the Class Struggle in Beverly Hills." He's also written the novel "Force Majeure." His latest book is a novel about Hollywood "I'm Losing You." (Villard) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "First Band on the Moon" by the Cardigans, an alternative rock band from Sweden (Mercury Records).

Interview with Harry Shearer; Review of the album "The Best of the Barely Works"; Interview with Elizabeth Newhall; Commentary on historically black colleges and universities. November 5, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502675].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Satirist and columnist HARRY SHEARER. He is one of the creators of and performers in the mock-rock group Spinal Tap, and he is also the host of the syndicated NPR radio program, "Le Show." In addition, he does several voices on "The Simpsons" and is a weekly commentator on ABC TV’s World News Now. SHEARER will give some of his impressions of the 1996 electoral campaign. He will also share some of his skits. REV. 1: critic MILO MILES reviews "The Best of the Barely Works" (on Cooking Vinyal). INT. 2: Recently the Food and Drug Administration conditionally approved the sale of RU486, the French abortion pill, in the United States. The drug won't be available widely until mid next year. DR. ELIZABETH NEWHALL (pronounced "NEW-HALL") works in a clinic in Portland, Oregon, where they have been testing the drug with their patients. REV. 2: Commentator GERALD EARLY wonders why black community does and doesn't work.
Interview with Roger Simon; Interview with Michael Berube; Review of recordings of the Budapest String Quartet's performances at the Library of Congress. November 6, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502679].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Nationally syndicated columnist and author ROGER SIMON. He's covered every presidential election for the past twenty years. He'll give us his impression of the election, the day after. SIMON wrote the book "Road Show" about the 1988 presidential election. He's currently working on a book about this year's campaign which will be out next year. INT. 2: Writer MICHAEL BERUBE (pronounced "BEAR-ru-bay"). He's written for The New Yorker and The Village Voice. He's a professor of English at the University of Illinois and is the author of the new book, "Life As We Know It: A Father, a Family, and an Exceptional Child," (Pantheon Books) about the birth of his son in 1991, Jamie, who has Down syndrome, and how that has affected their life. BERUBE writes in the introduction, "individual humans like James are compelling us daily to determine what kind of 'individuality' we will value, on what terms, and why." REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a series of live recordings by the Budapest Quartet made at the Library of Congress in the early 1950s (Bridge Records).

Interview with Anthony Minghella; Interview with Alice Munro; Commentary on television coverage of the presidential election. November 7, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503550].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director ANTHONY MINGHELLA. He made his film debut with the highly acclaimed, "Truly, Madly, Deeply." His latest project is the film version of the novel, "The English Patient" by Michael Ondaatje which won England's prestigious Booker Prize in 1992. INT. 2: Canadian writer ALICE MUNRO. She has a new collection of short stories, "Alice Munro: Selected Stories," (Knopf). Her stories have appeared in The New Yorker, The Atlantic Monthly, and The Paris Review. She's written seven previous short story collections, and has received Canada's highest literary prize three times. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reflects on election coverage.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Veteran TV journalist DAVID BRINKLEY will retire this week. Brinkley is host of ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley." He is also getting attention this week for calling President Clinton a "bore" and for saying the President "doesn't have a creative bone in his body." But for this archive show, we went back and found and interview with Brinkley that highlights what he'll be most remembered for and that is his half century of journalism. His book, Washington Goes to War, was a surprise best-seller in 1988. The book, based on Brinkley's personal experiences and reflections, told the story of Washington in the early 40s, and how both the government and town itself were transformed by the responsibilities thrust on them as a result of the war. Other books by him include "David Brinkley" published last year by Knopf. Also "Everyone Is Entitled To My Opinion." also published by Knopf. Brinkley was born in 1920 and raised in Wilmington, N.C., Brinkley began writing for the local paper in high school. He soon graduated to the United Press and, by WW II, was working for NBC Radio in Washington, D.C. He slowly moved into TV and was paired with Chet Huntley at the 1956 political conventions. Their immediate chemistry led to the top-rated Huntley-Brinkley Report on the NBC Network. He left NBC and to join ABC to host This Week With David Brinkley. (REBROADCAST from 7/6/89) REV. 1: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN considers "The Rules: Time-tested Secrets for Capturing the Heart of Mr. Right" by Ellen Fein and Sherrie Schneider (Warner Books). INT. 2: Irish Writer WILLIAM TREVOR, whom The New Yorker called "probably the greatest living writer of short stories in the English language." Besides his eight volumes of short stories, he has written eleven novels, several plays for stage and for radio and television, and stories for The New Yorker, The New York Times, and other magazines. In 1994 his memoir, "Excursions in the Real World" was published by Knopf. He writes about h Interview with Bruno Kirby and Alan Zweibel; Review of the album "Earl Hines Plays Cole Porter"; Interview with Paul Theroux; Commentary on corporate language. November 11, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502028].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor BRUNO KIRBY and playwright ALAN ZWEIBEL. ZWEIBEL has written the play "Bunny Bunny" about his friendship with Gilda Radner who he met while working on "Saturday Night Live." Their friendship lasted the rest of her life. The play is on view through December 1st at Plays and Players Theatre in a Philadelphia. KIRBY plays Zweibel in the play. KIRBY has also been in the films "Good Morning, Vietnam," "When Harry Met Sally," and "The Freshman." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the reissue "Earl Hines Plays Cole Porter" (New World). INT. 2: Travel author and novelist, PAUL THEROUX. His extensive travels have taken him through Africa, Asia and Central America. In his earlier writings, a central theme of his work was the ironic examination of the clashing and mingling of Western and Third World cultures. Theroux's first book was "Waldo." He has also written "Riding the Iron Rooster," which gives an account of his travels by train through China. His new book, "My Other Life" (Houghton Bufflin) is a work of fiction, based on his experiences and encounters as a world traveler. His interview was recorded at the Free Library in Philadelphia. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on corporate language.

Interview with Jason DeParle; Interview with Robyn Davidson. November 11, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501852].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times writer JASON DEPARLE. He covers poverty and social welfare issues for the Times. Recently DEPARLE has been writing about the disappearance of affordable housing. Government guidelines suggest that renters should be paying 30% of their income for housing, but many of our nations disabled and poor are paying 50, 60 and 70 percent of their income on housing. On top of that government subsidies for low-income housing have all but disappeared. DEPARLE's New York Times Magazine cover story about housing appeared on October 20, 1996. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: From Australia, writer and adventurer ROBYN DAVIDSON. Her book "Tracks" (paperback, Vintage) was the account of her 1,700 mile journey across Australia with four camels and a dog. It won the 1980 Thomas Cook Travel Book Award. Her next adventure was a trip across the Indian desert with nomads, which she chronicled in the new book "Desert Places." (Viking).

(This Interview Continues After The 1:00 Floater) REV.: no review

Interview with George Anders; Review of the television show "The Larry Sanders Show"; Interview with Philip Levine. November 13, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501961].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Senior special writer for the Wall Street Journal, GEORGE ANDERS. He's been covering business side of medicine since 1993. His new book is "Health Against Wealth: HMOs and the Breakdown of Medical Trust." (Houghton Mifflin) REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the season premiere of the HBO comedy, "The Larry Sanders Show" which returns after a year off the air.
INT. 2: Pulitzer prize-winning poet PHILIP LEVINE. He grew up in Detroit and worked in the factories as a young man. He's probably best known for his 1992 book of poems about the working class, "What Work Is," (Knopf) which won a National Book Award. He has several volumes of poetry as well as a sort of memoir. He won the Pulitzer for his collection, "The Simple Truth" (Knopf). His forthcoming book (NOT OUT YET!!!) is "Unselected Poems," LEVINE is currently teaching at New York University. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Marty talks with two people about the Rwandan refugee chrisis: Regional Emergency Coordinator for Care International in Zaire, CHRIS CUSHING. He's been working in the refugee camps there. Care set up operations there shortly after the 1994 Rwandan Civil War. Journalist PHILIP GOUREVITCH (Gur-RAY-vitch) who is based in Rwanda. He writes frequently on the region for The New Yorker. He's currently working on a book about Rwanda and the aftermath of the 1994 civil war. Last week GOUREVITCH was in Zaire. He'll talk with Marty Moss-Coane about the political backdrop to the

Description of show segment(s)

REV.1 : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new film "The English Patient." INT. 1: Poet and novelist MICHAEL ONDAATJE (on-DAH-chay). He won Britain's highest literary prize, the Booker Prize, for his novel set in post World War II, "The English Patient," (Vintage Books). ONDAATJE was born in Ceylon (now Sri Lanka), emigrated to England, and now lives in Canada. He also has written a personal memoir, "Running in the Family," (Vintage) about his eccentric family. Both books are now out in paperback. "The English Patient" has been made into a new film. (REBROADCAST from 1/6/94) INT. 2: Opera soprano DAWN UPshaw. She has a new recording called "Dawn Upshaw sings Rodgers and Hart." We'll hear a sample from the cd and an excerpt of an 1994 interview with Upshaw. Monday on Fresh Air we'll feature Dawn Upshaw in a concert recorded at WHYY. INT. 3: Film director PHILIP HAAS. His movie is "Angels & Insects" based on the novella "Morpho Eugenia" by writer A.S. Byatt has been released on video previously, HAAS made his feature film debut with "The Music of Chance," adapted from a Paul Auster novel. REV. 2 : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN considers Shakespeare's re-emergence on the silver screen. Three Shakespeare movies will be out by Christmas. November 13 - 17, 1995

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Opera soprano DAWN UPshaw will perform a concert (recorded at WHYY), in which she includes highlights from her just-released album "Dawn Upshaw sings Rodgers and Hart" (Nonesuch) as well selections by Leonard Bernstein, Mark Blitstein and George Gershwin. UPshaw has more than two dozen albums to her credit and has become widely known for her ability to perform both in the opera as well as sing Broadway tunes. UPSHAW joined the Metropolitan Opera in 1984 and has performed at the Met. Many of the world's leading conductors have invited UPSHAW to appear with some of the finest orchestras, including The Chicago Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Berlin Philharmonic. She is known for her performance of such songs as "Manhattan," "I Didn't Know What Time it Was," "I Could Write a Book," "I Feel Pretty," and "Little Girl Blue." UPSHAW will perform two sets in the concert. In one, she will be accompanied by jazz pianist, FRED HERSCH and in the other, Broadway music director, ERIC STERN leading a 15-piece ensemble. Singer DAVID GARRISON also performs. Terry Gross will talk with both HERSCH and UPSHAW in the early part of the hour.

Interview with Andrew Grove; Review of Binjamin Wilkomirski's memoir "Fragments"; Interview with Sigred Nunez. November 19, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501962].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: President and C.E.O. of Intel, ANDREW GROVE. Intel is the world's largest manufacturer of microprocessing chips, and the seventh most profitable company among the Fortune 500. GROVE was born in Hungary and emigrated to the United States in 1956. He spoke very little English when he arrived. By 1960, Grove had received a Bachelor of Chemical Engineering degree from the City College of New York and in 1963, he received his Ph.D from the University of California, at Berkeley. GROVE participated in the founding of Intel and became its president in 1979 and chief executive in 1987. GROVE has written several articles and books, his newest book "Only the Paranoid Survive"(Doubleday) reveals some of the philosophy and strategy behind his success. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Fragments" the new memoir by Binjamin Wilkormirski about being a child of the Holocaust. (translated from the German by Carol Brown Janeway, published by Schocken Books) INT. 2: Novelist SIGRID NUNEZ. Her debut autobiographical novel was "A Feather on the Breath of God," (HarperPerennial). NUNEZ's newest novel is "Naked Sleeper." (HarperCollins). One reviewer calls it "a fine novel of maturing at 40." Another writes: "a steady, superbly insightful study of a life as quietly complex as the reader's own."
Interview with Julia Sweeney; Review of Fluffy's album "Black Eye." November 20, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502024].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedienne JULIA SWEENEY. The former Saturday Night Live performer, was best known for, Pat, the gender-ambiguous character. SWEENEY took the character the big screen, but the result was a flop. At about the same time she learned that her brother had cancer, taking him into her home to take care of him while he was getting treatment. Her parents moved in too for the time being. SWEENEY began work on a performance piece as a way to deal with the situation. SWEENEY's brother eventually died, and she was diagnosed with cancer shortly before that. She's now in remission. SWEENEY's one woman show is "God Said, Ha!" (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)
INT. 2: JULIA SWEENEY interview continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Black Eye" the debut album by the new English band known as "Fluffy."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor CLINT EASTWOOD and film critic RICHARD SCHICKEL. SCHICKEL has written a new biography of EASTWOOD, "Clint Eastwood: A biography" (Knopf, publication date 29 Nov). EASTWOOD reached stardom in the spaghetti westerns such as "A Fistful of Dollars," and "The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly." Then he became known for his role in a number of films as police inspector Harry Callahan, otherwise known as "Dirty Harry." He was director and played the lead in "Play Misty for Me," and "Unforgiven." EASTWOOD is an avid jazz fan; he also directed "Bird" which starred Forest Whitaker as Charlie Parker, and he produced "Straight No Chaser" a documentary about Thelonious Monk. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a CD by the Patrick Zimmerli Ensemble titled "Explosion." It is released by the Canadian music company Songlines. Patrick Zimmerli is a saxophonist living in New York. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY shares his thoughts on teaching at Nashville's historically black Fisk University.
Interview with Sonny Rollins; Review of the television show "In Cold Blood"; Interview with William Shatner; Interview with Jeff Bridges; Review of the film "Breaking the Waves." November 22, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502025].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Legendary jazz musician, SONNY ROLLINS. He's been called the greatest living jazz improviser and the greatest virtuoso that jazz has ever produced. Rollins's latest release is "Silver City" (Milestone), a two disk anthology released by Milestone, his recording company, in celebration of their 25 year affiliation with Rollins. Rollins has played with musicians of modern jazz such as Thelonious Monk, Miles Davis, Charlie Parker, and Bud Powell. Rollins, together with his wife and manager, Lucille, have included such songs as "Autumn Nocturne," Skylark," "Harlem Boys," "G-Man," and "I'm Old Fashioned." (REBROADCAST from 2/2/94) INT. 2: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews CBS's remake of "In Cold Blood" based on the Truman Capote book. INT. 3: Actor WILLIAM SHATNER. He's best known for his role of Captain Kirk on the original Star Trek. (REBROADCAST from 11/1/93) INT. 4: Actor JEFF BRIDGES of the famous Bridges Family. His father is Lloyd Bridges, star of the TV series "Sea Hunt," and his brother is actor Beau Bridges. He's starred in alot of movies, including: "Winter Kills," "Cutter's Way," "Starman," "The Last Picture Show," "Jagged Edge," "Tucker: The Man and His Dream," "The Fabulous Baker Boys," and "The Fisher King." He's currently starring in the new film "The Mirror Has Two Faces." (REBROADCAST from 5/17/93) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new foreign film, "Breaking the Waves."

Interview with Jimmy Carter; Review of Jaguars' album "El Equilibrio de los Jaguares"; Interview with Norma Storch and June Cross; Commentary on growing up on a turkey farm. November 25, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501855].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former President, JIMMY CARTER. Since leaving the White House, Carter has become one of America's leading elder statesmen. He has led numerous peace delegations to many war stricken countries through the Carter Center which he founded in 1982. Carter and his associates work to resolve conflict, promote democracy, protect human rights, and prevent disease and other afflictions. Carter has written eleven books, including the national bestseller, "Always a Reckoning"(Times Books). In his most recent book, "Living Faith"(Times Books) he shares personal experiences about how his religious faith has helped him through the most challenging times of his life. He demonstrates how people of all faiths can find common ground in serving God and one another. Carter and his wife, Rosalynn are regular volunteers for Habitat for Humanity and live in Plains, Georgia. Carter who served from 1976-1980 was the nation's 39th President. REV. 2: MILO MILES reviews the new CD by Jaguars. (hag-ar-es) The album is "El Equilibrio De Los Jaguares." INT. 2: We'll hear from NORMA STORCH and JUNE CROSS who are featured in this week's Frontline program entitled "Secret Daughter." Storch who is white gave up her half black child to a black couple. We'll hear from both mother and daughter as they reflect back. Norma Storch (mother) is married to actor Larry Story who starred in the TV comedy F-Troop in the mid 1960's. June Cross (daughter) is a television producer for the PBS series "Frontline." REV. 2: We'll hear an excerpt from the new NPR radio show, "This American Life" produced at WBEZ in Chicago. Short fiction writer, JULIE SHOWALTER talks about growing up on a turkey farm in Missouri.

Interview with Garry Kasparov; Interview with John Updike; Review of Margaret Atwood's novel "Alias Grace." November 26, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503092].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Current World Chess Champion GARRY KASPAROV. (CASS-par-ov). This past spring in Philadelphia in a well publisized match, Kasparov beat IBM's Deep Blue, which was considered the most competitive chess computer to date. Kasparov recently has been promoting chess as a learning tool in schools. Recently in New York, Kasparov told grade school students that chess is a positive alternative to video games. These words, come as Kasparov promotes his new chess computer game "Talking Coach Kasparov" by Saitek. It has the unique feature of having an electronic chess tutor talk to you when you're in trouble. Kasparov was born in Moscow and was an outspoken critic of communism during the Cold War. After the fall of the Soviet Union, Kasparov in addition to playing world class competitive chess he is also the co-founder of "Democratic Russia" a political movment that supported Boris Yeltsin's election as President. INT. 2: Writer JOHN UPDIKE on Golf. America's pre-eminent writer has written forty-seven books, including 17 novels. The Pulitzer Prize winning novelist, poet, and essayist has now turned his attention to his other passion Golf in "Golf Dreams: Writings on Golf by John Updike." It is published by Knopf. His most recent novel was "In the Beauty of the Lilies." (Knopf 1996). REV. :Book Critic
MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Margaret Atwood's new crime fiction work "Alias Grace" published by Doubleday.

Interview with Glenn Close; Interview with Charlie Louvin. November 27, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503088].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Actress GLENN CLOSE. She currently stars in Disney's "101 Dalmatians" as Cruella De Vil. Before taking up this role, she appeared on Broadway in "Sunset Strip." Close has appeared in a number of films including: "Fatal Attraction," "The Big Chill," "The Natural," "Dangerous Liaisons." INT. 2: Country Music performer CHARLIE LOUVIN. In the 1950's, He and his brother Ira Louvin were were regulars at the Grand Olde Opry. Ira was later killed in a car accident. Charlie has recently re-recorded many of their hits which are featured on his new CD "The Longest Train" released by Watermelon Records.

Interview with Larry Gelbart; Interview with Ron Popeil; Review of Cecilia Bartoli's album "Chant d'Amour." November 28, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503089].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Comedy writer LARRY GELBART. In the 1950s he was part of a team of television writers that included Carl Reiner, Mel Brooks, Neil Simon, and others who wrote for Sid Caesar's "Your Show of Shows" and "Caesar's Hour." GELBART went on to develop and write for the television version of "M*A*S*H. Also, he wrote the screenplays for "Oh, God!" and "Tootsie," and the stage play for "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" (which has recently been revived on Broadway). There's a PBS special about Sid Caesar's comedy team, "Caesar's Writers" which will be rebroadcast on many PBS stations in December. In January, the Writers Guild of America will pay tribute to GILBART. (REBROADCAST from 8/19/96) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Inventor and the man called "the greatest marketer/salesman of the television era," RON POPEIL (Po-PEEL). He's sold everything from the Veg-O-Matic to the Pocket Fisherman on television, amassing over one billion dollars in sales. He's written a book about how he did it, "Ron Popeil:
The Salesman of the Century" (DTP Trade paperbacks, with Jefferson Graham). (REBROADCAST from 2/7/96) REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Chant d'amour" the new CD by mezzo-soprano CECILIA BARTOLI and pianist Myung-Whun Chang. . . of French songs from the 19th & 20th century. (London label)

Interview with Sonny Bono; Interview with Cher; Interview with Sonny Bono. November 29, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502380].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Sonny Bono talks about his music career and his experience working with music producer Phil Specter. Bono first gained national fame as half of the "Sonny and Cher" entertainment couple. The two were married but later divorced. We'll hear about the Cher years in the second half of the show. After leaving the music business, He entered politics. He was elected as Mayor of Palm Springs, California from 1988-1992. In 1994, As a Republican from California's 44th Congressional District he was elected to the U.S House of Represenatives. Earlier this month, He won re-election to Congress. This interview was originally aired 7/17 and 7/18 in 1991. INT. 2: Cher talks about her her acting and music career. Last month, HBO premiered the film "If These Walls Could Talk." Cher co-starred and co-directed the film. Also this year, Cher starred in "Faithful" with Ryan O'Neal and Chazz Palminteri. There's more, a CD called "The Casablanca Years" was released this year featuring many of her past hits. Also, Nickelodeon's TV Land, a cable channel dedicated to old shows, is airing "The Sonny and Cher Show." This interview originally aired 7/2/96. REV. : Sonny Bono. We return to Bono to hear him talk about his years married to Cher and their years together as a successful entertainment team.

Interview with Gena Rowlands; Obituary for Tiny Tim. December 2, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503091].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress GENA ROWLANDS (jen-ah...roe-lenz). She won acclaim for her performance in "A Woman Under the Influence" and "Gloria." ROWLANDS collaborated with her late husband, actor/screenwriter/and director, John Cassavetes for thirty years. ROWLANDS is starring in the new film "Unhook the Stars"(Miramax Films) in which she plays Mildred, a middle-aged woman who finds herself at a crucial turning point in her life. The film was written and directed by ROWLAND'S son, Nick Cassavetes. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Singer and performer TINY TIM. He died over the weekend of heart failure. He was 64. Born Herbert B. Khaury, TIM began performing in the 1950s. He was best known for his performances on Laugh-In, especially his croonings of "Tip Toe Through the Tulips." Earlier this year TINY TIM released the album "Girl" (Rounder) in conjunction with the band Brave Combo, a Texas world beat polka band who began working on the project with the eccentric Tiny Tim eight years ago. The CD featured many familiar tunes (including "Bye Bye Blackbird," "Hey Jude" and even "Stairway to Heaven") like they've never been performed before. (REBROADCAST from 6/17/96)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Crime novelist JAMES ELLROY. ELLROY was born in Los Angeles in 1948. After his mother was mysteriously strangled to death when he was ten, he grew up obsessed with crime. His life spun towards booze, drugs, theft, and jail. He eventually, at the age of 27 cleaned up his life and began writing. He has written several novels, many of which were international best-sellers, including "American Tabloid"(Knopf), "Clandestine"(Avon Books), "The Black Dahlia"(Warner Books), and his most recent novel, "My Dark Places"(Knopf) in which he tells the story of his mother's murder, how it has effected his life, and his search for the killer. INT. 2: Tenor saxophonist and composer, ELLERY ESKELIN. He's been called the most inventive American tenor player in creative music. His father, Rodd Keith, (also known as Rod Rodgers) was killed when he was struck by cars on the Hollywood Freeway after leaping or falling from the Santa Monica Boulevard overpass. ESKELIN only knew his father for the first eighteen months of his life. As he grew up he was inspired and intrigued by the continuous stories he heard about him and his musical talent. He has produced a collection of his father's recordings titled "I died Today - Music of Rodd Keith"(for the Tzadik label's "Lunatic Fringe" series). ESKELIN's latest album of his own music is "Jazz Trash" (Songlines Recordings, Vancouver, B.C.) REV. : ESKELIN continued.
Interview with Spalding Gray; Review of Counting Crows' album "Recovering the Satellites." December 4, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502379].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Monologuist SPALDING GRAY. Since 1979 he's been performing monologues about his life and anxieties before audiences: "Swimming to Cambodia" was about the Vietnam war and his acting part in the film "The Killing Fields," "Monster in a Box" was about writing/vacation and Hollywood, and "Gray's Anatomy" was about an eye ailment. In all, GRAY has written and performed 15 monologues. His latest is considered his most confessional, "It's a Slippery Slope" about the breakup of his marriage, an affair, and the birth of his first child. In a New York Times review, Peter Marks writes "with a baby to distract him, the monologuist seems to have begun a dialogue. It's a hopeful omen in a clear-eyed and life-affirming performance piece." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: SPALDING GRAY continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Recovering the Satellites" (Geffen) the new album by the San Francisco Band, Counting Crows.

Interview with Eddie Muller; Commentary on Carol Kaye; Interview with Laura Joplin; Review of the film "The Crucible." December 5, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502696].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: EDDIE MULLER has collaborated in the new book, "Grindhouse: The Forbidden World of 'Adults Only' Cinema" (w/Daniel Faris, St. Martin's Press). The book is a visual history of adult cinema and all it's paraphernalia (posters/advertisements/lobby cards) from the 1920s thru the 1970s. Many of the items used in the book, MULLER rescued from a dumpster of an old theatre in San Francisco. MULLER is a journalist and is founder and director of the San Francisco Historical Boxing Museum. REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD tells us about bass player Carol Kaye who he says, in the early 1960s, "virtually invented electric bass playing." INT. 2: LAURA JOPLIN is the younger sister of the rock legend Janis Joplin. Her new book "Love XX Janis," (Villard Books) was inspired by a bundle of letters Laura found of her sister's. This is the first time the letters are published. LAURA was six years younger than Janis, and was 21 when Janis died. There's a new VH1 documentary series "Legends" about Janis Joplin in which Laura reads some of the letters of her sister. (It debuted Dec 2.) REV. 2 : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Crucible."

Interview with Robert Kimball; Interview with Charles Schulz; Review of the television show "Samson and Delilah." December 6, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502702].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today marks the 100th birthday of Ira Gershwin who died in 1983 at the age of 86. One man who knew Ira and his work well is ROBERT KIMBALL who compiled and edited The Complete Lyrics of Ira Gershwin. (Knopf) He also serves as artistic advisor to the estate of Ira Gershwin. Kimball is currently working on the next book in The Knopf series "The Complete Lyrics of Irvine Berlin." Today's 100th birthday event will be in New York. The ceremony "Ira Gershwin at 100: A Celebration at Carnegie Hall" will be televised on PBS on Great Performances in March 1997. Our interview with Kimball was originally aired on 1/17/94. INT. 2: "Peanuts" creator CHARLES SCHULZ. CBS will broadcast the classic Peanut's cartoon "A Charlie Brown Christmas" December 19, 1996. The show has been an annual tradition at CBS since 1965. Also, An exhibit featuring the "cels" or cartoon drawings of Peanuts is showing in New York this month at the Museum of Television and Radio. The exhibit moves to the Museum's Los Angeles facility next month. This interview originally aired 12/18/90. REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews this Sunday's TNT cable channel presentation of "Samson and Delilah."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biological and chemical warfare. LEONARD COLE has written "The Eleventh Plague, the Politics of Biological and Chemical Warfare."(W.H. Freeman and Company) In it, COLE tells about the extraordinary danger posed by biological and chemical weapons. He reveals, among other things, how the United States Army conducted tests for many years using both biological and chemical agents on Americans. In addition, COLE explores the current debate over what has been called "The Gulf War Syndrome." Some 80 thousand veterans have requested special Government medical examinations to determine if they are suffering from health problems related to their service in the war. COLE is a professor of Science and Public Policy at Rutgers University at Newark. INT. 2: Painter JIM DINE. For over thirty years his work has been collected and exhibited internationally. In New York his work is represented in a number of museums, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Museum of Modern Art, and the Whitney Museum of American Art. DINE has lived and worked all over the world, including New York, London, Vermont, Salzburg, Paris, and Berlin. An exhibit of his work, "North" recently opened at Pace Wildenstein in New York. This collection consists of nine large paintings of crows, hearts, owls, and skulls which DINE made in Berlin and New York. DINE's wife, filmmaker Nancy Dine was nominated this year to receive an Academy Award for Best Documentary: Short Subject for "Jim Dine A Self Portrait on the Walls." REV. :

Interview with James McDaniel; Review of the artist formerly known as Prince's album "Emancipation." December 10, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502985].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: He is known as Lieutenant Arthur Fancy on NYPD Blue (Steven Bochco Productions), the Emmy Award-winning police drama. Emmy nominee actor JAMES McDANIEL. McDANIEL has appeared in numerous television, film and theater productions, including the films "Strictly Business," "Malcolm X," and "Alice." He's also received the Clarence Derwent Award for his performance in the Broadway play, "Six Degrees of Separation." McDANIEL has appeared on the television shows "Kate and Allie," "Hill Street Blues," "L.A. Law," and "Civil Wars." This past summer McDANIEL filmed the feature "Fighting Gravity" (A.K.A. "Truth or Consequences") with Kieffer Sutherland, Rod Steiger, and Martin Sheen. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with JAMES McDaniel continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new CD by the artist formerly known as Prince, "Emancipation" (on the NPG/div. of EMI/Capitol label).
Interview with Dorothy Thomas and Deborah LaBelle; Interview with Warren Williams; Interview with Maurice Levine. December 11, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502881].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Human Rights Watch/Women's Rights Project has issued a new report which alleges that there is widespread sexual abuse of women prisoners in U.S. state prisons by prison guards. It's based on data conducted from March 1994 to November 1996. DOROTHY THOMAS, director of the Women's Rights Project researched and wrote the report. Terry Gross will talk with DOROTHY THOMAS and with attorney DEBORAH LABELLE who has represented women prisoners in theIR grievances. The report is titled, "All Too Familiar: Sexual Abuse of women in U.S. State Prisons" (Human Rights Watch, tel: 212-972-8400; fax: 212-972-0905 INT. 2: Spokesman for the Michigan Department of Corrections WARREN WILLIAMS discusses the Human Rights Watch report. He says the head of the Michigan Department of Corrections is critical of the report. The report alleges there was sexual abuse of female inmates in Michigan state prisons. INT. 3: Artistic Director MAURICE LEVINE. For 26 years he has been director of the 92nd Y's "Lyrics & Lyricist" series. It spotlights American lyricists and composers like Alan Jay Lerner, Stephen Sondheim, and Dorothy Fields. The series has consistently been a sell-out. LEVINE has also served as musical director/conductor/vocal arranger for Broadway shows and produced for television. Many of the "Lyrics & Lyricists" programs are available on CD, including "An Evening with Johnny Mercer" also Sheldon Harnick, Alan Jay Lerner, Sammy Kahn, and Kander and Ebb. (On the DRG label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Hustler Magazine publisher LARRY FLYNT. A new movie "The People vs. Larry Flynt" will open at theaters this month. In addition, Flynt's autobiography "An Unseemly Man: My Life as Pornographer, Pundit and Social Outcast" was published this month by Dove Books. Flynt was paralyzed in 1978 after being shot by a man who said he was offended by an inter-racial depiction of a couple he saw in Hustler. In Feb of 1988, The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in favor of Flynt and Hustler magazine in a landmark libel case filed by the Rev Jerry Falwell. REV. :Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel by South African writer Andre Brink. It is titled "Imaginings of Sand" published by . Brink first made a name for himself in the 1960s as one of a new generation of African writers who wanted their work to be more politically outspoken. INT. 2:JOSEPH and JULIA QUINLAN. They are the parents of Karen Ann Quinlan. JOSEPH QUINLAN died this past Saturday at the age of 71. A lawyer for the family said the cause was bone cancer. He and his wife became early pioneers in the "right to die" debate after they fought for the legal authority to remove a respirator that their daughter was attached to after doctors said she had no hope of coming out of a coma. Twenty years ago the New Jersey State Supreme Court issued it's landmark decision (March 31, 1976) allowing their comatose daughter to be removed from a ventilator. She then lived nine more years. The Quinlans wrote about Karen in the book "Karen Ann: The Quinlans Tell Their Story," (Doubleday-1977). In 1980 they used the proceeds from the book to open the Karen Ann Quinlan Center of Hope Hospice in Newton, New Jersey. This interview originally aired April 9, 1996.

Interview with Milos Forman; Interview with Dorothy Allison; Review of the films "Jerry Maguire" and "Mars Attacks." December 13, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502987].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director MILOS FORMAN (ME-losh For-man). He co-produced with Oliver Stone the new film "The People vs Larry Flynt." In this interview Forman talks about his own experiences with censorship. He is originally from Czechoslovakia and began his film career in his native country, apprenticing with some of the country's best film makers for the Communist state-controlled film industry. He was part of the Czech New Wave cinema with films such as "Black Peter," "Loves of a Blonde," and "Fireman's Ball." FORMAN was orphaned during World War II; both his parents were seized by the Gestapo. Then he lived under Communism. FORMAN is the director of such American films as "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "Amadeus," "Hair," and "Ragtime." FORMAN wrote a memoir in 1994 called "Turnaround," (written with Jan Novak, published by Villard Books). This interview orginally aired 4/4/94. INT. 2: Writer DOROTHY ALLISON. Her novel "Bastard Out of Carolina" has been adapted to a new movie that will be shown on the Showtime cable channel this weekend. The 1992 novel is about a poor South Carolina family's violence and incest, and it's largely autobiographical. She says that she doesn't like most abuse literature out today because it tends to eroticize abuse. Allison has also written a book of short stories called "Trash" and a book of poems called "The Women Who Hate Me." The idea for her novel came from a poem in "The Women Who Hate Me," called "To The Bone." ("Bastard" is published by Dutton.) This interview originally aired 9/9/92. REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews two new films that will open at select theaters today "Jerry Maguire" and "Mars Attacks"

Interview with John Dugdale and Robert Levithan; Review of books for the holiday season.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Photographer JOHN DUGDALE is joined by psychotherapist ROBERT LEVITHAN to talk about a new class of AIDS fighting drugs. Both men have the AIDS virus but are being treated with a new class of drugs that have enhanced the quality of their health and lives. They are receiving protease inhibitors which have the effect of blocking an enzyme crucial to the life cycle of of the AIDS virus. These drugs are considered the most significant breakthrough in the fight against AIDS since the epidemic began.

JOHN DUGDALE is a New York photographer who lost more than 75 percent of his vision to an AIDS related condition. But he continues to work as a photographer saying that he uses the fuzzy gray images that he sees as his guide. His photographs are collected in the recent book "Lengthening Shadows Before Nightfall" (Twin Palms Publishing) ROBERT LEVITHAN (lev-eh-than) is a New York psychotherapist who primarily counsels people with AIDS. He also conducts workshops called "out living AIDS" for those with AIDS who are living longer than expected. He is currently writing a book about that is expected to be called "Outliving Myself." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN gives us her Holiday picks for the best books to buy as presents: "Angela's Ashes" by Frank McCourt (Scribner) "Great Books" by David Denby (Simon & Schuster)"Committed to Memory," a collection of 100 best poems in English, edited by John Hollander"Life As We Know It" by Michael Berube (Pantheon)"Mason's Retreat" by Christopher Tilghman"Derby Dugan's Depression Funnies" by Tom DeHaven"A Letter From Mary" by Laurie R. King.
Interview with Joyce Dixson; Review of Volumes 4 - 7 of the CD series "Television's Greatest Hits"; Interview with Chaim Herzog; Review of the year's best children's books. December 17, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503191].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOYCE DIXSON co-founded "Sons and Daughters of the Incarcerated" a group which helps children whose own parents are in prison. Dixson served seventeen years in prison after being convicted of shooting her husband. DIXSON herself left two children behind when she went to prison in 1976. During her time there she became a paralegal and became the first woman to earn an undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan while incarcerated. DIXSON reduced her sentence from a first-degree murder charge to a second-degree and was released from prison in 1993. She went directly to the University of Michigan and earned a master's degree in social work. REV 2. TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews several new CD's that feature some of the all time favorite TV Themes. INT. 2: CHAIM (Hyme) HERZOG was President of Israel 1983-1993. He served as Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations in the 1970's. He has been involved and present for almost all of the great and tragic events in Israeli history. In addition to being President, he has been, a soldier, a journalist and an author. HERZOG was born in Ireland in 1918. His father was the Chief Rabbi of Ireland. He has written a memoir documenting his experiences in Israel and dealing with leaders such as Arafat, Rabin, Carter, Reagan, Bush, and Clinton called "Living History" (Pantheon Books.) REV 1.: Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN recommends her favorite children's books of the year. "The Christmas Tree," "Sam and the Tigers," "Little Black Sambo" (revised edition) "The Complete Adventures of Curious George" "The Golden Compass."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MIKE PHILLIPS is the project leader of the Yellowstone National Park Wolf Restoration Program. Last year, 14 Gray Wolves were transported from the Canadian wilderness to Wyoming. It marked the beginning of the project to restore wolves to an area from where they had been absent for nearly 100 years. He provides an update on the program. Phillips has co-authored a book with Douglas Smith titled "The Wolves of Yellowstone." It is published by Voyageur Press. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: An excerpt from a recent panel discussion in Philadelphia on the future on the Internet. It was moderated by Terry Gross and took place November 1, 1996 at the University of Pennsylvania. The guests include JAMES GLEICK (glick) who writes about technology for the New York Times Sunday Magazine. PAUL GINSPARG a theoretical physicist in Los Alamos, New Mexico who has developed a specialized electronic bulletin board for scholars. SHERRY TURKLE is the author of "Life on the Screen: Identity in the Age of the Internet." She is a Professor of Sociology in Science at M.I.T. in Cambridge, Ma. PAUL EVAN PETERS, the Executive Director of the Coalition for Networked Information, died a few days after participating in this panel. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER). REV. : NO REVIEW Interview with Albert Brooks; Review of the CD box set "Miles Davis & Gil Evans December 19, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502984].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor, screenwriter, and film director ALBERT BROOKS. His new movie "Mother" co-stars Debbie Reynolds. He talks about his move from comedy to a career in the movies, as well as his relationship with his own mother. INT. 2: Interview continues. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews a new CD box set of recordings by Gil Evans and Miles Davis.

Interview with Catherine Deneuve; Review of the film "Shine"; Interview with John Lithgow; Obituary for Carl Sagan. December 20, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502882].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: French actress CATHERINE DENEUVE talks about her movie "Les Voleures" (Thieves). The film opens on Christmas Day in New York and Los Angeles and will hit selected theaters around the nation early next year. Some of her best known films include: "Belle De Jour," "Repulsion," "Indochine," and "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg." This interview originally aired Oct 3, 1996. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS review the new Australian film "Shine." The story was inspired by the troubled life of classical pianist David Helfgott. INT. 2: Actor JOHN LITHGOW. He's known for his role as Dick Solomon on NBC's comedy series show, "Third Rock From the Sun." LITHGOW is a two-time former Oscar nominee and has recently earned an Emmy nomination for his role in the show. LITHGOW has appeared in a number of movies, including, "The World According to Garp," "Terms of Endearment," Memphis Belle," "Footloose," "Raising Cain," "The Manhattan Project," "Cliffhanger," and "The Pelican Brief." LITHGOW graduated from Harvard and won a Fulbright Scholarship which he used to study at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art. He has performed in a number of Broadway shows, including "The Changing Room," "The Front Page," and "M. Butterfly." LITHGOW currently lives in Los Angeles. This originally aired 4/28/88. Int. 3: Astronomer and Pulitzer Prize winner CARL SAGAN died today at the age of 62. A spokesman for the Cancer Research Center says Sagan died from pneumonia after suffering from bone marrow disease for two years. Sagan won the Pulitzer in 1978 for his book "Dragons of Eden" and was the author of several other best-selling books on space and the universe including: "Intelligent Life in the Universe," "Mars and the Mind of Man," "Other Worlds." He was a professor at Cornell University, the Director of the Laboratory for Planetary Studies, and a pioneer in the field of exobiology, the branch of biology investigating the possibility of extraterrestrial life. In 1980, his PBS show "Cosmos"

---

Interview with Milos Forman; Interview with Peter J. Gomes; Review of Beck's album "Odelay."

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Barbara Lea and Tony Tamburello; Review of the films "Evita" and "Portrait of a Lady"; Commentary on bad Christmas music; Interview with several musicians about Christmas music. December 24, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502908].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1:Singer BARBARA LEA (Lee) with a musical tribute to Cole Porter. She had her start singing in the 1950s in Boston and then moved to New York where she recorded her first album in 1955 to critical acclaim. She's been compared to the late Lee Wiley. Her other influences are Mildred Bailey and Billie Holiday. She dropped out of singing for a while but made a comeback during the 70s in New York's cabaret world. LEA is accompanied by pianist TONY TAMBURELLO. He was Sinatra's rehearsal pianist, and he was on the road accompanying Tony Bennett for 21 years. (REBROADCAST FROM 6/07/91) REV. :Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Evita". The new film starring Antonio Banderas and Madonna and he reviews "Portrait of a Lady". REV. :Rock Critic ED WARD has selected some of his favorite awful Christmas music. Ed Ward is co-author of Rock of Ages: The Rolling Stone History of Rock and Roll. Originally broadcast 12/24/90. INT. 2:In this segment we'll play some Christmas music, from previous Fresh Air concerts. The segment includes Susannah McCorkle, Charles Brown singing "Merry Christmas Baby," and composers Martin and Blane telling the story behind their song, "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas." (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 12/24/90)

Interview with Jeff Moss; Interview with Kate McGarrigle and Anna McGarrigle. December 25, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503078].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JEFF MOSS was one of the original creators and writers of "Sesame Street." He created Cookie Monster and Oscar the Grouch, and wrote such songs as "Rubber Ducky" and "People in Your Neighborhood." He has won 13 Emmy's, four Grammy's, and an Oscar nomination for his work on "Sesame Street" and with the Muppets. Moss is also the author of four books for children, including the recent "Hieronymus White: A Bird Who Believed That He Always Was Right" (Ballantine Books). (Rebroadcast from 11/30/1994) INT. 2: A CONCERT with the McGarrigle sisters, Kate and Anna. There's a new CD of their first two albums, released in the late 70s: "Kate & Anna McGarrigle" and "Dancer with Bruised Knees." The McGarrigles are known for their close and "subtle harmony." Their music is considered hard to categorize, although it sounds folky. The sisters absorbed an eclectic blend of music when they were growing up in Canada: Victorian ballads, blues, jazz, French-Canadian folk songs, Broadway tunes, and country music. They may be best known for their song, "Heart Like a Wheel," which was the title track on Linda Ronstadt's most successful album. (Rebroadcast from 06/21/1993)

Description of show segment(s)

NT. 1: Singer, songwriter, guitarist and actor, WILLIE NELSON. He's recently released two new albums. With "Spirit," NELSON is the first country musician to record with Island Records. NELSON wrote the 12 new songs and they demonstrate influences of country, gospel, and pop. He recorded "How Great Thou Art" (Fine Arts Records) with his sister, Bobbie Nelson. That CD is a collection of gospel standards, like "Swing Low Sweet Chariot" and "Just A Closer Walk With Thee." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) (Rebroadcast from 07/16/1996) INT. 2: (Interview with WILLIE NELSON continued) INT. 3: A concert and interview with Louisiana born singer/songwriter LUCINDA WILLIAMS. She's joined by guitarist GURF MORLIX. Williams' influences have been Bob Dylan, Delta Blues man, Robert Johnson, Van Morrison, and writers Flannery O'Connor and Eudora Welty. In the late 70s she made two obscure folk albums. But she didn't really find her own voice until 1988 when she produced her own album ("Lucinda Williams," Rough Trade Records) of original songs. One reviewer wrote of the album, "such stunning directness... and unforced artistry that it exposed the bulk of that year's... pop music as embarrassingly bloated and hollow." (Rebroadcast from 08/28/1992)

Interview with Loudon Wainwright; Interview with Arthur Alexander, Ben Vaughn, Bobby Jay, Seth Baer, and Mike Vogelmann. December 27, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503080].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert with LOUDON WAINWRIGHT III. he performs songs from his new album "Grown Man." by Virgin Records. This is his 15th album. Interview conducted by Rock Critic Ken Tucker. INT. 2: ARTHUR ALEXANDER's songs were recorded on early records by The Beatles and The Rolling Stones.
This excerpt from his Fresh Air concert in 1993 was recorded just a few months before he died of a heart attack (Rebroadcast from 05/07/1993)

Interview with Richard Thompson; Tribute to Irving Caesar; Interview with Rebecca Kilgore and David Frishberg. December 30, 1996. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502980].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: An in studio concert and interview with singer/songwriter, guitarist RICHARD THOMPSON. He first became known for his work with "Fairport Convention." He's since gone solo and is known for his dark songs which blend elements of British folk ballads and the blues.(THIS CONCERT/INTERVIEW continues into the second half of the show) Originally aired 2/7/94. INT. 2: Interview and concert with RICHARD THOMPSON continues. REV. : We remember lyricist IRVING CAESAR who wrote such songs as "Tea for Two," "Swanee," and "I Want to Be Happy." We play a cut from an old album "And Then I Wrote" (Coral Records). CAESAR died earlier this month at the age of 101. INT. 3: From a 1995 in-studio concert, jazz singer REBECCA KILGORE and pianist DAVID FRISHBERG perform a song to celebrate the new year.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A review of the years best films with critic JOHN POWERS. He'll talk with Terry about which are his favorites and why. They are: 1) Chung King Express 2) Trainspotting 3) Single Girl 4) Secrets & Lies 5) Portrait of a Lady 6) Mother 7) The English Patient 8) La Ceremony 9) Breaking The Waves 10) Big Night. INT. 2: A review of the year's best pop music with critic KEN TUCKER. He'll talk with Terry about his favorites and why: (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE REST OF THE SHOW)Top Ten Albums:1) "Odelay" by Beck2) "Black Eye" by Fluffy3) "Sheryl Crow" by Sheryl Crow4) "Diary of a Mod Housewife" by Amy Ribgy5) "House of Music" by Tony, Toni6) "Spirit" by Willie Nelson7) "First Band on the Moon" by The Cardigans8) "Just When We're Thinking It's Over" by the Cox Family9)
"Grown Man" by Loudon Wainwright, III
"Call the Doctor" by Sleater Kinney

REVIEW: No review. KEN TUCKER cont'd.

Interview with Dawn Upshaw, Fred Hersch, Eric Stern, and David Garrison. January 1, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502982].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Opera soprano DAWN UPSHAW will perform a concert (recorded at WHYY), in which she includes highlights from her just-released album "Dawn Upshaw sings Rodgers and Hart" (Nonesuch) as well selections by Leonard Bernstein, Mark Blitstein and George Gershwin. UPSHAW has more than two dozen albums to her credit and has become widely known for her ability to perform both in the opera as well as sing Broadway tunes. UPSHAW joined the Metropolitan Opera in 1984 and has performed at the Met. Many of the world's leading conductors have invited UPSHAW to appear with some of the finest orchestras, including The Chicago Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Berlin Philharmonic. She is known for her performance of such songs as "Manhattan," "I Didn't Know What Time it Was," "I Could Write a Book," "I Feel Pretty," and "Little Girl Blue." UPSHAW will perform two sets in the concert. In one, she will be accompanied by jazz pianist, FRED HERSCH and in the other, Broadway music director, ERIC STERN leading a 15-piece ensemble. Singer DAVID GARRISON also performs. Terry Gross will talk with both HERSCH and UPSHAW in the early part of the hour. (REBROADCAST from 11/18/1996) INT. 2: Concert continues. REV. : Concert continues.

Interview with Diane Keaton; Commentary on Ebonics. January 2, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503046].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress DIANE KEATON. She's currently starring in the new film "Marvin's Room" the film adaptation of the 1991 play about a young man dying of AIDS and his family who cared for him. KEATON also stars in the new film "The First Wives Club." KEATON is probably best known for the comic chemistry she developed with Woody Allen. She was 23 when he cast her in his Broadway play "Play It Again, Sam." She won the Academy Award for Best Actress for her role in Allen's "Annie Hall."
She's also best known for her roles in "The Godfather" films. INT. 2: Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG comments on Ebonics.

Interview with Charles Busch; Commentary on a gay man's relationship with his parents. January 3, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502976].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright, female impersonator, and now novelist CHARLES BUSCH. His play, the camp classic, "Vampire Lesbians of Sodom," was the longest-running play in Off-Broadway history. His other plays include, "Psycho Beach Party," and "Red Scare on Sunset." Also a show which parodied the variety shows of the 60s, "The Charles Busch Revue," in which he made seven costume changes in an hour and 15 minutes. BUSCH's also wrote a novel, "Whores of Lost Atlantis," (published in 1993 by Hyperion). BUSCH currently stars in the one-man show in New York City, "Flipping My Wig." (REBROADCAST from 7/29/93) INT. 2: A segment from the NPR show, "This American Life". It's about a family broken apart by the son's homosexuality. The program, titled "Sissies" originally aired on T.A.L. 12/13/96. "This American Life" is produced at WBEZ in Chicago.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Broadway composer BURTON LANE died yesterday at the age of 84. His wife says he suffered a stroke. He's written the scores for several Broadway shows, including "Finian's Rainbow" and "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever." Lane collaborated with Michael Feinstein on the album, "Michael Feinstein Sings the Burton Lane Songbook", which features many of Lane's classic songs, such as "Old Devil Moon" and "How About You." This interview originally aired 11/5/90 INT. 2: Philadelphia Inquirer reporter JEFFREY FLEISHMAN. He recently traveled across the Himalayan Mountains with a group of Buddhist monks and nuns, who were fleeing from persecution by the Communist Chinese government in Tibet. Some of them had been imprisoned and tortured by the Chinese. If caught, they would be sent back to prison and tortured. During their 14-day trek they experienced frost-bite, snow blindness, oxygen-

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and director KENNETH BRANAGH (rhymes with "Savannah"). He's currently starring in the new film adaptation of Shakespeare's "Hamlet." There's a companion book to the new film "Hamlet" which includes the screenplay, introduction, and film diary (W.W. Norton). Branagh's other films include adaptations of Shakespeare's "Henry the Fifth", with himself in the title role, Othello, playing Lago, "Dead Again," a psychological thriller starring Branagh and Emma Thompson, and "Much Ado About Nothing," also starring himself. Branagh was born in Northern Ireland, studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, spent two years with the Royal Shakespeare Company, as well as acting, managing, and directing other groups and working on several BBC productions. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: BRANAGH continued. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews new vocal reissues by American Soprano Eleanor Steber and Brazilian opera singer Bidu Sayao from 1954 and 1945 (Sony, Masterworks Heritage Vocal Series).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pacific Northwest Bureau Chief for the New York Times TIMOTHY EGAN. His two-part series on urban sprawl in the western United States recently appeared in the Times (Dec 29, 30). EGAN writes that cities like Las Vegas, Phoenix, Denver, and Salt Lake are growing rapidly, with growth, for the most part going unchecked. In Phoenix, he writes that land is being consumed at the rate of "an acre an hour." But in Portland, Oregon city officials over 20 years ago set up guidelines to control rampant growth. Because the city has the "strictest laws against urban sprawl in the nation" urban Portland is surrounded by forest, farms and open space. EGAN has also written a book a book about the Pacific Northwest, called "The Good Rain." (by Knopf, 1990). INT. 2: British writer JONATHAN RABAN. His new book "Bad Land: An American Romance" (Pantheon) is based on memoirs, diaries, photographs and letters of immigrants who in the early 1900s traveled to Montana to homestead. RABAN himself is something of an immigrant; he settled in Seattle in 1990. One reviewer calls RABAN's new book "a stunning triumph." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Sun Died" (Soul Note) featuring tenor saxophonist Ellery Eskelin.

Interview with Joe Nocera and Ron Chernow; Interview with Judith Martin; Commentary on surf music. January 9, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502981].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fortune magazine's Senior editor JOE NOCERA and historian RON CHERNOW. They can both be seen in the new Frontline documentary "Betting on the Market" (PBS airdate: Tues, Jan 14, 1997). The documentary is based in part on Nocera's 1994 book, "A Piece of the Action: How the Middle Class Joined the Money Class" (published in 1994). The documentary traces America's obsession with Wall Street, and looks at the consequences. NOCERA serves as correspondent in the film. CHERNOW is the author of "The House of Morgan" which received a National Book Award in 1990. He has also been commentator on NPR's "Morning Edition." INT. 2: Newspaper columnist and the etiquette expert, JUDITH MARTIN (otherwise known as Miss Manners). Her new book is "Miss Manners' Basic Training: Communication" (Crown News) about the social issues of the technological age dealing with phone answering machines, e-mail, and cyberspace. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD tells us about surfer music.

Interview with Ted Koppel; Interview with Bill Maher; Interview with Sarah Jessica Parker; Tribute to Catherine Scorsese. January 10, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503057].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Host of ABC'S "Nightline" TED KOPPEL. He has a new memoir about his 16 years with the news show and his life before journalism. It's called "Nightline: History in the Making and the Making of Television" (Times Books, by Ted Koppel and Kyle Gibson). (REBROADCAST from 5/30/96) INT.
2: Host of Comedy Central's "Politically Incorrect," BILL MAHER. The former stand-up comic's new book is "Does Anybody Have a Problem With That: Politically Incorrect's Greatest Hits," (Villard) With panelists of diverse ideologies (Patty Hearst to Al Sharpton to G. Gordon Liddy...) and sometimes explosive conflicts, the show has been described as "the McLaughlin Group on acid." "Politically Incorrect" can be seen now on right after Nightline on ABC. BILL MAHER'S previous book is a novel called "True Story" (Random House). (REBROADCAST from 6/13/96). INT. 3: Actress SARAH JESSICA PARKER. She's been acting for most of her life, including playing Annie on Broadway, the young bimbo in "L.A. Story," and a fed-up fiancee in "Honeymoon in Vegas." PARKER also starred in film "Miami Rhapsody," and can currently be seen in the films "First Wives Club" and "Mars Attacks." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER) (Rebroadcast from 01/30/1995). REV. : CATHERINE SCORSESE was the mother of director Martin Scorsese, who cast her in several of his movies. She died this past Monday at the age of 84. We have this remembrance.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Mystery novelist Janwillem van de Wetering (pronounced Yon-VIL-em VAN de VETERing) Born in Rotterdam in 1931, Wetering was once a motorcycle gang member in South Africa, an aspiring monk in Kyoto, Japan, and a police officer in Amsterdam. He is currently living in Maine. The Dutch author's colorful past has led him to be known as an eccentric and hypnotic storyteller whose latest novel "The Hollow-Eyed Angel" (Soho), the 13th in his Amsterdam cop series, is a story of crime and modern morality. His novels "The Blond Baboon" and "The Maine Massacre" have recently been reprinted on Soho. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Cellist/bassist/arranger MATT BRUBECK. Born in Connecticut, Brubeck is the son of jazz pianist Dave Brubeck. He's been involved in classical music since college at Yale, and is a member of the Berkeley Symphony. In addition, he performs jazz both locally and internationally, composes for Club Foot Orchestra and leads the group Oranj Symphonette in their debut album "Oranj Symphonette Plays Mancini" (Gramavision). Described as an original interpretation of the music of Henry Mancini, the album puts new sound into music commonly thought of as easy listening. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : NO REVIEW

- Page 1684 -

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times Reporter JOHN F. BURNS. Burns has followed the latest events of Afghanistan's 18-year-old civil war, concentrating on the rise to power of the Taliban (TAL-ah-ban), an Islamic religious movement. Burns examines the Taliban's effect on the war-torn country's laws and punishment, including stonings, amputations, and executions. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with JOHN BURNS continued. REV. : Interview with JOHN BURNS continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director of the Partnership for Women's Health, at Columbia DR. MARIANNE LEGATO. She's the co-author of the new book "What Women Need to Know: From Headaches to Heart Disease and Everything In Between." (Simon & Schuster) INT. 2: Record producer, songwriter NEIL INNES (IN-ess). He is a founding member of the comedy-rock group "The Bonzo Dog Band." He's also a member of "Rutles" the band which he and Eric Idle of Monty Python, created as a spoof of the Beatles. The band has recently been reunited and has a new collection "The Rutles Archaeology" (Virgin Records). INNES is also considered the "seventh Python" player (as in the Monty Python) because he provided and performed comedy music for the troupe. The Rutles first came to the attention of the public in 1978 when their spoof documentary "All You Need is Cash" aired. Many of the original stars of Saturday Night Live appeared in the film. (The film is on video by Rhino). (THIS INTERVIEW EXTENDS THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : Interview with NEIL INNES continued.
Interview with William Greider; Interview with Sonsyrea Tate; Review of the television show "The Naked Truth." January 16, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503578].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist WILLIAM GREIDER (GRY-der). He's National Editor for Rolling Stone, and a former Washington Post editor. GREIDER assesses the state of capitalism in his new book "One World, Ready or Not: The Manic Logic of Global Capitalism" (Simon & Schuster), writing that an industrial and economic revolution is taking place in the world. In the book he examines the result of this emerging revolution, claiming that its effects may be far greater than that of the industrial revolution. He has also written the national bestsellers "Who Will Tell the People" and "Secrets of the Temple" (Simon & Schuster). INT. 2: Journalist SONSYREA TATE (Pronounced "SAHN-suh-ray"). Tate, growing up in the sixties and seventies as a member of the Nation of Islam, witnessed the struggles of blacks in a predominantly white America. In her autobiography, "Little X," (HarperCollins) she tracks the personal history of her family and draws on their everyday experiences as members of the Nation to bring new understanding to its traditions. TATE has been a staff writer for the Virginia Pilot, Chicago Tribune, and The Washington Post. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the sitcom "The Naked Truth" which is back on NBC tonight.

Interview with Terry Jones, Interview with Michael Palin; Interview with John Cleese; Interview with Graham Chapman; Review of the film "Everyone Says I Love You." January 17, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503055].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TERRY JONES, a member of the comedy troupe Monty Python. JONES did much of the writing for the troupe. He directed most of their movies, often appearing as one of the Python women. JONES now writes children's books in England. He's been involved with the films, "Nuns on the Run," and "Splitting Heirs." (REBROADCAST FROM 11/13/87) Actor, comedian, filmmaker, and author MICHAEL PALIN. In the fall of 1988, PALIN recreated the journey Jules Verne described in "Around the World in 80 Days." PALIN turned his journey into a very successful 8-part TV BBC series. He is of course also known for his tenure as a member of Monty Python's Flying Circus and his appearances in "The Missionary" and "A Fish Called Wanda." He's also appearing in the new film "Fierce Creatures" which was co-written by John Cleese. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/17/90) INT. 2: Actor, writer, and Montly Python member JOHN CLEESE. Post-Python, CLEESE is best known for "Fawlty Towers," and a number of movies, including his 1988 comedy, "A Fish Called Wanda." He's also written a book called "Families and How to Survive Them" with therapist Robyn Skinner. He co-wrote and stars in the new film "Fierce Creatures" which teams up the same cast from "Wanda." (REBROADCAST FROM 6/22/90) Comic GRAHAM CHAPMAN. He was the straight man in the Monty Python troupe who would come in and break up the skits. A physician by training, he was a writer and activist for gay rights. He died in 1989. (REBROADCAST FROM 7/2/87) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Woody Allen's new MUSICAL, "Everyone Says I Love You."

Interview with Miller Williams; Interview with Leon Higginbotham; Review of Babyface's album "The Day." January 20, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503059].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet and professor MILLER WILLIAMS. He teaches at the University of Arkansas. He's been asked to read at Clinton's Inauguration. He's best known for his narrative, dramatic, poems of everyday people. He's had a number of collection of poems published. His latest is "The Ways We Touch." (University of Illinois Press) which was originally scheduled for a Fall 1997 release, but moved up because of the Inauguration. INT. 2: Former Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit LEON HIGGINBOTHAM, JR. He's an expert on race and the legal process and a recipient of the Presidential Medal of Freedom. His new book is "Shades of Freedom: Racial Politics and Presumptions of the American Legal Process" (Oxford University Press). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release by "Babyface" "The Day."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and essayist NANCY MAIRS. She is the author of several books, "Ordinary Time," "Voice Lessons," and "Plaintext." In many of her books she deals openly and honestly about the progression

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist MARTIN MAYER. He writes about finance, advertising, education and law, but his expertise is in finance. His written many books. His latest: "The Bankers: The Next Generation: The New Worlds of Money, Credit and Banking in an Electronic Age" (Dutton) is a rewritten, updated version of his best selling book on banking which he wrote 20 years ago. INT. 2: Producer/writer/director JEANNE JORDAN. She and her husband Steve Ascher's documentary "Troublesome Creek: A Midwestern" is the story of her family's struggle to save their Iowa farm, which had been in the family for 125 years. The film won the Best Documentary and Audience Awards at Sundance in 1996. The film opens nationally in January. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews country singer Johnny Paycheck's "The Real Mr. Heartache" a reissue of his honky-tonk music from the 1960s. (Country Music Foundation).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live concert in the WHYY Forum with clarinetist and jazz musician DON BYRON and his "Bug Orchestra." On their new recording "Bug Music" (Elektra Nonesuch) they play the music of The Raymond Scott Quintette, John Kirby & His Orchestra, and the Duke Ellington Orchestra. BYRON has become best known for playing klezmer, but musically he's all over the map: He plays jazz with his Don Byron Quintet, modern classical music with the Semaphore quintet, and he toured Europe with Music for Six Musicians, an Afro-Cuban ensemble. One of BYRON's earlier recordings is "Don Byron Plays the Music of Mickey Katz," (Elektra Nonesuch). (THIS CONCERT CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: DON BYRON REV. : " "

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former senator and Democratic presidential candidate PAUL TSONGAS. He died Saturday at the age of 55. He died from complications of lymph cancer. TSONGAS ran his presidential campaign in 1992 on the issue of the economy, offering tough solutions to the nation's economic problems. During the campaign his cancer (which was in remission) was an issue. His book "Heading Home" (Vintage Books, 1992) was about his fight with cancer. He also wrote the book "Economic Call to Arms" which was published by his presidential campaign. (REBROADCAST from 6/19/92) REV. : Commentator MILO MILES reviews two new reissues of singer Tracy Nelson: The Best of Tracy Nelson/Mother Earth and Mother Earth Presents Tracy Nelson Country (both on Reprise Archives Label.") INT. 2: Poet and novelist JAMES DICKEY. He died Sunday at the age of 73, from complications of lung disease. DICKEY was the author of the novel "Deliverance" and the screenplay for the movie of the same name. He said he wrote novels to pay the bills, but his first love was poetry. He wrote more than 20 collections of poetry. (REBROADCAST from 9/30/93) REV. : Rock historian ED WARD remembers veteran bluesman Z.Z. Hill.

Interview with E. Fuller Torrey; Interview with Susan Berman; Review of Han Bennink and Dave Douglas's album "Serpentine." January 27, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502081].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: E.FULLER TORREY, M.D., a research psychiatrist at the Neuroscience Center of the National Institute of Mental Health and has come out with a new book, "Out of the Shadows: Confronting America's Mental Illness Crisis" (John Wiley & Sons, Inc.) Calling the disease a human tragedy and major social problem, Torrey examines the dangers of neglecting the mentally ill and provides political and economic approaches necessary for change. Torrey is the author of 12 books in all, including the best-selling book "Surviving Schizophrenia." INT. 2: Journalist, novelist, and playwright SUSAN BERMAN. Berman's childhood is rooted in the infamous, fast-paced, Vegas lifestyle of a mafia family. Her latest book, "Lady Las Vegas" (TV Books), tells the story of her experience as the daughter of Davie Berman mafia partner to Bugsy Siegel. She is also the author of four other books, including her acclaimed memoir "Easy Street." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the CD "Serpentine" (Songlines) featuring Han Bennink and Dave Douglas.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Founder and president of First Nations Development Institute, REBECCA ADAMSON. The organization helps Native Americans build economic self-sufficiency. They fund projects which rely on traditional values and help tribal communities gain control of their land and natural resources. ADAMSON started the organization 16 years ago as a single mother. Now the Institute raises and distributes millions of dollars for microenterprises from coast to coast. And ADAMSON was the recipient of one of Ms. Magazine's "Women of the Year Award." (The address of the First Nations Development Institute is The Stores Building, 11917 Main Street, Fredericksburg, VA 22408; ph. 540-371-5615). INT. 2: Film critic JOHN POWERS has just returned from the Sundance Film Festival where he was a juror. He'll talk with Terry about his experience there. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Independent People" the novel by Icelandic author Halldor Laxness which was first published in 1946 and has been out of print until now.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chef ROBERT LEHMANN (pronounced LAY-man) He is the former Executive Chef of MANNA, a meals-delivery service organization for homebound people with AIDS in Philadelphia. As such he developed diet and nutrition standards for people who are HIV positive. He has a new book: "Cooking for Life: A Guide to Nutrition and Food Safety for the HIV-positive Community" (A Dell Trade Paperback). LEHMANN is currently Projects Coordinator for HIV Nutrition Research at The Graduate Hospital in Philadelphia. (A book signing for LEH`MANN's book will take place Feb 20th at Giovanni's Room in Philadelphia). INT. 2: Filmmaker KEN BURNS is the director of "The Civil War" and "Baseball," the hit documentaries on PBS. The former was the network's highest rated series. BURNS' newest project is the three-hour documentary, "Thomas Jefferson" about our third president, narrated by Ossie Davis. (It premieres on PBS in February). BURNS' other documentaries include "The Brooklyn Bridge," "The Statue of Liberty," and "Empire of the Air," about the early history of radio. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY considers the past and the future of Fisk University.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Freelance journalist and music critic FRED GOODMAN. He is also a former Rolling Stones and Billboard editor and current contributing editor to Microsoft Network's (MSN) Music Central. In a new book, "The Mansion on The Hill" (Times Books), Goodman chronicles how the record industry has changed rock 'n roll from the music of the counterculture to a billion dollar commercial enterprise. Goodman's past publications have appeared in The New York Times, Vanity Fair, New York, and Spy. INT. 2: Linguist WILLIAM LABOV (pronounced La Bove (like "cove")) from the University of Pennsylvania discusses Ebonics. He's been studying Black English for 30 years and traced the rules governing Black and White English. He also examined the differences between the two and explored the roots of the changes taking place in the languages. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV. : LABOV continued.
Interview with Lawrence Block; Interview with Tim Roth; Review of the Spice Girls' album "Spice." January 31, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502513].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Veteran crime novelist LAWRENCE BLOCK. He's written 13 novels featuring Manhattan private eye Matt Scudder. His novels have followed Scudder through alcoholism and into recovery through an Alcoholics Anonymous program. His newest Scudder novel, "Even The Wicked" has just been published (William Morrow & Company) (REBROADCAST from 12/20/95) INT. 2: British actor TIM ROTH. ROTH has been in the films such as "Tom and Viv," "Pulp Fiction," "Reservoir Dogs," and "Rob Roy." He's currently starring in the films "Gridlock'd" and Woody Allen's "Everyone Says I Love You." (REBROADCAST from 4/12/95) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the debut album from England's Spice Girls, "Spice."

Interview with Vondie Curtis Hall; Interview with Helena Bonham Carter; Commentary on standard English. February 3, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502507].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor VONDIE CURTIS HALL. Hall was raised in Detroit. He plays a doctor on the TV series "Chicago Hope" and has had roles in the movies "Broken Arrow," "Passion Fish," and "Romeo and Juliet" as well as others. His latest turn is as writer and director of the new film "Gridlock'd," a comedy about the troubles two men encounter when they make a pact to overcome their heroin addictions, starring Tim Roth and Tupak Shakur. INT. 2: Actress HELENA BONHAM CARTER. Bonham Carter grew up and lives in London with her mother and father. Never formerly trained as an actress, she first began at the age of 16 in the film "Lady Jane." Now, at age 30, she's been in a number of films, including "Room With a View," "Howard's End," and Woody Allen's "Mighty Aphrodite." Her latest film, "Margaret's Museum," is a 1940's love story set in Nova Scotia. REV. :Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG comments on standard english.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Associate Professor at Columbia University of Public Health DR. NAHID TOUBIA. She is from Sudan, and was the first woman surgeon in her country. TOUBIA is director of "Rainbo" a research and information organization dedicated to the health and human rights of women, particularly women's reproductive and sexual rights. They've begun a campaign against female genital mutilation. TOUBIA has written a report: "Female Genital Mutilation: A Call for Global Action." (for copies contact: Women, Ink., 777 United Nations Plaza, New York, NY, (212) 687-8633.) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) (REBROADCAST from 3/27/96) INT. 2: Interview with DR. NAHID TOUBIA continued. REV. : NO REVIEW

---

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: A broadcast of the debate between playwright August Wilson and critic Robert Brustein over multiculturalism and the theater. he discussion is moderated by actress, playwright, and performance artist Anna Deavere Smith. Wilson, winner of the Pulitzer Prize and author of the well-known play "Fences" says the modern theater system jeopardizes the values of black actors because it is dominated by white society. Brustein, the American Repertory Theater's artistic director and the theater critic of "The New Republic," claims Wilson's ideas encourage black separatism. The debate was held at New York's Town Hall on January 27, and is a follow-up of the past year's growing discussion between the two men in theater magazines. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: TOWN HALL discussion continues. REV. : TOWN HALL discussion continues.
Interview with Chris Rock; Commentary on the term "postmodern"; Interview with Louis Massiah; Review of Jesse Stone's album "Jesse Stone, Alias Charles 'Chuck' Calhoun." February 6, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502084].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian CHRIS ROCK. Rock is 26 years-old and grew up in Brooklyn. He got his start in show business performing stand-up comedy routines in Manhattan. He spent three years on "Saturday Night Live" and appeared in a few films, including the recent "Beverly Hills Ninja." He has a new comedy and talk-show series, "The Chris Rock Show," premiering February 7 on HBO. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG reflects on our use of the term "post modern" to describe everything from art to architecture. But Nunberg asks When did Modernism end? and How do we really know? INT. 2: Independent filmmaker LOUIS MASSIAH. He is founder and Executive Director of the Scribe Video Center in Philadelphia. He has won numerous awards for the films he has produced for public television. Messiah's latest project is a documentary featuring the late civil rights activist and NAACP co-founder W.E.B. DuBois (dew-boyz) It is called "W.E.B. DuBois: A Biography in Four Voices." It premiers on PBS this month. REV: Commentator MILO MILES looks at the singing career of Jesse Stone. Stone helped shape the sound that was to become rock and roll. As chief arranger during the early days of Atlantic records, he guided the company towards producing a more swinging, urbane sound. He wrote such hits as Money Honey and Shake Rattle and Roll. A new collection focuses on his own singing career.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former two time Heavyweight Champion of the World GEORGE FOREMAN. He is presently a preacher, community leader and dedicated child advocate. On Feb 14th the documentary "When We Were Kings" opens. It's about the fight in Zaire in 1974 when FORMAN lost the world title to Muhammad Ali. FORMAN entered the fight as a better than 3-1 favorite, but in a humiliating upset for Forman, Ali won and became World Heavyweight Champion. In 1995 FORMAN wrote his autobiography: By George: The Autobiography of George Foreman (Villard Books) written with Joel Engel. Forman staged a comeback in 1994 when he beat Michael Moorer to regain the title. In April, 1995 Forman defended the

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: U.S. News and World Report reporter ERIC SCHLOSSER (SHLAWSER) talks about his recent cover story "The Business of Porn". In the Feb 10, 1997 issue, Schlosser followed the money trail to expose how pornography grew into a multi-billion dollar industry. The story looks at how small "Mom and Pop" neighborhood video stores have become some of the largest porn outlets. Schlossler has won two of reporting's highest honors: the National Magazine Award and the Sidney Hillman Foundation Award for stories published in Atlantic Monthly. INT. 2: Dr. IRA BYOCK talks about his new book "Dying Well: The Prospect of Growth at the End of Life." It is published by Riverhead Books. Byock is President of the American Academy of Hospice and Palliative Medicine. Byock is a prominent spokesman for the Hospice industry. His book explores how the end of life whether a person is suffering pain or not can be an opportunity for deepened spiritual growth and reconciliation with others. Byock is the Director of the Palliative Care Service in Missoula, Montana. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album "Fountains of Wayne" (Atlantic) by the band Fountains of Wayne. He describes their music as "power-pop: Guitar-driven, hooky songs."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and interview with singer ROSEMARY CLOONEY taped before a live audience in San Francisco, January 18th, as part of the City Arts & Lectures series. CLOONEY sings some of her best known songs, accompanied by a quintet directed by John Oddo. She also talks with Terry about her life. Her 1996 album "Dedicated to Nelson" (a tribute to Nelson Riddle) has been nominated for a Grammy. She also released a Christmas album, "White Christmas." Her last 20 albums have been recorded on Concord Jazz. (THIS CONCERT CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: ROSEMARY CLOONEY continued. REV. : ROSEMARY CLOONEY continued.

Interview with Martin Scorsese; Review of Sun Ra's album "The Singles." February 12, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503130].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director MARTIN SCORSESE. Shortly before her death, his mother, Catherine Scorsese, published a cookbook of recipes: "Italianamerican: The Scorsese Family Cookbook" (Random House). She acted in, and cooked in (on and off-screen) for several of her son's movies. MARTIN SCORSESE will talk about casting his mother in his films and about the new book. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with MARTIN SCORSESE continued. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Sun Ra: The Singles" (Evidence records)

Interview with Borge Ousland; Interview with Jennifer Gonnerman; Interview with Peter Korn. February 13, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503045].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Norwegian Explorer BORGE OUSLAND (pronounced "BOR-gay OWS-lan"). Ousland was the first man to complete a solo expedition to both the North and South Poles. In November of 1996 he began a solo crossing of the Antarctic continent. He reached his destination on January 17, 1997. The 64-day trek covered 1,764 miles and was made unsupported, meaning Ousland carried all the necessary supplies for the journey. INT. 2: Reporter for the Village Voice, JENNIFER GONNERMAN. In 1994 Planned Parenthood won a judgement against Operation Rescue, which had to sell off its office equipment to satisfy the judgement. A pro-choice activist bought many of those contents in a public auction, including six computers. In one of the computers was a journal kept by one of Operation Rescue activists. GONNERMAN examined the journal for her article "Inside Operation Rescue: Stakeouts, Stalking, Dirty Tricks: An Antiabortion Operative Tells All In His Diary." The article appeared in the February 11, 1997 issue of the Village Voice. REV. : Journalist PETER KORN. Korn writes about health and medical issues for "Self," "the Chicago Tribune Magazine," and other publications. He has a new book "Lovejoy: A Year in the Life of an Abortion Clinic" (The Atlantic Monthly Press). The book tells of the protests and controversy surrounding the Lovejoy Surgicenter, an abortion clinic in Portland, Oregon, and examines how the doctors, patients, and protestors most closely involved are effected. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER)

---

Interview with Gena Rowlands; Commentary on ex-partners becoming friends; Review of the film "Absolute Power." February 14, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502753].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress GENA ROWLANDS (jen-ah...roe-lenz). She won acclaim for her performance in "A Woman Under the Influence" and "Gloria." ROWLANDS collaborated with her late husband, actor/screenwriter/and director, John Cassavetes for thirty years. ROWLANDS stars in the new film "Unhook the Stars"(Miramax Films) in which she plays Mildred, a middle-aged woman who finds herself at a crucial turning point in her life. The film was written and directed by ROWLAND'S son, Nick Cassavetes, and just went into wide distribution. (REBROADCAST FROM 12/2/96.) INT. 2: A story for Valentine's Day from WBEZ's This American Life: "When You're In Love, the Whole World is Jewish." Host Ira Glass talks about the drama of trying to be "just friends" with an ex-girlfriend. The meaning of the title will be clear if you hear the piece. Tapes of This American Life can be purchased by calling 312-832-3357. (THIS PIECE ORIGINALLY AIRED ON TAL on 11/15/96) REV.: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new Clint Eastwood film "Absolute Power."

---

Interview with Katherine Graham; Commentary on Apollo Records. February 17, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503545].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former "Washington Post" publisher KATHERINE GRAHAM. Graham's father owned "the Post" in 1933 and later her husband, Phil Graham, took over. Following her husband's suicide in 1963, Graham became publisher, knowing little about the managerial or journalistic aspects of the job. But, learning while she worked, she transformed the paper into one of the country's most respected newspapers.
"The Post" broke the Watergate scandal and published the Pentagon Papers against a federal judge’s ruling. Graham also became chairman and CEO of the Washington Post Media company. She writes about her childhood and experiences as publisher in her new autobiography "Personal History" (Knopf). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with KATHERINE GRAHAM continued. REV. : Rock historian Ed Ward reviews "The Apollo Series" (Delmark records).

---

Interview with Alan Alda; Review of the album "The Almanac Singers February 18, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503214].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor ALAN ALDA. The star of the TV show M*A*S*H (for which he won Emmys for acting, writing, and directing), as well as the movies "Same Time, Next Year," "The Four Seasons," and in Woody Allen's "Crimes and Misdemeanors," "Manhattan Murder Mystery," and "Everyone Says I Love You." He is currently the host of Scientific American Frontiers on PBS. The newest episode "Going to Extremes" airs this Wednesday, Feb. 19. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: ALAN ALDA continued. REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews the new collection by the Almanac singers, an early urban folk group that included Woody Guthrie, Lee Hays, Pete Hawes, Millard Lampell and Pete Seeger. The CD is "The Almanac Singers: Their Complete General Recordings" (on MCA)

---

Interview with Mia Farrow; Review of Jackie McLean's album "New and Old Gospel." February 19, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503543].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress MIA FARROW. She has a new memoir, "What Falls Away," (Doubleday). FARROW is the daughter of actress Maureen O'Sullivan and writer John Farrow. As a young actress she starred in "Peyton Place" and "Rosemary's Baby." She was married to Frank Sinatra and then Andre Previn, and has 14 children, many of them adopted. Her 12-year relationship with Woody Allen ended with his affair with FARROW's adopted daughter Soon-Yi. FARROW and Allen had two children, and made twelve films together before their highly dramatic and public breakup. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Actress MIA FARROW continued. REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the re-issued CD "New and Old Gospel" featuring Jackie McLean. It was originally recorded in 1967. It was re-released last year by Blue Note Records.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FRED & KIM GOLDMAN, father and daughter. The Goldman family experienced the death of their son and brother, Ron Goldman, in June 1994. They were present throughout the criminal trial against O.J. Simpson and recently won their case against him at the civil trial. In a new book "His Name is Ron: Our Search for Justice," (William Morrow & Co.) the family recounts their experiences at the criminal trial and shares their memories of Ron Goldman. INT. 2: Author HENRY LOUIS GATES, JR. He is the W.E.B. Du Bois Professor of Humanities and chair of the Department of Afro-American Studies at Harvard University as well as a staff writer for "The New Yorker." His past books include the bestselling memoir "Colored People." In his new book, "Thirteen Ways of Looking at a Black Man" (Random House) Gates records the thoughts of some of society's most revered black American men. In the book, the men debate the current state of black men and the difficulties of race and gender relations in American society. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV. : HENRY LOUIS GATES, JR. cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new David Lynch film, "Lost Highways." Director DAVID LYNCH, who Mel brooks called "Jimmy Stewart from Mars." His latest film is "Lost Highway." LYNCH is the director of "Eraserhead," "The Elephant Man," "Dune" and "Blue Velvet," all of which have received critical acclaim and attained cult status. He is also the creator of the popular but short-lived TV series, "Twin Peaks." LYNCH published a book of photographs of his movies and his art, called "Images" (Hyperion, 1994). (REBROADCAST from 12/15/94) INT. 2: Actress and author Carrie Fisher. She's probably best-known for her portrayal of Princess Leia in the Star War movies, which are currently being rereleased. She wrote the screenplay for the film adaptation of her novel, "Postcards From the Edge." Fisher's other roles have been in the films, "Soapdish" and "When Harry Met Sally." (REBROADCAST from 9/11/90) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "A History of the Breast" by Marilyn Yalom (Knopf).

Interview with Buck Henry; Interview with Justin Kaplan and Anne Bernays. February 24, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502599].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and screenwriter BUCK HENRY. Henry was screenwriter for the popular film "Get Smart" with Mel Brooks, "Catch-22," "What's Up Doc," and other films. He also co-wrote the script for the 1967 film "The Graduate" and played the role of the hotel clerk. It is now 30 years later and an anniversary presentation of the film is being held at the New York Film Forum February 14th to the 27th. (This interview was held before an audience at the Film Forum, Feb 13th). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: BUCK HENRY cont'd. REV. : JUSTIN KAPLAN and ANNE BERNAYS are the authors of the new book, "The Language of Names: What We Call Ourselves and Why It Matters" (Simon & Schuster). Both have written previous books: MS. BERNAYS is the author of eight novels, including the award-winning "Growing Up Rich" and "Professor Romeo," as well as numerous short stories. MR. KAPLAN won a Pulitzer Prize for his biography, "Mr. Clemens and Mark Twain." He's also the General Editor of Barlett's Familiar Quotations (16th edition). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist STAN SESSER. He is a former staff writer for the New Yorker and the senior fellow of the Human Rights Center at the University of California at Berkeley. Sesser has been following the imminent takeover of the British-ruled Hong Kong by the Chinese government. He says while Hong Kong will most likely preserve its economic freedom, the July 1 takeover calls into question the future of its democratic government and civil-liberties laws. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new collection of stories by Julie Hecht, "Do the Window's Open?" (Random House). Then: an interview with JULIE HECHT INT. 2: Writer JULIE HECHT. Her stories have appeared in "Harper's" and "The New Yorker." In fact all of the stories in her new debut collection "Do the Windows Open?" (Random House) were first published in the pages of "The New Yorker." The stories in the book are held together by one narrator, a married, childless, 40-something photographer who takes pictures of flowers in decline. One reviewer writes, "the stories are breathtakingly funny... like other classic deadpan talkers... she doesn't even seem to realize how funny she is."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DANIEL JONAH GOLDHAGEN is the author of the controversial book "Hitler's Willing Executioners: Ordinary Germans and the Holocaust" (Vintage Books, paperback). In the book he offers evidence that ordinary Germans knowingly cooperated in the Holocaust, that they were motivated by anti-Semitism not by economic hardship, coercion, or psychological pressures, as usually put forth by historians. GOLDHAGEN is Associate Professor of Government and Social Studies at Harvard University. INT. 2: SAUL FRIEDLANDER is the author of "Nazi Germany and the Jews, Vo. 1: The Years of Persecution 1933-1939" (HarperCollins). In the book he examines the period looking at how Hitler's "murderous rage" and ideologies, converged with internal political pressures, and attitudes of German and European societies to create the Holocaust. FRIEDLANDER is also the author of the memoir "When Memory Comes" (Farrar Straus Giroux). He was born in Prague and was seven when his parents "hid" him in a Catholic seminary in France where he took on a new identity. His parents died in the Holocaust. It wasn't until years later as FRIEDLANDER was studying for the priesthood, that he rediscovered his Jewish heritage. FREIDLANDER teaches at Tel Aviv University and at UCLA. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV. : NO REVIEW Interview with John Grisham; Review of David Bowie's album "Earthling." February 27, 1997.
[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502988].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: One of the most popular writers of the legal thriller genre, JOHN GRISHAM. The prolific writer has seven novels to his credit. His eighth and newest is "The Partner." (Doubleday) GRISHAM recently returned to practicing law. He'll talk with Terry about writing and lawyering. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: JOHN GRISHAM cont'd. REV.: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Earthling" the new album by David Bowie.

[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503189].

