Abstract	Saint Joseph's Preparatory School is a Roman Catholic high school for boys in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania that was founded by Jesuit priests in 1851. It was established as a preparatory school for Saint Joseph's College (now University). The College and Preparatory School moved to Stiles Street and 17th Street in North Philadelphia in 1868. The College later moved to the Overbrook neighborhood of Philadelphia in 1927, while the Preparatory School remained at the North Philadelphia location. As of 2016, Saint Joseph's Preparatory School enrolls just under 1,000 male high school students. Many of the school's graduates have gone on to notable careers in government, business, and other areas. Saint Joseph's Preparatory School records, circa 1730-2016 (bulk 1890s-2016), consist of records and other materials from Saint Joseph's Preparatory School, records and materials relating to people associated with and the activities of the Gesu Parish, and materials documenting Jesuits, including those at the Church of the Gesu. The collection also includes administrative and financial records; publications; property, legal, and insurance materials; photographs, scrapbooks, and audiovisual materials; papers and other materials from people associated with Saint Joseph's Preparatory School

and the Gesu Parish; over two hundred relic authenticity certificates, 1730-1975, for Father Burchard Villiger's relic collection; and other documents.

Biography/History

Saint Joseph's Preparatory School is a Roman Catholic high school for boys in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania that was founded by Jesuit priests in 1851. It was established as a preparatory school for Saint Joseph's College (now University), which opened in September 1851 at Old Saint Joseph's on Willing's Alley in Old City Philadelphia, the oldest Catholic Church in Philadelphia. The College and Preparatory School moved to Stiles Street and 17th Street in North Philadelphia in 1868. The College later moved to the Overbrook neighborhood of Philadelphia in 1927, while the Preparatory School remained at the North Philadelphia location. A fire in 1966 destroyed some two-thirds of the Preparatory School buildings, which were replaced by a new structure in the square between Stiles Street and Girard Avenue, and between 17th Street and 18th Street. As of 2016, Saint Joseph's Preparatory School enrolls just under 1,000 male high school students. Many of the school's graduates have gone on to notable careers in government (including three Philadelphia mayors), business, and other areas.

The Church of the Gesu is a large Cathedralesque Roman Catholic church in North Philadelphia that was built from 1879 to 1888. Now part of St. Joseph's Preparatory School campus, it served as home of the Gesu Parish of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia until 1993. The church was originally built as part of a complex of buildings constructed for the move of Saint Joseph's College and Preparatory School from their original location at Old Saint Joseph's Church in Old City to North Philadelphia in 1868.

Father Burchard Villiger, S. J. (1816?-1903), a Swiss immigrant Jesuit priest who had served as director of studies at the original Saint Joseph's College when it opened in 1851, moved to the area near Girard Avenue and 17th Street in North Philadelphia in 1868. Intending to establish a "Catholic University of Philadelphia" at the site, Father Villiger began by founding the Parish of the Holy Family. He had a chapel, rectory, and parish school built in the late 1860s/early 1870s. In 1878 the parish name was changed from Holy Family to Gesu and in 1879 work began on the new Church of the Gesu. It was designed by noted Philadelphia ecclesiastical architect Edward F. Durang and modeled on the Church of the Gesu in Rome, Italy. The church was completed in 1888 and served as home of the Gesu Parish until the parish was closed by the Archdiocese of Philadelphia in 1993 and consolidated into nearby Saint Malachy's Parish. The Church of the Gesu then was taken over by Saint Joseph's Preparatory School, which maintains it as chapel for its students and for special events.

The Gesu School, originally the parish elementary school, is now an independent Catholic elementary school that is housed in a building owned by Saint Joseph's Preparatory School.

Scope and Contents

Access Restrictions

Contact Villiger Archives of Saint Joseph's Preparatory School for information about accessing this collection. Some materials may be restricted due to privacy concerns.

Processing Information Note

Summary descriptive information on this collection was compiled in 2014-2016 as part of a project conducted by the Historical Society of Pennsylvania to make better known and more accessible the largely hidden collections of small, primarily volunteer run repositories in the Philadelphia area. The Hidden Collections Initiative for Pennsylvania Small Archival Repositories (HCI-PSAR) was funded by a grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

This is a preliminary finding aid. No physical processing, rehousing, reorganizing, or folder listing was accomplished during the HCI-PSAR project.

In some cases, more detailed inventories or finding aids may be available on-site at the repository where this collection is held; please contact Villiger Archives of Saint Joseph's Preparatory School directly for more information.