Description of show segment(s)

REV/INT. 1: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new film, "Donnie Brasco" about an FBI agent who goes undercover to infiltrate the mob. It stars Johnny Depp and Al Pacino. A 1989 interview with JOSEPH PISTONE, the FBI agent who went undercover as Donnie Brasco. His successful infiltration of the mob led to over 100 convictions. (REBROADCAST from 1/12/89) INT. 2: Actor AL PACINO. He's starring in "Donnie Brasco" with Johnny Depp. Before that Pacino directed, produced and starred in the experimental film "Richard the Third" that goes behind the scenes of a production of Shakespeare's Richard the Third. PACINO is best known for his roles in the Godfather films, "Serpico" and "Dog Day Afternoon." (REBROADCAST from 10/24/96) REV.: Critic MILO MILES on experimental acoustic guitarist Jon Fahey. His latest album is "City of Refuge." (Tim/Kerr records). Also mentioned in the review is the group Gastr Del Sol's "Upgrade and Afterlife" (Drag City Label) in which they perform a Fahey song. INT. 3: We remember jazz drummer TONY WILLIAMS who died Sunday at the age of 51. He had a heart attack. As a teen prodigy WILLIAMS played with the Miles Davis Quintet, and later drummed with Jimi Hendrix and John Coltrane. (REBROADCAST from 5/25/90)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist THOMAS KELLY. Kelly worked as a construction worker for ten years, three of which he worked on the Third New York City Water Tunnel alongside other "sandhogs," Irish and West Indian urban miners who dig soft ground tunnels in the city. He also holds a master's degree from Harvard University. His first novel "Payback" (Knopf) tells the story of two Irish-American brothers living in 1980s New York among the Irish mob and the construction workers' unions. INT. 2: Reporter KEITH B. RICHBURG. He is the Hong Kong bureau chief for the "Washington Post," the paper's former Africa bureau chief, and has won awards for his reporting, including being selected as a finalist for the Pulitzer Prize. In his new book "Out of America" (BasicBooks) he reflects on his three years experience in Africa and questions the connections made between the identity of African-Americans and their African roots. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews two new TV shows that are popping up in this post-sweep period: "The Practice" on ABC and a revamped "EZ Streets" on CBS.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with David Foster Wallace; Interview with Amy Rigby; Review of the television show "Ira Gershwin at 100." March 5, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502986].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer DAVID FOSTER WALLACE. His 1,079 page novel "Infinite Jest" was critically acclaimed. His essays and stories have appeared in Harpers, The New Yorker, Playboy, The Paris Review, and others. He has a new collection of essays, "A Supposedly Fun Thing I'll Never Do Again," (Little, Brown & Co.) The book's title comes from his comic account of being pampered to death on a luxury cruise, which originally appeared in Harpers. INT. 2: 37-year old singer/songwriter AMY RIGBY, formerly of the New York combos "Last Roundup" and the "Shams". Her latest album is "Amy Rigby: Diary of a Mod Housewife" (Koch Intl). RIGBY says a mod housewife is "woman being dragged kicking and screaming into adulthood." She also says her favorite subjects for songwriting are: "making a living, having a family, and trying to keep a sense of humor about it all." Most of her album is produced by Elliot Easton, guitarist for the Cars. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new Great Performances special on PBS (March 7, 9PM most stations), "Ira Gershwin at 100: A Celebration at Carnegie Hall."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist MICHAEL ONDAATJE and film director ANTHONY MINGHELLA talk about the film "The English Patient." It has been nominated for 12 Academy Awards including Best Picture. The Oscars will be presented March 24, 1997 on ABC. MICHAEL ONDAATJE (on-DAH-chay) wrote the novel "The English Patient." (Vintage) A book which won him Britain's highest literary prize, the Booker Prize. ONDAATJE was born in Ceylon (now Sri Lanka), emigrated to England, and now lives in Canada. He also wrote a personal memoir, "Running in the Family," (Vintage) about his eccentric family. Film director ANTHONY MINGHELLA directed "The English Patient" In addition, He also wrote the Screenplay. Minghella was born on the Isle of Wight, England. He made his film debut with the highly acclaimed, "Truly, Madly, Deeply." A film that won him best Screenplay by The Writers Guild of Great Britain. INT. 2: Dr LEWIS MEHL-MADRONA has written a new book that explores the medical benefits of Native American rituals. The book "Coyote Medicine" (Scribner) looks at ways to combine "traditional" and "alternative" medical practices to create a holistic approach to healing. Dr MEHL-MADRONA holds an M.D. from Stanford University and has been a practicing doctor for over 20 years. He is currently a research assistant professor in the Native American Research and Training Center at the University of Arizona of Medicine in Tucson. REV. : Music Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album "Endtroducing" by DJ Shadow. Tucker says this album signals a shift in hip-hop music away from gangsta rap towards a more instrumental form.

Interview with Charlie Rich; Interview with Alana Lomax; Review of a concert by David Helfgott; Review of the film "Private Parts." March 7, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458526].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country singer CHARLIE RICH. Sony Music has re-issued four of his CD's. "The Fabulous Charlie Rich," "Set Me Free," "Boss Man," and "Feel like going home: The Essential Charlie Rich." Rich died in July of 1995 at the age of 62. Rich was known as the "Silver Fox," (because of his premature gray hair) RICH got his start working with the Sun record label in the late 50s, writing tunes for Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison, and Johnny Cash. From there he began making records himself. In the 70s he reached his commercial peak with his country hits, "The Most Beautiful Girl," and "Behind Closed Doors." (REBROADCAST FROM 9/3/92). INT. 2: Folklorist ALAN LOMAX. A new collection of six CD's will be released next month by Rounder Records featuring folk music recordings he recorded in the American South from 1959-60. It is titled "The Alan Lomax Collection: Southern Journey" In addition, A double CD set featuring folk music recordings from around the world will also be released. "The Alan Lomax Collection: Sampler." Also Rounder records next week will re-issue a 1962 collection by Lomax called "Negro Blues and Hollers. Lomax spent more than a half century recording the folk music and customs of the world. Lomax and his father, John, were the first folklorists to travel around the American south, recording songs on portable record machines. They both contributed thousands of field recordings to the Library of Congress' Archive of American Folk Song, which John Lomax founded in 1941. LOMAX won the National Book Critics Circle Award for his non-fiction book, "The Land Where the Blues Began." (Pantheon Books) 1993. His work was featured in a five part Public Television series, called "American Patchwork". The series showcased Cajun culture, Mississippi blues, Appalachian culture, and New Orleans Jazz Parades. Alan Lomax is 82 and is living in Florida. (REBROADCAST from 7/9/90). REV. : Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a recent performance of Australian pianist David

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright JAMES H. CHAPMYN. Chapmyn was homeless, surviving on garbage and sleeping in vacant buildings in the '80s. A suicide note he began writing to his mother inspired him to write the play "Our Young Black Men Are Dying and Nobody Seems to Care," which became a big hit on the so-called chittlin' circuit. He went on to write other plays on social issues facing the African-American community, making a name for himself as a playwright and a social activist. (THIS INTERVIEW EXTENDS INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Playwright JAMES H. CHAPMYN continued. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the 4-CD box set "Count Basie: The Golden Years" (on Pablo).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of Law at the Georgetown University Law Center, PETER EDELMAN. Edelman was Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation with the Department of Health and Human Services, but resigned last September because of his disapproval of President Clinton's welfare-reform bill. Edelman criticizes the bill as not promoting job obtainment and as damaging to the lives of poor children and legal immigrants. INT. 2: DR. SUSAN LOVE, M.D. She is known as the "breast doctor" because of her writings and research on the subject, but her new book (with, Karen Lindsey) "Dr. Susan Love's Hormone Book" (Random House) concerns menopause. In the book she addresses the symptoms, medication, and questions some women face when approaching this life phase. Love is a breast surgeon and an adjunct associate professor of clinical surgery at UCLA and is the director of the Santa Barbara Breast Cancer Institute. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: THEODORE LEVIN. He is a teacher in the Music Department of Dartmouth College and a longtime follower of the music of the Celtic lands, the Balkans, South Siberia, and other cultures. His new book "The Hundred Thousand Fools of God: Musical Travels in Central Asia" (Indiana University Press) traces how the music of a culture lives through and reflects the lives of its people. Specifically, in Central Asia, he looks at how the Russian conquest of Central Asia at the end of the 19th century affected the music of the area. His past recordings are featured in three CDs which include "The Ilyas Malayev Ensemble," "The Bulgarian Voices" and "Huun-Huur Tu." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: (THEODORE LEVIN INTERVIEW CONTINUED) REV.:

Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Arkansas" (Houghton Mifflin) the new collection of three short stories by writer David Leavitt.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LaVERN BAKER, one of America's great rhythm-and-blues singers of the 1950's, died earlier this week. She was 67. The Associated Press says the cause was heart complications. Baker, who was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1991. Her hits included "Tweedlee Dee," "Jim Dandy," and "I Cried a Tear." After living in the Philippines during the '70s and '80s, Baker made a comeback in the '90s when she appeared on Broadway in "Black and Blue." (REBROADCAST FROM 3/26/91). INT. 2: STING is in a new movie, "Gentlemen Don't Eat Poets." The former bassist and lead singer of The Police has been a solo artist since the 1980's. He also acted in a number of films including "Dune" and Interview with Kate Bornstein; Commentary on name changes; Review of the television shows "Daria," "Buffy the Vampire Slayer," and "Spy Game." March 17, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458675].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Performance artist and author KATE BORNSTEIN (pronounced BORN-steen). In her books and plays Bornstein, a transgender activist, argues the need for the acceptance of nontraditional gender roles, meaning those not defined as either male of female. In her book "Gender Outlaw: On Men, Women, and the Rest of Us" (Vintage Books) she writes about her sex-change experience and her view of society's conceptions of gender. She has also written the novel (with co-author Caitlin Sullivan) "Nearly Roadkill" (High Risk Books). (THIS INTERVIEW EXTENDS INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 1(A): KATE BORNSTEIN continued. INT. 2: Stories of people changing their name, an excerpt from This American Life by Ira Glass, produced at WBEZ. Glass tells the story of his grandmother: when she was in her 30's, she was very ill and everyone thought she was going to die. So they changed her name. It was an old Jewish custom, to confuse the Angel of Death. Presumably the Angel would show up and be unable to find the party he sought. (5 minutes) And Margy Rochlin on the place you go to in Los Angeles if you want to change your name. It turns out to be surprisingly easy to change REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews three new TV shows he considers "the Daughters of Xena": Daria, Buffy the Vampire Slayer, and Spy Game Interview with Alex Kozinski; Interview with Anna Seaton Huntington. March 18, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458523].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Judge ALEX KOZINSKI is on the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. Since the 1970's he has had to make decisions on cases involving the death penalty. But, although an advocate of this controversial form of punishment, he finds it difficult to enforce. In a recent New Yorker article
("Tinkering with Death", 10 Feb 1997), he recalls his experience the first time he wrote an opinion for such a case. Kozinski also writes for the Wall Street Journal's Op-ed page and other publications. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Athlete and freelance journalist ANNA SEATON HUNTINGTON. She won the women's pair rowing bronze medal in the 1992 Olympics and was a member of the 1995 women's team in the America's Cup competition. In her new book "Making Waves" (The Summit Publishing Group) she writes of her experience training for and competing in a traditionally male-dominated sport of sailing. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : no review

Interview with David Zucchino; Commentary on slang; Interview with John Gregory Dunne; Review of U2's album "Pop." March 19, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884335].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Foreign editor of The Philadelphia Inquirer, DAVID ZUCCHINO. He won a Pulitzer Prize for his reporting from South Africa. In his new book "Myth of the Welfare Queen," (Scribner) he turns his attention to his own town, Philadelphia, where he follows the lives of two welfare mothers, Odessa Williams and Cheri Honkala. One reviewer writes, "David Zucchino has shattered unequivocally the stereotype of women receiving welfare." REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG comments on slang, and refers to two books about it: Johnathan Lighter's Random House Historical Dictionary of American Slang (1994) and "Flappers 2 Rappers" by Tom Dalzell (1997) INT. 2: Screenwriter JOHN GREGORY DUNNE. He and his wife, writer Joan Didion, have been working in film for 25 years. Their latest project was the screenplay for "Up Close and Personal" the movie starring Michelle Pfeiffer and Robert Redford, based very loosely on the Jessica Savitch story. In DUNNE's new book "Monster: Living off the Big Screen" (Random House) he chronicles their eight year odyssey with the project. DUNNE is also the author of twelve books. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Pop" (Island Records) the newest release by the Irish rock band "U2", their first in four years.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and director DAVID CRONENBERG. He directed the films "M. Butterfly," "The Fly," "Dead Ringers," and "Naked Lunch," all of which tell a story of sexually deviant behavior. In his new movie "Crash" he continues the theme, combining sex and car wrecks, and explores its place in an age of modern technology. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES FOR THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.)

INT. 2: CRONENBERG cont'd. REV. : Novelist J.G. BALLARD. His novel "Crash" (Farrar, Straus and Giroux in paperback) is the bases for Cronenberg's new film. BALLARD is also the author of "Empire of the Sun" (which was made into a film), and "Concrete Island." He's written over 20 novels.

Interview with Frank McCourt; Interview with Robert Haas; Review of Kathryn Harrison's memoir "Kiss." March 21, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884338].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer FRANK MCCOURT recently won the National Book Critics Circle Award for his memoir "Angela's Ashes" (Scriber) which is still on the bestseller list. Last October he talked with Terry Gross about the book. It recounts his experiences growing up desperately poor in Ireland. McCourt lives in New York. (This interview is REBROADCAST from 10/24/96.) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: U.S. Poet Laureate ROBERT HASS. (Rhymes with "ass"). He also recently won the National Book Critics Circle award for poetry for his book "Sun Under Wood" (Ecco). He's written several books of poetry including "Praise" and "Human Wishes." He also edited "The Essential Haiku: Versions of Basho, Buson & Issa." (The Ecco Press). REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Kiss," the new book by Kathryn Harrison. The controversial book tells the story of her incestuous relationship with her father when she was in her 20s.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live on stage conversation between film critic ROGER EBERT and film director MARTIN SCORSESE, held at the Wexner Center for the Arts in Columbus, Ohio in February. They discuss the scope of SCORSESE's career. (THIS CONVERSATION WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: ROGER EBERT and MARTIN SCORSESE continued. REV. :

Interview with John Powers; Interview with J.G. Ballard; Review of the film "When We Were Kings." March 25, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502314].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film critic JOHN POWERS. He talks with Terry Gross about the actors, directors, and films that won and lost at last night's 69th Academy Awards. INT. 2: Author J.G. BALLARD. His novels often deal with the changes affected by modern science and technology. His novel "Crash" (The Noonday Press), originally published in 1973 and out in a new edition, relates these changes to sexually-deviant behavior. The book has been made into a movie by filmmaker David Cronenberg and won an award at the 1996 Cannes Film Festiival. Ballard also wrote the books "Empire of the Sun" and "Concrete Island," among others. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY tells us why he was unsatisfied with "When We Were Kings" the Oscar-award winning documentary about the classic showdown between Muhammad Ali and George Forman in 1974 in Zaire.

Interview with Chitra Divakaruni; Interview with Paco Underhill; Commentary on warning signs for the future. March 26, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884340].

Description of show segment(s)

her on a supernatural adventure. Divakaruni teaches creative writing at Foothill College in California and is president of MAITRI, a support hotline for South Asian women. INT. 2: PACO UNDERHILL. He studies what is called retail anthropology in which he tracks the habits of shoppers in order to learn the best way to convince them to make a purchase. His retail consulting firm, Envirosell, has helped big-name companies such as McDonald's, Levi Strauss, and Blockbuster to study their customers browsing and buying routines. REV. : REVIEW: Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG wonders if present day warning signs will be comprehensible to future generations.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In light of the deaths of rappers Biggie Smalls and Tupac Shakur, a discussion on the culture of rap and the violence that surrounds it with Chicago police officer ERIC DAVIS. He's a member of the rap group the Slick Boys. DAVIS and two other officers founded the group in 1991 to provide positive role models for the inner-city kids they encountered on their jobs every day. The group has received national acclaim for their songs about the importance of getting an education and staying off of drugs and out of gangs. DAVIS grew up in the Cabrini-Green development of Chicago, where the three officers work. INT. 2: Medical ethics in the age of managed care. A talk with two individuals at the forefront of the discussion: ROBERT BAKER, Professor of Philosophy at Union College in Schenectady, New York who contends that medicine is in its biggest crisis in 150 years. (It was in 1847 that the AMA wrote it's code of ethics). And Medical Ethicist ART CAPLAN, director of the Center for Bioethics at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. REV. : BAKER & CAPLAN cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress FRANCES MCDORMAND. This week she won an Academy Award for her performance as the very pregnant chief-of-police in a rural Minnesota town in the film "Fargo." She's worked with the Coen Brothers for 14 years, beginning with their film "Blood Simple." She also had roles in "Raising Arizona" "Mississippi Burning" and "Lonestar." (REBROADCAST from 5/6/96) INT. 2: Film editor and sound designer WALTER MURCH. This week he won an Academy award for editing of the film "The English Patient" Previously, he won an Academy Award for sound design for "Apocolypse Now." Some of the films he's edited and/or mixed are "The Conversation," "American Graffiti," "Apocalypse Now," "The Godfather (II, and III)"and "Crumb." He's also written a book about his work, "In the Blink of An Eye: A Perspective on Film Editing," (Silman-James Press, L.A.) (REBROADCAST from 4/15/96) REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Lives of the Monster Dogs" by Kristen Bakis.

---

Interview with Michael Ignatieff; Interview with Robert Pinsky; Review of LeAnn Rimes's album "Unchained Melody." March 31, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884365].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer MICHAEL IGNATIEFF. His article "Unarmed Heroes" appears in the March 24, 1997 issue of The New Yorker. IGNATIEFF writes about the International Committee of the Red Cross, and the increased dangers that workers have been exposed to, although they are considered neutral and carry no weapons. In Rwanda in 1994, 36 workers were killed in the war, and in Chechnya last December, six staff members were murdered. IGNATIEFF has written two novels and four works of nonfiction including the book, "Blood and Belonging: Journeys into the New Nationalism." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Poet ROBERT PINSKY has been named as the country's next poet laureate consultant in poetry. The professor of graduate writing at Boston University spoke to Host Terry Gross in December 1988. His latest book is "The Figured Wheel." He spoke about his upbringing in a small town on the Jersey shore and how it influenced his work. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Unchained Melody" (Curb) the new collection of songs by the 14 year-old country singer LeAnn Rimes.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Wil Haygood; Interview with Nina Simonds; Review of Deborah Coleman's album "I Can't Lose." April 2, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884367].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The Boston Globe's WIL HAYGOOD. He's written a new memoir, "The Haygoods of Columbus" (Houghton Mifflin) about his family, and growing up in Columbus, Ohio in the mid 60s and 70s adjacent to Mount Vernon Avenue, the center of Columbus' Black community. HAYGOOD moved back to Columbus to write the book. HAYGOOD has also written a biography of Adam Clayton Powell, Jr. and "Two on the River" a lyrical recollection of a two-thousand mile journey down the Mississippi. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Chief NINA SIMONDS. She is a regular contributor to "Gourmet" and "Eating Well" magazines. She's studied cooking in Taiwan and in France and is the author of four books on Chinese cuisine and culture. Her latest cookbook is "Asian Noodles: Deliciously Simple Dishes to Twirl, Slurp and Savor" (Hearst Books). REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews "I Can't Lose" (Blind Pig label) the new recording of blues singer, guitarist and songwriter Deborah Coleman.
Interview with Margaret Whiting; Interview with Jerry Stahl; Review of the film "Chasing Amy."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer Margaret Whiting. Her father, Richard Whiting, wrote many of her most popular songs, including "Too Marvelous for Words," "My Ideal," "She's Funny That Way," and "On The Good Ship Lollipop." Jerome Kern, Johnny Mercer and other great songwriters of the day were like uncles to her. Ten years ago she wrote a memoir, "It Might As Well Be Spring." She's currently appearing in the new Broadway show which celebrates the music of Johnny Mercer, "Dream." (REBROADCAST from 1/22/88)

INT. 2: Writer JERRY STAHL. His 1995 memoir is Permanent Midnight (Warner Bros) has just been published in paperback. STAHL was a successful journalist, a scriptwriter for cult film classics like "Cafe Flesh," and "Dr. Caligari," who went on to write for the hit TV shows "Moonlighting," "ALF" and "thirtysomething." STAHL was also a junkie. His new memoir he writes, "You might say that success ruined me. You might say I ruined success." Tobias Wolff says of STAHL's book, "An original, appalling, indelible picture of a man trying to swim and drown at the same time." Permanent Midnight is being made into a movie that is expected to be released in the spring of 1998. Stahl is now a freelance writer for British Esquire, Details, L.A.Weekly, Buzz. (Originally broadcast 5/17/95)

REV.: Film reviewer JOHN ANDERSON reviews the new film "Chasing Amy".

---

Interview with Eric Lax; Obituary for Allen Ginsberg; Review of the television show "Fired Up."
April 7, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884364].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ERIC LAX. He's written a new biography "Bogart" (William Morrow, w/ A.M. Sperber) about actor Humphrey Bogart. LAX has also written a biography of Woody Allen. INT. 2: Poet and countercultural activist ALLEN GINSBERG. He died over the weekend from liver cancer, at the age of 70. We remember him with a 1984 interview; at the time a four-CD boxed set of Ginsberg's work was released, "Holy Soul Jelly Roll - Songs and Poems (1949-1993) (on Rhino's Word Beat label). (REBROADCAST from 11/8/94)

REV.: DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Fired Up."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Sergeant TOM LEISNER (pronounced LIES-ner) and detective JIM MOFFIT (pronounced MA-fit) with the Philadelphia police force. They were responsible for helping to convict Richard Ramos, the leader of a drug ring that included his mother, two brothers, and his sister, among others. The group's success in drug sales brought in {dollar}20 million and caused the destruction of the neighborhood. Leisner was stationed in the first mini-station in the city to keep closer watch over drug dealings. He became friends with many of the residents, establishing sources on the streets who helped him to root out the drug dealings lead by the Ramos family. Detective Moffit worked as a part of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration on an undercover drug operation to help break up the Ramos drug ring. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JUDGE RICHARD GOLDSTONE of South Africa's Constitutional Court. In 1991-1994 he headed the Commission of Inquiry regarding Public Violence and Intimidation, otherwise known as the Goldstone Commission. More recently, he was Chief Prosecutor of the United Nations International Criminal Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda. This month he'll be lecturing at a conference at the University of California at Berkeley: "Reporting from the Killing Fields: A Conference on Genocide, Crimes Against Humanity and War." The conference is April 10-11. (For info about the conference: 510-642-0965) REV. : Critic MILO MILES considers the music made by reggae's cult figure Lee Perry and England's producer Mad Professor: "Who Put the Voodoo 'Pon Reggae" and "Dub Take the Voodoo Out of Reggae" (both on the RAS label). INT. 2: LEA RABIN, the widow of the slain Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin. She's written a new memoir: "Rabin: Our Life, His Legacy," (G.P. Putnam) Rabin was assassinated in November 1995.
Interview with Rebecca Kilgore and Dave Frishberg; Tribute to Allen Ginsberg. April 10, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884362].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer REBECCA KILGORE and pianist DAVE FRISHBERG. Together they perform classic American jazz tunes. Their new CD is "Not A Care in the World" (Arbors Records). (SEE BELOW FOR INFORMATION ON USING THIS AS A PREMIUM). In 1995 their first album "I Saw Stars" was chosen as a Writers Choice record by Coda Magazine. (REBROADCAST from 12/26/95) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: REBECCA KILGORE and DAVE FRISHBERG cont'd REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN pays tribute to Allen Ginsberg.

Interview with Mario Puzo; Interview with Diane Keaton and Al Pacino; Interview with Robert Duvall; Review of the television show "Gun"; Tribute to Laura Nyro. April 11, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884324].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer MARIO PUZO. His newest novel is "The Last Don" (Random House) He is best known for "The Godfather" (1969) and this new book returns him to that genre: the inner workings of the Mafia. Besides "The Godfather," PUZO has written "The Fortunate Pilgrim," and "The Dark Arena," both novels. The two-time Academy Award winner has written several screenplays, including all three Godfathers and Superman I and II. (REBROADCAST from 7/25/96) INT. 2: Actor AL PACINO. He became a star for his role in "Godfather." His latest movie is "Looking for Richard." Some of his other films include Serpico, Scarface (remake), Scent of a Woman, The Godfather I,II,III., City Hall, Sea of Love, Dog Day Afternoon, and Heat. (REBROADCAST from 10/24/96) Actress DIANE KEATON. She played wife to Al Pacino's character in the Godfather films. She's currently starring in the new film "Marvin's Room" and in the new film "The First Wives Club." KEATON is probably best known for the comic chemistry she developed with Woody Allen. She won the Academy Award for Best Actress for her role in Allen's "Annie Hall." She's also best known for her roles in "The Godfather" films. (REBROADCAST from 1/2/97) INT. 3:Actor ROBERT DUVALL. He was counsel to the mob in "Godfather" I and II. His other roles include his film debut as Boo Radley in "To Kill a Mockingbird," a crazy colonel in "Apocalypse Now," and a country singer in "Tender Mercies" (for which he won a Oscar). In all he's acted in more than 50 films. His latest is "A Family Thing," in which he co-stars with James Earl Jones.  (REBROADCAST from 4/15/96) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new TV series "Gun." AND Critic MILO MILES remembers singer/songwriter Laura Nyro.

Interview with Andrew Sullivan; Obituary for Michael Dorris; Commentary on Jackie Robinson. April 14, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884406].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Journalist ANDREW SULLIVAN. Sullivan was the editor of The New Republic for five years and the first openly gay editor of a national magazine. On leaving the position last year, he revealed he is HIV positive. His new book is "Same-Sex Marriage: Pro and Con" (Vintage Books). Sullivan is the U.S. columnist for the Sunday Times of London and has written articles for The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, Esquire, and other publications. He is also author of the bestseller "Virtually Normal: An Argument About Homosexuality." INT. 2: Writer MICHAEL DORRIS died last week at the age of 52. In 1989, He won a National Book Critics Circle award for The Broken Cord. A first person account of how fetal alcohol syndrome affected his oldest son, Abel, who later died. He and his wife, Louise Erdrich, wrote several novels together, including Love Medicine, The Crown of Columbus and Yellow Raft in Blue Water. Both are part Native American, and Dorris spent several years of his childhood on an Indian reservation. In January, his new novel Cloud Chamber was published by Scribner Books. Dorris was lived in Minneapolis. The Concord Monitor newspaper reports that Dorris died from an apparent suicide. REV. : Commentator GERALD EARLY talks about basball legend Jackie Robinson.

Interview with Anne Lamott; Interview with Bebe Neuwirth. April 15, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884323].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Writer ANNE LAMOTT. Her new novel "Crooked Little Heart" (Pantheon) is a follow-up novel to "Rosie" about the troubles she faces in school and with her mother, a recovering alcoholic. Lamott's most popular book is "BIrld by Bird," an instructional book on writing. She has also written four other books, including "Hard Laughter." INT. 2: Actress BEBE NEUWIRTH (Pronounced NEW-worth). She played the humorless shrink, Lilith, on the television show "Cheers" for which she won two Emmy

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet JANE SHORE. Her new collection of poems "Music Minus One" (Picador) reads like a memoir of her youth growing up in the 1950s in New Jersey. She's won several prizes for her two previous volumes of poetry and is the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship. INT. 2: Performance poet SEKOU SUNDIATA (SAY-coo SOON-de-ah-ta). A Village Voice critic once wrote of SUNDIATA, "... like Billie Holiday, Sundiata surprises with images and tumbling phrases that blend with subtle rhythmic variations." Although he's an established and respected artist, he's just completed his debut CD, "The Blue Oneness of Dreams" (Mouth Almighty Records/Mercury). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : SEKOU SUNDIATA continued.

Interview with Robert Reich; Review of the made-for-TV movie "In the Gloaming." April 17, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884408].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Secretary of Labor ROBERT REICH (Pronounced RYE-CH with "CH" sound at end) He reflects on his four years in the Clinton administration and why he stepped down. His new memoir is "Locked in the Cabinet" (Knopf). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "In the Gloaming" the new telemovie on HBO starring Glenn Close and directed by Christopher Reeve Interview with John Waters; Interview with Divine; Interview with Stanley Tucci; Review of the film "Kissed." April 18, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884326].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker JOHN WATERS' film "Pink Flamingoes" is 25 years old this year. We rebroadcast one of his earlier conversations with Terry, shortly after he made the cult film "Polyester," starring Divine and Edith Massey. "Polyester" was Waters' first studio film, and the first of his movies that didn't carry a self imposed X-rating. (REBROADCAST from July 1985). INT. 2: DIVINE, the late leading lady of John Waters' films. Born Harris Glen Milstead, the 300-pound transvestite passed away in March of 1988, shortly after starring in John Waters' first big budget studio film, "Hairspray." He was 42. Divine was an integral part of Waters' ensemble cast, appearing in all his earlier films except "Desperate Living." Divine and Waters knew each other from childhood. It was Waters' movie "Pink Flamingoes" that made Divine famous, because he ate dog feces (yes, real feces) at the end of the film. (REBROADCAST from February 1988.) INT. 3: Actor STANLEY TUCCI (pronounced TWO-CHEE). He's appeared in the films "Kiss of Death" and "The Pelican Brief." On television he was nominated for an Emmy for his portrayal of the slimy billionaire on "Murder One." He co-wrote, co-directed, and co-starred in the film "Big Night," a homage to Italian food and family. (REBROADCAST from 10/2/96) REV.: Critic JOHN POWERS review the film "Kissed."

Commentary on houses; Review of four new poetry collections; Interview with Robert Fagles; Commentary on found recordings of a family's interactions. April 21, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884407].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT PINSKY reads his poem "House Hour." REV." Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new book by our new poet laureate Robert Pinsky, "The Figured Wheel" (Noonday)." She also reviews other poetry books: "View with a Grain of Sand" by Wislawa Szymborksa (Harcourt Brace); "Meadowlands" by Louise Gluck" (Ecco); "Does Your House Have Lions" by Sonia Sanchez" (FS&G) INT. 2: Scholar and translator ROBERT FAGLES. He is a professor at Princeton University and has gained recognition for his interpretation of "The Iliad." His latest translation of Homer is a new version of "The Odyssey" (Viking). The book also has a companion cassette recording of the poem by Ian McKellen.
Recently Fagles won the PEN/Ralph Manheim Medal for lifetime achievement in the field of translation.

REV. : ACCIDENTAL DOCUMENTARIES from "This American Life." A 1967 "letter on tape" which was found in a Salvation Army Thrift Store. It features the father, mother and daughter of a Michigan family who's interactions on the recording reveal much about their relationships with one another.

Interview with Sean Kelly; Interview with Adam Hochschild; Commentary on Gracie Allen. April 22, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884327].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist SEAN KELLY. His 1993 book, "America's Tyrant: The CIA and Mobutu of Zaire" (The American University Press) provides context for the unrest now in Zaire. Thirty years ago KELLY covered Mobutu's rise to power. KELLY was with the Voice of America for twenty years. Now he teaches at American University in D.C. INT. 2: Journalist ADAM HOCHSCHILD (pronounced "HOKE-shield"). In his recent article in the New Yorker (April 14, 1997) "Mr. Kurtz, I Presume" HOCHSCHILD considers the colonial history of Zaire -- once known as "the Congo" -- looking for the prototype for Kurtz the fictional greedy ambitious white man of Joseph Conrad's novel "Heart of Darkness." REV. : Fresh Air classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reads the title poem from his book "Good Night, Gracie" (published in 1992 by the University of Chicago Press)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Palestinian psychiatrist and human rights activist DR. EYAD EL SARRAJ. He is director of the Gaza Community Mental Health Program and is considered an authority on the traumas experienced by children under Israeli occupation. SARRAJ has been an outspoken opponent of human rights violations whether committed by Israelis or Palestinians. Recently he was detained and interrogated by Palestinian police because of remarks he made critical of the Palestinian Authority. He was released after nine days following protests by Palestinian and international human rights groups. SARRAJ has just been honored with the first Physicians for Human Rights Award. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with DR. AL-SARRAJ continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "So Long So Wrong" (Rounder) the new album by Allison Krauss and her band the Union Station.

Interview with Jeffrey Toobin; Interview with William Ulrich. April 24, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884325].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and former prosecutor JEFFREY TOOBIN. He's covered the O.J. Simpson trial for the New Yorker and has been a staff writer for the magazine since 1993. Now he is writing about the Oklahoma City Bombing trial and the issues it uncovers, from jury selection to victims' rights. Toobin is also a Legal Analyst for ABC's "Good Morning America" and the author of the bestselling book "The Run of His Life: The People vs. O.J. Simpson." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: WILLIAM ULRICH (pronounced OOL-rich). His new book is "The Year 2000 Software Crisis" (Yourdon Press). It is a guide to solving the problems that will arise in the millennium when computer software will translate the two-digit shorthand '00 as 1900, not 2000. For companies world-wide this computer failure could lead to business failure. Ulrich is President of Tactical Strategy Group, Inc. and a strategic Year 2000 advisor for corporations and government agencies. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER) REV. : WILLIAM ULRICH continued.

Interview with Doug Peacock; Interview with Charlie Sifford; Review of the films "Paradise Road" and "Daytrippers." April 25, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884350].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Environmentalist DOUG PEACOCK. He's devoted the last 20 years to saving the grizzly bear. Like many Veterans, he had trouble adjusting when he returned from Vietnam. He sought a life of seclusion in the mountains and it was then that he first encountered grizzly bears. Now, he performs research alone through the mountains of Wyoming and Montana studying the behavior, social hierarchy, and communication methods of grizzlies in their natural habitat. His books include "Grizzly Years," "Baja" and a memoir of Edward Abbey, "Walking It Off." Most recently, he contributed to "Mark of the Bear: Legend and Lore of An American Icon" (edited by Paul Schullery, Sierra Club Books). (THIS

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer LEONARD WOLF. His latest book "Dracula: The Connoisseur's Guide" (Broadway Books) is about our attraction to vampires and the curiosity they have provoked over the past 100 years. Wolf is thought of as a specialist on the subject, having written such books as "The Essential Phantom of the Opera," "The Essential Dr. Jekyll & Mr. Hyde," "The Essential Dracula," and a number of other horror related books. Wolf is also the winner of the O. Henry Fiction Award and is co-curator of MOMA's film retrospective CineDracula which will be held until May 20th. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Writer RICHARD STERLING. He is the editor of "Travelers' Tales Food: True Stories of Life on the Road" (Travelers' Tales). While in Asia serving in the Navy, Sterling developed an interest in the art of travel and food and claims he is willing to try any dish or drink at least once. He is also author of "The Eclectic Guide to San Francisco and the Bay Area" and "Dining with Headhunters" and is the travel editor for "Fiery Foods" magazine. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER) REV. :

Interview with Nicholas Lemann; Interview with John Young; Review of the album "Lee Konitz meets Jimmy Giuffre." April 29, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884352].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist NICHOLAS LEMANN is National Correspondent of The Atlantic Monthly. He's written an essay in the April 28, 1997 issue of Newsweek, "The Limits of Charity." He'll talk with Marty Moss-Coane about the volunteerism touted at the current Presidential Summit. INT. 2: Former major baseball league scout JOHN YOUNG. He is currently special assistant to the general manager of the Chicago Cubs. In 1988 he began a program in south central Los Angeles to get inner city kids playing baseball. Known as RBI ("Reviving Baseball in the Inner Cities"), the program has since expanded to include 51 cities and 40,000 youth. (For information about RBI contact: Tom Brasuell, Baseball Office of the Commissioner, 350 park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022, phone 212-339-7844) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the reissue collection "Lee Konitz meets Jimmy Giueffre" (Verve).

Interview with Philip Hilts; Interview with Joe Sachs; Review of the television show "Ellen." April 30, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/974039108].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist PHILIP HILTS. He's a longtime correspondent on health and science policy for The New York Times. He broke the now-famous story of the Brown and Williamson tobacco industry papers, and is the author of "Smoke Screen: The Truth Behind the Tobacco Industry Cover-Up." (Addison-Wesley). He'll discuss recent developments in the industry: the federal court ruling allowing the FDA to label tobacco a drug, and the historic admission by the Liggett Company that cigarettes are a health hazard and addictive. INT. 2: Emergency room physician JOE SACHS. He's a consultant to the popular TV drama series "E.R." He'll discuss how he works with the show, and his work in the real E.R. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the "Ellen" episode that's been talked about for months: the one in which she comes out as a Lesbian.

Interview with Irvine Welsh, James Kelman, and Duncan McLean; Commentary on Bob Wills. May 1, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884354].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We talk with three of Scotland's most prominent writers: Irvine Welsh is the author of "Trainspotting" which was recently adapted into a movie. James Kelman won the prestigious Booker Prize for his 1994 novel "How Late It Was, How Late." and Duncan McLean is the author of "Bunker Man." The writers talk about their backgrounds and their careers. INT. 2: Interview with the three Scottish
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Interview with Douglas McGrath; Review of the Chemical Brothers' album "Dig Your Own Hole"; Obituary for Mike Royko; Review Ward Just's novel "Echo House." May 2, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884353].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director and writer of the film version of Jane Austen's "Emma," DOUGLAS MCGRATH. Already known as a playwright, screenwriter and columnist, this is his debut as a director. "Emma" is generally regarded as Austen's most accomplished and wittiest novel--a matchmaker doing all the wrong things for all the right reasons. MCGRATH is author of the New Republic column, "Flapjack File." Emma was released on video last month. (Originally aired 8/13/96) REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the Chemical Brothers' newest CD "Dig Your Own Hole." INT. 2: Columnist MIKE ROYKO died Tuesday at the age of 64. For more than 30 years, Royko has written a column on happenings in his native Chicago and throughout the world. Royko has earned the Pulitzer, the Mencken, and Pyle Awards. His column was carried in more than 800 papers. Royko also wrote "Boss," a best-selling portrait of Chicago mayor Richard Daley. (Originally aired 10/26/89) REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the latest novel by Ward Just called "Echo House."

Interview with John Gottman; Interview with Jerry Yang; Commentary on psychics. May 5, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884187].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychologist JOHN GOTTMAN talks about what are some of the key factors that lead to either a good or bad marriage. He has studied hundreds of marriages, and found common behaviors that happy couples share. Gottman is author of "Why Marriages Succeed or Fail," "What Predicts Divorce" and "The Heart of Parenting." Gottman is a professor of psychology at the University of Washington. INT. 2: JERRY YANG is co-founder of YAHOO, a directory to the World Wide Web. YAHOO has an online site, as well as a companion book. YAHOO is one of the most popular sites on the Web. Users can access YAHOO, once in the Web at http://www.yahoo.com. Yahoo's book is YAHOO! Unplugged (IDG... books) REV. : Writer and commentator DAGOBERTO GILB talks about his experience with trying to track down a psychic. While he never did get see her, a message telling his fortune did find its way to him.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The New York Times' HOWARD FRENCH on events in Zaire. Over the weekend talks began between Zaire's president Mobutu Sese Seko and the rebel leader trying to overthrow him, Laurent Kabila. Talks have halted over a disagreement between the two: Mobutu agreed to relinquish power but only to a transitional authority that would organize national elections. But Kabila wants power handed over to him. Meanwhile rebel forces are closing in on Kinshasa. Talks will resume in six to eight days. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with HOWARD FRENCH continued. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Down by the River," by Edna O'Brien.

Interview with Willem Dafoe; Review of Abbey Lincoln's album "Who Used to Dance." May 7, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502317].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor WILLEM DAFOE. He's a star in films, and says he is attracted to roles that are morally ambiguous. His villainous turns include: "To Live in Die in L.A.," "Platoon," "Wild at Heart," and "The English Patient." When he's not starring in films he's performing on stage with productions by the Wooster Group, an ensemble that presents experimental theatre in New York. The group's director is Elizabeth LeCompte, DAFOE's longtime companion, and mother of their 14 year old son. He is currently starring in the group's off-broadway production of Eugene O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape." This summer DAFOE stars in the film sequel, "Speed 2." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: WILLEM DAFOE cont'd. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews Abbey Lincoln's new release " Who Used to Dance" (Verve)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBIN GORNA has been active in AIDS work since 1986. She is Head of Health Promotion at the Terrence Higgins Trust in London. She is the author of "Vamps, Virgins and Victims: How Can Women Fight AIDS?" (Cassell publishing, London, New York). She recently attended the National Conference on Women & HIV which was held in L.A. May 4-7. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Gorna REV. : Gorna

Interview with John Krakauer; Interview with Garry Kasparov; Review of the film "The Fifth Element"; Commentary on the tenth anniversary of "Fresh Air" as a national radio program. May 9, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502983].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Mountain climber and writer JON KRAKAUER was with the group of climbers who were climbing Mt. Everest May 10-11, 1996 when a storm hit. Eight climbers were killed. JON KRAKAUER was covering the climb for Outside Magazine. Terry talked with him last year right after he returned home from the climb. (REBROADCAST from 5/23/96) INT. 2: We put in a call to JON KRAKAUER to see how he is a year after the Everest expedition. He now has a book about the climb, "Into Thin Air: A Personal Account of the Mt. Everest Disaster" (Villard) INT. 3: World Chess Champion GARRY KASPAROV. (CASS-par-ov). Last year in Philadelphia in a well publicized match, Kasparov beat IBM's Deep Blue, which was considered the most competitive chess computer to date. He is currently in the midst of another match with a more powerful Deep Blue. (REBROADCAST from 11/26/96) REV. : Film critic JON POWERS reviews "The 5th Element" the futuristic film starring Bruce Willis. REV. : In honor of Fresh Air's 10th anniversary as a national program, musician DAVE FRISHBERG performs an original song, commissioned by the show's staff.
Interview with Robert Hughes; Interview with Jeffrey Tambor. May 12, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503069].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Art critic ROBERT HUGHES. He has been Time magazine's art critic for more than 25 years. He is the author of a number of books and the recipient of a number of awards, most recently one from the American Academy of Arts and Letters. His latest book is "American Visions: The Epic History of Art in America" (Knopf). There's also a companion 8-part PBS series which he hosts, beginning May 28. INT. 2: Interview with ROBERT HUGHES continues. Actor JEFFREY TAMBOR. For five years he's played the part of Hank Kingsley, talk-show sidekick on the HBO comedy series, "The Larry Sanders Show." He's had many character roles on television and film. He made his film debut with a critically-acclaimed performance as Al Pacino's deranged law partner in the 1979 film "And Justice For All." He's currently starring in the TV movie "Weapons of Mass Distraction" written by Larry Gelbart. It premieres May 17. REV. : Interview with JEFFREY TAMBOR continues.

Interview with Marcia Clark; Review of Hanson's album "Middle of Nowhere." May 13, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502884].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lead prosecutor in the O.J. Simpson criminal trial, MARCIA CLARK. She has since stepped down as Prosecutor in the Office of the Los Angeles District Attorney. She has a new memoir about the trial and her experiences: "Without a Doubt" (Viking) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: MARCIA CLARK intv. cont'd. REV. : Ken Tucker reviews the newest CD "Middle of Nowhere" by the group Hanson.

Interview with Peter Balakian; Interview with Alf Clausen; Commentary on language and computers. May 14, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502880].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet PETER BALAKIAN (Bah-LAKE-ee-in) is Professor of English at Colgate University, and the author of a new memoir "Black Dog of Fate: An American Son Uncovers His Armenian Past" (Basic Books) BALAKIAN grew up in an affluent New Jersey suburb, unaware of the tragedy that was part of his family's past: the genocide of a million Armenians in 1915 by the Ottoman Turkish government. He started to learn about the past when he discovered the document of his grandmother's human rights suit against the Turkish government, and the lost memoir of his great uncle, a bishop in the Armenian church. BALAKIAN has also written four books of poetry. INT. 2: Composer ALF CLAUSEN the man behind the music of "The Simpsons." There's a new compilation CD of music from the animated cartoon TV series, "The Simpsons: Songs in the Key of Springfield" (Rhino) REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG comments on computers' limited capacity for speech.

Interview with Randall Kennedy; Interview with James McPherson; Review of Yo La Tengo's album "I Can Hear the Heart Beating as One." May 15, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503152].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Harvard Law School Professor RANDALL KENNEDY. His new book examines race and the criminal justice system, "Race, Crime, and the Law" (Pantheon Books). In his research KENNEDY finds that African-Americans have suffered more from being "left unprotected by law enforcement authorities than from being mistreated as suspects or defendants." INT. 2: Historian JAMES MCPHERSON is a Professor of American History at Princeton University. He's written eleven books about the Civil War, including his Pulitzer Prize winning book, "Battle Cry of Freedom." His latest book is "For Cause & Comrades: Why Men Fought in the Civil War" (Oxford University Press). Drawing on 25,000 letters and 250 private diaries, MCPHERSON looks at why so many soldiers willingly risked their lives to fight in the war. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "I Can Hear the Heart Beating As One" (Matador) the new recording by the band Yo La Tengo.
Interview with Jay Leno; Interview with Mike Myers; Interview with George Carlin; Commentary
.oclc/971502879].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JAY LENO is celebrating his 5th anniversary as host of The Tonight Show. In this archive interview, LENO talks with Terry about his life: growing up, his struggling years as a stand-up (with other comics like Robin Williams, Andy Kaufman, and Steve Martin), and taking over The Tonight Show, and his book "Leading with my Chin." (REBROADCAST from 10/21/96) INT. 2: Comedian MIKE MYERS is enjoying box office success with his new film "Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery," which he wrote, co-produced, and plays the title role. MYERS began his career at Second City in Toronto and gained fame in the U.S. as a member of Saturday Night Live, where he created the characters and sketches for "Wayne's World" and "Sprockets." He made the transition from television to films when "Wayne's World" was adapted into a motion picture. (REBROADCAST from 5/1/90) Comedian George Carlin.
He has written a new book "Brain Droppings" which is published by Hyperion. (REBROADCAST from 6/1/90) REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI talks about the history of television laugh tracks and a new development in L.T. usage.

Interview with Darryl McDaniels; Review of R.F. Foster's book "W.B. Yeats May 19, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503151].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rap vocalist DARRYL MCDANIELS of RUN-DMC talks about the group's success. McDaniels is the "DMC" of the group. RUN-DMC was the first rap group to earn gold, platinum and multi-platinum albums. The group's most recent album is "Down with The King" released in 1994. But RUN-DMC is expected to release their next album later this year. The group is credited with bringing new fashions, new dances, and new language to popular culture. INT. 2: Interview with DARRYL MCDANIELS continues.
REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews R.F Foster's biography "W.B. Yeats a Life : The Apprentice Mage 1865-1914 Vol 1. It is published by Oxford. This first volume covers the years 1865 through 1914, a time during which Yeats met his great love and the subject of some of his finest poems, Maude Gonne. This is also the period in which the poet, along with Lady Gregory and John Millington Synge created the famous Abbey Theater and wrote some of his finest poems.

Interview with Arlie Hochschild; Commentary on drinking and R&B music; Interview with Anne Matthews; Review of the television shows "Roseanne" and "Mad About You." May 20, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503067].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of Sociology ARLIE HOCHSCHILD, at the University of California at Berkeley. She's the author the new book "The Time Bind: When Work Becomes Home & Home Becomes Work" (Metropolitan Books) about how work has become the refuge for harried Americans who find the demands at home more difficult than those at work. It's based on her research, interviewing employees for three years at a Fortune 500 company. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD looks at how drinking has been portrayed in R&B music over the years. INT. 2: Journalist and College Professor ANNE MATTHEWS talks about why college tuition is skyrocketing, and how campus culture and student expectations have changed over the years. Her new book is called "Bright College Years." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the the last episode of Roseanne -- which is vying for viewers with Mad About You.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fresh Air film critic JOHN POWERS has been in Cannes for the film festival. He talks with Terry about what he saw there. INT. 2: Novelist RICK MOODY. His work has been compared to Cheever and Updike. His latest novel is "Purple America" (Little, Brown & Co.). His previous novel "The Ice Storm" has been made into a film which just won the best screenplay adaption award at the Cannes Film Festival. REV. : Music critic MILO MILES reviews Capitol Records' "Ultra Lounge" reissue series.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British actor PETE POSTLETHWAITE. He played the incarcerated father of Gerry Conlon in "In the Name of the Father." Currently he can be seen in the new film "The Lost World," Steven Speilberg's sequel to "Jurassic Park," and "Brassed Off" a film about how members of a brass band respond to the economic decline of a small mining community in Yorkshire, England. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: FRANK CAPRA JR., and TOM CAPRA, the sons of film director Frank Capra, whose films include "It Happened One Night," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," and "It's a Wonderful Life." The two have produced a new documentary about their famous father, "Frank Capra's American Dream." REV. : none

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Memorial Day Weekend kicks off the summer season, time to pick out those beach side books. One name on many people's reading list will be JOHN GRISHAM - a name synonomous with the legal thriller. The prolific writer has seven novels to his credit. His eighth and newest is "The Partner." (Doubleday) GRISHAM recently returned to practicing law. He spoke to Terry about writing and lawyering. (REBROADCAST from 2/27/97) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: GRISHAM cont'd REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Manhattan '45" by Jan Morris (Oxford University Press), "Into Thin Air" by Jon Krakauer (Random House) and "Travelers' Tales Guides" (to Hong Kong, Paris, and San Francisco (O'Reilly and Associates.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: To commemorate Memorial Day, we feature a concert and interview with singer ROSEMARY CLOONEY taped before a live audience in San Francisco, January 18th, as part of the City Arts & Lectures series. CLOONEY sings some of her best known songs, accompanied by a quintet directed by John Oddo. She also talks with Terry about her life. Her 1996 album "Dedicated to Nelson" (a tribute to Nelson Riddle) was nominated for a Grammy. Her new album is entitled "Mothers and Daughters" (Concord Jazz.) (THIS CONCERT CONTINUES through THE END OF THE SHOW). (REBROADCAST from 2/11/97) INT. 2: Interview with ROSEMARY CLOONEY continues. REV.:

Interview with Bill Ayers; Commentary on the past and coming television seasons. May 27, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502693].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILLIAM AYERS is probably best known as a leader of the 1960's radical group "Weatherman" It was the militant arm of the Students for Democratic Society movement. But now focuses his efforts to reform the nation's schools and its juvenile court system. His latest book "A Kind and Just Parent" (Beacon Press) is a close look at Chicago's Juvenile Court system. His other books include "City Kids, City Teachers," "To Become a Teacher," "To Teach," "and "The Good Preschool Teacher." AYERS is a professor at University of Illinois at Chicago. He is married to Bernadine Dohrn who was also a leader of the "Weatherman" and was a key student organizer in the "Days of Rage" riots in Chicago in 1969. Both Ayers and Dohrn, who were wanted by the FBI, went underground for 11 years until they surrender in 1980. Neither were required to serve time in jail. INT. 2: Interview with WILLIAM AYERS continued. REV.:

TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks back and ahead at the television season.
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Radio producer DAVID ISAY and reporters LEALAN JONES and LLOYD NEWMAN. The new book "Our America: Life and Death on the South Side of Chicago," (Scribner) is compiled from interviews by Jones and Newman conducted at the Ida B. Wells housing project in Chicago, where they live. These are the same two boys who worked with Isay on the acclaimed documentaries, "Ghetto Life 101" and "Remorse: the 14 stories of Eric Morse." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with ISAY, JONES & NEWMAN cont'd. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Dig Me Out" by the rock band from Olympia, Washington called Sleater-Kinney.

Interview with Priscilla Hayner; Interview with Mark Behr. May 29, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502931].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PRISCILLA HAYNER, a Senior Fellow at the World Policy Institute, New School for Social Research, has been studying truth commissions. She is the author of numerous articles on the subject and is now working to complete a book. She will discuss the importance of the South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission. INT. 2: Author MARK BEHR talks about his experience spying on his peers as a college student for the South African government and his subsequent public confession of his actions. His novel "The Smell of Apples" (Picador USA) is the story of a young boy growing up in South Africa at the time of apartheid and it explains how a person could be convinced that apartheid is a morally legitimate form of government. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES TO THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : MARK BEHR cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author NORMAN MAILER. Over the past four decades Mailer's evolved into one of America's most important, and at times most flamboyant, writers. Terry talked with him in 1991 after the publication of his novel "Harlot's Ghost." His newest novel is "The Gospel According to the Son" (Random House) (REBROADCAST from 10/8/91) INT. 2: Novelist, journalist and columnist PETE HAMILL. He's written seven novels, including "Flesh and Blood," and "Loving Women." He was editor-in-chief at the New York Post. His 1994 memoir of the years he spent drinking, is "A Drinking Life: A Memoir." HAMILL quit drinking twenty years ago. His newest novel is "Snow In August" (Little, Brown & Co.) (Rebroadcast from 1/19/94) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Van" and the French film "Irma Vep"

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist YASMIN ALIBHAI-BROWN (YA-z-min AL-ih-BY(like "alibi")-BROWN) describes her family's experience as Asians in Uganda in her autobiography "No Place Like Home." (Virago Press) ALIBHAI-BROWN's family, like many others, was forced out of East Africa by president and military leader, Idi Amin, twenty-five years ago. ALIBHAI-BROWN moved to England and earned an degree in English at Oxford. Her freelance work is now published in the "Guardian," the "Observer," and the "Independent." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Journalist YASMIN ALIBHAI-BROWN cont'd. REV. : Filmmaker ALAN BERLINER has focused much of his work on the dynamics of families. His newest film "Nobody's Business" is a documentary about his father, Oscar Berliner. This critically acclaimed film reveals the ongoing conflict between ALAN BERLINER, who obstinately works to complete the film, and his father, who is scornful of the project. It will premiere on PBS on June 3, as a part of the Tenth anniversary season of "Point Of View."
Interview with Mary Moran, Joseph Opala, and Cynthia Schmidt; Interview with Michael Hashim; Interview with Linda McCarriston; Review of Jean Dominique Bauby's memoir "The Diving Bell and the Butterfly." June 3, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502930].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Earlier this year, 75 year old South Carolina resident MARY MORAN had the unique opportunity to go to Sierra Leone with other members of her family. MORAN's mother had taught her a song in an African language which had been in the family since an ancestor had been brought over from Africa two hundred years ago. In 1989, through the efforts of anthropologist JOSEPH OPALA and ethnomusicologist CYNTHIA SCHMIDT, it had been discovered that this song, composed in the Mende language, was still sung by certain villagers in Sierra Leone. In Freetown, MORAN received an enthusiastic welcome and was able to sing the song with the villagers who knew it. INT. 2: Saxophonist and arranger MICHAEL HASHIM talks about and performs a rare and newly discovered composition of Billy Strayhorn "Up There." The composition had previously been recorded as the tune "Skippy." (This is a special recording for Fresh Air. It's not available on CD) INT. 3: Poet LINDA McCARRISTON is the author of several books including "Eva-Mary" which is a collection of poems about the domestic abuse that McCARRISTON, along with her mother and brother, suffered at the hands of her father. In her works, she brings in to question issues such as gender and class equity and the difficulties of addressing her molestation. She now lives and teaches in Alaska. Her poems have appeared in numerous anthologies and magazines. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Diving Bell and the Butterfly" (Knopf) a memoir by the late Jean Dominique Bauby (BO-BEE).

Interview with Ingrid LaBarbiera; Review of John Fogerty's album "Blue Moon Swamp." June 4, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502692].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: INGRID LABARBIERA is the mother of Amy Barbiera, the subject of the HBO documentary "Heart of a Child." The film documents a year in the life of four year old Amy, who at such a young age had a heart/double lung transplant, and then seven months later another double lung transplant. Amy later died. The film's producers are Karen Goodman and Kirk Simon. "Heart of a Child" airs Thursday, June 12 at 8 PM on HBO. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)
INT. 2: INGRID LABARBIERA continued. REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Blue Moon Swamp" (Warner) the first solo album by John Fogerty in ten years.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The music of singer, songwriter, and guitarist MATTHEW SWEET is a mix of pop and alternative and has been likened to Revolver-era Beatles. His albums have enjoyed international critical and popular success. In his newest album, "Blue Sky on Mars" (Zoo Records), SWEET sings both lead and background vocals, as well as playing most of the guitars, keyboard, and bass. INT. 2: NPR's roving correspondent BOB GARFIELD has reported on the oddities of America for "All Things Considered" and in his syndicated column. His new book "Waking Up Screaming from the American Dream" (Scribner) is a collection of stories about the bizarre measures people have taken to live the American dream. REV.: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Peter Greenaway's new film "The Pillow Book."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress GLENN CLOSE. This summer she stars in the thriller "Air Force One," and recently she starred in the World War 2 film about women prisoners of war "Paradise Road." Last winter she played Cruella De Vil in Disney's "101 Dalmations." Before taking up this role, she appeared on Broadway in "Sunset Strip." Close has appeared in a number of films including: "Fatal Attraction," "The Big Chill," "The Natural," "Dangerous Liaisons." (REBROADCAST from 11/27/96) INT. 2: French Composer MICHEL LEGRAND. He composed the score for the 1964 classic French film, "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg," which is now out on video. In the film every bit of dialogue is sung to Legrand's music. The film was recently restored; for years it was unavailable because no decent print existed. LEGRAND has won three Oscars for the song, "The Windmills of Your Mind," from the film "The Thomas Crown Affair," best original dramatic score for "Summer of '42," and best original song score for "Yentl." Some of LEGRAND's compositions are included on the CD "Musique & Cinema," (Travelling, dist. by Auvidis,

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MARY GORDON is the author of several bestselling novels, about the conflicts facing contemporary women. Her 1996 memoir, "The Shadow Man: A Daughter's Search for Her Father", was released in paperback last month (Vintage Books). In the book she writes that at the age of 44, she discovered she wasn't the person she thought she was. As she researched her father, she discovered truths about him that forced her to rethink who she is. Gordon's father died when she was seven. Gordon has written several bestselling novels, including "Final Payments" and "The Company of Women." (REBROADCAST FROM 05/14/1996) INT. 2: Interview with MARY GORDON cont'd REV. : Music Commentator MILO MILES reviews a recent show of "They Might Be Giants."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African Photojournalist PETER MAGUBANE (Mah-goo-BON-Knee). He's been photographing life in South Africa for over 40 years, depicting the reality of life under apartheid, including the Soweto uprising and the Sharpeville massacre. He was the first black South African to win a photography prize in his country. But he endured 586 days in solitary confinement, six more months in jail, and five years of "banning" in which he wasn't allowed to work. He's published 11 books. His upcoming book is "The Vanishing Cultures" (Cape Town: Struik Publishers, due in September). This month he receives the 1997 Leica Lifetime Achievement Award given by the Mother Jones International Fund for Documentary Photography and the Leica Camera Group. INT. 2: Rock chronicler and collector MICHAEL OCHS (also, brother of Phil Ochs). He has one of the world's largest private collections of record covers. He has a new book collecting covers from the 1950s to the 1990s, "1000 Record Covers" (Taschen Publishers, Germany). He talks with Terry Gross about his favorite recordings though,

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Independent Counsel in the Iran-Contra Investigation, LAWRENCE WALSH. He's written a new book about un-covering the truth about the Iran-Contra scandal, "Firewall: The Iran-Contra Conspiracy and Cover-up," (W.W. Norton & Co.) WALSH is now counsel to Crowe & Dunlevy in Oklahoma City and serves as a legal mediator. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: DANIEL BAXTER, M.D. has written a new book about his work, "The Least of These My Brethren: A Doctor's Story of Hope and Miracles on an Inner-City AIDS Ward." (Harmony Books). REV. : BAXTER continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress and model ISABELLA ROSSELLINI talks about her famous parents, actress Ingrid Bergman and filmmaker Roberto Rossellini, and her own career. She has acted in numerous films including "Blue Velvet," and she was the spokesmodel for Lancme cosmetics company. Her new book about her life is entitled "Some of Me." (Random House) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: ROSSELLINI continued REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Spinning Song" (Avan) featuring guitarist Duck Baker playing the music of Herbie Nichols.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Head coach of the Chicago Bulls, PHIL JACKSON. Jackson played for eleven years with the New York Knicks, worked as a television color commentator, and coached minor-league for four years, before becoming the head coach of the Bulls who led them through three consecutive NBA championships with a unique coaching style. The team is currently in the NBA playoffs. He pulled together a winning team of star players Michael Jordan, Scottie Pippen, and Dennis Rodman. In his book, "Sacred Hoops" (Hyperion) JACKSON shares the ways in which he seeks to transform the every-man-for-himself professional play of three of the world's best basketball players into selfless team play. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL EXTEND INTO THE SECOND HALF). (REBROADCAST from 9/30/96) INT. 2: RED HOLZMAN tells of his five decades in basketball as a player, coach and general manager. He's a member of the Basketball Hall of Fame and was coach of the New York Knicks when they won the world championship in 1970. Now retired, Holzman wrote his autobiography "Red on Red" in 1987. (REBROADCAST from 12/8/87) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Ulee's Gold" starring Peter Fonda.

Interview with Steve Lopez; Commentary on radio journalism. June 16, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502066].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: STEVE LOPEZ was an award-winning columnist for the "Philadelphia Inquirer" for twelve years. In his novels, LOPEZ confronts political corruption and greed as he did in his columns. HIS new novel is called "The Sunday Macaroni Club" (Harcourt Brace and Company). LOPEZ is now Senior Writer-at-large for Time Magazine. INT. 2: Interview with STEVE LOPEZ cont'd. REV. : We feature a segment from the award-winning public radio program "This American Life". In "Whoring in Radio News" reporter Scott Carrier explains why he tells everyone he works for a man known only as "The Friendly Man" and why this helps him in his job.
Interview with King Britt and Josh Wink; Interview with Ken Emerson. June 17, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502072].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In 1994, Philadelphia-based DJs and recording artists KING BRITT and JOSH WINK joined their creative efforts together to form Ovum Recordings, an independent record label. BRITT and WINK are each celebrated techno performers in the international dance music community and each has his own unique music style. Ovum recently agreed to a worldwide label pact with Ruffhouse/Columbia Records. INT. 2: KEN EMERSON talks about the subject of his new biography, Stephen Foster. Foster was a nineteenth century songwriter who had a strong impact on American music. He was the composer of many familiar songs including, "Oh! Susanna," "Camptown Races," and "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair." EMERSON says Foster was heavily influenced by black music. And even though the music was often performed in the offensive black-face style, his songs sometimes betray a sympathy for African-Americans. His biography is called "Doo-dah!: Stephen Foster and the Rise of American Popular Culture" (Simon and Schuster). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : KEN EMERSON continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Food writer CLAUDIA RODEN. She's the winner of Italy's most prestigious food prizes and the winner of five Glenfiddich prizes. Her book "Mediterranean Cookery" was published in conjunction with her BBC television series. Her new book is "The Book of Jewish Food: An Odyssey From Samarkand to New York with More than 800 Ashkenazi and Sephardi Recipes" (Knopf) REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Gina Berriault's new collection of short stories "Women in their Beds" It is published by Counterpoint. INT. 2: Epidemiologist BILL JENKINS works for the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta where he is an expert on minority issues in Sexually Transmitted Diseases. In 1969 he tried unsuccessfully to end the Tuskegee experiments in which 400 Alabama black men infected with syphilis went untreated for decades in an effort to understand the progression of the disease. The experiments began in 1932 and were halted in 1972. Now JENKINS manages a program that provides medical coverage to the men who were part of the experiment and their families. REV. Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Paul McCartney's new album, "Flaming Pie."

Interview with Mary Anne Hunter; Interview with Ron Whitehorne and Sofia Gonzales; Interview with Peaches Ramos; Commentary on the band ?Cubanismo!. June 19, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502167].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MARY ANNE HUNTER, the president of the Fair Hill Burial Ground Corporation. A member of the Quaker community, HUNTER led the Quaker community in the restoration of the burial ground, which had fallen into disrepair and had been taken over by drug dealers. North Philadelphia itself has the highest murder rate in the city. Community activists have sought to make Fair Hill a place where people can go safely to enjoy a clean, green space and to visit an historical landmark in which historically important people, such as abolitionist Lucretia Mott, are buried. INT. 2: Teacher RON WHITEHORNE has also involved himself and his students in the restoration of Fair Hill. A teacher at the Julia De Borgeos Middle School, WHITEHORNE has tried to help urban children overcome the odds and add to their own community. He is joined by 12 year-old SOFIA GONZALES, a student who has been active in the program. She is tired of the image of North Philadelphia as an urban wasteland and wants to prove that she lives in a neighborhood where people care. REV. : Community activist PEACHES RAMOS has been working to rid the neighborhood of drug dealers. She lives across from Fair Hill and has led community efforts to clean it up and make it safe. REV. Music critic MILO MILES talks about the latin jazz group ?Cubanismo!.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz musician JAMES MOODY. Last year, Terry talked to him about his then new CD, "Young At Heart". (Warner Brothers) It is a collection of Frank Sinatra tunes. Just after World War II, MOODY joined the bebop big band of Dizzy Gillespie and played with Milt Jackson. His most famous recording is of an improvisatory piece he performed in 1949, now known as "Moody's Mood For Love." In this CD, MOODY performs as vocalist, tenor/alto/soprano saxist and flutist. Some of the selections include "Love and Marriage," "Nancy," "Only the Lonely" and "In the Wee Small Hours of the Morning." INT. 2: DMITRI NABOKOV. Son of writer VLADIMIR NABOKOV is a writer himself, and works as a translator of his father's works. In 1989, He edited a volume of his father's letters dating from 1940-1977. The letters trace Vladimir Nabokov's struggles beginning with his arrival in America from Russia, to his legal battles over censorship of his most famous novel, "Lolita." A movie version of "Lolita" has been made but an American distributor for the film has not been found. The film's screenwriter is former Fresh Air film critic Stephen Schiff. REV.: Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews "My Best Friend's Wedding" which stars Julia Roberts and Dermot Mulroney.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BETH GIVENS of the Privacy Rights Clearinghouse talks about privacy in the digital age. INT. 2: JANNA MALAMUD SMITH is the author of the book "Private Matters," about our contradictory ideas about privacy. She's the daughter of novelist Bernard Malamud. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new Clare Boothe Luce biography, "Rage for Fame."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian GEORGE CARLIN has written his first book called "Brain Droppings" (Hyperion Books). It's a collection of original humor pieces. CARLIN has been working in comedy for forty of his sixty years. He's had numerous HBO specials and roles in movies. REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER says he believes that the most popular country music is the blandest, while an underground movement of "alterna-country" performers is more passionate and raw. He'll review two such albums: Robbie Fulks's "Country Love Songs" and Joy Lynn White's "The Lucky Few." INT. 2: Author ROBERT KANIGEL discusses his new biography, "The One Best Way: Frederick Winslow Taylor and the Enigma of Efficiency." (Viking) Taylor was a nineteenth century pioneer of business management. He developed Taylor's Scientific Management, a system which would encourage higher efficiency by creating more stressful work which was rewarded with higher wages. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Elusive Muse," the Academy Award-nominated documentary on ballet dancer Suzanne Farrell, who married choreographer George Balanchine. The documentary will be shown in an edited-for-TV version as a part of the PBS series "Dance in America" on June 25.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and director KEVIN SMITH. His work has won acclaim in the independent film community, including awards at the Cannes and the Sundance film festivals. His new film "Chasing Amy" is the third installment of his New Jersey Trilogy, a series set in central New Jersey, where SMITH grew up and still lives. "Chasing Amy," like SMITH's other films, deals with the complexities of human relationships during the confusing time before adulthood with an off-beat sense of humor. (INTERVIEW CONTINUED IN 2ND HALF) INT. 2: Novelist RICHARD RUSSO. Russo gained critic's recognition for his portrayal of life in a declining upstate New York mill town with his novels Mohawk and The Risk Pool. His latest novel His book "Nobody's Fool" was adapted into a film starring Paul Newman. His latest novel is "Straight Man." It is published by Random House. REV. : Interview with RICHARD RUSSO continues.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer LAURENCE BERGREEN talks with Terry about his newest book "Louis Armstrong: An Extravagant Life". It is published by Broadway books. While this is certainly not the first biography of Armstrong, BERGREEN had used many of Armstrong's previously unexplored personal letters and diary entries. BERGREEN traces Armstrong's life from his birth in New Orleans in 1901, through his four marriages, and his many contributions to American Jazz. BERGREEN is the author of three other Man and the Era." INT. 2: Interview with LAURENCE BERGREEN cont'd. REV. : MIlo Miles on MC 5 guitarist Wayne Kramer

Interview with Conan O'Brien; Interview with Sonia Ascoli-Israel; Review of the film "Face/Off." J une 27, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503256].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Late-night talk show host CONAN O'BRIEN. He took over David Letterman's spot in 1993. Now nearly four years (September 13, 1993) since becoming host of "Late Night with Conan O'Brian" he's become a household name. Previous to that, O'BRIEN was a writer for Saturday Night Live. His sketches included "Mr. Short Term Memory" and "The Girl Watchers." He was also a writer/producer for "The Simpsons." (Originally aired 10/30/96) INT. 2: Doctor of psychology and director of a sleep disorder clinic in San Diego, SONIA ANCOLI-ISRAEL. Last year, her book, "All I Want Is A Good Night's Sleep" was published. (Mosby-Year Book) It addresses both sleep and the full range of sleep disorders, with advice on how to improve everyday sleep and how to overcome chronic sleep problems. Jet lag, snoring, sleepwalking and talking, and insomnia are all addressed. ANCOLI-ISRAEL is a professor of psychiatry at the University of California, San Diego, School of Medicine. REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Face Off" which stars Nicholas Cage and John Travolta.

[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503086].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Blues singer and guitarist COREY HARRIS. He has been credited with helping bring the traditional acoustic sound of Mississippi Delta Blues to contemporary blues audiences. He has a new CD called Fish Ain't Bitin' by Alligator Records. His first album is titled Between MIdnight and Day. B.B.
King says about HARRIS, he's got everything it takes to go to the top. INT. 2: Interview with COREY HARRIS cont REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews James Hynes collection of stories, "Publish and Perish: Three Tales of Tenure and Terror."

Interview with Stan Sesser; Interview with Esterita "Cissie" Blumberg; Review of Arto Lindsay's album "The Subtle Body" and the album "Money No Be Sand." July 1, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458330].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist STAN SESSER. He is a former staff writer for the New Yorker and the senior fellow of the Human Rights Center at the University of California at Berkeley. Sesser has been following the events leading up to today's takeover of the British-ruled Hong Kong by the Chinese government. INT. 2: ESTERITA "CISSIE" BLUMBERG writes a monthly column for the Catskill/Hudson Jewish Star. She grew up in a hotel in the Catskills, and later owned and operated it with her husband. Her new book is "Remember the Catskills: Tales by a Recovering Hotelkeeper" (Purple Mountain Press) REV. : Music critic MILO MILES reviews two "outstanding" world music CDS from 1996: "The Subtle Body" (Bar/None label) by Brazilian singer/guitarist Arto Lindsay, and "Money No Be Sand" (Original Music) an anthology by world music pioneer John Storm Roberts. (Original Music can be reached @ 914-756-2767)

Interview with Timothy Ferris; Commentary on the Byrds. July 2, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458741].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Science writer TIMOTHY FERRIS. He's the author of the bestseller "Coming of Age in the Milky Way." His new book is "The Whole Shebang: A State-of-the Universe(s) Report" (Simon & Schuster). FERRIS is an emeritus professor at the University of California, Berkeley. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: TIMOTHY FERRIS interview continued. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD remembers the Byrds.
Interview with Dan Penn and Spooner Oldham; Interview with Rufus Thomas, Marvell Thomas, Dan Penn, and Spooner Oldham; Interview with Syl Johnson. July 3, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825354].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: To celebrate the 10th anniversary of Fresh Air: a presentation of blues music and interviews with performers at the world-famous Chicago Blues Festival recorded on June 8, 1997. Featuring DAN PENN, a master of nineteen-sixties soul and the writer of hits such as Cry Like a Baby and Sweet Inspiration. His songs have been recorded by artists including Aretha Franklin and Otis Redding. PENN is joined by his long-time songwriting partner SPOONER OLDHAM, a talented keyboard player, who has recorded with Arthur Alexander and Box Tops and has toured with Bob Dylan and Neil Young. (THE PENN AND OLDHAM PART OF THE PERFORMANCE CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF). INT. 2: Also performing, RUFUS THOMAS, the self-proclaimed world oldest teenager. He played an integral role in the success of major record labels in the nineteen-fifties, Sun Records and Stax Records. He celebrates his 80th birthday at the festival by playing with his son, Marvell. REV. : Singer SYL JOHNSON had hits in the nineteen-sixties and seventies such as Come on Sock it to Me and Take Me to the River. Rappers including TLC and Hammer have sampled his early tunes. JOHNSON will perform, backed up by a four piece band.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A live on stage conversation between film critic ROGER EBERT and film director MARTIN SCORSESE, held at the Wexner Center for the Arts in Columbus, Ohio in February. They discuss the scope of SCORSESE's career. (REBROADCAST from 3/24/97) (THIS CONVERSATION WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: More with EBERT and SCORSESE REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the rerelease of the French film "Contempt" starring Bridget Bardot. The film is part of the Martin Scorsese Presents series.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Saturday Night Live cast member MARTIN SHORT. Though he only spent one season with the show (1984), he left a lasting impression with his characters such as Ed Grimley, Jr., the cowlicked dork, and his impersonations of Katherine Hepburn and Jerry Lewis. Since then he's appeared in a number of films: "Father of the Bride," and "Father of the Bride 2" (as a flamboyant party planner) and "Mars Attacks." In 1993 he made his Broadway debut in the musical version of Neil Simon's "The Goodbye Girl," and recently was in "Promises, Promises" on Broadway. He also had a short-lived prime time TV show, "The Martin Short Show." He's currently appearing in the film "A Simple Wish." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: MARTIN SHORT continued. REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews the reissue of Iggy Pop's "Raw Power." (Columbia Legacy)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Anthropologist JOSEPH OPALA lived in Sierra Leone for the past 23 years. In May of this year, the Sierra Leone army staged a coupe and Opala thought he would be safe in the hotel where the Nigerian general was staying. Instead, the hotel became a target and caught on fire from the attacks. OPALA had to help other people get out of the country and was eventually evacuated himself. He'll talk about his experience. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF) INT. 2: Author PATRICK McGUIGGAN talks about the subject of his new biography: film director Fritz Lang. German-born Lang was the director of many films including "Metropolis" and "The Big Heat," and his work has influenced many other filmmakers. During his life, Lang was conscious of his own power to craft his image and his past. McGUIGGAN was able to uncover the truth behind many of the myths in Lang's life. The book, which is called "Fritz Lang: The Nature of the Beast." (St. Martin's Press), reveals Lang's real connection with the Nazis, his flings with actress and prostitutes, and evidence of his possible involvement in the murder of his first wife. REV. : PATRICK McGUIGGAN cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GAVIN De BECKER is a violence prevention specialist. He deals with risk assessment for the U.S. Government and corporations. He also advises on domestic abuse, stalkers and workplace violence. He is author of the new book 'The Gift of Fear' published by Little, Brown & Company. He heads a 46 member Los Angeles company called Gavin De Becker Inc. INT. 2: Interview with GAVIN DeBECKER cont REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel 'Deception on His Mind' by Elizabeth George.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director JOHN WOO grew up in Hong Kong and directed numerous films there before coming to Hollywood. He has established himself as a master of action thrillers and is known for his elaborate action scenes. WOO also directed the American films Broken Arrow, and Hard Target." His new blockbuster film starring John Travolta and Nicholas Cage is called "Face/Off." It's in theaters now. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Screenwriters MIKE WERB and MICHAEL COLLEARY first collaboration is the script for "Face/Off" which they wrote in 1990. The two attended UCLA film school together. WERB wrote the screenplay for "The Mask" and COLLEARY's first writing jobs were for Roger Corman and Cannon Films. Since they wrote "Face/Off" they've worked for every major studio and their TV credits include "Darkman3 - Die, Darkman Die!" for MCA and "Bump in the Night" for NBC. REV. : NONE
Interviews with Charlie Haden, Don Cherry, and Ornette and Denardo Coleman; Interview with Charlie Haden; Review of the album collection "Poptopia." July 11, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458441].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This summer New York's Lincoln Center pays tribute to jazz legend Ornette Coleman with "? Civilization: A Harmolodic Celebration" July 8-11, a series of concerts which features him and other musicians including Charlie Haden and Billy Higgins who with Don Cherry in 1959 and Coleman changed the course of jazz with the start of "free jazz" and the formation of The Ornette Coleman Quartet. Today's show features archive interviews with: 1) Jazz Bassist CHARLIE HADEN. He formed his Quartet West to play the music of the 1940s and early 50s, and they've released a number of albums. His latest album is a collaboration with Pat Metheny, "Beyond the Missouri Sky." (Verve). (REBROADCAST from 11/26/1985)2) Trumpeter DON CHERRY. He died in 1995. (REBROADCAST from 9/12/1990)3) Composer and jazz musician ORNETTE COLEMAN and his son, producer DENARDO COLEMAN. They collaborated on an album, under the label that Coleman recently founded: Harmolodic (a division of Verve Records). COLEMAN was a recipient of the MacArthur Fellowship Award. COLEMAN'S latest release is "Colors" with German pianist Joachim Kuhn (Harmolodic). Also his landmark 1987 album "In All languages" featuring him and the members of his original Quartet has been re-issued. (also on Harmolodic) (REBROADCAST from 10/24/1995) INT. 2: Jazz bassist CHARLIE HADEN. He's released his fifth album with his Quartet West, "Now is the Hour," (Verve). Haden formed the quartet to play the music of the 1940s and early 50s. He's worked with jazz musicians Art Pepper, Paul Bley, Ornette Coleman. And he's recorded with many artists including Abbey Lincoln, Bill Frisell, Joshua Redman, Rick Lee Jones, and others. Last year Haden released a much regarded album of spirituals with pianist Hank Jones, "Steal Away--Spirituals, Hymns and Folk Songs." REBROADCAST from 5/29/96. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Poptopia" (Rhino Records) a collection of three decades of power pop.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Artist WILLIAM CHRISTENBERRY is known for his portrayal of the American South in his work. He has spent 35 years rendering images of the architecture and the landscape of his birthplace, rural Alabama, in drawings, sculptures, and photographs. His art deals with Southern heritage with both affection and aversion. One of the most compelling and disturbing projects which he has been working on since 1962 is called "The Klan Room." This collection of pieces which includes the iconography of the Ku Klux Klan is CHRISTENBERRY's response to the terror that this group inspired in him and in its victims. By using the Klan's images, he attempts to dissolve the power they give the group. His show "Reconstruction: William Christenberry's Art" will be at the Museum of American Art (of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts) in Philadelphia until August 31. (The exhibit next goes to the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art, Winston-Salem, North Carolina (Oct 25 - Jan 11, 1998) INT. 2: Writer CARI BEAUCHAMP is the author of the new book, "Without Lying Down: Frances Marion and the Powerful Women of Early Hollywood" (Scribner). She was the highest paid writer, male or female, for three decades, and was also the first woman to win an Academy Award twice for screenwriting. Her stories were directed by George Cukor, John ford, and King Vidor. She was married four times (she has said, "I spent my life searching for a man to look up to without lying down.") But her friendships with women in Hollywood were legendary.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ERIC FONER is the DeWitt Clinton Professor of History at Columbia University. He has published numerous works on the American Reconstruction after the civil war, a period whose problems with promoting racial and economic justice in a diverse country remain relevant to America today. FONER's new book "America's Reconstruction: People and Politics after the Civil War" (Louisiana State University Press) was published in conjunction with an exhibition on the Reconstruction at the Valentine Museum in Richmond, Virginia which opened in 1995 and is still touring the country. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new double CD by the hiphop group Wu Tang: "Wu Tang Forever" (RCA, Loud label)
Interview with Donald Westlake; Interview with Link Wray; Commentary on musician Paul Kelly. July 16, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458745].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Mystery writer DONALD WESTLAKE has written 70 novels and screenplays (including "The Grifters" and "The Stepfather"). He is known for his novels which combine laughs with thrills, and which show equally incompetent criminals and law enforcement. His recurring characters include a bungling burglar named John Dortmunder, and a gun-for-hire named Parker. WESTLAKE has also written novels that parody the world of publishing and supermarket tabloids. His latest novel is a crime novel about downsizing, "The Ax" (Mysterious Press/Warner Books) INT. 2: Guitarist LINK WRAY. He's credited with inventing the "power chord" in the 1950s. His first big recording hit was "Rumble" an instrumental piece that he wrote. When he went to record it in the studio he wasn't happy with the sound on the amp, so he pierced holes in the speaker cone to create additional distortion. Later guitarists like Pete Townshend and John Lennon were influenced by his work. WRAY'S other hits include "Rawhide" and the Batman Theme. Rhino records released "Rumble: the Best of Link Wray" in 1993. WRAY'S latest release is "Shadowman" (Ace Records, London) REV. : Rock historian ED WARD remembers soul singer and songwriter Paul Kelly. He had one big hit in 1970. (Warner brothers released a compilation of his recordings in 1996)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former prison warden TEKLA (like "TECH-la") DENNISON MILLER wrote a memoir called "The Warden Wore Pink" (Biddle Publishing Company) about her twenty year career as a warden of a men's maximum security prison. She describes the experience of women in corrections and reveals the reality of prison life. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF). INT. 2: Television producer TOM FONTANA has collaborated with Barry Levinson on the critically acclaimed drama "Homicide: Life on the Street." The team is now premiering a new adult drama for HBO, called "Oz," which FONTANA also wrote. "Oz" is a realistic look at an experimental unit of a maximum security prison whose aim is to rehabilitate its inmates. Each episode focuses on a specific theme, such as sex or capital punishment, and how it affects the characters. "Oz" debuted on July 12 on HBO and can be seen on Mondays at 11 PM ET. REV. : TOM FONTANA cont'd

Interview with Kweisi Mfume; Interview with Carl Sagan; Review of the film "Contact." July 18,

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: President of the NAACP -- KWEISI MFUME (pronounced Kwah-EE-zee Oom-FOO-mae). He was a five term U.S Congressman for Maryland, and former Chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus.
In 1996 he was appointed the head of the NAACP. He wrote a memoir, "No Free Ride: From the Mean Streets to the Mainstream." (Ballintine Books). (REBROADCAST from 8/21/96) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Astronomer and Pulitzer Prize winner CARL SAGAN. The new film "Contact" is based on Sagan's novel of the same name. SAGAN died last December. (REBROADCAST from 5/29/96) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews
"Contact" starring Jodie Foster.

Interview with Thomas Lynch; Commentary on literature and travel; Review of Ron Miles's
oclc/969458621].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet and undertaker THOMAS LYNCH has combined his two occupations to produce his new book, "The Undertaking: Life Studies from the Dismal Trade." (W. W. Norton) The work is a collection of essays whose topics range from the scheme to use cemeteries as golf courses to poignant stories from his twenty year career as an undertaker. LYNCH says he thinks that the meaning of life is connected to death, and his book primarily discusses the impact of the dead on the living. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN tells us about her recent junket, a "Mystery Lover's Tour of England." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews
"Woman's Day" (Grammavision) the new release by Trumpeter Ron Miles.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Commissioner for New York's Child Welfare Agency, the Administration for Children's Services NICHOLAS SCOPPETTA. He recently called for an expansion of foster care for the city's children, including "neighborhood based" care. SCOPPETTA understands well the struggles of children in foster care. As a five year old boy, he was taken out of his home in New York's Little Italy for neglect, and lived in several foster institutions for six years. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: HENRY FOSTER JR., M.D. is Senior Advisor to President Clinton on Teen Pregnancy Reduction and Youth Issues. He founded the I Have a Future program to encourage at-risk youth to stay in school, and to build self-esteem. FOSTER was nominated by Clinton to be U.S. Surgeon General but his nomination was withdrawn because of controversy over Foster's record on abortion. He has a new book, "Make a Difference." (Scribner) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER takes a look at this summer's hit singles.

Interview with Harry Greene; Interview with Paul Hillyard; Commentary on Brazil and music. July 23, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458443].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Mike Seeger; Interview with Joseph Timility. July 24, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458622].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Folk singer and collector of folk recordings MIKE SEEGER. In the early 1950s he sought to preserve the music traditions of the mountains of the Southeast U.S. thru recordings and through his own playing. In 1958 he cofounded the New Lost City Ramblers. SEEGER is the half-brother of folk singer Pete Singer. He has a new collection of music he recorded: "Close to Home: Old time Music From Mike Seeger's Collection: 1952-1967" (Smithsonian). There's also a new collection: "There Ain't No Way Out: New Lost City Ramblers" (Smithsonian) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Former Massachusetts State Senator JOSEPH TIMILITY. In 1993 he was indicted for conspiracy to commit fraud in a condominium development project. He refused to plea bargain, was arrested and spent four months in prison. His new memoir is of those four months: "Prison Journal." (Northeast University Press) REV. : JOSEPH TIMILTY cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and director KENNETH BRANAGH (rhymes with "Savannah"). His most recent film "Hamlet" has just been released on video. There's a companion book to the film which includes the screenplay, introduction, and film diary (W.W. Norton). Branagh's other films include adaptations of Shakespeare's "Henry the Fifth", with himself in the title role, Othello, playing Iago, "Dead Again," a psychological thriller starring Branagh and Emma Thompson, and "Much Ado About Nothing," also starring himself. Branagh was born in Northern Ireland, studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, spent two years with the Royal Shakespeare Company, as well as acting, managing, and directing other groups and working on several BBC productions. (originally aired 1/7/97) INT. 2: The visual artist KEITH HARING emerged when punk and New Wave music and the hip-hop scene of graffiti artists and break dancers were the background and source for music and art appearing throughout New York. His work responded to, and helped form and translate, the city's street culture. He died in 1990 at the age of 31. The Whitney Museum in New York is currently showing an exhibit featuring many his works through

Interview with Mavis Jukes; Interview with Chaz Bono; Commentary on Frankie Lymon. July 28, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825450].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Children's book writer MAVIS JUKES is the award-winning author of such books as "Like Jake and Me," "Blackberries in the Dark" and "I'll see you in My Dreams." Her new book is a guide for preteen girls who are about to enter puberty, "It's A Girl Thing: How to Stay Healthy, Safe, and in Charge" (Knopf) INT. 2: CHASTITY BONO is the daughter of Sonny Bono and Cher. In 1990 Star Magazine "outed" her as a lesbian. Since then she has become an outspoken advocate for lesbian and gay rights. She was former spokesperson for the Human Rights Campaign, a national lesbian and gay political organization. She is now Entertainment Media Director for the Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : Rock historian Ed Ward profiles Frankie Lymon.

Interview with Scotty Moore; Review of Nicholas Mosley's novel "Children of Darkness and Light." July 29, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458740].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guitarist and record producer SCOTTY MOORE, was Elvis Presley's first guitarist and manager and one of the early influences of the rock guitar sound. He has co-written an account of his work with the King of Rock'n'Roll, entitled "That's Alright, Elvis." (Schirmer Books) He also has a new CD out of collaborations he and drummer DJ Fontana did with various musicians including Keith Richards, Tracy Nelson and Cheap Trick, among others. The CD is entitled "All the King's Men." (RCA) INT. 2: SCOTTY MOORE cont'd. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the novel "Children of Darkness and Light" by Nicholas Mosley (Dalkey Archive Press)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Physicist KENT CULLERS is Project Manager with SETI, the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence Institute. A character in the new film "Contact" is based on Cullers. Cullers has been blind since birth and was the first totally blind physicist in the United States. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: JOHN SZWED has written a new biography of Sun Ra, the orchestra leader and piano player who claimed to be from outer space. His new book is "Space is the Place: The Lives and Times of Sun Ra" (Pantheon Books). SZWED is Musser Professor of Anthropology, African American Studies, Music and American Studies at Yale University. REV. : SZWED continued.

Interview with Charles W. Sweeney; Interview with Margot Adler; Review of Ron Sexsmith's album "Other Songs." July 31, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458585].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Maj. Gen. CHARLES W. SWEENEY was the last officer to lead an atomic mission and was involved in both the Hiroshima and the Nagasaki bombing runs. He has written a memoir entitled "War's End" (Avon Books) which provides a first hand account of the planning and the execution of one of the history's most destructive combat missions. INT. 2: NPR correspondent MARGOT ADLER's commitment to political causes began in her childhood: she grew up in a household of communist sympathizers during the McCarthy era. As a student at Berkeley, she continued her activism. During this time, she exchanged letters with an American soldier in Vietnam. Her life in the sixties is the subject of her memoir, "Heretic's Heart: A Journey Through Spirit and Revolution." (Beacon Press) ADLER is now an expert on witchcraft and paganism. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new recording by Ron Sexsmith "Other Songs" (Interscope). He made his debut two years ago.
Interview with James Ellroy; Interview with Ellery Eskelin; Review of the film "In the Company of Men." August 1, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458590].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Crime novelist JAMES ELLROY. ELLROY was born in Los Angeles in 1948. After his mother was mysteriously strangled to death when he was ten, he grew up obsessed with crime. His life spun towards booze, drugs, theft, and jail. He eventually, at the age of 27 cleaned up his life and began writing. He has written several novels, many of which were international best-sellers, including "American Tabloid"(Knopf), "Clandestine"(Avon Books), "The Black Dahlia"(Warner Books). His most recent novel, "My Dark Places"(Knopf) in which he tells the story of his mother's murder, how it has effected his life, and his search for the killer is about to come out in paperback. (REBROADCAST from 12/3/96)

INT. 2: Tenor saxophonist and composer, ELLERY ESKELIN. He's been called the most inventive American tenor player in creative music. His father, Rodd Keith, (also known as Rod Rodgers) was killed when he was struck by cars on the Hollywood Freeway after leaping or falling from the Santa Monica Boulevard overpass. ESKELIN only knew his father for the first eighteen months of his life. As he grew up he was inspired and intrigued by the continuous stories he heard about him and his musical talent. He produced a collection of his father's recordings titled "I died Today - Music of Rodd Keith"(for the Tzadik label's "Lunatic Fringe" series). ESKELIN's new release comes out in September, "One Great Day," (Hatology). He'll be touring the Southeast this September (Noxsville, Columbia, S.C., Washington D.C., and Baltimore). His website is http://home.earthlink.net/~eskelin (REBROADCAST from 12/3/96)

REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "In the Company of Men" the new low-budget film by newcomer Neil Labute.

Interview with Barbara Kirwin; Interview with Mike McAlary; Obituary for William Burroughs. August 4, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458738].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Forensic psychologist BARBARA KIRWIN has examined hundreds of murderers. One of her most infamous patients was Joel Rifkin, the Long Island Serial Killer, who pleaded insanity. Her book is called "The Mad, the Bad and the Innocent: The Criminal Mind on Trial- Tales of a Forensic Psychologist." (Little, Brown, & Co.) (THIS INTERVIEW MAY JUMP INTO THE SECOND HALF)

INT. 2: Journalist MIKE MCALARY has reported on police in New York for the New York Post and has written several books on the subject as well. His latest project has been a novelization of the new movie "Cop Land" (Miramax Books/Hyperion) which will be in theaters this summer. The movie, written by James Mangold, stars Sylvester Stallone and Robert DeNiro. REV. : Author WILLIAM BURROUGHS, one of the Beat Generation writers whose works included the novel "Naked Lunch" died on Saturday at the age of 83. We remember him with a reading. (Rebroadcast of 2/24/1995)

---

Interview with Steve Sabol; Interview with Larry Fink and Bert Sugar. August 5, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458742].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This month National Geographic "Explorer" will broadcast a behind-the-scenes documentary about NFL films, whose innovative presentation of football has helped make the sport as popular as it is today. The show, which is called "Inside NFL Films: The Idol Makers," will air on August 17th at 7 PM (ET) on TBS Superstations. MARTY MOSS-COANE talks with STEVE SABOL, the president of NFL films, who also directs many of the NFL films. INT. 2: The sport of boxing has been in the news since boxer Mike Tyson bit the ear of his opponent, Evander Holyfield. Photographer LARRY FINK has captured many images of boxing which have been collected in his book, "Boxing" (Powerhouse Books). And sports writer BERT SUGAR has written numerous works on sports and has served as senior vice-president of "The Ring" magazine, a magazine on boxing. He wrote the essay included in FINK's book. They'll talk about the often maligned sport. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : LARRY FINK and BERT SUGAR cont'd.

---

Interview with David Calof; Review of the album "Symphony No. 7." August 6, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458365].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Hypnotherapist DAVID CALOF has been using hypnosis for 20 years to help clients discover - thru their own subconscious - the way to solve their emotional problems. He's written a new book about his work, "The Couple Who Became Each Other: And other Tales of Healing from a Hypnotherapist's Casebook" (Bantam Books). CALOF practices family therapy and hypnotherapy in Seattle. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV. : Classical music critic...
LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of Mahler's Seventh Symphony by Pierre Boulez and the Cleveland Orchestra (Deutsche Grammophon).

Interview with Nate Thayer; Interview with Arundhati Roy; Review of Charles Frazier's novel "Cold Mountain." August 7, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458361].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Journalist Nate Thayer Reports on Cambodia's trial of Pol Pot. INT. 2: Novelist Arundhati Roy. Her popular novel "The God of Small Things" is being called obscene, and is in danger of being banned in India. REV. : Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews James Frazier's novel "Cold Mountain"

Interview with Leonard Wolf; Interview with John Young; Obituary for Fela Kuti. August 8, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972883878].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Writer LEONARD WOLF. His latest book "Dracula: The Connoisseur's Guide" (Broadway Books) is about our attraction to vampires and the curiosity they have provoked over the past 100 years. Wolf is thought of as a specialist on the subject, having written such books as "The Essential Phantom of the Opera," "The Essential Dr. Jekyll & Mr. Hyde," "The Essential Dracula," and a number of other horror related books. Wolf is also the winner of the O. Henry Fiction Award. (Originally aired 4/28/97) INT. 2: Former major league baseball scout JOHN YOUNG. He is special assistant to the general manager of the Chicago Cubs. In 1988 he began a program in south central Los Angeles to get inner city kids playing baseball. Known as RBI ("Reviving Baseball in the Inner Cities"), the program has since expanded to include 51 cities and 40,000 youth. (For information about RBI contact: Tom Brasuell, Baseball Office of the Commissioner, 350 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022, phone 212-339-7844) (REBROADCAST from 4/29/97) REV. : Nigerian singer Fela was considered one of the most popular and innovative musicians in Africa. He died last Saturday of complications from AIDS at the age of 58. Fela was a songwriter and bandleader who played the sax and keyboards. Music critic Milo Miles remembers the life and work of a performer who made every album and every show a celebration of ordinary people and an attack on authority

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guest host (and our TV critic) DAVID BIANCULLI interviews TOMMY SMOTHERS of the comedy duo The Smothers Brothers. In 1967, their show The Smothers Brothers Comedy hour first went on the air. The show has been credited with helping pave the way for a new generation of TV comedy shows including Saturday Night Live. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Emmy-award winning writer-producer PAUL HAGGIS. He's written for Norman Lear's sitcoms, was writer-producer of the first season of thirtysomething, and wrote sketches for The Tracey Ullman Show. His new TV series is "EZ Streets." (Interview by David Bianculli) REV. : PAUL HAGGIS continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor GREGORY HINES has performed on the stage in numerous shows including the hit, Jelly's Last Jam, for which he won a Tony award. He has also been in films such as Waiting to Exhale and the upcoming The Tic Code. Now he stars in his own television series, The Gregory Hines Show. HINES plays a widower raising a twelve year old son and attempting to resume his own social life. The show premieres this fall on CBS, Fridays at 9:00. (Interview by David Bianculli) INT. 2: Director of the Center for Study of Popular Television and Professor of Television at Syracuse University BOB THOMPSON. He discusses his curriculum which includes shows like "I Love Lucy," "Leave It to Beaver," and "The Brady Bunch." (Interview by David Bianculli) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Where's Your Cup" (Columbia) the latest release by musician and composer Henry Threadgill.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Aquatics director JIM SPIERS with Aerobics West, a fitness club in New York City's Upper West Side. SPIERS specializes in teaching children and infants how to swim. His students can be as young as six months old. Though the Red Cross maintains that children under five can not be taught to swim, SPIERS disagrees, and considers it a safety measure to teach toddlers how to swim. (An article in the New York Times, July 31, 1997, edition profiles SPIERS). (Interview by Barbara Bogaev) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Napoleon of Crime" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, Aug. 15) a biography of Adam Worth, the most famous criminal of the Victorian Age by London Times reporter Ben Macintyre. INT. 2: KEN FINKLEMAN is the writer/producer/star of "The Newsroom" -- the hit satirical comedy series out of Canada's CBC. It's broadcast in the U.S. over many PBS stations. There's no studio audience, no laugh track, and the show is shot with one hand-held camera. (Interview by Barbara Bogaev) REV. : Music critic ED WARD reviews the new Jimi Hendrix album (yes, you read that right), "First Rays of the New Rising Sun" (Experience Hendrix/MCA) the album he left incomplete at the time of his death.

Interview with Cheryl Pearl Sucher; Interview with Tara VanDerveer. August 14, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458744].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author CHERYL PEARL SUCHER is the daughter of holocaust survivors. Her debut novel, The Rescue of Memory (Scribner), draws on her own experiences. It is about a young woman who must come to terms with the impact of the holocaust on her parents and her aunt, who were victims of the camps. (Interview by Barbara Bogaev) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF) NT. 2: TARA VANDERVEER coached the Olympic gold medal-winning U.S. Women's basketball team. The team's performance drew large crowds and secured the formation of two professional U.S. women's leagues: the WNBA and the ABL. VANDERVEER has written a book about her own experience as a woman in sports. Its called 'Shooting from the Outside: How a Coach and her Olympic Team Transformed Women's Basketball.' (Avon Books) VANDERVEER now coaches the Stanford University Women's Interview with Peter Guralnick; Interview with D. J. Fontana; Interview with Scotty Moore; Review of the film "Cop Land." August 15, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825300].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author PETER GURALNICK has written the first of a two part biography of Elvis Presley, retelling the story of the King's childhood "soberly, thoroughly and unsensationally" (says the ALA Booklist). "Last Train to Memphis: The Rise of Elvis Presley" (now in paperback) tells much of the story through quotes both from Elvis and people who knew him then. It attempts to portray Elvis' human side, rather than the mythical figure he has become. (REBROADCAST from 10/4/94) INT. 2: D.J. FONTANA is a member of rockabilly sextet the Sun Rhythm Section. Fontana was active in the 1950s and played with legends like Elvis Presley. (REBROADCAST OF 6/26/1987) INT. 3: Guitarist and record producer SCOTTY MOORE, was Elvis Presley's first guitarist and manager and one of the early influences of the rock guitar sound. He has co-written an account of his work with the King of Rock'n'Roll, entitled "That's Alright, Elvis." (Schirmer Books) He also has a new CD out of collaborations he and drummer DJ Fontana did with various musicians including Keith Richards, Tracy Nelson and Cheap Trick, among others. The CD is entitled "All the King's Men." (RCA) (REBROADCAST from 7/29/97) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Cop Land"

Interview with Roger Tabor; Interview with Nicholas Dodman. August 18, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458607].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Naturalist and biologist ROGER TABOR has studied house cats for twenty years. He has prepared television series on felines for the BBC and has written several books on the subject. His latest book is called "Understanding Cats: Their History, Nature, and Behavior" (Reader's Digest). INT. 2: DR. NICHOLAS DODMAN, a veterinary behaviorist, is the author of "The Dog Who Loved Too Much: Tales, Treatments, and the Psychology of Dogs" (Bantam) In the book, he describes his own methods for correcting dog behaviors, such as attacking the telephone when it rings or scaring company, and he includes many stories from his own practice. REV. : DODMAN cont'd.

---

Interview with Monty Roberts; Review of the album "The Complete Plantation Recordings of Muddy Waters." August 19, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458767].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MONTY ROBERTS has been studying horses for his entire life. His extraordinary ability to communicate with them has earned him the title "horse whisperer." He has written a new book about his life from studying wild mustangs in the Nevada desert to demonstrating his horse training methods to the Queen of England. The book is called "The Man Who Listens to Horses: The Story of a Real-Life Horse Whisperer" (Random House). ROBERTS was featured on "Dateline NBC." INT. 2: ROBERTS cont'd. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD reviews an MCA release of Muddy Waters' songs folklorist Alan Lomaz recorded in the field.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: EMILY WORTIS LEIDER has written a new biography of Mae West, "Becoming Mae West" (Farrar, Straus, Giroux). LEIDER's book examines the early, formative years of West who was famous for witty one-liners, promiscuity, and being censored. Mae West started out as a vaudeville performer before launching a successful career in film. In the 1930's she starred in "She Done Him Wrong," based on her play "Diamond Lil" and "I'm No Angel," two of her biggest films. INT. 2: Saturday Night Live cartoonist ROBERT SMIGEL. He's created such popular segments as The Ambiguously Gay Duo, and Fun with Real Audio. SMIGEL is no stranger to SNL or comedy TV. He was a writer for Saturday Night Live from 1985-93. Among his sketches are one in which guest star William Shatner tells Trekkies at a convention to "get a life." He has also worked as an executive producer for "The Dana Carvey Show." And he was the head writer for "Late Night with Conan O'Brien" and still frequently performs on that show as characters like, "Triumph the Insult Dog." REV.: Music critic Milo Miles reviews Ocho's album "The Best of Ocho."

---

Interview with Dan Carter; Review of the television programs "George Wallace" and "Snow White"; Review of the film "The Art of Singing August 21, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457027].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian DAN CARTER. His book, Scottsboro was the winner of the Bancroft Prize in History in the category of American History. CARTER discusses his biography of George Wallace, The Politics of Rage: George Wallace, The Origins of the New Conservatism, and the Transformation of American Politics. (Simon & Schuster). In the book CARTER contends that Wallace paved the way for the conservatism that is now a big part of Republican politics. CARTER is Kenan Professor of History at Emory University. (Originally aired February 6, 1996) INT. 2: Interview with DAN CARTER cont'd. REV. 1: TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two shows appearing on cable tv this weekend. "George Wallace" on TNT and "Snow White" which stars Sigourney Weaver on Showtime. REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the home video "The Art of Singing: Golden Voices of the Century.

---

Interview with George McGovern; Interview with George Jones; Obituary for Nusrat Fateh Ali Kahn. August 22, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458606].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former U.S. Senator GEORGE MCGOVERN. Last year his book "Terry: My Daughter's Life and Death Struggle with Alcoholism." was published. (Villard) After a night of drinking in December of 1994, Terry was found dead in a parking lot near her home in Madison, Wisconsin. Terry's addiction plagued her almost her entire life, despite countless efforts at rehabilitation. The book draws upon Terry's letters and journals, interviews with loved ones, and medical and police records. (Originally aired 6/11/96) INT. 2: Country music star GEORGE JONES. He's widely acclaimed as one of the greatest country singers, but his 40-year career has also been marked by alcohol and drug abuse. When this interview first aired, he had recently published his autobiography, "I Lived to Tell it All" (Villard, New York). (Originally aired May 8, 1996) REV. : Music Commentator MILO MILES looks back on the life of Pakistani musician Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan who died this month at the age of 48. He was one of the world's most famous religious singers. He was a Sufi muslim who performed Qawwali (ku-walee)...a type of devotional song intended to induce ecstasy.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1A: Veteran stand-up comedian HENNY YOUNGMAN. When this interview first aired in 1991, Youngman had just published a new memoir, called "Take My Life, Please." (Morrow). (Rebroadcast from 10.18.91.) INT. 1b: Comedy writer ALAN ZWEIBEL. He was one of the original writers for "Saturday Night Live." He discusses his 14 year friendship with Gilda Radner whom he met at SNL and teamed up with to create such memorable characters as Roseanne Roseannadanna and Emily Litella. ZWEIBEL has written a memoir about their friendship, called "Bunny Bunny: Gilda Radner: A Sort of Love Story" (Villard Books), which has since been turned into a play. He also worked on "The Gary Shandling Show." (Rebroadcast from 8.3.89). INT. 2a: For more than 40 years, PHYL LIS DILLER has made a career out of her own poor looks, and the exploits of her bumbling, imaginary, husband, Fang. DILLER paved the way for an entire generation of female comics. (Rebroadcast from 7.1.86.) INT. 2b: Comedian JOAN RIVERS did stand up comedy for years. She was a guest host for "The Tonight Show" and has also hosted her own talk show. In this interview from 1991, Rivers discusses her memoir, called "Still Talking." (Random House). (Rebroadcast from 11.08.91.)

Interview with Chris Rock; Interview with Jon Lovitz; Interview with Martin Short; Interview with Steven Wright; Review of the film "The Full Monty." August 26, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825299].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1a: Comedian CHRIS ROCK. He got his start in show business performing stand-up routines in Manhattan. He spent three years on Saturday Night Live and appeared in a few films including the recent Beverly Hills Ninja. He also had a comedy and talk-show series, "The Chris Rock Show" on HBO.

(REBBROADCAST from 2/6/97) INT. 1b: Comedian JON LOVITZ. He played the pathological liar on SNL among other characters such as Annoying Man and Harry Chanukah. (REBROADCAST from 4/28/92) INT. 2a: Former SNL cast member MARTIN SHORT. Though he only spent one season with the show (1984) he left a lasting impression with his characters such as Ed Grimley Jr., the cowlicked dork, and his impersonations of Katherine Hepburn and Jerry Lewis. Since then he's appeared in a number of films: "Father of the Bride" and "Father of the Bride 2" (as a flamboyant party planner) and "Mars Attacks." He also had a short-lived prime time TV show, "The martin Short Show" His latest film is "A Simple Wish" (REBROADCAST from 7/7/97) INT. 2b: Comedian STEVEN WRIGHT. He is the King of Understatement. . . i.e. "Wind chimes are for stupid people so they know when the wind is blowing" (REBROADCAST from 9/4/90) REV. : Film critic John Powers reviews "The Full Monty."

Interview with Richard Belzer; Interview with Richard Lewis; Interview with Larry David; Interview with Carol Leifer. August 27, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825297].

Description of show segment(s)

Int. 1A: Comedian RICHARD BELZER. For a number of years now, he's played a detective on the show "Homicide." This interview was conducted before he took on that role. Belzer also appeared frequently on "Saturday Night Live" "The Tonight Show" and "Late Night with David Letterman." He's also written a book titled "How To Be a Stand-up Comic." (Originally broadcast 12/31/87.) Int. 1b: Comedian RICHARD LEWIS portrays a spastic, tortured, self-deprecating man living a life of unrelieved pain. He says of his standup comedy that after he's finished his act "people throw prescription drugs and the names of their therapists instead of roses. I'm the wreck they can't be." LEWIS has appeared roughly 35 times on the "Late Night with David Letterman" show and has had his own comedy specials on HBO. He also starred in the sitcom "Anything But Love." (Originally broadcast 6/16/88). INT. 2a: LARRY DAVID, the co-creator, executive producer, and one of the writers of the comedy series "Seinfeld." David's also the basis for the character "George," Jerry Seinfeld's neurotic best friend. He was a writer for Saturday Night Live and the short-lived ABC late night series, "Fridays."(Originally broadcast 1/2/92.) INT. 2b: Comedian CAROL LEIFER ("Leefer"). She's been a regular as a stand up on Late Night With David Letterman, and a writer for Saturday Night Live. She also has written for comedy pal (and former boyfriend) Jerry Seinfeld -- some say the character of Elaine is based on LEIFER. (Originally broadcast 12/15/93.)

Interview with Neil Innes; Interview with John Leguizamo; Interview with Lea DeLaria; Obituary for Brandon Tartikoff. August 28, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825340].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer and songwriter NEIL INNES (IN-ess). He is a founding member of the comedy-rock group "The Bonzo Dog Band." He's also a member of "Rutles" the band which he and Eric Idle of Monty Python, created as a spoof of the Beatles. The band recently reunited and recorded a new collection "The Rutles Archaeology" (Virgin Records). INNES is also considered the "seventh Python" player (as in the Monty Python) because he provided and performed comedy music for the troupe. The Rutles first came to the attention of the public in 1978 when their spoof documentary "All You Need is Cash" aired. Many of the original stars of Saturday Night Live appeared in the film. (The film is on video by Rhino). (REBROADCAST from 1/15/97.) INT. 2a: Actor JOHN LEGUIZAMO (pronounced "Leh-gwee-zamo"). Leguizamo created and starred in the hit one-man show "Mambo Mouth," based on his experiences as a Latino growing up in Jackson Heights, Queens. "Mambo Mouth" premiered on HBO's Comedy Hour. He has appeared in movies such as "Executive Decision" and this summer's "Spawn." (REBROADCAST from 10/24/91.) INT. 2b: Comic LEA DELARIA. (LEE-ah Dah-LAHR-ea) Don't call her a lesbian. She's a dyke. . . who does standup, and jazz singing. (REBROADCAST from 4/29/93) INT. 2c: The former president of NBC Entertainment BRANDON TARTIKOFF died yesterday at the age of 48 from complications from treatment for Hodgkin's disease. We remember him with a 1992 interview excerpt. While at NBC, he was responsible for such hit series as "The Cosby Show," "Cheer," "Miami Vice," and "Hill Street Blues." He went on to become chairman at Paramount Pictures. He wrote a book about his NBC years, "The Last Great Ride." (Turtle Bay Books). (REBROADCAST from 10/20/92)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian and actor GARRY SHANDLING. He stars in HBO's parody of talk-shows, "The Larry Sanders Show." It features SHANDLING as a veteran talk-show host. His guests have included Mimi Rogers and Robin Williams, playing themselves. SHANDLING also starred in "It's Garry Shandling's Show" a few years back. (REBROADCAST from 12/3/92.) INT. 2: Comedian and current Tonight Show host JAY LENO relates the first time he performed on Johnny Carson's Tonight Show. (REBROADCAST from 10/21/1996) INT. 3: Actor/Comedian/Screenwriter/Playwright STEVE MARTIN. He's the author a book of plays, and a collection of short stories. His screenwriting credits include "L.A. Story," and "Roxanne." He has also starred in such films as: "The Jerk," "Planes, Trains and Automobiles," "The Lonely Guy," "Parenthood," "Father of the Bride," "Housesitter," "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," "All of Me," "The Man with Two Brains," "Sgt Bilko," "Leap of Faith," "Little Shop of Horrors." He also won a Grammy Award for his album "Let's Get Small." (REBROADCAST from 9/17/96) INT. 4: Actor/Comedian RICHARD PRYOR. In 1995 he published an autobiographical novel, "Pryor Convictions and Other Life Sentences" (Pantheon Books). A strong man who has overcome such ordeals as a drug addiction, self immolation, and six marriages, Pryor is determined to overcome his most recent battle with multiple sclerosis. (REBROADCAST from 5/22/95.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor, comic, writer, director ALBERT BROOKS. Other comics revere him, although he's never been a huge commercial success. The films he's written, directed and acted in are "Real Life," "Modern Romance," "Lost in America," and "Defending Your Life." And he's acted in the films "Taxi Driver," "Broadcast News," and "I'll Do Anything." His latest film which he co-wrote, directed and stars in is "Mother." It's now out on video. It's about a grown man who blames his hypercritical mother for his problems. It also stars Debbi Reynolds. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). One of his comedy albums, "Comedy Minus One" has been reissued on Rhino.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film maker MICHAEL UYS. His latest project is RIDING THE RAILS which he co-wrote, co-produced, and co-directed. The documentary film recounts the experiences of the more than 250 thousand teenagers who left their homes during The Great Depression and hopped on trains in search for a better life. INT. 2: In this part of the show... TERRY GROSS talks with two people who as teenagers who left home and road trains during The Great Depression. JIM MITCHELL and PEGGY DEHART are both featured in MICHAEL UYSES film RIDING THE RAILS. MITCHELL was 16 years old in 1933 when he first board a train. DEHART was 15 in 1938. REV. : Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Nguyen Thieu's book "The Women Carry River Water."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times reporter JASON DEPARLE. In a recent New York Times Magazine cover story, DePARLE wrote about Wisconsin's reformed welfare system. This week, that state enters a new phase in its efforts to shift welfare recipients into the workforce. Cash assistance ends. In exchange, the state plans to provide more opportunities to get a job. INT. 2: DEPARLE cont'd. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Rhino Records new 6 cd set called Beg, Scream & Shout!: The Big Ol' Box of 60s Soul

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SISTER WENDY BECKETT is a member of the Notre Dame order, a teaching order of nuns and a celebrity. In 1980 she began the serious study of art, and since has written a number of books on the subject and hosted the popular PBS series "Sister Wendy's Odyssey" and "Sister Wendy's Grand Tour." This week PBS begins airing her newest 10-part series, "Sister Wendy's Story of Painting." There's a companion book (published by DK Publishing) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: SISTER WENDY BECKETT continued. REV. 1: Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on the origins of the word "paparazzo." REV. 2:Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the 1996 German release by pioneering American soprano saxophonist Steve Lacy. "Five Facings" is released on the German label FMP. In this series of recordings LACY is paired with such diverse piano players as Marilyn Crispell, Misha Mengelberg, Ulrich Gumpert, Fred Van Hove, and Vladimir Miller.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: He's known as the King of the Blues. B.B.(Blues Boy) KING was born on a cotton plantation in Mississippi before moving to Memphis where he began his career. Since then, among numerous other awards, he's received seven Grammies, an MTV award, and a Presidential Medal of the Arts. He is also a member of the Rock-and-Roll Hall of Fame. In his biography, entitled "Blues All Around Me"(Avon Books, out in paperback now) he recounts his life from his early days in Mississippi, to breaking into the music business in Memphis, to his career today. He has over 74 albums to his credit. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) (REBROADCAST from 10/22/96) INT. 2: B.B.KING cont'd. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Halfway Heaven" by Melanie Thernstrom (Doubleday) about the 1995 murder of a Harvard student by her roommate.
Interview with Peter Kramer; Interview with Rick Bragg; Commentary on the coverage of Princess Diana's death. September 8, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458609].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychiatrist and author PETER KRAMER. His book, "Listening to Prozac" was a bestseller. His new book is about relationships: "Should You Leave?: A Psychiatrist Explores Intimacy and Autonomy - and the Nature of Advice" (Scribner) KRAMER is an associate clinical professor of psychiatry at Brown University and writes a monthly column for Psychiatric Times. INT. 2: National Correspondent for the New York Times RICK BRAGG. He's written a new memoir about growing up poor in Alabama, "All Over But the Shoutin'" (Pantheon Books). REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI on the coverage of Princess Diana's death and funeral.

Interview with Edmund White; Commentary on the spelling of the word millennium. September 9, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458308].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist EDMUND WHITE has just completed his semi-autobiographical trilogy. The new novel The Farewell Symphony (Knopf) focuses on gay life from the 1960's to the present. His other books include A Boy's Own Story, The Beautiful Room is Empty, Genet: A Biography, Forgetting Elena, Nocturnes for the King of Naples, States of Desire: Travels in Gay America, The Joy of Gay Sex, and Caracole. INT. 2: Interview with EDMUND WHITE cont REV.: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the word millennium. He worries that during the next century, will anyone be able to spell it right. A look on the web showed the word misspelled 30-percent of the time. Nunberg offers his solution to the coming orthographic crisis.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We'll hear from STEVEN TYLER and JOE PERRY who are two of the original members of Aerosmith. They have collaborated with other band members on a new book Walk This Way (Avon) which traces the bands rise from the music scene in New England to become one of the most successful rock bands in America. Aerosmith had such hits as Dream On, Walk This Way, and Sweet Emotion. INT. 2: TYLER and PERRY continued. REV. : Music critic MILO MILES reviews two new releases of Cuban music. The first is a four-cd set called I Am Time. (Blue Jackel) This is a retrospective of cuban music broken down in four categories. Cuban folk music, Singers, Dance, and Jazz. The second cd is called Buena Vista Social Club (World Circuit/Nonesuch) by a band of the same name. This CD was produced by Ry Cooder.

Interview with Patrick Murphy; Interview with Charles Gerba; Review of Oasis's album "Be Here Now." September 11, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825432].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PATRICK MURPHY is the Public Guardian of Cook County, Illinois. He represents abused or neglected children in Chicago's. In his new book Wasted: The Plight of America's Unwanted Children (Ivan R. Dee, Inc) he argues that while keeping families together may sound like good public policy, there are many cases in which it only endangers the lives of children. His previous book is titled Our Kindly Parent the State. (Viking) INT. 2: Dr CHARLES GERBA is an expert on germs and bacteria. As a microbiologist at the University of Arizona in Tucson, Gerba says to many people's surprise it's the kitchen not the bathroom that has the most germs and bacteria. Gerba talks about why germs and bacteria thrive in the kitchen. They colonize your sink and sponges and rags, and grow by the billions overnight. In addition, Dr Gerba has done extensive research on public bathrooms and has found more bacteria in women's washrooms than men's. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new album by Oasis.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Canadian writer ALICE MUNRO. Her latest book "Alice Munro: Selected Stories" will be published in paperback this November by Vintage. Alice Munro was born in 1931 in Wingham, a small town in southwestern Ontario, to a family of small farmers. Alice Munro is the author of one novel and six collections of short stories. She is a three-time winner of the Governor General's Award for Fiction which is Canada's highest literary prize. (Originally aired 11/7/96) REV. : Classical Music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a four video tape series called Hollywood Rhythm: The Paramount Musical Shorts. by Kino Video. They are short music videos that were shown before movies from 1929-1941. They feature singers such as Bing Crosby, Billie Holiday and Ginger Rodgers. LLOYD SCHWARTZ is classical music editor for the Boston Phoenix. INT. 2: In New York City, the 92nd Street YMCA, is better known as The 92nd Street Y a cultural arts center. MAURICE LEVINE the director of the 92nd Street Y's "Lyrics & Lyricist" series for 26 years died on Monday at the age of 79. The program spotlighted American lyricists and composers like Alan Jay Lerner, Stephen Sondheim, and Dorothy Fields. The series had consistently been a sell-out. (Originally aired 12/11/96) INT. 3: DEREK TAYLOR, a former press agent for the Beatles, died Sunday at the age of 65. He is the author of It was 20 Years Ago Today He served two stints with the Beatles. Once in 1964 during their world tour and again in 1968. (Originally aired 6/4/87)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Sun Studios founder SAM PHILLIPS. He is revered as one of the leading catalysts in post World War II American music. As a record producer in the 1950s and 60s his recordings launched the careers of Elvis Presley, Carl Perkins, and Jerry Lee Lewis and that's just to name a few. Next Month, Phillips will be a celebrity host on the public radio program Beale Street Caravan. Phillips is now in his mid 70s. INT. 2: Interview with SAM PHILLIPS cont REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews six new network TV shows that premiere this week. Also he comments on last night's Emmy Awards.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ANN MARIE OLIVER and PAUL STEINBERG, at Harvard University's Center for Middle Eastern Studies Department where they have been visiting professors since 1993. They also lived six years in Israel, the West Bank, and the Gaza Strip where they studied and researched the Islamic Resistance Movement, Hamas. In their forthcoming book, they look at the psychology of the young men in the Hamas movement, by interviewing one of them who survived an attempt at a suicide bombing (to be published by Oxford University Press) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Fresh Air film critic JOHN POWERS talks with Terry about the Toronto Film Festival which he attended. REV. : JOHN POWERS cont'd.

Interview with Nicholas Dodman; Interview with Paul Auster; Commentary on slang. September 17, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458668].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with John Powers; Interview with Curtis Hanson and Russell Crowe; Review of Jessica Williams' album "Higher Standards." September 18, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458304].

Description of show segment(s)

REV: Film critic JOHN POWERS discusses the film L. A. Confidential with Terry. INT. 1: Director CURTIS HANSON and actor RUSSELL CROWE from the new film "L.A. Confidential" which is adapted from the 1990 novel by James Ellroy. (James Ellroy is a previous Fresh Air guest whose memoir "My Dark Places" was about his mother's murder in L.A. in 1958) The film, which has received a lot of attention at film festivals including Cannes, and Toronto, is about corruption and retribution in L.A. in the 1950s and 60s. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: HANSEN & CROWE cont'd. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Higher Standards" by pianist Jessica Williams on the Candid label.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet JANE SHORE. Her new collection of poems "Music Minus One" (Picador) is out in paperback. It reads like a memoir of her youth growing up in the 1950s in New Jersey. She's won several prizes for her two previous volumes of poetry and is the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship. (REBROADCAST from 4/16/97) INT. 2: Actor DANNY AIELLO (eye-EL-oh). He starred in "Moonstruck," and "Do the Right Thing." Also in "Ruby," about Jack Ruby, the man who shot Lee Harvey Oswald. He used to be an official with the New York transit union and quit it when he was 35 to take up acting. This Fall he stars in the CBS series "Dellaventura" (REBROADCAST from 3/19/92) REV. : Rock historian ED WARD on the 4-CD collection: "Elvis Presley Platinum, A Life in Music" (RCA) which includes some never released material.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet, editor, and novelist SEAMUS DEANE. His first novel, Reading in the Dark," (Knopf) came out earlier this year, a chronicle of a boy growing up in Northern Ireland in the 1950's. Deane recounts the story of a family haunted by a missing uncle and his tie to the greater Troubles surrounding them all. "Reading in the Dark" was short-listed for the United Kingdom's esteemed literary prize, the Booker. Deane is the editor of the Norton "Field Day Anthology," the definitive collection of Irish literature. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Author and historian JOAN JACOBS BRUMBERG. Her new book, "The Body Project," attempts to trace back through the century to discover why young women report unhappiness with their bodies now more than ever. Working with girls' diaries from the 1830's up to the present day, Brumberg outlines the shifting pressures that have altered the way females define themselves. REV. : NONE

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILL FRIEDWALD has written a new encyclopedic guide to the music legacy of Frank Sinatra: "Sinatra! The Song is You: A Singer's Art" (Da Capo Press). The work chronicles Sinatra's five-decade career, drawing on interviews with his many collaborators, and interviews with Sinatra himself, and includes a discography of his well known, as well as little known recordings. FRIEDWALD is also the author of "Jazz Singing." INT. 2: FRIEDWALD continued. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Miriam's Kitchen: A Memoir" (Viking) by Elizabeth Ehrlich.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Veteran rapper LL COOL J has written an autobiography, entitled "I Make My Own Rules" (St. Martin's). In it he talks about his evolving life, from violent beginnings to his entrancement with rhyme and rap in high school, an obsession that made him Def Jam records' first recording artist at age 15. Mostly recognized throughout his recording career as the one with the gold chains and floppy hat, LL is also a two-time Grammy winner, actor, husband, father of three, and role model for youth. INT. 2: MAHNAZ AFKHAMI (ma-NAHZ af-KAHM-ee), executive director of the Sisterhood is Global Institute (SIGI), and AZAR NAFISI (ah-ZAHR nah-FEE-SEE), professor of English Literature at Tehran's Tabatabai University discuss this weekend's Sisterhood is Global conference in Washington D.C., a symposium addressing issues such as cross-cultural education and women's rights on a global scale. AFKHAMI has written a substantial manual for women's rights education in Muslim countries. NAFISI has conducted ongoing workshops in Iran, one of six SIGI world workshop sites, on women, their identities, and their rights. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)
Review of the television program "ER"; Interview with David Milch and Bill Clark; Interview with James McDaniel; Review of the film "The Edge." September 26, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825337].

Description of show segment(s)

REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the premiere of NBC's Thursday night drama "ER," which was broadcast live. INT. 1: "NYPD Blue" (Steven Bochco Productions) begins its new season on Tuesday. Co-creator, executive producer, and head writer of "NYPD Blue," DAVID MILCH, and Detective BILL CLARK, a consultant to the show, talk about the real stories behind the drama. CLARK is a former New York City homicide detective, and many of the story lines for the show come from cases he worked on. The two collaborated on the book, "True Blue: The Real Stories Behind NYPD Blue." (REBROADCAST FROM 01/1/95) INT. 2: Actor JAMES MCDANIEL returns to NYPD Blue in its season premiere this Tuesday. He plays Lieutenant Arthur Fancy. McDANIEL has appeared in numerous television, film, and theater productions, including the films "Strictly Business," "Malcolm X," and "Alice." McDANIEL has also acted on the television shows "Kate and Allie," "Hill Street Blues," "L.A. Law," and "Civil Wars." (REBROADCAST from 12/10/96) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new Anthony Hopkins and Alec Baldwin film "The Edge," with the screenplay written by David Mamet.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reporter MALCOLM GLADWELL of the New Yorker speaks about the Spanish influenza of 1918. Gladwell's article in September 29th's New Yorker explores the medical potential of seven buried bodies stricken by this flu. Lodged in the Arctic tundra, the bodies, soon to be exhumed, may hold clues on how to prevent a similar epidemic in the future. Gladwell is the former New York bureau chief of the Washington Post. (Interview by Barbara Bogaev) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Playwright, novelist, and screenwriter PAUL RUDNICK. Paul discusses his new movie, "In & Out," starring Kevin Kline -- the story of a high school English teacher "outed" on national t.v. by a former student, much to the surprise of everyone. Rudnick is the author of such plays as "I Hate Hamlet," "The Naked Eye," and "Jeffrey." He also wrote the screenplay for "Addams Family Values." (Interview by Barbara Bogaev) REV. : Interview with PAUL RUDNICK cont

Interview with Anita Hill; Obituary for Roy Lichtenstein; Review of the television show "NYPD Blue." September 30, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825485].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ANITA HILL has written a book entitled "Speaking Truth to Power," (Doubleday) a reflection on the events surrounding the Hill-Thomas hearings of the fall of 1991. Hill addresses her difficult overnight transformation into a public figure, as well as the way her case has affected women and the work world as a whole. Hill is currently working on another book about sexual harassment, and lectures on civil rights and sexual harassment in the workplace. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Pop artist ROY LICHTENSTEIN. He died yesterday in Manhattan at the age of 73. He was one of the inventors of pop art in the 1960's, finding inspiration for his paintings in comic books and advertisements. LICHTENSTEIN's work often replicated the heavy black outlines, bright colors and dots of a color comic strip found in a newspaper. Called by one critic the "supreme virtuoso of pop", his work was filled with constant references to high and low arts as well as to his own work. We remember him with an interview from 11/8/93. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews tonight's season opener of "NYPD Blue."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director, writer, and producer FRANCIS FORD COPPOLA. A five-time Oscar winner, Coppola is known for such films as "Apocalypse Now," "American Graffiti," and the "Godfather" trilogy. Coppola continues to create in other arenas, such as wine making, and a quarterly literary magazine "Zoetrope" which he publishes. He and his wife have bought and restored the Inglenook wine estate in Napa Valley.

---

Interview with Don DeLillo; Interview with Whoopi Goldberg. October 2, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825336].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author DON DeLILLO on his new novel "Underworld." (Scribner) This 827-page work weaves in and out of the latter half of this century, incorporating modern icons such as Frank Sinatra, Lenny Bruce, and J. Edgar Hoover. The novel's first scene visits the Giant-Dodgers pennant game of October 3rd, 1951 -- also the date of the first nuclear test in the Soviet Union. Such clashes of American culture in the midst of the Cold War pervade "Underworld." DeLILLO is also the author of such novels as "White Noise," "End Zone," and "Great Jones Street." INT. 2: Actress and Comedian WHOOPi GOLDBERG. She's just written "Book," (Rob Weisbach Books) a collection of life observations, insights, and Whoopi-isms in 25 vignettes. GOLDBERG received a Grammy for 1985's Best Comedy Album, as well as an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress in 1990.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and poet PATTI SMITH. Her seventh album, "Peace and Noise" (Arista), was recently released, and she plans a tour toward the end of this year. Her first four albums, recorded in the 1970s, established SMITH as the "Godmother" of punk. Her previous release, Gone Again," came out in the summer of 1996, marking her return to recording after an eight year absence. SMITH says unlike her punk days, her current performances have attracted a wide range of listeners, from truck drivers to Deadheads to suburbanites. (REBROADCAST FROM 6/24/96) INT. 2: Musician and producer LENNY KAYE. He was a member of the Patti Smith Group and has also recorded albums with his own band. He produced Suzanne Vega's first two albums, and worked with Soul Asylum and Michelle Malone. KAYE has remained with Patti Smith on her 1990's releases, co-writing and playing guitar. (REBROADCAST...
FROM 10/5/90) REV. : John Powers reviews "The Peacemaker," the new action film starring George Clooney and Nicole Kidman.

Interview with Jennifer Jason Leigh; Interview with Georges Perrier. October 6, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503426].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress JENNIFER JASON LEIGH. She stars in the new film "Washington Square" which is based on the Henry James novella. In it she plays Catherine Sloper, a shy and unattractive woman who risks estrangement from her father who disapproves of a man she has fallen for. The character is one of a diverse many for LEIGH, who has portrayed everything from a phone-sex girl in Robert Altman's "Short Cuts" to a psychotic roommate in "Single White Female" to poet Dorothy Parker in "Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)

INT. 2: Master chef GEORGES PERRIER of the nationally renowned Philadelphia French restaurant, Le Bec-Fin. He has revealed many of his recipes in his first cookbook, "Georges Perrier Le Bec-Fin Recipes" (Running Press).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 2: Interview with
McLYNN and NOLL, Continued. REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews Horace Tapscott's new CD "Thoughts of Dar Es Salaam."

---

Interview with Michael Beschloss. October 8, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503429].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Presidential historian MICHAEL BESCHLOSS. He transcribed tapes, edited and provided commentary for the new book "Taking Charge: The Johnson White House Tapes, 1963-1964" (Simon & Schuster). When Johnson took office, he began recording his daily private conversations. This book is the first volume of transcripts and covers the aftermath of the Kennedy Assassination, the creation of the Warren Commission, the civil rights bill, and the Tonkin Gulf attack, and his thoughts about the Vietnam war. BESCHLOSS has written three other books. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: MICHAEL BESCHLOSS continued. REV. : MICHAEL BESCHLOSS continued.

---

Interview with Cecelia Clegg; Interview with Jacki Lyden; Review of J. Anthony Lukas's book "Big Trouble." October 9, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503212].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Sister CECELIA CLEGG, a Scottish Roman Catholic nun, works for peace in Northern Ireland by way of her project: "Moving Beyond Sectarianism," a workshop for Catholic and Protestant congregations to speak about their lives and their differences. In the three years she has lived and worked in Belfast, Sister Cecelia has been viewed as a British outsider to Irish Catholics as well as a Catholic outsider to Protestants. She has overseen "Beyond Sectarianism" from its days as a suspicious program in the midst of a fragile cease-fire peace in 1994 to the present, with her workshops now in demand. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY OVER INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: NPR correspondent JACKI LYDEN has written a memoir, entitled "Daughter of the Queen of Sheba" (Houghton Mifflin). It's a tale of her mother, who suffered from manic depression, often imagining herself as various historical and fictional characters. The book also touches on how her mother's illness influenced Jacki's fascination with "exotic" places, including the Middle East. LYDEN was stationed in Baghdad as a correspondent during the Persian Gulf War. She is also a substitute host for "Weekend All Things Considered" and "Weekend Edition" on National Public Radio. REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Big Trouble" (Simon & Schuster) by J. Anthony Lukas.

Interview with Chris Giannou; Review of the television show "Gene Roddenberry's Earth October 10, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825462].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Surgeon for the International Committee of the Red Cross CHRIS GIANNOU (YAW-new). For 15 years he has been a surgeon in war torn parts of the world in Burundi, Somalia, and in a Palestinian Refugee Camp. He has seen the devastation on human beings from land mines. GIANNOU has been a leader in the Red Cross's campaign to ban anti-personnel land mines worldwide (GIANNOU has been on the show a number of times. He wrote a memoir in 1994 about his work in the refugee camp, "Besieged: A Doctor's Story of Life and Death in Beirut." (Published by Olive Branch Press). (Rebroadcast of 1/8/96) REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews 'Earth: Final Conflict,' based on a manuscript of the late Gene Rodenberry. INT. 2: Director-producer ROBERT WISE is best known for his direction of screen musicals "West Side Story" and "The Sound of Music." Northern California's Mill Valley Film Festival honors WISE this month as part of its 20th anniversary celebration with the retrospective of his films, including 1945's "The Body Snatcher" 1951's "The Day The Earth Stood Still." WISE has served as president to both the Directors Guild of America and the Motion Picture Academy. (REBROADCAST FROM 3-7-89) REV. : Film critic John Powers reviews the new film "Boogie Nights".

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chimpanzee researcher ROGER FOUTS (FOWTS) is the co-director of the Chimpanzee and Human Communications Institute. For thirty years, FOUTS has worked with chimps, teaching them American Sign Language with great success. His new book, "Next of Kin: What Chimpanzees Have Taught me About Who We Are" (William Morrow) chronicles his studies and work, as well as his efforts to establish a sanctuary for the country's chimpanzees. INT. 2: Director WONG KAR-WAI.

The writer and director of 1994's "Chungking Express," 1995's "Fallen Angels" and this year's "Happy Together," Wong has worked in the Hong Kong film industry for 15 years, and is continuing to gain a strong American following. Wong was named "Best Director" at this year's Cannes film festival for "Happy Together." He is currently working on his next film, "Summer in Beijing." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Rough Justice" (Harper Collins) by Lisa Scottoline.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JOHN UPDIKE. His new novel, "Toward the End of Time" (Knopf) is a chronicle of one man's life in America in the year 2020. UPDIKE will read passages from the novel and answer questions posed by an audience in addition to the regular interview. UPDIKE is the author of over forty volumes of work, and has received two Pulitzer prizes, the American Book Award, and two National Book Critic's Circle Awards. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: UPDIKE, continued REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "The Songs of Jimmie Rodgers: A Tribute." (on Bob Dylan's Egyptian record label)

---

Interview with Chuck D; Interview with Jim Jarmusch; Review of the television show "Chicago Hope." October 15, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825459].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CHUCK D founder of the rap group Public Enemy. With the group's emergence in 1987, they ushered in politically conscious rap, portraying the world of many young urban black men, of limited opportunity, drugs, guns, and violent death. Their song "Fight the Power" was featured Spike Lee's film, "Do the Right Thing." In 1989 the group was the focus of controversy when one of its members, the "minister of information" made anti-semitic comments. Other band members spoke out against the remarks. The group's hits include "Don't Believe the Hype," "Fear of a Black Planet," and "Bring the Noise." Last summer CHUCK D became a roving commentator for FOX news. He has a new memoir "Chuck D: Fight the Power" (Delacorte Press) (THIS INTERVIEW EXTENDS INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Film director JIM JARMUSCH. His films include "Mystery Train," and "Stranger Than Paradise." His newest film is a documentary, "Year of the Horse" about rock and roll's Neil Young and Crazy Horse. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews tonight's episode of "Chicago Hope."

Interview with Doris Kearns Goodwin; Commentary on nouns and verbs. October 16, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503098].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian DORIS KEARNS GOODWIN. The Pulitzer Prize winning author of "No Ordinary Time: Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt: The Home Front in World War 2" has written a memoir about her own life, "Wait 'Til Next Year" about growing up in the suburbs of New York in the 1950s. (Simon & Schuster) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: DORIS KEARNS GOODWIN -- cont'd REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on nouns to verbs.

Interview with Steve Earle; Commentary on the band Mouse and the Traps; Interview with William Wegman. October 17, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825461].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In-studio interview and concert with composer JOEL FORRESTER, the co-founder of the Microscopic Septet (now defunct), composer of the Fresh Air theme, and solo pianist with a new cd, "Stop the Music" (Koch Records). (INTERVIEW WILL CARRY OVER TO SECOND HALF OF SHOW) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews two new CDS featuring Ornette Coleman: "Colors" (Verve/Harmolodic) with Coleman and Joachim Kuhn and Geri Allen's "Eyes in the Back of Your Head" which features Coleman (Blue Note).

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Teller; Commentary on Kenneth Gamble and Leon Huff; Interview with Hal David and Eunice David; Review of Cornershop's album "When I Was Born for the 7th Time." October 22, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825309].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Magician and trickster TELLER of Penn and Teller. They've been performing for over twenty years, both on Broadway and around the world. The duo has just written "How to Play in Traffic" (Boulevard), an offbeat travel guide, and has also authored "Cruel Tricks for Dear Friends" and "How to Play with Your Food." REV. : Rock Historian ED WARD continues his review of "The Philly Sound: Kenny Gamble, Leon Huff & The Story of Brother Love (1966-1976)" (Epic) INT. 2: Lyricist HAL DAVID. For years he's collaborated with music writer Burt Bacharach. Between them they've written such famous songs as "Raindrops Keep Falling on my Head," "Close to You," "What's New, Pussycat?," and "That's what Friends are For." DAVID has received every major music industry award in addition to 20 gold records, awards such as an Academy Award, a Grammy, and induction into the Songwriters' Hall of Fame. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new recording by Cornershop, "When I Was Born for the 7th Time" (Luaka Bop/Warner)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz singer and guitarist JOHN PIZZARELLI. He's put out seven albums in the past two years, playing guitar in his drumless trio, which features his brother Martin on bass. His latest CD, "Our Love is Here to Stay" (RCA) features re-workings of songs by Johnny Mercer to the Gershwins to the Beatles, and this time PIZZARELLI interprets these standards along with a 17-piece orchestra. JOHN is the son of jazz guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: JOHN PIZZARELLI, CONTINUED REV. : JOHN PIZZARELLI, CONTINUED

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We commemorate our 10th year as a daily national show with interviews from 1987:(a) Entomologist DAVE BRODY, curator of the entomology department of the Museum of Natural History in New York. Brody was the insect consultant for films like "Creepshow" and "The Believers." (Rebroadcast of 7/9/1987) (b) MAMIE VAN DOREN, one of Hollywood's blond bombshells in the fifties and sixties. She starred in the cult classics "Untamed Youth," "High School Confidential," and "Born Reckless." She wrote a kiss-and-tell memoir "Playing the Field." (Rebroadcast of 10/1/1987) (c) Film director ROBERT TOWNSEND. Terry talked with him at the time of the release of his film "Hollywood Shuffle," which took a satiric look at the roles offered to blacks in Hollywood. He's a former standup comedian and actor. (Rebroadcast of 6/9/1987) INT. 2: (a) Syndicated cartoonist MATT GROENING. Terry talked with him as he was about to launch his animated cartoon family "The Simpsons." Before that he was best known for his strip, "Life is Hell," which appeared in alternative papers around the country. (Rebroadcast of 9/9/1987) (b) Character actor NED BEATTY. He spent 15 years in theater before making his film debut in "Deliverance." He's acted in over 37 feature films, and over 44 television movies or series. Most recently he starred in "Homicide." Terry talked with him before he took on that role. (Rebroadcast of 10/26/1987) (c) Singer FRANKIE LANE. He gained TV immortality by singing the theme of "Rawhide." Other credits include the theme to the Mel Brooks film "Blazing Saddles." (Rebroadcast of 7/29/1987) Also, we play a song Dave Frishberg wrote and recorded for Fresh Air's Tenth Anniversary. REV: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new science fiction thriller "Gattaca" starring Uma Thurman and Ethan Hawke.
the Unrefined" (Hyperion). It's his autobiography as well as a joke book. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY OVER INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Basketball expert and playground legend PEE WEE KIRKLAND. Professor at Long Island University and basketball coach in Manhattan, KIRKLAND wrote the introduction to John Huet's photography book, "Soul of the Game" (Melcher Media/Workman pub.). It's about the impact playground basketball has on the sport. KIRKLAND also acted in and served as the Technical Basketball Advisor for the 1994 movie "Above the Rim." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "You Must Believe in Swing" (Concord Jazz) featuring pianist Dave McKenna and clarinetist Buddy De Franco.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Nonfiction writer PTOLEMY TOMPKINS, son of New Age writer Peter Tompkins. Ptolemy has written a memoir, "Paradise Fever: Growing up in the Shadow of the New Age," (Avon) about growing up the son of Peter Tompkins, the author of the cult bestseller "The Secret Life of Plants" who was also a World War II spy. PTOLEMY TOMPKINS is the author of several other nonfiction works. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Photojournalist MAX AGUILERA-HELLWEG has a new collection of photographs taken in the operating room. Her images capture the inside of the human body as surgeons perform procedures like removal of brain tumors, a radical mastectomy, heart surgery and more. Her book is "The Sacred Heart: An Atlas of the Body Seen Through Invasive Surgery." (Bulfinch Press Book) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor KEVIN KLINE. He can currently be seen in the movies "In and Out" and "The Ice Storm." This winter, he'll also be playing the title role in the Anton Chekhov's play, "Ivanov." KLINE'S past movies include "Dave," "The Big Chill," and "I Love You to Death." He received an Academy Award for "A Fish Called Wanda." INT. 2: Playwright and Screenwriter DAVID MAMET (MAM-it). His latest film is "The Edge," and he's recently published two books: "The Old Religion," (Simon & Schuster) is a novel about a southern Jewish man falsely accused of murder. "True and False: Heresy and Common sense for the Actor" (Pantheon) is a guide to acting that negates the common and popular dramatic techniques. MAMET won the Pulitzer Prize in 1984 for "Glengarry Glen Ross." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the re-release of Jacqueline Susann's "Valley of the Dolls" (Grove Press).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and Director PAUL THOMAS ANDERSON. His latest project is "Boogie Nights," a film about the pornography film industry in the late 70's and early 80's in the San Fernando Valley. ANDERSON'S first film was the independent "Hard Eight" with Gwennyth Paltrow and Samuel L. Jackson. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY OVER INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.)

INT. 2: All Things Considered senior producer SEAN COLLINS will preview the upcoming yearlong NPR series on death and dying. The series will begin airing on Monday November 3rd. The series of reports is called "The End of Life: Exploring Death in America." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

Interview with David J. Skal; Interview with Christopher Lee; Interview with Raymond McNally; Review of the television show "Sleepwalkers" and other fall shows; Obituary for Samuel Fuller. October 31, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502741].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Film historian DAVID J. SKAL. He's an expert on the horror film genre. His books include "Hollywood Gothic: The Tangled Web of Dracula from Novel to Stage to Screen" and "Dark Carnival: The Secret World of Tod Browning: Hollywood Master of the Macabre" (written in collaboration with Elias Savada) (Anchor Books). Browning was a film director who earned the reputation as "the Edgar Allan Poe of the cinema." He directed Lon Chaney and Bela Lugosi and made such films as "Dracula"
"Freaks." SKAL edited his latest book "Dracula" (Norton Critical Edition). (REBROADCAST from 10/31/95) INT. 1b: Veteran film actor Christopher Lee. A British actor whose "tall, dark and gruesome" persona (from the title of Lee's autobiography) has been featured in scores of sinister roles, beginning in the early 1950s. Lee's gallery of villainous portraits includes his famed Dracula impersonations, a handful of outings as Fu Manchu and a memorable turn as Rasputin—the Mad Monk (1966). He has been based in the US since the mid-70s and became a familiar TV presence in the 80s. (Originally aired 7/3/90) INT. 2a: Professor and writer RAYMOND MCNALLY has studied the many portrayals of vampires in folklore and film. He has traced the origins of the Dracula story in Transylvania. He wrote the book "In Search of Dracula." McNally teaches at Boston College. (Next Month, November 8-9, McNally hosts the 150th celebration of Bram Stoker's birth at Boston College. For information call 617-552-3804 or e-mail him at mcnally@bc.edu) (REBROADCAST from 10/29/85) REV. : DAVID BIANCULLI previews the last new TV show of the season Sleepwalkers that premieres tomorrow on NBC. And with fall line up in place, David gives us his assessment of the new TV season. INT. 2b: Film director SAMUEL FULLER died yesterday at the age of 86. Fuller's B-movies of the 50s and 60s have influenced many other directors. His 1982 movie, "White Dog," about a racist who trains a dog to attacks blacks, was considered too controvers

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Music legend JOHNNY CASH. CASH has been recording albums and performing since the 1950's. Representing CASH'S varied musical styles, he has been inducted into the Songwriters, Country Music, and Rock and Roll Halls of Fame. He's just released an autobiography called "CASH" (Harper). The book tour for the memoir has been cancelled due to complications with CASH'S Parkinson's disease. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: JOHNNY CASH, continued REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on the problems of navigating the internet.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Photojournalists HORST FAAS and TIM PAGE. They've compiled and edited a book of photographs by photojournalists who lost their lives covering war in Indochina and Vietnam from the 50's to the mid 70's. The book is titled "Requiem" (Random House). It features 135 different photographers including Robert Capa, Larry Burrows, and Sean Flynn. HORST FAAS was an Associated Press photographer in Vietnam and TIM PAGE worked in Laos and Vietnam for United Press International and "Paris-Match." They were both wounded in Vietnam. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Writer and peace activist THICH NHAT HANH (Tik-Nyat-Hahn). NHAT HANH became a Buddhist monk at age 16, worked on a globally for peace in his native Vietnam during the war, and has written over 75 books on peace. Some of his best-known are "Peace is in Every Step," "Being Peace," and "The Miracle of Mindfulness." His 1995 book, "Living Buddha, Living Christ" (Riverhead) is now available in paperback. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : THICH NHAT HANH continued.
Interview with David Shipler; Interview with Carol Oditz and Mark Bridges; Review of the television movie "Into Thin Air." November 6, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502122].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer DAVID SHIPLER. A Country of Strangers: Blacks and Whites in America (Knopf) is his newest book. It looks closely at the ever present race question in the United States through interviews of folks across the country and analysis of stereotypes he found. Shipler is the author of Russia and won a Pulitzer Prize for Arab and Jew: Wounded Sprits in a Promised Land. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY OVER INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Costume designers CAROL ODITZ and MARK BRIDGES. ODITZ planned the look for the film The Ice Storm, attempting to create surface tension for the movie through wardrobe. BRIDGES is responsible for collecting and coordinating the 70's and 80's styles seen throughout the movie Boogie Nights. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the upcoming television docudrama Into Thin Air. The movie is based on the 1996 tragedy on Mt Everest in which eight climbers died.

Interview with Niles Rodgers; Review of Miles Davis's album "Live-Evil"; Review of the film "Mad City." November 7, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502205].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Record producer and former guitarist for the band Chic, NILE RODGERS. In the late 1970s Chic was one of the most successful disco groups. Hits included "Dance, Dance, Dance," "Le Freak," and "Everybody Dance." As a record producer, RODGERS has worked with Sister Sledge, Diana Ross, Mick Jagger, David Bowie, INXS, and Madonna. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) (Rebroadcast of 8/20/1996) REV.1 : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews Miles Davis works from the 70's which have been reissued on Columbia Records. REV 2: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Mad City which stars Dustin Hoffman and John Travolta.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film critic DAVID THOMSON and filmmaker and director JAMES TOBACK. They interview each other for a revival of round table discussion at "Spoken Word at the Algonquin" in New York city's famous Algonquin Hotel, and discuss the state of moviemaking and movie criticism today. THOMSON's latest book is "Beneath Mulholland: Thoughts on Hollywood and its Ghosts" (Knopf). TOBACK directed the movies "Fingers," "Exposed," and "The Pick up Artist." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: DAVID THOMSON AND JAMES TOBACK, Continued REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new debut album "Supa Dupa Fly" (Atlantic) by Missy "Misdemeanor" Elliott. It includes her hit single "The Rain."

Interview with David Breashears; Commentary on George Copeland. November 11, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502754].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Cinematographer DAVID BREASHEARS. The first American to climb Mount Everest twice, he attempted last year to film from Mount Everest's summit on an IMAX camera. But BREASHEARS had to put down his camera to help with the rescue mission of a group of climbers who were part of another expedition at the time, and who were caught on the mountain in a May blizzard. (Chronicled by John Krakauer in his book, "Into Thin Air.").) BREASHEARS' film of his own expedition is titled "Everest," and will be released in February. He has won four Emmy awards for his filmmaking. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: DAVID BREASHEARS, CONTINUED REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reminds us of a pianist that most of us have probably never heard of: George Copeland, who died at the age of 71 in 1971. LLOYD says none of Copeland's recordings are currently in print.
Interview with Chris Hedges; Interview with John Hope Franklin and John Whittington Franklin; Review of the television show "Law & Order." November 12, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502969].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times correspondent CHRIS HEDGES. He reports from Serbia on the tense conditions that remain despite absence of war in the former Yugoslavia, and the nationalist ideology present in the three factions, one that has led to hate crimes against ethnic minorities and gypsies. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: CHRIS HEDGES continued. INT. 2A Historian JOHN HOPE FRANKLIN and JOHN WHITTINGTON FRANKLIN, son and grandson of Buck Colbert Franklin. The two have co-edited his autobiography, "My Life and an Era" (Louisiana State University Press). Buck Colbert Franklin grew up on the frontier when Oklahoma was a new state, tri-racial in composition. He then went on to start a law practice in Tulsa. His son, JOHN HOPE FRANKLIN, wrote "From Slavery to Freedom: A History of Negro Americans," and serves as the chairman of the Advisory Board on the President's Initiative on Race. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews tonight's episode of "Law & Order" which teams up the lawyers with the detectives on "Homicide." The story will be wrapped up on "Homicide" Friday night.

Interview with Jane Bryant Quinn; Interview with Kasi Lemmons; Review of the album "Chess Blues Piano Greats." November 13, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502328].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author and financial columnist JANE BRYANT QUINN. She's revised and updated her 1991 guide to saving money and investing wisely, "Making the Most of Your Money" (Simon and Shuster). The book addresses personal finance issues, retirement funds, saving for college, and the stock market. JANE BRYANT QUINN is a column writer for Newsweek, Good Housekeeping, and the New York Daily News. INT. 2: Actress, screenwriter and director KASI (KAY-see) LEMMONS. Her directorial debut is "Eve's Bayou." It stars Samuel L. Jackson and is now in theaters. The family drama takes place in a small Louisiana town in 1962, and is narrated by the younger daughter Eve, who must process family politics and her father's extramarital affairs at the age of ten. LEMMONS has acted in the movies "The Silence of the Lambs," "Hard Target," "Candyman," and "Vampire's Kiss." REV. : World music critic MILO MILES reviews the new reissue: "Chess Blues Piano Greats" (Chess/MCA records)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: President of NFL films, STEVE SABOL. NFL Films has been producing football into tv and video entertainment for 35 years, producing more than 3000 tv shows and specials, and winning over 60 Emmys. SABOL also directs films for NFL. (REBROADCAST from 8-5-97) REV. : Film review by JOHN POWERS reviews "The Wings of the Dove" based on the Henry James novel. INT. 2: Writer ARUNDATI (AR-roon-DOT-ee) ROY. Her first novel, "The God of Small Things," is a story about a family in India, the effects of affairs, and breaches of the caste system. The novel came out this summer, and was a best seller. (REBROADCAST from 8-7-97) INT. 3: South African playwright and satirist PIETER-DIRK UYS (Peter-Durk-ACE). He has a television talk show in South Africa. UYS' show has unusual twist: instead of hosting his show as himself, he dresses in drag as an Afrikaner woman named Evita. His guests have included Nelson Mandela. UYS' show is said to be "a way of making the country's leaders seem more human." (REBROADCAST from 6/28/95) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress CYBILL SHEPHERD. Her TV sitcom, "Cybill," continues in its fourth season on CBS. She also has a CD : Talk Memphis to Me. SHEPHERD is known for her roles in the films The Last Picture Show, Taxi Driver, and Married To It, as well as her starring role opposite Bruce Willis in the TV series Moonlighting. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Actress and Comedian ALEXANDRA WENTWORTH. She's the author of The WASP Cookbook (Warner), a collection of purposefully bland recipes (with nicknames such as Kiki's Cupcakes Interview with Jerome Groopman; Interview with Valerie Steele; Commentary on the band Madredeus and the singer Teresa Salgueiro. November 18, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502758].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. JEROME GROOPMAN. Since the discovery of AIDS, he's treated patients and done extensive cancer and AIDS research. He's written a book titled "The Measure of Our Days: New Beginnings at Life's End" (Viking). It borrows stories from some of his patients in Boston and aims to give support, hope, and comfort to those suffering with life threatening illness. DR. GROOPMAN is Chief of Experimental Medicine at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston and is also a professor of medicine at Harvard. INT. 2: Fashion historian VALERIE STEELE. Her new book outlines changes in the fashion world through the past half century, noting how the economy, global climate, and sexual politics affected designers' creations as well as the styles we wore. The book is called "Fifty Years of Fashion: New Look to Now" (Yale University). STEELE is Chief Curator at the Museum at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York. REV. : World music critic MILO MILES on the Portuguese group Madredeus and 17-year old singer Teresa Salgueiro who is a newer member of the group. (The complete Madredeus catalog is on the Metro Blue label)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian STANLEY KUTLER. He's just edited a collection of "The New Nixon Tapes." The book is titled "Abuse of Power" (The Free Press). KUTLER sued the National Archives and the Nixon Estate for the release of 3000 hours of tapes in 1996, 200 hours of which are now available. KUTLER is also the author of "The Wars of Watergate," and historical advisor for the television documentary, "Watergate." (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.)
INT. 2: Preview of our in-studio interview and concert with jazz pianist JESSICA WILLIAMS. It will air next week. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Matters of Choice" the new novel by Jeannette Haien (Harper Collins) REV: Composer SAUL CHAPLIN passed away Saturday at the age of 85. We pay tribute to Chaplin by playing a recording of a 1972 interview with SAMMY CAHN at New York's 92nd St. Y. CAHN collaborated with CHAPLIN on many of his most known works.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Promise Keepers founder, BILL McCARTNEY, and his wife LYNDI McCARTNEY. BILL has written a book to which Lyndi has contributed: "Sold Out." (Word Publishing) It explains how BILL McCARTNEY came to lead the Christian and male ideology group, what their lives were like before Promise Keepers, and how changes in philosophy have altered their marriage in thirty-five years. INT. 2: Soprano saxophonist STEVE LACY. He's on a North American tour with his trio through the beginning of December. LACY is considered "the foremost interpreter of Thelonius Monk" and in fact trained and performed with Monk when he was in his mid-20's. LACY is also known as the "father of the modern soprano saxophone." He is known for his unmistakable sound, as well as being one of the most prolific sax players performing today. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : STEVE LACY interview continued.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Actor and director CLINT EASTWOOD and film critic RICHARD SCHICKEL. Last year SCHICKEL wrote "Clint Eastwood: A biography" (Knopf). CLINT EASTWOOD has directed the new film "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil," based on the bestselling novel. It stars Kevin Spacey and John Cusack. EASTWOOD reached stardom acting in spaghetti westerns such as "A Fistful of Dollars" and "The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly." He then became known for his role as police inspector Harry Callahan, otherwise known as "Dirty Harry." He directed and starred in "Play Misty for Me" and "Unforgiven." EASTWOOD also directed "Bird," which starred Forest Whitaker as Charlie Parker, and produced "Straight No Chaser," a documentary about Thelonious Monk. (REBROADCAST FROM 11-21-96) INT. 2: Interview with CLINT EASTWOOD and film critic RICHARD SCHICKEL cont
REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil and Francis Ford Coppola's new film "The Rainmaker," which is an adaptation of the John Grisham novel. INT. 3:Rock historian and writer ROBERT PALMER died yesterday at the age of 52. He was the New York Times's first full-time rock critic writing from 1981-1988, and was a contributing editor at Rolling Stone magazine since the 1970s. He's wrote several books on blues and rock and roll, and was the writer and music director for the award-winning documentary films, "The World According to John Coltrane," and "Deep Blues." He was chief advisor to the 1995 ten-part PBS documentary, "Rock & Roll: An Unruly History, ".
He's also wrote the companion book (Harmony Books).

Interview with Shirley Corriher; Interview with Madeleine Kamman; Review of the Leon Sash Trio's album "I Remember Newport." November 24, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://
www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502755]

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Culinary expert SHIRLEY CORRIHER, author of "Cookwise," (William Morrow) a practical guide to culinary mysteries and the science of cooking. CORRIHER is a food writer and a contributing editor to "Fine Cooking" magazine. INT. 2: Cooking expert MADELEINE KAMMAN. She authored
"The Making of a Cook" in 1971, and just updated her work to write "The New Making of a Cook: The Art, Techniques, and Science of Good Cooking" (William Morrow). Both of her books aim to show American cooks how to prepare their own ingredients with French culinary techniques. KAMMAN is also a PBS cooking show host and director of the School for American Chefs. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new reissue "I Remember Newport" (Delmark Records, Chicago) featuring accordionist Leon Sash and his trio.
Interview with Kelly Flinn; Interview with William A. Moorman; Interview with John Marley and Peter Sennett; Review of Shania Twain's album "Come On Over." November 25, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502331].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lieutenant KELLY FLINN was the first woman to pilot a B-52 bomber. FLINN was forced to resign from the Air Force this spring on charges of "disobeying orders" when a military investigation discovered she lied about relationship she had with a married man. FLINN has written a book about the incident and her experiences dealing with sexism and hypocrisy in the Air Force, titled "Proud to Be: My Life, the Air Force, the Controversy." (Random House). INT. 2a: Brigadier General WILLIAM A. MOORMAN is Staff Judge Advocate for the Air Combat Command at Langley Air Force Base in Hampton, Virginia. He talks about why Lt. Flinn was forced to resign and states the Air Force's policy concerning sexual conduct. INT. 2b:Captain JOHN MARLEY, instructor for international human rights training in Rwanda and Cambodia, and Marine Captain PETER SENNETT, who first visited Rwanda in 1995 and now trains prosecutors and criminal investigators working for social justice. Both are working with prosecutors handling genocide cases in Rwanda. REV.: Music Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Shania Twain's newest CD Come On Over. (Mercury Records)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: An in-studio concert and interview with jazz pianist JESSICA WILLIAMS, recorded at WHYY. The concert was previewed on last Wednesday's show. It will feature WILLIAMS' original songs as well as some interpretations of standards, some from Williams' 1997 release: "Higher Standards" (Candid). WILLIAMS has been recording albums, both solo and with ensembles, since 1978. Her music is often featured on Fresh Air between interview segments. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CONTINUE THROUGH THE END OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: JESSICA WILLIAMS, CONTINUED REV.: JESSICA WILLIAMS, CONTINUED

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer and musician DON BYRON in a concert featuring music from his cd, "Bug Music." It includes music by the likes of the Duke Ellington Orchestra, The John Kirby band, and even some cartoon music by Raymond Scott, who composed for Warner Brothers. BYRON plays the clarinet, and is joined by his band. (REBROADCAST FROM 1-23-97) THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY OVER INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: DON BYRON, CONTINUED

Interview with Hal David; Review of Paul Simon's album "Songs from the Capeman." November 28, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502963].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Lyricist HAL DAVID. For years he's collaborated with music writer Burt Bacharach. Between them they've written such famous songs as "Raindrops Keep Falling on my Head," "Close to You," "What's New, Pussycat?," and "That's what Friends are For." DAVID has received every major music industry award in addition to 20 gold records, awards such as an Academy Award, a Grammy, and induction into the Songwriters' Hall of Fame. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. REBROADCAST FROM 10-22-97) INT. 2: HAL DAVID, CONTINUED

Interview with Jonathan Mann; Interview with Richard Meier; Review of Bryn Terfel's album "Handel Arias." December 1, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502918].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. JONATHAN MANN talks about the state of AIDS across the globe, as well as the speculations about an AIDS vaccine. (Today is World Aids Day.) MANN was the founding director of the World Health Organization's Global Program on AIDS, and has just been named Dean of the School of Public Health at the Allegheny University of Health Sciences in Philadelphia. He also co-edited "AIDS in the World." INT. 2: One of America's leading architects, RICHARD MEIER, talks about what it was like to undertake the architectural commission of the century, the building of the Getty Center in Los Angeles. He's just written 'Building the Getty' (knopf) REV. : Classical Music Critic Lloyd Schwartz reviews tenor Bryn Terfel's (TER-VELL) first album of Handel arias (the Deutsche grammophon label).

Interview with David Hoglund and Beth Deely; Interview with Michael Penn. December 2, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502497].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Architect DAVID HOGLUND and Alzheimers expert BETH DEELY. The two were instrumental in designing Woodside Place, a community for patients suffering from Alzheimers disease. Woodside Place, outside of Pittsburgh, was specifically designed to help clue patients into their surroundings through symbols and the building’s layout. A three-year study of Woodside found that its new philosophy of nursing home design led to a slower rate of deterioration, and higher levels of socializing and physical activity. DAVID HOGLUND works with Perkins Eastman Architects out of New York. BETH DEELY is the Director of Alzheimer's Disease Programs at West Penn Hospital in Pittsburgh. INT. 2: Musician MICHAEL PENN. His latest album, "Resigned," (Epic) was released this fall. PENN'S other albums include 1989's "March" which spun the single "No Myth" and won him an MTV "Best New Artist" award, and 1992's "Free for All" (RCA). PENN also contributed to the film "Boogie Nights" by writing its score music; his song "The Big Top" appears on the soundtrack. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES TO THE END OF THE SHOW)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fashion designer ISAAC MIZRAHI (pronounced "Miz-RAW-he") He's just written "The Adventures of Sandee the Supermodel" (Simon and Shuster), a collection of three giant comic books, illustrated by artist William Frawley. MIZRAHI has been called a "creative visionary" in today's fashion industry. In 1995 the documentary "Unzipped" was made about MIZRAHI and his life. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Urban designer WILLIAM MORRISH. He addresses the problems of urban sprawl, the present state of post World War Two housing developments, and the ongoing relationship between cities and suburbs. MORRISH and his wife are the directors of the Institute for the American Urban Landscape at the University of Minnesota. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Computer software engineer and NPR commentator ELLEN ULLMAN. Her book is titled "Close to the Machine" (City Lights). It's her semi-autobiographical account of a computer programmer trying to reconcile her work -- machines and information -- with the need for human contact and the feel of living in the real world. (Interview by Barbara Bogaev) INT. 2: BILL NYE, The Science Guy. Through his long-running PBS show, NYE continues to teach kids about the fun and magic of science. The show "Bill Nye the Science Guy" is also in syndication and NYE has released a series of themed videos culled from his shows. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) (Interview by Barbara Bogaev)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychologist JOHN GOTTMAN talks about what are some of the key factors that lead to either a good or bad marriage. He has studied hundreds of marriages, and found common behaviors that happy couples share. Gottman is author of "Why Marriages Succeed or Fail," "What Predicts Divorce" and "The Heart of Parenting." Gottman is a professor of psychology at the University of Washington. (Rebroadcast from 5/5/97) REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the CD A Prescription for the Blues (Impulse) by jazz pianist Horace Silver. INT. 2: "Retail Anthropologist" PACO UNDERHILL. He studies and tracks the habits of shoppers in order to learn the best way to lead them to make purchases. His retail consulting firm, Envirosell, has helped big-name companies such as McDonald's, Levi Strauss, and Blockbuster to study their customers' browsing and buying habits. (REBROADCAST FROM 3-26-97) REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS. reviews Good Will Hunting which stars Robin Williams and Matt Damon.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RICHARD HORSLEY and NEIL SILBERMAN. The two have collaborated on a book incorporating history, archaeology, and politics to contextualize the time of Jesus and the Apostle Paul. The book is "The Message and the Kingdom" (Grosset/Putnam). RICHARD HORSLEY is a professor of religion at The University of Massachusetts. NEIL SILBERMAN is the author of "The Hidden Scrolls." INT. 2: Cartoonist DAN PIRARO. Since 1985, his "Bizarro" cartoons have been featured in papers such as the Boston Herald, the Seattle Times, and the Toronto Globe and Mail. When his publicist would not pay for a promotional tour of his book "Bizarro #9" (Andrews McMeel) PIRARO asked his fans if they might be able to provide him with lodging, transportation, and food as he traversed the country. He's since written a book about this experiences on the road: "Bizarro Among the Savages" (Andrews McMeel).

REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on efforts to preserve the French Language.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian JOSEPH ELLIS. He's written a new biography about Thomas Jefferson which aims to debunk many of the myths about the third president: "American Sphinx: The Character of Thomas Jefferson" (Knopf). It won a National Book Award for nonfiction this November. ELLIS has also contributed to filmmaker Ken Burns' documentary 'Jefferson' which will air in February. Ellis is a professor of American History at Mount Holyoke College, and has written five other books including 'Passionate Sage: The Character and Legacy of John Adams.' (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Nightmare on Main Street" (Harvard) by Mark Edmundson about our culture's obsession with the Gothic.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CLAIRE TOMALIN, author of the biography "Jane Austen: A Life" (Knopf). The biography addresses Austen's world, family, and works, many of which in recent years have inspired popular film versions. TOMALIN is also the biographer of Mary Wollstonecraft and Nelly Ternan. INT. 2: JETSUN PEMA, sister of the Dalai Lama. She's written an autobiography about Tibet and her work there,"Tibet: My Story" (Element). In it she recounts life in Tibet before the Chinese occupation, exile from Tibet, and her work as the president of the Tibetan Children's Village, which encompasses over 11,000 Tibetan refugees in India. PEMA also plays the role of the mother of the young Dalai Lama in the film "Seven Years in Tibet." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : JETSUN PEMA cont'd.
Interview with Cheryl Chase; Interview with Antoine Khoury; Interview with Barbara Neilson; Review of John Coltrane's album "Coltrane December 11, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502498].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CHERYL CHASE, executive director of the Intersex Society of North America. The society was set up to serve and provide peer support and medical information for hermaphroditic people who, at birth, exhibited some sexual organs of both genders. Chase was classified male at birth, but was "reassigned" female at 18 months. INT. 2: DR ANTOINE KHOURY (ann-TWAN COR-ee), head of the division of urology at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. He works with many parents of children born with ambiguous gender. INT. 3 : BARBARA NEILSON, a social worker at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. She works with children with congenital abnormalities, and their families. REV.: Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead reviews John Coltrane's CD box set of his recordings in 1961 at the Village Vanguard.

Interview with Maurice Sedak; Interview with Curtis Mayfield; Review of the film "Amistad"; Interview with Johnny Adams. December 12, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811291].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Artist, writer and designer MAURICE SENDAK. Sendak has written and illustrated such classic children's books as "Where the Wild Things Are," "In The Night Kitchen," and "Inside Over There." Time magazine has said, "For Sendak, visiting the land of the very young is not something that requires a visa. He is a permanent citizen." Where the Wild Things Are was adapted into an opera, and Sendak designed the sets and costumes for the premiere production. He's since designed several other operas and ballets. This month, a new stage production of Hansel and Gretel will feature costume and sets designed by SENDAK. (REBROADCAST from 9/22/93) INT. 2:CURTIS MAYFIELD. He's been called "the thinking man's soul man." He's known for his floating falsetto voice, gospel sound, and social commentary. He was with the group, "The Impressions" for 12 years recording such classics as "Gypsy Woman," "I'm so Proud," and "People Get Ready." After that he went solo. His score for "Superfly," was considered a musical breakthrough, and has inspired many of today's hip-hop performers. MAYFIELD was preparing for a comeback, with the release of "Return of Superfly," in 1990, when a freak stage accident left him paralyzed from the neck down. MAYFIELD's soundtrack for "Superfly" has just been re-released. (Rebroadcast of 3/23/1993) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Stephen Speilberg's new film "Amistad." INT. 3: Rhythm and Blues singer JOHNNY ADAMS. He was one of songwriter Doc Pomus' favorite singers. He recorded a collection of Doc Pomus songs, "Johnny Adams sings Doc Pomus: The Real Me,". His most recent album is "One Foot in the Blues" (Rounder) as well as a new Christmas album. Recently ADAMS, who is 66, was diagnosed with prostate cancer, and he underwent major surgery. Three concerts have been held recently on his behalf to help pay for his medical costs. (Rebroadcast)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Episcopal Bishop of New York Paul Moore. His is known for his activism and concern for human rights. He was part of the Civil Rights Movement, and protests against the Vietnam War. As Bishop he brought the Church into dialogue with the poor and oppressed in New York. He's written his memoir, "Presences: A Bishop's Life in the City." (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) INT. 2: Playwright and NPR commentator David Sedaris. His "Santaland Diaries" which debuted on NPR's Morning Edition in 1992 is purported to be the network's most requested tape. His collection of short stories (now in paperback), "Barrel Fever" and this year's "Naked" (Little, Brown & Co.) a collection of autobiographical essays, are both bestsellers. Now he's got a collection of Christmas stories, "Holiday's On Ice" (Little, Brown & Co.) REV.: Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews "The Gay Metropolis" (Houghton Mifflin) by Charles Kaiser.

Interview with Richard Landes; Interview with Michael Barson; Review of Charles Mingus's album "Charles Mingus, Passions of a Man December 16, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503062].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RICHARD LANDES is Assistant Professor of History at Boston University and the executive director of the Center for Millennial Studies at Boston University. The center is keeping track of and analyzing apocalyptic and messianic movements related to the coming millennium. LANDES will talk with Terry Gross about the upcoming millennium as well as past millennia. INT. 2: MICHAEL BARSON is the author of the new book "Teenage Confidential: An Illustrated History of the American Teen (Chronicle Books, illustrated by Steven Heller). The book traces the evolution of the "teen" and the concept of the "teenager" which didn't exist before World War 2. The book also collects teenage artifacts, like movie posters, magazine covers, and advertisements. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Charles Mingus, Passions of a Man: The Complete Atlantic Recordings 1956-1961" (Rhino).
Interview with Azeezaly Jaffer; Interview with Iyunolu Osagie; Interview with Charlie Haffner. December 18, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503466].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: AZEEZALY JAFFER is Executive Director of Stamp Services for the U.S. Postal Service. This branch has introduced the popular stamp collecting program which features pop-culture icons on the stamps. Some of the Post Office’s most popular stamps include: Elvis Presley, Marilyn Monroe, and Bugs Bunny. INT. 2A: IYUNOLU OSAGIE (EE-yewn-oh-lu oh-SA-WEE-ay) an Assistant Professor of English at Penn State University in Pennsylvania. She has researched and written the events of the Amistad slave rebellion and the trial that followed. She is a native of Sierra Leone where the Amistad story begins and ultimately ends. INT. 2B: CHARLIE HAFFNER wrote "Amistad Kata-Kata" a play based on the Amistad story. As a native of Sierra Leone, HAFFNER is critical of the new film 'Amistad' now showing in theaters. He says the story neglected many significant events that occurred in Sierra Leone. HAFFNER currently lives in New Brunswick, New Jersey.

Interview with John Woo; Interview with Bob Dorough; Interview with Charles Brown; Review of the film "Titanic." December 19, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503061].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director JOHN WOO grew up in Hong Kong and directed numerous films there before coming to Hollywood. He has established himself as a master of action thrillers and is known for his elaborate action scenes. WOO also directed the American films 'Broken Arrow,' and 'Hard Target.' "Face/Off," his newest blockbuster film starring John Travolta and Nicholas Cage is out in video. (REBROADCAST from 7/10/97) INT. 2: Jazz musician BOB DOROUGH, musical director of the 1970s educational TV series, "School House Rock" and composer of the popular song "Three is a magic number". The CD, "School House Rock Sets", was released with contemporary artists such as Blind Melon, Lemonheads and Pavement, playing the old songs. Also, "School House Rock: The Official Guide". (Hyperion Books) by the creators of the series, Tom Yohe and George Newall. DOROUGH's latest CD is "Right On My Way Home" (Blue Note) (REBROADCAST from 5/9/96) INT 3: Songwriter and pianist CHARLES BROWN. He turned 75 this year. Recently he was one of the recipients of the Heritage Fellowship Award given by the National Endowment for the Arts for excellence in the traditional arts. Charles Brown is one of the most original artists in blues history. He's credited with creating an expressive style of blues that blended rough Texas blues with the soft glamour of Hollywood. This approach was dubbed "Club Blues." Between 1946 and 1952, Brown recorded 20 hits, nine on his own, the rest as part of Johnny Moore's Blazers. (REBROADCAST from 6/22/1989) REV.:Film critic JOHN POWER reviews "Titanic."

---

Interview with Ruth Brown; Commentary on literary classics. December 22, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503468].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rhythm and Blues singer RUTH BROWN. She got her start in the 1940s, and influenced a whole generation of singers including Stevie Wonder, Aretha Franklin, Little Richard and Bonnie Raitt. Her hits include "Mama, He Treats Your Daughter Mean" and "Teardrops From My Eyes." Later she appeared in John Water's film "Hairspray" and in the Broadway hit "Black and Blue." In 1996 her autobiography was published, "Miss Rhythm" (Donald Fine Books) and this year she has a new CD, "R + B = Ruth Brown" (Bullesye Blues) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: RUTH BROWN cont'd. REV.: Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN provides us with a special holiday list of her favorite books. Great books from the past.

---

Interview with Russell Banks and Atom Egoyan; Review of jazz albums; Obituary for Denise Levertov. December 23, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503066].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist RUSSELL BANKS and Canadian Film Director ATOM EGOYAN discuss their new film 'The Sweet Hereafter'. The film is adapted from Banks 1991 novel. It's the story of how a small town deals with a tragic school bus crash. RUSSELL BANKS has written 12 novels which include: Affliction, Rule of the Bone, Searching for Survivors, The Book of Jamaica, and Continental Drift. ATOM EGOYAN is best known for Exotica a film that won the International Critics Prize for Best Film at the Cannes Film Festival. Other films include The Adjuster, Calendar, Speaking Parts, Family Viewing, and Next of Kin. INT. 2: Interview with RUSSELL BANKS and ATOM EGOYAN cont REV.: Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews some CD re-issues by Blue Note Records. He recommends Complete

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and interview with singer ROSEMARY CLOONEY taped before a live audience in San Francisco on January 18th, 1997. The performance was part of the City Arts & Lectures series. CLOONEY sings some of her best known songs, accompanied by a quintet directed by John Oddo. She also talks with Terry about her life and her 1996 album "Dedicated to Nelson" (a tribute to Nelson Riddle) Her last 20 albums have been recorded on Concord Jazz. (Originally aired 2/11/97) INT. 2: Concert with ROSEMARY CLOONEY cont REV. : Concert with ROSEMARY CLOONEY cont

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director MARTIN SCORSESE. Shortly before her death, his mother, Catherine Scorsese, published a cookbook of recipes: "Italian-American: The Scorsese Family Cookbook" (Random House). She acted in, and cooked in (on and off-screen) for several of her son's movies. MARTIN SCORSESE will talk about casting his mother in his films and about her book. (Rebroadcast of 2/11/1997) INT. 2: Interview with MARTIN SCORSESE cont REV.: Classical Music Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the latest CD from Leon Fleisher.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILL FRIEDWALD has written an encyclopedic guide to the music legacy of Frank Sinatra: "Sinatra! The Song is You: A Singer's Art" (Da Capo Press). The work chronicles Sinatra's five-decade career, drawing on interviews with his many collaborators, and interviews with Sinatra himself, and includes a discography of his well know, as well as little known recordings. FRIEDWALD is also the author of "Jazz Singing." (Originally aired 9/24/97) INT. 2: Writer BRENDAN GILL died Saturday at the age of 83. We'll remember him with a excerpt from a November 1987 interview. He's best known for his work with The New Yorker magazine, for which he was hired in 1936. He wrote 15 books including biographies of Charles Lindberg, Cole Porter, and Tallulah Bankhead, and his best-seller "Here at the New Yorker." He was also an active campaigner for historic preservation in New York city. (REBROADCAST from 1987) REV.: NO REVIEW Interview with Nancy Sinatra; Interview with Charles Granata; Commentary on Frank Sinatra; Commentary on the best books of 1997. December 30, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825521].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Part Two of our series on Frank Sinatra: NANCY SINATRA, Sinatra's daughter. She recorded a few hits of her own including "These Boots are Made for Walking," and "Something Stupid," the duet she recorded with her father. NANCY SINATRA wrote a book about her father, "Frank Sinatra: An American Legend." (REBROADCAST from 12/12/95) INT. 2: CHARLES GRANATA is a Cop who has an extensive archive of Sinatra recordings. Many of them have been used for Sinatra reissues. He was Project Director for the box set: "Frank Sinatra: The Best of the Columbia Years 1943-1952). (REBROADCAST from 12/12/95) INT. 3:Writer GAY TALESE reads from "Sinatra Has a Cold" an article he first published in Esquire Magazine in 1966. The reading aired on public radio's This American Life last February. TALESE's books include, "Unto The Sons," the story of the immigrant experience in America, and also the chronicle of Talese's own Italian ancestors coming to this country. Also the best-sellers "The Kingdom and the Power," "Honor Thy Father," and "Thy Neighbor's Wife." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN on the year's best books (that she's read): "Cold Mountain" by Charles Frazier; "Matters of Chance" by Jeannette Hainen; the reprint "Independent People" by Haldor Laxness; the short stories "Publish and Perish" by James Hynes, "Lives of the Monster Dogs" by Kirsten Bakis; for non-fiction: "Big Trouble" by J. Anthony Lukas; "Halfway Heaven" by Melanie Thernstrom; "The Gay Metropolis" by Charles Kaiser; volume 2 of "W.B. Yeats" a biography by R.F. Foster; "The End of the Novel of Love" by Vivian Gornick; "Into Thin Air" by Jon Krakauer; "The Diving Bell and the Butterfly" by John Dominique Bauby; "Miriam's Kitchen" by Elizabeth Ehrlich; Also: for murder/detective: "Deception on His Mind" by Elizabeth George; "Small Vices" by Robert B. Parker; "Even the Wicked" by Lawrence Block; and "The Club Dumas" by Spanish writer Arturo Perez-Reverte.

Interview with Billy May; Interview with Matt Dennis; Interview with Sammy Cahn. December 31, 1997. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825520].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Trumpet player and arranger BILLY MAY talks about working with Frank Sinatra. May worked with Sinatra on and off from the mid 40's to the mid 80's. He arranged Sinatra's albums Come Fly With Me, Come Swing with Me, and Come Dance with Me, on Capitol Records. He did the arrangements for the Ellington-Sinatra album on Reprise. On Sinatra's 1979 release, Trilogy, May arranged the section called The Past. They met in 1939 when May was playing trumpet and arranging for the Charlie Barnett band, and Sinatra was singing with Tommy Dorsey. (Originally aired 12/12/95)

INT. 1A: Songwriter MATT DENNIS. He wrote "Angel Eyes," which was one of Frank Sinatra's signature songs. Dennis also wrote several other songs that Sinatra recorded. Dennis first wrote for Sinatra when Sinatra was the singer with Tommy Dorsey band's, and Dennis was the band's staff arranger and composer. (Originally aired 12/12/95)

INTV: Songwriter SAMMY CAHN also wrote many of the songs that Frank Sinatra recorded, including Come Fly With Me, Teach Me Tonight and High Hopes. He also wrote the scores for many Broadway shows including Walking Happy and Skyscraper, and for the movies Come Blow Your Horn, Robin and the Seven Hoods, and A Pocketful of Miracles. Cahn died in 1993 at the age of 79. (Originally aired 7/23/1985)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER talks with Terry Gross about the albums he liked best in 1997. INT. 2: Film critic JOHN POWERS on his favorite movies of 1997. REV.: NO REVIEW

Interview with Pam Grier; Interview with Elmore Leonard; Interview with Curtis Hanson and Russell Crowe; Commentary on the word "cult." January 2, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973811189].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Actress PAM GRIER. She's starring in the new film Quentin Tarantino film, "Jackie Brown." She got her start playing tough, scantily-clad women in black exploitation films, such as "Black Mama, White Mama," "Foxy Brown," and "Sheba Baby." She played a hooker in "Fort Apache: The Bronx," and (REBROADCAST from 5/10/90) INT. 1B: Novelist ELMORE LEONARD. The new film "Jackie Brown" is based on his crime novel, "Rum Punch." It's directed by Quentin Tarantino. He's 72 years old and has been called "the greatest living writer of crime fiction" (New York Times). Though he'd been writing... for decades, critics didn't take notice of him until the 1980s. Now his work is known for its tight prose, "ear-perfect" dialogue and depiction of lower class life. LEONARD's written thirty-two novels, including the bestsellers "Pronto," "Maximum Bob," and "Get Shorty" which was been made into a film, starring John Travolta and Gene Hackman. LEONARD's newest novel, "Cuba Libre" is due out later this month. (REBROADCAST from 10/31/95) INT. 2: Director CURTIS HANSON and actor RUSSELL CROWE from the film "L.A. Confidential." It's about corruption and retribution in L.A. in the 1950s and 60s and is adapted from the 1990 novel by James Ellroy. (James Ellroy is a previous Fresh Air guest whose memoir "My Dark Places" was about his mother's murder in L.A. in 1958) The film won best picture, best director and best screenplay awards from the New York Film critics circle and the LA film critics. It's also been nominated for 5 golden globe awards. (REBROADCAST from 9/18/97) REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on the word "cult."

Interview with Mary Rowland; Interview with Laura Zigman; Review of ska albums. January 5, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503060].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: If your New Year's resolutions include getting a better grasp on your personal finances and putting money away for your retirement, you'll want to hear what my guest MARY ROWLAND has to say. She's written a new book called "A Commonsense Guide to Your 401(K)." INT. 2: When the main character in LAURA ZIGMAN's new comic novel is dumped, she looks for explanations in the mating habits of animals. Hence the unusual title of this novel, "Animal Husbandry." It's Zigman's first novel, but it's not her first experience in the publishing world. She worked as a book publicist for a decade. REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews reissues of ska albums.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today, we remember Sonny Bono. He died yesterday afternoon in a skiing accident. He was 62. Bono was completing his second term in the U.S. Congress. He was the second most-requested speaker at House members events during the 1996 campaign season. Although he ended up in politics, many of his know him best for his work in music and show business. Terry Gross spoke with him in 1991, three years before he was elected to Congress. (Rebroadcast of 7/17 and 7/18 1991). INT. 2: Nick Nolte is best known for such films as "48 Hours," "Down and Out in Beverly Hills," "Cape Fear," "The Prince of Tides," and "Lorenzo's Oil." Now, he's starring in the new movie "Afterglow" written and directed by Alan Rudolph.

Interview with Joe Palca; Interview with Gina Kolata; Interview with Elvin Jones. January 7, 1998.
[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884158].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Less than one year after a baby sheep was cloned from an adult sheep, a scientist in Chicago named Richard Seed has announced that he plans on opening a clinic in the next 90 days to clone human babies. Seed is a physicist who was involved with fertility research in the '80s. NPR science correspondent Joe Palca broke the story about the planned human cloning clinic. INT. 2: A new book called "Clone" looks at the scientific breakthroughs that made Dolly the cloned sheep possible. The book also examines the ethical debate around cloning. The author is Gina Kolata, who's a science reporter for the New York Times. INT. 3: Drummer Elvin Jones recently celebrated his 70th birthday. His most influential work was with John Coltrane from 1960 to '66. Their Village Vanguard sessions were recently re-released in a CD box set.

Interview with Gwendolin Sims Warren; Interview with Robert Caro; Review of Alice McDermott's novel "Charming Billy." January 8, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884157].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Gwendolin Sims Warren has performed with the Metropolitan Opera and the Boston Symphony and has sung in opera houses in Europe, but she's most at home singing in church. She's the daughter and granddaughter of ministers. Now she's the minister of music and choir director at the Allen AME Church in Queens, New York. She's compiled 101 best-loved Psalms, Gospel hymns and spirituals of the African American church in her new book "Ev'ry Time I Feel The Spirit." We invited her to talk about and sing some of those songs. INT. 2: New York City is celebrating its centennial this year. Perhaps the man most responsible for the shape of the city and for its parks, expressways, and bridges is Robert Moses. Moses held 14 state, regional, and city offices ranging from city parks commissioner to construction coordinator. Our guest, Robert Caro, won a 1975 Pulitzer Prize for his book about Moses called "The Power Broker: Robert Moses and the Fall of New York." In the January 5th edition of the New Yorker, Caro wrote about Moses' impact on New York City. I asked Caro first about the significance of the city's centennial. REV.: Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Alice McDermott's novel "Charming Billy."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician Allen Toussaint. For over twenty years he's been a force in New Orleans rhythm and blues as a singer, songwriter and piano player. He wrote hits such as "Working in a Coal Mine," written for Lee Dorsey, and "Mother in Law," written for Ernie K. Doe. (Rebroadcast of 1/6/ and 5/27 1988) OBIT: Record producer Nick Venet. He has produced more than 300 albums in his career and has collected numerous Grammy nominations and awards. He is co-producer of a new Bobby Darin box set (Rhino). Venet was also Darin's producer and friend. Venet died last week. (Rebroadcast of 3/19/1996)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor, director, and founder of the Sundance Institute, ROBERT REDFORD. He discusses his work in films, and his work promoting independent films, with the festival he founded, the Sundance Film Festival. The Festival begins next week, January 15 thru 25th in Park City, Utah. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: ROBERT REDFORD, cont'd. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on the controversies of the 1950s over the grammar of commercials.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author, and advocate for children, GEOFFREY CANADA. He is President of the Rheedlen Centers for Children and Families in New York City. He's written a new book about the crisis among young boys, and the need to redefine their sense of manhood. He writes that "Our belief about maleness, the mythology that surrounds being male, has led many boys to ruin. The image of male as strong is mixed with the image of male as violent." CANADA's new book is "Reaching Up for Manhood: Transforming the Lives of Boys in America" (Beacon Press). CANADA is also author of the memoir, "Fist Stick Knife Gun." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: GEOFFREY CANADA cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedienne and actress TRACEY ULLMAN. Earlier this week her HBO series "Tracy Takes On" (Sundays at 10 PM ET/PT) began it's third season. Each week she features a gallery of her characters talking about a topic, such as families, sex, money and crime. She also has a companion book "Tracey Takes On" (Hyperion), and there's a HBO home video release of her previous shows. ULLMAN is a native of England. She got her start in the U.S. with The Tracey Ullman Show, and has since won several Emmys and Cable Ace awards. She's also appeared in the films "Ready to Wear." "Bullets Over Broadway", and "Plenty." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: TRACEY ULLMAN cont'd. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Garth Brooks new recording, "Sevens" (Capitol)
Interview with Eric Foner; Interview with James Kugel; Commentary on NBC. January 15, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884374].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of History at Columbia University ERIC FONER discusses the new study guide by the producers of the film "Amistad." Though FONER finds the film "interesting historically," he is critical of the guide because of its inaccuracies. FONER says the guide "erases the distinction between fact and fabrication," using composite characters instead of real ones, and that the guide misrepresents the significance of the Amistad incident. (FONER's editorial about this appeared on The New York Times Op-Ed page, December 20, 1997) INT. 2: Bible Scholar JAMES KUGEL is a professor of Hebrew literature at Harvard and Professor of Bible at Bar Ilan University in Israel. He's the author of the new book "The Bible As it Was" (Harvard University Press). In it, KUGEL reconstructs the Old Testament from ancient times, as it was understood by the first readers, and then traces the interpretations that follow. REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI on what's up at NBC now that "Seinfeld" is in its last season.

Interview with Thomas Kelly; Interview with Janwillem van de Wetering; Review of the films "Afterglow" and "Live Flesh." January 16, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884375].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist THOMAS KELLY. Kelly worked as a construction worker for ten years, three of which he worked on the Third New York City Water Tunnel alongside other "sandhogs," Irish and West Indian urban miners who dig soft ground tunnels in the city. He also holds a master's degree from Harvard University. His first novel "Payback" has just been published in paperback. (Fawcett Crest) It tells the story of two Irish-American brothers living in 1980s New York among the Irish mob and the construction workers' unions. (Originally aired 3/3/97.) INT. 2: Mystery novelist Janwillem van de Wetering. Born in 1931, Wetering was once a motorcycle gang member in South Africa, an aspiring monk in Kyoto, Japan, and a police officer in Amsterdam. He is currently living in Maine. The Dutch author's colorful past has led him to be known as an eccentric and hypnotic storyteller whose novel "The Hollow-Eyed Angel" (Soho), the 13th in his Amsterdam cop series, is a story of crime and modern morality. (Originally aired 1/13/97.) REV.: Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Afterglow" and "Live Flesh".

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian TAYLOR BRANCH. He won the Pulitzer Prize for the first book of his planned trilogy of the Civil Rights movement: "Parting the Waters: America In the King Years 1954-63" (now in paper, Simon & Schuster) His new book "Pillars of Fire: America In the King Years 1963-65" (Simon & Schuster) begins where the other book ended, and covers what he considers the peak years in the movement. At the center of the book are Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, Robert Kennedy, LBJ, and J. Edgar Hoover. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: TAYLOR BRANCH, cont'd. REV. : TAYLOR BRANCH, cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer, songwriter and guitarist CARL PERKINS died yesterday at the age of 65. He died of complications from a series of strokes. PERKINS is the pioneer of a style of music called Rockabilly, which is described as "a country man's song with a black man's rhythm." He's the man who wrote "Blue Suede Shoes," the hit song sung by Elvis Presley which became the first Sun label record to sell over a million copies. CARL PERKINS also wrote the songs, "Matchbox," "Honey Don't," and "Everybody's Trying to Be My Baby" which have been recorded by the Beatles. PERKINS, born in Tennessee, learned to play guitar from his uncle and formed a band with his two brothers before touring the South with Elvis Presley and Johnny Cash. It was Cash who gave Perkins the idea for the song, "Blue Suede Shoes." In 1996 PERKINS wrote his autobiography (w/David McGee) "Go, Cat, Go!" (Hyperion) (REBROADCAST from 10/29/96) INT. 2: CARL PERKINS cont'd. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new release of music by the little-known American pianist George Copeland. It's a 2-CD set of his complete Victor recordings from the 1930s on the Pearl label. They are the first of his work to be back in print.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today marks the 25th anniversary of Roe V. Wade, the landmark Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion. We talk to Medical Ethicist ART CAPLAN about how technological advances in the medical field, from fetal surgery to cloning, have effected the abortion debate. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: On the 25th anniversary of Roe v. Wade, we talk to Medical Theologian, DR. JAMES MCCARTNEY about the abortion debate. McCarney, the Chair of the Department of Philosophy at Villanova University just outside Philadelphia and the Ethics Consultant for the Catholic Health East Health System, says advances in medical technology have helped the anti-abortion argument, by showing the fetus as a person earlier on. REV. : Dr. MCCARTNEY cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: JETSUN PEMA, sister of the Dalai Lama. She's written an autobiography about Tibet and her work there,"Tibet: My Story" (Element). In it she recounts life in Tibet before the Chinese occupation, exile from Tibet, and her work as the president of the Tibetan Children's Village, which encompasses over 11,000 Tibetan refugees in India. PEMA also plays the role of the mother of the young Dalai Lama in the film "Seven Years in Tibet." (REBROADCAST from 12/10/97) INT. 1B: Member of the Exile Tibetans' Parliament, the Assembly of the Tibetan People's Deputies, TENZIN CHOEGYAL. He is the youngest brother of the His Holiness the Dalai Lama. Choegyal was featured in the documentary "Shadow Over Tibet: Stories in Exile." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) (REBROADCAST from 5/24/95) INT. 2: Philadelphia Inquirer reporter JEFFREY FLEISHMAN. He traveled across the Himalayan Mountains with a group of Buddhist monks and nuns, who were fleeing from persecution by the Communist Chinese government in Tibet. Some of them had been imprisoned and tortured by the Chinese. If caught, they would be sent back to prison and tortured. During their 14-day trek they experienced frost-bite, snow blindness, oxygen-then air, pain, and hunger. FLEISHMAN's story appeared in the Inquirer Magazine section, December 15, 1996. (rebroadcast FROM 1/6/97) INT. 3: GESHE THUPTEN JINPA, the principle translator for the Dalai Lama. THUPTEN JINPA was a refugee in India as a child, became a monk at a Tibetan monastery, and is now working on his Ph.D at Cambridge University. He is the translator, editor and annotator of "The World of Tibetan Buddhism" (Wisdom Publications, written by the Dalai Lama. The Dalai Lama is the spiritual and political leader of the Tibetan people, and won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1989. (REBROADCAST FROM 4/4/96)

Interview with Peter Quinn; Interview with Jim Sheridan; Review of Victoria Williams' album "Musings of a Creek Dipper." January 26, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884386].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist PETER QUINN is the author of "Banished Children of Eve" about the Irish in New York City during the Civil War. He's also contributor to the new six-hour PBS series "The Irish in America:
Long Journey Home" (January 26-28). There's also a companion book "The Irish in America" (Hyperion).
INT. 2: Film director/writer/producer JIM SHERIDAN. His films include "My Left Foot" and "In the Name of the Father" both which starred Daniel Day-Lewis. His latest film is "The Boxer" which also stars Day-Lewis. The story is about former IRA member who returns home after 14 years in prison. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Musings of a Creek Dipper" (Atlantic) the new release of singer Victoria Williams, who was part of this summer's Lilith Tour.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist GAIL COLLINS is on the New York Times' Editorial Board, and a former columnist for New York Newsday. Her book "Scorpion Tongues: Gossip, Celebrity and the American Politics" (William Morrow) will be published this spring. She discusses the current scandal surrounding President Clinton in light of other political/sexual scandals. INT. 2: Film critic JOHN POWERS has been attending the Sundance Film Festival. He'll talk with Terry about what he's seen on and off the screen. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : JOHN POWERS cont'd.

Interview with Colin Blunstone; Commentary on television coverage of the Bill Clinton sex scandal. January 28, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884393].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former lead singer for the '60s British pop group "The Zombies" COLIN BLUNSTONE. The group's hits include "She's Not There," "You've Really Got a Hold On Me" and "Time of the Season." There's a new anthology of the group's recordings "The Zombies: Zombie Heaven" (Big Beat label). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: COLIN BLUNSTONE cont'd. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI comments on the coverage of the Clinton scandal.
Interview with John Harwood and Edward Felsenthal; Review of Roy C's album "Sex & Soul"; Interview with Martin Amis; Commentary on sexual behavior and language. January 29, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884395].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guest Host BARBARA BOGAEV talks with EDWARD FELSENTHAL and JOHN HARWOOD. FELSENTHAL is the Supreme Court Correspondent from the WALL STREET JOURNAL, about the article on the Independent Counsel which appear in today's Wall Street Journal. Clinton, ironically, signed into law in 1994 the Independent Council Reauthorization Act. Soon after, Kenneth Starr began his Whitewater Investigation. Now, after two decades, the Independent Council is being criticized for its nearly unrestricted use of time, money and prosecutorial authority. REV.: Critic MILO MILES reviews the reissue of "Sex & Soul" (Polymedia/Collectibles) a album first released in 1974 on Mercury by Roy C, otherwise known as Roy Charles Hammond. Roy C said it was his concept album about infidelity. INT. 2: British novelist MARTIN AMIS. He is considered one of the leading British writers of the late-twentieth century and one of the most controversial. AMIS' newest book is a detective story set in America "Night Train" (Harmony Books) about a suspicious suicide. REV.: Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG considers the words we use to describe "unsanctioned amorous relations" and the difficulty of using more straightforward language.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Photographer ROY DECARAVA. A collection of his photographs, featuring leading jazz musicians and life in Harlem, spanning the past 50 years has been published recently: "Roy DeCarava: A Retrospective." (Museum of Modern Art). The traveling exhibit of DECARAVA's work is currently being shown at the San Francisco Modern Museum of Art (Jan 23-April 14, 1998) (REBROADCAST from 5/8/96) INT. 2: Country Music performer CHARLIE LOUVIN. In the 1950's, He and his brother Ira Louvin were were regulars at the Grand Olde Opry. Ira was later killed in a car accident. Charlie re-recorded many of their hits which were featured on the CD "The Longest Train" released by Watermelon.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Legal correspondent for ABC news, and staff writer for the New Yorker, JEFFREY TOOBIN. He'll talk with Terry Gross about sexual harassment and the law, and the charges against Bill Clinton in the Paula Jones lawsuit. TOOBIN's article about it appears in the February 2, 1998 issue of the New Yorker. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: JEFFREY TOOBIN cont'd. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Paradise" (Knopf) the new novel by Toni Morrison.

Interview with Eddie Little; Interview with Sara Horowitz. February 3, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884414].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDDIE LITTLE is making his debut with the semi-autobiographical novel, "Another Day in Paradise" (Viking) about a 14 year old boy who gets caught up in a world of drugs and theft. LITTLE himself is a former heroine addict, who spent time in prison for armed robbery and grand larceny. He also helps run We Care, a Los Angeles organization that provides assistance to house bound people with AIDS and elderly shut-ins. INT. 2A: Interview with EDDIE LITTLE cont'd. INT. 2b: Lawyer SARA HOROWITZ is the executive director of Working Today, an membership organization group for independent workers. Its roster includes independent contractors, the self-employed, freelancers, and part-timers. The group provides services (like health insurance group rates), education, and advocacy. (Working Today is located in New York City, tel: 212-366-6066, e-mail working 1@tiac.net; website: www.WorkingToday.org. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : HOROWITZ intv.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Police Commissioner of New York City and Boston WILLIAM BRATTON. When taking over as New York's commissioner in 1994 he publicly vowed to bring the crime rate down. His new memoir is about how he accomplished his goal, "Turnaround: How America's Top Cop Reversed the Crime Epidemic." (w/Peter Knobler, Random House). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Photographer DAVID PLOWDEN. He's spent forty years chronicling the changing face of America. His new book "Imprints: A Retrospective" (Little, Brown & Co.) encompasses that work. PLOWDEN's work is at the Art Institute of Chicago, the Smithsonian and The Library of Congress. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV. : DAVID PLOWDEN cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Bobby Short; Interview with Cari Beauchamp; Interview with Ian Whitcomb; Review of Jim Lauderdale's and Buddy Miller's albums "Whisper" and "Poison Love." February 6, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884416].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and pianist BOBBY SHORT. This year marks his 30th-Anniversary performing at New York's Cafe Carlyle. Telarc records has just put out a CD called "Bobby Short and His Orchestra Celebrating 30 Years at the Cafe Carlyle. Short has appeared as himself in several movies including Woody Allen's "Hannah and Her Sisters". (Originally aired 10/1/85) INT. 2: Writer CARI BEAUCHAMP (BEECH-em) is the author of "Without Lying Down: Frances Marion and the Powerful Women of Early Hollywood" (Scribner). Marion was the highest paid writer, male or female, for three decades, and was also the first woman to win an Academy Award twice for screenwriting. (Originally aired 7/14/97) INT. 3: In the movie "Titanic," the band's last song is "Nearer My God To Thee." But IAN WHITCOMB says it's not true. Whitcomb is an expert on early 20th century pop music. His new CD "Titanic" features some of the songs performed by the band on the Titanic, with the same arrangements they used. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews two recent releases: Jim Lauderdale's "Whisper," and Buddy Miller's "Poison Love". Both albums have been categorized as "alternative country" and Tucker says in a time of "overblown big stars" that label may be a marketing enhancement.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Frontline correspondent and Harvard University professor Henry Louis Gates, Jr. Gates hosts a Frontline segment called "Two Nations of Black America" which airs Tuesday night on PBS. Today, America has the largest black middle class in its history, yet half of all black children are born into poverty. INT. 2: New York Times Science Correspondent Sheryl Gay Stolberg talks about the comeback of the drug Thalidomide. In the 1960's the drug was banned worldwide after it produced a generation of babies with missing and stunted limbs. But it is now showing promise in treating leprosy and several other ailments including AIDS. REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Birthday Letters" by English poet Ted Hughes. (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) This is the much anticipated collection by Hughes. who was once married to American poet Sylvia Plath. Many blame Hughes for Plath's suicide in 1963 after he left her for another woman.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: GILLIAN CALDWELL and STEVEN GALSTER went undercover to investigate the emerging illegal sex trade in Russia and the newly Independent States. Their findings are published in a new report by the Global Survival Network (w/theInternational League for Human Rights): "Crime & Servitude: An Expose of the Traffic in Women for Prostitution from the Newly Independent States" (for copies contact the Global Survival Network, in Washington D.C., 202-387-0028; email: INGSN@igc.apc.org) The report says "Each day, thousands of women and girls are lured into the international sex trade with promises of a better life...They are transported by bus, plane, and train to Europe, Asia, the Middle East, and North America, where they unexpectedly find themselves forced into cruel sexual exploitation." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with GILLIAN CALDWELL and STEVEN GALSTER cont'd. REV.: Music critic MILO MILES reviews "Hwy X" (Omnium Records) by the Reptile Palace Orchestra from Wisconsin, and "Karnak" (Tinder Records) by the band named Karnak from Brazil.

Interview with James Risen and Judy Thomas; Interview with Jean Anderson. February 11, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884359].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalists JAMES RISEN, investigative reporter for the Los Angeles Times, and JUDY THOMAS, reporter for the Kansas City Star. The two have collaborated on the new book "Wrath of Angels: The American Abortion War" (BasicBooks) about the rise of the anti-abortion movement. They'll talk about the movement, and about recent events, like the bombing of the women's clinic in Birmingham, Alabama in which a security guard was killed. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Food writer JEAN ANDERSON. She writes regularly for the magazines

Interview with Gary Oldman; Interview with Abraham Verges. February 12, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884356].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor GARY OLDMAN. He's making his writing and directed debut with the new film "Nil by Mouth," based on his South London childhood. The critically acclaimed film prompted this from The New Yorker's Anthony Lane, "... this movie is something else. Its onslaught on the nerves is such that only afterward can you consider the care and attention with which it is constructed." OLDMAN'S first big break was starring in the film "Sid and Nancy." Since then he's gone on to star in the films "Prick Up Your Ears," "JFK," Frances Ford Coppola's "Dracula," and "Airforce One." He's also starring in the upcoming film "Lost in Space." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Author and physician ABRAHAM VERGHESE (Ver-GEEZ, sounds like Bear with a "V") talks with Terry about his recent article in the Feb 16th issue of The New Yorker, about sexual addiction: "The Pathology of Sex: Why can't some people stop having it." VERGHESE is also the author of the 1994 memoir "My Own Country," (Simon & Schuster) about his experiences treating AIDS in rural America. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : ABRAHAM VERGHESE cont'd.

Interview with Michael Beschloss; Interview with Stanley Kutler; Commentary on Oscar nominations. February 13, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884361].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Presidential historian MICHAEL BESCHLOSS. He transcribed tapes, edited and provided commentary for the new book "Taking Charge: The Johnson White House Tapes, 1963-1964" (Simon
When Johnson took office, he began recording his daily private conversations. This book is the first volume of transcripts and covers the aftermath of the Kennedy Assassination, the creation of the Warren Commission, the Civil Rights bill, and the Tonkin Gulf attack, and his thoughts about the Vietnam war. BESCHLOSS has written three other books. (REBROADCAST from 10/8/97) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Historian STANLEY KUTLER. He's edited a collection of the most recently released Nixon tapes. "The book is titled "Abuse of Power" (The Free Press). KUTLER sued the National Archives and the Nixon Estate for the release of 3000 hours of tapes in 1996, 200 hours of which are now available. KUTLER is also the author of "The Wars of Watergate," and historical advisor for the television documentary, "Watergate." (REBROADCAST from 11/19/97) REV.: Film critic JOHN POWERS considers the Oscar nominees.

Interview with Garry Wills; Interview with Joseph Ellis. February 16, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884363].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GARRY WILLS. He's analyzed the Gettysburg Address in the book "Lincoln At Gettysburg: The Words That Remade America." He says that speaking for only three minutes that day, Lincoln changed the history of American political thought. Wills is a presidential historian and political scientist. He's written other books on Nixon, Reagan and Kennedy, and John Wayne. (REBROADCAST from 7/7/92) INT. 2: Historian JOSEPH ELLIS. He's written a new biography about Thomas Jefferson which aims to debunk many of the myths about the third president: "American Sphinx: The Character of Thomas Jefferson" (Knopf). It won a National Book Award for nonfiction this November. ELLIS has also contributed to filmmaker Ken Burns's documentary about Jefferson. Ellis is a professor of American History at Mount Holyoke College, and has written five other books including Passionate Sage: The Character and Legacy of John Adams. (REBROADCAST from 12/9/97)(THIS INTERVIEW WILL CONTINUE THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV.: JOSEPH ELLIS cont'd.
Interview with Jeff Getty; Interview with Fritz H. Bach; Commentary on television coverage of the 1998 Winter Olympics. February 17, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884358].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JEFF GETTY is an animal-human transplant recipient who advocates continued research in this field. GETTY, who has AIDS, received bone marrow from a baboon in an effort to jump-start his immune system. GETTY vehemently opposes proposed moratorium on animal-human transplant research. INT. 2: Dr. FRITZ H. BACH is a professor of surgery at Harvard University. He is a specialist in Animal-human transplant operations. Last month, he and six other public health experts and bioethicists called upon the U.S. government to issue a moratorium on Animal-Human transplants. BACH says there is a risk that an animal virus could genetically mutate in a human recipient and spread among the general population. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI on the coverage of the Olympics.

Interview with Wes Craven; Interview with Roger Manley. February 18, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972883879].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WES CRAVEN, one of the foremost directors of horror films. His credits include "Last House on the Left," "The Hills Have Eyes," and "Nightmare on Elm Street." His latest film is "Scream 2" the sequel to his 1996 film "Scream." Both are horror films that poke fun at the genre. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Artist, writer, folklorist, photographer ROGER MANLEY was the guest curator of two exhibits at the American Visionary Art Museum in Baltimore: "The Tree of Life" (w/a companion catalogue) and "The End is Near!" The museum opened in 1995. Using the Native American tradition of a personal vision quest as it's model for the kind of work it wants to present, the museum is dedicated to showing and promoting the work of self-taught, intuitive artists. (The phone number for AVAM is 410-244-1900). MANLEY will discuss visionary art. He is now acting curator of the Gallery of Art & Design at North Carolina State University, Raleigh. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : ROGER MANLEY continued.
Interview with Christopher Dean; Interview with Jake Burton Carpenter; Interview with John Berendt. February 19, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458309].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Ice Dancing Gold Medal Winner CHRISTOPHER DEAN. In the 1984 Winter Olympics in Sarajevo he and his dance partner, Jayne Torvill received nine perfect marks, and a gold medal for their flawless performance. Now DEAN works as a choreographer. He'll talk with BARBARA BOGAEV about the art of ice dancing, and about this year's Olympics. INT. 2: The sport of snowboarding was admitted into the Olympics for the first time this year. JAKE BURTON is one of founders of the sport. He began making snowboards 20 years ago in his Vermont garage, experimenting with design and materials until he got the kind of board he envisioned. His company is Burton Snowboards (in Burlington, Vermont). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV. : JOHN BERENDT (BEAR-ent) is the author of the book "Midnight in the Garden of Good And Evil" (Random House). Last Sunday it broke the long standing record for a hardcover work of fiction or nonfiction being on the New York Times bestseller list. It's been on the list for 187 weeks. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

Interview with Temple Grandin; Interview with John Kander; Review of the film "Palmetto."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TEMPLE GRANDIN is one of the nation's top designers of livestock facilities. She is also autistic. In her book, "Thinking in Pictures: and Other Reports From My Life with Autism" she describes how her inner-autistic world has led her to develop animal empathy. An installation of her work, including the squeeze chair she developed is currently on display at MIT. Grandin will speak at MIT on Thursday, February 26 for more information call 617-253-4680. (REBROADCAST from 11/27/95) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Broadway composer JOHN KANDER of the song writing team, KANDER & EBB. They wrote the music for "Cabaret" and "Chicago." A revival of "Cabaret" is previewing on Broadway and the cast recording of "Chicago" has been nominated for a Grammy for Best Musical Show Album. (REBROADCAST from 5/7/91) REV. :
Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Palmetto."

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Novelist RUSSELL BANKS. His books which often depict working class life include "The Sweet Hereafter" and "Affliction" both of which have been made into films. His newest book is "Cloudsplitter" (HarperCollins) based on the life of John Brown who tried and failed to ignite a slave rebellion in 1859 in Harpers Ferry, Va. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: RUSSELL BANKS cont'd. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews conductor Pierre Boulez's recording of Berlioz's Symphonie Fantastique by the Cleveland Orchestra (Deutsche Grammophon). It received a Grammy nomination for Best Classical Recording of the Year.

Interview with Marilyn Manson; Review of Sally Cline's biography "A Woman Called John"; Commentary on Mardi Gras music. February 24, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458310].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Shock-rock star MARILYN MANSON has developed a following as a cross-dressing, anti-Christ. He's been likened to Alice Cooper for his ghoulish theatricality. He's also been the subject of Senate subcommittee hearings, and his concerts have been banned. His 1996 album "Antichrist Superstar" was a hit. He's written his autobiography "The Long Hard Road out of Hell" (Regan Books) about his childhood as Brian Wagner in a dysfunctional home in Canton, Ohio. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new biography of Radclyffe Hall, "A Woman Called John" by Sally Cline (The Overlook Press). REV. : Rock historian ED WARD considers the music of Mardi Gras.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former head of the FBI's Serial Crime Unit, JOHN DOUGLAS. His new book is "Obsession: The FBI's Legendary Profiler Probes the Psyches of Killers, Rapists and Stalkers and Their Victims and Tells How to Fight Back" (Simon & Schuster). For 20 years DOUGLAS investigated serial murders for the FBI, and developed techniques to get criminals to talk, and to lure them into capture. He also pioneered criminal profiling. Many of his techniques have been adopted by police departments and prosecutors nationwide. DOUGLAS interviewed such notorious killers as Charles Manson and Richard Speck. He's also the author of a memoir, "Mind Hunter: Inside the FBI's Elite Serial Crime Unit." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the Rahsaan Roland Kirk reissue "Dog Years in the Fourth Ring" (32/ Jazz) INT. 2: We remember comedian HENNY YOUNGMAN with a 1991 interview. He died yesterday from complications from the flu. He was 91 years old. REV. : T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two new shows starring Ann Margaret and Tom Selleck.

Interview with Simon Beauty; Interview with Denise Giardina; Commentary on creating new words. February 26, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458479].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SIMON BEAUFOY (BO-foye) wrote the screenplay for the film "The Full Monty" which has been nominated for an Oscar for Best Screenplay and Best Picture. It was his first feature film credit. Previous to this, BEAUFOY produced several short dramas, a documentary, and written a play. He's currently writing the new feature film "The Darkest Light" for his own company Footprint Films. INT. 2: Novelist DENISE GIARDINA (JAR-deena) has written a historical fiction on the life of Dietrich Bonhoeffer -- a German pastor and theologian who, along with a group of German government and military officials plotted to assassinate Adolf Hitler and topple his regime. GIARDINA's new book is "Saints and Villains" (Norton). GIARDINA is a former Episcopal deacon, who renounced her ordination... vows for active lay ministry. She's also the author of the books "Storming Heaven" and "The Unquiet Earth." REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on the uses of suffixes to create new words.

---

Interview with Irene Vilar; Interview with Martin Duberman; Interview with Harry Belafonte. February 27, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457490].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: First-time author, IRENE VILAR (ih-REHN-ay vee-LAR). Her book "The Ladies' Gallery: A Memoir of Family Secrets" (Vintage) is now in paperback. This memoir chronicles three generations of self-destructive behaviour: in 1954, her grandmother was imprisoned for opening fire at the U.S. House of Representatives; in 1977, her mother leapt to her death from a speeding car; and in 1988, she was committed to a psychiatric hospital after attempting suicide. Alternating between her notes from the psychiatric ward and the chronicling of the history of her family, VILAR tells of her own attempts to come to terms with her family history. (REBROADCAST from 8/6/96) INT. 2: This year (April 9) marks the centennial of the birth of singer and political activist PAUL ROBESON. This week he was also given a lifetime achievement award at the Grammy Awards. We'll hear from his biographer MARTIN DUBERMAN. He was selected by Paul Robeson Jr. to write a biography of his father PAUL ROBESON. (REBROADCAST from 2/24/89) INT. 3: Actor and singer HARRY BELAFONTE. This week it was announced that he will be the first recipient of the International Marian Anderson Award, for his contributions as an artist and as a humanitarian. (It will be given to him during a ceremony on Saturday June 27th in Philadelphia) BELAFONTE was born in Harlem and raised in the hills of Jamaica where he absorbed the song and music of the island life around him. BELAFONTE's first love was theater, however: he wasn't convinced that popular singing would take him as far emotionally as Shakespeare did. But by embracing the calypso music of his childhood he introduced it to America. (REBROADCAST from 9/8/93) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NEIL JACOBSON is Professor of Clinical Psychology at the University of Washington, and a pioneer in the scientific study of marital therapy. He is co-author (w/John Gottman, author of "Why Marriages Succeed or Fail") of "When Men Batter Women: New Insights into Ending Abusive Relationships" (Simon & Schuster). The book is based on their decade of research with 200 couples in which they observed the arguments of severely violent couples. Their research shatters a couple of myths: that women batter too, and that women often provoke men into battering them. INT. 2: DEAN HAMER (HAY-mer) is Chief of Gene Structure and Regulation at the National Cancer Institute's Laboratory of Biochemistry. He's the co-author of "Living with Our Genes: Why They Matter More Than You Think" (Doubleday). The book is about HAMER's research looking at how specific genes are linked to our behavior, traits like anxiety, thrill-seeking, and homosexuality. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : DEAN HAMER cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A talk with The New York Times' YOUSSEF IBRAHIM who is in Baghdad where he's been reporting on the situation in Iraq. Meanwhile, U.S. Military forces remain in the Middle East, waiting for the United Nation's weapons inspections to begin in Iraq. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: YOUSSEF IBRAHIM cont'd. REV. : YOUSSEF IBRAHIM cont'd

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: HELEN SUZMAN served as an Opposition Member of the South African Parliament from 1953 until 1989. SUZMAN was a pioneering political leader in the fight against apartheid and anti-Semitism. For thirteen years she was the sole representative in the Parliament to reject race discrimination. She's been twice nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize. She'll discuss post-apartheid South Africa. In 1993 she published her memoir: "In No Uncertain Terms: A South African Memoir" (Knopf) INT.

2: Brother VICTOR-Antoine D'AVILA-LATOURRETTE cooks and tends garden at Our Lady of the Resurrection Monastery near Millbrook, New York. He's the author of several bestselling cookbooks including: "From a Monastery Kitchen" (Triumph Books), "Twelve Months of Monastery Soups" (Broadway Books), as well as his introductory book to the Monastic Life: "A Monastic Year: Reflections from a Monastery" (Taylor Publishing). REV.: T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "The Con" the new telemovie which premieres on the USA cable network tonight. It was written by actor W.H. Macy.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JERRY STRAHAN (STRAY-han) is the author of the memoir "Managing Ignatius: The Lunacy of Lucky Dogs and Life in the Quarter" (Louisiana State University) about his 20 years managing Lucky Dogs, Inc., a fleet of hot dog carts in New Orleans, French Quarter. STRAHAN writes that he works among panhandlers, prostitutes, pimps, con artists, drifters, transvestites, and more. INT. 2: Iranian film maker and film professor JAMSHEED AKRAMI (JOHM-sheed AHK-rah-me) will discuss film making in Iran and Iran's Fajr (FAH-jer) Film Festival which took place in February. This year's festival included a juried competition for international films and was open to Iran's independent and government sponsored producers. AKRAMI teaches mass communication at William Paterson University and is a visiting professor of film at Teachers College, Columbia University where he teaches "Cinema as Crosscultural Interview with David Breashears; Interview with Stanley Donen; Review of the film "The Big Lebowski." March 6, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458292].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Cinematographer DAVID BREASHEARS. The first American to climb Mount Everest twice; In 1996 he took his camera to film from Mount Everest's summit. It coincided with a May blizzard that left several climbers from other expeditions dead. (Chronicled by John Krakuer in his book, "Into Thin Air.") BREASHEARS' film of his own expedition is titled "Everest," and will be released this month. (REBROADCAST from 11/11/97) (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CARRY INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: Film Director and choreographer STANLEY DONEN (DON-in). At the upcoming Academy Awards he'll be given an honorary Oscar for what the Academy calls "a body of work marked by grace, elegance, wit, and visual innovation." DONEN directed "On the Town," "Singin' in the Rain," "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," "Funny Girl," and more. He collaborated with Gene Kelly as dance director on such films as "Cover Girl," and "Anchors Away." In 1996 his biography was published "Dancing on the Ceiling: Stanley Donen and his Movies" (Knopf), written by Stephen M. Silverman. (REBROADCAST from 2/8/96) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Big Lebowski" which stars Jeff Bridges.

Interview with Richard Preston; Interview with Jonathan Tucker; Review of Fred Hersch's and Umberto Petrin's albums "Fred Hersch Plays Monk March 9, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458295].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer RICHARD PRESTON talks with Barbara Bogaev about the emerging threat of biological weapons. In this week's The New Yorker magazine, Preston writes about the former Soviet Union's research into biological weapons. His new novel "Cobra" (Random House) explores the use of bio-weapons in a civilian setting. PRESTON also wrote the international bestseller "The Hot Zone" (Random House). INT. 2: Dr. JONATHAN TUCKER is the Director of the Chemical & Biological Weapons Nonproliferation Project based in California. In 1995, TUCKER was a member of a biological weapons inspection team in Baghdad for the United Nations. He'll talk about obstacles facing the newest round of inspections in Iraq. TUCKER has also served on the Presidential Advisory Committee on Gulf War Veterans' Illnesses. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Fred Hersch Plays Monk: Thelonious" (Nonesuch) and "Monk's World" by Italian pianist Umberto Petrin (on the Splasc label).

Interview with William Mann; Interview with Miles Barth. March 10, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458290].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist WILLIAM MANN has written a new biography of actor William Haines, "Wisecracker: The Life and Times of William Haines, Hollywood's First Openly Gay Star" (Viking). In 1930 Haines was a big box-office draw. He was also openly-gay to reporters, studio chiefs, and fellow actors. Eventually Haines was booted out of Hollywood, because he refused to give in to studio pressure to conform. He began a highly successful career as an interior designer. INT. 2: Curator of the Archives and Collections at the International Center Of Photography in New York, MILES BARTH. He curated an exhibit of the work of tabloid photographer, Weegee, whose real name was Arthur Fellig. Weegee eventually became one of the most celebrated news photographers of the century. His photographs taken with an on-camera flash, were of New York's seamy side from 1930s to the 1960s, of murders, suicides, and accidents. The exhibit is now touring the U.S. There's also a companion book, "Weegee's World" (Little, Brown, & Co.) The book just won the 1997 Best Photographic history Book Award from the American Photographic Historical Society. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV. : MILES BARTH cont'd.

Interview with Barbara Goldsmith; Interview with Ellen Carol Dubois; Commentary on the use of Yiddish phrases. March 11, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969457489].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian BARBARA GOLDSMITH. Her new book is both biography and a history of the time. It tells the story of the 19th century feminist and spiritualist Victoria Woodhull, "Other Powers: The Age of suffrage, Spiritualism, and the Scandalous Victoria Woodhull" (Knopf). Victoria Woodhull was the first woman to run for president. She was an ardent feminist who championed for women's rights, but her spiritualism put her outside the mainstream suffrage movement, as well as her attempts to blackmail her enemies. GOLDSMITH is also the author of the biography of Gloria Vanderbilt, "Little Gloria. . . Happy At Last." INT. 2: Historian ELLEN CAROL DUBOIS (D0-BuOys) teaches at the University of California, Los Angeles. She's the author of the new biography: "Harriot Stanton Blatch and the Winning of Woman Suffrage" (Yale University Press). Blatch was the daughter of the famous suffragist Elizabeth Cady Stanton. When her mother died, Blatch carried on her mother's work, encouraging women of all classes to participate. DUBOIS also edited "The Elizabeth Cady Stanton-Susan B. Anthony Reader" (Northeastern University Press) REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG considers how Yiddish words have entered the everyday speech of even non-Jews.

Interview with Al Franken; Interview with Mary Gordon; Review of the television shows "The Larry Sanders Show" and "Crimes of Passion March 12, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458374].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Political satirist AL FRANKEN. He was one of the original writers for Saturday Night Live. He won four Emmys for his writing on the show. His most popular character was Stuart Smalley, the new age cable TV host. He's also the author of "Rush Limbaugh is a Big Fat Idiot and Other Observations." His newest endeavor is the sitcom "Lateline" which premieres next Tuesday on NBC about the behind the scenes of a late night news show. INT. 2: MARY GORDON is the author of several bestselling novels which are often about the conflicts facing contemporary women. Her novels include "Final Payments" and "The Company of Women." She's also the author of the memoir, "The Shadow Man: A Daughter's Search for Her Father" (Vintage Books, paperback). GORDON's newest novel is "Spending" (Scribner) about a woman painter who finds a patron, muse, and lover in a wealthy commodities broker. REV. : T.V. critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews Sunday's episode of "The Larry Sanders Show" on HBO; this will be the show's final season. And he reviews the telemovie on ABC tonight, "Crimes of Passion: One Hot Summer Night," starring as a homicide detective, the prosecutor in the O.J. Simpson trial, Christopher Darden!

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rock guitarist ERIC CLAPTON. He's considered one of the greatest, if not the greatest, guitar player in rock history. Clapton started out playing blues with the Yardbirds (For Your Love) in the early 60s, then played with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers before forming Cream, one of the 60s most influential bands (Crossroads, White Room). He has a new album, "Pilgrim" (Duck/Reprise Records) (REBROADCAST from 12/7/89) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Actor JEFF BRIDGES, son of actor Lloyd Bridges, star of the TV series "Sea Hunt." Lloyd Bridges died this week. JEFF is starring in the new Coen Brothers film, "The Big Lebowski." He also starred in "Winter Kills," "Cutter's Way," "Starman," "The Last Picture Show," "Jagged Edge," "Tucker: The Man and His Dream," "The Fabulous Baker Boys," "The Fisher King," and "American Heart." REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Love & Death on Long Island."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The documentary musical theatre "Band in Berlin" just made it's premiere in Philadelphia by the American Music Theatre Festival. (Currently running thru March 22nd). It tells the story of "The Comedian Harmonists" a popular sextet vocal group in Germany in the late '20s and early 30's. By 1935 the group was forced to disband by the Nazis, because half of the group were Jewish. "Band in Berlin" was created by SUSAN FELDMAN with WILBUR PAULEY and stars the New York-based contemporary sextet, The Hudson Shad. The group will perform some of their songs in the Fresh Air studio, and Terry will talk with the creators. (THIS CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: BAND IN BERLIN continued. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Pearl Jams' newest CD "Yield". OBIT: Dr BENJAMIN SPOCK died yesterday at the age of 94. We'll hear a interview with Spock he did in 1988. (Originally aired 10/5/88)
Interview with Fauziya Kassindja and Layli Miller Bashir; Interview with Lawrence Wright; Review of Nuala O'Faolain's book "Are You Somebody?" March 17, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458383].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: FAUZIYA KASSINDJA ( Fo-ZEE-ah kah-sin-jah ) and LAYLI MILLER BASHIR have co-written "Do They Hear You Cry". It is published by Delacorte Press. The book is based on their experience. Kassindja fled Toga, Africa to escape female genital mutilation. Bashir as a law student fought for Kassindja's freedom. Bashir is the founder of Tahirih Justice Center, which assist women facing human rights abuses. INT. 2: LAWRENCE WRIGHT has just written the new book "Twins and What They Tell Us About Who We Are". It is published by Wiley. In his book, he explores how research on twins is helping us understand how genetics shapes our lives. Wright is a staff writer for the New Yorker. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Are You Somebody" by Irish journalist Nuala O'Faolain.

Interview with Tony Horwitz; Interview with Edward Ball. March 18, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458386].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Wall Street Journal reporter TONY HORWITZ has written "Confederates In The Attic: Dispatches from the Unfinished Civil War". It is published by Pantheon. HORWITZ explores the subculture of Civil War re-enactment fanatics. Many of these wannabe rebels will run barefoot, sleep in the rain, and starve themselves to recreate the conditions of battle to get a "period rush". HORWITZ won a Pulitzer Prize for his reporting at the Wall Street Journal and is the author of "Baghdad Without a Map" and "One for the Road". (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE NEXT HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: EDWARD BALL has written about his family's role in American Slavery. His book is "Slaves in The Family" which is published by Farrar, Strauss and Giroux. Ball traced his family's history and learned that over six generations his family controlled more than 20 plantations and over four-thousand slaves. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : EDWARD BALL cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor PETER FONDA. He's been nominated this year for an Oscar for his performance in "Ulee's Gold." The son of actor Henry Fonda, he's best known for his role in the cult classic "Easy Rider." He's written his memoir, "Don't Tell Dad" (Hyperion) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: PETER FONDA continued. REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews a cooking show from Japan called "Iron Chef". It is shown in New York and San Francisco. The show features Japan's top chefs in the heat of competition.

Interview with Marian McPartland; Interview with Neal Gabler; Review of the film "Primary Colors." March 20, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/969458490].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pianist MARIAN MCPARTLAND, host of Marian McPartland's piano jazz will celebrate her 80th birthday in a live broadcast from New York City, Saturday night. We'll rebroadcast Terry's interview with her. (REBROADCAST from 9/8/87) INT. 2: Film critic NEAL GABLER (GAY-bler) is the author of the book, "An Empire of Their Own: How the Jews Invented Hollywood," which examined how a group of Jewish European emigrees -- who became Hollywood's movie moguls -- created the screen's idea of the American Dream, and how America adopted that dream. There's a new documentary based on the book, "Hollywoodism: Jews, Movies and the American Dream." On the A&E cable network, Sunday at 8pm. (REBROADCAST from 10/11/88) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Primary Colors."

Interview with Dorothy Allison; Review of Madonna's album "Ray of Light"; Interview with David Henry Hwang; Commentary on the film "Mean Streets." March 23, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502958].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer DOROTHY ALLISON. Her bestselling novel "Bastard Out of Carolina," was about a poor South Carolina family's violence and incest, and was largely autobiographical. She says that she doesn't like most abuse literature because it tends to eroticize abuse. Allison has also written a book of short stories called "Trash" and a book of poems called "The Women Who Hate Me." ALLISON's new novel is "Cavedweller" (A Dutton Book) REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Madonna's new CD "Ray of Light" (Maverick Warner Bros) INT. 2: Playwright DAVID HENRY HWANG (pronounced "Wong"). He received numerous awards for his Broadway debut "M. Butterfly." His newest production "Golden Child" about the struggle between tradition and change in a family in 1918 China, opens on Broadway in April. It received a 1997 Obie Award. REV. : This year is the 25th anniversary of Martin Scorsese's landmark film "Mean Streets." We pay tribute to the movie.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. DAVID EISENBERG is Director of the Beth Israel Center for Alternative Medicine Research. He is also a member of the National Institute of Health's Alternative Medicine Program Advisory Council. He'll discuss the Center's research on the use of alternative therapies, such as chiropractic, acupuncture, massage, and homeopathy. (The Center for Alternative Medicine Research is located in Boston, 617-667-3995). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Film critic JOHN POWERS comments on the Academy Award winners. REV. : POWERS cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ROBERT SULLIVAN. His new book "The Meadowlands: Wilderness Adventures At the Edge of a City" (Scribner) is about his intrepid trek into the swamp land five miles outside of New York City, where decades of garbage, chemicals, and corpses have been dumped. Ian Frazier calls is "funny, interesting, surprising and bizarre." Part of the book was excerpted recently in The New York Times Magazine (Feb 15). SULLIVAN is contributing editor at Vogue. He also writes for The New Yorker, Conde Naste Travler, The New Republic and Rolling Stone. INT. 2: MICHAEL BOWEN is author of a forthcoming book on Sexploitation pioneer filmmaker Doris Wishman. He is a writer based in Brookline, Mass. INT. 3: Filmmaker DORIS WISHMAN. She's considered to be a pioneer of sexploitation movies, of the "nudie" and softcore sex genre films. Between 1960 and 1978 Wisman wrote, directed and produced 24 low budget films. Her films include "Bad Girls Go to Hell," "Nude on the Moon," and "Too Much, Too Often." Revivals of her films have recently been shown in Boston, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, and New York. In August she will receive a Lifetime Achievement Award at the Chicago Underground Film Festival.

Interview with Rodger McFarlane; Interview with Betty DeGeneres; Review of the television mini-series "Moyers on Addiction March 26, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502960].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RODGER McFARLANE is co-author "The Complete Bedside Companion: No-Nonsense Advice on Caring for the Seriously Ill". It is published by Simon and Schuster. McFarlane is former Executive Director of two of America's most successful and influential AIDS service groups, Gay Men's Health Crisis and Broadway Cares/Equity Fights AIDS. Rodger has personally cared for many sick and dying family members and friends over the past 25 years. McFarlane co-wrote this book with Philip Bashe.

INT. 2: BETTY DEGENERES talks about her life before and after her daughter Ellen DeGeneres publicly announced that she is a lesbian. Betty DeGeneres is now the spokesperson for the National Coming Out Project for the Human Rights Campaign. HRC is the nation's largest national lesbian and gay political organization. National Coming Out day is celebrated every October 11. REV. : TV Critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new PBS series "Moyers on Addiction: Close to Home". Journalist Bill Moyers takes an unprecedented look at addiction and recovery in America with the five-part series Moyers On Addiction: Close To Home, premiering March 29, 1998, at 9 p.m. (ET) on PBS. (Check local listings.)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author, jazz writer and musician, STUART NICHOLSON. He is an expert on and biographer of late jazz great Ella Fitzgerald. NICHOLSON is the author of the 1994 book "Ella Fitzgerald: A Biography of the First Lady of Jazz." This month the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of American History opened its exhibit: Ella Fitzgerald: First Lady of Song. It examines Ella Fitzgerald's 60-year career and her rags-to-riches climb to international fame as a jazz and popular singer. The exhibition features the red, two-piece suit from an American Express ad, along with an Annie Liebovitz photograph used in the ad; the broken goblet from the "Is it Ella or is it Memorex?" ad; the Presidential Medal of Freedom received from then President George Bush. Fitzgerald died suffering from diabetes on June 15, 1996 at her home in California. (Originally aired 6/20/96)

REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews two of the most acclaimed foreign films of the past year that are just beginning to play in American theaters. A Taste of Cherry, from Iran, last year's winner at Cannes and the Japanese film Fireworks which took the top prize at the Venice film Festival.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Oscar winning British actor JEREMY IRONS talks about his life and career. He stars in two new movies this year: "Chinese Box" and "Man in the Iron Mask". His role in the controversial film adaptation of "Lolita" has yet to be distributed in the United States. IRONS plays Humbert who is obsessed with a 12-year-old girl. IRONS has appeared in numerous films, television programs and stage productions. His films include: "Reversal of Fortune," "Dead Ringers," "The French Lieutenant's Woman," "Nijinski," and "Die Hard with a Vengeance." INT. 2: Interview with JEREMY IRONS cont'd.
Interview with Blossom Dearie; Commentary on Atlantic Records; Interview with Sam Shepard; Commentary on e-mail. March 31, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503564].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz singer and pianist BLOSSOM DEARIE. She has been called "One of the last of the great supper-club singers". Her following is mainly centered in New York and London. For years, she has performed in London and New York. This year, she is appearing at Danny's Skylight Room in Manhattan.

REV. 1: Rock historian ED WARD continues with part 2 of 3 in his series on Atlantic Records. This year the recording company is celebrating its 50th Anniversary. Today, we look at how Atlantic became a powerhouse for soul music. INT. 2: Playwright, Actor and Director SAM SHEPARD talks about how he got started in theater. SHEPARD won a Pulitzer for his play "Buried Child" and was nominated for an Academy Award for his role as Chuck Yeager in "The Right Stuff." SHEPARD stars in the new film "The Only Thrill." REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the popularity of e-mail. Noting that in this "age of banter" e-mail suits us well.

Interview with Robert Hass; Commentary on Atlantic Records. April 1, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503196].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor, director and producer TOM HANKS and writer ANDREW CHAIKIN talk with Terry Gross about HBO's 12 part mini-series "From Earth to the Moon" which begins this Sunday. HANKS was the executive producer for the project. CHAIKIN, a consultant on the series, wrote the book "A Man on the Moon" which program is largely based on. HANKS also starred in the film "Apollo 13". Hanks received Academy Awards for his roles in "Forrest Gump," and "Philadelphia." INT. 2: Interview with TOM HANKS cont'd. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the novel "A Scientific Romance" (Picador) by Ronald Wright

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Billy Collins; Review of Tim Hagans' and Marcus Printup's album "Hubsongs." April 7, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503199].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet BILLY COLLINS. His newest book "Picnic, Lightning" (Univ of Pittsburgh) is his sixth collection. His other books include, "The Art of Drowning," (Univ of Pittsburgh Press), and "Questions about Angels" (William Morrow & Co.,1991), which was selected as a winner of the National Poetry Series Competition in 1990. John Updike says of Collins' poetry, "Billy Collins writes lovely poems. . . Limpid, gently and consistently startling, more serious than they seem, they describe all the worlds that are and were and some others besides." COLLINS currently teaches at Lehman College of the City University of New York. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Poet BILLY COLLINS continued. REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new CD "Hubsongs" a new collection of Freddie Hubbard songs performed by Tim Hagans and Marcus Printup. It has been released on Capitol Records.

Interview with Newt Gingrich; Interview with Jill Ker Conway. April 8, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503565].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, NEWT GINGRICH. He's written a new book, "Newt Gingrich: Lessons Learned the Hard Way: A Personal Report" (HarperCollins). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Historian JILL KER CONWAY. She's the author of the bestselling memoir, "The Road from Coorain," about growing up in the Australian outback. CONWAY also edited two volumes of women's memoirs "Written By Herself" (Volumes I and II) which were, in part, about the nature of autobiography written by women. Her new book is "When Memory Speaks: Reflections on Autobiography." (Knopf) CONWAY was the first female vice president of The University of Toronto, and from 1975 to 1985 was the president of Smith. Since then, she has been a visiting scholar and professor at M.I.T.'s Program in Science, Technology and Society. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : JILL KER CONWAY continued.
Interview with Ben Folds; Commentary on poetry; Review of Paul Robeson's album "Songs of Free Men." April 9, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502177].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer, songwriter, pianist BEN FOLDS of the piano-bass-drum trio, Ben Folds Five. They're best known for their hit "Brick" a ballad about an abortion, in which the word "abortion" is never used. The band, from North Carolina, has been in existence since 1994. It includes drummer Darren Jessee and bassist Robert Sledge. In a New York Times review, Neil Strauss writes that FOLDS combines "the pomp and virtuosity of classic late 60's and 70's pop with the smart knowing lyrics of punk's more sensitive songwriters." Their new CD is "Ben Folds Five: Naked Baby Photos" (Caroline Records) INT. 2: Last week the opening event of the Favorite Poem Project, was held at New York's Town hall. The Project is part of poet laureate Robert Pinksy's plan to have 1000 average Americans recite their favorite poem and archive it on audio or video tape. The Town Hall event brought together such notable people as Geraldine Ferraro, Arthur M. Schlesginer Jr., and choreographer Bill T. Jones, as well as junior and high-school students. We'll excerpt a part of the event. REV. : Today is the 100th anniversary of the birth of the great African-American singer, actor and political activist Paul Robeson. Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews his recording of "Songs of Free Men" (Sony's Masterworks Heritage series).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rabbi BURTON VISOTZKY of the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York City. Since 1987 he's led seminars on the Book of Genesis. The seminars gained a following. Novelists, poets, editors, filmmakers, CEOs, and attorneys attended the sessions to understand the relevance of Genesis to modern life. The New York Times described the seminar as "the best conversations in New York City." Bill Moyers did a 10-part PBS series on VISTOZKY's seminar. VISOTZKY's book is "The Genesis of Ethics: How the Tormented Family of Genesis Leads Us to Moral Development." (Crown Publishers). (REBROADCAST from 10/23/96) INT. 2: Two people who as teenagers left home and road trains during The Great Depression: JIM MITCHELL and PEGGY DEHART are both featured in MICHAEL UYES film "Riding The Rails". MITCHELL was 16 years old in 1933 when he first jumped a train. DEHART was 15 in 1938. The documentary "Riding The Rails" will be featured on PBS Monday night as part of The American Experience series. (REBROADCAST from 9/2/97) REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews the film "The Butcher Boy".

Interview with Eddie Izzard; Review of the television program "Teletubbies"; Interview with Liz Tilberis; Review of Helen Boatwright's album "The Songs of Charles Ives and Ernst Bacon." April 13, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503194].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British standup comic EDDIE IZZARD (pronounced like "Lizzard"). The cross-dressing comic is a household name in England, but little known here. His new one-man show is "Dress to Kill" (at New York's Westbeth Theater, in the West Village). A New York Times review describes him as "a ticklingly entertaining hybrid of mainstream cultural influences and offbeat personal tendencies." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Teletubbies" the British TV series geared for children, one to three years old, which premieres on PBS this week. INT. 2: Editor-in-chief of Harper's Bazaar, LIZ TILBERIS. She's written a new memoir about working in the fashion industry while battling ovarian cancer. It's called "No Time To Die" (Little, Brown & Co.) REV. :Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the long-awaited reissue of American soprano Helen Boatwright singing Charles Ives' compositions: "The Songs of Charles Ives and Ernst Bacon" (CRI Label)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Artist CHUCK CLOSE. He's been called "the most methodical artist that has ever lived in America" and the "reigning portraitist of the Information Age." He creates jumbo size faces on canvas (8 or 9 feet high), copying them from photographs. They are painted in a dotted faux pointillist style. In 1989 CLOSE suffered a stroke which left him paralyzed from the neck down, gaining partial use of his hand with a brace, he learned to paint all over again. There's currently a retrospective of his work exhibited at The Museum of Modern Art in New York. (Feb 26-May 26, 1998) There's also a companion book: "Chuck Close" (published by the Museum of Modern Art, New York). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES Interview with Wayne Wang, Part 1; Interview with Jeremy Irons; Interview with Wayne Wang, Part 2; Commentary on Elizabeth Bishop. April 15, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503195].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker WAYNE WANG. With the films "Chan is Missing," "Dim Sum," "Slamdance" and "Eat a Bowl of Tea," to his credit, Wang was the first Chinese-American film director to make an impact in the American film industry. WANG went on to direct "The Joy Luck Club," and the films "Smoke" and "Blue in the Face." His newest film is set in Hong Kong, "Chinese Box" starring Jeremy Irons. INT. 2: Oscar winning British actor JEREMY IRONS. He stars in two new movies this year: "Chinese Box" and "Man in the Iron Mask". His films include: "The French Lieutenant's Woman," "Brideshead Revisited," "Reversal of Fortune," and "Dead Ringers." INT. 3: Filmmaker WAYNE WANG. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ on poet Elizabeth Bishop and how he saved a poem of hers from obscurity. It's called "Breakfast Song." LLOYD is the editor of "Elizabeth Bishop and Her Art" (University of Michigan Press).

Interview with Patrick Buchanan; Commentary on dictionaries and pejoratives; Review of Prince's album, "Crystal Ball." April 16, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502799].

Description of show segment(s) to be offensive or derogatory to groups of people. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release by the artist formerly known as Prince. It's a 4-CD set, "Crystal Ball." (on his own label)

Interview with Katherine Graham; Review of Susan Eisenberg's books "Pioneering April 17, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502706].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This week, former "Washington Post" publisher KATHARINE GRAHAM won a Pulitzer Prize for her autobiography "Personal History" (Knopf). In this archive interview, Graham reflects on how she overcame personal doubts in order to run the paper she inherited. Graham's father owned "the Post" and later her husband, Phil Graham, took over. Graham became publisher, after her husband's suicide in 1963, though she knew little about the managerial or journalistic aspects of the position. But, learning on the job, she transformed the Post into one of the country's most respected newspapers. (REBROADCAST from 2/17/97). INT. 2: Interview with CATHERINE GRAHAM cont'd. REV. : Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews two new books by poet and construction worker Susan Eisenberg. Her poems attest to the misogyny still present in the construction industry. The books are "Pioneering: Poems from the Construction Site" (ILR Press/Cornell) and "We'll Call You If We Need You: Experiences of Women Working Construction" (ILR Press/Cornell) INT. 2: Poet laureate ROBERT PINSKY reads poems from his book "The Figured Wheel: New and Collected Poems" (Farrar Straus & Giroux). Robert Pinsky was named poet laureate on March 28, 1997. His previous books of poetry include The Inferno of Dante, An Explanation of America (Princeton), The Want Bone (Ecco), and History of My Heart, awarded the William Carlos Williams Prize of the Poetry Society of America. His collection of essays, Poetry and the World, was nominated for the National Book Critics Circle award in criticism. He is also co-translator of The Separate Notebooks, poems by Nobel Prize winner Czeslaw Milosz. In addition to writing books he was Poetry Editor of The New Republic from 1979-1986. (Originally aired 9/22/97)
Interview with Charles Rosen; Interview with Meredith F. Small; Obituary for Linda McCartney. April 20, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502794].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Pete Hamil; Interview with Nicholas Clapp; Review of Propellerheads' album "Decksanddrumsandrockandroll." April 21, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502800].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist PETE HAMILL. He's written a new book, a long essay really, about the troubled state of newspapers in this country. It's called "News is a Verb: Journalism at the End of the Twentieth Century" (The Library of Contemporary Thought, The Ballantine Publishing Group). HAMILL is also the author of the bestselling novel, "Snow in August," and the memoir, "A Drinking Life." INT. 2: Documentary filmmaker NICHOLAS CLAPP. His new book, "The Road to Ubar: Finding the Atlantis of The Sands" (Houghton Mifflin) is about his search for the lost Arabian city of Ubar. Described in the Koran as "the many-columned city" Ubar, was said to have been destroyed by God for the sins of its people. Using satellite maps to help locate it, CLAPP organized two expeditions. to Arabia to find Ubar. And he found it in 1992. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Decksanddrumsandsandrockandroll" (Dreamworks) the new release by Propellerheads, a pair of musicians from England, making the latest electronic noise known as Big Beat.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The creator of the Simpsons MATT GROENING talks with TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI about the series. This month, TV's longest running animated series will broadcast its 200th episode. The Simpsons were first featured during episodes of the Tracey Ullman Show. The Simpsons own prime time series premiered in 1990. Groening has a new book called "The Simpsons: A Complete Guide to our Favorite Family." INT. 2: Boston Probation officer WILLIAM STEWART and Judge SYDNEY HANLON (woman) talk about "Operation Night Light," a program that is credited with reducing juvenile crime in South Boston. Under the program, probation officers go out with police at night looking for probation violators. Last year, President Clinton touted Boston as a national role model for what cities can achieve in reducing juvenile crime. WILLIAM STEWART serves as Assistant Chief Probation officer in the Dorchester District Court in Massachusetts. In 1990, he was assigned the task of developing a proactive supervision unit designed to supervise juvenile offenders ages 17-24 which resulted in "Operation Night Light". Judge SYDNEY HANLON serves as First Justice in the Dorchester District Court. Prior to serving on the bench, HANLON was Chief of the Narcotics Division for the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office. REV. : interview continued.

Interview with Ben Kieran; Commentary on the words "heritage" and "tradition"; Interview with Ian McEwan; Commentary on Cuban music in the U. S. April 23, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502798].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BEN KIERMAN is the director of the "Cambodian Genocide Project" at Yale University. KIERMAN talks about why he is trying to document the mass killings and what the death of Pol Pot means for Cambodia. KIERMAN wants those responsible for the crimes to face a war crimes tribunal.
KIERNAN is a professor of History at Yale and author of the 1996 book "The Pol Pot Regime" which has just been re-issued by Yale University Press. Pol Pot reportedly died last week of a heart attack at the age of 73. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the recent new interpretations the words "heritage" and "tradition." INT. 2: British writer IAN MCEWAN's 1997 novel "Enduring Love" has been published in the United States. (Doubleday) MCEWAN has written five other novels: "The Cement Garden," "The Comfort of Strangers," "The Child in Time," "The Innocent," and "Black Dogs," He's been shortlisted for Britain's prestigious Booker Prize twice and has won the Whitbred Novel of the Year Award. He lives in Oxford, England. REV. :Music Critic MILO MILES talks about the renewed interest in Cuban music in the U.S.

[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502878].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: "The Lemon Tree" is a special documentary marking the 50th Anniversary of the State of Israel and the 1948 Arab-Israeli war. It was produced for Fresh Air by Homelands Productions, producers of other public radio documentaries. It is narrated by producer Sandy Tolan and uses excerpts from his conversations with Bashir, a Palestinian man, and Dalia, an Israeli woman, to tell how their 31 year friendship reveals much of the painful history of the last 50 years experienced by both Palestinians and Israelis. The story begins with Dalia knocking on the door of the home that used to be his, near Tel Aviv. The door is answered by Bashir. FYI: The 50th Anniversary for the State of Israel is May 14th. INT. 2: "The Lemon Tree" documentary cont'd REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Two Girls and a Guy". It stars Heather Graham, Natasha Gregson Wagner and Robert Downey Jr. It was written and directed by James Toback.
Interview with Tim McCarver; Interview with Myra Shapiro; Review of Cheri Knight's album "The Northeast Kingdom." April 27, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502797].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fox sports commentator TIM MCCARVER talks to Marty Moss-Coane about his new book "Baseball for Brain Surgeon and Other Fans". (Villard Books) McCarver is also a commentator during the New York Mets season for WWOR. He played major league baseball from 1959-1980 for the St Louis Cardinals, Philadelphia Phillies, Montreal Expos and Boston Red Sox. He also wrote "O, Baby, I Love It!". INT. 2: Poet MYRA SHAPIRO talks with our Book Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN about her life and work. Her first collection "I'll See You Thursday" was published in 1996 by Alley Press. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "The Northeast Kingdom" (E-Squared/Warner) by Cheri Knight.

Interview with Peter Coyote; Review of Moran Lee Boggs' album "Dock Boggs April 28, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502708].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor PETER COYOTE. He's written a memoir, "Sleeping Where I Fall" (Counterpoint) about the his experiences during the sixties and seventies. The son of an East Coast stockbroker, COYOTE was part of the political street theatre, the San Francisco Mime Troupe. Later COYOTE lived the communal life, experimenting with sex, drugs, and heady ideals. COYOTE has performed in more than 50 films including, "Bitter Moon," "E.T.," "Jagged Edge, "Outrageous Fortune" and the new film "Sphere." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: PETER COYOTE continued. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD on Moran Lee Boggs, otherwise known as Dock Boggs, who played banjo like a blues guitar in the 1920s. Boggs died in 1971. His recordings have been collected on a new CD "Dock Boggs: Country Blues" (Reventant label)

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Far Side cartoonist GARY LARSON has written and illustrated the new book "There's A Hair In My Dirt! A Worm's Story." (Harper Collins) It's the story of a family of earthworms and a fair maiden in the forest. Larson quit drawing his syndicated Far Side comic in 1995. The Far Side thrived for 14 years and appeared in more than 1,900 newspapers worldwide. Larson has published more than 20 books featuring his cartoons. In 1994, Larson completed his first animated film, "Gary Larson's Tales from the Far Side." His second animated film "Gary Larson's Tales From the Far Side II" has appeared at the Telluride Film Festival. He lives in Seattle, Washington. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with GARY LARSON cont'd. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Kurt Weill: from Berlin to Broadway, Vol. 2" (Pearl label) and other recordings of "Lady in the Dark" and "Berlin to Broadway" (on the Sony Masterworks Heritage label) as well as Lotte Lenya's "Berlin Theatre Songs" (also on Sony).

Interview with Bruce Tucker; Interview with Maceo Parker; Interview with Bootsy Collins; Review of the film "He Got Game." May 1, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503431].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today's show is in honor of the great James Brown who celebrates his birthday this weekend: Writer BRUCE TUCKER. He was the ghostwriter for James Brown's autobiography, The Godfather of Soul. Tucker is a contributing editor for The Black Music Research Journal. (REBROADCAST from 9/4/90) INT. 2: Musician MACEO PARKER is best known as the saxophonist who played with James Brown. His on again off again association with Brown began in 1964. He's got several albums of his own, as well as collaborations with others. PARKER is currently on tour. (Rebroadcast from 10/2/90) INT. 3: Musician BOOTSY COLLINS got his start with James Brown, where he "defined the finger-popping funk bass style" (Rolling Stone). He went on to work with George Clinton as part of the Parliament-Funkadelic tribe, before forming Bootsy's Rubber Band. On stage, he created alter egos, including Bootzilla, Boot-Tron, and King of the Geepies. He's put out more than 30 albums. (REBROADCAST from 10/10/94) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "He Got Game" the new film by Spike Lee starring Denzel Washington.

Description of show segment(s)

Film. He lives in New York City. INT. 2: Independent film producers JAMES SCHAMUS and TED HOPE. They founded Good Machine the New York City production company which made "The Brothers McMullen," "The Wedding Banquet," "Eat Drink Man Woman," "Safe," "Pushing Hands," "She's The One," and "Ice Storm." In addition to serving as Co-President of Good Machine, James Schamus is Assoc Professor of film theory at Columbia University. At the 1997 Cannes Film Festival, Schamus was awarded the "Best Screenplay" for his work on "Ice Storm." Variety magazine called Schamus and Hope "N.Y. Indies' Dynamic Duo." REV. : Schamus and Hope continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Epidemiologist MICHAEL OSTERHOLM is a leading expert on food-borne illnesses, like E-coli and toxoplasmosis. Some illnesses are less serious resulting in diarrhea, and stomach and abdominal pain. Food-borne illness is on the rise, partly because of the increased consumption of fruits and vegetables in this country, and their importation from developing countries. OSTERHOLM is State Epidemiologist and Chief, Acute Disease Epidemiology Section, of the Minnesota Department of Health. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Epidemiologist SUSAN OLIVERIA is an expert on the link between nutrition and cancer. She is one of the authors of the new book, "The Strang Cookbook for Cancer Prevention: A Complete Nutrition and Lifestyle Plan to Dramatically Lower Your Cancer Risk" (Dutton). The book includes recipes from gourmet chefs. OLIVERIA teaches at the Strang Cancer Prevention Center, Cornell University Medical College, and Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. REV. : SUSAN OLIVERIA cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist ROBERT STONE. His new novel "Damascus Gate" is about the Middle East. Unlike most writers who write about the region, STONE is not Jewish; he's a lapsed Catholic. One reviewer writes of the book that it is "so comprehending of Israel's convoluted workings and its bifurcated culture--where the Biblical fervor of Jerusalem coexists with the disco fever of Tel Aviv--that he makes other writers on the subject seem like the breeziness of literary tourists." STONE is also the author of "Outerbridge Reach" and "Dog Soldiers." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Director JAMES TOBACK. He wrote and directed his new film, "Two Girls and a Guy" about a love triangle, and an unfaithful boyfriend. It stars Robert Downey Jr. TOBACK's other films include "Love and Money," "Exposed," "The Pick-Up Artist," and "The Big Bang." He wrote the screenplays for "Bugsy" and "The Gambler." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : TOBACK contined.

---

Interview with Pat Schroeder; Review of Bonnie Raitt's album "Fundamental." May 7, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503020].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Colorado Congresswoman PAT SCHROEDER. She was a member of the U.S. House of Representatives for 24 years. She's the first woman to hold the office that long. During that time she championed causes important to women: pay equity, the Equal Rights Amendment, breast cancer research, and family leave. She also landed a coveted spot on the House Armed Services Committee. She also coined the term "Teflon president" to describe Ronald Reagan. She's written a new memoir, "24 Years of House Work...and the Place is Still a Mess" (Andrews McMeel) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: PAT SCHROEDER continued. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Bonnie Raitt's latest album "Fundamental." Raitt has new record producers working with her. Instead of Don Was, Raitt is using Mitchell Froom and Chad Blake on "Fundamental." They are best known for their work with Suzanne Vega, Los Lobos and Richard Thompson.

---

Description of show segment(s)

REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the season finale of "Homicide: Life on the Street." It's the last episode for regular Andre Braugher who plays Detective Pemberton. INT. 1: Executive producer and writer, TOM FONTANA of "Homicide: Life on the Street." The show premiered in 1993. Most recently FONTANA was part of the team that put together the adult drama on HBO, "Oz," a realistic look at an experimental unit of a maximum security prison whose aim is to rehabilitate its inmates. (REBROADCAST from 3/9/93) INT. 2: Actor ANDRE BRAUGHER (rhymes with "flower"). In the NBC series, "Homicide," he plays the shaved-headed Detective Frank Pembleton, a man described as "eloquent but icy." BRAUGHER was educated at Juliard and is an experienced Shakespearean actor. His other acting credits include the film, "Glory," and the TNT special, "The Court Martial of Jackie Robinson." (REBROADCAST FROM 1/19/95) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Grace Paley's collection of short stories and other writing "Just As I thought."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer MICHAEL STIPE with the band R.E.M. He has a new book of photographs "Two Times Intro: On the Road with Patti Smith" (Little, Brown & Company) INT. 2: MICHAEL STIPE continued. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "A Widow for One Year" (Random House) the new novel by John Irving, the author of "The World According to Garp."

---

Interview with Bruce Feiler; Interview with Scott Spencer; Review of Nick Lowe's album "Dig My Mood." May 12, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503022].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist BRUCE FEILER. His new book is a history of country music: "Dreaming out Loud: Garth Brooks, Wynonna Judd, Wade Hayes, and the Changing Face of Nashville (Avon Books). FEILER writes regularly about American music for The New York Times, The New Yorker, and other publications. He's also a frequent contributor to "All Things Considered." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Novelist SCOTT SPENCER. His new book "The Rich Man's Table" (Knopf) is the story of a boy who discovers he is the illegitimate son of a legendary folk singer, a character said to be based on Bob Dylan. SPENCER's previous novels include "Men in Black," and "Endless Love." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Dig My Mood" (Upstart/Rounder) the new CD by Nick Lowe.

Interview with Julia Louis-Dreyfus; Interview with Larry David; Interview with Jason Alexander; Interview with Jerry Seinfeld. May 13, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503021].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: This week "Seinfeld" wraps up its nine-year run with it's final episode. We feature a new interview and several archive interviews: Actress JULIA LOUIS DREYFUS. She plays Elaine in "Seinfeld." Elaine is otherwise known as the "Queen of Confrontation" for her ability to take on everyone from cab drivers to soap chefs. Before starring in "Seinfeld" DREYFUS was also a cast member of "Saturday Night Live." INT. 2: LARRY DAVID, the co-creator, and former executive producer, and one of the former writers of "Seinfeld." He won an Emmy for best writing in a comedy series. DAVID was also the basis for the character "George" Jerry Seinfeld's neurotic best friend. He was a writer for Saturday Night Live and the short-lived ABC late night series, "Fridays." (REBROADCAST FROM 1/2/92). INT. 2A Actor JASON ALEXANDER. He's best known as George Costanza on "Seinfeld", where he plays Jerry Seinfeld's best friend. Alexander won a Tony Award in 1989 for his performance in "Jerome Robbin's Broadway." (REBROADCAST FROM 6/23/92) INTV. 2B Comedian JERRY SEINFELD from an interview recorded before his "Seinfeld" fame. He also wrote the bestselling book "SeinLanguage". (REBROADCAST FROM 9/2/87).

Interview with Uri Savir; Commentary on television sitcoms and language; Commentary on the television show "Seinfeld." May 14, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503113].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Israel's chief negotiator with the PLO from 1993-1996, URI SAVIR (OO-re Sa-VEER). He was the first Israeli official to negotiate secretly with a senior representative of the PLO. He participated in the historic peace process in Oslo. He's written a new memoir, "The Process: 1,100 Days That Changed the Middle East" (Random House). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF
THE SHOW) INT. 2: URI SAVIR cont.d REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG adds his thoughts about the linguistic legacy left by popular TV sitcoms. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reflects on the end of "Seinfeld."

Interview with Sammy Cahn; Interview with Nancy Sinatra; Interview with Matt Dennis; Interview with Billy May; Review of the films "The Horse Whisperer" and "Bulworth." May 15, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503112].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Songwriter SAMMY CAHN wrote many of the songs that Frank Sinatra recorded, including Come Fly With Me, Teach Me Tonight and High Hopes. He also wrote the scores for many Broadway shows including Walking Happy and Skyscraper, and for the movies Come Blow Your Horn, Robin and the Seven Hoods, and A Pocketful of Miracles. Cahn died in 1993 at the age of 79. (Rebroadcast from 1985) INT. 1b:NANCY SINATRA, Sinatra's daughter. She recorded a few hits of her own including "These Boots are Made for Walking," and "Something Stupid," the duet she recorded with her father. NANCY SINATRA wrote a book about her father, "Frank Sinatra: An American Legend." (REBROADCAST from 12/12/95) INT. 2:A Songwriter MATT DENNIS. He wrote "Angel Eyes," which was one of Frank Sinatra's signature songs. Dennis also wrote several other songs that Sinatra recorded. Dennis first wrote for Sinatra when Sinatra was the singer with Tommy Dorsey band's, and Dennis was the band's staff arranger and composer. (Rebroadcast from 12/12/95) INT. 2:BTrumpet player and arranger BILLY MAY talks about working with Frank Sinatra. May worked with Sinatra on and off from the mid 40's to the mid 80's. He arranged Sinatra's albums Come Fly With Me, Come Swing with Me, and Come Dance with Me, on Capitol Records He did the arrangements for the Ellington-Sinatra album on Reprise. On Sinatra's 1979 release, Trilogy, May arranged the section called The Past. They met in 1939 when May was playing trumpet and arranging for the Charlie Barnett band, and Sinatra was singing with Tommy Dorsey. (Rebroadcast from 12/12/95) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Robert Redford's "The Horse Whisperer" and Warren Beatty's "Bulworth."
Interview with Ravi Coltrane; Interview with Mamphela Ramphele; Review of the album "Kurtis Blow Presents the History of Rap." May 18, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825301].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Saxophonist RAVI COLTRANE. He's the son of the legendary jazz musician John Coltrane, and was two years old when his father passed away. He's just completed his first album as band leader, "Moving Pictures" (RCA Victor) INT. 2: President of the University of Cape Town MAMPHELA RAMPHELE. During the 1970s she was a leader in the struggle against Apartheid, and was a colleague of Steven Biko. Later she became his lover. Biko was murdered while in detention and RAMPHELE was pregnant with his child. RAMPHELE is also a medical doctor and anthropologist. Her new memoir is "Across Boundaries: The Journey of a South African Woman Leader" (The Feminist Press) REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews Volume One of "Kurtis Blow Presents the History of Rap" (Rhino)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor and director ROBERT REDFORD. He discusses his latest film, "The Horse Whisperer" which he directs and stars in. It's based on the bestselling novel. INT. 2: Saxophonist, guitarist, and musicologist ALLEN LOWE. He's the author of the book "American Pop: from Minstrel to Mojo: On Record 1893-1956" (Cadence Jazz Books) which is an examination of the roots of pop by way of recorded music. One reviewer writes" "the range of musicians considered underscored Lowe's greatest strength: finding the common threads shared by country, ragtime, blues, jazz and mainstream dance music." There's now a companion nine-CD set: "American Pop From Minstrel to Mojo: On Record, 1893-1946" (West Hill Audio Archives, Toronto, Ontario, Canada) REV. : ALLEN LOWE cont'd.
Interview with Nick Hornby; Commentary on Ray Charles; Interview with Hank Crawford. May 20, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503386].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British novelist NICK HORNBY, the author of the best-selling comic novel "High Fidelity" about a 30-something record collector, and top-ten list maker who is afraid of commitment. His newest novel "About a Boy" (Riverhead Books) is about a 36 year old man who pretends to be a single parent in order to meet women who are single parents. Robert DeNiro has just optioned "About a Boy" for a film. "High Fidelity" is about to be made into a film starring John Cusack. REV Rock historian ED WARD begins a 2-part retrospective on the work of Ray Charles, who celebrates 50 years in show business this year. Much of the music comes from "Ray Charles: Genius & Soul: The 50th Anniversary Collection" (Rhino) INTV: Memphis-born saxophonist HANK CRAWFORD. Before going out on his own, he backed B.B. King and played with Ray Charles. He eventually became musical director for Charles' band and he credits what he learned about playing soulful music from Charles. His newest CD "Hank Crawford: Memphis Ray and a Touch of Moody" (32 Jazz) collects music from his previous recordings: "More Soul," "From the Heart," "Soul of the Ballad," and "Dig These Blues."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist RICHARD PRICE talks about his latest book "Freedomland". (Broadway Books) It's a story that examines race relations in a fictional urban New Jersey town. Inspired by the real life Susan Smith incident in which she alleged a black man carjacked her and took her two children. Price's story follows a similar theme and how the events affect the community. Price's earlier novel "Clockers" about life in the inner city world of drug dealing was nominated for a National Book Critics Circle Award. Price also is a screenwriter with such notable films: "Sea of Love," "Ransom," and "The Color of Money." INT. 2: Interview with RICHARD PRICE cont'd. REV.: Rock Historian ED WARD has pt 2 of 2 in our look at Ray Charles career. This year marks his 50th year in the music business. Much of the music comes from "Ray Charles: Genius & Soul: The 50th Anniversary Collection" (Rhino)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A STEREO concert with songwriter and pianist DAVE FRISHBERG. His music draws its inspiration from jazz classics, but his lyrics are quirky modern originals about neurosis, and the oddities of contemporary life. A Grammy nominee, Frishberg's latest CD is "Dave Frishberg: by Himself." (Arbors Records) His other recordings include "The Dave Frishberg Songbooks," "Live at Vine Street," "Can't Take You Nowhere," and "Quality Time" (Originally aired 12/27/95) INT. 2: Interview with DAVE FRISHBERG cont'd. REV. : DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new film "Godzilla." It opened in theaters on Wednesday.

Interview with Dan Penn and Spooner Oldham; Interview with Rufus Thomas, Marvell Thomas, Dan Penn, and Spooner Oldham; Interview with Syl Johnson. May 25, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503577].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A presentation of blues music and interviews with performers at the world-famous Chicago Blues Festival recorded on June 8, 1997. Featuring DAN PENN, a master of nineteen-sixties soul and the writer of hits such as Cry Like a Baby and Sweet Inspiration. His songs have been recorded by artists including Aretha Franklin and Otis Redding. PENN is joined by his long-time songwriting partner SPOONER OLDHAM, a talented keyboard player, who has recorded with Arthur Alexander and Box Tops and has toured with Bob Dylan and Neil Young. (REBROADCAST from 7/3/97) INT. 2: Also performing, RUFUS THOMAS, the self-proclaimed world's oldest teenager. He played an integral role in the success of major record labels in the nineteen-fifties, Sun Records and Stax Records. He celebrated his 80th birthday at the festival by playing with his son, Marvell. (REBROADCAST from 7/3/97) INT. 3: Singer SYL JOHNSON had hits in the nineteen-sixties and seventies such as Come on Sock it to Me and Take Me to the River. Rappers including TLC and Hammer have sampled his early tunes. JOHNSON will perform, backed up by a fourpiece band. (REBROADCAST from 7/3/97)
Interview with Cissy Houston; Interview with Ron Chernow. May 26, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503504].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Gospel singer CISSY HOUSTON has released her biography titled "Cissy Houston, How Sweet The Sound: My Life with God and Gospel." (Doubleday) Cissy Houston won the 1997 Grammy Award for Best Traditional Soul Gospel album for "Face to Face." She is the minister of music at New Hope Baptist Church in Newark, New Jersey and lives in Fort Lee, NJ. Her daughter is the singer Whitney Houston. INT. 2: Writer RON CHERNOW has written a new biography one of America's most powerful men. His book is "Titan: The Life of John D. Rockefeller, Sr." (Random House) Chernow has also written: "The House of Morgan," "The Warburgs," and "The Death of the Banker." The New York Times this month called Titan "a triumph of the art of biography."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: U.S. Peace negotiator RICHARD HOLBROOKE. He was the chief architect of the Dayton Peace Accord that ended the war in the former Yugoslavia. He has just returned from the region. His new book will be published in June "To End A War." (Random House) REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS talks about the new movies being shown at the Cannes Film Festival in France.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We pay tribute to ragtime composer and performer Eubie Blake. He was born on February 7, 1883 in Baltimore, Md. He wrote the songs for the Broadway hit Shuffle Along. African American ragtime musicians of the day sought out Eubie to write their songs. Two of Eubie Blake's best known songs are "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and "Love Will Find A Way." Just over one hundred years after his life began, on February 12, 1983, Eubie Blake died in Brooklyn, New York. We'll present a concert with singer Vernel Bagneris and pianist Dick Hyman and feature theater historian Robert Kimball. Singer Vernel Bagneris is currently starring in the Broadway musical "The Life." He also co-created and starred in a Jelly Roll Morton revue, and the New Orleans music revue "One Mo' Time." Dick Hyman is an expert in piano styles of the teens, twenties and thirties. He has also composed music for several Woody Allen movies. Kimball rediscovered Blake in the late 60's and co-authored the book "Reminiscing with Sissle and Blake." Kimball is also the co-author of "The Gershwins, and editor of "The Complete Lyrics of Ira Gershwin and Cole Porter."

Interview with Nick Lowe; Review of Sean Lennon's and Rufus Wainwright's albums "Into the Sun" and "Rufus Wainwright"; Review of the television show "The Larry Sanders Show." May 29, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825486].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A 'Fresh Air' concert with NICK LOWE. This was recorded after his 1994 recording "The Impossible Bird" (Upstart Records). Lowe in the early 1970s played London's pub rock scene in the band Brinsley Schwarz. After the band broke up in 1975, he produced five albums for Elvis Costello. Lowe worked with Dave Edmunds in the group Rockpile. In 1992 he was one quarter of the band "Little Village" with John Hiatt and Ry Cooder. His newest CD is "Dig My Mood" released by Rounder Records. Originally aired 1/24/95 REV.1: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews both the new debut CD's of Sean Lennon, son of John Lennon, and Rufus Wainwright, son of Loudon Wainwright III. REV. 2: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the final episode of "The Larry Sanders Show" on HBO which airs this Sunday.

Interview with Nicholas Papandreou; Interview with Diane Wood Middlebrook; Commentary on California's Proposition 227. June 1, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502226].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NICHOLAS PAPANDREOU is the son of former Greek Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou. Nicholas as written the novel "A Crowded Heart." (Picador) It is a fictional retelling of his own childhood in Greece. Born in Berkeley, California, he now lives in Athens, Greece. INT. 2: Author DIANE WOOD
MIDDLEBROOK has written "Suits Me: The Double Life of Billy Tipton." (Houghton Mifflin) It traces the life of jazz musician Billy Tipton who passed as a man most of her life. Middlebrook also wrote "Anne Sexton: A Biography." She is a professor of english at Stanford University in California. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on a California ballot initiative that would create "english-only" classrooms.

Interview with John Fogerty; Interview with John Wesley Vaso and Lawrence Rinder. June 2, 1998.
[Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502494].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and songwriter JOHN FOGERTY. He has just released the double CD "live" concert album "Premonition." (Reprise) Featured on the recording is many of his biggest hits with Creedence Clearwater Revival: "Who'll Stop the Rain," "Down on the Corner," "Bad Moon Rising," and "Proud Mary." Fogerty won a Grammy Award in 1997 for his album "Blue Moon, Swamp." Fogerty will also be featured on this month's VH-1 Biography. INT. 2: We'll hear from two people who worked on a new Maisin (My-sin) tribal art exhibit "Tapa Style" now showing in Philadelphia. The goal of the exhibit is to promote Maisin culture as an alternative to selling logging rights to their portion of a rainforest in Papau New Guinea. JOHN WESLEY VASO is a Maisin tribal leader. Larry Rinder was the curator for the exhibit and is Director of the Institute for Exhibitions and Public Programs at the California College of Arts and Crafts. REV. : NO REVIEW

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress JANE ALEXANDER talks about her 4 years as Chairwoman of the National Endowment for the Arts. She served from 1993 through 1997 when the GOP controlled Congress targeted the agency for budget cuts. She was the first artist to head the NEA. Alexander has returned to acting and is writing a book on her experiences at the NEA. REV.1 Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Bridget Jones's Diary," a novel by Helen Fielding that began as a newspaper column. It has been the best selling novel in Great Britain for six months and has just won the British Book Award of the Year. INT. 2 BILL IVEY is the new Chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts. He won Senate confirmation last month. He last served as the director of the Country Music Foundation. There he co-produced a new 3 CD set called "From Where I Stand: The Black Experience in Country Music." (Warner Bros) The collection traces the contributions African-Americans have had in country music. (stations: This was recorded before his confirmation hearings. He declined to talk about the NEA at that time.)

Description of show segment(s)

This Saturday, June 6, marks the 30th Anniversary of Robert Kennedy's death. Newfield is a political columnist for The New York Post. In 1962, He was a charter member of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and was a founder of the "Dump Johnson" movement in New York in 1967. INT. 1: JACK NEWFIELD wrote the highly acclaimed 1969 book "Robert Kennedy: A Memoir by Jack Newfield." (Dutton) This Sunday, The Discovery Channel will air a 3-hour documentary co-produced by Newfield. The series is based on his book. INT. 2: MAXWELL TAYLOR KENNEDY is the youngest son of Robert F. Kennedy. He has edited a new collection of his father's private journal entries called "Make Gentle The Life of this World: The Vision of Robert F. Kennedy." (Harcourt Brace) Max Kennedy, as he is called, has written stories for the Santa Monica News, and for the magazines Doubletake and Conde Nast Traveler. He also served as a prosecutor in Philadelphia. He lives in Boston.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Boogie Nights writer and director PAUL THOMAS ANDERSON. The film has been released on video. The movie is about the pornography film industry in the late 70's and early 80's in the San Fernando Valley. ANDERSON'S first film was the independent "Hard Eight." (originally aired 10/30/97) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the CD "In the World From Natchez to New York" by Olu Dara from Atlantic Records. Dara who plays coronet, has been a fixture in the New York jazz scene since the 1970's. He performed with drummer Art Blakey, Julius Hemphill, David Murray and Henry Threadgill. This is his first CD of his own. INT. 2: LOWELL HANDLER has Tourettes syndrome. He has written the new memoir "Twitch and Shout: A Touretter's Tale." (Dutton) Handler was associate producer and narrator for a 1995 documentary called "Twitch and Shout." The film is about people with Tourette Syndrome. (originally aired 1/9/95) REV: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Truman Show."

Interview with Armistead Maupin; Interview with Richard Bausch; Commentary on the television show "Texaco Star Theater." June 8, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502098].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ARMISTEAD MAUPIN is the author of "Tales of the City." It depicted San Francisco gay and straight lifestyles in the 1970's. In 1994 "Tales of the City" was adapted into a controversial PBS miniseries. His second novel from 1980 "More Tales of the City" (Harper Perennial) has been adapted into a Showtime channel miniseries that begins airing this month. Maupin has also written "Further Tales of the City," "Babycakes," "Significant Others," "Sure of You," and "Maybe the Moon." Maupin lives in San Francisco. INT. 2: Novelist RICHARD BAUSCH newest book is "In the Night Season." (Harper Collins) some of his books include: "Good Evening Mr. and Mrs America and All the Ships at Sea," "Rebel Powers," and "Violence." He is also known for his stories which have been published in "The Atlantic Monthly," "Esquire," "Harper's," "The New Yorker," "Playboy," and "The Southern Review." Bausch lives in rural Virginia. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI on the 50th anniversary of Milton Berle's appearance on television.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Standup-comic BOB NEWHART. This Friday he performs at Carnegie Hall in New York City as part of the Toyota Comedy Festival. NEWHART has been a part of the American comedy landscape since 1961 when his debut comedy album "The Button-Down Mind of Bob Newhart" became a surprise hit. (Now available on CD, on the Warner label) Since then he's starred in three TV shows, including the Peabody award winning original "The Bob Newhart Show." And appeared in numerous films. There's also a live concert performance by NEWHART on video, featuring him doing some new and classic routines, "Bob Newhart: Button Down concert: Off the Record" (Newhart Enterprises/Parvenu Productions). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: BOB NEWHART continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Pennsylvania" the newest CD by Pere Ubu. REV. Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN gives her recommendations for books to read this summer.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOSHUA QUITTNER and MICHELLE SLATALLA (SLAH-tah-la) are authors of "Speeding The Net: The Inside Story of Netscape and How It Challenged Microsoft." (Atlantic Monthly Press) Quittner is the computer columnist for Time magazine and an assistant managing editor at Time Inc's on-line site Pathfinder. Slatalla writes a technology column for The New York Times. They have also collaborated on the books: "Masters of Deception," "Flame War," "Mother's Day," and "Shoo-Fly Pie to Die." INT. 2: PETER D. GOLDSMITH is author of "Making People's Music: Moe Asch." (Smithsonian Books) The book explores the history of folk music in America. He uses the life of Moe Asch who was the founder of Folkways Records to tell that story. Asch recorded with such legendary folk singers as: Pete Seeger and Woody Guthrie. Peter D. Goldsmith is an anthropologist who grew up to listening to Folkways records. He currently an adjunct associate professor at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire. REV. : PETER D. GOLDSMITH cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PETER L. STEIN is producer, director and writer of the documentary "The Castro." It will air nationally on PBS this Friday, June 12. "The Castro" is the name of a San Francisco neighborhood that is at the heart of the city's gay community. His film recently won a Peabody Award. He serves as Executive Producer of KQED's series Neighborhoods: The Hidden Cities of San Francisco. AND We'll also hear from CLEVE JONES who lived in the Castro district where he became involved in the gay-rights movement. He is featured in Stein's film. Jones' role in the fight against AIDS has been described in Randy Shilts' best-selling book "And the Band Played On." He is also the founder of the Names Project AIDS Memorial Quilt. Int. 2: WHIT STILLMAN is the writer, director and producer of the new film "The Last Days of Disco," which opened nationally late last month. The film portrays the disco scene in New York in late 1970's to the early 1980's. Stillman also wrote and directed the films "Metropolitan" and "Barcelona." Stillman has also written for Vogue, The Village Voice, The Guardian, and El Pais. REV. : STILLMAN continued.

Interview with Shirley Horn, Charles Ables, and Steve Williams; Interview with Cy Coleman; Review of the films "Henry Fool" and "Mister Jealousy." June 12, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502493].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and interview with jazz singer and pianist SHIRLEY HORN. She recorded with Miles Davis and Quincy Jones in the 1960s and sang on the movie soundtrack, "For Love of Ivy." After a hiatus in which she stayed home and raised her daughter, she returned to performing and recording in 1988. Her 1991 album, "You Won't Forget Me," brought together Toots Thielemans, Buck Hill, Wynton and Branford Marsalis, and Miles Davis. The album was nominated for a Grammy. Her new album, "I Remember Miles," has just been released on Verve records. It's a tribute to the late Miles Davis. Horn is joined today by bassist Charles Ables and drummer Steve Williams. (Rebroadcast from 6/29/92) INT. 2: CY COLEMAN is one of Broadway's outstanding composers. He's written the scores for many Broadway musicals, including "Little Me," "Sweet Charity," "I Love My Wife," and "Barnum." Some of Coleman's most popular songs include "Witchcraft," "The Best Is Yet To Come," and "Hey Look Me Over." A benefit performance of Sweet Charity will be staged Monday, June 15th at Lincoln Center in New York. A new CD, "An Evening with Dorothy Fields," (DRG Records) features Coleman in a special guest appearance. (REBROADCAST from 1985) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews two new films. "Henry Fool" is writer/director Hal Hartley's latest. Also, "Mister Jealousy" stars Annabella Sciorra and Eric Stoltz. It's about a man whose insane jealousy threatens his love life.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author HARVEY KLEHR (rhymes with "bear"). He's co-authored a new book that examines how the Soviets controlled the American Communist party. The Communist Party as it existed in the United States is the only radical party in America to be governed by a foreign country. "The Soviet World of American Communism" draws information from documents in recently opened Soviet archives (with co-authors John Earl Haynes & Kyrill M. Anderson; Yale University Press). Klehr is a professor of Politics and History at Emory University. INT. 2: ELLEN SCHRECKER re-examines the McCarthy era in her new book, "Many are the Crimes: McCarthyism in America." (Little, Brown) She writes that despite the unfairness of the House Un-American Activities Committee, accusations were generally accurate. It's the first complete post-Cold War account of the McCarthy era. Schrecker is a professor of History at Yeshiva University in New York. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the latest releases of the Budapest String Quartet. The group was the quartet in residence at the Library of Congress for 25 years, beginning in the late 1930s. Bridge Records is issuing a series of classic live performances from that period.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In the tradition of the documentary "Sherman's March," GEOFF DYER has written a book about trying to write D.H. Lawrence's biography. "Out of Sheer Rage: Wrestling With D.H. Lawrence" (Farrar Strauss Giroux) ends up being both a biography and an autobiography. DYER lives in Oxford, England, and has published several other books, including "Ways of Telling," a critical study of the art critic John Berger. INT. 2: MALACHY ("mal-a-KEY") MCCOURT is best-selling author Frank McCourt's ("Angela's Ashes") younger brother. He's just written a memoir of his own, entitled "A Monk Swimming." (Hyperion) It picks up where Frank's left off, in 1950s America. Malachy is also an actor and has had featured roles in the films "The Devil's Own," "She's the One," and "The Bonfire of The Vanities." Interview with Jo-Ellan Dimentius; Interview with Wayne Grady and Mike Wallace. June 17, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503218].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jury consultant JO-ELLAN (pronounced "Jo-Ellen") DIMITRIUS. She's consulted in over 600 trials, including O-J Simpson's and Rodney King's. Dimitrius' company, Forensic Technologies International, uses techniques like random phone surveys to learn about public attitudes. In jury questionnaires and interviews, Dimitrius says he can get potential jurors to reveal their pre-dispositions. In her new book, "Reading People: How to Understand People and Predict Their Behavior," (Random House) she discloses some of the tricks of her trade. INT. 2: The truth about vultures, with WAYNE GRADY and MIKE WALLACE. Grady's new book, "Vulture: Ghastly Gourmet," (Sierra Club Books) describes in words and photographs the life of the vulture. WALLACE is the Los Angeles Zoo's vulture specialist. He is the Curator of Conservation and Science at the zoo, as well as being the Condor Species Survival Program Coordinator for the American Zoo and Aquarium Association. REV. : NO REVIEW

Interview with William Langewiesche; Commentary on summer reading books. June 18, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502973].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILLIAM LANGEWIESCHE ("long-ah-VEE-sha") is a writer and a pilot. He grew up around planes and learned to fly when he was a child. His father, a test pilot, wrote a text that is considered to be the bible of aerial navigation ("Stick and Rudder"). Langewiesche has written his own book about flying from a different perspective, called "Inside the Sky: A Meditation on Flight." (Pantheon) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: WILLIAM LANGEWISCHE cont'd. REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN reveals part two of her summer reading suggestions. She reviews "Everybody Was So Young" by Amanda Vaill (Houghton Mifflin), "The Interview with Boy George; Commentary on Maria Callas; Interview with Hubert Selby, Jr.; Review of the film "X-Files June 19, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503132].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pop star BOY GEORGE. In 1982, he and his band Culture Club first hit the charts with "Do You Really Want to Hurt Me?" In a 1995 autobiography, he says he got trapped in the image he created. His band fell apart in 1986, and he developed a drug addiction. He's now recovered. Culture Club is back together. They're releasing a compilation album in mid-July 1998 and and have begun a world tour. Some upcoming US dates are: 7/23/98 Atlanta, 7/30 NYC, 8/5 Philadelphia, and 8/7 Boston. Both Culture Club and Boy George (solo) are planning new albums to be released in the spring of 1999. His autobiography is called Take It Like a Man: The Autobiography of Boy George. (written with George O'Dowd, published by HarperCollins.) REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 9/25/95 REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ profiles opera singer Maria Callas. It's the 20th anniversary of her death. There's a been re-issue of her work. Live performances, home videos and a CD-ROM of her Tosca performance are now available. We will hear selections from "Bizet: Carmen," "Bellini: Norma" and "Verdi: Arias II." (EMI Classics) INT. 2: Writer HUBERT SELBY, Jr. Thirty-four years ago, his collection of stories, "Last Exit To Brooklyn," (Grove Press) shocked readers with its salty language and explicit portrayal of prostitutes, thugs, ex-cons, and striking dock workers along the Brooklyn waterfront. Selby has several new books out: "The Willow Tree" and "Reading the Apocalypse in Bed: Six Radical Plays" (Marion Boyars Publishers). And there's a new book about Selby, entitled "Understanding Hubert Selby, Jr." by James R. Giles and Matthew Bruccoli (University of South Carolina Press). REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 8/11/88. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "X-Files: Fight The Future,"the movie version of the popular Fox TV series. The film, like the TV show, stars David Duchovny and Gillian Anderson. You can expect the usual roster of aliens, conspiracy theorists and secret government agents.
Interview with Sonia Ascoli-Israel; Interview with Benjamin Natelson; Review of King Sunny Ade's album "Odu." June 22, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502975].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SONIA ANCOLI-ISRAEL specializes in sleep disorders, including sleep apnea, insomnia and sleep disturbances in the elderly. She is the author of "All I Want is a Good Night's Sleep." (Mosby-Year Book) She directs the Sleep Disorders Clinic at the Veterans Affairs Division of the San Diego Health Care System. INT. 2: BENJAMIN NATELSON is a neurologist who directs the New Jersey Chronic Fatigue Center. He's just written "Facing and Fighting Fatigue: A Practical Approach." (Yale University Press) He specializes in treating chronic fatigue syndrome. He says that while many people think CFS is all in their heads, there is actually a physiological component to the condition. REV. : Nigeria's King Sunny Ade ("ah-DAY") has a new album. World music critic MILO MILES reviews "Odu" (o-DOO). (Atlantic Records)

Interview with Chris Hedges; Review of the album "The Complete Columbia Studio Recordings of the Miles Davis Quintet." June 23, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503043].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times correspondent CHRIS HEDGES. He's been reporting from the Serbian province of Kosovo, where rebels are battling for independence from the Yugoslavian republic. INT. 2: CHRIS HEDGES cont'd. REV: A new box set of Miles Davis recordings has been issued. Jazz critic Kevin Whitehead has a review.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and interview with NICK LOWE. The British singer-songwriter and producer has had a long and varied career. In the late sixties, he played bass and sang for the pop band Kippington Lodge.
In the seventies, he produced albums for Graham Parker and the Rumour, The Damned, Dave Edmunds and Elvis Costello. Lowe co-founded Stiff Records, one of the premier labels for punk rock. Then, his own solo career took off with the release of the single "I Love the Sound of Breaking Glass." He has continued to both produce and sing. His new solo album (his tenth) is called "Dig My Mood." (Upstart/Rounder Records) INT. 2: NICK LOWE cont'd. INT 2A: Maureen Corrigan interviews writer RICHARD STEVENSON. That's a pseudonym for Richard Lipez ("LIP-ehz"). He works in the genre of gay detective mysteries. Since 1981, he's written a series of six books about detective Donald Strachey ("STRAY-chee"). He is also a Washington Post columnist under his real name. Stevenson's latest book is called "Strachey's Follies: A Donald Strachey Mystery." (St. Martin's Press)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: China scholar ORVILLE SCHELL. He will be talking about President Clinton's imminent visit to China. SCHELL has appeared on ABC, NBC, and CBS, and produced shows for Frontline and Sixty Minutes. He's a board member of the Yale-China Association and Human Rights Watch, and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations. SCHELL was just appointed Dean of the Graduate School of Journalism at UC Berkeley. SCHELL has written many books on China. His last was "Mandate of Heaven: A New Generation of Enterpreneurs, Dissidents, Bohemians, and Technocrats Lays Claim to China's Future." (Simon & Schuster, 1994). He's currently working on a book that examines Western notions of Tibet, especially in Hollywood, as well as another volume of the China Reader, dealing with the Deng Xiaoping years. INT. 2: ORVILLE SCHELL interview continues.

Interview with David Mamet; Interview with Steve Martin; Interview with Mia Farrow. June 26, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503371].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Essayist, poet and playwright DAVID MAMET. His latest film, which he wrote and directed, is "The Spanish Prisoner," starring Campbell Scott, Rebecca Pidgeon and Steve Martin. His work has been called opinionated, forceful, original and always surprising. MAMET won a Pulitzer Prize for his play "Glengarry Glen Ross" and has written and directed several motion pictures. His most recent book, "Make-Believe Town" (Little, Brown and Co.), is a selection of essays about everything from theater to politics to Judaism. It has just come out in paperback. (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 7/11/96) INT. 2: Actor/comedian/screenwriter and playwright STEVE MARTIN. He stars in "The Spanish Prisoner." He is also an author. He's written two books; "Picasso at The Lapin Agile and Other Plays" (Grove/Atlantic Press; just out in paperback), and a collection of short stories, "Cruel Shoes." His screenwriting credits include "L.A. Story," and "Roxanne." He has also starred in such films as: "The Jerk," "Planes, Trains and Automobiles," "The Lonely Guy," "Parenthood," "Father of the Bride," "Housesitter," "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," "All of Me," "The Man with Two Brains," "Sgt Bilko," "Leap of Faith," "Little Shop of Horrors." He won a Grammy Award for his album "Let's Get Small." (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 9/17/96) REV.: MIA FARROW remembers her mother Maureen O'Sullivan.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Food critic RUTH REICHL ("RYE-shall"). Her new book is called "Tender at the Bone: Growing up at the Table," (Random House) and it's her memoir of a lifelong passion for food. REICHL has been the restaurant critic for the New York Times since 1993. Prior to that, she reviewed restaurants for the Los Angeles Times. She ran her own restaurant in Berkeley, California in the 1970s. INT. 1B: RUTH REICHL interview continues. INT. 2 A conversation with our jazz critic, KEVIN WHITEHEAD. Kevin's just published a new book, called "New Dutch Swing." (Billboard Books) It's "an in-depth examination of Amsterdam's vital and distinctive jazz scene." Kevin brings along some recordings of his favorite players.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist JACK HOLLAND. He is a columnist for the Irish Echo, an American weekly for Irish-Americans. Holland was born in Northern Ireland. He was raised Catholic, and has Protestant blood in him as well. He will be talking about the events leading up to the peace settlement in Northern Ireland, and the new National Assembly that was elected last week in Belfast. He'll also talk about growing up in Ireland. The Irish Echo is available on the World Wide Web at www.irishecho.com. INT. 2A: JACK HOLLAND cont'd INT. 2B: China scholar ORVILLE SCHELL returns to update us on President Clinton's trip to China. SCHELL is a board member of the Yale-China Association and Human Rights Watch, and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations. SCHELL is Dean of the Graduate School of Journalism at UC Berkeley. He has written many books on China. His last was "Mandate of Heaven: A New Generation of Entrepreneurs, Dissidents, Bohemians, and Technocrats Lays Claim to China's Future." (Simon & Schuster, 1994). SCHELL was last on Fresh Air Wednesday, June 24, 1998. REV. : SCHELL continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress WENDIE MALICK. She's currently starring as Nina Van Horn, a model turned fashion editor on the hit T-V series "Just Shoot Me." MALICK's real life is not so far off. In the seventies, she worked as a Wilhelmina model. Malick was also on the T-V series "Dream On," in the role of Judith Tupper Stone, for which she won four cable ace awards. INT. 2: Writer LISA MICHAELS talks about growing up in the sixties and seventies as the daughter of hippies in her new memoir, "Split: A counterculture Childhood." (Houghton Mifflin) Michaels grew up craving the straight life, but as a college student, she came to realize that she shared many of her parent's values. MICHAELS is a contributing editor at "Three Penny Review" and a poet whose work has appeared in "Salon" and the "New York Times Magazine."

Interview with Eric Comstock and Dean Johnson; Commentary on Mark Morris. July 2, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503497].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert and conversation with ERIC COMSTOCK. He's a cabaret singer and pianist whose love is rediscovering lesser known songs in American popular music history. InTheater magazine wrote, "Comstock tickles the ivories like a virtuoso and sings in a clear, warm straightforward style that owes much to Fred Astaire." For today's concert, he'll be joined by Dean Johnson on bass. COMSTOCK has a new album, called "Young Man of Manhattan." (Harbinger Records) INT. 2: ERIC COMSTOCK interview continues. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ has been following the work of choreographer Mark Morris. Today he talks about Morris' career.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Drummer RINGO STARR. The ex-Beatle will talk to Terry about his life before, during and after the Beatles. RINGO just completed a series of American concert dates and will tour this summer in Europe with the fourth All-Starr Band. His new album, "Vertical Man," (Mercury Records) will be in stores later this month. (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 6/14/95) INT. 2: Former lead singer for the 60s British pop group 'The Zombies' COLIN BLUNSTONE. The group's hits include Not There, You've Really Got A Hold On Me and Time of the Season. Blunstone has a new solo album called "The Light Within," and there's a new Zombies re-issue called "Odessey and Oracle: 30th Anniversary Edition." (Big Beat Label) There's also a recent anthology of the group's recordings The Zombies: Zombie Heaven (Big Beat). (Rebroadcast. Originally aired 1/28/98.) REV. : Colin Blunstone interview continues.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Keyboard player and now record producer RAY MANZAREK, has written the new autobiography "Light My Fire: My Life with The Doors."(Putnam Books) MANZAREK talks about his experience playing in one of the 1960's most influential bands. The Doors disbanded after its lead singer Jim Morrison died in 1971. Since The Doors, MANZAREK has produced four albums for the punk rock band X and recorded several solo albums. He also performs with Beat poet Michael McClure at nightclubs and on college campuses. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with RAY MANZAREK cont'd. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews
"Mr. Midshipman Hornblower" (Little, Brown & Co.) the first book to be reissued in a series by C.S. Forester. The books feature the "man of action" Horatio Hornblower.

Interview with Jac Holzman; Interview with Michael Gazzaniga; Review of Lucinda Williams's album "Car Wheels on a Gravel Road." July 7, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503588].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The founder of Elektra Records, JAC HOLZMAN. He founded the record label in 1950, initially focusing on recording folk and ethnic music. In the 1960s he signed on some of the big pop and rock voices of the era like Bob Dylan, Judy Collins, Carly Simon, Jackson Browne, and the Doors. He'll talk with Terry Gross about working with the Doors. HOLZMAN headed Elektra Records for 23 years. He has a new book, "Follow the Music: The Life and High Times of Elektra Records in the Great Years of American Pop Culture" (FirstMedia Books) INT. 2: Cognitive Neuroscientist MICHAEL GAZZANIGA (Gah-ZAN-eh-gah) is a pioneer in the study of brain-mind relations. His new book "The Mind's Past" (University of California Press) is about how our brain and mind construct the past. GAZZANIGA is a professor and Director of the Program in cognitive Neuroscience at Dartmouth College. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews a new Lucinda Williams' CD "Car Wheels On A Gravel Road." (Mercury Records)

Interview with Noah Baumbach; Interview with Chris Eigeman. July 8, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503142].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director NOAH BAUMBACH. His latest film is "Mr. Jealousy" about an irrationally jealous young man who is obsessed with his girlfriend's ex-lovers. He joins the therapy group of his girlfriend's ex-boyfriend in order to learn more about him. BAUMBACH wrote and directed the film, as well as his previous debut film "Kicking and Screaming." "Mr. Jealousy" stars Eric Stoltz, Annabella Sciorra, and Chris Eigeman who we hear from later in the show. INT. 2: Actor CHRIS EIGEMAN. He is currently starring in two films "The Last Days of Disco" and "Mr. Jealousy." In "Mr. Jealousy" he plays Dashiell, the ex-boyfriend of Ramona, played by Annabella Sciorra, a young woman who falls in love with Lester, played by Eric Stoltz. EIGEMAN has spent the last decade working with two film directors: Noah Baumbach ("Kicking and Screaming") and Whit Stillman ("Metropolitan," "Barcelona" and "The Last Days of Disco"). REV. : CHRIS EIGEMAN continued.

---

Interview with Olara Otunnu; Interview with William Pollack; Review of the album "The Best of Paolo Conte." July 9, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503408].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Special Representative on Children and Armed Conflict for the United Nations, OLARA OTUNNU. He is a former Ugandan diplomat who is now heading the effort to see that guerrilla armies do not use children as soldiers, and that children are protected in war torn areas. Experts say that the number of children in combat is on the rise, and that as many as 300,000 children in at least 30 countries are directly involved in conflict as soldiers, porters, or slaves. INT. 2: WILLIAM POLLACK is a psychologist and codirector of the Center for Men at Harvard Medical Center. His new book "Real Boys: Rescuing Our Sons from the Myths of Boyhood" (Random House) is about how the stereotypes about masculinity are hurting young boys. POLLACK contends that boys are in crisis, that they are given conflicting messages about what's expected of them, and that research shows that boys are doing less well in school than before, many of them have fragile self-esteem, and that rates of depression and suicide in boys is on the rise.

REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews a new CD by Paolo Conte, an Italian piano player and singer, "The Best of Paolo Conte" (Nonesuch)

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author DON DeLILLO on his new novel "Underworld." (Scribner) This 827-page work weaves in and out of the latter half of this century, incorporating modern icons such as Frank Sinatra, Lenny Bruce, and J. Edgar Hoover. The novel's first scene visits the Giant-Dodgers pennant game of October 3rd, 1951 -- also the date of the first nuclear test in the Soviet Union. Such clashes of American culture in the midst of the Cold War pervade "Underworld." DeLILLO is also the author of such novels as "White Noise,"
"End Zone," and "Great Jones Street." (Rebroadcast from 10/02/1997) INT. 2: In celebration of her 80th birthday, we play excerpts from two of our interviews with the writer DORIS GRUMBACH. She's the author of the memoirs "The Presence of Absence" and "Fifty Days of Solitude." REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new Elmore Leonard adaptation, "Out of Sight."

---

Interview with John Fogerty; Commentary on Moon Mullican. July 13, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503404].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Songwriter, musician and former leader of the Creedence Clearwater Revival, JOHN FOGERTY. He wrote the hits "Born on the Bayou," "Susie Q," "Who'll Stop the Rain," "Proud Mary" and "Bad Moon Rising." He was with the band from 1967 to 1972. His blend of rock, blues, country and bluegrass has influenced a generation of musicians. He was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Last year he released a solo album of new songs "Blue Moon Swamp" (Warner) and went on tour. His newest release "John Fogerty: Premonition" (Reprise) revives many of his hits. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: JOHN FOGERTY cont'd. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD looks at the career of Aubrey "Moon" Mullican who billed himself as "The King of the Hillbilly Piano Players." His recordings have been reissued on "Moon Mulligan: Moonshine Jamboree" (Ace)

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: President and co-founder of The Long Island Alzheimer's Foundation, JANET WALSH. As a teenager, she watched her father suffer with Alzheimer's. Later, when genetic testing became available for Alzheimer's, she took it and discovered that she is at the highest risk for genetic predisposition to Alzheimer's. WALSH will talk about how she chooses her conduct her life with this knowledge, and her efforts to make the lives of Alzheimer's patients better. (The Alzheimer's Association, 1-800-272-3900; Long Island Alzheimer's Foundation, 516-869-9627 or LIAF@aol.com) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: JANET WALSCH cont'd. REV. :
Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Florence Harding" (Morrow) the new biography of First Lady Florence Harding by Carl Sferrazza Anthony.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Food writer STEVEN RAICHLEN ("RIKE-lin"). His new book is "The Barbecue Bible" (Workman Publishing) which includes over 500 recipes which he collected in his worldwide travels researching and tasting the way foods are barbecued in other countries. His travels took him to The Caribbean, South America, Europe, Africa, the Middle East, Asia and Australia. RAICHLEN wrote the award-winning cookbooks, "Miami Spice" and the "High-Flavor, Low-Fat" series. INT. 2: Actor, director and publisher GARY FARMER. He is a member of the Cayuga Six Nations tribe from Canada. He stars in the new film "Smoke Signals," based on the story by Sherman Alexie. FARMER also starred in the recent Jim Jarmusch film, "Dead Man" and the 1989 film "Powwow Highway," as well as numerous other films, plays, and television shows. FARMER also is publisher of "AboriginalVOICES: The Magazine of Evolving Native American Arts & Culture." REV. : Critic KEN TUCKER reviews "A Long Way Home" (Reprise) the new release by Dwight Yoakam.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RICKY JAY has been called "a master in the art of deception" and "one of the greatest sleight of hand artist in the world." He is the star of the off-Broadway show "Ricky Jay and his 52 Assistants" which is directed by DAVID MAMET. Jay's collaboration with MAMET goes back to when he appeared in Mamet's films "House of Games," "Things Change," "Homicide," and "Spanish Prisoner." Jay also appears in the recent movies "Tomorrow Never Dies," and "Boogie Nights." Jay is also the author of "Cards as Weapons," "The Magic Magic Book," and the 1986 book "Learned Pigs, and Fireproof Women." which will be re-published this fall. Today's program was recorded before a "live" audience last Interview with George Romero; Interview with Tom Savini; Interview with Wes Craven, Review of the film "There's Something About Mary." July 17, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502790].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Horror film director GEORGE ROMERO. He made his first film, "Night of the Living Dead," on a shoestring budget on the weekends. The film, about a cadre of flesh eating zombies, became a cult classic and a copy is now in the archives of the New York Museum of Modern Art. Romero's subsequent successes included "Dawn of the Dead," "Day of the Dead," "Martin""Creepshow," and "Monkey Shines." Four of his movies have just been reissued on video. Originally aired 7/18/88. Director TOM SAVINI. Savini was known as the master of ghoulish makeup for George Romero's films. He later directed the remake of Romero's classic, "Night of the Living Dead." Originally aired 10/22/90. INT. 2: WES CRAVEN, one of the foremost directors of horror films. A partial filmography includes: "Last House on the Left," "The Hills Have Eyes," and "Nightmare on Elm Street," and "Scream." Originally aired 2/18/98. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "There's Something About Mary." The new movie from Peter & Bobby Farrelly (Directors/Co-screenwriters) who made the "Dumb and Dumber," and "Kingpin."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Honky-tonk singer JOHNNY BUSH. He hails from Texas and began his career in the 1950s. Later he went on to such best-selling singles as "Sound of a Heartache," "You Ought to Hear Me Cry," "What a Way to Live" and "You Gave Me a Mountain." He wrote the song "Whiskey River" for his friend Willie Nelson, and later had a hit with that too. This singer with the melancholy songs never became a household name, and in the late 70s an voice ailment curtailed his career. Now after finally getting the ailment properly diagnosed and treated, he's back singing. His new album is "Talk to My Heart." (Watermelon) Interview with Robert Sataloff; Commentary on computer grammar checkers; Review of Tab Smith's album "Top 'n' Bottom." July 21, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502792].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dr. ROBERT SATALOFF discusses the physiology of how we talk and sing. He is author of "Professional Voice: The Science and Art of Clinical Care." (1997 Singular Publishing Group) Sataloff is a Professor of Otolaryngology at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He is part of a emergency clinic there for singers who experience vocal problems. He has treated many famous singers. Sataloff himself is also a performer. He sings professionally and is the University's choir conductor. He has published 17 books. INT. 2: Interview with ROBERT SATALOFF cont'd. REV.: Language critic Geoffrey Nunberg talks about the accuracy of automatic grammar checkers included with computer word processing programs like Microsoft Word. REV. : World Music critic MILO MILES reviews "Top 'n' Bottom," a new re-issue of the music of saxophonist Tab Smith. (United/Delmark Records). The songs were recorded from 1953-1954.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fresh Air's former film critic STEPHEN SCHIFF returns to discuss writing the screenplay for the controversial film adaptation of Nabokov's "Lolita." The $58 million film inspired such controversy that distribution in the U.S. was delayed. "Lolita," directed by Adrian Lyne (Flashdance, 9 1/2 Weeks) will premiere on the Showtime cable channel August 2nd. It's just been announced that the film will be released in movie houses in September. SCHIFF's screenplay, "Lolita: The Book of the Film" (Applause books), will be published next month. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Screenwriter and director DON ROOS talks about his new film "The Opposite of Sex." He wrote and directed the film which features an ensemble of stars including Lisa Kudrow from the sit-com Friends. He also wrote the screenplays for "Love Field," "Single White Female," and "Boys on the Side." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Sculptor and painter GEORGE SEGAL talks about his work which is being featured through October at The Jewish Museum in New York City. It is his first major exhibition in North America in 20 years. He is best known for his free standing sculptures depicting everyday people in urban settings. REV. : GEORGE SEGAL cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A concert with LOUDON WAINWRIGHT III. he performs songs from his 1996 album "Grown Man." released on Virgin Records. His newest CD is "Little Ship" also on Virgin but features him working with Grammy award-winning producer John Leventhal for the first time. Interview conducted by Rock Critic Ken Tucker. Originally aired 1/30/96. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with LOUDON WAINWRIGHT III cont'd. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Saving Private Ryan" which stars Tom Hanks and was directed by Steven Spielberg. It rolls out nationally today.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Boxing writer and former agent JONATHAN RENDALL talks about his new book "This Bloody Mary is the Last Thing I Own: A Journey to the End of Boxing." (Ecco Press) RENDALL boxed in college and later became an successful agent for Colin "Sweet C" McMillan who won the World Featherweight Champion. Rendall now writes from his home in Suffolk, England. (This interview continues into the second half of the show) INT. 2: DR. MIRIAM NELSON of the School of Nutrition Science and Policy, Tufts University. Her new book "Strong Women Stay Slim" (Bantam Books) is about the combined effect of strength training and nutrition to keep weight off. REV. : DR. MIRIAM NELSON cont'd.

Interview with Allen Hornblum; Interview with Leotis Jones; Interview with Bernard Ackerman; Interview with Richard Tannen. July 28, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503133].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: ALLEN HORNBLUM is an expert in criminal justice and is the author of the book, "Acres of Skin: Human Experiments at Holmesburg Prison" (Routledge). The book is about the use of prisoners as guinea pigs in the 1950s thru the mid 1970s at the Holmesburg Prison in Philadelphia. The prisoners were used to test products like facial creams, skin moisturizers, perfumes, detergents and anti-rash treatments. But they were also the subjects of experiments using more hazardous substances. The experiments were carried out by doctors at the University of Pennsylvania. INT. 1B: Former inmate LEOTIS JONES. He participated in the experiments and later led the fight to end the testing program by testifying at the U.S. Senate hearings that resulted in the banning of such experiments. (MORE RELATED INTERVIEWS IN THE 2ND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2A: Dermatologist BERNARD ACKERMAN, Professor of Dermatology and Path Director of the Institute for Dermatopathology at Jefferson College. He participated in the testing done at Holmsburg Prison. INT. 2B: Dermatologist RICHARD TANNEN and current Vice Dean for Research and Research Training at the University of Pennsylvania Health System discusses their current research and testing guidelines.
Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician, singer, composer OLU DARA (OH-lu DAR-ah). After over 30 years in the business he's just released his first solo album, "Olu Dara: In the World: From Natchez to New York" (Atlantic). During the 70s and 80s DARA played in Art Blakey's band, as well as that of avant-gardist Henry Threadgill and others. His new CD blends the two worlds and the two sounds that influenced him most: his hometown of Natchez, Mississippi and New York City where he lives now. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: EVAN IMBER-BLACK is a family therapist who has written the new book "The Secret Life of Families: Truth Telling, privacy and reconciliation in a tell all society." (Bantam) She makes the distinction about what is a private matter and what is a secret. Her previous books include: "Rituals for Our Times," "Secrets in Families and Family Therapy." She is the director of program development at the Ackerman Institute for the Family in New York City and a professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine. REV. : EVAN IMBER-BLACK cont'd.

INT. 1: Actor J.K. SIMMONS. He's a regular on HBO's "OZ" the graphic and disturbing drama of life in a maximum security prison. The show is produced by Tom Fontana, who also wrote and produced "Homicide: Life on the Street." SIMMONS plays convict and neo-nazi Vernon Schillinger. "OZ" just launched its second season earlier this month. SIMMONS film credits include "The Jackal" and "Extreme Measures." His TV credits include: "Law and Order," "Homicide" and "Spin City. INT. 2: Military historian JOHN KEEGAN. He's known for his readable and comprehensive books about warfare including "The Face of Battle," (1976) and "The History of Warfare" (1993) which were both best-sellers. Recently he was series consultant to "War and Civilization" an eight-part documentary series (on the TLC cable network) which covers the past 5,000 years of conflict, beginning with ancient Greece. The series is narrated by Walter Cronkite. (It premieres August 2-5, with two episodes airing nightly 9-11 PM and repeating midnight to 2 AM). REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the novel "Lolita" in light of the new film version of it.

Interview with Harry Greene; Interview with Helen Merrill; Review of the film "Baseketball." July 31, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502971].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Curator of Herpetology in the Museum of Vertebrate Zoology, HARRY GREENE and Professor of Integrative Biology at the University of California. He wrote (with photographs) "Snakes: The Evolution of Mystery in Nature." (University of California Press) (REBROADCAST from 7/23/97) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Singer HELEN MERRILL. She was one of the most acclaimed jazz stars of the 50s when she left America for Italy and then Japan. Early in her career she worked with arranger Gil Evans. She also worked with musicians Bill Evans, Clifford Brown, Ron Carter, and Wayne Shorter. Over the years she's recorded few albums compared with other singers. Her newest is "You And the Night and the Music" (Verve). (REBROADCAST from 5/26/88) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new film "BASEketball."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We feature a special radio documentary about one guy's infatuation with what might have been. As a child, Dan Gediman was chosen to be one of the "Zoom" kids on the 1970s public television show "Zoom." But the deal fell through. As an adult Gediman went to find and interview the kids who were on the show to see what he missed. "I Danny . . .Zoom Re-Visited" is a new "Life Stories" piece from producer Jay Allison. Funds for "Life Stories" come from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the National Endowment for the Arts. It can also be heard on the next edition of the Public Radio International program This American Life, from WBEZ. If listeners want a cassette copy, it is available from This American Life at 312-832-3380. Dan Gediman also has a CD of his music which you can order by calling 1-800-BUY-MY-CD. (THE DOCUMENTARY CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE Interview with Emily Colas; Interview with Bob Hoskins; Review of Billy Brag and Wilco's album "Mermaid Avenue." August 4, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973825449].

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: EMILY COLAS has written her first book, a memoir, "Just Checking: Scenes from the life of an obsessive-compulsive." (Penguin-Pocket books). She writes about her many worries and fears about germs, and food poisoning, and her compulsion to trace the design of a star in her head, while having conversations with people. COLAS eventually was treated for the disorder. INT. 2: British actor BOB HOSKINS. He starred in "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" "The Long Good Friday," "Mona Lisa," and "The Cotton Club." He also directed the two films, "The Raggedy Rawney" and "The Rainbow." Recently he starred in the British film "TwentyFourSeven." It won him the best actor award at the European Film Awards this year. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews a new release of previously unheard Woody Guthrie lyrics put to music by British folksinger-songwriter Billy Bragg. Bragg composed music for the lyrics with the help of the American band Wilco. It's called "Mermaid Avenue." (Elektra)

---

Interview with Holly Burkhalter; Interview with Zohra Rasekh; Interview with Fred Haefele; Tribute to Alfred Schnittke. August 5, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503041].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Advocacy Director for Physicians for Human Rights HOLLY BURKHALTER talks to guest host Marty Moss-Coane about the plight of women under Afghanistan's Taliban government. INT. 2: ZOHRA RASEKH, Senior Health Researcher for Physicians for Human Rights, co-authored "The Taliban's War on Women: A Health and Human Rights Crisis in Afghanistan." She's identified several discriminatory policies against women in that country, including the demand they wear a burka at all times outside the home. INT. 3.: While writer FRED HAEFELE re-evaluated his life's priorities during middle-age, he put together an Indian motorcycle from parts. His memoir is called "Rebuilding the Indian." REV.: Russian composer Alfred Schnittke died Monday. Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reflects on the man's life and legacy.

Interview with Carl Sferrazza Anthony; Interview with Sarah Kelly; Review of Robert Hellenga's novel "The Fall of a Sparrow." August 6, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502757].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CARL SFERRAZZA ANTHONY is an authority on First Ladies, and the author of a new biography of the determined and unconventional Florence Harding, wife of Warren G. Harding. She was raised in Ohio by an abusive father who wanted a boy so much he raised Florence as one. While still a teenager she become pregnant by a neighbor. Later she met and married Harding while working for a weekly newspaper. It was she who pushed him to the presidency, and then endured his many adulteries. Her husband died after only two years in office but came to be known as the most "scandalous president." After his mysterious death there was speculation that Florence had a hand in his demise. ANTHONY's new book is "Florence Harding: The First Lady, the Jazz Age, and the Death of America's Most Scandalous President." INT. 2: Film director SARAH KELLY. She's making her debut with the documentary "Full Tilt Boogie," a comedy about the making of the Quentin Tarantino action vampire film, "From Dusk Till Dawn." KELLY previously worked on Tarantino's production team for the films "Killing Zoe" and "Pulp Fiction." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Fall of a Sparrow," a new novel by Robert Hellenga ("HELL-en-ga").
Interview with Tim McCarver; Commentary on Joe Tex; Interview with Jamie Lee Curtis; Commentary on the word "knowledge." August 7, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502974].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fox sports commentator TIM McCARVER talks to Marty Moss-Coane about his life in baseball. He recently wrote a book on the topic, called "Baseball for Brain Surgeons and Other Fans." (Villard Books) McCarver is a commentator during the New York Mets season for WWOR. He played major league baseball from 1959-1980 for the St Louis Cardinals, Philadelphia Phillies, Montreal Expos and Boston Red Sox. He also wrote the book "O, Baby, I Love It!" (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 4/27/98) REV. 1: Rock historian Ed Ward tells us the tale of Joe Tex, a black man who longed to be a country singer, a preacher who renounced Christianity, and a life-long teetotaler who died of drug and alcohol abuse. INT. 2: Actress JAMIE LEE CURTIS. She stars in the new film, "Halloween H20." She made her debut in the original "Halloween," the classic John Carpenter horror film released 20 years ago. Her filmography includes "Blue Steel," "The Fog," "Trading Places," "A Fish Called Wanda," "True Lies," "Virus" and "Homegrown." Her TV credits include the series, "Anything But Love." (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 3/13/90) REV. 2: Linguist Geoff Nunberg talks about the new knowledge fad. He says terms that include the word knowledge, like "knowledge workers" and "knowledge assets" are sweeping corporate and academic America.

Interview with Azim Khamisa and Ples Felix; Review of Eddie Harris's album "Greater than the Sum of His Parts." August 10, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971504040].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: AZIM KHAMISA and PLES FELIX talk about the 1995 shooting incident that brought them together. AZIM's 20 year-old son, Tariq Khamisa was fatally shot by Felix' 14 year-old grandson Tony Hicks. Azim Khamisa reached out to Ples Felix in the aftermath and became friends. Azim later founded the TARIK KHAMISA Foundation in San Diego and both men work to educate children on the devastating impact of youth violence. Azim Khamisa has written a new book about his experience in "Azim's Bardo: A Father's Journey from Murder to Forgiveness ." (Rising Star Press) THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Interview with KHAMISA and FELIX cont'd. REV. : Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews Eddie Harris's newest cd "Greater than the Sum of His Parts."

Interview with Vincent Schiavelli; Interview with Beverly Jackson; Review of the anthology album "Vaya Rumba." August 11, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503131].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Jeffrey Rosen; Interview with Shirley Glass. August 12, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502972].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JEFFREY ROSEN is the legal affairs editor of The New Republic, where he writes about constitutional politics. He'll talk about how the courts handle perjury, in light of the Monica Lewinsky situation. ROSEN is an associate professor at the George Washington University Law School, where he teaches constitutional law and criminal procedure. His essays and book reviews have appeared in many publications, including The New Yorker, The New York Times Magazine, the Atlantic Monthly, Constitutional Commentary, and the Yale Law Journal. INT. 2: JEFFREY ROSEN interview continues. rev : Psychologist SHIRLEY GLASS talks about infidelity. GLASS is a marriage and family therapist who's been cited for her expertise on sexual and relationship problems in the national media. She is working on a book about the trauma of infidelity. GLASS answers questions about relationships on the internet, at www.electra.com. She's also been a guest on NPR's "This American Life," hosted by her son, Ira Glass.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The health of the population in Kosovo is in jeopardy as the fighting there continues. We speak with KEITH URSEL, the Doctors Without Borders coordinator of the mobile clinic program. During the day, temperatures rise to 100 degrees Fahrenheit. The mobile team has gone to treat several thousand people hiding in the Kosovo hills. The refugees have no shelter, very little food or drinking water.

INT. 2: We discuss the situation in Kosovo with MIRANDA VICKERS, Britain's leading historian of the Albanian people in general and Kosovo in particular. The conflict continues between Serbs and Albanians for control of the region. VICKERS is an Albanian analyst for the International Crisis Group set up after the Dayton accords. Her new book is called "Between Serb and Albanian: A History of Kosovo." (Columbia University Press) REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ just returned from Tanglewood, where composer Elliot Carter was a guest of honor at the Festival Of Contemporary Music. Carter will be 90 on December 11, 1998, and his birthday has been celebrated all year long in recordings and performances. SCHWARTZ has a review of the Tanglewood performance.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Hypnotherapist DAVID CALOF has been using hypnosis for 20 years to help clients discover - thru their own subconscious - the way to solve their emotional problems. He's written a book about his work, "The Couple Who Became Each Other: And other Tales of Healing from a Hypnotherapist's Casebook" (Bantam Books). CALOF practices family therapy and hynotherapy in Seattle. (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 8/6/97.) INT. 2: The sport of boxing hit the front pages last year when boxer Mike Tyson bit the ear of his opponent, Evander Holyfield. Nevada suspended the former world champion's boxing license as a result. Now Tyson is going back to Nevada to fight for his right to step back in the ring. Photographer LARRY FINK has captured many images of boxing which have been collected in his book, "Boxing" (Powerhouse Books). And sports writer BERT SUGAR has written numerous works on sports and has served as senior vice-president of "The Ring" magazine, a magazine on boxing. He wrote the essay included in FINK's book. They'll talk about the often maligned sport. (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 8/5/98.) REV. : Ken Tucker reviews Marshall Crenshaw's latest CD "The Nine Volt Years." REV. : John Powers reviews the new movies "The Slums of Beverly Hills" and "Nights of Cabiria."

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Biologist ROBERT SAPOLSKY. He's one of the first researchers to chart the effects of chronic stress on the brain in the animal kingdom and in humans. He adds a touch of humor to his findings, as well. His new book is called "Why Zebras Don't Get Ulcers: An Updated Guide to Stress, Stress-Related Diseases, and Coping." (W.H. Freeman and Co.) It's a revised version of his 1994 publication. His other book is called, "The Trouble With Testosterone and Other Essays on the Biology of the Human Predicament." SAPOLSKY is Professor of Biological Sciences and Neuroscience at Stanford University. He lectures throughout the country on the effects of stress. INT. 2: Biologist ROBERT SAPOLSKY cont'd. REV. : ED WARD: Swamp pop Interview with Martin Moore-Ede; Interview with Harry Shearer. August 18, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503116].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Sleep physiologist MARTIN MOORE-EDE. (pronounced "more-reed"). He is founder and president of Circadian Technologies, Inc., which helps shiftworkers cope with night shifts and rotating work schedules. He provides assistance to companies that are open round the clock. Dr. MOORE-EDE is a professor at Harvard Medical School, and is the author of the newly published "The Twenty-Four Hour Society: Understanding Human Limits in a World That Never Stops." (Addison Wesley). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: MOORE-EDE cont'd. REV. : Satirist and columnist HARRY SHEARER. He's the host of the syndicated NPR radio program, "Le Show," does several voices on "The Simpsons" and is a weekly commentator on ABC TV's World News Now. SHEARER will give us his thoughts on President Clinton's talk to the nation last night regarding his relationship with Monica Lewinsky.

Interview with Joe Mantegna; Interview with Shawn Levy; Commentary on the semantics of sex. August 19, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502230].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor JOE MANTEGNA. He's best known for his work with playwright David Mamet in the films "Homicide," "House of Games" and the plays "Speed-the Plow" and "Glengarry Glen Ross." He's currently starring as Dean Martin in the HBO film, "The Rat Pack." (it debuts August 22) INT. 2: SHAWN LEVY is the author of "Rat Pack Confidential: Frank, Dean, Sammy, Peter, Joey & the Last Great Showbiz Party" (Doubleday). It's about the circle of showbiz pals who played and later performed together. It included Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis, Jr., Peter Lawford and Joey Bishop. LEVY is also the author of the biography, "King of Comedy: The Life and Art of Jerry Lewis." REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on how the Clinton-Lewinsky scandal has reminded us over the age-old debate over semantics. What is an inappropriate relationship? Can you have sex and still technically be a virgin?

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Legendary composer, producer, arranger and performer BRIAN WILSON, formerly of the Beach Boys. He's just come out with his first solo album of new material in ten years. It's "Imagination" (Giant). INT. 2: Journalist and urban critic ROBERTA BRANDES GRATZ and an expert in downtown revitalization NORMAN MINTZ. The two have collaborated on the new book "Cities: Back from the Edge: New Life for Downtown." (John Wiley & Sons). In the book they look at downtowns throughout the country that have come back to life and examine what revived them. Their recipe for success includes: preserving or introducing trolley traffic, developing farmers' markets, promoting short blocks, keeping government buildings downtown, and insuring citizen involvement in civic life. They also say that renewal efforts should happen one step at a time, and respond to the real needs of real people. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI has some thoughts on the Fall TV season and the movie version of "The Avengers" which is out in theatres now.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PENN JILLETTE and TELLER of the macabre magician team PENN & TELLER. They've been performing for over twenty years, both on Broadway and around the world. The duo has written "How to Play in Traffic" (Boulevard), an offbeat travel guide, and has also authored "Cruel Tricks for Dear Friends" and "How to Play with Your Food." This month they began a series of variety shows, "Penn & Teller's Sin City Spectacular" on the FX cable network. (REBROADCAST from 6/19/87 and 10/22/97)

INT. 2: GAVIN DE BECKER is a violence prevention specialist. He deals with risk assessment for the U.S. Government and corporations. He also advises on domestic abuse, stalkers and workplace violence. He is author of the new book "The Gift of Fear" (Mass Market paperbacks). He heads a 46 member Los Angeles company called Gavin De Becker Inc. (REBROADCAST from 7/9/97) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Your Friends and Neighbors."

---

Interview with Tim Weiner; Interview with Mills Lane; Review of The Beastie Boy's album "Hello Nasty." August 24, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503117].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A discussion about terrorism with Pulitzer Prize winning journalist TIM WEINER. He writes about the CIA for "The New York Times." He talks about the changing nature of terrorism and specifically the challenges of tracking down Islamic militant Osama Bin Laden

INT. 2: Judge and boxing referee MILLS LANE. He's written a new memoir, "Let's Get It On: Tough Talk from Boxing's Top Ref and Nevada's Most Outspoken Judge" (Crown Publishers). This fall he will have a syndicated court TV show. REV. : Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews The Beastie Boy's latest "Hello Nasty."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Crime novelist GEORGE P PELECANOS is the author of "Sweet Forever" (Little, Brown) He has been called "one of 1990's rising stars in crime fiction." His other works include "King Suckerman," "The Big Blowdown," "Down By the River Where Dead Men Go," "Shoedog," "Nick's Trip," and "A Firing Offense." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Animator BILL PLYMPTON'S whose work is seen on MTV has a new feature length film, "I Married a Strange Person." Unlike computer animators, PLYMPTON draws every frame of his films by hand. Each feature length film has 30-thousand individual drawings. Simpson's creator Matt Groening calls Plympton a God. The American Museum of the Moving Image in New York presented a retrospective of his work this month. REV. : BILL PLYMPTON cont'd.

---

Interview with Tamara Jenkins; Interview with Daryl Sherman. August 26, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502645].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director TAMARA JENKINS talks about her new movie "Slums of Beverly Hills" which is largely based on her experiences. This is JENKINS' first screenplay and directorial debut. Robert Redford read her script while she studied at the Sundance Filmmaker's Lab in Utah. Redford became the film's Executive Producer. INT. 2: New York jazz singer and pianist DARYL SHERMAN (woman) talks about her new album , "A Lady Must Live." (After 9 Records) She has been a long-time favorite of Manhattan's night life. Her new album features many American classic songs by Kurt Weill, Ira Gershwin, Dizzy Gillespie, Duke Ellington, Billy Strayhorn and Cole Porter REV. : DARYL SHERMAN cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ARYEH NEIER (ar-ee-AH NY-er) is the President of the Soros Foundation. He has written the new book "War Crimes: Brutality, Genocide, Terror, and the Struggle for Justice." (Times Books) NEIER also served for 12-years as executive director of Human Rights Watch and eight-years as the national director of the ACLU. He is considered one of the premiere human rights advocates and has conducted investigations of human rights abuses in more than 40 countries. He lives in New York City.

(This Interview continues into the second half) INT. 2: Interview with ARYEH NEIER cont'd. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Lost in Translation" a new romance set in China.

Interview with Catherine Deneuve; Interview with Michel Legrand; Review of the film "Next Stop Wonderland." August 28, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503120].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: French actress CATHERINE DENEUVE. Her 1967 film, "The Young Girls of Rochefort" has been re-released. On this occasion we hear an interview from her two years ago, after the release of "Les Voleureurs" (Thieves) Some of her best known films include: "Belle De Jour," "Repulsion," "Indochine,""The Umbrellas of Cherbourg," Born in Paris in 1943. This originally aired 10/3/96.

INT. 2: French Composer MICHEL LEGRAND. He composed the score for the 1964 classic French film starring "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg" which starred Catherine DeNeuve In the film every bit of dialogue is sung to Legrand's music. LEGRAND also has won three Oscars for the song, "The Windmills of Your Mind," from the film "The Thomas Crown Affair," best original dramatic score for "Summer of '42," and best original song score for "Yentl." This originally aired 4/30/96.

REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Next Stop Wonderland"
Interview with Johnny Cash; Interview with Roseanne Cash; Interview with June Carter Cash; Interview with Carlene Carter. August 31, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502912].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Music legend JOHNNY CASH. CASH has been recording albums and performing since the 1950's. Representing CASH'S varied musical styles, he has been inducted into the Songwriters, Country Music, and Rock and Roll Halls of Fame. Last year he released an autobiography called "CASH" (Harper) The book tour for the memoir was canceled due to complications with CASH'S Parkinson's disease. This was originally aired 11/4/97. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF. INT. 2: June Carter Cash has been a singer and musician most of her life. Her mother was Maybelle Carter of the original Carter Family. She later married Johnny Cash. She's written a book about her life titled From the Heart. This originally aired 6/18/87. INT.: ROSANNE CASH. A singer/lyricist who in 1985 won a Grammy for "I don't Know Why You Don't Want Me." CASH is the daughter of Johnny Cash. We talked to Cash after the release of her album, "Ten-Song Demo" (Capitol Records) and after publishing her first work of fiction: "Bodies of Water" (Hyperion) a collection of nine short stories. This was originally aired 3/26/96. INT.: Country singer, CARLENE CARTER.. an offspring of the Carter family country music dynasty that includes her mother June Carter Cash and A.P. and Maybelle Carter. We talked with her just after she released her album "I Fell in Love" on Reprise Records. This originally aired 11/22/90.

Interview with Merle Haggard; Interview with Don Walser; Review of Dorothy Herrmann's book "Helen Keller September 1, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503406].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music singer and songwriter MERLE HAGGARD. Before he became a musician he lived the kind of life that's often mythologized in song: hopping freight trains, and doing time prison. In 1994, HAGGARD was conducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame. Through his career, HAGGARD has released over 65 albums, most of which have been charted in the major trades. He landed a Grammy Award in 1984 for Best Male Country Vocal Performance for "That's The Way Love Goes". His most recent album was "1996" released years ago. This originally aired 8/14/95. INT. 2: Country music singer and yodeler DON WALSER. He has released the new album "Down At The Sky-Vue Drive-In" on Sire Interview with Waylon Jennings; Interview with Billy Joe Shaver; Interview with Willie Nelson. September 2, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503143].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music star, WAYLON JENNINGS Born in 1937 in Littlefield, Texas, He was a disc jockey at 14, and had already formed his own band at the age of 12, making guest appearances on local station KDAV's "Sunday Party," where he met Buddy Holly in 1955. Jennings became Holly's bass player. It was Jennings who gave his seat up to the Big Bopper on the plane which crashed later killing Buddy Holly. In 1975, Waylon was named the Country Music Association's Male Vocalist of the Year, and in 1976, he helped found the "Outlaw Movement" In that year, Waylon, Willie, Jessi Colter (who married Waylon in 1969) and Tompall Glaser teamed up for "Wanted: The Outlaws" that became the first platinum (one million units) album ever recorded in Nashville. WAYLON, the authorized autobiography, written with writer-musician Lenny Kaye (of Patty Smith), was released on Warner Books in September 1996. This interview originally aired 10/14/96. INT. 2: Texas-born musician and Nashville songwriter, BILLY JOE SHAVER. He grew up in Corsicana, Texas. Billy Joe Shaver wrote 10 of the 11 songs on Waylon Jennings breakthrough album, Honky Tonk Heroes Shaver is one of the most prolific songwriters. His songs have been recorded by a veritable who's who of artists of every genre: Bob Dylan, Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis, Johnny Cash, Willie Nelson, Kris Kristofferson, the Allman Brothers, David Allan Coe, Tom T.Hall, Trisha Yearwood and many more. Four artists have gone to No. 1 on the country charts with Billy Joe's songs: REV. : Singer, songwriter, guitarist and actor, WILLIE NELSON. Born in the central Texas town of Abbott he has become an icon of country music.In his more than 35 years, he has recorded on more than 100 albums.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music star, GEORGE JONES. He's widely acclaimed as one of the greatest country singers, but his 40-year career has also been marked by alcohol and drug abuse. He wrote about his experiences in his autobiography "I Lived to Tell it All" which was published two years ago. (Villard, New York). This originally aired 5/8/96. INT. 2: Country singer TANYA TUCKER. She became a star at 13 years old with the chart-topping song "Delta Dawn." Since then she has had countless other hit songs, Grammy nominations, and in 1991 was voted the Country Music Association's Female Vocalist of the Year. But her success has not been without it's low points, enduring problems with drug and alcohol abuse. She wrote about her experiences in her autobiography last year "Nickel Dreams" (Hyperion) This originally aired 4/3/97) REV. : Music critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new collection of songs about infidelity by a group called "The Wandering Eyes." It's titled "The Wandering Eyes Sing Songs of Forbidden Love"

Interview with Charlie Louvin; Interview with Betty Johnson; Interview with Charlie Haden; Obituary for Jonathan Mann. September 4, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503141].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country Music performer CHARLIE LOUVIN. In the 1950's, He and his brother Ira Louvin were regulars at the Grand Olde Opry. Ira was later killed in a car accident. This interview was originally aired 11/27/96. INT. 2: Singer BETTY JOHNSON. She was a member of "The Johnson Family," which sang gospel and country music for two decades. President Franklin D. Roosevelt was a fan, and the group was invited to sing at his memorial service. JOHNSON went solo in the late 1950s and was a regular on Don McNeil's "Breakfast Club," and Jack Parr's TV show. This interview was originally aired 2/1/95. INT: Bass player CHARLIE HADEN. He formed his quartet to play the music of the 1940s and early 50s. He's worked such well known musicians as Art Pepper, Paul Bley, Ornette Coleman. This interview was originally aired 5/29/96. REV. : DR. JONATHAN MANN , the founding director of the World Health Organization's Global Program on Aids, died this week in the Swiss Air plane crash. Last year, Terry Gross interviewed Mann about the state of AIDS across the globe, as well as the speculations at that time about a possible AIDS vaccine. He was the Dean of the School of Public Health at Allegheny University of Health Sciences in Philadelphia. This interview was originally aired 12/1/97.

Interview with Drew Carey; Interview with Esterita "Cissie" Blumberg. September 7, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503232].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian DREW CAREY is the star of the ABC hit sitcom The Drew Carey Show. CAREY’s 1997 book, "Dirty Jokes and Beer: Stories of the Unrefined" (Hyperion) has just come out on paperback. It's his autobiography as well as a joke book. INT. 2: ESTERITA "CISSIE" BLUMBERG writes a monthly column for the Catskill/Hudson Jewish Star. She grew up in a hotel in the Catskills, and later owned and operated it with her husband. Last year her book "Remember the Catskills: Tales by a Recovering Hotelkeeper" was published. (Purple Mountain Press)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film editor and sound designer WALTER MURCH. He has re-edited Orson Well's 1958 film "Touch of Evil." At the time of the film's initial release the studio remixed the film to Well's displeasure. He fired off a letter with suggested changes. With those notes as their guide, MURCH and re-edit producer Rick Schmidlin have reconstructed the film to Well's intentions. Some of the other films he's edited and/or mixed are "The Conversation," "American Graffiti," "Apocalypse Now," "The Godfather (II, and III)" and "The English Patient." He's also written a book about his work, "In the Blink of An Eye: A Perspective on Film Editing," (Silman-James Press 1996) THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Walter Murch cont'd. REV. : This month marks the 100th anniversary of George Gershwin's birth. Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews some reissues of music from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess. They are: the first complete recording of Porgy and Bess, reissued... in Sony's Masterworks Heritage Series, and Selections from Porgy and Bess with Erich Kunzel and the Cincinnati Pops, on Telarc.

Interview with Adam Hochschild; Commentary on first-person pronouns. September 9, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503231].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ADAM HOCHSCHILD is the author of "King Leopold's Ghost: A Story of Greed, Terror, and Heroism in Colonial Africa" (Houghton Mifflin) about the brutal reign of King Leopold II of Belgium over the Congo in the 1880s. His regime sparked the creation of Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness." Leopold plundered the Congo's rubber, instituted forced labor, and reduced the population by half, committing mass murder. All the while, Leopold cultivated a reputation as a humanitarian. It took a group of travelers, journalists and missionaries to uncover the truth about Leopold, and help bring about international pressure to end his regime. (INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: ADAM HOCHSCILD cont'd. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG considers the use of the first person pronouns to personalize everything from computers to contracts.

Interview with Arthur Sze; Interview with Lawrence Diller; Review of Liz Phair's album "Whitechocolatespaceegg." September 10, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503048].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet ARTHUR SZE. He has a new collection of poems, "The Redshifting Web: Poems 1970-1998" (Copper Canyon Press) SZE is second-generation Chinese-American. His poems reflect his many different influences: science and math, Asian ancestry, Buddhism, and the American Southeast were he lives. SZE is a Professor of Creative Writing at the Institute of American Indian Arts. INT. 2: Pediatrician LAWRENCE DILLER specializes in child development and behavior. He's evaluated hundreds of patients for attention deficit disorder, for which the drug Ritalin has often been prescribed. His new book ""Running on Ritalin: A Physician Reflects on Children, Society, and Performance in a Pill." (Bantam Books). After seeing more and more parents come into his practice asking for Ritalin for their children, DILLER became concerned, and wrote an article in 1996 that started a national debate about the use of the drug. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Whitechocolatespaceegg" (Matador Records) by Liz Phair ("Fair").

---

Interview with Tracey Ullman; Interview with Tom Hanks and Andrew Chaikin; Commentary on Akira Kurosawa and Shohei Imamura. September 11, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503230].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Commediene and actress TRACEY ULLMAN. Her HBO series "Tracy Takes On" has been nominated for seven Emmys. Each week on her show she features a gallery of characters talking about a topic, such as families, sex, money and crime. She also has a companion book "Tracey Takes On" (Hyperion), and there's an HBO home video release of her previous shows. ULLMAN is a native of England. She got her start in the U.S. with The Tracey Ullman Show, and has since won several Emmys and Cableace awards. She's also appeared in the films "Ready to Wear," "Bullets Over Broadway", and "Plenty." (REBROADCAST from 1/14/98) INT. 2: Actor, director and producer TOM HANKS and writer ANDREW CHAIKIN collaborated on the HBO mini-series "From Earth to the Moon" which ran in April and has been nominated for seventeen Emmys. HANKS was the executive producer for the project. CHAIKIN, a consultant on the series, wrote the book "A Man on the Moon" which the program is largely based on. HANKS also starred in the film "Apollo 13." He received Academy Awards for his roles in "Forrest Gump," and "Philadelphia." (REBROADCAST from 4/2/98) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS looks at the work of two master film directors from Japan: Akira Kurosawa, who died last weekend, and Shohei Imamura, whose film "The Eel" is now opening in the U-S.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Presidential historian MICHAEL BESCHLOSS talks about the historical importance of the Clinton investigation. Beschloss examines how the threat of impeachment has been used and abused in the past. He is author of "Taking Charge: the Johnson White House tapes 1963-64." which will be issued on Interview with Christopher Dickey; Commentary on the Delmore Brothers. September 15, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503481].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist CHRISTOPHER DICKY has written a new memoir about his relationship with his father, the late poet and novelist James Dickey. It's called "Summer of Deliverance: A Memoir of Father and Son" (Simon & Schuster). DICKEY writes that his father was "a great poet, a famous novelist, a powerful intellect, and a son of a bitch I hated." But Dicky writes that he also loved his alcoholic, abusive father. And as an adult, he picked up his relationship with his father again, after a 20 year absence. One reviewer writes, "A heartbreaking, eloquent memoir by the son of the heartbreaking, eloquent poet." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with CHRISTOPHER DICKY continued. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD remembers the Delmore Brothers.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The New York Times' ROGER COHEN ("Coan") reported from Bosnia during the war there. His new book "Hearts Grown Brutal: Sagas of Sarajevo" (Random House) is about covering the war, and the families divided by the conflict. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: ROGER COHEN continued. REV. : Legendary rhythm and blues singer JOHNNY ADAMS. ADAMS died Monday at the age of 67. We present a rebradcast of an interview with ADAMS that took place in December of 1997. He was one of songwriter Doc Pomus' favorite singers. He recorded a collection of Doc Pomus songs, "Johnny Adams sings Doc Pomus: The Real Me." His most recent album is "Man of My Word," released in August (Rounder). Adams died of cancer. (Originally aired 12/12/97)
Interview with Jeffrey Toobin; Interview with Joan Nathan. September 17, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503482].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JEFFREY TOOBIN is the legal correspondent for ABC news and a staff writer for the New Yorker magazine. We'll talk about the latest news in the Clinton/Lewinsky matter, including the controversy surrounding the release of videotapes made during the president's testimony in front of the grand jury. Toobin's article in the September 14, 1998 New Yorker is entitled "Terms of Impeachment....Despite the tawdriness of the Lewinsky case, the gravest of constitutional procedures is unfolding much the way the Framers intended." INT. 2: Jeffrey Toobin continued. REV. : JOAN NATHAN talks about "Jewish Cooking In America," her book and her new PBS series. The book and show are a patchwork of reminiscences and recipes from around the country. The 26-part series premieres this month; check local listings for times.

Interview with Jerry Stahl; Interview with Colin Escott; Review of the film "One True Thing." September 18, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503320].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer JERRY STAHL talks about his 1995 memoir "Permanent Midnight" (Warner Bros). STAHL was a successful journalist, a scriptwriter for cult film classics like "Cafe Flesh," and "Dr. Caligari," who went on to write for the hit TV shows "Moonlighting," "ALF" and "thirty something." STAHL was also a junkie. In his memoir he writes, "You might say that success ruined me. You might say I ruined success." "Permanent Midnight" is now a film starring Ben Stiller. It opens today. This originally aired 5/17/95. INT. 2: Today's the anniversary of singer Hank Williams' birth. Williams' biographer COLIN ESCOTT talks about his 1994 book, "Hank Williams, The Biography."(Little Brown) He's also the author of "Good Rockin' Tonight: Sun Records & The Birth of Rock & Roll", and he produced and annotated the CD Collection "Hank Williams: The Original Singles Collection...Plus" (1990 Polygram Records release). This originally aired 9/6/94. REV. : John Powers reviews "One True Thing."
Interview with A. Scott Berg; Interview with Reeve Lindbergh; Review of the fall television season. September 21, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502870].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biographer A. SCOTT BERG on the life of Charles Lindbergh. Berg is the first and only writer to be given unrestricted access to the Lindbergh archives, and he found surprises at every turn while doing research for his book, "Lindbergh." (Putnam) Lindbergh broke records with the first transatlantic flight from New York to Paris in 1927. In 1932, his 20-month old son was kidnapped and later found dead. The resulting hysteria sent the Lindberghs into exile. BERG opens up the files of this private time, discovering Lindbergh's medical work developing the precursor to the artificial heart and his fight to save the whales off the coasts of Japan and Peru. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Biographer A. SCOTT BERG continued. INT. 3: Charles Lindbergh's youngest daughter, REEVE LINDBERGH. She'll join us to talk about life with her father. REEVE is a writer, whose memoir about her father and mother Anne Morrow Lindbergh, "Under a Wing" (Simon & Schuster) will be published in October 1998. Her other books include the children's titles "The Midnight Farm," and "The Day The Goose Got Loose." Other books include "The Names of the Mountains" and "Nobody Owns the Sky: The Story of 'Brave Bessie' Coleman." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the upcoming television season.

Interview with Bob Dole; Interview with Laurence Tribe; Interview with Joseph Ellis. September 22, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503168].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Senator and Presidential candidate ROBERT DOLE. He's written a new book about political humor. Terry will talk with him about his thoughts on the Clinton scandal. (PART TWO OF THE INTERVIEW WITH DOLE WILL BE BROADCAST TOMORROW) INT. 2: Constitutional lawyer LAURENCE TRIBE is a Tyler Professor of Constitutional Law at Harvard Law School. He'll discuss the release of the videos of Clinton's testimony before the grand jury. INT. 3: Historian JOSEPH ELLIS is an expert on Thomas Jefferson and author of "American Sphinx: The Character of Thomas Jefferson" (Knopf). He'll discuss the current situation with President Clinton in light of the behavior and character of past presidents. Ellis is a professor of American History at Mount Holyoke College, and has written five other books including Passionate Sage: The Character and Legacy of John Adams.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In celebration of the centennial of George Gershwin's birth, (Saturday, September 26th) a talk with two Gershwin experts: ROBERT KIMBALL, artistic advisor to the Gershwin estate, and author of "The Gershwins" (out of print) and editor of "The Complete Lyrics of IRA Gershwin" (De Capo Press, paperback). Also EDWARD JABLONSKI, author of "Gershwin: With a New Critical Discography" (De Capo Press, paperback). Also we'll hear some rare Gershwin songs. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: ROBERT KIMBALL and EDWARD JABLONSKI continued. REV. :

Interview with Ben E. King; Review of the television shows "The Practice" and "Homicide"; Interview with Dr. John; Review of the film "Ronin." September 25, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503323].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rhythm and Blues singer BEN E. KING. He turns 60 years old this week. He was a member of the Drifters in the late 50s. His smooth vocals graced such popular hits as "There Goes My Baby" and "Save The Last Dance for Me." His solo career has produced hits like "I (Who Have Nothing)," "Spanish Harlem" and, his best-known song, which enjoyed a revival three years ago, "Stand By Me." (REBROADCAST FROM 9/2/88) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews two returning dramas "The Practice" and "Homicide". INT. 2: Songwriter, pianist and singer DR. JOHN. Known in his native New Orleans as Mac Rennback, his music has evolved from the psychedelic voodoo-rock he played in the 1960's to the classic piano he plays today. (REBROADCAST from 9/23/86) REV: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new film starring Robert Deniro, "Ronin."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember JEFF MOSS, one of the original creators and writers of "Sesame Street." He died Thursday, at the age of 56, from colon cancer. MOSS created Cookie Monster and Oscar the Grouch, and wrote such songs as "Rubber Ducky" and "People in Your Neighborhood." He won 14 Emmy's, four Grammy's, and an Acadamy Award nomination for his work on "Sesame Street" and with the Muppets. Moss was also the author of books for children, including "Hieronymus White: A Bird Who Believed That He Always Was Right" (REBROADCAST from 11/30/94) INT. 2: We remember jazz vocalist BETTY CARTER with a 1990 interview. She was considered one of jazz's great singers, composers and arrangers. She was known for her work with small groups, her control of tempo, and her vocal improvisations. In 1961 she recorded what became a classic album, "Ray Charles and Betty Carter." In 1993 she began the Jazz Ahead series at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Last year she received the National Medal of Arts. She died on Saturday of pancreatic cancer. She was 69. (REBROADCAST from 11/28/90) REV. :

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Walt Disney Company C.E.O. MICHAEL EISNER talks about his new memoir "Work in Progress" which has been published by Random House. Eisner took over as head of Disney in 1984. He lives in Los Angeles with his wife Jane. They have three sons. Disney is now a global entertainment giant. It owns ABC TV, A&E Television, Touchstone Pictures, Miramax Films, ESPN, Lifetime, and nine television stations, ten radio stations, seven daily newspapers, theme parks, housing developments and even a cruise ship. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF. INT. 2: Interview with MICHAEL EISNER cont'd. REV. 1: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel "Reservation Road" by John Burnham Schwartz. It is published by Knopf. REV. 2:Critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ comments on his visit to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts to see "Monet in the 20th Century" - the largest exhibit ever assembled of Monet's late paintings done in the last 25 years of his life.
Boston is the only American city to be showing the exhibit. (It runs thru December 27th and then goes to London).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer PAUL ABBOTT talks about the new mini-series "Touching Evil". It premieres tomorrow night on PBS' Mystery show. ABBOTT's project is a five-part detective drama that takes place at a fictional London based crime unit that specializes in serial killers and organized crime. ABBOTT also wrote the dramas "Crackers" and "Reckless". ABBOTT lives in Manchester, England. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF. INT. 2: REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on Simon Winchester's new book "The Professor and the Madman." It details the true story of the American psychopath who played a major role in compiling the Oxford English Dictionary in the mid 1800's. REV. :Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Remembering Clifford" (Milestone) the new release by tenor saxophonist Benny Golson.

Interview with John Waters; Interview with Eric Foner. October 1, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503008].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker JOHN WATERS. His latest film is "Pecker" about a young amateur photographer who becomes the darling of the New York art world. WATERS other films include, "Cry Baby," a juvenile delinquent love story set in the 1950's, which brought together such performers as Patty Hearst, Johnny Depp, Ricki Lake, David Nelson, and Polly Bergen. WATERS is known for his independent, off-beat films, such as "Pink Flamingos," "Female Trouble," and "Polyester." In 1988 WATERS entered the mainstream with his popular film, "Hairspray." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Historian ERIC FONER is a DeWitt Clinton Professor of History at Columbia University. His new book is an examination of the concept of freedom in the United States: "The Story of American Freedom" (W.W. Norton) He writes "the meaning of freedom is as multifaceted, contentious, and ever-changing as America itself." FONER is also the author of "Reconstruction: America's Unfinished Revolution 1863-1877." REV. : ERIC FONER continued.

Interview with Marilyn Manson; Interview with Isaac Mizrahi; Review of the film "Antz." October 2, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503004].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Shock-rock star MARILYN MANSON has developed a following as a cross-dressing, anti-Christ. He's been likened to Alice Cooper for his ghoulish theatricality. He's also been the subject of Senate subcommittee hearings, and his concerts have been banned. His 1996 album "Antichrist Superstar" was a hit. He's written his autobiography "The Long Hard Road out of Hell" (Regan Books) about his childhood as Brian Wagner in a dysfunctional home in Canton, Ohio. He's also got a new album, "Mechanical Animals" (Uni/Intersope) and is on the current cover of Rolling Stone. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) (REBROADCAST FROM 2/24/98)

INT. 2: Fashion designer ISAAC MIZRAHI (pronounced "Miz-RAW-he") MIZRAHI had been called a "creative visionary" in today's fashion industry. Yet he announced yesterday that he would close his business because Chanel Inc, which has bankrolled him since 1992 has quit financing him. Apparently MIZRAHI's fashion line never took hold, and has been experiencing financial losses for years. In 1995 the documentary "Unzipped" was made about MIZRAHI and his life. (REBROADCAST from 12/3/97)

REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Antz" the new animation film by Disney's Dreamworks.

Interview with Allegra Goodman; Review of the album "Dizzie Gillespie October 5, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503009].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Terry's interview with ALLEGRA GOODMAN, the author of the novel, "Kaaterskill Falls" (Dial Press) about an orthodox Jewish family in upstate New York. This is GOODMAN's first novel. Her previous work, a collection of stories, "The Family Markowitz," was hailed by critics. One critic for the New York Times writes, "Goodman is brilliant at capturing the clutter of both interior and exterior life. . .These stories sound like no one else's as she sharply appraises the shifts and quandaries of one variety of American Jewish life." REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Dizzy Gillespie:
Jambo Caribe" (Verve). KEVIN is the author of "New Dutch Swing" (Billboard Books) INT. 2: Guest-host Barbara Bogaev interviews journalist PHIL PATTON, author of "Dreamland: Travels Inside the Secret World of Roswell and Area 51" (Villard Books). PATTON writes about the place in the Nevada desert where the U.S. Government tests top-secret experimental military aircraft. It doesn't exist on a map, and drawings, photography, and any such depiction of the area is prohibited. Conspiracy theorists, followers of UFO's, and secret plane enthusiasts have all latched on to the place. PATTON writes the "Public Eye" column for The New York Times, and is a commentator on the CBS news show Up to the Minute. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Birds of America" (Knopf) by Lorrie Moore.

Interview with John Ridley; Review of Dmitri Shostakovich's album "Movie Madness"; Interview with Stanley Tucci; Review of the CD box set "Nuggets October 6, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503010].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist and screenwriter JOHN RIDLEY. He's written for the sitcoms "Martin," "The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air," and "The John Larroquette Show." He also wrote the screenplay for "U-Turn," directed by Oliver Stone and starring Sean Penn. He's also a former stand-up comic. His latest work is a novel, "Love is a Racket" (Knopf). REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Movie Madness: Excerpts from the film music of Dmitri Shostakovich. (Capriccio) INT. 2: Actor, director, and writer STANLEY TUCCI (TEW-chee). He previously made his co-directing and co-screenwriting debut with the film "Big Night" which was a critical and commercial success. His latest film which he directed and wrote is "The Impostors." He also acts in the film. TUCCI's previous acting credits include: "Deconstructing Harry," "Kiss of Death," "Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle," and "Billy Bathgate." REV. : Music critic Milo Mile reviews an expanded edition of "Nuggets: Original Artyfacts from the First Psychedelic Era"

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist PHILIP GOUREVITCH (Goo-RAY-vitch) is a staff writer for "The New Yorker" and is author of the new book, "We wish to inform you that tomorrow we will be killed with our families: stories from Rwanda" (Farrar Straus and Giroux). It's about the genocide in Rwanda in 1994 and it's aftermath. That spring and summer at least 800,000 people were killed in just one hundred days when the Hutu led government implemented a policy of murder against the minority Tuis. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Former governor of Massachusetts (1991-1997) WILLIAM WELD. As a Republican, he's been criticized by many of his fellow party members for his un-Republican-like stances. He's pro-gay, pro-choice on abortion, and he endorses condom distribution in public schools. He'll talk with Terry about breaking rank with other Republicans, especially in light of today's partisan politics. WELD is also the author of a novel, "Mackerel by Moonlight" (Simon & Schuster) REV. : WELD continued.

Interview with Bruce Hoffman; Review of Joni Mitchell's album "Taming the Tiger"; Interview with Sebastian Barry; Review of the television show "Columbo." October 8, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503221].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Director of the Centre for the Study of Terrorism and Political Violence, BRUCE HOFFMAN. He's been studying terrorism for 20 years, and advises governments and businesses around the world about it. He has a new book about the history of terrorism is, "Inside Terrorism" (Columbia University Press). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new release by Joni Mitchell, "Taming the Tiger" (Reprise). INT. 2: Irish author, poet, and playwright SEBASTIAN BARRY. He's best known for his play, "The Steward of Christendom," as well as for his commentaries on the troubles in Ireland for the The New York Times. He's written a new novel, "The Whereabouts of Eneas McNulty" (Viking). It's about a naive Irishman who joins the British Merchant Navy during World War 1, and then is blacklisted from his beloved hometown by the Royal Irish Constabulary. A review from Kirkus Reviews says the book is "one of the best novels out of Ireland in many a year." REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the ABC telemovie "Columbo: Ashes to Ashes" starring Peter Falk. It airs tonight at 9:00.

Interview with Phil Proctor, Peter Bergman, and David Ossman; Interview with John Frankenheimer; Interview with Brad Douriff. October 9, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503223].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The four-man comedy troupe, THE FIRESIGN THEATRE. The FIRESIGNS created satire out of the political and civil upsets of the late 1960's, drawing big underground radio and college campus audiences. THE FIRESIGNS (Phil Proctor, Peter Bergman, Phil Austin, and David Ossman) got their start doing a late night radio talk show, "Radio Free Oz," with the host in the persona of the Wizard of Oz. Since then, the FIRESIGNS have done 13 comedy albums. Their new album, their first studio album in 20 years is "Give Me Immortality or Give me Death" (Atlantic/Rhino) (REBROADCAST from 11/15/93)

INT. 2: Film director JOHN FRANKENHEIMER. His films include "The Manchurian Candidate," "French Connection 2," and "The Birdman of Alcatraz." His latest film "Ronin" stars Robert Deniro. (REBROADCAST from 3/6/90)

INT 3 : BRAD DOURIFF (REBROADCAST from 11/18/88)

Interview with Robert McCrum and Sarah Lyall; Review of the CD "Swing This, Baby." October 12, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502820].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT Mc CRUM suffered a stroke in 1995 at the young age of 42. He has written in detail about his experience and his recovery. TERRY GROSS talks with Mc CRUM and his wife SARAH LYALL who was key in his recovery. His new book is "My Year Off: Recovering Life After a Stroke." Norton Books. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF. INT. 2: Interview with ROBERT McCRUN and SARAH LYALL cont'd. REV. : Commentator MILO MILES looks at the music and mores surrounding the new swing scene emerging in southern California. and he reviews the new cd "Swing This, Baby" (Slimstyle/Beyond) which features the new swing sound.
Interview with Scott Anderson; Interview with Nina Burleigh. October 13, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502874].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: War correspondent SCOTT ANDERSON talks about the many wars he has witnessed. He has reported from Chechnya, Sri Lanka, Rwanda and Beirut. He has just written his first novel "Triage" (Scribner) which is about the toll war has on a war photographer. He is also the co-author of War Zones and is a contributing editor to Harper's magazine. His stories have also appeared in The New York Times Magazine and the Boston Globe. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Biographer NINA BURLEIGH talks about Mary Pinochet Meyer who it is believed was a mistress of President John F. Kennedy. She was found shot and murdered a year after Kennedy's assassination. Burleigh has written about Meyer's life in "A Very Private Woman: The Life and Unsolved Murder of Presidential Mistress Mary Meyer. (Bantam) Burleigh is a contributing editor to New York magazine. She is also a former contributor to Time magazine. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : Interview with NINA BURLEIGH cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)
REV. : Rock historian ED WARD talks about the Philadelphia music scene which produced such superstars as TEDDY PENDERGRASS who happens to be on our show today. INT. 1: TEDDY PENDERGRASS has written his autobiography "Truly Blessed" (Putnam) PENDERGRASS was a popular soul singer in the group "Harold Melvin and The Blue Notes". He went solo in 1976. In 1982, he was paralyzed after a near fatal car accident in Philadelphia, his hometown. Since then he has returned to the studio and produced several albums. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF. INT. 2: Interview with TEDDY PENDERGRASS cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress ANNABELLA SCIORRA (SHE-or-ah) co-stars in the new film "What Dreams May Come" opposite Robin Williams. She has also appeared in such films as "Cop Land," "The Hand That Rocks The Cradle," "The Addiction," "Mr Jealousy," and "Jungle Fever." INT. 2: Patti Smith's guitarist LENNY KAYE talks about the new four-CD collection called Nuggets. (Rhino) It showcases some of the most influential garage rock bands in the late 60's following the British Invasion. KAYE compiled the first volume which was released in 1972. He has collaborated with Gary Stewart to expand the collection to a box-set. REV. : Interview with LENNY KAYE cont'd.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer MICHAEL STIPE with the band R.E.M. Earlier this year he published a book of photographs "Two Times Intro: On the Road with Patti Smith" (Little, Brown & Company). The band also has a new album, "Up." (Warner Bros.) Originally aired 5/11/98) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Philip Roth's latest novel, "I Married a Communist." INT. 2: Actor, director & writer SIMON CALLOW. Last year, his acclaimed biography of Orson Welles, Orson Welles: The Road to Xanadu was published. (Viking). CALLOW has appeared on stage and in many films, including "Four Weddings and a Funeral." He's also written two books on acting and a biography of Charles Laughton. Originally aired 2/12/96. REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Beloved" the new film adaptation of Toni Morrison's novel. The film shot largely in the Philadelphia area, stars Oprah Winfrey and Danny Glover.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and pianist RAY CHARLES has a new four CD box-set out that captures his contribution to country music. "Ray Charles: The Complete Country and Western Recordings 1959-1986. (Rhino) Charles may be best known for his blues, R&B and soul music. He has won 12 Grammy Awards. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.)

Interview with Mehmet Oz; Review of Belle and Sebastian's album "The Boy with the Arab Strap." October 20, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502311].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Dr MEHMET OZ is the author of "Healing from the Heart: A Leading Heart Surgeon Explores the Power of Complementary Medicine." (Dutton) He is a cardiovascular surgeon at New York's Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center. He combines leading western medicine with ancient methods of self healing. The result is faster recovery for patients. He believes our physical health is linked to our spirituality, psychological make-up and emotional well being. INT. 2: Interview with MEHMET OZ cont'd. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Belle and Sebastian's album "The Boy with the Arab Strap."

Interview with Ethan Coen; Commentary on Charlie Feathers; Interview with Tracey Nelson and Marcia Ball. October 21, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971501917].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker ETHAN COEN makes movies with his brother Joel Coen. Their films include, "Blood Simple," "Raising Arizona," "Barton Fink," "Fargo," and "The Big Lebowski." His stories have appeared in The New Yorker, Playboy, and Vanity Fair. He's written his first book, "Gates of Eden" (Rob Weisbach Books) which is a collection of stories. REV. : Rock historian Ed Ward remembers Charlie Feathers who tried everything from country music, rockabilly to protest folk. He had such hits as "Tongue-Tied Jill," and "One Hand Loose." which is considered one of the perfect rockabilly songs. INT. 2: Rhythm and Blues singer TRACEY NELSON. She's best known for her work leading the Mother Earth band from the 1960s and 70s. Her hits included "Down So Low" and "Mother Earth." A collection of her hits "The Best of Tracy Nelson/Mother Earth" (Reprise) came out in 1996. She has a number of albums on Rounder: "Homemade Songs/Come See About Me," "In the Here and Now," "I Feel So Good" and "Move On." She's also got a new recording in which she teams up with Marcia Ball and Irma Thomas, "Sing it!" (Rounder). BALL joins her for a live performance.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: American Egyptologist KENT WEEKS talks about his discovery of the largest tombs ever found in Egypt. It's called KV5 and is the burial ground for the sons of the Pharaoh Ramses the Second who many scholars believe ruled during the Jewish exodus from Egypt. Weeks and his team have discovered more than 150 corridors and chambers buried deep below the hills in the Valley of the Kings. He hopes it will be open to tourists in ten years. He has written about his 1995 discovery and the excavation in his new book "The Lost Tomb" (Morrow). Weeks is an Egyptologist at the American University in Cairo. He splits his time between Egypt and Washington State. INT. 2: Rabbi BURTON VISOTZKY, who last examined The Bible's Book of Genesis, now interprets Exodus. His new book is "The Road To Redemption: Lessons from Exodus on Leadership and Community." (Crown) Visotzky's work on Genesis, led a Cover story in Time Magazine and PBS' Genesis series. His work on Exodus caught the attention of Dream Works. The film studio hired him to be a consultant on the animated feature on Exodus, "The Prince of Egypt." Visotzky is chairman of Inter-religious studies at the Jewish Theological Seminary in America. He lives in New York City and Kent, Connecticut. REV. : Interview with BURTON VISOTZKY cont'd. (fundraising stations should drop this segment) Interview with Tracey Ullman; Interview with John Lovitz; Interview with Henny Youngman; Interview with Richard Pryor; Review of the film "Happiness." October 23, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502617].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Commediene and actress TRACEY ULLMAN. Each week on her show "Tracy Takes On" she features a gallery of characters talking about a topic, such as families, sex, money and crime. She also has a companion book "Tracey Takes On" (Hyperion), and there's an HBO home video release of her previous shows. ULLMAN is a native of England. She got her start in the U.S. with The Tracey Ullman Show, and has since won several Emmys and Cableace awards. She's also appeared in the films "Ready to Wear," "Bullets Over Broadway", and "Plenty." (REBROADCAST from 1/14/98) REV: Comedian JON LOVITZ. He played the pathological liar on Saturday Night Live, among many other characters, such as Annoying Man and Harry Chanukah. Now he's a regular on the sitcom "Newsradio." (REBROADCAST from 4/28/92) INT. 2: Stand up comedian HENNY YOUNGMAN. He died earlier this year at the age of 91. Terry talked with him at the time he published his memoir, "Take My Life, Please." (REBROADCAST from 10/18/91) INT. 3: Actor/Comedian RICHARD PRYOR. This week he was the first recipient of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts' award for humor, The Mark Twain Prize. (It will be broadcast on the Comedy Central cable channel Jan 20th). In 1995 he published his story, "Pryor Convictions and Other Life Sentences" A strong man who has overcome such ordeals as a drug addiction, self immolation, and six marriages, Pryor is now battling multiple sclerosis. (REBROADCAST from 5/22/95) REV 2: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Happiness" the new film by Todd Solondz.

Interview with Daniel Hillis; Interview with Arthur Dong; Review of Thomas Merton's memoir "The Seven Story Mountain." October 26, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503175].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DANIEL HILLIS is one of the world's leading computer scientists and is the designer of the world's fastest computer. He's also Vice President and Disney Fellow at Walt Disney Imagineering. His new book is "The Pattern on the Stone: the simple ideas that make computers work" (Basic Books)(THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF) INT. 2: In light of the recent beating death of gay student Matthew Shepard, a discussion of anti-gay violence with documentary film maker ARTHUR DONG. In his 1997 film "Licensed to Kill," DONG interviews convicted murderers of gay men and asks them "Why did you do it?" Twenty years ago DONG himself was the victim of a gay bashing. DONG is a Peabody Award winner and Oscar and Emmy nominated independent filmmaker. His other films include "Coming Out Under Fire," and "Forbidden City, U.S.A." REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the 50th Anniversary edition of Thomas Merton's spiritual autobiography, "The Seven Story Mountain" (Harcourt Brace).

Interview with Werner Herzog; Commentary on black and white influences in country music. October 27, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503001].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with David Remnick; Commentary on black and white influences in country music. October 28, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503450].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: DAVID REMNICK is the author of the new book "King of the World" (Random House) about heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali. REMNICK was appointed editor of the New Yorker Magazine this year, and is the Pulitzer Prize winning author of "Lenin's Tomb." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: DAVID REMNICK continued. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD continues his series on how country music was influenced by black and white music traditions.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist JOHN UPDIKE. His newest book features Henry Bech, the moderately well known Jewish-American writer who was the hero of UPDIKE's previous novels, "Bech: A Book," and "Bech is Back." His newest book is "Bech at Bay" (Knopf) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: JOHN UPDIKE continued. REV. : Former President JIMMY CARTER. He's written 13 books since leaving office. His latest is "The Virtues of Aging" (Ballantine). In his retirement, CARTER founded The Carter Center to address issues of public policy nationally and internationally, and launched The Atlanta Project a communitywide effort to attack the social problems associated with poverty. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

Interview with Otis Williams; Review of the films "Life Is Beautiful" and "Apt Pupil"; Interview with Ian McKellan; Commentary on television coverage of the Discovery Space Shuttle launch. October 30, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502997].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer OTIS WILLIAMS. He was the founder of The Temptations, whose smooth five-part harmonies and synchronized dance steps made them one of the hottest of Motown's super groups. Their hits included "My Girl," "Just My Imagination," and "Pappa Was a Rolling Stone." He is the only surviving member. A new made for TV movies has been made about the group and will be shown on NBC this Sunday night. (REBROADCAST from 9/15/88) REV. : Film Critic JOHN POWERS reviews two new movies "Life is Beautiful" and "Apt Pupil." INT. 2: Actor SIR Ian McKellan. He stars in the new films "Gods and Monsters," and "Apt Pupil." Since coming out in 1988, Britain's highly acclaimed Shakespearean actor has become an international voice for the gay and lesbian community. His role in Peter Shafer's "Amadeus" earned him a Tony Award in 1981. He has also appeared in the films, "Last Action Hero" and "Six Degrees of Separation" and "Richard III." (REBROADCAST from 6/20/94). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the coverage of yesterday's Discovery launch.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In 1980, DEBBIE MORRIS was a 16 year-old high school junior who was kidnapped, raped, and beaten by Robert Lee Willie. Willie's story was portrayed by Sean Penn in the film "Dead Man Walking." She has written about her life in "Forgiving the Dead Man Walking." (Zondervan) INT. 2: Interview with DEBBIE MORRIS cont'd. REV. : Interview with DEBBIE MORRIS cont'd.

Interview with Marcia Ball; Interview with Tracey Nelson and Marcia Ball. November 3, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503000].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A CONCERT and INTERVIEW with singer and pianist MARCIA BALL. She has a new CD titled "Sing It" on Rounder Records. It features her with Tracey Nelson and Irma Thomas. She has been compared with Fats Domino, Professor Longhair, Dr. John, Leon Russell - and, Jerry Lee Lewis. She's been called the bayou queen of the piano. Her latest solo album came out last year on Rounder. "Let Me Play With Your Poodle." The concert was recorded in September in Austin, Texas as a benefit for the public radio station KUT. It featured her and Tracey Nelson. (The Tracey Nelson portion of the concert was broadcast two weeks ago, and an excerpted segment of it will follow BALL's concert today). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: Interview with MARCIA BALL cont'd. REV. : Excerpted segment of TRACEY NELSON's concert and interview.

Interview with Uta Hagen; Commentary on elderly parents and Alzheimer's disease; Review of the television special "Anatomy of a Homicide." November 4, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503178].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Stage actress and acting teacher UTA HAGEN (00-ta HOG-en). She's taught acting for more than 40 years. She taught such actors as Jack Lemmon, Sigourney Weaver, Matthew Broderick and the late Geraldine Page. Her first book about acting, "Respect for Acting" was published in 1973 and is still in print. Her follow up to that is the book "A Challenge for the Actor." (1991) She and her late husband Herbert Berghof founded the HB Studio in New York. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF). INT. 2: UTA HAGEN continued. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ is also a poet. He'll read two of his poems written about his 94 year old mother who has Alzheimer's and in a nursing home. The poems are: "The Two Horses (A Memory)" and "He Tells His Mother What He's Working On." (Both poems were published in the online magazine The Slate; the poem "He Tells His Mother What He's Working On" can be found on the CD, "One Side of the River: Poets of Cambridge & Somerville" [Say That! Productions in Cambridge; phone: 617-497-1225, 617-576-2887]) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews a PBS documentary special on the hit show "Homicide."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DAVID HYDE PIERCE plays "Niles Crane" on NBC's sitcom "Frasier". He has received two Emmy Awards for this role. Pierce has also appeared in the films: "Bright Lights, Big City," "Little Man Tate," "The Fisher King," "Crossing Delancy," "Sleepless in Seattle, and "Nixon." His voice also appears in the new movie "A Bug's Life." He currently lives in Los Angeles. INT. 2: Film writer and director TODD HAYNES explores the world of "Glam Rock" in his new movie "Velvet Goldmine." This period included such artists as Lou Reed, Iggy Pop, and David Bowie. Haynes previous film "Safe" told the story of a suburban housewife who gets a rare condition and becomes allergic to nearly everything. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Sheryl Crow's newest CD "The Globe Sessions" on A&M Records.

Interview with Aljean Harmetz; Interview with John Lahr; Interview with Lorna Luft; Review of Judy Garland's CD box set "Judy" and album "Judy Garland in Hollywood"; Review of the film

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Hollywood journalist and now novelist ALJEAN HARMETZ talks about "The Wizard of Oz," one of the most enduring films in American history. This month it will be re-released in theaters. Next year will mark the 60th Anniversary of the film. ALJEAN HARMETZ's "The Making of the Wizard of Oz" will be re-issued in paperback next month. In addition, her 1997 novel "Off the Face of the Earth" has been released in paperback. She is also the author of "On the Road to Tara : The Making of Gone With the Wind." This originally aired 8/3/89. INT. 2A: Drama critic JOHN LAHR talks about his father Bert Lahr who starred as Zeke, the cowardly lion in The Wizard of Oz. Bert Lahr died in 1967. JOHN LARH wrote about his father's infamous role in "Notes on a Cowardly Lion" first published in 1969. This originally aired 12/14/92. INT. 2B: LORNA LUFT recent memoir "Me and My Shadows: A Family Memoir" was published earlier this year. (Pocket Books). LUFT talks about her mom Judy Garland who starred as "Dorothy" in the 1939 classic "The Wizard of Oz." Judy Garland died in 1969. Lorna Luft is also a half sister to Liza Minnelli. This originally aired 4/29/98. REV. 1: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a re-issue of Judy Garland's songs titled "Judy" on the label 32 Records. It is a four cd-set with a video and 100 page book of photos and interviews. Also Rhino records has re-issued "Judy Garland in Hollywood." REV. 2: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Velvet Goldmine" the new film written and directed by Todd Haynes. The film looks at the early 70's "glam rock" scene. Haynes earlier film was "Safe" about a suburban house-wife who becomes allergic to nearly everything.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Author NEAL GABLER (GAY-blur). His newest book is "Life: The Movie: How Entertainment Conquered Reality" (Knopf). His previous books are "Winchell: Gossip, Power and the Culture of Celebrity" and "An Empire of Their Own: How the Jews Invented Hollywood." REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel by Tom Wolfe, "A Man in Full" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) INT. 2: Actress KATHLEEN CHALFANT. She's starring in the highly acclaimed Off Broadway play "Wit," about a scholar of John Donne undergoing grueling treatments for terminal cancer. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Zero" (Blue Note) the new release by jazz saxophonist Greg Osby.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Screenwriter and journalist DAVID MILLS. He writes for the television shows, "ER" and "NYPD Blue." This week's episode of ER is written by him. MILLS is also the co-author of "George Clinton and P-Funk" (Avon Books). MILLS has also reported for the Washington Post and the Wall Street Journal. INT. 2: PETER MENZEL and FAITH D'ALUISIO are the authors of "Man Eating Bugs: The Art and Science of Eating Insects" (A Material World Book/Ten Speed Press). The book is a pictorial guide to how insects are made delectable throughout the world. REV.: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new collection of recordings made by the late pianist William Kapell who died in 1953 at the age of 31. (9 volume William Kapell Edition, RCA RED SEAL)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A special in-studio concert and interview with KATE & ANNA MCGARRIGLE, LOUDON WAINWRIGHT, RUFUS WAINWRIGHT, MARTHA WAINWRIGHT and more. They all sing and play on the new album, "The McGarrigle Hour" (Hannibal) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: CONCERT continued. REV.: Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on how the internet has change the way we talk. For example, the frequent use of words like cyber, e-cash, e-mail.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: KIRK VARNERDOE is the chief curator for the Jackson Pollock exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. It shows November 1, 1998-February 2, 1999. Pollock is widely considered the most challenging and influential American painter of the twentieth century and one of the primary creators in modern art since 1945. Pollock was born in Cody, Wyoming in 1912. Varnedoe has written the accompanying book "Jackson Pollock" (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: Interview with KIRK VARNEDOE cont'd. REV. : Former player, coach and general manager RED HOLZMAN. He died over the weekend. He's a member of the Basketball Hall of Fame and was coach of the New York Knicks when they won the world championship in 1970. (REBROADCAST from 12/8/87)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ABC News anchor PETER JENNINGS. He's collaborated (with Todd Brewster) on a new 12-hour documentary series which takes a look back at the 20th century. It's called "The Century" and will be broadcast early in 1999. There's also a companion book published by Doubleday. JENNINGS will discuss the project and his own 35 years in the news business. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: PETER JENNINGS continued. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Alanis Morrissette's new release "Supposed Former Infatuation Junkie" (Maverick/Reprise)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The Divine Miss M, otherwise known as BETTE MIDLER. She made a name for herself in the early 1970s at New York's Continental Baths, a club for gay men. Since then she's been nominated for two Academy Awards, and earned Emmy and Grammy awards. She has a new CD, "Bathouse Betty" (Warner Bros. Records). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: BETTE MIDLER continued. REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Hours" (FS&G) Michael Cunningham's literary tribute to Virgina Woolf.

Interview with Bob Ortega; Interview with John Stilgoe; Review of the Bobo Stenson Trio's album "War Orphans." November 19, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502495].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BOB ORTEGA is an investigative journalist for The Wall Street Journal. He's the author of the new book, "In Sam We Trust: The Untold Story of Sam Walton and How Wal-Mart Is Devouring America" (Times Business/Random House). The book looks at how Wal-Mart went from a tiny variety store in backwater Arkansas to one of the world's largest corporations. In doing so, Wal-Mart's business practices have been imitated by other businesses and criticized for its impact on communities, and treatment of workers. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: JOHN STILGOE is Orchard Professor of Landscape History at Harvard University. He's the author of the new book, "Outside Lies Magic: Regaining History and Awareness in Everyday Places" (Walker and Co.) He's been teaching the "art of exploration" for over 20 years, that is, learning to really look at the world around us. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "War Orphans" the new release by Swedish pianist Bobo Stenson who records for the ECM label.
Interview with Shirley Corriher; Review of the film "Elizabeth"; Obituary for Alan Pakula; Review of the film "Rear Window." November 20, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502222].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Culinary expert SHIRLEY CORRIHER (CORR-ee-er), author of "Cookwise," (William Morrow) a practical guide to culinary mysteries and the science of cooking. CORRIHER is a food writer and a contributing editor to "Fine Cooking" magazine. (REBROADCAST from 11/24/97) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Elizabeth" starring Joseph Fiennes and Cate Blanchett. INT. 2: We remember film director ALAN PAKULA who died yesterday in a freak car accident. He was 70 years old, and was working at the time on his next screenplay, "No Ordinary Time" about the Whitehouse during the time of Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt. Pakula's directing credits include: "The Sterile Cuckoo," "Klute," "All the President's Men" and "Presumed Innocent." He also directed and wrote the screenplay for "Sophie's Choice" and produced the 1962 classic "To Kill a Mockingbird." (REBROADCAST from 8/17/90) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "Rearwindow" the remake of the Hitchcock film. This one stars Christopher Reeve, and Daryl Hannah.

Interview with Larry Holmes; Commentary on Bert Berns; Obituary for Henry Hampton. November 23, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502916].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former world heavyweight champion LARRY HOLMES. He's written a new autobiography, "Against the Odds" (Thomas Dunne Book) about how he came up through poverty, and his training as Muhhammed Ali's sparring partner. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: LARRY HOLMES continues. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD looks back on the career of songwriter Bert Berns. REV. : We remember documentary filmmaker HENRY HAMPTON. He's best known for his PBS series "Eyes on the Prize" about the civil rights movement. He said his intention was to tell the story in a way in which blacks were not the "victims." HAMPTON's other highly acclaimed documentaries were "America's War on Poverty" and "The Great Depression." HAMPTON had struggled since 1990 with lung cancer. He was 58. (REBROADCAST from 2/1/90)
Interview with Tandaswa Ndita; Interview with George Hudler; Review of the television show "NYPD Blue." November 24, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503325].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: South African Judge TANDASWA NDITA (TAHN-dahs-whah n-DITA) Her focus is family law. She's been educating rural communities about the new constitution and the new rights accorded to women. For the first time under the law, women are no longer considered household property, and have been given the status of personhood. The Judge can also be seen in the new documentary "A Women's Place" which premiers nationwide on PBS, November 27th. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: TANDASWA NDITA interview continues. INT. 3 An expert on fungi, GEORGE HUDLER is a professor of Plant Pathology at Cornell University. He's written a new book about the existence of fungi in all its forms, "Magical Mushrooms, Mischievous Molds: The remarkable story of the fungus kingdom and its impact on human affairs." (Princeton University Press). REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the final "NYPD Blue" episode featuring actor Jimmy Smits.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer TONY BENNETT. The once post-war heart throb is again a hit this time with many MTV viewers. His 1994, MTV "unplugged" concert won him new fans. His new CD is "The Playground" He has the new autobiography The Good Life: The Autobiography of Tony Bennett. A grocer's son, Anthony Dominick Benedetto was born in Astoria Queens in 1926. After working as a singing waiter in his teens and then following service in the U.S. Army, he auditioned for Columbia Records and launched a career that started off with his first big hit "Boulevard of Broken Dreams" (1950), and included "Because of You" (1951), "Rags to Riches" (1953), and his unforgettable signature tune "I Left My Heart In San Francisco" (1962, double-Grammy winner). INT. 2: Interview with TONY BENNETT cont'd. REV. : Interview with TONY BENNETT cont'd.
Interview with Peter Fonda; Interview with Dennis Hopper; Interview with Roger Corman. November 27, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503597].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This year, the Library of Congress has added the film "Easy Rider" to its National Film Registry. To honor this, we're featuring a series of interviews that have some connection to the movie. First is, Actor PETER FONDA. He's was nominated earlier this year for an Oscar for his performance in "Ulee's Gold." The son of actor Henry Fonda, he's best known for his role in the cult classic "Easy Rider." He's written his memoir, "Don't Tell Dad" (Hyperion) This orginally aired 3/19/98. INT. 2: Actor DENNIS HOPPER He made his film debut in "Rebel Without a Cause," and had roles in numerous films such as "Blue Velvet," "Rivers Edge," and "Hoosiers". Hopper directed, co-wrote, and starred in the 60's classic, "Easy Rider." This orginally aired 10/10/90. REV. : Interview with filmmaker ROGER CORMAN Corman did not work on "Easy Rider" but he did direct "Wild Angels" a film featuring Peter Fonda. A film that gave Fonda the inspiration for "Easy Rider". Corman's the king of the low-budget movie, having made B-movie classics such as "The Little Shop of Horrors," "The Saint Valentine's Day Massacre," and "The Wild Angels." Corman's memoir "How I Made a Hundred Movies in Hollywood and Never Lost a Dime." was published by Random House in 1990. This originally aired 8/2/90.

Interview with Mike Wallace; Interview with Deborah Gray White; Review Andrew Rangell's album "A Recital of Intimate Works." November 30, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503485].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN interviews historian and author MIKE WALLACE. He's co-authored a monumental new history of New York City, "Gotham: A History of New York City to 1898" (Oxford University Press). WALLACE is a Professor of History at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, City University of New York. INT. 2: Historian and author DEBORAH GRAY WHITE has compiled a new history of black women and their struggle against racism and male chauvinism. It's called "Too Heavy a Load: Black Women in Defense of Themselves 1894-1994" (W.W. Norton) WHITE is a professor of history at Rutgers University and the co-director of the Rutgers Center for Historical Analysis. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "A Recital of Intimate Works" (Dorian label) by pianist Andrew Rangell.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. HOOSEN COOVADIA (WHO-sen kew-VAH-dee-ah) is a Pediatrician in Durban, South Africa. In his practice, 40 percent of the kids he treats are HIV positive. He'll discuss the rise of HIV in South Africa and other parts of Africa where he has traveled. COOVADIA will serve as the Chairman of the next World Aids Conference in the year 2000. He heads the Pediatrics and Child Health Department at the University of Natal Medical School. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV 1 Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Shakespeare: The Invention of the Human" (Riverhead books) by Harold Bloom. REV. 2: Pop critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Is This Desire" the latest release by the English singer, songwriter and guitarist Polly Jean Harvey.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer, songwriter, guitarist ROBBIE FULKS. He has one foot in the singer/songwriter scene, and one in country music. In fact he spent three years writing songs in Nashville, but no one opted to record his songs. So he's recently come out with a new CD of his own music, "Let's Kill Saturday Night" (Geffen Records). FULKS began his career as a regular at the same fabled Greenwich Village hole in the wall where Bob Dylan made a name for himself. FULKS also taught guitar at Chicago's famed Old Town School of Folk Music. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: ROBBIE FULKS continued. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews "A Charlie Brown Christmas" which is being broadcast for it's 34th consecutive year, but DAVID says 3 minutes have been cut from it over the years.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ERIC SCHLOSSER talks about who is profiting from America's prison boom. He is a correspondent for The Atlantic Monthly. He wrote this month's cover article entitled "The Prison Industrial Complex" (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF.) INT. 2: An expert on prison systems around the world, VIVIEN STERN. She's written the new book, "A Sin Against the Future: Imprisonment in the World" (Northeastern University Press). STERN is Senior Research Fellow in the International Centre for Prison Studies at King's College and Secretary-General of Penal Reform International. She lives in London. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new Miles Davis reissue, "The Complete Bitches Brew Sessions" (Columbia)

Interview with Charles Schulz; Interview with David Sedaris; Review of His Majestie's Clerkes' album "Hear My Prayer December 4, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503321].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: "Peanuts" creator CHARLES SCHULZ. CBS broadcast the 34th consecutive viewing of the classic Peanut's cartoon "A Charlie Brown Christmas" earlier this week. The show has been an annual tradition at CBS since 1965. (REBROADCAST from 12/18/90.) INT. 2: Playwright and NPR commentator DAVID SEDARIS. His "Santa land Diaries" which debuted on NPR's Morning Edition in 1992 is purported to be the network's most requested tape. His collection of short stories (now in paperback), "Barrel Fever" and this year's "Naked" (Little, Brown & Co.) a collection of autobiographical essays, were both bestsellers. Last year he released a collection of Christmas stories, "Holiday's On Ice" (Little, Brown & Co.) (Rebroadcast from 12/23/1994) REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Hear My Prayer: Choral Music of the English Romantics" (on the Chicago label, Cedille).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Organizing expert JULIE MORGENSTERN. She is the founder of Task Masters, a New York based consulting company that tries to improve people's efficiency through better organizing skills. Her new book is "Organizing from the Inside Out" by Owl books. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF.) INT. 2: Dr NORMAN ROSENTHAL is an expert on Seasonal Affective Disorder a/k/a SAD. Commonly called the winter blues, Rosenthal talks about why many people get depressed during the winter months and how light therapy can help. His book "Winter Blues: Seasonal Affective Disorder, What it is and How to Overcome it." by Guilford Press. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV. : NONE

- Page 1939 -

Interview with Al Kooper; Interview with Daniel Drennan. December 8, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503204].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musician AL KOOPER. He helped popularize the Hammond B3 organ as part of rock music, performing on recordings of Bob Dylan, Jimi Hendrix, The Rolling Stones, and The Who. He was a member of the legendary Blues Project, and later founded the group Blood Sweat & Tears. Now he teaches at The Berklee College of Music in Boston, and writes a monthly column for EQ Magazine. His autobiography, "Backstage Passes & Backstabbing Bastards: Memoirs of a Rock 'n Roll Survivor" (Billboard Books) which was first published in 1977 has just been updated and reissued. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: AL KOOPER continued. REV. : New York writer DANIEL DRENNAN has written a new collection of essays about life in Manhattan. His book "The New York Diaries: Too True Tales of Urban Tramau" is published by Ballantine Books.
Interview with Peter Farrelly and Bobby Farrelly; Interview with Dan Savage. December 9, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503756].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We'll feature an "live" on stage interview recorded with the Farrelly Brothers from this year's New York Comedy Film Festival. Peter and Bobby Farrelly wrote and directed this summer's hit film "There's Something About Mary." They also collaborated on Dumb and Dumber and Kingpin. Slated for release later this year is the film version of Outside Providence (penned by Bobby Farrelly), starring Alec Baldwin and directed by Michael Corrente. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: Nationally syndicated sex advice columnist DAN SAVAGE has written a collection of his Q & A's in "Savage Love" published by Plume books. He is also an associate editor at The Stranger, a weekly alternative paper in Seattle. REV. : none

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jordanian journalist RANA HUSSEINI (RAH-nah WHO-Sane-E). She writes for the Jordan Times, the country's only English-language daily. Her reporting on "crimes of honor" has brought to light the practice of a woman being murdered by her own relatives when it's thought the woman brought dishonor upon them. In one instance a 16 year-old schoolgirl was killed by her older brother because her younger brother raped her. Police and prosecutors have taken little notice of "honor killing" but that attitude has begun to shift because of HUSSEINI's efforts. Last fall she was presented the Reebok Human Rights Award in New York. HUSSEINI received her bachelor's degree in Oklahoma. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with RANA HUSSEINI continued. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two recent recordings by the German bass-baritone Thomas Quasthoff (KVAST-huff) of Mozart and Schubert (both on RCA Red Seal.) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Mark O'Donnell's novel "Let Nothing You Dismay."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SISTER WENDY BECKETT has a new book out for the holidays, "Sister Wendy's Nativity" from Harper Collins. Beckett is a member of the Notre Dame order, a teaching order of nuns and a celebrity. In 1980 she began the serious study of art, and since has written the books: The Story of Painting : The Essential Guide to the History of Western Art and Sister Wendy's Grand Tour : Discovering Europe's Great Art. She and hosted the popular PBS series "Sister Wendy's Odyssey" and "Sister Wendy's Grand Tour." and last year's 10 part series "Sister Wendy's Story of Painting." Originally aired 9/4/97.THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF. INT. 2: Once the most powerful reviewers in America, The New York Times' former drama critic, FRANK RICH has a new collection of his reviews published "Hot Seat : Theater Criticism for the New York Times, 1980-1993 by Random House. When he stepped down as critic in 1993, It was considered a great day for many playwrights. The British press once dubbed him "The Butcher of Broadway;" playwright David Mamet called him "a terrible critic.. an unfortunate blot on the American theatre." Some playwrights and directors even chose to take their work elsewhere to save themselves from a review by RICH. But he's also been called "one of the most gifted critics ever to write for a newspaper... a rare and brilliant talent." Originally aired 4/5/94. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews A Simple Plan by filmmaker Sam Raimi. The quiet rural lives of two brothers erupt into conflicts of greed, paranoia and distrust when over four million dollars in cash is discovered at the remote site of a downed small airplane.

Interview with Beryl Bainbridge; Interview with David Kelley; Commentary on language and national identity. December 14, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503753].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British novelist BERYL BAINBRIDGE is well known in England, but little known here. She's been shortlisted four times for the prestigious Booker Prize, and twice won the Whitbread Prize for fiction. She's just completed her third historical novel and her 16th novel over all. It's "Master Georgie" (Carroll & Graff Publishers, Inc.) and takes place during the mid 19th century. BAINBRIDGE has been praised for her economic and poetic use of words, and her lack of sentimentality or melodrama. INT. 2: Founder and CEO of IDEO Product Development, DAVID KELLEY. He is one of America's leading design innovators. His design innovations include Apple's first mouse, Crest's "Neat Squeeze" toothpaste tube, squishy colorful Oral-B toothbrushes for children, Kodak's digital camera, and a portable heart defibrillator which the AMA says will save over 100,000 lives per year. KELLEY's company is based in Palo Alto, California. He is also a professor at Stanford University's in the school's innovative Product Design program. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG comments on language as a source of national pride and independence.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: T.J. LEYDEN is a former skinhead who now works for the Simon Wiesenthal Center for Tolerance, speaking out against hate and hate crimes. LEYDEN is 32 years old. He joined the Hammerskin, a Neo-Nazi group when he was 14, later became a recruiter, and left it at the age of 29. Now he is a consultant for the Center's Tools for Tolerance Program and speaks out around the country to school groups, church groups, law enforcement and military units. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: T.J. LEYDEN continued. REV. : We remember JUDGE LEON HIGGANBOTHAM who died yesterday at the age of 70. (REBROADCAST from 1/20/97)

Interview with Jeffrey Toobin; Interview with Michael Beschloss. December 16, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503757].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JEFFREY TOOBIN is the legal correspondent for ABC news and a staff writer for the New Yorker magazine. He will also discusses the Impeachment vote. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2A: JEFFREY TOOBIN continues. INTV. 2B Presidential historian MICHAEL BESCHLOSS discusses the upcoming Impeachment vote in the House. He is author

---

Interview with Jon Langford; Review of the best books for the holiday season; Review of John Harbison's album "At First Light." December 17, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503201].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and guitarist JON LANGFORD. He is a co-founder the British punk band The Mekons. One of the few punk bands of the era that is still performing..He lives in the states now, which is feeding his growing interest in country music. He plays in the country inspired band the waco brothers. Langford is also a visual artist. and, under the pen name Chuck Death draws the comic Great Pop Things, which is published in the LA Weekly, and collected in the new book. "Great Pop Things: The Real History of Rock n Roll from Elvis to Oasis" (Verse Chorus Press) Langford has just released his first solo CD called: "Skull Orchard." and earlier this year The Mekons released the new CD "Me" on QuarterStick records. THIS INTERVIEW WILL CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "At First Light" (Archetype Records) a new recording of music by composer John Harbison with singers Lorraine Hunt, Dawn Upshaw, and oboist Peggy Pearson. INT. 2: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN list some of her best bets for the holidays. Eudora: A Writer's Life by Ann Waldron, The Poisonwood Bible by Barbara Kingsolver, The Mysterious Case of Nancy Drew and the Hardy Boys by Carole Kismaric and Marvin Heiferman and Holes by Louis Sachar.

---

Interview with Burton Visotzky; Interview with Elmer Bernstein; Interview with Martin Scorsese; Interview with Charlton Heston; Review of the film "You've Got Mail." December 18, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503759].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Biblical theologian Rabbi BURTON VISOTZKY, gives us his interpretation of the story of the Exodus, as SKG's new film "The Prince of Egypt" arrives in theaters today. Visotzky worked as a consultant on the new film. This year, his book "The Road To Redemption: Lessons from Exodus on Leadership and Community" was published. (Crown) Visotzky's previous exploration of Genesis, led to a PBS' Genesis series. Visotzky is chairman of Inter-religious studies at the Jewish Theological Seminary in America. He lives in New York City and Kent, Connecticut. Originally aired 10/22/98 INT. 2: Composer Elmer Bernstein talks about writing music for "The Ten Commandments" He has written scores for more than 80 films Originally aired 1/10/91. Film Director MARTIN SCORCESE talks about directing "The Last Temptation of Christ" in 1988. In this excerpt; Scorcese explores some of the special difficulties involved in shooting a biblical epic in the desert with very little money. Originally aired 6/11/93. int. 3: Veteran actor CHARLTON HESTON talks about playing Moses in "The Ten Commandments" Originally aired 11/30/90 REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "You've Got Mail" just released "Guilty: 30 Years of Randy Newman." a new four CD box set that includes an entire disc of previously unreleased tracks. Newman's most popular songs include "Short People" and "I Love L-A." He's also written music for the films, "Ragtime," "The Natural," and "Toy Story," among many others. His first album was "Faust." (1995 Reprise Records), and he's planning on releasing a new album soon.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Musicians BURT BACHRACH and ELVIS COSTELLO join us to talk about their new collaborative album, "Painted From Memory." (Mercury) The two have been working together for nearly two years, beginning with the Grammy-nominated single "God Give Me Strength" (from the film "Grace of my Heart"), included on this album. Singer-songwriter Elvis Costello has recorded over 17 albums in his 25 year career. His hits include "Pump it Up" and "Watching the Detectives." Composer Burt Bacharach is said to have revolutionized the sound of the sixties, with dozens of top ten hits, several Grammys and Academy Awards. His hits include "What's New Pussycat" and "Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fresh Air's Film Critic JOHN POWERS talks about the year in movies. POWERS discusses his favorite films and the best performances of 1998. JOHN POWERS is also film critic for Vogue. INT. 2: Fresh Air's rock critic KEN TUCKER gives his picks for the best albums of the year. KEN TUCKER is critic-at-large for Entertainment Weekly. REV. : KEN TUCKER continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: On this, the Christmas archive show, we feature an interview with the late Marion Williams--one of the greatest gospel singers of her generation. She refused to sing secular music even though she was offered lots of money to do so. She influenced such singers as Little Richard and Aretha Franklin. (REBROADCAST from 12/6/93) INT. 1B/2: Gospel saxophonist Vernard Johnson tells us about his experiences playing in churches, where some people think of the saxophone as the devil's instrument. (REBROADCAST from 12/29/94) REV. : Great soul and gospel singer Al Greene will tell us about his life before and after he was born again. (REBRAODCAST from 6/21/91)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Naturalist and biologist ROGER TABOR has studied house cats for twenty years. He has prepared television series on felines for the BBC and has written several books on the subject. He is author of "Understanding Cats: Their History, Nature, and Behavior" (Reader's Digest). Originally aired 8/18/97. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: DR. NICHOLAS DODMAN, a veterinary behaviorist, is the author of "The Dog Who Loved Too Much: Tales, Treatments, and the Psychology of Dogs" (Bantam) In the book, he describes his own methods for correcting dog behaviors, such as attacking the telephone when it rings or scaring company, and he includes many stories from his own practice. Originally aired 8/18/97. REV. : DODMAN cont'd.
Interview with Beverly Joubert and Dereck Joubert; Interview with Dian Fossey and Jane Goodall; Interview with Doug Peacock. December 29, 1998. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502991].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BEVERLY AND DERECK JOUBERT (pronounce "Jo-Bear"), are wildlife documentary producers. This husband and wife team lived in northern Botswana and captured on film the family relationships of the last free-roaming elephants left in Africa. Their 1994 film "Reflections on Elephants," contained ground-breaking footage of lions attacking an elephant calf. Previously, such attacks were thought to be only mythical. Their book "Hunting With the Moon: The Lions of Savuti" was published last year by Random House. This originally aired 2/2/94. INT. 2: We play clips from two animal scientists. First DIAN FOSSEY, recorded in 1982. She talks about learning how to talk to gorillas. Next, Jane Goodall reflects on over 30 years in the company of one community of chimpanzees in the wilds of Tanzania. INT 3 : Environmentalist DOUG PEACOCK. He's devoted the last 20 years to saving the grizzly bear. Like many Veterans, he had trouble adjusting when he returned from Vietnam. He sought a life of seclusion in the mountains and it was then that he first encountered grizzly bears. Now, he performs research alone through the mountains of Wyoming and Montana studying the behavior, social hierarchy, and communication methods of grizzlies in their natural habitat. His books include "Grizzly Years," "Baja" a memoir of Edward Abbey, "Walking It Off" This originally aired 8/12/96.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Entomologist DAVE BRODY. He is a former curator of the Entomology department of the Museum of Natural History in New York. Brody was the insect consultant for films like "Creep show" and "The Believers." This originally aired 7/9/87. INT. 1A: Biologist EDWARD O. WILSON has been called "The Ant Man" by "The New York Times Magazine." He has spent most of his life studying ants. He co-authored the critically-acclaimed "The Ants," with Bert Holldobler. The pair published a sequel to that work, "Journey to the Ants" and WILSON has written a memoir, "Naturalist" (Island Press), that chronicles his love of ants. This originally aired 10/24/94. INT 2A: HARRY GREENE is Curator of Herpetology in the Museum of Vertebrate Zoology and is a Professor of Integrative Biology at the University of California. Last year his book "Snakes: The Evolution of Mystery in Nature" was published. (University of California Press) This originally aired 7/23/97. INT. 2B: The truth about vultures, with WAYNE GRADY Grady's recent book, "Vulture: Ghastly Gourmet," (Sierra Club Books) describes in words and photographs the life of the vulture. This originally aired 6/17/98.

---

Interview with Gary Larson; Interview with Steve Schneider; Interview with Chuck Jones.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Far Side cartoonist GARY LARSON has written and illustrated the recent book "There's A Hair In My Dirt! A Worm's Story." (Harper Collins) Larson quit drawing his syndicated Far Side comic in 1995. But up till then it thrived for 14 years and appeared in more than 1,900 newspapers worldwide. Larson has published more than 20 books featuring his cartoons. He lives in Seattle, Washington. The 1999 Far Side Off-The-Wall Calendar was released earlier this year. INT. 2: Animation historian STEVE SCHNEIDER is author of the 1988 release "That's All Folks : The Art of Warner Bros.Animation." This was the first book to celebrate the unique achievements by the Warner Brothers animation studio. INT 3: Animation pioneer CHUCK JONES was born in Spokane, Washington in 1912. He has become one of the best known animators in American history. He created: Pepe LePew and, most famously, Road Runner and Wile E. Coyote. But he also worked as an animator on Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck. His books include his autobiography Chuck Amuck, a children's book William, the Backwards Skunk, and How to Draw from the Fun Side of Your Brain. Jones has created over 300 animated films in his career, has won four Academy Awards. He recently opened a gallery in Laguna Beach, CA, not far from his home, called The Chuck Jones Studio Gallery.

---

Interview with Caroline Hebard; Interview with Temple Grandin; Review of the album "Follies."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CAROLINE HEBARD (Heh-BIRD) is the co-founder of the U.S. Disaster Response Team. She and her German shepherd dogs have carried out search and rescue missions at the world's most tragic disaster sites: earthquakes in Japan, Mexico and Armenia, floods in Tennessee, hurricanes, and bridge collapses. The work is dangerous: trainers often follow their dogs into a collapsed building. HEBARD lives in Bernardsville, New Jersey with her husband, children and dogs. Her book "So That Others May Live" was published in 1995. (Bantam Books). This originally aired 1/2/96.

INT. 2: TEMPLE GRANDIN is one of the nation's top designers of livestock facilities. She is also autistic. Grandin was also one of the subjects in Oliver Sacks' book, "An Anthropologist On Mars: Seven Paradoxical Tales". In Grandin's book, Thinking in Pictures: and other reports from my life with Autism she describes how her inner-autistic world has led her to develop animal empathy. Her book is published by Doubleday 1995. This originally aired 11/27/95.

REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new two-cd set of Stephen Sondheim's "Follies" Interview with Arnold Steinhardt; Interview with Richard Ford; Review of the television show "The Rodgers and Hart Story January 5, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503108].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: First violinist ARNOLD STEINHARDT is one of the founding members of the Guarneri (Gwa-NAIR-ee) String Quartet, which has been playing together for 35 years. He's written a new memoir, "Invisible by Four: A String Quartet in Pursuit of Harmony" (Farrar Straus & Giroux). The Quartet is considered to be one of the finest string quartets performing today. INT. 2: RICHARD FORD, the Pulitzer Prize winning author of the novel "Independence Day," has edited and collected a new selection of short stories by the great Russian playwright and short-story writer Anton Chekhov. It's called "The Essential Tales of Chekhov" (Ecco Press)REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the new PBS documentary "The Rodgers and Hart Story: Thou Swell, Thou Witty." It's part of the Great Performances series and is broadcast in most cities on January 6.

Description of show segment(s)

REV. 1 Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Fool's Parade" by Peter Wolf.INT. 1: Musician and singer PETER WOLF. He's the former lead singer with the J. Geils Band which he was with for 17 years. He's been a solo artist for a while. On his latest CD "Fool's Parade" (Mercury) he's incorporated the Memphis sound. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)INT. 2: PETER WOLF continued.REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Fanny Trollope: The Life and Adventures of a Clever Woman" (Viking) a biography of the mother of novelist Anthony Trollope.
Interview with Richard Wright; Interview with Aaron Sorkin; Review of Bloque's album "Bloque.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Criminologist RICHARD WRIGHT. He teaches at the University of Missouri-St. Louis. He'll discuss the statistics released last month by the Justice Department showing that the crime rate has been falling steadily since 1991. He'll also discuss the link between the crime rate and the decline in crack use which he has studied. WRIGHT is the co-author of the book, "Armed Robbers in Action: Stickups and Street Culture" (1997, Northeastern University Press). INT. 2: AARON SORKIN is creator of the new ABC TV show, "Sports Night" a behind-the-scenes look at a cable sports newscast, like ESPN. It's been described as "a home run" and "the most consistently funny, intelligent, and emotional of any new-season series." SORKIN also wrote the films "An American President," and "A Few Good Men." REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews "Bloque" (pronounced, "Blow-K") from Colombia(Lukabob/WArner).

Interview with Atom Egoyan and Russell Banks; Interview with Nick Nolte; Review of Tommy Flanagan's album "Sunset and the Mockingbird"; Review of the film of "Hilary and Jackie.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist RUSSELL BANKS. He's written a dozen or more novels including: "The Sweet Hereafter" (which was made into a film by Atom Egoyan), Rule of the Bone, Searching for Survivors,The Book of Jamaica, and Continental Drift. His novel "Affliction" has been made into a new film. It stars Cissy Spacek, James Coburn, and Nick Nolte. (REBROADCAST from 12/23/97) INT. 2: Actor NICK NOLTE. He's currently starring in "Affliction" and "The Thin Red Line." NOLTE got his breakthrough in the television miniseries, "Rich Man, Poor Man" in 1976. His films include "48 Hours," "Down and Out in Beverly Hills," "Prince of Tides," and "Afterglow." (REBROADCAST from 1/6/98) REV.1 : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Sunset and the Mockingbird:The Birthday Concert" by pianist Tommy Flanagan on Blue Note.REV.2 : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Hilary and Jackie."

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Satirist AL FRANKEN, former writer for Saturday Night Live, and creator of Stuart Smalley (author of "I'm Good Enough, I'm Smart Enough, and Doggone It, People Like Me!"). His new book is "Why Not Me: The Inside Story of the Making and Unmaking of the Franken Presidency" (Delacorte Press). It's the story of America's first jewis...
WARD remembers the record label, Red bird, founded by songwriters and producers Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller. Their hits included "Chapel of Love," and "Leader of the Pack." INT. 2B: We remember writer and urbanologist WILLIAM WHYTE. He died yesterday at the age of 81. The former editor of Fortune Magazine began a second career studying the life of urban cities. Whyte was best known for his 1956 book "Organization Man," a groundbreaking work that examined the mechanized rituals and routines of the corporate culture. His other books included, "The Social Life of Small Urban Spaces" (1980), and "City" (1989). (REBROADCAST from 2/22/89)

Interview with David Attenborough; Review of Elizabeth Strout's novel "Amy and Isabelle"; Interview with Mark Hertsgaard; Review of the television show "60 Minutes II." January 14, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503236].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Reknowned naturalist and film maker SIR DAVID ATTENBOROUGH. His new book and (upcoming PBS special is "The Life of Birds" (Princeton University Press). He examines birds from rainforests to desert, to cities and isolated wildernesses, the flying and the flightless, the seed eaters and the meat-eaters. The series was broadcast on the BBC last fall and will be presented on PBS sometime this year. The book is currently available. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the debut novel by Elizabeth Strout, "Amy and Isabelle."INT. 2: Journalist MARK HERTSGAARD. He traveled around the world examining environmentally-damaged places. His new book about it is, "Earth Odyssey: Around the world in Search of Our Environmental Future" (Broadway Books). HERTSGAARD also writes for the New York times, The New Yorker, the Atlantic Monthly, and the Nation.REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews last night's premiere of "60 Minutes II".

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Legendary Broadway dancer GWEN VERDON. She starred in "Damn Yankees," "Sweet Charity," "Redhead," and "Chicago." VERDON won four Tony awards and a lifetime achievement award from the New Dramatists playwrights workshop. (REBROADCAST from 5/5/93)INT. 1B/2A Actress BEBE NEUWIRTH (Pronounced NEW-worth). She played the humorless shrink, Lilith, on the television show "Cheers" for which she won two Emmy Awards. She's also appeared in many films, including "Bugsy," "Malice," and "Jumanji." She starred in the recent revival of the hit broadway musical "Chicago." Neuwirth won a Tony award for her performance as Nickie in "Sweet Charity." (REBROADCAST from 4/15/97) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)INT. 2B: We remember JAMIE HAMMERSTEIN, Broadway producer, director and son of composer Oscar Hammerstein. He died last week at the age of 67 from a heart attack. (REBROADCAST from 3/14/95)REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Thin Red Line."

Interview with Taylor Branch; Review of the album "Mickey One." January 18, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503239].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian TAYLOR BRANCH. He won the Pulitzer Prize for the first book of his planned trilogy of the Civil Rights movement: "Parting the Waters: America In the King Years 1954-63" His most recent book "Pillars of Fire: America In the King Years 1963-65" has just come out on paperback. (Simon & Schuster) It begins where the other book ended, and covers what he considers the peak years in the movement. At the center of the book are Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, Robert Kennedy, LBJ, and J. Edgar Hoover. This originally aired 1/19/98. THIS CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Interview with TAYLOR BRANCH cont'd.REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Mickey One" (Verve) the soundtrack from the Arthur Penn film. It's been reissued and features Stan Getz.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Country music singer RAY PRICE. He was a close friend and protege of Hank Williams. PRICE's hits include "Talk to Your Heart," "Don't Let the Stars Get in Your Eyes," "I'll be There," "Crazy Arms," "For the Good Times," and more. In 1996 he was inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame. His latest album is "Ray Price: The Other Woman" (Koch).INT. 2: Actor SEAN PENN. He's currently starring in the new films "Hurly Burly," and "The Thin Red Line." PENN previously starred in "Dead Man Walking." PENN also wrote and directed the film "The Indian Runner" which he wrote based on a Bruce Springsteen song, and "The Crossing Guard. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)REV. 1: SEAN PENN continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Last year New Orleans became the first city to file suit against the gun industry. Chicago followed. And now many other cities (including Philadelphia, Boston, Miami, San Francisco and L.A.) are considering similar actions. Journalist FOX BUTTERFIELD writes about crime and criminal justice for The New York Times. He'll discuss these suits as well as one filed in New York by a group of individuals who lost family members from gun violence. BUTTERFIELD was a member of the Times writing staff that won a Pulitzer Prize for its publication of The Pentagon Papers. He's also author of the book, "All God's Children: The Bosket Family and the American Tradition of Violence" (Avon Books)INT. 1B: Executive director RICHARD FELDMAN of the American Shooting Sports Council which represents gun manufacturers. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)INT 2A: RICHARD FELDMAN continued.REV. 2B: Senior policy analyst TOM DIAZ at the Violence Policy Center, a non-partisan non-profit public policy institute working to reduce gun violence. He's the author of the new book, "Making a Killing: The Business of Guns in America" (The New Press). In the book, DIAZ writes how in an attempt to increase profits, the gun industry has introduced more aggressive and lethal guns to the public. DIAZ says they do this free from regulation and under a cloak of secrecy.
Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Flugelhorn and trumpet player Art Farmer. This month the National Endowment for the Arts named him one of its 1999 American Jazz Masters. He joins such previous honorees as Dizzy Gillespie, Betty Carter, Miles Davis and Sarah Vaughan. Born in 1928 in Council Bluffs, Iowa, Art Farmer made his first record in 1948 as a sideman with Kansas-City legend Jay McShann. In the fifties his melodic stylings on trumpet and fluegelhorn were featured in the bands of such as Benny Carter, Lester Young, Charles Mingus, Lionel Hampton, Horace Silver, and Gerry Mulligan (This was originally aired on 7/21/87.) REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new HBO series "Sopranos."INT. 2: We remember bluesman, songwriter and pianist CHARLES BROWN. He died yesterday from congestive heart failure. (REBROADCAST from 6/22/89) Interview with Salman Ahmad and Brian O'Connell; Review of Igor Stravinsky's albums "Stravinsky Conducts Stravinsky January 25, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502492].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guitarist SALMAN AHMAD (Sol-MAHN AH-MAHD) and bassist BRIAN O'CONNELL, from the Pakistani rock band JUNOON (Ju-NOON). They are Pakistani's best-selling band, with four albums, and 2-million sales. They've gained an international following thanks to the Internet and MTV. The band also includes lead singer, Ali Azmat. The group is currently on tour. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: JUNOON continued. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two new reissues of composer Igor Stravinsky conducting his own music: "Stravinsky Conducts Stravinsky: The Mono Years" (Sony) and "Stravinsky conducts Stravinsky: The American Recordings" (Pearl).

Interview with Jonathan Kellerman; Interview with Fazal Sheikh; Commentary on language and the Clinton impeachment trial. January 26, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502309].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JONATHAN KELLERMAN is a child psychologist and best-selling writer. He's best known his character psychologist Alex Delaware. In his latest novel, his 14th book, Delaware is on hiatus. In "Billy Straight" published by Random House, his star is Billy, a 12 year old runaway, who witnesses a murder. Kellerman is a clinical professor of pediatrics and psychology at University of Southern California School of Medicine. His wife Faye Kellerman is also an accomplished mystery writer.INT. 2: Photographer FAZAL SHEIKH. (Fuz-ill) (Shake) In his new book "The Victor Weeps: Afghanistan" published by Scalo, Sheikh weaves portraits and stories together to document their experience. His 1996 book "A Sense of Common Ground,“(Scalo) presented a series of photographs taken of African refugees.REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG remarks on the Senate's awkwardness in discussing sexual contact in the Clinton impeachment trial.
Interview with Ian Kershaw; Review of Oscar Hijuelos' novel "Empress of the Splendid Season."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian IAN KERSHAW. He's written volume one of a new biography of Hitler, "Hitler: 1889-1936 Hubris" (W.W. Norton). It's being said that the new book will "become the standard Hitler biography for the next generation." In it, KERSHAW blends biography with social history to understand how Hitler was able to obtain power over the German people. The book draws on new sources: a new edition of Hitler's speeches and writings, and the recently discovered diaries of Propaganda Minister, Joseph Goebbels. KERSHAW teaches at the University of Sheffield in England. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: IAN KERSHAW continued. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Empress of the Splendid Season," the new novel by Oscar Hijuelos.

Interview with Robert Redford; Interview with John Powers; Interview with Nancy Savoca and Marianne Jean-Baptiste; Review of Linton Kwesi Johnson's album "Independent Intravenshan."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Actor, director, and founder of the Sundance Institute, ROBERT REDFORD. He discusses his work in films, and his work promoting independent films, with the festival he founded, the Sundance Film Festival. The Park City, Utah based festival runs Jan 21-31. Stations, This was originally broadcast before last year's festival on 1/12/98.INT. 1B: Film critic JOHN POWERS who is at Sundance talks about being a critic at Sundance. INT. 1C: Film director NANCY SAVOCA and actress MARIANNE JEAN-BAPTISTE talk with Terry Gross on-stage at the Sundance Film Festival. SAVOCA's film "The 24 Hour Woman" received its world premiere at the film festival. Actress JEAN-BAPTISTE stars in the film. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Interview with NANCY SAVOCA and MARIANNE JEAN-BAPTISTE cont'd.REV. : Commentator MILO MILES introduces us to England's reggae artist and record company owner Linton Kwesi Johnson. He lyrics are a mix of poetry and politics. A new two-cd set called "Independent Intravenshan" features Johnson's music in the 1980's. It is available by Island Records.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Legendary composer, producer, arranger and performer BRIAN WILSON, formerly of the Beach Boys. Last fall he released his first solo album of new material in ten years, called "Imagination" (Giant Records/Warner Bros. Records). Now there's a new companion home video which features a live performance and interview. It's also called "Imagination." (Warner/Reprise Video) (REBROADCAST from 8/20/98)INT. 2: Actress LIV ULLMAN. She's best known for her work with director Ingmar Bergman. In 1993 she made her directing debut with the film, "Sofie," based on a novel by Danish writer Henri Nathansen. She also co-wrote the screenplay. ULLMAN is directing again and collaborating again with Bergman. Her new film is "Private Confessions" -- which was written by Ingmar Bergman. (REBROADCAST from 5/11/93)REV. : Playwright, novelist and essayist ARTHUR MILLER. His plays include "All My Sons," "The Crucible," "After the Fall" and "Death of a Salesman," for which he won the 1949 Pulitzer Prize for Drama and lasting fame in American theater. "Death of a Salesman" is celebrating it's 50th anniversary this year. (REBROADCAST from 11/25/87).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: 1960's Pop singer BOBBY VEE has released a new tribute recording to the late Buddy Holly. This February 3rd marks the 40th Anniversary of Holly's death. Vee was chosen at the last minute to perform at the show Holly was scheduled to appear at. His tribute is "Down The Line" on Rock House Productions. Also a new re-issue on EMI records features his greatest hits. THIS CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Interview with BOBBY VEE cont'd.REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews three new thrillers. Basilica by William Montalbano (Putnam), Archangel by Robert Harris (Random House), The Second Angel by Philip Kerr (Henry Holt).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress HOLLY HUNTER. Her latest film is "Living Out Loud" where she stars as a doctor's wife whose husband leaves her for a younger woman. She has starred in such films as: "Raising Arizona," "Broadcast News," "Miss Firecracker," "Always," and "The Piano." She was born in Atlanta, Georgia in March 1958 and grew up on a farm, in nearby Conyers, GA.INT. 2A: HOLLY HUNTER cont'd.INT. 2B: Film critic JOHN POWERS talks about some of this year's winners at the Sundance Film Festival in Park City, Utah. Top honors for drama went to "Three Seasons" and for documentary it went to "American Movie." He also talks about some of his favorites.

Interview with Bill Murray; Review of Renee Fleming's albums "I Want Magic" and "Rusalka." February 3, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503123].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor BILL MURRAY. He stars in the new film "Rushmore" which opens nationally this weekend. MURRAY began his career in Chicago with the improv troupe Second City. He joined Saturday Night Live in its second season. After leaving SNL, he starred in such films as "Meatballs," "Stripes," "Ghostbusters," "Caddy Shack," "What About Bob?" "Groundhog Day." He received an Emmy Award for his writing in SNL and was named 1985 Star of the Year by the National Association of Theater Owners. INT. 2: Interview with BILL MURRAY cont'd. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two new albums of opera star Renee Fleming. "I Want Magic," on London Records and a new recording of Dvorak's "Rusalka" also on London.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: PIERRE-RICHARD PROSPER served as a prosecutor for the International Criminal Tribunal in Rwanda. In 1994, more than a half-million Rwandans were killed in a massacre. Last year, he successfully prosecuted the former Mayor of Taba, Rwanda for genocide. He also convicted the former official on rape charges. This is the first time rape has been recognized as an instrument of genocide. Prosper is an American attorney who worked for the Justice Department and for the Los Angeles County D.A.'s office.

INT. 2: This Monday, 2/8/99, PBS will air the documentary "The Black Press: Soldiers Without Swords." This is the first documentary to provide an in-depth examination of the history of African-American newspapers. We'll hear from the film's producer, STANLEY NELSON and from VERNON JARRETT, a black journalist featured in the project. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV. : NELSON and JARRETT

---

Interview with Billy Collins; Interview with Sekou Sundiata; Review of the film "Rushmore."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet BILLY COLLINS. His 1991 collection, "Questions about Angels" will be re-issued next month by the University of Pittsburgh Press. Collins' poetry has appeared in anthologies, textbooks, and a variety of periodicals, including Poetry, American Poetry Review, American Scholar, Harper's, Paris Review, and The New Yorker. He is professor of English at Lehman College, CUNY, and a visiting writer at Sarah Lawrence College. Originally aired 4/7/98. INT. 2: Performance poet SEKOU SUNDIATA (SAY-coo SOON-dee-ah-tah) In 1997, he released his first CD, "The Blue Oneness of Dreams" on Mouth Almighty/Mercury Records. He is one of New York's notable spoken word artists, He blends lyrics of urban dwelling with music. Born in Harlem, He is a professor of English Literature at The New School for Social Research. His second CD, tentatively titled "Urban Music" should be released sometime this year. No exact date has been set. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Rushmore." The new film starring Bill Murray.

---

Interview with Tom Blanton; Interview with Harry Shearer. February 8, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503557].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TOM BLANTON is the Director of the National Security Archive, A research library at George Washington University in Washington D.C. His department, using the Freedom of Information Act, obtained the transcripts of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. The now declassified papers detail Kissinger's secret negotiations with key world leaders such as Leonid Brezhnev, Andrei Gromyko, Mao Zedong, and Deng Xiaoping. The transcripts have been edited and published in the new book "The Kissinger Transcripts" (The New Press) THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF.

INT. 2A: Interview with TOM BLANTON cont'd. INT. 2B : Satirist HARRY SHEARER. His new book is "It's the Stupidity, Stupid: Why (Some) People hate Clinton and Why the Rest of Us Have to Watch." (The Library of Contemporary Thought, The Ballintine Publishing Group). He'll discuss the Impeachment proceedings.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalists SHERRY SONTAG and CHRISTOPHER DREW. They are the authors of the new book, "Blind Man's Bluff: The Untold Story of American Submarine Espionage" (PublicAffairs). The two spent six years researching secret submarine missions like how the Navy sent submarines wired with self destruct charges into Soviet waters to tap crucial underwater telephone cables. SONTAG covered government and international affairs for the National Law Journal and has worked at the New York Times, and DREW is a special projects editor at the New York Times.INT. 2: GALEN CRANZ is a Professor of Architecture at the University of California at Berkeley. She's the author of the new book, "The Chair: Rethinking Culture, Body, and Design" (W.W. Norton)REV. : Rock historian ED WARD tells us about the great lost British band, the Soft Boys.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist ARTHUR GOLDEN wrote the bestseller, "Memoirs of a Geisha" which was on the New York Times Bestseller List for one year. It's now out in paperback, and a movie version will be made by Stephen Spielberg. "Memoirs of a Geisha" was GOLDEN's debut as a novelist.(THIS

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A Fresh Air favorite, opera soprano DAWN UPSHAW. She has a new CD, "Dawn Upshaw sings Vernon Duke" (Nonesuch). It features Fred Hersch on piano and John Pizzarelli on guitar. We'll also hear from the producer of her new CD, TOMMY KRASKER. UPSHAW has more than two dozen albums to her credit and has become widely known for her ability to perform both in the opera as well as sing Broadway tunes. UPSHAW joined the Metropolitan Opera in 1984 and has performed at the Met. Many of the world's leading conductors have invited UPSHAW to appear with some of the finest orchestras, including The Chicago Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Berlin Philharmonic. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: DAWN UPSHAW continued. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Crime of Sheila McGough" ("McGuff") by journalist Janet Malcolm, published by Knopf.
Interview with Julia Sweeney; Review of Gomez's album "Bring it On"; Commentary on television this week. February 12, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502832].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedienne JULIA SWEENEY. The former Saturday Night Live performer, was best known for, Pat, the gender-ambiguous character. Her one woman performance piece, "God Said, Ha!" has been made into a new film. SWEENEY began working on the piece when she learned that her brother had cancer. She took him into her home to care for him while he was receiving treatment. Her parents moved in too for the time being. SWEENEY's brother eventually died, and she was diagnosed with cancer shortly before that. ((REBROADCAST FROM 11/20/96)) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Bring It On" the debut album by the English group, Gomez. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI takes a look at several television events and episodes this week ("E.R.", "Steven King's "The Storm," and the Impeachment proceedings).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer-songwriter RANDY NEWMAN. Last week he was nominated for three Academy Awards - for his "Pleasantville" and "A Bug's Life" scores, and for a song from "Babe: A Pig in the City." We will broadcast an extended version of the interview we aired late in December with NEWMAN. At that time Rhino Records released "Guilty: 30 Years of Randy Newman," a four CD box set that included an entire disc of previously unreleased tracks. Newman's most popular songs include "Short People" and "I Love L-A." He's also written music for the films, "Ragtime," "The Natural," and "Toy Story," among many others. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: RANDY NEWMAN continued. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD considers the career of Dusty Springfield, and her landmark album, "Dusty in Memphis" the 1969 album which is being re-released in April by Rhino Records, along with a collection of tracks recorded in London.
Interview with Robert Weinberg; Commentary on television dramas. February 16, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502869].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT WEINBERG is the author of the new book "One Renegade Cell: How Cancer Begins." (Basic Books) Weinberg talks about how cancer develops and what can be done to stop it. He is Director of the Oncology Research Laboratory at the Whitehead Institute in Massachusetts. He is also a professor of Biology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, MA. He is also author of "Racing to the Beginning of the Road: The Search for the Origin of Cancer." THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.INT. 2: WEINBERG continued. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI gives us his top-five favorite TV dramas. "Homicide: Life on the Streets," "NYPD Blue," "Ally McBeal," "The Practice," and "Buffy The Vampire Slayer" Interview with Laura Landro; Interview with Marisa Weiss. February 17, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503148].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LAURA LANDRO has written the new book "Survivor: Taking Control of Your Fight Against Cancer." (Simon & Schuster) In 1991, LANDRO, then a Wall Street Journal reporter, was diagnosed with leukemia. She used her journalist training to seek out the best form of treatment. She is now senior editor of entertainment, media, and marketing coverage at the Wall Street Journal. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Interview with LAURO LANDRO cont'd.INT. 3: MARISA WEISS is co-author of the new book "Living Beyond Breast Cancer: A Survivor's Guide for When Treatment Ends and the Rest of Your Life Begins." (Times Books) WEISS is a radiation oncologist at Paoli Memorial Hospital in Pennsylvania. In 1992, she formed the support network "Living Beyond Breast Cancer" to help survivors and their families. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW).
Interview with Larry Norton; Interview with Michael Lerner. February 18, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503167].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Head of Solid Tumor Oncology at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in New York, DR. LARRY NORTON. He'll discuss the newest treatments for cancer. INT. 2: DR. LARRY NORTON continued. REV. : Authority on complementary cancer treatments MICHAEL LERNER. and founder of The Commonweal Cancer Help Program. He's also the author of the book "Choices in Healing: Integrating the Best of Conventional and Complementary Approaches to Cancer" (The MIT Press). LERNER won a MacArthur Prize Fellowship for his work in public health in 1983. His research institute was featured on Bill Moyers' PBS series "Healing and the Mind."

Obituary for Jaki Byard; Review of the film "My Name is Joe." February 19, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503170].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember jazz composer and musician JAKI BYARD. ("BY-ARD") He was found dead from a gunshot wound a week ago in his house in Queens. His death was ruled a homicide. He was 76. BYARD was considered a stylistic virtuoso, who moved quickly in his playing from boogie-woogie to free jazz. He played with Charles Mingus and Rahassaan Roland Kirk and the Duke Ellington orchestra. BYARD was also the composer of the first Fresh Air theme. We remember him with an interview and concert that originally aired 6/5/87. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.INT. 2: Interview and concert with the JAKI BYARD cont'd.REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews British director Ken Loach's new film, "My Name is Joe."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TOM STANDAGE is author of "The Victorian Internet."(Walker) He explores the development of the telegraph and the parallels it has with today's internet. Standage is a science writer for The Economist in London. He lives in Greenwich, England. INT. 2: NEIL GERSHENFELD is author of "When Things Start to Think." (Henry Holt) He talks about his research into the future technology. This includes shoes with computers in them, Refrigerators that tell you when the milk is expired, and coffee cups that know how you like your coffee. He co-directs the Things That Think research consortium at the MIT Media Lab in Cambridge, Ma.

REV.: We remember film critic GENE SISKEL who was half of the Siskel and Ebert movie-review team. Two weeks ago he left their TV show to recuperate from brain tumor surgery he received last year. He died on Saturday. The duo began their TV collaboration in 1975 on Chicago Public Television. The program later became a national PBS show and then moved on to a successful commercial television run. Gene Siskel was film columnist for the Chicago Tribune. (ORIGINAL BROADCAST 3/21/96)

---

Interview with Patrick Coburn; Interview with Otis Clay. February 23, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502949].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist PATRICK COCKBURN (CO-BURN). He's been a senior Middle East Correspondent for the Financial Times and the London Independent. He's the co-author of the new book, "Out of the Ashes: The Resurrection of Saddam Hussein" (HarperCollins). He'll discuss the bombing campaign against Iraq, Saddam's hold on power, the royal family and more. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

INT. 2: PATRICK COCKBURN continued.

INT. 3 Chicago soul/blues singer OTIS CLAY. The Mississippi native got his training in gospel. As a teenager he joined the gospel/pop harmony group Blue Jay Quartet, and then worked with a number of gospel groups. In the 1960s he signed with One-derful Records and recorded the singles, "Tired of Falling In and Out of Love," "A Flame in Your Heart" and "Got to Find a Way." Later he signed with Hi Records and recorded the hit "Trying to Live My Life Without You." His newest release is "This Time Around" (Bullseye).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director and writer WES ANDERSON. The 29 year old director has a short but impressive list of films to his credit: "Bottle Rocket" and this year's "Rushmore." Both are offbeat films, with a love of character and idiosyncrasies. Both films were written by ANDERSON and his writing partner Owen Wilson. "Rushmore" stars Bill Murray.INT. 2: Novelist ELMORE LEONARD. "Be Cool" (Delacorte Press) is his newest book. It continues the story of Chili Palmer, the small time Brooklyn crook in "Get Shorty" who became a Hollywood movie producer. John Travolta played Chili in the movie version. "Be Cool" has Palmer dabbling in the music industry. It's also soon to be a new film.REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Charlotte Gray" the new novel by Sebastian Faulks the author of "Birdsong." (Random House)

Interview with Mickey Baker; Review of the television movie "Alice in Wonderland"; Interview with Paul Rudnick; Review of art exhibits featuring 17th century painting. February 25, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502953].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Guitarist MICKEY BAKER. The 74 year old musician is about to receive a pioneer award from the Rhythm and Blues Foundation for his work as a sideman on hundreds of recordings of R&B and rock & roll records from the 50's and 60's. He recorded with Ray Charles, Dinah Washington, Screamin' Jay Hawkins, Ruth Brown, and many more. The Awards banquet takes place in L.A. February 25th. (The Rhythm and Blues Foundation is located in Washington D.C.)REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews "Alice in Wonderland" on NBC this Sunday.INT. 2: Playwright, novelist, and screenwriter PAUL RUDNICK. His new play "The Most Fabulous Story Ever Told" looks at God and Creation from a gay perspective. (It's playing at the Minetta Lane Theatre in Greenwich Village in New York City). Rudnick also wrote the plays as "I Hate Hamlet," "The Naked Eye," and "Jeffrey." And he wrote the screenplays for "Addams Family Values" and "In & Out."REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews two ART shows of important 17th century painters: one by the Dutch painter Pieter de Hooch at the Wadsworth Athenaeum in Hartford thru March 14th, and a Caravaggio exhibit at Boston College through May 24th.

Obituary for Andre Dubus; Interview with Isaac Hayes; Review of the film "8 MM." February 26, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503166].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ANDRE DUBUS ("dah-bues") died this week. Dubus' short stories earned him numerous awards, including a MacArthur award, a Rea Award, and a Bernard Malamud Award from the writers group, PEN. An accident in 1986 left Dubus wheelchair bound, he later said his condition helped him get rid of his fears, it also made its way into his writing. Dubus short stories gained wide attention in the years following the accident. (REBROADCAST from 6/25/91)INT. 2: Composer and musician ISAAC HAYES. He's being recognized for his work as a songwriter by the Rhythm & Blues Foundation. HAYES rose to the top of the charts in the 1970's on the Stax label, a soul record label. He released his first solo album, "Presenting Isaac Hayes," in 1968. His next album, "Hot Buttered Soul," became a gold record in the 1970's. His 1972 soundtrack to the movie "Shaft," went platinum and won an Oscar for "Theme From Shaft." HAYES is also an actor, who has held roles in the movies "Robin Hood: Men in Tights," "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka," "Posse," and "It Could Happen to You." He's also a regular voice (as the Chef) on the cable animation show "South Park." (REBROADCAST from 7/28/94)REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "8 MM" the new film starring Nicholas Cage.

Interview with Gail Godwin; Review of Lee Williams and the Spiritual QC's album "Love Will Go All the way." March 1, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503145].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer GAIL GODWIN. Her latest novel "Evensong" (Ballintine) is about the inner spirituality of a modern woman and continues the story of Margaret Bonner began in "Father Melancholy's Daughter." GODWIN's other books include "The Odd Woman," "Violet Clay," and "A Mother and Two Daughters." GODWIN is the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship and the 1981 Award in Literature from the National Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters. (CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE Interview with Marc Norman and Tom Stoppard; Review of the Pandelis Karayorgis Trio's album "Heart and Sack." March 2, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503158].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Screenwriters MARC NORMAN and TOM STOPPARD. The two wrote the screenplay for "Shakespeare in Love" which has been nominated for an Academy Award for best original screenplay. NORMAN'S other screenwriting credits include "The Aviator" and "Waterworld." STOPPARD is also the playwright of "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead," and "Travesties." His screenwriting credits include: "Brazil," "The Empire of the Son," and "Billy Bathgate." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: MARC NORMAN and TOM STOPPARD continued.REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Heart and Sack" the new release by the Pandelis Karayorgis Trio (Leo Lab label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Tuvan throat singer ONDAR and producer RALPH LEIGHTON. Tuvan throat singing is a biphonic sound in which the performer produces two or three distinct tones at the same time. It originates from Tuva. LEIGHTON co-produced ONDAR's debut CD, "Back Tuva Future" (Warner Bros/Reprise) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: Singer ONDAR and producer RALPH LEIGHTONINT. 3 Writer EVAN HUNTER. Under his own name he is the author of "The Blackboard Jungle," and "Privileged Conversation." He also wrote the screenplay for Alfred Hitchcock's film "The Birds" (based on the Daphne Du Maurier short story). (WE WILL TALK WITH HIM AT ANOTHER TIME ABOUT HIS WORK WITH HITCHCOCK) Under the pseudonym ED MCBAIN, he is the author of a series of mystery novels for which he won the British Interview with Christian Tomuschat; Interview with Kate Doyle; Interview with Jennifer Schirmer. March 4, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502204].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Professor of international law CHRISTIAN TOMUSCHAT, headed the Historical Clarification Commission on Guatemala, a United Nations-supported truth commission on human rights abuses in Guatemala during that country's 36 year civil war. A peace treaty was signed in Guatemala in 1996. The report was issued last month. It finds that the U.S. agencies knew far more about atrocities committed by the Guatemalan Army and its death squads than the United States acknowledged. It also finds that Guatemalan government forces were responsible for 93 percent of the 200,000 Guatemalans killed during the war. INT. 2: Analyst for the National Security Archives, KATE DOYLE. She directed the Guatemalan Documentation Project, which lead to the declassification of documents from the CIA, the State and Defense Departments on Guatemala. These documents were handed over to the commission and filled the gap left by Guatemalan military which claimed its files had been lost. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER)INT. 3: Political anthropologist JENNIFER SCHIRMER. Beginning in 1986, she interviewed Guatemalan military officials of all different levels, getting them to talk about their participation in atrocities. Her new book based on that research is "The Guatemalan Military Project: A Violence called Democracy." (University of Pennsylvania Press) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The documentary musical theatre "Band in Berlin" tells the story of "The Comedian Harmonists" a popular sextet vocal group in Germany in the late '20s and early 30's. By 1935 the group was forced to disband by the Nazis because half of the group was Jewish. "Band in Berlin" opens on Broadway, March 7th. It was created by Susan Feldman with Wilbur Pauley and stars the New York-based contemporary sextet, THE HUDSON SHAD. The group performs some of their songs in the Fresh Air studio, and Terry will talk with the creators.(REBROADCAST from 3/16/98)INT. 2: Playwright NEIL SIMON. He's about to receive the U.S. Comedy Arts Festival Writers Award in Aspen. This is the Festival's 5th annual event. SIMON's plays and movies include, "Barefoot in the Park," "The Odd Couple," "The Goodbye Girl," "The Out-of-Towners," and "The Sunshine Boys." He won a Pulitzer Prize for his play "Lost in Yonkers." Terry talked with him after his 1996 memoir, "Rewrites" was published. (REBROADCAST from 10/17/96).

(THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)REV. : NONE

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Host GARRISON KEILLOR of Minnesota Public Radio's "A Prairie Home Companion." His new book has caused quite a stir. "Me: by Jimmy (Big Boy) Valente as told to Garrison Keillor" (Viking) satirizes Minnesota's new state governor, and former professional wrestler, Jesse Ventura. The governor, who plans to write his own autobiography, called KEILLOR's book "cheating" and proposed gradually eliminating state funding for Minnesota's public radio and TV. He also singled out KEILLOR saying he'd like to see his W-2. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF).INT. 2: GARRISON KEILLOR continued. REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews the work of two contemporary klezmer bands, "Smash, Clap!" (Tzadik records) by Naftule's Dream, and "Roots & Culture" (Triple Interview with Burkhard Bilger; Interview with Jon Macks; Review of the Black Crowes' album "By Your Side." March 9, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502744].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist BURKHARD BILGER. He's currently working on a new book about clandestine Southern traditions (to be published by Scribner's). For now, his article "Enter the Chicken" appears in Harper's Magazine (March 1999). It's about cockfighting in Louisiana, where it's legal, but still secret. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)INT. 2: Writer for The Tonight Show with Jay Leno, JON MACKS. He has a new book that spoofs books about spiritualism. It's called "Heaven Talks Back" (Simon & Schuster). REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "By Your Side" the 5th new album by The Black Crowes.

Interview with Janet Leigh; Interview with Evan Hunter. March 10, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503161].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress JANET LEIGH talks about working in Alfred Hitchcock's most infamous film "Psycho". She starred as Marion Crane who was Norman Bates kills in the infamous shower scene. Leigh wrote about the film in the 1995 book "Psycho: Janet Leigh Behind the Scenes of The Classic Thriller" Also The Museum of Modern Art (MOMA) next month will feature the exhibit "Alfred Hitchcock: Behind the Silhouette". INT. 2: Crime novelist EVAN HUNTER talks about writing the screenplay for Alfred Hitchcock's classic film "The Birds". In 1997, he wrote "Me and Hitch" detailing his working relationship with Hitchcock. He is the author of "The Blackboard Jungle," and "Privileged Conversation." Under the pseudonym ED MCBAIN, he is the author of a series of mystery novels for which he won the British Crime Writers Association's highest award, the Diamond Dagger, and the Mystery Writers of America's Interview with Max Frankel; Commentary on Elia Kazan and the Academy Awards; Review of Sue Miller's and Marnie Mueller's books "While I was Gone" and "The Climate of the Country." March 11, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503159].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Executive Editor of The New York Times MAX FRANKEL talks about his life in one of the world's most influential papers. His new book is "Max Frankel: The Times of My Life and My Life with The Times." (Random House) Frankel began writing for The Times as a stringer while at Columbia University in New York City. Over the next half of century, he rose to become Executive Editor a post he retired in 1994. He received the Pulitzer Prize for international reporting in 1973. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) REV: Film critic JOHN POWERS comments on the plan to award Elia Kazan an honorary Academy Award. Kazan is best known for his films "On The Waterfront," and "A Streetcar Named Desire." The award is controversial because Kazan turned over names of suspected communist members during the 1950s. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "While I Was Gone" by Sue Miller and "The Climate of the Country" by Marnie Mueller.

---

Interview with Philip Gourevitch; Interview with David Duncan; Commentary on Europanto. March 12, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503160].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist PHILIP GOUREVITCH (Goo-RAY-vitch) is a staff writer for "The New Yorker" and is author of the 1998 book, "We wish to inform you that tomorrow we will be killed with our families: stories from Rwanda" (Farrar Straus and Giroux). This month, his book was awarded the National Book Critics Circle Award for best non-fiction. It chronicles the genocide in Rwanda in 1994 and it's aftermath. That spring and summer at least 800,000 people were killed in just one hundred days when the Hutu led government implemented a policy of murder against the minority Tutsis. (REBROADCAST from 10/7/98).(THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2:
Fresh Air With Terry Gross

Photographer DAVID DOUGLAS DUNCAN. "Life" magazine has called him perhaps the best war photographer since Matthew Brady. A photo retrospective featuring his work opened this month at the Lyndon B. Johnson Presidential Library in Austin, Texas. His pictures are also featured in the book, "This Is War!" which portrays the Korean conflict in words and pictures. (REBROADCAST from 7/2/90).

REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG reflects on Europanto, a form of language aimed at allowing Europeans to talk with each other without using English all the time.

Interview with Queen Latifah; Interview with Charlotte Carter; Review of the television show "Payne." March 15, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502740].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress and rapper QUEEN LATIFAH (La-TEE-fah). She's written a new memoir, "Ladies First: Revelations of a Strong Woman" (William Morrow). At the age of 19 she was the first female solo rapper to have a major record deal. She also had breakthrough roles in TV's "Living Single" and in Spike Lee's "Jungle Fever." She also had a lead role in the recent film "Living Out Loud." Her latest CD is "Order in the Court" (Motown). THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF.

INT. 2: Mystery writer CHARLOTTE CARTER. She made her debut last year with "Rhode Island Red" featuring heroine Nanette Hayes, a jazz saxophonist. CARTER's second novel featuring Hayes is "Coq Au Vin" (Mysterious Press/Warner).

REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews tonight's debut of the CBS sitcom "Payne". It was inspired by the British hit "Fawlty Towers."

Interview with Julianne Baird; Interview with Andrew Rangell; Review of Wendy Lesser's memoir "The Amateur March 16, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502857].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soprano singer JULIANNE BAIRD. Her new CD is "Fanny Mendelssohn Lieder" (Newport Classic). She is an expert musicologist of 18th century European baroque music. But she also explores music of other periods, including contemporary works and 19th century popular tunes. She recently toured France, Poland, Austria, Germany and Holland in recital. Her discography includes more than 85 recordings. She is on the faculty of Rutgers University in New Jersey.

INT. 2: Pianist ANDREW
RANGELL (Ran-JELL) has emerged as one of America's best interpreters of the works of Beethoven and Bach. His newest CD is "Andrew Rangell: A Recital of Intimate Works" (Dorian) It includes six Beethoven works, a work of Bach and others. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Amateur: An Independent Life of Letters" (Pantheon) a memoir by Wendy Lesser, the founder and co-editor of "The Threepenny Review" a journal of literature and arts which will soon celebrate its 20th anniversary.

Interview with David Goodman; Interview with Bruce Aidells; Commentary on English in Europe. March 17, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502859].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Nancy Marchand; Interview with Allen Barra. March 18, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502861].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress NANCY MARCHAND talks with TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI. She's best known for her reoccurring role as Mrs. Pynchon on the TV series "Lou Grant." Recently she had a role in HBO's series "The Sopranos." MARCHAND's film credits include "Jefferson in Paris," "The Naked Gun," and
"The Bostonians." INT. 2: TERRY GROSS talks with writer ALLEN BARRA ("Bear-ah"), the author of "Inventing Wyatt Earp: His Life and Many Legends" (Carroll & Graff Publishers). It tells the story of the famous sometime lawman and the shootout at the O.K. Corral at Tombstone, Arizona where Wyatt Earp was the only man left standing. BARRA is a sports columnist for the Wall Street Journal. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW) REV. : ALLEN BARRA continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer JOHN BARRY. He's best known for his 11 James Bond scores, including "Goldfinger," and "Thunderball." BARRY has won five Oscars: for the song and score of "Born Free," and for scores for "Lion in Winter," "Out of Africa," and "Dances with Wolves." He has a new CD compilation of his work, "John Barry: The Hits & The Misses" (Play it Again label). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: JOHN BARRY continued. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The West Coast Jazz Box" (Contemporary label).

---

Interview with Stephen Schiff; Interview with Natalie Angier; Review of Built to Spill's album "Keep it Like a Secret." March 24, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502860].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Screenwriter STEPHEN SCHIFF talks about writing the scripts for "True Crime" and "Deep End of the Ocean." He first established his reputation as a film critic for Vanity Fair and Fresh Air. He also wrote film essays and profiles for The New Yorker. He served an unprecedented three terms as chairman of the National Society of Film Critics. His first screenplay was for the most recent film adaptation of Lolita. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2a: STEPHEN SCHIFF continued. INT. 2b: New York Times science writer NATALIE ANGIER talks about her new book "Woman: An Intimate Geography." (Houghton Mifflin) She is also a Pulitzer Prize recipient for her writing in The Times. Her other books include: "The Beauty of the Beastly," and "Natural Obsessions." She lives in Takoma Park, Maryland. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new CD by Built to Spill called "Keep it Like a Secret." (Warner Bros)
Interview with Max Roach; Interview with Red Rodney; Interview with Steve Lacy. March 25, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503242].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: The American Jazz Museum in Kansas City, Missouri is holding a symposium on musician Charlie Parker, March 25th-28th. We'll feature archive interviews with musicians who played with Parker: Bebop drummer and composer MAX ROACH. He's been at the forefront of contemporary jazz for the past 40 years. He played with a number of bop groups in New York during the 1940s with quintets led by Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie. Later, a quintet led by him and Clifford Brown, came to epitomize the sound known as hard bop. During the Civil Rights movement, Roach was composing some of jazz' strongest political statements. (REBROADCAST from 6/25/87)

INT 1B: Jazz trumpeter RED RODNEY. Rodney's played with the greats...Benny Goodman, Woody Herman, Charlie Parker, among many others. He was one of the first white trumpeters to show a grasp for bebop. He died in 1994. (REBROADCAST from 6/15/90)

INT. 2 Soprano saxophonist STEVE LACY. He's on a North American tour with his trio through the end of August. LACY is considered "the foremost interpreter of Thelonius Monk" and in fact trained and performed with Monk when he was in his mid-20's. LACY is also known as the "father of the modern soprano saxophone." He is known for his unmistakable sound, as well as being one of the most prolific sax players performing today. (REBROADCAST from 11/20/97)

Interview with Clarence Williams; Review of the film "EDtv"; Interview with Ruth Reichl; Review of the television show "Futurama." March 26, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502674].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor CLARENCE WILLIAMS III. He is best known as the bell-bottomed clad hippie cop on the T.V. series "The ModSquad." Williams has also appeared in numerous TV shows such as "The Cosby Show" and "Hill Street Blues", and films such as "Purple Rain" and "Sugar Hill." WILLIAMS plays a mortician in the horror film "Tales From The Hood." A new film based on the T.V. series opens nationally today. Williams is not in the film. Originally aired 6/12/95. REV. 1: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new film "EDtv." It opens in theaters nationally today. INT. 2: Food critic RUTH REICHL ("RYE-shall"). On April 30, 1999 she will leave The New York Times and become Editor and Chief of Gourmet magazine. Her book "Tender at the Bone: Growing up at the Table," has just been published in paperback.
(Broadway Books) REICHL has been the restaurant critic for The New York Times since 1993. Prior to that, she reviewed restaurants for the Los Angeles Times. She ran her own restaurant in Berkeley, California in the 1970s. Originally aired 6/29/98. REV. 1: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews this Sunday night's debut of Matt Groening's "Futurama." Groening is the creator of "The Simpsons."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: To discuss the situation in Kosovo and the NATO bombings, a talk with JULIA GLYN-PICKETT the spokeswoman for Belgrade station Radio B92, the leading independent radio station in Serbia, one of three provinces of the Republic of Yugoslavia. Earlier this week the Yugoslavian government banned the station from broadcasting and journalists were forbidden to talk with foreign media about the situation. The government also expelled journalists from Britain, France, the U.S., and Germany. The journalist will speak to us from London. INT. 2: The New York Times' ROGER COHEN ("Coan") puts in a call from Berlin. COHEN reported from Bosnia during the war there. He's the author of the book, "Hearts Grown Brutal: Sagas of Sarajevo." REV. : ROGER COHEN continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former hostage TERRY ANDERSON talks about his 100-million dollar lawsuit against the government of Iran. He alleges Iran supported the Islamic extremists who kidnapped him and held him hostage for seven-years. The former Associated Press Middle East correspondent now teaches journalism at Ohio University. The lawsuit was filed last week in U.S. District Court in Washington. The Iranian government denies any role in his captivity. We'll first listen back to an excerpt from ANDERSON's 1993 (12/28/93) interview with Terry. And then we have their current interview. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: TERRY ANDERSON continued. REV. : We remember jazz singer JOE WILLIAMS who died yesterday at the age of 80. WILLIAMS begin singing professionally at age 17, influenced by Erskine Tate, Jimmy Noone and Coleman Hawkins.
In 1954, he became Count Basie's number one singer and was perhaps the principal reason the band was the dominate big band of the 50s and 60s. His hits include "Every Day (I Have the Blues)" and "All Right, Ok, You Win." He started performing as a soloist in 1961. (REBROADCAST from 6/20/89)

---

Interview with Scott Ritter; Review of TLC's album "Fan Mail." March 31, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503114].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1&2: Former United Nation's Chief weapons inspector SCOTT RITTER spent seven-years hunting down Saddam Hussein's weapons of mass destruction. He has written about his experience in "Endgame: Solving the Iraq Problem Once and for All." (Simon and Schuster) He resigned his U.N. post in August 1998 claiming the U.N Security Council and the U.S. Government had fatally undermined his team's ability to do its job. Ritter served as an Intelligence officer in the U.S. Marines for eight-years. He served as arms control inspector in the former Soviet Union and on the staff of General Norman Schwarzkopf during the Gulf War. Ritter lives in Hastings-on-Hudson, New York. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews T.L.C's newest CD "Fan Mail".

---

Interview with Craig Monson; Interview with Deborah Roberts; Review of Lisa Belkin's book "Show Me a Hero." April 1, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503385].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Music historian CRAIG MONSON talks about 17th century nun Lucrezia Vizzana who was part of a little known group of women composers. MONSON is author of the new book "Disembodied Voices: Music and Culture in an Early Modern Italian Convent." (University of California Press) He is a Professor of Music at Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri.INT. 2: Soprano singer DEBORAH ROBERTS sings on the new CD "Lucrezia Vizzana: Musica Secreta." It features music composed by Vizzana and other 17th century nuns in Italy.REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Show Me a Hero : A Tale of Murder, Suicide, Race, and Redemption" by New York Times reporter Lisa Belkin. It examines the fallout from a federal court order requiring Yonkers, NY, to desegregate by moving hundreds of its poor minority residents into public housing on the middle-class side of town.

Interview with Huston Smith; Review of the television show "The Sopranos." April 2, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884163].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Fred Hiatt; Interview with John Dower; Commentary on Arthur Alexander. April 5, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884162].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist FRED HIATT is a member of the Editorial page staff for the Washington Post. He's also the paper's former Russia correspondent. He'll discuss Russia's position on the Serbs, and the NATO bombings.INT. 2: Historian JOHN DOWER is the author of "Embracing Defeat: Japan in the Wake of World War II" (W.W. Norton) about the aftermath of the war on Japan, and the American military occupation. DOWER says he wanted to capture a sense of what it meant to start over in a "ruined world" for people at all levels of society and how that time became a "touchstone for affirming a commitment to 'peace and democracy.'" DOWER is the Elting E. Morrison Professor of History at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.REV. : Rock historian ED WARD remembers Arthur Alexander.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Our first Ambassador at Large for War Crimes Issues, DAVID SCHEFFER. As such, he looks into violations of international humanitarian law anywhere in the world. He's just returned from Macedonia where his mission was to see what conditions the Kosovo refugees were exposed to, and to determine the nature of the crimes committed against them. SCHEFFER is a senior aide to U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.)

INT. 2: Interview with DAVID SCHEFFER cont’d. REV. : Interview with DAVID SCHEFFER cont’d.

Interview with Peter Mehlman; Interview with Marvin and Alan Rosen. April 7, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884380].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former writer and producer for "Seinfeld," PETER MEHLMAN. Thanks to him, the terms "shrinkage" and "Yada-Yada" as used on "Seinfeld" became a part of popular culture. Now MEHLMAN has created the new sitcom "It's Like, You Know" about a transplanted New Yorker in L.A., and the clash of East and West culture. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.)

INT. 2: From "Junior's" Restaurant in Brooklyn, MARVIN and ALAN ROSEN. MARVIN has collaborated on a new book about his family's Brooklyn restaurant renowned for its rich and creamy cheesecake. MARVIN inherited the restaurant from his father who opened it in 1950. ALAN is Marvin's nephew. The book is called "Welcome to Junior's: Remembering Brooklyn with Recipes and Memories from Its Favorite Restaurant" (William Morrow). REV. : MARVIN and ALAN ROSEN.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ANTHONY LOYD is a reporter for The Times of London. He left Kosovo shortly after the NATO attack on Yugoslavia began. He talks about what Kosovo was like just before the war. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: The CIA's Public Affairs Director, WILLIAM HARLOW. The retired Navy Captain has written a new novel, a political-military thriller. It's called "Circle William" (Scribner) and has as one of its heroes a White House press secretary. HARLOW was also a public affairs officer in the Navy Secretary's office and was former White House national security aid under Reagan and Bush.

Interview with Gerry Mulligan; Review of the television show "The Awful Truth"; Interview with Bucky Pizzarelli; Review of the film "Go." April 9, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503115].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The late jazz saxophonist, GERRY MULLIGAN. This week, which marks what would have been his 72nd birthday, The Library of Congress opened a permanent exhibit celebrating his life and work. MULLIGAN died in 1996. The exhibit includes his favorite saxophone, photographs, and musical manuscripts. He's been an innovator in modern jazz orchestration. Early in his career he was staff arranger for Gene Krupa's big band. In 1949 he collaborated with Gil Evans and Miles Davis in the Nonet. The nine-piece band shook up jazz arrangers and launched the era of so-called cool jazz. He achieved international acclaim when he started a "pianoless" quartet with trumpeter Chet Baker in the early 1950's. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews this weekend's premiere of Michael Moore's new series "The Awful Truth" on the Bravo channel. Moore is best known for his film "Roger and Me" INT. 2: Jazz guitarist BUCKY PIZZARELLI (Pitz-uh-RELL-ee). On his newest album "Contrasts" (Arbors) he teams up with his son John Pizzarelli. Bucky Pizzarelli has been a fixture in jazz and the studios since the early '50s. Self-taught, Pizzarelli has long been a master of the seven-string guitar. In 1952 Pizzarelli joined the staff of NBC and 12 years later he switched to ABC; in addition he worked with the Three Sounds (1956-57) and had several tours with Benny Goodman. In the 1970s he was more active in jazz, co-leading a duo with George Barnes and working with Zoot Sims, Bud Freeman and Stephane Grappelli among many others. Pizzarelli has since kept up a busy recording schedule and plays often at jazz parties. Bucky has also recorded with his son John Pizzarelli on an occasional basis since the early '80s. REV. Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the film "Go." Set over a 24-hour period in L.A. and Las Vegas, this comedy is told from the perspectives of three parties involved in outrageous events.

Interview with Rebecca Kilgore and Dave Frishberg; Interview with Deborah Grace Winer; Interview with Rebecca Kilgore and Dave Frishberg; Interview with Philip Furia; Interview with Rebecca Kilgore and Dave Frishberg; Interview with Cy Coleman. April 12, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503501].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember the late lyricist DOROTHY FIELDS in the first of an on-going series on American popular song. Born in 1905, She was the only woman in the pre-rock era to sustain major critical and popular acclaim as a songwriter. First, We feature singer BECKY KILGORE and pianist DAVE FRISHBERG perform music by Dorothy Fields. Then biographer DEBORAH GRACE WINER talks about Fields life and music. Winer is author of "On the Sunny Side of the Street: The Life and Lyrics of Dorothy Fields." INT. 2: PHILIP FURIA talks specifically about the lyrics DOROTHY FIELDS wrote. Furia is Chairman of the English Department at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. He is also author of "Poets of Tin Pan Alley." Then more BECKY KILGORE and pianist DAVE FRISHBERG perform her music. And composer and Broadway director CY COLEMAN talks about working with Dorothy Fields in the 1960s and 70's with Dorothy Fields. They collaborated on the Broadway shows "Sweet Charity," and "Seesaw." Coleman is the composer and director of the current Broadway show, The Life.

Interview with Steven Okazaki; Interview with David E. Smith. April 13, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503383].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker STEVEN OKAZAKI talks about his movie "Black Tar Heroin: The Dark End of The Street." It will show on HBO tomorrow night 4/14. The film tracks five teenage addicts in San Francisco over a two-year period. As a filmmaker, Okazaki won an Academy Award in 1991 for his film "Survivors" which retold the stories of several Hiroshima survivors. He also directed "Living on Tokyo Time" a comedy about a Japanese dishwasher. He lives in Berkeley, California. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Interview with STEVEN OKAZAKI cont'd. INT. 3 DR. DAVID E. SMITH is Founder and President of the Haight Ashbury Free Clinics in San Francisco. He is a specialist in treating drug addicts including heroin. He talks about the rise in heroin's popularity in the 1990's.

Interview with Michael Isikoff; Interview with Serge Schmemann. April 14, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503571].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Newsweek writer MICHAEL ISIKOFF has written the new book "Uncovering Clinton: A Reporter's Story." (Crown) It details his investigation into the Monica Lewinsky affair. Before joining Newsweek in 1994, he wrote for The Washington Post. He also serves as news analyst for MSNBC and is a frequent guest on NBC's Meet the Press. Isikoff lives in Chevy Chase, Maryland. INT. 2: Journalist SERGE SCHMEMANN is foreign editor and former Moscow Bureau Chief for The New York Times, and a Pulitzer Prize winner. He'll discuss the situation in Kosovo, and Russia's response. And he'll talk about his own family's exodus from Russia, pushed out by the Russian Revolution. His new book "Echoes of a Native Land: Two Centuries of a Russian Village." SCHMEMANN is the descendant of several families of the higher Russian nobility. He was born in Paris. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)REV.

Interview with Aleksa Sjilas; Interview with Maarten Merkelbach; Interview with James R. Ackley. April 15, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503034].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Belgrade writer and historian ALEKSA DJILAS (AL-leck-SAS Gel-lass), talks about the NATO bombing of his city. He talks to us by phone from his home in central Belgrade. He says many thousands of Serbs have relocated to neighboring countries to escape the bombing. Also, He says the majority of Serbs are not using available bomb shelters because the air strikes last for up to twelve hours. Djilas is the author of the book The Contested Country: Yugoslav Unity and Communist Revolution. And he's a former research associate at Harvard's Russian Research Center. INT. 2: MAARTEN (mar-tin) MERKELBACH is head of Tracing Services for the International Committee of the Red Cross. He is directing the use of a newly designed computer system to match up family members of Kosovo refugees separated during the exodus. We talked with him from Skopje, Macedonia.INT 3: RANDY ACKLEY is a Public Information Delegate for the ICRC. He talks with us from a refugee camp in Macedonia. He talks about the conditions in the camp.

Interview with A. Scott Berg; Review of James Cunningham's novel "The Hours"; Interview with John McPhee; Review of the films "La vie rêvée des anges" and "Seul contre tous." April 16, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503503].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This week the winners of the Pulitzer Prize were announced. Among them, A. SCOTT BERG for his biography "Lindbergh" (Putnam) Berg was the first and only writer to be given unrestricted access to the Lindbergh archives. Charles Lindbergh broke records with the first transatlantic flight from New York to Paris in 1927. In 1932, his 20-month old son was kidnapped and later found dead. The resulting hysteria sent the Lindberghs into exile. BERG opens up the files of this private time, discovering Lindbergh's medical work developing the precursor to the artificial heart and his fight to save the whales off the coasts of Japan and Peru. REV: Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Hours" (FS&G) Michael Cunningham's literary tribute to Virgina Woolf. Originally aired 11/18/1998INT. 3: Writer JOHN McPHEE has won this year's Pulitzer Prize for General Non-Fiction for his book "Annals of the Former World." (Farrar, Straus and Giroux) Some of his best-known books include A Sense of Where You Are, about Rhodes Scholar and basketball star Bill Bradley, Coming into the Country, about Alaska, and Pieces of the Frame," about curator Thomas Hoving and the world of high art. This originally aired 8/11/89.REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews two new French films "The Dreamlife of Angels" and "I Stand Alone." Both films take place in the city of Lille, France. The Dreamlife of Angels received Best Actress (for both Elodie Bouchez and Natacha Regnier) at the 1998 Cannes Film Festival.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film producers DUSTIN HOFFMAN and TONY GOLDWYN. Their new film is "A Walk on the Moon" by Miramax. Goldwyn, who also directed the film, is the grandson of studio executive Samuel Goldwyn of MGM. Dustin Hoffman is a veteran actor whose first big break was starring in "The Graduate." Some of the films he's starred in include: "All The President's Men," "Kramer vs. Kramer," "Rainman," and "Tootsie." THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Interview with DUSTIN HOFFMAN and TONY GOLDWYN cont'd. REV. : Interview with DUSTIN HOFFMAN and TONY GOLDWYN cont'd.

---

Interview with Thomas L. Friedman; Review of Clifford Jordan's album "These Are My Roots April 20, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884378].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: New York Times Foreign Affairs columnist THOMAS L. FRIEDMAN is the author of the new book "The Lexus and The Olive Tree: Understanding Globalization." (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) Friedman won two Pulitzer Prizes for his reporting in Lebanon and Israel. His 1989 book "From Beirut to Jerusalem" which was on the NYT's bestseller list for 12-months won the National Book Award for non-fiction. In January 1995, he became The Times Foreign Affairs Columnist. He lives in Bethesda, Maryland. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Brandeis University. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2: Interview with THOMAS FRIEDMAN cont'd. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the re-issue of "These are my Roots: "Clifford Jordan plays Leadbelly" by Koch Jazz. It originally came out in 1966.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SALMAN RUSHDIE has written the new novel "The Ground Beneath Her Feet." (Holt) It is his sixth novel but the first to be set largely in the United States. His previous novel "Satanic Versus" offended many in Iran which resulted in the government calling for his death. Rushdie lived in hiding for years. The Iranian government has since rescinded its "fatwah." INT. 2: Interview with SALMAN RUSHDIE cont'd. REV.: Rock historian ED WARD reviews "The Bootleg Series Vol. 4: Bob Dylan Live 1966: The 'Royal Albert Hall' Concert" (Columbia). The series documents his controversial world tour when he plugged in his electric guitar. The Royal Albert Hall concert took place in Manchester, England.

Interview with Mercer Ellington, Part 1; Interview with Dave Frishberg; Interview with Max Roach; Interview with Dave Brubeck; Interview with Mercer Ellington, Part 2; Interview with Tony Bennett. April 22, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502724].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Monica Lewinsky; Interview with Robert Pinsky; Interview with Philip Levine; Review of the film "Election." April 23, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502581].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MONICA LEWINSKY discusses her relationship with the President. Her new book is "Monica's Story" (St. Martins). INT. 1B: Poem by poet laureate ROBERT PINSKY. INT. 2: Pulitzer prize-winning poet PHILIP LEVINE. He grew up in Detroit and worked in the factories as a young man. He's probably best known for his 1992 book of poems about the working class, "What Work Is," (Knopf) which won a National Book Award. He has several volumes of poetry as well as a sort of memoir. He won the Pulitzer for his collection, "The Simple Truth" (Knopf). His latest collection of poems is "The Mercy" (Knopf). (REBROADCAST from 7/22/91) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new comedy "Election" about an election in a highschool.

Interview with David Hare; Interview with Stephen Trask and Michael Cerveris; Commentary on Duke Ellington. April 26, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502373].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British playwright DAVID HARE. He's had four works on Broadway in the past year: "The Judas Kiss" starring Liam Neeson, "The Blue Room" starring Nicole Kidman, "Amy's View" starring Judy Dench, and "Via Dolorosa" a one-man show in which he stars himself. INT. 2: From the off-Broadway musical, "Hedwig and the Angry Inch" composer-lyricist STEPHEN TRASK, and actor/singer MICHAEL CERVERIS. The musical is about a failed rock singer who happens to be a German transsexual. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD corrects some common misconceptions about Duke Ellington.
Interview with Michael Ondaatje; Interview with Mark Linkous; Commentary on Duke Ellington. April 27, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502370].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Poet and novelist MICHAEL ONDAATJE (on-DAH-chay). He won Britain's highest literary prize, the Booker Prize, for his novel set in post World War II, "The English Patient," which was made into a film. ONDAATJE was born in Cyelon (now Sri Lanka), emigrated to England, and now lives in Canada. He has a new book of poetry, "Handwriting" (Knopf)INT. 2: MARK LINKOUS of the rock band Sparklehorse. He writes, sings, and plays nearly all the music. They debuted in 1995 with the album, "Vivadixiesubmarinetransmissionplot." Their latest release is "Good Morning Spider" (Capitol).REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD continues his look at Duke Ellington.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedienne JOY BEHAR ("BAY-har"). She can be seen regularly on the ABC women's talk show, "The View." She also appears as a neurotic patient on "Dr. Katz: Professional Therapist for Comedy Central." She has a new book, "Joy Shtick: or What is the Existential Vacuum and Does it Come with Attachments?" (Hyperion)REV.1: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Dreamland" (HarperCollins) the new novel by Kevin Baker about New York City in the early 1900s.INT. 2: Pulitzer prize-winning poet CHARLES SIMIC. He is part Serbian, and was born in Belgrade. He emigrated to the U.S. as a teenager over 40 years ago. His new collection of poems is "Jackstraws" (Harcourt Brace). SIMIC also edited and translated an anthology of Serbian poetry, "The Horse Has Six Legs" (Graywolf Press, 1992)REV. 2: Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews a new recording of Pierre Boulez conducting Arnold Schoenberg's Pierrot Lunaire. (on Deutsche Grammophon).

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Nobel-prize winning biologist, Dr. David Baltimore talks about where we are in the search for an HIV vaccine. He also talks about recent studies and what they've told us about the disease. Baltimore heads the National Institutes of health advisory committee for AIDS Vaccine. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: DAVID BALTIMORE continued.REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews the world premiere of Tod Machover's "Resurrection" performed by the Houston Grand Opera

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ANDRE DUBUS III. He is the son of the celebrated writer Andre Dubus, who died earlier this year. He's the author of the new novel, "House of Sand And Fog" (W.W. Norton). DUBUS is the author of two previous books, and he teaches writing at Tufts University and Emerson College. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: ANDRE DUBUS III, continued.REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new CD "The Mountain" (E-Squared) by Steve Earle which pays tribute to bluegrass pioneer Bill Monroe.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The majority of today's show will be devoted to new research on prevention of heart disease:
1) Immunologist at the Ontario Cancer Institute in Toronto, JOSEF PENNINGER. He recently led a study on the link between bacterial infection and heart disease. The study focused on the chlamydia bacteria which 95% of people are exposed to during their lives. The study suggests that heart disease can be prevented by treatment of antibiotics. The study was reported in the journal Science in February.
2) DR. KILMER MCCULLY takes another look at the cholesterol theory of heart disease in his new book, "The Heart Revolution: The B Vitamin Breakthrough that Lowers Homocysteine, Cuts Your Risk of Heart Disease, and Protects Your Health" (HarperCollins). MCCULLY writes that the real culprit in heart disease is the amino acid homocysteine which is found in the blood. Too much of it can lead to damaged arteries, leaving them susceptible to cholesterol and fat deposits. MCCULLY writes that vitamin B deficiency leads to too much homocysteine. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SEOND HALF OF THE SHOW)
INT. 2: DR. DEAN ORNISH discusses the link between emotional health and prevention and treatment of heart disease. His new book is "Love & Survival: 8 Pathways to Intimacy and Health." (HarperPerennial). ORNISH is Clinical Professor of Medicine at the School of Medicine, University of California, San Francisco and founder of the Osher Center for Integrative Medicine. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG reports from Rome where he's been watching the coverage on the NATO bombings, and the Kosovo refugees.
Interview with Dave Brubeck; Interview with Ray Suarez. May 6, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502446].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz pianist/composer DAVE BRUBECK. He turns 80 next year and has been recording for 50 years. There are several new collections of his work: "The Dave Brubeck Collection" (Columbia/Legacy) which reissues five of his classic out-of-print LPs, and "Dave Brubeck: Time Signature: A Career Retrospective" (Columbia/Legacy). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: The host of NPR's Talk of the Nation, RAY SUAREZ. He's the author of the new book, "The Old Neighborhood: What We Lost in the Great Suburban Migration, 1966-1999" (The Free Press) REV. : RAY SUAREZ continued.

Interview with Will Friedwald; Interview with Peter Mintun; Interview with Stanley Donen. May 10, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502371].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today marks the Centennial of Fred Astaire's birthday. First, we'll hear from WILL FRIEDWALD on Astaire's singing ability. He says while Astaire didn't have the best voice, he was still wonderful to listen to. Friedwald is author of several books on Singers including: The Tony Bennett autobiography "The Good Life," "Sinatra! The Song is You: A Singer's Art," and "Jazz Singing :America's Great Voices from Bessie Smith to Bebop and Beyond"INT. 2: Pianist PETER MINTUN talks about how Fred Astaire's movies impacted his career. Mintun is considered one of today's leading interpreters of popular songs composed between the two world wars which he calls classic melodies that transcend time.INT. 3: Film director STANLEY DONEN (DAH-nen) talks about directing Fred Astaire in "Funny Face," and "Royal Wedding." Last year, Donen received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Academy of Motion Pictures. His other films include: "Singin' in the Rain" (1952) "It's Always Fair Weather" (1955) "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" (1954) and "Charade" (1963)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Minimalist composer STEVE REICH. He's considered one of our foremost living composers. There's a new CD "Reich Remixed" (Nonesuch) a dance album in which American, British, and Japanese DJ's pay tribute to REICH, by sampling and reassembling his music. REICH will be the subject of this summer's Lincoln Center Festival. And Reich's "Triple Quartet" written for and performed by the Kronos Quartet, will have its world premiere on May 22nd at the Kennedy Center in Washington D.C. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: STEVE REICH continued. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews Nathan Englander's debut collection of short stories, "For the Relief of Unbearable Urges" (Knopf)

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LORI B. ANDREWS is one of America's leading legal experts in the field of advanced reproductive technologies. These include cloning, surrogate motherhood, and harvesting human eggs and sperm. She is a professor at Chicago-Kent College of Law. Her latest book is "The Clone Age:

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Playwright and actor WALLACE SHAWN and director/actor ANDRE GREGORY co-wrote and co-starred in the 1981 film, "My Dinner with Andre." The film is currently being revived on a five-city swing in the "Classically Independent Film Festival" by the Independent Feature Project. It was shown in New York and will have future screenings Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Minneapolis. WALLACE SHAWN and ANDRE GREGORY also collaborated in "Vanya on 42nd Street," a film adaptation of Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya." This year, ANDRE GREGORY stars in the new film "Good-bye Lover." and WALLACE SHAWN appears in the films "My Favorite Martian," and "The Hurdy Gurdy Man" and provides the voice of "Rex" in the upcoming sequel "Toy Story 2" 1A: Interview with Wallace Shawn Rebroadcast of 11/5/1985 1B: Interview with Wallace Shawn and Andre Gregory Rebroadcast of 10/19/94REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Best American Short Stories of the Century." (Houghton Mifflin) John Updike, Editor; Katrina Kenison, Series Editor. INT. 2: British novelist NICK HORNBY, is the author of the best-selling comic novel "High Fidelity." It's about a 30-something record collector, and top-ten list maker who is afraid of commitment. His 1998 novel "About a Boy" (Riverhead Books) has just come out in paperback. It is about a 36 year old man who pretends to be a single parent in order to meet women who are single parents. This originally aired 5/20/98. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews several upcoming May sweep television movies. "Double Platinum," "Joan of Arc," and "Atomic Train."

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JANEANE GAROFALO and BEN STILLER have co-written the new book "Feel this Book: As Essential Guide to Self Empowerment, Spiritual Supremacy, and Sexual Satisfaction." (Ballantine Publishing) In this parody of self-help books, the two dispense such wisdom as "You mother lied; looks are everything," to "Being poor sucks. Rich people are happier." JANEANE GAROFALO has appeared in such films as "The Truth About Cats and Dogs," "200 Cigarettes," "Romy and Michelle's High School Reunion," "and "The Cable Guy." She also was a cast member on "The Ben Stiller Show." BEN STILLER starred in such films as "There's Something About Mary," "Permanent Midnight," and "Your Friends and Neighbors." He starred in "The Ben Stiller Show." INT. 2: Actor ROGER GUENVEUR (GEN-ver) SMITH stars in the one-man stage show "A Huey P. Newton Story." Drawing from Newton's own writings and interviews, Smith performs in character as Huey Newton, the co-founder of The Black Panther Party. ROGER GUENVEUR SMITH has appeared in a number of Spike Lee films including: "Do The Right Thing," "Malcolm X," "He Got Game," and "School Daze." His other film credits include: "Tales from the Hood," "Poetic Justice," "King of New York," and "Panther." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new CD "The Hot Rock" by the trio Sleater-Kinney.

---

Interview with Brendan O'Carroll; Interview with Camryn Manheim. May 18, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502817].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Irish playwright, actor, and stand-up comic BRENDAN O'CARROLL. He's also the author of a trilogy of novels. The first is "The Mammy," (Plume) followed by "The Chisellers" and "The Granny." O'CARROLL also appeared in the film "The Van" and will be in the film version of "Angela's Ashes." INT. 2: Actress CAMRYN MANHEIM. She recently won an Emmy Award for her role as attorney Ellenor Frutt on ABC's "The Practice." When she went up on stage to receive the award she joyously exclaimed "This is for all the fat girls!" She's written a memoir about her struggle to accept herself and her weight. It's called "Wake Up, I'm Fat!" (Broadway Books). REV.: CAMRYN MANHEIM continued.

---

Description of show segment(s)

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and author MARTIN DILLON is considered an expert on the conflict in Northern Ireland. His three books: "God and the Gun," "The Shankill Butchers," and "The Dirty War." all bestsellers in his native Ireland have just been published for the first time in the U.S. MARTIN DILLON has worked for the BBC in Northern Ireland for 18 years. He has also produced news segments for CNN, ABC, CBC, and NPR. He currently lives in New York City. INT. 2: MARCUS J. BORG and N.T. WRIGHT are co-authors of the new book "The Meaning of Jesus: Two Visions." The two scholars offer dramatically different views on Jesus and his teachings. MARCUS J. BORG provides liberal interpretation of Jesus. He is the author of "Meeting Jesus Again for the First Time." N.T. WRIGHT takes a more traditional view of Jesus. He is author or Jesus and the Victory of God." REV.: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel, "Another World," by British author Pat Barker.
Interview with John Waters; Interview with Cathleen Schine; Interview with Tom Fontana; Review of the television show "Homicide May 21, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503109].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Filmmaker JOHN WATERS. His latest film is "Pecker" about a young amateur photographer who becomes the darling of the New York art world has just come out on video. WATERS is known for his independent, off-beat films, such as "Pink Flamingos," "Female Trouble," and "Polyester." Originally aired 10/1/98. INT. 2: Writer CATHLEEN SCHINE. Her 1995 book "The Love Letter" has been adapted into a new film. SCHINE's other books include: Alice in Bed, To the Bird House, and Rameau's Niece. She has also written for the New York Times Book Review, Vogue, and the Village Voice.. Originally aired 6/22/95. INT. 3: Executive producer and writer, Tom Fontana. He was writer and producer for the TV show, "St. Elsewhere." He's currently executive producer, along with filmmaker Barry Levinson, of "Homicide: Life on the Street," a new cop drama on NBC. Reviewers say it goes beyond formula to offer a "more complex psychological portrait" of crime fighters and criminals. Rebroadcast of 3/9/93REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI comments on tonight's series finale of NBC's "Homicide: Life on the Streets."

Interview with John Pizzarelli, Martin Pizzarelli, and Ray Kennedy; Interview with Philip Furia; Interview with John Pizzarelli, Martin Pizzarelli, and Ray Kennedy; Interview with Philip Furia; Interview with Julia Riva. May 24, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/973569087].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Today we feature part one of two in our next installment of Fresh Air's American Popular Song series. We profile HARRY WARREN (1893-1981), a successful but little known songwriter who produced a number of hits during the 1930's and 40's. Some of his best known songs include: "I Only Have Eyes for You," "Lullaby of Broadway," "We're in the Money," and "The More I See You." Warren dreamed of writing for Broadway, but instead migrated west and became one of Hollywood's most prolific songwriters. First...We feature THE JOHN PIZZARELLI TRIO discussing and performing several of Harry Warren's songs. The trio is JOHN PIZZARELLI, guitar and vocals, his brother MARTIN PIZZARELLI, bass; and RAY KENNEDY, piano. INT. 2: PHILIP FURIA is currently writing a book on Hollywood's musicals. He discusses the impact of Harry Warren on movie musicals. FURIA is the author of "The Poets of Tin Pan Alley," "Irving Berlin: A Life in Song." He is chair of the English department at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. INT. 3: We again feature THE JOHN PIZZARELLI TRIO discussing and performing several of Harry Warren's songs. INT. 4: We continue with PHILIP FURIA on Harry Warren's role in the evolution of the Hollywood musical in the 1930's. INT. 5: Harry Warren's music publishing company, Four Jays Music, is now headed by his grand-daughter, JULIA RIVA. She talks about her grandfather and his music.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: As part of our series on American Popular Song. . .Today we continue our profile of HARRY WARREN (1893-1981), a successful but little known songwriter who produced a number of hits during the 1930's, 40's and 50's. Today in part two of our profile, we focus on Warren's songs of the 40's and 50's, including some of the most popular love ballads of the world war two years, one of Dean Martin's biggest hits, and the theme for a tv western. Warren dreamed of writing for Broadway, but instead migrated west and became one of Hollywood's most prolific songwriters. First... We feature THE JOHN PIZZARELLI TRIO discussing and performing several of Harry Warren's songs. The trio is JOHN PIZARELLI, guitar and vocals, his brother MARTIN PIZARELLI, bass; and RAY KENNEDY, piano. INT. 1B: PHILIP FURIA is currently writing a book on Hollywood's musicals. He discusses the impact of Harry Warren on movie musicals. FURIA is the author of "The Poets of Tin Pan Alley," "Irving Berlin: A Life in Song." He is chair of the English department at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. INT. 2A/B/C: We continue with PHILIP FURIA on Harry Warren's role in the evolution of the Hollywood musical in the 1930's./JOHN PIZZARELLI trio/Harry Warren's music publishing company, Four Jays Music, is now headed by his grand-daughter, JULIA RIVA. She talks about her grandfather and his music.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Congressman RICHARD GEPHARDT. He's the Democratic leader of the U.S. House of Representatives and has written a new book, "An Even Better Place: America in the 21st Century" (Public Affairs). In it he writes about the "cycle of destruction" in politics, the personal attacks on the character and integrity of politicians by other politicians and how it effects the country at large and our sense of democracy. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF).INT. 2: Guest host BARBARA BOGAEV interviews two women who are part of the new American Experience documentary on PBS: "Fly Girls" During World War II, more than 1,000 women signed up and flew airplanes in the U.S. military effort. Their careers were cut short by politics. It would be 30 years before women soldiers could take to the skies again. The two women are BARBARA LONDON and DORA STROTHER.REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "The Ego Has Landed" the new solo CD by Robbie Williams.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The host and creator of "This American Life" IRA GLASS. The show can be heard on 350 public radio stations nationwide. There's a new Rhino double CD: Lies, Sissies, & Fiascos: The Best of This American Life." This Friday (May 28th) IRA is a guest on "The David Letterman Show." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: IRA GLASS continued.REV. : IRA GLASS continued.
Interview with Tamara Jenkins; Interview with Ben Folds; Review of books for summer reading.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Film director TAMARA JENKINS talks about her most recent film "Slums of Beverly Hills" which has been released on video. This is JENKINS' first screenplay and directorial debut. Robert Redford read her script while she studied at the Sundance Filmmaker's Lab in Utah. Redford became the film's Executive Producer. Originally aired 8/26/98

INT. 2: Singer, songwriter, pianist BEN FOLDS of the piano-bass-drum trio, Ben Folds Five. They're best known for their hit "Brick" a ballad about an abortion, in which the word "abortion" is never used. The band, from North Carolina, has been in existence since 1994. It includes drummer Darren Jesse and bassist Robert Sledge. In a New York Times review, Neil Strauss writes that FOLDS combines "the pomp and virtuosity of classic late 60's and 70's pop with the smart knowing lyrics of punk's more sensitive songwriters." Their newest cd is "The Unauthorized Biography Of Reinhold Messner" on Sony music. Originally aired 4/9/98.

REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN gives us her "summer reading list." She recommends: "The Drowning People," "A New Song," "Other People's Children," "Last Rites," and the reprinted classic "Fail-Safe."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: NIALL (Neel) FERGUSON is the author of "The Pity of War: Explaining World War I." (Basic Books) Ferguson is Fellow and Tutor in Modern History at Jesus College, Oxford. (England) His other books include "Paper and Iron," and "The House of Rothschild." Ferguson talks about why W.W.I was the century's worst war and why he blames Great Britain for prolonging the war. INT. 2: Photojournalists HORST FAAS and TIM PAGE. They compiled and edited a book of pictures by photojournalists who lost their lives covering war in Indochina and Vietnam from the 50's to the mid 70's. The book "Requiem" was published in 1997 (Random House). It features 135 different photographers including Robert Capa, Larry Burrows, and Sean Flynn. HORST FAAS was an Associated Press photographer in Vietnam and TIM PAGE worked in Laos and Vietnam for United Press International and "Paris-Match." They were both wounded in Vietnam. REV. : Interview continues Interview with Kurt Andersen; Interview with Michael Korda. June 1, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503365].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer KURT ANDERSEN is a columnist for The New Yorker, and was co-founder and editor of Spy magazine. He's just written his first novel, "Turn of the Century" (Random House) a sprawling, satirical, futuristic novel of sorts set in February 2000.INT. 2: Editor in chief of Simon & Schuster MICHAEL KORDA. In his previous memoir, "Man to Man" he chronicled his ordeal with prostate cancer. In his new book "Another Life: A Memoir of Other People" (Random House) he tells about the world of publishing and his rise from assistant editor to editor in chief. Along the way, KORDA worked with writers Jacqueline Susann, Graham Greene, Tennesee Williams, and Harold Robbins.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former chief United Nation's hostage negotiator GIANDOMENICO PICCO. He has written about his experiences in the new book "Man without a Gun: One diplomat's secret struggle to free the hostages, fight terrorism, and end a war." (Times Books) PICCO helped negotiate the release of more than a dozen western hostages being held by Islamic militants in Lebanon. He currently serves as president of GDP Associates, an international consulting firm in New York city, and is founder of the Non-Governmental Peace Strategy Project based in Geneva, Switzerland. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: Interview with GIANDOMENICO PICCO cont'd.REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "The Whole Woman" (Knopf) Germaine Greer's followup to her 1970 classic "The Female Eunuch."
Interview with Jesse Ventura; Review of the album "Tropicalia 30 Anos." June 3, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503657].

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with Uta Hagen; Interview with Kevin Spacey; Review of the film "Limbo." June 4, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503362].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Stage actress and acting teacher UTA HAGEN (00-ta HOG-en). She's taught acting for more than 40 years. She is considered one of the most important acting teachers in America. This Sunday, she will receive a lifetime achievement Tony award. She taught such actors as Jason Robards, Jack Lemmon, Sigourney Weaver, Matthew Broderick and the late Geraldine Page. Her first book about acting, "Respect for Acting" was published in 1973 and is still in print. Her follow up to that is the book "A Challenge for the Actor." (1991) Since 1947 Hagen has taught acting at the Herbert Berghof Studio in New York. This originally aired 11/4/98.INT. 2: Actor KEVIN SPACEY. He has been nominated for a Tony Award for "Best Performance by Leading Actor in a Play." in "The Iceman Cometh" Kevin Spacey made his Broadway debut opposite Liv Ullman in Ibsen's Ghosts His breakthrough came as Jamie Tyrone, Jr., with Jack Lemmon in the 1986 Broadway and London production of Eugene O'Neill's Long Day's Journey into Night.? He won the 1991 Tony Award for his performance as Uncle Louie in Neil Simon's Lost in Yonkers His film credits include: Glengarry Glen Ross, Consenting Adults, Iron Will, The Ref, Outbreak, Swimming With Sharks, Seven, A Time to Kill, L.A. Confidential, Looking for Richard, Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil, The Negotiator, as the voice of Hopper in A Bug's Life, and The Usual Suspects for which he received an Academy Award. This interview originally aired 5/31/91.REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Limbo" by director John Sayles.(Lone Star, City of Hope, Eight Men Out) This is the story of an Alaskan fisherman (Strathairn) who has been away from the sea for years because of a tragic accident, who falls in love with a traveling lounge singer

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer MEL TORME died Saturday at age 73 of complications from a stroke. We'll hear an interview Terry Gross did with Mel in 1988. For more than 50 years, Torme was one of most accomplished and versatile pop and jazz singers. Known for years as "The Velvet Fog," Born Melvin Howard Torme to Russian-Jewish immigrants in Chicago on Sept. 13, 1925, Torme first made his reputation in the Big Band era as a songwriter, arranger, drummer and singer. He later sang in MGM musicals. Described by Ethel Waters as "the only white man who sings with the soul of a black man," Torme was one of the few white performers to share the spotlight with jazz greats like Sarah Vaughan and Ella Fitzgerald. This originally aired 10/19/88. INT. 2: Actor and now author BILL MURRAY. He's co-written the new book "Cinderella Story : My Life in Golf." with George Peper. Cinderella Story is really two books. The first is a string of anecdotes about Murray's club-wielding adventures with a number of celebrities including: Jack Nicklaus, John Denver, Clint Eastwood, and Hunter Thompson. The book is also an autobiography of a kid who started out caddying for 60 cents a half-hour with his brothers. As a performer, Murray first came to prominence as a cast member of "Saturday Night Live." He then went on to appear in movies such as "Ghostbusters," "Caddyshack," "Meatballs," "Stripes," "What About Bob? and most recently "Rushmore." REV. : MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviewed A Coffin for Dimitrios by Eric Ambler and Lie in the Dark by Dan Fesperman.

Interview with Kelli Peterson; Interview with Michael Bisogno. June 8, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503364].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Gay rights activist KELLI PETERSON talks about her controversial efforts to a gay and lesbian support group in her high school. She is the subject of the recent film "Out of the Past" which received the 1998 Sundance Film Festival's Audience Award for "Best Documentary." Peterson's effort was suppressed by the School board and the Utah legislature which passed a law banning all extra-curricular clubs in schools. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.INT. 2: Interview with KELLI PETERSON cont’d. REV. : Teenage gay rights activist MICHAEL BISOGNO (bis-SOYN-yo) talks about being the victim of gay-bashing in New Jersey. Bisogno who served as co-president of his school's Gay-Straight Alliance group was brutally assaulted by 15 of his fellow high school students. Following his recovery, Bisogno later filed charges and is now an advocate fighting against hate-crimes.

---

Interview with Eve-Ann Prentice; Interview with Frederick Kempe; Commentary on the television show "The Sopranos." June 9, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503655].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Staff writer for The Times of London, EVE ANN PRENTICE. She's been visiting the Balkans regularly since her first assignment there in 1978. She's reported on wars in Bosnia and Croatia. She and other journalists recently made a trip into Kosovo, led by pro-Serbian French philosopher Daniel Schiffer. During the trip, in southwest Kosovo, their party was hit by NATO bombing. Their driver and interpreter was killed in the raid. INT. 2: Editor of The Wall Street Journal Europe, FREDERICK KEMPE. As a journalist, he's covered Germany for over twenty years, and is also the son of German immigrants. His new book "Father/land: A Personal Search for the New Germany" (Putnam) is his exploration into his family's past in Germany, and an analysis of Germany today.REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI on the re-runs of "The Sopranos" which began tonight.

---

Interview with Adam Schlesinger and Chris Collingwood; Interview with Tom Perrotta. June 10, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884539].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ADAM SCHLESINGER and CHRIS COLLINGWOOD who are co-founders of the band "Fountains of Wayne". Their second album "Utopia Parkway" has just been released. (Atlantic) Anchored by the song writing team of Chris and Adam, the New York-based band released its debut album
"Radiation Vibe" in late 1996. Now the Fountains are back with "Utopia Parkway," described as a concept album about teenage life in the "Greater Metropolitan Areas" outside of New York City. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. INT. 2A: Interview with ADAM SCHLESINGER and CHRIS COLLINGWOOD cont’d. INT. 2B: TOM PERROTTA is the author of "Election: The Novel" which the new film "Election" is based upon. The book is set in a New Jersey high school amidst a hotbed of political activity: students are voting for their school president. Earlier books, The Wishbones (1997), and, Bad Haircut (1994), were in similar fashion observing the agonies of growing up in suburban New Jersey.

Interview with Mike Myers; Interview with John Barry; Review of the films "Notting Hill" and "Austin Powers June 11, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884502].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: MICHAEL MYERS. He stars in the new film "Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me." The film spoofs the spy films of the 1960's. His other movies include: "Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery," "Waynes World," "Waynes World 2," and "Studio 54." Before appearing in films, At the age of 11 and with the help of his mother, Mike filmed a television commercial with the late great Gilda Radner. The young Myers fell in love with his television mother and, after seeing Gilda on Saturday Night Live, Mike set a goal to be on stage alongside her. In 1989 Mike was hired by Producer Lorne Michaels for Saturday Night Live. In the six years that he was on SNL, Myers created some of the most unforgettable characters: Wayne Campbell, Dieter, the host of Sprockets, Angus the Scotsman, and Coffee Talk host Linda Richman. Before SNL he spent 8 years performing with the Canadian comedy Troupe "Second City" in Toronto. This interview originally aired 5/1/90. INT. 2: Composer JOHN BARRY. He's best known for his 11 James Bond scores, including "Goldfinger," and "Thunderball." BARRY has won five Oscars: for the song and score of "Born Free," and for scores for "Lion in Winter," "Out of Africa," and "Dances with Wolves." Earlier this year, a new CD compilation of his work, "John Barry: The Hits & The Misses" was released. (Play it Again label). This originally aired 3/23/99. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews both "Notting Hill" and "Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Comedian and actor DAMON WAYANS talks about his new book "Bootleg." (Harper Collins) It features a collection of his humorous observations and advice on everything from relationships to race relations. After making a name on the stand-up comedy circuit in the 1980's WAYANS moved on to become one of the original stars of "In Living Color" the show that launched Jim Carrey's career. Damon's film include Hollywood Shuffle, Mo' Money, The Last Boy Scout, Major Payne and Great White Hype.REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews a new collection of previously unreleased material by the late white soul singer Eddie Hinton, "Hard Luck Guy"

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Special Counsel to President Clinton, LANNY DAVIS. He served from December 1996 thru January 1998. During that time he saw the President thru various financial scandals and developed a style for dealing with bad news head on. DAVIS left the White House just as the Monica Lewinsky story was breaking. DAVIS has a new memoir, "Truth to Tell: Tell it Early, Tell it All, Tell it Yourself: Notes from My White House Education" (The Free Press).

Interview with Ernie Harburg and Deena Rosenberg; Interview with Paul Mazursky. June 17, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884500].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember one of America's great lyricists, Yip Harburg. He wrote over 500 songs including, "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," "Brother Can You Spare a Dime," and "It's Only a Paper Moon." We talk with his son, ERNIE HARBURG and his wife DEENA ROSENBERG. They have collaborated on the new show "Somewhere Over the Rainbow: Yip Harburg's America" which is showing this week in Philadelphia. Rosenberg worked closely with Yip Harburg for nearly a decade including working with him on the early concept of this show. Yip Harburg died in 1981.

Interview with John Gottman; Interview with Neil Jacobson; Review of the film "The General's Daughter." June 18, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884538].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOHN GOTTMAN is the author of the new book "The Seven Principles for Making Marriage Work." (Crown) As a professor of psychology at the University of Washington and the founder and director of the Seattle Marital and Family Institute, he has studied the habits of married couples in unprecedented detail over the course of many years. His previous book is "Why Marriages Succeed or Fail"(paperback, Fireside). (REBROADCAST FROM 5/5/97)INT. 2: NEIL JACOBSON was a colleague of John Gottman, a Professor of Clinical Psychology at the University of Washington, and a pioneer in the scientific study of marital therapy. He died June 2nd at the age of 50, from a heart attack. Last year he and Gottman co-authored "When Men Batter Women: New Insights into Ending Abusive Relationships" (Simon & Schuster). The book is based on their decade of research with 200 couples in which they observed the arguments of severely violent couples. Their research shatters a couple of myths: that women batter too, and that women often provoke men into battering them. (INTERVIEW CONDUCTED BY MARTY MOSS-COANE/REBROADCAST from 3/2/98)REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The General's Daughter" starring John Travolta.

Interview with Linda Greenlaw; Interview with Chris Fehlinger; Commentary on epigraphy. June 21, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884501].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: LINDA GREENLAW has worked on commercial fishing boats for nearly 20 years. She has written about her experience leading a sword fishing boat to New Newfoundland in the new book "The Hungry Ocean." (Hyperion) Curiously, After completing the book, she says of writing "I'd rather be fishing." Boston magazine named Greenlaw as one of the most intriguing women of 1997. She lives on Isle au Haut, Maine. INT. 2: CHRIS FEHLINGER is the co-founder of the on-line food magazine "Pheat" and is a contributing writer for the print magazine "Wine X. Recently he was the subject of the column "Table Talk" in The New Yorker 4/5/99. In that article, he confesses that he suggest bizarre food dishes, i.e. goat's head, on unsuspecting diners, just for the sport of it. In our interview, he gives us an insider's view of the restaurant business...how maitre d's get better tips, and how to get customers to order what you want them too. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the diminished stature of epigraphy. This refers to the ancient art of putting writing on walls. This includes signs, posters, banners and graffiti.

Interview with Dan Fesperman; Interview with Mohammad Yunus. June 22, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884569].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DAN FESPERMAN is the former Berlin Bureau correspondent for the Baltimore Sun 1993-1996. From there he extensively covered Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia and Serbia. He has drawn for his experience there for the setting of his new crime novel "Lie in the Dark." (Soho) It is about a Sarajevo homicide detective who must do his job while corpses pile up from the on-going civil war.INT. 2: MOHAMMAD YUNUS is the founder one of the world's first "micro-lending" banks. These institutions loan money to poor people that other banks consider too risky. Founded in 1983, Grameen Bank in Bangladesh has provided over 2.5 Billion dollars in micro-loans. He has written about his efforts in the new book "Banker to the Poor." (Public Affairs) He is the former head of the economics department at Chittagong University, in Bangladesh.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: American guitarist and composer Ry Cooder. Cooder produced a new CD by Ibrahim Ferrer (ph), one of the singers with the band. A new documentary film called "Buena Vista Social Club," produced by Cooder, tells the story of these musicians.INT. 2: An interview recorded with Sergei Khrushchev before taking his citizenship exam today. Sergei, who is now 63, has lived with his wife in Providence, Rhode Island, since 1991. He is a senior research scholar and lecturer at Brown University's Center for Foreign Policy Development. His father had led the Soviet Union for about a decade when he was ousted in 1964. Sergei edited his father's memoirs, is the author of "Khrushchev on Khrushchev," and is finishing a new book about his father.REV. :

Interview with Goran Paskaljevic; Interview with John Callahan; Commentary on Hadda Brooks. June 24, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884568].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Serbian filmmaker GORAN PASKALJEVIC. (GOR-en) (pas KAL yeh vich) His new black-comedy "Cabaret Balkan," a fictional account of life in Belgrade on the eve of the Dayton Peace Agreement that ended the civil war in Bosnia. Shot entirely at night over a two-month period in 1998. It has received a European Critics Award for "best film" last year. PASKALJEVIC attended the famed Prague film school and has gone on to make such films as: "Someone Else's America," "Tango Argentino," and "Time of Miracles." INT. 2: JOHN CALLAHAN has edited the manuscript, "Juneteenth," of a never before published book by Ralph Ellison who died in 1994. Ellison's first and only book released in 1952, "Invisible Man," won the National Book Award. CALLAHAN was named Ellison's literary executor and is editor of "The Collected Essays of Ralph Ellison." CALLAHAN is a professor of Interview with Peter Coyote; Interview with Wes Anderson June 25, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884292].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Actor PETER COYOTE. His memoir, "Sleeping Where I Fall" has been released on paperback. It recounts his experiences during the sixties and seventies. The son of an East Coast stockbroker, COYOTE was part of the political street theatre, the San Francisco Mime Troupe. Later COYOTE lived the communal life, experimenting with sex, drugs, and heady ideals. COYOTE has performed in more than 50 films including, "Bitter Moon," "E.T.," "Jagged Edge, "Outrageous Fortune" and "Sphere." This originally aired 4/28/98. INT. 2: Film director and writer WES ANDERSON. The 29 year old director has a short but impressive list of films to his credit: "Bottle Rocket" and this year's "Rushmore." Both are offbeat films, with a love of character and idiosyncrasies. Both films were written by ANDERSON and his writing partner Owen Wilson. "Rushmore" which stars Bill Murray comes out on video next Tuesday. This originally aired 2/24/99. REV. : Film critic John Powers reviews "An Ideal Husband."

Interview with Callie Khouri, William Mastrosimone, Steve De Souza, Miguel Tejada-Flores, and Jack Valenti; Interview with Carolyn Wyman. June 28, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884567].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: We feature excerpts from a panel of Hollywood screenwriters discussing violence in movies. This was held 6/4/99 in Santa Monica, California. The seminar was title "Guns Don't Kill People." Among the panelists were CALLIE KHOURI who wrote "Thelma and Louis," WILLIAM MASTROSIMONE who penned "Extremities, and The Burning Season," STEVEN DE SOUZA who wrote the first two Die Hard movies, and MIGUEL TEJADA-FLORES, who wrote "Revenge of the Nerds:" and JACK VALENTI, a Washington lobbyist for the top Hollywood studios. The event comes as lawmakers go on the attack against movies, television, music and video games following the school shootings in Colorado and Georgia. In addition, President Clinton has ordered an investigation into violence and the media.
INT. 2: CAROLYN WYMAN is author of "Spam, A Biography: The Amazing True Story of America's "Miracle Meat."" (Harvest) She also wrote "I'm a SPAM Fan," and "The Kitchen Sink Cookbook." her syndicated weekly column, "Supermarket Sampler," present reviews of new food products in more than 100 newspapers around the country. She is a staff writer at the New Haven Register in Connecticut.

Interview with William Karesh; Interview with Craig Stanford; Review of Ron Sexsmith's "Whereabouts." June 29, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884566].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILLIAM KARESH is a wildlife veterinarian in some of the world's most remote areas. He's written about his experiences in "Appointment at the Ends of the World: Memoirs of a Wildlife Veterinarian." (Warner Books) KARESH heads the International Field Veterinary Program for the Wildlife Conservation Society, located at the Bronx Zoo, in New York. INT. 2: CRAIG STANFORD studies chimpanzees and gorillas in Uganda. In early March, Hutu rebels kidnapped 14 westerners including his field assistant. 8 of the hostages were killed. STANFORD had left the region before the attack. STANFORD talks about the political situation and its impact on the wildlife there. He is an associate professor of anthropology at the University of Southern California. He is the author of "The Hunting Apes," and "Chimpanzee and Red Colobus." REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new CD "Whereabouts" by Canadian singer and songwriter Ron Sexsmith.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: DR. LORI ARVISO ALVORD is the first Navajo woman surgeon. She is the author of the new book "The Scalpel and the Silver Bear." (Bantam) In her practice, she combines modern surgery with ancient Navajo healing practices. Born and raised on a reservation near Gallup, New Mexico she now serves as an assistant professor of surgery at Dartmouth Medical School in Hanover, New Hampshire. INT. 2: KEVIN BALES is a leading expert on the modern-day practice of slavery. He is author of the new Interview with Blanche Wiesen Cook; Interview with Peter Mintun. July 1, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503517].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BLANCHE WIESEN (WEE-zen) COOK is author of the new biography "Eleanor Roosevelt: Volume 2 1933-1938. (Viking) This edition covers The Great Depression, the New Deal, and the build-up to World War II. Cook a professor of history at the Graduate Center, City University of New York. She is author of "Eleanor Roosevelt," "Crystal Eastman on Women and Revolution," and "The Declassified Eisenhower." INT. 2: "Society" Pianist PETER MINTUN performs many forgotten songs from the first half of this century. His new CD is "Your's for a Song: The Women of Tin Pan Alley." (Premier Recordings) Peter Mintun's music is synonymous with San Francisco society. He has performed with symphony orchestras, entertained royalty, film and stage stars, and sometimes the composers themselves. His interest in the music of the 1920s and 30s helped him become one of today's leading interpreters of popular songs composed between the two world wars ? which he calls 'classic melodies that transcend time.' He performs six-months out of the year at the Carlyle Hotel's Bemelmans Bar in New York City. His other recordings include: "Peter Mintun plays Deep Purple," "Grand Piano: American popular music of the 20's, 30's and 40's."

Interview with William Langewiesche; Commentary on Seiji Ozawa; Review of the film "My Son, the Fanatic." July 2, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503390].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: WILLIAM LANGEWIESCHE ("long-ah-VEE-sha") is a writer and a pilot. He grew up around planes and learned to fly when he was a child. His father, a test pilot, wrote a text that is considered to be the bible of aerial navigation ("Stick and Rudder"). Langewische's book "Inside the Sky: A Meditation on Flight" has just come out in paperback. (Vintage) His other books include: "Cutting for Sign," "Stick and Rudder," and "Sahara unveiled: a Journey across the Desert." Originally aired 6/18/98. THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW. REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ comments on the news that SEIJI OZAWA will leave in three years as Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. His tenure which began in 1973 is the longest of any music director currently active with an American orchestra. As for his next job, he says he will take over the Vienna State Opera. Ozawa was born in Shenyang, China. REV: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "My Son the Fanatic." Miramax Films describes it as a contemporary love story set against a comic clash of generations and cultures. Eastern fundamentalism meets Western hedonism over the kitchen table of a Pakistani family in the industrial north.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer and pianist RAY CHARLES. His name is synonymous with soul music and rhythm n blues. But some of his most popular recordings are of country songs. Terry Gross talked to him last year after the release of the four CD box-set "Ray Charles: The Complete Country and Western Recordings 1959-1986. (Rhino) Blind since the age of six (from glaucoma), Charles studied composition and learned many instruments at the St. Augustine School for the Deaf and the Blind. His parents had died by his early teens, and he worked as a musician in Florida for a while before using his savings to move to Seattle in 1947. By the late '40s, he was recording in a smooth pop/R&B style. Later Charles devised a new form of Black pop by merging '50s R&B with gospel-powered vocals, and (in the '60s) country. Originally aired 10/19/98. INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.

---

Interview with Scott Anderson; Review of Dave Douglas Quintet's album "Convergence"; Commentary on commercial brands and language. July 6, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503392].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SCOTT ANDERSON is author of the new book "The Man Who Tried to Save the World : The Dangerous Life and Mysterious Disappearance of Fred Cuny ." (Doubleday) He talks about the life of disaster relief specialist Fred Cuny who went to war-torn regions of the world to help the people rebuild their communities. CUNY disappeared in April, 1995 while working in Chechnya. ANDERSON is also author of the novel "Triage" set in the Kurdish occupied region of Iraq. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE 2ND HALF OF THE SHOW) Rev.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Convergence" by Dave Douglas' quintet (Soul Note label) REV.: Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG considers the way brands are used now.

---

Interview with Stuart A. Herrington; Interview with Ken Peplowski. July 7, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503393].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Retired U.S. Army Colonel STUART A. HERRINGTON. He spent 30 years as a military intelligence officer, serving in Europe, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East. He was the Army's authority on counterintelligence and on the interrogation and debriefing of defectors and prisoners of war. He's written the new book "Traitors Among Us: Inside the Spy Catcher's World" (Presido). INT. 2: Clarinetist KEN PEPLOWSKI. The 40-year old jazz musician, has been playing the instrument since the age of 7, and went on to play in Benny Goodman's last band, and in the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra (led by Buddy Morrow). PEPLOWSKI influences include Goodman, saxophonist Sonny Stitt, the Beatles, and Ornette Coleman He launched a successful solo career in the early 1980s and now has 16 albums to his credit. His latest is "Ken Peplowski: Last Swing of the Century-Big Band Music of Benny Goodman" (Concord Jazz). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

---

Interview with Helen Bamber; Review of the television show "Uncommon Visionary." July 8, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503094].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: HELEN BAMBER is the founder and director of the London-based Medical Foundation for the Care of Victims of Torture. A biography "The Good Listener: Helen Bamber, A Life Against Cruelty" by Neil Belton has just been published. (Pantheon) When Helen Bamber was a little girl growing up in 1930s England, her father read her sections of Mein Kampf to inure her to the evil in the world. In 1945, at the age of 19, she traveled to the former concentration camp at Belsen to help with the physical and psychological recovery of Holocaust survivors. This was only the beginning. Later in life, she became a leader in Amnesty International, and in 1985, she founded the Foundation. Bamber is now in her 70s.

Interview with Mario Puzo; Interview with J.K. Simmons; Review of the films "Les Amants du Pont-Neuf" and "Conte d'automne." July 9, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503644].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist MARIO PUZO. The author best known for his novel "The Godfather" died last week. We rebroadcast his interview, recorded in 1996 at the time of his novel "The Last Don." Besides "The Godfather," PUZO wrote "The Fortunate Pilgrim," and "The Dark Arena," both novels. He was also a two-time Academy Award winner and wrote several screenplays, including all three Godfathers and Superman I and II. (REBROADCAST from 7/25/96) INT. 2: Actor J.K. SIMMONS. He's a regular on HBO's "OZ" the graphic and disturbing drama of life in a maximum security prison. The show is produced by Tom Fontana, who also wrote and produced "Homicide: Life on the Street." SIMMONS plays convict and neo-nazi Vernon Schillinger. "OZ" is about to begin a new season. SIMMONS film credits include "The Jackal" and "Extreme Measures." His TV credits include: "Law and Order," "Homicide" and "Spin City." (REBROADCAST from 7/30/98) REV. Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews two French films, "The Lovers on the Bridge" and "Autumn Tale."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Fortune magazine Editor-at-Large, JOSEPH NOCERA, talks about the industry and consumer implications from the on-going trial of Microsoft. The U.S. Justice Department alleges the Microsoft engaged in illegal predatory practices against its competitors. NOCERA has been covering the trial for Fortune. NOCERA is author of "A Piece of the Action; How the Middle Class Joined the Money Class" by Simon and Schuster. (This book is out of print) He also is a regular business commentator for Saturday
Weekend Edition on NPR. INT. 2: James Farmer, one of the architects of the Civil Rights movement, died Friday at the age of 79. He was the last surviving major Civil Rights leader of his generation. Farmer co-founded CORE, the Congress of Racial Equality, which was one of the first Civil Right's groups to apply Ghandi's principles of non-violent resistance. Terry spoke with James Farmer in 1985.

Interview with Pat Barker; Interview with Leo Marks; Review of Ernest Hemingway's novel "True at First Light." July 13, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971503093].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: British writer PAT BARKER is best known for her "Regeneration" trilogy set in the shadows of WWI. In 1995, she received the Booker Prize for its concluding novel, The Ghost Road. She has written the new novel "Another World." (Farrar, Straus, Giroux) Pat Barker grew up poor in the industrial North, once remarking that her decision to write about war was a deliberate response to patronizing reviews of her working-class settings in her earlier novels. INT. 2: LEO MARKS served as one of Britain's top code makers during WWII. There he revolutionized the military's code making methods. He's written about his experiences in "Between Silk and Cyanide: A Codemaker's War 1941-1945. (Free Press) MARKS is also a screenwriter. His most famous film is the 1960's cult-classic "Peeping Tom." REV: Book critic Maureen Corrigan reviews Ernest Hemingway's novel "True at First Light."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Jazz guitarists JIM HALL and PAT METHENY talk about their recent collaboration on the album "Jim Hall & Pat Metheny" (Telarc) HALL emerged on the jazz scene in the late 1950's and went on to performed with such artists as Ella Fitzgerald, Sonny Rollins, Bill Evans, Art Farmer and Itzhak Perlman. Metheny's recording career took off in the 1970's and became so successful...that Guitar Player magazine called him the "Jazz Voice of the 80s." This newest recording is being hailed as a cross-generational summit of two exceptional jazz guitarists. REV: Music critic MILO MILES comments on a recent concert he went to featuring Brazilian pop singer CAETANO VELOSO. He's currently touring in the United States promoting his new album "Livro" on the Nonesuch label.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: STEVE ERLANGER is the Central Europe and Balkans Bureau Chief for The New York Times. He reports from Prague, Czech Republic on the aftermath of the NATO bombings in Yugoslavia. During the war, he filed reports from Belgrade. REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album "Von & Ed" (Delmark) It features tenor saxophonists Von Freeman with Ed Petersen. A cd WHITEHEAD says showcases the generational differences in jazz...between baby boomer Petersen, and Freeman who developed his style in the 1940's.

Interview with David Attenborough; Interview with Jeanne Moreau; Review of the film "Eyes Wide Shut." July 16, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502398].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Renowned naturalist and film maker SIR DAVID ATTENBOROUGH. In January, his book "The Life of Birds" was released. It's a companion to a new 10-part PBS series which begins airing forests to desert, to cities and isolated wildernesses, the flying and the flightless, the seed eaters and the meat-eaters. The series was broadcast on the BBC last fall. Most recently he has just returned from the North Sea of the coast of Scotland doing research for one of his next major projects a comprehensive study of mammals. Originally aired 1/14/99. INT. 2: French film legend JEANNE MOREAU. She's been called the Grande Dame of French cinema. Her breakthrough came in 1958, when Louis Malle, one of the instigators of the "New Wave" of French cinema, gave her an important role in his first feature film, Ascenseur pour l'Echafaud. The actress and director fell in love during the making of the film, and Malle wrote his second film, the erotic classic Les Amants especially for her. In the 1960's, she used her star power to work with the European directors she most admired, Brook, Bunel, and Truffaut. Beginning this month, Winstar Cinema is re-releasing 11 Truffaut films for limited theatrical release. This includes the acclaimed film "Jules and Jim" which starred Jeanne Moreau. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Eyes Wide Shut" by the late Stanley Kubrick. It stars husband and wife team Tom Cruise and Nicole Kidman and opens nationwide today.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former media critic TOM ROSENSTIEL, now the director of the Project for Excellence in Journalism, created to address the media's role in society and how journalists could do their jobs better. He'll discuss the coverage of the disappearance of John F. Kennedy Jr's plane. ROSENSTIEL is the former media critic for the Los Angeles Times and the chief Congressional correspondent for Newsweek magazine. ROSENSTIEL is also the author of "Strange Bedfellows: How Television and the Presidential Candidates Changed American politics, 1992" (Hyperion Press).INT. 2: Film producer DAVID PUTTNAM. His films include "Chariots of Fire," "Local Hero," "The Killing Fields," and "Midnight Express." His latest film -- and probably his last -- is "My Life So Far" a period piece set in the Scottish Highlands in the late 1920s. PUTTNAM is retiring from film making to tend to his duties as a member of the British House of Lords and Chairman of the National AIDS Trust.REV.: Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Randy Newman's new release "Bad Love" (on the Dreamworks label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: SCOTT DIKKERS is editor-in-chief of The Onion, an alternative weekly based in Madison, Wisconsin. He along with the editors of The Onion, have published the new book "Our Dumb Century" (Three Rivers Press) It's a parody of newspaper headlines spanning this century.INT. 2: Singer and songwriter LOUDON WAINWRIGHT the Third. He has a new CD, "Social Studies," a collection of topical songs, many which were first featured on NPR's Morning Edition. Loudon Wainwright III grew up in the town of Bedford in wealthy Westchester County north of New York City. He became a folk singer/songwriter in the late '60s, singing humorous and autobiographical songs. In 1972, on his "Album III" he scored the top-40 hit "Dead Skunk." Many of his songs have been recorded by others including Kate (his

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Novelist, screenwriter and biographer A.E. HOTCHNER. His memoir "Papa Hemingway" (Carroll & Graff) about his friend and colleague, Ernest Hemingway has just been republished. HOTCHNER met Hemingway when he was a 20-something journalist, on assignment to interview Hemingway for Cosmopolitan magazine. That first interview in 1948 developed into a 14 year friendship. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: A.E. HOTCHNER continued. REV. : A.E. HOTCHNER continued.

Interview with Margaret Cho; Review of the album "Bleecker Street July 22, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502803].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Stand-up comic MARGARET CHO. Her new one-woman show "I'm The One That I Want" is about her foray into the TV sitcom, when she was the first Asian-American to star in her own TV show. The series, "All-american Girl" was short lived, and a nightmare for CHO. She also has a CD that was taped live on World Aids Day, 1998, "Margaret Cho: Live in Houston" In films, she was the voice of the detective in "Rugrats" and she appeared in John Woo's "Face/Off." She also can be seen in the upcoming films, "Pink As the Day She Was Born" "Fakin' D' Funk," and "Can't Stop Dancing." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: MARGARET CHO continued. REV. : MILO MILES reviews the tribute album "Bleecker Street: Greenwich Village in the 60s." (Astor Place Label). REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG reflects on the state of the English language.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Choreographer and dancer MERCE CUNNINGHAM. He's been called "one of the great iconoclasts in 20th-century art." He revolutionized modern dance, pioneering abstract movement with his music director John Cage. This week the Lincoln Center in New York City is honoring him. (REBROADCAST FROM 1985). INT. 2: JOHN BOORMAN directed the film "The General," which is now out on video. The film is based on the life of the notorious Irish thief and gangster Martin Cahill. Cahill stole about 60 million dollars in a series of ingenious robberies he masterminded in the 1980's. Boorman has directed many other films including Deliverance, Point Blank, Hope and Glory, Excalibur, The Emerald Forest, and Beyond Rangoon. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Blair Witch Project."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former fighter pilots ED MECHENBIER (Mac-in-BYER) and RON BLISS. During the Vietnam War they were both shot down, and became POWs in Hanoi. They are interviewd in the new documentary "Return with Honor." The film was made by Freida Lee Mock and Terry Sanders, the team that made the Oscar winning film, "Maya Lin: A Strong Clear Vision." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: Former fighter pilots ED MECHENBIER (Mac-in-BYER) and RON BLISS continued.REV. : Former fighter pilots ED MECHENBIER (Mac-in-BYER) and RON BLISS continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: World War Two combat veteran ROBERT KOTLOWITZ has written about his experiences in "Before Their Time: A Memoir." 1997 Hard cover and just re-printed this year on Anchor Books. Kotlowitz was part of a platoon that was ordered to charge the German front, an order that killed all but 3 men. His previous books included: The Boardwalk, His Master's Voice, Sea Changes, and Somewhere Else. (THIS CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.) INT. 2: Interview with ROBERT KOTLOWITZ cont'd. INT. 3: An excerpt from an 1997 City Arts and Lectures interview with Rosemary Clooney. REV. : Linguist GEOFFREY NUNBERG comments on the history of combing two words to create a new one. i.e. Swirl and Twist = Twirl. This is called a portmanteau. Today, they are common place, such infotainment, Reganomics, and Medicare.

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We feature a panel discussion about the cable-tv series "The Sopranos" recorded recently in L.A. at a Writers' Guild Foundation conference. The participants include show writers David Chase, Frank Renzulli, Robin Green, Mitchell Burgess. The Sopranos is an HBO Original Series depicting the life and times of a modern-day Mafia family living in New Jersey. The series is created by David Chase ("I'll Fly Away"), who also serves as executive producer. It has been nominated for 16 Emmy awards this year including "Outstanding Drama Series." THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW.

INT. 2: "Sopranos" panel discussion cont'd. REV.: Music critic KEN TUCKER reviews the latest CD by country music legend George Jones. Titled "Cold Hard Truth." Jones was involved in a serious car accident in March but is recovering.

Interview with Kongar-ol Ondar and Ralph Leighton; Interview with Matthew Broderick; Commentary on John Jackson. July 30, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/971502903].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Tuvan throat singer ONDAR and producer RALPH LEIGHTON ("LAY-ton"). Tuvan throat singing is a biphonic sound in which the performer produces two or three distinct tones at the same time. It originates from Tuva. LEIGHTON co-produced ONDAR's debut CD, "Back Tuva Future" (Warner Bros/Reprise). ONDAR is featured in the documentary "Genghis Blues." which is currently showing in San Francisco and New York. A wider rollout is set for late August. INT. 2: Actor MATTHEW BRODERICK. His films include "Torch Song Trilogy," "War Games," "The Freshman" and recently in "Election." BRODERICK was nominated for a 1995 Tony Award for his performance in the Broadway revival of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." His latest film is "Inspector Gadget." REV.: Critic MILO MILES tells us about the work of blues guitarist John Jackson whose latest album is "Front Porch Blues" (Alligator Records). He's also got two vintage collections: "Don't Let Your Deal Go Down" and "Country Blues and Ditties" (Arhoolie Records).
Interview with Julia Ericksen; Interview with A.M. Homes; Review of the album "On Broadway." August 2, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884232].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JULIA ERICKSEN is the author of the new book "Kiss and Tell: Surveying Sex in the Twentieth Century" (Harvard University Press). ERICKSEN is Associate Professor of Sociology at Temple University.INT. 2: Novelist A.M. HOMES. Her new book is "Music for Torching" (Rob Weisbach Books/William Morrow). Her previous novels are "The End of Alice," "In a Country of Mothers," and "Jack." She teaches writing programs at Columbia University and the New School.REV. : Rock historian EDWARD reviews "On Broadway" (Great Britain's Westside label) a new collection of lesser-known pop treasures that came out of the Brill Building in the 1950s.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Birder and naturalist SCOTT WEIDENSaul (WHY-den-saul) author of "Living on the Wind" (North Point Press) discusses the habits of migratory birds, what makes them do what they do, and how they're able to do it.INT. 2: BARBARA BOGAEV interviews astronomer and writer DONALD GOLDSMITH about the future of space travel. He was the consultant to the PBS documentary film "Voyage to the Milky Way" (TV/Books) and is the author of the companion book.REV. : GOLDSMITH continued Interview with Zainab Bangura; Interview with Mary Robinson. August 4, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884410].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: In July a fragile peace accord was brokered in Sierra Leone. The agreement between the democratically elected government and the rebel movement, the Revolutionary United Front (RUF) ended 8 years of a bloody civil war. As part of the agreement, the government invited members of the RUF to participate at high levels of government and gave amnesty to the rebels for atrocities committed during the war which included maiming victims, and abducting children who were then drugged and forced to fight and kill. The agreement caused pandemonium and controversy. To talk about the agreement, we feature interviews with two individuals: Human rights activist and pro-democracy leader in Sierre Leone, ZAINAB BANGURA ("ZI-nahb Bahn-gurrah"). She's been threatened both by the government and by the rebels because of her outspokenness.

INT. 2: ZAINAB BANGURA continued.

REV. : The United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights MARY ROBINSON. She is also former President of Ireland. ROBINSON visited Sierre Leone recently. She warned that the United Nations will not recognize the amnesty, brokered in the peace accord, as applying to gross violations of human rights.

---

Interview with Francis Veber; Interview with Henru Behar; Interview with Andrew Smith. August 5, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884639].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TERRY GROSS's interview with French screenwriter and director FRANCIS VEBER ("Vay BEAR"). He's best known for his farcical french comedies "La Cage Aux Folles" and "The Tall Blonde with One Black Shoe" (which he collaborated on with the director). His latest comedy, "The Dinner Game," was a hit last year in France and is now in the U.S. This year VEBER was honored with a career tribute at the Cannes Film Festival. INTO 2: Film translator HENRI BEHAR is one of the most sought-after subtitlers in the business. He's subtitled over 100 films, mostly from English to French, but also from French to English. He's subtitled films by Woody Allen, David Mamet, and Spike Lee. Recently he subtitled "Shakespeare in Love," and "Halloween 2." For over 10 years he's also served as moderator at the Cannes Festival press conferences. And he co-wrote the book "Hollywood on the Riviera: The Inside Story of the Cannes Film Festival." (William Morrow, 1992).REV. : Writer ANDREW SMITH has written a new book about the food that is a staple at movie theatres - popcorn. It's called "Popped Culture: A Social History of Popcorn in America" (University of South Carolina Press). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)
Interview with Emily Cola; Commentary on the television show Mystery Science Theater 3000; Interview with Peter M. Leschak; Commentary on Simon Nkabinde Mahlathini. August 6, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884636].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: EMILY COLAS' memoir, "Just Checking: Scenes from the Life of an Obsessive-Compulsive." has just been published in paperback by Washington Square Press. In it, she writes about her many worries and fears about germs, and food poisoning, and her compulsion to trace the design of a star in her head, while having conversations with people. COLAS eventually was treated for the disorder. This originally aired 8/4/98.

REV.: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI comments on the demise of Mystery Science Theater 3000. After ten years of ribbing, roasting and skewering the worst ilms ever, MST3K shown on The Sci-Fi Channel presents its final episode this weekend. INT. 2: PETER M. LESCHAK battles forest fires in the Midwest and the West...He's not a smoke jumper he says, he's a grunt--hiking to remote locations, putting out fires sometimes on his hands and knees-spark by spark. His newest book is "Rogues and Toads" which is a collection of his poetry from North Star Press. He has written about his experiences fighting fires in numerous books including "Hellroaring." He lives in Sidelake, Minnesota. This originally aired 3/9/95.

REV.: World music critic MILO MILES offers a tribute to South African singer "Mahlathini". He died last week at the age of 61. Simon Nkabinde Mahlathini (nicknamed "the Lion of Soweto") was best known for his lead vocals for the group Mahlathini and the Mhaotella Queens after emerging on the international stage with the 1985 sampler The Indestructible Beat of Soweto.

Interview with Pierce Brosnan; Review of the television movie "Lenny Bruce August 9, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884642].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor PIERCE BROSnan. The actor who is the latest incarnation of James Bond has two new films: 1) "The Thomas Crown Affair" which is a remake of the original Steve McQueen film. It's also produced by BROSAN's production company, Irish Dream Time, and stars BROSAN and actress Rene Russo. 2) "The World is Not Enough" the latest 007 film, to be released in September. BROSAN is a native of Ireland. He was first noticed in the U.S. for his role on "Remington Steele." (THIS INTERVIEW IS CONTINUED IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: PIERCE BROSnan continued.REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new HBO documentary that premiers tonight: "Lenny Bruce: Swear to Tell the Truth."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist PAUL SOLOTAROFF ("Solo-TAR-off") is a former editor at The Village Voice. He's written a new book that follows the progress of a group in therapy in New York City. It's called, "Group: Six People In Search of a Life." (Riverhead Books) THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF.INT. 2: Interview with PAUL SOLOTAROFF cont'd. INT.: Farmer and psychologist MICHAEL ROSMANN ("ROSE-man"). He's a fourth generation farmer who also listens to the problems of other farmers. With the price of crops and livestock going down, many farmers are struggling and often losing their farms, some of which have been in their families for generations. ROSMANN lives and works in Harlan, Iowa. He helped found the Sharing Help Awareness United Network (SHAUN), a nonprofit group that finds counseling for farmers even if they can't afford it. (The phone # for SHAUN is 1-877-TO SHAUN, Email: shaun@fmctc.com.)

Interview with Dan Hedaya; Interview with Randy Wayne White; Review of Joe Harriott and John Mayer's album "The Indo-Jazz Suite." August 11, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884637].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DAN HEDAYA. He's currently starring as President Nixon in the new comedy about Watergate, "Dick." His performance has been called "hilarious and sly." Though HEDAYA stars in this film, he's best known for his supporting role in many other films and TV shows. They include: the father in "Clueless," an ex-husband in "The First Wives Club," and other roles in "A Civil Action," "Ransom," and "The Addams Family." HEDAYA also has appeared on "ER," "NYPD Blue," "Law & Order," and "Hill Street Blues." INT. 2: Adventure writer RANDY WAYNE WHITE. He wrote the "Out There" column for "Outside" magazine for many years. He's now a monthly columnist for "Men's Health" and is the author of the new book, "The Sharks of Lake Nicaragua: True tales of adventure, travel, and fishing." (The Lyons Press). REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Indo-Jazz Suite" (Koch) a reissue featuring Joe Harriott and John Mayer.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Documentary film maker ROBERT WEIDE ("WHY-dee"). He's made his reputation making films about comedy and comedians. His films include: "The Marx Brothers In a Nutshell" (PBS), "The Great Standups" (HBO), and the Emmy Award winning "W.C. Fields Straight Up." His latest project is the HBO documentary "Lenny Bruce: Swear to Tell the Truth" (on HBO). It premiered on HBO August 9th. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: We hear an excerpt of an interview with Lenny Bruce's mother, SALLY MARR. The interview was conducted in 1989 by radio producer Larry Josephson for his program "Modern Times." (Josephson's radio documentary "Lenny Bruce Remembered" can be ordered by calling, 1-800-528-4424, or writing Radioart, Box 2000 GPO, New York, N.Y. 10116. The cost is {dollar}30 for 2 tapes. The documentary is 4 hours long). REV. : Film maker ROBERT WEIDE continued.

Description of show segment(s)
Grand Master Award. His latest McBain novel is "The Big Bad City." (Simon & Schuster). REV. : Critic KEN TUCKER reviews the new animated film "The Iron Giant" from Warner Bros.

Interview with Brian Dennehy; Interview with Dan Shaughnessy; Review of Macy Gray's album "Macy Gray On How Life Is." August 16, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884411].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI interviews actor BRIAN DENNEHY who won a Tony Award for his portrayal of Willy Loman in the current Broadway production of "Death of a Salesman." Mr. Dennehy recently starred in the television movies "Shadow of a Doubt" and "Jack Reed: A Search for Justice." He is perhaps best known for his work in feature films, which include Presumed Innocent, Best Seller, Twice in a Lifetime, F/X, Cocoon, Silverado, Gorky Park, First Blood, Never Cry Wolf, and Peter Greenaway's Belly of an Architect. Additional television credits include Emmy nominations for "Burden of Proof," "To Catch a Killer," and "A Killing in a Small Town;" and a Cable Ace Award for best actor in "Foreign Affairs"!

Interview with Richard Thompson; Interview with Richard Davenport-Hines; Commentary on the longevity of new vocabulary. August 17, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884736].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer/songwriter, guitarist RICHARD THOMPSON. He first became known for his work with "Fairport Convention." He's since gone solo and is known for his dark songs which blend elements of British folk ballads and the blues. He's released a number of solo albums, "Mirror Blue," and "Rumor and Sign". Rykodisc also compiled a retrospective of his work "Watching the Dark: The History of Richard THOMPSON's newest solo CD is "Mock Tudor" (Capitol) INT. 2: Writer RICHARD DAVENPORT-HINES is the author of the new book "Gothic: Four Hundred Years of Excess, Horror, Evil and Ruin" (North Point Press) which traces the history and evolution of the Gothic sensibility. DAVENPORT-HINES is the author of five other books including "Auden" He's written for The (London) Times, The Observer, and The Independent. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG considers the staying power of new words that enter the lexicon.

Interview with Cal Thomas and Ed Dobson; Commentary on the record label Excello. August 18, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884686].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Syndicated columnist CAL THOMAS and pastor ED DOBSON. Both previously worked with the Moral Majority: THOMAS was Jerry Falwell's spokesman, and DOBSON was Falwell's personal assistant. The two are now critical of the emergence of conservative Christian groups into politics, and they've collaborated on the new book: "Blinded by Might: Can the Religious Right Save America?" (Zondervan Publishing). INT. 2: Syndicated columnist CAL THOMAS and pastor ED DOBSON CONTINUED. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD remembers the blues label Excello.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: From the new film "Illuminata," actor/director JOHN TURTURRO and composer WILLIAM BOLCOM. The film is based on a stage play by Brandon Cole (who also wrote the screenplay with Turturro). Previously the two collaborated on the film "Mac." BOLCOM won the Pulitzer Prize in Music in 1988 for his "Twelve New Etudes for Piano." INT. 2: Actors RALPH ("Rafe") and JOSEPH FIENNES ("Fines"). They're best known for their respective roles in "The English Patient" and "Shakespeare in Love." Their mother, Jennifer Lash, was an accomplished novelist in England. Her last novel, "Blood Ties" was written as she was dying of breast cancer. Her sons talk about their mother. Their sister Sophie, also joins the conversation. REV. : RALPH and JOSEPH FIENNES continued.

Interview with Robert Sullivan; Commentary on Excello Records; Interview with Eddie Izzard; Review of the television movie "Ricky Nelson August 20, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884690].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer ROBERT SULLIVAN. Now in paperback, his book "The Meadowlands: Wilderness Adventures At the Edge of a City" (Anchor books) is about his intrepid trek into the swamp land five miles outside of New York City, where decades of garbage, chemicals, and corpses have been dumped. Ian Frazier calls it "funny, interesting, surprising and bizarre." SULLIVAN also writes for The New Yorker, Conde Naste Travler, The New Republic and Rolling Stone. (REBROADCAST from 3/25/98)REV. : Rock historian ED WARD has part II of his look at Excello records. A Nashville based blues studio that between 1952 and 1975 released hundreds of records that influenced performers from Evis Presley to the Rolling Stones.INTV.:British standup comic EDDIE IZZARD (pronounced like "Lizzard"). The cross-dressing comic is a household name in England. He's currently starring in "Lenny" a stage play about the controversial standup comic, Lenny Bruce. IZZARD plays Bruce. "Lenny" is playing at the Queens Theatre in London. Last year IZZARD performed his one-man show "Dress to Kill" at New York's Westbeth Theater, in the West Village. A New York Times review described him as "a ticklingly entertaining hybrid of mainstream cultural influences and offbeat personal tendencies." IZZARD can also been seen in the films "The Avengers," and "The Velvet Goldmine" and in the new film "Mystery Men." (REBROADCAST from 4/13/98)REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews VH-1's new movie "Ricky Nelson: Original Teen Idol" showing this weekend.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Assistant Curator in the Department of Architecture and Design at the New York's Museum of Modern Art, CHRISTOPHER MOUNT. He's the curator of "Different Roads: Automobiles for the Next Century" thru September 21st. The exhibition presents nine contemporary automobiles which represent the next generation of cars. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)INT. 2: Also one of the car's designers, CHUCK PELLY. He is the President and CEO of Designworks/USA, international design consultants specializing in transportation and product design.REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG reviews the new edition of the venerable grammar book "The Elements of Style."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: U.S. Ambassador to Vietnam PETE PETERSON. He's a former Florida congressman and a former P.O.W. during the Vietnam war. He spent almost seven years as a prisoner of war. Now everyday, living in Vietnam, he passes by the Hanoi Hilton, the building that held him. PETERSON is the subject of a new PBS documentary, "Assignment Hanoi." (It airs on many PBS stations September 7th).INT. 2: Writer and flight attendant ELLIOTT NEAL HESTER. He writes the bimonthly column "Out of the Blue" for the online magazine, Salon. He's also working on an upcoming book about flying the "not so friendly skies." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW).REV. : ELLIOTT NEAL HESTER continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and director M. NIGHT SHYAMALAN ("SHA mah lahn"). He's the man behind the new #1 hit film, "The Sixth Sense" about a boy who sees the dead. The film stars Bruce Willis. SHYAMALAN made his film debut with "Praying with Anger" which was named Debut of the Year by the American Film Institute in Los Angeles. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: Botanist MARGARET LOWMAN. She's a pioneer in research on forest canopies, i.e, the treetops - their inhabitants, flowers, fruits and morality. Her new book is "Life in the Treetops: Adventures of a Woman in Field Biology" (Yale Book News). LOWMAN is director of research and conservation at the Marie Selby Botanical Gardens in Sarasota, Florida. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW).REV. : Botanist MARGARET LOWMAN continued.

Interview with Bill Siemering; Interview with Roy A. Loney; Review of the film "The Muse."
August 26, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884688].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BILL SIEMERING works for "The Open Society Institute," a group that promotes open and free societies. It is funded by the SOROS Foundation. He talks about building up radio in third world countries to serve as a tool for democracy. SIEMERING wrote the mission and goals statement for National Public Radio and served there as its first program director. He also served as V.P. at WHYY-FM in Philadelphia.INT. 2: ROY A. LONEY (LOW-nee) was lead singer (1965-1971) of the San Francisco band "Flamin' Groovies." Buddha Records has re-issued their albums "Flamingo" and "Teenage Head" Both out-of-print cult classics. After LONEY left the band, he recorded with "Phantom Movers" and currently performs with his new band "Fondellas." REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Muse" the new film by Albert Brooks.

Description of show segment(s)

Interview with B.B. King; Interview with Peter Guralnick. August 30, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884691].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: He's known as the King of the Blues. B.B. KING was born on a cotton plantation in Mississippi before moving to Memphis where he began his career. Since then, among numerous other awards, he's received seven Grammies, an MTV award, and a Presidential Medal of the Arts. He is also a member of the Rock-and-Roll Hall of Fame. In his biography, entitled "Blues All Around Me"(Avon Books) he recounts his life from his early days in Mississippi, to breaking into the music business in Memphis, to his career today. Terry Gross talked to him just after his book was published. (REBROADCAST from 10/22/96). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)INT. 2: Music writer PETER GURALNICK. is author of "Searching For Robert Johnson" which examines the brief life of perhaps the greatest blues musician of all time. In the 20s and 30s, Johnson was "King of the Delta Blues Singers," and a sensation throughout the South. Johnson died at age 27, shot to death by a jealous husband, but his music continued to be studied and copied by artists such as Eric Clapton and the Rolling Stones. (REBROADCAST from 10/20/89.)REV. : NONE Interview with Bonnie Raitt; Commentary on the Rolling Stones' influences; Interview with Eric Clapton. August 31, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884316].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer/songwriter BONNIE RAITT talks about the musicians and performers that inspired her: B.B. King, Mississippi Fred McDowell, and Sippie Wallace. RAITT's newest album is "Fundamental" (Emd/Capitol). She's currently on tour. (REBROADCAST from 3/3/89)REV.: Rock historian ED WARD on the blues music that influenced The Rolling Stones. (REBROADCAST FROM 7/26/88)INT. 2: Rock guitarist ERIC CLAPTON. His friends call him "Slowhand," his fans call him "God." Whatever name he goes by, Eric Clapton is at or near the top of any list of the greatest guitar players in rock history. Clapton started out playing blues with the Yardbirds (For Your Love) in the early 60s, then played with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers before forming Cream, one of the 60s most influential bands (Crossroads, White Room). His latest album is "Blues" (Polydor). There's a new tribute CD to him: "Blues Power: Songs of Eric Clapton." (REBROADCAST from 12/7/89)

Interview with Corey Harris; Commentary on Rufus Thomas. September 1, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884463].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Blues singer and guitarist COREY HARRIS. He's helped revive the traditional acoustic sound of Mississippi Delta Blues. His latest album is "Greens from the Garden" (Alligator Records). (Rebroadcast from 6/30/97) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: COREY HARRIS continued. REV.: Rock historian ED WARD profiles Rufus Thomas.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Blues and R&B singer ETTA JAMES. She was a teenager when she was discovered by band leader/talent scout Johnny Otis, who helped her record her first single, "Dance with Me Henry." Her career took off in the sixties, until she battled a drug addiction at the end of that decade. Although JAMES mostly sang R&B, in 1994 she released "Mystery Lady," on which she covers songs by her favorite jazz singer, Billie Holiday. Rebroadcast from 8/24/94. INT. 2: Rhythm and Blues singer RUTH BROWN. She got her start in the 1940s, and influenced a whole generation of singers including Stevie Wonder, Aretha Franklin, Little Richard and Bonnie Raitt. Her hits include "Mama, He Treats Your Daughter Mean" and "Teardrops From My Eyes." Later she appeared in John Water's film "Hairspray" and in the Broadway hit "Black and Blue." Her autobiography "Miss Rhythm" was published in 1996. Rebroadcast from 12/22/97. INT. 3: Veteran rhythm and blues singer LAVERN BAKER. She had a series of hits in the 50s, among them "Bumblebee," and "Jim Dandy to the Rescue." Her latest recordings are "The Blue Side of Rock and Roll," and "Woke Up This Morning. Rebroadcast from 3/26/91.

Interview with Buddy Guy; Interview with Rufus Thomas, Marvell Thomas, Dan Penn, and Spooner Oldham; Interview with Syl Johnson. September 3, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884461].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Chicago-based blues guitarist BUDDY GUY. Eric Clapton has called his "by far and without a doubt the best guitar player alive." Guy was born in Louisianna, son of a sharecropper. He moved to Chicago in the late fifties and played with all the greats...including Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf and Junior Wells. Rebroadcast from 8/10/93. INT. 2: An on stage performance with RUFUS THOMAS, the self-proclaimed 'world's oldest teenager.' He was recorded at the 1997 Chicago Blues Festival. He played an integral role in the success of major record labels in the nineteen-fifties, Sun Records and Stax Records. Rebroadcast from 7/3/97. REV. : Singer SYL JOHNSON had hits in the 1960's and 70's such as 'Come on Sock it to Me' and 'Take Me to the River.' Rappers including TLC and Hammer have sampled his early tunes. JOHNSON was recorded "live" at the 1997 Chicago Blues Festival. Rebroadcast from 7/3/97.FEPTEMBER 6-20, 1999
Interview with Ray Manzarek; Interview with Jac Holzman; Interview with Ray Manzarek. September 6, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884320].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: THE DOORS's keyboard player RAY MANZAREK. Last year, his autobiography "Light My Fire: My Life with The Doors" was published. MANZAREK talks about his experience playing in one of the 1960's most influential bands. The Doors disbanded after its lead singer Jim Morrison died in 1971. Since The Doors, MANZAREK has produced four albums for the punk rock band X and recorded several solo albums. He also performs with Beat poet Michael McClure at nightclubs and on college campuses. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) INT. 2: The founder of Elektra Records, JAC HOLZMAN. talks about working with The Doors. HOLZMAN wrote about his years in the record business in "Follow the Music: The Life and High Times of Elektra Records in the Great Years of American Pop Culture." REV. : We return to the interview with RAY MANZAREK.

Interview with Harry Keitt; Interview with Kris Kristofferson; Commentary on slang. September 7, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884465].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Boxing trainer HARRY KEITT. He can be seen in the new documentary "On the Ropes" about the world of boxing at a Brooklyn neighborhood gym. Filmmakers Nanette Burstein and Brett Morgen follow four boxers and HARRY KEITT, their trainer, as they prepare for the 1997 Golden Gloves Tournament. INT. 2: Singer and actor KRIS KRISTOFFERSON. He can be seen in the recent John Sayles movie, "Limbo." And he has his first album out in about five years, "The Austin Sessions" (Atlantic). It features a new version of his song (known best for Janis Joplin's version) "Me And Bobby McGee" and teams him up with Jackson Browne and Vince Gill. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG on slang.
Interview with Bob Zmuda; Commentary on the Emmy Awards; Review of Jim Lauderdale's and Julie Miller's albums "Onward Thru it All" and "Broken Things." September 8, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884319].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: BOB ZMUDA ("ZMOO-da") is the co-executive producer of the new film "Man on the Moon" about the late comic Andy Kaufman. ZMUDA was also Kaufman's writer, co-conspirator, and close friend. In the 1970s Kaufman was best known for his portrayal of the sweet-natured foreign-born Latka on the TV sitcom "Taxi." On stage he took on mind-bending personas like an obnoxious master of ceremonies, or a wrestler who fought women and challenged them on stage, or an Elvis impersonator. Often he left his audience perplexed as to whether or not he was for real. Kaufman died in 1984 from lung cancer. ZMUDA is also the author of "Andy Kaufman Revealed!" (Little, Brown & Co.) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV: TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI looks ahead to this Sunday's 51st Annual Primetime Emmy Awards on the FOX network. REV: Pop music critic KEN TUCKER reviews two new CDs by artists on the outskirts of country music: "Onward Thru it All" by Jim Lauderdale and "Broken Things" by Julie Miller. Both releases feature work by guitarist, singer and songwriter Buddy Miller.

Interview with Douglas Frantz and Catherine Collins; Commentary on puns and country music. September 9, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884318].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Organizing expert JULIE MORGENSTERN. She is the founder of Task Masters, a New York based consulting company that tries to improve people's efficiency through better organizing skills. Her new book is "Organizing from the Inside Out" (Owl books). (REBROADCAST from 12/7/98). INT. 2: Pakistani writer BAPSI SIDHWA (Bop-see SEED-wah). Her novel Cracking India," which tells the story of the Partition of India through the eyes of an eight-year-old girl is the basis of the new film "Earth." The director is Deepa Mehta. (REBROADCAST from 10/29/91) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Stir of Echoes" the new film starring Kevin Bacon.

Interview with Uri Caine. September 13, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884464].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer and jazz pianist URI CAINE (ER-ee CANE). He's fronted and/or played with a number of groups. On his first two CDS as he a leader, "Sphere Music" and "Toys" heplayed homage to jazz pianists Thelonious Monk and Herbie Hancock. He's worked in groups led by Don Byron, Dave Douglas, Buddy DeFranco, Clark Terry and others. His latest release is "The Sidewalks of New York" which plays homage to turn of the century New York city and the songwriters of tin pan alley. (Winter & Winter label). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: URI CAINE continued. REV. : URI CAINE continued.

Interview with Philippe Wamba; Interview with James Gleick. September 14, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884424].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer PHILIPPE WAMBA ("Phil-EEP WAM-bah"). He is the son of an African father and a African-American mother. His new book looks at the affinity between African-Americans and Africans, the things that divide them, and they myths they each hold about the other. It's called "Kinship: A Family's Journey in Africa and America" (Dutton). WAMBA has lived in both countries. His father, Prof. Ernest Wamba dia Wamba, is currently leader of the rebel faction in the Democratic Republic of Congo. INT. 2: Science writer JAMES GLEICK ("GLICK"). His new book "Faster: The Acceleration of Just About Everything" (Pantheon) is about the accelerating pace of modern life. He writes about how technology has created the feeling that life moves too fast, but that we have become "addicted" to the pace and might as well learn to enjoy it. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV.: JAMES GLEICK continued.

---

Interview with David E. Kelly. September 15, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884422].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: An interview with TV producer DAVID E. KELLY held before an audience at the Writers' Guild Foundation conference in L.A. in June. KELLY created the TV shows "Ally McBeal" and "The Practice" which were both big winners at Sunday's Emmy awards. The interviewer is Brian Lowry, who covers the television industry for the L.A. Times. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: DAVID E. KELLY continued (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV.: DAVID E. KELLY continued

---

Interview with Tim Berners-Lee; Review of the Jeb Bishop Trio's album "Jeb Bishop Trio"; Review of the television show "Action." September 16, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884427].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The creator of the Web, TIM BERNERS-LEE. The World Wide Web has been compared to Bell's telephone and Marconi's radio in it's revolutionary impact on the world. BERNERS-LEE has long maintained that the Web is for the common good, despite efforts by others to make it otherwise. His new book is "Weaving the Web The Original Design and Ultimate Destiny of the World Wide Web by Its Inventor." BERNERS-LEE is the director of the World Wide Web Consortium which coordinates Web development. (Harpers) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE Interview with David Hyde Pierce; Review of Frank McCourt's memoir "'Tis"; Interview with Chris Rock; Review of the film "American Beauty." September 17, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884419].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor DAVID HYDE PIERCE plays Frasier's brother, Niles Crane, on NBC's sitcom "Frasier". He just received an Emmy Award for Best Supporting actor in a Comedy Series. Pierce has also appeared in the films: "Bright Lights, Big City," "Little Man Tate," "The Fisher King," "Crossing Delancy," "Sleepless in Seattle," and "Nixon." His voice can be heard in the movie "A Bug's Life." (REBROADCAST from 11/5/98) REV: Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Tis" Frank McCourt's sequel to "Angela's Ashes." INTV. 2: Comedian CHRIS ROCK. His HBO show "The Chris Rock Show" just won an Emmy for writing for a Variety or Music Program. Rock grew up in Brooklyn. He got his start in show business performing stand-up comedy routines in Manhattan. He spent three years on "Saturday Night Live" and appeared in a few films, including the recent "Beverly Hills Ninja." (REBROADCAST from 2/6/97) REV: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new film "American Beauty" starring Kevin Spacey.

Interview with Jane Goodall; Review of new television programs. September 20, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884423].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Scientist JANE GOODALL. She's devoted her life to studying the lives of chimpanzees in the wild. Her new book is "Reason for Hope: A Spiritual Journey" (Warner Books) about her beliefs in science and faith. There's also a companion PBS special which airs nationwide on October 27th. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INTV. 2: JANE GOODALL continued. REV. 1 TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI previews the new TV season that starts this week.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: An interview with composer PHILIP GLASS by his cousin IRA GLASS, the host of "This American Life." The conversation was recorded on-stage in Chicago earlier this month. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with PHILIP GLASS by IRA GLASS continued. REV.: Interview with PHILIP GLASS by IRA GLASS continued.

Interview with Spalding Gray; Interview with James Redford. September 22, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884420].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Monologist, actor and writer SPALDING GRAY. His newest work is "Morning, Noon, and Night" (Fararr, Straus, and Giroux) about being a father and raising a family. GRAY's monologues include, "Monster in a Box" about all the distractions that prevented him from completing his novel, "Impossible Vacation," and "Swimming to Cambodia" about filming a movie in Cambodia. His monologue and book "Gray's Anatomy" was about his eye problems, and his adventures in the mainstream and alternative health care industries. INT. 2: Executive producer, JAMES REDFORD, of the new HBO documentary, "The Kindness of Strangers." The film tells the story of four organ transplant patients, and the donors and their families.. It premieres on HBO Sept 23rd. REDFORD, himself, underwent two liver transplants. He's also the son of actor Robert Redford. And he founded The James Redford Institute for Transplant Awareness in Los Angeles (www.jrifilms.org) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV.: JAMES REDFORD continued.
Interview with Patrick Tyler; Commentary on George C. Scott. September 23, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884421].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist PATRICK TYLER is a correspondent for the New York Times, based in Moscow. Previously he was the Beijing Bureau Chief for the paper. He's written a new book about 30 years of U.S./China relations: "A Great Wall: Six Presidents and China: In Investigative History." (A Century Foundation Book) INT. 2: PATRICK TYLER continued. REV. : We remember actor GEORGE C. SCOTT who died yesterday at the age of 71. We hear an excerpt from "Patton."

Interview with Camryn Manheim; Review of the film "Romance X"; Interview with David Byrne; Review of the television show "Saturday Night Live." September 24, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884425].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress CAMRYN MANHEIM. Last year she won an Emmy Award for her role as attorney Ellenor Frutt on ABC's "The Practice." When she went up on stage to receive the award she joyously exclaimed "This is for all the fat girls!" She's written a memoir about her struggle to accept herself and her weight. It's called "Wake Up, I'm Fat!" (Broadway Books). The season premiere of The Practice airs this Sunday. (rebroadcast from 5/18/99) REV. : Fresh Air's film critic John Powers reviews the new French film, "Romance." INT. 2: Musician and Artist David Byrne. Byrne is best known for his work with the band the Talking Heads. The 1984 Talking Heads concert film "Stop Making Sense" has just been remastered and rereleased on DVD. (rebroadcast from 8/27/92) REV. : Saturday Night Live celebrates its silver anniversay this Sunday, with a prime time special. Fresh Air's TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI has a review.
Interview with Choying Drolma; Interview with Cynthia Cooper; Review of Basement Jaxx's album "Remedy." September 27, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884426].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: CHOYING DROLMA is a Tibetan Buddhist nun who practices a contemplative system of Buddhism called Cho. As part of that system, she also sings religious songs and chants. Their music was recorded by guitarist Steve Tibbetts who then created guitar arrangements around it. The result was the CD "Cho" (newly released on Hannibal Records). DROLMA is currently on tour with Tibbetts and her fellow nuns. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: From the WNBA'S Houston Comets, CYNTHIA COOPER. She's twice been voted the league's Most Valuable Player. She's written a new autobiography about her rise from an inner-city childhood in Los Angeles, to becoming a pro-basketball player. Her new book is "She Got Game: My Personal Odyssey" (Warner Books)REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Remedy" the first full-length CD released in America by the British duo Basement Jaxx, consisting of the two DJs Simon Ratcliffe & Felix Buxton.

Interview with Nicholas Lemann; Commentary on the language used to discuss the teaching of evolution. September 28, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884575].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist and staff writer for The New Yorker NICHOLAS LEMANN ("Lemon") is the author of the new book "The Big Test: The Secret History of the American Meritocracy" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux). It's a social history of how reformers in the mid 1940s set upon universal testing criteria (the Educational Testing Service, purveyors of the SAT) as a way of creating a new democratic elite, drawn from every section and every background of America. And it's about how that 50 year old system has failed. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: NICHOLAS LEMANN continued.REV. : The Kansas board of Education decided recently to leave evolution out if its required curriculum. Linguist GEOFF NUNBURG examines how the language of the controversy has changed over the century.
Interview with Christopher Andrew; Interview with Dave Douglas. September 29, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884446].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Historian CHRISTOPHER ANDREW is the author of the new book "The Sword and the Shield: The Mitrokhin Archive and the Secret History of the KGB" (Basic books). The book is based on the documents smuggled out of the KGB archives by Vasili Mitrokhin, who worked for 30 years in the foreign intelligence archives of the KGB. In 1972 he began making notes and transcripts of the archives which he then smuggled out daily and hid. He defected to Britain in 1992. Among other things, the documents reveal: the identity of the KGB's longest serving British agent who is still alive, that the KGB tried to discredit J. Edgar Hoover as a corrupt gay conspirator, and that they made plans to sabotage and cut off the electricity supply in the whole of New York State.

INT. 2: Trumpeter and composer DAVE DOUGLAS doesn't like to categorize music. He's currently fronting seven ensembles, of varying compositional, improvisational and instrumental styles, including the Dave Douglas String Group, the Tiny Bell Trio, and the Sextet. He's been a sideman with Don Byron, Myra Melford and Uri Caine. DOUGLAS has many compositions and recordings to his credit. His latest recordings are "Songs for Wandering Souls" (Winter & Winter) by the Tiny Bell Trio, and "Convergence" (Soul Note) by the Dave Douglas String Group. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JOSE RAMOS-HORTA ("Joe-zay Ra-MOSH Horta") is an exiled East Timorese resistance leader. In 1996 he shared the Nobel Peace Prize with Bishop Belo from East Timor. Since 1975, when Indonesia invaded and annexed the newly independent East Timor, RAMOS-HORTA has denounced Indonesia's actions and defended the rights of East Timorese, as an ambassador to the U.N. and a representative for independence groups. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

INT. 2: JOSE RAMOS-HORTA continued.

REV. : Former U.S. President JIMMY CARTER discusses his work helping monitor elections in East Timor at the time of the referendum for independence.

INT. 3: Today, GUNTER GRASS won the Nobel Prize for literature. The Nobel Academy cited his first novel, "The Tin Drum," published in 1959, for ushering in a new era of German literature after decades of linguistic and moral destruction. We're going to hear an excerpt of an interview recorded with Grass in 1992. Although he's now staunchly anti-Nazi, he had been a member of Hitler Youth, then fought in the war. Rebroadcast of 12/16/92

---

Interview with Jimmy Carter; Interviews with Jimmy Carter; Review of the film "Three Kings."

October 1, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884574].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former president JIMMY CARTER turns 75 today. We celebrate by rebroadcasting excerpts of several of his interviews in which he discusses his faith, his life in politics, and his love of poetry. His books related to these topics are: "Always a Reckoning: and other Poems" (Random House, 1995), "Turning Point: A Candidate, A State, and a Nation Come of Age" (Time Books, 1993), and "Living Faith" (Times Books, 1996). (CARTER's interviews are rebroadcast from 1/12/93, 1/17/95, 12/25/96). (THESE INTERVIEWS CONTINUE INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: JIMMY CARTER continued. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Three Kings," starring George Clooney, Ice Cube and Mark Wahlberg. It's written and directed by David O. Russell, whose last hit film was "Flirting With Disaster."

---

Interview with Edmund Morris; Interview with John Peterman. October 4, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884444].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer EDMUND MORRIS. His biography of former president Ronald Reagan, "Dutch," (Random House) has garnered a lot of controversy. Morris uses a fictional narrator to tell much of the story, taking unprecedented artistic liberties. This is the first biography authorized by a sitting president, and it took Morris fourteen years to finally complete the work. Morris, a South African by birth, is the author of "The Rise of Theodore Roosevelt," which won the Pulitzer Prize and the American Book Award. He is currently at work on a second volume of the Roosevelt biography. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: Former mail order magnate J. PETERMAN. His text-heavy apparel catalogs spun stories of adventure, and earned him a place as a fictional character on the hit T-V series "Seinfeld." But his business failed, and now he's written an article in the current issue of "The Harvard Business Review" to tell what happened. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW)

REV. : J. PETERMAN continued.

Interview with Audrey Wells; Review of the televisions shows "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" and "Angel"; Review of Diana Krall's and Nat King Cole's albums "When I Look in Your Eyes" and "After Midnight October 5, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884445].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Screenwriter and director AUDREY WELLS. She is making her directorial debut with the new film "Guinevere" starring Stephen Rea and Sarah Polley. The film is about a mentor relationship between an older man and a young woman, and the needs and insecurities that compell them. WELLS also wrote the screenplay for "The Truth about Cats and Dogs." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: AUDREY WELLS continued. REV. : TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the season opener of "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" and the premiere of its spin-off "Angel" on the WB network tonight. REV. Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the new album by singer/pianist Diana Krall, "When I Look in Your Eyes" (Verve), and the reissue by Nat King Cole, "After Midnight: The Complete Session" (Capitol Jazz).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ERIC IDLE was one of the six original members of Monty Python's Flying Circus which, by the way, celebrates its 30th anniversary this year. He wrote many of the songs from the show like, "Always Look on the Bright Side of Life." Since then, IDLE has written a number of books. His latest is a comic science-fiction thriller, "The Road to Mars: A Post-Modem Novel." (Pantheon books) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: ERIC IDLE continued.REV. : ERIC IDLE continued.
Interview with Charlie Haden; Interview with Josh Haden; Interview with Charlie Haden; Obituary for Art Farmer. October 7, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884573].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1A: Jazz bassist CHARLIE HADEN. His newest release with his Quartet West is "The Art of The Song" (Verve). HADEN formed the quartet to play the music of the 1940s and early 50s. He's worked with jazz musicians Art Pepper, Paul Bley, Ornette Coleman. And he's recorded with many artists including Abbey Lincoln, Bill Frisell, Joshua Redman, Rick Lee Jones, and others. (THIS INTERVIEW WILL CONTINUE IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW)INT. 1B: Bassist and singer JOSH HADEN is Charlie's son. After years of playing punk, he founded the trio "Spain" and their 1995 debut album "Blue Moods of Spain" was critically acclaimed. Their new album is "She Haunts My Dreams" (Restless Records). The music on their new CD has been described as "languid," "melancholy" and "cabaret-ready country music." INT. 2: CHARLIE HADEN continued.REV. : We remember jazz musician ART FARMER. He died on Monday at the age of 71 from heart failure. FARMER was an important second-generation be-bop musician, and also known for his warm tone and lovely ballads on the trumpet and flugelhorn. He worked with bands led by Wardell Gray, Horace Silver, and Gerry Mulligan. In the 1950s he formed the Jazztet, a sextet with saxophonist Benny Golson, and they wrote many compositions together. (REBROADCAST from 7/21/87)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: ROBERT Mc CRUM suffered a stroke in 1995 at the young age of 42. He has written in detail about his experience and his recovery. TERRY GROSS talks with Mc CRUM and his wife SARAH LYALL who was key in his recovery. His memoir "My Year Off: Recovering Life After a Stroke" is now in paperback. (REBROADCAST. ORIGINALLY AIRED 10/12/98.) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF.)INT. 2: ROBERT MCCRUM & SARAH LYALL continued.REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Stiffed: The Betrayal of the American Man" (Morrow) by Susan Faludi. It's a non-fiction account of the myths and betrayals American society has perpetrated on men. Faludi's first book was the highly acclaimed "Backlash."

Interview with Aretha Franklin. October 11, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884443].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: A rare interview with the Queen of Soul, ARETHA FRANKLIN. She's won fifteen Grammy awards and is the first woman to be inducted into the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame. The state of Michigan has proclaimed her voice a natural resource. Her hits include "Respect," "I Say a Little Prayer," and "You Make me Feel Like a Natural Woman." She's just written an autobiography with David Ritz, entitled "Aretha: From These Roots" (Villard Books).INT. 2: ARETHA FRANKLIN continues.REV. : ARETHA FRANKLIN continues.

Interview with Rick Whitaker; Review of Marshall Crenshaw's album "Number 447"; Obituary for Milt Jackson. October 12, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884508].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer RICK WHITAKER has written a new memoir about the two years he spent as a male prostitute in New York City: "Assuming the Position: A Memoir of Hustling" (Four Walls Eight Windows). At that time WHITAKER also was writing a novel, addicted to drugs, and indulging in his love of highbrow culture. WHITAKER is a graduate of Hunter College, with a degree in philosophy. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: Writer RICK WHITAKER continued.REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews Marshall Crenshaw's 8th album, "Number 447" (Razor & Tie)INT. 3: Vibraphonist MILT JACKSON died from liver cancer. He played with Earl Hine's big band, and Dizzy Gillespie's. He took his style not from another vibraphonist but from Charlie Parker, and was the first bona fide bebop musician on the vibraphone. JACKSON also recorded music with Thelonious Monk. And in 1952 he co-founded the Modern Jazz Quartet, pulled from Gillespie's rhythm section, which stayed together for over 20 years. (REBROADCAST from 1983)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Journalist ALLAN NAIRN has covered U.S. foreign policy since 1980. In September after most journalists, UN officials, and independent observers were forced out of East Timor, NAIRN stayed to report on events there. He witnessed the destruction and violence in Dili by the militia following the vote for independence by East Timorese. He was then arrested, detained, and deported. NAIRN writes for "The Nation", Pacifica Radio and The New Yorker. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: ALLAN NAIRN continued.REV. : We remember basketball great WILT CHAMBERLAIN who died yesterday at the age of 63 from an apparent heart attack. In 1991 he was interviewed on Fresh Air at the publication of his memoir, "A View From Above." (REBROADCAST from 11/1/91) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW).

Interview with Bill Minutaglio; Commentary on the suffix "dot com." October 14, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884517].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer TONY BENNETT. His newest CD is "Tony Bennett Sings Ellington Hot & Cool" (RPM Records/Columbia). Last year he published his autobiography "The Good Life: The Autobiography of Tony Bennett". A grocer's son, Anthony Dominick Benedetto was born in Astoria Queens in 1926. After working as a singing waiter in his teens and then following service in the U.S. Army, he auditioned for Columbia Records and launched a career that started off with his first big hit "Boulevard of Broken Dreams" (1950), and included "Because of You" (1951), "Rags to Riches" (1953), and his unforgettable signature tune "I Left My Heart In San Francisco" (1962, double-Grammy winner). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: TONY BENNETT continued. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews The Straight Story, the latest film by acclaimed Director David Lynch.
Interview with Mickey Spillane; Review of the album "Mickey One"; Interview with P.D. James. October 20, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884506].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Detective writer MICKEY SPILLANE ("Spill-AIN). One of the world's most popular writers of the hardboiled private investigator genre. His most famous character is Mike Hammer. He's began writing about Hammer in 1947. (REBROADCAST from 11/22/89) REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "Mickey One" (Verve) the soundtrack from the noir-ish Arthur Penn film. It was recently reissued and features Stan Getz. (REBROADCAST from 1/18/99) INT. 2: British mystery writer P.D.JAMES, the 78-year-old grandmother known as the queen of crime. Her most recent bestselling novel, just released in paperback, is "A Certain Justice" (Mass Paperbacks). Several of her earlier novels including "A Taste for Death" and "Shroud for a Nightingale" have been adapted for PBS. Terry spoke with her at the publication of "A Taste for Death". (REBROADCAST from 11/19/86)

Interview with Charles Dutton; Interview with David Alan Grier; Interview with Damon Wayans. October 21, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884507].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor CHARLES DUTTON. DUTTON was the star of the sit com Roc. Recently, he was featured on the HBO prison series OZ. His new film is Random Hearts. He has received Tony nominations for his performances in August Wilson's plays The Piano Lesson, and Ma Rainey's Black Bottom. He's a graduate of Yale Drama School, but he discovered acting at Maryland State Penitentiary where he spent seven and a half years. (REBROADCAST from 2/04/92)REV. : Actor and comedian DAVID ALAN GRIER. GRIER got his start on the TV sketch comedy show In Living Color. He's featured with David Duchovny and Minnie Driver in the forthcoming film Return to Me. (REBROADCAST from 4/01/91)INT. 2: Comedian DAMON WAYANS. WAYANS was one of the stars on the TV sketch comedy show In Living Color. On the program, he created such characters as Homey the Clown and Handyman. He has starred in the movies Mo Money, Blankman, Major Payne, and Celtic Pride. Wayans has also done stand up comedy throughout his career. His recent book Bootleg includes some excerpts of his routines. (REBROADCAST from 6/14/99)

Interview with Ringo Starr; Interview with Cynthia Lennon; Review of the film "Bringing Out the Dead." October 22, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884518].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Drummer, RINGO STARR talks to Terry about his life before, during and after the Beatles. He has a new CD of Christmas Songs coming out soon, "I Wanna Be Santa Claus". Recently the Yellow Submarine soundtrack was reissued with previously unreleased tracks. (REBROADCAST from 6/14/95)INT. 2: CYNTHIA LENNON was the first wife of Beatle musician John Lennon. Terry talked with Cynthia in 1985. She wrote a book about her years with Lennon in 1978 called "A Twist of Lennon." They met in art school in 1957 and were married in 1962. During the years John toured the world, as a member of the most popular rock group in history, Cynthia was at home raising their son Julian. Cynthia and John Lennon divorced in 1968 after John fell in love with Yoko Ono. John Lennon was killed 12 years later. As their son, Julian, launched his own career as a musician, Cynthia Lennon developed her work as a designer. (REBROADCAST from 8/6/85)REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews Martin Scorsese's new film "Bringing Out the Dead."
Interview with Dean Ward; Interview with Freddie Roman and Jeffrey Ross; Review of the album "Central Avenue Sounds October 25, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884503].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Documentary director, DEAN WARD. His new film, "Let Me In, I Hear Laughter: a Salute to the Friars" is about the Friars club, the place where show business entertainers meet and then roast each other. Such comic luminaries as George Burns, Groucho Marx, Bob Hope, as well as entertainers Will Rogers, George M. Cohan, and Irving Berlin were members. Then we meet two current members of the Friars. The documentary premieres on Cinemax tomorrow, Tuesday, October 26th. Also Comedy Central features the Friars' Club roast of comic Jerry Stiller, Wednesday, October 27th. INT. 2: Dean of the New York Friars' Club, FREDDIE ROMAN, and comic JEFFREY ROSS, are both featured in the documentary, and the roast of Jerry Stiller. (INTERVIEW CONTINUES IN THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV. : Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews the 4 CD box set "Central Avenue Sounds: Jazz in Los Angeles (1921-1956)" (Rhino).

Interview with Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg; Review of the Dixie Chicks' album "Fly." October 26, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884430].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Violinist NADJA SALERNO-SONnenberg. Born in Russia, she emigrated to Philadelphia with her family when she was eight so that she could attend the Curtis Institute. Later her unorthodox playing, and unconventional attire on stage earned her a reputation as the "bad girl" of classical violin. In 1994 she nearly sliced the tip of her finger off chopping onions, and after surgery and painful practicing, she returned to the stage. SONnenberg has played with just about every major orchestra and has recorded 15 albums. She is the subject of a new documentary, "Speaking in Strings" which premiered at the 1999 Sundance Film Festival. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: Violinist NADJA SALERNO-SONnenberg continued.REV. : Pop critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Fly" the new CD by the Dixie Chicks.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Soul singer BARRY WHITE, the sweet-talking, deep-voiced performer who rhapsodizes about love. His hits include "My First, My Last, My Everything," "Never Never Gonna Give Up," and "I'm Gonna Love You Just a Little More." Before he became a hit as a solo performer, WHITE put together the female vocal trio, Love Unlimited and founded the Love Unlimited Orchestra, a 40 piece ensemble to accompany himself and the trio. WHITE has a new autobiography, "Barry White: Love Unlimited." (written with Marc Eliot, published by Broadway books). His new CD is "Barry White: Staying Power" (Private music). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: BARRY WHITE continued.REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews the new novel "Headlong" (Henry Holt) by British author Michael Frayn.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: VICTORIA PRICE is the daughter of actor Vincent Price, who was best known as the "King of Horror" for his performances in horror films. VICTORIA is the author of the new book: "Vincent Price: A Daughter's Biography." (St. Martins). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: VICTORIA PRICE continued.REV. : Classical music critic LLOYD SCHWARTZ reviews "Britten the Performer" a collection of five CDs on the BBC label featuring composer Benjamin Britten as pianist and conductor.
Interview with Werner Herzog; Interview with Alf Clausen; Review of the film "Being John Malkovich." October 29, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884433].

Description of show segment(s)

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Another edition of our American Popular Song Series, profiling composer JEROME KERN. He wrote the songs "All the Things You are," "Can't Help Lovin' That Man," "I'm Old-Fashioned," "Ol' Man River," and "The Way You Look Tonight." A number of those songs are from the broadway musical "Showboat" which he wrote. We'll focus on the music he wrote before then, before 1927. Terry will talk with JOHN MCGLINN, an authority on Kern, and we'll hear performances by REBECCA LUKER, who starred in the revivals of "Showboat" and the "Sound of Music," GEORGE DVORSKY who sang leading roles in the New York City Opera's productions of "Cinderella" and Brigadoon." They'll be accompanied by WILLIAM HICKS, assistant conductor and assistant chorus master at the Metropolitan Opera. (THESE INTERVIEWS AND PERFORMANCES CONTINUE THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: SAME AS ABOVE REV. : SAME AS ABOVE

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Former Archbishop of Cape Town, South Africa, and recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize, DESMUND TUTU. He is currently a visiting professor at Emory University in Atlanta. He's written a new book about South Africa's Truth and Reconciliation Commission which he was Chairman of: "No Future Without Forgiveness" (Doubleday). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: DESMUND TUTU continued. REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Motherless Brooklyn" (Doubleday) by Jonathan Lethem, a mystery novel set in Greenpoint, Brooklyn.

Interview with Elaine Stritch; Interview with Frank Huyler; Review of Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young's album "Looking Forward." November 3, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884437].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Stage legend ELAINE STRITCH. In a career spanning more than 40 years, she has received acclaim for her work on stage, as well as on television and in motion pictures. She starred in the original 1961 Broadway production of Noel Coward's musical Sail Away. In honor of Coward's upcoming centenary, she'll reprise her role in a concert production at Carnegie Hall. INT. 2: Writer and Emergency doctor FRANK HUYLER (HIGH-ler). Huyler has transformed his experiences working in emergency rooms and hospitals into a series of short stories. His new book is called "The Blood of Strangers: Stories from Emergency Medicine (University of California Press)." His poetry has appeared in a number of publications including the Atlantic Monthly. REV. : Rock critic KEN TUCKER reviews "Looking Forward" the new album by the reunited Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young. It's only their 4th album in three decades.
Interview with Ziad Doueiri; Commentary on the suffix "-thon." November 4, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884436].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer and director ZIAD DOUEIRI ("ZEE-odd Doe-AIR-ee") is making his feature film debut with, "West Beirut." It's set in 1975 during the Lebanese civil war and is largely autobiographical. The film received accolades from the Cannes Film Festival, and the Toronto International Film Festival. DOUEIRI and his family left Lebanon for California in 1983. Before making this film, DOUEIRI, was cameraman for all of Quentin Tarantino's films. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Writer and director ZIAD DOUEIRI continued. REV. : Linguist GEOFF NUNBERG reflects on the decade of the suffix "thon" as in walkathon, bowment. . .etc.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actors and film producers DUSTIN HOFFMAN and TONY GOLDWYN. Their new Miramax film "A Walk on the Moon" has recently been released on video. Goldwyn, who also directed the film, is the grandson of studio executive Samuel Goldwyn of MGM. . Dustin Hoffman is a veteran actor whose first big break was starring in "The Graduate." Some of the films he's starred in include: "All The President's Men," "Kramer vs. Kramer," "Rainman," and "Tootsie." (REBROADCAST from 4/19/99) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: Interview with DUSTIN HOFFMAN and TONY GOLDWYN cont'd. REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Insider."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: TV writer, director and producer MARSHALL HERSKOVITZ. With his partner Edward Zwick, HERSKOVITZ created "Thirtysomething," "My So Called Life," and the new show "Once and Again."
INT. 2: Critic MILO MILES reviews two reissues -- cult favorites -- by the Holy Modal Rounders: Holy Modal Rounders 1 and 2 (on the Fantasy label) and their new album "Too Much Fun" (Rounder Records) REV. : We remember crime novelist GEORGE V. HIGGINS. He was found dead at his home on Saturday, apparently of natural causes. He was 59. He was best known for his best seller, "Friends of Eddie Coyle," published in 1972. (REBROADCAST from 1986)

Interview with Michael Lewis; Interview with Bernie Brillstein. November 9, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884527].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Writer MICHAEL LEWIS is the author of "The New New Thing" (Norton) about the Silicon Valley and the man behind the newest billion dollar-making venture. LEWIS is also the author of the bestseller, "Liar's Poker" and has been the American editor of the British weekly, "The Spectator" and senior editor at The New Republic. INT. 2: Manager to TV and film stars, BERNIE BRILLSTEIN ("STEEN"). His clients include John Belushi and Garry Shandling. He developed a very hands-on style of management, and has written a new memoir about his work, "Where Did I Go Right?: You're No One in Hollywood Unless Someone wants You Dead" (Little, Brown & Co.). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pokemon (POH-kay-mahn) is the latest kid craze and worldwide phenomenon. It hails from Japan, and began as an Nintendo game, featuring the superpowered animals called Pokemons. There are 150 characters in all. After the game came the trading cards, comic book series, and weekly cartoon. Now there's the Pokemon movie. We meet the American translator of the Pokemon characters, GERARD JONES. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN weighs in on writer and femininstore, Naomi Wolf. INT. 2: We remember jazz trumpeter LESTER BOWIE. He died Monday at the age of 58 from liver cancer. BOWIE was a founding member of the Art Ensemble of Chicago, founded in 1969. Bowie was known for his flamboyant performing, his sense of humor and theatrics, and his off kilter interpretations of R&B classics. (REBROADCAST from 11/3/89) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE FLOATER).

Interview with Buddy Miller and Julie Miller; Interview with Dave Hickey. November 11, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884529].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Singer/songwriters BUDDY & JULIE MILLER. Their songs have been recorded by everyone from the Dixie Chicks to Little Jimmy Scott. Each have new albums: "Broken Things" (Hightone Records) by Julie Miller, and "Cruel Moon" (Hightone) by Buddy Miller. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: BUDDY & JULIE MILLER continued. INT.2: A discussion about the exhibition "Norman Rockwell: Pictures for the American People" with art critic DAVE HICKEY. He wrote an essay for the exhibition catalogue. HICKEY is Associate Professor of Art Criticism and Theory at the University of Nevada. He's also author of the book "The Invisible Dragon: Four Essays on Beauty." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES AFTER THE :60 FLOATER)
Interview with Jonathan Kellerman; Interview with William Trevor; Review of the films "Dogma" and "Boys Don't Cry." November 12, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884530].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: JONATHAN KELLERMAN is a child psychologist and best-selling writer. He's best known for his character psychologist Alex Delaware. But in his novel Delaware is on hiatus. In "Billy Straight," (Ballantine Books, Inc.) his star is Billy, a 12 year old runaway, who witnesses a murder. The book has just come out in paperback and is currently number 6 on the Best Seller Paperback list. Kellerman is a clinical professor of pediatrics and psychology at University of Southern California School of Medicine. He also recently published "Savage Spawn" inspired by the schoolyard shootings that took place in Jonesboro, Arkansas, and Springfield, Oregon, in 1998. In this non-fiction book he examines the question of how children can become cold-blooded killers. (Ballantine Books, Inc.) (REBROADCAST from 1/26/99) INT. 2: Irish Writer WILLIAM TREVOR, whom The New Yorker called "probably the greatest living writer of short stories in the English language." Besides his eight volumes of short stories, he has written eleven novels, several plays for stage and for radio and television, and stories for The New Yorker, The New York Times, and other magazines. A film adaptation of his novel "Felicia's Journey," directed by Canadian Atom Egoyan, is coming out in limited release Friday. (REBROADCAST from 2/14/95) REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "Dogma" and "Boys Don't Cry."

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor GENE HACKMAN. The star of the films "Bonnie and Clyde," "The French Connection," "The Conversation," and "Unforgiven" is now an author. He's collaborated with DANIEL LENIHAN (LEN-ah-han) who we'll also from hear from (one of the world's leading underwater archaeologists) on the new novel, "Wake of the Perdido Star: A novel of shipwrecks, pirates, and the sea" (Newmarket Press). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: GENE HACKMAN continued. INT: DONALD MILLS, the last surviving member of the singing group, The Mills Brothers, died on Saturday. He was 84 years old. The group was known for their harmonies, and their hits included "Up the Lazy River," and "Glow Worm." (REBROADCAST from July, 1985).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Composer and conductor JOHN ADAMS. There's a new 10-CD box retrospective of his work, that spans the last two decades. It includes his orchestral pieces like Harmonium, and his operas "Nixon in China," and "The Death of Klinghoffer." The boxset is titled "The John Adams Earbox" (Nonesuch). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: JOHN ADAMS continued

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: RAVI SHANKAR is the world's leading sitar player. Now at the age of 79, he's published his autobiography, "Ravi Shankar: Raga Mala" (Welcome Rain Publishers). The book was edited and introduced by his friend George Harrison. SHANKAR is now performing on tour with his 18 year old daughter, ANOUSHKA. We'll hear from RAVI SHANKAR and later we'll be joined by his daughter. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: RAVI SHANKAR and ANOUSKHA continued. REV. : Critic MILO MILES reviews some Cuban records that aren't by the Buena Vista Club: "Casa de la Trova" (Detour Records), "Bossa Cubana" by Los Zafiros (World Circuit/Nonesuch label), and "Estrellas de Areito" (World Circuit/Nonesuch label).

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: International security expert GEORGE ROBERT PERKOVICH (Per-KO-vich) is author of the new book, "India's Nuclear Bomb: The Impact on Global Proliferation" (University of California Press) is about India's 50 year secret nuclear program, which began in 1947, and the forces internal and external that led to their detonation last year of 5 nuclear test bombs. PERKOVICH is deputy director for programs, and director of the Secure World Program for the W. Alton Jones Foundation, a philanthropic institution. His writing has appeared in the publications "Foreign Policy," "The Atlantic Monthly," and "The New York Times." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: GEORGE ROBERT PERKOVICH continued. INT. 3 The writer PAUL BOWLES died today in Tangiers, Morocco, his home for 50 years. He was 88 and died of cardiac arrest. His most famous novel "The Sheltering Sky" was selected by the Modern Library as one of the 100 best English-language novels of the century. We remember him with an excerpt of his 1993 interview. (REBROADCAST from 6/15/93).

Interview with Alan Alda; Review of the television show "Who Wants to be a Millionaire?"; Review of the film "Sleepy Hollow"; Interview with Dave Frishberg and Rebecca Kilgore. November 19, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884199].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actor ALAN ALDA. The star of the TV show M*A*S*H (for which he won Emmys for acting, writing, and directing), as well as the movies "Same Time, Next Year," "The Four Seasons," and in Woody Allen's "Crimes and Misdemeanors," "Manhattan Murder Mystery," and "Everyone Says I Love You." He recently had a short stint on "E.R." as Dr. Gabe Lawrence (REBROADCAST from 2/18/97) (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).REV TV critic DAVID BIANCULLI reviews the new hit game show "Who Wants to be a Millionaire?"REV. : Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews the new Tim Burton film, "Sleepy Hollow." SEG:A preview of Monday's show, the next installment of our American Popular Song series. This show pays tribute to Hoagy Carmichael and features performers, pianist Dave Frishberg, and singer Rebecca Killgore.
Interview with Thomas Ricks; Interview with Christopher Plummer. November 20, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/974038953].

Description of show segment(s)

(1.) Journalist THOMAS RICKS. He is the Washington Post's military correspondent. He'll talk about his latest trip to Iraq. Ricks has worked for the Washington Post since 2000, and prior to that, he wrote for the Wall Street Journal. Ricks is the recipient of two Pulitzer prizes. (2.) Actor CHRISTOPHER PLUMMER. He stars in the new independent film Man in the Chair, about a young man who enlists a group of retired film crew members to help finish his student film. Plummer plays a curmudgeonly former gaffer from the film Citizen Kane. Plummer may be best remembered as Baron Von Trapp in The Sound of Music. He was a frequent cast member on many of television's earliest productions from Kraft Television Theater and the Hallmark Hall of Fame. His films include A Beautiful Mind and Twelve Monkeys. Plummer has also done a lot of voiceover work, including the video game Grand Theft Auto: San Andreas. Plummer has won two Emmys.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: To celebrate the centennial of the birth of composer HOAGY CARMICHAEL we feature a tribute to him, as part of our American Popular Song series. CARMICHAEL wrote, "Star Dust," "Heart and Soul," "The Nearness of You," "Skylark" and many more. We feature performances by singer REBECCA KILGORE and pianist DAVE FRISHBERG. We'll also talk with RICHARD SUDHALTER, who has written a forthcoming biography of Carmichael. And we talk with Carmichael's son, Hoagy Bix Carmichael who now manages his father's music catalogue. (THIS TRIBUTE CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). INT. 2: HOAGY CARMICHAEL TRIBUTE continued. REV. : HOAGY CARMICHAEL TRIBUTE continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 2: LIEV SCHREIBER continued.REV. : Critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Waiting" (Pantheon) by Ha Jin the winner of this year's National Book Award for fiction, a novel which is set in China during the Cultural Revolution.

Interview with Bobby Womack; Review of the art exhibits "The Age of the Pyramids" and "Pharaohs of the Sun." November 24, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884757].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Rhythm and blues singer BOBBY WOMACK. His R&B and pop hits include "It'a All Over Now," "Lookin' For A Love," and "That's The Way I Feel About Cha." Recently his recording "Across 110th Street" was used in the Quentin Tarantino film, "Jackie Brown." WOMACK began his career singing gospel with his brothers. They were discovered by Sam Cooke. On his new release he returns to his gospel origins, "Back To My Roots" (The Right Stuff label/EMI). (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

Interview with Simon Callow; Interview with George Shearing; Review of the albums "Cootie Williams in Hi-Fi," "Wild Bill Davis and Johnny Hodges in Atlantic City," "Paul Gonsalves November 25, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884711].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: This year marks the centennial of the birth of British actor Charles Laughton. To celebrate, we feature a 1988 interview with Laughton's biographer, SIMON CALLOW. Laughton started in such films as the Hunchback of Notre Dame and Mutiny on the Bounty. The Brooklyn Academy of Music will begin a Laughton film retrospective in December. SIMON CALLOW is an actor in his own right. He has starred in such films as Four Weddings and a Funeral and a Room with a View. CALLOW has also written a biography of Orsen Welles. (REBROADCAST from 1988)INT. 2: We feature a 1986 interview with Jazz pianist GEORGE SHEARING. He turned 80 earlier this year. He is celebrating with an 80th birthday concert at Carnegie Hall next Tuesday. SHEARING was born in London, and was blind from birth. In the 1940s he was one of England's most popular Jazz musicians. He then moved to New York, became an American citizen, and enjoyed commercial success on these shores. He now records for the Telarc label. REV. : 1999 also marks the centennial of Duke Ellington's birth. Jazz Critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews four notable reissued recordings of Ellington's featured sidemen; all on the RCA label: "Cootie Williams in Hi-Fi," "Wild Bill Davis and Johnny Hodges in Atlantic City," "Paul Gonsalves: Ellingtonia Moods and Blues," and "C-Jam All-Stars: Diminuendo, Crescendo and Blues".

Interview with Bette Midler; Obituary for Quentin Crisp; Commentary on Doug Sahm; Obituary for Doug Sahm. November 26, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884706].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The Divine Miss M, otherwise known as BETTE MIDLER. She made a name for herself in the early 1970s at New York's Continental Baths, a club for gay men. Since then she's been nominated for two Academy Awards, and earned Emmy and Grammy awards. She's in the midst of a concert tour and will be starring in the upcoming film about novelist Jacqueline Susann entitled "Isn't She Great." (Rebroadcast from 11/18/98.) INT. 2: We remember Quentin Crisp, who died last Sunday at the age of 90. Crisp became a cult figure after the publication of his autobiography, THE NAKED CIVIL SERVANT. He came out of the closet in his native London in 1931, when homosexuality was very clandestine. His flamboyant and exhibitionist style often made him the object of ridicule and violence. Crisp moved to New York at the age of 72. (Rebroadcast from 1986) RE: Rock historian ED WARD profiles the career of versatile Texas rock n' roller DOUG SAHM, including the night in 1952 when he performed while sitting on the lap of Hank Williams, and his escapades as the leader of The Sir Douglas Quintet, a group of southerners who tried to convince the public they were British. (Rebroadcast of 2/23/88) INTV.: We remember Tex-Mex rocker DOUG SAHM. For many, he was best known for his stint with the Sir Douglas Quintet, a group of Texans and Mexicans who were packaged to look like a British Invasion band. Sahm had played a variety of styles since, including Tex-Mex, blues, rhythm and blues, rock. Sahm died last week. (Rebroadcast from 9/7/89)

---

Interview with Hugh Hefner. November 29, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884755].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 2: Interview with HUGH HEFNER continued.

---

Interview with Joe Torre; Interview with Philip Seymour Hoffman; Review of Nine Inch Nails' album "The Fragile." November 30, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884708].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: The Manager of the New York Yankees, JOE TORRE. He just clinched his third World Series as the manager of the Yankees. TORRE is the author of the new book, "Joe Torre's Ground Rules for Winners: 12 Keys to managing Team Players, Tough Bosses, Setbacks, and Success" (Hyperion).

INT. 2: Actor PHILIP SEYMOUR HOFFMAN. He stars as a drag-queen in the new movie "Flawless" which also stars Rober DeNiro. HOFFMAN also had parts in the films "Happiness," "Next Stop Wonderland," and

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Psychiatrist ROBERT JAY LIFTON is an expert on cult groups. His new book is about the Japanese cult group that released sarin nerve gas in the Tokyo subways: "Destroying the World to Save It: Aum Shinrikyo, Apocalyptic Violence, and the New Global Terrorism" (Metropolitan Books). INT. 2: Film writer and director KEVIN SMITH. His controversial new independent film "Dogma" is a comedy/parable about faith and the Catholic Church. It stars Ben Affleck, Linda Fiorentino, Alan Rickman, and George Carlin. SMITH also wrote and directed the films "Clerks" and "Chasing Amy." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV. : KEVIN SMITH continued.

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Producer RICK SCHMIDLIN. He's reconstructed the masterpiece 1924 silent film "Greed" by director Erich von Stroheim, which has been considered the "Holy Grail" of lost films. The American Film Institute deemed it number one on it's list of the Ten Most Wanted Lost Films. The director's first cut of the film was over nine hours long; he then cut it down to be released as a four and 1/2 hour, two-part film. However, the studio insisted on a shorter cut and the final edit was two hours. None of the original cut footage was saved. But SCHMIDLIN found over 600 film stills of the original footage, which has been inserted into the newly reconstructed film to complete the narrative von Stroheim wanted. "Greed" premieres on the Turner Classic Movies network on December 5th. INT. 2: Retired CIA intelligence officer, ANTONIO J. MENDEZ was the agency's Chief of Disguise. He retired in 1990. In his 25 year career with the agency, he participated in many missions. In 1980 he helped six American diplomats escape from Tehran. Masquerading as a movie producer, he entered Iran supposedly to scout locations for a science-fiction movie. He then coached the diplomats to pose as the film crew, allowing them to leave the country. His new book is "The Master of Disguise: My Secret Life in the CIA." (William and Morrow Company). REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN reviews "Galileo's Daughter: A Historical Memoir of Science, Faith, and Love" by Dave Sobel (Walker)
fresh air with terry gross

int. 1: director of the united hospital fund's project on family caregiving in an age of change, carole levine (leh-veen). she brings her professional and personal life to bear on her work with the project: since 1990, when her husband was critically injured in an automobile accident, she has been his caregiver. the fund released a major new report on caregivers last month: "rough crossings: family caregivers' odysseys through the health care system." levine is also the founder and executive director of the orphan project: families and children in the hiv epidemic. she was also awarded a macarthur foundation fellowship for her work in aids policy and ethics. (this interview continues into the second half of the show).

rev: world music critic milo miles reviews "luzia" (blue thumb label) the latest release by flamenco guitarist paco de lucia.

rev: linguist geoff nunberg on the epic anglo-saxon poem "beowulf" -- which is considered to be the origin of english literature and which has been newly translated by poet seamus heaney.

interview with jaye zimet; interview with ann bannon; interview with lawrence block. december 8, 1999. [link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972885007].

description of show segment(s)

int. 1: a conversation about lesbian pulp fiction with: jaye zimet who has compiled a new collection of book covers for lesbian pulp fiction: "strange sisters: the art of lesbian pulp fiction, 1949-1969" (viking studio). int. 2: writer ann bannon (her pseudonym) has written a number of books of lesbian pulp fiction, including "Odd Girl Out," "I Am a Woman," and "Journey to a Woman." BANNON went on to become a college dean, and has kept her identity a secret. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF HOUR OF THE SHOW). INT. 3: Before he became a well-known detective novelist, LAWRENCE BLOCK wrote a number of books of lesbian pulp fiction, under the pseudonym Jill Emerson (and others). Block is best known for his detective novels featuring the Manahatten private eye, Matt Scudder. His novels have followed Scudder through alcoholism and into recovery through an Alcoholics Anonymous program. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES THRU THE END OF THE SHOW). REV. : LAWRENCE BLOCK continued.

Interview with Tim Robbins; Commentary on children's books that adults will enjoy; Review of Beck's album "Midnight Vultures." December 9, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972885008].

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Actor, director, writer TIM ROBBINS talks about his new film The Cradle Will Rock. It is the first film written and directed by ROBBINS since the Academy Award winning Dead Man Walking. The Cradle Will Rock is based on the events surrounding the production of a 1937 labor musical, directed by Orson Welles. The play was shut down by a government injunction for the cast's alleged left-wing politics. ROBBINS is known for his roles in such films as Shawshank Redemption, The Player, and Bull Durham. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW) REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN tells us her picks of children's books that adults love. INT. 2: Rock Critic KEN TUCKER reviews Midnight Vultures, the new CD from Beck.

Description of show segment(s)
INT. 1: Singer, songwriter, guitarist ROBBIE FULKS. His new CD is "The Very Best of Robbie Fulks" (Bloodshot label). FULKS has one foot in the singer/songwriter scene, and one in country music. In fact he spent three years writing songs in Nashville, but no one opted to record his songs. In 1998 he debuted with a new CD of his own music, "Let's Kill Saturday Night". FULKS began his career as a regular at the same fabled Greenwich Village hole in the wall where Bob Dylan made a name for himself. FULKS also taught guitar at Chicago's famed Old Town School of Folk Music. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

INT. 2: ROBBIE FULKS continued.

REV.: Film critic JOHN POWERS reviews "The Green Mile" starring Tom Hanks.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Pulitzer-Prize winning writer GARRY WILLS. His new book is "A Necessary Evil: A History of American Distrust of Government" (Simon & Schuster). WILLS is also the author of "Lincoln At Gettysburg: The Words That Remade America." And he's written other books on Nixon, Reagan and Kennedy, as well as a look at the relationship between politics and popular culture via celebrity, "John Wayne's America: the Politics of Celebrity." INT. 2: Film historian RUDY BEHLMER on the making of "King Kong." The original movie soundtrack for the 1933 classic film has just been reissued on CD. (Rhino) The film was directed by documentarians Merian C. Cooper and Ernest Schoedsack who also worked together on the groundbreaking documentaries, "Grass" and "Chang." The score was by Max Steiner. BEHLMER wrote the liner notes for the the new CD. He's also the author of "Behind the Scenes." (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).

REV.: RUDY BEHLMER continued.

---

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: We remember novelist JOSEPH HELLER, author of "Catch-22" which became an American classic. He died Sunday night at the age of 76, from a heart attack. (REBROADCAST from 1/29/88)

REV.: Jazz critic KEVIN WHITEHEAD reviews "The Sweetest Punch" (Decca) guitarist Bill Frisell's new CD featuring the music of Elvis Costello and Burt Bacharach, and featuring Elvis Costello himself. INT. 2: Writer ALAN BALL. His first feature film screenplay was for this year's critically

Interview with Paul Sereno; Interview with David Levy; Commentary on Captain Beefhart and His Magic Band. December 15, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972885009].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Paleontologist PAUL SERENO of the University of Chicago. He recently unearthing Jobaria (Joe-BAR-ee-ah) and Suchomimus (sue-coe- MIME-us) -- two new rivals to Tyrannosaurus Rex in West Africa. They're two of the newest additions to the dinosaur family. INT. 2: Inventor and ex-magician DAVID LEVY. His inventions include a tiny keypad - the size of a credit card, a tattoo whose design can be changed at will, and a devise that seals severed arteries in one minute. In 1996, at MIT, he won the Lemelson-MIT Student Prize, which acknowledged him as one of the nation's premier young inventors. REV. : Rock historian ED WARD takes a look at the early years of the band that was alternative 30 years ago, "Captain Beefhart and His Magic Band."

Interview with Susan Sarandon; Commentary on books to give as holiday gifts. December 16, 1999. [Link to record with audio file http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/972884936].

Description of show segment(s)

INT. 1: Actress SUSAN SARANDON. She's currently starring in the new film "Anywhere But Here," and "Cradle Will Rock." Over her 30 years in films she's starred in "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" which became a cult classic, as well as "Atlantic City," "Thelma and Louise," "Bull Durham," "Dead Man Walking," and more. (THIS INTERVIEW CONTINUES INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE SHOW).INT. 2: SUSAN SARANDON continued.REV. : Book critic MAUREEN CORRIGAN give us her list of the best books to put on your Christmas list: Two British comic novels: "The Country Life" by Rachel Cusk"Headlong" by Michael FraynThe novels: "Waiting" by Ha Jin"Amy and Isabelle" by Elizabeth Strout Two short story collections: "The Way People Run" by Christopher Tilghman "The Best American Short Stories of the Century" edited by John Updike and Katrina KenisonThe mysteries:
"Lie in the Dark" by Dan Fesperman
"Motherless Brooklyn" by Jonathan Lethem
"Hard Time" by Sara Paretsky
Also: "Tis" by Frank McCourt
"Stiffed" by Susan Faludi
"Galileo's Daughter" by Dava Sobel.

